CHAPTER VIII.

The Senior Partner.

It was a face of almost ethereal loveliness, which through the moonlight looked up to Maggie Miller, and again she experienced the same indefinable emotion, a mysterious, invisible something, drawing her toward the original of the beautiful likeness. "It is strange how thoughts of Rose always affect me," she said, gazing earnestly upon the large eyes of blue, shadowed forth upon the picture. "It seems as though she must be nearer to me than an 'unknown friend.'" "Seems she like a sister?" asked Henry Warner, coming so near that Maggie felt his warm breath upon her cheek.

"Yes, yes—that's it," she answered, with something of her olden frankness. "And had I somewhere in the world an unknown sister, I should say it was Rose Warner!" There were a few low, whispered words, and when the full moon, which for a time had hidden itself behind the clouds, again shone forth in all its glory, Henry had asked Maggie Miller to be the sister of Rose Warner, and Maggie had answered "Yes!" That night, in Maggie's dreams, there was a strange commingling of thought—thought of Henry Warner, as he told her of his love—thoughts of the gentle girl whose eyes of blue had looked so lovingly up to her, as if between them there was indeed a common bond of sympathy—and stranger far than all, thoughts of the little grave beneath the pine, where slept the so-called child of Hester Hamilton—the child defrauded of its

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. birthright, and who, in the misty vagaries of dreamland, seemed to stand between her and the beautiful Rose Warner!

CHAPTER VIII.

Stars and Stripes.

On the rude bench by the cabin door sat Hagar Warren, her black eyes piercing out into the words, and her quick ear turned to catch the first sound of bounding footsteps which came at last, and Maggie Miller was sitting by her side.

"What is it, darling?" Hagar asked, and her shriveled hand smoothed caressingly the silken hair, as she looked into the glowing face of the young girl and half guessed what was written there. To Theo, Mag had whispered the words, "I am engaged," and Theo had coldly answered, "Pshaw! Grandpa will quickly break that up. Why, Henry Warner is comparatively poor. Mr. Douglas told me so, or rather I quizzed him until I found it out. He says, though, that Henry has rare business talents, and he could not do without him."

To the latter part of Theo's remark Maggie paid little heed, but the mention of her grandmother troubled her. She would oppose it, Mag was sure of that, and it was to talk on this very subject she had come to Hagar's cottage. "Just the way I s'posed it would end," said Hagar, when Mag, with blushing, half-averted face, told the story of her engagement; "just the way I s'posed it would end, but I didn't think 't would be so quick."

"Two months and a half is a great while, and then, we have been together so much," replied Maggie, at the same time asking if Hagar did not approve her choice. "Henry Warner's well enough," answered Hagar. "I've watched him close and see no evil in him, but he isn't the one for you, nor are you the one for him. You are both too wild, too full of fun, and if yoked together will go to destruction, I know. You need somebody to hold you back, and so does he."

Involuntarily, Maggie thought of Rose, mentally resolving to be, if possible, more like her.

"You are not angry with me?" said Hagar, observing Maggie's silence. "You asked my opinion, and I gave it to you. You are too young to know whom you like. Henry Warner is the first man you ever knew, and in two years time you'll tire of him."

"Tire of him, Hagar? Tire of Henry Warner?" cried Mag, a little indignantly. "You do not know me if you think I'll ever tire of him; and, then, too, did I tell you grandma keeps writing to me about a Mr. Carrollton, who she says is wealthy, fine-looking, highly educated, and very aristocratic, and that last makes a very nice man! I've heard so much about aristocracy that I'm sick of it, and just for that reason I would not have this Mr. Carrollton if I knew he'd make me the Queen of England! But grandma's heart is set on it, I know, and she thinks, of course, he would marry me—says he is delighted with my daughtertype—that awful one, too, with the staring eyes. In grandma's last letter he sent me a note. 'Twas beautifully written, and I daresay he's a fine young man, at least he talks common sense; but I shan't answer it—and, if you'll believe me, I used part of it in lighting Henry's cigar, and with the rest I shall light the cigars of the Fourth of July. Henry has bought a lot of them, and we're going to have fun. How grandma would scold! But I shall marry Henry Warner, anyway. Do you think she will oppose me when she sees how determined I am?" "Of course she will," answered Hagar. "I know these Carrolltons. They are a haughty race, and if your grandmother has one of them in view she'll turn you from her door sooner than see you married to another, and an American, too."

There was a moment's silence, and then, with an unnatural gleam in her eye, old Hagar turned toward Mag, and, grasping her shoulder, said: "If she does this thing, Maggie Miller—if she casts you off, will you take me for your grandmother? Will you let me live with you? I'll be your drudge, your slave. Say, Maggie, may I go with you? Will you call me grandmother? I'd willingly die if only once I could hear you speak to me thus, and know it was in love."

For a moment Mag looked at her in astonishment; then, thinking to herself, "She surely is half-crazed," she answered, laughingly: "Yes, Hagar, if grandma casts me off, you may go with me. I shall need your care, but I can't promise to call you grandma, because you know you are not."

The corners of Hagar's mouth worked nervously, but her teeth shut firmly over the thin, white lip, forcing back the wild words trembling there, and the secret was not told.

"Go home, Maggie Miller," she said at last, rising slowly to her feet. "Go home now, and leave me alone. I am willing you should marry Henry Warner—may I wish you to do it; but you must remember your promise." Maggie was about to answer, when her thoughts were directed to another channel by the sight of George Douglas and Theo coming slowly down the shaded pathway, which led past Hagar's door. Old Hagar saw them, too, and, whispering to Maggie, said: "There's another marriage brewing, or the signs do not tell true, and madam will sanction this one, too, for there's money there, and gold can purify any blood."

Ere Maggie could reply, Theo called out: "You here, Mag, as usual?" adding, aside to her companion, "She has the most unaccountable taste, so different from me, who cannot endure anything low and vulgar. Can you? But I need not ask," she continued, "for your associations have been of a refined nature."

George Douglas did not answer, for his thoughts were back in the brown farmhouse at the foot of the hill, where his boyhood was passed, and he wondered what the high-bred lady at his side would say if she could see the sunburnt man and plain, old-fashioned woman who called him their son, George Washington. He would not confess that he was ashamed of his parentage, for he tried to be a kind and dutiful son, but he would a little rather that Theo Miller should not know how democratic had been his early training. So he made no answer, but, addressing himself to Mag, asked "how she could find it in her heart to leave her patient so long?"

