THE Lady of the Night
—OR—
Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER XII.
ELIOT HEARS BAD NEWS.

The dinner at the Hall, at which Mrs. Ryall had been such a pronounced success, was the beginning of a series of parties in which that lady took a prominent part. She was thorough enough to know that it was impossible to return the Ferrands' hospitality at the Grange, but it occurred to her that they might manage a picnic. A picnic is a convenient form of entertainment, because the guests always come mournfully prepared for roughing it.

"The great thing, my dear Reginald," said Mrs. Ryall, as she discussed with him "his" to have plenty of food and a good brand. Champagne makes up for everything; the men don't care what they eat as long as they have plenty to drink; and if the men are satisfied the women are sure to be. I will send over to Nelsworthy and get a case; and Martha shall make some pies, and we'll have that stumpy junk you're all so fond of; though the only thing I like about it is the rum. I'll write to Lady Ferrand and ask them for Thursday; we'll have it at the place by the river where the water falls over."

Ryall listened, and nodded uneasily. It was some days since Nora had disappeared, and though he had made careful but cautious inquiries in every direction, he had failed to hear any tidings of her. The most heartless of parents could scarcely regard his only daughter's disappearance with indifference and equanimity, and though the man was quite incapable of appreciating Nora's unselfish devotion, his conscience was uneasy, and he was exceedingly anxious. He had no particular dread of anything having happened to her, for he was fully sensible of Nora's wonderful self-reliance; and he tried to soothe himself with the assurance that she would write in a day or so—most probably come back. No doubt Mrs. Ryall also thought so; at any rate the girl's disappearance did not seem to trouble this charming step-mother in the least. She was quite absorbed in her new friends, and in her desire to cut a dash in their eyes.

"That woman wants us to go to a picnic," said Lady Ferrand frostily, when she had read Mrs. Ryall's badly-written letter. "I will write and tell her that we are engaged, Joseph."

"You won't do anything of the sort, Betsy," said Sir Joseph, who was struggling with a dress tie, which he never could manage. He had once engaged a valet, a superior person, whom Sir Joseph had caught sneering behind his master's back, and with a sense of relief, had dismissed with a month's wages. "You will write and accept."

"Why should we, Joseph?" remonstrated Lady Ferrand. "She's not a lady, whatever her husband may be; she's not as good as us; I don't believe she's even respectable. She paints like a person on the stage—in fact, some of the gentlemen declare that they have seen her performing at a music-hall. They laugh at her behind her back, while they're flatterin' her up to her face and making a fool of her."

"They'd better do nothing of the kind," said Sir Joseph angrily. "If she's good enough for us to know she's good enough for them. Who are they to laugh at any friend of mine?—a pack of people who come to my house and eat and drink of the best, and ride and drive my horses, and carry on as if it was a hotel—they'd better mind their p's and q's. Look here, Betsy, it suits me to be friendly with these Ryalls; and just you do as I tell you. You've never known me make a mistake, and you can bet your life I'm not making a mistake now."

Fortunately for Mrs. Ryall, the weather on the Thursday proved unexceptionable. The case of champagne had arrived, Martha had made some particularly indigestible pies, and Ned drove the materials for the feast to the spot chosen by Mrs. Ryall. The party from the Hall arrived with all the loud-voiced excitement and hilarity which characterized present-day functions of this kind, and the quiet of the fairy-like glen, which poor Nora had so often ridden through, half-unconsciously realising the charm of its silence and its solitude, echoed with shrill voices and witless laughter. Mrs. Ryall was quite in her element, and, with Selwyn Ferrand at her side, presided, like a faded and passe goddess, over a rout of Comus. It was—

"Who'll have some pigeon pie? Lady Ferrand, let me give you some 'am. Do, for goodness sake, open the wine. Mr. Selwyn; I'm sure we're all thirsty." She ogled the man with a knowing leer, and hummed the first line of the popular music-hall ditty—

"Champagne is the wine for me, boys."

The men laughed loudly and applauded; the wine passed round rapidly; the picnic promised to be a great success. Ryall sat in the uncomfortable picnic attitude opposite his wife, with a flickering, would-be genial smile on his weak lips. Next him was Florence Bartley. She appeared to be enjoying herself as light-heartedly as the rest; but every now and then her sharp eyes glanced from Ryall's careworn face to Sir Joseph's. She was quite aware of Mrs. Ryall's position, or rather, want of position, and her general undependability, and she was asking herself the question which had puzzled her ever since Mrs. Ryall's first visit to the Hall—why had Sir Joseph gone out of his way to make friends with these people, who apparently were not worth his knowing? The Ferrands were not very particular in choosing their friends and acquaintances, but she would have thought he would have drawn the line at this ornament of the music-hall stage; and she was listening and watching, ready to seize upon the smallest word that might afford a clue to the mystery.

As the uncomfortable meal proceeded and the case of champagne decreased, the spirits of the party sought some vent, and one of the young men proposed some games. Some one suggested "Blind man's buff," and offered to be the first to take the title role; he was promptly bandaged, and the fun began. They romped like a party of costermongers on Hampstead Heath, their shrieks and laughter cleaving the air and echoing from the hills. Mrs. Ryall was amongst the noisiest and most active, and skipped about in what she flattered herself was a successful imitation of the grace and abandon of a young girl. Ryall, as he sat against a tree with Sir Joseph, looked on at the antics of his wife with a smile of gratified vanity. Sometimes the blind man or his tormentors came to grief, stumbled and sprawled on the ground, or bounced against one of the builders; but these mishaps only increased the hilarity of the party, and the screams and laughter grew louder.

The hideous uproar reached Elliot Graham as he was walking down the valley. He had come in search of Nora; he had been seeking her ever since the night he had held her in his arms and told her of his love, and his desire for a sight of her was making his heart ache. The din of the romping crew assailed his ears, and made him start restlessly; for it sounded like a desecration in the spot sacred to his love. At first he thought that a party of beachcombers had swarmed down upon the glen, and he walked on angrily round the bend of the river, and came full upon the scene.

At that moment, Florence was playing the part of blind man; the other players were dancing round her, and yelling in the approval 'Arry and 'Arris fashion. Elliot, coming upon them from behind, some boasters, was unseen by them, and he stood for a moment watching them in amazement. As unconscious of his presence as the rest, Florence swayed suddenly, and rushed towards the mass of granite by which he stood. She would have dashed herself against it, but Elliot took one step forward, caught her by both arms, checked her progress, and held her rigid and immovable. The laughter and noise ceased suddenly. Thrilled by a feeling which she afterwards found difficult to analyse, Florence put up her hand and tore off the bandage. Her eyes met Elliot's grave regard; she glanced at the rock, and then at him.

"I see!" she said, almost in a whisper; "I should have gone against that and hurt myself. Thank you!"

Elliot raised his cap, and was turning away, when, as luck would have it, Selwyn Ferrand called out—

"Hi there, Graham! Now you are here you can make yourself useful!"

He turned to Mrs. Ryall, who was shrieking congratulations at Florence.

"You want these things packed, don't you? Here's one of our men; he can do it."

Sir Joseph took the cigar from his mouth, and, with a scowl, opened his lips as if about to speak, but Mrs. Ryall's voice broke in with—

"Oh, 'ow thoughtful of you, Mr. Selwyn!—Come this way, young man. Elliot hesitated for just a second, then he went to the hamper and began to pack the things. Breathless and exhausted, the party gathered round the champagne case. Florence took her glass and seated herself near the hamper.

"What a delightful time we have had!" she said to Mrs. Ryall, who was fanning herself with a plate.

"So sweet of you to say so," responded that lady with a simper. "We've 'ad some fun, haven't we? It's been so successful that we must really get up another. It's the open hair, I s'pose."

Florence nodded pleasantly.

"I hope you will, and that next time your daughter—Miss Ryall—will be with us."

Mrs. Ryall's face fell; Ryall turned with nervous anxiety towards the speaker.

"Is she making a long stay with her friends?" inquired Florence, and as she put the question she glanced at the young man who was kneeling by the hamper, but he stopped, and she saw that he was listening as he went on with his work.

"Yes, I think she is," replied Mrs. Ryall, trying to speak lightly and casually.

"I daresay she is enjoying herself," said Florence. "Where has she gone?"

