The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below. L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

Coloured covers/	Г		Coloured pages/
Couverture de couleur	L	P	ages de couleur
Covers damaged/	Г		ages damaged/
Couverture endommagée	L	P	Pages endommagées
Covers restored and/or laminated/	Г	P	ages restored and/or laminated/
Couverture restaurée et/ou pelliculée	L	P	ages restaurées et/ou pelliculées
Cover title missing/	Г		ager discoloured, stained or foxed/
Le titre de couverture manque	Ľ	 	ages décolorées, tachetées ou piquées
Coloured maps/	ſ		ages detached/
Cartes géographiques en couleur	L	P	Pages détachées
Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or bl	ack)/ [Showthrough/
Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue o	ou noire)		ransparence
Coloured plates and/or illustrations/	Г	-70	Quality of print varies/
Planches et/ou illustrations en couleur	Ĺ	\square	Qualité inégale de l'impression
Bound with other material/	Г		Continuous pagination/
Relié avec d'autres documents	Ľ	∠ P	agination continue
Tight binding may cause shadows or di	stortion		ncludes index(es)/
along interior margin/			Comprend un (des) index
La reliure serrée peut causer de l'ombre distorsion le long de la marge intérieure		1	Fitle on header taken from:/
		l	Le titre de l'en-tête provient:
Blank leaves added during restoration n within the text. Whenever possible, the			Fitle page of issue/
been omitted from filming/	Ĺ		Page de titre de la livraison
Il se peut que certaines pages blanches lors d'une restauration apparaissent dar	-		Caption of issue/
mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pag			Fitre de départ de la livraison
pas été filmées.	r	—) a	Masthead/
	Ĺ		Sénérique (périodiques) de la livraison
Additional comments:/ Write	ntelad name may film climbely		fforus
Commentaires supplémentaires:	nkled pages may film slightly	Jul U	1 10643.

This item is filmed at the reduction ratio checked below/ Ce document est filmé au taux de réduction indiqué ci-dessous.

Catholic.

Quod scmper; quod ubique; quod ab omnibus.

OL. I.

KINGSTON, FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1831.

NO. 39

SELECTED.

AMICABLE DISCUSSION. Continued.

LETTER V.

ON THE DOCTRINE TAUGHT BY THE CHURCH

On reading the proceeding chapter, I anticipate there may probably have arisen a dificulty in your mir⁴ How can we be certain, will you have said, that such or such a doctrine is truly of apos tolic tradition, that such an article, sufficient traces of which I do not find in Scripture, has been actually taught by the apostles and faithfully transmitted from them to us? This point, I flatter myself, shall coon be cleared up for you, if you will have patience to examine what I have to lay before you, and if I succeed in expressing to you with

If each of us were obliged to distinguish, among many articles, those which come from tradition & those which do not, we should find ourselves, in a general way, condemned to a labour above our strength. In fact, that part of the preaching of the apostles which they did not commut to writing, was at first confided solely to the memory of the faithful, fixed in particular Churches by the oral and successsive instructions of the first bishops and ifterwards collected partially and as occasion fell for they form the council of the bishops, and their out, in the writings of the fathers, and in the acts of the synods and councils. Whence it follows, that to prove that such an article is truly of apos- titude of the priesthood, they are not members of tolic tradition, we must consult the belief of the the eminent body that has succeeded to the college particular Churches, examine carefully the acts of of the apostles, and with it received the promises. the councils and the voluminous writings of the They are then without power and authority to profathers of the Greek and Latin Churches. does not see that this labour requires a space of [cision, and when once it is passed, to submit to it. time and extent of crudition, that render it in gencralimpracticable? There are, indeed, to be found men of an extraordinary capacity and application, whose taste and inclination lead them to this kind of research: with the aid of the rules of criticism, all founded upon good sense, they balance and weigh authorities, they distinguish between what the fathers taught; as individual teachers, and what they depose as, testifiers to the belief and practice of ther time, and they attach with discrimination the different degrees of credibility that are due, whether to their doctrine or their deposition. The world is well aware that such a labour is calculated but for a small number: and again, after all, how successful souver it may be, it ones of the world. Immediately he has spoken by which escapes a merely human penetration. We scarcely ever leads to incontestible conclusions. his ministers, he wills that all heads, those even can therefore no longer admit a doubt respectifier the apostolic and divine tradition. The question mility and lowliness bow before his oracles. is, what is this means?

Call to mind, Sir, what we have said upon the holy scripture: we have clearly discovered that, seeing the ignorance and incapacity of some, and the pride and infataution of others, the authority of an interpreter, of an infallible judge, was absolutely necessary to make known and cause to be uniformly adopted the dogmas contained in scripture. We must say as much, and with still better right, or unwritten word, they alone, also have always transmit it with been in possession of the exercise of it. No other ecclesiastics have ever protended to it, whatever have been their rank, their dignity, and learning, erudition acquired by long study throws light upon the discussions. But as they have not the plen-Who nounce: their duty is respectfully to await the de-Before the decision, they were at liberty and permitted to discuss the question on the opposite side, to support their opinion with the weight of their erudition, the strength and warmth of their clo quence: after superiors have pronounced, all disputations are forbidden, discussion is closed. mixed up from henceforth with the simple and little ones, the most learned doctors lay down their private opinions, humbly confess that they were inerror, and receive the decision of the bishops as decrees emanating from heaven. Such is the re-Church either pride, or bloated conceit, or obstin- these sources, but eyes interiourly enlightened in may enable us altogether with certainty to arrive at wills, I say, that all heads should with equal hu-

