Husband Killed In Crash, Wife Seeks $16,200 Damages

FARMERS ARE SUED FOR $16,200

Cecil Roy Brownlee Killed When Car Collided With Wagon.

DRIVING IN FOG

Did Not See Horses Until They Were Upon Them.

The damage action for $16,200 being brought by Mrs. Emma H. Brownlee of this city against John and Herbert Zinn, farmers, of Blanchard township, Oxford county, is now in progress before Mr. Justice Riddell at the court house.

The plaintiff claims $15,000 damages for the death of her husband, Cecil Roy Brownlee, who died from injuries received on the night of Dec. 22, 1922, one mile east of Woodstock, when the car in which he was driving with his wife struck a team and wagon, being driven by Herbert Zinn, and owned by his father, John Zinn.

Mrs. Brownlee is claiming $1,000 damages for injuries she received in the accident, $100 for medical attendance and $100 damages to the car.

J. M. McEwen, K. C., and Samuel E. Weir are acting for the plaintiff, and Peter White, K. C., of Toronto, and S. G. McKay, K. C., of Woodstock, for the defendants.

First Witnesses

Mrs. Brownlee, the first witness called, told of the trip from Barrie on the day of the accident. She said her husband was a commercial traveler in the employ of the McCormick Manufacturing company, and that he received a salary of $1,100 and commissions of $200.

Witness stated that the lights of their car were turned on just out of Barrie, as it was getting dark and there was quite a mist. At the place of the accident the road was quite wide. She had the side curtain up, so she could tell her husband how close he was driving to the ditch and admitted she could not see through the windshield, owing to the fog. Mrs. Brownlee said that she did not see the heads of the horses until they were almost on them, and that the tongue of the wagon went right through the windshield. She was right at the scene of the accident for twenty minutes afterward.

4 Miles an Hour.

Questioned by Mr. White, witness said she thought the car was going about four miles an hour at the time. She admitted having previously said the car was travelling about ten miles an hour. She had changed this, though, after a talk with Mr. Weir.

Delbert Brownlee, brother-in-law of plaintiff, said damages to the car were $28.75. He had sold the car for $100.

The case will take up most of the day, as there are seven more witnesses for the plaintiff and seventeen for defendant.

The Voice of the West Gives Friendly Warning

Not prepared clippings from the anti-temperance columns of the Calgary Herald, but voluntary evidence in the careful personal statements of public men.

In an advertisement headed, "Time for Plain Speaking," the Moderation League yesterday reprinted seven clippings from the Calgary Herald and part of a paid statement from the Vancouver Province.

The advertisement was intended to show that the western provinces are satisfied with government sale of liquor. The seven clippings from the Calgary Herald were intended to discredit as "mendacious," "malicious" and "malignant" reports of government sale results obtained by an Advertiser correspondent who spent several weeks in Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia and Quebec in first-hand investigation of the facts.

It is sufficient to point out that both the Calgary Herald and the Vancouver Province are anti-temperance newspapers. The Calgary Herald has always opposed temperance legislation, and is today soliciting liquor advertising from brewers and distillers.

The Advertiser has no quarrel with the members of London's Moderation League, who are sincere in their hopeful opinion of government sale. Their judgment is entitled to tolerance and respect, but the Advertiser has no sympathy with the attempt of the Moderation League's hired propagandist to fool the public into believing that the Calgary Herald represents the people of the western provinces.

What responsible people of the west think of government sale is told in the personal statements quoted below. They are reprinted from articles already published in The Advertiser. They have not been challenged, and they cannot be contradicted.

Ex-Mayor Underwood of Calgary:

"I don't believe people knew what they were voting for when they brought these evils on the community."

Premier John Oliver:

"Conditions in Vancouver, so far as the sale of beer is concerned, are as wide open as they could be. No matter what legislation we pass, certain interests will endeavor to weaken its effect."

Mrs. Nellie McClung, member of Alberta Legislature:

"I saw more drunkenness in Vancouver in six weeks under government control than in ten years in Alberta under license and prohibition."

H. H. Stevens, M.P., Conservative member for Centre Vancouver:

"Never in the history of the country was bootlegging comparable in magnitude and murderous results to what it is today."

C. E. Tindall, mayor of Vancouver in 1923:

"We must do something at once. Conditions are deplorable."

A. M. Manson, attorney general of British Columbia:

"The greatest bootleggers of all are breweries and export liquor dealers."

David Whiteside, member of British Columbia Legislature:

"It is idle to deny that in Vancouver and the large centers beer is being sold frequently by the glass. I have no belief that the liquor men will obey the law."

Major Allen, representative of the Salvation Army, in Winnipeg police court:

"Conditions are disgraceful. They were not nearly so bad when we had the open bar."

Robert McPherson, new police commissioner in Vancouver:

"There's no control about it. You can buy all you want. It's not government control, but government sale." Asked the plain question, "Would you advise Ontario to adopt government control as you have in B. C.?" he answered: "I would not."

A. Johnson, chairman of the B. C. liquor control board, was questioned as follows:

Question—"What is your greatest difficulty in enforcing the law?" Answer—"Bootlegging."

Retail merchants' association of Vancouver:

"The business of the retail stores is suffering very heavily from the diversion of money into liquor channels, which should be spent legitimately to supply food and other necessities and comforts for the people."

Andrew Blyth, J. P. of "Vancouver today is more wide open than ever before, and any night may be seen carabars in which no liquor is said to be sold, but in which 50 per cent of the people show signs of intoxication."

Major R. V. Rude, M.L.A. from Port Alberni:

"I can take you to a dance hall in Vancouver where any night you can find boys of 16 and 17, who do not consider themselves as having

Ferguson Smashes It

Advocates of Government Sale for Ontario have quoted Premier Ferguson freely in supporting various arguments.

They now make a last minute attempt to pretend that the facts of Government Sale as expressed by responsible citizens of the western provinces are merely slanders devised by temperance people in Ontario.

In this attempt they apparently overlook the fact that no one has been more outspoken than Premier Ferguson himself in condemning the results of Government Sale in other provinces.

Here is what Premier Ferguson wrote ten days ago in a letter to Donald J. McKinnon, 141 Farnham Ave., Toronto, and quoted in the Toronto Mail and Empire of October 11th:

"Looking into the matter of operation, both in British Columbia and Quebec, their systems are called Government Control BUT THERE DOES NOT APPEAR TO BE MUCH RESTRICTION OR ATTEMPT AT CONTROL."

Premier Ferguson's signed statement is convincing acceptance of the evidence which The Advertiser has presented in its series of articles dealing with the facts in Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia and Quebec.

The Premier supplies a smashing reply to the Moderation League's attempt of yesterday, and no amount of expensive advertisements can change it.

Municipalities of B.C., in session in Prince Rupert in August:

"That this convention places itself on record as strongly protesting against the present disgraceful situation throughout the province in regard to the formation of clubs and the sale of liquor therein; that the present situation is worse than in the days of the open bar, and is not only destructive to the morals of the people, but is resulting in bringing about a general contempt for law and order; that the government be urged at the earliest possible moment to consider this situation and enact laws to alter this deplorable state of affairs."

LONDONERS WILL VOTE IN FORCE

Temperance Leaders Sure of Victory If Weather Fine.

PLANS COMPLETE

Five Hundred Travellers Will Not Be Able To Cast Ballot.

If the weatherman maintains his record of the last few days and provides a bright, sunny day tomorrow, a record vote will probably be recorded in the plebiscite on the O. T. A. question.

W. C. Fitzgerald, district returning officer, is looking for a record figure, and expects the 22,000 of the last provincial election to be surpassed.

E. E. Reid, chairman of the London temperance committee, is enthusiastic and has no doubt of the result of the plebiscite.

"If we only have a good day tomorrow we will win," he told The Advertiser this morning. He looks forward to the excitement of watching a good fight in a just cause. His organization has completed every arrangement for the day. A fleet of cars has been mobilized, and voter unable to walk to the polling stations will be missed in the canvass for ballot passers.

Completes Work.

W. C. Fitzgerald has completed his preparations. All returning officers and polling stations have been named and settled. He emphasizes the fact that the polling stations open sharp at 8 and close equally sharp at 6 o'clock. He is not worrying about spoiled ballots.

"In the last few years," he says, "spoiled ballots have been very scarce. There were only 64 in the last provincial election out of 22,000 ballots cast. I am not expecting many tomorrow. But I believe there will be a record vote cast, and I shall not be at all surprised to see 25,000 votes returned. Those statements speaking of 35,000 votes being a possibility are not correct. There are a good many dead names on the lists, that will greatly reduce that number. Impersonation, too, has very largely disappeared in the past, and I do not anticipate any difficulty in this way."

Travellers Out.

Some five hundred commercial travellers will not be able to record their vote on the question, according to George Hair, secretary of the Ontario commercial travellers' association. They will be on their trips. The travellers have never had an advance poll granted to them for a provincial election, although they have for the federal and the municipal elections.

As to the right of a scrutineer to leave the polling place at which he is employed and make way for someone else, Mr. Fitzgerald said that he would not be given to anyone.

"If a scrutineer wishes to retire at any time during the day, another scrutineer appointed by the representative of the same side, according to the resolution points out that 'competent and effective regulation of the Lake of the Woods are essential to the future development of power on the river.'"

The principle of government ownership of the dam against private ownership was also endorsed, the resolution stating: "The control should at all times be vested in a competent permanent public body."

The meeting was attended by representative citizens, members of the civic and provincial governments, hydro power and business organizations. Mr. Bracken and others spoke in opposition to the agreement, all emphasizing the risk of too much was at stake to run the risk of possible interference by a private individual.

SUGGESTIONS ARE SOUGHT FROM STATES IN LEAGUE

Geneva, Oct. 21.—All the states belonging to the League of Nations have been requested to forward to Geneva before Nov. 17 any suggestions which they may consider of value in the preparation of the program for the international conference on reduction of armaments which is planned for Geneva next June. FORMER COP INDICTED IN $20,000 EMBEZZLEMENT

Quebec, Oct. 22.—Philippe and Paul Fafard of Montreal were found guilty yesterday of conspiracy to defraud Adolphe Lauzon of Chicoutimi of $20,000 on Aug. 7 last. Philippe Fafard is a former member of the Montreal police force. The Fafards were arrested charged with theft of $20,000 from Adolphe Lauzon in a confidence game. The $20,000 was to have been used in swinging a deal in which Lauzon, according to his own testimony, was to have made a profit of $14,000.

BUTCHER MEETS HORRIBLE DEATH

Runaway Team Crushes Horse and Buggy Driven by Samuel Hogg, Erin.

Guelph, Oct. 22.—Samuel Hogg, a butcher at Erin village, a short distance out of Guelph, met a horrible death this morning when driving into this city. He was approaching Guelph in a horse and buggy coming down Mooney's hill on the Bramana road, followed by a team driven by his brother, Hugh Hogg. The king-bolt of the wagon broke on the hill and the frightened horses, bumped by the heavy vehicle, raced ahead madly, leaping on the buggy in front of them and frightfully mauling its occupant, Sam Hogg, and crushing the buggy to splinters.

Mr. Hogg was so badly injured that he died before reaching the general hospital, only a short distance from the scene of the accident.

BACKUS DAM CONTROL STRENUOUSLY OPPOSED

Public Meeting in Winnipeg Condemns Proposed Government Agreement.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—The proposed agreement between the dominion government and the Backus interests regarding the control of the Norman dam, the key to a dependable flow of water on the Winnipeg river, was strenuously opposed at a public meeting here last night, and a resolution of protest was wired to Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and members of his cabinet.

Winnipeg's hydro development plants are situated on the Winnipeg river, and the resolution points out that "competent and effective regulation of the Lake of the Woods are essential to the future development of power on the river."

The principle of government ownership of the dam against private ownership was also endorsed, the resolution stating: "The control should at all times be vested in a competent permanent public body."

The meeting was attended by representative citizens, members of the civic and provincial governments, hydro power and business organizations. Mr. Bracken and others spoke in opposition to the agreement, all emphasizing the risk of too much was at stake to run the risk of possible interference by a private individual.

Letters and other evidence showed that Jarvis paid $7, 82 and 84½ for these bonds respectively. Mr. Drury was asked directly by W. N. Tilley, crown prosecutor, if the price to be paid by the government was fixed, why it was necessary to send Andrew Peppal to England at all. Mr. Drury said he did not know beyond the fact that the government sent him to watch the transactions for the government. Mr. Drury in reply to direct questions said he did not know that Mr. Smith ever got anything out of the transactions. Mr. Drury said the government had decided to buy the bonds in as cheaply as possible. He was asked by his lordship why then the price was set at the figures mentioned when the market values of these bonds were much below those figures. Mr. Drury said that he had personally felt that the government would be able to buy very few of the bonds at a low figure because the prices would be when they became known that the government was in the purchasing field. He said he could not explain beyond that, when his lordship pressed for further reasons.

Saskatoon, Oct. 22.—A circular letter is being sent out by the Moderation League of Saskatchewan asking that the members of the legislature institute the Alberta plan of government control of liquor, permitting sale of beer by the glass in approved licensed premises.

DEFENCE'S PLEA TO DISMISS SMITH-JARVIS CASE REFUSED

Former Premier E. E. Drury Is First Witness Called on Behalf of Defendants.

