GREAT CHANGES AT CARLETON, QUE.

Wonderful Improvements Last Fifty Years Due Improved Agricultural Methods

At confederation and previous and a few years after, the people of Carleton one of the oldest parishes in the Baie des Chaleurs, did some farming; but a great deal of interest was taken in fishing. The late John Meagher, who owned several vessels, carried on a large herring trade with Boston, U. S. Shortly after confederation, William and Alexander Petrie, of Sligo, Ireland, did a big business in herring at Carleton, and D. W. Hoegs, Portland, U. S., put up a large shed on the Carleton Beach, and lobster canning was done on a large scale by him. An attempt was made also at that time to catch porpoises with nets. Schooners were built in Carleton in past years.

At confederation the people of Miqusha, Nouvelle and St. Omer, travelled to Carleton, on Sundays to attend service. To-day, they have large churches at Nouvelle, St. Omer and one at St. Louis.

At confederation there were few stores, and the main business was done by the late John Meagher, who had stores at Carleton, Maria and Nouvelle. At Carleton he had associated with him Mr. John Cullen, of Carleton, who was in his employ during 21 years. Mr. Charles Cyr, Quebec and Mr. Chas. H. LaBillette, Dalhousie, N. B. The latter having been adopted by his grand uncle, Mr. John Meagher, after the death of his mother and serious illness of his late father, who was Postmaster at Dalhousie. At Maria the business there was conducted by Mr. W. H. Clapperton of Maria, and at Nouvelle by the late John LaBillette.

The late Mr. John Meagher, who represented the Co. of Bonaventure, before Confederation, took great interest in politics all his life, and it is not surprising if his clerks made an attempt to serve their country in a political way. Mr. W. H. Clapperton, who was unsuccessful, when he opposed the late Hon. Dr. Robitaille, for the Commons, later represented the Co. of Bonaventure, in the Legislative Assembly, at Quebec. Mr. John Cullen's name was often mentioned as the right man to enter the large field of politics; but he preferred the humble position, and for many years rendered valuable service in the Municipal Council. Mr. Charles Cyr contested

CLASS PROPHECY, 1917

The other day Father Time took me by the hand and rushed me along through space till I fairly gasped for breath. "Stop, stop I cried. I never stop," said Father Time. Leave me then," I said, "and come back for me."

"I never turn back" he shouted over his shoulder as he rushed on. "Where am I?" I wondered for the place looked somehow familiar, yet different from any other town I ever had known. I walked along a paved sidewalk, shaded with beautiful maples, till I came to a corner where I had a better view of my surroundings. A mountain that I had seen every morning for one happy year of my life, rose in its beauty just beyond the town.

"Why this must be Campbellton" I said "for I would know the Sugar-leaf anywhere."

As I strolled along I came to the house where I had lived. Thoughtlessly I walked up the steps, opened the door and walked in. Then I realized my error. This was no longer my home, and I was about to make a hasty retreat when a lady sitting in a rocker, absorbed in a new magazine observed me.

I went in to make my apologies. Something in the appearance of the little woman brought back memories of my school-days, yet I could not remember hearing of any of my former friends having desired to be the mistress in a paragon, till I heard the words addressed to my astonished self, "Do have some sense."

With a rush, I could see a curly headed girl who even in the old days had a special leaning towards this profession, though we had heard Miss Mowat declare that never, never would she marry a minister, but the fates must have willed it otherwise.

So shocked was I, at beholding my own face with grey hair around it as I glanced in a mirror, that I staggered out of the house without a word to reveal to this old friend who I was. Another surprise was in store for me. I went in search of my breakfast and approached what seemed to be a bakery and restaurant. In a large show window I saw three tempting looking pies, while all the rest of the space was empty. However, I decided to have one of those pies, so I entered the store. It was a large Bonaventure Co., twice unsuccessfully. Mr. Chas. H. LaBillette, represented Restigouche, his native county during thirty years.

Carleton of 1917 is a prosperous agricultural parish. During recent years the people are paying special attention to farming. The lumber industry is being developed at St. Omer, which at the confederation formed part of Carleton. A wood-working factory owned by the Bernard Bros. is quite an asset to the place.

Carleton is fast becoming a great place for tourists, it is a delightful spot. One never tires of its beauty and its charms. The sea bathing is splendid and boating can be enjoyed to any extent—it has a splendid hotel for tourists.

The parish has a great future before it, especially on account of the great interest the people take in agriculture.

Carleton has been the home of the late John Meagher, Ex. M. P. P., P. C. Beauchamp, Ex. M. P. is now the home of H. J. Martin, Esq., M. D., Ex. M. P. P., and Hon. Chas. Marcell, M. P., and family spend the summer months there.

POLICEMAN NEEDED.