Let it then be established as a principle, that to the bishops exclusively belongs the right of declar ing what has or has not been revealed, that is, what is conformable or contrary to Scripiure and tra dition, or simply to one of the two. This is pre cisely the extent of their authority. never does in go farther. They can add nothing to revelation they can take noting from it. they are its inter preters and judges, but not its masters. In teach We must say as much, and man start and in the same inter- "ing us what we have to believe, any provide the former what has always been believed: they merely renfor the tradition. Ane same junger, the tradition what has always ocen believed, they merchy and preter that unfolds to us the sense of the divine what has always ocen believed, they merchy and preter that unfolds to us the sense of the divine determined at the belief more explicit and clear, there, where books, manifests to us also of that tradition. Now this there the benef more express our contract. It is before it was more vague and indistinct. It is judge, this interpreter, I must tell yon here again, therefore it was more vague and another propose judge, this interpreter, a most the bishops un-i therefore always me another that they introduce. ited in the same opinion, at least in a great inajor-II for us, and never a new faith which we are per ity. it is to them that, in the person of the apos- "for revelation is not a non and forth in full you, and if I succeed in expressing to you with the state of the magnificent promises: "Go mitted to revise and retract. it came forth in jun perspiculty those ideas which I shall now attempt to the, were made the magnificent promises: "Go perfection from Jesus Christ; and his disciples, me, The Spirit of truth shall teach you all truth, inspired by min, nave tattanty writting, to then the spirit of datasand strength to teach whener by word of mouth of the same time to the strength successors, enjoined them at the same time to what is revealed, to declare what is in the written transmit it with the same fidelity to those who should

Thus the bishops, on succeeding the apostolic ministry, find themselvea specially commissioned have been their rains, then organizy, the prop- to guard the Scriptures and traumon. They may be consulted and heard, it is even prop- to guard the Scriptures and traumon. They may be consulted and heard, it is even has been done, already spent their clerical years and those of them pricsthood in becoming acquainted with them, studying them and meditating upon them. Be ing by their episcopacy, become the guardians and interpreters of this double deposit of revelation, they have it more assiduously in their hands and under their eyes. Does any new doctrine arise that must soon require on their part a dogmaticai decision, they prepare themselves for it by redoubling their application, by consulting cach deposit alternately, by comparing them together, by making deeper researches into them with all the care which humanly speaking they are capable or and, assuredly, when they shall come to the decision, He, who is always with them, and who is to instruct them all truth, will never permit them all to agree in giving an erroneous bense to the written word, or the word that is not written. Their common decision will necessarily and uniformly be conformed to them, whether they infer it from both at once, or only from one of them. You and I might gulation of Jesus Christ, who suffers not in his not have perceived it in either one or the other of acy, whether in the rich, the great, or the learned by a celestial ray discover with certainty dime. We therefore are in want of some other means that by means of which he has made himself heard; he any dogma, that the teaching body of the Church has pronounce to have been revealed by Jessus Christ, "that is, by the general consent, or the acceptation !! that is, to be contained in Scripture, or in tradition, or in both at the same time, Learned and ignorant, the decision is for all: not that it is fortidden to tion. those who feel so disposed, to seek for the truth of he dogma, either in scrinture or in the monument, of tradition: far from that, this study would merit praise and commendation: being previously directol and put in the way by the judgment of the Church, they will more easily trace in it her doctrines. But nothing obliges us in general to underinke this laborious and fatiguing examination; our masters, our fathers in faith have done it for 48. They have afterwards decided that such a dogma islin scripture, that such another comes from an apostolic tradition: they are of one accord in teaching it: we know it, it is a fact, it is known by te most simple: this is sufficient for all. All are - mally bound to receive with the most unshaken onfidence a decision which in itself is the most impartial and the most imposing that can be found enon earth, and which, moreover, heaven has engaged to raise to infallibility.*

fit to you, and as it properly constitutes the dis-"lins clergy, presided as judge in this conference, to and all protestant societies, allow me to lay it open literminated the dispute by prenouncing sentence to you in a new light, in order to make you more in favour of those who had supported the divinity mind that, according to all our proofs, the promise it to teach or to hold an opinion that destroyed the of infallibility made in the apostles to their success- || toundations of the Christian religion." . rs, does not regard any of these personally and in raticular, because Jesus Christ does not remain "right pre-emmently belong to him, who presides for ever with any one, noncof them being immortal over the entire episcopacy, and who, from the but that it is addressed to all their successors col-licentre of unity where he holds his see, extends ctively and in a body. Likewise it follows that, separately and individually they are susceptible churches of the world: Accordingly we find, even of error, they cannot, by virtue of the promise | from the most remote periods, that the greater be so, when united together; that whatever deference their personal opinions require from us, we nevertheless do not owe the sacrifice of our opinion or our interior submission except to their unanimous decision; that truth being always to be found in the general agreement, it is this agreement we are bound to know and follow, since by following it we cannot go astray, and by not following it, on the contrary, we do go astray, for then we go out of the way and the me that Jesus Christ has drawn for us, and we leave the guides whom he has expressly appointed to conduct us. Let us therefore be cautious how we ever close our cars to their voices, or ever depart from their uniform instructions. In whatever circumstances their consent is manifested, when once it is known, when once it becomes manifest to us, it is sufficient: our duty is to submit, and our salvation to remain firmly atrached to it.

And here I beg yon to observe that a dogmatical decision may be given in many ways, but that it only becomes decisive and peremptory in one way, explain myself on the two parts of this proposi- quently united together in private councils, and

The bishops, the successors of the apostles, like them the guardians of the faith, by the high dignity with which they are invested in the Church, possess exclusively the right of interpreting scripsuitable and efficient means of stifling the error in partisans by the subtilty of his reasoning. some priests from the two parties, who defended the articles of faith.

their arguments of both sides in a regular disput-- As this doctrine has been hitherto quite a stran- ation, while he, surrounded with the principal of tactive characteristic between the Outholic church decide the difference by a solemn decision .- He ensible of it. In the fast place, always keep in and eternity of the Son of God, and forbade Arus

> With how much more reason does this same his superintendance and jurisdiction over all the part of the dogmatical decisions have originated from this principal see, from which beams the ray of government, according to an expression as correct as it is brillant. If you consider on the one hand the ever active vigilance exercised by the vicar of Jesus Christ over all the Churches; on the other, those intimations which, in great causes, every bishop thinks himself bound to forward to him; you will easily conceive that nothing essential in religion could escape his knowledge, nothing of importance occurs at the most distant extremities, without heing immediately echoed to the centre, and then, without giving time to the error to increase, without waiting for the bishops to assemble in council, the chief pastor goes before the evil, drags to light the rising heresy, solemnly condemns it, and against it, produces to the eyes of the world the ever pure and indefectible tradition af the holy see.