"I'm going back directly," she said, and donning her hat she started for home, thinking she had gained but little satisfaction from Hagar, who, as Douglas and Theo passed on, resumed her seat by the door, and, listening to the sound of Margaret's retreating footsteps, muttered: "The old lightheadedness is gone. There are shadows gathering round her; for, once in love, she'll never be as free and joyous again. But it can't be helped; it's the destiny of women, and I only hope this Warner is worthy of her, but he ain't. He's too wild—too full of what Hagar Warren calls devilments. And Mag does everything he tells her to do. Not content with tearing down his feet-curtains, which have hung there full twenty years, she's set things all cornerwise, because the folks do so in Worcester, and has turned the parlor into a smoking room, till the air of Hillsdale can't take away that tobacco scent. Why, it almost knocks me down!" And the old lady groaned aloud, as she recounted to herself the recent innovations upon the time-honored habits of her mistress's house.

Henry Warner was, indeed, rather a fast young man, but it needed the suggestive presence of George Douglas to bring out his true character, and for the four days succeeding the arrival of the latter there were rare doings at the old stone house, where the astonished and rather delighted servants looked on in amazement, while the young men sang their jovial songs and drank of the rare old wine which Mag, utterly fearless of what her grandmother might say, brought from the cellar below. But when, on the morning of the fourth, Henry Warner suggested that they have a celebration, or at least, hang out the American flag by way of showing their patriotism, there were signs of rebellion in the kitchen, while even Mrs. Jeffrey, who had long ceased to interfere, felt it her duty to remonstrate. Accordingly, she descended to the parlor, where she found George Douglas and Mag, dancing to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," which Theo played upon the piano, while Henry Warner whistled a most stirring accompaniment. To be heard about that din was impossible, and involuntarily patting her own slippered foot to the lively strain, the distressed little lady went back to her room, wondering what Madame Conway would say if she knew how her house was being desecrated.

But Madame Conway did not know. She was three thousand miles away, and with this distance between them Maggie dared do anything; so when the flag was again mentioned she answered apologetically, as if it were something of which they ought to be ashamed: "We never had any, but we can make one, I know. 'Twill be fun to see it float from the housetop," and, flying up the stairs to the dusty garret, she drew from a large oaken chest a scarlet coat, which had belonged to the former owner of the place, who little thought, as he sat in state, that his favorite coat would one day furnish materials for the emblem of American freedom!

"I'm going back directly," she said, and donning her hat she started for home, thinking she had gained but little satisfaction from Hagar, who, as Douglas and Theo passed on, resumed her seat by the door, and, listening to the sound of Margaret's retreating footsteps, muttered: "The old lightheadedness is gone. There are shadows gathering round her; for, once in love, she'll never be as free and joyous again. No such thought as this, however, obtruded itself upon Mag as she bent over the chest. "The coat is of no use," she said, and, gathering it up she ran back to the parlor, where throwing it across Henry's lap, she told how it had belonged to her great-great-grandfather, who, at the time of the Revolution, went home to England. The young men exchanged a meaning look, and then burst into a laugh, but the cause of their merriment they did not explain, lest the prejudices of the girls should be aroused. "This is just the thing," said Henry, entering heart and soul into the spirit of the fun. "This is grand. Can't you find some blue for the ground-work of the stars?" (To be continued.)

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine showed a surprising fund of information on the subject of labour unions. "How do you happen to know so much about labor organiza- tions?" I inquired. "I didn't know you were particularly in- terested in econ- omics."

"I never was," she said. "It's just our Saturday evenings."

"And what might that mean?"

"Why, I don't know as it's worth telling about," said she, "but it's lots of fun and we learn a great deal. It's this way. You know the crowd that usually drifts around to my house, or sister's, or Mrs. C's on a Saturday night. There's the sister and her hus- band and Mr. L. John and I. Marie and the man she's going to be en- gaged to, Mr. and Mrs. C., and some- times other people who happen in. Sometimes we play cards, but more often we just have a chaffing dish and talk. Well, one Saturday night at our house we got talking about woman's suffrage. We all had a lot to say, but when it came right down to it, we found that no one knew much that was definite. Someone said that women didn't need suffrage in the United States, because there were no laws that discriminated against women, and someone else said that there was a larger proportion of uneducated women than men in the country, and someone else said that it was the other way round. Finally Mr. L. said, 'I don't believe any of us know what we are talking about. Suppose we all try to find out some definite facts on one side or the other, and finish our talk next Saturday.' We did and you don't know how much fun it was to talk on something about which we really knew a little. We learned a lot too, because everyone had found out facts along different lines.

"Well, that night someone happened to say, 'Who's going to be the next president?' and sister said, 'Instead of arguing that let's have a game of whist now, and leave that until next week, so we can find out about it.' We did and that was interesting, too. Everyone picked his favorite candi- date and tried to find out something about him during the week, and I learned more about politics than I ever knew before. Another night we had a tariff discussion, and last week we talked about labour unions and the McNamars, and next week its going to be socialism and government own- ership in general. You'd be surprised to know how much fun it is and how much you learn. You'd better come next Saturday night. Be sure and know something about socialism—not just have an opinion, but know some definite facts."

My informant said that her Satur- day nights were scarcely worth telling about. I differ most emphatically. Don't you? It seems to me that there is a seed of suggestion in the story of these little informal debates which cannot be scattered too broadly.

I've no doubt that all those people got more out of one of those Saturday night discussions than they would from hearing a paper read on the same subject at some formal gather- ing. Besides, some of them would never go to the formal gathering.

Intelligent conversation is one of the greatest educative forces in the world. I wish that this Saturday night club—no, I will not call it a club, that's too formal, and the surest way to kill a custom like that is to formalize and organize it—these Saturday night conversations, I'll say, might be a suggestive ancestor for many such.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations. It's only a tenderfoot farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds his- ing for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak," the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the or- gans of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an un- failing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medi- cine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

Fads and Fashions.

There is much fichu drapery used on corsages.

Lace figures largely on frocks of all descriptions.

Buttons are lavishly used on many of the frocks.

Bright red is used to develop some stunning hats.

Current red and dark blue is a fa- vorite combination.

Lace trimmings are in some in- stances veiled with tulle.

Narrow belts of velvet ribbon of a contrasting color are seen.

Smart and serviceable are the new striped cotton ottomans.

We note some skirts a trifle wider, and much clinging drapery.

Floppies of shadow lace trim many of the underskirts of soft satin.

Eyelet-embroidery batiste is among the favorite summer materials.

Ratine, an idol of this season, promises to have a tremendous vogue.