Mrs. Ryall hesitated for a moment; then rushed on with—

"To London. She is staying with some old friend of Reggy's. Oh, I've no doubt she's enjoying herself." She smiled as if there was something significant in the assertion, and Florence promptly seized upon the suggestion.

"Metal more attractive than here?" she said, with a smile and a nod.

Mrs. Ryall caught at the idea as a drowning man catches at a straw.

"Yes, yes," she said with an answering nod, "that's it; though there's nothing settled, and it's quite a secret at present. But Reggy and I are hoping that it will all come right, and, of course, we don't want to 'urry her 'ome."

"Why, of course not. I quite understand," said Florence sympathetically.

Elliot closed the basket lid and stuck in the fastening stick. His hands trembled, his face was pale and stern.

"Is this all?" he asked.

"That all," replied Mrs. Ryall. "Ow nicely you've done it, my man. Thank you very much." In a whisper she added to Florence, "Shall I offer him a shilling?"

"No!" said Florence sharply.

Elliot looked round as if half-dazed, then he raised his cap and strode away.

CHAPTER XIII.
LONAWAY.

Nearly a month had passed since Nora had taken her place in Miss Deborah Ralton's strange household, and to Nora the time seemed to stretch into years, and the marks of her step-mother's hand across her face had long faded, and her heart had healed somewhat. As was natural with so tender-hearted a girl, it turned towards her father, and it is more than possible that she would have gone back to take up her burden; but it chanced that one day Miss Deborah brought back a copy of the local paper with her marketing, and Nora read an account of the gay doings at the Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Ryall's names were set forth prominently, and Nora read the thing with feelings of indignation and humiliation.

It was evident that her father cared nothing for her, and was not grieving over her loss. Mrs. Ryall had taken her place in his affection; his daughter was nothing to him. Nora wiped away her tears, and relinquished all thoughts of returning to the Grange.

But for her father's neglect and indifference she would have been altogether unhappy; for once she had got the place into a decent condition; it was not difficult to keep it in order. Miss Deborah gave very little trouble; as long as she had something to eat, and was allowed to lose herself in her books, she was more than satisfied. She was kind to Nora in an absent-minded way, and unconsciously allowed her to make her mistress more comfortable than she had been under Jacob's sole guardianship.

In her leisure time Nora wandered about the country, and occasionally met some of the people of the outlying farms; without being curious, she learned that Miss Deborah had the reputation of being "terrible rich," and she knew that a large tract of the moor belonged to the mistress of "Moorcraft," as Miss Deborah's house was called.

One evening Nora found Miss Deborah bending over an old-fashioned box, which she had brought down to the dining-room table, and Nora, catching the scintillation of jewels, girl-like, eyed the box curiously. Miss Deborah happened to turn and see her, and observing the interested look in the bright eyes said—

Great Britain Plans Huge New Battleships.

New British Monsters Are to Have Displacement of 55,000 Tons.

(Frederick William Wile, Washington representative of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, is authority for the following despatch which appears in several of the big American papers.)

Washington—News in possession of the Public Ledger correspondent will come as a shock to friends of disarmament in the United States. It concerns the plans of Great Britain to build four huge new battleships of the most colossal size ever laid down. Their dimensions, discussed privately in American naval quarters for some time, became public in Washington recently. While lacking official confirmation, they are fully credited in the best-informed circles.

The vessels will constitute a "super-Hood" class, so named because in all respects they vastly will outstrip the "Hood," the famous British battle cruiser completed last year, now the most powerful fighting ship afloat. They also will dwarf the six great battle cruisers the United States has under way.

Displacement of 55,000 Tons.

The new British monsters will have the unprecedented displacement of 55,000 tons. This is slightly in excess of the tonnage of the "Leviathan," the ex-German liner now in American possession, and the world's largest vessel; is 15,000 tons larger than the "Hood," and 12,000 in excess of the new type of American battle cruiser.

The "super-Hoods" will carry the biggest and deadliest guns ever mounted on a man-of-war—20-inch weapons, eight to a vessel. Their calibre will enable the new battleship to outrange and keep at bay a whole fleet of hostile warships of a lesser power, just as the dreadnought unimpairedly repulsed all warships of pre-dreadnought type.

The "super-Hoods" will be 350 feet long, over 30 feet longer than the Jacob of Simla.

A strange life story has come to an end with the death of "Jacob of Simla," the original "Mr. Isaacs" of Marlon Crawford's novel. His career was one of extraordinary romance. Viceroy and Governor had been eager to see him, and at one time he was rich almost beyond the dreams of Aladdin.

He died a broken old man of seventy-one at a third-rate Bombay hotel—a little, bent figure of fragile build, and was pathetically suggestive of poverty and failure. He had been a familiar figure in the streets of Bombay for the last few years.

Elliot went to Bombay to die, having been ruined by a long-drawn-out lawsuit which he unsuccessfully fought against the state of Hyderabad.

Many 'authentic' incidents of his powers of magic are recorded, and at one time his collection of precious stones was one of the most famous in the world.

£50,000,000 Worth of Jewels.

The name of Jacob was a household word in India for many years, and many weird and wonderful stories are told of him. He was a Jew, but whether Armenian or Polish, no one ever knew. It is doubtful even whether his name was Jacob, but Jacob or not, Pole or Armenian, he was a "white" man all the way through.

He was a diamond dealer by profession, and his principal clients were the native princes of India, headed by the gem-loving Nizam of Hyderabad, and their doors were always open to him. He talked in millions, or, more literally, since his transactions were on a rupee basis, in crores, and in the course of his long life he must have dealt with at least £50,000,000 worth of Jewels.

His knowledge of gems was unrivalled, and his judgment of diamonds, rubies, and emeralds was never challenged.

Warships are cheaper in Great Britain than in the United States. The "super-Hoods" it is estimated, will represent an investment of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 when ready for sea.

The mistaken notion widely prevails in America that the British navy this year definitely decided to lay down no more capital ships. Throughout last winter, as reported in these despatches, animated controversy raged in Great Britain over the utility or futility of building any more super-dreadnoughts. The apostles of the airplane and the submarine waged a bitter fight against them. But the friends of the battleships won out. They, generally unknown abroad, the British Government returned to its historic principle that the fast, heavily-armed, heavily-

U.S. TARIFF BILL OPERATIVE.
WASHINGTON, May 27. The Emergency Tariff Bill was signed late to-day by President Harding. The new law will become effective to-morrow. It will affect for a six months' period most farm products, and carries provisions designed to prevent the dumping of foreign goods in the United States.

PAPER MAKERS' STRIKE.
ALBANY, May 27. Settlement of the strike of workers in many paper plants in Canada, the United States and Newfoundland, may be brought about early next week by submitting the question of wages and working conditions to arbitration, it was learned here to-day. Jeremiah T. Carey, President of the Brotherhood of International Paper Makers, said to-day that a group of manufacturers had submitted a proposition to arbitrate the disputes, which brought about the strike, and added there would be a conference here on Tuesday of all trades in the industry to decide the Union's course. The strike is affecting approximately forty thousand workers.

LUDENDORFF'S SANE COUNSEL.
BRUSSELS, May 27. Germany needs evolution, not revolution, said General Ludendorff, former Quartermaster-General of the German army, and once Hindenburg's chief of staff, to a correspondent of the Independent Belge. It is madness to think of war against France, the General said. We must submit and execute the peace treaty. After her prosperity Germany must know poverty. It is the best remedy. Work at home is the first need. Work abroad is of secondary importance. The co-operation of all parties is needed to give Germany new life. The press must be organized. The danger of Bolshevism still exists. For the moment propaganda has turned toward Asia, but it will return. Germany will have to support the shock for Poland is in no condition to resist.

ANOTHER CANARD EXPLODED.
LONDON, May 27. The Colonial Office denies that the Governorship of Canada has been offered to the Duke of Northumberland, as a Montreal Star cable reported yesterday.

INTENSE CAMPAIGN OF MURDER.
DUBLIN, May 27. The weekly review of events in Ireland, issued by Dublin Castle, yesterday, says that the intense campaign of murder continued unabated during the week, and that casualties to Crown forces and civilians again were heavy. Police, and military casualties totalled 57, including 25 deaths, the review asserts. There were eight murders of civilians, attributable to Sinn Fein and six cases of attempted murder. Eleven attempts were made on occupied barracks and there were 49 raids on mails. Four raids were made on Coast Guard Stations and three raids for arms. Persons now interned number 3054.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR IRELAND.
LONDON, May 27. The Cabinet has decided to send large reinforcements to Ireland, and it is rumored that new measures are to be adopted against the Republican forces in the South and West, according to an announcement by the London Times. A large number of mobile troops, the newspaper says, are to be employed in a systematic "roundup of rebels" over large areas, but, it adds, the details have not yet been settled as, owing to the continuation of a state of emergency through the industrial troubles and the need of sending troops to Silesia, it is difficult to spare troops at present.