> *"Episcopum oportet judicare, interpretari, con-secrare." Pontif Rom in fol. p. 50.— The bishop is the only ordinary and natural judge of whatever regards religion, and it is for him to decide upon questions of faith and morality, byl interpreting the sacred scripture and by faithfully relating the tra-ditions of the fathers. Henry, Institut, au droil jeccl. t. I. ch. XIII.

We learn also from the history of the Church of the episcopal body united to its head. I will that the bishops of a province or an empire, fre> that there, to ward off the blows aimed against faith, they have proscribed erroneous opinions, and taught the true doctrine of revelation in their dogmatical decrees.

Here then are doctrinal accrees given in three ture and tradition, and of pronouncing after the different manners, or coming from three different one or the other upon points of faith. * A pernici- || tribunals. Each of these decason has an authority ous doctrine threatens to trouble or infect a dio-proper to itself, and proportioned to the tribunal cese; the bishop has the power and the right to from which it emanates: yet none of them are deassemble his clergy, and, after Univing maturely cisive, although they may become so by accepdeliberated with it, to pronounce a doctrinal sen- tation. For if the decree of a private council, or of tence, when he becomes of opinion that this is a the sovereign pontiff, or even that of a private bishop is found to be received and generally approved its infancy. Arius began to spread the venom of of by the bishops dispersed throughout catholicity, his doctrine in Alexandria, and had already gained and by the pope at the head of all, they then be-The come the decrees of the universal Church; their beholy patriarch "wishing to reclaim him by sweet-ling generally received attaches to them the scal of ness rather than compel him by authority, selected jinfallibility and ranks them thenceforward among

There occur, in fine, less frequent but graver and more solemn occasions, on which the Church explains and proclaims its doctring in the most splendid manner. For example, a pernicious doctrine, after having infested the country where it sprung up, reaches the neighbouring nations, is propagating through more distant countries, and threatens to extend its ravages sull further: a general plague requires a co-extensive remedy: from all parts of the world, at the request or with the consent of the sovereigns, the bishops are convoked by the head of the church: they anathematize the innovators and their opinions, both to fix in the faith those who have hitherto professed it, and to bring back those who have strayed from it: they proglaim to the world what Jesus Christ has revealed. I do not enter with you into the questions that are discussed among divines, on the conditions requiste to constitute these councils, called general in spite of the weak minority of the bishops who compose them compared with those who do not assist at them. What is incontestable and acknowledged is, that the acceptation of the published decrees gives to these councils the splendid proof of their being occumenical, and thus puts out of doubt and in full evidence the infallibility of their doctrine.

I could justify the principles I have just laid. down, by the testimony of a multitude of writers ; of these I shall cite but one, who was the light of his own age, and will be the light of ages to come. "The last mark we can have that a council or assembly truly represents the Catholic church, is when the whole body of the episcopacy, and the whole society that makes profession of receiving instruction from it, approves and receives it : this is the last scal to the authority of this council, and of the infallibility of its decrees." "The council of Orange, of which mention is made in the Reply, was nothing less than general. It contained chapters whom the pope had sent. There hardly were twelve or thirteen bishops in this council. But bccause it was received without opposition, its decisions are no more rejected than those of the council of Nice; because every thing depends upon the should happen, which God forbid, and which we consent, or general agreement of the dispersed Church. Even the author of the Roply (Leibnitz er Molanus) admits this truth, that every thing de pends on the certainty of the consent. The number is nothing, says he, when the agreement is notorious. There were but few bishops of the west in the council of Nice; none in that of Constautinople; in those of Ephesus and Chalcedon, only the pope's legates; and so of others. But because all the world agreed, or have since agreed, their de-crees are the decrees of the world. If we choose to go still higher, Paul of Samosata was only condemned by a private council, held at Antioch; but in this that all its virtue consists and without this the! address would avail nothing,) this decree is unchangeable," ily, and perhaps it would be more easy for you to are convinced that a councilies really accumenical persuade me of it, than to get it adopted by a great number of your catholics. Formerly I travelled in dra. Thus we all agree in the cone principle, italy. I questioned some doctors of that country, and both are ultimately found to attach the seal of the and heard them reason quite otherwise upon this and both are ultimately found to attach the seal of point. They maintained that infallibility, which according to you belongs to the episcopal body, was the personal attribute of the vicar of Jesus Christ; and they were within a trifle of treating as heresy the contrary opinion of the Gallicans. Thus then you are involved in an intestine war upon a most important article. For it is not enough for you to believe that the Church has by your divine legislator been put in possession of so high a prerogative: you ought moreover to know in what part of the Church this possession resides; if it were in the general body of the bishops, as would result from your proofs, it is inconceivable that this general body does not know that this prerogative belongs to them. But you have yet to learn in what part of the Church to fix it, some placing it in the sovereign Pontiff, others in the occumenical council, by which the universal body of bishops is represented. First agree together among yourselves, if you please, before you require protestants to come into your opinion."

^{*&}quot;Nothing should be more venerable upon earth that the decision of a truly æcumenical council." -Leibnitz, letter to the Dutchess of Brunswick. July 2d, 1694.

