THE PILOT SUPERIOR HEAT FOR FARM HOUSES

There are many reasons why the Pilot Superior is the choice of so many Canadian Farmers. It is particularly well adapted to the requirements of the average farm home, and because of its unique construction has placed the convenience of a safe, sanitary and beautiful furnace heat within the reach of those folk who appreciate its remarkable qualities. The farm home must have a cool cellar so that the perishable products stored there will not be spoiled. Furthermore the average farm homes are not constructed along lines that permit the installation of furnace requiring a lot of network of pipes and registers.

The Pilot Superior with only one register and no pipes, its insulated casings, large feet door, properly placed to be the best warm air furnace for farm homes. Prices range from $150 upwards according to size.

We also handle HECLA, SUNSHINE and other makes.

WHAT KIND OF TIMES

People are fond of referring to the prices of 1914, as if they wanted them back. Do they, or more correctly, ought they to wish them back? People who do not pause to think would be sorry if they were. At the outbreak of the war the dollar was worth, say, one and one-quarter bushels of wheat, which is probably the real standard of value in Canada. From 1917 to 1919, when the Government did its heaviest borrowing the dollar was the equivalent of only half a bushel. Today the dollar buys one bushel of No. 1 Northern—and the government has still to pay back its borrowings. To return dollar for dollar sounds fair enough, but one and one-quarter bushels for half a bushel seems ruinous. And so, the lower the cost of living falls, the harder shall we have to tax ourselves to pay our war debts.

When such facts as these are faced the shallowest mind must see that it is not the 1914 prices that are wanted any more than the 1914 wages. What that means is that this is the fact that if wages are higher the cost of everything that wage earners will buy will be higher too. There is no getting away from this condition and labor has been taught this inevitable fact during and since the war. It is to securing a reasonable medium that every effort should be bent. Have we by any chance reached it now?

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY ACT, 1914

"No person shall sell, offer or have in his possession for sale: Any butter moulded or cut into prints, blocks, squares or pats, unless such prints, blocks, squares or pats are of the full net weight of one quarter pound, one pound, one half pound, or two pounds at the time they are moulded or cut."

Farmers and others who are making and offering butter for sale should take care that they are living up to the law as per the above extract from the Dairy Industry Act, 1914. If a Government Inspector

On Saturday, the eighteenth day of March, 1922, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon the Clerk of the Council of the said Municipality shall at the Council Chamber, Schuett's Hall, in the said Village, sum up the number of votes given for and against the said By-law.

AND TAKE NOTICE that the names of lease holders and others neglecting to file in my office the declaration required by Section 265, S. S. 3 of the Municipal Act, at least ten days next preceding the day of such polling, will not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

FINED FOR INTOXICATION

Wilfred Burns, who resides on a Brant farm near Hanover, was fined $20 and costs, or a total of $37.00, by County Magistrate McNab in the Town Hall, Walkerton, on Wednesday morning, for being intoxicated in a public place. According to the story told to the prosecution, Burns came up to our townsman, Joe Abel junk dealer, at an auction sale at Mr. McGeah's farm near Hanover on Saturday, Jan. 28th, and commenced kicking and slapping Joe's horse. The Walkertonian resented this, and a fight ensued in which the local son of Israel is stated to have got somewhat the better of the argument by hitting Burns over the head with a set of beam scales. The affair got to the ears of License Inspector Beckett of Owen Sound, who has Bruce County under his wing for booze enforcement purposes, with the result that Burns, who is stated to have been under the influence of liquor at the time, was relieved of some perfectly good currency by the Walkerton Court on Wednesday for being in a lit-up state in a public place. As Burns didn't appear in person at the Court, but rather pleaded guilty to the inebriated charges through his solicitor, Mr. O. E. Klein, steps are being taken to compel him to reveal where he got the stuff that put such an edge on him. Provided he don't divulge the source of his supply sooner, a Court will be held in the Town Hall here on Monday next at 2 p.m. to elicit this information.—Herald & Times.

DID SHE HAVE THE LAST WORD

Don't the ladies delight in putting one over us? A gentleman of this town arrived home last Saturday evening, sat down in his arm chair, and tried to interest himself in a magazine, while patiently waiting for his wife to finish with the liquor. Of course if she happened to see anything that was in any way detrimental to men in general and her husband in particular, she had to read it out to him. This particular evening she looked up and by the gleam in her eyes, he knew she had found a particularly fine tit-bit. "Listen," she says "to this." "In China the head of the household is either the mother or mother-in-law, the authority of whom is undisputed." "Well," says her husband, "I don't see any difference between China and Mildmay." The atmosphere suddenly became frigid.

