LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;
— or the —
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XX.
"If papa were not here, and his fair hair was not so conspicuous, I should say that I like dark warriors best."
"The Saxons were mostly fair," observed the earl, "yet where would you find a braver race?"
"Every one to his taste, papa. I prefer wark warriors, as I said. And so, Captain Osburn, in all my face you do not find one feature like my dear mother's."
He looked from the dark pensive beauty of the Countess of Caledon to the fair radiant face of Lady Iris.
"No," he replied. "If I did not know otherwise, I should say you were not related."
She laughed again, but tears glistened in her sweet eyes.
"I know, it is true," she said, "and yet I never like to hear it. It seems in some way to cut me off from my mother. I wish I had her eyes, or her hair, or those sweet curved lips of hers. Do you notice my mother's portrait, Captain Osburn?"
"More than I like to say," he replied.
And then the earl, who had stood by in perfect silence, said—
"You will like to see our famous portrait of Mary Queen of Scots—the gem. I think of the whole collection."
They moved on; and this little conversation about her mother seemed to have brought them so much nearer together that it appeared quite natural to Lady Iris, when they reached the treasured portrait, that they should stand before it side by side.
The captain was pondering these words. "All the Faynes are proud and cold." Was it true? He could not say that she was proud or cold to him, and he thanked Heaven for it.

"You will remain and take luncheon with us, Captain Osburn?" said the earl, when the inspection of the picture-gallery was ended. "You must be tired. There is nothing, I think more fatiguing than looking at pictures, no matter how beautiful they are."
But the handsome young soldier showed no sign of fatigue. He accepted the invitation with great delight.
"We are going to Sevnham Priory this afternoon," continued Lord Caledon, "the finest ruin we have in the country. If you will join us, I shall be pleased to show you a very lovely spot."
"Again the invitation was accepted with delight. Then Lord Caledon asked Allan to excuse his absence for awhile, as he had some letters to write for the early post; so Lady Iris and Allan were left alone.
"I will introduce you to our visitors," said Lady Iris. "But I am forgetting; you met most of them last evening."
"I came to see you," he answered, in the straightforward manner that never deserted him—"you and Lord Caledon. I am quite at your disposal, but if you could give me one half hour I should be very happy."
A smile rippled over her face.
"I admire that lordly manner of yours, Captain Osburn," she said; "one can see that you are born to command."
"Born to what, Lady Iris?" he asked, wondering.
"Born to command," she replied.
"You are pleased to be satirical," he said.
Not having the least idea of what he meant, she could not imagine how she had displeased him. If it had been any other man, she would have left him at once; but he was different from any one else.
"You look displeased," she said. "It is through my careless words, I am sure. I am sorry to have annoyed you. I spoke without thinking."
She shrunk a little from the warmth of his manner as he turned to her.
"How good you are!" he exclaimed. "You did not annoy me. I was foolish enough to think that you were satirical, now I see that you were not. Can you spare me only a few minutes of your valuable time? I should like to see your beautiful gardens."
A few minutes later she was walking by his side down one of the valleys. He had thought her perfection in her morning dress of muslin; now she looked even more beautiful with a lace shawl drawn over her shoulders and a pretty broad brimmed hat shading her face.
The very wish of his heart had been granted—he was alone with her with no one to draw her attention from him, nevertheless he found it difficult to speak to her, his heart trembled so full. When he was by himself, his words had risen like a torrent to his lips, he had thought of a thousand things that he wished to say to her; but now that he was in her presence he was mute. He could not find words to express even one of his thoughts. Yet this silence that had fallen upon them was more eloquent than words could have been—at least she thought so. At last he summoned courage to speak.
"I am thinking of one of the lines you repeated, Lady Iris—All the Faynes are proud and cold." Is that true?"
"Yes," she replied frankly, "it is. If you were to ask me what are the principal faults in my character, I should tell you they were pride and coldness."

"I should not have thought it," he remarked.
"You have seen me in my best aspects," she went on. "I feel within myself that I am proud, that nothing can bend or break me, and that I could never conform to any circumstances that did not please me or suit me. I am cold too."
"You have been so good to me that I can hardly realize it, Lady Iris."
She laughed, while her face flushed.
"I am cold to the world in general," she said, "but to my friends and those who love me my heart is warm and open. But how could I be cold to you who saved my life?"
He stopped abruptly, and, standing before her, took both her hands in his. The proud young beauty, whose hands few men had dared to touch, was not angry. He looked straight into her face, and no indignant flush rose to it. The passion in his face and eyes startled her, and she stood quite still as one who had received a great shock.
"That is more than you have ever said to me before!" he cried. "Do you mean—be careful what you say, Lady Iris—a mistake would, I think, kill me—that I am your friend?"
She recovered herself and looked at him with a sweet bright look. "How can you be anything else," she said. "You saved my life, and I am grateful to you for having done so, you must always be my dearest friend."
His face grew pale with passion; nevertheless, he kept his feelings under control.
"I am very proud of your friendship," he said, "and am honored by it. But is it to last, Lady Iris? Are we to be friends for all time?"
"Yes," she answered gently, "for all time."
"In spite of distance or absence, in spite of all changes and circumstances?"
"In spite of everything, if you will," she replied.
"Then I am the happiest and proudest man on earth," he said. "I never dreamed that such an honor could be mine as that you would call me 'friend.' I can hardly believe it, it is more than I deserve."
"I do not think so; but for your courage I should now perhaps be dead or so disgraced from a blow that none of my friends would know me. I owe my life to you and no one else."
He clasped her hands more tightly in his own.
"Tell me something else, Lady Iris. Do I owe all your favor to the fact that I saved your life?"
The little hands trembled in his, and the sweet face flushed under his searching gaze. She did not answer.
"You must tell me," he went on; "I must know. Is your generous liking for me and your friendship due to that one fact—your belief that I have saved your life?"
"No," she whispered, her lovely face paling with emotion, "not all of it."
"Take care, Lady Iris, that you make no mistake—your words are life or death to me!"
"I have made no mistake," she answered gently. With a great sigh he released her hands.
"I am very rude and abrupt," he said, "and I dare say that I am far too earnest to be altogether polite."
(To be continued.)

