Nogi Advises Russians to Surrender; Sends a Prisoner Back With Message; Garrison to Send Reply in Few Days

Disheartened and Suffering, Gen Stoessel's Men Ready to Throw Down Arms.

Japanese Commander Points Out the Hopelessness of Rescue and Promises Safety.

Che Foo, Nov. 8. — 5:30 p.m. — The Japanese besieging Port Arthur, ignoring Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, the commander of the Russian military forces there, have offered terms of surrender to the Russian soldiers, according to advices leaving Port Dalny yesterday. In the meanwhile the ceaseless activity of picks and spades, gradually advancing the trenches, spells inexorable fate to the watching Russians.

A Russian prisoner captured Oct. 28 said the soldiers composing the garrison of Port Arthur, in want and dispirited, saw the hopelessness of the struggle. Despairing of relief, with food scarce and medicine and hospital supplies insufficient, it was admitted by the Russians that a Japanese victory was ultimately inevitable. The soldiers, according to the prisoner, see no reason to prolong the resistance which brings glory to their officers, but chiefly hardship and death to them. Upon hearing the prisoner's story, General Nogi drafted a letter to be circulated among the soldiers themselves, the prisoner having promised to deliver it in mercy to his comrades. The letter related Gen. Kuropatkin's retreats and his inability to make an impression on the army of Field Marshal Oyama, to say nothing of breaking through his forces and relieving Port Arthur. The letter also pointed out that the second Russian Pacific squadron has just started on its slow voyage. Continuing it called attention to the resistless advance of the Japanese trenches, making it a matter of wheeks when the Japanese would walk into the main Russian strongholds.

In conclusion, the letter offered humane treatment to all who surrender, saying it was in the interests of humanity to prevent further useless slaughter.

Several copies of the letter, written in Russian, were given to the prisoner, who regained the Russian lines unobserved by his officers. That night the Russian returned, saying his comrades would answer within a few days. He said the temper of the men seemed to show that, while they were mutinous towards fate, they also did not like the idea of an unofficial surrender. The leter did much, hoever, to dispel among the Russian troops the impression fosletter did much, however, to dispel among would follow a Japanese victory. The company to which the prisoner belonged originally numbered 200 and now totals 30 men.

Shanghai, Nov. 8.—The officers and crew of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni, which the Japanese cut out of the harbor at Che Foo, on Aug. 12, have arrived here in the Manjur, with the commander who escaped at Woosung. He is now homeward bound on a German mail steamer.

Heavy Artillery Duel.

Pekin, Nov. 8.—Artillery firing was continuous all along the lines on Monday and intermittent this morning. A battle might commence at any hour.

It will be a question of many days if not weeks to decide the position, which is the most interesting since the commencement of the war. Each side is waiting for the other to attack.

Stoessel Is Strict.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 7. — It is not without reason that Gen. Stoessel, the heroic defender of Port Arthur, holds the reputation of being the strictest disciplinarian in the Russian army, and the following story, which was told by a refugee from the besieged fortress, illustrates strikingly his Draconian severity:

A lieutenant of artillery, who bore an excellent record, was found one day staggering about Polichwan, highly intoxicated. He was reported to the commanding general, who sent for him as soon as he had become sober, and everyone thought that he would get off with a severe reprimand.

Gen. Stoessel lectured him severely and did nothing further until a day when the bombardment was unusually hot. Then he ordered the offending lieutenant to sit upon the most exposed place of the fortifications, with a bottle of champagne in one hand and a tumbler in the other.

For two hours the wretched man sat thus, with shells bursting all around him. His agony was at last ended by a shell, which mercifuly burst within a few yards of him and blew him to pieces.

LOWER MARINE RATES

Halifax Will Ask Lloyd's to Send a Committee to Canada.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 8.—The board of trade yesterday passed a resolution that Lloyd's be invited to send a committee to Canada to examine our ports, and that the city council be asked to defray the expenses of the committee's visit to Nova Scotia. This is in consequence of discrimination in the matter of marine risks against Nova Scotia ports, which the board holds Lloyd's persists in doing, and in regard to which many protests have been made in the past.

MR. BORDEN TO REST

Conservative Leader to Visit the Southern States.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 8.—Mr. Borden went to King's County yesterday to visit his mother. Later this week he and Mrs. Borden will go to the Southern States for a rest. He is still hoarse, but there is no doubt that a few weeks will restore him to perfect health and entirely remove his throat trouble. It was impossible to see Mr. Borden after the news of the offer of Col. Sam Hughes to resign his seat in Victoria in his favor, but Mr. Blount, his private secretary, said he could give a positive assurance that if Mr. Borden were asked the question his reply would certainly be that he would give no answer to any question of that kind at present.

Friends of Mr. Borden have been congratulating him on the fact that out of the 25 places in which he spoke in Ontario, 18 returned Conservatives in the recent election

A JAP WARSHIP GOES TO BOTTOM

Reported That One Has Been Sunk by a Mine Off Port Arthur.

Shanghai, Nov. 8.—It is reported in British naval circles that a Japanese man-of-war has been sunk by a mine off Port Arthur.

MINISTER POISONED

Head of Montenegrin Department Met With a Violent Death.

Vienna, Nov. 8. — The mysterious death of the Montenegrin Minister of Justice M. Ssitos Schaulics remains unexplained, although there is little doubt that he was poisoned.

M. Schaulics, who was only 32 years old, and who belonged to the Progressive party, had had several acute differences of opinion with Prince Nicholas, and quite recently refused to countersign a proclamation.

At a subsequent council of ministers it came to blows between him and the Minister of Finance, M. Mijushkovic.

M. Schaulics, who no longer felt himself safe, is said to have contemplated resigning. On the night preceding his death he attended a meeting of the Society for the Promotion of Trade and Industry, and later partook of refreshments at the house of a well-known citizen named Gettinje. Early next morning the minister was taken violently ill with unmistakable symptoms of poisoning. He died a few hours later in great agony.

The most significant part of his tragic end was the fact that his funeral was attended neither by the prince nor by a single member of the cabinet.

Harcourt's Estate.

London, Nov. 8.—The estate of the late Sir William Vernon Harcourt has been proved at upwards of $620,000.

A Long Passage.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—One of the longest passages of the year from Australia has been made by the British bark Notre Dame d'Arvora, arriving today, 103 days from Newcastle, with a cargo of coal. For some days past the vessel, which has always heretofore shown good speed, has been posted at the Merchants' Exchange as overdue, and a rate of 15 per cent for re-insurance has been quoted.

STEERING GEAR BROKE

Tug Traveling at High Speed Plunges Into the Bank.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—While the big Buffalo tug Castle was running at full speed down the river where she has been engaged off Bar Point attending the big dredge Port Huron, yesterday, the steering gear suddenly parted and the tug sheered off into the Canadian bank, running out about five feet all around and then dropping over on one side in very shallow water. It is thought the Castle will have to be dredged out before she can be released.

STUDENT HAD WILD TIMES

Rushed a Show That Was Not Up to Expectations.

Ann Arbor, Nov. 7.—A students' riot occurred at Germania Hall tonight, where the "Little Egypt" company, consisting of twenty women and five men, gave a performance. Eight hundred students jammed the place, the flaming advertisements stating that there would be the real thing in the way of dances. The performance was so tame that when the curtain went down the students rushed on the stage and demanded that the girls dance for them. The five men drew revolvers and drove the students back. Chairs were thrown on the stage, and after getting out in the street the students broke all the windows with stones.

One of the actors fired a shot into the crowd, but no one was hit. Finally the police arrested one student, but the rest hung around the hall, and the members of the company were afraid to come out.

BIG PLANT FOR CENTRAL ONTARIO

French Capitalists to Establish Smelting Works Along G. T. P. Line.

Ottawa, Nov. 8. — For the purpose of looking into the mineral deposits of this district with a view to establishing steel works, two French capitalists are in the city. They are Messrs. Jules Well and Paul Hock and they are connected with the Compagnie Generale des Products Metallurgiques, which operates extensive industries in France. It is believed that the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will open up a big demand for steel rails, and other outputs of a steel industry, and if the investigations now being made prove encouraging it is proposed to establish smelting works at some point in Central Canada.

MRS. MAYBRICK DESERTED

Her Children Will Have Nothing to Do With Her Now.

New York, Nov. 7. — Deserted by her children, who believe their mother was guilty of poisoning their father, destitute, and with only the solace of the sympathy of her mother, whose fortunes were alike reduced through her contest for her daughter's liberty, Mrs. Maybrick has portrayed the sufferings of fifteen years in an English prison in a book soon to be published.

From it she expects to receive enough to maintain her in comfort while her suits for her North Carolina and Virginia property against Mr. Armstrong are being fought. At present Mrs. Maybrick is a guest of Rev. Dr. E. M. D. Lensmore, at Eighty-fourth street and Eleventh avenue, Dyker Heights, Brooklyn.

"Mrs. Maybrick's children have been so influenced by the Maybricks, their father's people, that they have turned against their mother," said Dr. Densmore yesterday. "They are in England. Mrs. Maybrick's mother, the Baroness Von Roques, is in France. Her fortune was greatly reduced by her efforts to liberate her daughter. She has barely enough left to live on.

"Mrs. Maybrick has no regular source of income now. The first suit she brought against Mr. Armstrong is to be heard in Richmond in a month or two. Of course, if she gets possession of the property again she will be comparatively wealthy. But it will take a long time. In the meantime, what little she has will have been dissipated."

To Send Destroyers.

Hong Kong, Nov. 7.—It is learned that Vice-Admiral Sir Gerard Noel, in command of the British squadron on the China station, has proposed to the Admiralty that all the sloops and gunboats in the squadron be recalled and replaced by twenty destroyers. At present there are six sloops-of-war and ten gunboats on the station.

Comet Moving Fast.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Encke's comet was seen at the United States naval observatory Sunday night and again tonight with the 12-inch equatorial telescope. Its radiance, however, is so feeble that as yet the comet is barely visible in the telescope as a patch of light. Several days, perhaps, will elapse before accurate observations can be made of its position, which, however, follows quite clearly the path predicted for the return of the comet. Its distance from the earth and the sun is rapidly diminishing, while the apparent motion among the stars is so rapid as to be perceptible in the field of the telescope during an hour's time.

BRONCHO BUTTED "EASTERN FLYER"

A Remarkable Runaway in Streets of Toronto.

THREW DRIVER AND BEST GIRL

Starting From King and Jarvis, Pete Tore to Sunnyside and Charged the Fast Express.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Out of what his owner describes as "pure cussedness," Jim Weller's broncho took the last run of his life yesterday evening, taking in in his course that part of King street lying between the market and Sunnyside.

The story of "Pete Duff's last gallop" is a thrilling one. Early in the evening James Weller, who is employed at the Clyde Hotel, went out for a drive with Miss Gertrude Thompson, a maid at the same hostelry. As though he foresaw his end, "Pete Duff" was distraught and nervous. He started and jumped, until, at last, the bridle gave way. Freed of all restraint, and with an asphalt pavement stretching interminably to the west, Pete started at a canter. The canter became a gallop, and dragging the buggy—borrowed from a friend—the broncho sped along the pavement.

Jim Weller and the girl clung to the buggy—borrowed from a friend—and prayed that when "Pete Duff" stopped it would be against something soft. But "Pete Duff" had no intention of stopping. On, on he flew, careless of the gaze of curious passers-by, his head thrust forward and his brain buzzing with recollections of the days when he raced thus on the limitless prairies where he was born.

Swiftly the various landmarks along the route flew in the opposite direction, until the King street subway was reached. In the subway Miss Thompson fell from her seat. The buggy—borrowed from a friend—was lighter now, and "Pete Duff" lengthened his stride, and with his nostrils full of pleasant scents of Hamilton and hay, "Pete" fairly flew through the air. It was the race of his life. Faster, faster, he went, until he came to the Ocean View Hotel, and the junction of King and Queen streets. Then Jim Weller fell to the pavement.

"Pete Duff" had now only the buggy—borrowed from a friend—and he tore on, making the sparks fly under his hoofs. When he came to the Sunnyside crossing "Pete Duff" took to the tracks. Here at last was an obstacle. The Eastern Flyer had the track. But "Pete Duff" never flinched. Up he went against the locomotive, with his teeth clenched and an equine curse on his lips. Anxious inquiries at the Union Station last night elicited the information that the flyer came through all right. "Pete Duff" had run for the last time. The buggy—borrowed from a friend—is in the field, and if the owner goes out he may get some bolts and things in pretty good condition.

The young lady was only shaken up. Weller was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where he is suffering from numerous bruises. And "Pete"? "Pete" to the glue factory!

"LET ME AT THEM!"

How Roosevelt Acted on Reading Parker's Charges.

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—Before the mass meeting here Former Postmaster-General Charles Emory Smith saw Mayor Timanus, Congressman Wachter and others. In conversation with them he gave a graphic description of the way in which the President received the Parker charges.

"I was with the President at the White House yesterday,' said Mr. Smith, "when he read the article. He got red hot."

"'Just let me get at them once,' he shouted, jumping up and down and shaking his fist."

NEW PARTY FOR QUEBEC PROVINCE

Nominations May Be Made by the Nationalists.

IS A FRENCH-CANADIAN PARTY

Liberal Organizer Says Everybody Knew the Election Had to Come and Both Parties Organized.

Montreal, Nov. 7. — A good deal of interest has been aroused over the decision of the leaders of the Conservative party in Quebec Province, as announced in Mr. E. J. Flynn's manifesto, not to oppose the Government candidates at the general elections to be held on Nov. 25. The decision is generally accepted as an indication of Opposition weakness, both as regards organization and the means to carry on an effective campaign. It is scarcely likely, however, that the people of the province will witness the novelty of an entire Parliament elected by acclamation. Already a new party is forming on independent lines, and if it matures the name will be "the Nationalist party." Those at the back of it are the group of young French-Canadians who a year ago organized the Nationalist Club and begun to publish the Sunday newspaper called Le Nationaliste. The leader is Mr. Oliver Asselin, who will likely be one of the candidates, and Mr. Henri Bourassa, M. P. for Labelle, is offering his sympathy and counsel. This group are not likely to wield much influence, at least not in the present contest, but it is quite possible that they will succeed in inducing a number of gentlemen more or less well-known in certain constituencies to become candidates and to wage a campaign against the straight Liberals. It is probable that the Conservatives will contest numerous constituencies under the guise of independency, so that it is very unlikely that when the Legislature assembles the Opposition benches will be entirely vacant.

Senator Dandurand, Liberal organizer in Quebec Province, who had looked forward to another month of activity, said today: "The Conservatives cannot assail the Parent Government on its public administration, which was a prudent and honest one. Mr. Flynn made a similar complaint in 1900. The fact of the matter is, however, that every man, woman and child in the Province knew that the Legislature had had four sessions and that it would adjourn after the 3rd of November. Both organizations were perfected as much as possible for the Federal elections that have just been brought to a close. The same organizations are used in both the Federal and Provincial fights, as there is no serious crisis at hand that could bring the electors to waver in their allegiance."

FINED AND DISQUALIFIED

Montreal Alderman Found Guilty of Conspiracy and Bribery.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 7.—Ald. E. Napoleon Hebert was this morning unseated, disqualified for three years, and fined $200 by Judge Archibald, for corruption in connection with the last municipal elections. The judge found that Ald. Hebert had conspired with Hon. Treffle Berthiaume, to induce Gagnon to retire from the contest, and had given Berthiaume a note for $900, the latter in turn paying Gagnon $900 to get out of the contest. There were four suits growing out of the case and several others conected with the deal were fined for corruption.

The result has created a tremendous sensation in municipal circles.

COPE STILL IN MUSEUM

Morgan's Offer to Return It Unknown to London Officials.

London, Nov. 8 — The stolen Ascoli cope which J. Pierpont Morgan, according to New York dispatches, has decided to return to the Italian Government, still is in the custody of the South Kensington Museum. The director of the museum said:

"We have heard nothing about the surrender of the cope beyond what has been printed in the press. Some time ago it was fully identified as the famous treasure of the Cathedral of Ascoli, and representations to that effect were made to Mr. Morgan."

Mr. Morgan, according to information supplied by a leading dealer, will lose nothing by giving up the cope. The money he paid to the dealer will be returned to him and the dealer must then seek to recoup himself. Mr. Morgan purchased the cope in London from a dealer, who received it in the ordinary way of business, and Mr. Morgan gave $10,000 for it.

LAST STATE BALL AT THE CAPITAL

A Brilliant Company Attend Function at Rideau Hall.

SIR GEO. DRUMMOND KNIGHTED

Mr. Pottinger of the Intercolonial Decorated—What Her Excellency and Her Daughters Wore.

Ottawa, Nov. 7. — The final state ball given by their excellencies at Government House tonight was one of the most brilliant functions that has ever taken place in Ottawa. Invited guests came from Toronto, Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, and many other important centers, over a thousand people being present. The consular corps were in full force, including the representatives of the United States, Russia, Germany, the Netherlands, France and Denmark.

Additional interest was imparted to the gathering by reason of the knighting of Sir George A. Drummond by his excellency, under special warrant from his Majesty the King. A wide aisle was left in the center, the entire length of the ballroom. After their excellencies had entered, Major Maude read the King's warrant, setting forth that he had been pleased to create Senator Drummond a K. C. M. G., and requesting his excellency to, in the most conspicuous manner possible, invest the recipient with the insignia of the order. Major Maude then read the warrant to Senator Drummond creating him a member of the order. The recipient then, preceded by Capt. Bell, A. D. C., bearing the insignia on a cushion and supported by Sir James Grant, K. C. M. G., and Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, C. M. G., approached the dais on which his excellency was standing.

ARISE, SIR GEORGE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier read the admonition which is required when this honor is conferred. Senator Drummond knelt. His excellency tapped him lightly on the shoulder and said, "Arise, Sir George."

Major Maude then read the King's warrant, conferring the honor of Companions of the Imperial Service Order on Mr. David Pottinger, general manager of the Government railways, and Mr. A. A. Boucher, assistant clerk of the senate. His excellency pinned the decorations on the breasts of the recipients and they retired.

The state quadrille was formed as follows: His excellency and Lady Laurier, Lady Minto and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Lady Eileen Eliot and Hon. Sydney Fisher, Madame Lavergne and Sir James Grant, Mrs. Lake and Hon. A. G. Blair, Lady Ruby Eliot and Senator J. P. B. Casgrain, Mrs. J. K. Kerr, of Toronto, and Brigadier-General Lake, Mrs. W. C. Edwards and Senator Kerr.

The ballroom presented a magnificent scene of splendor, the smart gowns of the ladies and the brilliant uniforms of the officers intermingling with the sombre evening dress of the men. The reception-rooms, halls and corridors were decorated with a profusion of palms and ferns and with huge clusters of fragrant pinks and carnations, side by side with sheaves of magnificent chrysanthemums. The conservatories were also in fine condition and much admired.

Refreshments were served during the evening from a buffet decorated with roses and greening, and about midnight their excellencies led the way into the racquet court, where supper was served at small tables beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums in all the paler shades. The verandas were also closed in and furnished with case tables, each decorated with a cluster of "mums," and the same magnificent blossoms decorated the buffet.