LLOYD GEORGE'S COAL ULTIMATUM.
LONDON, May 27. The Premier initiated another attempt this morning to end the coal strike, when he addressed a deputation of mine owners and the executive body of the Miners' Union, urging the necessity of an early resumption of work, because of the country's alarming increase in unemployment and general slowing down of all industries. It is eight weeks since work in the mines ceased. Lloyd George repeated the Government's offer to grant ten million pounds to tide the coal industry over the period during which a permanent settlement shall be negotiated, but warned the conference there was no chance of increasing the amount. He added, "we shall not put a single treasury note on the table until we know the terms of permanent peace are agreed upon."

BOLSHEVIST STRIKE IN NORWAY.
NEW YORK, May 27. General strike has been started in Norway, said an official despatch received here to-day. Although no serious disturbances have been reported, the Government has called troops to assist the police in Christiania and other cities. The despatch, which stated that settlement negotiations have been started between employers and employees, stated that there was plenty of food in the cities to meet the emergency. The electric plant at the capital still is operated, but the Gas plant and other Municipal institutions have been closed down. Steamship engineers and sailors had been on strike in Christiania for weeks against proposed wage cut of 33 per cent, and yesterday despatches from the Norwegian capital stated that 120,000 Union laborers had threatened also to walk out. When all but the railwaymen began to cease work, the Government mobilized the army and navy, as it had been declared that Bolshevists were urging a general strike for revolutionary purposes.

"Here lies the woman that betrayed me," is the message written on sticks shaped like a cross, found over a mound on the canal bank, behind Verdun Asylum, by a resident of Montreal who was making deliveries last Monday. On top of the stick is a velour hat, with cherries on it, and over a small mound of earth are two women's petticoats, one green and the other yellow in color. The man who discovered the cross and underclothes was afraid to go near them and came to number 24 station and reported what he had found. The detective office was notified and men have been sent to investigate. Shovels and picks were taken. Where the cross was found is near the intake of the aqueduct. The description of the hat which first attracted the attention of the man is: "Velour hat with feather in it, and a bunch of imitation cherries hanging on one side." The petticoats are said to be of good quality and are not torn. The cross is made of wooden sticks about three inches wide, and the writing is in lead pencil.

The Question of Supplies.

The petition of Harris, Limited, Grand Bank, for assistance in the matter of supplying for the fisheries during the season now upon us, does not by any means cover the whole ground. There is still a decision to be reached by the Government; a decision that must not be of a similar nature to the bluff handed out by the Prime Minister to the unemployed which appeared before the Bar of the House on Thursday and again met that gentleman, by appointment, yesterday morning, and received a mere copious dose of the bluff prescription, the ingredients of which are so well known to Richard Anderson Squires. Would it be news, we wonder, to the general number of unemployed throughout the city, to have them know that the appearance of that special committee before the Bar of the House on Thursday was framed by the Prime Minister himself, with the connivance of the man who acted as spokesman for the deputation? Let the workmen enquire closely into the facts.

But that is beside the subject intended to be discussed in this article. The workmen are very well able to look after themselves, but we would suggest to them that they be not further mystified by the elaborations of the Prime Minister, who uses language to conceal his real thoughts, and who has no more regard for the laboring man than he has for the smallest gamin on the streets who sells newspapers. A French monarch once said, "The state—it is me," and the present Prime Minister cherishes that opinion and acts upon it. He bluffed the unemployed committee at the House on Thursday; he bluffed them at his office yesterday, and he will continue to bluff them unless they appoint intelligent men to represent them when they enter upon such missions as appearing with their grievances before that august body known as the House of Assembly, but which House does not contain one single individual who can properly be classed as an exponent of practical politics, otherwise they would have smashed the Government on Thursday when the opportunity was placed in their hands, but with crass ignorance of the situation, as it was, they failed to take advantage.

That, however, is not the point. The question of supplies for the fishery, both Labrador and Shore, is agitating every person in the country who desires to earn a living for himself and family at these industries. The Government has guaranteed supplies for the district of Placentia and St. Mary's to the tune of thousands of dollars, and other districts are now demanding similar privileges through representatives commissioned to come into St. John's and insist that all be treated alike. No Government can afford to relieve one section of the country to the disadvantage of the other sections, and that which Placentia Bay has received, Bonavists and Trinity Bays and St. George's Bay and Notre Dame Bay can with equal propriety demand. The petition of Harris, Limited, yet hangs over. Are those people going to be financially sacrificed at the expense of smaller suppliers? The Government alone can answer this question.

The organ of the Prime Minister, the Daily Star, submits that the Government is not in power to court the praise of its political critics, but to so conduct the affairs of the country as to win the approbation of the people. A most praiseworthy sentiment. One is impelled to ask, however, if the praise of the people is contained in the petition of Samuel Harris, Ltd., and of the subsidiary branches of this firm? We rather think not. The firm of Harris of Grand Bank asks the Government, of which that high-souled individual, Richard Anderson Squires is Prime Minister, for a guarantee of half a million dollars to help out a business which the Fish Regulations assisted to bring to the verge of collapse. Is the Government prepared to advance this loan, or give this guarantee, in order that twenty-four thousand people may be enabled to live, and therefore prove the truth of the Star's boast that "they so conduct the affairs of the country as to win the approbation of the people." The opportunity is offered them. Are they going to turn down Harris of Grand Bank, and dole out supplies at the order of the members for Placentia and St. Mary's, or are they going to accede to the prayer of Harris' petition and by so doing pledge themselves to outfit every fisherman in Newfoundland? There can be no discrimination. All must be treated alike. The Government is not for one section. It represents the whole island. Their duty in the premises is therefore very clear. What about carrying it out?

The King's Birthday.

As the 3rd of June, His Majesty's Birthday, has not been assigned as a public holiday this year and the Governor understands that in such circumstances a formal Leave such as is usual would cause inconvenience to many gentlemen who would wish to attend. His Excellency has decided on this occasion to drop the formal Leave. His Excellency will, however, be holding an official dinner in honour of His Majesty's Birthday on the 3rd June and has issued invitations for a Reception on the 3rd June and for a small dance on the 4th.

"Trade Review" Says Business Improving.

We reprint the following from today's issue of the Trade Review: "There has been a marked improvement in business on Water Street this week, both in the Dry Goods and the Grocery and Provision stores. Confidence in the future is being rapidly established, and it is believed that the country has passed the turning point in its affairs, and that conditions will now go on gradually improving. The fishermen and planters are nearly all getting supplies one way or another, and there seems to be no doubt that the coming fishery will be prosecuted by as many fishermen as in 1920, and as vigorously as ever. The labor given on public works in the city and suburbs is affording a liberal circulation of cash in the city stores and has given heart to the business people. The importation of goods and provisions is showing up much better and with a few months, it is hoped, will become normal once more. With a good fishery and low prices the coming fall, there is every reason to hope that the country will soon emerge from her trouble."

Accident to Floating Dock.

While preparations were being made yesterday morning to undock the schooner "Over the Top," an accident occurred and two sections of the Southside Floating Dock suddenly submerged. The accident was caused by some of the pumping machinery getting out of order. For a time the schooner seemed in danger of serious damage, but by good management she was safely floated off, and berthed. Diver Taylor was down during the evening to survey the damage to the dock's machinery.

Society of United Fishermen.

FORM LADIES ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the lady friends of the members of the Order of United Fishermen, held in the Society's Rooms, 358 Water Street, on Thursday evening last, it was decided to form and organize a Ladies' Association in connection with the progress and expansion of the Order not alone in Newfoundland, but throughout the Maritime Provinces of Canada. In conformity with the desire expressed at the Grand Lodge Session held in April last, the ladies very heartily responded, with the result that the Ladies' Association is now under way, and with great prospects of making a good voyage to destination.

The Officers of the Central Organization were duly elected, and are as follows:

President—Mrs. J. Curlew.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. E. Burrage.
Treasurer—Mrs. Wm. Muckford.
Secretary—Miss Pearl James.