See Vital Need of Oil in War.
PARIS, Oct. 7 (By A. P.)—The importance of oil in modern warfare is being brought to the front again in discussions brought out by the situation in the Near East, where it is conceded that the question of oil supplies has figured extensively in shaping the various national policies.
Studies by the French general staff indicate the enormous meaning of oil in war. Some of its conclusions are that the German offensive on the western front in 1915 was temporarily relaxed so that Germany might carry on a stronger offensive into Galicia and Rumania for the "oil peace treaties," as the Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk agreements are sometimes called.
Importance of Oil in 1918.
One of the most critical moments of the war, that of March, 1918, was partly due to the shortage of oil among the Allies. One of the greatest services rendered to the Allies by America was that of having placed at the disposal of the Allies 100,000 tons in tank ships, which were taken from the Pacific.
The French requirement in oil in times of peace are about 1,800,000 tons. Sixty of these are produced in Alsace Lorraine. The rest is imported. It is estimated that the oil in storage in France would be exhausted in six weeks in time of war and some specialists, such as Count de Fels, affirm that a week's blockade of the French ports would begin to

Leeds Gives Lloyd George Enthusiastic Reception.

Premier Does Not Reveal His Programme --- Gloucester Challenger Carried Too Great Sail Area --- Saturday's Race Called Off.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.
NEW YORK, Oct. 22. A fire broke out in a ten-story building in the city of Leeds, England, today, which destroyed the lives of several persons, mostly children, and injured many others. The fire started in a room on the fifth floor, and spread rapidly to the other floors. The fire department arrived in time to prevent the fire from spreading to the street, but the damage was extensive. The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

LEEDS GEORGE AT LEEDS.
LEEDS, Oct. 22. A characteristic speech before a large audience on Saturday, Lloyd George defended his administration but refrained from revealing his programme. He spoke of the future of the country, but his plans are not yet known. He promised to disclose them in the future, whatever the future might be. He would do nothing mean, and he will play no part unworthy of the confidence placed in him by the people of this country. He spoke of the greatest minute in the history of the Empire, when he was at Manchester, from the Austen Chamberlain's proposal to the Labor Party, a menace to the country. After the achievements of his administration in war had passed, and Britain's success in restoring her commercial prestige, he claimed, "they have" unshaken the nation that has pulled through trade, commerce and credit throughout the world; it is a crime against the nation. One of his keenest wishes was, "we are just beginning to look the dollar in the face." He claimed the success of sterling toward normalcy as one of the most important works of the Government. A typical passage: "Education for the people, peace, more liberty, in India, are not things that seem well to us, and have no special appeal to us. It is to us a duty."

thirty-five feet more canvas than permitted under the rules. This mistake, made in recutting the sail, was rectified to-day. Through confusion at the beginning the vessels went away in the face of an official half-hour postponement.

ASKING FOR LIBERAL HELP!
BOLTON, England, Oct. 22. The Earl of Derby who is expected to enter the Bonar Law Cabinet, took a conciliatory view of the political situation in addressing a Conservative meeting here yesterday. "The Coalition has come to an end but Coalition still lives. We must not forget that while we thought we made sacrifices for Coalition, our Liberal friends also made sacrifices." To pursue a vendetta against those with whom the Conservatives worked would be wrong and criminal, he asserted.

FORD WINS UNOFFICIAL RACE.
GLOUCESTER, Oct. 21. The United States Challenger, Henry Ford, today defeated the Canadian Bluenose in the first race of the International Fishermen's series. The Committee, however, declared the race unofficial. The Bluenose turned the fourth mark in the official time of 3:53.40; the Ford turned the fourth mark at 3:44.20. The Bluenose was then a mile astern, the Ford had five miles to go to the finish on the port tack. The race was called unofficial by the judges because the vessels did not return to the starting point for a second point at the judge's request. The Ford beat the Bluenose by 12.41 minutes, unofficial time.

ADMIRAL HORSEY DEAD.
LONDON, Oct. 22. Admiral Sir Algernon de Horsey died at Cowes today aged ninety-five. (Admiral Sir Algernon de Horsey, K.C.B., was born in 1827. Joining the Navy, he served on the Coast of Syria in 1846. A quarter of a century later, he was senior naval officer during the Jamaica insurrection, and a year later, was in the same position during the Peruvian Raids on the Lakes of Canada. From 1871-1875 he was Naval A.D.C. to Queen Victoria, and gave up that appointment to go as Commodore to the West Indies. In 1876 he was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, and was responsible, while in the flagship Shah, for compelling the Peruvian rebel Iron-clad Huascar to surrender to the Peruvian authorities. His action having been criticized in Parliament, Sir J. Holken, the Attorney General, said "The Huascar having committed acts which made her an enemy of Great Britain, de Horsey was justified in what he did." From 1894-95, Admiral de Horsey commanded the Channel Squadron, after which he was placed on the retired list in 1913, he has been Governor of the Isle of Wight. He married in 1861 and had one son, Admiral Spencer de Horsey, and two daughters. He has published several books on technical subjects.)