Her excellency was exquisitely gowned, as is her wont, wearing an elegant creation of pale green satin, with chiffon frills and an overdress of shirred silk net, hand embroidered on silver and edged with a flounce of ecru lace. The decolletage was thickly encrusted with silver, and finished with lace. She wore a beautiful diamond tiara, and pearl and diamond necklace, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

The Ladies Eileen and Ruby Eliot were gowned alike in white shirred chiffon over white satin, the full skirts having rows of puffings and the bodices embroidered in gold and pink chiffon. They wore violets and pink roses on the corsage, and carried sheaves of pink roses and maidenhair.

NEW OIL COMPANY

Made Up of Canadians and Will Bore Near Leamington.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 8. — The Buffalo and Leamington Oil and Gas Company, limited, with a capital stock of $100,000, has been formed, with head offices in Windsor, and has applied to the Ontario Government for a charter. The directors are Buffalo, Perth, Leamington, Pelee Island and Windsor men. Immediate preparations for the boring for oil will be commenced at Leamington, where the company has secured options on a large tract of land.

JOHN PIGEON'S DEATH

nvestigation Into Duck Shooting Fatality at Bear Creek.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 7.—An investigation into the death of John Pigeon, who was killed while duck hunting on Bear Creek on Oct 25, is being made by the crown attorney.

Simon Thibodeau and John Pigeon were in a boat together. Thibodeau says he was rowing, when Pigeon called out, "There's a duck!" Thibodeau turned around, and while his head was turned he heard the report of a gun, and, turning around saw Pigeon had been shot in the breast with his own gun. The wound in Pigeon's breast appeared larger than it should have been had the gun been held close to the breast. Thibodeau said that the gun had fallen overboard after the accident. The crown attorney ordered that it be searched for. It was an 1897 model Winchester, and was found on Saturday. On being brought to the surface it went off, bursting the barrel. An inquest was ordered and was held in Wallaceburg today. The above facts were adduced, and the inquest was adjourned to get additional information.

FINE WEATHER BRINGS BIG POLL

U. S. Presidential Elections a Record-Breaker.

MANY ARRESTS IN NEW YORK

Democrats Concede Massachusetts to the Republicans—Very Quiet at Philadelphia.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Nov. 8. — President Roosevelt and his party arrived here at 9:41 a.m. today on a special train, and the President was driven directly from the station to the polling place in the fifth precinct of Oyster Bay, where he cast his ballot.

As he drove away from the polling place the crowd which had gathered to see him cheered enthusiastically.

Kingston, N. Y., Nov. 8. — Judge Parker voted here this morning, having driven over from Esopus, accompanied by his private secretary, to cast his ballot.

Record Vote at New York.

New York, Nov. 8. — Almost perfect weather conditions prevailed in Greater New York, and early indications pointed to a heavy vote in today's election. From the moment the polls opened at 6 o'clock the booths in many election districts were filled, and lines of men stood awaiting their turn to deposit a ballot. While perfect order prevailed in most sections of the city, trouble began in some quarters almost at the start, and arrests for alleged illegal voting began almost simultaneously with the opening of the polls. In some cases the arrests were accompanied by disorderly demonstrations, and at least two persons, a policeman and a citizen, were injured before voting had been in progress two minutes. The first surprise of the day was sprung by State Superintendent of Elections Morgan, when he distributed nearly three thousand deputies representing his office through the election districts of the greater city. It had been expected that the 800 deputies that the superintendent of elections is authorized to appoint would be reinformed by about 200 men, including a large number of secret service men, whose whole attention would be directed towards of the holders of alleged illegal naturalization papers. It soon developed today, however, that Mr. Morgan had found that under a section of the metropolitan election law, the state superintendent or his deputies is empowered to call on any person to assist him in the performance of his duty. This law raised practically all restrictions regarding appointment of deputies, and 2,000 additional men were sworn. The men selected for this work are volunteers, and they went on duty at the opening of the polls to remain until the votes are counted.

In the districts in the lower part of the city, the early morning balloting was very heavy. Nearly one-third of the normal vote had been cast during the first two hours, and the leaders predicted a record vote before the polls close at 5 o'clock. Further up town the early hours passed quietly, but the voters began to turn out in good volume during the forenoon. Magistrates were sitting in all sections of the city to give immediate hearing to men arrested on charges of illegal voting, and the prisoners were arraigned as soon as they reached the station houses. Many of them were successful in proving their right to cast their ballot and were promptly released. At the West Forty-seventh street station fourteen arrests in election cases were made before 8 o'clock, but the deputies were not able to present sufficient evidence to hold any of them, and the prisoners were discharged.

Philadelphia Asleep.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8. — With clear and cool weather in this city, there was no apparent rush to get to the polls, and little attempt was made to bring out the full vote by either the Republicans or Democrats. There is not the semblance of a contest in Philadelphia, which doubtless accounts for the apathy shown by the two big parties.

At the Hub.

Boston, Nov. 8. — Indications of the polling of an unusually large vote throughout Massachusetts appeared in the early part of election morning. The weather was a trifle colder. In Boston and the suburbs early reports told of a heavy polling. Democratic leaders entered upon today's election conceding the state for President Roosevelt, by perhaps 60,000, but claimed the election of Wm. L. Douglas for governor. Predictions were made that the vote in Massachusetts would reach 425,000. Democrats estimated that Douglas would carry the city of Boston by over 20,000 and Judge Parker by about 18,000.

Chicago's Issues.

Chicago, Nov. 8. — With an overcast sky and a mild temperature indications early in the day pointed to a heavy vote. There are local questions in addition to the national and state tickets, which will be voted upon regardless of party faith. One of these is a proposed constitutional amendment that would enable the Legislature to grant the city a new charter.

Walkerton, Ont., Nov. 8. — The official returns for South Bruce, declared today, give McKenzie, Liberal, a majority of 144.

SACRIFICING SAM

Hughes Offers to Vacate His Seat for Mr. R. L. Borden.

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 7. — Col. Sam Hughes, the member-elect for Victoria-Haliburton, has laid before the executive of the Conservative Association of this riding an offer to vacate his seat in favor of Mr. R. L. Borden. The colonel's action will depend upon the approval of the party locally, and Mr. Borden's willingness to accept his offer.

Ottawa, Nov. 7. — A petition is said to be in circulation among the Conservatives of Carleton County, asking Mr. Kidd to resign in favor of Mr. Borden.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS FIGHT POLICE; FATAL RIOTS OCCUR AT KANER CITY

Workmen Spread Inflammatory Circulars Amongst the Reservists.

New York, Nov. 8.—A Berlin dispatch says: A circular widely distributed to the Russian army, despite the strictest control, has reached here. It contains the following: "No one going to the war returns. It is better to defend our rights than to shed blood unnecessarily. We workmen cannot look on with indifference while our comrades perish."

As a result of these circulars, further riots are reported today (Monday) at Kaner, where several persons were killed or wounded. At Rodomsk, in a clash between reservists and police, several men were killed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 8.—There was a small student disturbance at the university yesterday, but it was handled in the same rational manner as the one at Kazan Cathedral about ten days ago, and as a result the whole affair passed off without serious consequence. About 1,000 university students divided into two groups, one singing the Russian National Authem and the other "The Marseillaise." The police appealed to the latter group to stop, and they agreed to do so if their opponents stopped. This was done, and the affair ended with a hearty laugh all round.

The previous affair referred to above was organized on the occasion of the requieum in the Kazan Cathedral on the anniversary of the death of Alexander III., the students making a demonstration in memory of the death in the Peter and Paul Fortress of one of their number, called Borski. On this occasion Fulion, the prefect of police, ordered the police home, and signally spoke to the students, asking them to desist and disperse, which they did.

These two incidents, small in themselves, have caused considerable talk in St. Petersburg, owing to the method of dealing with student disturbances, which is attributed to the initiative of Prince Sviatpol.

A BIG ARTS FAIR FOR EMERALD ISLE

A National Exhibit of Industries and Resources Planned for 1907.

Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 8.—One of the largest meetings ever held in Dublin assembled in the Mansion House to promote the project for holding a national exhibtion of Irish arts, industries, manufactures and resources. The lord mayor presided, and the speakers included the high sheriff, several members of the corporation, representatives of the Gaelic League and prominent citizens in every walk of life.

A number of letters from men of all parties, including Dr. Douglas Hyde, John Dillon, William O'Brien and Thomas Sexton, and from manufacturers throughout Ireland, were read, warmly indorsing the project and promising it every support. Communications were also received from the Irish in Great Britain and in the United States to the same effect.

Resolutions of support were received from the governing bodies of the Gaelic League and the United Irish League and more than 100 county and urban councils throughout the country. It was unanimously resolved to establish a company with a capital of $250,000 to erect exhibition buildings and to open the fair in Dublin in May, 1907.

As at present outlined, the Irish National Exhibition of 1907 will be the most remarkable and attractive one ever held in Ireland, and should prove of lasting benefit to the country. It is intended to demonstrate not only what Ireland does at present in the arts, industries and manufactures, but what she has done formerly and what she is capable of doing in the future.

The Irish in Great Britain have arranged to "invade" Ireland in 1907, when the exhibitions opens, and it is expected that a huge influx of Irish-American visitors will take place in the same year.

Ireland, once famed as the "Island of Woods and Forests," now is the most treeless country in Europe. Recently a vigorous effort has been made to focus public attention on the vital importance of forestation and with a large measure of success.

At the last meeting of the Dublin County Council it was unanimously resolved to take steps to plant the waste lands in County Dublin. The foresters naturally are jubilant, and when it is considered that there are 8,000,000 acres of waste lands in the country at the present time it will be seen there is cause for jubilation.

The first direct regular trading vessel between Ireland and the continent that has entered the port of Dublin for a couple of generations steamed up the Liffey one day last week, and was cheered by the crowds assembled along the quays. It was the Entreneuve, one of the vessels of the new French line of steamers which has started between Dublin and Treport in Normandy.

On Tuesday an anti-em'gration conference was held in the Mansion House under the presidency of the lord mayor. It is recognized now on all sides that unless the annual exodus of the young and strong from Ireland can be materially decreased the country will fall to pieces.

Letters of sympathy and promising support to the object of the conference were read from Cardinal Logue and a number of prominent persons throughout the country. The speakers included clergymen, journalists, representatives of public bodies and doctors. The Bishop of Waterford suggested as a remedy that the help of the Irish in America should be enlisted to promote industrial undertakings in Ireland.

The general result of the conference was a resolution to impress on the Irish abroad, and especially in the United States, the alarming condition to which emigration is reducing Ireland, and to seek their co-operation in discountenancing it so far as in their power, and their support in establishing manufactures and industries in Ireland to keep the people at home.

The race of Todas, in India, who practice polyandry (one wife having two or more husbands), which was 100,000 strong a century ago, has dwindled to 101 persons.

New Vigor for the Nerves

New Power and Strength for Every Organ of the Body In the Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Good digestion, ruddy complexion, splendid circulation, clear brain, steady nerves, sound, restful sleep, better health and greater strength of mind and body is what you may expect from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Not in any mysterious way, but from the hard fact that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the elements of nature which go to form new, red corpuscles in the blood, or, in other words, make the blood rich in the nutritive principle which creates nerve force—the power which runs the machinery of the body.

WITH THE VITALITY OF THE BODY THUS BROUGHT TO HIGH WATER MARK WEAKNESS AND DISEASE GIVE PLACE TO HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

Impaired digestion, irregular action of the feminine organism, weakness of heart, lungs or other bodily organs, pains and aches and all the annoying consequences of weak nerves and blood disappear because the cause of their existence is removed.

By noting your increase in weight you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue are being added by this great restorative.

MRS. H. A. LOYNES, Nurse, Philipsburg, Quebec, writes: "I was all run down and could not do my own work. Everything I ate made me sick. In nursing others I had seen the good results of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and resolved to try it. As a result of this treatment I have gained ten pounds, do my own work alone and feel like an entirely different person. I have received so much benefit from this medicine that I am glad to recommend it to others. I have a copy of Dr. Chase's Receipt Book and would not part with it for $50 if I could not get another."

Test the extraordinary upbuilding power of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box.

JAPS ADVANCE, FOOT BY FOOT

Fighting Hard, Russians Are Driven to Last Lines.

Nikado's Troops Concentrating Their Attacks Upon Stoessel's Final Fortifications.

Dalny, Nov. 6, via Kobe, Nov. 7.—After three days of continuous bombardment of Port Arthur, which caused extensive destruction to the Shojusan and Niryusan forts, in the west center of the Russian line of defense, and also to Keekwan forts, the right wing of the Japanese army assaulted Shojusan yesterday afternoon. Having carried the approaches to that height the assailants entrenched themselves under the glacis of the forts. In the evening the left wing delivered an assault on Keekwan, fighting its way to the lower parapet. There the Japanese held their ground stubbornly in the face of Russian counter attacks. Having been reinforced during the night the Russians charged down upon the Japanese, and desperate hand-to-hand conflicts ensued. The Japanese beat back the enemy and destroyed two covered positions in the front moat. A Japanese sub-lieutenant, with 30 volunteers then succeeded in making his way to the rear of the fort. There he engaged in a personal conflict with a Russian officer and killed him. Having discovered two more defenses in the rear moat, the sub-lieutenant withdrew his force, losing two men. Later in the night the advanced position of the Japanese was taken and retaken twice. The besiegers succeeded in holding the approaches and constructing trenches, connecting them with the army's front parallel. At dawn numbers of dead were visible on the slope. Fort P., north of the new and old batteries in the left center of the line of defense, was captured by the severe fighting of the night. These operations have successfully driven an effective wedge into the Russian center. Severe explosions and extensive fires have occurred in the fortress within the last few days.

The total casualties of the Japanese in the late attacks were 1,100. Over 600 were killed up to Oct. 29. The spirit of the men is magnificent. The firing of all the guns is wonderfully effective.

The climax to the late bombardment came between 4 and 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon. It was a superb spectacle. Every fort of the enemy was engaged, and the fighting in the trenches was constant and severe. The outposts of the contending forces were only 40 feet apart. At 1 o'clock this morning one of the Japanese trenches collapsed into a Russian gallery. The enemy being surprised underground, fled in confusion.

Rome, Nov. 7.—A Tokio correspondent of the Giornale Die Roma wires that Port Arthur is regarded as taken in the Japanese capital. The Russians still hold four forts, but the town itself is open to the Japanese on the northeast. The troops of the Mikado will not enter the town at present because it is still under fire from Liato Mountain forts. All the besiegers' efforts, he adds, will now be directed towards capturing the Golden Hill forts.

A Russ Success.

Mukden, Nov. 7.—The Japanese on Saturday night attacked some of the Russian outposts in considerable force, but the Russians had been warned and the Japanese were repulsed. They were not able to take away all their killed or wounded, leaving 28 bodies on the field. The Russian lost only nine men.

Armies Are Close.

Mukden, Nov. 7.—The Russian and Japanese armies, extending from Bentsiaputze east to the Liao River west, at places are almost within a stone's throw of each other. At Bentsiaputze not more than 400 yards separate the advance posts, and at Sinchpu, on the Shakhe River, just west of the railway, and 15 miles south of Mukden, the Japanese and Russians occupy the extreme ends of the same village. At Huangshantse the Russian center has thrown advance posts across the Shakhe River. Both armies are still strengthening their positions all along the line. The slightest movement on either side is the signal for firing, which occasionally lasts all night. The Russians are using six-inch guns on the railway, which must greatly harass the Japanese. Undoubtedly the most decisive, if not the greatest, battle of the year will be fought in the vicinity of the Shakhe River. The Russians are confident of their ability to hold their positions. The soldiers are building mud huts for winter quarters. The nights continue cold, but the days are bright and crisp.

Alexieff at Capital.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 7, 6:15 p.m.—Viceroy Alexieff arrived in St. Petersburg Friday. There is renewed talk that he may be transferred as viceroy to the Caucasus on account of the situation there. Gen. Grippenberg, commander of the second Manchurian army, and his staff, leave Vilna, Nov. 17. Besides the mobilizations of the Plock and Czestochowa rifle brigades the mobilization of other brigades stationed at Zhmerinka, Odessa and Suwalki is proceeding.

HICKS ON NOV.; GET OUT FURS

Prophet Forecasts Cold Weather, Storms, Sleet, and Blizzard as a Finale.

Rev. Irl R. Hicks, of St. Louis, is a week later this month than usual with his forecasts. After stating that a Vulcan storm period was central from the 1st to the 6th, he says:

The conjunction of Moon with the Sun and Earth, new Moon falling on the 7th, the high barometer and cold following the first storm period will not be so decided, but threatening conditions will last over into the reactionary storm period, central on the 8th and 9th. A decided fall of the barometer may be expected on and touching the 7th with change to warmer, and more storms of rain, turning to snow at the wind up, will pass eastwardly over the country on and next to the 8th and 9th. These storms will be followed promptly by a decided rise on the barometer, high gales from the northwest, especially over the lake regions, and change to much colder. The next storm period is central on the 14th. Its influence will be felt, in all its varying phases, from the 12th to the 16th. At first it will turn warmer, and the barometer will begin falling in western sections. These conditions will progress to the storm movements, followed by more rain, turning to snow west and north, during and about the 14th to 16th. The Moon being in apogee on the 17th, and on the celestial equator on the 18th the probabilities are that a threatening state of weather will be prolonged, possibly into the reactionary period central on the 19th and 20th.

On and touching the 19th and 20th there will be a reactionary swing of the elements back to more general and decided storm conditions. Depressed barometric conditions will appear, the temperature will rise progressively from the west, and autumnal storms of rain and snow will take up their transition march from west to east over the country, all followed by return of rising barometer and change to much colder.

The last regular, general storm period for November is from the 24th to 29th. This last period is covered by the Venus disturbance which is central in December. The increasing force of this Venus period will be severely felt from about Friday, the 25th, to Monday, the 28th. But marked storm conditions will appear about the time of the full moon, on the 22nd. Upon the whole, we warn our readers of very general and forceful storms during the last six or eight days of November. These storms will be largely boreal in character, making navigation on the north Atlantic disagreeable to dangerous, causing heavy gales over the whole lake regions, with general rains over the interior, turning to sleet and snow with an early blizzard possible in western to northern parts of the country. In every probability a November cold wave will spread over much of the country, bringing frosts even into the Southern States, during the last days of the month.

RUN FOR "NERVES"

French Physician Finds a Panacea for Neurasthenia.

Paris, Nov. 8.—For neurasthenia, "the disease of civilization," Dr. Felix Regnault believes he has found a cure. The remedy is nothing more than making the patient learn to run.

Being in the Orient, Dr. Regnault observed the splendid physical condition of the jinrikisha men, who pull a little cab at a horse's trot for hours without fatigue. Many of these men, although not of powerful build, are marvels of endurance. Their nerves are perfect.

The physician studied their method of training for their work. On his return to France he discovered that an officer had begun to introduce the same method in the physical culture of soldiers in the army.