It is to be hoped that this organization in St. John's merely precedes further organizations in the outports where ordinary Lodges are working, and it is the idea of the central body that every Lodge in the jurisdiction take up the formation of Ladies' Associations with the principles of the Order and for its advancement, hitherto retarded because of too much adherence to old-fashioned ideas.

Rugger Game Next Week. The Rugby game between a city team and a team from H.M.S. Cambrian which was to be played on Monday afternoon will not take place owing to the bad condition of the ground. It is expected, however, that a team consisting of Old Feildians will play the ship's team on Thursday afternoon and as the Cambrian is likely to be here for some time, it is possible that a city team will also play the ship's team. It is rarely that an opportunity to see good Rugger is given here and all those interested should turn out to see these games when played.

League Football. During the month of June the Football League will play on the 8th, 15th, 22nd and 29th of the month, save, of course, Saturdays and Sundays. By this means, extra games, made necessary by the absence of another team to the League, will be played off and the season will not be so prolonged as last year.

McMurdo's Store News. SATURDAY, May 28. McMurdo's Milk of Magnesia has many uses. It is very useful where a mild laxative is required in cases of Dyspepsia, indigestion and disorders of the digestive system, which are the result of acid stomach, and some cases of constipation. It will arrest nausea, belching of gases, flatulency, stomach, or diarrhoea due to intestinal fermentation. It is one of the best preparations to use for the relief of tooth-ache from collecting acid deposits, and so favors the health of the teeth and gums. It may be given to children in cases of teething, colic, and being nearly tasteless, they will take it easily. Eight ounce bottle, price 50c.

Aula Maxima Concert. The Grand Concert, as advertised in another column, will be held in the Aula Maxima, St. Bon's College, on Tuesday next at 8.15 p.m. The performers are all well known in musical circles, and it goes without saying that they will acquit themselves admirably on this occasion. We would advise all lovers of good music to attend the entertainment.

Feildians vs. Cambrian. A soccer game will be played at 5 p.m. this afternoon between the Feildians and a team from H.M.S. Cambrian in the H.L.S. Grounds. The ship's team is a member to be pretty hot stuff and the game, in spite of the condition in which the ground is, should be a good one.

Truckmen to Meet. The city truckmen are holding a general meeting on Monday night when the matter of the proposed decrease of 10% in cartage charges will be discussed. The truckmen, while conceding that a decrease must be expected, think it unfair that the price of horsehoes, which now costs from $3.50 to $4.50 per set, should be considerably reduced, as the cost of iron has declined over 30%.

Needs Attention. It would be well if the Health of Food Inspectors gave a little attention to some of the articles of food offered for sale in the stores, particularly as regards Lobsters and Halibut. These articles are, in some cases, exhibited in the store windows for a length of time that they become unfit for consumption. They are sold and the consumer runs the risk of ptomaine poisoning.

C. L. B. Church Parade. The C.L.B. Cadets are holding a Church Parade to-morrow morning. The Battalion will fall in at the Armory at 10.15 a.m. and will attend Divine Service at St. Thomas's Church. If weather conditions permit it is probable that, after the service, the Battalion will parade around the town.

Unfair Reduction.

It is rumored that the proposed outlay in salaries of Civil Servants is to be made on the following basis: For the first $500 of each person's salary 10% will be deducted; for the second $500 20%; and on everything over $1,000 20%. Thus on a salary of $980 the cut will be $128 or 13.2%, whilst on a salary of $5,000, like that of the Premier, the cut will amount to only 10%.

Train Notes. The incoming express with the Kyle's mails and passengers is due at 4 p.m.

The outgoing express which left here Thursday arrived at Port aux Basques last night.

The Carbonar local arrived at 12.45 p.m.

PYORRHEA. Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

IS BRITAIN AFRAID OF IRELAND?
DUBLIN, May 27.—That the destruction of Dublin Custom House was a military operation, ordered by Dail Eireann, the statement made to-night by an Irish bulletin. It describes the operation as "a complete success." The bulletin claims the destruction of Custom House reduces the most important branch of the Civil Government in Ireland to virtual impotence. It expresses regret over the destruction of a fine building, but says "the lives of four million of our people are a more sacred charge than any architectural masterpiece."

BY ORDER OF REPUBLICANS.
DUBLIN, May 27.—Fire brigades were still playing streams of water on the ruins of the Custom House to-day. Barricades are being erected, and the area is guarded by a large body of troops. Stories have been circulated of how a party of Sinn Feiners, trapped in the burning building during Wednesday's conflict, made their way to vaults, from where, at midnight, a number crept steadily out, and made their escape. Another group of men, it is claimed, left the building this morning.

ELECTION FIGURES.
BELFAST, May 27.—The unofficial count of votes, cast in Tuesday's elections in the six Northern counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry and Tyrone, shows that Unionists received 341,250 votes, Sinn Feiners 108,516 and Nationalists 60,752, and Independent Laborites 4,901. There is to be added to the Unionist vote 4,000 university voters, whose ballots will be counted on Saturday. These figures would indicate that the Nationalist-Sinn Fein combination should, in view of the proportion of their supporters, have about twenty members in the new Parliament to the Unionists 33, although it is considered probable that Unionist representation may reach 41. The fact that Joseph Devlin, Nationalist leader, must either resign his seat for West Belfast or Antrim, possibly will add to the Unionist count, as it is believed almost certain that a Unionist will be chosen for whichever seat he resigns. Two surprises of the voting were the big poll of Arthur Griffith, founder of Sinn Fein organization in Tyrone and Fermanagh, where he received more than 20,000 votes above the first Unionist and a majority of more than 12,000 votes, who, with James Craig had over Eamonn De Valera.

AGREEMENT REACHED.
WASHINGTON, May 27.—An agreement on wages and working conditions was reached to-night between representatives of Marine Engineers Association and Chairman Benson, of the United States Shipping Board, in the controversy which has threatened to tie up American shipping. (The terms will be submitted to local unions Sunday for ratification.)

"TOMMY" ON THE JOB.
OPPELN, May 27.—The vanguard of British troops from the Rhine, who supplemented by airplanes and tanks, are expected to assist in re-establishing order here, arrived to-night. In British headquarters it was said that this number would be supplemented, if necessary, by sufficient reinforcements to suppress Polish insurgents, "no matter how many thousands are required."

NOTE OF THANKS.—It is not possible for me to remember all the names of the kind friends, who called to sympathize with me in my sad and sudden bereavement, or to reply to all the messages sent me during the past week. I am grateful to all our City Ministers, including the Rev. C. A. Moulton of St. Thomas's Church and family; also to Mrs. Major, Mrs. Cummins, Miss G. Parsons, Miss Andrews, Mrs. Williams, etc. for the many kindnesses shown me and the departed one. Also to the following, who sent letters of sympathy:—Messrs. Ayre and Sons, Rev. Howell and friends, Montreal, Capt. A. and R. J. Smith, Cupids, Rev. W. H. and Mrs. Dotchin, Exploits, Mrs. Snowden and Mrs. Russell, St. Bay Roberts. Beautiful wreaths and flowers were sent by Mr. W. J. Herder and family, City, Dr. H. S. and Mrs. Atkinson, Bay Roberts, A. G. Howell and friends, Montreal, Mrs. A. J. Kaiser Forced to Live on Liquid Diet For Three Years

Troubles Began With Spell Of Flu—Is Now Picture Of Health.

"My trouble dates back to a spell of the flu three years ago and from that time up until I took Tanlac I steadily went down hill. For a whole year I was so weak I couldn't put my foot out of the house and while I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get on my feet nothing helped me a particle. I just moped around the house so weak I couldn't even lift a shovelful of coal. I was suffering nearly every day from dizzy spells, headaches and awful attacks of nervousness. My skin got yellow and I fell off until I was hardly more than a walking skeleton.

Big Sports' Meeting.

AMATEUR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION FORMED.

The Sport's meeting called at the Casino last night by Mr. G. W. B. Ayre, was a great success and as a result of his efforts, Mr. Ayre now has the satisfaction of knowing that the much needed Amateur Athletic Association is at last a reality. Over 600 people attended the meeting amongst whom could be recognized such well known members of our sporting community as Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.A., President of the Hockey and Football Leagues, Messrs. F. V. Cheesman and J. B. Orr, President and Vice President respectively of the Baseball League, Secretary Tobin of the Hockey League, Secretary Harris of the Football League and Messrs. J. Vinnicombe, T. V. Harrnett, G. E. A. Jeffery and N. C. Vinnicombe, M.H.A.

