TERRIBLY FATAL FLOOD. London, June 7.-A storm yesterday caused a flood in the Roberndorff Valley, near Oedenburg, Western Hungary. All the houses in the valley were swept away like toys in the torrent. More than 100 of the inhabitants are missing. Eighteen bodies have been recovered. The town of Roberndorff was sub-

ELECTION OF AN M. P. London, June 7 .- Lord Balcarres, heir to the earldom of Crawford and Balcarres, has been elected to Parliament for the Chorley division of North Lancashire, in the room of Gen. R. J. Fielden, deceased. Lord Balcarres is a Conservative, as was also Gen. Fielden. Neither was opposed at the polls.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN THE CAM-

EROONS. London, June 7.-A dispatch from Berlin says the Governor of the Cameroons telegraphed that the Germans have stormed four of the forts belenging to the rebellious natives on the Lower Sasage River. The fighting was of the most desperate character. Two hundred natives were killed, many wounded, and a large number taken prisoners. The German loss was twelve killed and 47 wounded. As a result of the battle, trading in that region has

Inconraging Reports Regarding the State of Trade

New York, June 7 .- R. G. Dun & Co's weekly review of trade says: The tide of business is rising even as it was falling just two years ago, with surprising rapidity. Industries gain much, halt, or fall back a little, and then gain once more. Failures for the week have been 195 in the United States, against 216 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 40 last Bradstreet's says: The speculative spirit which seemed to dominate both commercial and financial circles until within a week or ten days past is less conspicuous in all lines. While business throughout the country may, therefore, be characterized as quieter, the tone of staple markets continues strong, and confidence in a good demand when the fall season opens next month, remains unabated. There is no change in trade conditions at Montreal, where crop prospects nent divines have also been secured. There will be special denominational society days during the two months of the assembly. A big auditorium and three-story 80-room hotel are now in course of erection. There are some 600 cottages contiguous to the assembly. and boats make hourly trips from Buf-

MANGLED TO DEATH.

An Ottawa Man Killed on the C. P. R. Near Caradoc.

(Special to the "Advertiser.") Caradoc, June 7.—The body of a dead man was found on the C. P. R. track about two miles east of Caradoc station this morning. The right arm was broken, the left foot crushed and the head completely crushed and cut off. An inquest was held at Caradoc station by Dr. Thompson, of Strathroy, and a verdict of accidental death was given, exonerating the company and their employes from all blame. The deceased appeared to have been beating his way on some train, and having fallen off was run over and badly mangled by some train during the night. From papers found on his person his name appears to be William F. Spears, of Ottawa. He had been in Seattle, Wash., and was returning to Ottawa, where he has relatives living. The body was buried in Mount Brydges cemetery this evening after the inquest by the township authori-

JAMES LABADIE'S DEATH,

His Family Left in Very Poor Circumstances.

Chatham, June 7 .- The death of Jas. Labadie, the Canadian checker champion, leaves his family very poorly provided for. His father is paralyzed, and unless some help is extended those who have been left behind will lose their heme. Labadie made a national reputation as a checker-player, and he was well-known throughout the United States. His games and problems have been widely published, and he was regarded as an authority. Friends of the family have asked ex-M. P. Rufus Stephenson, collector of customs at Chatham, to act as receiver and treasurer of any contributions which will be

QUEEN'S AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER: In reply to the article of today respecting the recent action of the Queen's Avenue official board with reference to the first list of appointments made by the stationing committee of the London Conference, I have to say that the members of that board have a kind feeling towards the Rev. J. R. Gundy and entertain a very high opinion of

A short time ago, however, they chose the Rev. George Daniel, late chairman of the Brandon district, as their pastor, and accordingly sent an invitation to him for the ensuing conference year, which was accepted, subject to the action of the station-

g committee. That invitation was renewed at the last meeting and a deputation appointed to wait on the stationing committee in order to secure the man of their choice. R. J. C. DAWSON.

London, June 7. Rec. Steward. HELLMUTH LADIES COLLEGE.

The first programme of the annual commencement exercises, consisting of a vocal and piano recital, came off last night with brilliant success before a large audience, which included a number of visitors from distant parts of Canada and the United States and several graduates of past years. The programme was an excellent one, and displayed a rare amount of talent. The vocalists of the evening were the Misses Harriett Truesdell, Dorothy Steele and Grace Morey—three pupils who have gained the coveted certificate in the full course of singing. Miss Truesdell has a soprano voice of great range and beautiful quality, and the way in which she sang her two numbers, "Elsa's Dream," from Wagner's Lohengrin, and Buck's song "I Love Thee," was most artistic. Miss Steele's sympathetic and dramatic voice was very effective in the romance from Wagner's Tannhauser, and Gounod's song "O, That We Two Were Maying," in both of which she made a great success. Miss Morey's sweet and well-trained soprano sounded to good advant e in Arditi's difficult waltz song "Le Saran Rose." The planists were Miss Lillian Waddingham (who gave an excellent rendi tion of Scharwenka's third "Polish Dance" from memory), Miss Nora Anderson (who played Mozart's A major concerto in extremely good style), Miss Edith Lott (whose excellent playing of two solos by Saint-Saens and Chopin was very much appreciated) and Miss Carlotta Preston (who gave a most effective rendering of Hiller's harp concerto). The violin, guitars and mandolin numbers were a successful feature of the programme. Miss Katherine Moore, the vocal instructor, played the accompaniments to the vocal numbers, and Mr. Martin, the musical director, played the second piano parts to the concerto. Follow-

THE WRONG CORPSE.

They Were Weeping Over a Stranger-A Stratford Man's Body.

Ashland, Ohio, June 8 .- A hymn was being sung over the supposed remains of Henry C. Glassman yesterday, when the undertakers walked in and informed the mourner that they were weeping over the wrong corpse. Glassman disappeared two weeks ago. A body was found in the river which was identified as his, with the exception of one article of underwear. His wife paid for the coffin, notified the Foresters, of which Glassman was a member, to conduct the services and to take steps to secure his insurance money. The body was found to be that of John W. Linson, of Stratford, Ont. The funeral broke off abruptly, and the body will be sent to Canada. Glassman has not been

TOE --- HYMAN.

Quiet Wedding in the Church of St.

Of Miss Mary Frances Hyman and Mr. J. Tod, of the Bank of British North America.

The Church of St. John the Evangelist was the scene of a pretty June wedding this afternoon, when Miss Mary Frances Hyman, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walton Hyman, was married to Mr. J. Tod, teller of the Bank of British North America. The ceremony which took place at 2:30, was characterized by extreme quiet and simple elegance, only the intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties being present. The rector, Rev. W. T. Hill, officiated. Miss Belle Garrett, of Hamilton, Ont., and Miss Grace Hyman, city, cousin of the bride, were brides-maids, and Mr. James K. Ball, teller of the Bank of Toronto, was groomsman. The bride was charmingly attired in white satin, trimmed with pearls, and carried white roses. The bridesmaids were also becomingly dressed in white silk, trimmed with white passemen-terie. They carried dark red roses. After the ceremony the party drove to the residence of the bride's parents, 895 Richmond street, where the bride and groom were the subject of the hearty congratulations of their friends. A wedding dejeuner followed, and the happy young couple leave in the evening on a wedding trip east. Miss Hyman was an extreme favorite in social circles, a beautiful and talented young lady, and all her acquaintances will unite in wishing her every happiness in the married state. The groom is also a very popular young man, and a native of Glasgow, Scotland. The presents received by the couple indicate the kindly feeling entertained for them by their friends. Among the rich collection were several substantial checks.

She would remind these who still wish to send books that the catalogue will soon have to be made out.

TO BE ASHAMED OF.

The Stratford Beacon, referring to London's padded census, says: "There are even factories enumerated which, from no name being given, do not seem to employ anybody, not even the maufacturer. No wonder the Government was reluctant to bring down the return. It might well feel ashamed of such work. Yet this is the material from which arguments in support of protection are manufactured." MASONIC.

On Friday afternoon and evening a lodge of instruction was held at Belmont, when the Nilestown, Harrietsville and Belmont lodges exemplified the work for the benefit of the acting D. D. G. M., R. W. Bro. Cooper, and P. D. D. G. M., R. W. Bro. Broderick, of this city. The first-named brother inspected the books of the lodges and the latter criticised the work as performed They will regret to hear that R. W. Bro. John Boyd, P.D.D.G.M., of Belmont, sustained a fracture of one of his arms the other day, which incapacitated him from taking an active part in the work. There was a good attendance of brethren, and they were hospitably entertained.

The acting D. D. G. M. will hold a lodge of instruction at Doric Lodge, Lobo, on Thursday night next, when the brethren of Henderson Lodge, IIderton, and Delaware Valley Lodge with the local members, will exemplify ywt | the work assigned them.

prised, not to say a trifle startled, to find awaiting her this morning a little note, very modest and feminine in general appearance, bearing the request that she would be so kind as to give some information in her valuable column on a point in the etiquette of introductions. I was surprised because I had not thought of this department before in the light of a correspondence column, and least of all had it ever occurred to me that I should ever find myself placed upon the seat of judgment, and called upon to give a decision in such matters. However, the neat way in which my correspondent worked in the little word "valuable" has done its work, for who can resist a delicate bit of confectionery (especially when it's scarce). I feel quite disposed to do my best to oblige, the more so as the point in question is a place at watering places, or at lawn tennis, or garden parties, to be considered as making future acquaintance necessary if not desirable?" No, certainly Raven. not. THE WORLD NOT RUN BY LOGIC.

London, Saturday, June 8.

Hugh John Macdonald, of Winnipeg, son of the late Sir John Macdonald, was interviewed in Montreal by the "Witness" on the Manitoba school question. He expressed his preference for a public school, in which the studies would be entirely secular. But as a very large Besides, why expect more charity and toleration from little Protestants and little Catholics than from their elders? Whenever even all Protestant clergymen can be got to co-operate in a common ministerial association, it will be time enough to expect the breadths of charity among juniors so much talked Would you, reader, expect a Catholic parent to feel comfortable in even the most secularized school in the world with say Margaret L. THE LONDON CENSUS RETURNS.

Yesterday, the "Advertiser" printed the full census returns of the city of London-an extraordinary exhibit. Many curious illustrations of the way in which the census was filled up will be observed by those conversant with London's manufacturing industries. Here is one: Three young ladies.for convenience of themselves and their lady friends, hired a central room in which to give and take painting lessons. The three are returned as manufacturers. Manufacturers of ambition, or manufacturers of sketches? If either, every pupil in the public schools is a manu-

CROPS AND THE WEATHER,

Interviews with farmers from a wide ception-that of Caradoc township-It is stated that the acreage sown will be about the same as last year. The hay crop this year will be light. Everywhere there have been complaints of lack of rain. Very rarely has the weather at this season of the year been so very dry and hot. The effect of the drought is shown on the River Thames, which is unusually low. Already fears of lack of water, through the drying up of wells and streams, are being expressed, but the cheering fall of rain which took place this week should reassure our friends in the country. It has done a great deal of good.

Of the outlook in the United States. Henry Clews, the well-known authority, says that though the wheat crop has of the injury must greatly depend upon the future course of the weather. It is not at all impossible, nor even unlikely, that with plenty of moisture the crop may yet turn out a fair or average one. The plant has not yet absorbed elements of nutrition, and should the atmospheric elements of growth prove propitious the recovery of the plant may surpass what is now anticipated. Moreover, the complaints are confined almost exclusively to the wheat crop. The corn crop is vastly more important, its bulk being fourfold, and its value more than double that of wheat. This year, owing to the high price of corn and the low price of wheat, the acreage of Indian corn is likely to be unusually large, and at present there are no conditions unfavorable to the prospects of the crop. Taking the agricultural prospects as they exist today, there is nothing in them really incompatible with the hope of a good harvest. Very much however, must depend upon the course of the weather for the next few weeks. There is no certainty in either direction, and the present situation therefore calls for reservation of judgment as

"Suffrage," says Mrs. Helen M. Gongar, "needs women more than women to the harvest factor in investments."

POINTS.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell emphasized the fact, at the unveiling of the Macdonald statue in Montreal, that he alone was left of all the prominent men in his party who set the policy of high taxation on foot in 1878. And he would not be in public life either if the ambitious small men who ignore him on every occasion could possibly crowd him out of the Conservative leadership. Disintegration proceeds apace.

Put not your trust in the weather.

The "Republic of Formosa" has collapsed. It was doomed to discomfiture from the start. The best thing that could happen to Formosa, under all the circumstances, is her close alliance with Japan.

Every other year the Dominion militia is placed in charge of a new Minister. He comes along, makes great promises of reform and economy, keeps it up for a little while, then permits things to get into an expensive muddle. His retirement from the post follows. His successor disclaims responsibility for past foolishness, and starts out with a string of promises, only to be followed up by a lot of foolishness of his own. In militia affairs, as in every other department, the country needs a change that will bring a strong, steady, progressive, economical administration of

Speaking of the failure of the Congregationalists to take their opportunity a year or two ago of a union with the Presbyterians, one well-informed from the inner circle writes:

"The Congregational friends made a huge blunder in not entering upon the Union movement. Of the eleven who signed the document. eight were in the active pastorate. British authors had under the Berne convention. If the Canadian act of 1889

would mean that our authors would (Specially telegraphed by our own Representative.) Ottawa, June 7.-When the public ac- | public money was at the disposal of one counts committee met this morning. Mr. Mills, of Annapolis, made an explanation of his connection with the military grounds at Annapolis, for which he is said to be in arrears of rent for nearly $1,000. He disclaimed all liability by saying he was acting for another party merely.

A letter from Mr. Hamel, late assistant chief engineer of the Department of Public Works, was read, dated at Ottawa, saying that he did not wish to appear before the committee. It was ordered that his case be handed over to the Minister of Justice.

Mr. Screiber was examined in the Soo Canal contract investigation. The contractors were Messrs. Regan & Haney. Their tender for the lower entrance was $299,000. Murphy & McGreevey tendered for $322,000. The lowest tender for the upper entrance was John Nicholson, $231,000, but this was considered too low. The next lowest was Allan & Fleming, $325,000, and Hugh Ryan came next with $348,000. Allan & Fleming received the contract. The department rejected Nicholson's tender, because it was regarded as too low. This was in 1889. Mr. Ryan had the contract for the lock out of six tenders. He got it at $1,282,-000, but Goodwin tendered for $1,163,-000, and Conmee & Co. at $1,225,000, so that two tenders were passed over in favor of Ryan. The department reported that these two tenders were too cheap. Nicholson's tenders for both the upper and lower entrances together amounted to $608,000, and Ryan's and Allan & Fleming's put together amounted to $648,000, and Nicholson wrote that was the lowest for the two he would refuse to accept one only. Mr. Lister, who is conducting the examination of witnesses, tried to get at a reason why the department concluded that the two tenders of Conmee and Goodwin were too low. He pointed out that Conmee and Co,'s tender, which was declared below the estimated cost, was only $57,000 in excess of Ryan's on a total contract of $1,282,000. Letters were read from Sir Frank Smith advising the enlargement of the lock and deepening to 20 feet, but the chief engineer reported against it. Nevertheless, the lock was enlarged to 100 feet wide, 650 feet long and 19 feet deep, instead of 600 feet long, 85 wide and 16 deep. Finally, another change was made to 900 feet long, 60 feet wide and 20 feet deep. This added in April, 1892, $190,000 to the contract. Then there were culverts. $121 .-0 additional, and $107,000 added in 1892 20 feet in depth in the lock, and for a pier in the channel. The total expenditure to date was $3,171,000, and the total cost completed, including residence for superintendent, $3,520,000. Mr. Lister said that the original estimate of the cost, as stated to Parliament by the Minister, was $750,000, which was subsequently increased to $1,250,000. Mr. Schreiber asserted that the estimated cost was $4,000,000, but when called on to produce the proof failed to do so. The inquiry will be resumed on Tues-

In the House today Mr. Mulock introduced a bill to better secure the independence of Parliament, which was seriously threatened by the fact that today 20 per cent of the supporters of the Government were either promised or had applied for public positions. The bill was read the first time, as was also one by Dr. Sproule respecting restraints of trade.

A bill to relieve the harbor commis sioners of Three Rivers with respect to their debenture powers was, on motion of Mr. Foster, read the first time.

