JOHN WESLEY'S BIBLE,

AN OLD BOOK USED AT THE METH-ODIST CENTENNIAL.

conference of methodism assembled this land exceed $1; in New York 85c., Penn-

Bishop Foster delivered the sermon, in the course of which he said : We are here not to celebrate a victory, but to gird our loins to devise wise and skilful methods to be strong to meet the demagoguery of our age as our fathers met it in their days. Inage as our fathers met it in their days. Infidelity then stalked abroad unrebuked. Christendon seemed to be fading in 1784.

The opening of the 1884 centenary, if not as dark, is dark enough. The conditions of home and society are being revolutionized. Ancient time-honored theories are being exploded. Sacred institutions are put to the strain of great tests. We are in the grip of a great combat for the final dominion of the world. The false and groundless will pass away. The fortress of lies has kept the world in slavery. There will be conflict, but Zion will be left with no rent in her foundation, no breach in the walls. Progress will be slow, but it will be founded on eternal truth. The church abides forever; individual churches have no such promise. The only hope of any church is the truth it possesses and the ability to cast out the unsound it inthe ability to cast out the unsound it inherits. It was important that calvinism went down. All its great truth could not float its error. The absolute permanency of any church is dependent in an absolutely true creed. Our creed will bear the lutely true creed. Our creed will bear the regulators at Farmers' station, Ky., yesterday.

At 11 25 on Tuesday night a special Pullman car was attached to the train on the Baltimore and Onio railway and the distinguished party left Maryland's metropolis for Toronto. The route was via the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvadia, New York Central and Great Western railways. Along the road the party was joined by several well-known bishops and clergymen.

At 8.45 last night the train drew up at the foot of Yonge street. The band of the I.C.B.U. struck up Yankee Doodle, and amid showers of colored lights from Roman candles and the glare of torches strung along up Yonge street, the Pullman car was emptied of its distinguished contents. Carriages were in waiting, and as quickly as they could be filled were formed into line. The procession then moved off along Front street towards Yerk, headed by the two grand marshals, M. Rourke and M. Vincent. All of the Roman catholic societies in the city took west in the recention, and the line was

W. F. MACKEAN.

Were it not a solid fact that trade with the West Indies is really and truly of great importance to northern countries, one might be tempted to say that just now in both Canada and the United States. Halifax and St. John are astir over it, and the Globe's howl about the worthlessness of draft treaty between Spain and the United States has been agreed upon by the two governments, but is of none effect until ought to explain, if they can. question of its adoption is now pending, have been based on insufficient informa- once more. tion as to what the treaty really is. One objection, however, that appears to have

"But the treaty does not stipulate, so far as now appears, that Spain shall levy no internal or export tax upon the sugar of Cuba and Porto Rico sent to this country. If not, then it is a fool's bargain, and the effect will be to transfer $50,000 of American revenue into the coffers of Spain. When congress some years ago repea ed the duty on coffee—a purely revenue tax—Brazil imposed an export tax about equal to the import tax which the United States remited. The consequence was that the American people paid as much for their coffee as before, while the government of Brazil collected from American consumers $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 of revenue from sales of coffee, which had previously been paid into the American treasury."

Lact that she constantly employs and pays her legal counsel by the year. After this it is not se surprising to learn that when the New York authorities came to look after her property and that of her bonds-men they found that it had all been conveyed away quite recently under due form of law. Madame's business, like that of a railway company, required a permanent solicitor, retained at a salary.

Old country papers that indulge in held that any taxes imposed by any nation showing up the recent compromise on the are always and wholly paid by its own franchise and redistribution bills as "Glad at 5.6 64d, 2d dearer. Paris—Wheat and citizens, and never by citizens of any other stone's capitulation." It is certain that flour quiet. There are some indisputable facts, however, that do not easily bend to this theory. That of the Brazil coffee export tax is one, and the sugar trade of Cuba some years ago furnished another, when prices were high and the outside demand large, an export duty was collected in Cuba by the Spanish authorities. More than once this export duty was raised, and each time the foreign buyer paid it, and just charged his customers so much the more when selling to them. Of late years, however, European beet sugar has con trolled the market, and the trick can no longer be done. But the fact that it was systematically done during many years is sure enough. What we would chiefly note just now, however, is the present remarkable North American craze after trade with the West Indies. The other day the Globe had it to deliver despatches at the front; he de-India trade—at all events as far as the British West Indies are concerned—was worth little or nothing to Canada. Now far does he travel? both Halifax and St. John are raging for it, and the American papers are full of it. Surely something to make a note of, we should say.

