

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., SEP. 22, 1893.

The New Presbyterian Pastor.

The pulpits of the Presbyterian churches of Wolfville and Lower Horton have been acceptably filled during the last three Sabbaths by the recently settled pastor, Rev. D. J. Fraser, B. D. Mr. Fraser was born in Alberton, P. E. I., about twenty-five years ago. He is the youngest son of the late Rev. Allen Fraser, who died when the subject of this sketch was about three and one-half years old. At the early age of fifteen he attended Prince of Wales College, in Charlottetown, where he remained for about two seasons and graduated taking a teaching diploma. From there he went to Montreal and entered McGill College, where he graduated in 1890 and took the degree of B. A. The degree of M. A. was conferred on him in 1893. He commenced the study of theology in the Presbyterian Theological Hall at Montreal in 1890, and in 1893 took the gold medal, the highest honor for ordinary work, and the distinguished title of B. D., a rare thing for one so young. He was also an active member of the athletic club, in connection with the college. Although not a participant in the harder games, he took a keen interest in such matters. Mr. Fraser is stationed in this place for a year, and has already won for himself a high place in the affections of the people.

The knighthood to Hon. C. H. Tupper, minister of marine, who acted as British agent in the Behring Sea arbitration, is a recognition of hard work well done. As is known, the British case was practically all prepared in Canada, under the direction of Mr. Tupper, who, at Paris, had to discharge the further duty of providing counsel with material for replying to the United States arguments as they were advancing during the long debate. The efficient manner in which his work was done was formally acknowledged on behalf of the British Government immediately after the close of the arbitration, the importance of which, in an international sense, does not need to be here dilated upon. The more visible reward of the new title will be heartily congratulated on the fact, and not the least because, it comes to him as the result of efficient service to the state at an age when most people are only thinking of entering public life. Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper is only thirty-eight.

The harvest moon is the full moon which occurs nearest to the autumnal equinox. This year the autumnal equinox is to-day. The sun, says the Scientific American, enters Libra, and autumn commences September 22, 2 h. 55 m. p. m. The September moon falls on September 25, 3 h. 23 m. p. m., and is, therefore, the harvest moon. The full moon next following, that is, the October full moon, is called the hunter's moon. The phenomenon known as the harvest moon is the, so to speak, coasting of the nearly full moon along the horizon at the time of rising, in consequence of which, for several days preceding and following the day of full, the nearly full moon will have smaller intervals between its successive risings than at any other period of the year. This year the phenomenon of harvest moon will be particularly marked.

Despite all the unpleasant rumors about the expedition, Lieut. Peary has been safely landed on North Greenland, with an equipment of eighty dogs and plenty of meat. Despite all the fears of failure felt for this first expedition Mr. Peary came safely out of it, with a good reputation and tangible evidence of the success of his plan of operations. This time he is both better equipped and better experienced for his intended exploration, and his return and the account of his achievements will be waited with more than usual confidence. It has always to be remembered, however, that there are tremendous risks attendant on such voyages, and it is questionable if the knowledge gained by them is worth all the lives it costs. The Arctic expedition that comes back as strong as it starts out is a rarity.

A rumor reached the department of agriculture recently that a disease of contagious nature existed amongst the dairy cows in the vicinity of Toronto. The minister thereupon ordered an investigation, and Professors McEachern and Andrew Smith were detailed to make a personal examination of the principal dairy farms in the vicinity of the city, to ascertain the truth or otherwise of the rumor. Both gentlemen have forwarded their report to the department, in which they state that, after careful examination, they have totally failed to find any trace of disease.

People do get tired of a tune when everybody sings it and everything from a mouth organ to a brass band plays it, but heretofore the shafts of ridicule have been used to strike the nuisance. It remained for the oracle of liberty to use the resources of law to put a stop to music that had no other particular value than that it was "played out." The playing of "After the Ball" has been prohibited at the World's Fair.

The calendar of the University of King's College, Windsor, has been received, with the president's compliments. It is a handsomely printed volume of about 160 pages, from the press of Hollaway Bros., Halifax, and contains all the necessary information relating to that old and valued institution of learning.

Horton Landing Items.

Rev. Mr. Wright and wife left on Monday for Chicago. They will be absent two months. Besides visiting the World's Fair Mr. Wright intends pursuing some studies at the Chicago University. We shall miss Mr. Wright very much. During his absence the Sunday services will be conducted by different ministers. Next Sabbath union services will be held in the Presbyterian church in the morning and in the Methodist church in the evening. Rev. Mr. Fraser, the Presbyterian pastor, will conduct both services. A grand idea.

The "Unique Musical Entertainment" in Acadia Villa Hall Monday evening proved quite a success. The lecture on "Music" by Rev. S. R. Ackman was instructive, especially to those musically inclined. The selections furnished by the Wolfville Band were greatly appreciated and enjoyed by all. The idea of "punctuating" a lecture by musical selections was quite novel and "taking" with the audience. The proceeds of the evening went towards the parsonage building fund. The lecture, band music, and use of the hall being gratis, quite a nice amount was realized. The attendance would have been larger had it been more thoroughly advertised.

