Large Trade on the Wellington, Grey & Bruce Railway.
(From a Correspondent.)
The evidences of advancement and enterprise on the line of the W. G. & B. Railway by the opening up of this fine northerly section were so remarkably manifested to-day by the traffic I witnessed in connection with my journey to this rising village, and the enquiries I have been led to make, that I cannot refrain from at once transmitting you a few particulars, which, I have no doubt, will greatly interest your readers.
The 11.45 train from Guelph, on which I travelled, brought 105 paying passengers and 14 car loads of merchandise, three of which were delivered at Fergus, three at Drayton, five at Harrison, and three at Clifford. At each of these points there were abundant evidences that large quantities of produce are stored awaiting shipment, although from each there is an average daily shipment of car loads of freight as follows: Fergus 5, Drayton 3, Harrison 5, and Clifford 6. Eight car loads left Clifford on Monday, and ten are ready to do so to-morrow (Wednesday). Seven, also, are waiting at Moorefield, and three at Drayton, while here, at Harrison, the average shipment already mentioned, and the fact of the present demand for freight cars being much larger than the supply, shows that this thriving and wondrously prosperous village is by no means behind its neighbours. An immense business, too, is being done in Clifford. I learn from Mr Dolmage, the energetic station master, that no less than six thousand bushels were purchased there this day (Tuesday) by Messrs Armstrong & Stewart, James Stron, David Dickson and J. S. Tolton, of Guelph, and Messrs W. Gordon, John Rogerson and Louis Zimmerman. Nothing can be more remarkable and satisfactory than these proofs of enterprise, more encouraging to those entreprising men whose energy and pluck have brought about these results. Verily Harrison and Clifford seem destined to become the Toronto and Hamilton of the North West, and if the W. G. & B. Company desire, as no doubt they do, to see this end attained, they would much facilitate it by providing a mixed through train daily instead of alternating. It would not be in the least too much. This evening Mr C. B. Lowe, the extensive grain buyer, gave an oyster supper at Markle's hotel to the everywhere popular conductor, Mr Quirk. The time was joyfully spent in toasting, specifying and singing by the invited guests.
I observe the jovial countenance of Mr George Anderson on the market here, busily and extensively buying grain.
TRAVELLER.

Suspected Larceny in Guelph.
In Wednesday's Globe there was a short paragraph to the effect that a young man had been on the preceding day offering goods in that city to a dealer much below their value, and a detective, fearing they had not been honestly come by, arrested him till he could examine into the circumstances. The Globe of this (Thursday) morning gives further explanations. It says:
"The young man Kelly, who, as stated in the Globe of yesterday, was arrested on suspicion of having stolen some dry goods that he was offering for sale at a surprisingly low price, comes from Guelph. He is still in custody. He appears very unconcerned with regard to the unenviable position he occupies, and in response to a question put to him yesterday, said that he guessed they'd had hard work proving him guilty of having stolen the goods."
We are sorry to say that the above is too true. Kelly will be brought before the Police Magistrate in Toronto to-day, when a full examination will be made into all the circumstances of the case. We are possession of all the facts connected with it, but think it better before giving them to wait the result of his examination. This much we may say, however, that the goods—several pieces of silk—belong to Mr Wm Stewart, and have been fully identified as his property. One piece was taken from his store on the 28th of last month, and six other pieces were taken between Saturday night and Monday morning of this week. It is a painful but imperative duty for us to give these facts. We sincerely regret the circumstance, both on account of the young man himself, who has hitherto borne a good character, but more especially on account of his family, who are old and respected residents of Guelph. The hourly expected death of one so good, and the disgrace of another by his own act, is a terrible blow which fortunately rarely occurs, and therefore calls the more for our sympathy and consideration, which we are sure are fully extended to them in this hour of affliction.

GRAND TRUNK TRAINS.—The mid-day express on the Grand Trunk, going west, which passed Guelph at 1.56 p.m. has been for the present discontinued.

BIBLE SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Guelph Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society will be held this evening in Chalmers' Church at 7.30 p.m. There will no doubt be a large attendance.

THE WATER IN THE NIAGARA RIVER last Saturday was the lowest it has been in several years. Were it not for the ice piled up, one might have walked by the water's edge, from the foot of the stairs at Wimer's mill, to Buttery's elevator. Such opportunities are very rare.

NEW COMMERCIAL AGENCY.—Messrs Murray, Middlemiss & Co have started a new Mercantile Agency, with their headquarters in Montreal. They lay claim to special consideration at the hands of merchants, from the fact that their's is a purely Canadian concern, and the only one.