The Boys' Survey and the Cigarette Nuisance.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—I wish to congratulate the Rotarians on the organized effort which they are making this week to obtain valuable statistics in reference to the Boy Life of St. John's, and trust that it will bear fruit in some practical places for the benefit of the growing boys. One of the greatest evils facing the boys of tender years today is the cigarette habit. Hundreds of boys from 8 years up are smoking cigarettes to-day, either secretly or openly and are undermining their health. The trainer of one of our college teams recently stated that his team had no chance in the college games in recent years owing to the cigarette habit, which lessened their endurance and the lads went to pieces individually after the first 15 or 20 minutes play. This would be a good opportunity to obtain the opinion of all parents as to the necessity of enforcing the cigarette law now on the Statute Book. Parents could state their views when asked to suggest how conditions may be improved for boys in St. John's. As the father of a 12 year old boy I can suggest the argument of the cigarette law as one of the most important factors in improving conditions in the Boy Life of St. John's.

Yours very truly,
PARENT.

ALEX SCOTT, 18 New Gower St.

The Evening Telegram, Ltd. Proprietors. Monday, October 23, 1922.

In Dollars and Cents.

The Advocate stigmatises our references to taxation under the present administration as misrepresentation, and with its usual mathematical inaccuracy publishes an emasculated list of certain wares and merchandise used by the fishermen in the pursuit of their calling. Let it suffice for the moment to take the Advocate's list and prove conclusively to the fishermen and others that they are paying duties far and away in excess of those they should be paying if the Government were not so shylockian in its demands on the earnings of the producers. It is one thing to talk in percentages. It is another to detail the sums paid on certain articles in dollars and cents. The ratio of percentage is apt to be misleading, but the exact figures cannot be mistaken or their veracity questioned. When we said that the fishermen were being taxed seventy cents on every dollar earned, we were not so far out of the way as our good friend the Advocate would have his readers believe. The actual average of general taxation is sixty-five cents to every dollar earned, since the small reduction made on certain tariff articles by the Government last spring. Prior to then, just what taxation was short of the original amount named is but infinitesimal.

On salt the duty paid at the present time is 14 cents per ton. Under late Governments, this very necessary commodity was on the free list. On coal in the outports, formerly free, the amount of duty is fifty cents per ton. This as a result of the five per cent. sales tax. On Pork, formerly $1.50 per barrel, the duty now averages $3.50 per barrel, more than double. On Beef, according to the Advocate, the duty works out at 11 per cent. This makes the rate per barrel $1.60, where formerly it was but one dollar. On Tea at an average rate of twenty-four cents per pound, invoiced, the duty is about 8 1/2 cents per pound. On Molasses, to carry further the Advocate's per centum rate the duty is 10 cents per gallon, where formerly this article was admitted free of duty. On Gasoline the duty is roughly seven cents per gallon. On Kerosene Oil in steel barrels (and these were one time recommended by Mr. Coaker as the best in which to ship Codoil) the duty is 5 1/2 cents per gallon. On Flour, which for some years was free, until the tariff of 1914 put it up to 25 cents per barrel the present sum of duty is roughly 68 cents. On the value of Lines and Twines, formerly free, every pack costing one dollar, fifty cents pays 7 1/2 cents duty, and so on in proportion to greater cost price. Rope says the Government today on the Advocate's basis of percentage about 3 1/2 cents per pound. The regular tariff rate is 1 1/2 cents, but sur, super and sales tax have brought the duty over double. Raisins and Currants, when not imported from Greece are taxed at four and a half cents per pound. Peas may be rated at 75 cents the barrel. On Beans the duty is roughly 1 1/2 cents per pound, formerly 1/2 cent, until Acting Minister of Finance Squires, added the 10 per cent. surtax, the 85 per cent. super tax and the 5 per cent. sales tax. Rice is a small item, the original duty being 1/4 cent per pound. It is now approximately 1 cent. On Tar the present duty works out at 9 cents per gallon, as per the basis of percentage given by Advocate. Pitch pays forty-four cents duty on every dollar worth imported. Oakum is listed at 1 cent per pound in the tariff. It is nearer 2 cents per pound when super and sales taxes are added. Sixty-six cents have to be paid on a suit of oil clothes costing $2, and so the list may be carried on. Other merchandise and sundries used by the fishermen will be compared later on. Sugar (a sweetly sour subject to the editor of the Advocate) Tobacco, Nets, Boots, Clothing, Dories. All the duties collected on these will be given in dollars and cents, in order that the fishermen, whom the Advocate professes to serve so truly, may see just where they are being mulcted of sixty-five cents from every dollar they earn to maintain an extravagant and reckless administration.

Two Danish Vessels Believed Lost.

The Danish schooners Immanuel and Ane Marie have been recently reported to have been lost with all hands. The schooner Immanuel, 144 tons, and registered at Marstal, took a job cargo from this port in the fall of 1921, and after discharging at Oporto, proceeded to Bys, where she took a cargo for Oporto, sailing for that port on December 18th, 1921, since which time no trace of her whereabouts has been found. The other Danish schooner, Ane Marie, 194 tons is also registered at Marstal. This vessel left Akureyri on May 11th, last for Rose Blanche, presumably to load fish, but has not reached her destination. Both ships carried crews of six men all told.

STAR MOVIE'S "FOUR HORSEMEN" IN PARADE THIS MORNING. In connection with the picture "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which is being shown at the Star movie all this week, the management arranged a parade through the city streets to-day. The Star management is to be congratulated on their unique way of advertising this great picture.