Yokes of fine black tulle are seen in waists of white mill, batiste, lace, etc.

Small bows of black velvet are used to fasten flat colors of lace or batiste.

Terry silk has a pebbly or semi- rough surface and comes in oyster- white only.

Striped taffeta skirts with tunics of thin cloth of a contrasting color are modish.

Touchees of wool and silk embroi- dery are seen on some of the new girdles.

Strictly tailored street suits of bro- caded taffeta are shown among the newest models.

Hats with pancake crowns and double brims and little or no trim- ming are featured.

Belts of patent leather, soft moroc- co and suede are all modish. They are rather narrow.

An entirely new fabric is a fine, very thin white wool with a border of khaki-colored ratine.

Cordings of silk, satin, chiffon, braid or light-weight cloth are evi- denced on nearly all the frocks.

Corsages are swathed in tulle.

Sleeves on some of the evening dress- es are tiniest puffs of tulle.

The tight tailored sleeve is a promi- nent favorite for suits and dresses of heavy worsted material.

The white tulle bow is sometimes seen strapped across the center either with the tulle itself or a touch of color.

Taffeta is truly "the silk of the hour." Plain, changeant, brocaded, flowered and striped—all are in evi- dence.

Scarfs of black brussels net are trimmed down the center and outlined

Dressy frocks of plain and change-able taffeta are embellished with ruchings, quillings and pipings of the silk.

We see one-sided tunics, the tunic extending to the hem on one side of the skirt and on the other just covering the hips.

Fashion's latest decree is a high "choker" and cuffs to match of net. Narrow bands of black velvet ribbon trim these accessories.

The smartest French women have discarded their waist and are carry- ing flat, envelope-shaped cases of col- ored leather.

Faithful to Sir Robt. Bond

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words concerning a petition which was lately sent in requesting the Government to take the Argyle of Great Paradise and make Little Paradise a port of call. I'd like to ask those brilliant gentlemen that signed that famous scroll, what in the name of goodness put that patriotic feeling in them, es- pecially the Tory Government? They wouldn't allow its members even to speak there at last elections. They need not deny it. There was only two Morris men in the whole harbor then, and more than that, to come around barefaced asking the people of Great Paradise for their signatures to ob- tain a bridge at their place when they wanted them for this motive. Yes do, Mr. Howley, give them your support, but don't think by doing any similar act you may gain over the people of Great Paradise. You won't for they are and forever will be faith- ful to our noble Sir Robert. Hoping to see this in print, I remain,

Yours truly,

OBITUARY.

After an illness of ten months' duration these passed to his eternal reward at St. Bride's, on April 9th, Patrick Lundrigan. The deceased young man bore the pain and suffer- ings of consumption with exemplary patience and Christian resignation, and his short and well spent life fit- tingly closed with a very happy and peaceful death, fortified as he has been with all the rites of Holy Church. Amiable and unassuming, kind and obliging, Pat, as he was called, gained for him many friends. Patrick, the son of Anthony and Mary Lundrigan, was born 24 years ago. The deceased leaves one brother and five sisters—Mrs. G. Bambrick, of St. John's; Miss Kate Lundrigan, now at- tending the school of Presentation Convent, Riverhead, St. John's; and three at St. Bride's. His parents will miss a devoted and affectionate son; his sisters a fondly attached brother. To his parents and relatives we ex- tend our sympathy in this time of sorrow.—R. I. P. P. P.

Cupid's Doings.

We tender our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Earle whose wed- ding took place on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at the R. C. Cathedral in the presence of a number of their imme- diate friends. The nuptial not was tied by the Rev. Dr. Jas. Green. The bride being Miss Katherine Wall, (dress make) the groom, Mr. Thomas Earle, a very popular salesman in the employ of Hon. J. D. Ryan. Miss Lizzie Lawlor acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Jack Wall was best man. A very pleasant reunion of relatives and friends was held afterwards at their future home "Knight's Square" and for upwards of four hours all was gladness, sunshine and merriment. May it ever continue thus through life is the wish of the Evening Telegram. The happy couple were the recep- tients of numerous and useful pres- ents from friends, including a gold coin and a cheque.

Prize Debate.

The Annual Prize Debate between the senior students of St. Bonaven- ture's College was conducted in the Aula Maxima yesterday afternoon. His Grace the Archbishop being chairman, and a number of the clergy from the diocese acting as a jury. The subject for discussion was: "Were the French Revolutionists justified in their action?" In favour of this con- tention there appeared J. A. Barron, (Leader); K. Keegan, P. F. Halley, and T. Flynn, and for the negative, H. Crawford (Leader); F. Keefe, V. Murphy and E. Rawlins. The speech- es on the whole, were excellently de- livered and showed careful thought and research. The jury decided in favor of the affirmative side, and awarded the prize for the best debate to Master Edward Crawford, who is to be congratulated on his success.

New Scenery.

By the last Bruce, three very hand- some sets of scenery arrived for St. Bonaventure's college, and yesterday they were fitted up on the stage in the Aula Maxima. This spacious hall has been greatly requisitioned for enter- tainments and the performance of "Falsely Accused" last Easter by the Alumni Dramatic Club won such en- couragement that steps were taken, with the aid of the Knights of Colum- bus, to procure suitable stage equip- ment. This latter acquisition will

"I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exer- cion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a feeling of suf- focation and a difficulty of again go- ing to sleep; I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems not worth living."

DANGEROUS DOGS.

Petty Har- bor dogs, which each spring come to this section, are again nightly prowling around the South Side. A few evenings ago as a gentleman and his wife were coming up the road three of the brutes attacked them and they were compelled to go down the hill at no little risk to escape the animals and had to come up along the water- front. These brutes are a menace to the people of the South Side and vicinity.

Mr. Charles Hutton received a wire- less message yesterday, from Miss Adela Verne, the great pianist, who is on board the Carthaginian en route for Canada and the United States, which she will tour. She will stop off at St. John's and give one or two recitals.

The Limit.

