CHAPTER XII.

"I feel that things are rowing down to the end, and that will be blessed oblivion. I cannot ask God's blessing upon what I have done, but in my heart of hearts I believe that it is at least human justice, now that I know that the daughter of Dora Deane"—his voice faltered for a moment—"now that I know that the child really died in her infancy."

He paused for a few moments, and seeing that Sir George and Peter had considerably withdrawn to the far end of the spacious room, he turned upon Melville and continued:

"I ask you, Arthur Melville, upon your oath, and in the sight of Heaven, if all you told me was true—that you verily believe the daughter of Dora Deane—of Lady Morden, to be dead?"

"My good fellow, you distress me," remonstrated Melville. "Have I not already proved it beyond doubt. The grandfather wrote it nearly twenty years since. You have his letter still. We had no reason to doubt his word, but to humor you I went in the neighborhood of Deal and made searching and conclusive inquiries. It only confirmed what we already knew. The child of Dora died of some infantile complaint, and there is a tombstone bearing the record still. I saw it with my own eyes."

"I am satisfied," said Locksley.

"And," Melville went on, "I will telegraph to Edmund to come home at once. I expect that he will be in a tearing rage with me," he added, with a smile.

As Locksley complained of a headache, he was left alone with his valet, and shortly afterward went to his room to lie down.

Meanwhile the viscount sought Lady Clare, while Sir George amused himself by envying the roguish powers of his subtle kinsman.

"I wonder," he thought, "where my part of the plunder comes in! Heigho!

ho! I suppose I shall have to wait until Clare is settled, then I can have a definite income. We really cannot exist much longer on her paltry fifteen hundred a year. Now, if I had a thousand or two to work my infallible system of breaking the bank at Monte Carlo, I could pile up a fortune in one season. 'Til see if I can bleed young Locksley or Melville. Now, I wonder what claim he has over the elder Locksley? If he doesn't advance a little cash, by Jove! 'Til set myself to find out."

He glanced mechanically from the window near to which he was standing, a big cigar between his teeth, and saw his daughter and Melville disappearing among the trees that skirted the lawn.

A deep flush dyed his red face crimson, and an oath escaped him.

"Curse it!" he muttered, ("my own child takes sides against me with him. I half-fear at one time that he would have inveigled her into marriage, but he knows a trick worth two of trying all three of us up with a paltry fifteen hundred a year! It is lucky that matters are settled with young Locksley, and 'Til see that my astute nephew gets no hold over him and Clare, unless I share in it.")

In five minutes he heard voices, and, drawing nearer, distinguished the tones of Viscount Melville. They were clear, incisive, and there was in them a ring of triumph.

Sir George listened with glistering eyes, as he crouched in the shadow.

"Clare, you must obey me in all," Melville was saying. "And if I put a fortune within your reach, some day you may repay my devotion. For myself, all that which I have struggled for I have attained. I hold that which forever places me beyond want. I now fight for your love, and you shall yet see that one word of hope from you is worth more to me than life itself."

"At present, Arthur, I have no love to give any one," replied Lady Clare. "Even the wealth you forebode would be valueless, if I could not punish those who have so bitterly wronged me."

"Then let me explain myself, Clare—let me make things clear to you. Let me show you that all—all is in your favor. I told you this morning that only as the wife of Edmund Locksley was the confession of his father of value to you. When I said that, I lied. I feared that when you knew the truth you would bring some pressure upon him to marry you—a pressure that few men would care to ignore, even when love stands in the way—the pressure of wealth against beggary. With that confession is Mr. Locksley's will, in which you are the principal legatee. The bulk of his fortune, his houses and his land, are left to you, in trust, for your children, if you should have any, and for your children's children. Listen, Clare. I forced him to make this will—I forced him with figuratively speaking, a knife at his throat! But even then he turned upon me, and threatened to rend it to pieces, and to defy me. Only your marriage with his son would reconcile him to it, and to this proviso I had to consent: though it was like a hot iron in my soul. Do you know what my thoughts were then? Murder! I hated that boy—I swore to remove him from my path, even after long years."

"But, enough! A propitious fate has smothered the way. Nothing stands between us and riches and revenge but the frail thread of that old man's life. Edmund Locksley must never see his father again. Edmund Locksley must go on with this mad love of his, and the will and the confession must be secured—lest the old man destroy it, in a fit of remorse. This shall be my task, Clare, while you fool Edmund to the top of his bent. After all, I shall surely deserve some recognition at your hands, for our futures are of necessity strangely bound together."

There was silence for a few moments, when his pleading tones had ceased, and Sir George wiped his perspiring brow.

"You have spoken truly, Arthur," replied the even voice of Lady Clare. "You have spoken truly. What you have told me is most surprising—most bewildering, but I see that you have been working to one end. You have dreamed that I would become your wife sooner or later, and I cannot but admire your persistent determination, though I have no admiration for your qualities as a husband. Still, there is a change in my life; this is not the world of forty-eight hours ago, and I am not the same Lady Clare Moncrieff. I will be your wife when all is over!"

Sir George almost uttered an oath, but if he could have seen Melville's face, the passion in it would have startled him.

"And now, Clare, not one word to your father. He is of too dense and brutal a nature to be allowed even to suspect a motive of such delicate movements as ours."

"I have no reason to be proud of him," her ladyship replied, contemptuously. "We must ultimately retire him with a small pension, payable at short dates. I dare not trust him with more than a few pounds at a time, or he would disgrace himself in some way."

Melville laughed by saying: "I dread our next tete-a-tete, now that he is aware that I am not exactly a pauper. Come, we had better return to the house. One or the other must now be ever on the watch."

Sir George crouched low in his hiding place behind a thick clump of clematis, and as they passed within a few yards of him, he was seized with a fierce desire to spring out, and dash Melville to the earth. His hands were clinched, and his huge face was purple with wrath.

"Pension me off, eh?" he muttered, when they were gone. "A small pension, too! My nature is brutal, is it? They shall see that my nature is brutal. My clever nephew shall find that I can outwit even him! He shall see to me for terms, and our next tete-a-tete may be something to be afraid of, in reality."

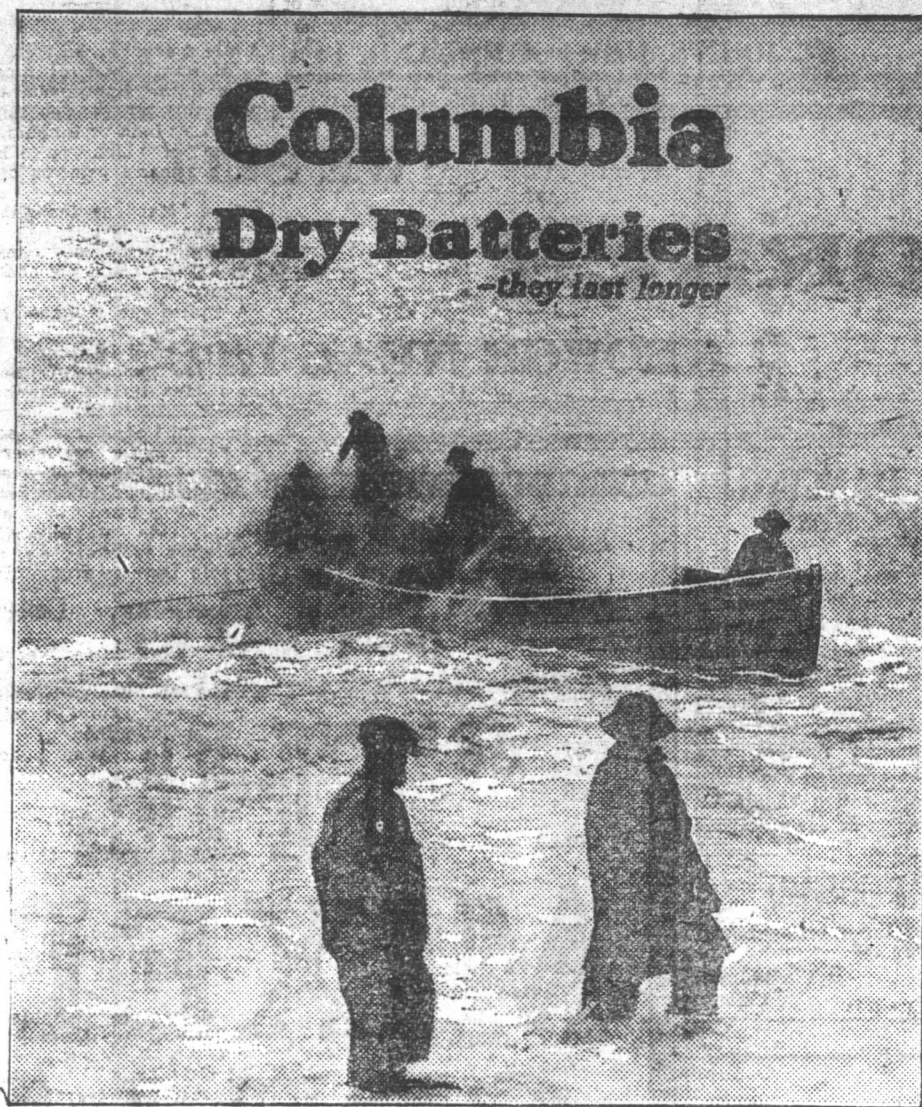

He returned to the house by a circuitous path, a fresh cigar in his mouth, his usual good-humored smile on his face.

He met Peter in the hall and the valet looked worried.

AT HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK.

What do you think of this real self. You see him just vanishing around a corner—and you when you wake up at three o'clock in the morning?

On a wondrous, sometimes wondrous, darkness with a never sent to cum-ber the earth. And then one remembers some of its usages; as an antidote to too much sunlight, as a time in which to have moonlight, as a prelude for the miracle of the dawn. And also—as a time in which to become detached from oneself and get a glimpse of him. Not as others see him but as he is.

And one of the measures of a man's true success in life is what he thinks of himself then.

And You Never Pursue Him.

