Kearns-Wilkinson Wedding

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. C. L. Poole on Thursday afternoon of this week when Adelia Ruth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wilkinson was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Kearns, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Kearns, of Palmerston, only near relatives of the young couple witnessing the ceremony. The home was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and asters for the happy event.

The bride, who was unattended, was attired in brown cation crepe and carried a bouquet of sunburst roses. After the wedding supper, the young couple left on the 7.30 train for Toronto and other points, after which they will make their home in Hamilton.

The many beautiful and costly presents testified to the high esteem in which both the young people were held by their many friends.

Bacon Hog Show—A Big Success

The first bacon hog show ever held in Canada was conducted Wednesday at Flamboro Station under the auspices of the East Flamboro Agricultural Society. There have been hog exhibits at the county fairs, but never before has there been a show devoted exclusively to the porker. The results, as judged by Judges Toole, MacDonald and Burns, were as follows:

Boar and two sows owned by members of Wentworth Bacon Hog Clubs—Lloyd Daniels, Ancaster, A. W. Cameron, Mountsbury, Wm. Attridge, Waterdown, F. J. Bradshaw, Carlisle, W. Francis.

Boar any age—Geo. Richardson, Milton, Lloyd Daniels, F. J. Bradshaw, A. W. Cameron, W. Attridge.

Sow over one year and under two years—Lloyd Daniels, Geo. Greenless, Carlisle, Lloyd Crawford, Campbellville, Geo. Richardson, Frank Gray, Carlisle.

Sow over six months and under one year—Burton Bros. Carlisle 1st and 2nd, John Bennett, Geo. Alderson, Carlisle, Burge Gunby, Mountsbury.

Sow under six months—R. G. Reid 1st 2nd and 3rd, Frank Johnstone, Waterdown, John Mount, Mountsbury.

Load of six Bacon Hogs—Lloyd Allison, Clarence Gunby, Burge Gunby, R. G. Reid, W. Battenham.

Two Bacon Hogs—R. G. Reid, G. Richardson, Wm. Livingstone, L. Allison, Burge Gunby.

Four Hogs under six months—R. G. Reid, L. Daniels, John Mount, Burge Gunby, Geo. Greenless.

Champion Sow—Jas. Beaton
Champion Boar—G. Richardson
Champion Hog—R. G. Reid

Following the show about one hundred of the exhibitors motored to Carlisle, where the festive board was laid in the Carlisle Community Hall. The ladies of the community served an excellent repast. W. H. Drummond, president of the society, was in the chair and introduced the speakers, R. W. Wade, of the department of agriculture, Prof. Toole of the agricultural college and a number of others.

During the evening, community singing, led by W. G. Marritt, with Mr. Stewart Mitchell at the piano, was indulged in. A vote of thanks to the ladies who provided the excellent repast was moved by Wm. Attridge, and heartily accorded.

The show was declared over for the year when the banquet broke up at about 11 o'clock, and the guests departed after a satisfactory day and an instructive evening.

THE INTRUDER

By Rene Bizet

Translated by

William L. McPherson

I was eighteen years old. For the first time I was free. My parents had allowed me to make a trip alone through the country. For a whole month I could realize my dream of rambling over the Breton roads, my sack on my back, without worrying about the length of the march, sleeping under the stars and eating my bread on the bank of a stream.

Sometimes I was tired and conditions of travel afoot were not favorable. Thus one oppressive July Sunday I regretted that I had not stopped at Sarzeau when it grew dark and the sky clouded over. I had still three good leagues to go to the next village. The southwest wind blew in squalls across the country, forcing me to stop to catch my breath. I was not discouraged until the rain began to fall in torrents, blinding me and almost strangling me. The lightning illuminated the horizon. The thunder and the ocean mingled their tumult so completely that I feared any minute I should reach the edge of a cliff and stumble into the waves below. I had given up hope of finding shelter.

Suddenly I saw on my right a dark mass in the shadows. It must be a house on the side of the road. Who would be cruel enough to refuse hospitality to a drenched wayfarer? I felt for the door. I discovered it and rapped on it. There was no answer. A lightning flash revealed a low, thatched cottage. I rapped again. Not a sound in reply. Then out of irritation than anything else, I seized the knob and turned savagely. The door opened. I entered with a sigh of relief. Finally I had a refuge.

But where was I? What was going to happen? I drew my lamp from my pocket and walked ahead. There was a long passageway—then to the left a furnished room. I called aloud to awaken the occupants. No voice responded. The house was empty. Since I was the sole possessor for the night and there was little chance that the owners would return in such weather, I decided to install myself as comfortably as possible and go to sleep. I found copper candlesticks on a mantel-piece. I lighted the candles. In the room were chairs, a table and a peasant clothes closet. But all the furniture seemed to have been chosen by a city person with rustic taste rather than by country people.

"It is a lucky chance which brought me here," I said to myself. "At dawn I shall get out, for after that I might not find a welcome."

The tempest raged outside. I was so tired that I closed my eyes as soon as I sat down on the bench which I intended to make my couch, and I thought I was dreaming when I heard these words:

"What are you doing in my house?" I gave a start. No, it was not a dream. Two steps away was a woman who, a candle in her hand, was examining me curiously.

"You came to rob me?" She spoke so audaciously and had the air of being so little frightened by my presence that I did not know what to answer and contented myself with looking at her closely. She was a young woman and very good-looking, as far as I could judge, for the water was streaming from her clothes. Her locks, escaping from under her hat, were matted against her cheeks. But even so, nothing could alter the purity of her profile, and I could see her wide blue eyes glitter like two pale sapphires.