A PUBLIC SPIRITED CITIZEN

Daniel Knechtel of Hanover, the well-known furniture manufacturer, has made a generous offer to the town in which he has always taken a very profound interest. His son, J. S. Knechtel, has agreed to sell to Daniel Knechtel, his present residence in Hanover, worth some $30,000 or $40,000, and Daniel Knechtel has offered to donate this splendid home and grounds for a public hospital. In addition to this he has agreed to contribute $5,000 towards the equipment of the hospital, and further, to contribute towards its maintenance from year to year. The offer has been favorably considered by the municipal Council and no doubt the necessary steps will be taken for the acceptance of the gift. Mr. Knechtel's whole life has been characterized by exemplary industry, high integrity and zeal for the welfare of his fellow citizens.

ALL THAT IS GOOD IN BEER

A MOST STRENGTHENING BEVERAGE

THE MYSTERY OF THE GREEN RAY

By William Le Queux

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

The outbreak of war sends Ronald Ewart, a young London barrister, to the Highlands to say good-bye to his fiancée, Myra McLeod. On the train he meets Hilderman, who calls himself an American and a stranger in those parts, but later Ewart finds that he has built a hut on a cliff above the falls opposite General McLeod's lodge. While fishing in the river Myra is suddenly blinded by a flash of green light. Gen. McLeod tells Ewart of a strange experience at the same place, known as Chemist's Rock. Hilderman is very curious as to the cause of Myra's blindness. The famous London oculist holds out no hope and Ewart, after taking Myra home, brings Dr. Garnesk from Glasgow. In the meantime Sholto is also blinded, then chloroformed and stolen. Garnesk asserts his belief that Hilderman knew of Sholto's affliction. The next morning the two men find footprints and keel-marks on the beach, and the name-plate from the dog's collar. Ewart telegraphs for his friend, Dennis Burnham.

CHAPTER X.

"You don't really believe that there is anything curious about the river itself, do you?" I asked. "We have agreed that some human agency is responsible for the tragic affliction that has fallen upon poor Myra. In that case we are not safe anywhere."

"That's true enough," he agreed, "but everything that has happened so far has happened here. Sooner or later, no doubt, the operations will be extended to some other region, but at present we know there is a possibility of our being overcome by some strange peril between the Chemist's Rock and Dead Man's Pool."

"Well, as we don't know how to deal with the danger when it does arrive," I suggested, "suppose we see as much as we can from the banks. I will go up the centre of the stream and report to you, if you like, but you stay here."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," he cried. "I can't imagine what we can possibly learn by standing on that rock, but if either of us goes, we go together, or I, in my capacity of barrister unattached, go alone."

"Naturally, I naturally applaud such generous sentiments, and at the same time refuse to countenance his proposal. So we sat among the heather, some distance above the bank, and awaited developments."

"It is four-twenty now," said my companion presently, looking at his watch. "If anything is going to happen it should happen soon."

"Don't you think it was mere coincidence that Myra's blindness and the General's strange illusion occurred about this time? Why should this green ray only be visible between four and five?"

"It hasn't really been visible at all," Garnesk pointed out. "Miss McLeod saw a green flash, and the General saw a green rock, which had taken upon itself the responsibilities of transportation. That's all we know about the green ray, except the green veil that Miss McLeod tells us of. I wish I knew what we did expect to see."

"Exactly," he replied solemnly. "By the way," he added after a pause, "do you see anything peculiar about the rocks or the pool between four and five? I mean anything that you couldn't notice at any other time of the day?"

"Nothing at all," I answered despondently. "It is pleasant here then than at any other time—or was until we came under this mysterious spell."

"Why is it pleasant?" he asked.

"It is just then that it gets most sunshine," I pointed out.

of the past few days had told on my strength. The nerves, sheer nerves, Garnesk must give me his arm to the ledge, and I should be at rest, and I should be all right in a few moments. It was nerves that was all. But if Garnesk were not very quick about it I should have burst a blood vessel in my brain before he reached me. I was my own enemy, to have swayed to twice its size. Garnesk, as I looked, seemed to be farther off than ever, a tiny speck in the distance.