There are times even in the daytime when you catch furtive glimpses of

Do you wonder clairvoyantly why he finds the things he has been working so hard to get worthwhile? Do you wonder how he can have left undone the really beautiful things? What do you think of his attitude toward all the responsibilities that civilization lays on men and women? Would you respect him if he were some other man's self and had gotten mixed up with yours?

Would You Want Others To See Him? Would you be willing to have other people see him as you see him now? In short, what do you think of yourself when you wake up at half past three in the morning?

For one of the measures of a man's true success in life is what he thinks of himself then.

But another is what he thinks of himself in the full tide of noonday strength.

And somewhere, between, I suppose, lies the real truth—the man as omniscience sees him.

What Do You Think Of Him? Does your heart sink when you look at him? Is there a queer sick feeling in the pit of your stomach? (Or is it in your heart? It is hard to tell at half past three in the morning.)

THE SAFE WAY.

WALT MASON

All day, in me as in a 11 peanut stand, I cater to my trade, and when the evening is at hand I count the sums I've made, and scamper home, to beat the burglar, serene and unafraid. And some will say, "It is so slow, the way you nail the dime; you take fifty cents or so, and think your trade's sublime; far better capture heaps of dough by means of midnight crime." And so they go and peddle booze, or rob or cheat for kate; and husky cops, in gum-soled shoes are busy on their trail, and soon or late by three and two; they bound a hand in jail. I'd hate to slink along the street, an outcast, full of fear that any low-brow sleuth I meet may seize me by the ear, that every copper on his beat may chase me far and near. I'd hate to feel the cold alarm that fills the outcast's breast, if some one taps him on the arm at law's severe behest, to put him where he'll do no harm, the house-gow's cherub's guest. I sell my peanut in the pokes, and draw five cents a throw, and hand out chaste and breezy joke-patrons, ere they go, and I am classed with honest folks, no terrors do I know. I look the peeler in the eye when near my peanut booth; I do not hesitate to gey the Jaisly beard-sleuth; the well known laws I don't defy; I heed them all, in sooth. And it is better far to earn a nickel at a time, than gain a wad too big to burn a stack too tall to climb, and fear the cops at every turn, because of sin and crime.

Tired Nerves

Mrs. E. R. Walsh, R.R. No. 2, Navan, Ont., writes—

"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food saved me from a nervous breakdown. I had been nervous, could not sleep and was always tired. The Nerve Food built me up and made me feel like a different person."

MODERN life brings a terrible strain on woman's delicate nervous system. The continuous whirl of social life, charitable and church work, together with all the cares of home and family entail a burden that the nerves cannot bear. Sooner or later physical bankruptcy must come and the system will break down.

Take care of this by taking a reasonable amount of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to keep up health and strength with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has long since proven its merits as a constructive means of building up the exhausted nervous system.

R33 CALLED FOR HELP.

R33 DRIVING NORTH.
LONDON, April 16. ### Masonic Billiard Tournament

HOW THE PLAIN SIDE WON.

Pray list to me whilst I relate A tale that gives me pain. A "Billiard Tourney" once took place Betwixt the "Spot and Plain": Were this not so, you might to-night Be eating ham or kippers. Instead of which you've had your fill Of Crossman's painless flippers.

Friend "Mac" he thought it "quite a joke," And "told some racy ones": But still he could not shake the nerve Of good old "Joey Nanna": He smiled, he laughed, he joked, he swore.

He even tried to groan: But "Joey" just simply viewed him As a "new-style Gramophone." The "Thistle" makes a sorry meal, As you'll agree "old fella": If you're in doubt of what I say, Just question "Gussie Sellars": He tried to bite, the thistle stung; Which made "old Gussie" yell, And when the game was over, He told Dave to go to "Heaven."

Of course, "Will Bartlett" won his game, And then he started weeping; To think that he'd been mean enough To wallop "Benney Keeping." But "Benney" said, "I'll tell the world" I'll even tele-phon- "Bill" shaved so many shots to-night He should have brought a hone.

When "Rodger" saw "poor Gussie" fall, He weakly tried to whistle; Because he too essayed to eat An overdose of "Thistle." And when the sad affair was o'er, His voice was heard to falter; As in an undertone he said, "I've had enough of 'Walter.'"

As "undertaker" Johnnie shone! He buried "Stuart" deep; He meant to—stated from the start— You can "bank" I'll make him sleep. Well may your teardrops fall, To note the downfall of the strong. A "warning knell" foretold that night The fate of "S. A. Long."

When "Graham" marries, he should try To get by hook or crook; A girl domestic in her ways, A wholesome red-faced cook. Unless he does this, when he finds The steak a trifle tough; We trust that he'll remember that He one time spoiled a "Duff."

The atmosphere was lurid once, Ern Gear began to swear; Damnation take that "Taylor"! I'll have nothing left to swear. He takes my measure, sews me up, And when my nerves are frayed; Declares that some men think them For to "Taylor" is his trade.

We had a "Barbour" in the crowd, Who measured "half a yard"; And "Doc Carnell" grabbed a pitcher, "Clouston" showed a "Diamond" card; "He" "Pestered" many a secret hope, But now he sadly "Greaves," And "Peter" tries to cross the "Heath" Whene'er his home he leaves.

An "Angel" came to "Charlie P," And made him see the light; The "President" knocked "the noisy one" out; To "Ross"—in a "Peeler's" right. The "Major" started "Jostling," And "Johnston" tried to "Fress," And then the "Spot side" made their "Wills," And tried to clean the mess.

In the last game of the series, The "Rabbit" flew from "Fox"; And tumbled something horribly A'tumbling o'er the rocks; But God was good, He caused the fox From out his path to roam, And ere he could regain the scent, Rabbit was safely home.

House of Assembly Proceedings

THURSDAY, April 16.
 The House opened at 8 p.m.
 THE PRIME MINISTER presented a petition from Hotel Facilities, Ltd., asking for a bill relative to the construction of a hotel. The matter was referred to a Select Committee.

HON. J. J. LONG presented a petition from the Western Marine Railway Ltd., asking for a Bill to guarantee principle and interest on a Bond to be issued to the extent of $35,000. This matter was referred to a Select Committee, to enquire if the rules have been complied with.

RULES OF THE HOUSE.

Following the presentation of the petition on behalf of the Western Marine Railway, Limited, and its reference to a Select Committee to enquire and report as to whether the Rules of the House as to notice had been complied with, Mr. Speaker said that he wished to point out and to direct the attention of the Select Committee to whom this and other similar petitions have been referred, as well as the Select Committees who will have to consider private Bills after second reading, to the importance of the Rules of the House relative to these matters. These rules are essential and salutary and have been especially designed in the interests, and for the information and protection of the public, and should be closely adhered to. Particular attention should be paid, amongst other things, to the required notice by advertisement in the press of the intended application, which should not be a mere casual reference to the proposed enactment, but should clearly and distinctly specify the nature and object of the application; and, secondly, to the opportunity which should be afforded those whose interests or property may be affected to come in and take the necessary precautions for their protection. Without wishing to intrude upon the province of the Select Committees whose duty it is to consider whether the rules of the House have been complied with, he wished to suggest that any recommendation of theirs tending to a relaxation of the rules in question should not be made except in cases of urgent and pressing necessity, and where it is clear that outside rights or interests are not being, and will not be prejudicially disturbed on that account.

The House went into Committee on Ways and Means.

MR. GODDEN in an able and practical speech said he was surprised that the Minister of Finance had adopted the report of the Tariff Commission which caused such a heavy increase in duties on practically all commodities imported and he suggested that the Minister was not fully aware what the adoption of that report meant. He pointed out that it meant an increased duty on butter, cheese and tea of 15%, sugar 17%, beans and peas 55%, canned fruit 55%, raisins and all dried fruits 35%, rice 135%, molasses 20%, oats and cattle feed 15%. These items, he said, are everyday necessities and the increased cost will cause hardship on the working and middle classes who are already bearing the brunt of taxation. The Government's promise of reduced expenditure called for over $400,000 extra this year and while some increase was justified to raise salaries of Civil Servants who were entitled to more pay through length of service and ability, this did not call for such a large amount and recent new appointments at high salaries in some departments were not warranted under the New Tariff the Customs Revenue would be increased nearly $2,000,000. In spite of this they were told there will be a probable surplus at the end of the financial year of only $200,000 this surplus he claimed must have been arrived at under the old Tariff and certainly not under the new. Changes have been made in the tariff during the past year or two at a moment's notice and this, he thought was unfair to the trade. The mercantile community should be given fair warning of all changes and could govern themselves accordingly. In conclusion, Mr. Godden made an earnest appeal to the Prime Minister and his Government to give the Tariff further consideration and to remedy the increased duties which he claimed was an imposition on the working and middle classes.

THE LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION said the Tariff was placed before the House without being thought out and was adopted on the report of the Tariff Commission. One reason why it was unevenly placed was because of the fishery. A good or bad fishery affects the revenue more than any other industry. He claimed that unless we can find a way to make the cost of catching fish cheaper there is no use in offering incentives to increase the catch. The additional tax, he thought, was brought about by increases in salaries and pensions. "The recommendations of the Tariff Commission was against what the people wanted," Mr. Hickman said, and in support of his contention he read a number of reports from Magistrates in the Outports, consulted by the Commission. All were to the effect that there should be reductions on the necessities of life and free entries to practically all kinds of fishery commodities. He also quoted the opinions of various experts in this line to show that the Commission did not listen to the evidence given. Speaking of the increase in the hardware line, Mr. Hickman said wire for fencing is increased 200%; shot and such like, 20%; locks, 15%; sheath knives, 57%; files and rules, 51%; lanterns, 15%; copper paint, 25%; alarm clocks, 20%; dory oars, 21%; sheet iron, 40%; iron pipe, 30%; hinges and locks, 19%; garden shovels 15%; hay forks, 200%; ship's spikes, 300%. These are all articles used by the fishermen, he pointed out. Prior to this Tariff, twines and lines were free, but now they are taxed 10% and would mean a big increase in fitting out for the bank fishery. There was no need of it as the industry that made lines and twines here was too much protected. They could pay 20% and water their stock and put by reserves of $200,000 and hence he argued that they were too highly protected. The same applied to the Tobacco Factory. They had on cigarettes protection to the amount of $115,000. Yet the Government continues to give protection and further they created a monopoly by reason of the law requiring at least 10 operators in a plant, in order to get the manufacturers' protection. One small industry of this kind he knew was being put out of business through this regulation. Under the readjustment of the original Tariff he noted that tobacco duty is increased 13.65 cents on high grade and on lower grades 6.7 cents per pound. The increased revenue, by reason of the Excess, amounts to 2.6 cents. The difference, he claimed, was really increased protection. The Prime Minister interjected that the conclusions of the Leader of the Opposition were wrong, and he pointed out that the protection to the Tobacco Factory amounted to 25%, whereas in Canada they get protection to the amount of 80%. The local factory paid out annually $100,000 in wages.