"Well," she continued, "are you afraid?"

As she said this she drew a revolver from her pocket. I jumped up.

"But, mademoiselle—" "Don't be afraid. It is not for you. It is for me. So I am going to give you a piece of advice. If you want to keep out of trouble and avoid being accused of a crime, go away. I intend to kill myself. And if they know that you spent the night here—"

"I was sure that she was not joking. She expressed herself calmly, without bravado and toyed with the weapon in her hand as she might have toyed with a pendant to her necklace.

"You want to kill yourself?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"For reasons which don't interest you."

"Nevertheless, what justifies you in killing yourself?"

"No—no moralizing. If you please. There is something so ridiculous in our dialogue at this hour and in this place, that I almost feel like leaving you here and killing myself outside on the road."

"But it is raining too hard. You want to shoot yourself, but you are afraid of the rain!"

"It is true. And now, go. I beg you, leave me here alone. You don't know me. What difference does it make to you if I kill myself? At my age, when one is tired of life, it is because one has suffered in love. The man whom I loved has just deserted me, in spite of my tears. I am indifferent to everything. I can neither smile nor weep. I ask your pardon for sending you away. But it must be so. Continue your journey. Think of me until the dawn. And swear to me that you will never tell any one what you have seen."

She put the weapon and the candle on the table. She pushed me out and slammed the door violently behind me.

I know that I ought to have resisted, that I ought to have defended her against her folly. But I had neither the time nor the strength to do so. We had talked but a few minutes, and the scene which I had passed through was so strange and so unexpected that out on the road I hardly knew if it had not been all a dream. I walked ahead abstractedly in the rain and mud. I paid no attention to the howling of the wind. I tried to keep on my feet and to plunge through the darkness. I remembered nothing.

Stumbling against a stone and almost falling over it restored me to my senses. My memory came back. There was a thatched house and a young woman. There was the revolver—and death. There was the drama which I was allowing to be played through. I turned about and ran toward the house. I shouted aloud my remorse, as if men could hear me. I hurled myself at the door. The flames of the candles threw fitful shadows on the wall. I listened. All was silence. I saw her stretched on the bench on which I had lain. I had arrived too late.

I drew nearer and heard the sound of regular breathing. I saw her beautiful hair in a golden network about her closed eyes. Her hands lay on her breast like flowers. The revolver was still on the table. Weary, exhausted, no doubt, she had been overcome by sleep before death appeared.

I put the weapon in my pocket. I blew out the candles. I went out again into the storm, this time joyously, leaving my Sleeping Beauty. I was not, under my vagabond cloak, enough of a Prince Charming to awaken her with a kiss.

Character.

It is astonishing what power there is in the intense, absorbing realization of what is true, good and real. The holding of this intense thought of reality, of goodness, of our divinity, strengthens our character and reveals to us consciousness of the possession of omnipotent power. Character can only grow by what it feeds upon; if we take only divine thoughts into our minds, the character will be divine, but every foolish, wicked thought mars the web of character, and the wicked threads stretch themselves across the web, as a perpetual testimony of our folly. Remember that your success is a child of your thought. If your thought is mean and contemptible, your success must be of the same kind.

—O. S. Marden.

If you have ceased to smile, you have lost out in the game of life, no matter what your bank account may be.

Hill Born.

I have grown weary of this languid land;
Sick of the low horizon line that flows
Like a great sombre river; sick to death
Of rose and laurel, eucalyptus, palm,
Brooding in lavish sweetness. I am mad
For the harsh glory of my own far hills,
For the stern masculinity of home.

They do not have sunrise or sunset here;
Rather the shameful day slinks cowering in
O'er gray waste of waters and gray land,
Under a muted, melancholy sky.

And never does it burn away in one Swift, splendid burst of sanctifying flame
As day once did, but shambles grayly past
Under the mantle of the leper fog,
To the dull stupor of a starless night.

O God—for splendid spaces in this dawn—
For glimmering vastness—for the wind that swings
Tumultuously in from starry horizon—
For the tempestuous magic of a sky
Torn into shreds of fire—and for the hush
Of aspen leaves black on an amber heaven—

For all the mighty pageantries of day
That made life epic large, I am athirst.
They have been music in my memory;
They will go echoing with me till I come Home to my hills.

Feet that have trodden granite
Can never be content with milder ways.
Eyes that have held high converse with the stars
Cannot be tamed to blinking servitude in molelike burrows. Hearts that have followed the wind
Beat with a winged insurgence till they spur
The timorous flesh to skyward trails again.

And mine to-night is wild with all rebellion;
Blind to all other beauty—hungering only
For hill horizons and a coyote moon—
Sage in my nostrils—milling, maverick stars—
And then the flame clad riders of the dawn Loping across the sky with hoofs of thunder.

Interpretation in Music.

Every work of art emanates from an interesting and absorbing idea which seems to demand expression in the most artistic and complete form. Especially is this the case in music, the most intimate and the most introspective of all the arts. This magnificent art depends for its effects upon channels of its own. While the painter and the sculptor speaks directly to their public through a completed work, the musician on the other hand must depend upon an artistically trained interpreter. His work is not finished when he places it upon paper. Its value may be raised or lowered depending upon the character and the training and the talent of the one who elects to perform the work. In the work of musical art there slumbers under the veil of notes and staves a sleeping beauty awaiting the magic touch of the interpreter to bring all the loveliness to life.