The concert which occupied the first part of the evening was one of which Mr. Ayre, as organist, has good reason to be proud. Every item was splendidly rendered and was enthusiastically encored. Mr. Phil Moore, M.H.A., once again appeared on the public platform and showed that he was as good an entertainer as ever whilst Mr. Peter Cowen's instrumental selection on "his own horn" brought down the house.

Mr. Frank Walsh, one of our oldest sports delighted the audience with one of his old time dances whilst the Wallace, Jardine, Hickey trio proved themselves as versatile as ever and had to respond to three encores. The dancing of Miss V. Wallace was greatly appreciated. Attired as a "Hickies Lassie" Miss Wallace performed the Sword Dance and Highland Flings in a manner which evoked great outbursts of applause. During her encore Miss Wallace was presented with a bouquet and a box of chocolates.

The complete concert programme was as follows:

- Selection—C.C.C. Band.
-Recitation—H. Brown.
-Song—P. F. Moore, M.H.A.
-Song and Dance—P. Dobbins.
-Instrumental Selection (on his own horn)—Mr. Peter Cowan.
-Recitation—T. P. Halley.
-Dance—Mr. F. Walsh.
-Song—Wallace, Jardine, Hickey Trio.
-Selection—C.C.C. Band.
-Sword Dance, Highland Flings—Miss V. Wallace.
-Recitation—T. O'Neill.
-Song and Recitation—J. MacDonnell, M.H.A.
-Selection—C.C.C. Band.
-Mr. T. P. Halley acted as accompanist throughout.
-After the concert had come to an end Mr. Ayre requested Hon. John Anderson to take the chair and Mr. P. Grace to act as secretary.

The Chairman called upon Mr. Ayre to explain the objects of the meeting. He expressed the hope that an association would be formed which would be a great and triumphant success. Mr. G. W. B. Ayre thanked those present for attending and he explained his appreciation of the kindness of the C.C.C. Band in giving their services. He also thanked all the performers for their assistance. Mr. Ayre then reviewed the history of sport in this colony, his reminiscences being both amusing and interesting. He paid a tribute to the late Mr. T. McNeill whom he termed "the father of the Football League." He showed that no winner in any local sports had any status outside the colony and it was to give Newfoundland athletes abroad the necessary standing that an Amateur Athletic Association should be organized. Sport, he said, should be played for sport's sake and not for revenue. After speaking of the desirability of the Parade Ground as a centre for all games, Mr. Ayre moved the following resolutions:—

- (1) That in the opinion of those present it is advisable to form The Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association.
(2) That the officers of the said Association consist of a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer.
(3) That the Football, Baseball and Hockey Leagues, the Regatta Committee and the Horsemen's Association be each asked to appoint two of their members, who with the said officers shall form the governing body of the Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association.
(4) That the said Association endeavour to procure the Parade Grounds as a headquarters for sports, but if not possible then to procure some other suitable ground.

Mr. E. B. Orr, in a brief speech, seconded the resolutions. He said he would help the Association, if formed, both financially and otherwise.

Mr. W. J. Higgins also subscribed to the idea. An Amateur Athletic Association which would give status to our athletes abroad would be of great value. He hoped that the amateur status of sports in Newfoundland would be preserved. He was sure the individuals of the League would give every assistance possible to the project. He concluded by complimenting Mr. Ayre on the success of his meeting. The resolutions were then put to the meeting and were carried with great enthusiasm.

On motion of Mr. R. Stick, seconded by Mr. J. Tobin, the following temporary officers were elected unanimously:— President—G. W. B. Ayre, Vice President—W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.H.A. Secretary—P. Grace, Treasurer—C. E. Hunt.

The meeting was brought to a close by the playing of the "Banks of Newfoundland" and the National Anthem. The C.C.C. Band now that the Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association has been launched, it is to be hoped that its career will be successful one in the near future, when it will be a power in local athletics, and when its name will be known to the outside sporting world. A medal will be given in recognition of the trouble which he has undergone in making the Association a concrete organization.

Up to the People.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Permit me to make a short comment on your note about the Modern Prohibition Meeting. You say that many of the Moderation Committee think that the public have lost interest in the movement. That is not so. The only suggestion that people had changed their minds since last summer was made in the form of a question asked me when I appeared before the Royal Commission on Prohibition. One of the members of that body asked me if I did not think that was the case. I denied it. If your note had read Prohibition Committee instead of Moderation Committee it would have been all right. The meeting on Monday night should be a test. If we get a small attendance we shall consider that people are satisfied with the present condition of affairs. If the hall is crowded we shall continue the fight.

Yours truly, WARWICK SMITH. May 23, 1921.

Painted Dolls Scored by Missionary.

London, Ont., May 23.—The frivolous, powdery, painted, half dressed dolls, to be found in large numbers on the city streets in Canada came in for denunciation by Mrs. D. R. McKenzie, of Japan, at a missionary mass meeting last night in the Methodist Church. It was foolish for Canada to send missionaries to Japan when we used there would be arrested, they appeared on the streets garbed as women and girls do in this country. "Away with the devilish will of the wigs," she concluded.

THE NORTH SYDNEY HERALD gives the information that thirty Trawlers have left France to operate from St. Pierre this year on the Grand Banks. It was the catch from this fleet that broke the market fully 20 shillings per quintal last November. The French Government guarantees a bounty equal to one dollar and twenty cents per quintal on their shipments to the Italian market, and can undersell us every time. We can stand legitimate competition from any quarter, but there is nothing but ruination to try and compete with such an artificial government business. Newfoundland has had her experience of this in the past, and should tackle this question now before it creates further trouble here. There is one way that we can bring this matter to the front, and that is at the conference of the Premiers of the Self-Governing Dominions to be held next month in London. With the assistance of the other Dominions we can force the British Government to bring sufficient pressure to bear on France to put a stop to this unfair competition with British trade. France is under many obligations to England. There are no questions on earth who can get a question out of this unfair competition that the British, and they should have the difficulty in showing France the value of these bounties, that enhance the value of food for their own people, and give cheaper fish to foreign nations than they can possibly get any other way.—Trade Review.

TRINITY.

To me, the origin of my family name in Trinity is deeply interesting, and as "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin," I am taking it for granted that others are as deeply interested in the same subject as I am. I now give the names of some families that are still well known to us in Trinity, together with the dates, etc., of the marriages which began the perpetuation of those honoured names. Whilst it is definitely stated in the old Church records, as to where (England, Ireland, Scotland, or Norway) the men of Trinity came from, it is puzzling sometimes to know where the women came from. There is practically no record of women having come here from the old country, either as wives, or daughters, and yet, the hundreds of men who came here either as bachelors or widowers, proceeded almost at once to get married. Some of their predecessors must have had a goodly number of daughters, and there is no doubt about it, however much we may boast of English, Irish, Scotch, or Norwegian blood on our grand or great-grandfather's side, on our grand or great-grandmother's side, we are plain Newfoundlanders.

The earliest marriage record is April 11th, 1757, and that is the marriage of Dennis Young and Johanna Mulkaehy.

Another in 1758, is that of Joseph Hart and Mary Bestone, of English Harbour. And yet another in 1760, is that of Richard Lockyer and Mary Pottle, of English Harbour. It is evident that the Lockyers, Pottles, and Bestones, were amongst the first settlers in English Harbour. Richard Lockyer had a family of several daughters, and two sons. The daughters became the wives of the men who came later, and the sons died young, hence the name Lockyer died out in English Harbour. Whilst scores of family names in Trinity have entirely disappeared, it is interesting to notice that the very oldest names are still represented here. Those names are Tavernor, Jones, How, Tibbs, and Ivamy. They appear, however, in the record of baptisms of 1758, showing that the parents of those children then baptised, had been married before the coming of the first resident clergyman (Rev. Benjamin Lindsay) as his first marriage was, as I have pointed out, in 1749.

I now give dates of the beginnings of some families still in Trinity.

Dampier, 1757. Thomas Dampier, of Dorset, England, married to Ann Sweet, of Trinity.