What Cleveland Said.

It is true enough that there is great complaint of short employment and reduced wages in the United States at present. But to speak of these as being "the fruits of protection" is utter nonsense, Not protection, but the fear that protection, but the fear that protection with and the eldest son of a mass of the speak of the spea have the strength taken out of it, is what ing be called to attend his funeral as causes the present lack of confidence. There is strong proof of this in the fact that the president elect, when giving reasons why people should be hopeful of the future, took special pains to impress it upon his hearers that under his adminis: and spinsters published in the Telegram as Out of 2000 patients treated during the past tration there would be no tariff changes of eligible voters at future municipal elections, a revolutionary character-nothing to cause that the philanthropic editor might have alarm to established industries. Now, gone a little farther and given the addresses had he believed that protection was what had he believed that protection was what was making the trouble, and that people generally believed this—the right thing to have said would have been of each one, a large number of whom no doubt are still young and pretty, who, as well as being eligible voters, would be eligible and doubtless willing to cast their tot—as well as their vote—with some eligible was their vote—with some eligible was their vote—with some eligible was their vote as their vote and somewhat as follows: "Fellow-citizens, fear not, but just wait a little longer. Soon a democratic congress will give you a tariff for revenue only, and I, as a demo-cratic president, will be only too harpy to sign the bill. Then, under a system as is offered in good faith by an near to free trade as revenue requirements will permit, the country will start on such a glorious commercial career as she has never known before. Our prosperity will then advance by leaps and bounds." But of the asylum on Queen street would be a he said nothing of the kind. All his effort most eligible site for the Grand Trunk was to do what he could towards restoring workshops confidence by assuring the country that its protected industries were in no danger whatever from his accession to power. This fact alone speaks volumes, but no explanation of what it means can be g from the free trade papers.

A Wheat Syndicare. The St. Paul Pioneer Press recently had a despatch from Winnipeg, stating that loan is for six months at 5 per cent., and he bank will advance on the actual cos of the wheat at Winnipeg, minus all freight charges, which will leave a margin of 9 to 12 cents per bushel for the security of the bank. There is a surplus of 6,000, 000 bushels of wheat in the Northwest all of which, it is claimed, will reach Montreal on its way to Europe next year. The railway company is hurrying the construction of its elevators at Montreal.

Concerning which the Montreal Gazette

There is some truth in these statements. Mr. Mitchell is in the Northwest, and is purchasing wheat at a price satisfactory to the growers, for storage at Port Arthur until the spring, when it will be brought on to Montreal for export to Europe, and already the price of wheat has advanced five cents a bushel in Manitoba in consequence of this operation. But the credit obtained from the hank of Montreal is not four millions, but less than one million. It may, indeed, exceed this sum if the quantity of wheat pure assed by Mr. Mitchell runs much over a million bushels, but as yet a credit for that quantity will cover the transaction.

Meantime it is a solid fact that farmer ut west on the Canadian side of the bor der are getting better prices for their wheat than are being paid on the American side. Minnesota farmers are actually taking their wheat across to Emerson and paying there is something like a West India craze the duty of 15 cents per bushel, and even then having more to carry home than they would have had by selling on their own this particular trade to Canada is hushed. A large extent, we fancy; but that it should side. This cannot happen to any very happen at all is something that these who

Catarrh-A New Treatment. Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh six months, fully ninety per cent. have it cured of this stubborn malady. This is a the less startling when it is remembered not five per cent. of the patients present the results present the results present the results are the results and the results are the results and the results are the results ar the less starting when it is remembered that not five per cent. of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messra. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal Star. 26

HOW RAIN DROPS REACH WS.

