Revelation is both a rule for sovereigns and subjects; and hence we are as fully informed as to the means and manner of making our country a blessing to ourselves, and the world, as we are and acquiring the rewards of virtue. It is in view of these responsibilities that we have asked How ought Mind to be cultivated?" The first point worthy of notice is, that our physical position suggests an idea of culture c sponding with its facts and circumstances. If the reader will open a map of the Western Hemliarities of form, and that these contrast strik-ingly with the figure of the Eastern Continent. Availing hitself of the aid of physical geography, in the prosecution of this train of thought, he will learn that while the Old World is marked by variety in the disposition of its surf dryness of climate and adaptation to anim. the New World is characterized by much gra prevalence of vegetation. He will see how mou tain chains follow the oceanic line, opening the country north and south, allowing a free circulation of wind and vapor, and inviting emigration, elsewhere impeded by natural barriers, to expand itself in easy channels of movement. Taken in its simplest aspects, in its means of physical civ-ilization, where shall we find any thing approaching a parallel on the globe? If nature ever puts a prophecy in rivers, plains, and mountains; if her mighty chemistry works on through silen centuries for the future uses of man if she does stamp the rock with the symbols of a language and write in for the good of the world and t language, institutions, and pursuits should contribute to the same end. Men are not left in doubt as to the unity of their origin and nature. Sufficient proof of this fact having been presented both to the eye and to the mind, a wide scope has been given for various.

Losses are pare in the contribute to the same end. Men are not left in doubt as to the unity of their origin and nature. Sufficient proof of this fact having been presented both to the eye and to the mind, a wide scope has been given for various it is philosophy in its profound applications to practical ends. Whoever thinks that a bare practical ends. Whoever thinks that a bare utilitarianism is the sum and substance of all Such views have a practical value. If we this close contact with material agencies, read are indebted to the instructions of abstract only the surface, and loses the truth dwelling philosophy for their introduction into the social science of the age, let us not forget that Christianity first taught these truths. But for it men could never have generalized with any satisfactory results. It, alone has lifted them to the senses. The world is kindly put on guard against steam-engines and factory. above the narrow horizon of the senses, and, by faith, extended their intellectual vision over thines. Correspondence. BY SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO Colonial Empire. The following highly important information was received at the office of the " Colonial Empire" on Saturday evening, at too late an hour for publication. NEW YORK, March 30. General MIRAMON, late President of Mexico, has arrived here, and is said to be en route to Madrid, to urge upon Spain the re-conquest of Mexico.

The numbers stood,-for, 38; against, 72. The Ministry were also asked by the Opposition, "if othing had been said about Representation, had been ignored? The substance of the answer the Prince of Wales, the feelings of large classes of Her Majesty's subjects were insulted, their rights, ignored, and much political and refigious will be larger.

Mr. Stotte had another question to ask.—
He had been a colleague of ministers when they initiated the discussion of Federation. Were they about to communicate to the House anything on that subject? It was said that the Duke of New-castle had been busy preparing a scheme.

Hon. Mr. Cartier did not remember that there was any further correspondence on the subject. The Government knew nothing of any plan the Duke of Newcastle might have formed.

IC ARCHIVES OF NOVA SCOTI

Our demand is for better homes, for the reason thay may be better temples for the indwelling of divine beauty. Yet this does not cover the whole subject of human relations. It is much—not all. The finger of Providence points farther—higher. We need a more thorough, expansive, genial education. It ought to be different in degree as well as in kind from what is now the prevailing fashion. Admitting with glad thankfulness that education has done a great and good work, we cannot be insensible to the fact, that, tried by a correct standard it has not attained its end to the correct standard, it has not attained its end to the extent it should have done. If education is extent it should have done. If education is God's institution as every one must admit, if it is charged with the sacred responsibility of moulding mind and character, if it is its glorious office to put human beings on the right path of progress and supply no small share of those impulses which are both to stimulate and control its future movements, if such is the acknowledged and accepted theory of education, why does it so often fail in executing its purpose? The nature of the materials on which it works, the infirmities and vices rooted within us, must, of course, be taken into the account. Giving these a due weight in our estimate of practical results, and sympathizing heartily with the many earnest and devoted spirits toiling in this department of philanthropic service, we can not resist the conclusion that our systems of education fall far short of meeting the demands enlightened reason and Christian revelation have on them. Do what they may, education must be, to a large extent, the individual's own act in after years. This is providential law, and cannot be set aside. Nevertheless, education, as popularly considered in connection with schools and colleges, has a most important province to fill. It is supplied with instruments to accomplish its task. It has time and opportunity to employ its agencies. Yet it frequently misses its aim, and leaves its subject, in many cases, either unqualified or disqualified for a true and noble career.