Famous Actress Tells How She Uses Derwillo To Beautify Her Complexion

New York.—Miss Ethel Clayton, the clever young actress is famous for her beautiful complexion. When her friends inquired about it she said: "It's all due to a toilet preparation called derwillo which I use twice daily. The experience I have had prompts me to make my secret public. This wonderful derwillo instantly beautified my skin and its continued use has made the results permanent." When Miss Edna Wilder, the well-known beauty specialist, was interviewed in reference to Miss Clayton's remarkable complexion, she stated: "Any woman can have a beautifully complexion when she knows how. It's a very simple process. I use the same article in my work, and until you try it you have no idea of the marvelous results. The very first application will astonish you. Go to the toilet counter of any drug or department store and get a bottle of derwillo, then make the following test: Examine your skin critically before your mirror, note carefully its appearance, then apply derwillo as directed. After you have made the first application look in your mirror again and note the surprising change. A peachlike color mounts the cheeks; a baby softness comes to the skin; it makes the skin rose-white, velvety and radiantly beautiful. It is wonderful for a dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, oily skin, sun spots, coarse pores, pimples, blackheads, chapped, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and many other facial blemishes. Derwillo method is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. It is superior to face powder, as perspiration does not affect it, therefore it stays on better. Thousands who have used it have had the same results as Miss Clayton, and I am sure if you will give it a fair trial you will become just as enthusiastic as I am and always use it in preference to any other powder or beautifier. For permanent results the skin should be cleansed cream. For this purpose I have found nothing superior to Liska Cold Cream.

NOTE.—When asked about Derwillo and Liska Cold Cream, one of our leading druggists said: "They are truly wonderful beautifiers, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the Manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied, and we would not permit the use of our name unless these products possessed unusual merit." They are sold in this city under an ironclad money-back guarantee by all department stores and up-to-date druggists, including:

the Modern Method of Treating an old Complaint

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

I don't know just how or why in my references to the school-teachers of the past in Trinity, I forgot "Polly Newhook." I did so, however, in spite of the fact that I attended her school for a year or two, and I am conscious of the fact, that she materially assisted in laying the foundation, upon which, since in other schools and in college, the superstructure of useful knowledge was built, such as has helped me to do my duty in that state of life in, which I pleased God to call me. And what she did for me, she also did for many others. B.F.F.

I saw an interesting contrast in the object of operations a few days ago, not far from Trinity. A woman was digging up soil in preparation for the planting of potatoes in it; whilst not more than fifty yards from her, another woman was going through the same movements, on a bank of snow over four feet deep, hoping thereby to aid its early disappearance.

Salvage Notes.

During the early part of last week the men of Flat Island did well with the seals, (the Russian or Sealmen). Some were obtained as high as 70 and 80 per day—most of them being secured by use of the bat or gaff. The people here also secured several seals but were too late in going to the ice to make a profitable venture. Some boats still secure a young one or two—when out, but all accustomed to the habit of seals, can understand how "why" the young harps are now.

On last Wednesday a case of diphtheria occurred here and soon thereafter a couple of other cases. Consequently the Board of Health authorized all schools and churches to be closed, and so Sunday was a "quiet" day around these borders. The school re-opened to-day—in the upper department, but the lower department is still closed.

Miss Morgan, the assistant teacher for Salvage school is suffering from an attack of diphtheria.

Mr. Morley J. Hefferton is on a visit from Grand Falls to his brother, the principal of the High School, Salvage.

The Mysterious Mdle. Langues.

On May 23, 1858, Mdle. Henriette Jenny Savatelle de Langues, died in the St. Louis quarter of Versailles. For years there had been no more familiar figure than this tall angular, gaunt old lady, who was to be seen every day in the streets, usually with a troop of small boys shouting at her heels. A grim, taciturn, shabby creature, she lived her life apart from all, but she possessed a certain dignity which kept the curious and impertinent at a distance. It was known that she had carried out the Royal Court, and that she had occupied apartments at the Chateau de Versailles. Now that she was dead the mystery was deepened by the discovery that "Mdle." was a man. The wildest rumours flew from mouth to mouth. It was even suggested and widely believed that "she" was none other than the missing Dauphin—Louis XVII, the rightful King of France, who had lived a sordid life among the poor, while another sat on his throne. "Her" apartments were found to be full of costly furniture, with a wardrobe a queen might have envied, and hundreds of thousands of francs cunningly concealed. For half a century "she" had led a mysterious life, playing the role of woman so successfully that none ever doubted her sex; gaining Government pensions by fraudulent pretences, and finding a dupes in the most exalted circles of France. The story opens at the time of the French Revolution, when thousands were flying from the blood-frenched streets of Paris. Among the fugitives was M. Savatelle de Langues, brother of the late Keeper of the Royal Treasury, who had ruined himself by lending several millions of francs to the Comte d'Artois—brother of Louis XVI. A smart young man—M. B.—was among the fugitives, who had come to the Comte's apartments, and the latter succumbed to typhoid. M. B.—began from that moment to ingratiate himself with the daughter of the Marquis de T.—another fugitive, and gained such a hold upon her that he compelled her to introduce him to exalted circles in the role of the daughter of the man who had loaned the Comte d'Artois five million francs. Under this guise for years he prospered, and his aim for the return of the borrowed money. Unfortunately for him, however, the marquis's daughter eventually threw him over, and from that time began from place to place, of solitary shunning of his fellow-men, and of growing eccentricities, which had its dramatic conclusion in his death, and the discovery that "she" was a man.

Fall of Constantinople.

On the 29th of May, 1453, Constantinople fell before the Turks. Constantine Palologus, the last of the Emperors, being sabbred by an unknown hand, and with him fell the last of the Eastern Empire. After a year's busy preparation, 70,000 Turks commanded by Mahomet II. in person, were drawn up in the spring of 1453 before the doomed city. Their lines extended along the landward or western side of the triangle on which the capital was built. Within the rampart a double wall and a great ditch 100 feet wide—the Emperor marshalled his little band of defenders. Scarcely six thousand out of a population of a hundred thousand men, would arm for the defence of the city. Western Christendom was so apathetic that with the exception of a few mercenaries—two thousand, under Giusstani, a noble of Geneva, there was no foreign aid. The harbour of the Golden Horn guarded by a strong chain across its mouth, sheltered only fourteen galleys. The Turkish fleet consisted of 230 vessels of different sizes. For seven weeks the attack went on, but the broad gap in the central rampart was made from the sea. Attempts at negotiation failed, and so, at day-break on May 29, the long lines of Turks made the grand assault. A terrible fierce fight followed. The terrible Janissaries came on, the wall was surmounted and the city taken. And now—385 years afterwards—the Turks themselves will be required to relinquish the greater portion of the capital as a punishment for their participation on Germany's side in the Great War. And none too soon! For the atrocities they have committed on the helpless Armenians and other smaller nations ought to have been avenged by the present Allies long since.

Reply of German Hymn of Hate.

THE POEM RECITED BY SIR JOHN MARTIN HARVEY.

Sir John Martin Harvey created great enthusiasm at the gatherings of the North British Society and Commercial Clubs when he referred to the German Hymn of Hate and then declaimed the answer to it, the verses of Helen Grey Come, an American, published in the Atlantic Monthly in 1915, entitled "An American Chant of Love for England."

A song of hate is a song of Hell; Some there sing that sing it well. Let them sing it loud and long. We lift our hearts in a loftier song: We lift our hearts to Heaven above, Singing the glory of her we love.—England!

Sinking Ship Panic.

According to advices which have reached New York from Swatow, the sinking of the steamer Hong Koh, bound from Singapore to Amoy, with approximately 1100 Ainoy and Swatow Chinese on board, caused a panic in which the passengers fought each other with knives, axes, and hatchets for places in the lifeboats. About 1000 passengers and most of the native crew are reported to have been drowned or killed in the rioting. Boats and rafts that could be launched were swamped from overcrowding or wrecked against the steamer's side by the heavy swell. The captain, Harry Holmes, was drowned, but the other officers, who were fortunate, escaped.

A Message to Skin Sufferers

For years perhaps you have had to endure discomfort, disgustment, humiliation, or even daily torture and sleepless nights, because of some skin disease. Times without number you have followed some hopeful advice and each time you have met only disappointment and despair.

"Who knows?" you ask, "Whose advice may I follow?"

