mission to Dawson to look into the concessions is probably due very largely to the efforts of the board of trade and other local organizations. In any event it is highly suggestive that the announcement of the government's purpose was made during Mr. Ross' absence from the capital.

Under the circumstances, the general desire that Mr. Ross should be invited to return to Dawson at an early date and afford his constituents an insight into his purposes and intentions with respect to the provisions of the Ross platform, is nothing more than natural.

FOURTH OF JULY. A movement of citizens will be set on foot this evening to prepare for a Fourth of July celebration. Dawson apparently has been too busily engaged in preparations for tonight's fistic encounter to give any thought to a patriotic demonstration until now, but there is still time in which to prepare for a royal celebration on the Fourth.

The Nugget hopes that there will be a good attendance at the meeting and that if it is determined to observe the day with a public demonstration, there will be the necessary enthusiasm and earnestness manifested. We understand that none of the creek celebrations will conflict with the local plans in view and there should, therefore, be little difficulty in bringing large crowds of people from the mining districts.

In order that people may be attracted in this direction for purposes of permanent investment and residence it is necessary that confidence be felt in the good faith of the government in its Yukon dealings. Complete cancellation of the Treadgold grants would contribute materially in rehabilitating the government in the estimation of the public.

Had the federal government adopted the system of granting no important franchises in this territory without first submitting their intentions to the Yukon council, such enormities as the Treadgold and Bronson & Ray concessions never would have come into existence.

There is a vast amount of freight lying at Whitehorse awaiting shipment for Dawson the arrival of which will tend to enliven the local market very materially. The tonnage this year bids fair to exceed that of last season by a considerable amount.

Shipments of garden vegetables from the outside have practically ceased, the local producers furnishing practically everything required. The theory that a "yellow dog" should be supported for office if placed on the "regular" ticket is rapidly being exploded.

Killed the Conductor. St. Louis, June 3.—Three masked men boarded a suburban car today, robbed J. Bowas, the motorman, and killed the conductor, John N. Keith, who went to the motorman's rescue. There were only a few passengers in the car. The robbers signalled the car to stop, and boarded the front platform. Keith, in going to the assistance of the motorman, was shot down and killed by the robbers, who then jumped from the car and escaped.

Rumors of Crisis. London, June 8.—The interest in the proceedings of parliament tonight was entirely secondary to that shown in the lobby discussion regarding the prospects of the finance debate, which takes place tomorrow. The appropriation for the postal service was passed with only a small attendance in the house, attention centering on Mr. Chamberlain's amendment to the finance bill, opposing the remission of the tax on wheat, which will be discussed tomorrow. The debate is expected to last two days.

Much uncertainty still prevails as to whether the government will permit an extensive discussion on their general financial program, but it is thought likely that the debate will be closely limited to the wheat tax. It is understood that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach intends to speak tomorrow, probably following Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

Balfour was busy in the lobbies as usual on the eve of an important crisis, though here there was little tangible as to the attitude of the numerous silent members of the cabinet towards the colonial secretary's daring proposals.

Mr. Chamberlain certainly succeeded in arousing strong opposition among the ranks of the workingmen. W. J. Davis, a prominent trades union leader, speaking at Birmingham tonight, offered to contest the district on the labor platform. It is significant at the moment of a possible crisis, that Capt. Wells, of the Metropolitan fire brigade, has been appointed head agent of the Conservative party in succession to R. W. E. Middleton. Capt. Wells has shown great talent for organization both in the navy and in the fire brigade.

A cabinet council was summoned this afternoon to consider the situation. It is understood that some ministers take exception to Mr. Chamberlain's letter to a workingman, published yesterday, which is regarded as definitely committing the colonial secretary to the policy he enunciated, and thus going far beyond Premier Balfour's position, as revealed in his speech prior to the adjournment of the house, which only committed to an academic discussion on the subject of preferential duties.

