ORDER-IN-COUNCIL ISSUED MAKING SIDNEY HEALTH DISTRICT

President of Board of Trade Gives Out the Pleasing Information at the Meeting Held on Tuesday Evening—Which Was Received with Much Satisfaction by Members

Whether or not any members of the Board of Trade suffer from superstitious qualms, they did not exhibit any fear at the fact that there were thirteen members present at the meeting held on Tuesday evening last, but perhaps the presence of the Review representative who made the number in the hall an even one soothed their feelings, for the spirit which prevailed throughout the session was certainly active enough to dispel from the mind of any onlooker that there was anything in the old custom of odd numbers.

The chairman, before calling for reports of committees, announced that an order had been passed in council making Sidney a health district, which information was much appreciated, and the committee who had done so much toward this end are to be congratulated.

So thoroughly had the now famous mosquito motion been absorbed by the Board at a previous meeting, it was not to be wondered at that the first report handed in was on that momentous question of how to entirely eliminate the pest. The committee in charge had interviewed the Scout Master towards securing the services of the brigade at his command, and this help had been promised although in the opinion of the speaker, enough had been done this year and that next spring an organized campaign would be carried on. But this did not meet with the approval of the Board, several members of which called attention to certain spots in and around the town which were conducive to the hatching of flies, and the swamp to the south of Sidney came in for special mention. It was finally decided to prolong the warfare as long as the oil held out and any flies were left.

The committee to report on tree planting said that nothing could be done until Beacon avenue had been straightened out, but suggestions flowed in from all parts of the hall for a different programme from that originally drawn up, one being that the south side of Beacon avenue should be planted leaving the north side until the owner saw fit to get in line with the rest of the street.

Another view was that of planting certain streets and avenues and leaving out the western portion of Beacon altogether, while still another idea was to educate the people along the line of tree planting and then at the proper time ask every man to do his duty to the frontage of his property.

The whole matter, however, was left in the hands of the committee who by the time it is again possible to plant trees will have some definite campaign mapped out.

A letter was read from the American Consul asking for information re Sidney, as he stated that this point had come so much to the fore of late that inquiries were pouring in from all quarters as to the resources and possibilities of the town. The secretary was instructed to give the desired information and state that pamphlets were being gotten out and a quantity would be forwarded when ready.

A suggestion was made to put a sign at the corner of Third street and Queen's avenue showing the way to Allbay and Marine Drive, as strangers had got into difficulties when travelling this route by either taking the Cul-de-sac or continuing on to the wharf at Robert's Bay, considerable trouble ensuing in turning round on a not too good a grade. The road superintendent, however, had this very matter in mind and sign posts will soon make their appearance in different parts of the town and district.

More accommodation for small boats and an improved landing stage came in for much discussion, a plan of the latter being drawn on the blackboard in the hall by the Board of Trade's own artist and fully described by the same gentleman. It was decided to write the officials concerned enclosing a copy of the sketch with the idea of having same adopted.

A letter was ordered written to the Marine Department at Victoria stating that the light on the wharf at the end of Beacon avenue, which had been promised by the first of May, was still wanting, and that everything was ready for the juice.

A letter is to be sent to Mr. Shepherd requesting that steps be taken at the earliest possible moment towards the erection of the new post office. It was felt that as public works were being pushed along at other places Sidney might just as well be in line, especially in view of the congested state of the present post office.

A matter which had brought out considerable criticism from the local paper, viz the request of the Board that no names be mentioned in newspaper reports of meetings, brought out champions for and against the original motion. It was argued on the one side that it was something of a hardship on the editor of the Review, who doing his best to forward the work of the Board by publication of meetings, was restrained from giving full force to his journalistic abilities in not being permitted to say who did this or that. On the other hand it was considered that in small towns where the personal element was apt to be considered before the welfare of the community as a whole it would be better to avoid the mentioning of names, and as instances were repeated where the effect had been produced to the discomfiture of members, it was decided that names be left out in the reports of all meetings of the Board, and this was carried unanimously. The editor of the Review will be therefore be notified to this effect.

Before adjourning a motion was passed emphasizing the deep regret felt by the Board at the loss of one of their most active and conscientious citizens by the death of the late Gordon Dixon, who had been for some time secretary to the Board of Trade, and it was further resolved that a letter be sent the relatives of the deceased conveying the sympathy of the Board on their bereavement.

WILL GATHER GRASSES ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Mr. M. O. Malte, Dominion Agrostologist, of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, is registered at the Sidney hotel and will spend several weeks here in connection with matters at the Experimental Farm. His main object, however, in coming west is to make a collection of foliage, grasses, clover, Indian corn, roots and other animal foodstuffs, which it is the intention of the Dominion Government to place on exhibition, together with similar exhibits from all the other provinces, at the big fair in San Francisco during the coming fall. Mr. Malte was very enthusiastic over the abundant growth of the wild grasses on the peninsula, and expressed the opinion that dairying should prove a very profitable industry here. Before going back east he will pay short visits to all the principal islands lying in the Gulf in order to see for himself what they are capable of bearing in the animal food lines he is looking for.

EMPIRE DAY WILL BE CELEBRATED BY CHILDREN

Empire Day is a national holiday all over the British Empire and will be celebrated in Sidney this afternoon at the athletic grounds, where patriotic songs will be sung by the children of the public schools. An address on patriotism will be given by Rev. T. C. Des Barres, after which teams representing the combined strength of Deep Cove and North Saanich schools will be lined up against the pick of the Sidney school in an exhibition of Canada's national game, lacrosse. This being the first game of the season, as well as the first game of the kind ever played between school teams in North Saanich, together with the day that is to be celebrated and fine weather ought to bring out a large crowd of scholars and their parents and other spectators. Rev. Mr. Fortune is expected to officially start the lacrosse game by facing the ball and addressing a few words to the players. The children are all expected to meet at the Sidney school at 1.30 p.m. and march in order to the athletic field.

HELP FIRE BRIGADE FUND BY ATTENDING PLAY TO-NIGHT

The Sidney Amateur Dramatic Club Will Present "Our Regiment" in Berquist's Hall This Evening—Show Your Appreciation of Their Efforts by Being Present

The three act comedy farce entitled "Our Regiment," will be put on at Berquist's hall this evening, May 22, by the Sidney Amateur Dramatic Club, in aid of the local fire brigade fund. Mrs. S. Halseth, who is managing affairs, has been fortunate in securing the support of several of the best of Sidney's amateur talent, comprising as it does several of the old-time favorites, as well as some promising young talent who are sure to make good. It is to be hoped that a good house will greet the efforts of our local amateur artists, as it is a hard task to produce plays under the somewhat limited advantages. The cause in itself is a worthy one and should meet with the sympathetic approval of our citizens who are aware of the advantages of a fire brigade in Sidney.