It would seem that the village of Matapedia needs a policeman badly when such scenes can happen at the railway station as we witnessed Sunday night. A young man in uniform attacked and insulted another young fellow who was quietly going about his business. We imagine this soldier's young lady friend, who was there, must have admired his actions and his language. We respect the King's uniform and only wish that only those who so respect it would wear it. A good many of the bystanders, who knew the boy who was insulted, especially some of his near neighbors, showed by their actions the sort of people they are.

It is time this place was cleaned up anyway. We think it would be a good idea to analyze some of the beer that is being sold. If "temperance" beer has such an effect on people, then its time has stopped selling "temperance" drinks.

FRUIT-A-LIVES Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE

85 St. Rose St., Montreal, April 4th. "For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant Headaches, and had Pimples of the Heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the Constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease. I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried 'Fruit-a-lives' as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no Headaches, no Palpitation, no Heart Trouble, no Constipation, no Pain or Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was 'Fruit-a-lives' that gave me back my health."

place with candy cases, shelves for cakes, shelves for doughnuts, ice-cream boxes, etc., but what appeared to be very strange, nearly every shelf was empty. I spoke to the manager a rosy-cheeked woman, very good to look upon, and remarked that her trade must be very brisk since her stock was sold so early in the morning.

"Oh no, she said, I have had it full once today, but I have just been taking a little lunch. We talked a little longer while she told of the news of the town. "There is an new English professor in the school, she informed me. "Hazel Quinn is her name, she is an old school mate of mine and another old classmate Isabel Currie is married now and living on the hill." "Old school-mates of yours?" I cried "and who then are you for they were old school mates of mine." My name is Isabel McBeath," she said. "How you have changed." I sighed. "I look like I mean." I added.

Then I turned my steps to the school to see Hazel, wondering as I walked what she would be like, after so many years, and a professor of English language. Dear me, what will happen next, I thought. I went to the room which I remembered as the principals and on the card in the door I saw, Ethel Baird, Principal. I wondered if this would be the same girl who had been in our class. A tall well-built woman to whom I was forced to look up, answered my knock. At once I asked her if she was the Ethel Baird who had graduated in 1917. She said she was, so I told her who I was. She told me that she was glad to see me but I must not keep her from her work, so I turned away. A tall be-speckled woman passed me in the corridor. I looked back, the walk was familiar, so I turned and caught up with the dignified personage who coolly looked me over and said "And who may you be?" I turned and fled hoping no more of my friends had entered that profession.

I remembered that I had been told that Isabel Currie lived on the hill, I would go to her, I could not imagine her tall or dignified. How the hill had changed. A tall building crowned the top. What could it be? It looked to me like a sanitarium, and such it proved to be. I inquired of a little girl where Isabel Currie lived, then I remembered that she was a Currie no longer. I stopped in bewilderment. "That is my Auntie's name" piped the child. She lives here" so she led me through the great gates towards the white stone building, chattering all the way. "My uncle owns this" she boasted proudly "He makes people thin, all but Auntie Isabel, the cure wouldn't work on her; she went out ill we saw a robust smiling little lady, who met us with out-stretched hands. "Why you are Jean Young" she cried "after so many years, I never expected to see you again. And she took me to the porch and made me comfortable while we talked over old times. I asked her about the other girls and boys who had been together with us. She told me of the successful business of McBeath, "But she is just as fond of cake as ever," she laughed and Hazel yes is very brilliant, quite a star in fact, Ethel was here a few years ago trying to get this, she is not nearly as fat now as she used to be she went on and Claire is just like she used to be. Florrie, she told me had a kindergarten in Montreal where she had become very popular and Raymond was farming somewhere near Winnipeg. Jessie was in Winnipeg too, she thought, she did not know what she was doing. And where is Jack? I asked. "You have not mentioned him of all the class. "I can speak for myself" said a voice and looking up I saw a bearded man whom I recognized at once as my old school friend. looked in surprise from one to the other as he sat down on the step at our feet and then it dawned on me, I remembered what Isabel McBeath had told me. "O," I said, "is this what has happened."

Then they inquired after my sister so I told them how Ruth was travelling the county as a lecturer, still impressing the rising population of Canada with the fact that love may hide itself awhile, but love can never die. Did she not marry, asked Isabel. "No" I told her, "she has had time for nothing for years except to lecture and cry her old solgan."

I was determined to see all the old bunch, so that very night I bid goodbye to Campbellton and an hour later arrived in Montreal (everyone travelling in airships, so no time was lost) I soon found Florrie directing the young and innocent children in the paths of knowledge, and together we went to an auditorium where Ruth was holding forth. We found the tremendous audience hanging upon her every word. So eager were the growing boys as they pressed around her, that I had not even a chance to say a word to this famous sister of mine.

As soon as I arrived in Winnipeg I made enquiries for Jessie Ferguson and learned that she kept a home for spinsters. On my way uptown an agricultural exhibition attracted me where I noticed an immense cabbage bearing the prize ribbon and the name Raymond Andrew. It took very little time to find the owner of the prize cabbage. When I did, I told him who I was and asked him what he was doing. He told me that he had a cattle ranch and a cabbage patch. He admitted that there was a little school house near his ranch, so I supposed that the love followers of that profession still endured.