The House went into committee of supply on the supplementary estimates. The Opposition dwelt on one item of $567 to pay a claim of North Cayuga township for damage to roads by floods. This proved to be a very curious and interesting item. Dr. Montague, in whose county this township lies, attempted to explain, but finally said that the claim was over 30 years old. The question then arose why this venerable claim should have been resurrected on the eve of the recent bye-election in Haldimand, and the Opposition found no difficulty in attributing it to unblushing bribery, as Mr. Edgar express-

"The heavenly twins," Messrs. Haggart and Montague, joined hands in explaining that the Minister of Canals had promised to pay the item last year before an election was thought of. They wondered greatly that they should for one moment be thought capable of doing anything to influence the result in a bye-election. Mr. Boyle, of Monck, came to their rescue and announced that this claim arose under the Mackenzie Administration, and was only 15 years ago. He was a little confused by a reminder that it was seventeen years since Mackenzie held office, and he amended his statement by saying that the claim was twenty years old.

Mr. Davin then testifled that he heard of the claim when he ran for Parliament in Haldimand in 1878, and Mr. Mills said that the Mackenzie Government found this claim when they took office. The item finally passed.

Mr. Davies tonight drew attention to Mr. Ouimet's speech down in Guysboro, where he said that in expending public money he would favor his friends. Mr. Davies denounced as immoral the doctrine laid down by Mr. Ouimet.

Mr. Ouimet, in reply, denied that this was a fair construction of his remarks. and then proceeded to make the following extraordinary statement: "I stated in Guysboro that the money veted for public works every year was insufficient to do justice to every part of the country, and I said blandly that, all things being equal, they should not be surprised if our friends were served

Y., June 7.—Nearly 12,000 people saw Rochester and Toronto battle for ten innings this afternoon, with the result that the game was in doubt until the last gasp. The locals led until the seventh, when McPartlin allowed four singles and two bases on balls, which, together with two errors by White and skillful base-running by the visitors enabled them to get ahead by one run. The Rochesters got two more in the eighth, which gave them one the best of Toronto, The score was tied in the ninth. Gray gave three bases on balls in the tenth and forced in a run, Triples by Warner and Hamburg, O'Brien's single added four more sallies to Rochester's string. Rochester 11, Toronto 8.

The Council Reverses Its Decision and Refers the Question to a Special Committee.

FRIDAY EVENING. The Middlesex county councilors who attended this evening's session had just a little taste of what the City Council had for the first five months of the year. They were talking electric railway matters with the representatives of the London company, but their labor of three hours is lost, for the company will not cross at Dundas street bridge under the terms laid down by the county. At the morning session the special com-mittee appointed by the council to consider the company's application presented a draft agreement, which was refered to the company's solicitors for consideration. Tenight a reply was re-ceived, in which the company stated that they could not see their way clear to comply with the clause asking them to move back the house just east of the bridge. The difficulties were considerable, especially in viw of the fact that the company does not possess the right to expropriate property in the city, and the removal of the house and straightening of the sidewalk would mean the acquiring of a frontage from private owners of over 85 feet, the cost of which would involve an outlay far beyond what the company is in a position to make for such a purpose. The company could not successfully and safely operate their railway along the bridge unless the same were parallel with the present structure for the whole distance, the making of a curve on the bridge being improper from an engineer-ing point of view. While content to become liable for all damage caused by them, the company would not undertake liablity for damages which mig' only exist in the mind of the comr .ssioner. As to the bridge clause in the special committee's report, if it meant that the company, in case the bridge was carried away, could not rebuild, then it could not be accepted. If it meant that the company was not in a position to compel the county to rebuild their bridge, then t was acceptable. The company could not understand why after they have placed the roads and sidewalks as desired they should have to keep them up. This was work belonging to either the city or London West. Concluding, the epistle read: "The company, under its existing rights, can run its cars on the roadway on both sides up to the bridge itself, and that under these circumstances the mere fact of crossing on a side bridge, even with the road occupying its present position, could not add to the danger, if any, which already exists. At the same time we would point out that by the road being diverted a trifle to the south both at the east and west ends of the bridge, the existing danger, if any, would be materially lessened." Before anything was done, Reeve Hardy, of Caradoc, stated that he considered it the least the company could Minister of Education, omitting the little correspondence to bring down since last year on the subject. It had do was to give the councilors an idea pany were wanting the county to give away all its rights to the bridge There was only one clause which creclause No. 2, wherein the county wanted the company to move back the frame house just east of the bridge, and which would mean a considerrable outlay of money from which no return would be made. Even some of the councilors opposed this, claiming that it would place the company in the power of the owners of the property, who could ask their own price. Others again, urged its insertion on the ground that it was necessary to allow a person driving across a view up the hill. Reeve Hardy pressed its adoption and moved to that effect. Warden Leitch moved an amendment that the clause be referred to the special committee with power, but by a vote of 22 to 18

the motion carried. The report was adopted, and Reeve McLeod offered a resolution that it was injudicious to allow the street railway company to cross any county bridge, or to allow them to use the piers as supports for their girders. Lost. "We can never accept those terms, said Manager Carr after the meeting "It would mean an unnecessary outlay for that property on the city side of the bridge. Citizens will have to continue walking across the bridge."

EAST MIDDLESEX SCHOOLS. Inspector Dearness presented his annual report on East Middlesex schools, in which he stated that the summaries of the tables of statistics do not show any marked change as compared with those of the preceding two or three years. Going back 21 years to the first report he had the honor to present, the average amount payable per 100 acres omitting incorporated villages, on the principal item of expense, viz., teachers' salaries, was, in 1874, $10 55; in 1895, $10 68. In that period there has been a decrease of nearly $3,000 in the amount received from legislative and municipal grants by the seven townships com-prising the division, but notwithstand-ing the decrease from the source of revenue so large was the sum-$20,935 31 -paid for new school buildings in East Middlesex that the rate per 100 acres paid in taxes in 1874 was $15 20, as against $10 53 in 1895. It will be seen that at present the other sources of revenue besides the taxes slightly more than pay all the expenses outside of teachers' salaries The total receipts for the year show a decrease of $1,119 16; in the year 1895 they amounted to $64,-449 77. The law, optional in 1887 and made obligatory in 1891, to raise $100 from the general funds of the township for each section, is now pretty well established in popularity; if the sum were made $200, and children allowed For this reason he was disinclined to with but little obstacle to attend the most convenient school, it would bring combe should be accompanied by any member of the Copyright Association, as it might be taken in England to nearly all the advantages urged in behalf of the township boards of trustees, while leaving with urged the people cherished the principle of local control. SATURDAY MORNING. The county council at last night's session, as will be seen from the report of its proceedings, persisted that the street railway company should, if they wanted to cross at Dundas street bridge, secure the removal back of the frame house and sidewalk east of the structure, to provide for a wider roadway. A bylaw embodying such a clause was adopted, but the company refused point blank to accept such an agreement, as it would have entailed a large outlay of money to secure the property. At this morning's concluding session of the council the question was again raised, and the action taken showed a great change in mind. Reeve Gilmour, of Dorchester, offered the following resolution: "That the county commissioner, associated with a committee composed of Messrs. James Gilmour, James Murray, Peter Elson, Charles Simomns, Henry Hardy, Charles C. Hodgins, Simon Mc-Leed, Duncan Campbell and Henry Owens, be authorized to carry out the terms of bylaw No. 494, empowering the street railway company to cross the river at Kensington bridge, and to alter, add to or vary the terms of such ylaw as stated in clause 13.

"And it is declared that the said commissioner may, under the powers confered on him by said clause, with the approval of the said committee, vary the agreement intended to be executed with reference to the removal of the frame house east of the bridge, provided the safety of the public is, in his opinicn, sufficiently secured by such

This Remedy Gives Relief in a Few Hours, and Usually Cures in One to Three Days.

J. H. Garrett, a prominent politician of Liverpool, N. S., makes, for the benefit of the public, the following statement: "I was greatly troubled wih rheumatic pains for a number of years. On several occasions I could not walk, nor even put my feet to the floor. I tried everything, and all local physicians, but my suffering continued. At last I was prevailed upon to try South American Rheumatic Cure. I obtained perfect relief before I had taken half a bottle of the remedy, and today regard it the only radical cure for rheumatism.

TORONTO.

Toronto, June 7.—Cables from the old country are very bad, so that the result was a poor market today for cattle, prices being off about 1/2 per lb. Receipts 41 car loads, including 1,510 hogs, 165 sheep and lambs and 50 calves. About four loads of butchers' cattle went to Montreal. In export cattle buying was slow, and prices were off considerably. Several loads of cattle were left unsold. Most of the drovers were selling at a loss sooner than hold their cattle any longer. Prices ruled from 4½c to 5c.

In butchers' cattle there was also a weaker feeling, and prospects are for still lower prices. The top figure for choice butchers' cattle was about 4½c, only one or two bunches touching TORONTO. about 4½, only one or two bunches touching 4½c. The range may be put at from 3½c to 4½c.
In stockers and foeders trade was quiet and dull. A bunch of 1C stockers, 950 lbs average, sold for $3 20 per cwt; 9 feeders, 1,125 lbs average, 41c.

In hogs there was an improvement. Choice long Canadian hogs, $4 60 per cwt, weighed off cars; 169 choice bacon rogs sold for $4 60 per cwt; heavy fat hogs $4 40 per cwt; stores, $4 50 to $455.

Lambs slightly better, but sheep are dull and featureless: prospects are for lower prices: 80 lambs soid for 30 per lb. and 4 at $350; choice, $4; export sheep firm at about 40 per lb.

Good calves are wanted, but poor stuff is a drug; ruling prices for good calves $350 to $450 per head; a lot of 12 head, 140 lbs average, sold for $55 for the bunch; 11 head, 140 lbs average $485 per head

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SUING A PRIEST

For Damages - Alleged Defamation of

Character. Ottawa, Ont., June 8.—The celebrated

case of Conroy vs. Labelle came up for hearing yesterday in the Superior Court in Hull and was continued today. This was an action for $5,000 damages brought by Robert Conroy, ex-warden of Ottawa county, against Rev. Father Labelle, parish priest of Aylmer, for alleged slander and defamation of character. It is contended that Rev. Father Labelle accosted the plaintiff last fall on the railway depot platform at Aylmer and scolded him for being instru-mental in having a child baptized by a Presbyterian minister against the wishes of the mother. The conversation be-tween them grew rather interesting, and finally the divine made some remarks which Mr. Conroy claims grossly libelled him. Several witnesses have been examined in the case.

BASEBALL.

SCORING THE SCORER.

To the Sporting Editor: In reference to the report of the Military School vs. E. Leonard & Sons' baseball game of Thursday last, I would like, without any intention of detracting from the liberal supply of flattery the school boys received, to point out a few inaccuracies which accidentally or otherwise have crept into the report: Bright struck out 9, credited with 5; Bright no errors, credited with 1; Short, no passed balls, credited with 2; Woonton, 5 passed balls, credited with 2. The E. L. & S. had 9 base hits, credited with 5. Evans reached third base on an error, and it is called a threebase hit! Such report are certainly misleading. About the one-sided aspect of the report I will say nothing. It speaks for itself. Yours truly,

JOHN MORRIS, Secretary, E. L. &. S. Team.

Grant, the Express Thief, Gets a Light Sentence.

He Makes a Long Plea for Mercy-The Exeter Woolen Mill Robbery.

John Grant, of Parkhill, has been found guilty of stealing $5,000 from the Canadian Express Company in that town. This verdict was reached at the Mid-

Blesex County Court at 6 p.m. yesterday, after the jury had been out for five hours. It is understood the delay was not due to any doubt in the minds of the jurors as to the theft, but to a technicality involved in a question put to them by the judge. The question was, Did Grant find the money, as he said, lying near the station platform? The jury were inclined to accept Grant's story, which was in direct opposition to that of the express agent, Mr. Thompson, and his assistant, Mr. Ramsey who both swore that the package was put in the safe at the company's office. The way bill at Parkhill was checked by Mr. Thompson, who thus acknowledged the receipt of the package, which the stage driver also said he delivered at the office. The jury, however, found Grant guilty of thett, as, even admitting his story to be correct, he should have reported his possession and endeavored to find an owner. The prosecution and defense were well conducted. The main witness for the express company was Mr. B. S. Murray, the route agent, who had collected, with great care and detail, the most convincing testimony. He was summoned to Parkhill on the Saturday the package was missed, and the next day he had nearly all the money recovered, had traced the balance which Grant had spent, and had discovered other links which made the chain of given. evidence complete. The prisoner was remanded for sentenice. THE EXETER ROBBERY. John Hodgins, the McGillivary township blacksmith, was placed on trial this afternoon on the charge of robbing the Exeter woolen mills last fall. The particulars of the robbery have already appeared in the "Advertiser" columns. Wells and Edward Shouldice, alleged to have been implicated in the robbery, will be put on trial at the completion of Hodgins' case. The trial of the three prisoners was fixed for the sessions last December, but it transpired that a juror had been approached, and a postponement was made. SATURDAY MORNING. At 10 o'clock this morning John Hod-gins, of McGillivray township, went into the dock at the June sessions, and his trial on a charge of robbing Muir's woolen mill at Exeter was continued. John Forsythe, Exeter; Wm. Bawden, ex-reeve of Exeter; Wm. Ellwood, Lucan; Wm. L. Corbett, reeve of McGillivray; J. D. Drummond, deputy reeve of McGillivray, and George McDonald, of Ailsa Craig, were called for the crown and completed the case for the prosecution. The robbery, it will be remembered, occurred on the night of May 24, 1894, and was discovered early on the morning of May 25. There was an unusually large crowd of strangers in Exter on the holiday, and for some time a band of gypsies had been camping in the vicinity. Wagon tracks and marks Family Recipes the vicinity. Wagon tracks and marks were discovered about the mill, and the imprint of a hoof showed that the horse was lame. The case was called to the attention of the constabulary, and Dewas lame. The case was called to the attention of the constabulary, and Detective Ward, of London West, and Provincial Detective Rogers, of Toronto, finally collected enough evidence to cause the arrest of the two Sholdices and Hodgins. The houses of both paries were searched, and a large quantity of blankets, cloth, etc., found. These were recognized by Muir as the stolen property. When the warrants were issued for the arrest of the crowd, Wells Sholdice was out of the county, and was subsequently located in the lumber woods of Northern Ontario and brought At the trial this morning Forsythe, Corbett and Drummond were called to prove that Hodgins owned and had driven a lame horse about the time of the robbery, and George McDonald, Aitsa Craig, told of his meeting Hodgins at the station in that village while en route to London jail. Hodgins asked for a pencil and paper, and he wrote this note: "Tell Jane (Mrs. Hodgins) to put the shirt and pants out of the way.

JOHN HODGINS. When the crown concluded, Mr. Meredith submitted that a defense was unnecessary, and asked that the prisoner be discharged. Judge Elliot stated in reply that were he trying the case without a jury he could not convict the accused, and therefore would not ask the jury to do so. The identification of the articles, even by Mr. Muir himself, was not positive. The jury was instructed to return a verdict of not guilty.

Mr. Magee, Mr. Meredith and Judge Elliott had a conference,, and the crown decided not to proceed against the Sh > dice boys, as the evidence in their case was similar to that offered against Hodgins. Wells was liberated, but Edward was removed to jail to await his return to the Central to complete his one year term for another theft.
THE GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The grand jury made is presentment, in which Judge Elliot was congratulated upon the light criminal docket. The county jail was visited, and the place was found clean, orderly and in charge of very courteous officials. Twenty-nine prisoners were confined therein, of whom 25 were males and 4 females. Two of the latter were on the charge of insanity, and the jury considered this cruel in the extreme, and thought other provision should be made for the accommodation of such persons. Two lads of 12 years, accused of the theft of a pocket-book, occupied one cell. The grand jury contended that this was shameful and only tended to harden the young offenders. They strongly recommend the establishment of corporal purishment for youthful culprits, and that the birch take the place of the jail in all such cases. At the asylum 1,020 in-mates were found, who, under existing circumstances, could not be better provided and cared for than they are by Dr. Bucke and his faithful staff. Every ward was neat and clean, the grounds were attractive, and nearly all the work was performed by the unfortunates, which greatly reduced the cost of main-The jury was well pleased tenance. with the disposal of sewage by irrigation, and they regretted that the city, instead of polluting the river, would not adopt a similar method for disposing of its sewage. Judge Elliot replied briefly.

GRANT SENTENCED.

John Grant was brought up for sentence for stealing the $5,000 express parcel at Parkhill. Asked what he had to say, Grant made a long harangue, stating that were he alone to suffer for his crime he could do it satisfactorily, but on account of his wife and child he asked for leniency. It was an over-excess in liquor which caused him to do what he had never intended to. Grant continued his plea for mercy, stating that if Judge Elliot gave hi mone chance he (the judge) would never regret it, and again he blamed liquor for his conduct. Judge Elliot in reply stated that if the jury had found Grant guilty of breaking into the express office, nothing would have remained but to send him to to his own use. The act was no doubt brought about by the degrading habit of drunkenness, but it was no excuse for a person to seek mercy on that ground, as it was not compulsory for a mar to become drunk. The sentence was six months in the Central Prison. Frank Grant, convicted of receiving a stelen bicycle at Delaware, was given feur months in the common jail.