SLASHED THROAT WITH RAZOR. A thirty-year-old resident of the South Side, who has been ill for some time past, attempted suicide yesterday morning by slashing his throat with a razor. The unfortunate man is subject to sudden attacks of insanity, during one of these he made the attempt to take his life. Fortunately relatives were near and Dr. Anderson was summoned. Several stitches were necessary to close the wound and it is expected that the victim will make a speedy recovery.

Posted as Missing.

The cross country express, which left Port aux Basques yesterday morning on time has been delayed some four hours by a west bound freight train of which two cars left the track some ten miles east of Humbermouth. No serious damage was done. The express, which is not due to arrive until 5 o'clock this evening, has the following passengers:—A. McLaughlin, B. O'Neil, Miss M. Murphy, W. T. Robinson, Miss A. Street, Miss G. Street, Miss A. Davis, L. Burge, J. LeRoux, J. Dunphy, Mrs. Anstey, W. and Mrs. Martin, Mrs. West, Mrs. W. R. Moore, H. Curtis, J. and Mrs. Evans, C. Colley, Mrs. H. Batten, K. Bonden, Miss C. Crislockhank, S. Edwards, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. J. Rosseter, Dr. Coakburn.

Freight Train Derailed.

EXPRESS DELAYED FOUR HOURS. Large mass meetings were held on Friday and Saturday, says a telegraphic message from Westville. Intense interest, absolute unanimity and grave determination were exhibited by all. The fishermen of the north side of Bonavista Bay are in the right to stay for a fish, and no shadow of turning back will be shown. Mr. A. B. Morine, M.C., was unanimously elected adviser and Secretary. The meeting on Saturday was held at the demonstration. The following Resolutions were adopted by acclamation:—

The North Aroused.

ELOQUENT RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED—MORINE UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED ADVISER AND LEADER. WESLEYVILLE, Oct. 22. A. B. Morine, Esq., St. John's. Whereas industrial conditions in this country have come to such a pass as to render it impossible for the average fisherman to live on the diminishing returns obtainable at the present time; And Whereas the fishermen of this country recognize the impossibility of keeping their families together in any semblance of respectability or independence; We therefore submit the following proposition as an expression of public will, and resolve:—

Workman Injured.

FELL FROM SCAFFOLD. A workman named Brown is now in hospital in a precarious condition, suffering from injuries received when he fell from a scaffold while working on Kilbride Church. Brown stepped on a plank which was not equal to his weight, and fell a distance of 32 feet. Fellow workmen rushed to his assistance, and a doctor was quickly called to attend the injured man.

Why is This Thus?

Ninety-six of the vessels owned by St. John's firms are now in that port unengaged, says the H. Grace Standard of Oct. 20. In addition to that number, five are at Burgeo, awaiting cargo. At this season of the year, the enforced idleness of twenty-five vessels means a heavy loss to the owners, the trade and the men who go in them. And yet foreign-owned vessels are engaged in the fish-carrying trade.

Schooners Ready.

FLEET MAY DESCEND ON ST. JOHN'S. Following up the meeting on Friday night, a further gathering was held by Bonavista Bay fishermen at Wesleyville on Saturday, when a course of definite action was decided upon. This will probably be made known to-day.

Exchange Bronchitis for Health

(Monday) Health Talk, No. 4 (By Dr. W. H. MacPherson, D.C., P.M.C.) Any one who would exchange a case of bronchitis for health and gladness, the truth about health is that it is more natural than bronchitis. Those who have bronchitis are unnatural. They have departed from normal and to recover is easy, provided you choose the method which restores normal bodily conditions. When the body becomes in a run-down condition and cold settles in the bronchial tubes there is a cause both for the run-down condition and for the bronchial cold. This cause is in the spine and the chiropractor by his skill is able to find the disturbed joints and to adjust them to proper position. When the spinal nerves are freed by his adjustments health is the natural follow-up. Neglect of such a condition may lead to tuberculosis.

The Humber Proposition and The Railway Situation.

An Unprejudiced and Fair Review.

After the Humber proposition was first published in the Brening Telegram, I was asked to offer some comments on the Humber proposition and the Railway situation. Of course, I have many references have appeared in the press, and many rumors have been spread all more or less of an indefinite nature. Because of this indefinite nature, and because of the OVERBLASTING IMPORTANT of the Humber proposition, I seek together if possible, to piece together if possible, the available though indefinite data, and present "THE CASES" as they appear to our unprejudiced and fair consideration.

These problems contain much that is practical, so that the lay-mind, in its judgment, without some knowledge of the technical elements of the problem, may throw aside "A HUNDRED YEARS" and know it. I have studied the problems more or less closely, and watched events the last twenty years, and believe that Newfoundland is presently facing the MOST IMPORTANT DECISIONS IN HER HISTORY.

Dealing with the immediate and as a necessary background, and judgment thereon, I will attempt to review past events; the concerns, and their relation to the other. As the whole cannot be treated effectually in the space of your paper, I have divided these notes into several parts, publication in successive issues.

RAILWAY HISTORY.

Reviewing Railway history, and the causes for effects, the one feature, appears to be the HUBBER PROPOSITION OF THE HUBBER AND ECONOMIC ELEMENTS. If the reports of Mr. Hall, Mr. Morgan emphasize any common and costly error, it is this one: that the Humber proposition is a repetition of the predecessors' errors. The Humber proposition has been an over-night colossal error, and has been undertaken in haste, without adequate knowledge of property, and without adequate knowledge of the Humber proposition. The Humber proposition has been an over-night colossal error, and has been undertaken in haste, without adequate knowledge of property, and without adequate knowledge of the Humber proposition.