THE LONDON FREE PRESS learns that the celebrated Pallman Car Company have purchased seventy-five acres of land, just outside the city, and adjoining the new works of the Michigan Car Co., for the purpose of manufacturing their splendid Palace Cars. This will introduce a new and valuable industry into the city, being another indication that in the matter of railways, London is destined to become a large mechanical centre.

SEIZURE OF ILLICIT DISTILLERY.—Mr. District Inspector Romain, accompanied by Constable Knowles, seized an illicit distillery in the Township of Normandy about nine miles above Mount Forest, on Tuesday 9th inst. There was a steam engine and boiler, and the usual apparatus, and a quantity of wort in course of fermentation, also a quantity of spirits and meal. The parties interested and carrying it on were J. M. Campbell, Geo. Grey, James Fields, Jun., and Alfred Fields. The engine, boiler, spirits and meal were removed to Mount Forest. The rest of the property was destroyed.

SCHOOLS IN ONTARIO.—A correspondent writing from Ayr, describes the want of capable school teachers in that part of the Province in which he resides. He states that in a single column of the Weekly Globe, of the 15th inst., there are no less than 20 advertisements for teachers, and that, in his own section, the Trustees had offered $400 for a first-class teacher, and as yet, had no application. This fact clearly shows one of two things—either that first-class teachers can earn more than $400 a year in other employments, or that there is, in reality, a dearth in the Province of men qualified to act as first-class teachers.

RIGHT ABOUT FACE.—Says the Galt Reformer—Your Conservative-Coalition-Independent gentleman has a faculty for accommodating himself to circumstances which is really refreshing. He has no scruples about Government policies or party associations. He can march against a Grit enemy with as stiff a lip as any, and fire his grape shot into the Opposition ranks as furiously as the best of them, but let the tide of battle turn, and at the order "right about face, wheel into line," he obeys the word of command with the readiness of a veteran, and turns his artillery upon his old friends as coolly as ever he did against his enemies. The Reporter is now shouldering the Grit musket as steadily as the best of us now, just as we prophesied some time ago. "Coming events cast their shadows before."

NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

MANITOWA ITEMS.—The following are extracts from a letter from Mr Duncan Morrison, late of East Williams, to Mr William Watson, of the same township, which we find in the London Advertiser. White fish and pike are very plentiful, and are much larger than those caught in Ontario. Crops have been very good. Wheat around the Portage Settlement has turned out forty bushel to the acre; barley six ty. Potatoes not so good as last year. The weather has been unusually dry. I have seen more rain fall in two hours in Ontario than I have seen here since I came to the Province. We had frost on the 14th June. Again on the 17th August, but not enough to do harm. The first snow fell 25th October, but did not last long. Lumber is very high, $35 per 1,000ft, and poor stuff at that. The markets are as follows: Wheat, $1 per bushel; barley, 75 cents; potatoes, 37c; oats, $1; peas, $1.50; beef, 12c per lb; pork, 20c per lb; pneumonia, 25c per lb; the latter commodity we are all very fond of.

THE PULSE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.
—To keep a record of its changes is Dr Gull's special province, and it is done by a wonderful new instrument recently invented, which is more unerring than the reckoning of the most skillful physician could possibly be made. The instrument is like a small thermometer, about two inches or two and a half long; it is placed on the left side of the patient, rather under the arm, who must remain quite motionless for ten minutes. The indicator is then removed, when the mercury will be found to point to the number of beats which the pulse makes; and thus by registering these numbers each morning, a glance at the figures will show the variations from the commencement of the illness.

HENRY WARD BEECHER ON NOBILITY OF CHARACTER.—Herein is the true secret of the nobility of character. The habit of acting from the highest consideration is that which makes a man noble. Nobility may be conferred upon men in only one way. The recognition of it may be conferred upon them. The king lays his sword on a man's shoulder and calls him a knight; but he was a knight before he was knighted, or he would not have received the title. It was the heroic endurance, the death-defying courage, the skill and the coolness with which he achieved his notable deeds, that made him knight. He was in himself royal and noble, and the king seeing it, said to all men, "I see it," when he laid his sword on his shoulder. The thing itself was wrought out. If you make nobility hereditary, see to it that you bring up your children to be as noble as their fathers were. Otherwise, nobility becomes a mere occasion. "For nobles are oftentimes monkey, they themselves being clods. And where kingship, or earliship, or knightship, descends, as a matter of course, it may or it may not descend nobly. We have families in America that from fathers to sons are noble, all of them having the same superior traits and excellences; and those families are noble. Nobility is the power of doing everything, little or great, from the highest motive. It is not merely doing hard things. Many people seem to think that nobility consists in doing something that other people can not do; but it consists in bringing to bear motives which common and vulgar men do not know how to use."
Herald of Health.