A dance and refreshments follow the play, and the evening's entertainment will be put on for the very reasonable price of fifty cents. Mr. Berquist has arranged for several exits from the hall in case of an accident, and has also taken necessary measures for the comfort and safety of the audience. Appropriate music will be furnished during the play, between acts and for the dance.

The foundation of the plot lies in the visit of the Eighth Lancers to a small town in rural England, and it being the first visit of a regular regiment, every one in town is in an excited state. Reception, dinners and a ball for the officers, with a mixup in love making; a curate who ought to have been a military man; a retired merchant who dislikes the military, and a wife and friend who love them, makes ground work for some very comical situations between these characters and the officers who are the guests of the retired merchant and his wife, and the daughter, ward and friend of the host and hostess. Like all love affairs it does not run smoothly, but ultimately winds up in the proper way, each lady getting the gentleman she desires. Following is the cast:

Mr. Dobbinson, a retired merchant, Mr. L. E. Spencer.

Mr. Ellaby, his friend, Mr. P. N. Tester.

Captain Featherston, 8th Lancers, Mr. S. K. Halseth.

Guy Warrenner, 8th Lancers, Mr. James Stansby.

Rev. John Talbot, curate at Mudborough, Mr. Norman Simister.

Bathers, Dobbinson's servant, Mr. Albert Gehrke.

Mrs. Dobbinson—Mrs. P. N. Tester.

Maud Ellaby, Ellaby's niece—Mrs. McNaught.

Act 1. Scene—Drawing room at Mr. Dobbinson's.

Act 2. Morning room at Mr. Ellaby's.

THE SPICE OF LIFE.

ON THE TRAIL.

"Do you see that man going along with his head in the air, sniffing with his nose?"

"Yes, I know him."

"I suppose he believes in taking in the good, pure ozone?"

"No, he's hunting for a motor garage, I believe."

A DOUBLE CROSS.

Irate Parent—"No siree. You can't have her. I won't have a son-in-law who has no more brains than to want to marry a girl with no more sense than my daughter has shown in allowing you to think that you could have her."

FORESIGHT.

Aunt Rebecca—"Dat ol' man o' yohs am sho' a good provider."
Aunt Chloe—"He done show his sense. He wants to keep me busy occupyin' dis here skillet as a utensil instid of a weepoon."

EXTRANEOUS.

Retired M.F.H.—"And when we came to the seventeenth, just as I was going to drive, what should I see but an old dog-fox staring at me out of the hedge."

Sympathetic Friend—"Ye-s-s-s?"
Retired M.F.H.—"Now, don't you think that was a most remarkable thing?"

Sympathetic Friend—"Well, yes, I suppose it was; but then, you see, I don't know anything about golf."

STILL CLIMBING.

"Have you ever heard White relate about the time he got half way up Mount Baker with one of his little nephews and no guide?" asked one man of another.

"How long ago did he tell you about it?" was the evasive reply.

"Last March, when he'd just got home," said the first man.

"Well," said the other, "in eight months since then he has climbed the rest of the way, succored a fainting guide, and sustained a snowstorm on the summit, resuscitated two benumbed strangers on the way down, and guided the entire party to the foot, where a group of frantic relatives was waiting."

HOPEFUL.

Father—"I got a number of sealed proposals at my office to-day."

Daughter—"Oh, pa, were any of them for me?"

ANOTHER.

Enthusiast—"Don't the spectators tire you with the questions they ask?"

Aviator—"Yes. What else do you want to know?"

EYE-OPENERS.

"In choosing his men," said the Sabbath school superintendent, "Gideon did not select those who laid down their arms and threw themselves down to drink; he took those who watched with one eye and drank with the other."

VERY SIMPLE.

Interested Party—"You say this boat cannot upset?"

Inventor—"It's impossible. The tanks are filled with righting fluid."

LUCKY DOG.

"She calls her dog and her husband by the same pet name. It must cause frequent confusion."

"Not at all. She always speaks gently to the dog."

FOUND.

This story is told of an absent minded professor at Drew Theological Seminary. One evening while studying he had need of a book-mark. Seeing nothing else handy, he used his wife's scissors, which lay on the sewing table. A few minutes later the wife wanted the scissors, but a diligent search failed to reveal them.

The next day the professor appeared before his class and opened his book. There lay the lost scissors. He picked them up and, holding them above his head, shouted:

"Here they are, dear!"
Yes, the class got it.

GUARDING THEM.

The Employer—"By the way, the children usually eat with us."

The New Governess (firmly)—"I must object to that."

"Why?"

"They're sure to pick up such faulty notions of grammar."

THEIR FINISH.

"I thought you told me that Jones was a piano-finisher," said the Old Fogey. "Why, I saw him driving a moving van to-day."

"Well?" interrogated the Grouch.

STRANGE GROWTH.

"Pa, what's a feebly?"

"There isn't any such a thing, Harold."

"Yes, there is. It says in this book that the young man had a feebly growing down on his cheeks."

HAD EXPERIENCE.

"I want a pair of button shoes for my wife."

"This way, sir. What kind do you want, sir?"

"Doesn't matter, just so they don't button in the back."

NORA DID THAT.

It was a few days before Christmas in one of New York's largest book stores.

Clerk—"What is it please?"

Customer—"I would like Ibsen's 'A Doll's House.'"

Clerk—"To cut out?"

THE PAST IS PAST.

The Committee on the Revision of the Articles of Faith had recommended the adoption of a declaration to the effect that all infants are saved. The recommendation was adopted unanimously.

"Now, Mr. Moderator," said a delegate from Pittsburg, Pa., with preternatural solemnity, "I move that this be declared retroactive."

But the moderator did not seem to hear him.

GETTING EVEN.

Apropos of foreign honesty, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler tells this story:

"On a foreign railroad," he said, "a commuter had a row with the conductor. At the end of the row the commuter turned to a friend and said:

"Well, the P. D. R. will never see another cent of my money after this!"

"The conductor, who was departing looked back and snarled:

"What'll you do? Walk?"

"Oh, no," said the commuter, "I'll stop buying tickets and pay my fare to you."

STRONG COMPETITION.

In Colorado, remember, the women vote as well as the men.

In the fall of 1910 a man named Smith was running for sheriff. One evening just before election Smith rode up to the barnyard of an old farmer. The farmer was milking a cow and was having difficulty with a lusty calf that continually tried to "but" in. The candidate, to gain the favor of the farmer, took the calf between his legs and held it until the milking was done. He then introduced himself: "I am Mr. Smith, the Republican candidate for sheriff of the county. I suppose you know the man who's running against me?"

The farmer's eyes twinkled as he slowly drew out: "Waal, I reckon I do. He's a good house now, holding the baby."

THE GREATER AFFLICTION.

"What a pity that you must work so hard and such long hours," said the kindly-voiced old lady to the alert young sales-girl behind the counter. To her surprise the girl laughed softly and shook her head.

