The religious education of the young is an acknowledged moral obligation at least. But the grand end of this training is Spiritual, and hence comes not within the sphere of the state, but the Church, upon which the great responsibility rests. The Sunday School should side by side with the prayer, conference or class meetings as ecclesiastical essentials. Each demanded the same recognition from the Church and the individual Christian.

Until we came to Tobolsk there was still some civilization about and around us: But after that we received a foretaste of the horrors we were about to witness. For days we dragged along in a miserable carriage without meeting anything or anybody except the lonely Govenrment posts, with their stupid 'Starost' and his subordinate Cossacks. At last we saw in the distance a towering mountain, and within its cleft side a colossal opening, similar tance a towering mountain, and within its cleft side a colossal opening, similar here? I asked. He looked up shyly, to the pit of a volcano. From within foul air and disagreeable smells saluted our nostrils, and for some time we had to draw our breath hard. With our pocket handkerchiefs crammed in our mouths, we entered the gigantic mouth of the rock. From the walls dirty was to the prisoner? I asked. He looked up shyly, almost frightened, and continued his work.

'The prisoners are forbidden to speak about the cause of their exile,' the Inspector informed me.

'Who is the prisoner?' I asked our of the rock. The establishment was about as filthy as any habitation for human beings can well be. The furniture "Well,' he asked, 'what impression beings can well be. The furniture consisted only of a few rough benches has our institution made upon you?" and a table. In front of its door a double file of muskets were stacked, between which a bearded Cossack marched up and down. We showed our letters to the young officer of the day, who regarded us wonderingly—searchingly. He seemed at a loss to understand the granting of a privilege so seldom sought and so rarely worked. He seemed delighted, and remarked ironically: 'Our boys below work diligently, do they not?'

Pestilential miasmas filled the air; and, in spite of a good fur cloak—the gift of a friend in Moscow—I actually shook with cold. The darkness was so intense that neither of us could see the other.

We had gone on perhaps ten minutes when I perceived, far in the distance, the trembling, uncertain glimmer of a light; and I lelt sure that we were approaching the mine proper. The ground became softer and more slimy, the cold more penetrating. At every step we sank into the morass for several inches, and there was a smell of putrefaction, as in a charnel house.

If the following is not a hoax, which notwithstanding the respectability of the paper in which it appears, there are some internal reasons for believing, it is certainly a dreadful story, and calls more for interference on the part of civilized nations than the atrocities of Cetewayo or the barbarities of the Turks. A country where such an institution exists should be outlawed, and a Cari in whose name it is carried on should be excluded from intercourse with Christian courts:

Beelin, Aug. 7.—If a person of sane mind were to inform you of his or her intention to spend a vacation in Siberia, you would undoutedly smile audibly, and opine that the party making so audacious an assertion would be a fit subject for the lunatic asylum. Still, I am bound to confess that I have just returned from a trip to that Arctic region, where I made quite a stay, in company with my friend Robert Lemanke, the eminent political economist, and however earnest we might have been in twoigh the land of the Nihilists, and however earnest we might have been in our desire to discover important information, all our efforts would have been in vain, had not an influential American at St. Petersburg, whose name I have promised not to mention, given us such letters of introduction?

Since. This mountain, known as In golo, is an enormous one, it ts more than two miles above its base, and is about as lefgh as Stone Mountain. Some months ago a thundering noise was heard, as if a lively earthquake had suddenly commenced operations. A gentleman who was going by the Ingolo Mountain looked toward it, and was amazed to see fully one-third of the rest and suddenly vanish into the earth beneath, carrying with it immense identity, so far as he was concerned. For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing

A dressing A dressing which is at once a gree a ble, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to discontinuous color, with the gloss and freshmess of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness offen, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its cocasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor day, it does not soil white campic, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.