Here is a frank and honest answer: Reputable physicians admit they can only guess at the true cause of skin disease. Some say it is a blood disease. Others say it is a skin disease—to be treated through the skin. But they are not sure and we would be foolish to try to tell you what even science does not know.

We can tell you, however, about a doctor's prescription for skin disease that has been successfully used for 25 years, and we need only read letters from those who have used it.

A Doctor's Prescription

D.D.D. is the prescription of a physician, Dr. D. D. Denton, who first prescribed it to his neighborhood patients 25 years ago. Today its sale is enormous. Even so, we do not doubt from the hundreds that D. D. D. is a miracle. It is just a commonplace lotion compounded of well known healing and soothing ingredients, such as thymol, oil of wintergreen, etc. We make no extravagant claims. We say only this: That for 25 years, day after day, letters have simply poured in—without our suggestion or solicitation—telling us gratefully of restored health and happiness.

Trial Bottle Sent on Request

Without making any pretense of infidelity, we can say that you can use a small bottle of D. D. D. for a trial before you purchase a larger one. We will send you a trial bottle upon request. We will not charge you for the trial bottle. We will not charge you for the postage. We will not charge you for the tax. We will not charge you for anything. We will not charge you for anything. We will not charge you for anything.

THE PAINTFEST.

The air is fragrant with the taint of turpentine and linseed oil, for everyone is using paint, according to the rules of Hoyle. And this I hold to be a sign that Jonah has gone overboard; that brightens up the outlook's a sea, and normally will be restored. Ill fares the land whose people say, "We can't afford to paint the barn," who see the fence all dingy gray, and do not seem to care a darn. For years the people have been bent beneath a load of care and woe, and so they would not spend a cent for any brand of paint we know. Their load was great, they had the dumps, and there was no relief in view; unpainted went the cistern pumps, the cowsheds and the hencoops, too. While things were thus I always said, "Our land will have its ugly sores, until men buy Venetian red, and paint their roofs and cellar doors. All optimists' spells are bosh, and normally will not wash, when shabby houses fill the town." But now the sign is that which I yearned to see: the paint grad, the smell of linseed oil's returned, and it has made all boatsmen glad. Men seek the paintshop with the crush, the kopecks and the men, and then they ply the usual brush, and make the old shabby young again.

Supplies Question Debated in House.

Opposition Leader Gets After Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

FRIDAY, 27th. THE HARRIS PETITION. The House met yesterday at 2.15 p.m. Sir John Crosbie rose to make an explanation with reference to his position in connection with the Harris petition. It had been said by Mr. Foote that he was going to vote against it. He wished to make himself clear on this point. It was immaterial whether he voted against it or not if the Government wanted to turn it down. He had made no statement pro or con the matter. If, however, the 20,000 people dependent on Harris can only be saved according to the prayer of the petition, then the guarantee should be given. But if the Government were to undertake it, they must do so in a manner which would protect the colony as a whole. He asked for something similar to that being done for Ferryland and Placentia and St. Mary's, and for Port de Grave district. He had placed himself or record that a bill was prepared now, rather than have it circulated round the country that was the man responsible for turning down the Harris petition, to say that he would support it. In doing so, he realized the responsibility which would be placed upon the Government when deciding upon the matter and he appealed to them to give it careful consideration. Sir Michael Cashin agreed to a great extent with Sir John Crosbie's remarks. As the Government was through the Fish Regulations—responsible for the downfall of the Harris firm, then the burden of helping that firm was on their shoulders. Was it not their duty to compensate Harris. But the trouble was that the taxpayer of the country will have to pay. If Harris is compensated then it is the right of every other firm injured by the Fish Regulations to demand compensation. Some discussion here arose over the relief for Ferryland and Placentia and St. Mary's in the matter of supplies. It appeared that the Government merely guaranteed the money but did not put up the cash. Mr. Sullivan said he had understood that the money would be placed at the disposal of these districts.

Restoring Nerve Power. In many people the tissues of the nerves have suffered from the strain of War and from the shortage of fats. You can restore your nerves in a natural way by eating "Skippers." The pure olive oil in which they are packed is worth its weight in gold to those who suffer from "fat-starved" nerves. Your retailer will supply you with a tin of "SKIPPERS." A guarantee on every can. "Skippers" Are Brisking with good points. ANGUS WATSON & Co., LIMITED, Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.

Sir Michael Cashin was under the same impression. Inspector O'Reilly had been given a cheque for the amount but he had not been given instructions to cash it. The Prime Minister said he would submit the proposition to a committee of Council. There was a great deal of difference between paying the whole amount and collecting it after and guaranteeing the losses. Sir Michael Cashin said the merchants were looking for cash. They needed it as there was a shortage of money in the country. The Prime Minister said it was more difficult for the Government to collect from a fisherman than for a merchant to collect from the Government. Sir Michael Cashin thought the matter was as broad as it was long. Sir John Crosbie said the merchant could not, owing to the stringency of money, consider anything but a cash transaction. Notices of question were given by Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Moore. Sir Michael Cashin asked if any financial statement had been issued to the brokers who took up the loan. He claimed that there was a financial statement presented in spite of the Prime Minister's protestations to the contrary, and that that statement was the one handed down by the past Government. He said the raising of the present loan came very near to obtaining money under false pretences, and had even offered to bear the expense of a cable to the broker's agent who had come down here, and to ask him what statement he had been given. Mr. Higgins also took the matter up. He said that no corporation would underwrite a loan without any statement before them. Sir Michael Cashin was sorry the House had not been told that this gentleman was in town loaning money without a statement, as many people would have called on him. (Laughter)

PASSAGE OF WORDS. During question time a hot argument took place between Sir Michael Cashin and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Sir Michael told the Minister he was in the House under a cloud. He had held Sir John Crosbie and himself up to the country as robbers and worse in the press and it cost the country $10,000 to get auditors down to prove the Minister a liar. The Minister said Sir Michael was like a beaten cur. The Prime Minister asked the Reporter's Box to note those words. Sir Michael Cashin—"I'll write them out and send them across to you." The Prime Minister told Sir Michael Cashin that he was not in a position to enter into details concerning the proposed Sales Tax. He also stated that the debt of the Municipal Council, not including the Royal Bank guarantee, was approximately $1,428,000. Mr. Higgins protested against the use of St. John's East money for doing work which should be paid for out of public funds. Dr. Jones stated that the cost of Mr. Main snow shovelling was taken out of the district's allocation. The Prime Minister—"Was the work done in the district?" Capt. Lewis—"You should know." Some discussion then took place over the Bill to Amend the Act Respecting the Prosecution of the Sealfishery. Sir Michael Cashin objected to the matter being put in the hands of the Governor in Council. If the Government-in-council were allowed to have all this power, what was the use of calling the House together at all. Sir John Crosbie held similar views. Some further discussion took place on this matter, and the Bill was read a second time. On motion of the Prime Minister the remaining Orders of the Day were deferred. Adjournment was taken until Monday next at 3 p.m.

Characters Changed by Accidents. Photographing the skulls of criminals under X-rays to determine if surgical operations might cure the patients of criminal tendencies is the latest American innovation. This work has just been undertaken at the Michigan State Penitentiary, where a machine for the purpose has been installed. When it is found that a part of the skull is pressing on the brain, an operation is to be performed in the prison hospital by Detroit surgeons, who have volunteered to co-operate in the experiment. In the event of a cure being effected the judge who sentenced the prisoner will be asked by the governor of the jail to bring about his release. Some of the State judges have agreed to accede to any such request.

Mystery of Fanciness. The idea is not regarded very hopefully by mental specialists in London. "Theoretically," says Dr. Bernard Hollander, "the suggestion is possible, but, in my view, hardly feasible." There is at present no wide agreement as to the separate functions performed by separate parts of the brain. It is impossible, with certainty, to pick out the controlling centres. There is evidence in favour of established regional controls, but, speaking generally, I do not believe we are justified in pointing to it as really sufficient to constitute proof. "These American prison doctors appear to be going a considerable step farther in that they are seeking to establish the controlling moral centres of the brain. This is an infinitely more complex task, and I regard the success of their efforts as being highly problematical. "Surely we must first make sure of probing the secrets of physical action before we can expect to break in on the moral sphere? "In medical records there are many cases of men, and in a less degree of women, who have received several injuries to the head resulting in a change in their characteristics. "In some instances the change has been a complete reversal of character, enough, the war was productive of a and usually for the worse. Naturally number of cases of this class.

