Lady Wyverne's Daughter.

CHAPTER XI.

A low sigh of unutterable relief from her lips as Philip opened the case, and she saw the magnificent parure of diamonds that had driven half the fashionable ladies in London wild with envy.

"How am I to thank you?" she said, raising her dark eyes to his face.

"By always looking as beautiful when you wear them as you do now," was the gallant reply.

Then Agatha kissed her, and wished her joy and happiness, without one shade or cloud upon her sweet face, and went out, leaving the lovers to gether.

No one round Lynnewelde will ever forget the wedding-day of its young lord. The sun shone brightly, the very bells in the old church tower seemed delicious with joy. The rich feasted in the hall, the poor on the lawn. Bonfires blazed, and flags, banners, and triumphal arches met the eye at every turn. It was a scene of gaiety and happiness never forgotten by those who witnessed it.

A more beautiful bride or fairer bridesmaids were never seen. Sorrow and sadness seemed far as death from that noble and brilliant throng.

The last face Lady Lynne saw as she drove away from home, the last smile that greeted her, were the face and smiles of the gentle sister she had betrayed.

CHAPTER XIII.

It is something worth living for to be perfectly happy even for one day. Lady Lynne was even more fortunate; she was perfectly and entirely happy during the "golden" months she passed with her husband at Rosy-Glyn. She had said to herself that she would make him happy, and she did so. She studied his every wish and every thought; and yet, wonderful to relate, never wearied him, but left him always longing for her to speak again.

Nor were those quiet weeks all given to love-making; Inez imparted to her husband of those ambitious hopes Agatha should be presented with her sister, and have the advantage of passing the remainder of the season in London. Inez did not know how to object to what seemed a sensible and kindly arrangement. There was not one single reason that she could bring forward against it; nor, when she came to consider the matter, did she care about interfering. Both Lord Lynne and her sister were far too honorable, she knew, to allude, however distantly, to any attachment that might previously have existed between them; there was no fear, besides, she would be always near.

So the invitation was sent, urgently by Inez, with a postscript from Philip, begging his mother to accompany Agatha to London. But Mrs. Lynne, fatigued by the festivities attending the wedding, begged this season to be excused. Their cousin, Lady Everleigh, would have great pleasure in presenting her beautiful young relations at court.

"I long to see London," said Inez, to her husband, when they were seated in the railway carriage. "I have seen nothing of the world at present. I long to take my place in it, as a soldier long for battle. Shall I like London, Philip?"

"I think so," he replied. "It is not so gay, perhaps, nor so beautiful, as Paris, but I would rather live there than in any other city in the world. Life always seems to me twice as full and complete in London."

"Perhaps English ladies may not like me," said Inez, half timidly; "I am so very Spanish in appearance."

"I must not flatter you, Inez," replied Lord Lynne, smiling quietly; "but I prophesy you will be the belle of the season."

"That will be something new for me," she said.

"Was your life in Spain so very lonely?" said Philip, gently.

"Very," she replied; and the beautiful face grew pale and sad.

"We must make it up to you now," said her husband, kindly. "You shall enjoy yourself as you like, and crowd as much pleasure into each day as you can. It will be doubly pleasant for you to have Agatha with you."

Great was the delight of Lady Lynne when she saw the magnificent home prepared for her. She had married entirely for love. If Philip Lynne had been penniless and obscure, she would have preferred him to all the world beside; but she loved splendor, and her heart rejoiced in the superb and luxurious appointments of her new home. It was evening when they arrived, and dinner was served up to them in the stately dining-room.

"You must go to rest early to-night, Inez," said her husband; "late hours will begin soon enough. Agatha will be here to-morrow, and Lady Everleigh will call. She will take you to Madame Nevers to choose your court costume. You must wear your diamonds; mind, Inez, we must do all honor to the Lynnes of Lynnewelde."

On the day following Agatha arrived. Mrs. Lynne had found an escort for her. At three, Lady Everleigh called, and both sisters were charmed with her. She was not beautiful, not even pretty, but she possessed that incomparable and irresistible gift of fascination given to so few—high-bred and amiable, piquant and pleasant in conversation, with manners at once gentle and dignified. Lady Everleigh had been for some few years one of the leaders of ton. Her delight was unbounded at making the acquaintance of her beautiful cousin, and her eyes were at once riveted on that lovely Southern face.

"Properly managed," said the lady to herself, "Lady Lynne will make a perfect furor."

Agatha was fair and sweet, but her English face and golden hair paled before the luster of the radiant Andalasian.

There was a long debate about the costume; but it was settled at once when Lady Everleigh saw the magnificent parure of diamonds. She pronounced in favor of white satin. "Nothing else," she declared, "would go with those superb stones."

Lady Lynne may be pardoned if she did utter an exclamation of surprise when she saw herself for the first time in Court costume. It suited her regal style of beauty to perfection.

Convenient, Economical and Pure

If you have never known the convenience of milk that is always at hand and ready to use, that takes up so little room and keeps sweet so long, you will be delighted with Carnation Milk. Creamy and rich, it adds a new flavor and richness at less cost than cream. Economical for ordinary milk uses because you add a little more than an equal part of water to replace that which we have removed, and because it is never wasted, as it keeps for several days after the can is opened, when kept cool.

Carnation Milk is pure—because it is simply fresh, whole milk with about 60% of the water removed, sealed in air-tight tins and sterilized. Your grocer has this finer milk—order several tall cans or a case of 48 cans.

Try this recipe and write for the free Carnation-Cook Book.

RICE PUDDING

2½ cups water, 1½ cups Carnation Milk, 1/3 cup rice, ½ teaspoonful salt, 2 table-spoonfuls sugar. Wash rice, mix ingredients, and pour into buttered baking dish. Bake two and a half hours in a very slow oven, stirring every twenty minutes the first hour of baking to prevent rice from settling.

Which is England's Oldest City

EXETER'S TWO THOUSAND YEARS OF SPLENDOR.

There is no city in England, and there are few in the world, that can look back on a longer or more distinguished history than Exeter (written an Exeter reader).

Long before London was cradled, and before Julius Caesar set foot on Kentish soil, this town was picturesquely perched on her green hill in the Exe Valley, with stout walls for her girde—the crowned Queen of the West Country.

She had counted her years in centuries when the first of Nero's centuries trod her streets; and in those long-dad Roman days, as Inez Damm-nonium, her name and fame were known in the farthest corners of Britain.

Naturally, a town so flourishing could not hope to escape covetous eyes. Again and again through the centuries Danes poured westward to attack her—only to be driven back each time.

A Starving Town.

And when Athelstan strengthened her walls with mighty towers, she felt she could afford to smile at the Northern barbarians; though Sweeney's warriors once succeeded in breaking down her defences, and laid her waste with fire and sword, destroying the minister church of which she was so proud. A few years later, however, the master rose from his ashes in still greater splendor.

When the Conqueror made his triumphant way to the West of England, Exeter would have none of the usurper. She barred her gates against him, and defied him to do his worst; and it was only when she was reduced to starvation and her walls were tumbling around her that she consented to parley with him.

The next few centuries saw Exeter's cathedral grow in splendor to the perfection which has made it one of the most beautiful in the world—each bishop, from William of Ware-last to Bishop Stapleton, vying with his predecessors in adding to its wonders of architecture.

But while Exeter was raising this glorious temple, she was never long free from the horrors of war. Now we see Stephen's forces laying siege to her for three terrible months until no crust was left to sustain her defenders' valour. Now she is valiantly beating back Perkin Warbeck's rabble army, and hanging the impostor within her walls.

In later years she is besieged by rebel Catholics, 10,000 strong, and reduced to the extremes of hunger before deliverance comes; and in the Civil War we see her the stormy centre of battle and bloodshed, with Cromwell's Roundheads defiling and desecrating her cathedral.

Charles I. spent many happy days as Exeter's guest; his daughter, Henrietta, faded to a life of misery and a tragic death, was born there, and baptised in her cathedral; and the second Charles, on his restoration, walked through her streets amid showers of roses. And when William of Orange landed in Devonshire, Exeter received him with open arms.

All this time Exeter was a hive of industry. She was the great centre of the woolen trade in the West of England, into which woven cloths poured from all points of the compass, to be sent over the seas to all parts of the earth. To this great and profitable trade she has added a wide range of industries, from agricultural implements to gloves, and from nurseries to Honiton lace.

Plans for Aerial Pullman

BEING EXAMINED BY BRITISH AIRCRAFT AUTHORITIES.

LONDON, May 15.—Plans for an aerial pullman are being examined by British aircraft authorities. A great slim metal salon, like a long tapering pullman car, is the basis of the idea.

Covered with smooth gleaming sheaths of featherweight metal alloy, this great air coach will be designed to rest on a long framework which will have wheels like a railway coach. The conveyance, which will have day and night accommodation, will run on ordinary railway tracks and will be packed into a railway station to receive its passengers.

When they are aboard an engine will take it to an airfield outside a city, where it will be brought to a halt in the center of a strange framework of wide-spreading wings and machinery. The coach shedding its railway wheels, will then slide into position above a powerful pneumatic-tired airplane chassis, to which it will be bolted.

Thug Victims are Locked in Ice-Box.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Thirty police surrounded a block of apartments in Upper Manhattan to-day, in a five hour hunt for one of a team of bandits who after midnight locked a St. Nicholas Avenue delicatessen man and his son in a refrigerator and robbed the safe of $75.

Every cellar, penthouse and fire escape was searched without avail. The bandit's alleged partner, who gave the name of Jack Kennedy, was captured after a running battle in which scores of shots were fired.

The ice-box prisoners were discovered seven hours after the robbery.

