

Fresh Attack On Dauntless Pt. Arthur; Japs Renew Fight in Countless Hordes

Great Guns Pounding Forts From All Sides, Including Fleet.

The Garrison Makes Desperate Sorties in Efforts to Re- capture Water Supply.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Journal today prints the following, dated Rome, Oct. 1: A dispatch from a correspondent in Chefoo who enjoys the confidence of the Japanese staff there, declares that the greatest attack of all is now being made on the Port Arthur forts. Advice brought in by a dispatch boat showed that after the tremendous six days' fight from Sept. 20 to 23, in which but slight advantage was gained, the Japanese troops rested. The losses on both sides were very great. Notwithstanding the crushing defeat, Gen. Nogai determined to win, ordered a renewed attack on all sides at dawn Saturday. Hordes of reinforcements had been received in the meantime, and the Japanese were eager for the battle. When the dispatch left, the great guns were thundering on all sides this morning. A powerful detachment of Togo's ships were another several of the forts with a concentrated fire to cover the infantry assaults. The wonderful defence was proceeded with unabated vigor. Every moment the Japanese were endeavoring to escape the remaining Russian ships in the harbor is eagerly expected. It is known that the Japanese are not only repaired to be seaworthy. The Japanese, it is known, believe that they will capture the fort through the wounding and killing of the majority of the heroic garrison, which cannot be reinforced. The gaps in the Mikado's ranks can be filled with reasonable promptness. The stricken soldiers in the garrison cannot be replaced.

Tokio, Oct. 2, 6 p.m.—The Russians are reported to be endeavoring to retake their lost positions, including Fort Kuropatkin, in the hope of restoring the water supply of Port Arthur. They are said to have repeatedly assaulted the Japanese, shelling from neighboring forts and batteries. The Japanese continue to hold their positions. Both sides are said to have suffered severely. The newly-mustered heavy Japanese guns are said to command the entire harbor. The position of the remainder of the Russian fleet is said to be precarious, and it is believed the vessels must soon emerge or be destroyed.

Chefoo, Oct. 2, 7 p.m.—Severe fighting, the Russians are reported to be endeavoring to retake their lost positions, including Fort Kuropatkin, in the hope of restoring the water supply of Port Arthur. They are said to have repeatedly assaulted the Japanese, shelling from neighboring forts and batteries. The Japanese continue to hold their positions. Both sides are said to have suffered severely. The newly-mustered heavy Japanese guns are said to command the entire harbor. The position of the remainder of the Russian fleet is said to be precarious, and it is believed the vessels must soon emerge or be destroyed.

Three junk, with 160 coolies, arrived at Chefoo today. They were forced to carry the wounded and bury the dead. They also were afraid that eventually they would have no food, although rice is plentiful now, according to their stories. They further say that the Russians lost heavily during the attacks of Sept. 19 and 20, and that the Japanese loss was much heavier. The Russian ships were silent during the battle, and the Japanese were reported to have turned into hospitals as a result of the fight. The dead were so numerous that they were unable to form anything like an estimate of the number who fell in attacking and defending the supplementary force near Mt. Mowat. After the battle both sides continued to shell at intervals. The Chinese make small sorties against the Japanese trenches. Small positions frequently change hands. The Chinese say they were completely buried to death by snail at night, for the reason that the Japanese would fire on them.

London, Oct. 3.—In connection with rumors of another projected sortie of the Port Arthur squadron, a Shanghai dispatch reports that a Russian warship was expected to arrive at Woo Sung Sunday night. It was there having chartered a tender to meet her. According to a Japanese correspondent, the ship was expected to arrive only in the last extremity, and when the surrender of the garrison could no longer be postponed. Because the waterworks are in the hands of the besiegers and the shore water-condensing apparatus has been ruined by the Japanese shell fire, the correspondent adds the garrison is dependent upon the condensers for the fleet for fresh water.

Shanghai dispatches to the Standard and the Daily Telegraph are to the effect that a naval battle has been fought off Port Arthur. Neither of these reports have been confirmed, the correspondents say, and they are probably only surmises.

The Chronicle's Liao Tung correspondent says there was a truce Saturday at Port Arthur to bury the dead. Russian and Japanese officers, he says, exchanged greetings, after which the bombardment was recommenced with its old vigor.