CLOSELY QUESTIONED

Declares He Never Had Any Reason to Doubt Honesty of ex-Treasurer.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Former Premier E. E. Drury was the first witness called this morning for the defence in the trial of former Provincial Treasurer Peter Smith, Aemilius Jarvis, Sen. Aemilius Jarvis, Jun., and Harry Peppal, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the province. On the conclusion of the crown's evidence, the defence asked for a dismissal on the ground that no case had been made out. Chief Justice Macpherson, who is presiding, refused to dismiss the case. Replying to questions by T. H. Lennox, counsel for Smith, Mr. Drury said he never had reason to doubt the integrity of his colleagues and that he trusted him. He was still without personal knowledge of anything which would give him reason to doubt Smith. The latter had introduced him to Peppal as a friend. Smith did not mention that Peppal was negotiating sales for the Jarvis firm.

"He didn't say that he was splitting the defence of the six Montreal bandits sentenced to be hanged Friday for the Bank of Hochelaga collection car hold-up which resulted in the death of Henri Cloutier, chauffeur, it will, it is stated by a local paper, have before it a confession of Louis Morel, one of the ringleaders of the gang, exonerating Frank Gambino, Mike Valentino and Tony Frank from any part in the hold-up itself. These three are among the six condemned men. Morel had previously sworn Leo Davis was not present at the hold-up. The men named, however, figured in the original case against the hold-up and are therefore accomplices.

Morel has written a letter to Mrs. Gambino, incorporating in it his latest confession, and his letter will be submitted to the cabinet by defence counsel, it is stated, in a plea for a stay of execution.

Never Doubtful Smith. Mr. Drury understood that the government had approached the Jarvis firm for advice. The advisers had become the purchasers. Mr. Drury said he was introduced to Jarvis, Sen., by Smith. The bonds purchased had been discussed in cabinet. Witness did not remember seeing the bonds, but he said he admitted, although he had no doubt that prices were discussed.

"At what price did you understand that the first class of bonds of the Jarvis firm was purchased?" asked Mr. Tilley. Mr. Drury did not know. Mr. Tilley read a letter from Jarvis, Sen., to Lloyd's bank regarding the purchase of bonds in England. The letter said that one price was to be paid to all.

The trial is drawing a large number of collectors and onlookers in the legislature and several former U. F. O. members, including W. E. Roney, former attorney-general, Edgar Watson, ex-crown prosecutor, and Ross, M.L.A., were interested listeners this morning. Mr. Drury stated that he had never had any reason to doubt the integrity of the Jarvis firm. He told of the proceedings leading up to the decision to buy in bonds in England. The matter was discussed at several cabinet meetings of the cabinet council.

Letters and other evidence showed that Jarvis paid $7, 82 and 84½ for these bonds respectively. Mr. Drury was asked directly by W. N. Tilley, crown prosecutor, if the price to be paid by the government was fixed, why it was necessary to send Andrew Peppal to England at all. JUDGE GOULD BEGINS PROBE IN HAMILTON

Hamilton, Oct. 21.—The sessions of the civic inquiry conducted by Judge Gould, the investigation was confined to the departments of the city auditor and city treasurer, and the bookkeeping system was thoroughly probed. Just where the responsibility rests for the audit of the treasurer's books is one of the questions Judge Gould will have to decide. There was a difference of opinion on this question. Particulars of the defalcations of H. S. Forbes, missing cashier, were given, and the sum alleged to be taken by him was announced as $49,899.72. It was brought out that a check would have revealed this shortage, but the auditors were too far behind to find it in time, it was explained.

The Advertiser urges its readers to support the Ontario temperance act and to mark the ballot as below.

1 Are you in favour of the continuance of The Ontario Temperance Act? X

2 Are you in favour of the sale as a beverage of beer and spirituous liquor in sealed packages under Government control?

LONDON MOTOR CLUB NEARS MEMBERSHIP OBJECTIVE

Only seventy-five more members are needed now by the London motor club to finish its "twelve hundred membership" drive now in progress.

The secretary of the club says the executive is well satisfied with the result to date of the drive, but is confidently expecting the objective to be reached before the drive closes.

The services rendered by the club to its members are said by the secretary to be the best selling argument on the part of the campaigners and to be responsible for the good results obtained in increasing membership.

T. W. McFARLAND WILL RUN AGAIN

Public Utilities Commissioner to Seek Re-election—R. J. Webster Undecided.

T. W. McFarland, whose fourth term of office as member of the public utilities commission expires on Dec. 31 next, has announced that he will again offer his services as a commissioner for the ensuing term of two years.

R. J. Webster, the other commissioner whose term expires this year, told The Advertiser today that he was not prepared as yet to make an announcement regarding his candidature for next year.

Mr. McFarland was first elected to the utilities commission in 1915 and has been a member ever since. He was chairman of the commission in 1921, being succeeded by Jared Vining, who is the present chairman of the commission.

It has been the exception rather than the rule for Mr. McFarland to have to contest an election as commissioner, since during the whole tenure of his office he has secured more acclamations to office than he has had elections to fight.

Mr. Webster, on the other hand, is completing his first term as a member of the commission. Mayor G. A. Wenige may or may not be a member of the commission next year. Time alone will tell. He has, however, announced his candidature for a third year as mayor.

Jared Vining and Philip Pasock complete the membership of the commission, their terms running until December, 1925.

HEIGHT WINS.

Building Inspector Piper is the tallest man amongst city hall officials. His height was useful this morning. When a little twittering sparrow found its way into the city treasurer's department employees had to close their books and forego work for a few minutes as the tiny would-be songster rushed here and there in a frightened attempt to make its escape. That is where the building inspector came in. No step-ladders were necessary. He just reached up and opened the top windows and the bird was out in the open in no time.

INGRAM VIGOROUSLY DENIES CANDIDATURE

Will Not Enter the Mayoralty Race, President of C. of C. Declares.

Gordon Ingram, for the past year president of the chamber of commerce, will not contest the mayoralty this year. Asked today if he would consider running for office, Mr. Ingram's answer was vigorously in the negative.

"Why should I consider the proposition?" was his first reply to a reporter's question regarding the suggestion of friends that Mr. Ingram run for office.

"You will not be a candidate then?" Absolutely not, I have enough troubles now."

As yet, no opposition has been found for the present incumbent, George Womersley, who declared that he is ready to offer himself for a third term. Should Mr. Womersley be returned by acclamation he will create a record for sequence in office, as well as having two acclamations in succession.

Mayor Billo and City Treasurer Bunnell of Brantford were in the city yesterday investigating the system whereby the public utilities commission controls the administration of hydro and water departments.

The city of Brantford is considering combining its hydro, gas, and water departments, which at present control the water, hydro and street railway departments. The Brantford officials had previously visited Galt, where one commission has control of both hydro and water departments.

The visitors called upon City Clerk Sam Baker and also Manager E. V. Buchanan, both of whom explained the system as it exists in London. They expressed themselves as favourably impressed by the efficiency of the system in operation here.

FOX AND SANSONE AWAIT COUNSEL

Appeal Is Being Prepared For New Trial Following Return.

Thomas Fox and Sylvadore Sansone, brought back from Kingston penitentiary early yesterday morning by Governor Byron Dawson and a constable, because of the refusal of Warden Ponsford to accept the prisoners until the 40-day appeal limit had lapsed, are now awaiting action by their counsel, who is preparing an appeal, asking among other things for a new trial.

Counsel for the men who are sentenced to the penitentiary with lashes by Mr. Justice Riddell last Saturday, stated today that he was working on the appeal, which would be forwarded to Toronto as soon as completed.

Warden Ponsford stated that he acted on orders received from Ottawa which stated that men sentenced to death or whippings had 40 days from time of sentence to appeal the case. Fox intimated to the warden that he was going to appeal his case and was therefore brought back to the city.

Sheriff Graham is in receipt of no such orders and sent the men on to Kingston as required by jail regulation.

The whole matter is being taken up with the attorney-general's department by the crown attorney.

INSURANCE IS EXPLAINED IN LONDON FORESTERS

About 200 members of the Canadian Order of Foresters of the city and district were present in Ulster hall Monday evening to hear Alfred P. Van Soeren, high secretary, A. R. Galpin, high treasurer, and A. C. Wiley, superintendent of organization, speak regarding the favorable legislation recently enacted in connection with the order, whereby members have now the option of taking paid-up certificates or transferring to some other plan of insurance of which seven are now being written.

The readjustment of rates which became effective recently the order lost only a small percentage of their membership. They have at the present time over 65,000 members. Harry Pierce, D.D.H.C.R. of this city, acted as chairman of the meeting.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS GREATEST FACTOR

Dean Tucker Urges Importance of Schools—Teachers Should Visit Homes.

The Sunday school was declared to be the greatest influence in shaping and forming character, apart from the home, by the Very Rev. Dean Tucker of St. Paul's at the final session of the East Middlesex deanery, held last night in St. George's parish hall. The dean was talking to Sunday school teachers in the deanery.

"No one in the church can say," he stated, "that the Sunday school teacher is second to any other worker or teacher in the church. In every Sunday school class there is the raw material which may some day develop into a leading citizen, Canadian and churchman. Under the hands of the Sunday school teacher to be molded as her teaching may direct lies a wealth of humanity too often unrealized and unappreciated. The very smallness of the class only serves to increase the influence of the work. A preacher may speak to thousands, but the work of the Sunday school teacher with her few pupils will, if it is rightly directed, have the more lasting effect, not only on the individual, but on the world at large.

Know the Homes.
"You must remember that Christ spent three years in concentrating on the training of twelve men. It was a small class, but it was the foundation of the whole church. Again and again in the New Testament we find Christ delivering the most inspiring admonitions to single individuals or to a few who gathered around Him. He realized the extreme value of the individual in building His church, and it is as important that we should value the individual in the training of children. It is beneficial rather than prejudicial to have small Sunday school classes."

The dean advised all teachers to get to know the homes from which their children come and to gain the influence of the mother. "If you have the influence of the homes with you," he declared, "you will automatically have rid yourselves of your discipline troubles. Get to know as much as you possibly can about the children and their homes. It will give you an understanding of the individual boy and girl in your class which otherwise you cannot get, and without which you will not get the best results."

Dean Tucker remarked at the close that if he were a Sunday school teacher he would do four things in order to make his class a success. "These things were: Regular attendance at every Sunday class; no Sundays were to be missed. Punctuality came next, the dean remarking that setting of a good example was worth a lot of teaching and exposition. The third was making one's class attractive to the children. He admitted that this might not be the easiest thing in the world, but insisted on its necessity. The last thing was absolute and thorough knowledge of the lesson."

School Work Vital.
On the matter of making one's self attractive to the children the dean said: "Without personal magnetism, or personal influence, or whatever you may choose to call it, you will never get the best results from teaching of any kind. In Sunday school work especially it is vital. You have no other authority behind you. There is no law to make them come. Punctuality to the class, and there is no vital examination which they must pass as in a school. If the children love you and have implicit faith in you, then your Sunday school will become one of the greatest influences in the church in Canada and in the world for the building of good men and women."

CROSS WORD PUZZLE NO. 8

Fairly hard this one, but not too difficult. Just enough real posers in this one to make it interesting. The more of The Advertiser's daily puzzles you try to solve the more you become fascinated and find it an entertaining and profitable pastime.

"One cross word leads to another" is the slogan of this game, and the key to its solution. All the words in these puzzles, across and up and down, horizontal and vertical, interlock. When you find a word crossways, it helps you at the same time to determine the other, up-and-down, word. Cross-word puzzles form ingenious patterns. You will be fascinated in working them out.

The directions for working out the puzzle are printed below.

Each number in the puzzle indicates the position of the first letter of a word.

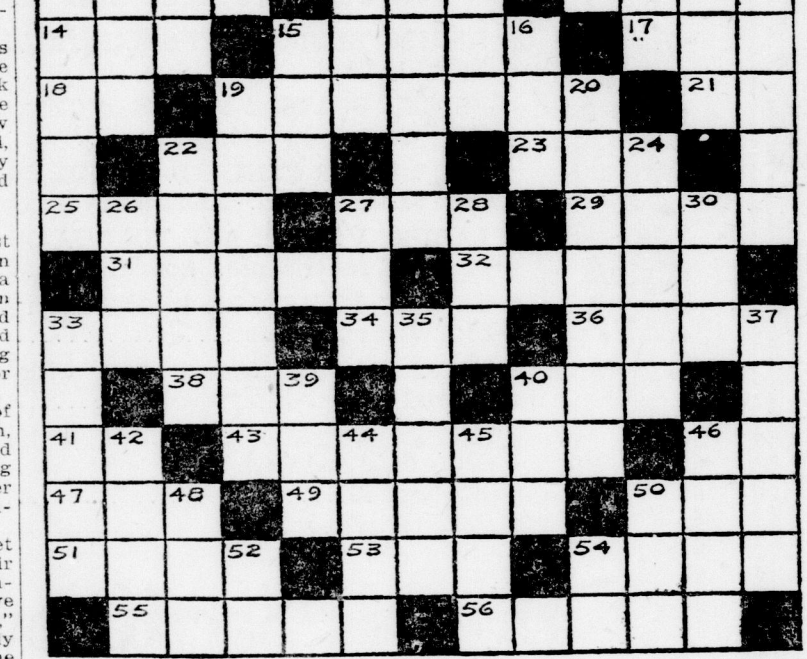

Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical), according to position. Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock.

Each number in the white squares also refers to a definition in the accompanying table.

Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white spaces allotted to it.

Each white space is to receive one letter only. Words start only in numbered squares.

CENTRAL COLLEGIATE ELECTIONS PROGRESS

Louise Wyatt Is Named Vice-President of Literary Society.

The elections for the executive of the literary society of the Central collegiate this morning resulted in the choice of Louise Wyatt as vice-president and Ardell Tennant as secretary. Lyle Richardson was elected as treasurer by acclamation.