There is no doubt that the situation is extremely tense, and all kinds of rumors are afloat, one which many are inclined to credit is that Mr. Chamberlain contemplates immediate resignation. It is said that he has no love for the Irish land bill, and would willingly precipitate a crisis before the Liberals have time to organize their election platform and free trade propaganda. Further, his health is not the best. He needs rest, and is said not to be averse to allowing the Liberals to form a government, being confident that it would be short lived, and would enable the Conservatives to return to power stronger than ever.

Although the balance of opinion is inclined to the belief that there will not be a dissolution of parliament until the autumn, both the Liberals and Nationalists are apprehensive, neither wanting a general election, the former, because they are not ready, and the latter because they want to secure the adoption of the Irish land bill.

New York Pawnbrokers. In New York the pawnbroker is compelled to wait a year and one month before offering pawned articles for sale. During the last month of this period the merchandise must be so advertised that the person who pawned the goods may recognize them as his property from the description given in the published notice.

As an instance of the severity of the court against any infraction of this rule a pawnbroker who loaned a certain lady $6,000 upon a valuable necklace valued at $12,000 and at the expiration of the required limit sold the jewels without specifying explicitly enough so that the lady was enabled to recognize and redeem her property the New York court ordered that the lender pay to the lady $6,000 and a year's interest on the value of the necklace.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Wage Suits Withdrawn by Complainants

Laborers Who Worked for Mrs. McConnell and Geo. L. Taylor Are Satisfied.

When Mr. Justice Macaulay opened today's session of the police court and the cases of Arthur McGavock, Benjamin Young and C. A. Lampier against Mrs. Luella Day McConnell and Geo. L. Taylor for wages aggregating $774 were called one of the complainants arose and announced that the cases had all been settled out of court.

His lordship said it was certainly to him a happy solution of the matter. Mrs. McConnell said if the cases were settled she knew nothing of it and as she had been charged with owing money she wished to know on what terms a settlement had been made.

His lordship replied that he knew nothing of any private arrangements but as the complainants had withdrawn the complaints the cases were no longer before him. Mr. Taylor, who had been jointly sued with Mrs. McConnell, said he had in his pocket receipts in full from all the men for the amount claimed by each and his lordship said the matter was ended.

The cases were first called yesterday evening when Mrs. McConnell created something of a sensation by stating that in her belief she could not obtain justice in that court. His lordship in his usually unflinching manner assured her that her interests would be protected and that the cases would be adjudicated according to the law and evidence.

Grain Shipment. Montreal, June 3.—During the month of April the C. P. R. made very heavy shipments of grain from its elevators in the interior of the wheat region to the lake front, moving, according to the record which has just been compiled, 3,832,784 bushels, leaving in the interior elevators on April 30, 7,721,887 bushels, as against 9,832,784 bushels on the same date last year.

As a result of the decision of the city council to refuse to pay the cost of the militia called out to maintain order during the longshoremen's strike Lieut.-Col. Gordon, D. O. C., has entered legal proceedings against the city to recover $18,000, the amount of the account. The city claims that as the government exercises full authority over all the property controlled by the harbor commissioners the government should bear the expense.

Mr. W. D. Campbell was today officially appointed general superintendent of the C. P. R. Atlantic service. Capt. J. W. Troup was made general superintendent of the company's British Columbia coast service. Mr. Lincoln Smith will continue to look after the company's interests at Owen Sound, with the title of superintendent of the company's upper lake service. Captain J. C. Gore becomes superintendent of the British Columbia lake and river service, with an office at Nelson, B. C.

Pending the announcement from four of the directors as to the amount of the new issue of capital they will underwrite, another meeting of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. will be held June 11. It is expected all the directors will take an equal amount of the $1,500,000. Arrangements will then be made for the periods at the end of which the different instalments of the bonds will mature. Messrs. J. H. Plummer, Vice-President, and Frederick Nichols left today to visit the works at Sydney.

Three Deserted. Seattle, June 6.—Three sailors, Williams, Griffin and Kennedy, of the British bark Dunoon, which is at Sitka, have deserted the vessel, bonded-Governor Brady of Alaska and become pirates, according to the passengers who arrived in Seattle on the steamer Humboldt.