The Baltic Fleet.
St. Petersburg, Oct. 3, 3 a.m.—It is officially intimated that an irrevocable decision has been taken to dispatch the Baltic fleet to the Far East without further delay.
It is learned, however, that while the Baltic fleet will be started for the Far East, the continuation of the voyage to its destination will depend primarily upon how long the Japanese themselves stand the test of actual sailing, and, secondly, upon developments in the Far East. Should all go well with the squadron on the voyage and Rear-Admiral Wirin be able to strike a telling blow upon Admiral Togo, even if half his ships go to the bottom, the Baltic squadron will be hurried on with all possible speed. If defects develop in the vessels or Wirin falls utterly the squadron can at worst return and await the completion of other ships now building. Nothing, it is argued, will be lost and much may be gained by the mere departure of the squadron, and the fact that it may have to be reckoned with later may make Admiral Togo wary about risking his ships when the time comes for Rear-Admiral Wirin's sortie, and thus give the latter a better opportunity to escape. The only thing expected of the Port Arthur squadron is to break out of the harbor and inflict as much damage as possible upon Admiral Togo's fleet. Such ships as escape are expected to make their way to Vladivostok. The question of the issue of a sea fight after the arrival of the Baltic fleet.

20,000 JAPANESE WIPED OUT IN FOUR DAYS' FIERCE BATTLING

Awful Carnage at Port Arthur From Sept. 19 to 22—A Russ Triumph.

Chefoo, Oct. 3, 2 p.m.—An official report from Gen. Stoessel, dated Sept. 23, reached Chefoo today, confirming the previous report of the Russian of the Japanese attack on Port Arthur, which began Sept. 19, and ended Sept. 22. The fighting was of an extremely severe character. The Japanese having retired, Gen. Stoessel issued the following proclamation: Glory! Thanks to God! Glory to our heroic garrison! Glory to Ilman, Sychaff, and Pogorsky—heroes all. Thanks to our valiant volunteers who routed the enemy from the trenches, destroying them. God has permitted us to repulse the enemy. Praise to God!
The volunteers referred to by Gen. Stoessel were made up of regulars called upon to take a high hill which had been captured by the Japanese.

SLOPES LITTERED WITH THE DEAD

Terrible Effect of Russian Shells and Machine Gun at Port Arthur.

Chefoo, Oct. 3.—Chinese who left Port Arthur Oct. 1, and who were previously engaged in burying the dead, say the effect of the Russian shells and machine guns is terrific. The slopes of a high hill were littered with mangled bodies and severed heads and limbs. In one trench the Chinese buried 300 Japanese and 200 Russians. While it is true that the regular water supply of Port Arthur has been stopped by the Japanese, the fortress has other supplies which can be taken only when the city falls.

The garrison of Port Arthur now has sufficient food, but the supplies of tinned meats are nearly exhausted and the troops are now slaughtering 20 donkeys daily for fresh meat, which is worth $20 per pound. Eggs cost 22 cents each.

NO FREE PRESS YET

Interview With Russia's New Minister of the Interior.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger says that in an interview Prince Sviatoslav, Minister of the Interior, was enthusiastic in his praise of Gen. Gripenberg, who was lately appointed to the post of command of the second Manchurian army. The minister expressed the opinion that the war would be of a very long duration. He declared that he made no distinction in faith and nationalities. Justice must and would be meted to all Russian subjects alike. He held out no hope at present for a free press, saying he did not consider the country ripe for such a sweeping reform.

BARONY FOR WIDOW

Vernon Harcourt Was to Have Been Raised to Peerage.

London, Oct. 3.—The St. James Gazette says it is understood that the late Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt, who twice refused a peerage, eventually accepted the honor and would have been gazetted Baron Malwood, in the next birthday honor list. "Pate," the paper adds, has rendered the thing impossible, but it is deemed probable that a barony, following the procedure on the death of W. H. Smith (who was Minister of War in Lord Salisbury's cabinets of 1885 and 1886), will nevertheless be conferred on Lady Harcourt.

Whipping Post for Thugs.

Copenhagen, Oct. 3.—A ministerial crisis here, which had long been threatened, has been averted. Assurances of support having been given by his colleagues to Minister of Justice Albert, who insisted on bringing in a law to re-establish the whipping post for thugs. It will cause an exciting session of the Rigsdag, which convenes today.

From semi-official sources it is learned that the attack began on the 19th, along the whole line, and lasted four days, various positions changing hands many times.