Then I hastened away to Jessie's home. Yes, she was a real old maid herself, and I remembered her vows and now could see how well she had kept them.

Such a houseful as she introduced me to, long lanky, short-sighted, fat, keen-eyed, long nosed and every other kind of spinster one could imagine. I turned to run but my feet would not move.

"Am I to be kept here?" I cried to Glad I promised. With a whirl Father Time rushed off again, and as I looked around, I found myself once

The Best is Cheapest in The Long Run

When you finally select your new car, your ultimate satisfaction of that car will depend upon the comfort you get out of it.

As far as the actual price of the car is concerned, $1900 one way or the other makes little difference to you financially. But to pay less than Studebaker prices for your car may mean a sacrifice of safety and comfort; a constant source of expense and endless trouble.

Experience has built perfection into the Studebaker. Studebaker has spent four years in refining, improving and perfecting this one basic design, selecting the right material, developing the right manufacturing organization.

If it were mechanically possible to produce a car that would give the maximum of comfort and satisfaction for any less than Studebaker prices—Studebaker is better equipped to do it than any other maker.

The beauty of a Studebaker goes beneath its beautiful paint and varnish work, beneath its conservative, dignified lines—beneath its luxuriously soft upholstery. The beauty that makes the Studebaker a joy forever is the beauty of quality—the quality that gives durability, that gives uninterrupted usage, that makes your car as good at 50,000 miles as it was at 5,000.

HEROES AT HOME.
One summer's day in Aug.
A cry went o'er the land,
The news of war came to our door
Like flames which had been fanned.

A war which most expected
Would be the worse ere fought,
So to the help of England
Men, by this news were brought.

Men from every line of work
Came forth to do their bit,
And though not regular soldiers
To their task did quickly fit.

Those who first came forward
Have gone to face the foe,
A number have been spared their lives.

But the majority have been laid low.

Many a home has been poorer
Many a friendship lost,
But the sacrifice of our heroes
Who knew, full the cost.

Many a circle is broken
Many an arm chair
Stands in the corner vacant
And no one ventures there

Memories it brings to loved ones
Of days for ever past
Days filled with love and sunshine
No cloud the sky overcast.

Many a life is lonely
Many a heart is sad,
Many a child is waiting
In vain, for soldier dad.

Many a loving mother
Has hairs of silver grey,
Nights of sleepless tossing
And heartache night and day.

The child she loved so dearly
Who was her pride and joy
The object of her love and care
Is now a missing boy.

No word has she of certainty
To rest her anxious heart,
She knows not what befell him
In the battle he took part.

She sits for hours a thinking
Of his childhood days of yore
And as she brings each scene to mind

It pains her to the core.

She has the family album
Where his picture is preserved
But in her heart and memory
Is his likeness deeply carved.

There it remains for ever
Till death shall claim her too
And they shall be united
In a life entirely new.

Many a hopeful maiden
With prospects very bright,
Has been sorely disappointed
And life seems dark as night.

The man she loved so dearly
Of whom she was so proud
Fills a lonely soldier's grave
His serges for his shroud.

She wears a band of gold
With stones in number odd
Or perhaps a diamond pearl
Memories of his word.

Alone her loss she bears
On a world of sceptic's fust
Love so true they never knew
Yet measure by their rule.

In God she finds a friend
Who never turns deaf ear,
He knows her sorrows well
Remembers every tear.

To Him she tells her grief
With Him her sorrows share
His word of truth she proves
That He will burden's bear.

This sorrow shared with God
Adds beauty to her life
And usefulness she n'r had known
Had she been a happy wife.

Many wives at home alone
Their children round their knee
The hands which earned their bread

They never more will see.

Their husbands went when war broke out
And nobly gave their lives
Leaving at home their children dear
And their loving, sorrowful wives.

Their hearts are crushed with sorrow
Their homes are filled with care
Their minds are filled with anxious thoughts
For their children round their chair.

Their power seems superhuman
To bear up under strain
And shock so great, to reason out
Would tax the greatest brain.

They bravely face the future
With difficulties mountains high
Looking above, and not to man
For help, from God on high.

Long long hours they labor
At work of various kinds
Their leisure moments are but few
They never have "good times."

The world they face is brzen
Kind hearts they find are but few
Honesty and truth they sadly learn
Some people misconstruct.

In the throes of greater struggles
Than men who are at the front
Are women in the homeland
Who bravely bore the brunt.

They get no distinction medals
They get very little praise,
The funds which help the boys at war.

They sacrifice to raise
Few people take the trouble
To cheer them on their way.
Few joys are brought within their reach
To brighten the dreary day.

Oh War look on thy victims!
In sorrow, pain and want,
Who have not raised a finger

HEROIC LETTER
OF EDITH CAVELL
Thought Only of Others in Her Last Hours.