THE LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION continuing said his point was that the taxes bore too heavily on the fishermen in so far as it affected the cost of fish catching. He thought it was better to leave the duty on pork, beef and flour than to have to increase the duty on other commodities. To an ordinary man this remission did not benefit him more than 5 or 6 dollars in the run of the year. The advantage of free duty is offset by the increase in a long list of articles in ordinary use, and appeared to him to be not properly balanced. Reference was also made to the Flour Mill project, and the speaker asked how the free entry of flour would affect the industry.

THE PRIME MINISTER said the Company were not asking for 25 cents per barrel protection, but rather were asking protection through the anti-dumping law.

THE LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION continuing said that comparing the old tariff with the new one there was an increase particularly where articles of local manufacture were to be protected. In the matter of an increase on Spanish wines, the speaker thought that it might be in contravention of the Anglo-Spanish agreement, which we adopted, and in closing he said there would have been no need of increasing the duties if the original intentions of the Government had been carried out.

MR. HALFYARD expressed surprise that the Government had the temerity or heroism to bring in such an increased tariff. It was he said, in the minds of the electorate that taxation would be reduced, but in the new Budget they were sadly disappointed. The result shows that the Prime Minister's pronouncements re reduction of expenditure and consequent reduction of taxation had not been put into effect. Had a drastic curtailment of expenditure been made the expectations of the people would have been realized but now, viewing the tariff, he thought the last stage was worse than the first. He believed it would be a great setback to the fishermen to find that the duties have been increased. He was of opinion that the tariff as submitted by the Commission would not have been accepted by the past Government without revision by the Executive. He believed that the present Executive never saw the tariff until it was printed, and the Finance Minister never gave it any due consideration. Speaking generally he deplored the system of Government which prevented pre-announcement

The New Tariff

Opinions expressed by the trade regarding the new tariff vary according to the manner in which it has been found to apply to the lines of goods handled by the different firms; and to ascertain the views of the ordinary citizen at the present moment, the person who is most concerned in any change that may have been made, is impossible until the new schedule has been for a considerable time in operation.

The prevailing opinion seems to be that the duties on the whole are higher than they were under the old system, (despite the number of articles found on the free list. In connection with the latter, we cannot but submit that were the number of articles on the free list reduced, the distribution of taxation would be fairer, and the burden would more equitably be borne by all sections of the community.

From statements made by the Minister of Finance it does not appear that he anticipates any great increase in the revenue from the new tariff, and there is nothing in the estimates which would indicate that any considerable surplus is expected. As will be seen by referring to yesterday's debate on the matter in the House of Assembly, the Leader of the Opposition holds a different view, and these discussions are welcome as they will help to arrive at a definite opinion and possibly to a solution of some of the outstanding objections.

The disclosures in the Budget Speech of the legacy of debt left by the late administration brought home to the public even more forcibly than the Walker Report the lack of regard which had been shown for the welfare of the country and the incapacity of those who had held offices of responsibility. It also made it apparent that if we were to meet this indebtedness, and at the same time to pay current expenses, it was useless to expect for the time being much relief from the present burden of taxation.

The salaried man has reason to be grateful for the abolition of the income tax. The fisherman also has his burden lightened by the placing of flour, pork, beef, kerosene and gasoline on the free list, but these arrangements are apart from the schedule drawn up by the Tariff Commission whose findings have been accepted by the present Government.

The decision to scrap the sub-tax and super-tax system and revert to the one straight duty is a very welcome change, and the classification of imports has simplified matters and removed many anomalies. Instances, however, are quoted which would indicate that the new system imposes a hardship on persons holding certain lines of goods. Some of these have already been revised, and no doubt if others are shown to be unduly burdensome they will receive due consideration in time.

It is claimed that the Tariff Commission kept in view the desirability of making a distinction between luxuries and necessities. That is as it should be, but under those circumstances, it surely cannot be claimed that the removal of the income tax has brought any relief to the wealthier class. That tax, it has been demonstrated could never be effectively applied, and if general taxes on luxuries have been increased, they not only provide a more certain revenue, but they more than counteract the relief given by the removal of the income tax.

Taken altogether the tariff is more or less in the nature of an experiment, and any irregularities which appear after it has been given a fair trial can be removed or readjusted.

George St. Sale of Work at Presbyterian Hall

A sale of work by the Women's Guild of George Street Church was held yesterday afternoon in the Presbyterian Hall. The sale was declared open by Lady Crosbie in the presence of a large number of patrons and proved a huge success. The stalls were heavily laden with a variety of fancy goods, novelties, home cookery, etc., all of which found ready purchasers. The afternoon and 6 o'clock teas were largely patronized as well, and the results obtained were most gratifying.

Blue Bird Tea Brings Happiness.

The sale of work of the Presentation Convent Association, in the Kindergarten School, was continued yesterday afternoon with the same measure of success as marked the opening afternoon. The stocks of goods were replenished and the tables were ready to meet the demands of the large number of patrons who were present. At 8.30 the sale was brought to a conclusion when a card party was held by the ladies in which a large number participated. An enjoyable game was indulged in and suitable prizes were awarded to the lucky winners.

Blue Bird Tea Brings Happiness.

The second day's sale at Canon Wood Hall, under the auspices of the St. Thomas's Women's Association and St. Margaret's Guild, was equally as successful as the first, and during the afternoon a large number of patrons were present and gradually diminished the stocks. As a fitting conclusion to a successful sale a concert was held at night, in which the following performers took part:—Song, Mrs. G. Christian; Instrumental Duet, Mr. and Mrs. Mews; Song, Mr. Wylie; Song, Miss Johnston; Recitation, Miss Murray; Song, Mr. Horsley; Song, Mrs. Small; Song, Miss Langmead; Duet, Mr. and Miss Donnelly and a musical sketch, entitled "Aunt Jemima's Birthday Party," splendidly produced by the "Merry Makers."

The experience of the Stella Maris' crew was a most unpleasant one, but it was relieved by the splendid treatment received on the Prospero, which will not soon be forgotten.

The Mixed Grill

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Last night's entertainment in the Majestic Theatre gave the large number who attended an evening's amusement such as theatre goes in St. John's only too rarely have an opportunity to enjoy. From the very start the audience was captivated, and each item on the programme added to the enjoyment. The music of the orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Gordon Christian, the dancing, the singing, and the all too short dramatic performance which concluded the programme were one and all excellent, and the talent displayed by the artistes was thoroughly appreciated. "The Mixed Grill" is assured of a full house on each night that it is repeated during the week, and it is to be hoped that it will not be long before the troupe again appear before the public.

Promptly at 8.30 o'clock following the arrival of His Excellency the Governor (Chief Scout), and Lady Allardice (Island Commissioner, Girl Guides), the curtain rose to reveal a very artistic garden scene with two children, little Barbara and Gerald Winter playing with their toys. "There are fairies at the bottom of our garden," splendidly rendered by Miss Anderson, was made most realistic by the arrival on the scene of, first a pair of bunny rabbits (Misses Olive Elliott and Betty Fitzgerald), followed by three dainty fairies (Misses Frances Ross, Betty Simms and Noreen Jeffery), and next by two tiny butterflies (Misses Mary Kent and Phyllis Warren). The dance given by these little elfs was splendidly done and captivated the house.

The next item on the menu was the Hawaiian scene. When the curtain rose it revealed a group of Hawaiians seated around Princess Kahana (Mrs. W. R. Warren) and the maidens presented her with gifts. (The maidens were Mrs. H. LeMessurier; Misses Maria Hutton, Betty McNeill, Jean Knowling, Marjorie Mews and Jean Campbell). Princess Kahana sang "Moonlight Memories," and her deep contralto voice suited the song admirably and the strumming of the ukuleles by the ensemble was entrancing. The dance by the Hawaiian maidens which followed was gracefully done and received a good hand. "Honolulu Lullaby" sung by Princess Kahana and Marjorie (Maria Hutton) was indeed very pretty. The solo dance by Liliana (Betty McNeill) was very gracefully done; in fact rarely have we seen an amateur interpret a Hawaiian dance as well as did Miss McNeill. "One-Two-Three" sung by the ensemble with "Uke" accompaniment was very well rendered and the closing chorus "Aloha Oe" was a very fitting finale.