The president of the society, who will be a member of the staff, is yet to be chosen by the elections committee. The reason for selecting a member of the staff to head the organization is to carry out the heavy business end of the society, the vice-president acting as the chairman of the meetings.

Representatives of the different years were elected as follows: Fifth year, Doris Carter, Fred Heaman; fourth year, Mary Campbell, Jack Rankin; third year, Hilma Grant, Charles Buchanan; second year, Ruth Lawson, Franklin Taylor; first year, Gretta Campbell, Gilbert Clark.

Defeated candidates for the year-end offices included Jack Johnston, Marjorie McLean, Katharine Nichol, Mary Gillespie, Jack Beattie, Marjorie Lissett, Ruth Hayes and John Tamblyn.

Marked interest was shown in the elections, as many as 721 votes being cast for one office out of a possible number of slightly over 800 students throughout the school. Such interest augurs well for the success of the activities of the society during the ensuing term.

PORT STANLEY CHURCH MEN'S CLUB FLOURISHES

The men of Christ church, Port Stanley, will gather together tonight at 8 o'clock in the parish room for the second meeting of the men's club of that church.

At the last meeting each man was given a slip of paper with the names of members of the parish from his district printed on it. He was required to see as many of these people as possible and persuade them to be at the next meeting.

If this plan is successful at least eighty will be present this evening. Smoking, reading cards and a probable address will comprise the evening's program.

Although this scheme to form a men's club in Port Stanley was started two years ago, it never matured but all the men of the parish are interested now and a thoroughly good time is anticipated by all.

ROWDIES PUT END TO MORN ADDRESS

Former Member of Lloyd George's Cabinet Forced Into Silence.

Associated Press Despatch, London, Oct. 22.—Sir Alfred Mond, Liberal minister of health in the Lloyd George coalition government, was forced to abandon a meeting in Hackney last night because of rowdiness thereat. The uproar kept growing worse as the former minister tried to make himself heard, until finally he was scarcely able to utter a single complete sentence and gave up trying.

Still more vigorous tactics by disturbers were adopted at a meeting in Reading, where a man struck the Conservative candidate, J. Williams, with a stick as Williams entered the hall. The assailant was allowed to remain at the meeting, however.

Apparently he was emboldened by this leniency and became very unruly. Thereupon Candidate Williams left the platform and, single-handed, threw the interrupter out of the building.

WOMAN IS CLEARED OF BLAME IN FATALITY

Mrs. M. B. Fenton Was Driver of Car Which Killed Kathleen Loughrey.

Mrs. M. B. Fenton, 356 Dundas street, was freed from all blame in connection with the death of three-year-old Kathleen Loughrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loughrey of 339 Simcoe street, by a coroner's jury meeting at the police station last night. Kathleen Loughrey died in Victoria hospital the day following a motor accident in which she was run over by a car driven by Mrs. Fenton. The accident occurred on Waterloo street, near Grey street, at noon on October 17.

Although no actual eyewitnesses of the accident gave evidence at last night's inquest, Arnold Cake, 13 years old, who was playing with other children in the vicinity, stated that Mrs. Fenton sounded her horn and slowed down before the little girl, Kathleen Loughrey, was struck. He said that Mrs. Fenton stopped her car immediately and then, aided by a passer-by, drove the girl to Victoria hospital.

Dr. Ross Dougall, instructor on anatomy at the Medical School of the University of Western Ontario, stated that he helped Mrs. Fenton take the injured child to the hospital. He at first rendered medical attention. He said that, although he had not seen the accident, he noticed three or four children playing on the grass boulevard between the sidewalk and road curb. He declared Mrs. Fenton sounded the horn of her car before the child was struck.

William Rae of 339 Grey street told of seeing Kathleen Loughrey shortly after the accident. Detective Thomas Bolton stated that Mrs. M. B. Fenton was the driver of the auto. "Before the O. T. A. came into existence we tried all kinds of liquor laws in Ontario. We had low license and high license, long hours and shorter hours, Scott Act and Canada Temperance Act, but none of them proved effective. The O. T. A., in spite of all its critics, has practically banished the drunks from Ontario, and we cannot afford to take any further chance with experimental legislation. The only argument that many people use against the O. T. A. is the existence of the bootlegger, but we now know from conditions that exist in other provinces, and even one of the speakers for the Moderation League admitted that the bootlegger will flourish under government control the same as under the O. T. A. We cannot therefore banish the bootlegger by having government control. I believe that the less liquor consumed in Ontario, the better it will be for the great majority of our people, therefore, we should make it as hard to get as possible. If the government doesn't control the sale of liquor under the O. T. A., how can it do so under government when liquor would be much easier to get?"

WORK AT TOURIST CAMP HEATED PENDING ACTION

Manager E. V. Buchanan has advised that not even casual improvements be undertaken at the wondrous tourist camp this fall since, in all probability, the parks' commission will undertake, next spring, changes of considerable importance in connection with the camp.

The plan of inaugurating a fee system at the tourist camp has been spoken of and informally approved by the members of the commission. If such a plan should be proceeded with next spring, the commission would immediately take steps to rearrange the entire accommodation at the camp.

The parks' commission has communicated with the London motor club to the effect that the water and light have been shut off at the camp, and that it is practically closed down. The commission, in doing so, also advised the motor club that the signs put up by that organization be removed until next season.

"TECH" ATHLETES WILL BE FETED AT AFTERNOON TEA

The staff of the London technical high school is entertaining at 4 o'clock tea this afternoon at the "Tech" cafeteria those students who represent the school in the inter-school field day.

In all there were about 50 students who represented the "Tech" school in the meet, winning high honors for the school.

Frank Reynolds won the junior boys' championship, and in doing so secured the largest number of points by any individual during the meet. Harold Miller won the intermediate boys' championship, while Ethel Fullerton won the intermediate girls' championship.

The technical school also won the intermediate and junior school championship shields for leading the field by a comfortable majority.

DRAINS BEING CLEANED OF HARVEST OF LEAVES

Workmen were engaged today in cleaning out street drains that have become blocked by the heavy fall of leaves this month. Many citizens rake leaves from their lawns and when rain falls or the street flushers get to work, the drains are blocked with the wet leaves. The city engineer's department has a number of wagons and workmen out cleaning up the streets and hauling leaves to city dumps.

NEEDS POLL CLERKS.

City Clerk Baker has openings for 20 more poll clerks in the coming municipal elections. Many girls have been taken on to fill vacancies, but M. Baker declared today that there were openings for no more girls and that men must be secured for the remaining jobs.

LET THE DAILY PROVINCE GIVE ITS OWN EVIDENCE

Vancouver Newspaper Contradicts Its Own "Roorbach"—Condemns Liquor Corruption in Vancouver. Read Its Editorial—"Back Towards the Bar."

Ontario people are familiar with last-minute manoeuvres by desperate interests, but were scarcely prepared to have The Daily Province, a newspaper published in Vancouver, do what no Ontario newspaper has done, namely, take a biased and grossly unfair part in the Ontario plebiscite campaign.

This "roorbach" of The Daily Province, like most ill-advised meddling, recoils on its own head. For, as a matter of absolute fact, The Province has editorially condemned results of government sale in British Columbia.

Long before the Ontario campaign commenced, The Vancouver Province described liquor conditions in its city and province in terms that go far beyond the report of facts set forth as evidence by the temperance people of Ontario.

Part of the editorial page of The Vancouver Daily Province of June 14, 1924, is reproduced herewith. It tells its own story. It contradicts its own last-minute "roorbach." It states that government sale in Vancouver has brought such wholesale corruption that, to quote the title of the editorial, the trend in British Columbia is "Back Towards the Bar."

The Vancouver Province is an anti-temperance newspaper. Its "Back to the Bar" editorial is the most convincing proof of the folly of government sale which the people of Ontario could possibly receive.

A. Johnson, chairman of British Columbia liquor board says: "Give the brewers a bung and they'll soon want a whole barrel. Open but a crack of the door and they'll push in and take possession of your whole house as they are doing in British Columbia."

BACK TOWARDS THE BAR.

In the past eight years British Columbia has done a good deal of experimenting with liquor legislation, and the people of the province must be credited with a sincere desire to find an adequate solution to a difficult and vexing problem.

Under moderation, it was beer again that drove a wagon and horses through the law. The people had decided by their vote that malt liquors as well as spirituous should be sold in sealed packages at government stores. Yet clubs by the score were organized throughout the province for no other purpose than the sale of beer, and for months they defied the law, growing bolder with seeming immunity from prosecution. At length the condition of affairs became so disgraceful that the attorney-general was moved to make a demonstration. It was only a demonstration, however, for things are today worse than ever and they are now allowed to run unchecked.

But there are scores of small places scattered throughout the city which sell beer so openly that one is driven to the conclusion that they have protection—not from the city police, but from some provincial authority—and they know they have it. These places, defying the law in one particular, and doing it with impunity, do not hesitate to defy it in other ways. Hard liquor as well as beer is to be had in them. There is not longer any question of government stores and sealed packages being anything like the sole source of supply in Vancouver.

The strongest argument against the contention that beer makes for temperance and lessens the demand for spirits is the fact that in practically every unlicensed club and beer joint in Vancouver spirits may be bought. Their sale is part of the business of the place today.

In the liquor business, as is well known if given the slightest opportunity, things always take their course, and that course is "wet." The

DAY NURSERY ARRANGES TO HOLD RUMMAGE SALE

With the approach of the cold weather there are many small children in the city with no warm clothing. Their fathers are out of employment and so have a very small wherewithal to buy them. To meet this situation the London day nursery is holding a rummage sale on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

And an appeal is being made to the public to supply the necessary warm clothing both for the children and their mothers. Citizens having clothing to spare have but to telephone 6966W, the day nursery, or Mrs. A. T. Edwards at 1619, and the clothing will be called for.

The scheme of the rummage sale gives the mothers the necessary clothing at a very small expense to them and lets them keep their self-respect, because they pay for what they receive.

MAYOR AGREES MERCHANTS BETTER OFF SINCE O. T. A.

Social and Personal

Supports Mrs. Alex. Calder's
Statement That Bad Debts
Are Fewer.

AT VICTORIA CLUB

Mayor George Wenige at a meeting of the Victoria mothers' club last night agreed with Mrs. Alexander Calder that the city merchants have had fewer bad debts since the passing of the O. T. A. than before that time.

The mayor was present at the meeting to speak on "Civic Affairs." It was during an address on the coming plebiscite given by Mrs. Alexander Calder that the mayor was appealed to on the subject.

"The merchants have had fewer bad debts in their books since the passing of the Ontario temperance act," declared the speaker. Then, turning to the mayor: "Is that not true, Mr. Mayor?"

"That's perfectly true," replied Mr. Wenige.

Mrs. Calder in her address urged the mothers of the city to use their vote on Thursday for the good of others who suffer through the evils of strong drink.

The mayor in his address declared that the young people of the community should be educated in municipal affairs just as they would be educated in their private business. If the people of the community understood civic business in the way it should be understood, there would be no question but that the taxes would be lowered.

Mrs. A. A. Morrison, child welfare representative, spoke of the home nursing classes which that organization was anxious to get started in the city.

The new head of the school, Principal Kirkwood, was present and received a warm welcome from the mothers. Mrs. C. E. Carruthers, the president, was in the chair.

A very fine musical program included a vocal solo by Miss Gladys McEvoy, reading by Miss Gladys McEvoy, reading by Miss Gladys McEvoy, reading by Miss Gladys McEvoy.

Miss Maud Norris (piano), Miss Dorothy Roy (violin), Frank Whitehouse (violin), and Mr. McGuire (cello).

At the close of the meeting a social half-hour was spent, refreshments being served by Mrs. C. W. Desand and her committee.

The club is planning a Halloween party to be held on Thursday, Oct. 30.

Mrs. Crawford led in prayer and Miss McVicar, returned missionary from India, gave a most instructive and inspiring talk on the life in that country, and work among the people. She closed with a fervent appeal to all the women to use their vote and influence for the O. T. A., and urged those who did not have a vote to pray earnestly for the cause of right.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. W. S. Laidlaw, after which refreshments were served in the Sunday school room.

Bobby Coon Is Greatly Troubled For He Thinks He Has Been Trapped

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Bobby Coon liked the brisk, cool October nights. They made him feel good all over. He knew it wouldn't be long before the season of snow and ice when he had to work to find anything to eat. He meant to sleep then. But before that time he must get fat. He must get as fat as possible. It was fun getting fat. You see, he had a splendid appetite. No matter how much he ate it seemed as if he could always eat a little more.

Bobby had been feasting on beech-nuts. Wild grapes had been plentiful, and he had had his share. He knew where there were plenty more. But this night Bobby was hungry for fish. It seemed to him that nothing would taste quite so good as a fish.

"I'll go down to the Laughing Brook and try my luck," said Bobby to himself. The Laughing Brook is low. There ought to be some fish in some of the little shallow pools. My, my, how good a fat trout would taste!

So Bobby Coon headed for the Laughing Brook. He didn't hurry. There was no use in hurrying. Truth to tell, he was fat. But he wanted to get still more so. He headed straight for a certain little pool he knew of. He approached it very slowly and quietly. The moon was shining. Bobby was glad of that. It shone right into the little pool. His eyes sparkled. There were several little fish in that shallow pool. They had been trapped there by the falling water. There was no way for them to get back into the Laughing Brook.