Interesting Theory of Their Formation

The very minute particles of which clouds are composed are moving down-ward in consequence of the attraction of gravity; but by reason of the resistance which the air offers to their descent,

they are only moving very slewly, says
Professor Osborne Reynolds. Since, however, the resistance offered to the passage of large drops is much smaller in proportion to their weight than that offered to small drops, it follows that the large drops will descend faster than the s naller ones, and will overtake them, coming into collision with any which are in the direct line of their descent.

when two drops collide they will unite to form a larger drop, which will descend with increased velocity, sweeping up all smaller drops in its path, and thus indreasing in size until it emerges from the cloud. Since many clouds are several miles in thickness, it is easy to see that a particle descending from the upper part of the cloud may become a raindrop of considerable size before it emerges from the cloud. In their passage from the cloud to the earth the large raindrops will overtake the small ones in a precisely similar way. It is, of course, well known that large clouds may exist without any rain falling from them. In some cases rain is actually formed, but evaporates and is again several miles in thickness, it is easy to formed, but evaporates and is again converted into vapor before it can reach the ground; in many cases the non-for mation of rain is possibly due to the fact that under certain unknown atmospheric or other conditions the particles forming the clouds do not unite when

As an agent of geological change, rain is of the greatest importance. It plays a large part in the disintegration of rocks, and the formation of soils, washes the smaller particles into streams and rivers, and is, in fact, one of the most important of the various denuding agents. Indeed, since rain is the ulti-mate source of all our brooks, rivers, &c., it may be said to be the principal agent of goological change on the earth's sur-

The amount of rain fall varies very considerably in different countries, and in different parts of the same country, depending on geographical position, the conformation of the surface of the ground, the proximity of large lakes and the sea, etc. The heaviest annual fall of rain occurs in the zone of calms, over the equatorial region of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and on the west coasts of the British Isles, India, Norway, North and South America and New Zealand. In all these latter districts the west wind blows over a large tract of ocean and becomes heavily charged with mois-ture, which it deposits when forced upward by the action of the mountains on the coasts. The driest districts in the world are the desert regions of Africa and Asia.

every night. A correspondent who visited the spot thus describes the scene: Getting down into a long stretch of bottom land, something over a mile from the depot, we found that the roost was in an immense canebrake. From all directions, great flocks of robins were flying across the heavens, all winging their way to the roost. For fully an hour one bird after another went by, until the canebrake was fully alive with the feathered tribe; and before it was dark a large party set out to make their war upon them.

There were sixty-eight men and boys in the crowd, each carrying a stick and a torch or a lanterr. The roost having been reached, action commenced. The canebrake is about a mile long, and extends a considerable distance on either side of the creek. It seemed that each individual cane was bent down with its load of birds. From all sides hundreds of blinded and bewildered birds flew about, striking against each other and about, striking against each other and against the canes, making a noise that resembled a mighty wind. All through the brake torches gleamed, men shouted, and the deadly stick was going right and left. The birds, never left the brake, but flew about in confusion, unable to escape the weapons in the hands of the men, who when the for about an hour. men, who plied them for about an hour. In the excitement hardly anybody ped long enough to pick up the slain birds, but went over their routes when the sport was ended to gather their game. Our party went into the brake at seven o'clock, and at eight all were counting over their birds that lay in piles. The total number of robins killed by the party in one hour footed np 2110. The nightly battles on these hirds have been constantly going on forfully three weeks.

Dismissed from the Austrian Army for not Fighting a Duel.

A warm discussion is going on in Vienna newspapers in connection with the case of an officer recently dismissed from the army for refusing to fight a duel. Two young men named Hintner and Morl, both lieutenants in the Reserve, and both attending lectures in the University of Graz, met last October at a railway station. Morl made use of some offensive expression which Hintner thought was intended for himself. He asked Morl if it was so, adding that if it was, or if the expression was repeated, he would box his ears. Morl said it was intended for another person, and the in-otherwise challenging him to fight a duel. Hintner refused to withdraw his words. He also "refused absolutely to fight a duel, because it was against his region, against reason and conscience, and also because duelling was forbidden both by the civil and the military law." Hereupon the matter was brought be-fore a court of honor, consisting of superior officers of the Fourteenth Army Corps. The decision of this court was "approved" and published on Jan. 12, and simply recites that "Josef Hintner, Lieutenant in the Reserve of the Tyrolese Jagar Regiment of the Emperor Franz Josef," is charged with "absolute refusal of a duel, and the sentence is that the accused be deprived of his com-mission and rank." The sentence becomes forthwith operative. - London