DYSPEPSIA

Often Mistaken for Other Diseases

How a Business Man Regained His Health.

In the mad rush for gain, many business men give way under the strain, the impression being that the worry and care has affected them physically and mentally. They frequently seek relief in travel, change of air, change of scene, and sometimes retire to an infirmary or sani tarium. In view of this condition of things the experience of one of the supposed "overworked and care-ridden," the manager of a large corporation, is interesting. We give the story in his own words: "I first began to feel nervous, impatient, easily startled, restless, tired, had an aversion to work, doubted my ability to con tinue my labors. Of rest I knew none. My thoughts and deeds of the day were lived over hrough the night, so tha my sleep was restless, and I frequently tossed for hours without being able to win 'nature's sweet restorer.' At first my trouble seemed to be entirely in the head, and I feared apoplexy, and thought my brain was giving out. Again, my lungs seemed affected, suffering pains in the chest, and I feared the approach of consumption. At another time my heart was the affected part, and the fear came over me of sudden death. Believing that my trouble was caused from overwork and strain, I sought the open air as much as possible, both walking and driving, but no relief came.

"In despair I sought the President of the company to arrange for a leave of absence. He listened attentively to all my troubles, and after scanning me carefully with his sharp eyes remarked that his belief was that my entire trouble was caused by dyspepsia; that the dull eye and sallow cheeks indicated stomach troubles, and urged me, oh, how earnestly, to try HUMPHREYS' SPECIFIC NO. 10. With little faith I took a few doses, and the very first night had a good rest, the first refreshing sleep for months. Naturally, I continued its use, and the result was no leave of absence, but the return of a naturally buoyant, hopeful state of mind. I was able to attend to business with renewed vigor, and from that day to this all that has been required to keep me in perfect heal, h has been an occasional dose of No. 10,"

The inference is that many persons who think they are suffering from an overworked brain, nervous prostration, consumption or even heart disease, are really the victims of Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Weak Stomach.

A Lost Gem

"And why not? Why should you stand in the way of my going to de-struction? It is your own fault. If when we were younger-you had been kinder to me, if you had not yielded when your father said I was too poor to marry you, we should not be where we are today. You ruined me yourself, and it is too late to change."

"It is too late to change the past," said Lady Valencia, steadily, "but that has nothing to do with the future. You are a young man, John, young and strong; if you choose, you may have many years of a happy and prosperous life before you. If, because you erred, you are too much like a petted child to say to yourself that you were wrong and now mean to do right, why, then, ruin is before you, and you will deserve it; but I believe in your manliness still." "Of course it was all my fault," said the man, sullenly. "No," she said, quickly, "I acknow-ledge my own. If I had not been so worldly and cowardly we should both have been happier. I see that now, and I ask for your forgiveness, Jack. When you have forgiven me, you will be better able to forgive yourself and start

"There is no fresh start possible for "Oh, yes, there is. Do you know that I have been staying at Torresmuir?"

He started, but did not reply.
"Molly is there. I traveled north with her," said Lady Vall, quite smoothly and calmly, as if she had been narrating the most ordinary incident in the world. the most ordinary incident in the world. "I, took the greatest care of her, but we could not prevent her feeling the fatigue of it-'We?" Hannington repeated, below his breath.

"We-Bertie and I," said she, tranquilly. "We two, and my maid. Poor Molly was very ill for some time after we arrived at Torresmuir. We were afraid that she would not get over it." "Why was I not told?"

"Nobody liked to write to you just then. I think a letter has been sent to you by Mr. Moncrieff. Not a very pleasant letter, perhaps. You have read it?" Hannington hesitated. "I have openen no letters during the last few days,"

An, that accounts for your not knowing anything. Well, Molly has pretty well got over the danger, but she is very weak. The baby is a sweet little girl; they are thinking of calling it after me if you don't object.'

"I!" he exclaimed. "I-object?" His voice expressed utter humiliation."How can I object to-to-anything? Besides -you know that I would rather she were named after you than any one. But how-how-

"How did it come about?" asked Lady Val, briskly. "I don't quite know, Jack. I was sorry for Molly—I think that was

"But she-" "She lets me be sorry for her. More than that; she trusts me, and I think she loves me a little, too. I have a message from her to you."

'From her-to me?" Yes. We talked about you before I left Torresmuir. We did not know where you were-we were told that you had gone abroad. But if I saw you, your wife said I might tell you that she asked you to forgive her for what she had said and done to provoke you, andwell, the rest depends upon what you say to that, and I am not bound to tell you any more

"What should I say to it?" said Hannington, looking up with a face that was white and set. "She has no need to ask me to forgive her. I suppose she knows-as all the world knows-that I behaved badly to her. I repented it as soon as she was gone. My God! I wish I had had the resolution to put a bullet through my brain! The whole world knows and condemns me now."

Lady Val paused for a moment. It occurred to her, as she glanced at him, that our punishments mostly come to us through what we love best; and that, as John Hannington had loved the world, his scourging was to come from the world's hands; a sort of retribution that is less rare than some people seem to understand.

"To take that way out of your difficulties," she said, eyeing him keenly, would be only to heap more misfortune on her head. Be a man, Jack; go to your wife and ask her to forgive you, and see whether you cannot manage to be happy yet. She told me that she wanted to see you! I think that you ought to go. It is your only wayyour last chance."

"Go to Alan Moncrieff's? Not I." "I am sure that-for Molly's sakehe would admit you.'

"It is impossible," he answered, shortly and sullenly. "I could not do it. It is not so easy for a man to sue for pardon, Valencia.

"Ah, that is always a man's way of talking!" cried Valencia, impatiently. You will let a woman die rather than do a thing that is not easy! Who supposes that it is easy? Of course, you must-if you have a spark of goodness in you-feel it a terrible thing-a degrading thing—to have acted as you have done to poor Molly; and it is difficult to think that she will forgive you. and so you wont stoop to say that you are sorry! Oh, I have no patience with that kind of pride! There's no manliness in it, no real strength or nobility; it is sheer cowardice and weakness! The man that I could respect, Jack, is not the man who never falls, but the man who has the pluck to pick himself up when he has fallen, and to say—'I am sorry, but I'll do better next time!' That is the man I honor, not the man who does not know what temptation means! Hannington stood silent, thrilled by her words as he had seldom been thrilled in his life before; with knitted brows, eyes averted, and breath quickening, he waited until she had ended her tirrade, then walked to the mantelpiece and laid his arm upon it and his fore-head on his arm. There was a look of irresolution in the pose that he had adopted, which Valencia was quick to

"If you won't take the manly way out of your troubles," said Lady Val, with a ring of scorn in her clear voice, "then, at any rate, take a rational one. Give up these drugs, these poisons; leave London, emigrate, work for your own living, and make yourself to some extent a useful member of society. Your friends will see that you have work to do. All that is wanted is your own will, and your own conscience; waken them, and there is every hope for you; without them there is none."

"You were never much in the habit of sparing me, Lady Val," said Han-nington, lifting his head from his arm, 'and you certainly don't spare me

Why should I spare you? If only I could make you see the thing as I see it—as others see it!—but I know I cant. Oh, Jack, Jack"-suddenly lapsing into a tone of passionate entreaty-"cant you see what I mean? Doesn't it seem worth while for you to try?" "It does while you are speaking," said

"Think of me as always speaking!" she cried. "Remember that I think of you—I pray for you night and day. We are old friends, Jack, and I, for one, never forget old friends. For the sake of our friendship, I beg of you to go to your wife and child—ask Molly to forgive, and begin a new life with her. It is the only thing I wish for in the world! The only thing that can make me happy any more."

"Is it so?" he asked with a sigh. "Well-it won't be much good, Valencia, I warn you. But for your sake— I'll try. I'll ask Molly to forgive me. and I'll do my best to be less of a brute -will that do? Will that satisfy you?' She held out both her hands to him; her eyes were full of tears. "I always believed in you," she said, simply. And Hannington bung his head as he pressed her hands and let them go. Lady Val's trust in him had never been without a restraining power. 'There's one thing more that you must do," she said, after a few moments' pause. "There's a mystery you must try to clear up. In my own mind I am quite sure that Molly is innocent, but an imputation has been thrown on her character which you must clear away."

'What do you mean?" "Will you tell me what Molly took away with her from Torresmuir?" "Took away with her?" said Hanmington, staring. "Some clothes in a black bag; that was all.' "Jewels? He laughed rather harshly.

"I never saw any."
"Papers of value?" "Certainly not. I should have seen them. What do you mean?"

"I mean that her mother's jewels, a large sum of money and some papers were stolen from Alan Moncrieff's study on the night when Molly left home. Her father took it for granted, apparently, that she stole them; and that is the reason why he has been so obdurate. I am quite sure she never did anything of the kind.'

"Of course not. Moncrieff believed that of his daughter, did he? Good heavens! What a fool that man must

"Mr. Kingscott seems to have fostered the suspicion." "Kingscott?" "Bertie blames him for the long misunderstanding. He says that Mr. Kingscott has always made as much mischief as possible between Alan Moncrieff and his children.'

Its Terrible Effects

Up and Strengthened by Faine's Celery Compound.

It is in the combined perfection of sensation, motion, intelligence and speech that man excels all created ani-

The brain, that grand center of sensation and perception, and the whole nervous system, are wonderfully made, and man's happiness and very life depend upon their condition of health.

The human brain and the nervous system become impaired, shattered and broken down in various ways. Careless living, loose habits and over-indulgences, when persisted in, and continued for a length of time, tend to wreck and destroy the whole nervous organ-

There is no form of disease that can more rapidly shatter the system, or more surely lead to death, than the use of strong drink. Its effects are felt in every nerve and tissue, and its poison can be traced in every drop of blood. It will plant courage and hope in the hearts of many men who are broken down, and whose nervous systems are completely shattered, to learn that, with a firm determination to avoid strong drink, their bodies can be rebuilt, their nerves made strong, their blood purified and life made happy and worth living. This grand work of re-creation can be accomplished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, nature's great life restorer. No medical agency in the world is so well adapted for the rebuilding of brain and body

Mr. Samuel B. Guild. of Ellershouse. Hants County, N. S., writes as follows: "I wish to express my gratitude for the great good accomplished in my case by your Paine's Celery Compound. I had commenced using strong drink when quite young, with the result, that my whole system was run down and shattered. I was under the care of several doctors, but they did not seem to understand my case, and could do nothing for me. I commenced using your Paine's Celery Compound, and it soon made me a new man. My nervous system is completely built up, my appetite is natural and healthy, and I feel better and stronger than ever before. BOON TO ALL SICK ONES

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed-Restores the Sick to Health-"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine,"

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one may be safely taken as a good all-round medicine in ordinary cases. And it is not alone the very sick who need medi-

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts; thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition again. So with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pains in the kidneys, or other ailments, from which a person is suffering. South American | Nervine."

Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and ebst of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case. Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to insure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving health back to the vctims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J.Curtis, a wealthy and well-known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good, until he was influenced to try South American Nervine, and his tes-timony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchasd five bottles, but after taking only three out of five, to use his own words, "I am feeling as nearly well today as I ever did, and can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American

A Good Appetite. Always accompanies good health, and an absence of appetite is an indication of something wrong. The loss of a rational desire for food is soon followed by lack of strength, for when the supply of feed is cut off the fire burns low. The system gets into a low state, and is liable to severe attacks of disease. The universal testimony given by those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, as to its great merits in restoring and sharpening the appetite, in promoting healthy action of the digestive organs, and as a purifier of the blood, constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. BIG GAS WELL STRUCK AT LEAM-INGTON.

Windsor, June 7 .- The Detroit Gas Company received word this morning that a 6,000,000-foot gas well had been struck at Leamington, in the new field controlled by the Standard Oil Company. The well will be "bottled up" to be saved for the time when the supply received through the Walker pipes is exhausted.

A Gold Cure Club at Mitchell. Mitchell, May 15.-This town has a Gold Cure Club. It is the result of the successful treatment for alcoholism at Lakehurst Institute, Oakville. It was formed for the purpose of inducing and assisting financially drink-stricken ones to avail themselves of a cure. It is composed of graduates from Lakehurst and others of our citizens who are prompted by philanthropic motives. That it is true home mission work is established by the following letter from the parish priest, under date of April 22, 1895:

W. B. Waterbury, Secretary-Treasurer Dominion Gold Cure Club, Mitchell,

Dear Sir,—When I first heard of the "Oakville Sanitarium" and the "Gold Cure" I took very little interest in it Indeed, I almost put it down as a fake My attention was drawn more closely to it when your admirable club succeeded in inducing one of our parishioners at Mitchell to try it. Now that he is cured of his terrible appetite for strong drink by the treatment of the Lakehurst Sanitarium at Oakville, I must say that it deserves the support of all benefactors of humanity. I have known the man in question for ten years, met him very often, but he was seldom His case, as well as several others that I have met with in the last year, lead me to recommend the institution at Oakville to all who may have become victims of strong drink. I remain, yours in Christ. J. A. KEALEY, Fifty years ago last Monday Mr. and Mrs. Adam Wheaton, of Craig street, South London, were married in Westminster township by the late Rev. Dr. Davis. Three days later they took up their residence in this city, and have resided here continuously ever since. The venerable couple, although respectively in their 76th and 77th years, are active and hearty yet, and would put -Court Forest Queen, A. O. F., have many of the younger generation to completed arrangements for another of shame in bearing the burdens of life. There is also another and more remarkable feature that out of a descendancy of six children, fifteen grandchildren, and one great grandchild, not a death has occurred in 50 years to break the unity of the family. Mrs. Wheaton's re-hearsal of stories and experiences when a little girl, living with her parents on the farm in Westminster, are very interesting. The wolves and bears were plentiful then, and a common sight to the farmers. Mrs. Wheaton is a cousin of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, of England. A VEXED QUESTION SETTLED. It is quite possible that the board of health has solved the sewer question which has so long bothered the residents of Bruce street, and which has been the cause of much litigation. The matter was referred to Dr. Cl. T. Campbell, chairman of the board of health, to report on, and he stated at the meeting of the board last night that the plan he would suggest was that a precipitation tank should be con-structed at the end of Bruce street, at its junction with the Wharncliffe, the tank to be treated chemically and cleaned out from time to time under direction of the board of health. The cistern would catch the solids, while the liquids, which were comparatively harmiess, would pass on to the creek. The cost of chemical treatment would be slight, and the tank would probably not have to be cleaned out more than Day De per yard. twice during the summer, as the vol-ume of sewage was light. "It is not a perfect plan," said the dector, "but it is the only remedy that suggests itself, as the expense of carrying a drain to the river is so great as to render it almost impossible." A similar plan was recommended in the Kent case. Ald. John Heaman moved that the plans as outlined be referred to the chairman and engineer with power. Ald. Callahan seconded. Ex-Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald objected, mainly on account of the lack of funds, and moved that the matter be referred to the council. Mr. Arthur Wallace seconded. "We have at least $10," said the chairman. Then Mr. Fitzgerald thought that as soon as a tank was built the general public would connect with the drain, or sewer, and the tank would be too small. "As soon as the decision of the Supreme Court is better understood, no doubt the sewer will be more generally used," said the chairman, "but a tank such as I suggest would meet the requirements of the street for the next twenty years." The board was evenly divided, and according to general procedure Dr. Campbell, as chairman, although with the affirmative, voted no, and referred the matter to the council. "What are we going to do to abate the nuisance in Carling's Creek which is caused by the sewage from the barracks?" said Ald. Heaman. The matter was left to a sub-committee, and it is probable that the creek will be thoroughly cleaned, although the ruisance will not be permanently abated. Another creek nuisance case at Elmwood avenue and the Wharncliffe was referred to a sub-committee to investigate. There were present Dr. Cl. T. Campbell (chairman), Ald. Callahan, Ald. John Heaman, ex-Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald, Arthur Wallace, Secretary Bell and Inspector Bell.

Death Seemed Preferable to the Agonizing Pain.

Mrs. Roadhouse, of Williscroft, postoffice, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart since last fall, having taken in all nine bottles, and I now feel entirely like another woman. am 54 years old, and have been troubled with heart disease for more than twenty years; sometimes for five hours at a time suffering such agony that death seemed preferable to the pain. The cold sweat would stand out in great beads upon my face. The Heart Cure gave me relief from almost the first dose, and has proved a great bless-

Masks or Tell-Tales.

Are the Characters of Men Unmistakably Written on Their Faces.

There is a current notion that to every practiced and searching eye the characters of men are written unmistakably upon their faces. In the May number of Blackwood the grounds for under compulsion on demand of a this prevalent belief are sifted and re- British general. jected. Dr. Louis Robinson, who is known to have been for some time a student of the subject, examines the found in the Summer Palace before it internal and external conditions which tend to mould facial expression, and arrives at the conclusion that it is to interpret character aright by the general effect of the countenance.

