Associated Press Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 20.—Mr. J. C. Woodland of Ottawa, was examined at the Public Accounts Committee to-day. He said he was stationed at Emerson, Man., as sub-immigration agent in 1885 and 1886.

He declared that he never knew a man named Fournier who was credited in the Auditor-General's report with having drawn $800 in that fiscal year for acting as caretaker. The witness added that he himself had performed those duties.

Hon. Mr. Bowell objected to going back so far, and said that if the Liberals carried out this programme he could go back to 1875. He had in his possession certain documents from Winnipeg relating to expenditures under the Mackenzie regime.

Mr. Bowell replied that they had information that systematic irregularities had been carried on by this man Tett, the immigration agent at Emerson, and they would be bringing them out to make the present charge the more apparent.

Finally it was agreed that the House should be asked to grant the necessary permission to make the inquiry. Mr. McMillen then moved for other papers in relation to the salary drawn by Tett last year.

OTTAWA, July 20.—The Government are in a quandary over their new sugar tariff. It has been brought home to them that the tariff is not to be most effective if it does not shut out the Canadian sugar.

As an outcome of advances made by the Minister of Finance, a gentleman from Jamaica, the head of one of the chief exports, and a large sugar producer, is coming to Canada to open up a trade agreement with the Government.

He is bringing with him the grade of sugar which is the new tariff of the Finician. All sugar above what is known in the trade as "raw sugar" is prohibited by a duty of eight cents per pound.

The line between the United States tariff and the Canadian tariff is a very fine one. The gentleman from Jamaica is coming to see Mr. Adam Brown and Mr. Brown is now in the Department.

Thos. Garvin, West Garafaxa, has been arrested on a charge of shooting Mr. Byers with intent to kill. He leases Rogers' farm, and the latter came to pick berries, and was ordered off, but refused. Garvin got his shotgun and loaded it with grain, intending, he says, to frighten Byers off the such an extent that Byers' face was struck.

Hence the charge.

A cow belonging to Wm. Blinn, of Pils-ington, gave birth to a calf, and on the following day she gave birth to another, with head and neck like a bulldog's, three short legs and the other leg the ordinary length.
Mr. Golden, V.S., who was present, says it was the most remarkable freak of nature he ever saw or heard of. Both calves were still-born.

Mr. Snell has been engaged as high school master at Elora at a salary of $1,000.

"August Flower"

Mrs. Sarah M. Black of Seneca, Mo., during the past two years has been afflicted with Neuralgia of the Head, Stomach and Womb, and writes: "My food did not seem to strengthen me at all and my appetite was very variable. My face was yellow, my head dull, and I had such pains in my left side. In the morning when I got up I would have a flow of mucus in the mouth, and a bad, bitter taste. Sometimes my breath became short, and I had such queer, tumbling, palpitating sensations around the heart. I ached all day under the shoulder blades, in the left side, and down the back of my limbs. It seemed to be worse in the wet, cold weather of Winter and Spring; and whenever the spells came on, my feet and hands would turn cold, and I could get no sleep at all. I tried everywhere, and got no relief before using August Flower.
Then the change came. It has done me a wonderful deal of good during the time I have taken it and is working a complete cure."