The jinrikisha apprentice, while being taught to run, is made to hold a wand in his two hands in such a way that his elbows are thrown well back. This throws out his chest, while the back is held straight. The runner's gait is developed so that with knees well bent he lifts the feet only a slight distance from the ground, insuring a minimum of expenditure of energy. The whole "trick" of this style of running is a development of "wind."

Dr. Regnault takes his neurasthenic patients on a smooth road, teaches them the jinrikisha man's style of running, and makes them begin with short steps, limiting the run of the first few days to seven minutes or so. Gradually the length of step and the length of the run are increased until the patient is stepping out briskly for a half hour at a time without labored breathing or "stitches" in the side.

The deep breathing tones the whole system, the exercise improves the circulation and the exhilaration of the motion eliminates the depressed mental condition peculiar to nerve exhaustion.

PINKERTON IN LONDON

Chicago Detective Causes a Small Flurry by His Arrival.

London, Nov. 8.—The arrival at the Hotel Cecil of William A. Pinkerton, of Chicago, and his brother, caused a commotion, as it was immediately inferred that they were on the track of some big case. Mr. Pinkerton explained that he had come simply to show his brother around, as the latter had never been here before.

As to the practicability of the Sherlock Holmes method, he replied: "I've been looking for such a man for thirty years. I believe you could work on his principles, but the man is yet to be found."

Comparing American and English detectives, he said: "The greatest difference between us is that while in America we are quick, you are sure. We jump to conclusions, and, as the law allows us a great deal of latitude, we often are right; often, though, we are wrong. In England your detectives set about matters slowly but doggedly, with the result that when you get a conclusion you nearly always are right."

WILL RUN 2,000 YEARS

British Inventor Has Constructed a Radium Timepiece.

London, Nov. 8.—Richard Strutt, son of Lord Rayleigh, has made a radium clock which will go for 2,000 years without winding.

In this clock a small piece of gold leaf is electrified by means of a very small quantity of radium salt. It bends away from the metal substance and keeps on moving under this influence until it touches the side of the vessel. At the moment of contact it loses its electrical charge, upon which it springs back and is electrified again. The repetition of this process over and over again is the whole secret, and Sir William Ramsay considers it might be expected to continue, barring accidents, for a couple of thousand years.

Asked if such an instrument could be made a reliable timekeeper—one by which a business man could keep his appointments—Sir William answered:

"Yes, so far as the principle is concerned. You have the energy, and, unless the thing stuck at some time or other, it would go on and on, and could be regulated to move the hands on a clock face to a mechanical nicety."

Sir William did not thing such a clock would be a very expensive luxury. It ought to be possible to make one for about $1,000, he thought.

The European

Designed after a style much in favor at present with the lovers of good dress on the continent.

A few imported coats are appearing in New York—as yet outside Semi-ready it is only tailored by the very rare good custom tailors who know how and keenly appreciate the price they should charge, because they know.

Strapped seams traverse the shoulders from the neck and continue connectedly down the sleeve to the wrist. The skirt is extremely loose.

The European is made up in wide range of fabrics and designs. You can select fabrics that are exceedingly striking or those tastefully quiet.

Exclusive designs of beautiful Scotch tweeds and Scotch cheviots from Brown Brothers, Galashields, Scotland; Kyle, Aitken & Gardiner, Dalry, Scotland, and a limited number made up from odd-looking hand-woven Irish and Scotch homespuns.

BRITONS NOT ANXIOUS FOR WAR

Public Pleased That Peril of Struggle With Russia Now Is Remote.

London, Nov. 8. — Probably nine out of every ten men in London thought at one time last week that war would come with Russia, and the tenth man was inclined to believe that something like a miracle would be required to avert hostilities. The jingoes are disappointed. The great public is rejoiced that war has been averted.

For twelve hours sensationalism ran riot. "The Russian fleet leaves Vigo"; "British Ships to Stop Them"; "Heavy Firing off Vigo." This series of headlines, with a dozen other equally alarmist variants, caught the eye all over town Wednesday, displayed in the biggest and blackest of type on newspaper posters.

It is a curious fact that everybody seemed to have misunderstood Mr. Balfour's declaration at Southampton regarding the detention of a portion of the Baltic fleet at Vigo. Such universal misapprehension could have arisen only from the general belief fostered by newspapers of all shades of opinion that the Russian ships would not be allowed to leave Vigo until reparation had been made.

When the services of a news agency were called into requisition to show that the Premier's words had been misinterpreted there was a good deal of weeping and gnashing of teeth, and some of the jingo organs have not yet been able to swallow their disappointment that the British Government were not such fire-eaters as they had been supposed to be. On the whole, however, the British public is glad that peace has been preserved.

Some fears of an untoward incident arising to complicate matters again have been expressed, because of the reported shadowing of the vessels of the Baltic fleet by British warships.

A naval correspondent is authority for the statement that the Russian ships will be kept under observation during their eastward voyage. It is, however, pointed out that this is not the first time that Russian men-of-war have been thus watched. As soon as the Penjdeh incident arose in 1885, orders were dispatched immediately that every Russian man-of-war was to be shadowed without delay. These instructions were carried out. Each warship flying the St. Andrew's cross in whatever part of the world she was found a British vessel had come to bear her company.

Russian and British naval officers have always been friends, and they decided to accept gracefully the positions in which they were placed. The situation was an awkward one for all concerned, while the crisis lasted, but it was faced with excellent humor. In many instances it became a game of "hide and seek," played with zest and good temper.

A Russian captain would playfully taunt his opposite British ship that he would elude him. Thus arose a friendly rivalry which tided over the scare and robbed it of much of its danger. The happy relations which had existed previously between the officers of the two navies, if anything, were cemented by these incidents of nearly twenty years ago.

It is not believed that the international commission of inquiry will be able to commence work for a fortnight or so, and no surprise will be caused if it does not report before Christmas

PLAN OPERAS FOR THE POOR

London Newspaper in Test to Learn If Masses Want Classic Music.

London, Nov. 8.—So great has been the success of the operatic season at Covent Garden, where the prices were half those charged during the regular season, that the question of cheap opera for the masses has received special attention.

An interesting experiment is to be tried by the Daily Mail, which by arrangement with the grand opera syndicate has taken over the Covent Garden Opera House for next Thursday, with all the singers, orchestra and entire house staff, on condition that the Daily Mail defray all the expenses of the night.

On the other hand, the newspaper wishes to set prices as low as it considers commercially possible, because for years an outcry has been heard against the high prices charged for grand opera in London as compared with the continent.

Now, for the first time, it will be put to the test whether the masses want it. The grand opera selected for Thursday is Gounod's "Faust," which is to be given for the first time this season at prices less than usual at West End theaters—boxes from $4 to $13 and the other seats from $1 75 downward.

Signor Caruso, who is to be heard in America shortly, was the hero of a rather unpleasant adventure Wednesday evening. He was on the way from the Hotel Cecil to Covent Garden when two official-looking personages approached him, brandishing a blue paper.

Friends and interpreters having been obtained, it was found that the two men wanted immediate payment of $640. Failing payment, they intimated there would be no opera that evening for Caruso, and that he would have to pass the night in a less comfortable residence than the hotel.

The claim, it appeared on investigation, was for the income tax due in 1902, and the tenor, who does not read English well, had not understood the purport of the occasional applications sent him from the inland revenue office.

Mme. Melba sailed for New York on the Lucania. After her unfortunate automobiling experience in Paris she suffered something in the nature of a nervous breakdown, but recovery, though slow, has been complete.

LADY CURZON A WRECK

Long Illness and Desperate Remedie Shatter Her Nerves.

London, Nov. 8. — Lady Curzon's condition continues to cause the gravest anxiety. Her long illness and the application of desperate remedies have wrought terrible havoc, and she is now watched no less anxiously than at the height of the crisis. The beautiful vicereine lies a complete wreck in a pretty bedroom of Walmer Palace, whither she was removed from Walmer Castle, as it was feared her convalescence would be retarded by the unsanitary condition of that ancient structure.

Her physical health is improved, but the shock and strain she has undergone have undermined her nervous system, and she takes little interest in anything going on around her. The doctors hope these symptoms will prove amenable to treatment, but Lord Curzon is quite distraught over this development.

Official pressure has compelled him to fix Nov. 25 for his return to India, and he is well-nigh distracted between competing influences of a public and private nature. Before he consented to return he was in effect informed that the Government did not see any alternative except resignation of the viceroyalty, as grave constitutional questions were involved in his continued absence from India.

King Edward, as a mark of his personal favor, recently has taken to sending Sir Frederick Treves, his sergeant-surgeon, to join in consultation with specialists engaged on cases in which the King is interested. He sent him to a recent consultation on Mrs. Arthur Paget, and Lady Curzon also has had the benefit of his advice. He was also sent to the wounded Hull fishermen.

This well-intentioned proceeding is causing resentment in the London surgical fraternity as implying a slur on them.

The last case was that of Premier Balfour, who was laid low by a troublesome and tedious affection of the veins of his left leg, although Mr. Balfour already had called in a leading specialist in this particular affection.

Mr. Balfour has looked ill for some time, and his brother, Gerald Balfour, secretary of the board of trade, never has completely recovered from a similar attack. The Premier has canceled all public engagements for next month. This, he says, is a relief, but what really worries him is the prospect of not being able to play golf for several months.

St Louis and Return.

ELOPERS BADLY TREATED

After Marriage the Groom Was Made to Ride the Rail.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 8. — When an unassuming professional-looking man met an incoming C. and E. I. train at the Union depot Thursday morning, and greeted a trim, little woman, who arrived on the train, and escorted her to a near-by carriage, the bystanders little thought that a marriage was in the air, or that the two young people were arranging a surprise on their friends. The man was Dr. O. K. McKittrick, of Plainfield, and the young woman was Miss Susetta Harper, a nurse in a Chicago hospital.

The two young people went directly to the home of W. A. Harper in this city and were married, going immediately to Plainfield. The friends of Dr. McKittrick in that town were suspicious of his trip, and during his absence removed every sign of furniture from the house that he had fitted up, except a few stray pieces with which the young people were able to make themselves comfortable for the night.

Their slumbers were not very peaceful, however, as at 4 o'clock they were awakened and treated to an old-fashioned charivari. Dr. McKittrick was put astride a rail and with the Plainfield band and the American flag in front, and about fifty citizens in the rear, was taken in a procession through the streets. Mrs. McKittrick was forced to witness the barbarities from the sidewalk, along which she was escorted by a large party of friends.

Have You Heartburn?

It's quite common with people whose digestion is poor. Immediate relief follows the use of Nerviline. Stomach is strengthened, digestion is made perfect, lasting cure results in every case. Use Polson's Nerviline once and you'll never be without it because every type of stomach disorders is conquered by a few doses. One 25-cent bottle of Nerviline always convinces. Sold everywhere for the past 50 years.

The tallest inhabited building in the world is the Park Row building in New York. It covers about fifteen thousand square feet of ground and is 20 stories high. The distance from the curbing to the cornice is 336 feet, to the top of the towers, 390 feet, to the top of the flagstaff, 447; the depth of the foundations below curbing is 75 feet, making a total distance from the foundations to the top of the flagstaff of 552 feet.

Some Seasonable Advice.

It may be a piece of superfluous advice to urge people at this season of the year to lay in a supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost sure to be needed before winter is over, and much more prompt and satisfactory results are obtained when taken as soon as a cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system, which can only be done by keeping the remedy at hand. This remedy is so widely known and so altogether good that no one should hesitate about buying it in preference to any other. It is for sale by all druggists.

GREAT THINGS FROM LITTLE CAUSES GROW.—It takes very little to derange the stomach. The cause may be slight, a cold, something eaten or drunk, anxiety, worry or some other simple cause. But if precautions be not taken, this simple cause may have most serious consequences. Many a chronically debilitated constitution today owes its destruction to simple causes not dealt with in time. Keep the digestive apparatus in healthy condition and all will be well. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are better than any other for the purpose.

Toronto Putting on Airs.

The country will be inclined to sniff at the assertion of Mr. E. B. Osler that "Toronto is the place which the Government fears most, as it is the center of commercial enterprise, intelligence and correct information on the great political questions of the day."

A great center of commercial enterprise it is, but wherefore pre-eminent in intelligence and correct political information? Is the average elector of Toronto any wiser or better-informed than the average elector outside of Toronto? While the great Province of Ontario for a quarter of a century supported Sir Oliver Mowat in his battles for provincial rights, and against the forces of sectarian bigotry, where was the city of Toronto? While the country declares overwhelmingly for the progressive policy of the Laurier Government, Toronto, almost alone among the great centers of population, swims against the tide. Is its persistent and apparently incurable Toryism a proof of superior intelligence and enlightenment? No one but a Toronto Tory would make such a claim.

Its party steadfastness is not hard to account for. The main reason, as everyone knows, is the predominance of the Orange Order. The boast has been made that every Orange Lodge in the city is a Conservative committee room, and there is more than a scintilla of truth in it. In Toronto particularly the Order is a powerful political machine, whose chief engineers are Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, the Conservative boss of the city, and Mr. E. F. Clarke, the strongest local candidate of his party. This is merely a statement of fact, and is not intended as a reproach to Orangemen, among whom there are many liberal-minded men. It explains political conditions in Toronto, and it is an insult to the rest of the country to attribute these to a higher standard of intelligence.

"Toronto," said Mr. E. F. Clarke, speaking from the same platform as Mr. Osler, "must continue its work of education throughout the Dominion." The Dominion must sit at the feet of Toronto, forsooth! Montreal, Halifax, Hamilton, London, Quebec, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria, and nearly two-thirds of the constituencies of Canada are in outer darkness, and Toronto is the beacon-light of truth and wisdom; the only prophet of the true faith. There is a characteristic touch of Toronto modesty in the assumption.

Another factor which helps to keep Toronto Tory is the numerous progeny of the old Tory families. It has been said of family trees, that, like other trees, the further from the trunk, the smaller the branches: and these Toronto scions inherit the arrogance and intolerance of their forbears without their brains or capacity. They regard themselves as a preferred class, and are almost fanatical in their hatred and contempt of the Liberal party. Toronto boasts of its loyalty, and calls itself the center of Imperialism. Its special brand of loyalty is a survival of the spirit of the family compact, which claimed a divine right to rule this country, and looked down upon Liberals as usurpers and rebels. These Toronto would-be aristocrats are a mischievous influence, and are always ready to play upon race and sectarian prejudice. As a matter of fact there is no community so completely out of touch with the sentiment of the country as the city of Toronto, and it is the last place to which the country looks for political light and leading.

The Provincial Situation.

If the Ontario Government goes to the country at once it will be blamed by its opponents for disturbing the holiday trade.

If it decides to postpone a general election, they will accuse it of cowardice, and of clinging to office by the skin of its teeth.

The Government must either bring on the bye-elections—five of them at least—before the end of the year, or dissolve the House.

The law, as amended at the last session of the Legislature, requires that the writ for a bye-election shall be issued not later than three months after the seat is declared vacant.

North Perth was vacated on Sept. 6, Sault Ste. Marie on Sept. 16, North York on Sept. 22, and North Renfrew and North Norfolk on Sept. 27. West Algoma and Dufferin were vacated very recently by the resignation of Mr. Conmee and Dr. Barr, who have been elected to the Dominion House. North Grey is still hung up in the courts.

The first bye-election, if there is to be no dissolution, must, therefore, be brought on not later than Dec. 6. The fact that the adjourned election trial in North Grey, by consent of both parties, has been postponed till Dec. 12 is regarded as an omen of a general election before that date. The Government has kept its own counsel, but its decision must be announced shortly.

Canada's Hopeful Outlook.

The result of the elections cannot fail to have a steadying effect upon business. The repudiation of the Grand Trunk Pacific contract would have given the west a setback and dashed the spirit of confidence with which the country faces the immediate future. The advent of the Conservative party would have been also the signal for a rush of protected interests to secure favors and privileges, and the chaotic condition of the tariff, for a period at least, would have unsettled trade and industry. Fiscal changes will not be lightly or rashly made by the present Government. It will approach the revision of the tariff cautiously by appointing a commission to take evidence bearing upon every branch of production, as it did in 1896. There will be three tariffs: First, a maximum tariff, applied to countries which impose excessive duties on Canadian goods; second, a maximum tariff, applied to countries which show a disposition to trade with Canada on fair terms; third, a British preference, below the minimum tariff, applied to Great Britain, and other countries of the British Empire, which give Canada preferred treatment. This arrangement may have the effect of inducing countries like the United States to moderate their tariff against Canada, so as to forestall an increase in the Canadian tariff against their own products. If not, they will receive the treatment which they mete out to the Dominion.

The assurance that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway contract is in no danger means that the promoters will push forward the undertaking without loss of time. The cry that another railroad is unnecessary, raised by the Opposition a year ago, has been estopped by the continuance of the inrush of homesteaders, which is sweeping up into the territory to be traversed by the new road. The settlement of these districts will be stimulated by the certainty of the Grand Trunk Pacific, whereas the defeat of the project would have been a blow at immigration.

Within the next ten years $150,000,000 will be poured into Canada for the construction and equipment of the new railway. This will give a powerful impetus to settlement, and to industrial and commercial development from one end of the country to the other. With efficient government, a stable fiscal policy which does not lay heavy burdens on producers or consumers, and the favors of Providence, Canada may look forward with confidence to unabated prosperity for some years at least.

Are Laurer's opponents convinced yet that he's master of the Administration?

The indications are that the average Democrat tonight will feel like the average Conservative.

The dispatches say the Japs have "driven a wedge into the Russian center." That's pretty rough surgery.

Leaving Quebec out of the calculation, the Laurier Government has a majority of 22, which will be increased. So much for French domination.

The Conservative candidate in Huntingdon, Que., ran as a free trader, and won by 600 majority. His only hope of success lay in denouncing his party's policy.

The country is waiting to hear more about those bogus ballot boxes in West Hastings. If the story was a roorback the authors ought to be punished.

The international Sunday school text day before yesterday was, "When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice." It may have been only a coincidence.

The Conservative candidates have dropped out in Comox-Atlin, B. C., Dauphin, Man., and Gaspe, Que. This makes the Government's majority 65, with five elections to be held. The country almost made it unanimous.

Premier Bond has swept Newfoundland on an anti-Canadian platform. Canada is just now in a hopeful mood and may worry along without the cooperation of the little fellow until he changes his mind, as he probably will, when he is hard-up again.

The Toronto World intends to make it warm for Mr. Ross. It begins by calling him a whited sepulchre. But wait till the Free Press gets its mud-batteries going. They are laid up for repairs just now, having been overworked.

"Pa, why did the Light Brigade charge that way?"

"Because it wanted the money," the coal dealer answered, thinking of something else.

The Little Japanese.

[Boston Transcript.]

Once I knew a Japanese
With a little blue chemise,
Socks and sandals and a pretty paper fan,
Lady foot and dainty hand,
Microscopically planned,
And he didn't seem at all a fighting man.
He was neat and he was clean,
Most delightful to be seen;
He was spotless; he was spick and he was span;
He was sugar; he was spice;
He was everything that's nice,
And he didn't seem at all a fighting man.
He would greet you with a smile,
Which would carry half a mile,
Sweet as summer and expansive in its plan;
He would nod his beaming poll
Like a polished little doll,
And he didn't seem at all a fighting man.