For a little while Bobby Coon was perfectly happy. One by one he scooped those little fish out, washed them and ate them. When he had caught and eaten the last one he tried to make up his mind where to

A pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wood, Euclid avenue, recently, when a number of their friends gathered there to celebrate with them their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

They experienced a happy surprise when during the course of the evening they were presented with a silver basket filled with pink carnations. The address was read by Mr. J. C. Young and the presentation made by Mr. H. B. Spaul. The evening was spent in music and games, at the conclusion of which supper was served. Mrs. H. B. Spaul and her daughter, Miss Emmeline Spaul, and Mrs. Jack Allison acting as hostesses.

The civic banquet which will be tendered the guests to the Western Ontario women's institute convention here on Nov. 4, will be an important event. Held at the Smallman and Ingram tea room, the mayor's wife and wives of the city aldermen will act as hostesses. In former years it was the Women's Canadian club which had the privilege. Special guests on this occasion will be the Hon. J. S. Martin, minister of agriculture, and Mrs. Martin, Sir Adam Beck, and Miss Marion Beck and George A. Putnam, superintendent of the women's institute department of the Ontario government. Those acting as hostesses will be Mrs. G. A. Wenige, Mrs. J. A. Anderson, Mrs. A. M. Towse, Mrs. L. H. Douglass, Mrs. H. Bottrill, Mrs. G. F. McKay, Mrs. E. Warren, Mrs. G. B. Drake, Mrs. Ed Hayden, and Mrs. E. Smith.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bone, Saunby street, was the scene of an interesting event this week when they marked their fortieth wedding anniversary. Between forty and fifty guests were present for the occasion, Miss Myrtle Harvey coming from Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Brimington from Toronto. During the day the happy pair were showered with quantities of cut glass and silver, as well as flowers. A beautiful bouquet of flowers came from their daughter, Mrs. Floyd Jones, and Mr. Golding of California. The house was beautifully decorated with pink roses and white chrysanthemums and white wedding bells.

Among the immediate relatives present were a son, Mr. William Bone; another son, Mr. Chester Bone, and Mrs. Bone and two children; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Harvey, the latter a sister, and Miss Margaret Stacey, another sister of Mrs. Bone.

Mrs. Alex. Purdon's home on King street was the scene of a very charming bridge given yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Harriet A. Bommer Chapter, I. O. O. E. Mrs. W. H. Line, regent of the chapter, received with the hostess. Many guests enjoyed the afternoon and evening tea and bridge. The guests remaining for tea, served at the card tables by the chapter members. During the tea hour, Miss Marilyn Pococke delighted the audience with brilliant vocal numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Howard Fetherston. Among the guests present were Mrs. E. H. Johnston, Mrs. H. A. McCallum, Mrs. Cl. T. Campbell, Mrs. T. H. Baker, Mrs. O. I. Cunningham, Mrs. George Gillespie, Mrs. A. J. Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
— 220,000 Women Answer —

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" Replies, to date, have been received from over 220,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES.
That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100. Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98

THE LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO., Lynn, Mass.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing. It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure-all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it. It's reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

Bobby was curious. He wanted to feel around inside clear to the bottom of that little can to find out if there was anything in it. He pushed and pushed until at last his claws could just touch the bottom. There was nothing in that can. Then he started to pull his hand out. But it wouldn't come out. The Family
Goat

Are You a Party to the Crime of Keeping the Family Martyr Bent Over With Responsibilities in Which You Should Share?

Among my acquaintances is a man who has been the mainstay of his family ever since he was a little boy. He has supported his mother. He educated and took care of a household of little brothers and sisters, and launched them in life.

This man has never been able to accumulate any money, because all that he has earned has been gobbled up by his hungry family who, like the daughter of the horse leech, were always crying "more!"

My friend is now nearly forty years old. He has fallen in love with a splendid woman and wants to marry her, but he cannot do so if he has to be the sole support of his mother. He has applied to his brothers and sisters for help, but with one accord they make excuse. This one has many children, that one is buying a home. Another has a poorly paid job. Another wants to take a post-graduate course at college, and so on.

Not one is willing to do his share, or her share, toward caring for the old mother. Not one will lift an ounce of the load from the bent back of the brother who has carried the burden so long, yet the mother is just as much their mother as she is his mother. Their duty to her is just as great as his duty to her. Their filial obligation is precisely the same as his.

But somehow they have shunted the whole business on him. By some process of selection that nobody can explain, he has been elected the family martyr, and while all the others have felt free to love and marry and follow wherever fortune led, poor William is left at home with the bag to hold.

I have cited this case because it is typical. You know a hundred similar instances, for almost every family offers up some one member of it as a living sacrifice on the altar of parental duty so that the balance of them may go scot-free. And in all the category of crimes there is nothing meaner, nor sneakier, nor crueler.

You will find thousands of Williams who missed the education they yearned for to go to work to help support their families; who gave up their own ambitions and stayed along on the farm, or went into the little village store to try to help father wring a living out of it; who have never had a chance at any life of their own because they have never been anything but bond servants to their families.

You would think that when these younger brothers and sisters, for whom William has sacrificed his youth and his ambitions and his chances in the world, grew to manhood and womanhood they would be filled with gratitude to him, and that they would feel that he had done enough and that they would set him free.

I have never known of a single case in which they did. Neither have you.

They are so used to seeing William's bent back that they think they like to be hump shouldered. They are so accustomed to having him do the unpleasant things that they persuade themselves that he enjoys being uncomfortable. They selfishly want to spend their own money on themselves, and so they try to silence their consciences by saying that poor, old William is a stick-in-the-mud who never goes anywhere, or does anything, and so he really doesn't need any money.

You never hear of William getting any back pay for the food they have eaten, the clothes he has bought them, the schooling he has paid for them. You never hear them say that as William has supported father and mother for all of these years we'll provide for them the balance of their lives.

And you know hundreds of Marthas. Thin, worn, gray, tired, little, old maids. It is hard to realize that they were once young and pretty and had high hopes and that men desired them. In their younger days they looked forward to the normal life of women—husband and home and children of their own.

But somebody had to look after mother and father, and somehow the job fell to Martha. That kept Martha from marrying, and it has kept her from doing any of the interesting things that women do nowadays. It's kept her dependent and poor, because she couldn't go away to earn her living, although if she had worked half so hard at any outside occupation as she has at home, she would have made a fortune.

Martha is just as much a prisoner in the dull old house as if she were locked in a prison cell. And her life is a thing to weep over—it is so hard and monotonous and thankless, taking care of quarrelsome old people who are always complaining, and who have a million little crochety ways to which she must cater, listening to the same old stories told over millions and millions of times.

It is enough to drive anyone crazy. John always says so when he pops in on his annual visit to see father and mother. He never stays more than an hour or two. He is so rushed for time, John's wife says she just thinks Martha is a saint, she is so patient and lovely about it all. Julia says that she'd just die if he had to live in that poky old hole, and Sadie tells Martha she really must keep her mind fixed on joyous thoughts, one is so apt to slump and get depressed when one spends all of one's time with feeble old people.

But not one of them comes and puts in a few months of rubbing mother's and father's rheumatism while Martha goes away for a change, nor do they take the old people to their houses and divide with Martha the responsibility of caring for them.

The utter selfishness of human nature has no uglier illustration than is found in the family goat, for it is sacrificed by the hands it loves. Are you a party to such a crime? DOROTHY DIX.

PAINTINGS IN OILS EXHIBITION IN CITY

Work of Helen M. Corbett of Tillsonburg on Display at Colerick Brothers' Shop.

One of the finest exhibits of oil paintings by a Canadian artist which the city has seen for some time is that which is being held at Colerick Bros. this week and the following week. The artist is Helen M. Corbett of Tillsonburg, who, although a semi-invalid, expresses vigor in her work.

A graduate of Alma College and a pupil of St. Thomas Smith and J. MacGillivray Knowles, Helen Corbett has a strong sense of color. Her paintings are for the most part outdoor scenes. With her clever brush and her remarkable eye for color and beauty she brings onto canvas all the loveliness of an autumn scene. And the result is typically Canadian, colorful and real.

One of the finest of the canvases shown at the Colerick shop is a remarkable painting of an old-fashioned home and garden in Owen Sound. The title of the painting is "Home, Sweet Home."

The work in this instance is strong and the light and shadow effects lovely. Few Canadian artists have succeeded so well. Then, too, among the lot, there is a quaint old canal boat tied to the dock at Port Dalhousie; there is grain stacked in the fields with the golden glow of autumn shining over the whole scene, and there are studies of trees in oils which are undertaken in a masterly fashion.

Indeed the beauties of all Ontario have been captured by the brush of this sympathetic woman and preserved on canvas for the world to see. She knows Ontario. And every summer for the past three years she has been a member of the J. MacGillivray Knowles sketching party, touring the towns of the province for beauty and color. As a result, her paintings bear in their titles the names of the places where they were painted: St. Catharines, Warton, and so on.

In the collection there are water colors as well as oil paintings, and among them many miniatures which show the influence of MacGillivray Knowles.

Miss Corbett is in the city during the showing of her work.

HALLOWEEN BURLESQUE HELD AT DUFFERIN HALL

London Life Women's Club Takes Off "Cameo Girl" and "All Aboard."

The Halloween party given last night by the London Life women's club at Dufferin hall was really a burlesque on two recent stage productions "The Cameo Girl" and "All Aboard." The evening culminated in the coronation of Mrs. Frieda Stephens, the new president of the club.

The rooms at Dufferin hall had been transformed into a Halloween fairyland with ghoulish and seasonal decorations. The members all appeared in costumes of the wildest conception. There were "The Three Wise Men," Miss Edith Jones, Miss Constance Fitchett, and Miss Muriel Atkinson. "The beauty chorus" included Miss Agnes Aikenhead, Miss Lena M. Gray, Miss Jean Arkell, and Miss Madeline Watson while Miss Madeline Pollock acted as pianist. Miss Blanche MacKenzie and Miss Madeline Jones appeared as "The Lovers," and Miss Hazel Stone and Miss Annie Beer as "The Coronets." The grand duchess in all her glory, and her beau were there, Miss Lotta Fisher taking the role of the grand duchess and Miss Clara Arkell appearing as her "beau."

Shoes, flannel dresses, sweaters and so on for this child.

A pleasant feature of the meeting was the presentation of a small gift to Mrs. J. A. Jackson, one of the club's most popular members, who is leaving shortly to make her home in Windsor. With the gift went the good wishes of the members.

Mrs. Niven spoke highly of the work which had been accomplished by the chapter in the preparation of the chapter for the War Memorial Children's hospital.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by the hostess.

Paris, Oct. 21.—Gold and silver are combined very often lately. One sees gold and silver shoes, gold and silver wrist bags and gold and silver lace evening gowns.

The Basha came to a halt before Sakr-el-Bahr, his arms majestically folded, his head thrown back, so that his long white beard jutted forward.

"I am returned," he said, "to employ force where gentleness will not avail. Yet I pray that Allah may have lighted thee to a wise frame of mind."

"He has, indeed, my lord," replied Sakr-el-Bahr.

"The praise to Him!" exclaimed Asad in a voice that rang with joy.

"The girl then?"

And he held out a hand.

Sakr-el-Bahr stepped back to her and took her hand in his as if to lead her forward. Then he spoke the fateful words.

"In Allah's Holy Name and in His All-seeing eyes, before thee Asad, ed-Din, and in the presence of these witnesses I take this woman to be my wife by the merciful law of the Prophet of Allah the All-wise, the All-merciful."

The words were out and the thing was done before Asad had realized the enormity of what he was doing. His vision grew inflamed, his eyes blazed.

But Sakr-el-Bahr, cool and undaunted before that royal anger, took the scarf that lay about Rosamund's shoulders and raising it, he hid his face behind it, so that her face was covered by it.

"May Allah rot off the hand of him who in contempt of our Lord Mahomet's law, dares to marry to an unveiled face, and may Allah bless this union and cast into the pit of Gehenna any who shall attempt to dissolve a bond that is tied in His All-seeing eyes."

It was formidable. Too formidable for Asad-ed-Din. Behind him his panisseries for the hour in which stood eagerly awaiting his command. But none came. He stood there breathing heavily, swaying a little from side to side, his hands outstretched, his face white with the battle that was being fought within him between rage and vexation on the one hand and his profound piety on the other. And as he yet hesitated, perhaps Sakr-el-Bahr assisted his piety to gain the day.

"Now you will understand why I would not yield her, O my lord," Asad, he said, "Thyself hast thou oft and rightly reproached me with my celibacy, reminding me that it is not pleasing in the sight of Allah that it is unworthy of a good Moslem. At last it hath pleased the Prophet to send me such a maid as I could take to wife."

Asad bowed his head.

"What is written is written," he said in the voice of one who admonishes himself. Then he raised his arms aloft.

"Allah is All-knowing," he declared. "His will be done."

"Amen," said Sakr-el-Bahr very solemnly and with a great surge of thankful prayer to his own long-forgotten God.

The Basha stayed yet a moment, as if he would have spoken. Then abruptly he turned and waved a hand to his janissaries.

"Away!" he said to them, and stalked out in their wake.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE SIGN.

From behind her lattice, still breathless from the haste she had made, and with her cheeks flushed at her side, Fenizleh had witnessed that first angry return of the Basha from the house of Sakr-el-Bahr.

She had heard him bawling for Abdul Mohkar, the leader of his janissaries, and she had seen the hasty mustering of a score of these soldiers, armed and ready, in the ruddy light of torches mingled with the white light of the full moon.

She had seen them go hurrying away with a clatter of their feet, and she had not known whether to weep or to laugh, whether to fear or to rejoice.

"It is done," Marzak cried exultantly. "The dog hath withstood him and so destroyed himself. There will be an end to Sakr-el-Bahr this night. And he had added—

"The praise to Allah!"