Oh, no; it isn't so hard as it may seem to an outsider," she said cheerfully. "I'm used to it, you know; and I'm well and strong, and quite equal to my work. Some of the girls are not. They are the ones I pity. For don't you think it is much worse not to be able to work, or to have to work beyond one's strength. And she turned to wait on a new customer and left a new thought in the mind of the old lady.

Perhaps to old lady and sales-girl alike the words of Milton would be new: "It is not so wretched to be blind as it is not to be capable of enduring blindness." That is the real and great affliction; not the hardship, or the trial, or the outer circumstances, but the inner weakness of spirit that quails and faints beneath the test.

Yet this weakness need not be in any soul. In our own strength we are all alike powerless. In the strength of God, the power of the Spirit which makes faith invincible, we can do all things. For it is truly not the long hours or the hard work or the trials or the tribulations that are our great afflictions. These become light with the Divine Hand helping to lift the load. It is only when we foolishly try to walk alone, to bear our burdens and do our work in our own strength and for our own glory that we stumble and falter and break down. God alone can make us spiritually well and strong and quite equal to our work, whatever it may be.—The Onward.

REDUCED FARES ON THE B. C. ELECTRIC RAILWAY

B. C. Electric Announces Lower Rates for Saanich Line Come Into Force Next Week.

Reduced return fares and further reductions for holiday travel on the Saanich line of the B. C. Electric Railway are to come into effect on Victoria Day. This decision was announced by Mr. George Kidd a day or two ago, after consideration of the matter with the local manager, Mr. Goward.

This action will no doubt encourage additional traffic to the many beautiful resorts and camping spots for which Saanich is famous.

The regular return fare between all points will be based on the present single fare plus two thirds.

On statutory or civic holidays the return fare between all points will be based on the present single fare plus one-third. The return tickets on civic or statutory holidays will be available on the days prior to and following such holidays.

HON. DR YOUNG OPENS HOSPITAL AT GANGES

Saturday last was a red letter day for the people of Ganges Harbor on Salt Spring Island, for on that date the Lady Minto Cottage Hospital was declared opened with due ceremony.

The Hon. Dr. Young, accompanied by a number of prominent men from Victoria and other parts of Vancouver Island, performed the opening ceremony and after a number of eloquent speeches had been made the visitors were entertained in a royal style by the ladies of Ganges, through whose instrumentality the cottage hospital was made a possibility.

Situated in the prettiest part of the little town and overlooking the sea, this institution can truly boast of ideal conditions so far as location is concerned, and with the climate which prevails in the district should be a God-send to those who either by illness or accident should find it expedient to patronize it.

BASEBALL.

Alas, how the mighty have fallen. The doleful expression of Napoleon after Waterloo, the forlorn, wearied expression of James II. after Boyne Water, and the painful surprise of Albert Spots after the last general election in the United States. All these have been understood and appreciated by our local baseball team and their supporters. The once invincible bunch have tasted for the first time this season the bitter, bitter dregs of defeat.

True it is that Sidney lined up a crippled team and that the reserves failed to come up to the high standard set by the regulars, still—but why make excuses—beaten to a frazzle by a better team; overwhelmed, but not disgraced. But like Frances I., at Pavia, all is lost but honor. Hope, however, is still alive, and with a rejuvenated and well drilled team it is not yet time to sing the Dead March, but next week we may be able instead to sing a Te Deum.

The score—North Wards 17, and Sidney—well we hate to say it—5. Fush, no remarks from the gallery. The game was played on the diamond last Sunday afternoon, and the chief feature of the game from a Sidney standpoint was Capt. Pridham getting injured in sliding into third base late in the game.

The North Wards presented good fielding, good batting and a splendid battery, and all round deserved to win.

SIDNEY WHARF MARKED BY A BRIGHT RED BEACON

Will Be Splendid Guide for Boats Touching at This Point During the Night.

The new light installed recently by the department of Marine and Fisheries as an aid to navigation, and particularly to boats of all descriptions that are often compelled to touch at the wharf here during the night, cast its first bright red rays over the waters of the Gulf on Wednesday evening last. The poles and wiring for the light were installed some time ago by a local contractor, and the large lamp was placed in position on the top of the pole erected on the north end of the wharf for that purpose, but evidently some delay occurred in the arrangements for the electric current, and it was not until Wednesday morning last that the line men of the B. C. Electric Company arrived in town and proceeded to make the connection. However, every thing is at last completed and from now on it will shine out brightly every night and will act as a guiding star to the large number of small craft that land their passengers at this wharf after an evening's pleasure on the smooth waters of the Gulf of Georgia. It will also be of great benefit to the larger steamships passing up and down the Strait during the dark hours of the night and more especially to those which are compelled to pass through the customs here before proceeding on their way.

In future there will be no excuse for the regular boat on the Sidney and Islands run not making her regular call here during the dark evenings of the fall and winter months, as happened on several occasions during the past winter when the steamer Joan was unable to locate the wharf in the dark and was compelled to proceed to Victoria and unload her freight here on her return trip in the morning.

The credit for the installation of this light is entirely due to the efforts of the Sidney Board of Trade, who brought the matter to the attention of the department a couple of months ago by a strong resolution passed at one of their meetings and forwarded to Mr. F. H. Shepherd, M.P., at Ottawa, who gave the matter his immediate attention by placing it in a very favorable light before the officials of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, with the very satisfactory result above quoted.

SIDNEY NOW ON MAP AS REGULAR PORT OF CALL

Word was received in town yesterday that Sidney has passed from the stage of a flag station to that of a regular port of call for steamers plying these waters. Heretofore the regular steamer making the daily trip from Victoria to the islands lying in the Gulf was not compelled to call at Sidney if they desired not to do so. At times this was a great inconvenience as passengers wishing to take the boat to one or other of the island wharves could not depend on her calling here. The matter was brought to the attention of the proper authorities by the Board of Trade some time ago and the announcement that Sidney is now placed permanently on the map as a regular port of call will be received with a good deal of satisfaction by our citizens.

It is also stated that it is the intention of the C. P. R., when conditions warrant it, to build a special boat capable of about fourteen knots per hour for the Islands run. The Queen City, a small craft with rather poor accommodation, is now making this run and up to the present has come in regularly on schedule time, owing in a large measure to the very fine weather that has prevailed since she relieved the Joan a few weeks ago, but there is very little doubt that she will prove altogether too small when the summer rush of tourists to the Islands sets in a little later.

HEAVY FLOW OF OIL NEAR CITY OF CALGARY

One Hundred Brokerage Offices Are Opened in Prairie City on One Day This Week.

Calgary, May 19.—There is no abatement of the oil excitement. The Dingman well gushes at least once a day. An oily substance that burns has been cut into at the bottom of the McDougall-Segur, and the Mammoth has opened a pocket of wet gas.

Practically all of the other wells now drilling are showing up well, although none of them have been drilled deep enough to show anything material.