Which is why I'd give a lot
Could I camp upon the spot
Where's he's winning bloody laurels for Japan,
Just to watch him waling in,
With that smile above his chin,
For he didn't seem at all a fighting man.

Her Conviction.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

"Do you believe in predestination?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Well, I used to," replied her hostess, "but after me and Josiah come back from Europe and had such a time gittin' our trunks through I almost think free trade would be a good thing, after all."

"I can," sighed Henpeck.

The Battle.

[Chicago Chronicle.]

The wounded lay in bleeding heaps
Amidst the wreck and dread,
The banners floating in the breeze
Were tinged a gory red;
The ambulances were at hand
To gather up the dead

The carnage had been fearful there,
As shown by wound and stain;
The struggle had been unto death,
The victory to gain.
And on the bloody field remained
But heaps of silent slain.

The battlefield was grim with death,
But 'twas a field of flame,
The fury of the struggle roared
Then vanished like a flame—
But spare your tears, the battle was
A modern football game.

Economy at Effort.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

"I didn't. He was a widower when I got him. It saves a lot of trouble."

The Way It Looks.

[Ottawa Citizen.]

Sir Wilfrid says Canada has become known all over the world since he came into power. Recent events certainly indicate that the country is becoming no-Tory-ous.

Then and Now.

[Collier's Weekly.]

I saw them one day in the sunshine,
Out there where the clover blows—
A wee little tiny towheaded girl,
And a boy with a freckled nose;
With an old straw hat without any brim
And galluses holding his clothes;
A wee little girl with a pigtail braid,
And a boy with two stubbed toes.

I saw them one eve in the twilight,
Down where the river flows;
The pigtail braid is a big braid now—
How a lad or a lassie grows—
The old straw hat is a new hat now
And never a freckle shows
On the face of a youth who bending his head,
Gives a fair-headed maiden a rose.

I saw them again in the sunshine,
And whatever do you suppose?
Between them and about them there romped
And ran and clung to their clothes,
A wee little tiny towheaded girl,
And a boy with two stubbed toes:
A wee little girl with a pigtail braid,
And a boy with a freckled nose.

Transparent.

[Cleveland Leader.]

"Her complexion is very clear," said the casual acquaintance. "Yes, indeed," her dearest friend agreed; "anybody can see through it."

Reward for Endurance.

[Washington Star.]

"How many bottles o' this will I have to take?" asked Farmer Corntossel.

"Before you're cured?" said the medical man.

"No. Before I get my picture in the paper."

Long Ago.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]

Shakespeare was showing "Macbeth" to a syndicate manager.

"The part about the witches is good," said the manager, "but how are we going to ring in the show girls?"

Realizing the force of this argument, Shakespeare rolled up his MS.

RUSSIANS MAY GIVE IN AT ONCE

All Britain's Demands in North Sea Affair Likely To Be Met.

London, Nov. 7. — After today's cabinet meeting the foreign office said that the Anglo-Russian agreement on the subject of the inquiry into the North Sea incident was practically complete. The one or two unimportant details remaining to be settled, it was added, would occasion no difficulty

Washington, Nov. 7. — Unofficially, though from an official source, officers of the navy on duty in Washington have learned that the United States navy will be invited to send a representative as a member of the Anglo-Russian inquiry commission, which will investigate the Doggerbank affair. It can be stated that Admiral Dewey will of course be given the refusal of this mission, and his acceptance will be most agreeable to the officials. The admiral has given no intimation as to his decision.

London, Nov. 7. — Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, in a speech at Leamington tonight, said there was an excellent reason for the hope of the almost immediate agreement by Russia to all of Great Britain's demands in connection with the North Sea affair.

BAD BLAZE AT CARDSTON CENTER

Conflagration in N. W. T. Town Does Damage to Extent of $200,003.

Lethbridge, N. W. T., Nov. 7. — The most destructive fire in the history of the town of Cardston Center, in the Mormon district, occurred on Saturday night. The fire started in Horner's harness shop, which was soon destroyed. Then followed the destruction of the Alberta Hotel and livery stables, Mr. Perry's residence, blacksmith shop and Allen's barn. Fortunately the weather was calm, otherwise, owing to inadequate fire protection, the greater portion of the town would have been destroyed. Loss estimated at $200,000, insurance not known.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared, and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

FRENCH RIGHTS IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Matter Discussed in Chamber of Deputies.

BANQUET TO THE EARL GREY

New Governor-General Pays Tribute to Canada's Great Natural Resources.

London, Nov. 8. — The Anglo-French convention was again discussed in the Chamber of Deputies in Paris. M. Suchetet protested against relinquishing French rights in Newfoundland, and expressed the fear that the rights of French subjects would not be respected. He referred to regulations which might possibly be framed by the Newfoundland Legislature.

M. Delcasse interposed that if such regulations paralyzed the exercise of French rights the French Government would address itself directly to the Imperial Government.

M. Suchetet went on to relate grievances suffered by the French from Newfoundlanders, and described what was conceded to France as a deceitful mirage. The inhabitants of St. Pierre and Miquelon were dissatisfied and prepared to accept union with the United States. The discussion was adjourned.

Speaking at a banquet in Newcastle in honor of his appointment as Governor-General of Canada, Earl Grey paid a tribute to its national resources, giving every advantage to those desiring a freer life. He was glad to know "The Lady of the Snows" idea was fast disappearing. It was not wonderful that Sir Wilfrid said that, though the nineteenth century belongs to the United States, the twentieth belongs to Canada.

The Canadian Government has agreed that if Great Britain takes national control of the wireless telegraphy they will do the same in the Dominion.

MUCH ADO ABOUT A SMALL MATTER

Abusive Language Case Before Police Court—Defendant Fined $1 and Costs.

An interesting case came up in the interim sessions court before Squire Smyth this morning. The interest attached to the case was largely due to the fact that the defendant was Wm. White, a witness in the case of the small boys alleged to have stolen market garden produce from an East London farmer, and who was sent to jail for the space of two hours by Squire Smyth for contempt of court. Mr. White swore out writs against the squire, and the high constable, alleging that the action taken against him was not legal. Nothing has yet been done in regard to this affair, but, in the meantime, Dennis D. Dorman, another farmer, who is a neighbor of White's, has brought him into court for alleged use of abusive language towards himself and his wife. Mr. E. T. Essery, who was acting prosecuting counsel, when Mr. White (who was witness for the defense), was put in jail, is acting for Mr. Dorman. Mr. T. H. Luscombe is counsel for the defense. The case is a rather intricate one, and some lively dialogue took place this morning.

Dennis Dorman, the plaintiff, was first put in the box. He said the defendant had taken some wire fencing that belonged to him, but which plaintiff thought was his, and that when plaintiff and his wife had expostulated, defendant had called them down in warm language. "He called me a liar," asserted the witness.

"What else?" asked Mr. Essery.

"He called my wife a liar and said that we were light-fingered."

"Why did he call you a liar?"

"Because I said the wire was mine. He afterwards called me a d—— liar."

To Mr. Luscombe witness said that he had been made a present of the wire a year ago.

"Did you not have any trouble with Mr. White before this?"

"Oh, he sometimes came to the fence and swore at me."

"Did you ever call Mr. White a liar by any chance?"

"No."

"Were you cool and collected on that heated occasion?"

"Just about as you see me now."

"Did your conscience smite you at all when defendant accused you of being light-fingered?"

"No."

"Didn't you tell Robinson that White owned the mitts and that you were not going to give them to him, because he had done a certain thing to you?" asked counsel.

"No."

"You told me before that you had nothing to do with the mitts, and now you tell me a lot about them. Didn't you tell the high constable that if the wire were put back you would drop the charge of abusive language?"

"No."

Counsel then told the court that it was evident that the witness was prevaricating.

The high constable, who was in the court, said he could give a word of explanation as to what part he had played in the solution of the difficulty.

Mr. Luscombe objected that the constable was helping the witness.

The court then intervened and said that it was only the case of abusive language that he was there to try.

"If counsel wants to find whether the witness stole the mitts let him ask," said Mr. Essery.

Counsel then read a letter written by the high constable speaking about the dropping of the abusive language charge. Witness said that his wife had probably spoken to Mr. McLoud about the matter.

Mrs. Dorman to some extent corroborated the evidence of her husband.

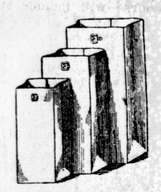

Mr. White, who was also out in the box, claimed that the plaintiff had called him a liar, and that he had only returned the compliment. He thought that the plaintiff had a spite against him because once when defendant was county roadmaster he had brought the plaintiff to time for an alleged negligence.

Mr. White was in the end fined $1 and costs, amounting altogether to about $5.

KAISER OUTRANKS GOD

German Courts, in Strange Case, Fine Woman For Lese Majeste.

Berlin, Nov. 8. — Germany is stupefied over the latest case of lese majeste. A woman named Helmholtz at a harvest festival in Blankenberg cried out: "Hoch, hoch, fur Gott." On being questioned by a policeman as to why she did not reserve this form of salutation for the Kaiser, she replied she thought even the Kaiser would admit God came first. So Frau Helmholtz was prosecuted for lese majeste and fined 10 marks, with the alternative of ten days' imprisonment. An appeal was telegraphed to the Kaiser, but he ignored it. They say he has been long troubled by this delicate question of precedence and is content now that it has been definitely settled by a German law court.

CANNED GOODS HAVE ADVANCED IN PRICES---SCARCITY THE CAUSE

Canners Are Only Supplying a Part of Their Orders—The Grocers' Half Holiday.

At a meeting of the London Retail Grocers' Association held last night, some interesting facts in connection with the state of the grocery market were brought out. While the prices of staple groceries remain about the same, it appears that in certain specialties, such as canned goods, the market is short, and there is a considerable increase in the cost to the consumer. Tomatoes, owing to the early frost, were a very short crop this year, and canners are supplying, in accordance with an agreement amongst themselves, just 55 per cent of the orders taken by their travelers for tomatoes. In this particular instance, however, there has been no increase in price. The canners are also supplying but 60 per cent of their orders for corn, and whereas last year three cans of corn could be purchased for a quarter, but two cans can now be procured for the same amount. All lines of canned fruit show a small advance in wholesale prices.

Salmon prices have advanced fully 20 per cent, owing to the very small British Columbia pack.

Sugar is about 1 cent a pound dearer than it was a year ago, an unlooked-for demand in the United States, using up all the available supply.

The grocers reported that the half holiday on Wednesday of each week this year had proven an entire success, the grocers without exception closing their stores, and keeping faith with one another. It is predicted that next year matters will run still smoother, and that the Wednesday half holiday is now assured for all time.

The excursion to Niagara was reported a success financially and otherwise.

WILL STUDY THE TYPICAL INSECTS

Entomologists Decide on a Course for Winter's Work—The Grasshopper First.

A meeting of members for the purpose of organizing the winter's work was held in the Entomological Society's room in the Public Library building, on Saturday night. It was decided to provide a systematic course in the study of insects, which should be free to everyone who takes an interest in natural objects. The first meeting will be held on Saturday evening, Nov. 19, when the class will be organized and the work begun with an examination and study of a grasshopper. It is not necessary to be a member of the society in order to join the class; all interested will be heartily welcome. The course will include studies of typical insects of the different orders, and will bear especially on the practical side of entomology.

Mr. S. B. McCready, science master at the Collegiate Institute, will have charge of the class work, and Dr. Bethune will give instructions regarding classification, life histories, economic importance, etc. Anyone who wishes to join the class should come provided with a pocket-lens and a suitable notebook for keeping records. Dr. Bethune will be pleased to give any further information that may be desired at the entomological library, which is open to visitors on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The classes will be held on alternate Saturday nights at 8 o'clock, beginning on the 19th of November. The other Saturday evenings are occupied by the microscopical section.

Advice to Dyspeptics.

Sometimes your appetite is ravenous, but usually it's very poor. Your tongue is coated, an unpleasant taste fills the mouth, after meals you feel drowsy. For this condition there is but one remedy—Dr. Hamilton's Pills—which cure quickly and thoroughly. Sufferers experience marked benefit in one day—within a week complete recovery is guaranteed.

No other medicine will strengthen the stomach and bowels like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which help these organs to convert food into nourishment, muscle, sinew and nerve.

Why not cure your dyspepsia now? Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—25 cents per box or five boxes for $1 at all dealers.

Brazil's Navy.

New York, Nov. 8.—A Rio de Janeiro special to the Herald says: A bill for an increase in the army and navy, which has been approved by the Chamber of Deputies, and is pending in the Senate, provides for several war vessels during 1905. The Government will order three cruisers of 12,000 tons each, and ten torpedo boats of 26 knots.

Keep Your Bowels Regular In Nature's Way.

Suppose your bowels fail to move for a week or ten days. Don't you know you would be quickly prostrated? Of course you do. It is just the same, differing in degree, when your bowels don't move once every day. You know you soon become languid and tired, and your blood gets bad and you feel out of sorts—sick all over—if you don't have a full, healthy passage daily. Don't let such serious conditions develop. Use Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills. They will drive bowel poison out of your system and establish regularity. These little pills are purely vegetable and cure in one night.

Remember that bowel poison is the direct cause of slow, wasting fevers, loss of memory, female weakness, nervous prostration and general debility. Bowel poison leads on to misery and death as surely as constipation or heart disease; the well-advised use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will cure and establish bowel, stomach and liver health. Sick at night, well in the morning. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills cure constipation, biliousness, headache in one night. At dealers, 25 cents.

All genuine signed W. F. Smith.

HOME INFLUENCES WERE RESPONSIBLE

Nellie Cottrell, Former London Girl, Says They Were the Cause of Her Downfall.

"My home influences are responsible for my position," said Nellie Cottrell, 14 years old, formerly of London, and who is now living at 302 Brush street, Detroit, to the jury in the juvenile court in that city on Saturday, when she was placed on trial for being a disorderly juvenile.

"I don't approve of that," protested the mother, who was sitting in the front row of seats. "I don't think she should be allowed to say that."

"The defendant may proceed," ruled Justice Sellers.

"Well, I am sure I wouldn't have come to this if a better example had been set for me at home," the girl continued. "I admit that I've done wrong, but it certainly wasn't my fault."

Before Nellie was called to the stand, the mother, who made the complaint against her, testified that she had a good home for Nellie, but that the latter had remained away at different times. She denied that any improper conduct had taken place in her home.

County Agent Lawrence, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who appears in the juvenile court, as attorney for all defendants, admitted to the jury that it would be better for Nellie if she were sent to the Industrial School, in view of her testimony, but wished it understood that she was a victim of circumstances.

The jury convicted her, after a short deliberation, and she was sentenced to remain in the Industrial School until she is 20 years of age. She wept aloud on hearing of her conviction. Mrs. Riley, also connected with the society for the protection of children, tried to comfort her, and Nellie kissed her tenderly on leaving for the jail. Nellie is big for her age, and is quite a pretty brunette.

Ernest Denham was arrested a few days ago on a serious charge preferred by Nellie's mother, and he is now in the county jail, in Detroit, awaiting his examination in the police court. He is 20 years old.

"I have never seen a sadder case than this of Nellie Cottrell," commented Justice Sellers. "She is to be pitied."

Other court officials declared that no case had aroused in them so much sympathy as that of Nellie Cottrell.

After the announcement of the verdict, Mrs. Cottrell left the court without going near her daughter.

MARRIED AT THE SOO

Wedding of Mr. John McKeough and Miss Madeline Albright.

The following reference to the marriage of a former young Londoner (son of Mrs. P. McKeough, of this city), who left here two years ago, is contained in the Evening News of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.:

Mr. John McKeough and Miss Madeline Albright were married at St. Mary's Catholic Church early this morning, Rev. Father Alexander A. Gagnieur performing the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Sarah Gallagher, and Dr. William P. Finlan acted as best man. The bride was gowned in a beautiful white creation and wore a wreath. Miss Gallagher's costume was a delicate pink. The bridal couple left on the early morning train for Detroit, where they will remain for a few days.

John McKeough is one of the well-known young men about the city. He is a skilled workman in the employ of the Soo Lumber Company and enjoys the confidence of his associates in every quarter.

The bride was until recently cashier for Blumrosen & Co., where she was recognized as a very capable and pleasant person. In musical circles she has held a prominent position for several years. Of a most pleasant disposition and always friendly, she has won a high place in the estimation of her associates.

Mr. and Mrs. McKeough will return to the Soo in a few days to reside at the corner of Armory Place and Kimball street, where they will be at home to their many friends.

Do not emphasize your own virtues by enlarging on the failings of others.

GOV'T. MAJORITY JUMPS TWO POINTS

Dauphin Goes Liberal by Acclamation, and Qu'Appelle Returns Thompson.

The Liberals have carried another seat in the Northwest Territories, complete returns received tonight electing Thompson, Liberal, for Qu'Appelle by 12 majority.

Dauphin Liberal.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 7.—Glen Campbell, the Conservative, retires in Dauphin, electing Burrows, the Liberal candidate, by acclamation.

Pontiac Returns.

Ottawa, Nov. 7. — All the returns for Pontiac are in and Brabazon (Conservative), has been elected by 80 of a majority.

Alberta Conservative.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 7. — MacKay, running in Saskatchewan, and Craig, running in Humboldt, as Conservative candidates, will lose their deposits. Herron, the Conservative, is elected for Alberta, and Lake (Conservative), will probably be elected for Qu'Appelle. He is twenty-two ahead, with six polls to hear from.

North Simcoe.

Barrie, Nov. 7.—McCarthy's present majority is 55, but returns are incomplete. There will be a recount.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 7. — The official declaration gives Hon. Wm. Harty a majority of 532 in Kingston. The figures are: Harty (Liberal), 2,267; Gaskin (Conservative), 1,735; Graham (Independent), 53. Graham loses his deposit.

Parry Sound Redeemed.

Burk's Falls, Nov. 7. — (Special.) — After 26 years Parry Sound has been redeemed to Liberalism by the election of Mr. R. J. Watson, and the party workers are jubilant at their success. The last Liberal representative was Mr. A. P. Cockburn. The organization in this somewhat sparsely settled riding was excellent, and each worker knew what he had to do when election day came. Mr. Watson's majority is 365, with two polls to hear from. The work was done quietly, and no outside help was brought in. Mr. Watson worked tirelessly, held 30 meetings, and called at over four thousand farm houses. In Burk's Falls, Mr. Watson had a majority of 76, and even in Dr. Freeborn's own home the Liberals were ahead. At Fort Cockburn, the home of Alexander Fraser, there was only one Conservative vote. The enthusiasm was so great that some voters drove 60 miles to cast a ballot for Mr. Watson.

Peterboro, Nov. 7.—Mr. Sheriff Hall, returning officer, ths morning issued his official statement of the result of the polling in West Peterboro on Nov. 7, as follows: Hall, 2,467; Kendry, 2,280; majority for Hall, 187.

FOR LESE MAJESTE

Thirteen-Year-Old Boy Goes to a German Jail for Three Months.