According to Dr. Robinson, facial expresssion tells us not so much what a man is as what he tries to be; and, find him wearing a mask which con-For example, a compressed lip is supposed to indicate strength of will, habit of struggling against inclinations | Oriental and European objects. and temptations. Splendid Plunder.

The war in China has awakened interest in former military experiences in that curious country, and several British officers have related their adventures during the exciting time when the British took Pekin and burned the Summer Palace of the Emperor, in retaliation for an act of Chinese treachery by which a party of English and French, bearing a flag of truce, had been captured. Half of the men of the unfortunate party were tortured to death or slain at once and the rest were held prisoners under sentence of execution until they were surrendered

One officer, Colonel Hill James, gives a curious account of the treasures was destroyed. It was given up to plunder, as anything left in it would have been wasted, and the intention extremely difficult, if not impossible, was to administer to the Emperor, who had approved and encouraged the cruelties of his subordinates, a severe and memorable lesson.

Woman's field of labor widened materially at this stage. In fact, there were few fields the bars of which were not let down by feminine hands. When she could not let down the bars readily, perhaps, she crawled under or through some aperture, or by the aid of her dress-reform garments perhaps she climbed over. At this stage woman began to first estimate upon her own labor. She even dignified feminine industry by referring to it as skilled labor. This required an audacity that was of no mean order, even as it was also without precedent. I like to look back upon the "advanced woman." She was such an energetic creature, and such a believer in her own convictions and the possessor of courage to voice them in the face of opposition, even to the sacrifice of much that women always held dear. She forseited the esteem of many, but it was a spurious esteem to begin with, and she was first misunderstood; that was all. The "advanced woman" was

Drugs and Hypnotism.

It has long been known that hypnotized persons are abnormally sensitive in certain directions. Recent experiments show that they may be made so sensitive to the action of drugs that the characteristic powers of these become evident when they are merely held in proximity to the skin, not even touching it. We translate below a brief account of some of these experiments from Gaea (Leipsic, June):

"The French physician and naturalist, Dr. J. Luys, has announced some their resolution to go to St. Thomas. extraordinarily interesting researches in this direction. The medicinal substances were in closed tubes and were portunity of preaching the Gospel to brought near the hypnotized subject. Some kind of action at a distance took place, which revealed itself in an alteration of the bodily appearance and physical condition of the person experimented upon. In this way Dr. Luys produced convulsions, hallucinations, alterations of the pupils, acceleration and retardation of the pulse, is obedient to rule; a cat despises etc. He was also able to excite symptoms of joy, pain, grief, or anger. The changes in physiognomy and expression corresponding to these symptoms were fixed by means of photography." In the first experiment a tube of thymol was brought into the neighbortion of the pupils and contraction of the arms. The hair became tangled.

"Dr. Luys has also experimented on the influence of colored light rays on and when Tabby was walking away he hypnotized persons by allowing light to fall on them through colored glass. He finds that blue glass always produces a feeling of sadness, red rays excite joy and well-being, yellow the symptoms of strong affection. The violet and green tints vary in their effects according to their intensity and to the individual sensitiveness of the individual experimented upon. Dr. Luy's experiments are of great importance, and seem to open a way to new paths of knowledge."-[Translated for the Literary Digest.

Taught Etiquette.

A cat is lawless. A dog can be taught to come when called; a cat is heedless of the most persuasive invitations to present herself. The dog etiquette, unless she has been taught to heed it by a more or less severe lesson, Here is an illustration, exhibited by a "Tabby" mentioned in St. Nicholas:

When we released the panic-stricken Tabby we were surprised to find that Beelzebub was none the worse for his wild experience, and with widely distended jaws he breathed a general defiance; but Tabby had received a lesson, and she never molested Beelzebub again.

Parlor Meetings.

Mrs. Anna Fraser, Wallaceburg, Supt. Parlor Meetings for Kent Co.)

As a band of Christian workers we need to discuss the very best means of arousing the attention and interest of that large class of society not as yet in persist in keeping out of reach. In our Unions, this, I think, can be most easily accomplished through our parlor meetings that aim to meet society on its own level, and to use some of the and interest desired. We all have, or ought to have, a social side. If we do not provide a supply for its cravings we leave an open door of temptation that the devil is not likely to overlook. In his own terrible way he will do the work that we neglect.

In our regular Union work we need to be more social. If we were, many disagreements and misunderstandings might be avoided. Sympathy and kindness will reveal wonderous touches of Christ's likness in many hearts and lives. Some people, who at first do not seem congenial, on closer acquaintance astonish us with their genuineness and goodness. Dear Sisters there are gems of rare beauty, and precious nuggets of gold, in the world of human friendship, that are awaiting our discovery. A true friend is a priceless treasure. But this article purposes to deal not with the already enlisted few, but with the uninlisted many. And while parlor meetings will, incidentally, be of much value to the membership, their greatest benefit will be reaped amongst the indifferent outsiders.

WHAT OUR LEADERS THINK. On this point our provincial superintendent, Mrs. Emma Wheeler, of Paris, says: "I fear that in our other departments, we have from a financial standpoint, there is no narrowed our philanthropic efforts to impropriety in suggesting a voluntary those less favorably circumstanced than ourselves; and have neglected to seek the interest and co-operation of women of acknowledged social position, culture and wealth, who, if once interested, could do so much to help us in this grand work.

But drinking their stamp of approval, I be- members of our union. lieve many of them would forever banish the cup from their social gatherside of total abstinence."

In referring to our hope that prohibition is not in the dim and distant future, but near at hand, Mrs. Wheeler adds: "Let us prepare ourselves for the opportunities and duties which will come to us with the enactment of prohibitory law, sooner or later. Let us face the fact that when the hotel and other public bars are closed, the battle with appetite will, in many cases, be forced upon the housekeepers. The sideboard will in many homes be a menace to those whom the public bar has not touched."

The Dominion superintendent of this department puts the situation tersely when she says:

"In almost every community there is a large class of people who may read the newspaper notices, but who never dream of attending a public temperance meeting. The mere mention of such a thing fills them with impatient disgust, not unmingled with contempt for the unwomanly women who so far forgot the proprieties as to make a public spectacle of themselves on the platform. These compose a large and not marry men who drink went on gayas a rule an influential set of people. Won't Marry Tipplers.

Danbury Girls Stick to Their Pledge and Are Reinforced by the Widows.

Danbury, Conn., June 2.—A letter says: The war of St. Peter's Temperance Society, whose young women members have agreed that they will ly to-day. With the thermometer at 100 in the shade, the tipplets of Danbury felt as little as possible like swearing off, but at a mass-meeting of spinsters to-night it was decided that tipplers want to marry any of the St. selves to water, whatever the state of Father Lynch, rector of St. Peter's Church, spoke on the subject of marriage and alcohol at every mass to-day. and heart-break in these homes just as At 4 p.m. what he calls the "old ladies there is in poorer dwellings; and the of the Rosary society," to the number trail of the serpent 'Alcohol' is over of 340, agreed to stand by the younger women. Most of these old ladies already have husbands, but Father Lynch told them they were in danger of becoming widows at any moment, matrimony, were more outspoken than those whose husbands are not yet

Very little faith, however, is expressed by Danbury men in the prosaloon-keeper said: "Young girls may be exacting in their choice of a husband, but widows can't afford to beespecially Danbury widows."

The business men of the town are done by women. It is of course large fresh trouble. My poor husband has license was carried by a majority of little more than a hundred.

The largest drygoods merchant in town said: "I was ruined once by the adoption of prohibition in a Connecticut town. I found that all the men went out of town to buy their rum and all the women went out of town to get their drygoods. They built a trolley road into Stamford to accommodate the drinkers, and after that it was all up with me."

A great debate took place to-night over the by-laws and constitution of the St. Peter's Society. Some of the young women are afraid to put themselves on record as refusing to marry men who take an occasional glass of beer. They don't know how the line can be drawn in the society's rules between a youth who takes an occasional drink and a confirmed drunkard. Father Lynch says it is impossible for a Danbury youth to strike the golden mean. He must be either a total abstainer or a wild, hilarious and uncontrollable drunkard.

The pledge that has been drafted is very guarded and it is not flat-footed enough for Miss Maggle Drum, president of the society. She wants it amended. Here it is as it stands:

"I promise, with Divine assistance, to house." abstain from all intoxicating drinks, in honor of the sacred thirst of our divine Lord on the cross, and to prevent, as much as possible, both by word and example, intemperance in others."

The worthy priest thinks the last sentence about preventing intemperance in others covers the ground about marrying drinking men, but Miss Drum thinks it would be safer to add the Miss Slack was also nominated as a committed to temperance, or associate | "at present illegal." with such."

"This habit of Danbury girls has had a very bad effect on some of the young married men. They found that their wives could earn enough money to keep the house going and to maintain them in idleness, and that is the crying scandal we are fighting.

Now they can't afford to buy both, and so they give up the whisky. Their sons have inherited the taste for rum, without the money to pay for it.

"Before long, if the movement spreads, all the women of this country will strike against marrying drunkards. It will be a grand lockout. The women will not have drunkards as fathers of their children."

"Talk about any one being as mad as a hatter," said Father Lynch, dolefully; "it would be much more in reason to say that he was as drunk as a Danbury hatter. The young men have become drunkards at twenty.

There are about 60 saloons in Danbury, whose owners pay a license fee of $400 a year. They all ridicule Father Lynch's movement. They also hint that Father Lynch does not prescribe water for himself, and have a man who is willing to make affidavit he saw the priest drink a whole pint bottle of champagne at the Hotel Metropole in New York. To this marry, anyhow.

Then the opponents of the priest say he charges ten cents admission to his church, and that he recently nailed slats across the free pews and placed a man in a box-office at the entrance to collect admission money.

Father Lynch's adherents admit that something of the kind was done, but insist that it was the only way he could collect the revenues due the church.

Salvation Army and Women. In an interview recently, Mrs. Bramwell Booth said: "There is no religious organization in this country, if we except Quakers, which gives women the position she has in the army. There is nothing in the foundation deed of the army to prevent a woman testations of the widows. A leading being appointed general or to any other office. The army has done a great deal for women, and women have done a great deal for the army. Some of our most beautiful work has been Lynch's movement, because it will not women's position in the army. The women slum and field officers have been among the bravest, and have had the most wonderful influence. When the Army began its ministry of women it was a great novelty and attraction."

Chaplain McCabe Invites Colonel Ingersoll to Church.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll was recently billed to lecture in Dover, N. H., the posters stating that Henry Ward Beecher considered him "the most eloquent man speaking the English language." The Independent, New York, through it; and that it is the very best there, leaving the babies to fall in the doubts that Mr. Beecher ever said this, ence and the chilling reception which the lecturer found in the Dover Opera House, produces the now widely circulated letter that Chaplain McCabe wrote the Colonel. The Chaplain was passing through Dover, on his way to the East Maine Conference, and, hearing that the Colonel was to lecture that evening, he went to the News office and sent him this message:

"Dear Colonel: While you have been lecturing against the Bible, the Methodists have built ten thousand new churches in this country. All other denominations have built ten thousand more, at least. Meanwhile, you have not overthrown the humblest altar upon the farthest frontiers of this republic.

"In thirty years the Methodist Episcopal Church has increased its membership from nine hundred thousand to twenty-eight hundred thousand, and her church and school property has increased one hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars. Never were so successful as now. In heathen lands orphanages and hospitals and asylums for children, for the sick, for the aged, and the insane, spring up like magic. As silk is now so very cheap, it is not a great expense to have underslips of one or two becoming colors to show off the pretty embroidered or organdie dresses. Silk good enough for this purpose may be found in delicate colors as low as thirty cents a yard. The slips are usually made in Princess form. Ribbon decorations should be the color of the underslip. French challie robe dresses are finding favor this spring. A fancy flat band up one side is the usual style.

Bouquets of double Parma violets are worn. They are generally combined with cese leaf in rich, dark moss-green, and the sterns are tied by a narrow violet satin ribbon. These ribbons seem quite a feasure. One shape of the bouquet resembles a large chrysanthemum.

If this were accomplished, sacred eminence, Mount Moriah, we been expended through the centuries which the Jews, from the time of King their sacrifices. The Dome of the Rock is the chief architectural feature of the temple platform or haram. That platform is in the southeast quarter of the town; it is an irregular parallelogram; its extreme length being 536 yards, and its width 350 yards. In the midst of this, with marbled terraces and parterres of verdure mingled about, stands the Dome of the Rock, a handsome octagonal building, covered with the most lovely blue and white tiles of porcelain, and incrusted with costly marbles. Much of this is the work of Soloman the Magnificent and was done in 1561. A grace ul, bubble-shaped dome, covered with some dark-colored metal, seems to tower over this charming structure; and in the interior are two concentric hexagonal corridors or arcades, of glorious charms, inclosing a wrought-iron screen, which in turn surrounds a wooden screen of French handiwork, richly decorated, and about six feet high. The mosque El-Akra, on the same platform, interested us very much. Founded by the Emperor Justinian and dedicated to the Holy Virgin, it was converted into a mosque by the Moslems at the end of the seventh century, and, its cruciform shape being changed by sundry alterations, a noble edifice, built on the plan of a basilica, 88 yards long and 60 yards wide, is one of the most satisfying architectual show places in Jerusalem.

At each of these we saw a crowd of devout worshipers. The Russian Government has done much for the Greek Church here, and hundreds of Russians, most of them poor peasants, who have come thousands of miles to the Holy Sepulchre, crowd the sacred places. I saw a meanly-clad man, characteristically Muscovite in dress and appearance, kissing with rapture the often-renewed slab of alabaster under which, it is believed, lies the stone on which the body of Christ was laid for preparation for burial. Bores.

In a recent lecture on "bores" the Rev. Dean Hole, an English clergyman, declared that the industrious agriculturist was as often the victim of bores as any one else, though these work of beneficence is especially shown | troublesome persons are commonly supposed to appertain to a more artificial grade of society. But the agriculturist has at least the recourse, which society which is pleased to call itself "polite," of telling the bore what he thinks of him. Dean Hole relates that an industrious farmer was visited one day by an idle and braggart neighbor who talked and talked and talked, and wasted a whole afternoon.

When at last the idle farmer, was about to depart, the industrious farmer said to him:

"Goin' through the town?"

"Yaas." "Know the cooper's shop?"

"Yaas-fellows that makes barrels." "Well, just stop there and have a couple of hoops put around your waist, or you'll burst with self-importance."

The "professional humorist" is also privileged to retort upon bores. Such a man, the elder Mr. Grossmith, inquired of a certain very tedious person as to the state of his health.

"Between three and four o'clock this morning," sighed the bore, "I was at itable work, giving largely themselves | death's door!"

there was already one family within fifteen miles, and his own partner would be backwards and forwards frequently, the neighborhood was evidently going to be quite populous-for Colorado. The little log-cabins each had a huge stove in the center of the room; for no ordinary fireplace could temperature was below zero, and water froze within a yard of the fire. No of affairs, however, as, for one thing, it stopped the operations of "road agents" during the winter, while even the Rapahoes scarcely cared to go out shooting stage-drivers, with every chance of perishing themselves in the snow. Still they made occasional sallies, and one afternoon a driver came in with an arrow through his cheek and a loose tooth in his throat—the part of the matter which most troubled him

The snow was in excellent traveling condition, the crust being just soft enough he was using bite well. All the low branches of the pines were covered. and in the gulch below the snow must have been at least twenty feet deep. On the crest it was blowing hard, and the wind having swept the ridges clear, he had to carry his shoes, for half a mile or so, to where a long valley through which his : o id ran headed up to the highest peak-13,200 feet above sea-level. Of course it was frightfully cold up there, and the wayfarer was well pleased when he caught the first glimpse of the pine-clad valley below. and saw that he was just in the right place for starting the run down-hill.

One of the advantages of the Norwegian snowshoe is, that it cuts into hard snow just deep enough to give a grip without sinking so far as to stop the pace, and on a steep down-grade it is possible to go at any speed, if the balance-pole be used carefully.

Tack fastened his shoes on again, and started down-hill, going slowly at mile, and was traveling almost at top speed, when suddenly he found himself worship at the shrine of the Prince of in the air, and got a fall which nearly stunned him. He had struck a sheet of ice, and, of course, the shoes lost their bite instantly, depositing their which may have been the effect of the strange and varied an existence."