Steamers to Far East. Montreal, June 9.—A special cable from London today says: "Last night's debate in the Commons on the mail subsidy to the Canadian Pacific Express steamers showed that the British government was continually pressing the Canadian government to complete a through service to the Far East by an effective Atlantic link."

Mr. Austin Chamberlain, replying to Mr. James Caldwell, admitted that the expectations with which the British government had subsidized the Pacific steamers had not been fulfilled.

"The present service to China and Japan is of very little advantage as a mail service," he said. "The revenue obtained from letters and packages gained that way bore no proportion to the British subsidy. The British government had gone to the utmost limits in assenting to the renewal of the Canadian Pacific contract for five years in the hope that the Atlantic service would then be an accomplished fact. Further quickening of the Pacific side has made the route of real Imperial value. If these results were not achieved, it was unlikely the British treasury or postoffice would agree to an extension of the contract on the present basis."

Sir Thos. Shaughnessy in commenting upon the above said that the Imperial government will not renew its contract with the C. P. R. for the conveyance of mail from Vancouver to Hongkong unless, ere the expiration of the next two years when the contract expires, a fast trans-Atlantic steamship service is in immediate prospect. While Austin Chamberlain had asserted in the Imperial house that the all-British mail route had not reached the expectations, he was referring to the Atlantic portion.

"Our service," observed Sir Thomas, "has always been eminently satisfactory to the British government."

For Training Houses. Montreal, June 9.—The Star's London cable says: "In order to meet the want of domestic servants in Canada and find homes for the surplus English women, certain members of the Primrose league are considering a proposal of establishing training and distributing houses on both sides of the Atlantic. It is suggested that the Canadian home be under the charge of the Daughters of the Empire. It is proposed that the Canadian government advance the passage money to be secured by a lien on the prospective wages."

"Though best wishes attend the Oxford-Cambridge lacrosse team, which leaves Southampton tomorrow, English lacrosse players hardly dare to hope for their success against picked Canadian teams. J. Lloyd, of Oxford, captains the team, in which there are only three Oxford players. They expect to return to England early in August."

It is anticipated among shipping men that Lloyds will probably accept any invitation the Canadian government may make to send a representative to examine the improvement in St. Lawrence navigation, but it is pointed out that insurance rates must, after all, be guided by the record losses, which Lloyds maintain compel the present apparent discrimination. The result of this season's experience of the Canadian Pacific Atlantic service under the increased insurance rate is watched with keen interest."

Ottawa, June 10.—A petition was filed in the Surrogate court today for probate of the will of the late Alex. Fraser, lumberman. The application is made by his two sons, John B. and W. H. A. Fraser. The value of the estate is placed at $3,125,000, of which $3,087,000 is personal and $38,000 is real estate. There is no other information contained in the petition. No affidavits have been filed, nor is the will filed. It is understood that about five years ago the late Mr. Fraser transferred about $5,000,000 worth of limits and lumbering property to his sons.

Postponed Her Bath. Miss Flora Shaw, the well known correspondent of the London Times, was once traveling through Africa in a bullock wagon. The sun was blazing, the bullocks were slow, the dust was indescribable. She was making for a frontier town, where she anticipated the comforts of a bath. At the entrance to the place Miss Shaw, dead beat, dusty and irritable, found herself confronted with the ordeal of a public reception. The officials read her a welcome. She was as civil as she could be. Then she bolted for the hotel. She gave but one order—"Hot water, quick!"

She sat on the edge of the bed and waited. Some minutes passed. At last a black servant entered with a tin vessel in which there was something steaming. Seizing it, Miss Shaw poured out a milky, odoriferous liquid. She turned to the servant for an explanation.

The hotel was very short of water. As a distinguished guest, a point had been stretched for her. They had sent her the water in which the fish had just been boiled.

WATER QUESTION. From every section of the mining district comes the cry for water. The prevailing dry weather has decreased the supply in several of the creeks to such an extent that operations are seriously hampered and the output will, in consequence, fall short of expectations unless frequent rains set in.