But from Fenizleh came no response to his prayer of thanksgiving. True, Sakr-el-Bahr must be destroyed, and by a sword that she herself had forged. Yet was it not inevitable that the stroke which laid him low must wound her on its repercussion? That was the question to which now she sought an answer. For all her eager desire to speed the deed down, she had paused sufficiently to weigh the consequences to herself; she had not overlooked the circumstance that an inevitable result of this must be Asad's appropriation of that Frankish slave-girl. But at the time it had seemed to her that even this price was worth paying to remove Sakr-el-Bahr definitely and finally from her son's path—which shows that, after all, Fenizleh, the mother, was capable of some sacrifice.

She comforted herself now with the reflection that the influence, whose waning she feared might be occasioned by the introduction of a rival into Asad's harem, would no longer be so vitally necessary to herself and Marzak once Sakr-el-Bahr were removed. The rest mattered none so much to her. Yet it mattered none, and the present state of things left her uneasy, her mind a cockpit of emotions. Her grasp could not encompass all, and she could not seem to be satisfied with the course she had taken. She should account herself the gainer. In this state of mind she had waited, scarce heeding the savagely joyous and entirely selfish babblings of her cub, who curled little while he bided his mother as the price of the removal of that hated rival from his path. For him at least there was nothing but profit in the business, no cause for anything but satisfaction; and that satisfaction he voiced with a fine contempt for his mother's feelings.

And then, when Asad returned, they saw the janissaries come swinging into the courtyard and range themselves there whilst the Basha made his appearance, walking slowly, with steps that dragged a little, his head sunk upon his breast, his hands behind him. They waited to see slaves following him, leading or carrying the girl he had come to fetch. But they waited in vain, intrigued and uneasy.

They heard the harsh voice in which Asad dismissed his followers, and the clang of the closing gate; and they saw him pacing there alone

URGES CHILDREN CARE FOR TEETH

Dr. A. W. Fuller Addresses Talbot Street Mothers on "Care of the Teeth."

The first regular meeting of the Talbot street mothers' club was held in the kindergarten of the Talbot street school last evening, when Mrs. E. W. Gibberd, vice-president of the club, presided, and a very instructive and interesting talk was given by Dr. A. W. Fuller, the school dentist, on "The Care of the Teeth."

Dr. Fuller stated that children's teeth should be attended to when they were very young, because when the first teeth are taken care of the second teeth come in straighter and stronger.

The teeth are an important organ of the body, he said, and should not be neglected. Very often diseases of other organs are caused through lack of care of these important assistants to the digestion. He also pointed out that a well-balanced diet was one of the best helps toward nice teeth. Organic salts which are contained in vegetable waters and in the skins of potatoes are so often discarded by the housewife, and he advised retaining these as much as possible.

Brown bread, whole wheat bread and whole wheat cereals, and not so much sugar were given as suggestions for the diet. Dr. Fuller asked for the co-operation of the mothers, as there are so many children to be looked after.

There was a shower of preserved fruit for the day nursery, and Mrs. Alex. Calder gave a short, but interesting talk on the O. T. A. The program was under the convener'ship of Miss Bapty, who also had the kindergarten artistically decorated with Halloween novelties, autumn leaves and flowers. Miss Dorothy Dickerson gave a very pleasing solo, as did Woodrow Ward, and Miss Barbara Gibberd gave a delightful reading. The meeting closed with Halloween refreshments of doughnuts and coffee.

SOUTH SCHOOL LIT LAUDS ATHLETES

Recently Acquired Shield Is Displayed Against Background of Autumn Foliage.

The first regular meeting of the London South collegiate literary society was held in the auditorium yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Allan Riddell in the chair. The society took the occasion to celebrate in connection with the winning of the senior shield at the recent inter-collegiate track and field meet. The shield was displayed against a background of autumn leaves and flowers, and the whole meeting was made the opportunity for congratulating the record makers and winners of first places.

An address was given by Principal Graham in which he emphasized the fact that the college's success was due to the co-operation of the whole student body, and to the efficient and unstinted help of every member of the staff.

Thanks to the coaches were presented by Miss Mary Bolton, who thanked Miss Oates and Miss M. K. Macpherson on behalf of the girls, while the thanks of the boys were presented to Mr. Dinsmore and Mr. Ward by Mr. Wilfred Sinclair. All these teachers made short replies in which they commended the work of those who had been associated with the efforts, even though they had not won first place.

The program was enlivened by a solo from Mr. Harold Jackson, and a special interest was attached to his number, because of the fact that Harold is leaving London to reside in Windsor, where he will attend the soldiers' college, and this was his last appearance in the school that had so much appreciated his musical ability. The afternoon was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

ST. GEORGE'S MOTHERS' CLUB.

The first meeting of the St. George's mothers' club was held last night in St. George's school, with the new president, Mrs. R. Clarke, in the chair. The speakers of the evening were Mr. Yull and Principal Wyatt of St. George's school, both giving splendid addresses on the subject of the mothers' club, and this was his last appearance in the school that had so much appreciated his musical ability. The afternoon was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

A program was given, with Mr. Ed. Ryan delighting the members with his violin solos, and Miss Helen Clarke contributed readings.

Plans were also made for a sale of home cooking to be held on Friday, Oct. 21, and the meeting closed with the national anthem.

BARN AND CROPS BURNED ON KELLY FARM AT LUCAN

Special to The Advertiser.

Lucan, Oct. 21.—A barn and out-buildings on the farm of Joseph Kelly, about a mile from here on the Proofs line, were destroyed by fire today. The season's crops were also burned. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have caused the fire. The loss is $6,000 to $7,000, partly covered by insurance.

Golf AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT.

Just what does "relax" mean, as applied to golf? How can a player "relax" without losing control of the club?

Answered by CYRIL WALKER, National open champion.

The word "relax" as applied to golf, simply means to be natural. With very few exceptions, practically all the beginners and average golfers are not natural; therefore when they take a grip on the club it is, in most cases, under a tension. I find in my teaching that the best way to make a pupil relax is to give him an explanation somewhat as follows: I say to him, "When you walk or when you are eating, do you do so under a strain? When you walk, you just walk naturally, don't you? And when you eat do you grip your knife and fork with a vise-like hold, or are you holding them just sufficiently to control them?" After this explanation, I find that the pupil begins to realize the difference and holds the club with a grip which allows him freedom and, at the same time, control.

HOT OFF THE GRID

For the love of football, Harold "Red" Grange, famous halfback of Illinois, is an ice man during vacations, instead of a much higher-salaried insurance salesman, Grange said in discussing his ambition.

"It was offered a good chance with a life insurance company, but I figured that the hard labor of handling cakes of ice would put me in physical condition for football this fall. I took off ten pounds last summer by hoisting ice, and I expect to go back on the ice wagon next summer, because I have another year of football. After that I hope to go into some business, but I would like to try my hand at coaching before I get too firmly settled in business. I love the game."

Grange's younger brother, Garland, on the freshman team at the University of Illinois, gives promise of being a running mate for his famous brother next fall. Their mother died when "Red" was five, and, with their father, they lived in Wheaton, near Chicago. They moved from Forkville, Pa., "Red's" birthplace, after his mother's death. The senior Grange was king of the lumberjacks in the Pennsylvania hills in his early days.

BIG FUTURE IS SEEN FOR GOOSE GOSLIN

Three Homers May Be Beginning of Bright Swatting Career.

By JOHN B. FOSTER. Copyright, 1924.

New York, Oct. 21.—Frank Baker got his nickname of "Home Run Baker" because he batted two home runs in the world series of 1911. Another batter had done the same thing before him and a half dozen or more have done it since without getting any such title out of it.

Even three runs in a world series doesn't earn such a title any more. Babe Ruth had batted three in a series prior to 1924, but it wasn't that feat that earned him the title of Home Run King. And this fall along comes young Mr. Goslin of Washington and slams out three without getting right and title to any fancy appellation.

Those three circuit blows, however, may be the beginning of the making of a swatting reputation for Goslin. It is far from impossible that Goslin may step into Babe Ruth's shoes as king when Ruth loses his form. For Goslin can nail the ball.

But the possibility of Goslin as a long distance hitter does not rest solely on his three world series homers of 1924. He patted out twelve circuit smashes during the season. Of course, that was a long distance removed from Ruth's 46. But it must be remembered that Ruth did not count his homers by the two score in his early days.

Goslin must be reckoned upon as dangerous with the stick if he preserves his skill and condition. He has earning capacity as a batter for at least six years under normal conditions in baseball and for him to the Ruth's record in his first world series is certainly glory enough for a starter.

Another fact about Goslin's work in 1924 was his ability to score. Don't overlook the fact that he made 199 runs. Anybody who can bat below the top in the batting order and score 199 runs is a good ballplayer. Of course he must have help to do that, but first of all he must get on first base himself.

ULSTER FOOTBALL CLUB SUSPENDED

Hamilton City Team Main Sufferer Owing To C. F. A. Action.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Oct. 21.—The news of suspension of the Ulster football club, announced today, did not come as a surprise to local soccer fans. The game staged by the Irishmen on Saturday was contrary to an agreement reached by the clubs both in Hamilton and Toronto, and should not have been played, according to opinions expressed by prominent local intercity officials. The Hamilton city team is a sufferer, owing to the suspension, as it has two games to play with the Irish, one here and one in Toronto, but it, along with the other local clubs, will abide by the decision.

Despite the fact that nearly 2,000 spectators witnessed the Ontario junior cup final in Toronto on Saturday, the local team returned home over $50 in the hole, as the bulk of the gate reaped for travelling expenses.

It was also announced tonight that the Ontario juvenile final between Hepburn Thistles of Toronto and Rangers of Hamilton would be played at Oakville on Saturday of next week, both teams to pay their own expenses and the game to be a sudden death.

FIRE RANGERS DISBAND IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Equipment and Planes Recalled, Owing To Rains and Snow.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Seasonal rains, and in some cases snow, having been reported from various parts of Northern Ontario, the department of lands and forests has called in the fire rangers and their equipment for the present year. Orders have gone out from the department, disbanded the organization for the season.

The government's fire service patrol unit within a few days take up its winter quarters at Sault Ste. Marie. Already several of the planes have made their way to the winter hangar, and it is anticipated that the end of the week will see the last plane housed for the winter. It is understood that the fire rangers' service reduced its estimated expenditure by $200,000 during the fiscal year.

Local Intermediate Crew Plays In Sarnia Saturday

Definite Arrangements Made For Group Football Play-off Series.

Harness Horse —Notes—

Thomas W. Murphy's stable dominated the aged events in the grand circuit of 1924, and Ben White won all but two of the two and three year old futurities. Trotters. During the trip from Cleveland to Lexington horses driven by Murphy won 53 of the 264 races contested, one-fifth of the races programmed for the entire circuit. This was also in line with Murphy's showing in 1923, when he won 54 of the 264 races decided.

The following table gives the names of those that won three or more races in 1924:

SEVERAL MEN BACK

Through W. S. Haney, M. L. A., convener of the district, Secretary McKee made known yesterday that the O. R. F. U. wished the Sarnians and Londoners, "The Big Two," to decide the district in two more games, points to count, and the first game to be played in Sarnia Saturday of this week at 4 o'clock.

This in effect is what the London club wanted—a continuation of the arrangement of the first two games which gave Sarnia the first match at home. London has thus won one victory this week, and intends to duplicate on the field in the Tunnel City Saturday.

Practices naturally sloughed off in both camps during the period of waiting for some definite news, but Coach Huestis' squad was out at almost full strength last night, when it was more or less known that the game would be ordered played this week.

The local squad is at full strength again. Jerry Goodman has been out of both workouts this week and his leg is right again. Huestis, who was out of the last game through an injury, is back on the job and will be a big factor in the improvement over its former great form which the London line is expected to display on Saturday.

Reg. Beard, who has been suffering from a sore hand, is expected out tonight. This youngster's tackling was a feature of the last game here, and seems to gather more speed and precision in his heady tackling each time out.

The committeemen are all expected to be out at the workout tonight, as arrangements had to be made regarding the invasion of the Tunnel City on Saturday. It is not improbable that the biggest contingent of supporters that ever accompanied a London team to Sarnia will make this trip with the Huestis bunch. Three hundred fans are expected to be present.

Let Ontario Speak.

Shall this province do away with the Ontario temperance act and in its place establish government selling of intoxicants? That is the question facing the voters as they enter the polls tomorrow. They have had the facts of the case placed before them; they know the conditions as they existed before the O. T. A., and they know them as they are today—they are in a position to give an intelligent verdict in so far as the O. T. A. is concerned.

When they turn to the matter of government selling the situation is different—there is not the clarity of knowledge based on personal experience. The voters have looked to other provinces where government selling is in operation; they know from government records that there are millions of dollars more spent now on intoxicants than was formerly the case under prohibition. They see Alberta, in four short months under government selling, with 340 places where liquor is sold, and they note the liquor controller of British Columbia, Robert McPherson, saying "It's not control, but government sale." Ontario people have seen, too, investigations carried on by a committee of Scottish churchmen, and they turned their backs on the British Columbia system of government selling; they found it did not control.

Ontario voters have also watched the advertising columns of such papers in the west and in Quebec as accept business from the manufacturers of intoxicating liquors, and they note to what extent a campaign is continually carried on to force the sale of just as much liquor as these provinces can absorb. Having seen this, Ontario wonders if that is not what is behind the whole agitation in this province for the smashing of the Ontario temperance act—the creation of a wider market for alcoholic drinks.

A letter which has been mailed to a number of businessmen in Quebec and Ontario tends to confirm this belief. It is always marked "Confidential" and is as follows:

"Dear Sirs: The province of Ontario has been dry for the last eight years, and on the 23rd inst. we are to have a vote on the question of the continuance of the Ontario temperance act, or government control of the sale of beer and malt in sealed packages.