DANGERS AND SAFEGUARDS.

If confessed incompetence on the part of Government and people alike, is the result of our study of Railway History, the best safeguard for the future, lies in an effort, to determine first of all the causes of this incompetence, and then to remove, or overcome as far as possible, the effects of said causes. Many causes of a specific nature may be suggested, but I do not believe any particular individual or Government is alone responsible. If one considers the marked peculiarities of this country—its geographical position, and its people—it is not hard to trace the cause of our PECULIAR LOCAL CONDITIONS AND ENVIRONMENT. We are, therefore, forced to the following conclusions:—

(a) That the administration of an island containing 42,000 square miles, and many thousands of miles of coast line, out of the taxes, from 250,000 people, leaves no margin for adequate INVESTIGATION AND RESEARCH in connection with big new industrial or utility problems, with which the legislators and the people are not sufficiently familiar. In short we cannot afford the necessary research equipment, and must make the best of our limited resources, no matter how unsatisfactory that attitude may be.

(b) That legislators and people alike being engaged in FISHING AND TRADING PURSUITS; have not the opportunity of understanding industrial problems, and when called upon to pass hasty judgment on something they don't understand, they have no ready means of becoming enlightened thereon.

(c) That our INSULAR ENVIRONMENT creates and fosters an attitude of mind, easily prejudiced and capable of being swung to extremes, when dealing with new problems which are not understood.

(d) That our PARTY SYSTEM, together with an ILL-ADVISED PUBLIC OPINION; become dangerous factors, when dealing with problems of such magnitude and complexity on party lines.

Rumour and press reports tell us of Railway settlements, Humber deals, and impending elections. What about our confessed incompetence in judgment? If we cannot afford the luxury of Research departments and expert opinions, we can and should endeavor to overcome the effects of our INSULAR ENVIRONMENT, and raise these questions, of such overwhelming importance, above personal prejudices, above party-politics, and approach them with an open mind, for appraisalment on their real merits. These notes are intended to furnish such practical information, as is necessary for intelligent judgment, and which the public have not the opportunity of obtaining.

Contemporary Observations.

(Harbor Grace Standard.)

A WISE SUGGESTION.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries, we think should be in a position to inform the fishermen of the actual state of the markets, and of the prices that can be had for the fish. That Department is supposed to act and work for the general good of the country, and its sources of information should be equal to the task of keeping the fishermen posted about the markets and do its utmost to assure them of the real state of the demand for fish. Falling this why not the fishermen appoint some two or three of their number to visit the market and see the condition of them for themselves. There are many men among those who went to St. John's on the deputation, men who are competent to see and judge for themselves, and their visit to the chief centres of the fish trade would benefit them. The exporters have their agents and why not the fishermen have the means of knowing whether or not the price offered is the highest the market warrants?

SOUNDS WARLIKE.

The disturbed political atmosphere has been further agitated by the proposal of one of the members of the People's House to arrange an armistice. The apparent object is to drop all matters of a contentious nature and to have the wisdom of the whole gathering used for the benefit of the people and the welfare of the country—a purpose that the masses hitherto supposed was the real work and duties of those who have been sent to the Legislature. The intelligence of the country considered that the House was the place where ways were decided, means used and measures undertaken for the general good of those who sent representatives there. We were led to believe that political economy meant the welfare of the country. This armistice proposition sounds too warlike for our peace of mind, and tends to cause a feeling of alarm. It may be that this armistice is a prelude to a real war, and is intended for the purpose of preparing for active service—to provide the materials, test the strength of the various branches of the competing hosts and start the fray. Peaceful overtures are suspicious. Are they so in this armistice proposition?

ARE WE FISH EATERS.

The keeping for sale by the local stores of various kinds of foreign fish food prompts the question—"Are we a fish-eating people?" To see British Columbia salmon, finnan haddies, Doby herring, etc., offered for sale would lead one to suppose that we needed more fish food than our own waters supply. Is such the case? We fear not as we are by no means a fish-eating people. It is a question if any family, except that of a fisherman, uses a quintal of fish in one year. The working man does not use that quantity, and in the case of a fisherman it is more a matter of having the fish than it is a preference for such food. There are hundreds of families in the larger settlements and out-of-the-way places that never eat salt codfish. This fish is a useful article in any family and should form an important item in the home. Its increased consumption would be a great help to the fishermen who have now a supply on hand for disposal. A prime quality of large Labrador late-catch fish has been sold for five dollars a quintal, and is an article of food that is worth the money.

"I Accuse."

THE BIG WAR PICTURE AT THE MAJESTIC.

The lesson to be learned from Abel Gance's big production "I Accuse," pictured at the Majestic Theatre is contained in the question "Is it that our dead have died in vain?" To those who need an education in the very intensity of human living, "I Accuse" is a drama that touches the very sources of life. Tragedy, pathos, sacrifice, maternal love, jealousy, all blend in one grand combination and produce a picture that is truly human and truly lifelike. The alarms of war, the marching troops, the battles, life in the trenches, all make a tout ensemble not often witnessed on the silver screen. McCrae's poem "In Flanders Fields" is the motif on which the scenario is based.

"We are the dead, short space ago we lived. Felt dawn and sunset glow. Loved and were loved. And now we lie in Flanders Fields." The march of the army of the dead, who rose from Flanders Fields, is a tremendous picture, and carries with it a sense of weirdness in all beholders. The admonition of this dead-living army is to all who come after!