ALCOHOL IN HEALTH AND DISEASE

A recent declaration by an anonymous writer, that alcohol is the natural enemy of disease, and its consumption therefore beneficial, is not borne out by the evidence of the leading physicians who last week participated in the proceedings of the International Medical Congress at Port Richmond, R. I. Dr. Davis, of Chicago, showed that last year $800,000,000 was spent in the United States for intoxicating liquors, or $13 per head; and he contended that the expenditure was not in the public interest, but had inflicted a distinct loss not only to the pockets, but to the bodies and minds of the consumers. "People," said this doctor, "drink because of the erroneous ideas as to the nature and effects of alcoholic beverages. Before chemistry analyzed liquor it was supposed to be stimulating, warming, soothing, and restorative. This is now known to be fallacious. Nineteen-twentieths of the alcoholic drinks given to the sick are mixed with sugar, milk, eggs or meat broths, which furnish the nutriment and would support life better if given without alcohol.
 A five-pound loaf of bread contains as much nutriment as will be found in a daily diet of eight or ten quarts of beer continued for a year. The man who drank this amount of beer would swallow a barrel of alcohol. In beer there is 4 per cent. of alcohol, in wines 15 per cent., and in distilled liquors from 50 to 60 per cent.
 Science classes alcohol as a poison. If taken pure it will destroy tissue as quickly as carbolic acid. Alcohol causes permanent structural changes in the liver, kidneys, stomach, heart, blood vessels and nervous tissue, and lessens the natural duration of life from ten to fifteen years." This is a serious arraignment, but it had many supporters in the congress. Dr. Halbrook, of New York, for example, gave personally compiled statistics to show that the consumer of alcoholic liquors, instead of securing greater immunity from attacks by disease, is rendered more vulnerable. This is because alcohol reduces the vitality and the power of resistance to disease.

Thousands of intelligent physicians subscribe to this declaration, and as a consequence have now either banished alcohol from their prescriptions or countenance its use sparingly solely as a medicine. In support of their stand, the experience of the National Temperance Hospital, established at Chicago a few years ago, to demonstrate that disease can be more successfully treated without than with the use of alcohol, can be adduced. The principles upon which it was organized were: 1. Alcohol is a poison. 2. When taken into the system it is not assimilated, but passes the round of the circulation, and is finally thrown off through the organs of excretion unchanged. 3. While passing through the body it disturbs the various physiological processes, and in this way lays the foundation for disease. 4. It does not stimulate or strengthen but depresses and weakens. 5. As it is not assimilated, it cannot be a food.
 6. As it disturbs every physiological process it cannot be a medicine. 7. There is no disease afflicting the body that cannot be more successfully treated without than with the use of alcohol. On this principle the hospital at Chicago is being run. During the last year it treated 140 patients and performed 98 surgical operations, and its mortality was only 5 per cent.

If further testimony were needed that the use of alcohol in health or disease can well be dispensed with, it is to be found in the experience of Dr. Bucke, superintendent of the London Asylum for the Insane, who has for years banished the stimulant from the institution, and with the most satisfactory results.

APPLY BRITISH PRECEDENTS.

The recent scandalous revelations at Ottawa have brought-out some remarkable excuses for wrongdoing and for toleration of the men who are responsible for the gross mismanagement and robbery that has resulted therefrom. Our contemporary the Montreal Star has been quoted with approval by the exponents of Sir Hector Langevin and his associates. The particular comfort which the Star gave arose from its assertion that perhaps too much party zeal would characterize the action of the Liberals in ferreting out evidence in support of the contention that the public have been robbed systematically by the Government and its needy hangers-on. The Star has since wisely modified its position, no doubt as a result of the increasingly damaging nature of the evidence brought out at Ottawa. We presume that there is small comfort in this categorical pronouncement by our contemporary:

"Does anyone suppose that in a civil service thus permeated with the spirit of grab the abuses now brought to light are the worst that might be uncovered? Are the great responsibilities and interests of the country safe in the hands of a huge staff in which the superior officers systematically connive with their subordinates to draw public money under false pretences?
 Worst feature of all, it has remained for a Parliamentary committee to raise the first doubts about the existence of Mrs. Harris.
 How could such practices have been carried on for years without the knowledge of the Government?"

It is not difficult to answer these queries.
 We believe that these scandals remain yet to be unveiled, though the process is rendered most difficult by the retention in office of those accused, who have power to do as they please with the books and papers that would reveal the true state of affairs. The great "responsibilities and interests" of the country are not safe in the hands of boodling officials who for years have carried on a system of fraud and robbery of the public.