1 am very well pleased, Sir, that you furnish me an opportunity of replying to this difficulty: your ministers have repeated it to us a hundred times: it is plausible, I do not deny it, I will give you satis-taction on this point, as briefly as possible. 1st., There is a point, which the catholics of all countries fall in with and which suffices to produce an acknowledgment from all parties of the supreme and infallible authority. In fact, those who place it in the chief bishop maintained also that it never can happen that the greater number of bishops should seperate from him. Therefore, where the majority of the bishops visibly appears, there, according to both barties, is infallibility to befound: according to 113 who attribute it to this majority; and according to them, who teach that the pope can never be separate many things contrary to the name of Jesus (Acts the body of Christ is wholly present in every seperfrom it in solemn decisions. On both sides therefore | xxvi, 9,)but did his sincere intentions transubstanit is granted that infallibility is inseparable from the great number of pastors. 2ndly, There is another principle on which we agree with the advocates of papal infallibility. They have no difficulty in acknowledging that the majority of the bishops is infallible when united to the successor of St. Peter and we have still less in acknowledging him infallible when united to the majority of the bishops. Thus on both sides the strength consists in the union in heaven above or on the carth beneath, Ex. xx, diction. If your Church had said that, "the bread of the head with the members: thus on both sides 5. Have not the elements (whether they be the there is always infallibility where the great number of the pastors is united to him who is at their head. And in point of fact, they are certainly united among themselves: in point of fact, they must necessarily be so, they must of necessity agree upon the same doctrine, otherwise they would cease to regard themselves as forming one and the same body, one and the same church, But if ever it Most High God 3

Gallicans think impossible, if it ever should happen, that the great number should separate from the head, it would then be necessary that one of the two parties should adopt the sentiments of the other to preserve the Church from schism, the greatest of all evils.

3dly, When we examine more narrowly this dispute, so much agitated in the schools. it uppears that it should be banished among sepeculative and idle questions, and that in the main both parties meet in the same opinion. In fact, the warmest and mostskilful defenders of the pontifical prerogative teach that a sentence proceeding from the chair of Peter does not become a decree of faith but by the acceptation of the Church spread through because its decree was addressed to all the bishops by the acceptation of the Church spread through the world, and was received by them (for it is independent passed erchathedra as we all do upon the judgements passed exchathedra, as we all do upon the judgments passed by general councils, the infallibility of which is recognized by every catholic, and say with us It is by the acceptation, that we and it is by acceptation equally that we know with certainty that the people has pronounced ex cathe-dra. Thus we all agree in the cone principle,

To be Continued.

To the Editor of the Catholic.

REV. SIR :

I have copied the above from the first number of your paper. I have selected the doctrine of transubstantiation, because it lies at the very foundution of our differences, and because correct notiors of it are of great importance in pratice as in theory- I conside, the above the best written article in your paper, on the momentous doctrine, both as to matter and manner. It is a doctrine in which you and I, as well as each of our readers, have a vast interest at stake. I hope we may all examine it with a candor and diligence commensurate to its importance.

You admit that Catholics worship the consecrated elements, with the intention of worshipping the true God; and the intention of the worshipper you consider as sufficient, whether the elements are transubstantiated or not. I answer-do not the heathens sincerly believe their idols are the supreme objects of adoration, and possessed of Divine attributes? But does their worshipping the creature, when they intend to worship the Creator, exonerate them from the sin and guilt of idolatry? St. Paul verily thought it was God's service to do tiate his cruel slaughter of the christians into God,s service? No more can any one worship corporeal us under cach form," All that he is ; that is Percloments, without being guilty of idolatry, unless they are transubstantiated ; nor even then, for God || remains entire under each part of the form divihas said; thou shall not worship nor bow down to ded."" any thing in the likeness or appearance of what is thing on the earth? You admit it, How then can You speak of what God can do. I admit and rejoice to believe that God can do any thing that does not imply a contradiction. "God cannot deny Hin self." 2 Tim. ii. 13. But what God (can do, and what he does, are two different things. It is he latter about which we are concerned.

To exculpate this doctrine of your church from the charge of absurdity, you appeal to mystery, and particularly to that of the Trinity.

The Trinity of the Godhead is mysterious, be cause it is above our reason ; but is what we see, smell, taste, and feel above our reason ? Yet your doctrine requires us to believe that we see, smell, taste, and fell the flesh and blood of Chist, while your champion, Prince Gallitzin, says, " I confess that the senses of my body discover nothing in the sacrament but bread and wine." See Catholic b. 229, col. 1. As a sincere Trinitarian, 1 believe there is a God, who has one Essence but neverthe less has three Persons. If it were asserted that God is three in the same sense that He is one, it would be a contradiction : for a proposition cannot be true and false at the same time, and in the same sense. But this is not my thesis. 1 believe that God is one in the sense to which we give the term, essence, when applied to the Self Existent Being ; I believe that he is three in the sense to which we give the name ofpersons. But of the nature of this essence or per sonality, I profess to have no distinct idea, This is above reason, but does not coutradict it; it is requi site to have a distinct idea of what I call essence &. persons. As human intelligence, in man's presenstate of existence, is incapable offorming any dis tinct idea of either the one or the other, it is in: possible that it should appear absurd ; for an absur dity is an evident opposition between two known ideas. For instance, I have an idea of bread and of flesh. I see an essential difference between the two consequently, there appears an evident absurdity in the proposition, that both are the same. or that bread is flesh, or (what amounts to the same) that bread becomes flesh, and yet retains the original and specific properties of bread. Let us apply the above reasoning to the doctrine of transubstantiation, as held by your Church.

In the third canon of the third session of Trent it is said—"If any one deny, that in the venerable sacrament of the cucharist the body of Christ is really present in both kinds, and in such sort that ate part of the Host, let him be anathematized." Again, your Church asserts, that Jesus Christ gives fect God, and Perfect Man ; and that Jesus Christ

This appears to me to be a most manifest contrais destroyed, that the body of Christ intervenes Ly real body and blood of Christ or not) the likeness of an effect of the Divine Omnipotence," she might bread and wine ! Are not bread and wine some- possibly have concealed the absurdity of this doctrine behind the curtain of mystery. But to assert ided. Let it then boremembered, the conversation irical representations. Hence we are said to see that the substance of the bread is transubstantiated into "perfect God and perfect Man," while it subsists in all its original modifications, is evidently, as I conceive, an absurdity, and not a mystery.

[&]quot;" Catechism for the use of all the Churches in any one bow down to these elements, without vio-the French Empire," pub. 1606, by the authority inting a positive and unrepealed command of the of Napolean Buonaparte, with the bull of the Pope and the mandamus of the Abp. of Paris.