THE TURKISH MENACE.
LONDON, May 23. — Fresh trouble in the East are attracting attention to the reported wreckage of the bridge across the Maritza connecting Adrianople and Thrace, the Daily Telegraph's special correspondent says that the railway bridge has not been damaged, it is in danger, and that the Turks are known to have mined it. The Maritza explosion, which is merely an incident. He coincides curiously enough with the heading of troops in fragments of the Mudania convention near the Isthmus of Bulair on the Gallipoli Peninsula in the mainland. This is regarded as a greater seriousness in British circles than what has been happening at Adrianople, for it aims at cutting off overland communication between the Allied garrison at the Gallipoli and Constantinople. This awkward position would be aggravated if the Turks by their destruction of all the Maritza bridges made it impossible for the Greek army to re-enter Thrace by the railway, in case of the bridge being suddenly attacked at Adrianople. The budding Turkish empire cannot be dismissed as bluff, there is some realization in Constantinople that it must be ready to meet with it. It is suggested that the reported movement of Allied warships connected with the Maritza incident, but there is no confirmation of this.

BALDWIN'S APPOINTMENT WELL RECEIVED.
LONDON, May 23. — No incoming Prime Minister could wish for a better reception from the press than Stanley Baldwin received. The morning newspapers say that the appointment is in accordance with popular wishes and the best solution under the circumstances. Reports from Conservative quarters throughout the country confirm this opinion. The comments of Labor and Liberal newspapers are influenced of course by political considerations, but none has a word against the new Premier personally. The Morning Post recalls to-day that during the war when Mr. Baldwin was prevented from physical participation in the conflict he had his wealth appraised and gave exactly one-fourth as a contribution toward the nation's effort.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS BRITISH DEMANDS.
LONDON, May 23. — Soviet Russia's second reply to the British ultimatum accepts the majority of the British demands and suggests the holding of a conference to consider the points in dispute. The Soviet expresses its readiness to conclude forthwith an agreement granting British citizens the right to fish outside the three mile limit off the Russian Coasts, pending settlement by an International Convention of the extent of territorial waters. The Soviet Government says it is ready to pay compensation for the seizure of British trawlers and for the execution of Charles F. Davidson, and for the arrest and detention of Mrs. Stan Harding, a newspaper correspondent, but it refuses to recognize that there was any irregularity in the measures taken against "these spies." It offers to withdraw the two Weinstein notes written in reply to the British protests over the prosecution of high church officials, which notes the British considered offensive. The Soviet Government is ready to reiterate understandings of the trade agreement provided Great Britain makes similar undertakings. It is also ready to investigate friendly representations regarding alleged infringement of the trade agreement on a basis of reciprocity. The note generally sets forth that the consequences possible from the breaking of relations have caused the Russian Government serious apprehension and that it is to avoid such results that the Soviet is willing to make these new concessions.

HOLIDAY STRIKE IN CAPE BRETON.
SYDNEY, May 23. — The rumour that the miners of District 28 were contemplating a series of holiday strikes as a protest against the presence of the Indian Ocean lying between Africa and Australia. Why a path of say 16,000 miles should at one time of day prove easier than a path of only 8,000 miles is an unsolved riddle of wireless.

UNSOLVED RIDDLES of Wireless.
(By ARTHUR R. BURROWS, Director of Programmes, British Broadcasting Company.)
A few months ago observers set out from Britain to collect information upon the world's high-power wireless stations. When they reached the Pacific Ocean they discovered that whereas at one time of day the signals from the Atlantic seaboard of America came to them across the American continent, at another time they preferred to make a complete circuit of the world and arrive by way of the Atlantic, North Africa, and the vast expanse of the Indian Ocean lying between Africa and Australia. Why a path of say 16,000 miles should at one time of day prove easier than a path of only 8,000 miles is an unsolved riddle of wireless.

POINCARÉ RESIGNS.
PARIS, May 24. — Premier Poincaré resigned this evening. President Millerand refused to accept the resignation. Poincaré decided to withdraw when the Senate, sitting as a High Court for the trial of Cachin and other Communists, charged with acts endangering the public safety, voted by a majority of thirty that it was incompetent to bring the defendants to trial.

KILLED AT NEW WATERFORD.
SYDNEY, May 24. — Joseph Handrigan and Dan MacDougall were killed by a heavy fall of stone in number fourteen colliery at New Waterford last night. Both men were married with large families.

ELECTROCUTED.
SYDNEY, May 24. — The mystery surrounding the disappearance of James MacDougall MacDonaid, an electrician, who has been missing since April 29th, was cleared up to-day when carpenters found the body on the roof of the power house at the Besco Steel plant. The Coroner's Jury brought in a verdict of death by accidental electrocution.

ANOTHER RAILWAY SCHEME.
LONDON, May 24. — G. E. Hall, Caine, independent member for East Dorset, announced in a speech at Poole to-night, he was sailing on Wednesday next for Canada to negotiate with the Canadian Government for the construction of two hundred miles of railroad to open up a new country for settlers. He holds out the hope of valuable orders for British steel industries.

What is Your Jaw-Power?
Do you know the power of your jaw? The next time you sit down to a meal, the thought will either make your jaw ache with weariness, or you will be absorbed in mathematical calculations of the horse-power developed by the occupants of your table.
The president of the Chicago Dental University, Dr. C. E. Black, has invented an instrument of simple construction, but with a name that is guaranteed to contour the strongest of jaws—namely, the gnathodynamometer.
The jaws are built on the principle of a pair of tongs, and this instrument is used to determine their strength.
Dr. Black has performed gnathodynamometric tests on the jaws of a thousand people. The average power was 177 pounds for the molar teeth, but much less for the incisors and incisors.
In addition to the gnathodynamometer, he has devised another instrument, the chagodynamometer, with which he tests the resistance of various foods to chewing.
Tongue is found to be the tenderest of foods; the central part offers only a resistance of from three to four pounds. Mutton chops require from thirty to forty pounds pressure, and beef from forty to fifty. Beef steaks that are well done and somewhat tough require a pressure of from sixty to eighty pounds. Meat that has been made tender by storage reduces these figures by about one-third.
A butcher chose some very tough meat from the neck of an ancient animal, and the amount of pressure required before the meat was crushed amounted to between seventy and ninety pounds.

Home of Quakes.

SEVEN OF TEN TERRORS ORIGINATE IN THAT SEA—TROUGHS IN WATERS.

The recent disturbance in Chile must be reckoned as one of the world's greatest earthquakes, writes Charles Davison, Sr., D., author of "The Origin of Earthquakes," in the Daily Mail.

To be felt along the coast for more than 1100 miles, to be strong enough to stop clocks in Buenos Ayres, about 900 miles across the continent, the area disturbed by the earthquake must have far exceeded 2,500,000 square miles and have closely approached that affected by the destructive Chinese earthquake of nearly two years ago, probably the most extensive known to us.

In the study of an earthquake, great or small, the main point to be determined, is the position of its origin. This will be definitely known as soon as the records from several distant observatories can be measured and compared.

In the meantime, we have to rely on somewhat scanty data, on our knowledge of the area of greatest damage, on the fact that the shock, as in so many other Peruvian and Chilean earthquakes, was followed soon after by a series of destructive sea waves.

The existence of such waves shows that not only was the origin submarine, but also that the earthquake was accompanied by a marked change of level in the ocean bed—not by such a change as that first reported of 15,000 to 516 feet, but by one of some few feet only, the greatest known uplift in any earthquake being nearly 48 feet.

The next point of significance is that the damage caused by the earthquake was most serious along a portion of the coast about 200 miles in length, reaching from Coquimbo northward to Copiapo, the town that suffered most of all being Valparaiso, about half way between these places. It is therefore probable that the origin lay some distance out at sea and in the neighborhood of a place directly opposite to Valparaiso.

Along the margins of the Pacific Ocean are some of the most potent earthquake regions in the world. Indeed, viewed on a large scale, the ocean seems to be almost enfolded by these regions.

There is one—large one—to the east of Japan, and, farther south, another which includes the Philippine islands and the Malay archipelago. On the other side of the ocean lies a third zone beginning in Alaska and extending southeastward.

A fourth reaches from a little north of San Francisco, covers Central America and ends to the south of Colombia; while the fifth clings to the western coast of South America, and to it belong the many earthquakes which in times past have ravaged the coast of Chile and Peru.

Out of every 10 world-shaking earthquakes seven originate in the Pacific regions, which are exactly 10 times as productive in great shocks as the corresponding regions of the Atlantic ocean.

The Pacific ocean, unlike the Atlantic, is also remarkable in possessing narrow troughs of immense depth. Off the east coast of Japan lies the Tuscaraora Deep. Its greatest depth is 5 1/2 miles, and below its western slope originate many of the greatest of Japanese earthquakes.

The deepest of all, off the Island of Guam, is the Challenger Deep, which sinks nearly six miles below the sea level.

The coasts of Chile and Peru are bordered by a series of these troughs—the Krummel Deep (4 1/2 miles) off Arequipa, the Bartholomew Deep (four miles) off Arica, the Richards Deep (4 1/2 miles) off Copiapo and the Haeckel Deep (3 1/2 miles) off Valparaiso and Santiago. It is along the sloping sides of these troughs that the most destructive Peruvian and Chilean earthquakes originate, and the centre of the recent shock will probably be found not far distant from the southern end of the Richards Deep.

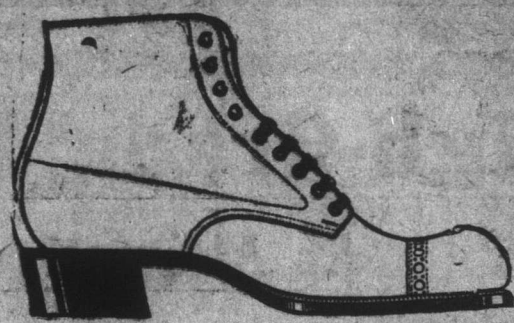

What the connection between the occurrence of earthquakes and a steeply sloping surface may be is less clear than the fact that such a connection does exist. Most of our great earthquake regions are partly or entirely submarine. But there is one that lies on land, extending from Italy across the Balkan peninsula to the Himalayas, in which two out of every 10 world-shaking earthquakes originate.