SENT MESSAGE TO A FRIEND
She Gave Good Advice to a Girl Who Was Afflicted With an Appetite For Drugs, and She Betrayed No Fear of the Terrible Ordeal That She Was to Face Next Day.

A LETTER which will add to the fame of the heroic English nurse, Edith Cavell, has recently been published. Thoughts of life were stronger than those of death in Edith Cavell's last hours on earth. Her anxieties were directed toward the future welfare of a young girl friend afflicted with an appetite for drugs. The letter written to this girl on the evening of the 11th of October, 1915, the night before the execution, is here reproduced:

"My Dear Girl:
"Hod shall I write you this last day? Standing where I stand now, the world looks already far away. I worried about you a great deal at first, but I know God will do for you abundantly above all that I can ask."

EDITH CAVELL.
or think, and he loves you so much better than I. I do earnestly beseech you to try and live as I would have had you live. Nothing matters when one comes to this last hour but a clear conscience before God, and life looks no wasted and full of wrong-doing and things left undone.

"You have helped me often, my dear, and in ways you little dreamed of, and I have remembered our happy holidays with mother and many small pleasures. I want you to go to England at once now and ask me to put you where you can be cured. Don't mind how hard it is, do it for my sake, and then try and find something useful to do something to make you forget yourself while making others happy."

"If God permits I shall still watch over you and love you and wait for you on the other side. Be sure to get ready for then. I want you to know I was never afraid nor unhappy, but quite ready to give my life for England."

"I am sending you my wrist-watch by Mr. Gahan because it was always with me and I know you will like to wear it. I shall pray God for you at the last that he will keep you in his tender care. Forgive me that I have been so long in writing, it has been a great grief to me to remember it. I think I was too anxious about you this last year and that was why. I am sure you will forget it now and only remember that I loved you, and love you still."

"Edith Cavell."

Suffrage in Germany.
In Prussia the voters are divided into three classes, according to the amount of taxes they pay. In each electoral district the total amount of taxes paid is divided into three equal parts. Those citizens whose combined taxes represent one-third of the whole choose one-third of the electors. Those who pay the next one-third choose a third of the electors, who make up the mass of the population, choose the remaining third. In one district in Berlin, three citizens pay one-third of the taxes, eight citizens pay another third, and 294 pay the remaining third. Thus the three men in the first class choose as many electors as the 294 in the third.

The election of 1903, when the social democrats first contested seats in the Prussian lower house, concretely illustrates how this system works. They cast 314,149 votes and the conservatives cast 324,157. The social democrats did not elect a single representative, while their opponents elected 143. In the last election preceding the war, the social democrats cast 24 per cent. of the vote and elected seven members in a house of 120.

Practically the same system, with certain modifications, prevails in all the German states, with the exception of the Mecklenburgs, which have no representative chambers at all, their present system being a clear survival of medieval institutions.—The World's Work.

English Pottery.
Among the first specimens of English pottery is the Wrotham Slipware, dated 1612 to 1717. It is a red ware, with a black veneer. Next comes the Posset jug, with its two handles, a squat brownish-yellow vessel bearing the marks "B. N. E. 1734."

But are most innocent.

Then sheath thy deadly weapon
all dripping red with blood
Give us back sweet hours of peace.
Loved ones, home and God.

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DAWITT SNICHAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, backache, headaches, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

YOU CAN BUY CHEAPER AT HOME TODAY

No wise man should buy goods unless he knows exactly what he is paying. With the range of prices now higher than they have been in even the gold rush days of the Klondike and, with prices going up every day, the cautious man will know exactly what he is going to pay for his goods before he orders them. The War has brought in conditions to which people must adjust themselves. One of the biggest changes is in the transportation and prices of goods. That is why we are going to buy at home.

Here is a true story. Thousands of people throughout the Dominion ordered goods by mail from a distant firm. And they enclosed enough money to pay for the goods at the price named in the firm's catalogue.

After many days of waiting, the goods were shipped, but the purchasers were notified that prices had gone up in the meantime. They were asked to send more money. Some did so. Others refused. And as a result there is a strong prospect of a big suit being brought against this firm for non-delivery of goods at prices stated in their catalogue. Why take chances on getting into a muddle like this?

Since this disastrous fiasco, many firms who seek to do business through the mails, have refused to quote long in advance prices on innumerable kinds of goods. There is no desire here to injure the out of town merchants—but a very ardent one to lay bare the facts, so that he who runs may read. This is the only reason for the articles and this series of articles. "New Brunswick First" is the slogan, and the man who puts "New Brunswick First" and puts his own interests first is going to BUY IN CAMPBELLTON. There is no question about that.

Underline this and do not forget it—there are two great lessons to be learned from the rapidly with which prices are advancing: first, the only place at which you can get goods at prices which will not change before the goods are yours, is in your home town where there are no delays; second, you can buy goods cheaper at home today than you can abroad, because most of the provincial merchants have stocked up at the lower prices, and as their stocks are not cleaned out as quickly as are those of the big city merchants who of course have to buy in again at the higher prices, the provincial merchant has the advantage. Let us examine into these two claims.