Jack wished for nothing better than | crack on the head he had received in his fall, or the punch in the ribs from his revolver; but it was probably the knowledge that if that shoe was really gone, he might reckon on his fingers the number of hours he had to live. The snow around him was very deep, and though it was harder some hundred yards above, he did not think he could get there; which, even if he succeeded in doing so, there were still four or five miles of snow, from 10 to 30 feet thick, between himself and his impossible; and even could he flounder as far as timber-line, build a fire, and and later his tracks would certain be

There was plenty of choice, began to think of the possibility of following his shoe, which would, of a rocky gorge, which Jack could see from where he stood, and which was a thoroughly breakneck place, with mountains of snow in and around it; thence it would be impossible to climb up again, should the quest be successful. However, any chance was worth trying in such a desperate case, and lack thought that as the shoe he had would naturally follow its mate if placed on the same grade, his best plan would be to lie down upon it, start sliding, and trust to its being stopped by what arrested its fellow. Of course, the odds were that the first shoe had gone over a precipice or splintered on a point of rock, and that the same fate would overtake the second, together with its burden; but if a man must die, then a quick death is better than the slow torture of freezing or starving, and Jack decided to risk his fate and start in pursuit. Accordingly, he carefully found the place where the accident had happened, put the remaining shoe on the track, and then lay down along it, rounding his chest as much as possible and steering with his elbows. Down they went !- sometimes sliding along gayly, sometimes plowing heavily through the soft drift; on and on, it seemed to the anxious traveler, inter-minably. He watched keenly for any trace of the lost shoe, at the same time keeping a bright lookout for any ghastly header that might be in front of him. At last he came to a turn in the gully, and could scarcely believe in his good tortune when he caught sight first, and then faster and faster, as the of the lost shoe sticking out of some plateau dipped off towards the head of drift in front! AKING GAS IN A PAIL

PLE PROCESS BY WHICH ACETY-LENE MAY BE GENERATED.

The Necessary Apparatus Is Easily Made -A Bucket and a Lamp Chimney Constitute the Entire Outfit-Two or Three Minutes is Sufficient to Make it.

No modern discovery or invention has excited more general interest than the new illuminant acetylene. T. O'Conor Sloane, Ph. D., has prepared an article, published in the Scientific American, dealing with the commercial manufacture of this gas and its general adoption for lighting purposes. The production of the calcium carbide from which the acetylene gas is made by simple treatment bids fair to become a commercial process, and we have every reason to hope that the material will soon be produced by the ton. There is something fascinating in the idea of being able to evolve a gas of about 300-candle power by so simple a process. While the crudest possible apparatus, such as a tumbler of water, is sufficient to illustrate the production of the gas, the object of the present article is to show how a better demonstration can be produced with very simple appliances.

To show the gas with a tumbler of water, it is sufficient to drop into it a piece of the calcium carbide as large as a pea; the gas is at once evolved in large quantity, and a match can be applied repeatedly to the surface of the water, giving a number of successive lightings. The apparatus is constructed from a battery jar and lamp chimney as the principal elements, and is made on the lines of the old hydrogen evolution apparatus. To the top of the lamp chimney, which should be of large size, a cork should be

destination. To get through that was tightly fitted. Unless the cork is better than the majority it should be waxed or paraffined, which is very easily done by placing some fragments of wax or paraffin camp there, it so happened that he on it and melting the material with a was not expected home for four days, het soldering iron or poker. Through a central perferation a tube is inserted, fitted with a stop-cock and gas burner. The latter must be of the smallest size made, the Bray fishtail burner answering about the best of any yet tried. Merely to exhibit the gas a simple jet may be made by drawing a glass tube almost to a point or by drilling a very small hole in a cap fitted to the pipe leading from but of nothing agreeable. Then he the stop-cock. Through a hole a little to one side of the evolution pipe a wire passes, which moves up and down with some friction through the hole. Its lower course, slide down the deepest grade end is formed into a hook, to which is it could find, and would, therefore, suspended a little basket made by bendpass into the lower valley by means of | ing up a little bit of course wire gauze. A piece with one-quarter of an inch meshes will be about right. The suspending wire is bent at the top to give it a better handle.

To operate it the lamp chimney is placed in the jar, the water is poured in until within an inch or two of the top, and a piece of calcium carbide half the size of a walnut is placed in the basket, which is drawn up until pretty close to the cork. The cork is now placed in the lamp chimney and pressed down so as to make it fit tightly, and the wire slowly worked down until the basket becomes partially immersed in the water. The level of the water is at once depressed, as the gas is evolved, and if the cock is open the air and gas within the chimney begin to escape. As soon as the odor of the escapng gas is strong it can be lighted and will burn for five or ten minutes with great steadiness. If the pressure decreases and the water rises it comes in contact with the calcium carbide, more gas is evolved, and it falls again.

The apparatus may be further simplified by emitting the stop-cock, which is unnecessary, and a bucket may be substituted for a battery jar. It may also be necessary to secure the chimney against floating upward, although in the apparatus shown this is quite unnecessary. It is well, before lighting the gas, to hold a test tube over the outlet for a few seconds until filled with gas, and to light it with a match or at a gas burner. If the contents do not explode it is safe to light the jet on the chimney; if it does explode the light should be deferred until purer gas is evolved. Two or three minutes is sufficient to get it in working rder. It must also be remembered that it is essential to have a very small burner. as otherwise the gas will smoke and the supply will be insufficient to obtain a satisfactory flame. The suspending wire must fit tightly, as if it slips down the apparatus will blow out or overflow. A very slight immersion of the carbide

The Corporal's Heavenly Voice.

A young Bavarian corporal in the Second Regiment of light artillery has been found to have a phenomenal voice. He was taken to Munich and his voice tested in the presence of Possart, the royal intendent of theatres. The result was that the Prince Regent of Bavaria ordered his discharge from the army and his musical education by Max Wolfheim in Wurzburg, with an engagement in the Royal Theatre in Munich assured in advance. The voice is said to eclipse that of both Botel and Wachtel.

Celebrating Grandma's Birthday.

Mary and Tommy came bursting into the sitting-room like a young hurricane. Mary threw herself on the lounge, and buried her face in the pillow, shaking with unrestrained laughter; and Tommy tumbled down upon the hearth-rug, giving vent to his feelings by shouting and clapping his feet together in the air. Dickle, the youngest, was the most dignified of the three. He sat down in his little rocking-chair, looking with some amusement at the performances of his brother and sister. but seeming a little abashed. He held in his hand a large bunch of flowers. His real name was not Dickle; Tommy was responsible for his being called so. One day the "hurrying wind" of April scattered a few freckles on his small nose, and Tommy called him frecklenose Dick," and then "Dicklenose freck"; and then it was shortened to "Dickle." But his father and mother and grandmother did not call him Dickle

"Well, children," said the mother, looking up from her mending, "what has happened now?"

"Oh, mamma," said both the children at once, "it was so funny." "Let me tell, Tommy; I shall splode if I don't tell it."

And Tommy averted the disaster by

"You know, mamma, it's grandma's birthday; and we thought we'd celebrate. We are going to have Dickle present some flowers and speak some So Tommy and I made some poetry. This was it: poetry.

'Dear grandma, 'tis your birthday

And we are glad that you were born. We bring you daisies That every one praises;

We bring you cups of butter And hawthorn buds that flutter.'

Don't you think that's a nice verse?" "I've no doubt grandma liked it very much," said the mother; "but, somehow, I never noticed that hawthorn buds flutter.'

"No, they don't," answered Mary; "but Tommy said it must rhyme, anyway, and that 'flutter' was a nice word. And papa said that after 'cups of butter' it would be better not to say anything about 'flower,' or else grandma might think it was a receipt for cake. And so we had to say 'buds;' and, then, we really did pick buds, to make that all right. Well, we made Dickle learn it; and we got him so that he said every word just right. And one day, when grandma was out on the piazza, we took him up to her room, and showed him how to do it. We thought we'd have him go in with his hat on, and stand right in the middle of the rug by the little table, and then take off his hat and make a bow, and speak the poetry, and give grandma the flowers, and come out again; and if he did it right, I was going to give him my soft rubber ball, and Tommy corns, warts, etc.; even the most diffiwas going in to give his present; and cult to remove cannot withstand this then I was going in to give mine. wonderful remedy.

Well, Dickle went in with his flow and Tommy and I listened at door. But we didn't peek, for grandma would see us. He said just exactly right, and Tommy whispered to me that he believed he'd give him four marbles. But, when he came out, he had the flowers in hist hand. 'Why, Dickle!' said Tommy, 'you forgot to give her the flowers!' 'She wasn't there,' said Dickle. One day when Tag was watching the barn, my father, sitting at his library window, saw the wagon of the man who supplied us with oats, bran and other stable necessaries drive up to the barn-door, where Tag was lying in the sun, apparently fast asleep. Guns Made of Paper. Almost without limit are the purposes to which wood pulp is being put. The latest invention in this line is the manufacture of large guns from this material. Guns have been made from leather pulp, and these are bound with hoops of metal. The leather pulp is, of course, hardened. There is also a core of metal set inside of the gun. The lightness of the leather cannon is an essential feature. The principal aim, however, is to secure a material which has some elasticity, so that the force of a heavy discharge will be broken gradually. This seems to be obtained in cannon made from a pulpy substance. Paper pulp answers the purpose, as numerous trials and experimects have proved. It possesses more elasticity than metal, and when hardened is nearly as tough; hence this material is useful in the manufacture of articles requiring hard, efficient, and elastic properties. The body of the gun is made of paper pulp. The core is of metal, and made very much like the cores of ordinary cannon. The exterior of the cannon is wound with wire. About five layers of copper, brass, or steel wire are firmly wound on, thus binding the cannon. Outside of the covering of wire are various bands of brass. These bands are set with uprights, through which rods extend parallel with the gun.

There are lock-nuts on each side of the uprights, and these hold the rods in

The process of making the gun is as follows: A special grade of paper pulp, in which the fiber is long, is selected and well agitated. The usual hardening and toughening ingredients, consisting of litharge, wax, tallow, white lead and blue, are introduced. The pulp is then run into moulds and cast of the proper shape. The steel core is put in; wire is bound around the exterior; brass or steel bands are securely set about the whole, and the parallel rods are applied. The rods, being of steel, possess a degree of spring, and as they are fastened to the bands the result is a gun which will give way slightly at each discharge, yet cannot burst. A person may make his muscles rigid and fall to the ground, in which case he is likely to receive a broken bone; but if the muscles are relaxed the bones will give way somewhat and will not break. The same principle is applied in the paper | papers: cannon. The pulp, although exceedprevent a break. It is said that the leather pulp guns, which, if made of metal, would require a derrick to move, are readily transported on light wagons. Paper pulp is no heavier than leather pulp. - Paper Trade Journal

Electric Waiters.

At the forthcoming Amsterdam exposition there will be exhibited, in practical use, a mechanism which will go far toward extinguishing the guild of waiters. It is a machine which will present the menu to those seated at the tables, from which they may select what they desire for their meal, and by pushing in an electric button, just as one rings a door bell, they may receive upon the table anything and everything edible or drinkable; a steak hot from the gridiron, flanked with a hissing oyster roast; a soup; a salad, dressed and spiced as a salad should be; a cup of tea with milk and sugar, if your order was such, or coffee always done; only, instead of waiting his watch." for your slow and languid waiter, who serves you when he happens to feel the need of doing so, or guesses that he may obtain a few cents in addition to his wages, you obtain your meal by the cold, mechanical revolution of a wheel, which heeds neither man or waiter. It is said that a meal is thus most excellently served, and that those who have put the system to the practical test prefer it to the most perfumed and perfect waiter ever trained in the cases of the Rue Riche-

Genius and Disease.

Whether or not men and women of genius are more frequently than others the victims of physical disability, the fact remains that a very large percent age of the more illustrious ones have been so afflicted. It may be that the Omaha Medical Journal attaches to some of its list of diseased geniuses maladies that have not heretofore been generally known to have afflicted them. The Interior, Chicago, summarizes the list alluded to as follows:

Dislocated Faith.

With Gennesaret wildly storming and the Christ in their frail boat asleep, the disciples, it would seem, might have been excused for manifest. ing not a little agitation and concern, Yet the Master-their Master and nature's-rebuked his followers' consternation and alarm. "Where is your faith?" he asked.

These words assumed that their faith was somewhere. The expression is a locative one. The literalness of it in the original constitutes its great sug. gestiveness. The idea is: "You have a faith-now where is it? Whereabouts is it? What has become of it?

What is its locus?" The Christian accordingly is supposed to have a faith—but sometimes he mislays it. On occasion of some sudden call it is lacking. It isn't there

That was the way it was on Genesaret. Those storm-tossed disciples had had a faith in Jesus, or they would not have been in that boat with Christ; and a faith too which on more than Five-year-old Freddy was showing one occasion had been tested. But > would not work. When that little ship's company went to sea that evening on Galilee so when Iesus inquired: "Where is your faith?" we can almost hear the disciples answering: "Master, we left our faith on shore. We had a good deal of it so long as we kept on dry land, but brought along with us next to nothing of confidence as we rode the

So Christ is always asking after the dislocated faiths of Christains, Where is your faith reposed? Whereabouts is it wandering? Where is your faith for salvation, for material blessing, for heart comfort, for efficiency in religious effort? Is faith in its place, at its post, attending to its duties? An absentee faith, a mislaid faith, accomplishes little, if anything at all. Only a belief which answers "Here!" to the roll call is that kind of a confidence which stills the tempest, whether on a mountain lake or in a human heart, and that pilots finally to the serenities of that sphere which knows no stormy Galilees, though it has ever in it ? MAGPIE AND CATS. The pets of the house were three very large black cats, great favorites, immensely spoiled, and very dignified and lazy. As we regarded the Australian magpie somewhat scornfully dallying with his dinner, we saw one of these solemn black monsters advancing at its usual dignified pace towards him. A cry rose from the assembled famiy, "Oh, Tigris will kill the magpie!" The head of the family desired to await developments. There was a painful suspense of breath as we watched the shaggy black Persian advancing on the plate and the magpie with a steady, unhurried step. The magpie stood aside from the plate, and with head well on one side, watched the oncoming robber. There was a world of meaning in the glance of that wicked gray eye, but it was all lost on the dignified composure of the Persian, who, without deigning to look at the magpie, proceeded to sniff at the contents of the plate. The bird, motionless as a statue, waited till the black whiskers came inquiringly over the edge of the plate; then he made one sudden hop, lunged once, with a lightning stroke of his beak, at the beautiful glossy black muzzle, and was back again in his watchful attitude so quickly that one almost felt disposed to doubt if he had ever left it. There was no doubt in the mind of the cat. That lightning stroke of the beak had much the same effect on the Persian as if a bomb had burst somewhere in its middle. It leaped with a yell five paces backward, its legs extended, every separate hair of its long fur standing off it at full length. When it reached the ground it hesitated not for one moment; no fleeting notion of vengeance crossed its mind; with head and tail epressed, in manner unlike as possible to its dignified approach, it retreatd at a good round trot to the shrubbery whence it had come.-The National Re-

DOG'S RESPONSE TO A TAUNT. A dog story has come to the writer's ears which, though not within his peronal knowledge, is vouched for to him an entirely trustworthy way. A cerain dog, which was growing old, was in a barn one day with his master. The two were up on a hay mow from which a sloping ladder led down to the barn The master walked down the ladder, but the dog went around by another way. When the dog reached the barn floor his master began to say to him somewhat tauntingly: "Poor fellow! Daren't walk down the ladder any more! Daren't walk down the ladder!" Whereupon the dog, with a quick glance at his master, walked clear up the ladder to the top and then turned around and walked down it again. The proceding looked very much like a deliberate demonstration on the dog's part to his master, that he was still capable of walking up and down a slanting ladder. Did the dog understand the merely catch the w "down the ladder," and take the utterance for a command, which he dutifully proceeded to obey? No one will ever know, probably, since the dog himself can give no account of the matter.

A KNOWING COW. Wm. Douglas, Q.C., of Chatham, recently purchased in Woodstock a very handsome Jersey heifer, and had it transported home in a G. T. R. box car. This interesting bovine, not finding the narrow precincts of Mr. Douglas' back yard as the green hills and dales of its Oxford home, finding the gate open the other day, quietly walked down to the C. T. R. freight yards and ensconced herself in an empty box car for transmission to the place of her birth, when

A Scotsman, writing home to Scotland from a western American city recently, says: "I saw a very funny, but still very interesting, thing the other day. There is a man in the outskirts of the town (Duluth) who has a small printing office which is run by a tread-mill. He has two bloodhounds which run the treadmill. It is very amusing to see the two hounds do the work. They are very useful to him. Whenever he wants to go into town he just hitches the two hounds to a small sleigh and rides in. They are very fast—I think much faster than a horse."

TROUT TICKLING.