The situation brings the people face to face once more with the proposition that a permanent water supply is the greatest need of the camp. With plenty of water at the command of the miners on the different creeks the aspect of affairs would undergo an immediate and complete revolution. Three times the number of claims now working would be in operation and employment would be offered to at least double the number of men now engaged.

There appears to be no immediate relief in sight, simply by reason of the fact that the Treadgold concession still hangs as a blight over the district. The government will not appropriate the money necessary for the installation of a public water system and Treadgold is under no obligation to begin work on his system for a matter of several years to come and if his grant is not cancelled he has it within his power to keep the miners from a water supply for that length of time.

Obviously, therefore, the people must begin at the root of the whole problem and first secure the cancellation of Treadgold's grant. Thereafter, the problem would be greatly simplified. With Treadgold out of the way, it would be a matter of small difficulty to secure capital for the establishment of a water system upon a legitimate basis.

It is within the knowledge of this paper that such an enterprise was projected last year and would have been carried forward to completion had not the Treadgold grant stood directly in the way.

The country need not be blanketed with special privileges in order to secure a water system nor is it necessary to create a vast monopoly for that purpose. Give bona fide investors a show and the problem will find a natural and equitable solution.

NO IMPROPRIETY. A forceful presentation of existing conditions was offered in our cartoon of yesterday. A miner held down by the burden of innumerable concessions was depicted as making a final appeal to Yukon's member of parliament for relief. The attitude of the latter left it doubtful whether they would be heard or what sort of reply would be made.

KEYSTONE MACHINE

Travels Under Its Own Steam

Leaves the Dock Today, a Horseless Vehicle, for 69 Below on Bonanza.

The Keystone drill which so attracted the attention of Government Engineer Beaudette when on his trip to California last winter and who subsequently strongly recommended its adoption by miners in the Klondike for prospecting purposes, one of which was recently purchased by the Klondike Consolidated Gold Fields Company, arriving several days ago, will be given an actual test as to a portion of its qualities this afternoon. The machine has been set up in the freight yard of the White Pass Company and was this morning ready to have the fires lighted. The work of getting the drill ready has been entrusted to the chief engineer of the company, which made the purchase and it is a credit to his ability to say that though he had never before seen a similar machine with the assistance of a catalogue he succeeded in getting everything in readiness in a very short time.

The whole affair is mounted on wheels and furnishes its own power in moving from place to place, being geared as a traction engine and guided by the engineer, the machine in its entirety weighing seven tons. As soon as Mr. Turenne, manager of the company, gives the word steam will be raised and under its own steam it will be moved from the spot at the rear wharf where it was set up out on the street and up the Bonanza road to claim 69 below discovery where the first work laid out for it will be performed.

The drill was made in Pennsylvania and very naturally the importer expected to receive the benefit of the recent order in council which admits machinery of this class free of duty, it being intended solely for mining purposes and can not be purchased anywhere in Canada. When clearance was sought this morning it is said Mr. Turenne experienced considerable difficulty in convincing one of the customs officials that his machine should be entered free, the latter objecting over the remote possibility of the machinery and the drill being used for some purpose other than mining. When taken to headquarters, however, it was quickly decided that the machine should be entered free, and so it was.

It was originally ordered for the purpose of testing the ground of a concession owned by the company on Clear Creek, which ultimately will be its destination, but before being dispatched to such a remote point 69 on Bonanza will be investigated and the paystreak located. The drill proper is a heavy hollow disc of iron about six inches tall and the same in diameter, the lower or cutting edge being sharpened. It is attached to a stem of steel four inches in diameter to which as depth is attained more joints are added, the stem and drill being encased in piping to prevent the sides caving, additional joints being also added to the pipes as they are needed. The force to drive the drill downward is obtained from a walking beam to one end of which the stem is attached. The core is brought up by means of a vacuum pump and it can be investigated or if in gravel panned whenever so desired. The use of these drills is very general in California, when intending purchasers wish to prospect a piece of hydraulic or placer ground. A hole six inches in diameter can be sunk very quickly to any depth desired and as the core is saved an absolutely safe test of the different strata of gravel passed through can be made and the labor and expense of digging a shaft as ordinarily done here is saved to a large extent. About the middle of July the drill will be removed to the Clear creek concession where it will remain for some time making as near a perfect test of the ground within the concession as it is possible to make.