The third part of the programme was in the form of a Pierrot show—the curtain raiser was the prologue from "Pierrot," sung by Tonio (Mr. Fred R. Emerson), whose voice was heard to good effect in this difficult piece. As the curtain went up the Pierrots and Pierrettes were seen grouped around the stage. The black and white costumes showed up well, and with the black drapings lent a magnificent spectacle. The opening chorus by the company was very lively and went with a great swing. "Pierrot" a solo by Signorina Aida (Miss Doris Withers), was faultlessly rendered, and called for an encore. "What a Funny World We Live In," a humorous song by Harry Foss (Mr. Harold Foster), was excellent. "Can It Be Love," a solo by Signorina Meusetti (Miss Elinor Mews) was very pretty. "The Dancing Lesson," sung by Signorina Aida, to which the dance by Miss Nimbles and Mr. Timothy Hardnut (Miss G. Milley and Mr. T. V. Hartnett) was very gracefully carried out, the performers having to respond to an encore. "I Want To Be Somebody's Baby," a very peppy jazz item was rendered by Signorina Janette (Miss J. Anderson), in great style. In connection with this item the Pierrettes and Pierrots had a little bet as to whom could sing the chorus best, and we fear the fair maidens won the bet, but whether the Pierrots will come across is as yet not known. This item also called for an encore. "The Topical Song," which consisted of local verses, was indeed amusing and the audience called for more. It was indeed put over in great style by Messrs. Duke Winter, Harold Foster, Ron Martin and Ralph Herder. Harlequin and Columbine (Misses Doris Alderice and Doris Withers) executed a very pretty dance and had to respond to an encore. "Dance With Me" by Signorina Meusetti and Harry Foss, a song and dance was very well done. "Love the Pedler," solo by Mr. Warbler (Mr. H. Wardell) was rendered in great style. "Shall We S 'Lats" by The Duke and his Pal Hurdy Hurdy (Duke Winter and Ralph Herder) brought forth rounds of applause. The finale by the ensemble was very catchy and rang down the curtain on a very bright show. The last item was a sketch entitled "The Rest Cure," which was excellent in every detail. The following is the cast:—

Clarence Reed—Mr. Herbert Ruddle. Olive (his wife)—Mrs. R. Herder. Alice Palmer (Dark Cat)—Mrs. H. Catterbridge. May Williams (Fair Cat)—Miss Edith Cleary.

Muriel (servant at the home)—Mrs. H. LeMessurier. Scene:—A bedroom in a nursing home. (Under the direction of Mrs. H. Outerbridge.)

The show to-night will be followed by a new sketch entitled "The Playgoers", and we advise you not to miss it. The "Mixed Grill" will run for the balance of the week and we advise all to see it. The following is the orchestra, which is under the direction of Mr. H. Gordon Christian, L.R.A.M.: 1st violin, Mr. F. Bradshaw; 2nd violin, Miss M. McNeill; cello, Mrs. McNeill; saxophone, Mr. Dingle; piano, Miss Oates, L.T.C.L.; piano, Miss Alison Rennie. The entire performance was under the direction of Mr. H. Gordon Christian, L.R.A.M.

Sergeant's Mess of Nfld. CELEBRATE MONCHY LE PREUX.

The anniversary of the battle of Monchy Le Preux was fittingly celebrated at the Sterling Restaurant last night by the Sergeants' Mess of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. R.S.M. Neil Patrick, President of the Mess presided and conducted the proceedings in a capable and pleasing manner. The menu, which was appetizing, included "fillet" pie, and was, needless to say, done full justice to by the large number that were present, and after it had been disposed of the following toast list was gone through:—

THE KING—Prop., the Chairman; Resp., The National Anthem. NEWFOUNDLAND—Prop. Sergt. W. Measday; Resp., Sergt. F. Grace. ABSENT COMRADES—Prop. C.S.M. J. Taylor. THE LADIES—Prop. Capt. H. McNeill, O.B.E.; Resp. Lieut. H. W. Quinston.

The speeches were of a high order and were both instructive and interesting. Interspersing the toast list were songs and recitations. After this had been concluded a "Newfoundland evening" was indulged in, every body present taking part, being a pleasant reminder of the times "over there."

Mr. J. Hickey was in charge of the musical programme. The singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem, brought a most pleasant evening to a close.

In Ayre & Sons Mantle Room (Upper Building) they have just received a small shipment of exclusive models in Ladies' Dresses, which were entirely hand made in France.

Social Dance Enjoyed by Guests

The dance held by Ray Pushie in the Grenfell Hall last night was one of the most successful evenings of the season. It was attended by over two hundred people all of whom enjoyed themselves to the utmost. The music, supplied by a four-piece orchestra, consisted of piano, Mr. F. Pushie; violin, L. Calvert; saxophone, E. Dingle; drums and effects, G. Walsh, was exceptionally good, and they are to be congratulated on their ability and the splendid manner in which they responded to encores. At 11 o'clock supper was served in a very capable manner, which added greatly to the success of the evening. After supper dancing was resumed until an early hour this morning.

ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING TELEGRAM

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of the Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Ryan, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present.

After the usual preliminaries were disposed of, Mr. Joseph Ryan, representative of the unemployed, accompanied by Mr. M. Bennett, was invited to the meeting. He informed the Council that he had been asked by the Committee of the Unemployed to obtain from them the facts as to a statement recently made to the effect that the Government had referred the City Council money to relieve the unemployment situation but that they (the Council) had refused to accept same.

The Mayor replied personally and on behalf of the Council, that no money for any such purpose and he stated that the deputation would be referred to the Committee.

A lengthy communication was read by Mr. J. A. W. McNelly with reference to the E.H.I. at present before the Legislature in which certain provisions are to be given the Newfoundland Light and Power Company. He particularly mentioned the following:

(1) The right to operate lines and its routes to the exclusion of other players for general hire, motor buses.

(2) The right to charge a 7c fare instead of a 6c fare within the city limits, with corresponding increases in fares outside the city limits.

(3) Exemption from import duties and taxes on plant material for construction on capital account.

Each concession, he stated, were given the Company who undertook the operation of the Street Railway and Lighting Plant some twenty years ago, and he saw no reason why the original charter should be departed from.

Mr. McNelly is to be informed that a short time ago a draft bill submitted by the Company to the Government had through the courtesy of the Prime Minister, been forwarded to the Council. This draft was carefully gone into and the Council after due consideration unanimously decided as follows:

"That the Government be informed that the Municipal Council is of opinion that no legislation should be passed which would relieve the Company of the obligations imposed by the Street Railway Act 1896, which provisions were known and accepted by the Newfoundland Light and Power Company Ltd., when they purchased the franchise."

The application of E. Furlong for position as Park Policeman was referred to the Park Committee.

MAJORITY UNABLE TO GAIN ADMITTANCE.

Another bumper house greeted the St. Mary's Dramatic Troupe in their third successful presentation of "Safety First" last evening, and again a large number of people were unable to gain admittance. The performers were quite at home in their different roles and were heartily applauded.

The play is one of the most delightful seen here for sometime and was presented by the talented troupe. The final performance takes place this evening and it would be well for all those desiring to attend to show to go tonight and enjoy a good laugh. We congratulate T. P. Halley on his successful leadership and the Troupe on their fine showing. The orchestra of the Mount Cashel Band will assist at tonight's performance.

Little Jack Rabbit
 by David Cory

"Cock-a-doodle do," crowed the Old Red Rooster, as he strutted up the winding path through the bushes to Lady Love's little white house in the dear Old Bramble Patch. He had come over to help the dear little lady rabbit clean house. Yes, Uncle Lucky, the kind old gentleman bunny Uncle, had sent him over to beat the carpets and uncover the rose bushes.

"Glad you came early," laughed Lady Love, opening the kitchen door. "Perhaps you can finish before nightfall."
 "I'll do my best," answered the old fowl, and carefully wiping his feet on the doormat, he stepped into the neat little kitchen.

Then picking up the rugs, he carried them out to the yard and hung them over the clothesline. "Hey, little rabbit," he shouted, as the bunny boy hopped up on the back porch with an armful of kindling wood, "where's the broom?"

"Behind the kitchen door. I'll bring it out to you," answered the obliging little rabbit.

Goodness me, it was lucky for the Old Red Rooster that the little bunny hopped out with the broom in less than a minute, for no sooner had the old fowl commenced to beat the rugs than who should look over the fence but crafty Danny Fox.

"Ha, ha," softly laughed that old robber to himself, "this time I'll surely catch him," and with a leap he was over the fence. Then crouching behind the lilac bush, he crept on his tippy toes toward the old fowl, whose back was turned as he busily beat the rugs on the old clothes line.

Dear me, isn't there anybody around to warn the Old Red Rooster? Little Jack Rabbit was feeding the Canary Bird and Lady Love was making the beds. They never suspected for a moment that Danny Fox was near. Neither did the Old Red Rooster as he swung the broom, bang! on the little rag rugs.

Slam, bang! closed the window blinds, and before you could say "Jack Robinson!" the little white bungalow was safe and secure, for Lady Love had wasted not a moment after hearing the warning.

"I'll get you yet," snarled wicked Danny Fox, and with a jump, he pulled down the rug on which the Red Rooster stood. But that wise old fowl knew a thing or two, and maybe three or four, and with a hop-tee-ty he skipped along the clothesline toward the little white bungalow. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

The K. K. K. in Canada
 We glean from the newspapers that Canada has two Ku Klux organizations, one in Hamilton and one in Toronto. There may be more but if so we have not heard of them. In any case the two are quarrelling; what about we are not quite sure any more than one organization accuses the other of being a Yankee "outfit," which under the circumstances is very strange, considering that the Ku Klux Klan is what they call 100 per cent American.

Four arCavans Hope to Motor Across the Sahara
 Four French expeditions will make the attempt to cross North Africa by automobile during the next few months. Two of them will strike south from the north coast, two of them will travel west to east across the broadest part of the continent. Special tractor cars will be used by three of the parties, while the fourth will employ ordinary touring cars.

SENTENCED TO BUY NEW HAT FOR WIFE.
 ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 24—Edward Bonn was sentenced to buy his wife a new Easter hat when he pleaded guilty before Recorder Joseph Corio in the Police Court to a charge of intoxication. Bonn said he had taken one drink of holiday cheer and awoke in a police cell where he was found by his wife.

but when the speedometer shows a reading of 30,000 miles it means that the car has only actually travelled 27,000 miles.
 The remedy for an untruthful speedometer is obvious. If the margin of error is great the car should be returned in order that the speedometer may be adjusted. If it is a small margin of error the motorist should allow for it when he is making up his log.
 One of the first tasks of a new owner should be to test his speedometer over an accurately measured distance.

The Erring Wife and Mother is the woman who sacrifices her health and consequent happiness to her ambition. We all know such women—ambitious that their homes shall be kept immaculately neat and attractive and their children well dressed they overdo and soon bring on some feminine ailment which is evidenced by nervousness, irritability, headaches, backache, and other aches and pains attending such ills. Every woman should remember that the most successful remedy for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for fifty years has been restoring women to health, strength and happiness.