Mr. F. C. Dennison is having extensive repairs done on his house as well as an additional piece built. A verandah is also being added, which with the other improvements will make a good appearance when completed. "Cran" must mean business.

Miss Barber of St. John is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Chas. Patterson.

Acadia Villa School has been open two weeks now and most all the boys have returned. The attendance is very good for the early part of the year. The staff of teachers, has been enlarged and the school offers greater advantages than ever. Vocal music and elocution have been added to the course of study. The following are the assistant teachers: A. B. Tait, M. A., Book-keeping, Science, and French; A. H. Patterson, B. A., Classics and Mathematics; Prof. Bernhard Walker, Violin; Miss Clara Kempton, Vocal Music; Miss Ida Jones, Piano; Mr. Tait will have charge of the elocution class. Prof. Walker is a very fine artist and a complete master of his profession. He is of German-French descent and has on his list in this country a few weeks. Mr. Patterson is to be congratulated on having secured the services of such a talented person. We shall expect some good entertainments during this winter from such an array of musical talent. Surely our people would appreciate and patronize them.

The Republic of Ireland.

There are many enemies of England in various parts of the world who are waiting for the day to come when there shall be an Irish Republic. These enemies of England are not alone to be found in the old country. There are many thousands of them in the United States. As in the time of the late civil war there were multitudes in the northern states who hoped for the success of those who desired the separation of the south from the union, so, all along, and now, there are multitudes in the states who desire that Ireland shall become separated politically from the British empire. It is only natural that they should hope for and rejoice in the success of the home rule movement, as an important step in the direction of the founding of an Irish Republic. Now that the Republican enemies of England have learned that the House of Lords has rejected the home rule bill what a wall of howl of indignation will be heard all over the land.

The Great Depression in Manufacturing Industries.

The effect of the prevailing monetary stringencies or general depression in trade of manufacturing industries throughout the United States becomes a matter of interest at this time, in view of the numerous reports of the closing of manufacturing establishments.

Returns have been received concerning nearly 800 establishments nearly all of which are of more or less prominence, and all of which have closed their doors for one cause or another since June 1. The report likewise includes the best available information concerning the discharge of the number of employees of silver mining companies in the far West, as well as of employees rendered idle by the shut down of iron mines. So far as changes of the character referred to at a few of the larger business centers are concerned, many reports by trade unions or statistical bodies having access to such data have been employed.

A summary of the results of the investigation shows that no fewer than 465,000 industrial, building, trades and mining employes have been thrown out of work within the period specified, due to the absolute closing of the establishments at which they were engaged or the shutting down of work at the mines.

The robbery of $250,000 from an express train, crowded with passengers, on one of the great railroads of the country, in the central state of Indiana and within a few hours ride of Chicago, is reported. The Wild West seems to have turned up more of the fair than the exhibition buildings held.

Caution.

Persons habitually frequenting the out buildings and premises of the Union House are hereby notified that a watch has been placed upon them and in future all persons found upon the premises in the night time without reasonable cause to be there will be dealt with in a summary manner. A word to the wise is sufficient.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN.

DEAR ACADIAN,—We hear a great deal now-a-days about the question of Woman's Rights. Is it a question of "Woman's Rights or of Woman's Needs? Will it do the world or herself more good if she votes? The principle reason that women give for voting is to obtain Prohibition. Now if they should obtain the privilege of voting it is not at all probable that they would vote for the prohibition ticket. By no means are all the women of Canada temperance women, in fact many more are given up to the habit of drink than we would suppose. In conversation with a prominent doctor in one of our large cities the writer learned that about one-third of the women he was called in to visit were under the influence of strong drink. The majority of women above twenty-one are married and hence more or less under the influence of their husbands so would naturally vote to please them; however if some were able to withstand this influence and vote on a different ticket would not dimensions and troubles arise? It is a known fact that two men differing in politics always have a certain feeling of animosity toward each other that no other subject could give rise to. Now would we want this feeling to spring up between husband and wife? If woman takes upon herself the responsibility of voting she must accept all the accompaniments of politics. She must make stump speeches, she must run for office and have her past history dragged out before the public, she must be able to preside at important public meetings here and there she has not proved herself capable of doing; for example the Lady Board of Managers at Chicago held a meeting and before they had finished each one crying and calling each other names, etc. If women go into politics they must expect to be treated as men. Is it probable that men will treat women with that courtesy and deference to which she is used and would sadly miss at the polls or in the legislature hall where she is opposing his dearest interests? Women laugh at the stereotyped expression that "woman's place is in her home," but is man's place? Are the women willing to become the wage earners of their homes, and that would necessarily follow if the men were obliged to take their share of the household duties. After all, is it worth while to mitigate or entirely lose the influence which we as women have held over men for centuries for the sake of a paltry vote? The country is not ready yet for Prohibition but let us do what we can to mould public opinion by the help of our sons and daughters. A SISTER. Wolfville, Sept. 20th, 1893.