Can we rely upon the Star and other independent Conservative journals to join in demanding an immediate change of Administration, as a result of these revelations? In Great Britain, a Government that was proved to be buttressed by men of the stamp of Sir Hector Langevin and Mr. McGreevy, M.P., would not stand 24 hours, so great would be the public outcry against it. Surely if we are to follow English precedent in matters of government and in respect for the proprieties, there should be enough independence in the ranks of honest Conservatives to teach their leaders the lesson that wholesale peculation of public money with the connivance of Ministers and their deputies, will not be condoned, even if a portion of that money is spent in achieving a party triumph.

To the great mass of us, it is of comparatively small importance who the men may be that are the head of the Government at Ottawa. But it is of vital interest to all who have to depend upon their own exertions for a living that the men in public office, whether as Ministers of the Crown or as subordinates, should be honest and zealous for the welfare of the public. That many of them have not been so in the past must now be patent to all. Millions of dollars of public money have been given away, under one guise or another, to speculative contractors and monopolists.
 These men did not earn that money; it did not grow upon the trees; it was the product of the labor of the people, and wrong from them by the tax collector, who levied on almost every article going into common use. It certainly is about time that this sort of thing were stopped, and that the men who have winked at wrong-doing, have encouraged it, condoned it, and profited by it, should be sent about their business.

It is not enough to say that Mr. Abbott and his associates are now trying to purge their surroundings. They hold power today by virtue of the cash and labors of the men whose services they are represented by their apologists as anxious to dispense with. They knew all about the greatest rascality of all—that involving Sir Hector Langevin and his cronies—long before last Dominion election, but they refused to take any action till the House met, and now denounce Mr. Tarte, M.P., for formulating the charges under investigation. No cleaning short of a change of Government can, under the circumstances, be regarded as satisfactory to honest people.

WHAT THE "ADVERTISER" THINKS ABOUT IT.

Mr. Rykert used to say he was no worse than the rest of his associates. As the scandals at Ottawa are probed, the disgraced ex-M. P. for Lincoln chuckles and says "I told you so," and he has not a little foundation for his exultation.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Times, in referring to the budget debate at Ottawa, says 23 members have so far spoken on the trade question, and adds:
 "Mr. Hymen, who moved the adjournment Friday night, will have the floor on Tuesday, when next it is resumed. The member for London is not only an acquisition to the debating talent of the House, but is one of the most popular members among the Liberal party."

The Westminster Review for July, published by the Leopard Scott Publication Company, New York, is a strong number.
 Mr. Theodore Stanton's recollections of President Lincoln, begun in the previous number, increase in interest. J. T. Cunington discusses "The New Darwin-ism," and shows the progress made in the application of the evolution theory to the beginnings of life. "London, Past and Present," is a brief but readable account of the various stages of the great English capital. Walter Lloyd describes the "Theological Evolution" of the late Mr. Call in an appreciative essay. Mary Sanger Evans tells some amusing experiences of "Domestic Servants in Australia." The Independent Section, a portion of the Review set apart for noteworthy articles which differ from the opinions of the editors, contains articles on "Imperial Federation," "The Jews and the Bible" and "Plain Words about Dancing." The department of "Contemporary Literature" is especially strong.

How Mr. Laurier has inscribed on his banner, "To the victors belong the spoils," and when he comes into power he threatens to clean out all civil servants who have been offensive partisans.— [Joseph Herald.]

What is there wrong in the declaration of Hon. Mr. Laurier that it is not in the public interest that offensive partisans should be retained in the public service? The man who becomes a civil servant undertakes to serve the whole people. When he becomes an offensive partisan he serves but a portion of them, and that, as we have seen in recent Ottawa revelations, very badly.

A curious attempt to remove blame from the Ministers at Ottawa is made by the Hamilton Spectator. It tells us that the Deputy Minister of the Interior is the boss of the department. The Minister, it is argued, is practically supervised by his subordinate, therefore the member of the Cabinet cannot be held responsible for wrongdoing! It is the old dodge of saddling the blame on the "wicked partner," but it will not work. Ministers collect from $7,000 to $9,000 a year for their services —some of them are paid at any price—and the public have a right to demand that they shall do their duty, or stand aside and let better men take their places.