Fads and Fashions
 Triangular gilt buttons are used on a coat of navy rep, faced with white kaasha.
 One may have a single richly embroidered pocket as an accent for the ensemble and their children well dressed they overdo and soon bring on some feminine ailment which is evidenced by nervousness, irritability, headaches, backache, and other aches and pains attending such ills. Every woman should remember that the most successful remedy for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for fifty years has been restoring women to health, strength and happiness.

Record Readings.
 Without a speedometer motoring would be a dull business. But in view of its responsibilities it does seem advisable that the speedometer should tell the truth and nothing but the truth. If the speedometer lies it leads its owner into the path of prevarication—maybe not unwillingly, for owners are inclined to wink at any optimistic speedometer readings as regards maximum speed.

Massive Photoplay Seen at the Nickel

IBANEZ PHOTOPLAY IS MAE MURRAY'S BEST.

Miss Murray has done it again. She has scored another real triumph in "Circe the Enchantress," her new Metro-Goldwyn starring picture, which opened at the Nickel Theatre yesterday.

"Circe the Enchantress" was written especially for Miss Murray by Vicente Ibanez, author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and other famous novels, and it supplies her with one of the best stories in which she has ever appeared.

Ibanez has based the story on the mythical goddess, Circe. This episode of the picture has been transferred to the screen in a very colorful way and is an interesting novelty as well as furnishing a foundation for the real story that follows.

In the real story Miss Murray portrays the part of Cecile Brunns who is a modern Circe until she meets one man who fails to succumb to her charm. From this point on it develops into a fast moving romance such as Ibanez only can develop and in which Miss Murray is at her best.

Robert Z. Leonard, who directed "Circe the Enchantress," deserves credit along with Miss Murray and Ibanez for the manner in which he had handled the picture.

The supporting cast for "Circe the Enchantress" includes James Kirkwood, William Haines, Charles Gerard, Gene Cameron, Thomas Ricketts and Lillian Langdon. The photoplay was made by Tiffany production of which Mr. Leonard is director, general and M. H. Hoffman is general manager.

Dame Partington and her Mop Again

You remember the energetic Dame Partington who endeavored to sop up the ocean with her mop? Well, there are still a few Dame Partingtons trying vainly to stem the tide of Chrysler success. They have entirely missed the full significance of that success. They do not yet realize that the Chrysler represents a complete over-turning of previous precedents which has taken the public by storm. They see but cannot believe—that engineering practice, motor measurements, utilization of space, weight, height and balance, standards of power, speed and acceleration, compactness and artistry of body design must change to conform to the Chrysler conquest of public opinion. Confronted with an entirely new expression of motor car practice and performance which is striding across the country in seven league boots, and making an equally profound impression across the sea—they strive to console themselves by the timid suggestion that the Chrysler 'may be a one year car.' Even that consolation is denied them. Chrysler engineers began the revolutionary processes which resulted in the Chrysler Six four years ago. Untrammelled by prohibitive investment in shop-equipment which would have forced them to follow old practice, these engineers had full sway to go far beyond the furthest and finest point anyone had dared or was able to go in the past. For two years Chrysler cars, unknown to the public, traveled tens of thousands of miles, proving the soundness of their conclusions. The first cars 'off the line' were ready to do, and did do, all that the pioneer cars accomplished before them. At this writing, more than 37,000 Chrysler cars are verifying the engineering soundness of Chrysler design—proving unparalleled speed and power unequalled acceleration, phenomenal climbing ability, superb riding quality. The more than $70,000,000 already invested by the public in the Chrysler Sixes is only the beginning of Chrysler success—the tide of popular approval will continue to rise indefinitely, because nothing can stop the onward sweep of any achievement which contributes to the economic progress of the race.

A Three Circuit Tuner of Simple Construction

PART TWO.
EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

Skip 5/8ths of an inch and start the winding of the primary. This 5/8-inch space between the primary and secondary has been worked out after much experimental work and gives the best coupling value for this particular set. It should be adhered to rather closely. Wind a single turn, make the loop for the tap as described yesterday, wind on another turn, make another loop and so on until there are seven single turn taps. Then wind 7 turns, make a tap, wind seven more and another tap and so on until there are a total of 10 of the 7 turn taps, or a total of 77 turns counting the first set of single turn taps. This will allow the primary to be tuned as closely as single turns which is sufficient in all cases.

The tickler form should be either cardboard or wood. It should be 3 inches in diameter and an inch and a half long. Wind 10 turns of No. 28 cotton covered magnet wire, skip 5/8th inch for the tickler shaft, wind ten additional turns and dead-end the wire.

The complete circuit is shown above. The variable condenser should have a capacity of .0025 Mfd. (17 plates) Note that the rotary plates of the condenser are connected to the ground. If a good low-loss

Proceedings at the Legislative Council

OFFICIAL SYNOPSIS.

THURSDAY, April 16th.

The Council met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MR. PRESIDENT read a letter from His Excellency the Governor granting leave of absence to Hon. Dr. Robinson for the remainder of the session.

Bill to amend the Terra Nova Sulphite Company Act of 1920 was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that a message be sent the House of Assembly that this House had passed the same without amendment.

The House resolved into Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled, "An Act Respecting the Encouragement of Shipbuilding." Hon Mr. Davey in the chair.

HON. MR. MORINE explained that the Bill before the House was a substitution for the Bill which had come from the Lower House dealing with bounties for the Repairing of Vessels. It had been thought better to consolidate the matter of Repairing with that of the bounty for Shipbuilding, because there were many provisions common to the two. He said he had found the task of consolidation one of the most difficult he had recently undertaken, for it was almost impossible to find out what the law was with regard to the matter. It appeared that for years an incorrect interpretation had been put upon the law. Amendments had been made almost every year, and it is now considered desirable to consolidate all the amendments. The method of dealing with the Bill was, he added, a little irregular, as it should come from the Lower House, but inasmuch as the original Bill had passed through all stages there, and a Bill dealing with the same subject could not be introduced there again this session, they have no objection to the Council's dealing with it. Hon. Mr. Morine then explained the alterations in the schedules and drew attention to the changes made. Time would be given the Hon. members to pursue and study the Bill and full discussion and suggestion for improvement were invited.

The Committee rose and reported progress, and asked leave to sit again. The Council resolved into Committee of the Whole on the Survey of Foreign going and Labrador vessels Amendment Bill; Hon. Mr. Power in the chair.

HON. MR. MORINE said that like the preceding one, this Bill had grown out of one from the Lower House, due partly to some suggestions from the Hon. members and partly to the need for consolidation. The old Bill apparently did not cover sealing ships, and an Act was introduced this year to provide for an annual survey of these ships before allowing them to proceed to the sealfishery. It was now thought advisable to consolidate the original Act and the Amendments thereto. First, the Bill provides for inspection and for regulations, by the Governor-in-Council. The next section provides for reports of injuries to vessels to be forwarded to the Minister. The powers of the Inspectors are given. Section 8 deals with the inspection of equipment, etc., and is taken from a Canadian Act. Section 9 had to do with sealing ships. This section was put in to meet the requirements of the Lower House. Section 10 will meet the suggestion of Hon. Cap. Davey and is intended to apply to vessels carrying passengers to Labrador. Section 14 provides for the inspection of the coastal steamers whose boats were often very unfit. Section 17 deals with the yearly inspection of ships, the time of whose class had half expired. The rest of the Act had to do with penalties. This is one of the most important acts brought up this session, dealing with a matter which has been a crying shame for a long time, and he asked Hon. members to give the fullest consideration to the Bill and suggest any improvements, which they might consider necessary.

HON. MR. BISHOP agreed that the Bill was a very important one and demanded close attention. In view of what had happened to the Prospero's boats, which had not been in the water for years, it was only right that this Bill should be made sound and made to cover all cases.

The Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again. HON. PRESIDENT read a message from the House of Assembly that they had passed the following Bills in which they asked the concurrence of the Legislative Council, namely, An Act Respecting the Records of Pure Bred Animals; an Act Relating to Old Age Pensions, and an Act to Amend the Judicature Act.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Morine said Bills were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time tomorrow.

The Council then adjourned until 3.30 p.m. on to-morrow.

BOXING AND WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Large Number of Competitors Held At Training.

Great interest is now being centered in athletic circles over the Championship Boxing and Wrestling Tournament, which takes place in the C.L.E. Armoury, on next Thursday night. Upwards of twenty contestants, both in wrestling and boxing, are daily in training, becoming accustomed to the finer points of the manly art, and by the time the night of battle arrives, every man hopes to be in the pink of condition and do his stuff. The gymnasium room at the C.L.E. Armoury has been a scene for many to watch the competitors in their work-outs, and the opinions of general are that the forthcoming tournament will see spirited contests in nearly every event, for the much-coveted honors. Intending competitors are reminded that the entry list closes at the office of Percie Johnson, Ltd., at 5.30 this evening. The competitors will weigh in on Monday night, and should a large number of entries be received in the different class weight, preliminary bouts will take place on that night. Reserved seat tickets are now on sale at Gray & Goodland's for the main attraction.

GUARDS SPORTS MEETING.

The Annual Sports Committee Meeting of the M.G.C.A., takes place in the Club rooms on Tuesday evening next, at 8 o'clock, when the election of officers for the various athletic branches will take place, and arrangements finalized for the forthcoming season's activities. Amongst the many matters which will be dealt with at this meeting will be the formation of a cricket team. The Guards can boast of many welders of the willow and it is hoped that the other Clubs or organizations will follow in line.

LOCAL BOY IS GREAT BOXER.