The stock buying continues. There may have been a few less shares sold but they were higher in price yesterday and probably more money changed hands. Many of the stocks are being freely taken at prices several times in advance of the subscription. The city is full of strangers, and business is feeling the effects of the loosening money and the restoration of confidence.

Not less than one hundred new brokers offices were opened yesterday

Every available foot of space in the more desirable shopping district has been snapped up, and the oil brokers are crying for more office room. The front of the oldest and most exclusive jewelry store in the city has been transformed into a brokers office.

The Dingman well is spouting about once a day. In fact on no day since oil was struck has it failed to gush. The expulsion lasted only a short time, after which the oil receded to its normal level, about 2,500 feet.

The strike at the McDougall-Segur occurred some time Sunday. The substance brought up in the bailer is black and greasy, and it burns. It is similar to a substance which was encountered in the Dingman well about six weeks ago.

More than fifty new companies are said to be in process of organization. Half a dozen new ones make their appearance every day. The beautiful weather permits of outdoor trading and many brokerage offices are little more than a desk on the sidewalk.

PRaises ROYALTY BILL.

The Sunset Magazine, in its May issue published the following reference to the Timber Royalty Bill passed at the last session of the British Columbia Legislature:

"The United States gave away the largest and best part of its western forests at a uniform price of $2.50 an acre for the land, and threw in the timber for good measure. British Columbia almost from the very beginning pursued a different policy. The Provincial Government sold the timber and retained the title to the land. But it did not sell the timber outright. It gave the applicant a license to cut the timber on a certain tract, charged him an annual rental for the privilege of reserving the ground and made him pay a royalty of fifty cents a thousand feet, board measure, on all timber cut."

"During the session of the Provincial Legislature which closed in March the Hon. W. R. Ross, Minister of Lands, introduced and obtained the passage of a bill to increase the timber royalty. A flat raise from fifty to seventy-five cents a thousand feet, with further increases in five year periods, was made, and in addition the profit sharing principle was introduced. In the future the royalty on British Columbia timber will largely depend upon the condition of the lumber market. The flat royalties provided for in the new act are based upon lumber bringing eighteen dollars a thousand feet. When the market price of lumber rises above this figure part of the increased value goes to the provincial treasury."

"For the present at least this profit-sharing clause will provide small revenues for the province. The output of the mills on both sides of the line when running at capacity is greater than the demand. As a result, lumber prices have been uniformly low for years. But this condition, like the forests themselves, will not last forever. Sooner or later—sooner if the Panama Canal can widen the market for Pacific coast woods—the value of the timber must advance far beyond its present level. When that time comes British Columbia, thanks to the farsighted steward of its lands, will see part of the unearned timber increment go into roads, bridges and other improvements of benefit to every citizen."

"It should be added that the forest service of the Department of Agriculture has incorporated similar provisions in all contracts for the sale of timber from the national forests whenever the cutting of the timber by the purchaser extended over more than five years."

COMMISSION OF CONSERVATION International Conference on City Planning—Draft of Proposed Town-Planning Act.

That the town planning movement in Canada has come to stay and will have to be reckoned with in the future is demonstrated by the fact that it has already engaged the attention of several of our provincial legislatures. The year 1912 saw comprehensive town-planning acts passed in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and last year Alberta led the way for the western provinces. Ontario also has an act applicable to cities with a population of 50,000 and upwards. At the forthcoming International conference on City Planning at Toronto on May 25-27, a draft town-planning act, which it is hoped will be a model for all Canadian provinces, will be submitted to the delegates present by a special committee appointed by the Commission of Conservation. Frank criticism and full discussion of this proposed act will be invited. After being amended in accordance with the resolutions of the conference, copies will be sent to each provincial government urging them to enact legislation along the lines proposed.

As now drafted, the bill provides for the preparing and carrying out of town planning projects by a local board in each city or town, subject to the approval of a central town-planning board for the whole province. Projects will apply chiefly to land likely to be used for building purposes, but may, in certain circumstances, include land already built upon or land suitable for building. Provision is made for compensation of private owners if injuriously affected and for the local authority recovering half of the unearned increment if property values are increased. The Central Board may act on its own initiative if the local board fails to do its duty or if no local board exists.

Under such an act, the growth of every town will be regulated so that streets may be of adequate width and in accord with the general plan of the town; housing congestion will not be permitted; sufficient open spaces will be reserved for parks, squares and other municipal purposes; and health amenity and convenience will be given due consideration in all new building areas and, so far as possible, in old ones.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FIRE PROTECTION.

To the Editor, Sidney Review.

Dear Sir,—For your information I am sending you under separate cover a copy of a small picture entitled "Putting Out the Camp Fire," a clock poster, and a pocket whetstone with an inscription requesting care in regard to fire, all of which form a part of the campaign of the Forest Branch for the prevention of forest fires.

The pictures, while being distributed to country banks, hotels, stores, etc., throughout the province, are designed chiefly for distribution to the school children. They are being sent in bulk to superintendents or teachers, and the latter are requested before distributing the pictures to the pupils to give a short talk about the relation of the forests to the prosperity of the province, the life history of a forest emphasizing the great length of time required, and the way it is threatened from youth to old age by fire, and finally, the necessity on the part of everyone to be careful that they do not through carelessness set a forest fire which may destroy homes and property, as well as valuable forests.

The original of the picture is by a noted artist, and is entitled "A Friend in the Forest."

The clock posters, it is felt, present the importance of fire prevention in a manner which will reach every reader. They are to be posted in forest roads and trails throughout the province.

The whetstones are designed chiefly for distribution to persons, such as loggers, settlers, prospectors, trappers and surveyors, who live and work in the forests, and who more than any one else can be of assistance in preventing forest fires.

The newspapers throughout the province have been very generous in the support of the efforts of the Forest Branch to successfully reduce the annual damage by forest fires, and I am sure you will be interested in these forms of publicity.

Yours very truly,
H. R. MACMILLAN,
Chief Forester.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We have heard many reasons given as to the duties of the modern press in moulding public opinion in certain ideal lines as a means of making the electorate realize the errors or otherwise of legislation. But perhaps Mr. Dooley's conception of this phase of public education is both unique and humorous, when he says: "The press is a comfort to the afflicted and an affliction to the comfortable."

Let me be a little blinder

Let me praise a little more;
Let me be when I am weary,
Just a little bit more cheery;
Let me serve a little better
Those that I am striving for.

Let me be a little braver,
When temptation bids me waver;
Let me strive a little harder
To be all that I should be;
Let me be a little meeker

Let me think more of my neighbor
And a little less of me.

Let me be a little sweeter,
Make my life a bit completer,
By doing what I should do

Let me face the summons calmly

The building trade employees in London, England, have rejected the terms of settlement offered by the masters by a vote of 23,000 to 20,000. The strike, therefore, will continue, though 20,000 people, mainly non-combatants, have been long on the verge of starvation.