You can drop into Mr. Smith's Clothing Store, Mr. Jones' Shoe Store, look over their goods, get their prices. You know exactly how much money you are going to pay for those goods. You know how much you will have to pay, if you pay cash and you know how much you have to pay if you get credit.

Contrast these ideal conditions with those prevailing when you buy outside your own town, conditions which have been sketched above—how absolutely cannot get a guarantee anytime in advance of how much goods will cost you as all prices are subject to change without notice. It is not because your home town merchant is more shrewd, more obliging or more anxious to keep down prices. It is simply because at such a short distance from your door that prices have not got a chance to advance before the goods can be delivered to you. That is the whole thing in a nut shell.

In the second place, you can buy cheaper at home than you can away from home. Listen! Ask any of your friends who have been on a trip lately, if they found prices higher or lower in the big cities. "Higher," will be the answer every time.

And the reason is perfectly obvious. The merchants in the big cities do not buy as much goods, comparatively speaking, as do the merchants in the smaller cities and towns. They seek to buy small quantities and sell them quickly. The result is that they are always buying. And the firm that is buying steadily in these times is buying at higher and higher prices. Who pays in the end? Not the merchant but you, the customer. The war has brought in a whole new order of things—and this one which must be recognized.

On the other hand, the merchant in the smaller town has stocked up at the lower prices, his goods are not sold out quickly, so that he still has much that he bought comparatively cheap, and he can undersell the mail-order houses in most cases. Perhaps you think the prices are high at home. Ask your friends who have just returned from the big cities. BUY AT HOME.

A WAR ELECTION.
At the present writing it looks like a war election.
If we must have an election, let us have it over with in the least possible time. There is no doubt will be a hot and bitter campaign, but it will clear the air and if there is a chance in the administration, which is very likely, the Liberals will be given a chance to show the country what they can do. In the case like the present a change would be a good thing for the country and we believe the country is ready for the change.

HELP WIN THE WAR.
There are many ways in which one can assist to win the war, and things are so divided that everyone can help.
One of the most important movements to assist in this work is being carried on by the Educational department. This is the conservation of all food supplies, but principally vegetables and fruits canning.
Throughout the province Girls Clubs are being formed and are already doing good work.
In looking over the list of towns which are hard at work we fail to see Campbellton mentioned. Surely our young ladies are not going to allow Chatham and other towns to outdo them in this important work.
—Mrs. Wm. Currie has made an effort to get the young ladies of the Girls Club interested but only two appeared at the time set for the meeting. This is to be regretted and the hope is expressed that our young ladies will now get to work in earnest and show all just what they are capable of doing.

COST OF PRESERVING GREATLY EXAGGERATED
Women Now Determined to Save the Fruit Crop.

Present Price of Sugar Adds Only 1 1/2 Cents to the Cost of Putting Up a Quart Jar of Preserves
Last summer, many women did not put up their regular supply of home-made preserves, and bitterly they regretted it. They became scarce at what they called the price of sugar. When sugar reached 7 1/2 cents a pound they let the strawberries and cherries go by. When sugar sold at 8 cents and 8 1/2 cents, they permitted the luscious peaches, pears, plums and apples to rot on the ground.
But never again. This summer will see a genuine, old revival in home-made preserving; because the women of Canada now realize what a foolish extravagance it was to do without preserves; especially when the increased cost of putting them up is infinitesimal.
As a matter of fact, every woman can prove—with her first lot of Strawberries, that the increased cost of sugar is surprisingly small.
Turning back the files of papers publishing market prices, we find that in 1912, 1913, and 1914, up to the outbreak of the war, the average price of granulated sugar was 5 1/2 cents a pound. Today, the best granulated sugar retails at 8 1/2 cents. This is an average of 3 cents a pound for the whole of the country.
A quart jar of preserved berries or fruit, requires but half a pound of sugar; so that the increased cost of preserving, due to the increased cost of the sugar, is only 1 1/2 cents a quart compared with the cost of preserving before the war when sugar was unusually cheap.

Now is the time for the women of Canada to come gallantly to the aid of the country, and help to conserve our food supplies. The fruit crop this year, promises to be a record one, both in quality and quantity. Foreign markets being closed because of the shortage in transportation, it rests almost entirely with our homemakers as to whether this crop worth millions is to be a source of profit or a complete loss.
With the home pantries filled with delicious jams, preserves and jellies; with these delicacies served for dessert instead of pies and cakes; enormous quantities of what will be returned for the troops in France and for the starving children in Belgium. A careful consideration of the above

HON. L. J. TWEEDIE HAS PASSED AWAY
Death Took Place Sunday Night—Had a Long and Bright Career