New York, Nov. 8.—A Berlin dispatch to the Times says: At Lissa, Province of Posen, a 13-year-old Polish boy, Adelbert Grzabk, has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for lese majeste. While at school, in conversation with other boys, he condemned the neutrality of Germany in the present war, and also made derogatory remarks about the Kaiser.

WOMEN IN DEATH DUEL

One While Dying Keeps on Shooting at Her Opponent.

Evanston, Wyo., Nov. 8.—Mrs. Leon Demars, shot in a duel by her neighbor, Mrs. Nancy Richards, is dead. Several times the women had come to blows, and each had warned the other the next encounter would be with guns. Mrs. Demars went to Mrs. Richards' ranch, near Fort Bridger, and upon being ordered away displayed a big revolver. Mrs. Richards had been carrying a weapon in anticipation of meeting Mrs. Demars. Mrs. Richards says Mrs. Demars fired first, but there were no other witnesses. At the second shot Mrs. Demars fell, with a bullet in her breast, but kept on firing, emptying the revolver. Mrs. Richards also fired six shots. Both are wives of ranchers. They are 30 years old. Mrs. Richards was arrested.

Lake Baikal, the "Holy Sea," is, excepting Victoria Nyanza, in Africa, the largest lake in the Eastern Hemisphere. It is 3,100 feet deep, its bottom being 1,650 feet below sea level, and in area corresponds to Lake Michigan.

TRIAL PROVES ITS EXCELLENCE.—The best testimonial one can have of the virtue of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the treatment of bodily pains, coughs, colds and affections of the respiratory organs, is a trial of it. If not found the sovereign remedy it is reputed to be, then it may be rejected as useless, and all that has been said in its praise denounced as untruthful.

It is only since the invention in 1866 of Foyn's destructive bomb harpoon, an explosive projectile which bursts within the carcass of the animal, that the Norwegian whalers have dared to attack the formidable blaal.val, Sibbald's rorqual, or blue whale.

The Secret of the Medicine Man.

The American Indians were famed for their physical perfection. No dyspepsia, liver or kidney troubles made them lose their superb health. If indiscretion brought on these diseases, the medicine man was there with his herbs that instantly relieved. Most of these remedies passed away with the aborigines—but one, the best of all

IT'S THE LITTLE ONES THAT COUNT

How Easily Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Are Curing the Little Stomach Ills of the Nation.

Though there are many cases in which Dyspepsia threatens to prove suddenly fatal the vast majority have only the smaller discomforts and pains that mark the earlier stages of the disease. If those sufferers all knew how quickly and easily they could regain their health by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets half the suffering in Canada would be relieved inside the next thirty days. Take one case. Mr. W. H. Harmer, Postmaster at Avonmore, N. B., says: "I was troubled with food and gas rising in my throat. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets stopped it."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets work naturally. They digest the food while the stomach rests and returns to its normal healthy condition. They always cure all stomach troubles. Everybody who has ever used them will tell you so.

Last night marked the opening of the third week at the London Vaudeville Theater, and it saw a bill presented which was equally as meritorious as those enjoyed by Londoners during the preceding fortnight. The audience was large, the gallery and balcony being pretty well filled, while the lower floor was nearly three parts occupied. What is decidedly noticeable each evening at the London is the gradual increase in the number of ladies in attendance, the increase being due to the assurance of the management that nothing but good clean vaudeville will be permitted.

Manager Fleming was much disappointed at the illness of one of the Scottish trio, which prevented their engagement being filled. In place of this attraction he secured two acts, one of which was by Morris and Montrose, entitled "Slim Jim's Visit." This so-called comedy sketch did not come up to expectations, and during the evening it was announced that the engagement had been canceled, and a first-class act would be secured in its place. This determination on the part of the management to present nothing but good vaudeville cannot do other than make the house more popular.

A. H. Tyrrel, "that phunny pheller," is probably the greatest mirth-provoker on the bill this week. His black-face monologue work is very funny. Russell and Dunbar give their latest success, "My Hannah Lady," and share honors about equally with Tyrrel. The Russels, "the nonsense makers," do an act which specially delights the little folks, for in it they introduce two trained dogs. The great Nello is undoubtedly one of the cleverest jugglers yet seen in London. Wood Brothers are clever gymnasts. "The Professor and the Maid" is a bright little one-act playlet by Elwood and Maggie Benton. Dolly Bland's illustrated songs were much appreciated. The singing and dancing specialty of Tracy and Walsh is the poorest turn on the programme.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT.

Chauncey Olcott, ever a prime favorite in London, is sure of a hearty welcome, at the Grand on Thursday night, when he will make his appearance in one of his most successful plays, "A Romance of Athlone." By many admirers of Mr. Olcott it is claimed to be his best play, and most pleasing character. All the songs written and composed by Mr. Olcott for this play are well remembered and well liked, including his very popular ballad "My Wild Irish Rose."

"THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR."

"The Way of the Transgressor," which will be the attraction at the Grand on Friday and Saturday, matinee Saturday, is a novelty in every way. It has many comedy features, a host of entertaining vaudeville specialties, and the scenic surroundings are of such rare beauty that it can be better described as a pictorial representation of a story of life. The plot is charmingly unique, but at the same time so full of heart interest that it will appeal to all classes of theater-goers. The action of the play is rapid and admits of a number of effective climaxes and stirring situations.

CLINTON MAN DEAD

Mr. D. F. McPherson Succumbs While on a Visit to This City.

The many friends of Mr. D. F. McPherson, of Clinton, will be surprised and pained to hear of his death, which occurred this morning at the residence of his brother, Mr. A. D. McPherson, 110 Elmwood avenue. The late Mr. McPherson came to this city on business two weeks ago, and while here was taken seriously ill. A doctor was called and did all that was possible for his relief, but was unable to do more than ward off the inevitable for a few days. The deceased leaves a widow, three sons, one daughter and four brothers. Mr. McPherson was senior partner in the firm of McPherson, Hovey & Co., of Clinton. He was well known in Westen Ontario, and will be greatly missed by his friends in Clinton, Goderich, London, Aylmer and Fingal. The remains will be taken to Clinton this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

BENNETT IS NEW CHIEF

London Division of Railroad Conductors Elect Officers for 1905.

At the last meeting of London Division, No. 16, of the Order of Railway Conductors, the officers for 1905 were elected. B. W. Bennett, of the Pere Marquete, was chosen chief conductor, with T. J. Mahoney, of the C. P. R., as assistant chief. John McAuliffe, of the G. T. R., retired from the position of secretary and treasurer, and he will be succeeded by H. J. Heath. Adam Douglass was elected senior C., Frank McKenzie junior C., Joseph Cake inside sentinel, Peter McDonald outside sentinel. T. J. Collins, of the C. P. R., was named as the delegate of the division to the annual meeting of the grand division, to be held at Portland, Oregon, in May, 1905. T. J. Mahoney was named as alternated.

BISHOP BALDWIN'S DEATH

New Westminster Diocese Records Sense of Church's Loss.

The Synod of the Diocese of New Westminster, B. C., has sent to Rev. Dean Davis, of this city, a beautifully worded resolution, with reference to the loss sustained by the church in the death of the late Bishop Baldwin. The resolution, which is signed by the secretary of the synod, Rev. H. J. Underhill, is as follows:

"This synod desires to place on record its sense of the great loss sustained by the Church of England in Canada in the death of the Right Reverend Maurice S. Baldwin, Lord Bishop of Huron, who, for nearly a quarter of a century has been known throughout the length and breadth of our land as a bishop of apostolic fervor, earnest labors, consecration and simplicity of life. Further, that the synod expresses its deep sympathy with the Diocese of Huron in the great loss sustained."

"GRIP AND GRIT"

Rev. J. B. Silcox's Lecture at First Congregational Church.

A large audience gathered in the First Congregational Church last evening to listen to a lecture by Rev. J. B. Silcox, of Lansing, Mich., whose subject was "Grip and Grit." Rev. Dr. Merchant, principal of the Normal School, occupied the chair, and with him on the platform were the speaker of the evening and Rev. D. S. Hamilton, the pastor of the church. The programme opened with an organ voluntary by Mr. W. A. Bleuthner, after which Miss Noble, Miss Robb and Mr. Ernest Moule contributed much-appreciated solos.

Dr. Merchant then introduced Rev. Mr. Silcox, and in doing so expressed his pleasure at presiding at such a function, not only on account of the high reputation held by the lecturer, but because of the intimate relation between lectures which presented noble ideals and the educational work in which he himself was engaged.

Mr. Silcox's lecture was listened to with great interest and delight by all. It is difficult to characterize the lecture in a sentence or two, but it is of such a nature as to make it entertaining in the extreme, producing genuine mirth, while at the same time it contains so much practical wisdom and sound philosophy as to make it most instructive and profitable.

Rev. James Livingstone, of the Wellington Street Methodist Church, moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, which was seconded by Rev. W. H. Claris, and heartily carried by the audience. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a programme upon which the young people of the church are to be congratulated, as the lecture was undoubtedly one of the best ever heard in the city.

Scientific bedmaking and scrubbing as taught by Miss Marion Talbot, dean of women and professor of housekeeping, in her new domestic science school at the University of Chicago, appealed so strongly to three of the midway girls that they invested their fudge money by renting a house and advertised for roomers—"just to see if all of Miss Talbot's theories really work."

FOWLS IN ODD CONTEST

The Roosters of France Crow Against One Another.

Paris Nov. 8.—The crowing competition among roosters, given at the agricultural exhibition by the Agricultural Society, has been a great success. This sport, once popular in the northern provinces of France, in Belgium and Flanders, had been nearly forgotten until M. Van Gelder, of Anvers, made a tour of the country and collected the cages used in olden times for the competition. M. Van Gelder is the owner of Picador, a rooster valued at $2,000, and, because of crowing 120 times in half an hour, considered until now invincible.

At the Cours-la-Reine, where he exhibition took place, each rooster was placed in a separate cage, which was inclosed in a box provided with heavy curtains. A judge sat at a table before each cage, ready to register the number of crows within a stated time.

At a given signal the curtains before a cage were drawn back, thus allowing the light to strike the bird, who immediately gave vent to a series of crows, which were carefully registered. Picador was not in form, and was defeated by Toreador, whose crowing efforts numbered 32 within half an hour. Santos Du Mont came out second, crowing 29 times in 30 minutes, and Lion was third.

A curious placard conspicuously placed on the exhibition grounds warned exhibitors against presenting roosters with ears plugged, as such a trick would render the competition unfair by preventing each bird from listening to the crowing of its rivals.

Visitors to Paris, recalling their experiences, will be astounded to learn that a race has been arranged, open only to Paris cab horses, in everyday service, victorias and coupees. The course is to Versailles and return, about 30 miles, and must be finished the same day. The walk and trot only are allowed. The race is controlled by La Presse, and substantial prizes are allowed.

A reporter took a cab this week and rode 50 miles inside the Paris limits. The horse still lives.

"That Wedding Trip."

AN END TO BILIOUS HEADACHE.—Biliousness, which is caused by excessive bile in the stomach, has a marked effect upon the nerves, and often manifests itself by severe headache. This is the most distressing headache one can have. There are headaches from cold, from fever, and from other causes, but the most excruciating of all is the bilious headache. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will cure it—cure it almost immediately. It will disappear as soon as the Pills operate. There is nothing surer in the treatment of bilious headache.

Travelers say that there is a certain undefinable smell peculiar to Japanese steamships that makes life on board of them not worth living. It has been traced to "daikon," a large-leaved vegetable dear to the Japanese palate.

LOCAL MARKETS.

London, Tuesday, Nov. 8.

With the exception of hay and oats, the supply of products of the farm was very small. Sales were brisk for all of the offerings, and prices were a trifle firmer.

Grain—About a dozen loads of oats offered; sales were brisk, at 98c to $1 per cwt.

Hay and Straw—There were 32 loads of hay on the stand; sales were brisk, at $8 to $8 50 per ton. Straw continues to be scarce, and sells at $5 and $5 50 per ton.

Butter and Eggs—Butter was scarce, as also were eggs, not enough being offered to warrant a change in prices.

Vegetables and Roots—This line was in keeping with the others, as far as the supplies were concerned, very little being offered; potatoes were in small supply, only a couple of large loads being on sale; prices were as quoted for all classes of vegetables.

Poultry—Not a great deal offered; sales were made at prices quoted.

Dressed Hogs—About 30 carcases offered; prices ruled at $7 and $7 25 per cwt, mostly at the last-named figure.

Butchers' Meats—Sales were slow for what was offered; prices are as quoted.

Apples and grapes were dull, at prices quoted.

WILL SUPPORT LAURIER

Although Mr. Forget Has Always Been Considered Conservative.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 8. — Mr. Rodolphe Forget, member-elect for Charlevoix, in the House of Commons, confirms the report that he will give the Government an independent support. Although Mr. Forget has been usually classed as a Conservative, he maintains that he ran as an independent and is not tied down to party principles.

Railway Committee Hears the Protest of Eastwood Bros.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 8. — The railway committee of the executive council this morning heard the protest of the Eastwood brothers against the order of the committee permitting the extension of the Toronto and Mimico Railway to pass across their farm. The committee postponed giving a decision until Tuesday next, and in the meantime will go over the ground.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Toronto.
Dr. Chase's Ointment

The only cotton mill in the South that employed negro labor has failed.

In order to be popular, forget to say a good deal.

Only a Little Cold often Develops into Catarrh.
Colds are dangerous things to trifle with. They hang on and on, and people keep putting off curing them, until that stuffy feeling in the nose proclaims that catarrh has developed. Stop the cold while it is only a cold. Japanese Catarrh Cure instantly relieves "cold in the head." The balmy, aromatic pomade soothes and heals the inflammed surfaces, clears the air passages, and arrests the development of the trouble. The treatment is so pleasant and so simple, that Japanese Catarrh Cure holds first place in thousands of homes throughout the Dominion
Mr. Alex. McRea of New Westminster, B.C. writes:—"I was for some weeks suffering from a cold in the head, which was apparently developing into Catarrh. I purchased a box of Japanese Catarrh Cure and in less than two days the trouble entirely disappeared. I can highly recommend it, the first application relieves."
All druggists sell it at 50c. a box or six for $2.50.

Hitch in the Appointment of the New City Clerk

Conservative Aldermen Could Not Unite on Successor to Mr. C. B. Edwards.

It would appear from the stories which are going the rounds of the city hall these days that the mayor and aldermen are experiencing grave difficulty in deciding who shall succeed Mr. C. B. Edwards as city clerk. All the applicants are Conservatives, and needless to say, no person but a Conservative will be appointed to the position. In the hall and on the street, Mr. James S. Bell, the present assistant treasurer, seems to be the favorite, but the aldermen cannot come to terms on the matter. The majority, it is understood, favor Mr. Bell. He has grown up in the city's service, and has stood back and sacrificed himself on at least one occasion in order that the existing conditions in the treasurer's office might not be disturbed. That he is competent to fill the position of city clerk no man disputes. Therefore, all things considered, Mr. Bell would appear to be the logical man for the position. But if rumor be true, the Conservative Club is again taking a hand in the matter of civic appointments. One of the applicants is Mr. Ed Flock, who is prominent amongst the workers of the Conservative party in London. He has given of his time liberally to promote the cause of Conservatism. When Mr. Edwards was appointed, he was an applicant for the position, but was turned down—so it is said—by Mayor Beck. But now Mr. Flock is credited with having Mr. Beck "on the hip," and has at his back, Ald. Judd. The result was felt yesterday, when the Conservative aldermen, in a caucus held in the city hall, postponed the appointment of a clerk till a future council meeting. Though the mayor admits nothing, it is said, he is not overly favorable this time to Mr. Flock, but the mayor dare not run foul of the club. At the caucus yesterday certain things were said of one of the applicants, which, it is alleged, caused Ald. Forristal to dramatically quote the Scriptural passage, "Let him who is free from sin cast the first stone." It is said no stones were cast thenceforth.

Questioned as to who is likely to be appointed, the mayor today was evasive. All he would say was that perhaps a "big fellow," was after the position. All attempts to get at the identity of the "big fellow" failed. Of course, Mr. C. A. Kingston is looked upon by a great many people, and his stock is looking up today, though the name of another Conservative lawyer, prominent in local politics, is also mentioned. This is Mr. Percy Moore, though his friends declare he would not accept the position at the salary offered.

Until a successor to Mr. Edwards is appointed Mr. Arthur Jolly, of the assessment commissioner's office, will perform the duties of city clerk.

PAY OF THE CITY FIREMEN WILL SOON HAVE TO BE CONSIDERED

One of the Questions Now Agitating Aldermen—Gross Injustice to Business Firm.

The city council last night distinguished itself by a gross piece of injustice to the jewelry firm of Stevenson Bros. & Baker, on Carling street. Some weeks ago, Mr. Richard Southam, who owns a store next to the registry office on Talbot street, asked the board of works for permission to erect a stairway on the city property next to the registry office. He gave as his reason that if the stairway was built in his own building it would use up fully one-eighth of the floor room. This he did not want to do, and asked leave to erect the stairway on city property. Then the Stevenson firm registered an objection. They declared that the stairway, if put up, would injure their property and would be a decided inconvenience to them in many ways. The matter dragged along, and finally according to a statement made by Mr. Stevenson at the council meeting last night, Mr. Southam told him that if he (Stevenson) would give him (Southam) $100 he would not construct the stairway. Mr. Stevenson refused, declaring that he did not think it possible that the city would put a weapon into Mr. Southam's hands to compel him to give up $100, and he again appealed to the council. Last night both Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Southam were present and addressed the council, and Mr. Southam was given permission to build the stairway on city property. All the Stevenson firm asked was to be left alone, but the aldermen chose to hand over a portion of city reality to Mr. Southam rent free. The council has done a gross injustice to a firm which asks no favors from the city.

Fireman Swanwick's letter to the city council, in which he asks for indemnity for the injuries he received in the Sterling fire, came like a bolt from the blue, and is causing no end of talk in local municipal circles. It is felt that the city is at last face to face with the problem of what to do with injured firemen, and there is a disposition amongst certain of the aldermen to fight somebody to a finish to see where the city is at in the matter. It was said today that though ex-Fireman Frank Roberton has not as yet accepted the city's offer of $500 in full of the damages he sustained in the Sterling fire, a settlement is near at hand.

With one exception, all the aldermen approached are disposed to be evasive regarding the increase of pay for the first-year firemen. All are pretty well agreed, however, that $1 23 a day is altogether too small a wage for good firemen, but the rub comes in when the aldermen begin to look at the fire brigade expenditures. This year the city's assessment was run up a cool million and the people to keep them quiet, have been told that next year's tax rate will be lower. But all those who keep an eye on municipal business know very well that already schemes are being hatched—and some are already hatched—which if adopted will more than eat up the extra taxes coming from a 25-mill rate on the additional million dollars' assessment next year. The West London breakwater, the proposed garbage scheme, and the deficit which now faces the council will pretty well use up the additional taxes in sight.

However, it is pretty generally agreed that the firemen should have more money, and it is probable the matter will be taken up in earnest in the near future.

CARS ORDERED TO RUN BOTH WAYS

Change in the South Street Car Service To Be Demanded of Railway Company.