The high hill mentioned was a very important position to the Russians. The Japanese attacked repeatedly, day and night, finally occupying the position on Sept. 22, after suffering very severe losses. The attempt to retake this hill being extremely hazardous, Gen. Stoessel refused to issue the order, but called for volunteers. Everybody called upon responded, whereupon a requisite number of men were selected. Lieut. Pogorsky and Capt. Sychaff leading them. Soldiers and officers alike carried grenades—explosive shells weighing from two to six pounds, which are thrown by hand—and with these they attacked the Japanese temporary fortifications and drove the latter from all their positions. Several mines were exploded during the general battle, causing severe losses. The Russians calculate that the Japanese losses for the four days' fighting reach 20,000 men.

Was Not Invited to Speak at Weston Fair Banquet.

Weston, Oct. 3.—Because Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., came uninvited with Mr. J. W. St. John, M.P.P., to the banquet of the York Township and Weston fair Saturday evening in the town hall, President Edward Benson refused to recognize him or permit him to speak in reply to any toast. After notes from Mr. St. John and Mr. A. J. Anderson, the Liberal candidate in South York, had been passed up, the chairman, in response to the toast, "Canada," abruptly said: "There are certain gentlemen sending me notes. I'll carry out this programme in spite of Mr. St. John or any other man, and I'll call on no one whose name is not on the list." Later when W. J. Smithson, a director, asked that Mr. Gamey be heard, the chairman said: "If Mr. Gamey could speak after the banquet list if he chose, but not before. And after the National Anthem would be sung, Mr. Gamey did speak. The gathering broke up in disorder."

$75,000,000 FROM SOIL OF WEST

What the Wheat Farmers Will Get This Year.

OUR GIGANTIC GRAIN DOMAIN

But Two Per Cent of the Wheat- Producing Belt is Under Cultivation.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The estimated value of the Western Canadian grain crop this year is $75,000,000. This is found money grown, so to speak, right out of the ground.

Mr. George A. Drummond, the vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, who accompanied Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and R. E. Angus, R. B. Omer and Charles R. Hosmer, also directors of the C. P. R., to the Pacific Coast, returns to Montreal amazed at the development along the line of the Canadian Pacific and throughout the Province of Manitoba, the territories, and British Columbia since he accompanied Sir William Van Horne on a like trip several years ago.

Although as a banker in close touch with the business of both the eastern and western sections of the Dominion, Sir George Drummond was not quite prepared for the marvelous strides the country has taken during the past few years.

"Make the calculation," he said, "and see for yourself the mighty possibility of Canada's tremendous grain-growing domain. In spite of the wonderful fact that the people of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories will this year pick $75,000,000 out of the ground, this result is the production of but 2 per cent of the total wheat producing belt."

"This is wonderful, is it not?" said Sir George, who proceeded to add that but one-seventh of the wheat-producing area embraced in eight miles north and eight miles south of the Canadian Pacific is under cultivation. All this he declared, clearly indicates what Canada has reason to expect from a country that has been truthfully designated the granary of the Empire.

He added: "I have no official authority for saying so, but it is my own opinion that the Crow's Nest line, on account of its easier grades, will become in a few years the chief road for wheat traffic." He also expressed the opinion that the gap around the lake from Kootenay Lake to Balfour would be constructed.

MONTREAL THE CENTER

Becomes More and More the Center of the Dominion.

London, Oct. 3.—The London Globe says the return of the Canadian Government to consider its obligations towards the imperial war has had the effect of stimulating the independent action of the nation, which has set up a regular branch office at Montreal, the best possible center in Canada. The people of Toronto are the most keen soldiers in the Dominion, perhaps owing to the large number of soldiers who have been sent to the front to need a sight of shipping. At any event, Montreal becomes more and more every year the center of business in the Dominion.

The State of Connecticut Terrorized by Desperado

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 3.—The biggest man hunt that has ever taken place in Connecticut is on in East Glastonbury. The state police force, headed by Chief Egan, and many of the residents are heavily armed and searching for John C. Whipple, who two weeks ago shot and seriously wounded a neighbor, James Starmer, and last week shot State Policeman Louks, who was attempting to arrest him for the crime.

East Glastonbury is like a small army camp. The farmers have armed themselves not only because of their indignation at the two crimes committed by Whipple, but also because of the fear that he will do further damage on the slightest provocation. It is already suspected that he has burned two barns and consequently all barns are guarded night and day by armed farm hands.

Two searching parties spent all day yesterday in the woods near Whipple. Chief Egan assumed active charge, and headed one party, and Deputy Sheriff Sheffield was in charge of the other. Their search was fruitless. It is now believed that Whipple is hiding on a cave in Mott Hill, a range of mountains several miles in length. If today's search brings forth no better success than that of last night, bloodhounds will be employed to assist the police.