While we are wondering what has happened to the Titanic, how the great disaster occurred. What were the nature of the injuries sustained by the crew? How many lives were lost? How many were saved, and such like news, a belated message arrives at 1.30 p.m. to-day from Halifax which contains not one single word about this ocean tragedy which has horrified all the world. Instead of this we are treated to Balfour, Botha and Ward's views on Home Rule, a topic interesting enough under other circumstances, but one which would keep, if as alleged the Halifax people have been trying all morning to get "stuffed" through to St. John's. If they could do no better than this, they might have kept it for what good it is to us. It is time that some strong action was taken to make the message what it should be and what it is not. The way the news of the Titanic disaster has been handled is disgusting. It is high time a "kick" was made.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, April 16, '12.
The demand for the now well-known and popular "Perfume without Spirit" manufactured by Courvoisier of London, and famous as the strongest and most concentrated perfumes made, does not lessen; rather does it seem to increase with the seasons. Unfortunately our spring stock arrived too late for Easter, having just come to hand. We shall now be pleased to fill any orders for this dainty perfume in either of the following odors: Violet, Lily of the Valley, Havanilla—the last named perhaps the finest of all. Price $1.25 a bottle.

Do not forget that we have Sutton's Seed open. A few early people have already purchased their seeds.

The Police Court.

An indecent assault case, tried in camera yesterday, was dismissed. This morning two firemen, deserters from the Adventure, Capt. Couch, said they were absent by accident and that they were willing to return to the ship. Mr. Fenelon for the captain stated that the owners were not willing to take the men back and that the owners had suffered loss of hundreds of dollars through the delay of the ship. Capt. Couch gave his evidence and stated that the loss was about $600 on account of the delay, and that he was unwilling to take these men back. Engineer Macdonald also gave his evidence to the effect that the men were absent without leave. His Honor commented strongly on the prevalence of this offence and the inconvenience and expense to the owners of ships, and sentenced the men to 21 days.

A drunk, conveyed to the station in a cab, was discharged, it being his first offence.

A drunk, third offence, was fined $4 or 14 days.

A drunk, second offence, was fined $2 or 7 days.

Another drunk, recently released from the Penitentiary, was fined $4 or 14 days.

In the Magistrate's Court two civil matters were disposed of.

Possibly Rendering Aid.

The Allan liner Carthaginian, now due in ten days out from Liverpool in view of the fact that Mr. Charles Hutton last evening had a wireless message from Miss Ada Verne, the famous pianist, who is on the ship, coming here, and considering that the agents, Messrs. Shea & Co., have had no marconigram from the ship to-day, it might be inferred that the Carthaginian picked up some of the calls for aid from the Titanic and shaped her course for the scene of the disaster, a circumstance which would account for the delay of the Allan boat.

Cape Report.

The Nickel.

More than one word of favourable comment has been expressed this week regarding the general excellence of the programme at the above theatre. True to his old-time judgment and discretion, Manager Kieley has now introduced into the musical combination an artist of peculiar merit. This is Mr. S. Dupres, a trap drummer, a very clever performer—this drummer, an artist who has inaugurated the playing of musical bills in the orchestral numbers, and so well does he do it that the selection "Melody in G" won particular attention last night. Indeed, the Nickel, without question, may well boast of being the premier theatre in the city.

A Narrow Escape.

Yesterday a 13 year old boy named Whelan, of the East End, fell through the ice at Juddi Vid Lake and narrowly escaped being drowned. His cries attracted the attention of Mr. P. Malone, who rescued him.

Still Held Up.

The s.s. Adventure is still held up in the harbor, not being able to get her requisite number of firemen to replace the deserters. Two of the latter, who were captured, were sent to jail to-day for a month, which ought to be a lesson to others.

Earewall to Rev. J. Bell.

Last night the C. E. T. S. gave a farewell to the Rev. James Bell, Thos. a crowd of attendants. His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland presided, with the Lay Chairman, Mr. R. G. MacDonald, on his right and the Rev. James Bell on his left. On the platform were Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Peters, Reva, Canon White, G. R. Godden, M.A., J. W. Bartlett, Joseph Thackray, Clayton, Charles Hackett, Brigadier Morehan, Staff-Capt. Cave, and Messrs. Earle, M.H.A., Langmead, Robinson, I. C. Morris and Hayward. His Lordship in expressing regret at the departure of Mr. Bell, said the best thanks they could give him was to go forward in the work in which he had put so much energy. One of the gratifying features of the work was the co-operation of the various societies. After Mr. Robert Gear MacDonald had told of the good accomplished by Mr. Bell, he read an address and presented Mr. and Mrs. Bell with a purse of gold. After Rev. Mr. Bell had responded in some touching remarks, addresses were delivered by Rev. J. W. Bartlett, Mr. Robinson, I. C. Morris, Brigadier Morehan and Rev. Chas. Hackett, and with "God Save the King" and the Benediction by His Lordship the Bishop, the meeting closed.

Celebrities On Titanic.

Private messages, we learn, received in the city to-day intimate that John Jacob Astor, the American millionaire, and W. T. Stead, the editor of the Review of Reviews, were on the Titanic. It is not known if they were in the vessel, which he boarded up. The belief is that many representative people of England and the United States were on her.

Is He on Board.

There is conjecture to-day amongst several people in the city as to whether another gentleman who resides here and left here a few weeks ago for England, is on the ill-fated Titanic. The gentleman in question is Mr. J. J. Light, who is yet in England.

Light, Warmth and Food.

These three words embrace the most urgent necessities of life, and it is an extraordinary thing that in each case our thoughts turn to Gas; this, after all, is but natural. We want Light, gas gives us the best, cheapest and healthiest artificial light known. Again, we want Warmth, and the gas fire is at hand to give it in its best form; and lastly, we must have Food, and here the gas cooker never fails us. All this is absolutely true, as we have shown over and over again. If, however, any of our customers are in the least doubtful on any of these points, we cordially invite them to consult us. In the meantime, our advice is to get good burners and buy mantles of well-known makes, to use modern gas fires and cookers, and, above all, to keep your gas appliances (whether old or new) in good order, for in this is the true secret of efficiency and complete satisfaction.

your mind. From the lining of a dress to a laundry soap; from a cleanser to a baking powder; from a suit of clothes to a kit of tools; you could call every standard article on the market by name if you would only remember to do so when you come to buy.

It is through your carelessness that lies and adulterations creep in. The standard is set by good men, but the standard is only maintained by you.

It is time for you to forget the generic name of every article, and remember only the standard name of its quality.

In the advertising news of this paper to-day you will find many of these standard names and brands of quality. This article is written for the sole purpose of reminding you to use those names. It is only fair that you should do as much for these good manufacturers as they are doing for you. It is only right that you should help in this great standardization of good products that is going on throughout St. John's.

Begin now to ask by name for everything you buy. And you will find your satisfaction growing greater day by day and your optimism extending even down to your pocketbook.