Had your Church said, that " the body of Christ || endeavour to show. passes in an instant from heaven to earth," she escape under the plea of mystery. But to affirm, that the body of Christ, (while it is wholly inheaven their estate, our Lord took occasion to warn his restitution of all things," Acts in. 21.) is "wholly" on earth; is it a mystery ? Is it not as manifest a whole ??

If your Church had even said that," some parts of the body of Christ are detached, and are mixed with the elements in the cucharist," it might perhans have been possible for hereven then to avert the charge of contradiction, by escaping under the cloak of mystery and the contracted limits of frail reason. But to declare that the body of Christ is only one in number, and that it is, "wholly present | Jews and the attending multitude relative to his in every seperate part of the Host," which are without number, in all Catholic countries, can surely be no mystery, it must be an egregions absurdity, and if believed, evidence can no longer be the ljust mentioned. character, of truth. How, dear Sir, is it possible to reconcile the contradidtory (not mysterious) vicas, that a body having but limited circumference, is at the same time in heaven at the same time on earth at the same time in a thousand places on the earth, yea wholly present in every separate part . ! an innumerable Hosts? It appears to me to be is uppessible to believe this, as it would be to beheve that God is three in the same sense that He is one.

If you reject the testimony of the senses by which we judge of the eucharist, will you please to inform us how we are to prove the resurrection of Jesus Christ ?

The institution of the Lord's Supper I purpose to examine in another article. I will confine my subsequent remarks this week to your exposition of the sixth Chapter of St. John.

You affirm that our "Saviour meant all he said the bread that perishelh. This is plain and unequi-. Jeal. If " our Saviour meant what he said in the strictest literal sense," it is positively unlawful for us to seek bread.

Again our Savoiur says, if any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever. Did not the Apostles vine, is nourished by its juice, and lives by its life ; fervent apostle nearly repeats our Saviour's words : of your Church)caten of it? Are they not dead alterpretation.

whose discources or sayings, or actions are record Clarke.) The Scriptures abound in such metapho- lying God, was what St. Peter understood by fating cation of it to that institution, I think, is a misinter-

In the next place, it was customary with our dispute of the two brothers about the division of drawing water at Jacob's well, to explain to the our blessed Redeemer, to instruct the inquiring other.

doctrines and the means of salvation through his, death. This he does under the idea of bread a figure obviously suggested by the circumstances If ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he

the terms " I am the true bread which came down, || verse-"Christ's" mentioning his ascension, by from, heaven,-my flesh is meat indeed, and my this instance of his power and divinity would con . blood is drink indeed-except ye; cat the flesh of firm what he had before asserted ; and at the the Son of Man and drink his blood, ye shall not same time correct their gross apprchension of eating. have life in you-he that eateth my flesh and drin- this flesh and drinking his blood in a vulgar and cardeth my blood shall live for ever," Sc.? Your inal manner, by letting them know he should take understanding of their meaning is best expressed this whole body with him to Heaven; and consequenin your own words, as given above. On the contrary, I contend, that the meaning of the whole evin mangled, and consumed upon earth." As if this dently is that by cating the flesh of Christ, we are were not sufficient to correct their mistake. our to understand the same idea that is implied in 'ea- || Saviour adds; verse 63, " it is the Spirit that quickting bread, namely, to derive support from it. The geneth;" see Rom. viii. 11. 2 Cor. iii. 6th. Such argument of our Lord, then, according to my views only as eat and drink what I have mentioned in a may be thus expressed :- The manna which your spiritual sense have the promise of eternal life. fathers did cat in the wilderness could only sustain For the flesh profiteth nothing, if you could corpoa mortal life. That is the true bread which preserves to eternal life, and qualifies every one that in the strictest literal sense." Let us try this rule eats it for everlasting happiness. I am the bread the mouth of a man connot defile him Mark vii. 20 at interpretation. Our Saviour says' seck not the of my doctrine, which nourishes and purifies the so neither can it save him ; therefore " the words believing soul and fits it for happiness, but also that I speak unto you are spirit, and are life," v. 63 because I shall give my life for the life of the world. they are spirit, in their meaning and influence ; and Our Lord calls himself the true bread in the same spiritual and eternal life, in their effects .- St. xy; and as the branch partakes of the nature of the lit were wanting) to our Lord's meaning. This at of it ! Have not your Popes, and Priests, and so must ye abide in me, he partakers of my nature, thou hast the words of eternal life, and we believe their flocks in past ages (according to the doctrine "(eat my flesh and drink my blood) live by faith in fland are sure that thou art Christ the Son of the lime, bringing forth much fruit, and be made pure ving God. Is here any thing about oral mandus cady ?- These examples are sufficient to show the through my holiness. "Thus spiritual happiness on leation, as there undoubtedly well have been, had insuperable difficulties which attend your rule of in- learth and even in heaven, is expressed by cating St. Peter understood our Saviour to have taught and drinking instances of which may be seen, Matt. the doctrino of transubstantiation ? All the tran-I think you will admit that in order to ascertain viii, 11, xxvi, 29 : Luke xiv, 15, xxii, 30 ; Rev. ii, substantiation that St Peter perceived in our Lord's the meaning of any part of the sacred, as well as 17. Those who were made partakers of the boly discourse is unquestionably expressed in his answer other writings, it is important to mark the time, Spirit, are said by St. Paul, Ist Cor. xii, 13, to be to the Saviour ; and that was faith in Christ: Hence occasion character, and customs of the persons, made to drink unto(or of one Spirit." (Dr. A. we infer that believing in Christ the Son of the li related in this chapter took place more than a year hose truths which we clearly understand; to feel before the Lord's supper was instituted. An appli- that which excites and moves our affections; to hear the instructions to which we pay an obedient pretation of the whole chapter, as I shall presently "regard ; and to faste the grace which we dolightfully experience.

That our Lord in this chapter does not speak in might perhaps shelter herself from the reproach of Lord to improve passing events to illustrate his doc preference to the Lord's supper is evident. I. Beibsurdity, (though condemned by Scripture) and "ctrines and enforce his precepts. Thus from the cause the Lord's supper was not instituted till more than a year after.