"Which is Correct."
TO THE EDITOR OF THE MERCURY.
SIR: In your issue of yesterday I read, with much surprise, that a "veteran" had so far forgotten his gallantry, as to call in question the French education of the "Tableaux" Committee.
He suggests that the word "vivants" should have been spelled "vivants," but, with becoming deference, he hopes that if in error he will be corrected.
A recent, but intimate acquaintance, with French grammar, enables me, with the utmost confidence, and yet with that humility so peculiar to youth, to assert that the "Veteran" is wrong in his orthography, and that the word "vivant" forms its plural by the addition of an "s" and not by changing the termination "ant" into "ans."
JENNESSE SAVANTE.
Guelph, Jan. 11th, 1872.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE MERCURY.
SIR,—"Veteran's" mode of forming the feminine plural of French adjectives is surely a new one. The general rule for the formation of the plural is to add s to the singular, but in the masculine there are various exceptions. The feminine admits of no exception. The feminine plural, therefore, of "vivant" must be vivantes, I have never before seen it questioned. With reference to the masculine, I am a ware that the "t" is sometimes omitted, but this omission has not the sanction of the best authorities.—Prof. Delille, an eminent French grammarian, says:—"Some authors omit the final 't' in the plural of all words (substantives or adjectives) of more than one syllable, ending in ant or ent, and write enfans, momens, &c., but the French Academy, the best modern grammarians, as well as the principal printers in Paris, retain that letter. Indeed there is no reason why it should be omitted." He then gives his reasons, but it is not necessary to occupy your page with them.
I am, dear sir,
Yours truly,
R. G.

MANITOWA ITEMS.—The following are extracts from a letter from Mr Duncan Morrison, late of East Williams, to Mr William Watson, of the same township, which we find in the London Advertiser. White fish and pike are very plentiful, and are much larger than those caught in Ontario. Crops have been very good. Wheat around the Portage Settlement has turned out forty bushel to the acre; barley six ty. Potatoes not so good as last year. The weather has been unusually dry. I have seen more rain fall in two hours in Ontario than I have seen here since I came to the Province. We had frost on the 14th June. Again on the 17th August, but not enough to do harm. The first snow fell 25th October, but did not last long. Lumber is very high, $35 per 1,000ft, and poor stuff at that. The markets are as follows: Wheat, $1 per bushel; barley, 75 cents; potatoes, 37c; oats, $1; peas, $1.50; beef, 12c per lb; pork, 20c per lb; pneumonia, 25c per lb; the latter commodity we are all very fond of.

—To keep a record of its changes is Dr Gull's special province, and it is done by a wonderful new instrument recently invented, which is more unerring than the reckoning of the most skillful physician could possibly be made. The instrument is like a small thermometer, about two inches or two and a half long; it is placed on the left side of the patient, rather under the arm, who must remain quite motionless for ten minutes. The indicator is then removed, when the mercury will be found to point to the number of beats which the pulse makes; and thus by registering these numbers each morning, a glance at the figures will show the variations from the commencement of the illness.

HENRY WARD BEECHER ON NOBILITY OF CHARACTER.—Herein is the true secret of the nobility of character. The habit of acting from the highest consideration is that which makes a man noble. Nobility may be conferred upon men in only one way. The recognition of it may be conferred upon them. The king lays his sword on a man's shoulder and calls him a knight; but he was a knight before he was knighted, or he would not have received the title. It was the heroic endurance, the death-defying courage, the skill and the coolness with which he achieved his notable deeds, that made him knight. He was in himself royal and noble, and the king seeing it, said to all men, "I see it," when he laid his sword on his shoulder. The thing itself was wrought out. If you make nobility hereditary, see to it that you bring up your children to be as noble as their fathers were. Otherwise, nobility becomes a mere occasion. "For nobles are oftentimes monkey, they themselves being clods. And where kingship, or earliship, or knightship, descends, as a matter of course, it may or it may not descend nobly. We have families in America that from fathers to sons are noble, all of them having the same superior traits and excellences; and those families are noble. Nobility is the power of doing everything, little or great, from the highest motive. It is not merely doing hard things. Many people seem to think that nobility consists in doing something that other people can not do; but it consists in bringing to bear motives which common and vulgar men do not know how to use."