"If ye break faith With us who die, We shall not sleep The poppies blow On Flanders Fields."

All whose privilege it is to see "I Accuse," will come away with the impression that those who are dead yet speak, and that the achievements of those whose duty it is to look out that the dead shall not have died in vain, have not measured up to the standard of those who gave their lives that we might live.

Some amusement was caused in the Police Court to-day during the hearing of an action taken by a woman against a neighbour for abusive language. When plaintiff went to a nearby tank for water, she said that defendant shouted much rude comment at her. Defendant spoke very indistinctly when giving evidence. "Speak up. You do it loudly enough on the street," said the Judge. The case was dismissed.

Many of the leading photography reviewers confess that they could not express the sense of power and beauty with which they were impressed after seeing the Four Horsemen. Those who found words tried to outdo each other in voicing their astonished admiration at the Rex program achievement. Their competition in this regard was the result of their unbiased sentiments of approval of such a wonderful production. Arthur Train, one of the foremost action writers of the day says of it, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse is unquestionably the finest photoplay I have ever seen. It surpasses anything in photography, cast and composition everything else of the kind, and seems to represent the highest art of the motion picture."

Obituary.

WILLIAM COLLINGWOOD. (H. F. SHORTIS.)

In the death of Mr. William Collingwood, which occurred at his residence on Saturday evening last, Newfoundland loses a prominent member of the Old Guard amongst our business men, and St. John's one of its best known and highly esteemed citizens. Mr. Collingwood was born in the city of Poole, Dorset, England, in the year 1841, and arrived in Newfoundland when only thirteen years of age, in his father's vessel; the Lord Nelson, of which Captain Collingwood was master. The ship was a topsail schooner, and it was said, was a beautiful model of marine architecture, and needless to say, being built of the best oak was noted for her durability and sailing qualities. The year after his arrival the deceased was articled to the great firm of Slade, with headquarters at Poole, and which had branch businesses in many parts of this country as well as Labrador, and Mr. Collingwood took up his duties at Battle Harbor. He remained at his post winter and summer, only taking a vacation once in every two years to visit the old home and friends in Poole. In 1871 the time-honored firm of Baine Johnston & Co. took over the business at Battle Harbor, and Mr. Collingwood was retained at that station, under the late W. B. Bendell, who was also a native of Poole. For over half a century Mr. Collingwood was connected with the extensive firm of Baine Johnston & Co., and during that long period he was held in the highest regard and confidence by the principals of that firm. During the Great War he conducted a coal business in the premises of Newman & Co. in the West End of the city, but feeling that his health was becoming impaired, owing to his advanced years, he retired, but still kept in touch with current events as well as the business workings of our country. It may be truly said that he died in harness. Away back in our early days his father, Captain Collingwood of the schooner Lord Nelson, was also connected with the firm of Slade, and, owing to this, I can readily arrive at the conclusion as to how the wonderfully retentive mind of the deceased became such a repository of many valuable historical facts and traditions, not alone of Newfoundland, but of Labrador as well. Mr. Collingwood was of a somewhat retiring disposition, but when he once opened up upon any subject in which he was interested in connection with our country or our industries, one quickly recognized the fact that he was a veritable encyclopaedia of events and happenings which dated back to our early days, as well as to the events of later days, all up to the time of his demise. It is stated that Slade started business at Battle Harbor in the year 1868, and subsequently extended the business to Venison Island and other stations on Labrador. Mr. Collingwood was a descendant of the famous Lord Nelson, after the latter had been mortally wounded at the moment of victory in the world-renowned battle of Trafalgar, in 1805, and I may here mention that I have a copy of the London Times of that date, one hundred and seventeen years ago, in a perfect state of preservation, giving an official account of the battle, from early days Mr. Collingwood was subjected to many hardships and adventures, and no doubt, escapes, when the late Rev. Mr. Hutchingson (father of Lady Horwood) and other missionaries were compelled to travel hundreds of miles in carrying out the duties of their sacred calling during the winter months on the stormy and desolate coast of Labrador. Mr. Collingwood accompanying them. These journeys were performed with dogs and sleds in winter, and it must be remembered that we had not such modern improvements as we have to-day, and that communication between Newfoundland and Labrador was totally shut off from November until June of the following year. Those who were acquainted with the ### Boy Life Survey.

Dear Sir—A survey of boy life in this city, so humely organized by the gentlemen of the Rotary Club, is I am sure a step in the right direction, as we know conditions in the city are anything but satisfactory for the boy of the present day, and it is pretty near time something was done to better conditions, and we hope through the efforts now being made, that some good will be accomplished. This survey brought to a successful issue, that myriads of childish voices will be raised in loud hosannas in the future, proclaiming their redemption from a condition that stunted life and menaced coming generations. The children are one of the special cares of Rotarians. Their salvation from industrial slavery during their tender years will make it possible for them to become honest and respectable citizens, a blessing to their parents, themselves and their country. In this survey the Rotarians are obeying the commands of Him who said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." For them is demanded all the conditions that will enable them to live "unspotted from the world," so that future generations will rise up and call them blessed. Just think of it, Mr. Editor, a city any way from forty to fifty-five thousand people without a Public School, playground, Public Library or Reformatory. Time and again we have read in the press where very young children have been brought before the bar of justice for committing minor offences, their little lives being blighted by having to serve a term in prison, and in some cases to receive finishing touches, so that no sooner are they liberated but they are back again. This shows the great need of a Reformatory, where boys may be given a chance to reform and make good under the care and guiding hand of those who would be in charge. His Honor Judge Morris has time and again commented on this matter, but nothing has been done towards improvement. But I hope the time is not far distant when this abominable thing will change, and the boy will be given every chance to fit himself for the battle of life. Hoping I have not taken up too much of your valuable space, and thanking you for same.