Mr. Ross, M. P. for Dundas county, has given notice that he will move the following resolution in the House of Commons:
 "That in view of the great amount of mutilated silver coin in circulation throughout the Dominion, the consequent depreciation in value of such coin and the loss sustained by the public, it is the opinion of this House that measures should be taken to minimize this evil."

Commercial men have put up with this nuisance long enough, and it is to be hoped that an abatement will result from Parliamentary action. But the monetary reform should go further. It should embrace some remedy for the ragged, greasy —in some instances positively filthy—bill nuisance. Some of the bills now in circulation are menaces to the public health, and should be quarantined.

BASEBALL.

Toronto was offered Syracuse's franchise in the Eastern Association, but refused it. Utica may fill the gap.

Petty, formerly of the Hams, is the crack twirler of the Dayton team. Petty has an offer from Seattle, and made an attempt to jump the Dayton in Fort Wayne the other day.

After some skirmishing Manager Fisher induced him to come on with the team.

The Eastern Association has taken charge of the Syracuse club and will transfer the team to any other city that wants a baseball aggregation.

Goldard had the advantage throughout.

James McCormick, of Crystal Falls, Mich., died Saturday from injuries received in a prize fight with Wm. Daniels, of Rhineclaire. The fight was ten rounds with light gloves. The seventh round McCormick appeared dazed and fell unconscious under a terrific blow from Daniels. In a series of athletic sports held at Paddington on Saturday E. D. Lange, one of the visiting team of the Manhattan Athletic Club, of New York, easily won the eight-mile walk. H. THE STROKE.

He has been a Canadian for a number of years, and has always been very successful. This prize has only been won twice by Canadians, once by Lieut.-Col. Gibson, of Hamilton, and once by Lieut. William Mitchell, of the Thirty-Second Battalion. Capt. McKicking's score (97 out of a possible 105) is the highest that has ever been made by a Canadian for this prize, and is a good performance with any rifle under any circumstances. The prize is a gold medal and $100 in cash.

STILL ON STRIKE.

What the Employing Plumbers and the Men Say.

The plumbers' strike is still on and work in that line in the city is almost suspended.

THE MEN'S SIDE.

"At present we get $12 for a week of 54 hours," said one of the men yesterday morning. "Six weeks ago we were asked for 30 cents per hour at 25 cents per hour--a rate which prevails in Toronto and other cities. The employers appealed for a month's time in which to come to an understanding with the bosses' association. But this we granted and gave a further extension of two weeks when the month expired. Time was up on Friday last, and when they refused to accede to our demands, they had already got six weeks' work out of us on the old terms."

"Yes, we intend to hold out and feel making for this strike is a good one. Another of the men has come over on our side and of the two remaining who did not strike one is a partner in the firm. We are backed financially and otherwise by the United Association, to which we belong."

THE EMPLOYERS' SIDE.

One of the employers states that he will not take back his former employees at any price. Mr. Wm. Skelly offered to grant the request of two of his men, but the latter declined to return unless the concession was made to all the strikers. "We cannot pay 25 cents per hour for work said one, 'when in adjacent cities--St. Thomas, for instance--the rate is only 20 cents. In case we did it would disable us from competing with them at all."

She left a note for her husband which shows that her mind was affected.

THE PULPIT AND THE PUGILISTS.

Determined Effort of St. Paul (Minn.) Clergymen to Prevent the Proposed Fight.

St. PAUL, Minn., July 20.--It was announced from the cathedral pulpit yesterday that Archbishop Ireland, Bishop Gilbert and many other prominent divines would this evening address a mass meeting at the Newman Theater denouncing the brutal exhibition to be given under the name of "athletics" at the West Seventh street pavilion Wednesday evening, when the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight is to take place. In seven churches yesterday the subject of the sermon was "Pugilism." Fr. Fitzsimmons and Mayor Smith were severely censured. The pastors sent Mr. Noyes, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, to Mayor Smith with a petition that the head of the city government stop the fight. Mayor Smith declined to interfere, but informed the divines that the "mill" would be conducted within the law. The promoters of the mass meeting say if their prayers go unheeded they will cause the arrest of Fitzsimmons and Hall, the officers of the Minnesota Athletic Club, the mayor and the sporting editors of the newspapers.