Hon. L. J. Tweedie, E. C. formerly Premier of New Brunswick, and afterwards Lieut. Governor, died quite suddenly at his home in Chatham, on Sunday night aged 67. Mr. Tweedie had been in ill health for some years.
Of Irish and Scotch parentage; Mr. Tweedie was born November 30, 1849, at Chatham, was educated at Chatham Grammar School and Presbyterian Academy, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1871. He entered politics when young, being only 25 years of age when he was first sent to the legislature by the county of Northumberland. He sat for one term, 1874-1878, and he was returned again in 1886. Meanwhile, there was a change of government, and Hon. A. G. Blair had come into power. Mr. Tweedie sat on opposition side until 1890. Then he ran and was elected as a Liberal candidate, but in consequence of the famous "Northumberland deal" he joined the Blair party, and was taken into government as Surveyor General, Northumberland re-elected him. In the succeeding Mitchell and Emmerson administrations Mr. Tweedie was Provincial Secretary, and when Hon. H. R. Emmerson went to the House of Commons, Mr. Tweedie became premier. That was in 1900 and he retained that position until he was appointed Lieutenant Governor in 1907.

1876 Mr. Tweedie married Miss Agnes Loudoun, daughter of the late Alexander Loudoun, of Chatham, who survives her husband. There are four sons and two daughters. The sons are Fred M., manager of the Miramichi Foundry and Machine Works, and former mayor; Murray and Joseph L. at home, and Lieutenant Arthur H., now in England with the 104th Battalion. The daughters are Mrs. J. Stuart Benson, of Chatham, and Mrs. D. McEwen, of Rochester, N. Y.

facts will show to the Canadian housewife that sugar is not too high for preserving profitably; that the increased cost of sugar has not materially increased the cost of homemade preserves; and that preserving is both an economy and a patriotic act.

MONEY RECOVERED.
A Pointe la Gardie lady while shopping here about July 4th lost a roll of bills containing $115.00. A few days later Mr. D. A. Stewart saw the roll in some grass by the street side and took it up. He turned it over to the Chief Constable who has the pleasure of returning the money to the lady.

ROY-BOURDEAU.
At eight o'clock Monday morning July 16th at the Church of Our Lady of Snows was solemnized by Rev. Father Wallace, the marriage of Marie Lydia daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bourdeau of Campbellton to Aurele Hector son of Mr. and Mrs. Elol Roy of Moncton.

The bride who was given away by her father wore a becoming suit of blue taffeta with hat of maize crepe de chene and carried a bouquet of sunburst roses.
During the ceremony solos were rendered by Mr. R. J. Lavoie and Mr. Boucher assisted by Mrs. R. J. Lavoie, Miss Roy, Miss Brennan and Mr. Chas. Roy. The wedding march was played by Miss Alma Roy.
After the ceremony the couple with immediate relatives repaired to the bride's home where a dainty breakfast was served.
After a honeymoon to Montreal, Toronto and the Thousand Islands, they will reside in Moncton. The popularity of the young couple was testified by the numerous gifts received.

Among the out of town guests attending the wedding were the grooms parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy and the Misses Anita, Mina and Beatrice Roy of Moncton.

GADSBY'S LETTER

considerable hay while the sun was shining in 1915 is the Imperial Oil Company. In fact the Imperial Oil Company is at the very top of Mr. Middleboro's list. Like Abou Ben Adhem its name heads all the rest. The Imperial Oil Company is the name the Standard Oil Company—Mr. John Rockefeller—takes to do business in Canada. In 1915 the Imperial Oil Company paid an excess profits tax of $734,045. This means that the Imperial Oil Company made almost three million dollars more than a legitimate profit, of which it kept two million three hundred thousand dollars. Every farmer's coal oil lamp, every motor truck, every automobile paid over to John D. Rockefeller. There is nothing like making the old man happy. He needs the money for his philanthropies.
The Imperial Oil Company's representative in Ontario is the Hon. W. J. Hanna who was but a few years ago a gift horse in the mouth. But the question naturally arises what is Mr. Hanna's personal attitude toward the people who in 1915 were squeezed of an extra three million dollars by the company he represents. One hopes that Mr. Hanna's efforts for the public good will not have a kerosene flavor. Mr. Hanna is said to be working for the day when the public will be able to supply of kerosene for himself than he has lately enjoyed and—

NO DEBT IN GAMBIA.