I how a school house is days gone by.
That stood by a country read;
The arching clin trees ahadowed it e'er,
And near by a brooklet flowed;
And there; through the weary afternoons,
The girls in their called gowns
And the boys in butternut, used to sit,
Struggling with verbs and nouns.

The old school teacher was gray and grim, A man severe and stern; And hard it was, 'neath that iron hand, For a stupid boy to learn.

And there was a stupid boy in the let,
The stupidest boy in school,
And every one, from the teacher down,
Thought him a hopeless fool.

Every one, I said? Ah! no,
There was one whose heart was kind,
And whose gentle spirit tell like the sun
Upon the dullard mind.
There was one who taught him, when sekeel
O'er,
The west some tasks to say,
And led him to study and understand—
The schoolmaster's daughter May.

How gentle and patient she always was
With her pupil dull and slow:
How much there was that was plain to her
That it seemed he never would know.
But she never failed in her chosen task,
And ceaselessly worked away,
and the stupid boy, the butt of the school,
Grow cleverer day by day.

And how did he turn out? Well, my bey.
He didn't turn out so ill:
He has been selectmen of this small town,
And ho's working his own form still.
And the schoolmaster's daughter—the little
May—
She's the best of his love and life—
For I was the stupid boy, you see,
And May—well, May is my wife.

"I cannot stand the tyranny of my father! I will pawn the diamond ring my lover gave me Christmas Eve, and with the money I will fly to the stage

Burglars Should not Fumble Around. A stout, able-bodied lady was aroused A stout, able-bodied lady was aroused the other night by a noise in the hall-way, and on going down stairs she discovered a man fumbling around in the dark. The lady immediately assailed him with the ferocity of a tigress and ejected him from the house in quite a number of seconds less than no time at all and slammed the door after him all, and slammed the door after him.
As the man tumbled down the steps on the sidewalk he was gobbled policeman and promptly marched off to "Gracious!" exclaimed the lady, growing pale and agitated; "was that a burglar?" "Why, 'certainly; didn't you know it?" "Know it! Heavens, no! I thought it was only my husband home again late from the lodge, or I wouldn't have done what I did for the world" "Trage Sitistics.

The fresh water is got by diving. The diver, sitting in his boat, winds a great goat-skin bag around his left arm, the hand grasping its mouth; then he takes in his hand a heavy stone, to which is attached a strong line, and, thus equipped, he plunges in and quickly reaches the bottom. Instantly open ing the bag over the strong jet of fresh water, he springs up the water, he springs up the ascending current, at the same time closing the bag, and is helped on board. The stone is then hauled up, and the diver, aftertak. ing breath, plunges in again. The source of these copious submarine springs is thought to be in the green hills of Osman, some 500 or 600 miles distant.

No 305 KING ST. TORONTO GANADA

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the pa tsix months fully ninety per cent, have been cured of this stubborn maiady. This is mone the less startling when it is re nembered that not five per cent, of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the pate t medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the extar h is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as ourse effected by him six years see, are cures still. No one cleahas ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The applic stion of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases teing cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messra. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 king street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal

Darling, come! the nest is waiting;
We have been so long creating;
Come, and make me happy, linnet,
Singing your sweet songs within it;
Humming birds, the thrush, the swallow,
Wren and robin, they all follow
In the ranks of envy, dearest,
Just because your voice is clearest!
Who can help it if your singing
Is the wreath of laurel bringing!
Who can blame if without labor
You urpass your tineful neighbor!
Nature's self your crown is wreathing;
Fate decrees, her lips declare it,
Take the crown of song and wear it!
But all this is idie prating—
While I woo the nest is waiting;
Come, then, make me happy, linnet

SIR JOHN'S CURLY CALLERS. The Distinguished Canadian in an Embarrasing Pasition.