2. It is declared above " except ye cal the flesh and must remain there " until the times of the "disciples against covelousness ; the young man's of the Son of Man and drink his blood, ye shall going away sorrowful, because a discipleship to have no life in you." If this refers to the Sacra-Christ required a sacrifice of his possessions, lead ||ment, the thicf upon the cross, and all those who contradiction, as that a part is greater than the jour Saviour to enlarge upon the danger of riches : died previous to the institution of the sacrament. and thus he improved the opportunity afforded by must have perished everlastingly.

> 3. St. Paul speaking of some, who partake of the woman of Samaria the effects and blessings of his sacroment, says that they"drink judgment to themgospel, under the figure of water. Hence, in the selves," 1. Cor. xi. 30. Our Saviour says," he that sixth of St. John, the circumstances of the multi-leateth my flesh and drinketh my blood, shall live tude following Jesus for the sake of getting bread "forever," v. 54th ; therefore he cannot mean the Safrom heaven to eat in the desert, are improved by crament-else he and St. Paul contradict cach

> 4. In reply the secret murmuring of his discipleswho misundertood our Lords meaning, taking his word literally, he says, "does this scandalize you? was before ? An author of your own Church in his The question now at issue is, what is meant by fannotations on the New Testament, remarks on this rally eatmy flesh and drink my blood, it would profit you nothing ; for as that which goeth into sense in which he calls himself the true vine, chap. Peter's confession. v. 69, gives us a farther cluc(if what our Savionr intended in his discourse-I will ogether.

The people said, v. 34, "Lord evermore give us this bread." What does our Lord tell them it is neessary to partake of this bread? to go to the Priest and get a wafer? "Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of Ufe: he that cometh unto me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." Is it not as plain as day, that coming to Christ would satisfy their hunger and believing on him would quench their thirst? What can satisfy the cravings of hunger and the rage of thirst, but cating and drinking? Is it not manifest, then. that coming to Christ and believing on him are synonymous with cating his flesh and drinking his blood? for the same promise is alike annexed to both. Therefore they either mean the same thing, or they are contradictory, or there are two ways of salvation, which is contradicted by the whole tenor of revelation.

Again; compare verse 49 with verse 51, and the above conclusion will be pressed upon the imparnal judgment with a power that can neither bo a verted nor resisted.

Once more. "He that believelh on me halh ever lasting life," verse 47.

"He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath everlasting life," verse 54. Now believing in Christ in one verse is the declared condition of man's salvation; and eating the flesh and drinking the blood of Christ, is the declared condition of These two man's salvation in the other verse. solemn asservations of our Lord either mean one and the same thing, under different forms of speech; or they contradict each other; or there are two ways of salvation. Either of the last alternatives overthrows the whole fabric of revealed truth; the former alternative explodes the doctrine of transubstantiation from this. Chapter."

I will conclude with one single remark. The Protestant, as you seem to suppose, does not, then, degrade all the blessings promised in this chapter into a little bread and wine; nor into any corporeal and corruptible elements; but exalts them to their primitive and native dignity and excellence, to the immortal part; to a divine energy forgining sin and cleansing from all unrighteousness; to a spiritual union with the Eternal Spirit, a fellowship with the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit; a dwelling in God and God in us; his love being "shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost given unto us." I have the honour to be,

REV. SIR.

Your obedient and humble Servant, EDITOR OF THE GUARDIAN.

P.S. The above article has been written in haste, and has been put to press without being re-written, or scarcely corrected, the first part having been in type before the last was written. If any unguardd or offensive expressions have escaped me, I beg to say they have not been intended.

REPLY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CHRISTIAN GUARDIAN Sir,

the flesh and drinking the blood of Christ, and was flic's worship in the sacrament of the Altar,) and same time in every place; and yet but one in all improper one; like that of the heathen? Like Ju- places. But is not Christ's body, or humanity a now demonstrate it by comparing our Lord's words piter, Juno, Mars, Mercury, Venus, Vulcan, Plu-spiritual body, or humanity? Or who will prove to, and every other fulse and abominable divinity? to me that God cannot give to that body, or hu-The intention of the Heathens was to worship such: manity, the qualities of a spirit: not indeed omnitheir worship therefore was essentially idolatrous: that of the Catholic is to worship the one, true and living God, under the forms which he said he took; and which none can say, he could not take; whom all acknowledge to have taken the form of man; even that of a helpless babe in the manger at Bethlehem; and of a suffering criminal on the cross; and why not also, in order to try our reliance on his Paul; who says that the same Jesus, who had been word, of bread and wine in the Eucharistic sacrament; as well as the Holy Ghost could take the visible form of a dove, or a fiery tongue? Tho' St. then on the carth, while on the road to Damascus; Paul's intention to serve God in persecuting his Church, did not alt ogether excuse him; for had he considered well the prophecies, & the whole tendency of the Jewish institute, he would have recognized in Jesus Christ the long promised Messiah: yet his upright intention, as he himself declares, was so far from displeasing God, that it merited his conversion. The Catholic worships not the corporeal elements; but in the firm belief, relying on the words and omnipotence of Jesus Christ, that they are transubstantiated. With regard to the bowing down to any thing in the likeness or appearance of what is in Heaven above, or earth beneath; Exod. 20, 5. This regards not the Catholic, who bows but to the Saviour. But this text may be justly cited against the Protestant comthe bare elements of bread and wine.

seems. - Thus, what appeared to Josue a man in that would feed and preseve their better half the armour, was not a man in armour; but a protecting soul unto life everlasting. angel; whom Josue, bowing down worshipped, though knowing him to be but a creature; and surely the likeness of something in the heavens above: nor did he withal reject Josue's worship; but enforced it by commanding him to loose the his promised living bread, could ever supersede the shoes from off his feet, for that the place whercon he stood was holy ground. Jos. 5, 13. &c.