There are 3,200,000 bicycles in use in France now, as compared with 800,000 fourteen years ago, when the government began counting them for taxation.

At a recent hearing before the Massachusetts legislature on a proposed law to grant suffrage to women, representatives of practically all of the Boston labor unions spoke in favor of the measure.

The Dominion Parliament has voted a contribution of $25,000 towards the fund for the relief of the sufferers of the Newfoundland sealing disaster.

The Ontario Legislature, after ten weeks' session of strenuous work, was prorogued on May 1st.

Two suffragettes, not knowing that he was away on a cruise, visited the rooms of the Prince of Wales at Oxford disguised as Sisters of Charity and threw a lot of books and pamphlets around the rooms, but did no damage. On the servant opening the door they made a rush and gained admittance to the sitting room before they could be stopped. They gave warning that they would come back when the prince returned. As King George was driving through Cambridge in a motor on April 30th, a suffragette approached his automobile and threw at his Majesty a petition calling for votes for women. The package struck the chauffeur of the King's car.

Sir William Willcocks, the eminent engineer and builder of the Assouan irrigation dam in Egypt, appeared before the committee on Rivers and Harbors at Washington on April 29th and gave interesting information how by scientific drainage he had dealt with the mosquito plague. With proper drainage, Sir William said, malaria as well as mosquitoes can be put out of business. Sir William began his warfare against the mosquito in the Nile Valley. At Khartoum, where the two Niles meet, the 'oats bring down the worst and most malignant mosquitoes in the world, and yet the drainage there is so perfect that now a man is fined twelve shillings for every mosquito seen on his place. Sir William had been invited to Washington to discuss the flood problems on the Mississippi. He said it would be easy to put that great waterway in a straight jacket. "You ought to build your dams bigger," he said. "The Babylonians never built a dike less than one hundred feet wide. The bigger the river the easier the task. On a river like the Mississippi, where the rise in flood time is only a foot a day, it should be easier to control than on a river where the flood walks up the sides."

The stormy weather of last week on the upper lakes has been disastrous to shipping, among the wrecks reported being that of the steamer "Benjamin Noble," which sank off Duluth, Minn., on the night of April 28th, with her crew of twenty men.

The amended constitution for the Republic of China was formally promulgated on May 1st in Peking, and is notable for the wide powers it gives the president. The document, as it now stands, is the work of a Constitutional Convention which has been laboring since the middle of March. The president is empowered to convolve, open, suspend, close and dissolve the legislature; submit to it the budget as well as other bills and refer back to the legislature for reconsideration bills already passed by it. If such measures are repassed by a three-fourths majority, the president, with the consent of the Administrative Council, may still withhold their promulgation. To the president is given sole power to appoint and dismiss civil and military officials, to declare war and conclude peace, and he will be in complete control of the army and navy as well as of all expenditures for these branches of the government.

PRIMITIVE FOOTBALL.

The Original Game Was Played With Heads of Danes.

Football is an ancient pastime, say an exchange. The old Teutons are credited with founding the game by playing with the bleached skulls of their enemies. Preliminary practice was first heard of in Chester, Eng., where the old English had sufficiently brutalized the game to give rise to many adverse criticisms, fragments of which have survived to the present day.

Legend has it that in 962, during the Danish invasion of England, a good man of Chester captured a Dane beheaded him and knocked his head out into the street to furnish sport for the "fellows." The game of kicking the head around the city streets and even outside the walls of the ancient Roman built city grew in favor. The exercise was indulged in whenever a Chester sport could annex a Danish head. But eventually the supply of Danish heads gave out. But the sport had secured a stronghold on the exercise-loving Anglo-Saxons and a "balle of leather called a footballe" was substituted.

The game developed into a rough and tumble scrimmage, and the ball itself would often lie forgotten for hours while the excited players chased one another through alleys and lanes and even into the houses of the more respectable citizens as results of arguments over the rules. It seems that even before William the Conqueror invaded England the interpretation of the football rules was a much mooted matter. Scores were cracked, bones were broken and lives were lost. Yet the game spread in favor, and, jumping over the intervening centuries, is still spreading.

The modern school of football critics, just at present a subdued minority is not a whit more bitter than Philip Stubbs, a literary Briton who way back in 1853 raked football of that day up and down, over and across in the following fashion:

"As concerning footballe, I protest unto you it may rather be called a frierlike kind of fight than a play or recreation, a bloody and murdering practice than a fellowly sport or pastime. For doth not everyone lie in wait for his adversary, seeking to overthrow him and picke him on the nose, though it be on hard stones, or ditch or dale, or valley or hill, so he has him down, and he that can serve the most of this fashion is counted the only fellow, and who but he. So that by this means their necks are broken, sometimes their backs, sometimes their arms, sometimes their noses gush out with blood, sometimes their eyes start out; for they have the sleights to mix one between two to dash him against the heart with their elbows, to butt him under the short ribs with their gripped fists, and with their knees to catch him on the hip and picke him on his neck with a hundred murdering devices."

THE EXPERIMENTAL STATION IS OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

For the information of the public we publish below a letter recently received by Mr. S. Spencer, foreman manager of the Experimental Station here, and also an explanation of what is being done and already accomplished in regard to this matter. The large notice suggested by the writer has been prominently fixed for some time over the office situated on the main road. There are four routes by which the Experimental Station can be approached, viz:

The good and picturesque East Saanich Road.

The B. C. Electric Interurban Railway to Bazan Bay station.

The Victoria and Sidney Railway to Bazan Bay station.

By launch to Bazan Bay wharf.

Coming in by any of these ways every visitor arrives in the centre of the Experimental Station, from where he can either walk, ride or drive over the two miles of good roads through the holly, cascara, lavender, citrus and orange plantations, botanical gardens, orchards and nursery, and then down the avenues planted on each side with plane trees, dogwoods and ornamental shrubs, enjoying from an elevation of two hundred feet down a seven per cent grade to the beach, one of the finest panoramic views obtainable in British Columbia.

On returning from the beach with crabs, clams, etc., for lunch, the picnicer can enjoy the shade of the six acre natural park and among the ferns or alongside the "Cute" Wishing Well. From its pure water he can refresh the inner man whilst listening to the "ambitious orator" holding forth to the listening crowds on the interesting topics of the day collected together in the fine natural amphitheater, now so pretty with a green sward of Kentucky blue grass sown last fall.

Mr. Samuel Spencer,
Foreman Manager for Experimental Station for Vancouver Island, Sidney, B. C.

Dear Sir,—Some time ago I had the pleasure of motoring to Harrison Hot Springs accompanied by some friends, and in passing the Agassiz Experimental Farm, I was very much impressed with the lack of a large sign intimating to the public that the Agassiz Farm was a Government Station and that the public were invited to inspect it and receive any information relative to the trees, plants and seeds that thrive to the best advantage in this part of the country.