It is a stranger in the town the picture presented is strange, if not alarming. Farmers driving along the country roads with loads of produce, and men in the fields all carry rifles, fearing to risk unarmed an encounter with Whipple. He has always had the reputation of being a desperate character.

The Liberal Candidate for London

The Liberals of London will be called upon at once to select a candidate for the city at the approaching election. That their choice will be Hon. C. S. Hyman is unquestioned. On that point there is a decided unanimity in the party. While there are many local Liberals well qualified to represent London in Parliament, yet Mr. Hyman's claims upon the party, as well as his personal fitness for the position, all combine to place him head and shoulders above all others as the proper Liberal candidate.

As to his personal fitness, that is well known. Born and reared in London, whether as a private citizen, a business man, or a political leader, his life has been an open book, known and read of all men. Eminent success in the management of his personal concerns, he has always found time to devote to public interests when his services have been required. His municipal career was brief, but effective. Two years as alderman and one year as mayor revolutionized the city's affairs, and introduced order and honesty into the city hall. Only in Parliament a few years, and we find him first chairman of its most important committee, and then a member of the cabinet. A man does not achieve success like this unless he is worthy. And that in his positions he has held he has shown himself worthy. Conservatives and Liberals are agreed.

In his advancement in public life there is no doubt that Mr. Hyman's personal character has been a powerful factor. He has always been popular; but as he has been more prominent, his popularity has increased. This is not the case with all public men. Some become suddenly famous; but the longer they remain exposed to the public gaze, the weaker they become. For a time circumstances may render it expedient that a man should be kept in the front rank by the party with which they are connected, but at the same time those of their supporters who know them best must feel that the career of such men is generally brief, and their political effacement complete. With Mr. Hyman it has been the reverse. The more prominent he becomes, the more he advances in public esteem. And those who know him best esteem him most.

One great cause of Mr. Hyman's popularity has been, not so much the affable and charming manner he possesses in a high degree, but the fact that he has been able to inspire people with a belief in his trustworthiness. He has always been frank and open. You know where he stands, and what he will do. His word can be depended on. If he says he will do a thing, he does it. If he is wanted as a candidate he knows his own mind and promptly accepts or refuses. He does not keep everyone waiting until the last moment, friends and foes alike uncertain as to his course. If he is asked for a favor he grants it at once, or at once explains the reasons for his denial. If he is called on to pronounce himself on some public question, he speaks out frankly and fearlessly. He does not need to lie low, waiting to see which side will pay the best. And with all this, he has the modesty of the man who knows his own value. He does not try to take up a cry that may be popular, or appeal to any special class, or travel with a brass band, or keep a reporter in his train.

No man is perfect, and Mr. Hyman may have his failings. But if he has, they must be, for a public man, singularly few; for his open life leaves little for concealment. He may not please all his friends; he certainly does not expect to satisfy his opponents. But his record leaves nothing to hide; nothing of which he need be ashamed. That Mr. Hyman will be elected by a large majority—no matter who his opponent may be—need not be questioned. And his election, apart altogether from questions of public policy, will give general satisfaction to the people of London. To the Liberals of all classes the results of the election will, of course, give nothing but pleasure. And there will be very many Conservatives, who, though from party loyalty they may do their best to defeat him, yet when the voting is done, and the result announced, will find little bitterness in their own defeat, for they will feel that the city's interests and the city's reputation will suffer, and that London has chosen a representative of whom all may be proud.

North Renfrew.
It may be questioned whether, as a matter of party tactics, it was wise to allow the North Renfrew election trial to go by default, in consideration of Mr. Dunlop, the Conservative member, resigning his seat. That corruption was prevalent in the election must have been patent to all concerned. The fact that Mr. Dunlop admitted having spent himself over $7,000, showed that more money was spent than could possibly have been spent for legitimate purposes. The further fact that Mr. Dunlop failed to go up for the preliminary investigation, and submit to an examination as to his own knowledge of what occurred, showed conclusively that he knew something he did not want to tell. In the interests of public morality, the whole affair should have been thoroughly inquired into, and light thrown upon the practices of Mr. Dunlop and his supporters. And, as we have already intimated, we think it would have been to the advantage of the Liberal party. Of course, no one will for a moment argue that Conservative corruption in election justifies any wrongdoing on the part of the Liberals. But, as the Conservatives have been declaiming very loudly of culpability on the part of some supporters of Liberal candidates, and claiming in effect—and in despite of past revelations—that nothing of that kind was to be found among their people, an exposure of what had been done in North Renfrew would have shown their utter hypocrisy more plainly. Nothing revealed in election trials tells as much against the Liberal party as, in the past at least, they have done against the Conservatives. And we think it would have been as well to have given another striking illustration of the rottenness of Conservative methods, instead of letting the matter drop. Of course, the one object of the trial, the vacation of the seat, was accomplished just as well, and there is no doubt that the petitioner preferred to rest satisfied with that, rather than go to the enormous expense involved in bringing up witnesses for the trial. And as long as the parties to a trial have practically to pay their own expenses, we cannot blame them, if they rest satisfied with the vacation of the seat, and decline to foot the bills necessary in the public interests.