Your notion of the trinity is strictly Catholic; and I do not see how it applies against the doctrine of transubstantiation. Much more aptly could it less death; and live and reign with God cternalbe turned against, than for your negative reasoning. || Iy. My sight, touch, taste and smell may be deceived; but when God speaks my hearing cannot: and faith says saint Paul, comes by the hearing. Rom. 10, 17, Matt. 18, 17, Luke 10, 16. The apostles heard and taught; and the whole church has believed and believes that Christ took bread, and blessed it, and broke it, and gave it to his apostles, saying. take and eat, this is my body. Can you show me that he, who said this, could not verify his declara. || of time. "But for the Eucharistic wonder; the most tion? Or can you point out to me the limits of his supendous and inconceivable of all; he prepares acknowledged omnipotence?

deed has already been answered, in our last num-leso much so, that the only evangelist, who in his ber, which was in print when your letter come to gospel records them, thinks it needless to repeat hand; by the arowed possibility of a spirit's being them, in describing otherwise so minutely the Sain more places than one at the same .ime. God, viour's last interview with his apostles. Is Jesus Christ, (the sole object of the Catho- you will own, who is a pure spirit, is present at the presence, which is the attribute of God alone; but of multipresence, if I may use the expression, to that which is but finite; within the bounds of finitude?

To prove that the same Jesus of Nazareth, who ascended into heaven; may, at the same time, be here on earth; I have only to cite the words of Saint seen by the other apostles, had last of all been seen also by himself. 1 Cor. 15, 8. Was not Saint Paul when the Saviour answered his earnest query: who art thou Lord? and said to him: I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest? Now Jesus of Nazareth, was not simply God, but the very man-God reared in Nazareth.

No Catholic, properly speaking, rejects the testimony of the senses: for these truly testify that there is in the sacrament the appearance of bread and wine. And so there is .- But the senses cannot testify to the real essence of things, as chemysts even will tell you. But the unerring word of God can inform us of what is concealed under the external appearances; and thus warn us not to judge by the merc apecarance_of things.

Who does not understand that our Saviour by saying: seek not the bread that perishelh, monut municant, who kneels to receive what he considers only that we should not make the sustenance of the body the sole, or main object of our solici-The likeness of a thing is not always the thing it || tude? Whereas he promised to give them a bread

> Your next observation seems a mere maks weight argument, to confound the ignorant: for you never could suppose that, the Saviour's promise of everlasting life annexed to the cating worthily of doom denounced against all of temporary death. So that though apostles, popes, priests and people, who have worthily eat of this divine food, are temporarily dead; yet they shall escape the second end-

The Saviour always prenared beforehand the minds of his disciples for the great events that were to take place; and the supernatural wonders, which he intended to perform; as his conversations with them shew concerning his passion, crucifizion death, burial, resurrection, ascension; the propagation of his faith; the establishment of his church all over the world; and her preservation to the end their minds in the 6th ch. of St. John's Cospel, in Your next objection is easily answered; and in- || terms the most explicit, solemn and unequivocal spoken figuratively. But on this subject it is evi-posed such a mystery to their belief, ascending up dent, from a thousand circumstances already point- to heaven; where, as God, he had been from all ed out in the course of our numbers, that he pro-deternity before. Why such a reminiscence, or posed to our belief no figure; but a stupendous reality; the victim itself so long prefigured: the true in his words; if he had been inculcating nothing paschal lamb; on which the faithful fed: the real heavenly manna, for better than that eaten by the give them a bit of bread, as a figure of his body; Jews in the wilderness; the unbloody sacrifice of the new law, offered up, according to the prophet Malachy, 1, 11. in every place among the Gentiles: by him, who is a priest for ever, according to the urdur of Melchisadech; who offered up bread and, wine.

You seem to infer that because our Saviour often

.

When our Saviour said: I am the vine, S.c. it was impossible for any one present to take his words in any other sense, than a figurative one. But when he said: this is my body, which is given for you: this is my blood of the New Testament, (not of the old: not of the paschal lamb, and other figurative victims; but of the real lamb of God; the final propitiatory victim, so many ways prefigured: the fulfilment in fine of all the figures; far excelling them alltogether;) the very blood then about to be shed for the remission of sins. Who, not deeply prejudiced could see in all this nothing but a mean figure proposed? Nor is it, Sir, a trifling consideration that he, who came only to seek and to save the sheep which were lost: and who, . 5 God, looking from eternity to eternity, foresaw the many millions of his creatures, who in all ages would take his words in their literal meaning; (for those christians, who take them in the figurative fled promise. sense, are but a modern handful:) should not have Apressed himself in the very opposite terms, in which he did, and which protestants use in declaring their faith concerning this sacrament. Then at once would all doubts upon the subject have been removed. and the disciples, who left him, would have hid no cause whatever, to murmur at his docrine, which, as propounded, had so shocked and offended them.

The body of Christ is whole, immortal and impressible, wherever it is: and cannot, as your author expresses it, be divided, mangled, or concemed. This was the carnal idea of the caphernaite disciples; which the Saviour corrects by telling them that the flesh profiteth nothing: He did not thereby mean Lis own flesh, the eating of which he had just said, would give us life everlasting: but such a dead flesh, as they imagined it would be, like that of their slaughtered victims. The words, said he, that I speak to you, are spirit and life. That is, what I have promised to give you, has eririt and life in it: or rather is spirit and life. For he had said I am the living bread, which came down from Heaven. If any man cat of this bread, he shall live for ever and the bread, which I will give, is my flesh for the life of the world. And 10 obviate all objections to this, his stupendous doctrine, he reminds them that it is written in the propluts, they shall all be taught of God, (not then of and omnipotence?) And he asked them what their refuse you not, however, a corner in our skiff, death of Christ upon the cross, in which sign we spoke figuratively; he must therefore have always lideas would then be, did they see him, who pro- ((since you grant us one in yours) to any thing but why such a question put to those who believed not more difficult to be conceived than that he would and a sip of wine, as a figure of his blood? Why did he suffer them to leave him under such a wrong impression? Why ask his apostles, if they also would leave him, rather than believe him capable of giving them his flesh indeed to cat: and his blood indeed to drink.