"Since the passing of the prohibition act in 1916 the whole liquor trade has been demoralized; nearly all the hotels, and every liquor store, have gone out of business, and as well as two-thirds of the brewers of the province. Those remaining, outside of two or three instances, have had a very difficult time in keeping their plants open. The surviving brewers, however, are determined to make every effort to bring about a changed condition in their business, and are raising funds for the purposes of organization.

"At a meeting of the brewers held recently it was suggested that the firms with whom the brewers dealt might be willing to support them financially in their present campaign. Your name has been given to me, and I am therefore writing on their behalf to say that they would be very grateful for any financial assistance you might give."

It is reasonable to presume that those engaged in the production of intoxicating liquor will stand to benefit by the market of Ontario being thrown open by means of government selling. It is this desire that makes the manufacturers of intoxicants in Ontario, as well as such firms as the French Wine Producers' Association, ready to participate in and seek contributions for a fund for the purpose of doing away with the Ontario temperance act.

There has been no sound reason advanced for adopting government selling in Ontario. There has been no authentic record of what form government selling will take, nor could there be until the law was framed and passed by the legislature. The whole basis of legitimate business transaction has been set aside; the people have not been told what manner of substitute they will get for the present law. Of only one thing are they sure—that it will mean infinitely more liquor sold in Ontario than at present.

Let Ontario vote tomorrow with the full consciousness of the responsibility that has been placed upon her, and with the certain knowledge that the ears of the world are tuned to hear her verdict on Thursday night. Let Ontario speak in no uncertain tone, and answer that her markets are not to be thrown open to those interests that seek the exploit them for the sale of intoxicating liquor.

City Council Did the Right Thing.

The city council, after having discussed the street railway situation many times, and after having "referred it back to No. 1" on an equal number of occasions, decided to leave the matter alone, and not submit its two proposals to the ratepayers. This course The Advertiser believes right and is the one previously recommended by this paper.

These two proposals, as contained in the report of the finance committee, were:

(1) "Are you in favor of the purchase of the London street railway at $1,295,000, plus cost of improvements, as reported by Mayor Wenige, May 14, 1924?"

(2) "Are you in favor of extending the London street railway franchise for a term not exceeding fifteen years, under an agreement which will give the city the right to purchase the franchise at the termination of any one year?"

The two questions above would have represented an unfair choice. The first would have offered purchase at a price of $1,335,000, a figure that was simply a tentative price mentioned by the company, with the probable expectation that it would form the basis of further negotiation. It has not been verified by independent engineers acting for the city, and there is nothing to show that it is a fair 1924 valuation of the road, having regard to the basis of valuation set down in bylaw 916.

The other question of a fifteen-year franchise with the option of purchase at the end of any one year meant the indefinite drawing out of a situation that must be faced deliberately on the basis of a well-planned municipal policy. The wording of it was also in error, for the street railway has no "franchise" to sell, bylaw 916 definitely states that the city is to buy only the physical assets of the company, and is to "consider only the actual value of the actual and tangible property, plant, pavements, equipment and works connected with and necessary to the operation of the said railway." There is not one word in that clause about the company having a franchise to sell.

The council having decided to "stand pat," it should be its duty to see that too large an interpretation is not placed on that term. "Stand pat" does not mean going to sleep. In this instance it means careful action by the 1925 aldermen. They should seek to fortify themselves with all possible information on the subject; they should agree definitely as to the line of action that should be taken and, following this definite plan, be prepared at the right moment to put before the people a plain proposition that is backed by independent engineering statistics.

Breaking the Law.

Do away with the Ontario temperance act because there are infractions of it seems to be the reasoning of the Moderationists.

Why not apply the same logic to other statutes? In 1914 there were 4,717 convictions for violating laws relating to the highway. In 1922 this number had increased to 32,099.

If the same reasoning were used as is applied to the O. T. A., then we should start an agitation for the removal of the highways act. Such a course would be as absurd as it would be unwise. Instead of doing away with the highways act it is being constantly strengthened and more vigorously enforced.

Exactly the same thing applies to the Ontario temperance act.

John Bull Is Fairly Lively.

On October 9 Premier MacDonald was forced to resign in Britain, and the announcement made that an election would take place on October 29. An election had been spoken of before as a possibility, but it was not expected because no party desired it.

That all happened less than two weeks ago. Today the old land is blazoned with billboards; the Conservatives claim to have sent out twenty tons of literature; Labor says it has sent out 40,000,000 sheets and pamphlets, while the Liberals are pouring out a stream of campaign material as fast as the presses can produce it.

Billboards are fashioned from works of some of the best known artists, with a political turn given to the scene. National and international events are made the targets for the brush of the cartoonist; speakers are doing ten to twenty meetings a day.

Never were there so many women in the fight. Not only are there 41 of them as parliamentary candidates, but wives, daughters and sisters of candidates are speaking, canvassing and distributing literature. In some populous districts women workers go out in groups of fifty, and call at every house in the community.

And to think that John Bull has been referred to as slow and over-metaphorical. He has his whole population working at top speed on a week's notice, while the children of Uncle Sam, referred to as go-getters, brisk, alert, aggressive, and all the rest of it, have been electioneering for eight months, and will not be through as soon as the people in Britain.

Note and Comment.

There's only one 23rd of October this year—make the most of it.

One vote in the ballot box is worth more than a thousand "I intended to."

Old John Barleycorn was never famous for the number of pairs of shoes he bought for the family.

West Virginia girl was fined $1 for shooting at her lover, and on the same day a man was fined $27 for speeding. There was danger in the latter case, and none in the first.

A Big Problem

I watched 'em takin' down the poles that decorated up the street, I marvelled at the way they did it, a scientific sort of feat. They didn't go and take an axe and chop the things down like a tree, a yellin' at the folks to dodge and urg'n' aged ones to flee.

But lookin' at them posts I saw six thousand marks upon their backs, where folks had come in years gone by and hammered in their carpet tacks, to hold up cards for folks to read a walkin' in four different ways, and most was stuck upon the post in hot electioneerin' days.

One chap would get a notion that he'd run for office in this place, he'd go unto the printin' shop and take a picture of his face, and then he'd get some wordin' on to tell the voters who passed by, as how they shouldn't dare to go and pass up such a knowin' guy.

Some other man would see this work, him runnin' for an office too, this ticket nailed upon the post seemed just the proper thing to do. He'd hot foot to the printin' man and take the printer by the jaw, and tell him to turn out a card to make the first look like balled straw.

"I want a ticket that will screech, so folks what pass will see it's new, I want the letters two feet high and paper colored red and blue, for I will show that other jay a chap like me he will not down, I'll show the people in this ward who's goin' to run this bloomin' town."

So ticket two comes drippin' fresh, a-smellin' of the printer's ink, to shade the first man on the pole and put his chances on the blink.

Before the votin' day was come they'd all stripped scads from off their roll, and tacked their faces on a card and spiked 'em up upon the pole.

And humble folks like you and me a walkin' homeward up and down, would swear by lookin' at the show a three-ring circus hit the town. We'd pause and gaze upon the thing, confused by each discordant note, and pass along a-wonderin' still who hollered loudest for our vote. I'm not yet itchin' for a scrap, nor seekin' for a brand new row, but I've been wonderin' ever since just where they'll nail these tickets now.—ARK.

REVISED MOTHER GOOSE.

Autumn leaves are falling down,
Falling down, falling down,

And blows 'em back again.

Before a young man marries a European it is always best to come to a definite understanding regarding foreign relations.

A Los Angeles woman wants a divorce, claiming she thought her husband a capitalist when he was only a trombone player. He is not a millionaire, but he makes a million airs.

She also says her husband practices at home. If you don't think this is good cause for a divorce you never heard a trombone.

She admits her husband is a modest man, but he blows too much.

Her argument is that she married his money. As he never had any money, she claims she can't be married.

She heard he was making $8,000 a week, and as soon as she saw him it was a case of love of money at first sight.

She needed cash to pay her gambling debts. While he played the trombone she played the ponies, and both occasionally put bad notes into circulation.

When she married him she thought he was straight, but after hearing him play on the trombone she knew he was flat.

The Anonymous Letter

People of common sense do not take anonymous letters seriously. An unsigned letter betrays the fact that the writer is ashamed of it. An unsigned letter is just like unbranded goods.

When a manufacturer produces something of which he is proud he brands it with a distinct trade mark and gives it a name.

For this reason, nationally advertised goods carry with them the assurance of their purity. For goods which are not advertised show that the maker of them lacks assurance.

The manufacturer who advertises his product invests good money in making a brand familiar to you. His advertising is profitable so long as you continue to buy his product. But, of course, if the quality should alter for the worse you would cease to buy and his advertising becomes a dead loss.

Thus there is a reactionary effect of advertising upon the quality of material. The very fact that a man spends large sums in making a particular brand known is a guarantee that he is keeping the goods branded up to the mark. And if goods are not branded it is an evidence that there is no authority behind them, no guarantee of their genuineness.

The public is justified in putting its faith in advertised products.

No lie can keep up if it is made universal. By and by the public come to suspect it. Just as a light at a street corner is better than a policeman, so the publicity of advertising is better than any threatened action in the courts. Advertising shows that a man is not ashamed of his product and that he is sure that the use of it will bring him more trade.

Those who use unbranded goods are the small minority who believe in and read anonymous letters.

To the Editor

Will Vote At 88.

Lived in and Around London For 60 Years, and Is Going To Vote Thursday For the Present Law.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir,—Re the fairness spoken by W. B. Sparling in this morning's edition, of The Advertiser, I would say ditto.

I have lived in Canada for over 60 years and in and around London and have experienced the effects of the open bar in and around London. I was a farmer in the neighborhood and know the change for the better since "whiskey row" went out of existence under the name of "It now has the name of a fine business street in and around the market."

I am now nearly 88 years of age and now living in London. I don't belong to the moderation league, neither do I belong to any other league than that which was given to Moses on the mount, the burning bush, if you will.

I am to vote for the law that now is until a better is provided.

Deals With Mr. Murray.

M. M. Peck of Vancouver Presents Facts in Connection With Moderation Orator's Talk.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir,—In the Moderation league advertisement appearing in the Free Press of Oct. 19, 1924, appears the following quotation: "In his address last night, Mr. George M. Murray, Vancouver, B. C., gave a flat contradiction of the statement that many failures had resulted in B. C. since government control had been adopted. Mr. Murray repudiated the slanders of Rev. A. E. Cooke, and showed how Mr. Cooke had finally been compelled to leave Vancouver and accept a call to a small town in Wyoming, U. S. A., the country he originally came from."

With reference to Mr. Murray's statement about failures in B. C., Messrs. R. G. Dun & Co., financial authorities, reported that business failures in B. C. had been as follows: 1918, 40; 1919, 42; 1920, 64; 1921, 125; 1922, 142; 1923, 162. The vote on government control versus prohibition was taken on Oct. 20, 1920. Mr. Murray should get himself appointed censor of statements issued by R. G. Dun & Co. or cease making statements so wide of the mark. With regard to Mr. Murray's statement about Rev. Mr. Cooke, Mr. Cooke has not "been compelled to leave Vancouver, and is not 'returning to the country he originally came from'."

From the general secretary of the Congregational church of Canada, I learn that Mr. Cooke came from Ireland, and for over years has been in service in Canada for their church, and has held charges in Ontario at Speedside, Garafaxa and Stratford, and for the last five years has occupied prominent pulpits in Vancouver city. In showing the esteem in which he is held in Vancouver, two years ago the provincial convention of the prohibitionists elected Mr. Cooke as their president. And last year the ministerial association of Vancouver, as their president, elected Mr. Cooke.

Why Mr. Murray goes so far from home to attack his fellow-citizens is not clear. But this much at least is evident, that in his attack he has not only parted company with the truth, but also has not even a bowing acquaintance with it. Yours sincerely,

M. M. PECK,
Secretary B. C. Proh. Ass'n.

Experience Speaks.

Science and Medicine and the Bar Unite in Condemning the Use of Alcohol.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir,—I think the following excerpts from speeches by famous men in all walks of life will be more effective than any letter I might write advocating the cause of temperance. Here are a very few I have picked out from among a vast array of such statements by prominent men:

W. E. Gladstone declared that its results are worse than the effects of war, famine and pestilence combined. Professor Huxley: "During the last 50 years we, as a nation, by our drinking habits, have wasted upwards of £13,000,000,000 sterling, an amount of wealth as great and half as great again as the total wealth of the United Kingdom."

Lord Palmerston declared, "Drink is worse than any enemy thundering at our gates, for it is sapping our very foundations." Chief Justice Coleridge declared, "I can keep no terms with a vice that fills our jails, that destroys the comfort of homes and the peace of families and debases and brutalizes the people of these islands."

Mr. Justice Denman said: "On one occasion in a northern county I sat to try a calendar of 32 persons, out of which 36 cases were charged with offences of violence, from murder downwards, being not less than six murderers for trial. In every single case, not indirectly but directly, these offences were attributed to excessive drinking."

W. E. Gladstone declared, "Alcohol is the most destructive agent of this country."

Sir Henry Thompson, writing to the archbishop of Canterbury, said, "There is no greater cause of evil, moral and physical, in this country than the use of alcoholic drinks."

Sir Adam Clark said that in his hospital experience when he said that seven out of ten owed their diseases to alcohol he "could but lament that the teaching about this question was not more direct, more decisive, more homethrusting than it had been."

