"Not as I Will." Blindfolded and alone I stand; With unknown thresholds on each hand; The darkness deepens as I grope, Afraid to fear, afraid to hope, Yet this one thing I learn to know Each day more surely as I go; That doors are opened, ways are made, Burdens are lifted, or are laid By some great law unseen and still.

Loss seems too bitter; gain too late; Too heavy burdens in the load. Too few the helpers on the road; And joy is weak, and grief is strong, And years and days so long, so long Yet this one thing I long to know Each day more surely as I go. That I am glad the good and ill By changeless laws are ordered still.

" Not as I will." "Not as I will;" the sound grows sweet Each time my lips the words repeat. Like whispered voice to calm and bless All unrest and all loneliness. " Not as I will;" because the One Who loves us first and best has gone Before us on the road, and still For us must all his love fulfil.

The Advocate makes the following statement, which, were it not for the veracity of its editor, we should be disposed to doubt. It is certainly one of the most remarkable occurrences in the newspaper profession of which there is any record. What could have actuated the subscribers in acting in this extra-ordinary manner does not appear, though it is to be hoped that the renewal of this incient custom will be permanent.