Though the people of both the north and south ends of the city are greatly pleased with the service on the Hamilton road and Oxford street lines, since Engineer Graydon put the new schedule into effect the people of Rectory street and also those who have occasion to visit Victoria Hospital, are greatly displeased with the service on the South street belt. At present the South street cars run but one way, and the Hamilton road cars have been taken off Rectory street, and the remainder of the little belt (which is now the South street belt), is afforded but an indifferent service. Today City Engineer Graydon consulted with the mayor on the matter, and was informed that citizens who visit Victoria Hospital are very much inconvenienced by the present manner of running the cars. The mayor also ordered the engineer to instruct Mr. Carr to begin operating cars both ways on the South street belt at once. This will necessitate the putting in of a couple of switches, and Mr. Graydon has instructions to see that the one on South street is not placed in the hospital block. The other switch will likely be on Rectory street. Speaking of this matter yesterday Mr. Carr said that as yet it had been found impossible to work out a proper schedule for the South street belt, but that the company is doing all in its power to evolve a time card which will prove satisfactory to the citizens.

BOTH BAGGAGE CARS DERAILED

Peculiar Accident Befalls an Express Train a Short Distance East of Princeton.

No. 4 express, on the Grand Trunk, which leaves London for the east every morning at 3:30 o'clock, met with a rather peculiar accident on Sunday, when about a mile and a half east of Princeton.

For some time past there has been a bad spot in the road at the place mentioned, the bed appearing soft, as if it was being gradually undermined. On Sunday, the engine of No. 4 express had just passed over it when the roadbed gave way, causing one of the baggage cars to drop some distance, and to get thrown partly on end. As it did so a heavy rail was forced upward, piercing the floor and roof of the car, and damaging it badly. The other baggage car was derailed with the first one, but, strange to say, no person was hurt. One of the cars was tossed upward so high that it struck on overhead bridge, and tore away a part of the structure.

Mr. John Gillean, baggageman, of this city, had a narrow escape. A few minutes before the accident he was in the car which was pierced by the steel rail, but he had gone to a rear coach for a glass of water.

Some of the passengers were alarmed by the suddent stopping of the train, while those in the rear cars were not aware for some time than an accident had happened.

McCLARY'S NEW WAREHOUSE.

The McClary Manufacturing Company have taken out a building permit for a new frame warehouse with stone foundation on the corner of Adelaide and Trafalgar streets.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST QUINN

Alleged to Have Impersonated Fred Palmer Election Day.

Martin Quinn, of William street, was arrested today by Detective Rider on two serious charges. He is alleged to have impersonated Frederick Palmer of this city, at subdivision 7 of ward 4 in the election on Thursday last, and in that connection he is also charged with perjuring himself when he swore that he was the said Frederick Palmer.

The informations are laid by David Baskerville, horse trainer, of this city. The police have not heard of Baskerville before, and his name does not appear in the latest directory. Quinn is about 35 years of age, and has lived in the city all his life. Ball will not be accepted for Quinn—at least until after the preliminary hearing takes place, which will likely be in the morning.

Quinn claims that he is a supporter of Mr. Gray, the Conservative candidate.

RODE HORSE DOWN THE SIDEWALK

Then Assaulted a Police Officer—Knight of the Forge Gets Into Trouble.

A knight of the forge who undertook to get drunk last evening found himself in the dock at the police court this morning, with charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and assaulting a police officer entered opposite his name.

The smith, it appears, got his jag first and then attempted to ride a colt down Dundas street. He had nothing but a bridle on the animal, which took fright at a car and finally took to the sidewalk, frightening a number of pedestrians who narrowly escaped being knocked down and injured. P. C. Taylor appeared on the scene, caught the horse and told the rider that he would have to go to the police station. The smith objected, emphasizing his objections by striking the officer, but the latter was the boss of the situation, and the smith was put behind the bars. The horse was turned over to Inspector Sanders.

This morning the smith acknowledged that he had been drinking and also pleaded guilty to assaulting an officer. Considering that it was his first appearance the magistrate decided to withdraw the latter charge, but for being drunk and disorderly he fined him $10.

Four men were charged with driving their horses over the new cement sidewalks. One was fined $1, two discharged and another man, Joseph Wilkinson, will be arrested because he took no heed of a summons.

Two first-time drunks were let go and a man was fined $1 for riding on the sidewalk.

Next Tuesday the senior department of the Y. M. C. A. will hold a gymnastic evening. Many kinds of exercises will be gone through, and games will be played. In a few weeks the juniors will also have a similar affair.

A NEW FIREMAN.

Mr. Wiliam Cripps, of East London, has been added to the permanent force of the London Fire Brigade, the council last night accepting the chief's recommendation that Cripps be appointed.

CHINESE SOCIAL.

About 25 members of the Chinese class of the Y. M. C. A. attended a social given last night in the parlors upstairs. About a dozen local Celestials were present, who joined in the games played with great gusto. They also enjoyed the refeshments that were provided.

BOWLING STILL GOING ON.

On the King's Birthday, Nov. 9, a rink of bowlers chosen from the brokers of the city, will meet an all-star team of bowlers from the London club, to play for the final championship of the greens.

JUDGE HUGHES TO WED.

A special from St. Thomas says: D. J. Hughes, for 50 years county judge of Elgin, who was superannuated last October, and who is in the 85th year of his age, will be married this month to Miss Ada Rowland, daughter of the late Edward Rowland, collector of customs, in this city.

CONCERT AT ILDERTON.

A concert was given in the Ilderton Presbyetrian Church Monday evening, which proved to be a great success. Donld C. MacGregor proved to be as claimed, "The great Canadian baritone," for in his songs entitled "The Old Veteran," "Boys Will Be Boys" and "The Dear Little Girl," etc., he almost charmed the audience. Miss White, of Dutton, also is a great soloist; Miss Craig, of London, an excellent elocutionist, and Miss Albright, of London, A. L. C. M., is one of the best accompanists in this part of America. All were much appreciated and the audience went home well satisfied after hearing one of the best programmes ever rendered in Ilderton or vicinity.

THE LEPER MISSION.

The annual meeting of the London branch of the Leper Mission was held in the parlor of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Robertson, in the chair. Mr. Rollins, of King Street Presbyterian Church, gave a most helpful and instructive Bible reading. A very effective missionary solo was sympathetically rendered by Miss Little. The thank offering amounted to $34 50. The following officers were elected for the coming years: Mrs. Robertson, president; Miss Fraser, vice-president; Miss Smallman, organist; Miss Davis, corresponding secretary; Miss Boon, recording secretary.

POSTOFFICE MOVED.

The postoffice at Rebecca, in West Nissouri, has been changed from the residence of Mr. Samuel Duffin to that of Mr. Frank Ashman nearby. The change was made recently. The impression has gone abroad that the transfer was brought about by a statement made by Mr. A. Thomson, driver of the Evelyn stage, that Mr. Duffin, the former postmaster was endeavoring "to run the postoffice." Mr. Thomson denies having said anything whatever that would have brought Mr. Duffin into disfavor with the postal authorities.

RECITAL BY BLIND.

A successful musical recital was given in Society Hall, Dundas street, East London, last evening by two blind musicians—Mr. P. B. Richards, pianist, of Oxford street, and Mr. R. Malcolm, vocalist of Mount Brydges. A small admission fee was charged for the benefit of the performers, and after the concert a dance was held in the hall. The musical programme was entirely furnished by Messrs. Richardson and Malcolm, and it included a number of popular selections.

WILL GO TO HAMILTON.

Mr. George McLaren, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., will spend Thanksgiving Day in Hamilton, where there is a meeting of the Physical Directors' Association. An experiment will be made in weighing and examining the men who contest in the Herald road race. Before and after the race the contestants will be weighed and the difference will be noted in the association's statistics.

MAY HAVE NO SUCCESSOR.

No successor has as yet been appointed to take the place of Mr. Howard Eaman, secretary of the junior department of the Y. M. C. A., who resigned recently. Messrs. Hopper and McLaren will look after the duties of the position for a time, at least, and it is probable that the services of a junior secretary may be dispensed with.

DEATH OF MRS. REED.

The death ocurred at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. J. Parkinson, of 429 Pall Mall street, this morning, of Mrs. Mary Reed, relict of the late R. B. Reed. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock from the above address to the G. T. R. station. Interment will take place at Wilkesport in the afternoon.

A MONSTER MACHINE

London Company Turns Out an Immense Plane for Intercolonial.

The London Machine Tool Company, of this city, has completed what is undoubtedly the largest piece of machinery ever made in London. It is a huge iron-working planer, 12 feet high, 10 feet wide and 40 feet long. A small machine planer of the ordinary type which is usually used in shops is placed on top of the great machine to bring out the idea of the latter's size, and the contrast is certainly striking. The machine weights 120,000 pounds, or 60 tons. But the most interesting feature about it is that it has been built for the Intercolonial Railway, and is to be shipped to Moncton, N. B. It will require three flat cars to carry it. When the distance is considered, and also the number of nearby American firms to whom the contract might have been awarded, it will be seen how highly the work of the London firm is thought of. It is also an evidence of the fast increasing importance of this city as a manufacturing center.

The huge planer in question is powerfully geared, and has four cutting heads, capable of removing a total of fifteen tons of iron planings a day. It will be used to plane big cast iron frames.

Sweet as a Rose.

Flossie seats herself on the stool, and turns her blue eyes with defiant mockery on Paula's apprehensive face.

"It is the one thing I can do," she says. "What will you have—something blithesome and flashing, to dispel sentiment, something like this?"

And her fingers fly over the keys, and a wild Bacchanalian dance resounds through the room, to which the rippling laughter of the player keeps an harmonious accompaniment.

Paula stands bewitched, her dark eyes fixed upon the elfish face, crowned by its short curls. But the music ceases suddenly.

"That will not do; you do not care for it, and I want to please you. This, then;"

And the thin fingers touch the keys softly, and the musical voice sings a soft, flowing melody.

Paula stands amazed, touched, and—uneasy. There is something weird and unnatural in it. She cannot but remember that the performer is hovering 'twixt life and death. Who is she—what is she, that she can sing like this—change from one mood to another at will?

"Is that too mournful?" asks Flossie, with a mocking smile. "Listen!" and with an upward movement of the supple wrist she strikes the opening chords of her song in "Old King Cole," and dashes into the first verse.

Paula stands amazed and astounded. Suddenly, in the midst of it, Flossie stops, and looks at the lovely face bent over her.

"You don't like it? No, I can understand. I will sing no more. Are you fond of dance music?"

Her fingers, straying over the keys as she speaks, strike them now, and—oh! strange and wonderful coincidence—there floats through the room that waltz which she and Sir Herrick danced to on the gravel path outside the Court ball-room.

Wrought to an unusual pitch of excitement already, this is the climax for Paula. Every note of the familiar waltz recalls that night—recalls him who is dead to her, him who has left her forever.

With flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes Flossie plays on, unconscious that her companion's head has dropped lower, and that bitter, scalding tears are welling in the dark eyes.

At last Paula can bear it no longer. She lays a faltering hand upon Flossie's shoulder—half in command, half in entreaty—and the waltz comes suddenly to an end.

"No more?" says Flossie, laughing. "Are you tired? That was my favorite waltz! Ah, you are crying!" she says, beneath her breath.

"No, no," says Paula, trying to smile through her tears.

"But you were! Why? Tell me?" eagerly.

Paula hesitates a moment, then she looks down at her through unshed tears.

"Yes, I was crying. It was foolish; but I could not help it. I beg your pardon. The last time I heard that waltz I was—ah, so happy—and now——"

"Go on!" says Flossie, looking up at her, her own face pale and strained.

Paula gazes down at her as if she did no see her.

"When I heard that waltz last I was a girl, scarcely knowing what love meant. Now I know! It touched me to hear it, that is all. Go on playing—please."

"No," says Flossie, with a strange smile. "I am not used to seeing people cry when I play or sing. And this waltz reminded you——"

Paula forces a laugh.

"Of the time when I was very young and very foolish, and believed that happiness was possible in this world! I must have been very young and foolish, you see!"

"And he?" says Flossie, with a long-drawn breath.

"He!" says Paula, smiling through her tears. "Oh, it is the same old story; he loved someone else better—far better—and—that is all!"

Flossie looks up at the lovely face, so full of purity and dignity, so full of patience and long-suffering, and she rises slowly, painfully.

"Will you give me your arm to the sofa?" she says. "I have sung my last song, played my last waltz. I—I who used to make them laugh, have made you cry. Help me to the sofa!"

Paula almost carries the slight, frail form to the couch, and Flossie leans back for a moment in silence; then she raises herself and looks at Paula.

"You must have suffered much," she says in a strange voice.

Paula smiles.

"Suffered!" she says lightly. "Everybody suffers, sooner or later."

"And suffer!" says Flossie, with a wise shake of the head. "You are not of the kind who forget."

Paula smiles.

"Does anyone ever really forget?" she says, absently turning over the books on the table. "I think not. We sometimes flatter ourselves that we do, but, sometimes, when we are least expecting it, the great sorrow, or, perhaps, the great joy, comes back to us; and of the two"—with a reflective light in her deep eyes, and a pensive smile on her lips—"of the two, I think the memory of the great joy is the harder to bear."

Flossie leans back and looks up at her, a look of intense, strained attention in her eyes, her pretty Grecian face pale and wan. That some sort of struggle was going on within her bosom, anyone might have seen, but Paula was lost in the past and blind.

A slight sigh broke from Flossie's lips and she put her jeweled fingers to her lips with a gesture of hesitation and wistful weakness.

"Perhaps you will say, too, that it is impossible for us to forgive?" she murmurs in so low a voice that it scarcely breaks the silness of the room.

Paula sighs and shakes her head.

"Oh, no, I think it is easy to forgive."

"Easy?" and the blue eyes open wide.

Paula laughs softly.

"Yes, easy. What does it matter,once the wrong is done? If you canont repair it, and cannot forget it, at least you can forgive. Besides, one cannot hate what one scorns, or what one loves. Do you understand?"

Flossie's face grows paler.

"I—I think I understand," she says, and her fingers close on to the palms of her hands. "Yes"—gazing at the lovely face so calm and serene in its purity and nobleness, gazing up at it with a childish kind of wonder as if it were the face of a superior being—"you, you are noble while I—I forgive!" And the red lips open and show a line of white ivory. "If I hate, I hate to the death! While you"—she stops—"would you be very angry if I asked you a question?" falteringly.

"Ask me twenty," says Paula, and she moves and leans against the couch and looks dreamily down at Flossie's multitudinous trinkets and rings, which glitter in the sunlight like raindrops on a marble statue.

Flossie's heart beats fast.

"You say that you can forgive those who have wronged you if you love them, because of your love, and forgive those whom you scorn because of your scorn? Have I got it right?"

Paula nods.

"How serious you are," she says.

And her hand strays to the short curls. The tone of her voice, the caressing gesture, were just such as she would have used to a wayward child.

"Then you have forgiven him?—you are not angry?"

For she feels Paula's hand suddenly clasp still and motionless.

"No," says Paula. "But why do you speak of it?"

"You said you would answer me," pleads Flossie. "You have forgiven him, I suppose?"

"Yes, oh, yes," says Paula, as calmly as she can. "He knows—he knew that at once, when we parted."

Flossie's breath comes fast.

"You forgive him! It is wonderful! I—I should have hated him. No, even if I had loved him, I could not have forgiven him. But she—she who came between you—you could not forgive her? Suppose, for instance—it's absurd, of course"—she raises herself on her elbow, and gives a faint, flickering laugh, while her eyes fix themselves on Paula's dreamy ones—"suppose she came to you and—and told you that she was sorry—of course, she would not! It's absurd; no woman ever did or would. But just for argument's sake, supposing she came and went on her knees to you, and asked you to forgive her, what would you say?"

Paula's face is quite pale and she stands silent for a moment.

"I hope she would not," she says very quietly. "I do not think she would—the happy so seldom need forgiveness. She is happy with him——"

Flossie starts, and raises her hand to her lips just in time to stop the exclamation that nearly sprang from them.

"Ah, I see," she says. "You think he went from you to her, of course—I suppose he must have done—and they were happy, while you"—she stops. She is trembling visibly, and the two spots glow like red camelias on her pale cheeks. "I thought you would break down," she says with a laugh. "A saint—and you are nearly one, I think—couldn't forgive her."

Paula is silent for a moment, then she says:

"I am not the least bit of a saint, but I could forgive her."

Flossie utters no word of comment, either of unbelief or surprise; but her eyes close and her hands clasp each other very tightly.

Paula looks down at her with tender concern.

"I think I must go now," she says. "I have tired you again."

Flossie shakes her head, and two big tears fall from under her closed lids.

"But, yes," says Paula. "You are far too weak to bear even the mild excitement of a psychological discussion."

"Weak! Yes, I am weak!" murmurs Flossie with bitter self-scorn. "But, perhaps," wistfully, "I shall be strong some day, and then—then—will you come and see me again? It is very slow for you——"

"I will come," says Paula, "and very often if you will let me."

"Yes, I will 'let' you," says Flossie, with a strange smile.

"Don't trouble to ring," says Paula. "I can find my hat and jacket. Good-bye," and moved to infinite pity for the pale, beautiful face, she stoops to kiss it; but with a sudden gesture Flossie puts up her thin hands and puts them against Paula's bosom to ward her off.

"No," she pants. "Not—not yet!" Then seeing Paula's face crimson with surprise, she catches her hand, and holding it tightly, "You — you don't think it is because I do not like you that I will not let you kiss me? Don't think that. You will know some day why—why I will not. Some day I shall tell you, but not yet—not yet." Then, seeing Paula's face still perplexed and troubled, she adds, with a nervous, forced laugh, that rings sad and thin, "Haven't you heard about the superstition about kissing? You have not? I am very superstitious. So much so as to believe that those I kiss I must injure."

Paula stares, then her lips open and she laughs softly, incredulously.

"Yes, that is right, laugh!" says Flossie, eagerly, still clinging to her hand. "I—I like to hear you. Of course, it is only a weak girl's fancy. But, as the doctors say, 'We must humor it.' Good-bye!" and with a strange gesture of suppressed emotion, she turns her head away, so that it is hidden from Paula's gaze and Paula goes quietly out of the room.

Woman's Greatest Enemy

Constipation the Cause of Most Women's Trouble - An Easy Way to Permanently Cure This Painful Condition.

There are few women indeed who do not suffer with chronic constipation. Nearly all are slaves to some kind of medicine to correct this trouble, and yet they get nothing but temporary relief. One period of constipation is followed by another, and it's physic, physic, physic, year in and year out, till life becomes a burden.

There is now a sure cure for this condition, and a cure that does not have to be repeated. It is Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill.

Dr. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., is the author of this prescription. He used it for years with wonderful success in his own large practice as a remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness and constipation.

Many ladies who have suffered for years are now enjoying good health, and a perfect freedom from the old constipation, through the use of Anti-Pill.

Mrs. Tabb, 287 Emerald street north, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"I am no longer troubled with constipation. I cannot praise Anti-Pill too highly."