Sir Frederick Treves, King Edward's surgeon, standing at the head of his profession, says: "Alcohol is certainly inconsistent with fine work. It is absolutely inconsistent with a surgeon's work and with anything that requires as quick, acute and alert judgments."

Lord Roberts, in a letter to Gen. Sir George White, dated Bloemfontein, said: "There never was a more temperate army than that which marched under my command from the Modder river to Bloemfontein."

WILL FACE JURY ON GRAVE CHARGE

Little Girl Testifies Against
Albert Goodhue in Police Court.

Albert Goodhue, 30 years old, was committed to trial by Magistrate Graydon in police court this morning on a charge of a grave offence against a 12-year-old London girl.

Goodhue, who was arrested by police on Tuesday, Oct. 7, pleaded not guilty when he appeared in court today and through his counsel, W. G. R. Barram, elected to be tried by jury.

Magistrate Graydon committed the man to trial after he had heard the evidence of the young girl and of her grandmother, with whom she resided.

The girl stated that on three occasions Goodhue had met her on the corner of Dundas and Ridout streets after she had returned in the afternoon from the Wortley road school. She said that another person, an old man, had committed the same offence against her last summer.

Goodhue was arrested on Oct. 7 when two plainclothesmen were dispatched to a residence in the section of Ridout street on that afternoon, following information received at the police station from a young girl. The young girl stated she had seen a man and girl in the bushes.

The little girl accompanied the police officers to the scene and on seeing Goodhue pointed him out to the constables.

Goodhue is the third man within the past year who has appeared in police court on the same charge.

ROBINSON MEMORIAL LEAGUE.

The citizenship department had charge of the regular meeting of the Robinson Memorial league this week. Miss Blanche Gregory presided and during the evening Miss Harrington contributed a delightful solo number. The address of the program was on "Government Control as it Exists in Quebec," given by Rev. W. B. Hiles. Arrangements were made for a concert to be held under the auspices of the league in connection with the Sunday school next week, of which the chief feature will be a recital of "The Short Story" by Herbert W. Percy.

KING STREET Y. P. S.

"The Clash of Color" was the subject of an interesting talk given Monday night before the young people's society of the King street Presbyterian church by Marshall Wilson. His talk dealt with racial problems, immigration and new Canadians. A lively discussion followed, after which a pageant on the same subject was presented. The following members took part: Misses Alice Hill, Mary Christie, Grace McIntosh, Mary Rhind, Ralph Ross, Jean Rhind and Kathleen England.

Arrangements were made for a masquerade next Friday night to be held under the auspices of the society and the choir of the church. Miss Ella Mootie was appointed convener.

CHURCH BANQUET.

The most successful social event of the year was held on Tuesday evening at the Church of the Redeemer with a very large number in attendance. The Sunday school room was prettily decorated with fall flowers and the A. Y. P. S. colors, red, blue and yellow. The decorations were under the direction of Miss Gibbs. Delightful solos were contributed by Miss Ruth Kingsmill and Mr. Hillis gave a very humorous imitation of the different characters on the telephone. Miss Verna Thompson was the general convener, and Mrs. Roy Ashman was the program convener. The Rev. A. S. H. Cree, president. The A. Y. P. S. wish to thank all those who so kindly donated refreshments.

CHALMERS CHOIR CONCERT.

The choir of the Chalmers Presbyterian church gave a concert last night in aid of the organ fund. The organist, Mr. H. E. Watson, opened the concert with an organ selection, after which the Victoria mixed quartet took charge of the program. Miss Lyla Grant was the reader of the evening, which was greatly enjoyed by those present. The following the concert, a supper was served under the convener'ship of Mrs. A. P. Light for the visiting artists and the choir members.

FREE MOVIES.

Free movies are on the program of the Y. M. C. A. for the winter season. Every Saturday night until further notice two films will be shown in the association building. One will be an educational feature, the other a comedy. Community singing will provide the musical entertainment.

Why I Shall Vote O.T.A.

ARCHIE McPHERSON,

President of Elliott, Marr & Co., wholesale grocers, director of London Life Insurance Company.

"Because I am firmly convinced that the sale of spirituous liquor under government control would decidedly increase consumption of same. I believe the health, strength and prosperity of the nation depends upon that of its individual citizens, and that the use of alcoholic beverages does not tend towards the advancement of health, strength and prosperity.

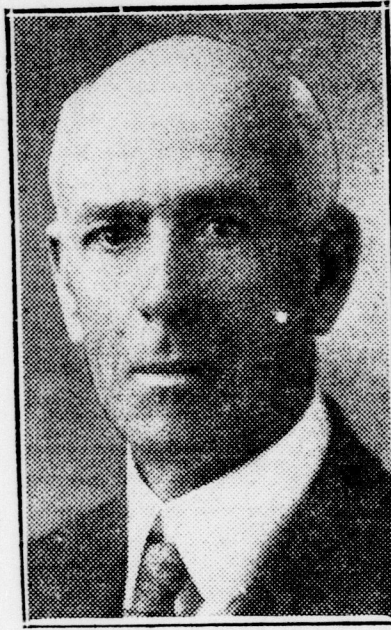

"The dominion government put prohibition into force as a war measure. Why? To increase the efficiency of the man power of the nation. In the face of that argument, why should we give the Ontario government the power to legally increase the sale of alcoholic liquors and thereby reduce the efficiency of the man power of the province?

"Business conditions today demand more than ever that we preserve our efficiency. Don't deliberately put a loadstone around your neck, don't make conditions such that our American neighbors will be able to run away from us. This is a business proposition as well as a social one."

Why I Shall Vote O.T.A.

C. E. GERMAN,

Manager for London and district of the Mutual Life Assurance Company.

"I shall vote for the Ontario Temperance Act because it is the strongest defence this province has against the enemy which would stealthily enter our homes. The O. T. A. holds the door shut; government control would open the door and allow that enemy to get his foot inside.

"The O. T. A. has justified its right to remain upon our statute books by the greatly improved conditions. One need only be informed concerning conditions in those provinces having government control to be extremely grateful that Ontario has a prohibitory law.

"One of my schoolmates was a brilliant student, honor graduate of Toronto university, gold medalist, a successful barrister. Highly esteemed. At the request of his fiancée, he drank a glass of wine at her father's table. There arose in him a passion which he could not control. In a few years his home was broken up, his business was lost, his self-respect gone—all through booze.

"If strong drink is a menace to the prosperity of those who come under its spell, if Premier Ferguson is correct when he says that it is necessary to restrict the use of liquor and curtail to the utmost the evils that arise from it, then the only logical position for me is to support complete prohibition."

Anglican Points Church Supports Temperance Act

The following is a letter received from a prominent member of the church in England in London:

"Dear Sir,—From time to time I have seen in the papers, notices about the synods, conferences and district meetings and assemblies of the various churches in support of the prohibitive legislation called the Ontario Temperance Act. Let me give you the official pronouncement of the church of England expressed by the highest authority and most representative body of the church, namely, the general synod of the church of England in Canada.

On page 92 of the Journal of Proceedings of the general synod of 1918, the following resolution was passed by the synod sitting in joint session:

"The general synod desires to commend the efforts of the government in limiting the evils of the liquor traffic, and looks forward to the ultimate abolition of the same, and calls on all patriotic citizens to uphold their hands in this work."

"This is the official pronouncement of the church of England, to which thousands of loyal churchmen and churchwomen will adhere on Oct. 23, 1924."

CITY SCHOOL CADETS NOW NUMBER 1,024

Statistics of Inspector Wheable
Show 18 Corps Organized in London.

There are 18 cadet corps and 1,024 cadets in the city public schools this year.

Pottersburg is the only school with the full number of grades and a male principal without a cadet corps.

Inspector G. A. Wheable has just completed the statistics as given above, the board of education being desirous of ascertaining the total number of cadets for whom uniforms will have to be provided should next year's board approve of the recommendation made by this year's board at its last regular meeting that all the public school cadets corps be uniformed.

The price of each uniform varies from $4 to $6, depending upon the style of uniform secured. The government makes an allowance of $1.25 per uniform per annum.

The 1,024 cadets enrolled are distributed as follows: Aberdeen 70, Alexandra 42, Boyle Memorial 82, Chesley avenue 72, Ealing 70, Emery avenue 72, Lord Roberts 60, Lorne avenue 71, Rectory street 55, Riverview 49, Ryerson 36, Simcoe street 65, St. George's 55, Talbot street 52, Tecumseh avenue 47, Trafalgar 35, Victoria 52, and Wortley road 50.

THORNTON PASSES THROUGH.

Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian national railways, passed through London at 10:55 last night on his way to a conference in Chicago. He was accompanied by H. C. Martin, traffic manager. The officials went straight through from Ottawa. It is not known how long they will remain in Chicago.

Why I Shall Vote O.T.A.

DEAN SHERWOOD FOX,

Dean of the College of Arts, University of Western Ontario.

"The effects of government liquor legislation and policies are easily observable in universities and colleges where young people gather together in large numbers. During my 25 years of teaching experience I have had ample opportunity to observe young men under the old order and under the O. T. A.

"I can say without reservation that under the O. T. A., despite its many obvious defects, the young men as a whole do not get liquor.

"One result is that university officials do not have the numerous serious problems of discipline that formerly demanded so much of their time and energy. Moreover, they are led to believe that if the O. T. A. is allowed to operate for another 10 years the number habituated to liquor will be so reduced as to make the general enforcement of the act much easier.

"Those opposed to the act unjustly criticize it as an attempt to legislate people into being good. They miss the point entirely. The act was originally passed and supported by the people solely as an economic and social measure; and now, in time of peace, it remains exactly the same."

TRYING WAR TIMES VIVIDLY RECALLED

Col. E. Seaborn, M.D., Relates Experiences of Staff of Hospital No. 10.

Following a violin recital by Cora Brennan before the London and Midsex historical society's opening meeting at the medical college last night, Col. Edwin Seaborn, M. D., officer commanding the university of Western Ontario medical contingent, stationary hospital No. 10, gave an account of the London contingent during the war.

The experiences at Seaford, England, were touched upon. Here the hospital of 100 beds had no officer in charge to initiate the Canadians, and they had to work out their own methods of dealing with the sick in inadequate quarters.

At Eastbourne the hospital had 500 beds. The increased accommodation increased the responsibilities. There, men from the front were returned, broken and shattered. The experience gained in that hospital was invaluable when No. 10 went to France.

Dr. Seaborn paid a special tribute to those women of London who had sent over hospital supplies, saying that the timely arrival of the shipments often saved the lives of the staff. Lady Beck and Mrs. C. R. Somerville were among those who had helped materially in those trying times.

The hospital was moved to Calais in 1917, and it was there the staff found its greatest hardships, but where it was able to render the greatest service. No. 10 moved into temporary quarters, and following arduous work had them in shape for receiving patients. No sooner were they ready to take in the wounded than the beds were all occupied. So fast did the cases come that the surgeons worked from daylight to dark, not having time for a midday meal. Bombing raids were the chief trial of the hospital. In less than a year, over 100 beds were carried out in the vicinity. Of these, two bombs actually struck the hospital buildings.

GOVT. UNEMPLOYMENT POLICY BEING FORMED

Premier Ferguson Tells Mayor
Announcement Will Be Made Friday.

Announcement of the provincial government's policy in the matter of unemployment relief will be made known on Friday or Saturday. Discussing the matter over the long distance telephone with Premier G. Howard Ferguson last night, Mayor Wenig learned that the government was still considering the matter, and would definitely announce its policy inside of two or three days.

"The premier could give me no definite promise on line of action to be taken," Mayor Wenig said today. "But it would look as though they were going to do something when they have taken so long to talk it over. If they had discarded our suggestions directly they were made it would have been different. But they have had two weeks to think it over and something should be done."

SPEED COP GIVES UP CHASE AS SPEEDOMETER SHOWS 75

Local and county police were notified shortly before noon today that a high-powered motor car, travelling at a rate of speed of from 60 to 75 miles per hour was heading towards London.

The car passed through Wardsville at terrific speed. A provincial motorcycle officer gave chase, but upon reaching the limit of his machine's speed, 75 miles per hour, was forced to abandon the pursuit.

London motorcycle officers were dispatched to county roads leading to the city from Wardsville in an effort to head off the speeder.

When three carloads of gravel were dumped on the Canadian national station platform this morning, and a gang of workmen appeared on the scene travellers were set to wondering if the erection of the new station was under way.

Such is not the case. The gravel will be used along with a goodly amount of cement to make a new floor in the express building to replace the wooden flooring.

NOT NEW STATION.

When three carloads of gravel were dumped on the Canadian national station platform this morning, and a gang of workmen appeared on the scene travellers were set to wondering if the erection of the new station was under way.

"Those opposed to the act unjustly criticize it as an attempt to legislate people into being good. They miss the point entirely. The act was originally passed and supported by the people solely as an economic and social measure; and now, in time of peace, it remains exactly the same."

Police To Issue Licenses Now

Will Handle Everything But Marriage Certificates.

Licenses previously issued by the city license department will in future be handled by the police department. In accordance with a motion of the city council, the police department today took over the issuing of licenses, other than licenses to marry. Inspector Lucas called at the city hall and secured books and license forms from the office formerly used by ex-license Inspector MacCallum.

Since Mr. MacCallum retired in May, Sanitary Inspector R. H. Sanders has carried on with the dual position.

IMMIGRANT BOYS MAY BE TRAINED HERE, IS BELIEF

DUNDAS CENTER C. G. I. T.

For this week's supper meeting of the Dundas Center C. G. I. T., the members of the junior group acted as hostesses and served. Following the banquet Miss Trace, the senior leader, gave an interesting talk on "What our social life consists of." The program also included a reading on "Mary Lyon from the book called 'Heroine of Our Home Land,' given by Miss Jean Howie. Following a half hour of games the groups discussed and had separate business meetings.