It is a common frailty to expect too much of men and their systems. The cant of the day is extravagant. and ridiculous & its claims, ignoring difficulties it ought to allow for, and magnify. God's institution as every one must admit, if it

It is a common frailty to expect too much of men and their systems. The cant of the day is extravagant and ridiculous in its claims, ignoring difficulties it ought to allow for, and magnifying the machinery of means out of all just and true proportions. Granting all this, we have a right to demand that education shall, at least, start the germs of development, and, as a general rule train its subject so that he shall have ral rule, train its subject so that he shall have both the ability and the disposition to train him-self in subsequent life. But how many retire from our institutions of learning fitted in any high sense to do this work? We can count men by scores, within the circle of our own acquaintance, who have come away from college with a positive distaste for all study; men without any ove for books, having no sort of affinity with cultivated society. Others, rising a few grades above these, are utterly insensible to the intellectual and moral incitements of the time, and drift with the age in passive obedience to the momentum of its current. Selecting the best class of these so-called educated men, few go in-to the world alive to the serious claims of the day on thinking minds, and fervently in unison with the heart of Providence. With too many the vain Diploma is the last chapter of their mental biography; "finis," mournful "finis," might be stamped on the parchment; or, indeed, the whole thing might be regarded as a classical inscription on sepulchred brains.

Various improvements might be introduced into the machinery of popular education. Textbooks, especially, might be made something more than dull collections of facts and principles—wirebound skeletons of science. The knowledge is vitality were infused into it. But it is the living teacher that needs a broader ad work. By him is the student to be awakened and disciplined. Diagrams, illustrative experiments, books, are far inferior to him in their relations to mental culture. Every student should be taught to feel that real education begins where acquisition ends, and in this higher development, opening so vast a field for the intense exercise of all his more sympathetic and inspiring faculties, the teacher ought to rise to the dignity of his position. Too much of our learning is for this reason a cold, inert thing. Had we men like DAVE, CHALMERS, WILSON, who could combine exactness with impulsive energy—who could be scientific in statement, in argument, in detail, and yet carry the fervor of a glowing soul into all their efforts—who could collect ample materials for the exposition of a great topic but think them of little worth until they had been fused into a liv-ing mass—what an office of power and glory this might be made! Teaching is a ministry. It is the pulpit of the natural, social world; and though destitute of the sanctity, the divine impressiveness of the Sabbath pulpit, yet, next to that, it is entitled to reverence. Such a sentiment ought to animate the hearts of those who fill this vocation; such a sentiment ought to be cherished in society toward them; and thus, set apart by the homage of public opinion to this hallowed work, and consecrating to it their talents and enthusiasm, they would soon find their geand enthusiasm, they would soon find their generout ardor and fruitful genius reappearing in their information obtained on application to the undersigned Committee of the Common Council, JOHN WILSON, Jr.,

Our folly, we hope, has calumniated, and we ought now to he prepared, by the failure of ambitious experiments on impossibilities, to form a a sensible ideal of what scholarship ought to be.

And what should it be? A scholarship suitable to the three-fold sovereignty of intellectual, so-cial political rule; a scholarship in which sci-ence, art, and literature shall be solordinate to manhood because of the position, scope, and bear-The Business will be continued by Charles E. Sobriety of judgment, free from frozen stiffness; accuracy without morbid pedantry; boldness chastened by charity; cordiality without slavish fawning; energy, and not recklessness; fertility without a crop of tares mixed with the genuine grain; the present in harmony with the past, and the future as a product of both, souls as well as brains; worldly adaptations without worldly corruptions; religion preserved from legrading superstitions on the one band. out worldly corruptions; religion preserved from degrading superstitions on the one hand, and from the evils of excessive sectarianism on the other—these are the qualities that, ought to distinguish our scholarsip because of their relation to the liberated mind, bounding heart, and manifold opportunities of our country Compare our cultivated intellect with this standard. Take our best educated men; the majority of them are scholars, mere scholars, chained down to college-chairs, or, if in the world, dwelling apart from their fellows, and lost to the active service of their countrymen. They half-souled scholarship is that which, amidst the restless, sweeping, heaving tides of this century, is only seen and felt in the waif that floats upon their waters! Look at another class. They are fresh, earnest, hearty thinkers, abounding with large ideas, and giftad with commanding utterance. Three-fourths of them are ultraists. They ance. Three-fourths of them are ultraists. They breathe out fire. Their images leap from volcanoes, and they fight with sword-flames. These men exert influence. You can trace that influence. You can trace that influence in much of the feeling and writing of the day. CARLYLE has taken possession of some of them bodily. They are panting for a heroic age—convulsed with a passion for crusades. Others, not quite so sturdy, try to feed on their pabulum, and get, for their pains, a cramp-colic in their non-digesting skulls. All this is humiliating enough. It is a shame on our cultivated intellect that so much of it is found either in the one extreme of indifference or in the other extreme of over-excitement. Yet this is, to a great extent, the state of the case. The middle ground between these extremes is occupied by a decreasing number of men, who are too often sneered at and despised. What a commentary on our cultivation is read in these facts! Now, it must strike every thoughtful mind that what we urgently need is the solution of the problem, viz.: Can we have earnestness without extravagance, imagination without wild romance, talent in full strength, and genius in vigorous might, without vehemence and rashness? This is the pressing problem for our education to solve. Advancing nore than now, have men needed the serene faith that restrains reason within its just limits moderates zeal, destroys arrogance, presumption