A Milford, Conn., letter says: Old Capt. Lew Nettleton, who lives not far from the junction of the Race Brook with the Wepawang River, has been accustomed for years to catch all the trout he eats with no other implements than his bare hands. Trout are very plenty in the race, and the shallowness of the stream, combined with its overhanging banks, makes it an ideal place for trout tickling. To those who have angled with fly and bait for this cunning fish, talk about eatching them in the hand may seem romance. Nevertheless it is an established fact.

Capt. Nettleton fishes only on cloudy or overcast days, when his shadow will not fall sharply upon the stream. Nor can he hope to tickle with any success when the stream is high. Low water is in his favor, for then the trout are hiding in pools and small basins under the banks. He does not first spy out his game, but simply tries at random the favorite lairs. Lying flat on the bank a yard or so back from the brook, he slowly works his way to the edge. Then he lowers one arm cautiously to the water and begins to grope under the bank among the roots and rocks. Very gently his hand moves, and the slightest brush from the waving fins or tall of S. fontinalis will tell him the game is near. At the first touch the fish generally moves away a few inches. When the fingers have gently rubbed its velvety sides a second or third time it grows calm and seems to enjoy the sensation. Continuing a steady, soft tickling, the captain slips his hand further and further towards the head of the foolish trout. In cases where the whole operation has been watched from the opposite bank it has been noticed that the fish seems to surrender to the soothing touch as if under the influence of a spell, so that it will lean over upon the hand. When his hand is just back of the gills and the pectoral fins the captain closes on the fish with the suddeness and power of a rat trap. With one quick flirt he sends his victim flying over on the opposite bank. So stealthy are the old man's movements that he has been known to tickle four trout, one at a time, from a season, when the water is very low. The trout will flee before the wader and take refuge in secluded holes under rocks and stumps. Then the guddler proceeds to slip his hand under the rock or root and feel for the trout, which, once under his magic touch, he quickly flips out on to dry land or into a basket. Scientists who admit the possibilty of trout tickling, says that it is only during spawning season that trout are susceptible to such manipulation. But as the New England brook trout do not spawn until late in July and August, and the captain catches them only in the open season, that is from April 1 to July 1, the practice in his case does not seem to support the theory.

INTELLIGENT ANIMALS.

I do not believe you ever heard of a shepherd horse. A traveler in Switzerland tells as that last summer, in the mountains of Switzerland, he found a shepherd with his flock, who had as his assistant a horse instead of a dog. When the sheep wandered in the direction in which he did not wish them to go, he would speak to the horse, who galloped off and soon brought in the stray sheep, or turned the heads of the leaders in the direction in which the shepherd wished them to go. Speaking of animals, you will be interested to learn of intelligent service to which these splendid animals, dogs, have been trained. A man in Germany has found that they can be taught to help in the work of aiding the wounded in time of battle. You know there is a society having members all over the world called the Red Cross Society, which does this: a red cross worked on their sleeves lets them go about their work under the protection of both armies engaged in fighting. These dogs have been put under the same protec-tion and are called Red Cross dogs. Collies are the best for the purpose, that race being especially hardy, faithful and intelligent. One set of them is trained to follow the surgeon about the field as he hunts for the wounded, carrying across their backs in leather saddle-bags made for the purpose, and marked with the powerful red cross, the bandages, lint, plasters and brandy flask that are first needed when wounded soldier is found. And if a surgeon uses up the supply of a dog before his work is done, he sends the clever animal in to the hospital headquarters for more, the dog perfectly understanding what is expected of him. Another set of these smart dogs is trained to ambulance service, a long, light dog wagon being built for them to draw the wounded man off from the field to the hospital, where he may be cared for.

A KING SNAKE SAVES A CHILD. Charley, the 4-year-old son of L. P. Dean, a planter in Natchitoches parish, Louisiana, had a marvelous escape from death recently, and he owes his life to the kindly intervention of a king snake. Dean says he has often heard of the usefulness of the king snake in destroying other snakes, while it is itself perfectly harmless, but he never quite believed this until the other day, when his own child's life was saved so miraculously. Dean himself was away, but Mrs. Dean relates the story in substance as it is given below. She was upstairs, busy with her sewing, having let little Charley go out into the yard to play. Every now and then she would get up from her work and go to the window to see if he was all right, and to call down a pleasant word to keep him satisfied. Presently, however, she became interested in her work, and allowed a longer time than usual to elapse without speaking to him. When she did think of him and go to the window the little fellow was not under the tree where she had left him, but seemed to have grown tired and wandered off to the edge of a large vine-clad summer house, where he was sitting very still, gazing intently at something which his mother could not see.

After watching him for a while in silence, Mrs. Dean became convinced that something unusual was the matter with Charley, as he was a bright, active child, and never accustomed to sitting still, even for a moment at a time. By and by she grew alarmed at his stillness, and called to him, but he did not answer. Then following her child's intent gaze the mother was almost paralyzed with fear when she beheld the head of a large rattlesnake protruding through the vines just above Charley's face. The child was being charmed by the monster. Literally dumb with fright, Mrs. Dean did not even scream, but stood clinging to the window sill, expecting every second to see the hideous fangs strike her child's deathblow. How long a time passed holding her in this dreadful suspense of course she could not tell, but, as she describes it, it seemed to her years of direst agony, when suddenly from out the thick of the vines there glided quickly between Charley and the rattler a beautiful pied king snake, arching its back and raising its head. For a moment or two they gazed at each other, then the rattler's fiery eyes wavered and his head drooped, and the king snake was master of the situation. One, two, three sharp strikes from his enemy, and the rattler writhed and squirmed and at last lay dead in his tracks, while the king snake glided gracefully away through the grass, leaving Charley safe and sound.

A BIRD IMPRISONED IN A

FLOWER. A lady of New Orleans relates that some days since the first humming bird of the season made its appearance in her garden, sipping indiscriminately from the wealth of sweets. Late in the afternoon she observed the litle fellow hovering around a spike of annuncia-tion lilles, which had shot up perfectly laden with bells. The next morning early when she went out for a stroll through the garden she heard a fluttering and faint cheeping from the neigh-borhood of the lily bed. For some time she could see nothing to account for the faint sound, but at last was astonished to discover that one of the lily bells had closed its petals, imprisoning the humming bird within. It is probable that the gird had buried its beak to far in and extracted so much honey as to cause the already fading flower to collapse suddenly, thus holding the little fellow close bound all night long.

THE DOG AND THE MONKEY.

A New Iberia, La., letter says: Mrs. B. J. Mayer, living in this parish, has a monkey named Simon, which her brother brought from Central America last summer. While he seems to be very fond of the family, he has an abiding antipathy to strangers, and was never known to permit a visitor to enter the house except under protest. Another of Simon's peculiarities is the intense hamethod pursued there is to wade bare-footed up to a shallow stream in the hot big shepherd dog blonging to Mrs. May-and adjoining houses in particular. If Simon was taking a quiet siesta sit-ting up in a big chair with his head hanging over a sill of an open window, when Bruno came into the room and at once took in the situation. Without a bark or a whine to startle the sleeping Simon, Bruno wagged his head gently in a meditative way; then, going up to the window, he mounted upon his hind feet, grasped the sash in his mouth, and with a sharp stroke pulled it down, fas-tening the monkey by the neck. Simon wakened with a shriek and kept up the iveliest and most persistent screams, but Bruno was implacable, and the monkey was set at liberty by his mis-tress, much to the dog's disgust.

Boys and Girls.

Aunt Prudence and hot weather never agree very well together, so the editor has been giving her a little holiday, and occasequently her department for boys and girls has not appeared every week, since a first notice several weeks ago. But in future there will usually be found in Saturday's paper this column for young people, and now Aunt Prudence hopes that there will be many of her girls and boys who used to write to her who will try to gain the prizes which are to be given for the best letters on various subjects. The last one, for instance, was to describe the bravest act you ever saw or read about. Several letters reached Aunt Prudence on this subject, but the one which pleased her most was the story of Sir Richard Grenville, the English sea captain, and his plucky little vessel, the Revenge, told in his own words by a bright little boy. If the young writer will send in his address again (which has been mislaid), he will receive his prize of a penknife very shortly. For next week the prize will be a pretty silver buckle for a belt for the best letter on "How you would like to have your own room furnished." Do not exceed a hundred words if you can help it, and let no one be afraid to try. You can never tell what is going to please AUNT PRUDENCE.

Novelties in Houses.

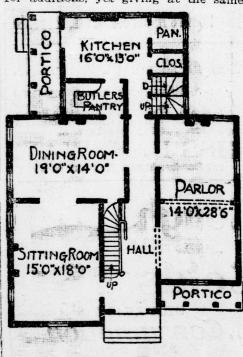

The Monotony of Duplication-Italian Illustrated.

(Copyright, 1895.) Diversified as are the features of this country in climate, soil, surface and exocsure, no one style of architecture can be adapted to suit all conditions. A discussion of the subject in detail would embrace a range far too wide for short articles like the present series, and a few general hints are all that can be given. It has been shown in the various styles that have been treated that the Swiss chalet was best suited for the mountain passes, the Swiss cottage for the valley, the gothic structure for the rugged hillside, and the colonial manadded the Italian villa for the woody

The villa of modern Italy is characterized when on a moderate scale by scattered irregular masses, great contrasts of light and shade, broken and plane surfaces, and a large variety of outlines against the sky, the blank wall on which the eye sometimes reposes, the towering campanile boldly contrasted against the horizontal line of roof, broken only by a few straggling chimney pots, the row of equal sized, closely placed windows. Contrasting with the plane space and single window of the projecting balcony, the prominent portico, the continued arcade, the terraces and the variously formed and disposed outbuildings all combine to form that picturesque whole which distinguishes the modern Italian from every other style of architecture.

A leading advantage of the Italian style is that an addition can readily be made at any time, and often with great improvement on the original structure, This is a strong point considered with reference to the American building. Hundreds of persons of moderate fortune desire to improve their residences at a future period, and by adopting a design of this style a little foresight leaves everything in a favorable state for additions, yet giving at the same time an appearance of present completeness. While there are natural conditions that point to the adoption of some particular style in a neighborhood, it is not a good policy to have a number of houses of the same design adjoining, or indeed to repeat a design at all in the same place. The outward arrangement is but a part of what should consti-tute the general effect, and component it is all important to show good taste and judgment in selecting a design, it is quite as important that taste should reign in all other details. Many of the most beautiful sites in the suburbs have been ruined by speculative builders, who have bought large plots, cut them into building lots, obtained a sin-gle design from an architect, and to save a small expense built a row of houses all alike. The group of houses always bears the builder's name, no matter who may live in the separate dwellings, and this should be a crying reproach, for no beauty of location or of structure can make good this breach

But to return to the description of Italian architecture as developed in this country. A general description of the design illustrating this article might be Dimensions: Width, 40 feet; depth, 54 Heights of stories: Cellar, 7 feet 6 and sitting rooms and large front bedreom. Main staircase, oak. Dining room and hall floor, also trim, oak; elsewhere flooring and trim is of soft wood. Bathroom and kitchen wainscoted. Panel backs and picture molding in principal rooms of first story; chair rail in dining room. All interior woodwork, with exception of parlor, grain filled and finished natural with hard oil var-nish. Parlor trim, white and gold paint. Colors: Trim, including cornices, cas-ings, etc., cream white; clapboards, pearl gray; roofs, red; sashes, dark green; outside doors and brickwork, oiled. Accommodations: The principal rooms and their sizes, closets, etc., are shown by the floor plans. Cellar under whole house, with inside and outside entrances and concrete floor. Wide portiere openings connect dining room and parlor and hall; plaster arch in par-lor; open fireplaces in parlor, dining room, sitting room and bedroom over sitting room. Portable range, sink and boiler in kitchen. Laundry, with two sets of tubs in cellar. Bathroom, with full plumbing in second story. Attic unfinished, but floored for storing purposes. Separate stairway to campanile. Inside sliding blinds to all windows of first and second stories.

In the vicinity of New York, this design as described, not including mantels, range or heater, would cost little short of $7,500, though in many sections of the country where labor is cheaper it could be built for 10, 15 or perhaps 20

The design, however, is subject to many feasible modifications, according to the wishes of the builder, who should, however, always consult with the architect, that he may not destroy the artistic appearance of the house, and who may advise him as to the feasibility of his suggestions.

General dimensions, materials and colors may be changed, cellar may be reduced in size; portice may extend around parlor side. Any or all fireplaces and part or all of the plumbing may be omitted. Parlor may be divided in two, making the rear portion a library. Double sliding doors may be substitut ed for portiere openings; dining room may be enlarged about four feet by dispensing with passageway from kit

Marking the Lambs.

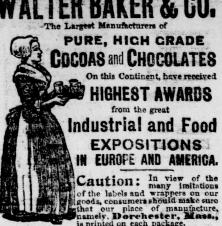

In a Sunday school, when the lesson of the Good Shepherd was being explained, the question was asked, "How does the Good Shepherd know his sheep?" Young Washington, who had been visiting his uncle's sheep farm, thought he knew. "Tell the class my dear," said the teacher. 'Some he slits their ears and some he marks red chalk," said the boy. These would be distinguishing marks indeed, but not more so than are the marks of health on the countenances of those who use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. For all blood taints, from whatever cause arising, poisons and humors, such as scrofula, tumors, ulcers and kindred affections, its equal does not exist.

Louis and Jerome Bonaparte Made Kings. Prussians Overwhelmed at Auerstadt and Jena-Allied Armies Destroyed at Friedland-Treaty of Tilsit.

[Copyright, 1895, by John Clark Ridpath.] XVII. - MAPMAKER AND KING OF KINGS.

After Austerlitz, Napoleon conceded to the Czar of Russia the privilege of retiring! Only a month before, Alexander had been in Berlin. Out at Potsdam, on the 3rd of November, he and Frederick William had sworn a secret mighty oath over the tomb of Frederick the Great. This conjuration with the Czar did not now seem to have been an expedient thing! Frederick, supposing that Napoleon was not informed of his perfldy, sent to the victor at Austerlitz a message of hollow congratulation. The Emperor, on receiving it, said that Frederick William had written the letter, intending it for the Czar, but fortune had changed the address to himself!

The treaty of Pressburg was another peace that did not pacify. Europe was prostrate before Napoleon as far as the Vistula; but England covered all sea coasts from the Adriatic to the Baltic, and the whole Slavic race lay darkly banked on the horizon of the Northeast. The Emperor began at once, with incredible audacity, to make a new political map for the European Powers, and to support it with his under-kings and princes, vassals of France. Influenced by the recent Russo-Austrian coalition, Italy, under the leadership of Ferdinand, king of the Two Sicilies, had hopefully sympathized with the allies. Instigated by his wife, Caroline Maria, sister of Marie Antoinette, the Neapolitan king admitted into his dominions a division of the Russian army.

The cause of offense was sufficient; Napoleon, in January of 1806, sent a corps, under his brother Joseph, to occupy Italy. On the 15th of February, having entered Naples, Joseph was proclaimed king, and the Bourbon monarchy was abolished.

Notwithstanding the intended treachery of Frederick William, the Emperor kept faith with him, and delivered Hanover to Prussia. The King was reluctant to accept the gift; for Hanover was England's, and he would fain be at one the right bank of the Rhine, even from Italy to Holland, were erected into the Confederation of the Rhine. Fourteen princes of Germany voluntarily detached themselves from their Teutonic affiliations, and carried over a population of about sixteen millions to the French NAPOLEON BY LEFEVRE protectorate. Napoleon would thus construct a Germanic wall between Eastern Europe and France, protecting the latter against the further incursion of the Austro-Slavic races.

The next step was to convert Holland into a sub-kingdom of France. On the 5th of June, 1806, Louis Bonaparte, to whom, four years previously, Hortense Beauharnais had been married, was proclaimed king of Holland. Out of Hesse-Cassel, Brunswick and parts of Saxony and Prussia, the kingdom of Westphalia was formed, and assigned to Jerome Bonaparte as king. To himafter Tilsit-was given in marriage the princess Catherine of Wurtemburg. In the countries between the Rhine and Poland, extending southward into Italy and northward to the Baltic, a great number of dukedoms and principalities were created and conferred on the marshals of the Empire. Murat, husband of Caroline Bonaparte, was made grand duke of Berg and Cleves. Lannes became duke of Montebello. Junot was presently nominated duke of Abrantes. Bernadotte received the title of prince of Pontecorvo. Ney got his hard-earned dukedom of Elchingen. Berthier was made duke of Neuchatel and Valangin. Soult became duke of Dalmatia. Massena took his honor as prince of Essling. Davout, after a little delay, was made duke of Auerstadt. Bacciocchi, husband of Elise Bonaparte, was created prince of Lucca and Piombino. Eugene Beauharnais was given in marriage Augusta Amelia, daughter of the king of Bavaria, and the title of prince of Venice. The process of king-making and prince-making was limited, not so much by the possibilities of territory as by the number of the Imperial retinue.