The interpreter must first of all be a real artist, otherwise it will be impossible for him to liberate the magical vibrations of the music. In the work of the creative musician there must naturally be more dependence upon intuition and individuality, while with the interpretive artist greater stress is laid upon the extent of his interpretive knowledge. What is of greater importance to the interpretive artist is that he shall know not merely the composer and his work, but shall comprehend the nature of the musical receptivity of the public mind for which he must perform.

The Great Disillusion.

Disillusion, alas! comes to all of us. My first disillusion, says Mr. Arthur Porritt in the Best I Remember, came when I was a boy of nine years, and every detail is burned upon my memory.

At my day school in a Lancashire town the boys had a mad craze one year for a particular form of sweets. All our pocket money went on a sort of sherbat, which we ate dry with a spoon, and which we called "kali." It was sold in little flat wooden boxes, and there were several varieties, lemon, orange, pineapple, and so forth. Opinions varied sharply as to the merits of the various kinds. One boy praised lemon kali; another cared for nothing except orange; and a third vowed that all other varieties of the sweet were simply unactable compared with pineapple kali. We quarreled and almost came to blows over the relative merits of the flavors. We formed groups of orange kali boys and felt bitterly toward the avowed champions of lemon and pineapple kali. In fact, we boys blindly elevated the kalis into real party issues.

Now the summer holidays came while our differences of opinion were at a height, and I went to visit relatives in an East Lancashire town. While there I had the supreme joy of being taken over the factory where the kalis were made. On my round I entered a room where four girls in white overalls were filling the familiar flat wooden boxes, which were already labeled; there was a mountainous pile of the toothsome powder on a huge round table. I looked at the boxes: they bore colored labels, yellow for lemon kali, red for orange kali and green for pineapple kali. But all the boxes were being filled from the same pile! Aghast, I asked one of the girls if a horrible mistake was not being made. "Aren't you putting orange kali into a lemon kali box?" I asked in a tone that must have sounded horror-struck.

"Oh, no," she replied; "there's no difference in the kali; the difference is only in the labels on the boxes."

I left the factory, a sadly disillusioned boy.

About the House

HERE'S THE PIN.

"Mother," said little Herbert, "will you please pin my collar tight? Here's the pin." Sure enough, in his small hand he grasped a large safety pin with which to more closely confine the collar of his play coat.

"Why, what a dear, thoughtful child," exclaimed an acquaintance. "I think you have the most helpful children I ever saw. Almost any boy twice Herbert's age would expect mother to get the pin, herself."

"Well," admitted Mrs. Briggs, "it was seeing just how helpless many children—and adults as well—are that made me determined to try and teach my children to be self-reliant."

"I began with Linda as soon as she could toddle. 'Bring mother your mittens and we will go for a walk.' 'Bring your warm coat and we will take a ride.'

"One day Linda came to me with her buttonless little play jacket. 'Boke,' she announced. 'Where is the button?' I inquired. 'Go get mother the button and we will sew it on again.' In a moment she was back with the button.

"I placed a workbasket where the children could reach it and they began bringing me necessary repairs—thread, blunt scissors, needlecase, and the like. They quickly learned where to get wrapping paper, twine and paper bags.

"I believe this training is teaching the children to be more patient and thoughtful. Many times I have watched them when a toy broke or some article of clothing gave out. Instead of casting it impatiently aside or running to me for help, they almost invariably look it over thoughtfully. 'We'll have to have hammer and nails, Linda,' Herbert will announce. 'I'll get them.' Or, 'Mother can sew that shoestring together if she had linen thread. I'll get it, Herbert.'

"Just now this is a great help to me. But I believe that in the future it will be the children who will reap the reward."

MOTHER AND THE STREET.

"I can never, never ask anyone to come and see me here!" Evelyn declared chokingly.

Donald looked queerly at his sister; then he glanced down the street and whistled under his breath. It was not a pleasant outlook. The houses looked as if they never had been cared for. Nearly all had cheap lace curtains that varied in shade from what Donald called "pale dirt" to iron gray. Each house had a yard, but most of the yards were bare, and the chief use of the fences seemed to be to hold all the torn papers that blew down the street.

"So far as I can judge," Donald declared, "this neighborhood needs mother's garden about as much as any place very well could."

"Mother's garden!" Evelyn echoed. "You don't mean mothers going to have a garden in this place!"

"She certainly is!" replied Donald. "What's more, the game of mother and mother's garden will be worth watching. Better fall into line, Evelyn; you'll miss heaps of fun if you don't."

"Fun!" Evelyn retorted scornfully. "It didn't seem that anyone could go in and out of a yard several times a day and not see what was happening in it; yet Evelyn went in and out and saw nothing new. Once or twice, to be sure, she noticed Donald digging up a border or seeding bare spots, but she went by quickly without specially remarking what he was doing. Once or twice too she caught her mother talking over the fence to one of the neighbors, but each time Evelyn went straight into the house.

One Saturday when she was downtown shopping she returned earlier than she had expected. At the corner of the street she stopped; something seemed to catch at her heart. Had there been an accident? The yard in front of her house was full of people. When she became calmer she saw that they were nearly all children, and that each was holding a purple or yellow pansy.

"Chestnut Street Dooryard Association! Notice any difference, sis?" She turned at the sound of her brother's voice. Donald put his hand under her elbow. "It's time this blind streak passed, young woman. Now walk up Sunday." Then she smiled.

NEW USES FOR DOOR BUMPERS.

Those wooden door bumpers that screw into the wall back of the door extending out three or four inches with a hard rubber tip at the end are useful for other than their original purpose.