The central ranges of the Himalayas consist of ancient rocks which have been elevated into the loftiest peaks upon the globe. Bordering them on the south are the sub-Himalayan chains, composed for the most part of recent tertiary beds, and sloping rapidly into the plains of India. The occurrence of great earthquakes, like that which ruined Ganga and Dharmsala in 1905, shows that the growth of the Himalayas is not yet at an end and that the central masses are still, as of old, pressing forward toward the south, crumpling and grinding over the advanced guard of tertiary mountains.

Babies in Rhodesia Drink, Smoke Pipes.

In Northern Rhodesia, 1900 miles from Cape Town, South Africa, babies are fed on an alcoholic drink similar to beer and are taught to smoke a pipe at the age of 2, according to the Rev. J. R. Fall of the Native Training Institute on Clibby estate, Kafue, in the north of Rhodesia.

where he will spend a brief vacation before returning to his work among the African natives.

"About 75 per cent. of the Rhodesian babies die before they are 2 years old," he said. "This includes those whose parents have assisted them to an early demise to keep them from growing up as a disgrace to the tribe. In America you sometimes hear one ask, 'Why did his parents let him live?' In Rhodesia they don't."

Only One Twin Lives.
"If the baby's lower tooth happens to come in first, instead of an upper one, the Rhodesian parents assume that the spirits are vexed with their offspring and promptly make away with him. Usually only one of twins is permitted to live. A hymn got the other, the mother will tell you when you ask her."

Dr. Fell told how the natives, eat whatever animal they are able to kill in the hunt, including field mice, frogs and crocodiles in their menu. Each class is named after an animal, which animal thereafter they must not eat. Chickens, which exist a-plenty in the region, are not considered fit to eat.

Dr. Fell found that one of his hardest tasks was to teach the Rhodesians to bathe. A new born infant received a first bath, which was also its last. For the rest of his life, the Rhodesian performed his ablutions by anointing himself with oil and plastering himself with red clay, according to the traveler. The Rhodesians plaster the hair in a thick crest with clay or beeswax and stud it with brass nails.

"My insistence that the natives take daily baths caused general consternation at first," he said. "The natives had never heard of washing one's teeth. We raise our own toothbrushes; they are made of a fibrous plant with one end flattened to serve as a handle."

Take Out Upper Teeth.
Dr. Fell said he was endeavoring to dissuade the Rhodesians from continuing a custom of removing from four to six upper front teeth of a child as soon as they appeared. This is accomplished with an axe, a selection relative holding the struggling youngster while the rite is being performed. They believe that failing to do this would result in a boy being ashamed of his tribe or a girl never marrying.

Everybody wants to marry in Rhodesia, the people believing that one's spirit remains alive only as long as his children and his children's children bring food to the grave. It is therefore essential to provide for future food bearers.

"The ambitious Rhodesian aspires to marry the fattest girl in the village," Dr. Fell said. "Fatness constitutes the Rhodesian's ideal of beauty in a girl. Three months before the wedding day the girl goes to what is known as the fattening hut, where she proceeds to take no exercise and eats as much as she can force herself to eat. After she is married it doesn't matter about her looks. She then shaves her head, forgets about avoirdupois and in general is careless for ever afterwards about her appearance. Her name is changed as often as a baby is born. She is known as the mother of so-and-so—whatever happens to be the latest child."

Dr. Fell said that the institute had 4000 acres of the Clibby estate. Here an average class of 100 young men were in training. When they were graduated they returned to their villages and passed on the information they had learned to the people.

Germany's Gentle Poor Sell Their Old Finery.

BERLIN, April 22.—(A.P.)—Thousands of German gentlewomen are now going through the tragedy which Russian women of the same class have suffered for several years. Widows of officers and government officials, women with small pensions and limited incomes from investments, find themselves unable to buy the plainest food with their depreciated marks.

A few days ago the aged widow of a once prominent physician and her invalid daughter were found almost dead from hunger in their home, which had been stripped of every saleable article. The mother had done needlework as long as she was able. She was too proud to ask charity, and the doctors who were called by neighbors to attend her said both the mother and daughter, if left alone, would have been dead in another 24 hours.

In an effort to alleviate the condition of such persons and protect them from unscrupulous second-hand dealers, a number of philanthropic Berlin women have organized a fair where second-hand articles may be offered for sale. The owners may act as their own sales-agents, or entrust their wares to representatives of the committee.

With German efficiency the members of the relief committee have provided tables behind which the sellers have chairs. They are mostly elderly women. Many of them are crippled, and almost without exception their worn and old-fashioned clothing indicates their gentle birth. A few very old men sit among the women, and scarcely any of the vendors are young enough to do any manual labor. Thus they sit, day after day, waiting the chance to exchange the sherry of by-gone days into fuel and food for to-day.

ROBERT TEMPLETON

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

PIPPA PASSES.

Cousin MARY like a caress. And then she put her hand on one side and surveyed her work like one who finds it good. She got up from her knees, and picked up the cushion on which she had been kneeling—a gay affair with flowers printed on it—then pushing aside the curtain, she peeped into the little room where the girl was adjusting a net over Mary's sleekly waved coiffure.

A Lesson in Sportsmanship.
"My, but you look nice," she said admiringly and, picking up her pail, went on her way humming her little tuneless song.

"I hope you don't mind her," said the hair-dresser apologetically. "She's such a cheery soul. Her husband is a cripple and she adores him. She earns her living this way and does her housework at night."

"And so," commented Cousin Mary, "when I weighed my colossal woe—a postponed pleasure and a new cook—against the situation like hers, I rather felt that I'd received lesson in sportsmanship from a thoroughbred!"

The Cure for Self-Pity.
And I agreed with Cousin Mary. I have written about the futility of self-pity before, and perhaps there is no better cure for it than by getting a proper perspective of your troubles in some such way as this. I like to recall the old allegory about burdens. You remember how everyone carried his burden on his back and how all the people met one day and each exchanged his load for one that looked lighter or easier to bear. And in less than a week everyone was begging for his own burden back again.

So when we see someone like the plucky little scrubwoman, trimming up her burden with printed roses and a tuneless song, it makes our own load seem pretty small, doesn't it?

AT THE CROSSING.
I've spoken of this thing before. I've cautioned every passing gent, and I admit it makes me sore that no one seems to care a cent. In nearly every sheet I read there is the same old grisly tale; some guy approached, with frantic speed, a locomotive on the rail; there was no reason for his haste, he had all day to cross the track; the locomotive clove his waist, and split him lengthwise up the back; the locomotive hit his car and hoisted it some twenty miles; and undertakers, near and far, are selling shrouds, the latest styles. And corner-boys, on eager hoofs, pursue their rounds and strive to please, collecting backbones on the roofs, and talking legs from roadside trees. The wise man never takes a chance, he promptly stops his creaking dray; he sees the railway train advance and knows it has the right of way. And from his cab the engineer looks forth and sighs, "He's safe and sane; he's too much gumption, it is clear, to try to beat a railway train." The stern conductor sees him wait, and to the brakeman says, "Old grant! I'm glad to see there is one akate with sense enough to let us pass." And all the passengers exclaim, as from the parlor cars they gaze, "There is one man who plays the game—may blessings hallow all his days!"

A CORRECTION.—In reporting the Marvale wreck, we stated that the British Transport Co. had supplied clothing for the crew. This is not the case as the above Company only supplied some mattresses to the Seaman's Institute.

Warned By Their Dreams.

The late Lord Dufferin dreamed one night that he was in a hearse on his way to the cemetery. The features of the driver were impressed on his memory when he awoke. A day or two later he was on the point of entering a lift at an hotel, when he recognised the lift attendant as the driver of the hearse he had seen in his dream.

He stepped back and the lift ascended without him. As it neared the top something broke. It crashed to the bottom, killing everyone in it.

Lord Roberts recorded a remarkable dream warning. In October, 1889, his father, to whom he was acting A.D.C. at Peshawar, had issued invitations for a dance.

Two days before it was to take place he was silent and despondent during breakfast, and eventually told his son he had had an unpleasant dream, which had visited him several times before, and had always been followed by the death of a near relative.

As the day wore on his depression grew and he wanted to put off the dance. His son dissuaded him, but that night the dream returned and the dance was postponed. "The next morning," wrote Lord Roberts, "the post brought news of the sudden death at Lahore of the half-sister with whom I had stayed on my way to Peshawar."

One night in November, 1850, Tennyson dreamt that Prince Albert, the Prince Consort, came to his bedside and kissed him, whereupon he remarked to himself in his sleep: "Very kind, but very German!"

Next morning came Queen Victoria's letter offering him the position of Poet Laureate, an offer prompted, as he discovered afterwards, by Prince Albert's high opinion of "In Memoriam."

Clean-Up Week.

Now that the Spring is upon us may we not bring to the attention of the head of our civic government the idea of a clean-up week. Most of the Canadian cities have adopted this plan, and although a clean-up week should not really be necessary if the citizens of St. John's were not lax in their duty of keeping their backyards and lanes clean, still if St. John's is to be given a clean certificate, this seems the only way to do it. Several years ago a clean-up week was held and the good effect that it had was particularly noticeable at the time. But what St. John's needs is a regular spring cleaning every year, and we feel sure that if the City Council makes the appeal the citizens of St. John's will be only too glad to co-operate. The general principle, we think, is sound and workable.

City Taxation.