THE HERALD AND THE GOVERNMENT.—The best answer to the Herald which we can give in regard to the Blake Reform Government, is to refer him to the speech delivered by Mr. Scott, at Ottawa, on the day of his domination.

THE GODERICH SIGNAL is informed that if proper encouragement were offered, a branch of the W. G. & B. line would be constructed to Goderich. Besides diverting a share of the traffic which now goes to other places it would give a new route to the east, and the people of that town would be much better served with two railways than with one.

THE LONDON WEEKLY ADVERTISER has now a circulation of over 5,000. We congratulate our contemporary on this well deserved mark of public favor. Next to the Advertiser, the Weekly Mercury has the largest circulation of any paper in Ontario, outside the cities.

TYPHOID OR TYPHUS FEVER.—The public has manifested a natural curiosity as to the distinction of these two diseases, the popular belief being that they are either varieties of or different stages of the same affection. This is an error, for they are two separate diseases, varying in their origin, course, and in the morbid changes which they induce in the body. It has arisen from a faulty designation having been adopted in the word typhoid, which literally signifies "of the typhus type," although in many cases no such resemblance exists, while in all the disease has its own characteristics quite distinct from typhus. The difficulty of getting rid of a bad name when once adopted is here well illustrated; for although other names far more appropriate have been proposed, and which would prevent the confusion of two separate diseases, yet none of these have been more than partially adopted. Those which have met with the most favour are enteric fever and pythogenic fever. The former, derived from the Greek word enteron, an intestine, has been adopted as expressing the symptoms and changed condition referable to the intestinal canal, which form very distinctive features in this disease. Dr. Murchison, fearing that the adoption of this term might lead many to believe that the fever is the result of this morbid condition of the intestinal canal, whereas this is only a slight arising from the febrile condition, proposed, in his classical work on fevers, the term pythogenic. This is derived from a Greek word, to purify, and is intended to indicate the most frequent origin of the disease, in the breathing of polluted air. A long time will probably elapse before higher appellations displace the erroneous term typhoid; but in the meantime, the public should bear in mind that this expresses morbid conditions entirely different from those of typhus.—Times.

FIRE IN HAMILTON.—On Wednesday morning about ten o'clock, a fire broke out in the wholesale hardware establishment of Messrs McEivern & Co, originating in the collar, and no distance from a large quantity of inflammable materials. The fire was caused by a pecker, who had been sent down for oil, lighting a match to see whether he was at the right barrel, and then throwing it on the floor, which was saturated with oil. The floor at once ignited, and had it not been for the timely aid of the Fire Brigade, would have caused the destruction of one of the finest buildings in that city. Fortunately it was put out before much damage was done. The loss sustained is amply covered by insurance.

TRIED FOR MURDER.—The trial of John Travis for the murder on the 23rd of last November of John Johnston, a farmer in the Township of East Gwillimbury, commenced on Wednesday morning at the Assizes, in Toronto, before the Hon. Mr. Justice Wilson, a number of witnesses were examined in regard to the tragedy.

STEAMERS ARRIVED.—The steamers North American and Moravian, belonging to the Allan Line, which sailed on the 21st and 24th ult from Liverpool, and about whose arrival no little anxiety was felt, reached St. John's, Newfoundland, on the 10th, short of coal.

FIRE AT KINGSTON.—The dwelling house of David Small, tailor, on Princess street, was burned on Tuesday morning. The fire is supposed to have originated in the top flue of the chimney. Loss about $1,000; insured for $850.

HELEN MOIR

OR
Love and Honour.

A TALE OF THE CLYDE.

CHAPTER I.

A NIGHT OF AGONY—A VISIT TO GLENFERRIE—A TALE OF SORROW.

"I mean, back about twenty years ago for a beginning," she said, "and at that time you would have presented the winsome sight of a well-twa-dae hill farmer's place. Forbye the cottage, wi' its two ends, there was a barn and a byre, and a bonny garden full o' flowers and beseeps. Tammas Moir, the tenant o' the place, was then a man o' fifty or so, a birdly well-faired man, decent, God-fearn', and an elder o' the Kirk. His wife had been dead for many years, but he had a dochter, as bonnie as ever brushed the dew off the heather, and as guid as she was bonny. She was about twenty then, and a happier or mair light-warded creature didna trip the glen. And guid richt had she ta be, for she was pure as dew-drap and guileless as the lambs that frisk on the lee in spring; and yet—and yet, poor dearie! for a' her happiness and innocence her fate was dark and sad. Did ye speak sir?"