We drove through the grounds and were much impressed at the beautiful collection of shrubs, trees, etc., and the general lay-out of the farm. I cannot but feel that thousands of people pass the Agassiz Station who would be delighted with the pleasure and experience of a visit to the farm if they only knew it was open to the public.

As a Victorian, and one who has lived on this part of the island practically all my life, I feel that the Experimental Station at Sidney will soon be one of the beauty spots of our neighborhood and possess educational advantages that will go a long way towards assisting the people of Vancouver Island in selecting shrubs, plants, trees, etc., for the beautifying of their homes and premises. I sincerely trust in laying out your entrance you will have a design that will permit of a large sign bearing the words "Experimental Station for Vancouver Island," and suggesting that the public is welcome.

Kindly accept this suggestion in the spirit in which I make it, and I hope you will not think I am too presumptuous.

Yours very truly,
STEPHEN JONES,
Dominion Hotel, Victoria.

GINGER BREAD BOYS.

"Begin to eat him at his toes, Polly, so's he will last longer, shrieked Phronsie, when she thought Polly was about to decapitate her beloved ginger-bread boy at one bite."—Five Little Peppers.

Cunning ginger-bread figures are dear to the hearts of grown-ups, as well as little folks, and it is not harder to shape them than to make any other kind of cookie.

This first recipe is for crisp cakes that will make very hard and lasting little men and women; the second recipe is for a soft spicy cake that will quickly disappear "down the red lane."

In all these recipes you must use India or New Orleans molasses to get proper results.

No. 1.—One cup light brown sugar, one-half cup of melted shortening, one pint of dark molasses, one-third of a cup of sweet milk, two teaspoons of ginger, one of cinnamon, one level teaspoon of soda and enough flour to make a stiff dough. Bake well.

No. 2.—One egg, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one cup of sour milk or buttermilk, one teaspoon soda, two each of ginger and cinnamon, one cup molasses, three and a half cups flour. Roll, cut and bake. This requires slow, steady baking.

A splendid home fruit cake can be made with the above ingredients in different proportions: One cup of butter blended with a cup of brown sugar, add three beaten eggs, one cup of molasses, a half teaspoon of soda, three cups of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one half teaspoon each of cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and mac Chop raisins, currants, citron, figs and nuts fine and add to the batter the last thing.

The old fashioned suet pudding, so well liked with hard sauce, is a very similar affair. One cup of suet is chopped with a knife and all the strings and fibres removed; it will not cling to the chopping knife if it is kept cold and a sprinkle of flour dredged in once and a while. Put the chopped suet in a deep bowl and add one cup of molasses, one-half cup of chopped fruit, one teaspoon of cinnamon and a half teaspoon each of cloves, allspice, ginger and grated nutmeg. Mix a level teaspoon of soda to a cup of sour milk, and add it and one cup light brown sugar, and three cups flour to the contents of the bowl. Beat briskly and bake in greased moulds or steam two hours.

This suet pudding will keep an indefinite length of time and be as fine as ever when re-heated. Nuts may be added with the fruit.

Steamed brown bread may be made at the same time the pudding is cooked, at a saving of fuel. Two cups of Graham flour, two cups of corn meal, one teaspoon of soda, one of salt, two cups of sour milk, one cup of molasses. This must steam three hours or bake forty minutes.

Swift's Hams and Bacon, the best on the market. Your orders will receive prompt attention at the Local Butchers.

The Story of Who Became

(By Cora Alice Richardson)

It scarcely seems possible that anything so insignificant as a little girl's love for animals would some day make her famous. But such was the case with Rosa Bonheur, the greatest painter of animals the world has ever known.

Rosa was the eldest daughter of a French artist, born in Bordeaux, on March 16, 1822. The family lived in a garret, where Rosa's father had his studio. Mr. Bonheur's income from his pictures was so slim that he was compelled to give lessons in drawing. Every day when the class came little Rosa would quietly steal into the studio and with a crayon and paper take a seat among the pupils. As long as she did not annoy the pupils and she was too young to go to the school her father let her entertain herself there.

Her drawings were good for such a little girl, but she was far more fond of modeling in clay. She made clay statues of her pet dog in every position he was ever known to take, and she was delighted when a horse stopped in front of the house long enough for her to make a model of it.

When she was eight years old her father sent her to school. She went just one day. When she came home that evening she said she hated school and declared she would not go another day. "I want papa to be my teacher," she said, "and his studio can be the school." Her determination not to go to school was not very disappointing news to her father, as they were so poor they really could not afford to send her. He had thought, however, if she liked school and wanted to go he would manage somehow to educate her. But now that the question of education for Rosa was settled her father felt he had been relieved of a great burden.

But poor little Rosa soon found that she was not to be one of her father's pupils. The poverty of the Bonheur family seemed to increase instead of decrease, and before Rosa was nine years old it became necessary for her to earn her own living. We wonder what a little girl of nine years old could be capable of doing to earn her living, and no doubt it will surprise you to learn that she meant to do it with her needle. I wonder how many little girls of her age could to-day get a position in a tailor shop, as she did.

Rosa worked faithfully at the tailor shop until she was twelve years old, but how she did hate it. She did not want to sew for a living. She wanted to be out in the country among the animals and birds, where she could study their habits and ways and draw pictures of them as they grazed in the meadows.

She seemed to dream beautiful pictures about animals every night. She sketched little pictures for her father and told him of her dreams and plans but he was slow to see the talent in his daughter. In some way or other Rosa finally succeeded in opening her father's eyes. He was amazed at his discovery and realized that to make a seamstress of her would be almost criminal.

"I am the happiest girl in the world," said Rosa. "At last my dreams have come true; I am no longer compelled to work in that dingy tailor shop but can stay all day in my father's beautiful studio." Crude as her father's garret studio was, it seemed beautiful to her because there was where she wanted to be. Her father, now awakened and enthusiastic over her ability, devoted most of his time directing and developing her talent, which he had been so slow to recognize.

For a while Rosa copied the masters. She painted landscapes and anything else she happened to find, without any choice of subjects. She was told

The Story of a Girl Who Became Famous

(By Cora Alice Richardson)

It scarcely seems possible that anything so insignificant as a little girl's love for animals would some day make her famous. But such was the case with Rosa Bonheur, the greatest painter of animals the world has ever known.

Rosa was the eldest daughter of a French artist, born in Bordeaux, on March 16, 1822. The family lived in a garret, where Rosa's father had his studio. Mr. Bonheur's income from his pictures was so slim that he was compelled to give lessons in drawing. Every day when the class came little Rosa would quietly steal into the studio and with a crayon and paper take a seat among the pupils. As long as she did not annoy the pupils and she was too young to go to the school her father let her entertain herself there.

Her drawings were good for such a little girl, but she was far more fond of modeling in clay. She made clay statues of her pet dog in every position he was ever known to take, and she was delighted when a horse stopped in front of the house long enough for her to make a model of it.