Yours truly,
CHARLES HAMLYN.

JUST FOR EFFECT.

ANGORA, Oct. 21. The Turkish Nationalists have signed the Mudania Armistice, to prove peaceful intentions to the world, and not because of pressure from the British, according to Foreign Minister Yusuf Kemal Bey, talking to the Nationalist assembly in referring to Lord George's Manchester speech. Referring to the Allied appeal for an amnesty for Ottoman and Greek prisoners, he said "this is interference in Turkish affairs. The Turks have their own laws and will know how to deal with such matters."

The logical place to begin improvement of eggs for market is right in the breeding pen. If you want to obtain maximum returns for your outlay it will be well to select pure bred fowls as your foundation. Eggs must be large and uniform in size and color as well as being fresh if they are to command the highest market prices. Scrub or mongrel hens may shell out the few eggs necessary for your private table, but viewed as market eggs their production will be grade low, as they will run uneven in size and general market requirements. The average pure bred fowl properly bred for egg production by a reliable breeder will lay at least six dozen eggs a year more than a mongrel, and will usually make a creditable showing in fall and winter when prices are highest. In addition a large proportion of the eggs will grade firsts and this in return for the same feed passed out to mongrels. Do not breed from the farm flock as they run at large, but select a pen of the best you have to breed from. Select for this pen mature hens that you know from trapnest records or general observation to be good layers. When you catch an old hen, or two holding down her job on the nest during the cold winter months, slip a leg band on her and mark them for your breeding pen. When you have the females that conform to your ideal for the purpose intended, then endeavor to mate them to a male that you know to be the son of a high producing dam, preferably a male whose dam was a good winter layer.

Remember the male is going to leave his impression on all the progeny produced by that pen. A poor hen could only leave an impression on a part, so be as sure as is humanly possible about the male. At the same time while admitting the male to be more than half the flock from the breeders stand point, it will never do harm to have the best quality of your disposal on both sides of the mating. It is possible to grade up a farm flock by use of good pure bred males but the progeny when bred will show atavistic tendencies, and not prove as reliable in the breeding pen as if the pen was composed of all pure bred fowls. Use birds that have stamina and constitutional vigor and that are well up to standard weight, to breed from. If your market shows a preference for dead white eggs, select that kind for hatching and do not tinted eggs. If the demand is for brown shelled, use eggs that are uniform as to color as well as size, for purposes of incubation, and you will soon build up a flock to produce eggs that will run close to requirements. Heredity, housing, feeding and environments have some bearing on successful egg production but will be dealt with in other articles where they more properly belong. There is no good reason why you should run a male with a laying flock and males should be separated from females on farms after the breeding season is over.

Molasses—The price at Barbados this week is 45 cents per wine gallon l.o.b. The old molasses is practically all cleared out except some shipments stored for export that were ordered ahead. The local prices are unchanged, viz: Fancy 80 cents; Choice 72 in puncheons; 74 in tierces, and 77 in barrels. The schooners Eliza Rodway, Little Princess and Cecil Junior are now at Barbados. The imports to date are 9065 puncheons, as compared with 6281 puncheons this week last year.

Tea—The prices for tea are quite strong and a further advance of two pence a pound took place in the London market last week. This is caused by confirmed reports of the shortage in the Indian crop. The S.S. Rosalind brought in 1001 packages last trip which added to the 1855 chests brought by the Silvia last month gives a good supply for the fall trade.

Potatoes—Information comes from several sections of the country this week, and the result of the digging the past two weeks has been disappointing and that the crop will be short. This, however, is not general

A Famous French Soldier.

The funeral of Marshal MacMahon, Duc de Magenta, a brave French soldier descended from an Irish family who followed the fortunes of the Stuarts to France, took place in Paris on Oct. 22, 1893, and was a grand and solemn pageant, with a procession from the Madeleine, by the Rue Royale, the Place de la Concorde, and the Champs Elysees, and down the Ave. de l'Antin, crossing the Seine to the Invalides. The funeral car, drawn by six black horses, was accompanied by State officials, the Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honour, the Minister of Marine, and the Vice-Presidents of the Senate and the Chancellor of Deputies, followed by the other ministers, the foreign Ambassadors, the Russian Admiral Avellan, and many officers of the army. Among the wreaths was one sent by Queen Victoria, with her own handwriting, to express her "regard and profound sympathy," another was from the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII.). Sugar—The market has become quite strong once more. Refineries having put up the price to $7.10 per 100 pounds, which shows a total advance of 50 cents from the low point. The movement in refined has kept pace with the advance in raws. Consumers have used up an abnormal quantity from retailers stock since early September; in canning the big crops of plums, peaches, etc. and to this the recent revival in demand on wholesalers is attributed. The local spot price for American White Granulated in barrels is now $11.35 per 100 pounds.

Who Doctored the Chart and Report. GOVERNMENT SHOULD INSITU- TE ENQUIRY.