Screwed into the bottom of the legs of an ordinary dining chair transforms it into a very acceptable high chair for the child, not yet large enough to use a chair of usual height. Some housewives prefer such an arangement to the usual high stool for working at a table or sink since the back of the chair offers extra support to the worker.

In the same way a low work table and down the block and tell me what you see."

At heart Evelyn was a good sport. She admitted what she might have admitted days before: almost all of the yards had been raked up; some had the beginnings of gardens, and here and there clean white curtains were hanging behind freshly washed windows.

"That's after three months of living near mother!" said Donald.

"I think," Evelyn said slowly, "I'll have Lina Craig come and see me can be successfully raised so as to prevent unnecessary stooping. If the bumpers are stained or painted to correspond with the article with which they are used their appearance is good, for at a casual glance a visitor might likely suppose that they had been put in place when the chair or table was made.

If the sink is so low as to be inconvenient for dishwashing fasten four of the bumpers to a square frame or platform as a stand upon which to place the dishpan. This makes a strong, steady foundation and, a fact that will appeal strongly to the careful housekeeper, the rubber tips will not mar the enamel sink.

Yet another use for them was found when the kindergarten set became too low for the children to work at in comfort while the adult-size table and chairs were still uncomfortably high. Bumpers proved to raise the low tables and chairs to just a suitable height for the youngsters.

By Robson Black, Manager Canadian Forestry Association.

At the present time every voice is raised and every ambition stung to win new population. New population costs. Immigration is expensive salesmanship. While every conservationist wants to see new settlers brought to Canada, his sense of proportion makes him ask why we cannot spend at least a couple of extra dollars to block the emigration of Canadian families driven out of the forest areas by the plague of human-set forest fires. District after district has been abandoned, whole counties have decreased in population, railway lines have lost the bulk of local traffic, towns have been boarded up, and for the sole reason that a forest resource which should have been perpetual has been swept off the ledger of Canadian assets by the recklessness of Canadian citizens.

Whose fault is it that the forests of Canada run down hill? We as citizens own 85 per cent of the forest lands of the Dominion and are directly and personally responsible for what is done with the only crop that can grow on these our lands. Every civilized country on earth looks to the state with its self-perpetuating life, its providential relationship to its people, to look after the forest properties which, unlike wheat or potatoes, require as much as a century to mature. The state is the obvious and only efficient custodian of the rights of future generations in a very slow growing but utterly essential national resource.

Before an intelligent and helpful interest on the part of the public can bring about a measure of complete forest protection we will have to jettison two or three fetishes, all of which are predominantly false and yet fix themselves upon succeeding generations. One of these fetishes is that the forest resources have been "given away" or otherwise alienated. They never were and are not to-day. All but fifteen per cent of the timbered acres of Ontario are under the control of the Ontario Government as concerns measures of conservation. The right to cut timber is leased on ten million acres and the remainder of eighty million acres is still held by the Crown. What is the meaning of a lease to an operating company? That 42,000 workmen in Ontario shall be allowed to draw a regular week's pay, and that 36 million dollars shall be allowed to circulate as wages each year and that 123 millions received for forest products in Ontario shall be enjoyed by every business interest and every workman in the province. The so-called timber baron cuts down logs worth five dollars. Out of that he hands over $4.50 as wages and for materials and the remaining fifty cents he splits between interest on his investment and taxes to the Ontario Government, aggregating $4,400,000 a year. Strangely enough we visualize the motor car industry as the "life blood" of Oshawa and Walkerville and a dozen other towns, and the "meal ticket" of thousands of workmen, and at the next instant discuss the lumber business as the sinecure of a quartet of "barons" into whose purse pour untold millions wrung from a wretched peasantry driven to build two-car garages with high price boards. More men have left the lumber industry in the last ten years than have entered it, and most who moved out were not financial gainers for their experience.

You ask what is to be done to give Canada a permanent forest, and the immediate and only comprehensive answer is Keep out the fires. We citizens burn ten times the trees that the lumbermen have cut, and since the earliest days of Canadian history have put a torch to 600,000 square miles, as against about 100,000 square miles utilized by all the lumbermen from coast to coast.

Please let us lay off the cry for tree planting to produce timber until we look into a much more inviting proposition. An acre of human-made plantation of spruce is a lovely sight. How few of us know that there is in Canada a plantation of just 50 million densely packed acres of young forests set out by Nature without human contrivance or expense. They lie in patches from coast to coast. That 50 million acres is richer than all the gold mines for its gold grows and repeats into endless generations. All that plantation asks is that fire be kept out. If that is done that young growth will be able, under careful management, to meet all Canada's needs for the future and provide a great surplus for export.

—AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

The Russian Press.

The Russian people complain that readable and interesting newspapers in their language have ceased to exist. All they have is an "elaborate machinery for spilling paper." An observer in Russia writes that under the present government the newspapers are merely the mouthpieces of a small despotic group; the really able journalists have given up their profession, and the daily run of printed matter is little more than a lot of colorless propaganda. Before the revolution the Moscow Ruskoje Slovo had a circulation of more than 1,200,000; to-day the combined circulation of all the soviet press is no more than that.

Good All Year Egg Production.

S. W. Knife.

Now is the time to get your birds into winter quarters. They should be fully matured by this time, and to start off in the race for high egg production for the year, should have a certain amount of surplus flesh and fat. There is no particular secret in getting late Fall and Winter eggs. The essential factors are good stock, well matured (not mongrels, as they cost more to keep and pay less dividends). Hens should be confined from early in October throughout the winter in a well ventilated, dry, frequently cleaned and disinfected house, free from draughts. For each bird allow 3 1/2 to 4 sq. ft. floor space. Provide straw litter about 6 inches deep for them to exercise in. Feed grain in the litter night and morning, and above all, feed at regular times, not 7 a.m. to-day and noon to-morrow.