The comedy, entitled, "Sally's Peppermint," in which Misses Irving, West, Butler, Gibb and Messrs. W. Smith, G. F. Pike and A. S. Harvey took part, was received with much enthusiasm. The concert was in aid of the Women's Foreign and Home Mission Society of St. Andrew's. Miss Ledingham acted as accompanist during the evening's performance, and all who took part deserves congratulations. The proceeds realized a substantial sum. SOAP.
BY H. L. RANN.

Soap is an article which is rubbed on the human frame so that people can tell each other from the tree-climbing chimpanzee. There are two kinds of soap—hard and soft. In the early days of the republic everybody used soft soap made out of wood ashes. This was the most reprehensible soap ever invented, and was used mainly to rinse naughty words out of the mouths of small boys, by whom it was considered a great delicacy. There is a good deal of soft soap still in use, most of which is paid for at regular advertising rates and is used in the manufacture of political, social and ecclesiastical halos. All newspaper men are agents for this kind of soap, which contains a new brand of lye. The hard soap era was ushered in about the time the porcelain bath tub was discovered. This was in the fall of 1869, when the citizens of a patriotic people were choked with soft maple leaves, and a great many citizens found it hard to distinguish between a rich quality of clean water and the soft soap then in use. Since it became fashionable to bathe every few weeks the demand for soap has increased amazingly, until now it can be found in almost every home. A cake of sea green soap in a lavender wrapper, breathing the breath of violets and cottonseed oil, adds a touch of refinement to the humblest abode. Some people buy soap for ornamental purposes and are careful not to overwork it, while others are reckless in its use and emerge from the morning scrub with the pink and white complexion of a barber pole. The American Indian seldom buys any soap for his own use, but the Esquimaux consumes large quantities of it as a substitute for desert. On the whole, it may be safely said that more soap could be used to considerable advantage without hurting anybody's feelings.

'Out of the Fold.'

The Selman Company last night staged prettily a pathetic drama of the country-side. It tells the story of the treatment meted out to a girl who had made one false step and was striving to enter the fold again. Miss Gertrude Arden played the emotional role of the heroine, and availed of the opportunities afforded. Mr. Joseph Selman played his part well, but the role did not afford many great opportunities to show what was in him. Mr. P. S. Barrett had the role of a man of sympathy and sentiment, who lived up to his feelings. The other roles afforded a display of the characters to be found in a small country-side and afforded much diversion to the spectators. Perhaps the most acceptable feature of the play was the musical contributions. Between the first and second acts Miss Macenzie gave two songs which were well received. 'Out of the Fold' will be repeated to-night, and on Thursday evening will be given "Mrs. Templeman's Telegram."

The annual meeting of the Field-Spencer Association takes place at Bishop Field College at 8.30 on Friday, 26th day of April. All members and friends are requested to attend if at all possible.—ap16,11

THE ROOSTER.
By WALT MASON.

I wonder why the rooster throws such fervor in his tooting? At dawn he breaks up my repose and sends sleep callyhooping. I lie and listen to his noise, and wonder, while I'm waiting, what sort of weird ecstatic joys the rooster's celebrating. To me his humble journey seems not worth a prime or prism; what hope inspires him as he screams? Why all this optimism? Oh, I can understand a dog that howls his hideous dirges through all the midnight murk and fog; like me, he just surges. He sees so much of ill and wrong, so much of woe and sorrow, he must uplift his grewsome song, and hope he'll die to-morrow. I sympathize with those who howl, with an ulnas sad and brooding, the dog, the raven and the owl, penned in a world deluding. But ah, I cannot understand the rooster's joyous carol, an anthem in a sombre land that has grief by the barrel! He lives in dark and gloomy pens, where biddy clucks and hatches; his life is spent with silly hens for whom he digs and scratches. To earn his harem's daily bread he's busy as a weaver; and then at last his silly head is whacked off with a cleaver. The rooster should a cavern seek, a hermit life pursuing; why give a loud, triumphant shriek when there is nothing doing?

If you have tried the old type of gas heaters a few years ago, and were disappointed with the results obtained, this should not deter you from trying the modern heaters. During the last few years a good deal of science has been incorporated into the design of gas fires and all the old defects have been removed. Some of the old fires were not quite satisfactory, now, however, the fire burns without noise, no fumes enter the room, the atmosphere is kept pure and is not dried, and the fires are designed to suit any scheme of decoration.

The medical profession was at first antagonistic to them, but of late thousands have been fitted in doctor's residences and in sick rooms on their recommendation, which is a sufficient testimonial on the hygienic aspect of the matter.—ap6,9,13,16,20,23,27,30.

1500 Persons Perish

HERE CARPATHIA REACH SCENE

Of Wreck Titanic Had Disappeared— 600 or 700 Survivors in Boats Picked Up—It is Supposed 1500 Lives Were Lost.

Special to Evening Telegram.
NEW YORK April 15. Wireless despatches up to noon today showed that the passengers of the Titanic were being transferred aboard the steamer Carpathia. The Parisian, for Halifax, was close at hand and assisting in work of rescue. Baltic and Virginian are also near the scene, and Olympic apparently nearby. Transference of passengers is being carried on successfully and safely. The sea is smooth and weather calm. Possibly all the passengers of the Titanic are safe. While the ship is badly damaged, the Titanic is still afloat and reported to be making her way towards Halifax under her own steam.

LATER—Titanic sunk at 2.30 this morning. All passengers and crew taken off by Virginian.

The City of St. John's and the whole people of Newfoundland shared yesterday in the excitement and horror which the world experienced when it became known that the great White Star Line steamer, the largest in the world, in fact the greatest ever built, the Titanic was in collision with an iceberg and that she had sunk with all on board, it was presumed. The frantic calls for aid by wireless from the imperilled ship were quickly picked up by various liners running in the neighbourhood were transmitted to Cape Race and thence to various centres in the United States and soon the news with its horrible possibilities was spread over the world causing alarm, consternation and grief amongst the many in different parts who had loved ones on board.

Already the utility of Marconi's great discovery as a life saving agency has been demonstrated but never before will its efficiency in this respect be made more apparent than of the 4,000 or more souls on board the great ship have been rescued by its use. Yesterday we referred to the wireless news which the Bruce had received from Cape Race relative to the accident, on her voyage from Port au Basques, and up to midnight last night only a few other messages had reached here. The belief in the city last night was that the sinking of the Titanic must of necessity be attended with considerable loss of life owing to such a large number of people being on board and the probability that they would become panic-stricken and would rush to and swamp the boats as they were drawn out. As it is known at this writing that several large liners were at the scene standing by the ship before she plunged into the ocean's depths, it is within the range of possibilities that all the passengers and crew were safely transferred to these, or that loss of life, if there has been any, by reason of their presence has been minimized.