SATURDAY'S GAME WAS HARDEST THE TIGERS PLAYED THIS SEASON

Cal Davis and C. W. Kirkpatrick, of the Times and Spectator, respectively, accompanied the Hamilton Tigers to this city on Saturday, and in their reports of the game they say:

The Times: Hamilton Senior Tigers played the last game in the western district series on Saturday at London, and wound up with an unbroken record of victories. The last was the hardest game, but, even at that, was easy enough, and for the first time the yellow and black scored a shut-out against their opponents. Probably 1,200 people were in the grand stand when they (the Hamilton contingent) arrived, and the London and Petrolea juniors were just finishing their game. The Tigers went on the field for a short practice in a heavy shower of rain, which was still falling when the teams lined up. However, the skies soon cleared, and both weather and grounds were pretty fair, enough for good football, although the ball was heavy and slippery.

Hamilton proved superior at every branch of the game, except in the old-fashioned scrimmage. When it came to ten men on each side pushing in a heap at once, London almost invariably got the better of it—but that style of game does not count for much nowadays, although it seemed very popular with the London crowd. The Londoners did not make many mistakes, either. Their line was strong and pretty fast. With the notable exception of Field, they checked their men pretty well. Their quarter passed well, and their halves were fast and sure, while McLennan at back played a brilliant game. But, as a whole, they were not in the Tigers' class. Peel is their best half, and would be a good deal better if he did not try to play dirty. Most of the Londoners tried to rough it. They laid for Simpson in particular, and he took all that was offered without saying a word, and played the best game he has ever put up. Referee Woodsworth's opinion of London is that with George Ballard as captain and one week to drill them they would be so good that Hamilton could not beat them worse than 18 to 12.

The Spec: The score is not a good indication of the play in Saturday's game, for while the Londons were shut out, they played a strong, aggressive game throughout, and gave the Tigers the hardest fight they have had this season. Individually, they player good football, but they apparently knew nothing about combination play and were, as a consequence, outclassed. However, with a little coaching on the fine points of the game and on team work the Londoners should next year be strong enough to give even the Tigers a hard fight for the championship. Football is on the boom in London, and a first-class team would undoubtedly be liberally patronized. The attendance on Saturday conclusively proved that, for although the weather was anything but favorable, and although very few thought that the Londons had a ghost of a chance against the champions, nearly a thousand people paid 25 cents to get into the grounds and 15 cents in addition for the privilege of getting into the grand-stand. More than two hundred of the crowd were from Hamilton, they having accompanied the Tigers on their special train, which left here at noon and returned shortly after midnight.

Cry of the Baseball World Today Is for More Batting

More batting is now the cry in the baseball world throughout the length and breadth of the land, writes Sam Crane in the New York American. But do these calamity howlers, who see in the continuance of the "spit ball" a bugaboo to batting that is simply ridiculous, realize that very few if any natural batters fell off to any appreciable extent?

The "expectoration ball" is no more dangerous to batting, nor so much so, as were the "curve," the "shoot," the "drop," the "raise," change of pace, and many other famous deliveries that were expected to revolutionize the game when they first were sprung on the dazed batter. But did the batter throw up his hands and cry quits? No, he simply studied up plans and schemes to offset the temporary advantage gained by the pitcher, by the use of the new and unexpected ball, and the batter invariably gained his point in the end, and as a general thing without legislation to gain his object.

In the 80's, the twirler could take a running jump at the batter with his back to the plate when he started the delivery, and could take as many steps as he pleased in a six foot box and only 45 feet away from the plate. The pitchers, too, had all the speed, curves and shoots that twirlers have now, and to face the lengthy Jim Whitney or men of his height, who appeared to be right on top of you at that short distance, required no little courage, but the batters faced that cyclone style and laced the ball out, too, in a way that would drive some of the batters of the present day to the permanent bench or the tall timber. Look at the pitching Jim O'Rourke, Roger Connor, "Cap" Anson, John Ward, Ed. Williams, Mike Kelly, Pete Gillespie and other famous sluggers were obliged to face. And perhaps they couldn't hit the ball. Why, those hitters, and they were hitters, made themselves famous and gained their popularity simply by their batting.

Men like Dan Brouthers, Anson, Connors and others were hired simply for their ability to swat. They couldn't be called fielders by the greatest stretch of imagination. They would have laughed at the "spit ball," as they did at the "curve," the "drop" and other balls. They gave the pitchers credit for having them and then laid themselves out to pummel those particular puzzlers.

Those batters of today who are making a "squeal" over the "spit ball" while the pitcher is obliged to face the plate and throw the ball where you can see it from start to finish and 35 feet away have little to do.

The way to improve batting is to get the batters. In those good old days of good old hitters, there were beef and brawn behind every swipe.

It is a question whether the baseball public of today would not welcome a change to the old "gigantic" conditions. But things will equalize themselves without any radical change in the present rules of play.

Once a batter, always a batter. That was a rule that held when sluggers could slug, and it holds today, "spit ball" or no.

TROPHIES PRESENTED TO WINNERS AT A BANQUET OF ROAD DRIVERS

Association Marks Close of the Season in a Very Appropriate Way—Dr. Wood Honored.

A more pleasing and successful closing to the season of the Amateur Road Drivers' Association could not have been desired than the event in the Knights of Pythias Hall, corner of Dundas and Clarence streets, last evening. The sport at the Queen's Park matinees during the summer months was all that the horsemen of London could have hoped for, and it was the feeling of one and all that the close should be marked in some suitable way. A banquet, at which the various trophies, could be presented, was the result. The representative horsemen of the city were present, and every person was enthusiastic over the success of the association.

Mr. George McCormick, president of the association, acted as chairman, and he introduced one of the most pleasing features of the evening when he called upon Dr. Fred L. Wood and presented him with a handsome gold locket,given on behalf of the doctor's fellow-members of the association as a token of the appreciation of his good services as secretary during the season. He had been of inestimable benefit to the association generally. He had helped greatly to start the amateur association, and the locket was but a form of expressing the gratitude which every member felt toward him.

Dr. Wood modestly replied to the honor done him, and stated that above all he was thankful that anything which he had done was appreciated. He was glad that the association had met such success, and he thought every member would strive to further its interests. Although he himself had won no cups, he was always willing to go back and try, and he felt that the other members were willing to show the same spirit.

Following the presentation Dr. Routledge was called upon to present the cup won by Ada B, owned by Mr. Wm. Robinson. In a neat speech the prize was presented and accepted. Mr. Norman McLeod was presented with a cup offered by Dr. Tennent, V. S., for the best heats, made by Lady Mac. Mr. Frank Sage was presented by Mr. Jas. McCartney with the cup (won by Russian), and Mr. McCormick was presented by Dr. Abbott with the cup won by Mona B. for worked trotters, and finally Mayor Beck presented the championship cup, donated by the Free Press, to Mr. McCormick, the cup having been won by Johnnie K.

In making the presentation the mayor spoke of the great interest that had been stirred up by the association; of how the horses of Canada were being raised in standard by such undertakings, and lastly he proposed that a good horse show be held in London, and said that he believed that it could be made to equal and surpass any show held in a city of London's size. His remarks were heartily applauded.

A good musical programme was contributed during the evening by Dr. Wood, Mr. J. W. McIntosh, William Skinner, William Brophy and William Ward. Messrs. John Wood and Skinner acted as accompanists.

The supper served was an excellent one, and was done justice to by all.

Among those in attendance were Dr. Routledge, M. P. P.; Mayor Beck, Mr. George McCormick, Dr. Fred L. Wood, J. W. McIntosh, Thomas Hamlyn, J. H. Cook, J. Coleridge, W. A. Hagerman, W. T. Brooks, W. J. Gray, D. A. McEwen, J. A. Brownlee, R. J. Wood, F. E. Sage, Dr. Albertson, William Ward, Thomas Gillean, William Collins, John F. Wood, W. E. Robinson, James Houston, R. Barnes, V. S.; Norman McLeod, Dr. Tennent, V. S.; D. Fraser, Dr. Harry Abbott, L. E. Bell, W. H. Brophy; John M. Daly, H. S. Wilcox, Jas. McCartney, R. Lloyd, J. W. Metherall, G. W. Rose, John Lawson, Ed Hunter, Wm. Walker, J. L. Wood, John Lashbrook, W. E. Woodhull, W. C. Ross, John S. Brown.

DELMAR CROWNED KING OF TROTTERS

New York, Nov. 5.—Maj. Delmar, 2:01¼, the greatest trotter the world has ever known, received a warm welcome at Speedway Park Saturday. It was the fifth closing matinee of the Road Drivers' Association, and all else was overshadowed by the presence of the trotting king. Smathers drove Maj. Delmar.

At the head of the macadam speedway approach a platoon of mounted police and a delegation of road drivers awaited the coming champion.

When on the return march the champion reached the grand stand President Dodge dismounted and, picking up a huge wreath of chrysanthemums, so heavy that he had to have assistance, crowned Delmar, king of trotters, he having defeated all the great horses of the day and won the Memphis gold cup. Mr. Smathers was congratulated on the success of the horse.

Smathers made a brief acknowledgment, and then the crowd broke forth in applause. The famous horse then was driven by his owner several fast exhibitions, with Trainer McDonald driving the runner as a companion.

POPULARITY WAS NEVER EQUALED

King Kelly Had More Admirers Than Any Other Ball Player Ever on the Diamond.

Ten years ago Thursday, Michael J. Kelly died in Boston, Mass. A decade has not produced the equal of "King Kelly." Great base runners, great catchers, great batters, great "inside" players, tricky players, emergency players, great coaches have come, but in no one man has there been combined the qualities of greatness on the ball field that belonged to the king pin of the diamond—the incomparable Mike Kelly. No man has earned the great national popularity among sport lovers that Kelly attained. There are several times as many baseball enthusiasts today as there were in Kelly's time, and baseball idols exist in many cities. Boston has Collins and Cy Young, New York has Mathewson, McGinnity, and Chesbro; Chicago has Jones and Kling; Cleveland has the greatest of present players in mere playing ability, Lajoie, but none of these players approaches Kelly in the degree of popularity attained on ball fields outside of his own city. Kelly was everywhere a drawing card, a "mark" for the fans. The serious devotees of the game cheered him, the sarcastic brigades in the bleachers joshed him, merely to hear his witty replies, and everybody liked to see him play ball. Collins, Young, Jones and others have made warm friends, who admire these men for their quiet earnestness and devotion to the success of the team, and for their skill, but they lack the vivacity and daring possessed by "Kel." They have no witty sallies in stock with which to reply to the bleacherites. Jones and Chesbro and Kling have proved resourceful during the thick of a game when a quick idea has turned the tide of victory, but none of them is more so than was Kelly, who originated many of the fine points in the professional game that are now a part of the regular play. Kelly, too, was a good fellow off the diamond, and popular with the players, managers and magnates. He was generous and a spendthrift. He had a great weakness that was more or less accountable for his early death, his overconvivial habits, but even in this respect he served baseball a good turn, for his example in this particular became a warning to other brilliant ball players, and drinking among professionals of the diamond has declined to a minimum.

SETTING PITCHER BACK MADE BATTING HEAVY

The year 1887 saw the pitcher set back five feet and it was then the batting averages took a great leap. This was the year in which the National had 68 men batting .300. The American Association made an equally remarkable showing. They also had 68 men exceeding .300 and 11 over .400. O'Neil led with the enormous average of .492, which made a safe hit every other time he faced the pitcher. In the two leagues the total of .300 hitters was 136, against 12 in 1904—a bit of a difference. The base-running was equally notable. Seven Americans stole above 100 bases. Stovey broke all records by purloining 143 bags. Latham pushed him close with 142 and Nicol had 135. Thirty men stole more than 50. The National had two men who got over the 100 mark. John Ward stole 111 and Jimmy Fogarty 102. Ten men got away with the trick 50 times and over. Of course, there will arise those to say that the catching was not as good in those days as now. But a look at the list of back-stoppers in both leagues refutes this argument. They never made better catchers than Bennett, perhaps the greatest that ever donned a mask: Clements, Ganzel, Ewing, Flint, McGuire, O'Rourke, Mack, Carroll, Kelly, Lave Cross, Robinson and Snyder.

The post of the late A. B. Cox, of this city, on the O. H. A. executive, has been filled by Mr. J. G. Merrick, of Toronto. The appointment was made by President John Ross Robertson.

DAN PATCH TO GO AGAINST HIS RECORD

That the plant of the New Orleans Jockey Club, which has been under construction since last spring, will be ready for operation by Dec. 1 is evidenced by the fact that a big harness matinee is to be held there the first week in December. Arrangements have already been completed with M. W. Savage, of Minneapolis, owner of Dan Patch, the famous pacer, for a trial against his record of 1:56, for which a liberal purse will be given. In addition a $2,500 purse is to be hung up for Louisiana trotters, 2:12 class.

The one day matinee for the harness horses is all that will be attempted this fall to avoid interference with the Crescent City Jockey Club's meeting, which will be in progress at the time. Dan Patch is now at Memphis. He will be shipped to New Orleans the latter part of November. It is expected that the great horse will equal or lower his record, as the track, while a new one, has been so constructed that it will be very fast. Moreover, it has been designed with a view to trotting as well as running, the turns being widened to the requirements of harness racing.

THE OFFICE MUST SEEK THE MAN

O. H. A. President Objects to a Personal Canvass for Executive Votes.

In regard to the canvassing of votes for election to the O. H. A. executive, Mr. J. Ross Robertson, the president, has sent out the following letter:

"Might I, as a friend of hockey, writing, I believe, in the best interests of the game, call your attention, also a friend of hockey, to the growing evil of canvassing for votes, more particularly with regard to governing positions upon the executive of the O. H. A.?

"You must realize as well as I do, that the best canvasser is not always the best official, and I hope you will not misunderstand me when I suggest that the best interests of hockey demand that it should be the ambition of every club to send unpledged delegates to the annual convention of the O. H. A.

"I am moved to send this appeal because, in my judgment, a serious wrong has been done to the O. H. A. by the weakness of representatives who are the product of this system of canvassing for votes.

"Office should seek the man and not man the office, and this is the principle which should actuate all who have any ambition in that direction.

"I am sure that you will agree with me that if the O. H. A. is to maintain its reputation as a well-conducted organization under the charge of those who have the highest interests of amateurism at heart, it must be managed in a spirit of fidelity to this sound principle.

"Will you kindly have this letter read to your club at its next meeting. A reading may do some good. It can do no harm."

"KID FARMER" GOES DOWN FOR ROBBERY

Chicago, Nov. 8.—"Kid Farmer," the prize fighter, on Friday was sent to the penitentiary for life for robbery. He collapsed completely and was carried unconscious to his cell.

His two partners in crime, Joseph Feinberg, his brother, and William O'Connell also were sentenced to life imprisonment.

All three of the robbers are in the twenties.

"Kid Farmer's" real name is Benjamin Feinberg. He has whipped many good lightweights and was forging to the front of his class when he was caught at highway robbery. His collapse in court today was a great surprise to many who have seen his many plucky ring battles.

THE TURF.

SWEET MARIE GREAT WINNER.

Sweet Marie has earned close to $25,000, ten times the sum she cost Mr. Garland at auction a few years ago. There will be a class for her in 1905, and Mr. Gwathmey's Tiverton, 2:04½, and E. E. Smathers' Dr. Strong, 2:07¼, promise to start therein, to say nothing of such as Fereno, McKinley, George G. Snyder McGregor and a few others.

The wonderful mare—the greatest in all turf history as a race machine—can earn $10,000 or over before she is out of commission, so seems a splendid investment if she keeps sound and in robust health.

YESTERDAY'S TURF WINNERS.

GOOD MAJORITY FOR MR. ROSS

Reports Indicate That Government Can Be Re elected—Is Dissolution at Hand?

Toronto, Nov. 8. — Unless all signs fail, the dissolution of the Ontario Legislature will be announced at once, and the Province will be in the throes of another general election. Premier Ross, when seen yesterday, had no announcement to make, but about the Parliament buildings an announcement is expected almost any day now. The Premier is in excellent health, and spirits. Indeed, all who have seen him recently affirm that they have not seen him looking so well in many years, and they predict that when he goes to the country he will put up the fight of his life.

The North Grey election trial was to have been resumed yesterday, but was adjourned on Saturday, on an application made in private chambers, and assented to by all parties.

Mr. James Baird, solicitor for the Conservatives, was asked what was the reason of the postponement.

"Dissolution, I suppose," he said.

"Was that reason openly given?"

"No, but it was mentioned indirectly. Something was said about what was appearing in the papers."

"Why did you consent to the postponement?"

"Oh, I consented on that understanding."

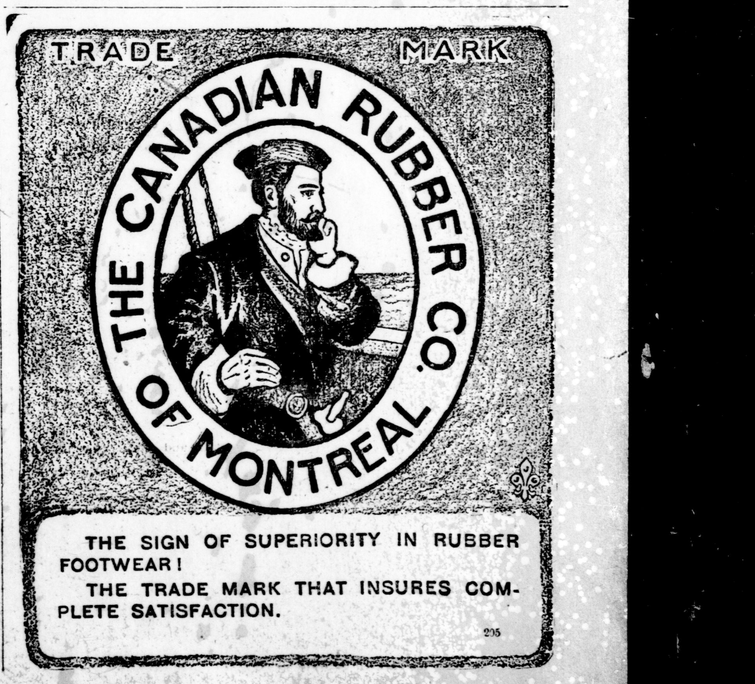

The day now set for the trial is Saturday, Nov. 12, which in itself is a suspicious date, as no important sitting would be begun on Saturday. There is little doubt that by Saturday, not only North Grey, but every seat in the Province will be vacant, by dissolution.

Mr. George P. Graham, who has been slated for the provincial secretaryship, arrived in the city Sunday night.

When seen he protested that he had come to the city on purely private business, and that his visit had absolutely no political significance. He expected to be in the city until this afternoon, but so far as he knew he would not see the Premier or any of the other cabinet ministers.

During the last few days a large number of the Liberal members of the House have called upon the Premier, and no doubt he has consulted them about the outlook in the Province for the reorganized cabinet. Generally speaking, the reports indicate that the Government can be re-elected by a good majority. Among the callers was Mr. Valentine Stock, of Tavistock.

The impression is gradually getting stronger that the cabinet reconstruction will not be so radical as was at first rumored. Mr. Gibson is expected to remain with the attorney-generalship, and Messrs. Harcourt and Dryden with their respective portfolios.