THE WORLD'S HARVEST.

Its Prospects Summarized by the London Times.

LONDON, July 20.--The Times summarizes the harvest prospects of the world as follows:

In Russia there is a grave deficit. The peasantry are starving, and there is small hope of relief.

In India a serious drought prevails over a considerable portion of the country. Madras, Raghupathi and the Punjab are the worst sufferers. There is drought in Bengal and the need of more rain is urgent. Bombay alone promises a good harvest.

The American harvest will be good in quality and will likely offset the failure of the Indian and Russian supplies.

It is of the utmost importance that the English crop should not be short. The prospect on the whole is good. In the chief wheat-growing areas, Norfolk and Suffolk--the crop is above the average, and in other counties up to the average. The harvest will be late and prices will be high. Here, therefore, a good outlook for the English farmer to break the long series of disastrous years.

Good Advice for a King.

LONDON, July 20.--There is a report current that the Queen has written to the King of Rumania advising him to let the love episode of the Crown Prince with Helena Vassaresco take its natural course, and remaining single, the marriages of affection in the English royal family.

The People's Party.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., July 20.--A State industrial convention, composed of delegates from the Farmers' Alliance, Knights of Labor, Good Templars and several trades unions have organized "The People's Party of the State of Washington." The platform declares in favor of the eight-hour system, the sub-treasury system and the abolition of child labor.

Killed by a Thunderbolt.

MIDVEN, July 18.--Mrs. McIntyre, a resident of Stanhope township, was struck and instantly killed by a thunderbolt about noon today. The deceased was about 35 years old and leaves a family of eight young children. Some of the children were playing around the table where she was ironing at the time she was struck, but none of them were injured. Her husband, David McIntyre, just settled in the township about two weeks ago.

The First New Wheat.

St. JACQUES, Ont., July 20.--The first load of new wheat that has been received in this county by Mr. E. W. B. Snider from John L. Weber. The quality was very choice and for short strawed wheat. There being very few fields out so far in this vicinity proved this variety as ripening early. Fall wheat promises better in this section than for a number of years past. Spring grains are looking well since the late rains.

Sugar.

WASHINGTON, July 20.--The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has prepared a statement of the probable production of sugar during the current fiscal year:

Cane sugar, 500,000,000 pounds; beet sugar, 29,210,000 pounds; sorghum sugar, 2,500,000 pounds; maple sugar, 8,000,000 pounds; total, 539,710,000 pounds. Estimate of the amount of bounty to be paid: On cane sugar, $1,350,000; on beet sugar, $884,200; on sorghum sugar, $30,000; on maple sugar, $150,000; total, $1,114,200.

The Triple Alliance.

BERLIN, July 20.--Salisbury's adherence to the triple alliance appears to have been made with due regard to the protection of English interests in Egypt and in the Balkans. The current view of the drift of the entente cordiale at Hatfield House has transpired, but enough is known to suggest that Lord Salisbury obtained assurances from the Emperor that the Franco-Russian project against England's position in the East will be met with open German support of England. An entente is thus established all round, the arrangement being as an Asiatic as well as an European equilibrium.

The Reported Attempt on the Czar's Life.

LONDON, July 20.--The latest rumor regarding attempts upon the life of the Czar, which rumor caused considerable alarm in St. Petersburg, was that an officer had tried to murder the Czar with an axe. The report arose from the fact that the Czar was amusing himself in a forest chopping a tree, when the head of the axe flew off and struck an attendant in the face and wounded him. The Czar went to the assistance of the wounded man and got some blood on his hands and clothes. An officer of the guard approached them and thought that the Czar was in danger. He called upon some soldiers to rescue his Majesty, and before an explanation could be made the wounded attendant was cut down by the over-zealous soldiers. The Czar caused the officer to be punished for his action.