The first message received by the Anglo-American Co. came from Cape Race at 1 p.m. and was as follows:—
"At 11.15 the Titanic about 41.46

N. 50.14 W. about 300 miles off Cape Race, a little to east, if anything, gave out sounds which would indicate that it was about that time she struck. The wireless connections were continued from then up to 2 a.m., but not afterwards. At 1 a.m. they were getting the passengers into boats, and messages read that she was sinking head first."

Cape Race had been receiving wireless messages from the scene of the disaster for 45 minutes Monday night and when the signals stopped the operator then presumed that the power to transmit had left the dynamo by reason of the incursion of water into the engine rooms and believed that she soon after went down and evidently was right in this conjecture as the messages later received go to show. At 4.20 p.m. the Anglo-American had the following from New York:—
"Intelligence is at New York that the passengers are O.K. and other steamers are standing by her."

This message reassured people and the hope was expressed that loss of life at least to any great extent would be disassociated with the disaster, but early last night another wire to hand read:—

"Reported officially that Titanic sank at 2.30 a.m. to-day. Only meagre reports regarding other boats. Loss of life—but whether large or small, cannot say."

The public message received this morning stated that the passengers were being transferred to the Carpathia and that the Parisian, Baltic, Virginian and Olympic were near. It also stated that the passengers and crew were taken off by the Virginian and that the ship had gone down at 2.30 a.m. yesterday. This is cheering news if true but many hold to the belief that a marine disaster of such magnitude could not have happened without some loss of life. Whether fatalities have occurred or not should be known in to-day's press despatches, as the rescuing ship or ships will have given particulars by wireless.

The Titanic left Southampton for New York on her maiden voyage on Wednesday last, the 10th inst., and had a full passenger list of 3,000 persons on board. She, it is believed, carried a crew of nearly 1,000 all told, and as the weather was fine must have been rushing through the water at possibly 22 knots. The effect of such a ship striking such an object as an iceberg under such conditions must have been awful. Had she gone over a submerged spur, of the berg the bottom must have been torn out of her, and in such an event only the presence of the many watertight bulkheads in the hull would keep her afloat and this for only a limited time as the great pressure of the water must eventually break them down. Old mariners believe that the impact of such a ship on a berg must have caused the whole hull to rend and strain and that her destruction was inevitable as a result of the collision.

The Titanic was the largest ship afloat and the "last word" in marine architecture. To give one an idea in a manner of the great bulk of the ship, we need only observe that to make the foundation of the slips on which the Olympic and Titanic were built required an expenditure of $250,000. They have got a 200-ton floating crane—the largest in the world, the travelling cantilever cranes are Broddingnagian monsters, whose reach of arm and lifting capacity are quite uncanny. She was believed to be unsinkable when she slid off the ways in the yards of her builders, Messrs. Harland & Wolff, Ltd., of Belfast, and the ship when equipped and ready for her voyage across the Atlantic must have been valued for at least $10,000,000. By comparison she was about thirty times the tonnage of the S. S. Bruce and twenty that of the fine Red Cross ship Stephano, and it took two years to build her. Every convenience that science could suggest, or accommodation that lavish expenditure of money could supply was found on this great levathan of the waves. She well might be termed "a floating palace." The most luxurious appointments were hers, corps of musicians regaled the passengers when they dined, a paper was published on board, there were tennis grounds and swimming pools for the diversion of passengers and for the enjoyment of secrecy and repose palatially furnished suits of parlors could be had by those who required them. Running through her eleven decks were several electric hoists, and the accommodation for her second class and steerage passengers was equal to what was afforded to those who travelled saloon in many other ships.

Many seamen here express the fear that some of the crew on board must have been killed when the ship struck the berg as the watch below must have turned in and were in their bunks away up in the "eyes" of the steamer.

The scene on board when the accident occurred with so many thousands of people, men, women and children on the ship must have been one awful to contemplate and beggarly description. Even the survivors will hardly ever realize it fully.

A NEW DANGER FROM SUCH SHIPS
The following shows that the creation of such great marine fabrics brings into the calling of the seafarer an added danger to that of collision which always overshadows him.

Southampton, Eng., April 10.—The new White Star liner Titanic, the biggest vessel afloat started from this port to-day at a quarter past twelve on her maiden voyage to New York. She carries 350 first class passengers. There was a large crowd present to witness her departure and cheers were raised as she left.

The Titanic experienced an exciting moment as she was proceeding down Southampton water. As the big vessel was passing the White Star liner

"Only a Cold"

SNEEZING and running at the nose, stuffed up feelings in the head, sore throat, tickling in the throat and coughing.

This is the natural development of what is in the beginning "only a cold." It is the way in which scores and thousands are allowing colds to develop into bronchitis, pneumonia, or consumption.

If colds were promptly cured there would be no need for sanatoriums and hospitals for consumptives. Because people have weak lungs they need not become consumptives if they will but guard against colds and cure them promptly by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

This great medicine has proven its right to a place in every home by curing croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and all sorts of coughs and colds. 25 cts a bottle, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Oceanic and the American Line steamer New York, which are berthed alongside each other, the terrific suction of the Titanic's screws dragged the New York from her moorings, and seven of the vessel's steel ropes parted. The stern of the American liner missed striking the passing Titanic which was obliged to stop while the New York was towed off to a safer berth.

1,500 LIVES LOST.
This forenoon a private message to the Anglo Coy. here from Sydney stated that the American papers have the following story, which goes to show that the accident has been attended with appalling loss of life:—
"When the 'Carpathia' arrived from the vicinity of the wreck the Titanic had already sunk. The 'Carpathia' picked up all the passengers who were out in boats, numbering between 600 or 700. The impression prevails that some 1,500 lives were lost."

World's Largest Liner.

Size and Luxury of the Titanic — A British Triumph.
(London Standard.)

The new White Star liner Titanic the largest in the world, has arrived from Belfast, previously to leaving on her maiden Transatlantic voyage to New York on Wednesday next. As one saw her, a majestic monster floating, it seemed, irresistibly into harbor, a strange sense of might and power pervaded the scene. She embodied the latest triumphs of Britain in the world of mercantile marine, and although a sister ship of the Olympic, similar in design and construction, is an improvement in many respects on the latter, which it seems only yesterday left the stocks, and was hailed as one of the world's latest wonders.