Prussia now became a scene of stormy agitation. The humiliated House of Hohenzollern looked in this direction and in that. The younger element of the people and the philosophical patriots France. Meanwhile, a strange and farreaching contingency appeared among James Fox, successor of Pitt, became premiership of Grenville. Fox would ain was at peace with Denmark! fain have peace. He was not devoid of remote sympathies with France and with Napoleon himself. Courtesies began between him and the Emperor.

Suddenly, however, on the 13th of September, 1806, Fox died; and by the incoming of Lauderdale, the whole complexion was changed. Toryism again ran rampant. The Anglo-Russo-Prussian intrigue was renewed. Frederick William sent a peremptory challenge to Napoleon to betake himself out of Germany. The Emperor had in truth agreed to withdraw his forces; but the Czar had also agreed to relinquish certain vantage ground on the Dalmatian frontier-and had not done it. Therefore, Napoleon's army corps would remain in Germany. Frederick William suddenly declared a war; and Napoleon, in a month after the death of Fox and the sudden revulsion in diplomacy, concentrated in Saxe-Weimar an army of nearly a hundred thousand men.

The Prussians, sixty thousand strong, under Prince Hohenlohe, occupied the city of Jena, on the Saale. There, on the 14th of October, they were attacked and utterly routed by the French, leaving behind twelve thousand in killed and wounded, and about fifteen thousand prisoners. On the same day, at Auerstadt, fourteen miles from Weimar, a corps of the Grand Army, thirtyfive thousand strong, under Marshal Davout, fell upon a division of fifty thousand Prussians, commanded by the Duke of Brunswick and Frederick William in person, and won a signal victory. Brunswick was mortally wounded, and about ten thousand of his soldiers were put hors du combat.

Prussia was utterly overwhelmed by the disaster. Her fortresses were surrendered without resistance, and Napoleon, in less than a fortnight, occupied Berlin. On the 21st of November, he issued from that city his celebrated Berlin decree, declaring the British Islands in a state of blockade, and interdicting all correspondence and trade with England!

The property of British subjects, under a wide schedule of liabilities, was declared contraband of war.

Meanwhile, the aid promised to Prussia by the Czar had been too slow for the lightning that struck at Jena. The oncoming Russians reached the Vistula, but were forced back by the victorious French, who took possession of Warsaw. There the Emperor established his winter-quarters and remained for nearly three months, engaged in the formulation of new plans of conquest and new schemes for the pacification of Europe.

After Jena, Prussia, though crushed, remained belligerent. Her shattered with England. The principalities along | forces drew off to the borders, and were joined by the Russians in East Prussia. The campaign of 1807 opened here. On the 8th of February, the French army, about 70,000 strong, advanced against the allies commanded by Benningsen and Lestocq. At the town of Eylau, about twenty miles from Konigsberg, a great but indecisive battle was fought, in which each army suffered a loss of nearly 18,000 men. The Russians and Prussians fell back about four miles to Friedland, and both armies were reinforced, the French to about 80,000, and the allies to approximately the same number.

The shock of Eylan, the inclemency of the season, and the political complications that thickened in every horizon held back military movements until the beginning of summer. On the 14th of June was fought the great battle of Friedland; and the allied army was virtually destroyed. The loss of the Russians and Prussians was more than 25,-000 men; that of the French, fewer than 8,000. Napoleon commanded in person, and his triumph was prodigious. Though common fame would have Austerlitz to be the most glorious of his battles, critical opinion concedes the palm to Friedland.

After Friedland, Tilsit. There, in the middle of the Memel, on the 25th of June, 1807, Napoleon and the Czar met on the famous raft. The beaten Alexander had come to admire his victorious antagonist. Why should the faces of his fifty thousand dead prevent him from falling in love with the destroyer? The Emperors readily agreed to be at peace. On the 7th of July a treaty was concluded between France and Russia, and two days afterwards a similar compact between France and Prussia. Frederick William had sought refuge after the battle in the town of Memel, which was now about all he might call his own!

Now was created the grand duchy of Warsaw, composed of Prussian territory. Over this new state was set Napoleon's friend Frederick Augustus, king of the Saxons. Another part of Prussia was given to the Czar. Dantzic was declared independent. The province west of the Elb was ceded to France. All the Bonapartes were confirmed in their kingdoms, and the Confederation of the Rhine was recognized. The ports of Prussia were shut to English commerce. Frederick William's army was placed at a maximum of 42,000 men. To these provisions was added a large indemnity to France from Prussia. The map which the Corsican had etched with his swordpoint on the broken landscape of Europe was confirmed by the agreement of all the Powers-save England.

For four years the sting of Tilsit was in the vitals of England. So powerful was the Napoleonic influence that Denmark leaned Franceward; and the Czar smiled. It was suspected by the Grenville ministry that the Danes would close their ports to British trade. Under this suspicion, Admiral Catheart was sent with his fleet into the Baltic, demanding that the navy of Denmark should be surrendered in pledge to Great Britain! To this monstrous proposition the Crown Prince bravely answered no. Cathcart then proceeded against Copenhagen, and in the first week of September bombarded the city. Three hundred cried out against the domination of and fifty buildings, including the University, were destroyed, and six times as many houses rendered untenable. the personal forces in Europe. LESSON XI, SECOND QUARTER; IN-TERNATIONAL SERIES, JUNE 16.

Text of the Lesson, John xxi, 4-17-Memory Verses, 15-17-Golden Text, John xxi, 17-Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

4. Seven of the disciples had, under the leadership of Peter, gone afishing. But although they toiled all night they took nothing. Perhaps Peter thought of another night when they had labored in vain, boats. He was now no longer with them, and perhaps it was His absence and their need that led them at this time to turn to the old occupation.

5. In the morning one stood on the shore whom they knew not and asked them if they had any meat. They were compelled to confess their emptiness and helplessness as they answered no. They should have trusted Him unseen as when He was visibly with them. But they were like ourselves, very slow to learn and full of doubts and fears and unbelief.

6. At His word they cast the net once more, and as on a former occasion when He called them to forsake all they catch a multitude of fishes. He changes not. His power is ever the same. If we would only trust Him, we might always be filled with joy and peace (Rom. xv, 13) and know somewhat of "satisfied with the favor and full with the blessing of the Lord" (Deut, xxxiii. 23).

7. John, whom Jesus loved, was the first to recognize the Lord. There must have been some unbelief about the fishing busil ness, else he might have known Him sooner. It was unbelief on the part of Mary that caused her not to know Him (chapter XX.

14), for had she believed His words she would never have looked for the body of a ing of the muscles and nerves of my to Emmaus and knew Him not were also full of unbelief (Luke xxiv, 25). And so always unbelief blinds the eyes (Heb. iii, 19).

8. As soon as Peter heard John say "It is the Lord," he at once cast himself into the sea to get to Jesus, while the other disciples came dragging the net with fishes. As Peter had led off in this going fishing, per-haps he wanted a word with the Lord alone, that he might take the blame upon himself and clear the others. As he had led out, he would be the first to lead back, a thing not always so easily done, as is seen in the case of Manasseh (II Chron. xxxiii, 16, 17).

9. Without any efforts of theirs, and with out any of the fish that they had caught, their breakfast was ready for them. They might as well have trusted the Lord to care tons, and by the time six boxes were shoes they had lacked nothing (Luke xxii, 35). He will surely provide for all who truly serve and follow Him, according to Phil. iv, 19. We wonder if the fire of coals made Peter think of another fire of coals when he got into trouble (chapter xviii, 18).

10. "Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the works in us, when we are willing both to will and to do of His good pleasure (Phil. ii, 13), and then promises to reward us for the works which we allow Him to do through us (Rev. xxii, 12). Is not His name truly "Wonderful?"

11. On the former occasion the net broke contained 153 great fishes. In II Chron. ii, 17, we read that there were 153,000 strangers in the land in the days of Solomon, whom he employed to get materials for the temple. We know that the sea represents peoples and nations (Rev. xvii, 15), and that from the nations the Lord is gathering out dreaded word "incurable." Sold by a people for His name, to form a great spir all dealers in medicine or sent by mail itual temple as a dwelling place for God (Eph. ii, 21, 22), and that Peter was the first to open the door to the nations (Acta xv, 14).

12. "Jesus saith unto them, Come and break your fast" (R. V). See now why they had gone fishing. They were evidently hungry, had been fasting for some time, and no one seemed to care. So it looked as if they must do something, but their some what was all in vain till He commanded. Without Him all our efforts will amount to nothing (John xv, 5). He was visibly before them now, and they saw His provision for their need. Their lack of confidence in Him when invisible kept them from saying much.

13. "Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise." He is always serving and supplying and caring for His people. The Son of Man, who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister (Math. xx, 28), is still our High Priest with girded breast (Rev. i, 13,) whose love and power combine for the best interests of all who are His. "He who spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?" (Rom. viii, 32.)

14. This is the third appearance to the disciples recorded by John; see chapter xx, 19, 26. While it is probably the seventh appearance since the resurrection, it is the third to any number of the disciples, the other four being to Mary, who first saw Him; then to the other women, and afterward to Peter, then to the two who walked to Emmaus, or possibly to the two before

He appeared to Peter. 15. "Lovest thou me more than these?" Did He ask Peter whether he loved Him more than the other disciples loved Him, because Peter had made the strongest professions of love before the crucifixion (Math. xxvi, 33, 35; John xiii, 37), or did He ask Peter whether he loved the service of Christ, even though it should involve some hunger and fasting, more than food for the body such as had now been provided? We all need to remember that man doth not live by bread alone, but by every word of God (Math. iv, 4), and that it is possible to esteem the words of His mouth more than our necessary food (Job xxiii, 12). 16. "Lovest thou me?" The second time the question comes, but He does not add "more than these." We sometimes hear people testify in public as to how much they love the Lord. I confess it always makes me feel that they would do better to testify to the great love of God to them, for our love to Him is, I fear, scarcely a thing to be talked of in public. Let us manifest our love by caring for His sheep and lambs: by doing to others as He would do were He here; by acting on John's admonition, "Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth" (I John iii, 18). 17. "Lovest thou me?" The third time the question comes, for it is a heart searching one. Would Peter think of his threefold denial? Why was he grieved? How little we think of how we grieve the Lord! Let us pray Ps. cxxxix, 23, 24, margi. Peter had offered to die for Christ. Jesus now tells him that he shall have that privilege (verses 18, 19); has he love enough for that? Have you?

Back to Health After Years of Extreme Suffering.

in the county of Carleton," said Mr. Argue, "and have lived all my life within twenty miles of the city of Ottawa. Ten years of that time have been years of pain and miseryalmost beyond endurance. Eleven years ago I contracted a cold which resulted in pleurisy and inflammation of the lungs. Other complications then followed and I was confined to my room for five years. The doctor who attended me through that long illness said that the reason I was unable to move about was due to the contract-dead Christ. The two who walked with Him hands and feet through long confinement to bed. I could hobble around a little on crutches, but was well nigh helpless. At this stage a second doctor was called in, who declared my trouble was spinal complaint. Notwithstanding medical advice and treatment I was sinking lower and lower, and was regarded as incurable. I was in such a state that I was unable to leave my bed, but determined to find a cure if possible, and sent for one of the most able physicians in Ottawa. I was under his care and treatment for three years. He blistered my back every three or four weeks, and exerted all his skill, but in vain. I was growing weaker and weaker, and began to think the end could Pink Pills. I yielded to his solicitafor them, for they had testified that when used I found myself getting better. I He sent them without purse or scrip or used in all 30 boxes, and they have accomplished what ten years of treatment under physicians failed to do. Thanks to this wonderful medicine, I am able to attend to my duties, and am as free from disease as any man in ordinary health is expected to be. I still use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they are the medicine for me, and so long fish which you have now caught." As if as I live I will use no other. If I had they had done it. He wrought through got these pills ten years ago I am satthem and then gave them the credit of do isfled I would not have suffered as I ing it. That is the way He does still. He did, and would have saved some hundreds of dollars doctor bills. It is only those who have passed through such a terrible siege as I have done who can fully realize the wonderful merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." Mr. Argue's experience should convince even the most skeptical that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stand far in ad-(Luke v, 6), but not so now, although it vance of other medicines, and are one of the greatest discoveries of the age. Transplanting Vegetables.

Do not be in too great haste to trans plant vegetables to the open ground. Wait until all danger, not only of frosts but cold nights, is past. The young plants are tender, and if they receive a severe check at the start they seldom recover, and it is important to secure a vigorous steady growth from the start. Harden off before transplanting, so that they can stand the night air without injury. Do not water the plants for twenty four hours previous to transplanting but give them a generous sprinkling just before taking out of the hotbeds or window

The ground must be well mellowed; if a little poultry manure or well-rotted stable manure is hoed into the surface soil it will be found beneficial. Make a hole for the plants the shape of an inverted saucer and large enough so that the roots can be spread out naturally. Cover with well-pulverized soil when the ground is very wet or soon after a heavy rain; this is often neglected and the tender roots are covered with lumps of soil, which soon harden and prevent their taking hold. Firm the soil around each plant. On a cloudy day or after sundown is the best time for transplanting. Protect the plants from the sun until they are rooted.

Cultivate often and very shallow while the plants are young. Do not cultivate when the soil is too wet; if the tools will work well the soil is in the right condition. Cultivation means more than keeping down the weeds; the soil must be stirred and pulverized. Hasten growth by the use of liquid manure. Quickness of growth is necessary to the quality and tenderness of any vegetable. Early in the morning or in the evening is the best , time to water plants. Give a generous supply to the roots twice a week and cover the wet surface with a little dry 'soil. A liberal supply of water twice a week is better than a little every day. Do not use cold water; fill a barrel and let it stand in the sun a day or two and it will be about the right temperature.

Underground Irrigation, Underground irrigation is often more useful than water applied on the surface, for small fruits and forced vegetables. especially the strawberry, when the plants are developing fruit. The sinking of empty flower pots here and there through the plot, and keeping these filled with water, which gradually soaks out into the surrounding ground, may answer for a small plot of berries, but for a larger area the plan suggested in the accompanying illustration will be found more serviceable. Between every second row of plants is laid, a few inches below the surface, a row of drain tiles, the first in each row coming to the surface. With a hose each row of tile can be filled in a moment, and the water will be absorbed by the earth and reach the roots of the plants as needed, and there will be no baking of the surface soil. If desired the first row of tile could be extended round through the various rows and the whole filled from one point. A modification of this idea is used with many other crops.

Mending Grain Sacks.

Mending the holes in grain sacks is a task that the farmer's wife dislikes, hence the holes gnawed by mice and rats are often stopped with a corn cob, or the sacks are thrown away. But here is a plan that proves to be what every farmer needs. The articles needed for mending grain sacks are: An old sack that may be cut up for pieces; a batter made of flour and cold water; a hot flat iron and an ironing board to fit inside the sacks. Place the board in a sack with the hole to be mended on the upper side. Trim away the ravelled edges with the shears or a sharp knife. Cut out a patch having at least an inch margin larger than the hole. On this margin apply a coat of the flour paste, place the patch in position and press it thoroughly with the hot flat iron. The latter penetrates both patch and sack and firmly unites them. Pieces of denim, ducking or other stout material may be used where bagging is not available. The process is so rapid that a hundred sacks may soon be repaired.

Spring Crops vs. Fall Crops. Unless the season is unfavorable, the markets are almost invariably glutted with fruit and produce in the fall and winter. Everybody then wants to sell, to realize money for current expenses, and prices are too often weak and unremunerative. The production of early stuffasparagus, strawberries, and other vegetables and fruits, is not so common as the staple crops, and when a good market is convenient this early truck is generally the most profitable. The spring and early summer market is usually a better paying one than the fall market. This is a great point, and well worthy the farmers' best consideration.

Feed Young Stock Regularly. A plentiful and regular supply of food is essential to maintaining good digestion. This is often forgotten. If there is neglect in feeding, as often happens to stock that is confined, it is a common idea that it can be made up by more liberal feeding thereafter. This usually only makes the matter worse. If the stomach is weakened by deprivation of food it is less able to digest the surplus that commonly follows. Young animals, especially, ought to have their food at regular times, and not either too much or too

A Cincinnati paper relates in great detail how a chemist of that city has invented an artificial milk on which a cream Pises that can be churned and make butter. He should go into partnership with the man who invented artificial eggs.

We run across a good many dairies that contain one or two fine cows, cows which produce way above the average of the entire herd. These are usually made pets of, given extra feed and care, and are the ones talked about when visitors come. They should be considered as models, or object lessons to work toward, in the endeavor to bring the entire herd up to their level. Possibly a little of the same extra care and feed, if lavished upon the they are delicious in soups, ragouts, etc., shers, would help toward this end.