The singing in my ears became a rushing torrent. It was the waterfall I told myself; how stupid of me! Of course I should be all right in a minute. But my friend must hurry. I collapsed on the rock and gasped for breath. I looked for Garnesk. Still he seemed to be as far away as ever, and he scarcely seemed to be moving at all. I must tell him to be quick. It was simply nerves, of course; but I mustn't let them get the better of me, or what would poor Myra do? I staggered to my feet to call Garnesk. "Hurry up; I'm not well," I framed the words in my brain, but no sound passed my lips. I struggled for breath, and called again with all the power I could muster. I could not hear myself speak. And then I understood! My knees rocked beneath me, the river swirled round me, a rowan tree rushed by me in a flash, and as I fell sprawling on my face among the heather, a thousand hammers seemed to pound the hideous, stinging truth into the hearing pulp that was once my brain.

CHAPTER XI.

How the Unexpected Happened.

When I came to myself I was lying with my head on the ground, and Garnesk's arm. My coat and collar were on the ground beside me, and my head and shoulders were dripping with water. "Ah!" said my companion, with a sigh of relief, "that's better. You'll be all right in a few minutes, I expect. Take it easy, old chap, and rest."

"Where am I?" I asked. "Good heavens!" I exclaimed, as I heard my own voice, and sat bolt upright in my excitement. "I thought I was dumb!"

"Well, never mind about that now, old fellow," Garnesk advised. "We'll hear all about that later. Shut your eyes and rest a minute."

"All right," I agreed, "pass me my pipe and I will."

Garnesk laughed aloud as he leaned over to reach my coat pocket.

"When a man shouts for his pipe he's a long way from being dead or dumb of anything else," he said.

Truth to tell, I was feeling very queer. I was dizzy and confused, but I felt that I wanted my pipe to help me collect my thoughts. So I lay there for some minutes quietly smoking, and indeed I felt as if I could have stayed like that for ever.

"I must have fainted," I explained presently, overlooking the fact that Garnesk probably knew more about my ridiculous seizure than I did myself. "I don't know when I did a thing like that before."

"Well, I hope you won't do it again," said my friend fervently. "It's a thing to make a hobby of. And don't you come near this infernal river any more until we know something definite."

"You mean that the place has got on my nerves," I said. "I suppose it has." "I'm very sorry."

"Do you know when I did a thing like that before?" he asked, "or would you rather wait till we get up to the house?"

"Oh, I'll tell you now," I agreed readily. "I mustn't say anything about this at the house. So I told him exactly how I first came on it."

"When did it first come on?" he asked.

"When I heard you shout, and jumped up to see what it was. By the way, what was it?"

"Well," he replied, "we'll discuss the matter if you wouldn't mind releasing my arm?"

"My dear fellow," I cried, sitting up suddenly, as I realized that he was still propping up my head, "I'm most awfully sorry."

"Now then," he said, as he lighted his pipe and made himself comfortable, "we'll go into the latest developments, and you'll remember what made me rush off and leave you there?"

"I remember saying something about the sunlight, and you suddenly dashed off."

"Tell you the truth, I had very little faith in the theory that at this hour, above all, the spook of the Chemist's Rock was active, until you pointed out that only about that time is the whole of the river course up to the rock, and the whole of the rock itself, flooded with sunlight. Then, when you made that remark, I suddenly felt that I ought to be on the cliff on the look out for this unknown yacht. We connect the two together in some way which we don't yet understand, so I meant to go and have a look for the ship. I saw nothing of any importance until I shouted to you. Just then I was looking through the glasses at the shore. I turned them on the landing-stage and along the beach, and I had just lighted on the bay where we explored this morning when suddenly, for half a second, so, all the shadows of the rocks turned a vivid green, and then as suddenly resumed their natural color again."

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed. "Green again! Can you make anything of it at all, Garnesk? I'm sorry I'm such a duffer as to faint at the critical moment, when I might have been of some assistance to you. What in God's name can it all mean?"

"I'm no further on," he replied bitterly. "In fact, I'm further back."

The Pines.

Down aisles of white in tall solemnity they raise their stems to reach the winter sky.