Fitted with a combination of turbine and reciprocating engines, she is 883 ft. long, 33 ft. broad, will accommodate 3,000 passengers and crew; seat 550 first-class passengers at dinner, at the same time that 400 second-class and 500 third-class travellers are enjoying all the evening delights of a sumptuous menu.

She differs from the Olympic in her greater first-class state-room accommodation, both on the top or boat deck and the upper promenade deck. But the true test of a liner is the comfort and convenience it affords to the traveller on land and the life on sea. In this respect the Titanic represents the highest skill and perfection in marine construction.

Take the typical day of a first-class passenger on the Titanic next Thursday, as she sails past the Scillies towards the Old Head of Kinsale. He may first have a turn in the splendidly equipped gymnasium; next a game in the squash racket court, which is in charge of a professional, and then proceed to the Turkish electric, or swimming baths before breakfast. The cooling room in the Turkish bath is lighted with bronze Arab lamps, in a Moorish setting, with tiled Damascus tables and handsome marble drinking fountains.

Thence he may proceed to the first-class saloon, an immense room, where breakfast is served with the daintiness of the Paris "Ritz" or the Berlin "Bristol" in Jacobean surroundings, with privacy or semi-privacy as he may choose. After breakfast comes a refreshing "whiff" in the smoking-room—panelled in the finest mahogany with exquisite Georgian carving, and subdued with painted windows—in an apartment of surpassing splendor; or he may enjoy the delights of the verandah with its green trellis and climbing plants, overlooking the great open fairway.

TWO-MILE STROLL ON DECK.

Later he may greet his friends in the reception-room, an apartment decorated in charming simplicity, and take a stroll of a couple of miles on the spacious decks, rising or descending from one to the other by electric lifts. Before lunch he may enjoy an appetiser in the Cafe Parisien, and after lunch "forty winks" in the splendidly upholstered reception-rooms, or spend a quiet hour in the reading and writing room, which is elegantly furnished in white, with a gigantic bow-window looking over a vast expanse of sea.

If he must attend to business en route he may get "interviews" typed ready for the American reporters, or prepare his correspondence through the ship's stenographers before dressing for dinner in his state-room. The state-rooms of the Titanic are well kept with the excellence of the public-rooms, and are exceptionally large and beautifully furnished. Perhaps the most striking are the staterooms, of which there is an unusually large number, decorated in different styles and periods, and including Louis Seize, Louis Quinze, Georgian, Regence, Queen Anne, Modern Dutch, and Old Dutch. In the staterooms the coats are four feet wide, a fact which will appeal to every ocean traveller.

And the guest of the Titanic may close the day in the music saloon—hear the organ or touch the piano; listen to the band or attend the evening concert before supper. On the Titanic, in brief there is the atmosphere of companionship with all the delights of town, all the advantages of the finest hotel, the desired comfort of home, the privacy of the study, in a fascinating marine setting.

Commander E. J. Smith, R. D. R. N.R., has joined the new liner from the Olympic to take charge of this last word in "ocean-going luxury," which makes its appeal to the pleasure-seeking and business-seeking millionaire and the man of moderate means alike. To the battle of the Transatlantic passenger service the Titanic adds a new and important factor, of value to the aristocracy and plutocracy attracted from East to West and West to East. With the Mauretania and Lusitania of the Cunard, the Olympic and Titanic of the White Star, the Imperator and Kronprinzessin Cecilie of the Hamburg-America, in the light during the coming season, there will be a contest of battle all the way from New York to the shores of this country—a contest of sea giants in which the Titanic will doubtless take high honors.

Yesterday afternoon the Central and Eastern Companies were called to Holloway Street, where the tool shed used by the street car employees was on fire. The services of the firemen were not needed, a few pails of water having done the necessary before their arrival. Occasionally the Companies are called out for such trivial matters as yesterday's, and citizens should consider what they are doing before ringing in an alarm.—Daily News, April 12.

sight of some citizen they have probably been relieved of a good deal of labour and danger.

The Municipal Council of St. John's is not alone notorious throughout the various districts and settlements of Newfoundland, but also throughout the Eastern Provinces. I understand that one of our councillors while coming through the Sydney a few weeks ago was given a great ovation and that a banquet was to be tendered to him only for the fact that he had to rush over to Louisburg to catch the Bruce. Most of them had never met the man before but had read of his daring exploits of facing five men and a Mayor at the Council chamber each week and expounding his doctrines and convictions on generally unwilling ears. However, be that as it may, the question arises, do we not make a laughing stock of ourselves by coming out in our papers with glaring headlines ridiculing all the officials from the Mayor to the goat impounder. To say that a city of the capacity and size of St. John's would elect seven men to control their affairs and then have the papers reporting satirical accounts of the meetings, borders somewhat on the ridiculous. Do we ever imagine for a moment that these men give their valuable time for the betterment and improvement of the city? Some of their actions and conduct at meetings are undoubtedly open to criticism, but still they are doing their best. You cannot advertise or boom a city if our newspapers make a laughing stock of our controlling civic organization and make mountains of every little repartee at the meetings. Surely our editors should refrain from so doing. Nothing does more for a city or country than her newspapers, as they have the option of either advancing or disrating them. I trust therefore that when the next little excitement occurs at the Council that the papers will treat it casually and not blaze it forth to the world in 1 1/2 inch type. "Show me your newspaper and I will tell you what your country is," says Mark Twain in his "River Yarns," and if we are judged by our descriptions of our Council meetings, it's no wonder that money is being subscribed in Canada and the States to feed and clothe the poor Newfoundlanders.

Fell Into Hold of the Ranger.

Yesterday afternoon Eli Cooper belonging to Bonavista, fell into the hold of the s.s. Ranger and narrowly escaped being killed. It was first thought he was dangerously injured but on examination at the Hospital it was ascertained that the man suffered from shock more than injury. The victim was standing near the "booby" hatch, which was uncovered, in company with a "wing" of sealers, who were distributing flippers. In excitement Cooper stepped into the open space of the hatch and fell below a distance of 15 feet, his back coming in contact with the pound 'tween decks. He was picked up in an unconscious state and brought to the deck where he was attended by Dr. Macpherson, who hurried to the scene. Later he was conveyed in Bowring's launch to Job's north side premises where the ambulance was in waiting to take him to Hospital. Up to that time Cooper had not regained consciousness. He sustained internal injuries to his back, his head was badly bruised, but no bones were broken. The doctors think the sealer will be all right again in a few weeks.

The Churchill Estate and Its Rightful Heirs.