A MOVABLE POULTRY HOUSE.

Its Use Will Prove Quite a Saving in Feed From Year to Year.

On stubble fields there is often a good deal of food which if the fowls could be induced to forage sufficiently would amount to a considerable quantity of feed. In some countries the young, growing fowl are housed in a small, lightly constructed building on wheels, of a weight not too heavy for a horse to draw, and of a size to accommodate from fifty to seventy chickens. The birds are quartered in it and drawn to the field, where they are fed once or twice in the house to accustom them to it. Then they are supplied with plenty of water and turned upon the stubble, changing them about to fresh forage as often as they seem to require new ground, to find sufficient of the fallen grain. If the house be built of half-inch matched boards, it will be found light enough to be moved easily, and will prove quite a saving in feed from year to year. During the winter months, when other important work is not pressing, time may be put to good advantage by constructing such a movable poultry

To Make Poultry Raising Profitable. In the first place, build the poultry house where cold winds of winter will not strike it. Select the sunniest place possible, high and dry, where barns and other outbuildings will protect it. Have it as convenient as practicable to the dwelling, for fowls need more attention than any kind of stock during bad weather, especially in winter. They then need a warm house, good feed and plenty of fresh water.

In order to keep the house warm, batten every crack and bank up about the bot-For banking, drive stakes about eight inches from the outside of the wall. Place old boards inside these. Some distance from the stakes dig a trench and throw the earth between the boards and the wall until a solid bank of soil two feet high and eight inches thick is formed all around the chicken house except at the door. This will keep the floor warm and prevent all draughts. This is an important item as the fowls are on the floor most of the time during the day.

Every farmer should have at least twenty-five chickens-twenty-four hens and a rooster. For these, a house 10x14 ft and 7 ft. high under the eaves, is sufficient for both summer and winter. For the frame use 2x4 scantling, cover these on the outside with matched board or ordinroof use good shingles. All the lumber can then paint the outside of the house of the tail-board. and whitewash the inside.

Some professionals heat their poultry houses with a stove during the coldest Wyandottes, Brahmas, etc., will do well without artificial heat. They will lay all winter. Where the thermometer seldom goes lower than eight or ten degrees below zero, a lining of tarred paper is large-combed variety of chickens if you live in a cold climate.

Provide large windows for the south side of the house. For twenty-five fowls place three roost poles across one end. Let them rest on a strip of board nailed to the wall two feet from the floor. A piece of one-inch board two inches wide with rounded edges will answer. Place the first one foot from the wall and the other two 11/2 ft apart. These can be removed when the house is being cleaned. Six nests ten inches square, two feet from the floor and on the end opposite the roosts, will provide sufficient room for laying. Never place them on the floor of the house. Have a solid partition between each, so that the hens cannot fight. Line with soft straw, never hay. Clean out four times a year and burn the old material. Nests used for setting hens must be cleaned before putting in the eggs and after the chickens are hatched. It is a good plan to sprinkle a little sulphur in the bottom of each nest as there is where lice usually start.

Clean out from under the roosts at least once a week, sweeping the whole house elean. A little land plaster sprinkled about prevents bad odors, adds to the value of the manure and keeps the floor from rotting. The floor should be six inches above the ground, made of dressed and matched lumber. Make a box 3x4 ft. and one foot high with sides sloping outward. Into this put about three inches of fine gravel. This will take the place of oyster shells and is much better for the fowls. A flock of chickens treated as directed above will be a source of pleasure and one of the most profitable kinds of

Regards the Test Favorably.

While the value of tuberculin as a test for disease seems to be far from infallible up to the present stage of its employment in this direction, some of our well-posted farmers regard it favorably, basing their opinion on personal experience and observation of its use elsewhere. E. L. Moore of Framingham (Mass.) is one of these and reports his experience during the past year as follows:

"My thoroughbred cows were first tested with tuberculin in March, '94, by Dr. J. E. Gardner of Hartford, the herd including twenty cows and heifers with one bull. Out of all receiving the test eighteen were pronounced healthy and three diseased, the latter proving tuberculous when slaughtered. There was no noticeable effect on the health of the stock or their milk as to quality or quantity.

"No bad effects have been noted since the cows were subjected to the test. All the cows have had healthy calves since that time, except one now due and promising. Of the eighteen animals which stood the test five were sold at fancy prices on the strength of the test. Of the remaining members of the herd two were tested with tuberculin in October by the cattle commission and in Deember again subjeted to a private test and pronounced sound.

Okra for the Garden.

Not one garden in a hundred ever has okra growing in it. This is a great omission. It is perfectly easy to grow, it bears edible pods all summer long if they are kept cut off as soon as large enough, and and for pickles. Try it.

ROAD

FOUR-WHEELED DUMP CART.

An Improvement on the Old-Fashioned Cart So Long in Vogue.

The Champion is a great improvement over the old-fashioned, ordinary dumping cart so long employed in road building operations, possessing advantages that cannot fail to commend it to engineers, contractors, road, street and park commissioners and others interested in good road and street work.

By its use broken stone may be handled much more quickly and at considerably less expense than has heretofore been possible-and in a more satisfactory manner.

The dumping and spreading of broken stone is usually attended with a cloud of fine dust which is blown into neighboring residences and settles on furniture, resulting in considerable annoyance and damage; the finest particles of stone and dust not blown away will settle at the bottom of the pile, making it impossible to spread the stone uniformly, thus defeating one of the main pirnciples of stone road construction, viz., the proper distribution of the material on all parts of the roadway.

The "Champion Distributing Cart" overcomes all of these obstacles effectually. It is a dump cart mounted upon four wheels. The weight is well distributed on both front and rear wheels, thus avoiding either upward or downward pressure on the team. The tilting of the cart is effected by a crank and gear mechanism in connection with a rack and pinion, which not only renders easy the tilting of a heavy load, but is also of great advantage when it is desired to load the cart with shovel, as the cart can be firmly held in any position from level to completely dumped.

The tail-board is hinged at its upper edge, allowing the lower edge to swing outward. Two adjusting chains limit the outward swing when the cart is used as a spreader.

Steel wings are attached to either side of the cart at the tailboard for the purpose of spreading the stone to the entire width ary smooth boards and battens. For the of the track of wheels. The stone as it escapes from the cart is levelled by means should be smooth on both sides. You of a steel scraper attached to the bottom

This scraper is pivoted at the centre and is adjustable at either end by means of horizontal lever on back of tail-board. days but this is expensive and requires This feature is of great value, as in the careful manipulation. If the climate is construction of stone streets it is necessary very cold, sheathe the inside of the house in many cases to spread thicker in the and pack the space between the outer and middle of the road than at the sides; if the inner walls with sawdust. Here the scraper was stationary this could not be at farrowing if she be thin in flesh. This hardier breeds such as Plymouth Rocks, done, but as it is adjustable it can be spread thicker on one side than on the other. This adjustable scraper will also be found very useful when it is desired to spread but half the width of the cart; thus, if the road to be constructed is usually sufficient. Never choose a tender twelve feet in width, the smaller size cart will spread to a width of five feet, and it will readily be seen that after the cart has spread two widths there will be two feet of roadway yet to spread, or three feet less than the width of the cart; by adjusting the scraper and driving one wheel on the stone already spread about three feet from the edge, the remaining two feet can be easily spread. The "Champion Distributing Cart" is built in two sizes-for two or three horses working abreast. A very attractive feature of the cart is its all around usefulness. None of the conveniences of the common cart have been sacrificed in the design of the 'Champion," and it is the most perfect and convenient general purpose cart on the market, and can be used for hauling plank, stone, earth, etc., etc.

The American Road Machine Company are firm believers in the efficacy of wide tires on any draft vehicle, and have endeavored in designing the "Champion Distributing Cart" to combine the good effects of the roller with that of the spreader, by making the tires of more than ordinary width and having the front wheels to tree inside of the rear wheels, thus giving a rolling space of sixteen inches on the two-horse cart and eighteen inches on the three-horse cart.

Educate the Farmers.

Hon. Thomas M. Blackstock, of Sheboygan, who was elected president of Good Roads League, organized a short time ago in Milwaukee, is opposed to the adoption of radical legislation on the subject of reads. He holds, and very properly, that the farmers, who have most of the road taxes to pay and are more directly interested than any other class in the road question, should be consulted first. In a recent interview, among other things he says: "We need to first arouse public sentiment on the subject. If we properly expend the money we already have, we can do a great deal towards making good roads. I am in favor of having practical road making taught at the farmers' institutes. Farmers should know how to make good roads as well as how to breed good cattle or sheep or how to prepare the soil for good crops of all kinds.

"I do not think it will be necessary to issue a dollar's worth of bonds to improve the roads. Let the money be spent intelligently, that's all."-Madison (Wis.) Journal.

A New Paving Material.

A new material, composed of coir fibre, which is obtained from the husk of the cocoanut mixed, with bitumen, is about to be introduced into England for road paving. When formed into blocks and laid on a roadway, it forms a surface which is said to possess all the advantags of wood and asphalt, with none of the objections to those materials. It is wholly foothold for horses, is very durable, and is, moreover, very cheap, and the old material can be utilized again and again for making new blocks. The Reason.

impervious to moisture, gives a sure

"Oh, well," said the consoling friend, on the way back from the races, "you have your railroad ticket left."

Yes," was the mournful reply. "I couldn't find a bookmaker who was betting railroad tickets."

BROAD TIRES-

In Localities Where They are in Use Roads are Kept in Better Condition

It will be some years before all or even majority of our country roads will be improved by gravelling or macadamizing, but in the meantime it is necessary to urge the adoption of some means to keep the ordinary earth roads from becoming impassable for a few months during the wet season of the year. One important move in this direction would be the use of broad tires on all vehicles used for hauling heavy loads. The only difficulty in the way of this is to get farmers and teamsters to make the change. Michigan law-makers realized this and have made a law which provides that a man using on his wagon tires of a certain width shall have a rebate of one-half of his road tax. In buying a new wagon the difference in cost is slight as the wider tires may be thinner and the added strength in the wider rim makes a stronger wheel. To take from a wagon already in use the narrow rims and tires and replace them with wider ones only costs about $15. Farmers who have had experience in broad tires assert that in a corn field where thirty bushels was considered a good load on narrow tires, they can haul fifty bushels with greater ease on broad tires. When hauling stuff to market, the load with wide tires can be increased from twenty-five to fifty per cent. In localities where a considerable portion of the inhabitants use broad tires, the road is kept in better condition than when narrow tires prevail. The advice of men who are in a position to know is that when broad tires are universally used on highways of all kind, from city pavement to the poorest earth roads, they may be kept in better repair than at present at onefourth the cost. The greatest improvement for the least outlay is what the present generation is most likely to con-

England's Roads.

The present indebtedness of English towns and localities for street and road improvements is $145,000,000. It is not many years since England was a country of wretched highroads and of abominable town streets. All this has been changed, and the transformation which has been costly, has seemed to impose a heavy burden by reason of its rapidity. But it would have been a good investment at almost any price. Fortunately, the work has been done in a permanent manner. The macadamized roads are so solidly founded that they will endure for centuries. - Municipal World.

Profitable Swine Raising.

Select the breed best suited to your fancy and surroundings, then breed pure. Avoid inbreeding, for no farm animal will so quickly deteriorate from it as the hog. Select a pure bred sow from one to two years of age, of good length, heavy quarters and a short snout. The boar should also be heavily quartered, well proportioned and evenly made. Sows should be bred to farrow about the middle of April and the pigs should be kept growing until ready for market. Fall pigs, unless weighing from thirty to forty pounds when going into winter quarters, are usually unprofitable. Feed the brood sow sparingly of corn but give her plenty of bran and middlings. Some feeders argue that a sow will do better is true if she has been fed on corn, but if fed as recommended above, she will do much better by her pigs if in good flesh. A few roots and an occasional feed of clover hay are very healthful and will be enjoyed by the sow. Care should be taken not to overfeed her for a few days preceding farrowing and for two weeks after, as the pigs cannot dispose of too much milk at that age. But after that feed the sow all she will eat of a mixed ration of corn meal, oat meal and bran, with ground barley and middlings for an occasional MARIE FEODOROWNA, FINDING GREAT change. As soon as the pigs are old enough to eat slop they should be allowed the freedom of a pen apart from the sow, where they can be fed separately.

A Grinding Monopoly.

One of the most outrageous and grinding of monopolies is the elevator trust of Buffalo. Years ago, owing to the profitable nature of the business, that of elevating grain into the boats of the canal or into the cars of the trunk lines, some twenty or thirty elevators were constructed. Competition kept the price for elevating rather low, and to remedy this a trust was formed embracing all the elevators. It was found that about one-third of them could do the work, so the others were closed. Of course, the idle ones fared as well as the others in the matter of dividends. Little by little the rates have been advanced and now the boatmen, robbed until they can no longer stand it, are trying to erect a couple of elevators of their own. We hope they will succeed in their scheme and, if possible, bankrupt the trust. The boatman who would patronize the trust when other methods where available, ought to be punished. - American Agriculturist.

The Bright Side of Sheep Husbandry. The bright side of sheep husbandry is emphasized by Frederick Chambers, one of the most progressive of eastern sheep men. He claims that although wool has dropped from forty cents to less than fifteen cents per pound, sheep (including mutton and manure) have paid better than any other branch of agriculture except the dairy. Even at present prices, wool pays better than wheat, and the decline in prices of what the wool grower has to buy is as great or greater than the drop in wool values. He believes that dairying is likely to be overdone, that the rush to quit sheep husbandry is a mistake, and that we shall never attain a full degree of agricultural success until the waste places are made glad with sheep. "As with other products, a low price has come to stay, but faith in the sheep business should not waver."

Teach the Young Folks How. We have urged the utility of teaching the young folks on the farm to bud and graft. The season for the latter is now at hand. Get the boy a pruning knife, show him how to make grafting wax and then give him a tree of some worthless fruit on which to operate, or let him select some chance seedling along a hedge row and convert it into a valuable tree. If you do not know how to do it, get some one who does to come and teach both father and son at once. - American Agriculturist.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

Loan.-A lent B a horse for a time, but B, hearing it was ill-treated and finding it on the road, turned it into his pasture. A came in the night and took it away. Is it a breach of contract to take the horse back when there was no written agreement? Ans .-Upon the facts stated, there was no contract for any specified time, and A could, therefore, take back his horse at any time. Hamburg.-The sheet to which you refer is a defamatory libel, and any person printing and posting it or causing it to be shown or delivered with a view to its being read or seen by any other person, is liable to prosecution for an indictable offense. It would be a defense to such prosecution that its defamatory matter was true, and that It was for the public benefit that the matters charged should be published in the manner and at the time when they were published. You had better consult a lawyer upon a full statement of the facts and circumstances, and consider well the probable cost and proving the defense before a jury to their satisfaction.

London.-If a man dies without will, leaving a wife and children, is the widow entitled to one-third of his estate, real and personal, so that when she dies she can leave it to whoever she wishes, or can she only get the income on one-third of the estate as long as she lives, so that at her death it goes to her children? Which is right? Ans.-She is entitled to one-third of the personal estate after payment of debts, absolutely, and to elect by deed whether she will take dower in the real estate owned by her husband in his life, which is onethird for her life, or to take one-third of the real estate of which he died possessed after payment of debts, absolutely, under the statute passed in 1886. Komoka.-An agent got B to sign notes for a sewing machine, saying that if B did not want it and would notify him by a certain time, he would return notes and take away machine. B does as he agrees, but A never returns. If B notifies the company and they take no action, can the company make B pay at maturity of notes, if he is willing to give up machine? And what can they do if B's land is heavily mortgaged? Ans.—B is legally liable to pay the notes when they are due. The company is not bound to take back the machine. When the company obtain judgment execution may be levied on the machine, and any other personal property of B liable to be sold under execution. His equity of redemption in the farm may also be sold if the judgment is $40 or upwards.

A Railway Up Mont Blanc. A project has been started by an engineer for the constructon of a railway to the top of Mont Blanc. The line would commence at the Miage Ravine, above Saint-Gervais, and would at once be car ried through a tunnel 7,400 metres in length. From this point a "vertical shaft," 2,800 metres in height, would bring the traveler up to the summit. The engineer is not inclined to underrate the difficulties of the scheme, the more so as the height of his "vertical shaft" would be more than double those now in existence. He considers, however, that the feat could be accomplished in ten years, and at an expenditure of 9,000,000f. The tunnel would be carried in a straight line as far as the Italian frontier, which it would then fringe for about 1,500 metres. It is added that all this would be of great advantage in connection with the observatory which is being erected at the top of Mont Blanc, as it could thus be reached at every season of the year