A white dove whose arches strong and high— who an organ's rolling melody; low like the far off murmur of the sea.

And now like summer winds that wander by, Careless some frail flower that blossoms night.

Do wait its fragrance over hill and dale.

Never they waver, though the years be long, Never they falter, though the dawn be far.

But lift serene to heaven their steps— see! And ever through their houghs there runs a song

Joyous and sweet, unto the vesper star, Hung like a jewel against the sunset fires!

—Elizabeth Soolland.

The Leopard in the Cabin.

Africa isn't quite so wild as it used to be, said the gray-haired missionary, smiling. The narrowest escape I ever had was on board ship—a thousand miles from Cape Town. I lay in my berth with my clothes on, trying to get my strength back after a spell of seasickness, when I saw a big leopard standing in my doorway. At first I thought it was some one's pet and spoke to it. Growling and flattening its short sharp ears, it crouched as if to spring. Even then I thought that it was playing, but I was in no condition to play with it. "Lie down," I said sharply.

It sprang and vanished. The flight of it was so swift and silent that for a moment I thought it had gone through the porthole above the upper berth. Then I saw the sag of the springs and knew it had landed in the berth. A moment later its long tail switched back and forth over the edge, then, turning, it put its great ugly head within two feet of my face. Its mouth was open, and I could see a cavernous red gullet and teeth as sharp as sabre points. I tell you that was as close as I ever want to come to a live leopard. I yelled and burrowed under the bedclothes.

A calm heavy voice with a slight German accent sounded at the door. "Be not afraid. Keep on talking with it, but don't move." The man was one of the keepers. I learned later that there were other animals on board.

It was easy enough to lie still, but it was not so easy to talk to the beast. The muscles of my throat seemed paralyzed, but at last I managed to repeat hoarsely, "Lie down! Lie down, I say!"

The cage the leopard had escaped from was brought and set in the doorway; but before the beast could be induced to leave its perch two men had to go over the side of the ship and prod it with long iron bars thrust through the porthole. Before it finally entered the cage it turned on me again, and I never yelled so loud in my life. The men with the bars were doing the best they could, but they could not quite reach the leopard as it crouched on the floor. I think my preacher's voice saved me. Snarling, but brightened at the strange uproar, the beast backed away into the cage, and the keepers slammed the door in its face.

Pat's Luck.

At a mine one day, John was walking round a turning. Looking up he saw an Irishman searching eagerly for something.

"What is it you're lookin' for?" said John.

"Oim luckin' for me waistcoat," said Pat.

John laughed and replied, "Wah, man, you've got it on."

"Shure, now," Pat replied, "an if ye hadn't told me, O! would have gone home without it!"

The Spinster's Age.

The census registration officer had learned the spinster's name, occupation and parentage and at last broached the dangerous subject of age. Then this conversation took place:

"Have you Misses Hill, who live next door, given you their ages?" she snapped.

"No, Miss Brown."

"Well, then, I'm the same age as they."

"That will do," murmured the officer, and he proceeded to fill out the space with these words: "Miss Brown, as old as the hills."

To Women Who Do Their Own Work: Suppose you could save six minutes every day in washing pots and pans—two minutes after every meal. In a month, this would amount to a saving of three hours of this disagreeable but necessary work. This saving can be made by using SMP enameled kitchen utensils, as their smooth sanitary surface will not absorb dirt or grease. No scraping, scouring or polishing is needed when you use Diamond or Pearl Ware. Soap, water and a dish towel is all you need. Ask for

AND GIRLS ROSY CHEEKS

They Can be Had by Keeping the Blood Rich and Pure.

Every woman—every girl—wants rosy cheeks. They mean not only beauty, but good health. When a woman's blood is scanty or anemic her color fades, she looks debilitated, is short of breath, and her heart palpitates after slight exertion. Sometimes this trouble is accompanied by severe headaches, or, in the back or sides. This condition is entirely due to weak, watery blood, and can only be cured by making the blood rich, red and pure. For this purpose try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which act directly upon the blood, and to this end give new health and strength to sickly people. Mrs. Isaac W. Howell, Pettitwood, N.B., tells of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her as follows:—"For some time I had not been feeling well. I had been gradually growing weaker, and found it continually growing harder to do my work. I was very pale and had frequent headaches. I consulted a doctor and took his medicine for some time, but it did me no good. I found myself growing weaker, and taking to my bed. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had nearly lost faith in all medicine, I got a supply and began their use. After a time I found they were helping me, and I gladly continued taking them, and ultimately found that the troubles that had afflicted me had vanished. I am giving this statement in the hope that my experience will be of benefit to others. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Culinary Curios.