If the plans for arranging schools in which immigrant boys may learn farming, goes through it is reasonable to suppose that some of the training will be done in Ontario, in the opinion of Brigadier MacAmmond of the Salvation army headquarters, Clarence street.

In an address before the Canadian club in Winnipeg last night, General Booth suggested that the government finance the transportation of youths to Canada and the Salvation army take care of their education along agricultural lines.

The fact that Ontario lends itself more to mixed farming than the prairie provinces, should be a consideration in training a quota of the immigrants in this district, said Brigadier MacAmmond.

NIGHT ROBBERS GET $1,500 HAUL

General Store of C. S. Hulet,
Norwich, Looted by Unknown Gang.

Special to The Advertiser.
Norwich, Oct. 22.—A general store, owned by C. S. Hulet of Norwich, was entered by thieves at an early hour this morning and drygoods, valued by the owner at $1,500, was stolen. The robbers drove up to the building in a touring car and successfully made away with the loot after it had been stowed in the rear seat.

Entrance was gained after the window of the front door had been broken, and the key turned from the inside. Ready-to-wear goods on display in the two front show windows were swept up by the thieves. A greater amount of goods would have undoubtedly been stolen had not the robbers been frightened away when the store telephone rang.

Donald Buchell, a bank clerk, who resides in a building across the street from the general store, noticed the thieves drive away from the store at about 5 o'clock this morning. At that hour Mr. Hulet received a telephone call at his home.

The store, and the general store, would have been simultaneously, and the early morning call is held responsible for the hasty exit of the robbers.

Constable Lindsay was immediately notified, and police throughout this district have been informed of the robbery. It is thought that the thieves will not be able to make a successful getaway, a description of the car having been broadcasted to all nearby centers.

This, according to the police, is the third robbery which has occurred in Norwich within the past two months.

YOUTH WHO SHOT BETRAYER OF MOTHER GETS 16 MONTHS

Mr. Justice Kelly Imposes Light
Term on Jury's Recommendation.

GUIDED BY RECORD

Canadian Press Despatch.
St. Catharines, Oct. 22.—Henry Beauregard was this morning sentenced by Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly to serve 16 months in jail from the time of the shooting of Francis Philbin on Dec. 17 last. This constitutes a sentence of six months.

Beauregard was last night found guilty by the jury on a charge of shooting with intent to do bodily injury, but not guilty on the charge of shooting with intent to murder. The jury took only 45 minutes to return its verdict, in which they also recommended the prisoner to be shown the mercy of the court.

In passing sentence this morning, Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly stated that he was prepared to treat the case as if the prisoner had been found guilty of wounding. He told Beauregard that he was very fortunate in that he was not tried on a much more serious charge. He expressed opinion that the prisoner had shown a decent regard for the law and that he was not overlooking the conditions in which he had lived for the past few years, nor the fact that the prisoner's character had entered into the family life.

Child Quits Car Crash Follows

Fails To Arouse Drunken
Driver, So Walks.

Special to The Advertiser.
Goderich, Oct. 21.—Peter Breckner of London is now spending seven days in jail for driving his car while drunk. On the road near Zurich, Breckner picked up a little girl for a ride, and at that time could not control the car. The child thinking him sleeping tried to arouse him, but was unable to do so and got out of the machine. Scarcely had she escaped when Breckner crashed his car in the ditch, damaging the car and sustaining severe facial injuries.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results.
Takes but a moment to prepare,
and saves you about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with homemade sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—infamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for ½ ounce of Pinex with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

She apparently had fallen from the top of the highboard fence, for when found by Crosier and Hanselman, a couple of high board fence, for when found by her coat caught in the back, causing the collar of the coat to choke her to death. A doctor found she had been dead only a few minutes. The Messecar home is directly opposite the school.

CITY COUNCIL WILL SUPPORT PENSIONS FOR CITY WORKERS

Many Matters Will Be Voted On at Next Meeting of Aldermen.

WILL GRADE CLERKS

Meeting last night to look into the mayor's proposals and discuss other postponed business, the city council expressed some support for forms of civic insurance and civic pensions. These and other matters relating to administrative offices were passed on to be investigated by No. 1 committee and will be voted on at the next meeting of the council.

Mayor Wenige was absent, and Ald. Douglass, chairman of No. 1 committee, presided. Others in attendance were Aldermen Anderson, Drake, Walsh, Smith, McKay and Hayden, the latter being the sole representative of No. 2 committee. City officials were well represented. A scant quorum was secured just inside the time limit, and a brief, one-hour session cleaned the boards of a fair-sized agenda.

Outlines Scheme. Ald. Douglass outlined the scheme of superannuation for the dominion civil service, and advocated some such system for the city employees. A fifth of each employee's salary would be put into a fund for a certain number of years, so that he could retire at the end of his career and have a moderate income. The scheme would not be compulsory, but would be made sufficiently attractive for all employees to desire it. Heads of departments were asked to get together to grade their clerks as first, second and third class, according to training and ability. In this way salaries in the various departments could be fixed with equity to all of the same abilities. The department heads declared that this information could be secured in time for the next session of No. 1 committee.

"I don't think you have any better in the dominion of Canada than you have in London," declared Ald. Drake, in speaking of London's officials. Chairman Douglass was of the opinion that the ratepayers should have another opportunity to vote on the commission form of government. As no special requests have been made this year, he renewed the argument for this form of government. The matter was referred back to committee to report on.

Meeting on Friday. City Treasurer Bell reported that the city was paying out $15,000 annually for insurance. This included the Western Fair buildings, where the premiums were exceptionally high. It was suggested that all the city's property, including that conveyed by other bodies than the council, be linked up in a civic insurance scheme. The scheme will be investigated by No. 1 committee.

Ald. Edwin Smith reported that a meeting would be held with chamber of commerce representatives on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss changes in aldermanic elections. Ald. Walsh was appointed to act in place of Ald. Douglass as the latter will be out of the city on that day.

Youths in Victoria, B.C., On Duty Halloween Night.

Canadian Press Despatch. Victoria, B.C., Oct. 21.—Victoria's police force will be augmented by at least 100 volunteer constables on Halloween night this year. The plan is to enroll all schoolboys who believe in the value of the "Bayer Cross" of the city's police force. The boys are to be on duty to see that juvenile marauders do not destroy property.

BRICK ST. METHODISTS ENJOY CHICKEN SUPPER

The chicken supper held in Brick Street Methodist Church on Monday night was the most successful in the history of the church, $133 being raised by members of the ladies' aid society, who had charge of the affair.

So large was the crowd that it was found necessary to set the well-laden tables four times before members of the church and friends from London were all checked off as having dined.

Rev. Mr. Royal of Delaware presided at the exceptionally fine program held in the church later in the evening. Those taking part in the program were Miss Gladys Tunks, Miss Helen Baker, Mrs. S. McCullough, J. M. Grieve and I. E. E. The Forest City orchestra also gave several selections, as well as playing through the dinner hour.

DOWLER ELECTED C. OF C. PRESIDENT

Manager of Clothing Store Will Succeed Major Gordon Ingram.

R. H. Dowler, president and manager of R. H. & J. Dowler, Limited, was elected president of the London chapter of commerce yesterday afternoon by the C. of C. directors, in succession to the retiring president, Major Gordon Ingram. J. J. Foote and T. W. McFarland were elected vice-presidents.

In assuming office amid the prayers of his fellow directors, Mr. Dowler made this year the new year, and stressed particularly the work to be done in uniting Western Ontario along commercial lines.

A letter was read from Dr. Horace L. Brittain, expressing appreciation of the invitation from London to hold the next Canadian tax conference here. Dr. Brittain promised to submit the invitation to the next board meeting of the citizens' research institute, and it is likely that the conference will take place in London.

A letter was read by Secretary Gordon Philip from W. R. Campbell, vice-president of the Ford Motor Company, stating that P. N. Main- gaur would be in charge of the London plant of the company which would deal with sales, service and light assembling for the district from Windsor to Brantford.

Frank Adams and Harry Peel reported that with the Ontario government the request of the Western Ontario fish and game protective association that no fish nets be allowed on the River Thames.

Suggested changes in bylaws of the chamber were discussed, and if approved at a further meeting will be submitted to a general meeting. One change is that the period between the time that a director can take office for a second term be changed from one to two years, and that the retiring president of the chamber become automatically a member of the new board of directors.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of the street railway situation, the directors being anxious for a proper solution of the city's transportation problems.

FIRST HEAVY FROST OF SEASON IS FELT
Thermometer Drops to 26 Degrees—End of Grapes and Vegetables.

The first heavy frost of the season visited London and district late last night and put an end to the growing efforts of late vegetables and grapes. Towards 9 o'clock the heavy clouds cleared away and the stars came out to twinkle with frosty eye on the city. The thermometer dropped to 26 degrees.

Up to date this fall, best efforts of John Frost have been more or less feeble and have been reserved for the benefit of early risers only. Not so this morning, however. Citizens who make a practice of reaching their offices at 9 o'clock were treated to slippery sidewalks despite the warm intentions of the sun.

Last night's frost will mean that stubborn chestnut buds all over the county will open wide to disgorge the nuts without which a Halloween party can hardly be held. It also means that farmers will get busy on the picking of fall and winter apples.

Sick Man Fails To Save His Vote
Special to The Advertiser. Stratford, Oct. 21.—Rather an amusing incident featured the advance poll on the plebiscite today, when a man appeared asking that he be permitted to vote because he was entering the hospital for an operation, and as a result would not be able to vote on Thursday. As no provision is made for such contingencies the presiding officer was forced to deny the applicant the opportunity to vote.

SAYS O. T. A. FITS MODERATION ONLY

Speaker For Moderation League Thinks Law Too Perfect For This Age.

Almost tearful complaint that public men in this city and other cities were not coming out into the open as they were in favor of government control while at the same time, it was said, they had subscribed privately to the funds of the league, featured the Moderation league meeting last night in the Masonic hall.

A. R. Douglas was the first speaker called upon by the chairman, Lt.-Col. W. T. Lawless, D.S.O., following music by the G. W. V. A. band.

At the outset of his remarks Mr. Douglas characterized as the greatest temperance achievement of all time the 60 per cent reduction in the consumption of alcohol brought about by the English government by the enactment of "a stiff measure of government control" in England during the four years following the outbreak of the war.

Claims that temperance leaders here had stamped the Ontario government, Mr. Douglas stated that the provincial government had attempted oversight to bring in temperance legislation, which even the most ardent temperance man could not have expected until the arrival of the millennium.

Hits Medicine Plea. The speaker criticized the government for the sale of liquor under the O. T. A. for medicinal purposes. He declared that liquor was not a medicine but a beverage and would always remain so. "Physicians write prescriptions for men who don't need them. If that is not so why are there such queues of men at the dispensaries before holidays and festive seasons?"

"Sweep away the rubbish of the O. T. A. and the government will give you a rational and sensible act if you ask for it."

Fred C. Betts, representative of the Moderation league in this district, charged that the principles of the O. T. A. were un-Christian and un-British, and that its clauses had been made un-Christian and un-British in order that it might be more easily enforced.

That act was administered for four years by Mr. Rex (Mr. Macpherson). "No, don't laugh; he's a tragedy; we should weep when we think of him."

"Hon. Mr. Nickle, the present attorney-general, is a man with brains and decency. He has tried his level best to enforce the act, but by fair means. It is no better enforced, however, than before. The O. T. A. is a farce; it is a joke."

Mr. Betts claimed that the O.T.A. was destroying public honesty and public freedom of thought and expression to our funds, but they always end up by saying: "Don't use our names." These are not the little men who are the big men who used to lead us in the past. What is the reason that they give being this silent? It is: "I will hurt your business." Our opponents have us all befogged and beclouded; they have us all bound round with cobwebs and shackles.

"There are no more to be continued. They are not asked to go to war; they are merely asked to come out into the open and declare themselves instead of giving us the slogan: 'Don't use our names.'"

Defends Manitoba. Fred W. Russell, president of the Moderation League of Manitoba, defended the province of Manitoba, which he declared, had been "most atrociously traduced by the prohibitionist press and speakers."

"The prohibitionists seem to be basing their main campaign upon vilification of those provinces which, in their wisdom, have adopted government control. There is a strong spirit of resentment in the west against that campaign. I believe that there are enough lines of cleavage between the provinces without injecting this resentment into it. If the people of Ontario give it the proper rebuke on voting day, however, it won't hurt them so much (Laughter and applause)."

"Until prohibition was practiced in North America," pursued Mr. Russell, "there was no such thing as a country which had practiced it, and that was Turkey. (Laughter.)" "And prohibition helped to evolve the 'unspeakable Turk.' In fact, we feel that prohibition was developing a species of 'unspeakable Canadian' until our government liquor control act was passed."

"The evil of the hip pocket flask among the young people has vanished in Manitoba, and the parents are grateful to the moderation league for what they have done in that regard."

"Bootlegging has practically all passed away; certainly the bootlegger de luxe. The rotten bootlegger stuff that wrecks men, body, mind and soul, is no longer on the market."

Mr. Russell stated the Manitoba government had realized $1,200,000 out of the sale of liquor in less than one year. For Ontario the proportionate amount would be between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000. Referring to the fact that such money had been set down as "tainted money," the speaker said that it could even be seen in such an argument was that "it isn't my money."

"Manitoba has government control," concluded Mr. Russell, "the western provinces have it and will never go back to prohibition. Quebec has government control, is Ontario going to stay out of confederation?"