We are told that the City Council saved $50,000 the past year working under the Gosling charter, and that they used the money in reducing the Municipal debt. This is gratifying news to the taxpayers and reflects great credit on the economy practised by Mayor Cook and his colleagues at the Council Board. They have now many new sources of revenue, including the Poll Tax and the Commercial Travellers Tax, which is collected from commercial travellers who come here to solicit orders, and these will be continuous sources of revenue to the Council. Under the circumstances, it would, we think, be in order to expect the City Fathers to reduce taxation in Water and Ground rents. It is now 16 per cent, as against 13 per cent, a few years ago. The roads are now in a fair condition and we see no big expenditure in sight.

A Country Fit to Live in.

WORKMEN LEFT FOR BERMUDA. By S.S. Sable I, which sailed for Halifax on Wednesday, a party of 41 stone masons and carpenters left for Bermuda, where they have secured four months employment. It is understood that another party of workmen will be going South shortly. Apparently the season has not ceased. The Rosalind outward, will again be taking a full complement of second-class passengers. Since the opening of the cross country service large numbers have taken this route, crossing over to Canada by S.S. Kyle. On the last express a former resident of Placentia, accompanied by his wife was a passenger. They have gone never to return. For a number of years this man worked in British Columbia. He and his wife returned here about two months ago intending to spend the remainder of their days in the home land, as he had accumulated sufficient wealth to keep him in comfort where living was reasonable. The two months' stay convinced him that he could not make a "go of it." Reluctantly he was compelled to dispose of his homestead and draw from the savings bank a nest egg which he had left there some 27 years ago, and bid farewell to his native land. What would you do if you saw a lion running towards you? How can an elephant be a true friend? See "Miracles of the Jungle" at the Queen Theatre this Friday and Saturday. MAY 25, 26

Messages From Their Majesties.

THE KING'S MESSAGE. TO THE CHILDREN IN THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS OF THE EMPIRE.

On this day my people in all parts of the world join to celebrate their unity and to draw closer the common ties which hold them together. Each of our many peoples has its own life to live, each has its own work to do; yet all are members of one family, sharing their sorrows and joys. You have learned how the Empire was built up by brave and wise men and women in the past. It is only by courage, wisdom and unselfishness that it will endure. It is a great inheritance. Your fathers and forefathers made it. Its future welfare and good name are, under the Providence of God, in your hands. Do not think of it as a thing far away from you. Every one of you counts, and what you do and learn now will decide how far you will be able to play your part worthily when you grow up. Get knowledge, be brave, honourable and kind; thinking of others before yourselves, and always play the game. So will you fit yourselves to hand down this community of Free Nations to your children and grandchildren as a great instrument for justice, peace and goodwill, which will deserve the respect and esteem of mankind.

THE QUEEN'S MESSAGE. TO THE GIRLS IN THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS OF THE EMPIRE.

On this day of memory and hope, which is also the birthday of good Queen Victoria, this is my message to you the daughters of our world-wide family of nations and peoples. Think always of what you can do to make your homes happy and how you can best prepare yourselves to make happy homes for the generations of children which will follow you. In our vast Empire there are many kinds of homes and many different customs. The home which fosters clean minds and kind hearts is God's Temple, and the spirit of the good home, whether it be rich or poor, is one of the best things in the world. You can learn many lessons at each school which will help you to become wise and useful citizens of the British Commonwealth; but you can learn and practice nothing better for yourselves and all members of the great British family than the simple lessons of love, kindness and unselfishness which in cloud or sunshine are the strength and beauty of life.

Magistrates Court.

Four drunks arrested over the holiday were granted their release upon payment of the usual amount. A 53-year-old female, resident of Trepassay, taken in for safe keeping, was remanded for eight days. A passenger named Benjamin Knight of the S.S. Marvale appeared in court this morning charged with a series of larcenies committed on board ship after she went ashore. Amongst the goods stolen was 1 pair brushes, 1 Rope Rule, 1 Thermometer valued at $5.00, the property of Chief Officer T. H. Moore. Second, 1 cigarette case, 1 watch, valued at $15.00, the property of J. B. Rawson. Third, 1 pair uniform pants, 1 official valise, at $20.00, the property of some person unknown. The accused was not asked to plead. The court decided to remand the prisoner until he is ready to sail, and he will be later tried in England. All the stolen property has been recovered. This with the evidence submitted will be passed over to Capt. Lewis for delivery to the British Courts. He craved a kingdom of his own, and had no scruples about how he was going to get it. He planned the death of his own brother, the King of Ruritania, but found his conspiracy defeated because another had been impersonating the King. What his overpowering ambition caused is seen in Rex Ingram's production for Metro of "The Prisoner of Zenda," by Anthony Hope, which comes Monday to the Nickel Theatre. MAY 25, 26

Young Men Leaving.

S.S. Rosalind sails for Halifax and New York tomorrow forenoon. This trip the ship will take a full complement of passengers in the second class. At the Red Cross office to-day there was a big rush for tickets, many having to wait hours before their turn came. Most of those going are young men between 18 and 40 years of age, who have become disheartened at the fishery prospects.

A Relic of Suvia.

CAMP FLAG AT MUSEUM.

A few days before he left for England Mr. S. O. Steele presented to the Museum a relic of the campaign in Suvia Bay, where many of "Our" men drew a supreme sacrifice. The souvenir, which now occupies a prominent place on the walls of the Museum is the 1st Nfld. Regiment Headquarters Flag which was flown over camp during operations against the Turks. It was secured by the late Lieut. Owen Steele at the time of the evacuation of Gallipoli and has since been in the possession of the gallant Lieutenant's father. The flag, which measures about 4 ft. by 2 1/2 ft. was originally a stripe of red and one of white. Owing probably to climatic conditions in the East the red had faded to brown. Only a tiny spot of the original color can be seen. This relic, now deposited where it will receive the best of attention, will be a treasured memento in years to come, and Mr. S. O. Steele deserves great credit for placing it at the disposal of the Colony.

The other half of the proceeds will go to the Girl Guide Association. FISHERMEN WITHOUT GEAR OR CLOTHING.

Reports from the West Coast show that to date very little has been done with the codfishery. In Burgeo and La Poile District from Red Island to Connaigre no fish had been taken from November last up to the week ending May 15th. Sixty boats are operating and the total catch to date amounts to only 3,400 qts. Many of the fishermen have little or no fishing tackle nor suitable clothing, so that they are unable to earn even enough to keep themselves from starving. The fishery from Channel to Port aux Basques up to May 15th showed returns of 805 qts. with 100 qts. for the week ending that date. Although the weather is fine and bait plentiful the fishery prospects are not good in this section. About 20 skiffs are operating.

Suspects Arrested.

IN CONNECTION WITH ROBBERY AT HARVEY & CO'S.

An arrest has been made by the police in connection with the recent daring robbery reported at Harvey & Co's premises which was broken into early Sunday morning last. The accused held under suspect are two laborers, residing on Bannerman St. They were brought before court on Wednesday afternoon last charged with stealing 1 chest of tea valued at $20.00. Railway Washout.

TRACKS OVERFLOODED WITH WATER NEAR SANDY POINT CROSSING.

That part of the railway line known as Sandy Point Crossing, which lies between Howley and Grand Lake, is at present flooded out by water, due to the accumulation of snow, which fell there during the winter months. As a result no trains are moving over this section of the line, while the passengers travelling in the East and West directions are compelled to cross over on foot to transfer to the trains in waiting at Howley and Grand Lake. A gang of men are now clearing this section of the road. It is quite possible that the road bed will need repairing before the general traffic is resumed.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IN GELSENKIRCHEN.

GELSENKIRCHEN, MAY 25. Eight persons are dead, seven men and one child and between seventy and eighty are suffering from wounds due to bitter fighting which broke out on Wednesday in this town, between Communists and the defence force. The trouble had its origin in the seizure by the Communists of the police headquarters, in which much destruction was wrought. The building was then set on fire, and the defence forces who were holding the building were driven out and the fighting was resumed in the streets. The casualties were about equally divided. The Communists were still holding yesterday a portion of the police headquarters which was not damaged by the flames. Negotiations have been begun by the Communists and sympathizers, with the Burgomaster, with a view to forming a commission of four to take over the policing of the city. The proposal contemplates the appointment of four hundred police, all workmen, one hundred and fifty socialists, one hundred Communists and the remainder Trade Unionists.

EXCELLENCY AND PRIME
ADDRESS CHILDREN ON EMPIRE DAY.

The various city schools and those of the Orphan Asylum were paraded to Government House on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of commemorating Empire Day. The Girl Guides and Scouts were paraded in uniform, as did the St. John's Field College Companies, the Mount Cashel School, and the St. Anthony's School. The Mount Cashel School, under Capt. A. Bulley was rendered inspiring selections, and the Girl Guides and Scouts sang their respective songs. The Government House grounds to the west of the Government House were the scene of the parade. The Governor and the Minister addressed them. The Governor, in his address, commended the children for their patriotism and their interest in the Empire. He said that the children of the Empire were the future of the Empire, and that it was their duty to be loyal to the Empire and to work for its progress and prosperity. The Minister also addressed the children, and he said that the children of the Empire were the future of the Empire, and that it was their duty to be loyal to the Empire and to work for its progress and prosperity.

important, the greatest asset we had was education. The Prime Minister was glad of this opportunity to address the school children of the city and to convey through them the message to the schools also of the outpour. He wished them all the success that was within their reach, if they availed of the splendid educational opportunities now at their command. At the conclusion of the Prime Minister's address the whole assembly under the leadership of Prof. Fulton sang the National Anthem. A match part of all the pupils then followed, his Excellency taking the salute. The whole proceeding was faultlessly carried out and was a fitting celebration of Empire Day.

Star Movie.

"BLOOD AND SAND" THE PICTURE WITH A PUNCH.

When it comes to "putting it over" you must give the Star Movie the credit. In placing the big picture "Blood and Sand," before its patrons, they last evening added an attraction which beyond the shadow of a doubt is unprecedented in the moving picture business in Newfoundland.