On Friday at Carthage, Mo., in a house at the corner of Oak and Ormer streets, occupied by Mrs. Smith, the dead bodies of the wife and a female named Jeff, 75, were found lying side by side on a bed. In the head of each were bullet holes.

He Fell Among Thieves

"Her leedship was speakin' about ye," Hogan pursued. "Yer leedship, yesterday. Ye were the talk of London. I told her that I'd had the good luck to pull ye through, and I was as good as to forget that she was poor young Wynne's great-aunt, and I spoke about the boy being killed in the same scime. The old lady said nothing, but Miss Grey, that's a kind of niece to her, gave me a warning glance, and after that I had the good taste to hold my tongue, and to change the subject. Everybody says ye're hiding yourself. Why don't ye go into society?"

"I don't know," said the traveler, laughing rather joyfully. "Perhaps I have been out of society so long that I might feel a little ill at ease and un-at-home in it."

"That's true too," said Hogan gravely, and rang the bell. "We'll have just a point of Monopole and a touch of Angostura. Now ye can't refuse me. I prescribe it. I know your constitution from of old, and I know what's good for ye. Ye won't think me shabby in ordering a point?" said the good Celtic. "A point between two is an excellent thing of a morning, but a quart's too much. There's always dunn and old hums, and that sort of people, wantin' money of me, and if I had my share of a little bottle I'd be too generous."

The wanderer drank his wine sadly, though he made no show of sadness. He would have liked to question Hogan about Lady McCorquodale and her household, but he was unused to pretenses, and before he had found a subject for the small bottle he was empty, and the doctor was on his feet, prepared to go. "Ye'll dine with me to-night," said Hogan. "Won't ye now? We'll have a table about old times, and I'll beat up one or two of the old boys. Seven sharp. Don't fail me now. Ye'll come, won't ye?"

"Let us dine alone to-night, Hogan," said the traveler. "We shall have plenty to talk about, and I don't care about a crowd."

It was agreed to, and they parted. The distinguished wanderer, who had been in the park, thinking of conversational devices by means of which he might lure on Hogan to talk of his patient and her companion, Inthia was Miss Grey still, it seemed, and had not married Humphrey Frost and his millions after all. He did not flatter himself that he knew much of the great world of humane nature. He had elected to humiliate himself in a reason for reason. In long, lonely marches and camps, he had given her little opportunity for study of the human heart. He was faithful to his old remembrances, but questioning himself he found a reason for reason. In long, lonely marches and camps, he had given her little opportunity for study of the human heart. He was faithful to his old remembrances, but questioning himself he found a reason for reason.

He had so long since resigned her, and and so completely obliterated himself that these thoughts were penative rather than painful. The boyish ardor of desire had faded and he was contented to be alone. But none the less was she a saint to him, an object of worship, the embodiment of all that was true and pure and good and beautiful in womankind.

Dinner-time came, and he was punctual to the hour. He played his conversational wiles, deliberately prepared, on Hogan.

"Poor young Wynne," he said, "was in love with your patient's ward, I fancy."

"And that's no wonder," Hogan answered, "though she could have been no more than a child when he knew her. She's not more than four and twenty now, and to my mind she's just the loveliest woman in London."

Hogan's companion knew nothing of that master piece of fiction, The Ordeal of Richard Feverel, but without its guiding aid he recognized Beauty's Dog in Hogan, M.D. Beauty's Dog excites no jealousy in the mind of any lover, and when Hogan chanted Inthia's praises Harry Wynne listened in grave and tender assent. A crowd of Hogans might have worshipped her, and have awakened no sentiment except one of acquiescence in his mind.

"I wasn't braggin'," said Hogan, "but I mentioned to her ladyship that I'd met ye this morning, and that you were going to dine with me this evening."

The excellent Hogan had indeed carried that intelligence everywhere. It was a feather of such exceptional brilliancy in his cap that it made quite a personage of him. That distinguished Ronald Morton, after whom the whole of London was running in vain, was his own private and particular prey. Dukes and earls, duchesses and lords of inferior title smothered him with invitations, and he declined them all to sit over a bottle of simple claret and a plain chop with an old chum.