Dick Fahey Has 23 K.O.'s TO HIS CREDIT. Jim Ross, the pride of local fistic fans, met his Waterloo at the I. A. C. Hall, on Ross Avenue, last night. (March 20th) when Dick Fahey, welterweight champion of the Newport Naval Training Station, felled him in the sixth and last round of the main bout on the programme. Fahey, previously unknown in this community, furnished a big surprise with his swift rushes, hard punches, and clever ducking movement, and kept Ross constantly fanning the air. Ross fought the first round in his characteristically cool manner, letting the sailor do most of the leading. It was Fahey's round without question. Ross made his best showing in the second period, when he got in two or three fairly good blows that shook Fahey's anatomy. From this point on, however, Fahey had everything his own way and it was simply a question of how many rounds the Westerly boxer could weather the gale before taking the count of ten. Just before the third round ended, Ross went down under the hammerlike blows of his opponent and would have taken the fall count from referee Jim McKnight had not the bell saved him. In the fourth round Fahey let loose his repertoire of wallops and slammed Ross all over the ring. The Westerly lad, weakening rapidly, went down for a count of nine, but arose and managed to hold out until the gong brought relief. Ross showed renewed energy when he emerged at the start of the fifth, and made a game effort to give the fighting job some of his own medicine. Blows that would have done damage to a much slower man were dutifully warded off by Fahey, who dodged his head repeatedly and let Jim tire himself by slugging the atmosphere. In the sixth round Fahey floored his opponent twice successively, and each time Ross remained down for the count of nine before rising to his feet. Once again Fahey drove home a telling blow, this time sending Ross to the canvas for the full count of ten and even longer.

COMING TO THE NICKEL. Screen Version of "McTeague" Said to Be a Triumph of Realism—Took Two Years to Make. Follows Frank Norris's Novel With Absolute Fidelity in Every Detail. Believing that the public is ready and eager for the realistic presentation of an American literary classic, Erich von Stroheim produced "Greed," his adaptation of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, of Frank Norris's "McTeague," without an important deviation from this powerful story of American life. Theatre-goers who know Norris's novel of the San Francisco dentist and his wife, will see "McTeague" brought literally to life. Only two changes have been made—the substitution of "Greed" as the screen title and partial modernizing of the background. The entire picture was produced scene by scene in its actual settings in San Francisco, Oakland, Iowa Hill and Death Valley. The cast includes Ze SU Pitts, Gibson Gowland, Jean Harsholt, Dale Fuller, Fanny Midgley, Chester Conklin, Sylvia Ashton, Caesar Gravins, Hughie Mack and Frank Hayes.

ducking movement, and kept Ross constantly fanning the air. Ross fought the first round in his characteristically cool manner, letting the sailor do most of the leading. It was Fahey's round without question. Ross made his best showing in the second period, when he got in two or three fairly good blows that shook Fahey's anatomy. From this point on, however, Fahey had everything his own way and it was simply a question of how many rounds the Westerly boxer could weather the gale before taking the count of ten. Just before the third round ended, Ross went down under the hammerlike blows of his opponent and would have taken the fall count from referee Jim McKnight had not the bell saved him. In the fourth round Fahey let loose his repertoire of wallops and slammed Ross all over the ring. #### "Speed Jones" an Unusual Production

ARLIE MARKS PLAYS IN ONE OF THE GREATEST PLAYS EVER SEEN.

The Arlie Marks Players, presentation of "Speed Jones" at the Casino last night is an entertainment that the audience will bear in mind for a long time to come. Scenic production, costumes, acting and dialogue all combined makes this a production that stands out distinctly different from anything seen in St. John's in many a month. "Speed Jones" is a play that contains all the pathos, thrills and humor and in the opinion of the writer, bars criticism. First nighters were certainly well pleased, and judging from the spontaneity of the applause at the various climaxes, it was clearly shown that all were enthusiastic. The attention of the audience was immediately centered on the plot from the rising of the first curtain and was not for a moment diverted from the theme. The locale of the play is on the border line of the States of California and Nevada and the story centres around Bill (Speed) Jones, his wife and daughter. The story is brilliantly interpreted, as each character fits its respective role perfectly. Miss Arlie Marks plays a remarkably fine role, that of Millie, and above all, she is real. Miss Marks acts and looks the part, no matter what role she has to play. The title role is the outstanding character in the piece and is given a very clever interpretation by Walter DeLuna. Miss Agnes Stutz gives a realistic performance of the character of Mrs. Jones. Lindsay E. Perrin is good as Mr. Harper. W. L. Phillips handles the role of Judge Townsend splendidly. Paul Brady, Ray Washburn, A. Paul D'Mathot, Louise Adde and Merdie Scott are seen to good advantage in their various roles. If you missed this Bill, you missed something of one hundred per cent. entertainment. If you saw the bill, well you know what it is like. This is a play we particularly recommend to the discriminating patron of the spoken drama.

BASEBALL RESULTS.

The opening games of the 1925 Baseball Series in the American and National Leagues, took place yesterday in the principal cities of the States, under ideal weather conditions. The following will be found the results of the games as played in the American League: Washington 7; New York 5; Chicago 4; Detroit 2; Philadelphia 7; Boston 3; Cleveland 2; St. Louis 1.

Fahey is a fighter with considerable experience but only seven days in the Navy, young, full of pep and powerful. Both also knows all the tricks of the game, but age is telling. Fahey had it all over him throughout the entire six rounds.

"Single Wives" at the Star Movie Monday

Since the announcement that this picture is to be seen here, many people have asked what is it about? It is a drama that touches all marriages—a warning for husbands—a motto for wives. What of the married woman whose husband has decided to court her no longer? What of the man who marries yet does not love? The problem is treated in this picture with the keenest of insight. Love is the only thing in a man's life, and but an incident in a woman's. The difference between men and women lies in the fact that the former are the providers of the world and the latter are the propagators. In other words, men supply the means of self preservation and women the means of perpetuating

The Aristocrat of the Garden

(Written for The Canadian Press by J. B. SPENCER, B.S.A., of the Ontario Horticultural Ass'n.)

Even the smallest garden is incomplete without roses, for if it be a specialist garden where it is all occupied with the grower's favourite in some other flowers, there is yet room on the fence or a wall for a climbing rose. But if the garden is not a specialist, he is doing his family and friends an injustice if he does not include a few rose bushes in his planting arrangements. There is less reason for leaving out the roses now than before the days of the Hybrid Teas, because a rose out of bloom is not strikingly decorative and one crop of flowers in the summer is not enough to satisfy the discriminating gardener. With the development of the Hybrid Tea rose, with its wide range of wonderful colourings, the lure of the rose has grown and grown until perhaps more than ever it is becoming the one plant common to all well-ordered gardens. There are some flower-lovers that one might tire of. Who would want tulips through the whole season? Nor do we miss the iris and peony greatly with the passing of the glorious feast they have provided in their season. But the rose is different, and will continue to justify its designation "The Queen of Flowers."

The subject of varieties in roses interests not only the beginner, but also those who would add to their plantings. Roses differ, perhaps, even more than many other flowers in the characteristics of varieties. Hardiness is a widely varying factor, to say nothing of the vigor of growth, form, fragrance, color of flower and resistance to disease.

In the Hybrid Perpetuals, which almost anyone can grow, there are about three or four old standbys that might be recommended. Frau Karl Druschki as a white rose has not been surpassed in any class of roses. J. B. Clark, an intense scarlet, is very vigorous and a great bearer. Mrs. John Laing and George Arends are perhaps the two best pinks.

Covering the different colours in Hybrid Teas, the following dozen varieties are hard to surpass: Red, General McArthur, Gruss au Teplitz; pink, Ophelia, Mrs. Henry Morse, Jonkheer J. L. Mock; coppery shades, Los Angeles, Padre, Willomere; yellow, Souvenir de Claudius Fernet, Sabrosa; white, Madame Jules Bouche and White Killarney.

In climbing roses many new creations have been brought out in recent years and include some of the hybrid teas. For the rigorous climate of this country these are of doubtful value. Without these there are many wonderfully beautiful sorts which include, in pink, Fausendsochen and Dorothy Perkins; in reds, Paul's Scarlet Climber and Excelsa; in yellow, Goldfinch; and in white, White Dorothy.

For the novice in rose culture there are a number of considerations that should not be overlooked when setting out a row or bed. Within reasonable limits it is hardly possible to have the soil too rich, provided, of course, that unrotted manure is kept away from the roots. The soil should be deeply prepared and contain, if at all available, a 25 to 50 per cent. proportion of heavy clay, well mixed with lighter soil and fertilizer. When the plants are received from the nursery they will, in all probability, have been kept in cold storage over the winter, and although the roots have been kept moist, the branches will have been shrivelled. A well-worn practice of the experienced gardener is to bury the plants, root and branch, in moist soil for three or four days. This will restore them to a plump, natural condition, ready to carry the sap that the roots will stand up with the commencement of growth. They shall be left in this position until the holes in the bed are ready to receive the plants, which should stand 2 1/2 feet apart for Hybrid Teas and 3 feet for Hybrid Perpetuals. The depth of planting is a matter of great importance. The joint where the rose has been grafted on to the briar root should be covered a couple of inches and the holes dug accordingly. It is necessary also to give the hole a good breadth so that the root may be spread out as the fingers of one's hand. Bruised or broken roots are better to be removed with a sharp knife, and during the planting process fine soil should be carefully used and so filled in as to leave the roots and soil in close contact. Tramping is advisable as the hole is being filled.

Pruning is the next operation and must be done almost ruthlessly. The crop of roses that will be cut during the summer must be borne on new wood still invisible except as tiny buds borne along the stems. Weak branches cannot produce good flowers and are better removed at once close to the stem. The largest stems produce the strongest growth from buds near the ground. It is well, therefore, to shorten these to within three to six inches of the ground according to the size and vigor of the new plant. Having accomplished this bit of surgery one can trust to Nature, except to give cultivation once a week at least from that on and to protect the plant against insect and disease attack.

The rose, unfortunately, has its enemies and these require to be combated. Spraying the Bordeaux mixture early in the season and again at intervals, will well repay the labor it involves in protecting the plants from mildew and black spot. Dusting with dry sulphur is also a preventative and to some degree, a cure. If mixed with arsenate of lead and tobacco dust in proportion of 6-1-3 parts, the preparation becomes also an enemy of the insects that are ever ready to disfigure and weaken the plants. Some growers that have waterworks attached to their places, depend alone on the hose for driving off insect enemies, including the green aphid. For this tiny creature, which multiplies at a tremendous rate when once established, it is very good treatment to spray with a nicotine preparation known as Black Leaf 40 and a small amount of soap dissolved in the solution. A teaspoonful of the nicotine to a gallon of water is about the strength to use. Applications are needed two or three days in succession so as to clear out the new hatches as they succeed their short-lived parents.