Visiting a Chinese restaurant recently, the writer had a dish made of chicken stewed with sweet almonds. And, curious as it sounds, the mixture was a very good one. Has it ever occurred to you how peculiar are the mixtures of food which we find on our plates every day of our lives? Who, for instance, was the first person to eat currant jelly with roast mutton? No one knows, and on the face of it, it seems absurd to eat jam with meat, yet no person can assert that the result is not excellent. Apple sauce with sage is more natural, for the acidity of the apple corrects the extreme richness of the pork. In Europe you will find stewed oysters served with pork and apples, and omelets with veal. Although both these combinations may seem startling, there is no doubt about their being good. In Canada cranberry jelly goes with roast turkey, and here again the result is all that can be desired. A real Indian curry, which we practically never see in this country, is made with fruit as well as onions, mixed with meat. Try a curry made with apples and currants, and you will be delighted with the combination. A roast goose is a poor thing without a stuffing of sage and onions, but the name of the talented inventor of this combination is lost to history. Have you ever tried cheese with cold apple pie? This is a Yorkshire dish, which deserves to be more popular than it is. We all eat cucumber with cold salmon, but how many are aware that fennel sauce adds greatly to the excellence of hot hollid salmon. Every country has its own peculiar mixtures of savouries and sweets, and many of them are most delicious. Marshal Foch, during his recent visit to the United States, travelled 13,000 miles, and made 164 speeches to 10,000,000 citizens.

Lord Bryce's Hobbies.

Among the prized trophies of the late Viscount Bryce were fishing rods, alpenstocks and academic gowns. Lord Bryce was always fond of angling. He never attained such fame in this pursuit, of course, as Lord Grey, but he was a keen fisherman nevertheless, and had a valuable collection of fishing rods. Whenever Bryce saw a river he fished in it, whether it was the Nile at Portograd, the Seine in Paris, the Manzanares in Madrid, the Humber in Toronto or the Potomac in Washington. Next in line to his fishing rods was his equipment for mountain climbing. It is this hobby of Lord Bryce that made him a popular hero in the Rocky Mountain district, and especially in the city of Calgary. For two years Bryce was president of the Alpine Club, the ancestor of the Alpine Club of Canada. As for university gowns, Lord Bryce had an unequalled collection. He held degrees, actual and honorary, from colleges and academies all over the world. From Oxford he had gowns of Trinity and Oriel; gowns, too, from Heidelberg, Turin, Brussels, Naples, Petrograd, Stockholm, Toronto (Trinity College), Rome, Glasgow, Michigan, Edinburgh, Padua, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Leipzig, Buenos Aires, Adelaide, Brisbane. These gowns and hoods were of every color and shape. The weight of them, if worn all together, would have borne any man to the ground, and the colors rivaled those of the spectrum.

WINTER WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little ones. The weather is often so severe that the mother cannot take the little ones out for an airing. The consequence is that baby is confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms; takes cold and becomes cross and peevish. Baby's Own Tablets should be given to keep the little ones healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Why Clocks on Socks.

What we describe to-day as a "clock" on a sock or stocking is nothing more than a piece of embroidery, which appears to have been placed in position in order to make the ankle of the wearer look more slender. Originally it was designed to cover a natural defect in the weave. In the days before the invention of the present type of machinery, which works automatically and turns out a completed stocking every few seconds, hosiery was woven in two separate pieces. When completed, the sock or stocking was joined together on either side of the ankle, a process which naturally left an unsightly seam. In order to conceal this, a decorative piece of embroidery was placed over the seams. The operation, on account of the stitch used, was referred to as the "clocking" on the stocking. The necessity for an ornament of this kind has long since passed, but the "clocks" remain as a reminder of an old custom.

Topsy's Flock.