She's a fine stately old lady," continued Hogan, naturally unconscious of his hearer's superior knowledge of his theme, "and I suppose she's always been a bit inclined to be hard on the poor boy that ran away, but when she learned that I'd just come hot from the man that was shot down by the side of 'm, she got out her handkerchief, the poor old dame, and wiped her glasses."

Hogan blew his nose and his eyelids grew a little red.

"I tell ye," he said defiantly, "I was indicted, and when her ladyship asked me to use my best influence to bring you up to Lord Houses' house to have a talk with her I promised I'd do my best."

This was more than the returned exile had bargained for. There lay there a danger of detection, and he stammered some lame excuse.

"Unusual to the society of ladies. What should I do in a drawing-room?"

"Me dear fellow!" cried Hogan. "What are ye talkin' about? Ye'd have all the girls at your feet, like a Sultan. Not that that matters, for ye're mighty changed since the old days at Tashkosen if ye've grown feather-headed. But now really ye can't refuse. Here's an old lady that wants news of the last days of her great-nephew, and a young one that wants to hear about her dead sweetheart. Your own chum too, Morton. Ye can't find it in your heart to say no. They live just as quiet as mice, and ye're bound to like them. Come up with me to-morrow morning when I pay my visit. Ye needn't stay twenty minutes, and ye'll be doing me a personal service."

"Not to-morrow. I am too busy."

"It was so slight and natural a thing to ask, and so easy to accede to, that the wanderer was troubled. He took refuge in social bias, and being unused to that sort of exercise, boggled over it woefully."

"Not to-morrow. I am too busy."

"Ah, well!" said Harry Hogan, "there's no trouble about to-morrow. We'll go the next day, and to-morrow I'll tell them that ye're coming."

"No, no," cried Harry. "Tell them nothing of the sort. I would rather not meet anybody whilst I'm in town."

"What am I to tell them then?" Hogan demanded. "That ye went, come and exchange a word with two ladies that loved an old comrade that was shot down at the side of ye? It's not like ye, Morton! Ye can't refuse them."

Hogan had been so sure of his friend's consent beforehand that he had actually pledged himself to bring him, and had even indulged in some harmless flourishes about the intimacy of his friendship with the great traveler and his influence over him, so that the refusal was doubly a disappointment.

"I'll think of it," said Harry. "We'll speak of it later on. I don't like to refuse you, Hogan. Leave it there for a little while."

When the two parted for the night Harry Wynne set a candle on either side his looking-glass, and sitting down stared steadily at his own reflection for a long time. He tried to recall to memory the slim shoulders and the beardless ingenuous face of youth, but he failed signally. He could not tell how far he had changed, but the scar, the tanned complexion, and the beard must, he thought, have altered him almost imperceptibly. He pondered long as to whether he dare risk the experiment of a visit, and at the thought of meeting Inthia again his heart sounded a mad alarm. It had been so long since he had dined when he had held life in his hand, and had expected at every second to have it wrested from him. He went to bed half determined that he would not risk it, but he woke up in the morning untroubled by less valorous fancies. His life of late years had been a rare school for rapidity and firmness of decision. His vacillations were of the kind that come of a man worried him, and he told himself that he was growing effeminate in London, and began to long for his wilds again.

Having once promised the famous traveler to Lady McCorquodale, was he to go back on his word? He was in and out of Wynne's chambers a dozen times a day, and at last he felt unwittedly clinched the nail of argument.

"It's no use going to-morrow," said Hogan, "because Miss Grey's going into the country, and 'tis she I specially want to see you."

Harry discovered precipitately that Harry was the one day in the year that could suit him. He felt that he could encounter Lord Houses and Lady McCorquodale without fear of recognition, and with no temptation to self-betrayal. The more he feared to meet Inthia the stronger grew his desire, and the more he came to wish the meeting, the more he feared.

How a Beautiful Flower Was Named.

An old legend tells of two lovers, walking by the River Rhine. The lady begged her suitor to pluck a little pale-blue flower, growing on the bank.