Even as the rose requires more exacting attention than some of the other flowers and has thorns for the careless, no decorative plant is more closely identified with the progress of civilization. This aristocrat of flowers is the insignia of refinement and its culture is associated with the joys and beauties of life.

(From Boston News Bureau, April 2.)

WILLYS-OVERLAND.
Splendid Financial Progress. Last Year's First Quarter—The Dividend Question.

Boston—Report of Willys-Overland for 1924 proved to be better than anticipated. Net operating profits after charges were above instead of below $2,000,000, while an unexpected windfall of almost $1,000,000 turned up from settlements, sales and adjustments during the year.

Willys-Overland operated conservatively last year. While the first quarter was record-breaking, it did not close the eyes of President Willys to the fact that the spring months could not continue the pace, so that manufacturing curtailment was ordered early, and major energies concentrated upon keeping dealers in healthy shape. Then, in the fall, it was decided to bring out the long-awaited Knight six and a new line of Overlands. In other words, the company decided to keep strong and to plan ahead in preference to bucking rising sales resistance.

The balance-sheet demonstrates in dollars and cents the wisdom of that conservatism. With $33,264,818 quick assets and liabilities of only $2,774,974, the company is in better financial condition than at any time since the trials of the 1920 deflation descended upon it. Figuring that the $27,000,000 plant investment is a sufficient asset for the $9,000,000 bond issue, then the $29,490,000 net quick assets are available for the preferred to the extent of $128 a share. Deducting the bond issue, there is $92 a share.

Of the individual balance sheet items the inventory figure arouses the most interest. Down below $23,000,000, it is $10,600,000 lower than the year before, the lowest since end of 1921, and clearly reflects better operating control. It is this flexibility, lacking some years ago, which is enabling Willys-Overland to keep clear of the banks in the face of a production lately above 1000 cars daily.

The new year gets away to a good start with a production less than a third below the 1924 big first quarter of 68,000 cars. As result of dealers having sold 20,000 more cars than they bought and factory 12,000 more cars than it built, conditions are so strong as to make likely a strong second quarter as well as a first. Present schedules call for 60,000 cars coming quarter.

Earnings are running large and for the first quarter should run over $2,000,000 or more than in all of last year. Directors at their meeting this month will probably be governed in their dividend attitude by the outlook and by consideration of the problem trend through the fall. The only factors that might lead to postponement of action would be the $1,000,000 bond maturity July 15 or a sudden sales slump in any quarter.

may seem inexplicable to the ordinary grown-up Londoner, but it is easily understood by children. There are to-day certain discontented, ambitious schoolboys preparing for another week's slavery at their books when they would be dashing through the streets in shining helmets, or climbing tall ladders poised against nothing. They saw the headquarters brigade at drill on Saturday afternoon.

Once a month London school children are permitted to see firemen under instruction, and permanent members of the brigade do wonderful things in Southwark Bridge-road. There are thrilling "rescues" by a hook-and-ladder crew, working from a roof, first aid and removal of injured persons by the ambulance service; the extinction of a petrol fire; a sensational "turn" by the emergency tender, equipped with smoke helmets, searchlights, and fresh-air blower, in which "unconscious" persons "overcome" by smoke are restored to animation.

Little wonder they go home reluctantly, to dream of a glorious future concerned wholly with the devastation of London by fire, and their own heroic part—wearing, of course, the necessary helmet of glittering metal—in saving the city from destruction.

THE HANDY MAN.
Still, this does not explain why firemen want to become firemen. It can be only recorded as a fact that the majority of the recruits for the London Brigade are drawn from the sea.

Seafaring candidates make the best firemen, because they are accustomed to turn out in all kinds of weather and to do any job at a moment's notice. Also they are used to stern discipline.

About one candidate in a hundred passes the severe preliminary tests. Even if he satisfies the essential requirements as to height (minimum 5ft. 7in.) and chest measurement (minimum 37in.) he may come disconsolately out of the testing room, defeated by the 440lb. weight which he must pull up by a block and tackle in 40 seconds.

One innovation of which they are rather proud at Southwark Bridge headquarters is the new method of putting out petrol fires—by means of a mobile tank which can throw 8,000 gallons of a soapy froth and cover a good-sized drilling yard to the depth of an inch.

Glamour of Fire Fighting
BRIGADES RECRUITED FROM THE SEA.

Why do fishermen want to become London firemen?

This is one of life's little mysteries, which offers itself for solution with increasing frequency at the headquarters of the London Brigade in Southwark Bridge-road.

A fireman's life seems to have a peculiar fascination for men in many other more settled walks in life, particularly those who go to sea in trawlers. A large contingent like that at Woolwich Arsenal last week has its sequel a rush of applications for admission to the brigade.

The fascination of a fireman's life

MOTOR OUTLOOK GOOD.
Vice Pres. Swayne of General Motors Optimistic on 1925 Earnings.
N. Y.—"I expect 1925 to be one of large earnings for motor companies," said Vice-President Swayne of General Motors Corporation sailing on Olympic.

"Production of cars and trucks in United States and Canada in first two months of 1925 approximated 520,000 or about 75% as many as in first two months of 1924. Early in 1924 production was based on an over optimistic hope of spring retail demand; an increasing stock of cars accumulated and production had to be curtailed. This year production schedules have been based on a conservative estimate of actual sales. Production for first months of 1925 was only 3% less than for corresponding period 1923, largest year motor industry enjoyed.

"Since last December output has been increasing, a conservative estimate of first quarter production should be about 840,000 cars and trucks. This figure, while 24% under last year's first quarter, would be only about 7% less than first quarter 1923.

"In second quarter I expect production to equal if not exceed second quarter 1924 when 959,000 cars and trucks were produced. For last half year it would not be surprising to see production run ahead of 1924 so total for 1925 would equal if not exceed 1924 output.

"Retail demand has been increasing in past few weeks. Stocks of new cars are small and will probably remain low throughout spring.

"There is no evidence any general price reduction will be seen this year."

DE FOREST RADIO.
January and February Sales Over $1,000,000, or More than 40% of 1924 Business.
N. Y.—Directors of De Forest Radio Co. authorized following general statement:
"The board of directors after a careful review of the patent situation has arrived at the conclusion that the De Forest Radio Co. has a decided advantage in most suits now in litigation and that there are several cases which may result in a very great benefit, both financially and other wise. On the other hand, and despite reports to the contrary, there are no suits pending which even if decided adversely would prevent the company from carrying on its business as successfully as ever.

"Gross sales of tubes and sets for January and February were over $1,000,000, or more than 40 per cent. of the business for 1924. Sales for March are estimated at over $400,000, which is very greatly in excess of the same period last year.

"The company's current asset position is usually strong, inventories being considerably below normal with ample cash on hand. Greater confidence than ever in the prospects of the company for the coming year is now felt due to the very unusual and complete line of products which the De Forest Radio Co. is now in a position to offer to the public for the ensuing season."

With the Sealers

TOTAL CATCH APPROXIMATELY 115,000.

The messages received from the remainder of the ships of the Northern Front last night are most encouraging and should the weather and ice conditions hold good for another few days, all four ships will undoubtedly do well. The old seals are apparently very numerous, particularly near the Terra Nova's position. The crew of that ship yesterday shot 1,069. She took on board 650 and the balance will be picked up to-day. The Neptune's men also did well yesterday, accounting for 500, while the Seal reports picking up her kill of the previous day. The messages read as follows:

BOWING BROS.
TERRA NOVA—Shot to-day 1,069; took on board 650, rest still on paws. All well.

BAIRNE JOHNSTON & CO.
SEAL—Coal not bothering so much as ammunition and guns; have 4,000 young and 3,500 old on board; did not do much to-day as picking up Wednesday's seals.

JOB BROS. & CO.
NEPTUNE—Position 65 miles E. 1/2 N. Groas Islands, shot 500 to-day.

Spencer Club

The annual card party and dance of Spencer Club ladies was held on Tuesday evening in Spencer College Hall. The auditorium was completely filled with tables, some 280 persons being present. The scene was beautifully laid out, the yellow electric shades adding to its effectiveness. Bridge and Auction 45's were played until 10.45 when the winners of the most points were announced, and duly presented with their prizes by Mrs. Geo. R. Williams, the Hon. President. The Bridge prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, and the booby prize by Andrew G. Carnell. The Auction 45's were won by Mrs. Percy LeMessurier and Warwick Smith, while Gordon Oke captured the booby prize for the lowest score. Dancing was indulged in until 1 a.m. Mrs. Harvey Jardine's Orchestra supplying the music. The supper was catered to by the Madies of Spencer Club, and was up to their highest standard. The financial results were up to expectations and will be devoted to painting and cleaning the interior of Bishop Spencer College. A dance for young folks will be held next Tuesday night. The Spencer Club wishes to place on record their appreciation to the kind friends who patronized their social evening, and also to those who contributed to the prizes for the card games and expenses.

BOMB OUTRAGE IN SOFIA CATHEDRAL CAUSES MANY DEATHS.

SOFIA, April 17.
The ancient Cathedral of Sveti Kral was the scene of a terrible outrage this afternoon. Members of the Bulgarian Cabinet, hundreds of leading political personalities and citizens and many military officials were assembled at the funeral of General Georghieff who was assassinated in the streets of Sofia Tuesday night when the course of the service a bomb or bombs exploded, causing widespread death and destruction and partially wrecking the old building. How many persons were killed is not known, but rescuing parties have already taken numerous bodies out of the ruins. None of the Ministers were killed, although several were wounded. It is the general belief this outrageous attack on King Boris and the murder of General Georghieff constitute an attempt to provoke a communist revolution.