Editor Evening Telegram Dear Sir.—I have carefully read Mr. Michael J. James's letter in this evening's Telegram. I now think what the Government of Newfound- land should do is to immediately in- stitute an exhaustive enquiry as to the methods used by the barnacles who hang around the government of- fices prying into everyone's affairs, and inducing people to invest money in propositions through the means of forged or padded reports and doctor- ed admiralty cards, so that in future the name of Newfoundland may be kept clear of the stigma attached to such crookedness. I would also direct the public's attention to the fact that some of the beneficiaries of this rotten transaction occupy promi- nent positions in the community, and whether they consider it honest and honorable to allow the crime of for- gery to go unpunished when they are in a position to have the guilty par- ties brought to justice. I was in the position to spend very large sums of money for much needed work in the Dominion of Newfoundland, and am still prepared to close contracts pro- perly guaranteed by bankers credit for a hundred thousand cords of pulp wood per annum, and had the Stag Bay limits been what they were re- presented to be, we would have been cutting that amount of wood now, which would mean nearly six or seven hundred thousand dollars of wages alone each year. In reference to Mr. Roche's report on the Stag Bay lim- its and its workable possibilities, I may say, his is only one of the six reports that I have on that cruise and covers just the part of the property over which he walked—but if the other reports are desired I will pro- duce them. I am convinced of the honesty and innocence of Mr. James in the unfortunate mix-up, and great- ly appreciate the nice remarks he has made about myself. I can assure him nothing he may have said in any of his letters hurt my feelings in any way, and whenever he may be ready to take that trip to Stag Bay by air- plane with me, he will find I harbor no hard feelings against him. I have had the pleasure of two visits at my hotel from Mr. James and he was shown my file relative to the Stag Bay deal. I further allowed him to retain the forged report on the prop- erty that he may be able to justify himself. I handed it to him in the presence of two witnesses and cer- tified that it was the original docu- ment furnished me as purporting to be made by Mr. James.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for the freedom you have given this subject in your columns. Yours very truly, HENRY C. BELLEW. Oct. 21st, 1922.

By ONLOOKER. ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL. The Cup Series—STAR vs. B.I.S. Re- sult: STAR 3 Goals; B.I.S. 0. Played on the Jewellin Grounds, Sept. 2, 1898. The chilly weather had evidently some effect upon the spectators at last night's game, for, although a goodly number were present, the receipts did not come up to the average. It was a foregone conclusion that the B.I.S. were to use a vulgarian, "not in it," but their first ten minutes play was fast and furious, and the hopes of their backers went up 100 per cent. They were unable to keep up the pace however, owing to playing up grade, and in 15 minutes were all winded. Still they pressed on till the Star goal, secured a goal, and had several good chances, but failed, when suddenly he afterwards realised when he formed of his famous regiment of Ironsides. All England thought one battle would finish the Civil war, but it was nearly seven years before Charles's head was brought to the executioner's block.

MASTER OF FORD INDUSTRIOUSLY REFUSES TO SAIL VESSEL. GLOUCESTER, Oct. 23. An hour before the starting of the postponed first event in the interna- tional schooner race series, the "Bluenose" was seen to be "made up" by a makeshift crew. Captain Morrissey and crew were dis- tinct at the railing of the Commodore in declaring Saturday's race was ac- tual and refuse to sail Henry Bluenose in the series. This was being stubbornly maintained this morning, and unless a new crew were procured the trophy will be de- lined, according to present indica- tions.

BLUENOSE AT STARTING POINT

CLOUCESTER, Oct. 23. Appeals made by Secretary of Navy Denby, and others, including the Ford's crew to go aboard the "Bluenose" were refused by the captain Morrissey, and others, who are from the wharves making up a complete crew, which is putting the "Bluenose" in readiness for the race. The "Bluenose" has slipped out of the harbor to the starting point.

CHALLENGER MAKES A START

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 23. The Gloucester schooner "Ford," with a makeshift crew, left the wharf in tow of a tug at 2.15 p.m. The crew began heading for the starting point. An increasing southerly breeze was coming in and the tug was at anchor in the harbor.

RACE BEGINS

The international schooner race started at 11 o'clock this morning at New York time. Ford leading the line by about three lengths. Sixteen minutes would be about 12.30 p.m. (message.)

where Power, at the 12 mark jumped in the air and headed for the net. The fifth goal for the Stars. Until the whistle the ball was all over the ground, but the referee failed to do anything to restrain losses. The teams were: STAR—Viancombe, English, Collins, Cowan, J. Viancombe, Brophy, Power, Brophy, Condon, Ryan.

B.I.S.—O'Neill, Halley, McLaughlin, Crotty, Donnelly, Connolly, Jordan, O'Driscoll, Higgins and Kay.

REMARKS ON THE GAME

The winners had a capital game and their combination was anything they have done this season. Power, Condon, and Ryan played to each other, whilst Brophy and Brophy did as well on the left wing. J. Viancombe played well superior to any time this season. He is a hard man to tackle, while the rest of the team put up a manly defence when called upon. Viancombe received a severe blow on the charge by J. P. Crotty, and for a moment it was thought he would have left the field, but he pluckily held on till the close, although his head was swimming from the blow.

Amongst the B.I.S. forwards there was a lack of combined play and often three or four were bunched together, doing more harm than good. Jordan and Tobin did remarkably well in the first half, and had many opportunities but failed. Condon did his best but played against a hard man to tackle, whilst Halley and McLaughlin were too often rushed to be of much vice. O'Neill defended well, but lightning shots of the Star boys were too hot to hold.

The Committee that on Saturday evening when the Stars and the B.I.S. met for the final game, that the match was called for 6.30 p.m. Last night the conclusion of the game was too dark to see. Mr. J. Anderson was rumored last night has proposed another cup to be competed for by the football players are jubilant. "G.P." is determined to see the boom football in the years to come.