When she was eight years old her father sent her to school. She went just one day. When she came home that evening she said she hated school and declared she would not go another day. "I want papa to be my teacher," she said, "and his studio can be the school." Her determination not to go to school was not very disappointing news to her father, as they were so poor they really could not afford to send her. He had thought, however, if she liked school and wanted to go he would manage somehow to educate her. But now that the question of education for Rosa was settled her father felt he had been relieved of a great burden.

But poor little Rosa soon found that she was not to be one of her father's pupils. The poverty of the Bonheur family seemed to increase instead of decrease, and before Rosa was nine years old it became necessary for her to earn her own living. We wonder what a little girl of nine years old could be capable of doing to earn her living, and no doubt it will surprise you to learn that she meant to do it with her needle. I wonder how many little girls of her age could to-day get a position in a tailor shop, as she did.

Rosa worked faithfully at the tailor shop until she was twelve years old, but how she did hate it. She did not want to sew for a living. She wanted to be out in the country among the animals and birds, where she could study their habits and ways and draw pictures of them as they grazed in the meadows.

She seemed to dream beautiful pictures about animals every night. She sketched little pictures for her father and told him of her dreams and plans but he was slow to see the talent in his daughter. In some way or other Rosa finally succeeded in opening her father's eyes. He was amazed at his discovery and realized that to make a seamstress of her would be almost criminal.

"I am the happiest girl in the world," said Rosa. "At last my dreams have come true; I am no longer compelled to work in that dingy tailor shop but can stay all day in my father's beautiful studio." Crude as her father's garret studio was, it seemed beautiful to her because there was where she wanted to be. Her father, now awakened and enthusiastic over her ability, devoted most of his time directing and developing her talent, which he had been so slow to recognize.

For a while Rosa copied the masters. She painted landscapes and anything else she happened to find, without any choice of subjects. She was told her pictures were good but lacked life. Rosa was not discouraged, but determined to put real life into them. She would do what she had dreamed of doing when she was cooped up in the tailor shop. She would go direct to nature for her models. She wondered why she had not done it before.

With the rising of the sun on the following morning Rosa set out for the country, and then had some difficulty in finding what she wanted. To find animals within easy walking distance of a great city is no easy matter, and the girl art student soon learned that this was true.

So Rosa, who was never discouraged, thought of a new method of finding animal models. Why not go to the great slaughter houses, and see the animals there? This she immediately began doing. There were many obstacles in the way of a pretty young girl who wishes to saunter about the packing house yards unmolested, and the resourceful Rosa soon thought of a means of meeting and overcoming these obstacles. She would wear trousers and be a boy!

Many were the cattlemen who were surprised to see a poorly clad "boy" place an easel on the ground near his animals and sketch a picture that evidently was the work of an accomplished artist. Then followed embarrassments for the "boy" Rosa.

"Have half of my bottle of wine," the cattlemen usually suggested to the artist.

But Rosa had no desire to drink with strange cattlemen, even when their intentions were the most friendly, and was forced to find some tactful manner of escaping their hospitality. Another difficulty was presented by the pretty little French girls who seeing the rosy cheeked boy, found in him a remarkable "catch." Thus Rosa was compelled to keep her mind on art while avoiding complications with both the girls and the boys. Can you girls picture a more trying situation for one whose only object was to advance herself in her work?

But success finally came, as it always does to those who persist in working for it. As the girl blossomed into womanhood, and her ideas took on the well developed, matured finish of the adult, her paintings began to be recognized by art critics, and there was a demand for them. It was then that she used her knowledge of animals to attain her greatest and most lasting success.

Who has not seen, in some form of reproduction or in the original, Rosa Bonheur's striking painting, "The Horse Fair." It is upon this painting more than any other piece of work from her brush that her great fame rests. To-day the picture occupies the most conspicuous place that could be found for it in the Metropolitan Art Museum, New York. In other galleries in Europe are copies of the painting, done in various sizes by Rosa Bonheur herself, that are just as highly prized as is this one.

Ever after her decided success with this undoubted masterpiece Rosa's troubles were far from an end. "The Horse Fair" was of such gigantic proportions that it was almost unsaleable. Although it was taken from one great museum to another and was awarded scores of blue ribbons, nobody appeared willing to buy it. At last it was sold for eight thousand dollars. Later, after passing through many hands, it was sold to the Metropolitan Museum for $56,000. But, as is usually the case, the artist was given the much smaller sum. Such but too often is the reward of art.

Rosa's fame had gone round the world when, as is the custom in France, it was suggested that she be granted the emblem of the Legion of Honor. Plainly, she had earned it, and many men had been so honored for much less. But Rosa was refused her due simply because she was a woman. So far behind our times were the great men of those times!

But the artist finally was given her just deserts and in a manner that almost repaid her for the delay in justice. After years of waiting a friend of Miss Bonheur's brought the subject to the attention of Empress Eugenie. "What!" exclaimed the empress.

"Is it possible that the greatest artist of our time is being discriminated against simply because she is a woman?"

Finding that such was the case, the energetic empress chose a woman's way of correcting the wrong. She went directly to Rosa's house and personally decorated her with the red ribbon of the legion.

The famous artist died at the age of 78 years, surrounded by the great men and women whose friendship she had earned by her success and also those friends she had made as a little girl—her dogs and cats. It is probable that she thought just as highly of the animals that remained with her throughout her chequered career as of any of the noble men and women who were proud to associate with her in later years.

And thus was one little girl's kindness to animals repaid with all the rewards that this world has to offer.

BETTER IN PANTOMIME.

What do you say to a pantomime acted entirely by insects? Such a performance would be impossible, of course, on an ordinary stage; but it is being done, and beautifully done too, on the cinema screen.

The actors and actresses, principal "boy," principal "girl," and all are just beetles—Prof. Lozshki's trained beetles—and the little creatures display almost human intelligence.

There is, for instance, a skating scene, in which they cut better figures than the average man. Santa Claus, a huge stag beetle, is a quaint figure, who climbs down a big Christmas tree and raises smaller trees in the wilds, which he loads up with wonderful presents.

The beetles all receive gifts, and there is no grumbling or trouble except when the pantomime demon attempts to steal a Christmas cracker which a little mamma beetle is endeavoring to carry home to her baby beetles. Then follows a terrific struggle, the bonbon explodes, and the two are blown to pieces.

These performing beetles, it should be explained, are specially trained for cinema work by Prof. Lozshki, a Russian, who has spent the greater part of his life in studying the insects.

He claims that he has found them to possess not only great intelligence but considerable histrionic ability, and strange though the assertion may sound, few people will be inclined to contradict it, once they have seen one of his wonderful insect dramas performed upon the screen.