Smallest and Richest Colony of Great Britain.
An American tourist, recently returned from a circuit of the earth, is loud in his praise of little Gambia, which enjoys the distinction of being the smallest and in a sense the richest of the colonial possessions of Great Britain, says The Philadelphia Bulletin. "Many other African colonies are 'bare' are rich in gold, rich in diamonds, in rubber, and in copper, but in comparison with little Gambia they are poor. Gambia in extent covers about 69 square miles. In 1901 the population was 13,540, of whom only 122 were white. Its population now is less than that of Worcester, Mass. Compared with other parts of equatorial Africa it is a paradise. It has good roads, an up-to-date water system, with filtration plant, water mains, hydrants along the streets of Bathurst, the capital of the colony; pipes in the houses, and a fountain in the city square.
"The exports of Gambia are wax, hides, cotton, rubber, rice, palm oil, and peanuts. It is the latter product that has made Gambia rich. Of all the African colonies or governments, Gambia alone owes not a penny. The indebtedness of the country and its inhabitants are free from debt, and there is upward of $1,000,000 in the public treasury. The average annual export of peanuts is about 70,000 tons, or more than 1,000 pounds of peanuts for every man, woman, and child in the colony. The money value of the peanuts exported is more than $2,000,000 annually, while the total imports does not exceed $2,250,000, so that the country has an annual profit on its peanuts of $750,000. From my window above the harbor of Vladivostok I can see, as I write, a half-billion dollars' worth of materials lying on the ground. Scores of wage slaves are employed many months ago, and the torrent of supplies pouring into Vladivostok had to be emptied out along the harbor streets, in waste places, and over all the surrounding hills. The vastness of the congestion is, I suppose, unique in the history of commerce, for from my window only a small part of the stores lying here is visible. Only eleven days have passed since the Tsar abdicated more than six thousand miles away in distance and ten days by fastest express change. The great river from which the corner of Vladivostok's principal street, stands a slender Russian youth of about nineteen. I know by his uniform he is a student. He is unarmed, but about his left arm is a broad white linen band with three crimson Cyrillic characters upon it, showing him to be a member of the citizens' committee. He is all that is left of Russia's notorious cossacks and secret service system. Less than a fortnight ago this student and his colleagues, evolving secretly political ideas they dared not openly express, lived in daily apprehension of those spies and cossacks. At any hour, without any real trial, he was in danger of being exiled for life to a place a thousand miles from a railway in the depth of the forest primeval, where the average winter temperature is the lowest in the world; not excepting the poles. To-day he is conqueror. There is a grim humor in it. He is the only officer there—Pavel Jones in The Metropolitan.

McLaughlins At The Front

Read the letter below from a former Campbellton boy and learn what the McLaughlin Cars are doing in France.

To McLaughlin Branches and Dealers.

July 3rd, 1917.

To Pink and Blackburn Co.,
McLaughlin Dealers,
Ottawa, Ontario.

Dear Sirs:—

Several of my officer friends in the French Army are keenly interested in the performance of McLaughlin 6 cylinder motor which I am using for Army Engineering work in this area. They are especially interested in the Delco electrical self-starting, lighting and ignition system and are desirous of getting full information of this and other systems of similar kind such as the Rijo and Delco, commonly fitted on all American cars.

I have no doubt that you will be rather interested to learn that I have recently driven one of the 1916 McLaughlin-Lincoln Canadian machines over the Alps on three different occasions. I was accompanied at different times by French machines costing several times the price of the Canadian car; the performance on the mountain roads compared very favorably with any machine in the convoy, and I have no hesitation in coupling on either the front or tail end of the other machines I find on the highway. My opinion of the Canadian built machine has gone up since my recent experience with the McLaughlin-Buick.

Trusting you will be able to give me some information on the electrical system mentioned above, I am

Yours sincerely,

The Dominican Republic. The Dominican Republic has an area of nearly 30,000 square miles, being about twice the size of the Republic of Haiti or more than five times that of Porto Rico. The latest estimate of the population is 700,000. The fertility of the land, which is mainly in its virgin state, prefigures the possibility of immigration and consequent development provided, of course, other factors remain equal. Revolution, formerly the cause for all trouble in this country, is now a thing of the past. The last revolution, which broke out in April, was stopped by the intervention of American forces.

Military authority was established in the latter part of 1916 and good progress has been made in the reconstruction of the Dominican Government. Roads, bridges, and other public works are being built, harbors improved, and a general reorganization of all utilities is taking place. Public instruction and improvement of sanitary conditions are important and necessary measures. The Dominican Republic, with its rich mineral resources, excellent climate, and notable historical monuments dating back to the time of Christopher Columbus, is bound to have a great future.

The climate of this country is healthy, like that of Porto Rico and other large islands in the West Indies. Trade winds blowing most of the year make the nights cool, and only a short part of the day can be called hot. From early December until June there is very little rain, and the weather is therefore ideal for the grinding of sugar cane. Considerable rain falls in the central and northern parts of the Republic, especially in the vicinity of Samana Bay, which is probably the most fertile section of the entire country. In 1916 was recorded an abnormal rainfall for the southern section when the precipitation from October 1 to November 23 totaled 22.67 inches, more than ten times that of 1915 and about seven times that of 1914.

Sugar in the Orient.

Sugar was known at a very early period to the inhabitants of India and China. In all probability the sugar-cane was originally brought to India, as only the ancient literature of that country mentions sugar-cane, while it is known that it was conveyed to other countries by travellers and sailors.

SCIENCE HELPED BY MILLIONAIRES

Princely Donations Given to Institutions.