Miss Olivetti who has proved such a big hit here, had for a partner Mr. "Sandy" Lawrence, and it gave him the opportunity to display his ability. In "Blood and Sand" Rodolph Valentino, is known as the Toreador, and at the close of the picture Mr. Lawrence sang the song Toreador and in the chorus was joined by Miss Olivetti. Then they sang as a duet "Sympathy," accompanied by a variety dance, and it was such as has never been seen in this city. Mr. Lawrence, has every reason to be proud of his talent, whilst Miss Olivetti was never seen to better advantage, she was life and action to the minute and in their duet, they paired as professionals of the highest degree. The large audience simply went wild, and many in the balcony in their seats and cheered, whole performance was entirely different to anything yet seen here, it must be seen to be realized.

Many of the patrons were also delighted that they insisted that both Miss Olivetti and Mr. Lawrence, in their dressing rooms after the show, to offer them their congratulations. The show is being repeated again to night and all should make an effort to see this wonderful team.

They planned the King's death, a day before the coronation ceremonies. They induced him to leave the palace; they drugged his wine with a powerful poison. Their chagrin was great when they discovered the coronation celebrations went on as scheduled, and the King was placed at the head of his people. The fascinating mystery is explained in Rex Ingram's production of "The Prisoner of Zenda," by Anthony Hope, a Metro picture, which will be shown Monday at the Nickel Theatre. may 25, 21

Germs in the Soil.

FORTY MILLION IN A TEASPOON.

What Sir John Russell claims to be the most remarkable census ever taken has been carried out at Rothamsted experimental station. It was a soil census.

The number of organisms in one single gramme of soil, no more than a teaspoonful, often exceeds 40,000,000. It is each unit in the whole array could be magnified to the size of a man, and the whole caused to march past in single file, they would go in a steady stream every hour of the day and night for a year, a month, and a day, before all had passed," reports "Nature."

A Mystery of Science.

It was discovered how to count these organisms, and the census was made every day for 365 consecutive days. No fewer than seventeen different organisms were enumerated.

One of the most interesting results was the proof that the soil population is not steady in number, as had always been assumed, but is in a violent state of flux. Daily variations were shown independent of external conditions.

The whole soil population is depressed in winter and in summer, and is uplifted in spring and autumn.

How this comes about we do not know. We must think of the apparently lifeless soil as really throbbing with life, changing daily and hourly in obedience to some great laws which we have not yet discovered.

Trouters Did Well.

Mr. Otto Hoakins of the Reid Nod. Co. Freight Shed office, landed a fine rainbow trout while fishing at Neary's Pond yesterday. The fish weighed 3 pounds, 11 ounces, was 20 inches long and 3 1/2 inches in breadth.

Mr. J. A. Carmichael, who was fishing at Topside Pond yesterday, also caught a beautiful Loch Leven, that weighed over 3 pounds. The fish specimen measured 19 inches in length. Many of the trouters who spent the day whipping the streams and ponds in the suburbs, reported for full baskets of the speckled beauties.

Diamonds Made From Bones.

SHAMS WORTH MORE THAN THE GENUINE ARTICLES.

By mixing paraffin spirit, bone oil, distillate, and metallic lithium in a powerful cast-iron tube, and heating the compound in a reverberatory furnace, an English chemist has obtained artificial diamonds identical in composition with the original gem as dug from the mine.

But the process is long and costly, while the diamonds resulting are so tiny that mine stones of the same size could be bought for a quarter of the money.

A Swiss scientist has produced sappires of pure crystallized aluminum. The only difference between his sappires and natural stones is that the former are not quite so hard. He hopes eventually to make their production a paying business, but here again the cost is many times that for which he could have bought sappires of the same size in the open market.

An opal made by fusing silica, with ether is said to be even more lovely in its changing hues than the mine stone.

The number of false jewels manufactured is enormous, and among these imitations none have ever been more perfect than so-called Venetian pearls. Their manufacture is a lost art, the secret having died with the inventor, a poor Venetian and it was not until after his death that their beauty and value were recognized.

There are said to be no more than ten or twelve thousand in existence. They are very hard, their lustre is perfect, and they now command a price almost equal to that of the gem produced by the oyster.

Colours that Make Money.

Have you ever realized how your choice of a purchase is influenced by the colour of its wrapper or box? Probably not. Yet in making your selection you have been swayed, consciously or unconsciously, by the law of colour.

Makers of sweetmeats have always given careful attention to this question, and a long series of costly experiments has demonstrated beyond all doubt that red is the colour that "pulls." Sweets done up in blue wrappers have left the public cold; the same sweets enclosed in red wrappers have enjoyed a steady sale.

The modern advertising man knows the subtle appeal of red. Note its predominance in coloured advertisements and on posters.

The writer knows of a monthly magazine which was published with a quiet grey cover. Its sales were infinitesimal. The second number, which was enclosed in a cover of vivid red, sold like wildfire.

Observe the number of red novels at the bookshelf, and ask a few questions about their sales, and you will realize that red is the best selling colour.

The reason that red is a warm colour; so also are orange and yellow, but in a lesser degree. Green, blue and violet are cold colours. They arouse no passions or enthusiasm. Green is a restful and soothing colour—hence its use in the manufacture of billiard tables and in theatrical "green rooms." Soft shades of grey convey an impression of refinement.

Whipped cream is nice served with deep cherry pie.

Parasip fritters are nice served with any kind of mutton. Squash and tomatoes are delicious scalloped together.

THE CANADIAN SALT CO. LIMITED

French Have Perfected Gun With 100-Mile Range.

Col. Sauverochs, in an article published recently in Paris, stated that the French artillery is now able to build a gun which will shoot 150 kilometers—about 100 miles, or about twice as far as the famous "Bertha" which shelled Paris. He says that a number of these guns on the left bank of the Rhine could prevent any German mobilization on the right bank for an attack westward.

It is understood that the French have also worked out a shell for such a gun which would be far more effective than the Bertha shells that were notoriously ineffective when they exploded, due to the very thick walls of the projectile for the amount of explosive they carried.

Struggle to Prevent Suicide of Her Fiance Led to Girl's Death.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 17th.—Struggling to prevent her sweetheart from killing himself, according to his story to police, Miss Ruth Johnson, 25 years old, was shot and killed by four bullets from a pistol held by Arthur George Sundburg, 31 years old, yesterday, while scores of persons watched the tragedy on the lawn of the Sundburg home.

Sundburg was arrested, and will be charged with murder, police said.

Neighbours and a gang of men working in the street saw the man and the woman, struggling frantically, come out of the door of the Sundburg home and fight their way to the lawn. There, according to witnesses, four pistol shots were heard, and Miss Johnson fell dead.

"She tried to stop me from committing suicide," Sundburg is said to have told the police. "I tried to run out of the door but she followed me. When we reached the lawn I tried to free myself and she tried to take the pistol from me. In the struggle the gun was discharged. I never thought of taking her with me. When I saw her on the ground I ran back upstairs and tried to kill myself. My pistol would not work."

DISCOVERER OF TUTS TOMB LEFT PERSONAL TREASURES TO WIFE.

LONDON, May 17.—The late Earl of Carnarvon, discoverer of the Tomb of Tutankhamen, left an estate of £398,927, it developed when his will was filed for debate to-day. Lord Carnarvon bequeathed his race horses and all his personal estate to his wife. This includes his collection of Egyptian treasures, regarding which the only stipulation is that if she decides to sell the British Museum be given the first refusal for £20,000 with the Metropolitan Museum of New York the next choice.

Among bequests to friends and relatives is a gift of £500 to Howard Carter, American associate of Lord Carnarvon in the Tutankhamen discoveries.

Things Move, By Heck.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—When an oil boom hits a one-man post office things begin to happen, as witnessed by the records which have just been made public of the tribulations of the postmaster at Smackover, Ark. Smackover was basking in the sun, a town of 200 last fall when oil was struck. Almost overnight the population swelled to ten thousand, and this message came to the post office department from Postmaster Fred V. McDonald, who, meantime, had grown wealthy in oil lands:—"The office is out of my control; letters arriving $900 to 7,000 daily; parcel post by the tons; can't open mail any longer, no place to put it; accept resignation." Thirteen assistants were rushed to Smackover and the salary was increased from $600 a year to $2,500, but Postmaster McDonald refused to stay longer on the job than was necessary to get things running smoothly.

Bill Against Divorce News.

LONDON, May 16th.—(Canadian Press)—A sequel to the recent outcry against the publication in certain newspapers in this country of nauseous details of divorce cases, came in the House of Commons yesterday when Sir Evelyn Cecil, Conservative member for Aston, Birmingham, introduced a bill to curb publication of divorce cases. The measure, known as the Matrimonial Cases Regulation of Reports Bill, forbids the publication of the particulars of any judicial proceeding to which the Act applies.

Under the Act only the names of the parties, to the proceedings and the grounds of the action at law may be published, together with particulars of the arguments of counsel on points of law and the findings of the jury or the judgment of the court.

Fifty Thousand Women

would comprise a vast army, yet that is the number who have replied to a questionnaire recently sent out by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Cobourg. Ninety-eight out of every 100 letters from these women contained positive assurances that they have been benefited or restored to health by taking this old-fashioned root and herb medicine. This is most remarkable evidence of its power over the ills of women. Therefore, with 98 chances out of one hundred that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will overcome such ailments for you, why should you continue to go through life in pain and suffering?

Monogram Slipper Latest Paris Fad.

Styles in shoes are occupying the French feminine mind to a greater extent than in former years. The styles are becoming more intricate, not only in the matter of design, but in the blending of different kinds and grades of leather. Bronze afternoon and evening slippers are just now very popular in Paris. The evening slippers continue to be cut away at the side, leaving little of the foot covered, and the same cut is carried out in many of the shoes for day wear, but in a more conservative manner.