Laying mash should be available to the hens at all times. They never eat too much of it. Feed greens, mangles, cabbage, etc., daily, if possible.

Remove any sick birds at once. Keep drinking vessels clean. Gather your eggs often and market them before they get old. And you will soon have the pleasure in seeing your profits come in.

Vision.

A drift of smoke across the dim horizon,
A single bird that flutters high and free,
The glory of the sunset as it dies on
The opal tinted splendor of the sea.
The thousand voices of the twilight, calling
Across a silence that is soft and deep,
The magic sound of far off water falling,
And then—at last—the perfect peace of sleep!

Though others may drift over many oceans,
May hear the jungle heart throb through the hours;
May join in frenzied wars and strange commotions,
May wander far afield to pluck vague flowers,
They only search the thing that is my treasure,
Adventure's spirit—that is life to me—
The glowing dreams that come to do me pleasure,
The wistful bits of romance that I see.

A Plain Talk.

The ancient Egyptians worshipped the River Nile because it seemed like a god to them.

It was the overflowing of the Nile every year that enriched the surrounding valley, made their crops possible, and saved them from starvation. The overflowing of the great river not only gave the people their sustenance, but it made them prosperous.

Just as the overflowing of the Nile fertilized and enriched the Nile Valley, so it is the life overflowing with tolerance, love, optimism, that enriches humanity with its abundant harvests.

Unless your life overflows with kindly deeds, good will, good cheer, with unselfish service, unless you give as well as try to get, there will be barren wastes all about you, so far as you are concerned.

BRITISH WARSHIPS TO TOUR WORLD.

Five light cruisers of the type shown in the picture are to start in November on a tour of the world in which outlying parts of the Empire will be visited. The ships will include the Delhi, the Dauntless, the Danae, the Dragon and the Dunedin. They will be commanded by Sir Hubert G. Broad.

CANADA'S OPPORTUNITY HAS ARRIVED, SAYS BRITAIN'S WAR PREMIER

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.—Before two large audiences which excelled in enthusiasm and exceeded in numbers the attendance at any of his previous meetings in this country, David Lloyd George delivered his final messages to the people of Canada to-night.

He said that, while he left Canada with regret at not being able to make a complete transcontinental trip, he looked forward greatly to contacts he hoped to establish in the United States during the remainder of his visit.

This city gave the British war Premier a mighty welcome. Thousands were at the railroad station when the Lloyd George special train pulled in. Other thousands lined the thoroughfares traversed by Lloyd George and his party on a sightseeing tour of the city, while throngs assembled about the Government House, where the British statesman, Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd George are the guests of Sir James Atkins during their brief stay in Winnipeg.

The bigger of the two meetings addressed by Lloyd George to-night was held at the Olympic Rink, which seats more than 5,000 people. This was held under the auspices of the Canadian Club.

Simultaneously the address was heard by another big audience at the Assembly Hall of the Industries Bureau, the speech being transmitted between the two halls by radio. After his address at Olympic Rink the distinguished visitor went over to the Industries Bureau, bowed, and spoke briefly, receiving a big ovation.

Before his two audiences here he again eulogized Canada for her great contribution to the cause of the allies during the war, and congratulated her people on the proud position the country, as a result, would occupy in the future. "A mighty Empire within an Empire." Even more than at previous gatherings he has addressed, he stressed her responsibility in connection with the settlement that must follow before the world could be said to be really at peace.

On the eve of his departure for the United States Lloyd George, in his final speech in Canada, declared for the first time from the public platform, that Great Britain and the United States by standing together could guarantee the peace of the world. The declaration evoked tremendous enthusiasm in an audience of 5,000 or more to whom he delivered his final message on Canadian soil at the huge Board of Trade auditorium.

The British war Premier recently expressed the same sentiment in an interview, but in none of his public addresses in the Dominion had he made mention of the United States in the connection he did to-night.

"If the British Empire and your great neighbor to the south, the United States, stand together, the two can guarantee the peace of the world," he said. "The mere fact that they are there is in itself some measure of guarantee. Even now every statesman who is out for mischief has one eye on the loot and the other on the United States and the British Empire. He is trying to divert their attention, to drive them apart, but, thank God, the British Empire is a unit. That one fact emerged out of the great war, and until the war they did not know it."

"You have an opportunity in Europe such as probably no new country has received in cycles. The United States had its great opportunity in Europe through the Napoleonic wars. The same condition prevails in Europe to-day, even to a greater degree. The war was the most terrible ever waged in this world. There will be millions of people looking toward the West—the land of hope, the land of abundance, the land of assured peace—as a home for themselves and their children's children. It depends upon Canada whether she makes as good use of those conditions in Europe as the United States did a century ago."

LLOYD GEORGE PRESENTED WITH KEY TO CITY OF MONTREAL
Britain's famous war premier was almost mobbed, time and time again, by enthusiastic Montrealers during his visit to the Metropolis. In the picture he is seen with Mayor Mederic Martin, during the presentation of a Key to the City of Montreal, and a civic address. At the right is Dame Margaret Lloyd George.

CANADA WINS FIRST AT U.S. DAIRY SHOW

Ontario and Quebec Win Three First Prizes in State Herd Competitions.

A despatch from Syracuse, N.Y., says:—Canada proved its merit as a great dairy country on Friday by winning three blue ribbons at the National Dairy Exposition. The Province of Ontario won in both Holstein and Jersey state herds, and Quebec was first in Ayrshire state herds, winning against the finest cattle the United States possesses.