Mr. Gladstone's suggestion of a possible union of the Northern States with British North America, has been conditional on the severance of the north from the south, and that event not having occurred, nobody need be much frightened by the revelation. But Mr. Gladstone's opinions about colonial policy were those of a British statesman generally in his time, though he did not, like Disraeli, regard the colonies, and Canada in particular, as "millstones round the neck of England," of which he would presently be rid by their independence. The imperialists seem to think that imperialism not only is alone right, but has been alone right from the foundation of the world; so that even the most illustrious statesmen, if they held any other view, must have been traitors or poltroons. Yet at present they have got no further in making imperial unity intelligible to us than the avowed fact which we now plainly read in one of their organs that their commercial policy contemplates the exclusion of only of foreign, but of British goods. The publication of Mr. Gladstone's suggestion proves to the people of the United States that he was not, as they have been led to believe, their enemy, but their friend. To this high imperialism may object; but surely it is no treason.

glect to read the President's letter of acceptance entire, inordinately long though it be. It is indeed worthy, and in some parts bestows all its tediousness upon the reader relentlessly; but it reveals character. Self-confidence is said to be one of the requisites of the statesman, and that at least Mr. Roosevelt possesses. With what pitying condescension does he expound the common law to Judge Parker! And there is not a tinge of false modesty in his calm assertion that "no other government in the world" has stood for humanity more heroically than his own. Furthermore, "nowhere else in recent years has there been as fine an example of constructive statesmanship" as that shown in the Philippine Islands. Your Lord Cromers, your Sir George Greys and your Barle Freres, Austria in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Germany in the Reichland, and France in Algiers, must all take a back seat! Throughout, in fact, the President reveals in swathing superlatives.

[New York Tribune.]
How are children so often able without injury to swallow such sharp things as pins, needles, tacks and bits of glass? The secret, as disclosed by Mr. Albert Exner, of Vienna, lies in the fact that, when a pointed or sharp object enters the stomach or intestine, the part touched contracts and puckers, and the object is thus held in place. At the same time it withdraws itself in such a manner as to form a little pocket and gradually twists the object around so as to turn the edge of point away, pushing the thing along.

Welch, manager, arrived in London to work on the power lines to be laid over the road from London to the city. The work is being rushed, and the power lines are being laid in a very short time.

MOSS-NICKS.
A pleasant event took place last week at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. Frank Nicks, Bridgeport, when the marriage of Miss Edith Nicks, of London, to Mr. Edward A. Moss, of Buffalo, was celebrated. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Hobbs, and the bride was attended by her mother, Miss Edith Nicks, and her sister, Miss Edith Nicks. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Edward A. Moss, and his sister, Miss Edith Nicks. The ceremony was a very pleasant one, and the bride and groom were both very happy.

APPRECIATION OF LONDONER.
The Hamilton Herald of Friday had the following regarding Mr. Thomas G. Mitchell's concert in that city: "Mr. Mitchell played a well-selected programme of classical pieces in a pleasing manner. His playing was of the quiet kind; in fact, was too quiet at times, which made it lack color, but he has a sympathetic manner that lent considerable charm to his playing. His fingering at times was rather uncertain, but when it is remembered that he has been blind since he was 7 years of age, any fault of technique might easily be excused. His manner of learning new pieces presents great difficulties. He has the notes readily seen that he has been under great difficulties, and the surprising thing is that he plays so well. He plays a transcription of 'Nearer My God to Thee,' written by Neander My God, some very pretty harmonies in it, and also an antique religious composed by 'Nearer My God to Thee.' This, however, was more by an arrangement of 'The Sweet Bye and Bye' than an original composition. His playing was much enjoyed and he was applauded, and was quite deserving of the appreciation that was shown."