Topsy, a half-grown shepherd dog, has a flock of her own. It is an unusual flock, too, for every one of the members of it has, not wool, but feathers! The mother of the flock is a Plymouth Rock hen, but Topsy is the shepherd. Whenever the chicks scatter she will run round them and gradually bring them nearer the clucking mother. One day some of them had wandered off, and Topsy, much distressed, was making every effort to round them up, when a passer-by who thought she was going to hurt them struck her with a folded paper. At once the dog set up an agonized barking, and finally her mistress hurried out to explain. Left alone again, the little dog brought the chicks into close formation and delivered them to the hen in a fairly compact group. Topsy was never trained to do that sort of thing and has never been with older shepherd dogs. Apparently "blood will tell."

Thomas Fiddle was a very learned young man. At school he shone like all the stars and planets lumped together. A sixty candle-power lamp wasn't in it beside the burning flame of his genius. But his friends were frightfully disappointed when he refused to accept the degree of Doctor of Divinity. One of them tackled him on the subject. "Ah,—well," replied the genius, "it's bad enough to be named Fiddle, without being Fiddle, D.D."

The child of a father over fifty years of age has ten times as good a chance of becoming eminent as he would if his father were a younger man.

MISS RAY ELATED OVER FIND

MONTREAL GIRL SAYS EVERY ONE OF HER TROUBLES HAVE DISAPPEARED.

"It was certainly a happy surprise to me when I saw Tanlac restoring my health," said Miss Yvonne Ray, 3 Hotel de Ville St., Montreal. "For a year and a half before I got Tanlac my health was simply awful. I slept so fitfully I gained no real rest and I woke up mornings feeling all tired out. My nervous system just collapsed and I would jump at any little noise. I frequently turned so dizzy and sick I could hardly stand—the smell of food cooking. My condition seemed to get worse constantly and I worried all the time. "Well, the first thing Tanlac did for me was to give me a splendid appetite. Then all my troubles gradually disappeared, my nerves got better and I could enjoy a good night's sleep. My whole system is now in excellent condition and I'm enjoying the best of health. Tanlac is certainly a wonderful medicine." Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. —Adv't.

Union Village, Vt.—"I was weak and nervous and all run-down. I could not walk across the floor without resting and I had been that way for weeks. I saw your advertisement in the paper and after taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt the good it was doing me and I took seven more in all. Before I finished I was able to work nine hours a day in a steam laundry. I cannot say too much in favor of your medicine. I trust all sick and suffering women will take it. It has been two years since I took it and I am strong and well." —Mrs. L. A. GUMMANN, Union Village, Vermont.

Many women get into a weak, nervous run down condition because of ailments they often have. Such women should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of trouble. Good health is necessary and this splendid medicine will help you to keep it.

Surnames and Their Origin

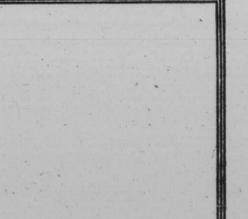

MacLAREN. Variation—MacLaurin. Racial Origin—Scottish. Source—A given name. Here is another Scottish family name derived from a given name which the progenitors of its bearers brought to Scotland from Ireland in the ancient days when the Dalriada Gaels crossed over and by conquest and settlement won the dominance of the Highlands. The MacLaren's, or MacLaurins are traditionally descended from "Loarn" or "Laurin," who was the son of Eric, one of the Dalriadic chieftains who settled in Argyle in the sixth century. This "Loarn" is the same chief who is said to have given the district of Lorn its name. The clan, for the MacLarens once constituted one of the leading clans in the Highlands, was for a long time a big factor in Scottish history. As early as the reign of King Kenneth MacAlpin it appears to have acquired considerable territories in Strathearn and Balquhider. In 1138 they played a prominent part in the Battle of the Standard, under the leadership of "Malise," the Earl of Strathearn. But the clan was reduced from the status of proprietorship over its land in 1138, when the earldom of Strathearn became the property of the Scottish crown, though they retained a status as perpetual tenants. But its fortunes received a setback from which they have never recovered. In 1745, when it took part in the uprising which attempted to put the Stuart line, in the person of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," back on the throne of England and Scotland.