The results were as follows for the three classes for which Canada was entered:

Holsteins: First prize, Ontario; 2, Connecticut; 3, New Jersey; 4, New York; 5, Michigan; 6, Ohio.

Jerseys: First prize, Ontario; 2, Connecticut; 3, New Jersey; 4, Massachusetts; 5, New York.

Ayrshires: First prize, Quebec; 2, New York; 3, Wisconsin; 4, Vermont; 5, Ohio.

Every state herd contest was won by Canada.

The triumph of Canada brought the competition in the cattle ring to a rousing finish in the Coliseum.

First Consignment of Niagara Peaches Well Received

A despatch from London says:—Interest has been aroused in the fruit trade here by the first experimental consignment of Ontario peaches to the country by Niagara Peninsula growers. About 1,400 cases of peaches have arrived at Southampton in good condition, and London, Liverpool, Manchester and Glasgow have become the centres of distribution for the fruit.

The office of the Agent-General for Ontario informs the Canadian Press that the experiment of shipping peaches to Great Britain has been fairly successful and worth continuing.

Another consignment of Niagara Peninsula peaches is expected in a few days.

Navigation Season Closes in Yukon Territory

A despatch from Dawson City, Yukon, says:—The Dawson season is closed and the last steamer for outside has departed. The steamer White Horse left for White Horse Friday afternoon.

Tens of thousands of caribou are trekking southward for the winter. Bands of them have passed through the outskirts of Dawson City, and hunters have got a plentiful supply. For a hundred miles down, bands of caribou can be seen swimming the Yukon River and sometimes surrounding canoes and steamboats as they pass.

New French Law to Improve Birth Rate

Paris, Oct. 14.—Louis Marin, Vice-President of the Chamber of Deputies, plans to obtain a law at the next session making it a crime punishable by one year's imprisonment and loss of citizenship for Frenchmen to desert their families.

This is one of the measures planned to improve the birth rate in France.

POWERS IN ACCORD ON REPARATIONS

Belgian Plan Meets Favor—Minimum of German Indemnity 50,000,000,000 Marks.

Paris, Oct. 14.—The British Government's acceptance of the suggestion of the Belgian Foreign Office for a reference of the Belgian reparations plan to the Inter-Allied Reparations Commission as the basis of a concrete plan in the pending negotiations for a settlement of the question of German reparations was received at the Foreign Office to-day.

This completes the general accord by all the Allies—Italy having given her assent to the proposal Saturday—and the Reparations Commission will proceed officially to study the Belgian plan with a view to ascertaining whether it can be used as the basis for a solution of the problem of reparations when the negotiations concerning them are resumed.

The broad outline of the plan provides for a minimum of 50,000,000,000 gold marks as Germany's indemnity, to which is added 82,000,000,000 marks in "C" bonds.

The plan gives 3,000,000,000 gold marks as the amount in yearly payments Germany can make. It gives the figures as arrived at, together with all technical documents. By reorganization of the German railroads along the lines elaborated, according to the plan, they could be made to yield one billion gold marks alone, while other monopolies, such as tobacco, wines, beer, mineral waters, sugar, salt, matches and coal, if managed as the experts advise, would provide an additional 1,500,000,000 gold marks. To these figures, the plan asserts, may be added 500,000,000 gold marks as the fruits of eventual participation by the Allies in German industrial enterprises.

The Belgian Government further suggests that as soon as the Reparations Commission has taken full official cognizance of its plan, a conference of the head of the Allied Governments be called.

It was stated here to-day that the Belgian proposal meets with the full and complete assent of the French Government, which was the first of the Allies to send an affirmative reply to Brussels.

BRITAIN'S SEA POWER IN MEDITERRANEAN

Flotilla of Newest and Most Powerful Destroyers Turned Over to Admiral Brock.

London, Oct. 14.—The striking force of British sea power is being slowly transferred from the North Sea and the Atlantic to the Mediterranean.

The Iron Duke, the former flagship of Admiral Jellicoe, will be turned over October 24th as the flagship of Admiral Sir Osmond Brock, commanding the fourth battle squadron, which is Britain's Mediterranean fleet. The eighth destroyer flotilla, composed of the older destroyers, have been ordered home from the Mediterranean, and the fourth flotilla, containing the newest and most powerful destroyers, has been substituted.

Thus British sea power is relatively higher in the Mediterranean than it has been since the redistribution early in the century. At present, out of seventeen modern battleships, Britain is keeping six in the Mediterranean, out of sixteen new light cruisers six are in the Mediterranean and two destroyer flotillas out of nine are also there.

Although usually regarded chiefly as an agricultural province, Alberta is making excellent strides in her manufacturing activities. No less than $60,000,000 is now officially reported as being invested in this way in the province; while, for the last year reported, the value of products was placed at $98,244,000.

Prince May Become King of Canada

A despatch from London says:—The Daily Sketch says: "Curious rumors are in circulation about the Prince of Wales and Canada. His Royal Highness is known to be very much attached to that country and he showed in his leave-taking how much he regretted his visit had come to an end. He remarked, however, that he would soon return and prolong his visit as much as possible."
"This has given rise to much speculation as to whether a change in the Constitution is in contemplation. There are those who seem to foresee great developments within the Empire at no great distance of time, and one of them is the raising of Canada from the status of a Dominion to that of a Kingdom."