Brocade to match the gown, or brilliant stuff of some shade blending with the jewel ornamentation of the gown, is used on many slippers for evening wear and there is always an attempt to strike a harmonious note between costume and slippers.

One of the latest things the fad-dists are indulging in is a monogram slipper with the latter made in the eyelids on the vamp or outside. This is a new wrinkle and rapidly becoming the vogue for the summer.

Storms Breed at Sea North of Cape Verde.

Washington.—The fair of the wild West Indian hurricane at last has been tracked down. C. L. Mitchell, meteorologist of the United States

Weather Bureau, after a year's work, has announced that the Atlantic Ocean just south of the Cape Verde Islands is the breeding place of cyclones in August and September, while the west section of the Caribbean Sea has that honor during the rest of the storm season.

In a study of 235 storms of hurricane intensity during the last 26 years it was found that all occurred between May and December.

Reports of the origin of hurricanes

Cuticura Soap Complexions Are Healthy

in the eastern two-thirds of the Caribbean were dispersed, and the effect of the doldrums upon cyclonic disturbances were disclosed.

Northeasterly and southwesterly trade winds skirting the edges of the doldrum section near the Cape Verde set up circular motions which, with other meteorological conditions, are supposed to start the vortices which result in hurricanes. These move westward with the regular wind drifts. The fact that the doldrums do not reach into the Atlantic south of the equator is given as the reason why hurricanes are never reported from that area.

Deaths at a Lynching.

NEW YORK.—This city of Columbia was the scene of a lynching which was watched by huge numbers of many students of the university, who cheered loudly. James T. Scott, was identified a few days ago as one of the university men who tried to attack the railway bridge. He had been employed as a janitor at the university.

Scott, bareheaded, with his clothes torn, shouted continuously that he was innocent.

Crises of Derision.

Scott, bareheaded, with his clothes torn, shouted continuously that he was innocent.

His pleas were answered with cries of derision.

A youth holding a noose round the Negro's neck was thrust aside by a man, who then pushed Scott from the bridge amid the frantic cheers of the multitude.

To-day the president of the University of Missouri issued a statement declaring that none of the students participated in the lynching.

To-day, May 24th, Empire Day, is being observed here as a general holiday. Many of our townpeople will go over to Carbonar and take in the parade, play and special features there. At the present moment of writing the weather looks very favorable, and we trust the excursionists will enjoy their trip round the bay. We hope also too that these going countrywards to spend the day trouting will be fortunate in securing good bags of the "speckled beauties."

The funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Bradbury was held on Tuesday morning and was very largely attended; interment was made in the Roman Catholic Cemetery. Deceased belonged to the Riverhead and only a short while ago went to the General Hospital for treatment; he passed away there, and was brought home by Monday's train for burial. He was 70 years of age. To the sorrowing relatives and friends we offer condolences.

Mr. Simon Wells went out by this morning's train for St. John's to connect with the "Rosalind" enroute to the U. S. A., where he will make his future home. Mr. Wells has two sons residing there, and Mrs. Wells and daughter will be leaving here at a later date to join them.

The motor boat "Zelda B." arrived from Bell Island on Tuesday, and brought in several passengers. The boat returned again yesterday afternoon, quite a few taking passage by her.

Mrs. Button and little girl arrived from New Melbourne, T.B. recently and spent a while with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thistle. Mrs. Button returned again on Tuesday.

The 1st. Harbor Grace Troupe of Boy Scouts entertainment set for last night, Wednesday, owing to prevailing circumstances, had to be postponed indefinitely.

Mr. James Cron has been confined to his home the past few days through illness. His many friends are hoping to see him able to attend to business very soon.

Mr. Wm. J. E. Simmonds of the Evening Telegram staff, St. John's, arrived by last night's train to spend Empire Day at his home.

The schooner "Mabel H", Capt. Joshua Winsor, was docked on the 21st inst., and came off again the following day.

There are 4 grades of roofing felt selling in Newfoundland, "BARRETT'S" is guaranteed the highest grade.

"Barrett's" 1, 2 and 3-ply felts have been in use in Newfoundland for more than 50 years.

The best roof known in America is a "Barrett" roof, "Barrett's" felt ONLY is used in putting on a "Barrett" Roof. Ask any Architect.

"Barrett" 1, 2 and 3-ply felts are really made of felt saturated with genuine coal tar--the 2 and 3-ply felts have a layer of coal tar pitch between each ply.

"Barrett's" felts are made to give good wear, therefore they cost more than roofings made of paper saturated with diluted asphalt.

If you use "Barrett's" felt instead of common felt, a new roof covering for your house may cost you $2.00 more for the whole roof.

Roofs covered with "Barrett's" felt are secure, the extra cost of one or two dollars (for the entire roof) is money well spent.

Which felt do you intend to use?

Turn Again, Whittington!

The name of Dick Whittington is enshrined in the hearts of old and young as that of the boy who endured many vicissitudes to become three times Lord Mayor of London.

The fifth centenary of the death of the real man, around whose name picturesque legends have grown, was celebrated recently.

The third son of Sir Richard Whittington, head of an old Gloucestershire family, Dick was born about 1355. He was left an orphan at an early age. As soon as he was old enough and strong enough for so strenuous an undertaking, he walked to London to seek his fortune. The legend describes how, with the money obtained from the sale of his beloved cat, he apprenticed himself to a mercer. In real fact, he entered the trade and rose rapidly.

He married the daughter of his former employer, Sir John Fitz-Warren, and in due course was elected three times Lord Mayor of London. In 1416 he represented the City of London in Parliament.

Dick was renowned for his charity, and on the death of his wife he devoted a great part of his fortune to good works and the improvement of the dreariest conditions under which the poor then lived.

He held distinctions of all descriptions. On several occasions he lent money to Henry V. The story is told of how he entertained the monarch on his return from the wars in France. At the conclusion of the banquet, Whittington dramatically threw the bonds of the loan, amounting to about £2,500, into the fire. It has been said that the King knighted him in return for this gift, but the fact has not been officially established.

Oddities in the News.

LOVE'S LABOUR LOST — AND FOUND.

A love letter from a Rhyt girl to her sweetheart was discovered in a rook's nest by workmen cutting the upper branches of elm-trees in a rookery in St. Colman's parish churchyard.

ALE AND HEARTY.

Mr. Robert Jocelyn, in his ninety-first year, is still working in the engineer's office at Messrs. Bass's brewery at Burton-on-Trent. He has refused the offer of a pension, declaring that he would rather work.

OMNIBUS CINEMA.

The London General Omnibus Company is sending out a specially equipped omnibus which can give free cinema shows, with equal ease, in the most brilliant sunlight or on the darkest night. The apparatus consists of a folding cavern, in the back of which the screen is set. Behind this is the projector itself, which operates from the rear instead of from the front.

THE SUPER-COW.

A Jersey cow, the property of Mr. E. Maxwell, of Montreal, has broken all Canadian records for butter production in a single year. This cow produced 1,002lb. of butter fat, equal to $1,200lb. of butter.

ARMLESS BILLIARD PLAYER.

Major Frank H. Edwards, who had both his arms blown off below the elbow in France, has succeeded in making a forty-two break at billiards with an ordinary cue. He designed various attachments to what remained of his arms, and can now write and play golf.

Ocean Theatres.

Transatlantic theatrical troupes are likely to become prominent features of ocean travel. The French liner Le Lulleis, of the South Atlantic Company, has its own company of actors.

NERVOUS BRIDEGROOMS.

The nervousness with which bridegrooms use the pens at Dunstable (Beds) Church is given as the reason for changing the nibs every fourth time the pens are handled.

PIT SAFETY-SPRAY.

After nine years' experience, an Aspatria (Cumberland) miner claims to have discovered a liquid which, when sprayed, will render mine explosions almost impossible and purify the air.

MOUNTAIN UNDER THE SEA.

Largely owing to the operations of cable-laying and cable-repairing ships, our knowledge of the geography of the ocean bed increases every year.

Not many people know, however, that just as there are mountains on dry land, so there are mountains beneath the sea, some of them as high as the peaks in the Alps and the Andes.

One of the biggest of these submarine mountains is Laura Ethel, situated in mid-Atlantic. It is over 12,000 feet high, its summit being less than 200 feet below the surface.

So often has this mountain been explored by oceanographers, with the aid of sounding apparatus, that its characteristics are so well known as those of Ben Nevis or Snowdon, although it has never been seen.

Davy Jones's Locker.

In the same locality is another great sea mountain, Mount Chaucer, first discovered seventy years ago. Its summit is only just over 100 feet below the surface, while its height is 10,000 feet. The summit of another peak, Mount Placentia, is only 30 ft. below the surface.

A mountain range whose peaks are named after members of the Royal Family is another little-known feature of the Atlantic bottom. Every one of its ten peaks is higher than Snowdon.

The real "Davy Jones's Locker" is to be found at the foot of the Faraday Hills, in the South Atlantic. It is estimated that at the base of the highest-peak in the range, Sainthill, there is no fewer than five thousand wrecks.

Oils Declared Cure for Leprosy.

That leprosy can be effectually cured by the injection of certain oils, including cod-liver and soyabean oil, was claimed by Sir Leonard Rogers in a paper read before a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Arts, in England.

Sir Leonard declared that experiments made in various parts of the world had led physicians to the belief that the disease could be cured within the space of a few years through the use of these oils.

Devil's Tower a Landmark.

The Devil's tower is 32 miles by road from Moorcroft. This conspicuous mass of rock, hung up by some ancient earth cataclysm, rises 600 feet above a rounded ridge of sedimentary rocks, which itself rises 600 feet above the Belle Fourche river. It was useful to the aborigines as a landmark from which to direct their courses across the plains. Later on, the white pioneers of civilization in their exploration of the great Northwest also used it as a landmark. Still later the military wars in the Sioux and Crow Indian country during the Indian wars of the last century directed their marches by the aid of this ever-present tower; for it is visible in some directions for nearly a hundred miles—Automobile Near Book.