Lochinvar Leary

"My, but I'm tired," remarked Lochinvar Leary, when he had given his order. "I've been house-hunting all day."

"Didn't know you'd lost one," put in the bartender.

"Didn't you? I suppose you meant that as a joke. But it ain't one. I really did lose a house, and I've been hunting for it all day long. Fill-up that glass again and I'll tell you how it happened."

"Twas along in the early '90s that I went out to Kansas. Zepheria was a coming city when I went there. Before I left it had started going."

"First thing I did after striking town was to buy a couple of the cheapest building lots I could find. I erected a sumptuous residential palace on 'em."

"Folks said I was foolish to build such a magnificent dwelling in such a poor part of the city. But I've always held that it's the house that makes the neighborhood, not the neighborhood that makes the house. I felt that things would surely blow my way if I waited long enough. As it turned out, however, I blew things away. But that's getting ahead of my story."

"I was in the second month of my sojourn at Zepheria that it happened. I noticed, just before I lay me down for my afternoon nap, that the sky seemed to have taken on a sort of yellowish tint, and that the air was chillier than it had been, but I didn't attach any significance to that at the time."

"I remember that my slumber was sort of troubled, and I had a vague feeling in my dreams that considerable things were doing in the thunder and lightning line."

"Then came that awful bump. Say, you know how you feel going upstairs in the dark when you think there's just one more step, and there isn't? Well, this bump I speak of was just as if you'd calculated on at least three steps that weren't. It woke me."

"I rubbed my eyes and went to the window. I looked out and 'Good heavens! I cried. Was I awake or dreaming?'"

"I pinched myself and looked again. I could scarcely believe my eyes. Instead of the familiar shanties and garbage piles characteristic of my part of town, I was now gazing out upon the swellest residential street in all the city."

"Was I in my own house? I turned and looked. I darted from room to room examining everything. It was certainly my house all right."

"Then I hurried down by the cellar stairs. My heart almost stopped at the sight that there met my eyes. How did this strange cellar get under my house? And that daylight flooding in through the ceiling at the far end, where did that come from?"

"Further reflection was interrupted by a commotion in what was evidently the coal bin. A terrified face appeared over the edge."

"Is it all over?" chattered the face's teeth.

"It seems to be all over," I said. "All except that far corner there where the daylight's coming in. And I reckon we can cover that by moving over the house a little further."

"What are you driving at?" The face gazed at me in wonder. "Is the cyclone over?"

"Oh! A great light began to dawn on me. 'Yes, that's all over.'"

"The face heaved a sigh of relief and dragged the body and legs that went with it out of the coal bin."

"I started back up the stairs. My coalbin acquaintance followed. His surprise upon reaching the ground floor was even greater than mine had been upon entering the cellar."

"What in the name of the Russian consul!" he exclaimed. "Where-in-?"

"You're in my house, sir," I informed him in my politest manner. "You have the honor to be at present enjoying the hospitality of—"

"Your house?" he shrieked. "Your house? Well, get yer durned old house out of here, then. It's trespassing on my property."

"Sir," said I, drawing myself up to my full height, "by what right do you take it upon yourself to order Lochinvar Leary from his own dwelling?"

"What's more, sir, I wish you distinctly to understand that your land is trespassing under my house. I'll give you exactly one week in which to dig up, said land and remove every spadeful of it from my premises. I have real estate of my own which I wish to move in."

"Maybe that wasn't calculated to make him hot! Why, for about ten minutes there he'd have made Hades look like a midwinter ice carnival. 'Did he remove his blamed land? Not much. He took the matter to court and laid claim to my house on the ground that when he bought the land it included everything on it. What do you think of that for crust?'"