Why We See "Stars." Each of the five senses has its special set of nerves through which sensations are recorded in the brain. With the exception of the nerves of touch, which extend to all parts of the body, these perform special functions for certain individual organs—the nerves of sight being connected with the eye, those of smell with the nose, those of taste with the mouth, and those of hearing with the ears. Whenever the brain receives a sudden shock, such as would follow a blow on the head, the vision nerves are disturbed in such a way as to produce the effect of seeing flashes of light, or "stars." The sensitive eye-nerves cannot be jarred without producing this effect of light, while a severe blow will often react in a similar manner upon the nerves of hearing, thus leading the person who is struck to imagine that he is listening to unusual noises. At the Yarmouth Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sunburn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache. ALFRED STOKES, General Secy.

THE UNAPPRECIATED SENSE.

When one thinks of the five senses, one is apt to think of the senses of sight and hearing as the ones that really count and the other three as of minor importance. If one had to give up one of the senses, one would be the most likely to give up the sense of smell. And yet in so doing I think one would give up more than one realized.

Both in actual sense pleasure and in the pleasure of associations, it seems to me that the sense of smell has a more direct connection with the subconscious mind than the other senses—that is, we smell less consciously than we see or hear, and consequently a familiar scent brings back deeply buried memories more powerfully than a sight or sound.

The Smell of Wood Smoke.

I was driving the other day down a country lane with a city friend when the clean acid, fascinating smell of wood smoke from the chimney of an old farm house struck our nostrils. "How that carries me back to my childhood," he said, closing his eyes the better to shut out the present and savor the past (by the way, have you not noticed how we always shut our eyes and thus shut off sight, the keenest and most absorbing of our senses, when we want to concentrate on one of the other senses?) "In my grandfather's house in the country there was never anything but wood fires and even the letters that came from that house had that smell hanging about them."

In Henry Adam's story of his own education by books and by life, there is a fascinating description of the boy's reaction to his surroundings through the various senses. "Among senses smell was the strongest—smell of hot pine woods and sweet fern in the scorching summer noon; of new mown hay; of ploughed earth; of hedges, of peaches, lilacs, syringias; of stables, barns, cowyards, of salt water and low tide on the marshes; nothing came amiss. Next to smell came taste."

The Smell of Good Things Baking.

A Letter Friend who evidently is keenly sensitive to the pleasure this sense can give us, writes: "I just love the smell of wood burning as one goes along the road and sees the smoke curl up out of the chimney; also art apples and spice cakes baking at Thanksgiving or Christmas, and oh so many other things." And another Letter Friend tells how instead of letting her Christmas tree end ignobly on the dump, she always keeps the branches to burn because she loves the sweet savor of them.

A Confession.

Here's a confession of my own. I call it a confession because so many people have a violent prejudice against perfumes of any sort. I think to have some very delicate scent hovering about one is a charm. No one detests cheap perfume more than I. But I cannot believe that the faint elusive scent that comes from having some very delicate sachet lie in the drawer with one's clothes, really offends good taste, and personally I enjoy such a delicate emanation. To select some delicate scent and identify it with oneself, seems to me just as justifiable as to drench oneself with cheap perfume, thus torturing the noses of all around one (alas, we have no noses!) is unjustifiable.

Judgments of the Ocean.

How Seamen and Traders Framed Their Own Laws.

(By SIDNEY W. CLARKE, in John O'London's Weekly.)

To-day, when the principles of international law are rather in the melting-pot and a League of Nations has been called into being for their restatement and amplification, and to act as a sort of international policeman to see to their due observance, it is interesting to look back to that remote period, some 3,000 or more years ago, when their first outlines were being sketched and enforced by the merchants and mariners of the Eastern Mediterranean.

"The Law is Lord of the Sea." It was the ancient traders of Crete and Phoenicia, those intrepid adventurers who voyaged afar in the quest for gold, who first felt the need for something more than the rules and regulations of the township and the State. In the years of the glory of Tyre, when, as the prophet Ezekiel recorded, "thy wares went forth out of the seas, thou didst enrich the kings of the earth with the multiplication of thy riches and of thy merchandise," her traders and seamen framed a code of sea law which should apply to the ships and all they carried wherever they might be. These customs of the sea, later put into more definite form by the Greeks of Rhodes, formed the basis of all subsequent maritime codes and were the first beginnings of international law. "I, indeed, am the lord of the world," said the Emperor Antonine, about A.D. 150, "but the law is lord of the sea. Let this be settled by the Rhodian law, which has been devised for nautical matters."

Striking Off the Pilot's Head.

The Rhodian code was adopted by the Romans, stated in terms by the Emperor Justinian, and later was carried to France, where it was extended by the traders of Bordeaux into the famous sea code known as the Rolls of Oleron, which, in turn, was recognized by the English Admiralty, and confirmed by Act of Parliament in 1402, though with some modifications—as, for instance, in the punishment awarded to a negligent pilot. "By the laws of Oleron," an old commentator, "if a pilot's fault is so notoriously gross that the crew sees an apparent wreck, they may then lead him to the halches and strike off his head; but the laws of England allow no such hasty execution."

Prominent among these ancient Judgments of the Sea, as they were termed, was one relating to losses incurred in saving the ship from tempest, which, we are told in a deeply interesting essay by Mr. G. A. Henderson son in the current issue of Lloyd's Calendar (Lloyd's, Royal Exchange, Ss.), is the basis of the modern law of General Average, which provides a livelihood for a distinct profession called average adjusters, round which quite a library has gathered. Average adjusting, like tea-tasting, gauging for licensed victuallers, and other mysterious occupations, is little known to the general public. Average adjusters are learned persons, specially good at figures. When in order to save a ship, the cargo has to be jettisoned, or thrown overboard, or some other sacrifice has to be made involving loss to one of the parties concerned in the voyage, for the benefit of all parties, the loss is to be distributed according to the principles of average—often a very complicated matter. This is done by the average adjusters. There is a mass of legal decisions and literature about average adjusting. It is interesting to note that the Rhodian law was as follows:—

If a ship is caught in a storm and makes jettison of its cargo, and breaks its sails and masts and tillers and anchors and rudders, let all these come into contribution, together with the value of the ship and of the goods which are saved. Which differs not at all in principle from the first express enunciation of the rule of General Average by an English Judge in 1801:—

All loss which arises in consequence of extraordinary sacrifice made or expenses incurred for the preservation of the ship and cargo comes within General Average, and must be borne proportionately by all who are interested.

St. Paul and the Shipwreck. One wonders whether St. Paul had this ancient law in mind when he told how, in a vain attempt to avert the shipwreck at Melita,

We being exceedingly tossed with a tempest, the next day they lightened the ship; and the third day we cast out with our hands the tackling of the ship . . . and when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea. We can easily realize the necessity for the rule of General Average—for practically the only means of escape for the frail open ship from being overwhelmed by a tempestuous sea was cutting away the single mast to bring the vessel upright when heeling over, or by casting our cargo to lighten her when shipping heavy seas. We can imagine, too, the scene when the voyage ended—how the shipmaster would gather his passengers together and "adjust the average"—that is, collect from each a contribution to recoup the merchant whose goods had been sacrificed for the general benefit, or himself, if his mast or tackle had been cut away.

A Great Uniter of Nations.

General Average, by the way, has nothing to do with what is termed "Average" in connection with fire insurance. The latter is a provision sometimes inserted in insurance contracts, whereby the insurance company protects itself against under-insurance by stipulating that it shall pay in case of loss only such a sum as represents the proportion that the amount of the policy bears to the total value of the property covered. Thus, under a policy subject to average, if the insured has a factory worth £20,000, but only insures for £10,000, and a total loss occurs, the company will pay only £5,000. Comparatively few policies are subject to average, and those which are contain a special clause to that effect. Persons taking out insurances should always read their policies to see whether they contain such a clause. But fire insurance is a comparatively modern institution, whereas, as we have seen, General Average is one of the very earliest examples of international law.

A Big Plate of Home Made ICE CREAM.

This Freezer is small, but it will make two quarts of Ice Cream, enough for quite a large family. It weighs only 2 1/2 lbs., and may be kept on the pantry shelf. It saves ice, for it requires about half as much as a freezer with a wooden tub. It can be placed in an ordinary refrigerator after the cream is frozen.

This saves ice and time and labor in packing.

Two Quart Sizes, $2.00 each.