National Dance of the Fijians.

The meke, or national dance of the Fijians, plays an important part in all ceremonies on the islands. As many as two hundred young natives, most gorgeously dressed, will take part in a meke, which may be described as a legend told in song and dance. Sometimes it deals with a famous tribal battle of old.

The dancers carry either spears or clubs, and go through many of the movements of the battle—the stealthy approach to the enemy's lines, the hurly-burly of the combat, and then the triumphant return when the warriors are greeted by their chiefs, their sages and their women.

For an hour or more, without the least interval, a meke will continue its way, every action explaining itself, every step most precisely executed.

The leaders of the mekes are always particularly fine men, and they wear wonderful tappa robes with trains four to five yards long, which they manage with all the grace of a court lady.

There are other mekes in which men and women take part, and these tell of love, the hunting of the turtle, or other phases of native life, in which men and women join. Then there is the sit-down meke, mostly performed by women, and in which a woman's duties are depicted. For all mekes, bands of women and children supply vocal music.

The music is not melodious, but it marks the time well, the great essential. Sometimes a "Fiji piano" is used to accompany a meke. This is a thick, rounded, highly-polished piece of ebony held in the arms of one man while another, the pianist, beats it vigorously with two short heavy clubs. Easy as the playing looks, it is only an expert who can produce the proper sort of music. To the European ear it is nothing but a sharp, ear-splitting tattoo, very trying when carried on for hours without a moment's stop.

It is a strange thing that Fijian native music is so lacking in tunefulness, for they have a very keen ear for civilized music. As singers the Fijian men are considered by many travellers to have the finest bass voices in the world. Tenors of exceptional sweetness and fulness can also be heard, while the voices of the women can be trained with excellent results.

At the mission churches singing by native choirs can be heard which is positively wonderful. Attached to the Fiji police force in Suva is a brass band, conducted by a full-blooded Fijian, which renders perfect music. Every Sunday night, after church, this band plays in the city square and the citizens turn out to listen to it.

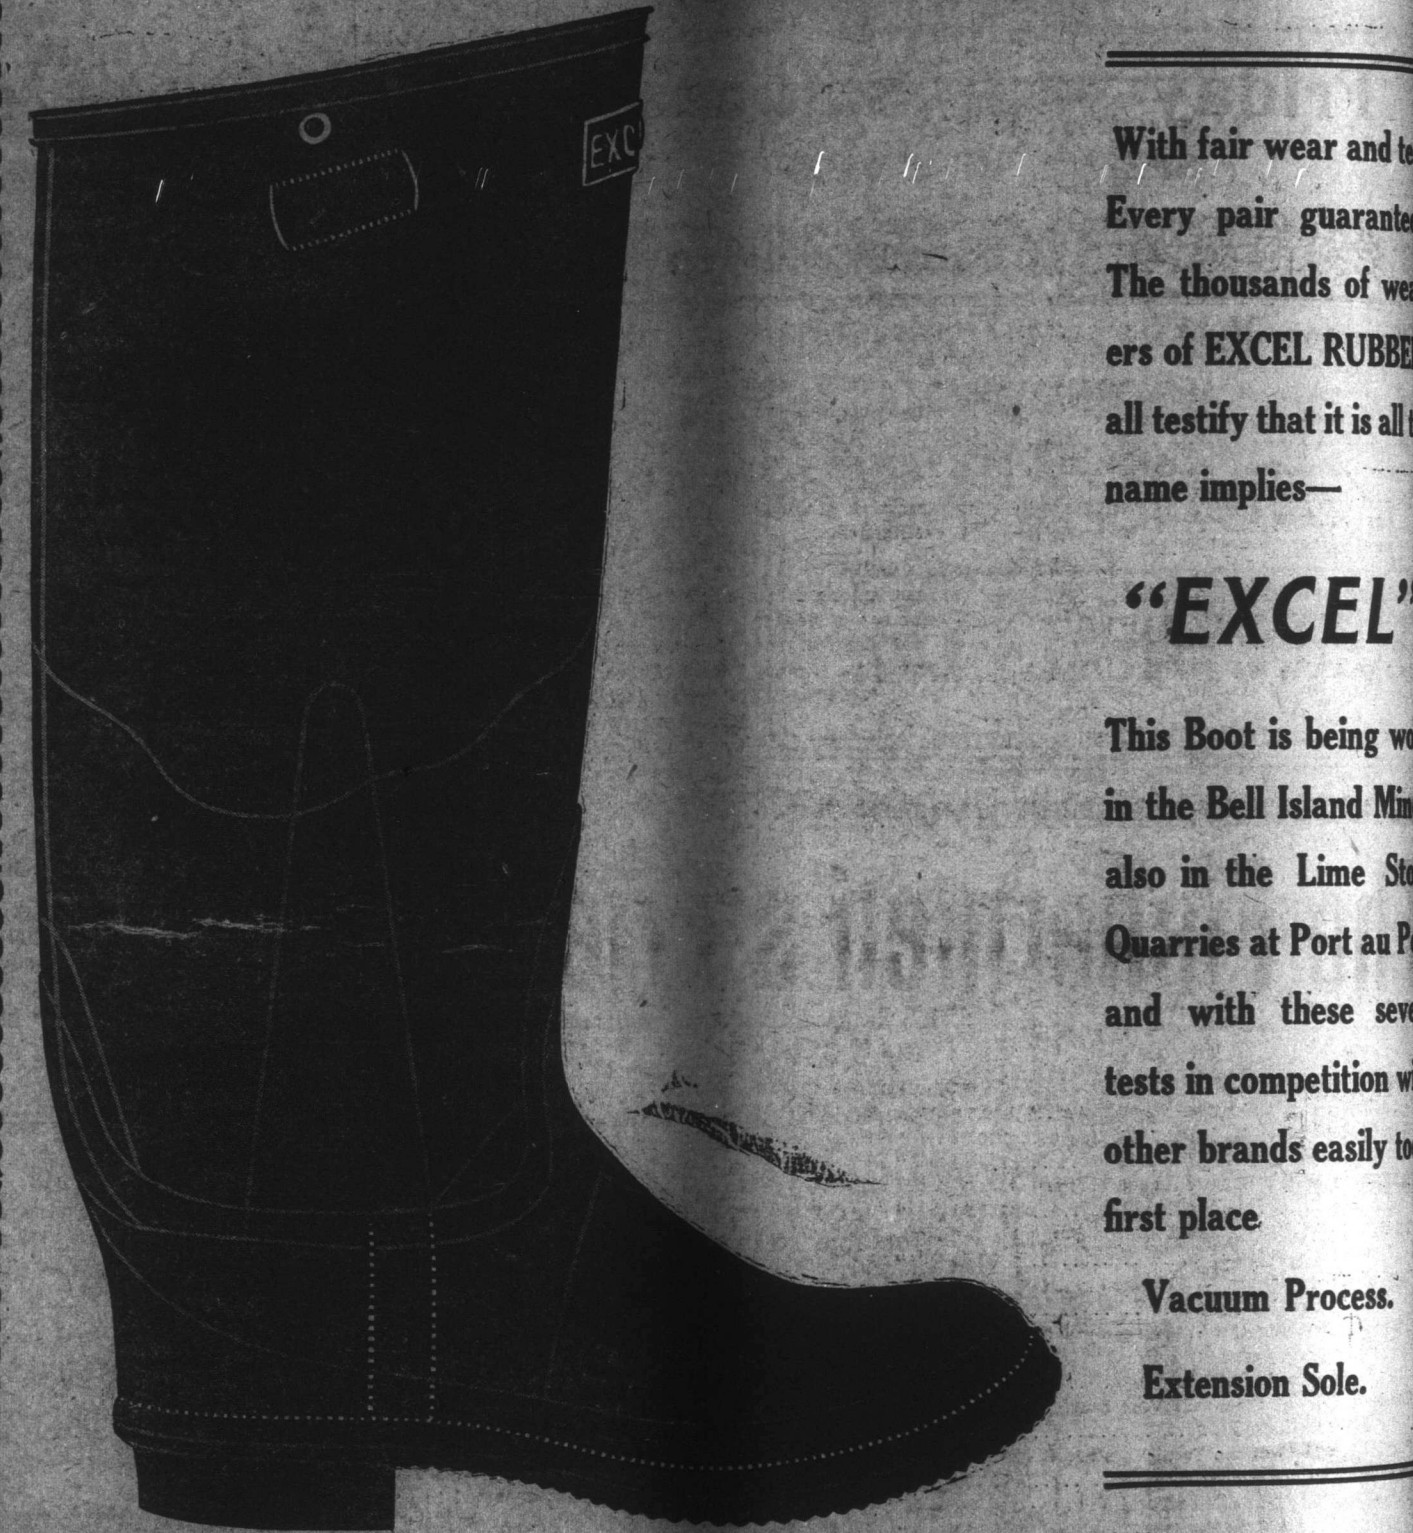

Urged to Come Back Home.

London, May 12 (Canadian Press)—A peculiar story was told in the High Court here to-day by James Carey, of Montreal, about how he and his wife came all the way back to England from Montreal because shortly after they had left England, where they had been visiting for some time, he received a wireless message from a certain woman, at Bourrasmore, asking him to come back. The message read:

"Return at once, urgent. Winnie."

On the arrival back in England of Mr. and Mrs. Carey, they found that the urgent business was that he had forgotten to pay a couple of pounds

Libelling the Dead.