"Naturally I put in a counter claim that as I had bought the land on which my house stood, and as that at present happened to be his land, why, of course, his land was my land."

"There's no question as to how the case would have been decided if another one of those things hadn't happened along. The trial had scarcely been on ten minutes before a guy stuck his head in the door and yelled: 'Cyclone!'"

"Say, it didn't take that court morn'n about two instants to adjourn to the furthest corner of the judicial cellar, and at that we didn't get there any too soon.

"When things had finally blown over we found that my house had been among 'em. It had once more been lifted clear, and this time had swept hundreds of miles out of the court's jurisdiction. That, of course, put an end to the trial."

"I set out to try and find my mansion, and managed to trace it as far east as Jefferson City, Mo. There I lost all track of it, and though I've been hunting far and wide ever since I haven't been able to get the slightest sign of a clue to it."

"You don't know of any one around these parts that's living in a lavishly appointed cross between a Queen Anne cottage and a Fifty-first, Congress lower house, do you?" "Cause if you do that person's living in my house, and his rent is five years overdue."

FIRST AVENUE SNAPS

Butler's Bulletin, Like a Country Paper Fills Long Felt Want

People on First avenue have a snap these days and even steamboat agents flock to Butler's Pioneer bulletin board for information regarding the whereabouts and progress of their own steamers all along the Yukon between Whitehorse and Eagle.

These who have friends en route from outside points can keep tabs on their movements hourly from the date of their arrival in Skagway until they arrive in Dawson simply by keeping an eye on the Pioneer Bulletin board and the lists posted beside it.

It costs nothing to get information at Butler's and what would necessitate a trip to the telegraph office can be had there in thirty seconds. Besides, the best and freshest draught beer in Dawson is not sold at the telegraph office and it is at Butler's, but no one is expected to buy beer because he takes a rubber at the bulletin board. The beer is for the people and the bulletin board is for the masses.

INSPECTS SCHOOLS

Mr. John Ross Returns From Caribou

Visits the Institutions of Learning in the Southern Part of the Territory.

Mr. John H. Ross, superintendent of the schools of the territory, returned day before yesterday from a visit to the institutions of learning situated in the southern part of the territory and including those at Caribou, Whitehorse and Selkirk.

The average attendance at Caribou during the past winter, or rather the number enrolled and they all attended, was eight. At Selkirk where there are a great many more Indians the number on the books was 43.

At Whitehorse there is no Indian school but one for white children which numbers 58 pupils employing two teachers. Below the city at Moosehide there is also an Indian school conducted by the missionaries, the attendance numbering 20.

Mr. Ross is very well satisfied with the results of the winter. Not only has the attendance been greater but the progress made is greater, and it is a source of great satisfaction to the superintendent to know that such is the case.

PENALTY IS VERY HEAVY

For Starting of Fires in Forests

Fine of Not Less Than $25 or Exceeding $200 May be Imposed.

For the reason that the crowd failed to secure conviction as the result of a recent case in court regarding the starting of forest fires persons should not become possessed of the idea that official vigil has in any way been relaxed or convictions for such offence can not be made.

On the other hand the law is very clear and any violation of it proven will result in severe punishment. The act under which such cases are brought reads: "Any person who shall directly or indirectly, personally or through any servant, employ or agent kindle a fire and let it run at large on any land not his own property shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $25 or more than $200."

In case the fine is not paid imprisonment may be stipulated and imposed.

Seattle, June 5.—Mrs. Robt. Seater, wife of a furniture dealer, was chloroformed and robbed of about $1,900 in her apartments in the McSombs block, on Pike street, shortly before noon today.

Mrs. Seater says that the robbers were strangers to her, and that when they first entered the room she did not suspect them. They seemed to be aware that there was a large sum of money in the house, and were probably advised that the money was kept on Mrs. Seater's person.

Pope's Health Rome, June 8.—The attention of the world has again been centered on the health of the pope, and again one can say that he is not ill. This has been the case for years, as a real illness would certainly carry him off on account of the weakness attendant on his old age.