GOOD RESULTS OBTAINED

Immense Capital Has Been Allocated for Research and Higher Education, and the British Empire Cannot Afford to Be Idle If It Desires to Maintain Its Position.

THE millionaires of America have, in many instances, given princely donations to scientific institutions. Mr. Andrew Carnegie founded the Carnegie Institute of Washington with an endowment of $2,000,000, to which he added later $2,400,000. This institution has eleven large departments of research, besides many minor ones. Mr. J. D. Rockefeller provided $40,000 a year for the institute which bears his name, and is devoted to medical research. By 1907 the endowments reached a total of $700,000 for land and buildings and equipment, and a fund of $2,100,000 for maintenance. In addition $200,000 has been given for a department of animal pathology, and $100,000 for a pension fund, besides other sums. Sir Robert Ball, after his visit to the States in 1902, wrote to a friend: "The wealth that is pouring into the universities all over the country is many times that of the country."

There are the golden rules, according to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the great suffrage leader, for making the best use of women in war time. They are based on her experience of the last three years. "Immediately after the war began my organization, the Women's Social and Political Union, insisted that Britain must create a reserve army of women for industrial work," says Mrs. Pankhurst. "Later on we pressed the necessity of utilizing the skilled labor of men by the unskilled labor of women. It took some time

WORK FOR WOMEN DURING WARTIME

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst Tells Her Experiences.

RESULTS MUST BE SECURED

The Leading British Suffragette Expresses Her Views of How Women Can Best Be Organized to Aid Their Country in a Reserve Army to Do Industrial Work

"TAKE a register of all women ready to work. Then set up training classes all over the country. And finally, most important of all, don't call up a woman until the job is ready and waiting for her. These are the golden rules, according to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the great suffrage leader, for making the best use of women in war time. They are based on her experience of the last three years. "Immediately after the war began my organization, the Women's Social and Political Union, insisted that Britain must create a reserve army of women for industrial work," says Mrs. Pankhurst. "Later on we pressed the necessity of utilizing the skilled labor of men by the unskilled labor of women. It took some time over the country is many times that of the country. (The millionaires) Many times during my stay did the universities announce the receipt of millions. President Harper of Chicago University, declared that he intended to collect $10,000,000 for Chicago. In these universities it is not alone the superb equipment and the wealthy endowment which strike me as admirable. I was still more astonished at the high degree of the education given. The professors of mathematics are in the very forefront of the science. There are two high-class mathematical journals in America. It is doubtful if there is one in Great Britain to which the same description can be applied. It will be remembered that Sir Robert was a distinguished mathematician, and that in addition his astronomical work he filled professorial chairs at Trinity College, Dublin, and at Cambridge, so he was competent to pronounce judgment.

ANDREW CARNEGIE

To refer to all the institutions in the United States devoted more or less to research would require far more space than we can spare, and would be of little interest. Enough has been done to show that an immense capital has been allotted in the United States to education and research, and that the British Empire have to reckon with this if we are to hold our position in the scientific world. We can never hope to attain to similar results, but that is not needed. The bulk of the money now available in the United States is devoted to agricultural problems, which represent a greater proportion of the national assets. Still a great deal remains when that is subtracted, and it will need all our exertions to keep level with our competitors. In pure science the British have always held their own, in spite of the scant encouragement of the State, but it is in applied science that they are behind-hand. This war has shown us how far we are dependent on other nations for manufactures that demand deep scientific knowledge, and it is in this respect that we need to enlarge our resources very greatly. Pure science has no very direct connection between endowment and results; an energetic capable director is a better acquisition than $100,000.

Keep Gobelins Busy. Though born of more than half its personnel, the Gobelins has not ceased to produce its famous tapestries. It recently completed a wonderful piece of work destined for the Argentine, and since August, 1914, a triptych of Raffelli's "Britannia," for the Province series, has been on the looms. The shell-torn tapestries of Rheims Cathedral have been brought to the Gobelins to recover under the deft fingers of the weavers. "Le Roi des Gaulois," from Beauvais Cathedral, also is there; some wonderful examples lent by the City Museum, and some Thirteenth Century pieces from a church in Avignon. The old and the new art of France is well represented at the Gobelins. Gille Gobelins' tapestry factory of the days of the "Grand Monarque" has become a national institution, none more national in the country.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY. That St. Swithin's day passed without a drop of rain will be hailed by the superstitious with joy, for this means, according to the old prophecy, that the calamity of forty days' continual rain has been averted. After the wet weather that has been prevalent this year, forty days' downpour is something that people will manage to get along without and will certainly not be missed to any considerable extent.

TRAINS DELAYED. A wreck at St. Moise occurred late Friday night, resulting in six or eight freight cars leaving the rails and spreading themselves across the right of way. Although the affair was a small one, the inconvenience caused was great, the passengers and baggage of one express having to be transferred, with the result that Saturday's Limited did not reach Campbellton until about 5 o'clock.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freeseone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freeseone, which costs very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.