Supreme Court in Equity. pe sold at Public Auction on Saturday the 27th day of April next, at Eleven of the clock, in the new method of feeding the log, by which the spurrells are superceded, and the consequent waste and lamage done to lumber, amounting to from one to two and a half per cent. is saved.

The log is also more firmly and securely held and fed forward with more certainty and uniformity, thereby improving the manufacture, increasing the quantity sawn, and reducing the risk of breaking of Machinery.

Saint John, with the approbation, and under the direction of the undersigned, pursuant to a Decretal order of the Supreme Court in Equity, made the second day of January inst., in a certain cause, wherein Edmund Kaye is Plaintin and George Young is Defendant.

HE Land and Premises mentioned in a certain indenture of mortgage, bearing date the fifth day of January, A. D., 1857, and made between Welter Brown and Margaret his wife, and Alexbour, the more rapid movement of the table enables them to edge a much larger quantity of lumber and with much greater economy, literally doing away with the "haste that makes waste."

These improvements may be attached to with but little alteration and moderate expense.

Medical.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS Are you sick, feeble, and compaining? Are you out of order, with your system deranged, and your feelings uncomfortable? These symptoms are often the prelude to serious illness. Some fit of sickness is creeping upon you, and should be averted by a timely use of the right remedy. Take Ayer's Pills, and cleanse out the disordered humors—pu-rify the blood, and let the fluids move on unobstructed in health again. They stimulate the func-tions of the body into vigorous activity, purify the system from the obstructions which make dis ease. A cold settles somewhere in the body, and obstructs its natural functions. These, if not relieved, react upon themselves and the surrounding organs, producing general aggravation, suitering, and disease. While in this condition, oppressed by the derangements, take Ayer's Pills, and see how by the derangements, take Ayer's Pills, and see how directly they restore the natural action of the system and with it the buoyant feeling of health again. What is true and so apparent in this trivial and common complaint, is also true in many of the deep seuted and dangerous distempers. The same purgative effect expels them. Caused by similar obstructions and derangements of the natural functions of the body, they are rapidly, and many of them surely, cured by the same means. None who know the virtues of these Pills, will neglect to employ them when suffering from the disorders they cure.

From a Forwarding Merchant of St. Louis, Feb 4, 1856,

Dr. Ayer; Your Pills are the paragon of all that is great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had proved incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and in her hair. After our child was caused she also tried your Pills and thus have was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have ASA MORGRIDGE.

As a Family Physic.

From Dr. E. W. Cartwright, New Orleans.
Your Pills are the prince of purges, Their excellent qualities surpass any cathartic we possess. They are mild, but very certain and effectual in their action on the bowels, which makes them invaluable, to us in the daily treatment of disease. Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach.

From Dr. Edward Boyd, Baltimore.

Dear Bro, Ayer: I cannot answer you what complaints I have cured with your Pills better than to say all that we ever treat with a purgative medicine

I place great dependence on an effectual cathartic in my daily contest with disease, and believing as I do that your Pills afford us the best we have, I of course value them highly.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May'l, 1855. DR. J. C. AYER. Sir: I have been repeatedly cured of the worst headache any body can have, by a dose or two of your Pills. It seems to arise from a foul stomach, which they cleanse at once.

Yours with great respect, • ED. W. PREBLE

Clerk of Steamer Clarion. Bilious Disorders - Liver Complaints.

From Dr. Theodore Bell, of New Fork City.

Not only are your Pills admirably adapted to their not only are your Pills admirably adapted to their purpose as an aperient, but I find their beneficial effect upon the Liver very marked indeed. They have in my practice proved more effectual for the care of billous complaints than any one remedy I can mention. I sincerely rejoice that we have at length a purgative which is worthy the confidence of the profession and the people.

Too much cannot be said of your Pills for the cure of Costiveness. If others of our traternity have found them as efficacious as I have, they should join me in proclaiming it for the benefit of others that are worse. I believe Costiveness to originate in the liver, but your Pills affect that of gan and cure the disease. I find one or two large doses of your Pills, taken it the proper time, are excellent promotives of the