Sir:—

In the latter part of the seventeenth century Samuel Churchill, of Devonshire, England, brother of John Churchill, the first Duke of Marlborough, came to Newfoundland and acquired large properties in St. John's West, known as Fry Corner property, extending back to Apple Tree Well, also fishing property in Petty Harbor known as Calvers Room and Flag Staff Room, also property on the South Side of Ochre Pit Cove, North Side of Conception Bay, into which place he himself settled. This Samuel Churchill had one son, Nicholas, and two daughters, namely, Elizabeth and Clarimond. Elizabeth married one Richard Halfyard, of Ochre Pit Cove, who was a native of Devonshire, and Clarimond eloped and married a young Irishman named Bolan, who was an employee of her father's. His only son, Nicholas, married and settled down in Devonshire, and had one son and one daughter, namely, Nicholas and Elizabeth.

After the death of the aforesaid Samuel Churchill, his son Nicholas came into possession of all his property and appointed Newmans (merchants of St. John's at that time), agents for all his property at St. John's and Petty Harbor.

At his death he willed all his estate to his only son and daughter, Nicholas and Elizabeth Churchill, also mentioning on his will that if they died without issue the aforesaid estate was to go to the children of his two sisters Elizabeth Halfyard and Clarimond Bolan and to their heirs and forever.

Nicholas Churchill, Junior, was educated as a medical surgeon and joined the navy as such. He retired from the navy in 1817, on account of falling weak and settled down in Buckfastleigh, Devon, with his sister Elizabeth, and continued his practice as a medical practitioner.

Elizabeth, after the death of her mother, removed to Kingsbridge in Devonshire, and settled there with her mother's relatives. She became distressed with the way she was treated by Newmans' house with regard to the collection of rents, and therefore gave her cousin Stephen Halfyard, of Ochre Pit Cove, a power of Attorney to act in her behalf. He then sold the interests in the property at Petty Harbor and before he could take over the property in St. John's he was taken sick and died, still leaving Newmans' sole agents for the St. John's property which was at that time in the occupancy of Bartholomew Colbert.

Some years later Miss Elizabeth Churchill died at Kingsbridge, Devonshire, and she was the last of the Churchill family. After her death the halfyards and other relatives of Elizabeth Halfyard made a claim for the estate, out of which nothing resulted, except a few lawyers' fees, which were paid by the claimants.

The property at Ochre Pit Cove, belonging to the Churchill estate, was willed to Richard Halfyard, nephew of Nicholas Churchill, Junior. This property is still in the possession of the Halfyards at Ochre Pit Cove.

The descendants of Elizabeth Halfyard and Clarimond Bolan are uniting their efforts in the last long fight to claim the Churchill estate, which is heirs by right.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your very valuable space.

I remain, yours respectfully,

Dr. Grenfell Writes.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor.—The doctors at Pilleys Island hospital write to me that the hospital in Green Bay will be unable to survive as a self-supporting institution if the people of Green Bay look upon it merely as an out-patient station. The doctors naturally will not be willing to give time, as these two doctors have so freely done, if the people, in order to save the expense which having to pay for their operations would entail, wait over to get to St. Anthony or St. John's. While it seems to me impossible for any hospital to say that they will not receive patients if they come from a district in which there is a hospital, I want the people to understand this point, and so I am asking you to put this in your paper.

If the people of Green Bay are anxious to support a hospital they must stand by it in every way. We are adding greatly to the efficiency of our hospitals all the while. A magnificent X-ray apparatus will be added to St. Anthony and a large special dairy for better management of milk for our patients; also a fine heating apparatus has been given for the new school. And we are expecting to be able to give lunches to some of the poor children to enable them to come from longer distances. A great many such very badly needed additions to our work have now been made possible, and the people of the north will have advantages that they should have had ages ago. It has been my privilege to meet a great number of Newfoundlanders and Labradorians, some of whom we have helped to get to places where they could make a better living. Everyone of them seemed to have succeeded. While in British Columbia the innate capacity of a Newfoundlander has been markedly noticeable. Several have climbed to the very top of the tree, and Captain Goss gave me a Newfoundland reputation of that hearty and kindly type which is so universal in Newfoundland. But many others, including Mr. Harvey, Mr. Hart, and my kind host, Dr. Allen, once a fisherman in Newfoundland, all made my visit to the West delightful. And not only have Newfoundlanders in British Columbia succeeded in doing well, but so many of them have risen to prominence. It was with very great pleasure that I received the notice of the first large fisherman's meeting in the Institute. I shall hope in the not very long future to find the Institute a great rendezvous of all those who, like myself, do so much of their business in great waters, and I most sincerely pray that they may enjoy it as much as I anticipate doing, and may find it a centre for uplift and for the possibility of union in everything that makes for righteousness.

I am keenly anticipating the day when the work will be in full swing there and the fisherman may have a better living.

St. Bon's Dance.

About two hundred couples attended the Subscription Dance held in the British Hall last night by the ladies of St. Bon's Association in aid of the new building fund. The music was excellently discoursed by the C. C. C. band. Throughout the evening refreshments were served, and Messrs. T. J. Edens, J. V. O'Dea and V. P. Burke acted as chaperons. Dancing was continued until 3 this a.m., and all present enjoyed themselves to the fullest.

TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HER.

She Suffered for Two Years and Found a Cure for all Her Troubles in a Single Box.

Lower Caraqueet, Gloucester, N.B., April 15. (Special).—Mrs. Jos. O. Chlission, wife of the police magistrate here, who for two years has been practically an invalid, is again in the best of health, and she is telling her friends how quick and complete was her cure when she took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My illness," Mrs. Chlission says, "was caused by a strain, and for two years I was a sufferer. My back ached. I was always tired and nervous, there were dark circles under my eyes and after sleeping I had a bitter taste in my mouth.

"I had a pressure and sharp pain on the top of my head. I was always thirsty and my skin had a harsh, dry feeling. I was often dizzy. I perspired easily and my perspiration had an unpleasant odor.

Almost from the first dose Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me and by the time I had finished the first box I was a well woman."

Mrs. Chlission's symptoms showed that the trouble was her kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her so quickly.

Take a Lesson From the Hotel Man.

The best lighted room in a hotel is the lobby, not only because it is a general meeting place for the guests, but because it is the first room they enter on their arrival and the one from which they get their initial impression.

For the same reason care should be taken in lighting the first hall of your home.

Electric Light and Holophone Reflectors will add much to the visitor's impression of your home.

The Telephone is usually in the hall and an Electric Light placed near the instrument will save many steps.

Why not let our representative talk to you about the economical lighting of your house.