The reason the crowd continues to go to W. B. Lawson's, 198 Dundas street, for boots, shoes, suit cases and other lines of leather goods, is that they get the best goods for the least money that can be procured. 21c

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"Princess Chic," the favorite comic opera, which has so often delighted Londoners, was the attraction at the Grand Opera House last evening. The audience was greeted by a fair-sized number of the people who produced it. The time here are of an inferior class, and are not capable of doing the production justice. The leading lady, Miss Caroline Bollen, while refined and accomplished, is not the stamp of woman to carry out a part in which she must ever feel they have been mistaken. In the role of the princess, and her failure throws a wet blanket over the performance. Saturday evening the manager, Mr. J. F. Burdell, dispensed with Miss Bollen's services, and her place will be taken by a Miss Brant, of New York, when the performance is put on at Brantford tonight.

The best man in the present cast is Mr. Jack Henderson, who was seen here last season with the Wilbur Opera Company, and who now plays the part of steward to the Duke of Burgundy.

The Amusement Question
From a Church Standpoint

Interesting Topics Discussed by City Clergymen—The Essence of Joy.

In the Dundas Street Methodist Church last evening, Rev. Mr. Scott, the pastor, delivered a sermon on the subject of "The Amusement Question," which will be long remembered by those who heard it. In the course of his remarks the speaker used the word of amusement, and the other word was recreation. Just as the word of amusement is used in the same sense that it was in the direct opposite to the serious pleasure. The most suitable word of all was "recreation." Rev. Mr. Scott said that the various kinds of sport should be cultivated, as long as they were simply a form of recreation and not an end in themselves. Music, which was refining and elevating, should be cultivated. The brain as anyone else, and it should be cultivated. The brain as anyone else, and it should be cultivated. His comedy work is excellent, and it is a treat to see him work. Mr. Lynna Wheeler, who takes the part of the Marquis de Clevermont, has been with the company the past three years, and is a tenor of no little ability. All the other male members are ordinary.
Miss Jane Vender Zee, the rage to the princess, sang a couple of numbers in a sweet contralto voice, and proved herself the finest vocalist in the cast. This is her first season on the stage, and she bids fair to make an enviable reputation for herself in the future. Miss Caroline Lum, as the daughter of the steward to the duke, has a very pleasing appearance, but her voice is away below par.
The costumes and staging was not what it was a year ago.

The Allan Villair-Pearl Lewis Company closed a very successful three nights' engagement at the Grand Opera House last evening, and delighted a large Saturday evening, and a large audience with a clever interpretation of a clever little "The Woman Worth Winning."
The production of "The Heart of Texas" at the London Opera House on Friday night was the best of the engagement. Mr. Villair and Miss Lewis appeared in leading roles, and proved themselves refined and capable artists. The company carry special scenery for this play, and it was well staged and well put on. The play itself is well written, and is interesting and entertaining throughout—in fact, vastly more so than the usual run of melodrama. Miss Lewis, who is a handsome young woman, took the part of Texas Raymond, very effectively, and carried out every situation in a finished manner. Her support of Mr. Villair, who appeared as Jack Hartley, was fully up to the standard of Mr. Villair's work, which was "A Good Good." Some very fine vaudeville was introduced between the acts.

"THE REAL WIDOW BROWN."
Laugh and the world laughs with you—weep and you weep alone. You may be feeling blue and in the mental slumps tonight, but just step into the Grand and see "The Real Widow Brown." That lady will hold a reception, diversified by beautiful songs, captivating dances, by an assembly of some of the most clever comedians and comedienne on the face-comedy stage.

"THE SILVER SLIPPER."
The "Silver Slipper," which met with great favor upon the occasion of its presentation here last season, returns to the Grand tomorrow night, and the many new promised features in the way of songs, music, dances, scenery and costumes, which characterized the second edition of this famous spectacular attraction, will be unfolded. The thread of the story will be the same, but the new numbers written especially by the famous author of "Florodora," Mr. Leslie Stuart, are many, and are based on his own inimitable style. The English dancing girls, who created a perfect furor with this attraction, are retained, and in addition to the sensational "Stumpage Dance," will be seen in the "Students' Frolic and Valse Lente."

The fire-box is evenly proportioned to the size of the oven, so there is no more fire needed than the size of range demands—no waste heat. The arrangement of flues and drafts concentrate the heat in the stove—it doesn't lose itself up the chimney.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus With One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Small Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne County, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Small Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy instead, saying that he had what sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Certain fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one 25-cent bottle cured the three of us." For sale by all druggists.