NEWFOUNDLAND'S CLAIMS IN CANADA
An area of 520,000 square miles in Quebec and Labrador is under dispute between Canada and Newfoundland, and the negotiations are drawing near to a conclusion after almost twenty years' preparation. After the conquest in Canada by Wolfe, Newfoundland was granted the "coast of Labrador," and now claims the lands drained from the rivers of Labrador. Rich forest lands, mineral areas and fisheries have brought the dispute to a head. The map shows the area claimed.

HEALTH EDUCATION

BY DR. J. J. MIDDLETON
Provincial Board of Health, Ontario

Dr. Middleton will be glad to answer questions on Public Health matters through this column. Address him at Spadina House, Spadina Crescent, Toronto.

A fistula, or passage, means an opening which normally does not exist, communicating between the surface of the body and one of the internal organs.

Thus a gunshot wound that penetrated the stomach and left an open track behind it to the surface, would be a fistula of the stomach. There are also fistulas of the lachrymal ducts and salivary glands, but the commonest of all, the one that is always meant when that word "fistula" is used, is that which communicates between the bowel and the surface—strictly speaking, a fistula in ano. How this arises is not always quite clear. Sometimes an abscess forms next the back passage and either breaks or is opened by the surgeon. This is known as an ischio-rectal abscess, and very commonly leaves a fistula behind it as a legacy.

Fistulas are also rather liable to develop of their own accord in consumptives. It has also been suggested that they may arise by some foreign body such as a fishbone, penetrating the bowel and setting up a track of inflammation outside it. In any case, the fistula forms and presents itself as an accomplished fact to be dealt with. Such a fistula may be of three different kinds. It may run as a narrow track from the skin around the anus and be blind otherwise. It may exist as a narrow track from the bowel and be blind toward the skin externally. Or thirdly, it may run as a narrow track from the skin externally to the bowel internally, and this is by far the commonest type—a complete fistula.

Do not run away with the idea that a fistula is a big thing. It is in one sense, because it always needs an operation before it can be cured. But actually, in mere size, it is a very small thing, and very difficult to find. A patient is not likely to discover it himself. But there are certain symptoms of which warning should be taken. There is generally pain in the region of it and tenderness. There may also be slight streaks of blood and pus, and there is a general sense of discomfort. Of course, these symptoms are generally set down by the patient as piles, but though piles are very common, they are not painful unless they are inflamed, and with piles there is always a lump, sometimes of considerable size, either inside or outside. What is the treatment of a fistula? Here, more than anywhere else, surgical treatment is essential. It is the only treatment. Otherwise the fistula will continue forever. No drugs and no palliative treatment are of the slightest use. An anaesthetic must be given, and the fistula laid completely open, and allowed to heal from the bottom of it. This usually means a month in bed. There is no risk attached to it, and the cure is absolute and permanent.

I lay stress on the necessity of this surgical cure because many people go on suffering pain and discomfort and ill-health indefinitely just on account of the fact that they do not have some trouble in this region properly examined, and go on and on regarding it as piles, and applying various sorts of ointments in the hope of a cure. Such "cure" will never occur. A fistula must be opened, and until it is opened the subject of it will be a semi-invalid.

The art of living is the art of keeping your poise, your peace of mind, your serenity in the midst of confusion; in keeping efficient and happy in an uncongenial environment.

Your ideal is found not in ideal conditions, but in the hurly-burly of every-day life. It is found in your daily work, or nowhere. The ideal life is generally built up in the midst of lack of ideals.

"ideal conditions," you will never get anywhere, because no such conditions exist on this earth. The only ideal you will find is in yourself; you make your own ideal. If you are ever to realize it, you must fashion it yourself; work it out in the daily routine of your own environment.

Timely Thoughts.

Genius does nothing without reason. Music may be termed the universal language of mankind.

Music has, like society, its laws of propriety and etiquette.

What is genius else than a priestly power revealing God to the human soul.

Music is never stationary; successive forms and styles are only like so many resting places on the road to the ideal.

A sympathetic recognition is assured to everyone who concentrates his art to the divine service of a conviction of a consciousness.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

May Obtain Relief by Enriching the Blood Supply.

In the days of our fathers and grandfathers, rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. It was thought that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief, but did not remove the trouble. In these days there were many cripples. Now, medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good rich red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and the more general use of these pills has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. At the first sign of poor blood, which is shown by loss of appetite, dull skin and dim eyes, protect yourself against further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have helped thousands—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from 'The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Identified.

The Wheatons had amassed a vast fortune and risen from obscurity to an enviable position in society. The daughters of the household, however, had never been able to "polish" mother to their exacting ideas, and often her remarks were a trial to their otherwise blissful existence.

One evening they were entertaining a party of friends, and conversation turned to music. Mrs. Wheaton strove to remember the name of a certain composer.

"I can't remember it to save my life," she remarked, after meditating deeply for a few moments, "and it was at my tongue's end a moment ago. As near as I can come to it, his name is Doorknob."

The girls looked aghast, and one of them said, quietly:

"You are mistaken, mother; there is no composer whose name sounds anything like doorknob."

Then, wishing to make up for her mother's deficient knowledge on the subject, she said:

"I will go over a few names: Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Wagner, Haydn, Handel—"

"That's it!" interrupted mother. "It's Handel. I knew it was something you seized with your hands."

EASY TRICKS

No. 49

Blow It Over

Bend a business card or a visiting card to the shape of the card in the drawing. Place it on the table and ask a friend to blow it over. As a rule he will go ahead and blow with the greatest confidence and to the smallest effect. It will seem that the harder he blows, the more determined the card will be to stick to the table, or merely to slide.