"No—no—pray go on, I—I am interested, much interested."
It was a heavy sigh approaching to a suppressed groan from Bridgenorth which had caused her to put the sudden question. Could she have seen his white, bloodless face she might have had a suspicion that he was more than "interested" but, concealing it still more by his hand, he made a desperate effort to restrain his emotion, and urged her to proceed.

"Her fate was dark and sad, you say. Tell me how that was."
"I mind weel the begonia' o' that which brought the grief an' sorrow," she went on, "it was a bonny mornin' day, just like this when happenin' ta look out at the window, I saw Helen Moir by the side o' the burn, and a young man comin' up the glen. It was naught to cause either curiosity or concern, for he could I or her think that sic terrible consequences were to follow that chance meetin'! When the youth came near and saw her, he stopp'd like one struck. He stood gazin' at her a minute or twa afore she saw him. Then she lifted up her heid frae pickin' the gowans and maybe in her surprise she ceased the sang she was singin' 'twae herseel'; for it was a habit o' hers ta be singin' like a lullie when she was a' her lane. That is natural, ye see, ta our happy-hearted lassies like her. Sae its mair than probable that she was dancin' it then, and that the scoon o' her lilt voice first drew the stranger's attention."

"It was—yes, it was, murmured Bridgenorth, in a tone which again caused the woman to stop, and gaze towards him in surprise.
"I—I mean, it was very natural—very kely," he hastened to observe.
"At onyrate," she resumed, "see since as Helen lifted up her heid and saw him, he went forrit to where she sat and spoke ta her. Then I saw him thrave himself on the grass beside her, and for a lang time they cracked together. Then he went away, but in a day or twa he cam' again, and the intimacy grew and grew till the youth was up the glen every day; and Tammas Moir didna forbid his comin', for, though he was an English lad, he was nae a young man as ye could see, and took the heart o' a body by his bright face and his frank, generous, honest ways."

"It was some easy ta see that he and Helen loved lik tither, and it was nae news to me when, wi' a blushin' but happy face, she telled me that he had asked her to be his wife, and that she had promised. Her father was quite agreeable, ta, and the short and lang o' it was that they were married, and the last—Maister Winthrop he was ca'd—cam to live at the cottage wi' Helen and her father. Ten happy months followed, through which they were lookin' forrit ta gain the England, where, I fancy, Maister Winthrop had rich friends, and ta be puttin into a farm or somethin' o' that kind. He went awa' by himself ta get things prepared, as I understand, but, wa's ma they never met ane anither again for he took suddenly ill and de'd, and—"
"De'd, did you say he de'd?" exclaimed Bridgenorth, almost startling from his chair.
"Alack, yes, he de'd somewhere about England. The news was tell'd ta Helen at on a sudden, and the blow killed her. The day o' that calamity I'll never forget. Ritchie Dunlop, their shepherd, cam runnin' ower for me at three o'clock in the mornin', the tears streamin' down his cheeks, for he had been lang wi' the Moirs, and was much attacked ta them. And oh wae! wa' were the news he brocht. The tidings had come the night afore, he said, o' the death o' Maister Winthrop and puttin pur Helen distracted. Her sense left her, she screamed and raved in the wildest manner, and afore the doctor could be brocht frae Dunoon, the poor dear lammie had gane ta her rest, and the bairn that she bore in her last ony was an orphan in the first 'oor o' its infancy. Ye are moved by the tale, sir, but that shows ye hae a warm human heart, ken mine was like ta be break at the sight o' the deid mother lyin' on the bed and the air in lant cryin' in its helplessness. If it hadna been that I had the first ta care for at that time, I think I wad hae sunk aither wi' sorrow."

"Did the child live then?" asked Bridgenorth hastily.
"Ay, sir, it did—it hath lived and thrive, sir. But frae that day Tammas Moir could na be said ever ta lift his heid. He lived for ten years a-bairn, and the bit lass—"

FELLOWS
HYPHOSPHITES

All life-endowed bodies, whether of men, women, and children, are composed of the same elements, and the same laws govern their organization and their functions. The principal elements of their constitution are the brain, the nerves, and the muscles. The brain is the seat of the intellect, and the nerves are the channels of communication between the brain and the muscles. The muscles are the instruments of motion, and they derive their energy from the food which is taken into the system. It is therefore evident that the health and strength of the body depend upon the proper functioning of these three elements. The Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is a powerful tonic which acts upon all three of these elements, and it is therefore a most valuable remedy for all cases of weakness and debility.