Two undesirables taken in for vagrancy were ordered to leave the court and try and secure some work. Before doing so Judge Morris gave them a few words of advice and warned them not to appear before him again, as next time they would be sent down to receive a good flogging. A drunk and disorderly was convicted and fined $2.00 or 7 days.

A case against a man on a charge of being drunk in a public place was postponed until to-morrow. The accused upon answering to the charge admitted he was not drunk, but stated that he had taken a couple of drinks. Hon. M. P. Gibbs has been retained by the defendant.

A few civil cases were disposed off.

The Pulpwood Case

The case of the British American Trading Company, vs. the Newfoundland Government was continued at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon before Mr. Justice Kent when the evidence of witnesses for the defence was taken. Mr. George Phillips was the first witness called and gave evidence as to the delivery of the pulpwood to the steamers at the various places, the condition of the wood at the time of delivery, and the place on the shore where it was piled. This morning his cross examination and re-examination was continued until noon when Mr. David Thibault was called. His examination in chief by Mr. Winter was continued up till recess hour. The taking of the evidence will be continued this afternoon and will probably conclude to-morrow evening.

Nfld. at Wembley

The second of a series of meetings of the Newfoundland Board of Trade took place at noon to-day. President Hon. Tasker Cook occupied the chair and called on Mr. Leonard Outerbridge to address the gathering. The latter gave a very interesting address on Newfoundland at Wembley in 1925 and spoke as follows:

To understand the nature and extent of improvements in our exhibit at Wembley for 1925, brief reference must be made to what was accomplished at Wembley by Newfoundland in 1924.

You will remember that the Committee was requested by the Government of the day to undertake the whole of the work in connection with Newfoundland's part in the Empire Exhibition. A grant was made amounting to fifty thousand dollars for this purpose and a promise to allocate a further ten thousand dollars at a later date, which promise was subsequently carried out by the present Government.

Before the Committee was appointed the Government had already committed Newfoundland to an expenditure against Exhibition account of five thousand pounds, or nearly half of the total amount of the cost of the exhibit at our building, and we had left roughly thirty-five thousand dollars to cover the cost of preparing and shipping the exhibits to England, the cost of maintenance during the exhibition, and of dismantling and returning the exhibits to Newfoundland.

At the outset it was realized that the amount was very inadequate, but the nature of the finances of the country at the time did not justify the Government in increasing the grant.

Furthermore, the Committee had only five months to prepare the exhibit before the Exhibition actually opened, and I think it is to its credit that all the exhibits were in England a full month before the opening day of the Exhibition.

It was evident at the outset that whatever policy was decided on our watchword would have to be economy. With this in view and to avoid the expense of a highly-paid Exhibition Commissioner in England, the Committee decided to ask the Government to arrange that the High Commissioner should form a committee in London to undertake the necessary work to be done over there and, as you know, Captain Gordon formed a subcommittee known as the London Advisory Committee, which worked in co-operation with the main Committee in Newfoundland and which shares in the results attained, though the ultimate responsibility always has rested with the main Committee in Newfoundland.

As is also known, the policy decided upon, and which I think was the correct one, (as we had to cut our coat according to our cloth) was that it would be better to concentrate on displaying those resources of Newfoundland which needed exploitation most and which were most likely to attract capital from Great Britain. Therefore the policy adopted was to concentrate mainly on our minerals, timbers, water-powers, oils, pulp and paper and our sporting attractions, and to exhibit on a smaller scale all the other resources and attractions and to exhibit on a smaller scale all the other resources and attractions of Newfoundland.

The matter of the fisheries occupied the Committee's serious attention and in view of all the circumstances and the limited money at its disposal, it was decided not to feature our fisheries, not because we underestimated their value to Newfoundland but because it was thought that in the main our fisheries must depend on local ingenuity and capital rather than foreign capital and for that reason and because of our lack of funds the Committee was forced to have only a modest display of our fishing industry.

No one knew the weak points in our exhibit better than the Committee, and they only existed because of lack of funds. For example, it was much regretted that a better fur exhibit could not be made, but when it is realized that to purchase furs to the extent, say, of those exhibited by Messrs. Ewing at the local Exhibition held here, would have cost us an amount equal to all we had to spend on the whole of the actual exhibits, some idea may be obtained of the handicaps under which the Committee was working.

Having viewed our exhibit in England last September, I think it is not exaggerating, and I hope not immodest as Chairman of the Committee, to say that our exhibit was pleasing to the eye, very comprehensive and varied, and gave value to Newfoundland to the extent of more than double of what was expended, mainly due to the excellent work of everyone in Newfoundland and London who had to do with the exhibit and to the generosity of many Newfoundlanders and English friends of Newfoundland by way of monetary contributions and loans of exhibits, voluntary labor, and other forms of assistance generally.

foundland or London Committees. Furthermore, in this respect we were not alone, as with the exception of Canada practically every exhibit was not ready at the start.

We were very fortunate indeed in having the services of Mr. Davies in charge of our building. Mr. Davies was very ably assisted by Mr. Robinson, a brother of the Hon. Dr. Robinson, the "Daily News," who offered his services voluntarily. I remember very much any remarks that may have been made here in Newfoundland that visitors to our building were not properly looked after and explained the exhibits. Of course, there were occasions when Mr. Davies and Mr. Robinson were not available to give individual attention to visitors to the building, being at times engaged in other business in connection with the exhibit, but I think I am safe in saying that a visitor to the Newfoundland building had a better chance of receiving individual attention than he had in any other building. When I was at the Exhibition I visited most of the buildings and in none of them did I find anyone to explain the exhibits. It would, of course, be physically impossible to do so owing to the enormous number of demonstrators which would be necessary. On the other hand, in our building Mr. Davies and Mr. Robinson were nearly always on the floor ready to talk to interested visitors and to explain in an unostentatious manner anything which excited visitors' curiosity. Moreover, every exhibit was well labelled and distributed small pamphlets on Newfoundland, written by Sir Patrick McGrath specially for the Committee, which gave in general terms an attractive description of the country in general. After July we also had on sale many series of pretty postcards, specially chosen by the Newfoundland committee of typical scenery of the country.

We ended up the exhibit of 1924 with over two million people having passed through our building and with an amount of roughly six thousand dollars to our credit. This amount was kept in reserve and earmarked for all the expenses necessarily inherent in closing the exhibition and returning the exhibits to Newfoundland, settlement of claims, payment of gratuities, and so forth; and had the Wembley Exhibition closed at the end of 1924, the Committee, I think, would have done its work with credit to the colony and kept within the prescribed sum voted by the Government.

As you know, it was decided to continue the Exhibition during 1925. The main reasons for this decision were, that it was thought a pity to have expended such a large sum of money and to have erected such a fine Empire Exhibition if it were only to be on display for six very wet months and which, if visited at the end of 1924, would have proved a financial failure—if such an Exhibition as that can be judged from the point of view of dollars and cents. It was further realized that the Exhibition, as an exhibition of the Empire's resources was a great success and that the future and potential values to be derived from it were incalculable. It was further thought that by continuing in 1925 a comparatively small amount of further investment would be required and that with the great crowds which the Exhibition would certainly continue to attract and with the hope of a better summer in England, the Exhibition might possibly be a financial success to those who were responsible for guaranteeing the main expenditures.

Newfoundland's policy for 1925 can be stated very shortly. We requested from the Government a further grant of twenty-five thousand dollars, but in its wisdom it only saw its way to making a further grant of fifteen thousand dollars, and at this time the Committee does not complain, much as it would like to have a larger sum and so make a better showing.

I think it not improper to point out that if the Committee had not husbanded its finances during 1924 then the sum of fifteen thousand dollars now voted would have proved to be expended in making good the deficits which might have been incurred in 1924, and no improvement could take place in 1925. Happily we are not in that position. We have still in reserve an amount to cover the dismantling expenses, and this will leave us practically the whole of the additional fifteen thousand dollars for improving our exhibit in 1925.

The new policy is to add a really fine fishery exhibit, to have a really fine fur exhibit, to improve our oil exhibit and to increase the quantities of the various minerals exhibited so as to make that exhibit more imposing. Furthermore, the Newfoundland Pulp and Paper exhibit will be very materially increased and improved upon, and our pavilion will be redecorated and the interior generally improved from an artistic and spectacular point of view. In addition a counter has been erected which has been rented to Mr. Peter Cowan, who will sell postcards and souvenirs in Newfoundland on his own account, the rental for the counter being a portion of the profits, if any, which he may make.

I think it well so that there may be no misunderstanding and as much for Mr. Cowan's sake as for the Committee's to state authoritatively what his position is. There is no arrangement between the General Committee and Mr. Cowan at all but we have allowed him to arrange with the London Committee to run the counter on his own account and if there are any losses made, the funds voted by the Government for our disposal are in no way liable for such losses. Mr. Cowan is running the counter as a private venture and during his spare time he hopes to pick up agencies in England for his own private business. He is in no way authorized, nor has he applied, to represent himself as an official of the Newfoundland exhibit. It is, however, to be expected that Mr. Cowan when he is in our building will offer his services gratuitously in any way he can to Captain Gordon and Mr. Davies, and undoubtedly they will be accepted by them just as the services of other Newfoundlanders and Englishmen have been offered and accepted in various ways in connection with the exhibit, all of which have contributed to the economical way in which the exhibit has been handled.

Following the address a vote of thanks was proposed by B. C. Gardiner and carried unanimously, after which the report of the Council was submitted.

In the discussion which followed W. A. Munn stressed the importance of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, and strongly urged that Newfoundland should participate. He was supported by the Hon. Sir Patrick McGrath and L. C. Outerbridge. Mr. R. B. Job also spoke on the subject and asked for particulars. It was decided that the Council should confer with the British Empire Exhibition Committee and bring in a report at the next meeting. Before adjournment a short discussion on the subject of fish standardization was engaged in by Mr. Job and Hon. P. Templeman. The meeting was largely attended and it is anticipated that as a result of the interest evoked that future meetings will be attended by an increased number of members.

The report of the Board of Trade will appear to-morrow.

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.