From the New York Journal, Dec. 9.
"John," said M.s. Macdonald yesterday morning, as she cast a fiery eye over the visiting cards sent to her husband by early callers. "there seems to be an unusus number of females anxious to see you to

Sir John Macdonald looked out of the third story window of the Hotel Bruns wick and tried to appear interested in the busy scenes in the street.

'Come, come," snapped Mrs. Mac ald, "you needn't pretend you don't hear me, my dear. Who are these people, and what do they want?" "My dear," said Sir John, trying to look what you are talking about. There isn't a woman in the city that I ever saw or heard of except yourselt."

"Ob, certainly not," said Mrs. Macdonald, as she fingered the cards nervously.

"What a pity it is that you are so short-sighted, to be sure. Of course I might surprised, "I haven't the faintest idea of sighted, to be sure. Of course I might have known that you couldn't see a woman even it she were to poke herself right under your nose. Oh, these men."

Mrs. Macdonald buried her beautiful face in a cambric pocket handkerchief and began to weep as though her heart would break, while her distinguished lord tripped lightly out of the room and descended to the parler.

the parlor.

Five stately ladies, each with a poke bonnet, a few curls and a set of resolutions under her arm, sat bolt upright on high-backed chairs and smiled sweetly as the ime minister of Canada entered.
"Ladies," said the statesman, "am "Correct in presuming that you wish to speak with me?" "
"Oh! Sir John," exclaimed a tall, slender lady, rising from her chair, "our lives, our fortunes and our future happiness are our fortunes and our future nappiness are in your keeping."

"But, my dear madam, I"

"Not a word, you dear, good soul!" interrupted the fair one, "Don't attempt to undo the noble kindness you have already done. We all know your heart indeed we do! Don't we, girls?"

"Oh, Sir John," exclaimed the four other ladies in chorus, "how can we ever thank you enough?"

They rose from their seats and advar majestically toward the astonished minister, whose eyes stood out like hat pegs.
"Really, ladies, you must not," he exclaimed, as with a brisk flank movement he shifted his position to the opposite side of the piano. "I m married!"

"Married!" echoed the ladies, "and pray what does that matter? Surely you will not desert us because of your mar-"Thank you," replied Sir John, who is something of a high charchman, "I am not in sympathy with mormonism."
"Oh, girls, just listen to him!" said the

Thereupon the ladies laughed imp Thereupon the ladies laughed immoderately, and when they recovered Sir John was made to understand that the object of their visit was to thank him, in behalf of downtrodden girlhood, for the interest he had always taken in the matter of woman suffrage. Sir John at once emerged from his entrenched position and shook the ladies warmly by the hands.

He was thus engaged when Mrs. Macdonald poked her head into the room and reminded him, in tones of marked emphasis, that he would oblige her by coming upirs at once and fixing the grate-fire Sir John had an engagement to play a game of billiards in the evening, but as he did not put in an appearance it is thought that he was too desply engrossed in his effort to "equare himself" with Mrs.

Only My Moder's Hair. From the Hamilton Times.

When Madame Mandelbaum, her son and Hermann Stoude were being searched by the chief of police in presence of their counsel and the detectives, there came to light from the depths of Stoude's vest pocket a tiny roll of much-worn paper which the prisoner showed a strong disin-clination to exhibit or deliver to the chief, assuring that officer that the contents of the paper were of no value to any one but Stoude himself. Of course it had to be taken with the other articles on the person of the prisoner, and a little curiosity was shown on all sides as officers and counse leaned forward to get a glimpse of the treasure. After some delay the chief succeeded in finding the inside of the package, and there, safely stowed away, was a lock of hair. "Only my moder's hair," said Stoude in broken English, "dear to no one but me."

Mr. Caron on the Loyalty of the Militla From the New York Star. If necessary, would the Canadian militia volunteer to fight for England abroad? Well, said the minister, fixing his eye-glass a little more firmly in its place, some of them would, perhaps. They are loyal enough, I am sure, and none more so than French Canadians. Our militia are organized for purposes of defense merely. The 500 men who have gone to Egypt are raftsmen and Indians, who have no connection with the militia.