In France, where libels on the living are dealt with more leniently than in England, the memory of the dead is protected by law, observes an English writer. Dumas pere sustained two actions for libelling the dead in his novels. The Marquis de Prefontaine sued him for stating in "La Route de Varennes" that his grandfather closed the doors of his house against Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette on the occasion of their flight from Paris. The court ruled that a fresh edition of the book should be published within a month showing that M. de Prefontaine actually sheltered the Royal fugitives. Dumas was also sued by the Marquis d'Espigny St. Luc for insulting references to Francois de St. Luc in "La Dame de Monsoreau." In this case the Judge ruled that enough evidence was not available to clear St. Luc's reputation.

Eye-Spots on Butterflies.

The eye spots on the wings of butterflies are a puzzle to naturalists. When asked what they mean they say frankly, "We do not know." It is thought that these eye spots may have some utilitarian application. They form one of the most intricate of all natural designs.

The fact that butterflies have been captured with their eye spots pierced as if from the attacks of birds, has been used as an argument in favor of the view that they must be "protective markings," luring eyes, because birds strike at the eyes of their victims.

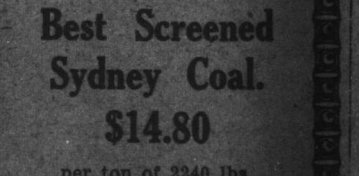

But this suggestion is hardly regarded as satisfactory. Among butterflies the most striking examples of eye spots are found on the under surface of the wings.

assumed the article belonged to the mother of the child.

"Unsatisfactory answers included such as 'I should cry,' 'Mend it,' 'Hide it.' The last answer was useful, however, to the extent of giving some indications as to the scholar's moral disposition.

"By the age of eleven, the questions on every-day occurrences become slightly more complicated to the child mind. For instance, 'What should you do if you found you were late on your way to school?' has been a paper to a number of children of this age. The obvious answer of 'Hurry,' or 'Run,' is often interspersed with such as 'Get the stick,' 'Ring the bell,' and 'Get a note to excuse me.' Some of these answers are interesting as illustrating the fear of authority inherent in numbers of children.

Backward Children.

"The solution of circumstantial problems is one of the tasks allotted to indicate normal development of children of thirteen. 'My next-door neighbour had three visitors. First a doctor called, then a lawyer, and then a clergyman. What do you think had been happening there?' constituted one of these riddles.

"One student explained that 'the lawyer was employed to get the man to marry the girl,' whilst other replies adjudged satisfactory attributed the circumstances variously to 'a murder,' 'a marriage,' and 'a baby was born.'

"These tests, of which the foregoing are a few examples, have gone to show the wide range in the mentality of children. A range of seven years, for instance, is not uncommon. Thus, a bright child of seven may be found to have the mentality of an average one of eleven, whilst a defective of the same age may only have that of a child of four. Even more striking differences occur occasionally. It is a general conclusion that a child is mentally deficient when it shows a mental age three years in arrears of its actual age; he or she is then accorded special treatment.

"Much of what is often put down as vice in a child can be explained by the fact that the mental development does not correspond with its chronological age."

England's Soldier-Saint.

At one time St. George's Day (April 23rd.) was celebrated throughout the country by elaborate pageants in honour of the soldier-saint.

Few of the stories and legends about St. George and his heroic exploits are founded on fact. It seems certain, however, that such a person existed, and that he was not only a daring knight, but also, in his later years, a very religious man.

St. George is said to have rescued an Eastern princess from a fierce dragon, which he slew after a strenuous combat. The girl's father was so delighted at her rescue that he consented to become a Christian, and made fifteen thousand of his subjects follow his example.

Soon after this, St. George gave up his life as a knight, and devoted his time to preaching. He was martyred at Nicomedia about the year A.D. 303.

The Norman Kings of England adopted St. George as the patron saint of England, and later Edward III. instituted the famous Order of the Garter, the badge of which represents St. George slaying the dragon.

Henry V. had the supposed heart of the saint deposited with great pomp in St. George's Chapel, at Windsor.

Friendship Ties

Alright, Handcuff Ties Not so Good.

TORONTO—An Ingersoll, Ontario barber, innocent of any wrong-doing, was compelled to make a ten-mile journey, while hand-cuffed, and in the company of a police constable, last week.

The constable, a member of the London, Ontario, force, visited the barber shop and playfully fitted his hand-cuffs on the proprietor, a personal friend. The steel bracelets clicked shut, and the officer suddenly found himself minus a key. The Ingersoll police were called in, but the keys to their hand-cuffs did not fit. The sportive constable and his fettered friend were finally obliged to travel ten miles to Woodstock, before the "dribbles" could be removed.

Charges French are Forging Marks.

REICHSBANK CHIEF ALSO SAYS THEY TOOK 27,167,000,000.

BERLIN, May 12—(By A.P.)—Since the occupation of the Ruhr, the French and Belgians have forcibly seized 27,167,000,000 marks in German currency in the newly occupied area, says Dr. Otto von Glazenapp, vice-president of the Reichsbank, in a statement given to the press to-day.

He further asserts that the French have been issuing counterfeit German money, amounting so far to $5,000,000 marks, from one of the plates seized in the raid on the Muelheim printing plant on April 8.

The currency taken in this raid consisted of 1,539,000,000 marks in 20,000-mark notes bearing the distinguishing initials M.S. The Reichsbank immediately repudiated this issue.

Dr. Glazenapp asserts that strange 20,000-mark notes have been lately coming in from Frankfurt-on-Main, Mannheim, Bielefeld, Detmold, and even Holland, bearing the initials Q-XI, which combination of letters has never been used officially on German notes.

These counterfeit, Dr. Glazenapp charges, were printed from the plate which the French failed to return after the Muelheim seizure. The statement alleges that 41 sheets of partly completed notes were also taken from the printing plant and never returned.

First Railway Ticket.

Probably not one in ten thousand passengers ever gives a thought to the man who invented the railway ticket.

Possibly there are still a few railway passengers who remember that the early tickets were like the coach bills which were given as vouchers, showing that a passenger had paid his fare.

Like many other useful devices, they were a product of the North of England. The first tickets were made in 1825 by Thomas Edmondson, a Lancashire Quaker, who was appointed station-master at Brampton (then called Milton), on the Newcastle and Carlisle Railway.

He printed a ticket rather smaller than the one we use now, in a machine of his own making. Later he invented a card for containing and sealing the tickets in sequence at their numbers, and thus perfected a date-stamping machine.

Development of these machines are in use all over the country to-day.

The Coming Gigantic Photoplay.

A film that is said to be a Ribbon of Gold is "The Prisoner of Zenda," which is to be shown at the Nickel Theatre on Monday. One of the really big events of screendom, "The Prisoner of Zenda," is a self-made story. Take a book that has been, ever since its first issuance, nearly twenty years ago, a best seller; a book upon which was founded big theatrical successes in America and abroad; give the story of that book into the hands of a master-director, who proved himself great by making "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," give that director unlimited means and time, so that he can disregard everything but success; and finally give the finished product of these elements tremendous national publicity, and advertising in periodicals including The Saturday Evening Post, and the movie fan can then witness the utmost in screen presentations. This picture cost exactly (getting down to fine figures) $1,118,16. It is the most costly film produced in many years. Judge its excellence by attending the Nickel on Monday night.

Mystery Hoards in Banks

A few years ago public attention was briefly focused on unclaimed deposits in banks, which it was proposed should be confiscated by the State. There can be no doubt that the aggregate amount of unclaimed wealth held by banks is enormous. Many deposits of plate, jewellery, and so on have remained undisturbed in bank vaults for generations. Not many years ago an Irish peer, while on a visit to Melbourne, heard of a quantity of silver which had been left by an ancestor in a Dublin bank at the beginning of the nineteenth century. On his return to Ireland he claimed the articles, which were handed over to him. Still more numerous are accounts which by some chance have been overlooked. A certain bank is believed to possess one of £23,000, which stands in the name of an eccentric old lady. It is said that at least once every year she used to drive up to the bank, draw a cheque for the entire amount and then, after having counted the notes and checked the interest, pay it in again. About ten years ago she ceased to carry out the observance, and ever since her account has been dormant. Slight is lost of many accounts in ordinary banks through the common practice of opening them in fictitious names. One was actually headed: "Alta Betti," and before it could be recovered—for the depositor's real name was as common as Brown, Jones, or Robinson—an action had to be brought. Just as obvious a mere banking name was "King Napoleon Pepper," usually contracted to "K. N. Pepper." It was the alias of a certain chemist, whose widow had considerable difficulty in getting the money. Another practice that causes money to be left in banks is opening accounts which, though in the real name of the depositor, are secret. Frequently, for instance, a man starts a subsidiary account immediately after his marriage—an account about which his wife knows nothing. In an actual case a Scottish mariner deposited money at Bombay and Calcutta. When he died his widow drew the fund at one place, but not that at the other. Twenty years afterwards a collector discovered the money about £400, at Calcutta, and through his instrumentality it was recovered for the widow.

Just Folks.

THE DAY.
Life placed a day within my hand,
A day which dawned with beauty clear.
I heard a robin singing near,
Saw sunlight dance across the land,
Romed with my little children, and
Was greeted by a smile of cheer.
No sorrow came to cause a tear,
I did the task which I had planned,
I walked the highways up and down,
Met friends who stopped to talk with me,
And when at last I turned from town
The twinkling lights of home to see,
The day was spent. And if you please,
I gloried in its purchases.

Hints From Washington.

THAT DATE OF LIQUOR REGULATIONS MAY BE CHANGED.
WASHINGTON, May 14.—Possibility of President Harding being requested to seek an understanding with nations which compel their ships to carry liquor as crew rations, loomed to-night in reports that officials had struck a snag in drafting regulations to carry out the Supreme Court decision banning liquor within United States territorial waters. At the same time, there were hints that the date now fixed on June 10, for the new regulations to become effective might be postponed unless some way is found to "write around" the rigidity of the court's ruling.