GRANT

Variation—Grand. Racial Origin—Scottish; also Anglo-Norman. Source—A locality; also a characteristic. The most obvious explanation of the name of Grant is that it is a variation of Grand or "le Grand," originating as a sobriquet denoting superiority or seniority in Norman-French days, and later becoming a family name in the natural growth of such nicknames. More often, however, it is traceable to a Highland Scottish source as the name of one of the clans which developed from the ancient Clan Aplin, of which group the MacGregors were the leaders. The name of the Clan Grant is Gaelic, not Norman, and as sometimes has happened with the Scottish Gaelic names, but virtually never with the Irish, it is derived from the name of a place. This place was an extensive moorland near Strathpey known as "Grantach" or "Slabh-Griannais." The clan itself traces back in its chieftainship to Gregor Mor MacGregor, who, it is claimed, settled in that section about the twelfth century. Gauge Needs No Packing. A Swedish inventor has patented in seventeen countries a faucet which requires no packing, accurate grinding of the fitting surface of the valve preventing leakage. Largest Camera. The largest camera in the world has been built by United States geological survey experts, weighing 3½ tons and making photographs a yard square.

FORTY-EIGHT YEARS MARRIED

Rev. and Mrs. J. K. Schwalm, of Mildmay, passed their 48th anniversary of their wedding on Feb. 3, 1922. Mr. Schwalm is seventy, and Mrs. Schwalm is sixty-seven, years of age. While not in the best of health at present, we all hope they will be spared to celebrate their Golden Wedding two years hence. The following are a few lines, sent by the second youngest daughter, Mrs. P. E. Bishop, Los Angeles, Cal.

To Mother and Father, Feb. 3, 1922
You've passed by many milestones
Together, o'er life's way,
To-day you've reached a distant one
On this your wedding day.

Now as you think of days gone by May glad sweet peace come o'er
you,
And may but Joy and Happiness
Fill the days that are before you.

May His tender love surround you
Sweet content be yours always,
May His loving arms enfold you
Throughout each declining Day.

TENDERS WANTED

Charles Harris, in the printing business, got slightly annoyed over a letter from a doctor who wanted bids on several thousand letter-heads, different sizes, different grades, and different colors, and wanted the printing form kept standing. So Charley took his typewriter in hand and wrote:—"Am in the market for bids on an operation for appendicitis, one two or five inches incision, with or without ether, also with or without nurse. If appendix is found to be sound, want quotations to include putting same back and cancelling order. If removed, successful bidder is expected to hold incision open for about sixty days, as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gall-stones at that time and want to save the extra cost of cutting." The clipping does not say so, but no doubt the doctor was good enough apart to surrender, send in his order, and trust the printer to be reasonable in his prices.

UNION STOCK MARKETS

TORONTO

Cattle receipts were comparatively heavy at the Union Stock Yards for the opening market of the week, but a good clean-up was affected. An export demand was lacking and this served to weaken the price trend for heavy cattle, but choice butcher offerings sold unchanged. Of the above offering about 700 were billed through and the balance had mostly passed over the scales at an early hour in the afternoon. There was really little of feature to the trade, which inclined to be drab from the first hour, but became more active after that.

The market did not show any sign of strength and the price range on medium to good butcher cattle was fairly wide. The bulk of the offering was made up of fair to good quality animals. Heavy steers were a little hard to move, but a few lots brought $8 per hundred. The top for a load of choice butcher cattle was $7.25, in fact, several lots moved between $7 and that price. Odd lots of choice animals brought as high as $7.50 per hundred. Cows met an active demand from $5 to $6 for the best, while bulls moved a little slower. There was no stocker or feeder business, and only the best springers and milkers were in demand. The cattle billed through were from Chicago to Boston and shipped by packing houses there for export. The fact that a fairly good sized run of cattle was well cleaned up in yesterday's market should cause the shippers to rush too many cattle to market this week as the demand is still a limited one.

Few sheep and lambs were offered for sale. The offering totalled close to 700, but of these 600 were billed through to Buffalo from the head of the lakes. Some small lots of lambs brought around $13 per hundred with the rest around $12.

A few choice sheep brought $7, with the general run about $6.50. While sheep and lamb prices were about steady, calves were inclined to be lower. The best offerings moved between $11 and $13.50 and medium from $8 to $10.

Further strength was in evidence in the hog market, odd sales being made to outsiders as high as $13 per hundred on the fed and watered basis. Most of the sales were around $12.75.

The next Ontario general election promises to be unusually interesting. Not only will the old parties struggle with the Farmer-Labor combination bring many and peculiar cross-currents, but the Hydro radial issue will further complicate the situation. Finally, the prohibition question may enter the arena and relegate all the others into the background.