ALDERSHOT REVIEW AND SHAM FIGHT.

On Friday the annual drill of the citizen soldiers at Aldershot came to an end, and the customary review of the troops, followed by a sham fight, took place. It is estimated that no less than 4000 people gathered on the field to witness the proceedings. The review took place at 2 o'clock p. m. The brigade was formed into a line of quarter column at six paces interval on the parade ground in the following order: 76th on the left, next the 69th, then the 93rd, then the 68th, with the King's Hussars on the right. Lieut. Col. Irving, D. A. G., then presented the prizes to those men who won in the rifle shooting. After a short exhibition of manual exercise and one or two movements, the 68th and 75th battalions retired out of sight behind a battalion to the north of the parade ground known as Campbell's Hill. The 69th and King's Troopers deployed in fighting line on the plain in front of the hill, with the 93rd in rear as reserve. Fire opened from the pickets and skirmishers of the 68th and 75th. Then two battalions shortly after made their appearance on the crest of the hill, which was the signal for general firing from both lines. The rattle of small arms that took place satisfied the most unreasoning spectator. The cavalry by a detour to the left came upon the flank of the force on the hill, drove in its skirmishers and pickets, and then passed for the infantry to come up. Horse and foot succeeded in driving the attacking forces from their position on the height. The bugle gathered the men together, and the spectators dispersed to their homes, and the soldiers left the martial field the following day, to resume the peaceful avocations of citizenship.

Fashion Bits.

The latest thing in dress, the "elown" sleeve, is simply a mass of overlapping frills.

Very soft velvet of almost gresadine thickness are among the novelties in millinery trimmings.

A pretty and serviceable fabric and one that is new, resembles Oxford shirting, and is shot so that in any color there is a shade of white.

A new material and one that has every indication of lasting popularity, is called silk homespun. It is made of pure silk carded and spun into threads.

A good serge suit trimmed with braid and made with two waists—one a regular dress waist and the other a blazer or Eton jacket to wear with thin waist.

Open coats are more popular for ordinary day wear than any other, and are worn with the smart double-breasted linen or flannel waistcoats, or the pretty blouses of silk and cotton.

A favorite material for solid black gowns is Brussels net. It has a square raised dot like the dot of a point d'esprit, but it is quite unlike that fine-meshed lace in that it is heavy and thick instead of sheer.

Sweet Pickles.

Many fruits may be used to advantage in making sweet pickles that are quite worthless for canning or preserving.

Peaches or pears should be ripe, juicy and finely flavored for canning, while those of poorer quality and those but partially ripened oftentimes make more acceptable pickles than a better grade of fruit.

Select small pears for pickling. Peel, boil water upon them for a few moments, then peel carefully. To eight pounds of pears use one quart of cider vinegar, five pounds granulated sugar, one cupful of mixed spices, such as broken stick cinnamon, whole cloves, cassia buds and a very few allspice berries.

Let the cinnamon flavor predominate. Incise the spines in a thin big and cook in the syrup. Cook the pears, a few at a time, in the boiling syrup until tender. When all are done boil the syrup a few moments longer and pour over the pears. Let them stand several days, and then repeat this process. When cold cover closely, set in a cool, dark place. They should be ready for the table in a week's time.

Successful Farming.

If a farmer makes no progress toward prosperity—if his farm is no better, his bank account no longer, and his family no happier—from year to year, people say he is unlucky.

If the business of a doctor, a lawyer or a merchant remains, at a standstill from year to year people vote him lazy, shiftless or lacking in business sense.

Why this difference in verdict? The intelligence, the energy and the vim which make the successful farmer, and the lack of these qualities and the consequent lack of success has no better claim for charitable comment in the one case than in the other.

If a farmer fails, it may be because unfavorable circumstances have been combined when so many could meet them, but more likely it is because he lacks the ability which a wide-awake man should possess to prevent the unfavorable combination.

Fingering a Kindness.

A young lady who has a beautifully kept hand, as well as an extremely pretty one, says she owes her taper fingers and almond shaped nails entirely to her mother, who accustomed her from her childhood to dry her hands in a certain fashion.

After the hand was carefully wiped she finished the end of each finger with the towel, and then rubbed back the skin which grows around the nail to "feed the moon," as children call it.

Then came a final pinch to the fingers and the process was finished. This method of drying the hand soon becomes a habit and if preserved in is sure to plump the fingers and make them taper. It is better than manicuring for preventing the ugly growth of skin around the base of the nail.

Homer mentions brass money as in use B. C. 1184 among the Greeks.

FACTS ABOUT PEOPLE.

People need religion most when they can't have their own way.

Many people think there ought to be more fasting and praying, but they want somebody else to do it.

Much of the trouble in this world happens because men talk too much time to make money and too little time to enjoy it.

As soon as a man gets right with God he can't bear the thought of being wrong with anybody else.