LONDON AND DISTRICT

—Miss F. Ellis, Montreal, is in the city, where she will remain until after Christmas.

—Miss Minnie Britton, of this city, is on a visit to friends in Toronto and Georgetown.

—Mr. Norman Mackenzie, son of Judge Mackenzie, of Sarnia, is the Liberal member-elect for Alberta.

—During the absence of Chairman MacRobert, Trustee Birtwistle is acting chairman of the board of education.

—Mrs. George F. Hardy and little daughter, of Euclid avenue, South London, are visiting the former's parents, in Brantford.

—Miss Gertrude Leake, 731 Waterloo street, left yesterday on an extended trip to California. Before returning, she will visit friends in San Francsco, Oakland, Palo Alto and San Jose.

—Madame Egbert, who pleased such a large audience at the Wellington Street Church last night, is tendering a benefit concert to the B.M.E. Church, in aid of its furnace fund, on Wednesday evening.

—A very successful piano recital was given on Saturday afternoon last by the pupils of Miss Mabel Pink, at her home, 146 Hamilton road. Those who took part were Misses Ida Patton, Marion Moule, Ethel Ram, May Mitchell, Hilda Keene, Myrtle Hicks, Lillie Gilmore, Alice Keene, Ethel Luney, Edna Taylor, Gertie Wilkey and Laura Barton. Little Verna Pink sang "There Is a Green Hill Far Away."

—Rev. Mr. Stevens, returned missionary from China, gave a very interesting talk on Sunday night in the Kensington Methodist Mission. The collection, which amounted to $12 00, was on behalf of foreign missions. The Sunday School of the same mission also contributed over eight dollars in the afternoon for the same object. This speaks very well for a small home mission, and while auguring success in the work at home, cheers the heart of Pastor Salton.

ENTERTAINED HIS CLASS.

The other evening Mr. Charles W. Vansickle, of 400 Rectory street, entertained the class which he teaches in the Adelaide Street Baptist Sunday School. After tea was served the evening was spent enjoyably in games and music. Miss Edna Vansickle presided at the piano, and Miss Daisy Quick delighted the company with several vocal solos. Among those present were Misses Daisy Quick, Ethel Stuart, Ruby Howett, Verna Taylor, Mary Brown, Willa Taylor, Amie Angus, Rosie Angus, Rhoda Barclay, Sarah Skinner, Maggie Graham, Maggie Bell, Ada Goold.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

A joint Thanksgiving service for the St. Andrew's and First Presbyterian congregations will be held in the latter's church a week from Thursday. Rev. Dr. Ross will officiate. A union service for all the Methodist congregations of the city will be held in the First Methodist Church. Rev. Dr. Daniel, pastor of Colborne Street Church, will conduct the service. All the choirs of the churches will also unite for the occasion, together with their leaders.

A CHURCH CONCERT.

The concert given in Wellington Street Methodist Church last night by Madame Egbert, of Detroit, and the Ball family of Jubilee singers, was very much enjoyed by an audience that completely filled the edifice. Mme. Egbert's soprano voice is rich in tone and well trained. Her numbers were given many an encore. She sang "From All Eternity" (Marchesi), and the waltz song "Freedom." Rev. Mr. Ball, pastor of Horton Street Baptist Church, together with his wife and family sang their jubilee songs, in a manner that was highly appreciated. Mr. J. W. Fetherstone, choirmaster and organist of the church, played the accompaniments.

DR. ROSS' LECTURE

Pastor of St. Andrew's Talks on "Scottish Life and Character."

A large and appreciative audience listened to Rev. Dr. Ross' lecture on "Scottish Life and Character," in St. Andrew's Church last night. Mr. Ross spoke, first, of the external conditions of Scottish peasant life. The cottages of these people, mostly of stone now, were once built of turf and roofed with thatch. They used to contain only two rooms, the proverbial "but" and "ben," floored with clay. A flat stone was sunk in the middle of the floor to serve as a fireplace. The windows were small, owing to the tax on glass in those days. The lecturer also described the daily fare of the peasants, consisting largely of porridge and potatoes, and their amusements, one of the chief of which was the occasion of a marriage, with all its queer customs. Lastly, Dr. Ross described the Scottish character, illustrating his remarks by quotations from Ian McLaren.

Some enjoyable Scottish songs were given in the course of the evening by Mrs. Charles Wheeler and Miss Mowat, accompanied by Mr. C. E. Wheeler.

ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY

Boy Knocked Down by a Horse on Dundas Street.

Last evening, about 9 o'clock, when the Seventh Regiment in the course of its route march was turning north on Wellington street from Dundas, a horse attached to a light buggy, took fright at the band. Before its head could be caught by the bystanders, the horse knocked down a small boy who was standing on the edge of the crowd. It was at first feared one of the wheels had passed over the lad and that he was seriously hurt. The band stopped playing and the regiment came to a halt. The boy was slightly stunned, but beyond a few bruises he received no serious hurt, and was able to walk home. People with horses and light rigs often come too near the band, either through carelessness or "just for fun."

Old Sheds To Be Deserted After a Few More Drills

Seventh Regiment Will Soon Take Up Its Quarters in the New Armories.

The Seventh Regiment, London's crack military corps, had another successful route march through the city streets last night. The turnout was not quite as large as it was on the occasion of the preceding march, but not enough stayed away to cause any noticeable shrinkage in the ranks, and the men showed that they have been profiting by the drill instruction of the last few weeks to a very marked degree. The recruits, who are quite numerous, have been working faithfully at their drill and can no longer be called "raw"—that designation which is so properly applied to men who are yet noticeably new to the drill. The successful soldier needs not only to be able to carry out the instructions which are given by the officers in command, but to carry them out with a certain vigor, and at the same time a certain ease, which only comes after a month or so of familiarity with the drill. And that the Seventh as a unit has reached that stage was attested to last night, as the men fell into rank at the call of the bugle, came promptly to the order, "ported" arms for the customary inspection, dropped into the marching order of fours and moved out of the shed to the stirring sounds of a march played by the crack band under the leadership of Bandsergeant Dawson.

The route of march was as follows: From the shed through the park to Dufferin avenue, to Richmond street, to Dundas, to Ridout, to Richmond, to the G. T. R. station, to Dundas, to Wellington and back to the sheds. Before the dismissal, Col. Little complimented the regiment on the showing it was making, and added that the drill of last night would be one of the last that would be held in the old shed. He could assure the corps that after a very few more drills were over, it would be in its fine new home on Dundas street.

It was also announced that a lecture would be delivered in the shed tomorrow night by Sergt.-Major Munro, of the barracks, upon the subject of "Attack and Defense." The lecture will be held in the band room, and all members of the regiment will be welcomed.

But the lecture will be especially for Companies C and D, who are to have what promises to be a very successful field day on Thanksgiving Day, a week from Thursday. These two companies, commanded respectively by Capts. John Graham and Frank Reid, with First Lieuts. Fred Andrews and Gordon Ingram, will march to a spot between the city and the village of St. Johns, where some interesting military maneuvers will be gone through, one company taking the part of attack and the other that of defense. Afterwards, the companies will repair to the hotel in the village for dinner, and will then return to the city in special busses. The field day will no doubt be a most enjoyable outing.

On Monday evening next a meeting of the members of the regiment will be held after drill for the purpose of reorganizing the regiment's athletic association, which controls the winter sports which are engaged in. It is not thought likely that the corps will enter a hockey team in any league this season, but an indoor baseball league will be organized, each company entering a team. Monday's meeting will be especially for the purpose of arranging a schedule of matches, he men have been practicing all along, and many have attained a surprising degree of proficiency. Some good games are expected in the league.

The bugle corps of the Seventh is progressing very rapidly. The notes of the bugle marches last night were stronger, clearer and more consonant than they were several weeks ago. When the corps went to Toronto in 1901, on the occasion of the visit of the Prince of Wales, there were only six buglers, while now over a dozen turn out on drill nights.

The Appointment of New City Clerk Was Deferred

Council Did Not Name Successor to Mr. C. B. Edwards.

People Will Vote on the Garbage System Bylaw.

Firemen Want Maximum Salary After One Year's Service—The Dundas Street Sewer.

It was expected that a new city clerk for London would be appointed last night by the city council, but such did not prove to be the case. However, Mr. C. B. Edwards, who has been clerk of the city for the past two years, tendered his resignation, and it was accepted by the council, though not before nearly all the aldermen had expressed regret that Mr. Edwards is leaving the clerk's office.

The mayor read the resignation, after which Ald. Judd spoke briefly in praise of Mr. Edwards. "During the two years past that I have been in the council I have had every opportunity of coming in very close contact with Mr. Edwards," he said, "and have been in a position to observe how well he has performed his duties, and I have always admired the thorough manner in which he has conducted the city's business. He has been most attentive, courteous and painstaking, and to my mind, has been a model city clerk. I am very sorry that he is leaving the clerkship, but I do not think anyone feels like standing in the way of his advancement, I do not think it is possible for the council when choosing his successor to improve on the appointment of 1903. I sincerely hope that the next city clerk, whoever he may be, will prove as good a man."

Ald. Greenlees also spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Edwards. "I have known Mr. Edwards for a great number of years," he said, "part of which time he was filling another position, in which he also was a success. I can say of Mr. Edwards that his usefulness has been increased by his extreme inquisitive turn of mind—in fact, he has been an animated interrogation mark—and was always finding out things calculated to benefit the city. He has certainly been a model city clerk."

Ald. Stevely, Forristal, Cooper, Wyatt and Gerry also spoke in praise of Mr. Edwards.

All applications for the position of city clerk were referred to No. 1 committee. The applications were from Arthur T. Essery, W. O. Carson, F. W. C. McCutcheon, E. W. M. Flock, Samuel Baker, F. V. Langford, all of this city, and C. A. Kingston, of Santa Anna, Cal.

The Garbage System.

The members of the board of health were present and Chairman English spoke briefly in support of the recommendation of the board that the council submit a bylaw for a garbage system to the people in January next, the total cost of the plant to be about $15,000. The crematory will have a capacity of fifteen tons per day, and the estimate is that London will yield about eight tons of garbage daily, so that the plant will be large enough for some years to come. The cost per annum of covering the entire city is estimated at $3,300. This estimate covers the wages of four drivers to man four garbage wagons, and one man at the cremating station. Collections are to be made daily from hotels and other public places, and from the district in which private houses predominate, as often as the health officer deems necessary.

Ex-Ald. Campbell also spoke in favor of the scheme. He said after a thorough investigation the board are of the opinion that the system proposed is the most economical and the most suited to London that it is possible to procure.

Ald. Cooper wanted to know what it would cost to submit the bylaw to the people and the mayor replied about $25. The alderman then went on to say that he thought the whole scheme unnecessary, and that the people would throw it out. The people are taxed to death as it is, he said, and now that they have an opportunity of reducing the rate, schemes should not be brought forward to help spend the additional taxes which are in sight for next year.

Ald. Greenlees moved, seconded by Ald. Garratt, that a bylaw in accordance with the board's recommendation be framed, and that it be submitted to the people in January. Health is the first thing to be considered, Ald. Greenlees said, and the board of health's scheme is a scheme to increase the healthful conditions of the city. If the matter is brought fairly before the people he said the people will not reject it for the sake of a paltry mill or two on their tax rate.

Ald. Stevely took the same view of the matter as Ald. Greenlees.

In reply to a question, Chairman English said the collections would be made in almost the entire city, and will be free.

The mayor also supported the proposal to send the scheme to the people in January, and the motion of Ald. Greenlees carried without opposition.

Firemen Want Better Wages.

Fire brigade matters came up with a rush, but the aldermen shelved all for the present, by referring them to No. 3 committee.

Fireman Swanwick, of East London, wrote the council that as the city has received the insurance money for injuries received by him in the Stirling fire, and as he has not as yet been recompensed by the city for the said injuries, the present time might be a favorable one to consider the matter. Referred to No. 3 committee.

Robt. C. Matthews, John Mitchell, Frank C. Blackwell, Chas. Scott, Fred Quick and Wm. Stinchcombe, of the local fire brigade, presented a petition asking the city to increase the salary of all firemen after the expiration of one year's service to the present maximum salary of $600 per annum. The petitioners stated that the cost of living has so greatly increased that they find it impossible to make both ends meet on the present minimum salary, which was agreed upon many years ago, when the cost of living was much cheaper than at present. The city now compels all firemen to live along the lines of the fire alarm systems, and this will also add to their expenses, as their house rents will be increased. At present, the petitioners say, they work about 21 hours a day, and they are deprived of many of the privileges enjoyed by other workingmen. The petition was sent to No. 3 committee.

A recommendation of Fire Chief Clark, that Wm. Coles and Frank Taylor be appointed to the permanent force of the local fire brigade, was adopted.

The Travelers' Insurance Company wrote the council that it is prepared to insure the London firemen under a blanket policy, which will pay $1,000 in event of accidental death, total loss of sight due to accident, or loss of both feet, or loss of both hands, or loss of one hand and one foot: $333 33 for loss of one hand or one foot; $5 a week for total disabling injuries; not to exceed 52 weeks; $2 a week for partial disabling injury, not to exceed 26 weeks; at an annual premium of $432 50. A policy granting the same benefits for death, dismemberment and loss of sight, but increasing the weekly indemnity to $10 a week for total disabling injury, and $4 a week for partial disabling injury, would be given for a premium of $735 25. The company refused, however, to give a figure on health insurance. The communication was also referred to No. 3 committee.

That Dundas Street Sewer.

City Engineer Graydon wrote the council that as the sewer on Dundas street, from Adelaide to Colborne, particularly, and from Colborne to Wellington, also, is in very bad condition, and that as it is only a question of a few months until a pavement is laid on the street, steps should be taken to put down a new sewer. Referred to the board of works.

Jas. Nicholson, chief ranger of the C. O. F., asked for the free use of the city hall on Dec. 2 for a ball to be given by Court Eclipse. Granted on the usual terms.

Mrs. W. E. Hooper asked for the free use of the city hall on the night of Dec. 8, for a charitable concert, to be given by Rebekah Lodge, No. 1, I. O. O. F. Granted.

Bert Sheere requested the free use of the city hall for an assembly to be given by the London Baseball Club on Nov. 28. The hall was granted on the usual terms.

Charles S. Hodgetts, secretary of the provincial board of health, wrote that the city of Chatham has protested against London dumping its sewage into the River Thames, and asking to be informed as to the facts of the case.

In regard to this matter City Clerk Edwards reported that he had written Mr. Hodgetts to the effect that the city's sewage is now passing through the coke beds in accordance with the provincial health board's rules. The communication was filed.

The recommendation of the board of works that the present bylaws be so amended as to allow of citizens burning leaves on the streets, was thrown out by the council, the aldermen declaring that if the city sanctioned bonfires on the thoroughfares, the fire brigade would be sure to be kept very busy.

PLEASING ARTIST IS ROSELLE KNOTT

Talented Canadian Actress Appears to Splendid Advantage in "Cousin Kate."

Miss Roselle Knott, the Canadian actress, appeared at the Grand last night in Henry Hubert Davies' comedy, "Cousin Kate," and one was bound to recognize the appearance of an artist with a pronounced talent for comedy and an unusual charm of person and voice. The author of "Cousin Kate" has recently come to the front with a series of plays, notable for their kindly humor, their refreshingly clean tone, and sparkling wit. The fact that Ethel Barrymore and Margaret Anglin have used several of Mr. Davies' comedies with pronounced success, is a guarantee of their quality. The plot of "Cousin Kate" is slender to the breaking point, but it is delightfully told, and convincing, except in the close, which gives one the impression that the author was driven to an expedient to extricate himself from a difficult position. It is not logical. Mr. Davies has strayed far from the accepted rules of dramatic construction, but, after all, it is the personalities of a womanly woman and a manly man as depicted by Miss Knott and Mr. Corbett that constitute the charm of the piece. Miss Knott's best work was in the second act, when, discovering Desmond's relation to Amy, she fights down her love, poses as a flirt and apparently sacrifices her happiness.

Mr. Corbett in his delineation of Heath Desmond, the somewhat fickle Irish lover, was easy and unconstrained, although his wooing of Kate was at times not as Hibernian as it was supposed to be. H. Howard Smith, in the role of a sanctimonious and pharisaical clergyman, made that part, no doubt, as intended, sufficiently unattractive to show up the finer qualities of Desmond. However, he won the dainty Amy Spencer (played by Miss Madiera), the girl who was too puritanic to wed the unconventional artist. Without being elaborate, the play is suitably staged, a storm effect in the second act being particularly well done.

Welcome Extended Rev. W. A. Wyllie and Wife at Kamloops, B. C.

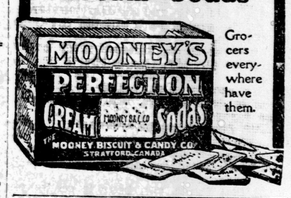

Rev. W. A. Wyllie, who some months ago resigned the pastorate of the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church, owing to continued ill-health, was recently inducted as pastor of St. Andrew's Church at Kamloops, B. C. Mr. and Mrs. Wyllie were subsequently tendered a reception, in regard to which the Semi-Weekly Inland Sentinel, of Kamloops, says:

"A very large assembly of the members and adherents of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, in this city with many friends from the other city churches, extended a very hearty welcome to Rev. Mr. Wyllie, the recently-inducted Presbyterian minister, and his estimable wife, at the public reception, held Wednesday night, in St. Andrew's Church.

"After the reception a varied programme was rendered, an anthem by the choir, followed by an address by the chairman of the evening, J. D. Swanson, who alluded to the high esteem in which Mr. Wyllie, a fellow-university student of the chairman's, was held among his college fellows.

"Mr. Wyllie, in reply to an address of welcome, expressed his sincere thanks on behalf of himself and wife."

BUILDERS MUST HAVE BEEN BUSY

Over 300 Water Services Installed in Past Year—Vast Majority in New Buildings.

An indication of the extent of the building operations carried on in London during the past few years was given at the meeting of the water commissioners yesterday afternoon, when Secretary Ellwood stated that during the past twelve months over 300 water services had been put in through the city, and the vast majority of them in new buildings. Mr. Ellwood added that not since the year when West London was admitted to the city had there been such a number of services installed.

Allan Eadie applied for a main on Layard street, between Inkerman street and Dreaney avenue. Robert Stanley asked that a main be constructed on Pall Mall street between Waterloo and Colborne streets. Both applications were referred to the engineer.

Mr. Laurie, lessee of the Springbank pavilion, asked for permission to erect a "Roller-Coaster" at the park. The board was dubious about letting spectacular amusements in the park, and the matter was filed for the present.

A Toronto firm applied for specifications for iron pipes. They will be permitted to tender.

The report of Engineer Simmie showed an average of 3,319,000 gallons pumped daily since the last report.

Spring Purity
To brew good ale pure, hard water is an absolute necessity.
The solvent powers of water are so great that few springs produce water pure enough for brewing.
Carling's springs were discovered after many years of searching, and the brewery established only when Government analysts deposed that the water never tested less than 99.03 degrees pure.