In one of these entitled, "A Drama of the Middle Ages," whole armies of beetles, clothed in quaint old uniforms and carrying various mediaeval weapons, march and counter march in the most natural manner. They erect scaling ladders, storm a castle, and fight fiercely on the battlements for the mastery. On the screen the insects are magnified to the size of real soldiers, and the effect is startling and uncanny.

In yet another of the Lozshki photo plays dragon-flies and daddy-long-legs take part; but these, the professor explains are mere "supers." He relies upon his beetles for all the principal parts.

They are, however, not ordinary beetles. On the contrary, they have been trained from stock carefully chosen and cultivated. Lozshki started as a beetle "fancier" away back in the year 1881, and the present generation of beetles that he is now experimenting with is the 465th in direct descent from the original parent stock. For the life of a beetle, it must be remembered, is short.

Mr. W. W. Foster, member for the Islands constituency, was a visitor in town on Wednesday on business connected with this part of his riding. Mr. Foster has just returned from the mainland after spending a couple of months in Cumberland and other constituencies in connection with the good roads policy of the legislature of which he is a member.

The opening up of Bazan avenue from First street to the water's edge is now well under way and will be completed shortly. Foreman Trowse and his gang of men have finished operations for the time being over on the west side of the peninsula and have moved their outfit into Sidney where they will spend some time on odd jobs in connection with the repairing of the roads of the town and building new sidewalks along some of the principal streets.

The Sidney Lodge of the International Order of Good Templars met as usual in Berquist's small hall on Monday evening last, when four new members were initiated. Information regarding the order and forms of application for membership may be obtained from Miss A. Williams, secretary, or Mr. W. Lait, assistant secretary. Owing to the fact that next Monday is a general holiday there will be no meeting of the lodge. The next meeting will be held on Monday, June 1st, when those present will be asked to take part in several amusing contests after the business has been attended to.

Mr. R. G. R. McKenzie, our well known local barrister, together with his wife and family, leave Sidney this week for Petrolia, Ont., where he intends practising his profession in the future. We understand that Mr. McKenzie's father, who resides in Petrolia, is very anxious to have his son with him, which is quite natural, the old gentleman being close to 80 years old, though mentally and physically strong. Mr. McKenzie has recently disposed of his property in Sidney to Mr. Sam Roberts, and last Saturday afternoon held a very successful sale of his household furniture and household effects. We extend to the genial "Mac" and his family our very best wishes for prosperity in his new place of abode.

Work on the new tennis courts on Third street is now practically completed and the finishing touches are being put on this morning by Contractor Brennan with the big road roller. The sand will be spread this afternoon and rolled in and the courts will then be in shape for the marking and the putting up of the nets. The president, who has had charge of the preparing of the ground, is now ready to turn it over to the club, and would suggest that all the members who possibly can turn out on Saturday afternoon to help with the work that must be accomplished before play can be started. If all the young men of the club will lend a helping hand there is no reason why the formal opening should not take place next Monday evening.

All fresh killed spring lamb and mutton—The Local Butchers.

Now is the time to preserve your eggs. Water Glass, 25c tin, at the Drug Store.

The Sunday school in connection with St. Andrew's church will be held at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning and until further notice, instead of 3 o'clock in the afternoon as formerly.

REV. J. WESLEY MILLER
NEW METHODIST MINISTER

Will Preach His First Sermon on This Circuit Next Sunday Morning.

In a letter received by the Review yesterday from Mr. W. R. Armstrong who is at present attending the Methodist conference at Kamloops, B.C., he sends the information that Rev. J. Wesley Miller, B.A., B.D., had been appointed to the Sidney circuit. Mr. Miller is a graduate in Arts of Toronto University and of Victoria College in theology. He has been in the province ten years, coming here from Ontario in 1904. He will take charge of the circuit at once and will conduct services on Sunday next. Mr. Miller has just returned from the East, having spent a year in post graduate work in Toronto University and in doing some special church work.

Mrs. Miller is also a graduate of McGill University of Montreal, and the daughter of Mr. Jos. Patrick, of Victoria.

SAANICHTON NEWS.

A proposal is under consideration to hold a flower service of the Anglican Church in the agricultural hall. If this should materialize it is hoped that the Victoria Automobile Club may become interested. The proposal is also to enlist the sympathy of some members of the Union Club who may be willing to render their musical services, as a full choral service is intended, with probably one or two solos. In the event of the proposal being adopted it is hoped that those attending will bring flowers and after the services these could be forwarded to the hospitals. A great feature in this suggestion is that a collection should be taken up in aid of the Jubilee Hospital. It is hoped that our Sidney friends would lend us all the assistance possible, especially in the vocal line. Our ambition is to fill the hall. To do this a great deal of energy and not a little work will be required. Surely the proposal is worthy of consideration. The idea is to provide a service of worship to Almighty God to acknowledge His great mercy in providing us with flowers of miraculous beauty, and that we may provide the sick and suffering with some of them and also to provide funds for the hospital.

At a recent meeting of the Agricultural Society it was decided to install the electric lights in the hall. The prize list for the annual fair was handed over by Mr. Allberry to the printer on the 14th of May, the earliest date on record.

Notwithstanding the cold nights the flowers are exceptionally early. The Oriental poppy was flowering on the 14th and the lilies appear to be at least a month ahead of time.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberts, of Sidney, was baptized at St. Mary's on Sunday last.

ON THE SIDE

That members of the Board of Trade wish their names withheld from press reports only adds lustre to their deeds.

At the same time it is the Board as a whole, and not the mover and seconder of a motion, who is responsible for any action taken towards the welfare of our port, for we are a recognized port now and officially on the map.

And ladies and gentlemen, it wasn't the mover and seconder of the motion which gained for us this distinction, it was the Sidney Board of Trade.

What is more, their recent deliberations towards our ultimate comfort are to bring quite a few things worthy of mention; for instance we are to have:

No Mosquitoes.
No More Dust.
No Taking the Wrong Road.
A Clean and Healthy District.

More Room for Our Launches.

A Safe and Convenient Landing Place.

A Beacon Light by Day and Night.

Mr. Fletcher North, for the past year or two connected with the real estate firm of McKillican & North, has severed his connection with that firm for the time being and on the first of June will enter business for himself. Mr. North this week closed a deal whereby he will take over the splendid business established on the corner of Bazan avenue and First street by Mr. J. B. We regret very much to see Mr. Kelly retire from among the business men of our town, but fortunately it is not his intention for the present at least, to remove his place of residence, and he will still be able to devote as much time to the welfare of the town as he has done in the past. The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian Church will hold a strawberry festival on the afternoon of Saturday, June 6th, on the lawn at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McNaught, Third street. Ice cream, strawberries and cream, and tea and cake will be on sale, and the proceeds of the undertaking will go towards the building fund of the new church. The strawberries used on this occasion will be gathered from the garden of Mr. McNaught and as they have done remarkably well this year those who make it a point to be present will have a rare treat.