When you try it, of course, the card obliging flops over. If you practice a little, so that you get the knack and can do the trick without giving away the secret, you will have a trick that is certain to puzzle.

The trick is done by blowing, not under the card but at a spot about a foot or a foot and a half in front of it. Blow almost directly down so that the current of air, striking the table will be directed upward against the under part of the card and the card will behave as you want it to behave.

(Clip this out and paste it, with other of the series, in a scrapbook.)

Debt.

Someone has said that if all the tears that have been shed on account of debt could be gathered into one place they would form a Niagara Falls.

Who could ever estimate the heartaches, the sufferings, the premature deaths caused by debt!

Debt is the killer of ambition, the blighter of hopes and prospects, the murderer of love, the cause of unhappy homes, the monster that makes life, intended to be beautiful and full of promise, a hell upon earth for millions of men and women and for countless little children.

It is impossible to expect decent homecraft from people who have to live under a pall of smoke.—Dr. Harold Scurfield.

Protection of migratory birds has been added to the duties of the Canadian Pacific Railway's constabulary.

Airplanes attached to the Ontario Forestry Department are now equipped with radio sending apparatus so that they can keep in constant touch with the chief and other rangers.

There was an increase of sixty-three per cent in the number of immigrants to Canada during the last three months as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Canadian Pacific agents in Britain recruited nearly five thousand men for work in the harvest fields of Western Canada and, through lack of steamship accommodation closed their doors on as many more who, attracted by the special harvest rate, sought to enter Canada.

The branch lines program of the Canadian Pacific Railway carried out this year will bring into operation on the prairies a larger mileage than any one year since 1914. Of the 431 miles of line under construction, 281 miles will be ready for handling grain in the Fall, and of the balance, 115 miles will be ready for steel by the winter freeze-up.

A building has been acquired by the University of Toronto to be entirely devoted to the manufacture of insulin. This will be the only factory in Canada to manufacture the curative fluid in commercial quantities and, although it is manufactured in the United States, Great Britain and Denmark, the Canadian product will be sold throughout the world.

Dawson City recently celebrated the twenty-seventh anniversary of the discovery of the Klondyke. In an exhibition of Yukon products cabbages 16 inches in diameter and weighing thirty pounds, potatoes as big as a man's head, pumpkins as big as watermelons, wheat, oats and barley bore witness to the fertility of the Yukon soil. Side by side with these ranged gold nuggets, gold dust and silver bars.

Dr. James Inches, Commissioner of Police, Detroit, and a guest at the Canadian Pacific Bungalow Camp at Nipigon, holds the record for the biggest speckled trout caught in the Nipigon River this season, having captured a fish weighing 7 1/2 pounds. This catch was above the average, but a large number of six pounders have been taken from the Nipigon this season. Several years ago, and from practically the same place, Dr. J. W. Cook, of Fort William, caught the world's record speckled trout, which weighed fourteen and one-half pounds, and was more than two and a half feet long.

A record was established recently when one of the latest type of Canadian Pacific locomotives drew a train of 42 cars of newsprint, weighing more than 1,100 tons, from the plant of the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company, North Bay, to Toronto, without mishap. Ordinarily, it would have taken two passenger engines to haul such a load for the 320 miles. After proving its worth by this feat the huge engine, together with an all steel train consisting of the latest model tourist, dining and sleeping cars, and a baggage and compartment car, formed part of the Canadian Pacific exhibit at the National Exhibition at Toronto.

Nearly four thousand men were recruited by the Canadian Pacific Railway agents in England for work in the harvest fields of the Canadian West.

A sudden demand for wheat in Scandinavian markets has caused increased activity in the movement of grain through Vancouver. Four boats left with bulk wheat for ports of Norway and Sweden, marking the first direct grain shipments from the Canadian Pacific coast to Scandinavia.

The rapid increase in the export butter trade of Saskatchewan during the past year or two has been the outstanding feature of the provincial dairy industry. Recently the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries made a shipment of 25,000 lbs. of butter to China.

The export of gold bullion, gold coin, and fine gold bars from Canada, except as deemed advisable by the Minister of Finance, and as licensed by him, is prohibited until July 1, 1924, by proclamation issued in the current issue of the Canada Gazette.

Breaking all 1923 passenger traffic records, the Canadian Pacific S.S. "Metagama," westbound from Glasgow via Belfast, docked recently at Quebec, and Montreal the same evening, with a record number of 3,2 cabin and 1,078 third-class passengers.

"There are hundreds of first class farm workers in Scotland anxious to come to Canada, and the finest material Canada could wish for, but their wages are sufficient to barely support them and they are unable to accumulate funds for the passage." This is the opinion of Thomas Scotland, of the Canadian Pacific Railway Colonization and Development office in Glasgow, who recently arrived in Canada with a party of Scotch immigrants bound for the western provinces.

To J. K. L. Ross, director of the Canadian Pacific Railway, goes the honor of catching the world's record fish with rod and reel. At St. Ann's Bay, N.S., he landed a tuna weighing 712 pounds; length, 9 feet 2 inches; girth, 6 feet. Commander Ross used a Von Hofe tuna rod and reel, No. 39 thread line, with mackerel for bait. His catch took three and a quarter hours to land.

The world's wheat crop this year is estimated at 3,318,000,000 bushels, as compared with 3,104,000,000 bushels last year, an increase of 214,000,000 bushels, according to figures carefully compiled by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The estimated shipments from supply countries of the world for this year is 690,000,000 bushels, of which Canada is expected to supply 290,000,000 bushels, or about one-third.