> If after these considerations you are still satisfied with the clearness and correctness of your demonstration: I must say that in your logic appears to me more of wilfullness than wisdom. And the very text you cite as unavoidably and irresistibly proving your figurative eating and drinking; is the very text that (on attending well to the Saviour's declarations on the subject) unavoidably and irresistibly upsets your whole conjecture for believing in Christ is surely believing that he never would say what he did not mean; nor promise what he could not give. Believing in Christ in the instance here alluded to, is surely to recive his doctrine: not to contradict and oppose it, as his apostatizing disciples did: but with Saint Peter and the rest of his apostles to take his words exactly as he had spoken them; not doubting but he-the omnipotent could verity his so clearly and emphatically repeat-

It would seem from your concluding remarkthat you dispense altogether with your corruptible elements of bread and wine: and that you hold your sacrament to consist wholly in the mere mental act of believing. This indeed, among all our religious novelties, is still something new: and what has this particular advantage in it, that it spares both cost and trouble to all those adopting it. For, if bare belief is all your sacrament; each can take it by himself; and where and when and as often as he chooses. Without bit or sip, or outward form, he can at all times and in every place furnish forth his mental feast; and feast; and feed upon the spiritual elements of belief in his ever ready inward communion. This indeed is reforming down the Saviour's institute with a vangeance.

I must now be free to observe that you take a little too much vantage ground in this polemical skirmish; considering the length of your communication, and the number, but especially the irrelevancy, of your objections to be answered. If to .onfound the Catholic, were the purpose, and not to confute it, a better method of doing so could not be adopted, than that of cramming its pages with broken and desultory quirks and queries, a thousand times refuted, and as often proposed: and all this to the exclusion of more important matter and reguman; whose glow-worm reason cannot light us in- toss our cargo overboard, to make way for what we what his lawful pastor does, he himself does. to the mysterious depths of God's infinite wisdom deem not quite such precious merchandizo. Wo uscless and encumbering lumber.

I have the honor to be. Sir.

Your most obedient and humble servant, EDITOR OF THE CATHOLIC.

ORIGINAL.

CEREMONIES USED BY THE CATHOLIC CHURCH IN BAPTISM.

FIRST, we must observe that as we have contracted the guilt of original sin by the distrust, or disbelief, and the consequent transgression of our natural first parents : so we must, ere freed from that guilt, make amends for their disbelief, by the open protession of our faith; and, if not able to do so by ourselves; by the mouths at least of our spiritual parents, who answer for us; our God-fathers and God-mothers: for having so contracted original sin without our knowledge, God in his mercy allows us to be thus freed from it without our knowledge. It is to the church too, that we are to apply for this inestimable benefit of regeneration to God in baptism. On this account does the priest begin by asking : what doest tho 1 ask of the church of God? For the sacraments of Christ's church are forced upon none. All who receive them must duly apply for them. The auswer is faith. What does faith bring thee to, continues the priest? Ans. Life everlising ; for he who does not believe, cave Christ, shall be condemned. The priest then explains what that faith must be, which brings to us life everlasting. It must be, according to Saint James, a lively faith, working by charity : he therefore adds : If then thou desirest to enter into life, keep the commandments. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, & with all thy mind : & thy neighbor as thyself. Then, as the Saviour did, when imparting the holy ghost to his apostles, he breathes into the face of the Neophyte three times, saying, go out of him (or her) thou unclean spirit : and give place to the holy ghost, the paraclele.

When God created man, he breathed into his face the breath of life.-Gen. ii. 7 .- This the creator did himself at first. But man, having by sin come under the dominion of death, and of satan; he can be regenerated, and thus delivered from the devil's thrall only by the one, who can make the sufficient atonement for his sin to divine justice. But man himself, the offender, could not make this atonement. Then God himself the son becomes that guiltless man, who in that nature which had offended atones superabundantly for man's offence. It is he then to breathe again 'into the face of his regenerated creature the brepth of life; and to free him from the dominion of death and of satan ; that which he does by his deputy and representative, the priest. For to his priest he said : all power is given to me in heaven and on earth : go ye therefore, &c. And : lar discussion. We should thus have straight to as the father has sent me, so I send you. Theretoro

Then to shew that all this is effected; by the

our hearts its remembrance; the priest signs the of the cross, saying : Receive the sign of the cross, on thy forehead, and in thy heart. Take to thee the faith of the heavenly precepts ; and be such in thy morals, as to be able now tobe the temple of God.

The prayers, which are addressed only to God, are in latin; and all for the same sanctitying purpose. Indeed, to prevent in the administration of the sacrament the possibility of altering the sense in translation, the whole liturgy of the Catholic be gone, and give up all his claim to the human church, as it is directed to God alone, is every where preserved unchangeably the same in the Catholic, or universal and unchangeable language, the latin. However, for the satisfuction of those who understand not that language, we shall give these prayers translated into English.

After the ceremony just mentioned, the priest says: Let us pray; for in all her solemn prayers 'he church supposes her children to join in suppliation to their common heavenly father.

"We beseech thee, O Lord, graciously to hear vir prayers; and by thy continual protection guard this, thy elect, (N.) signed with the sign of the gross of our Lord: that observing the rudiments (that is, the beginnings,) of the greatness of thy g'ory, by keeping thy commandments; he (or she) may deserve to attain to the glory of regeneration; "hrough Christ our Lord." Answer, amen.

Then laying his hand on the head of the Neophyte, he says :

Let us pray .- Almighty and eternal God, father of our Lord Jesus Christ, vouchsafe to behold this thy servant (N.) whom thou wast pleased to all to the rudiments of faith; take from him(or her) al blindness of heart. Break all the bands of satan ...herewith he(or she) was tied: open to him(or her) the gate of thy mercy: that being endowed with he sign of thy wisdom, he (or she) may be free from he guilt of all concupisences and, follow the , weet odour of thy precepts, may joyfully serve thee n thy church; and daily increase in perfection; hrough Christ our Lord."-Amen.

He then puts some particles of blessed salt into 'he mouth of the Neophyte, with these words:

"(N.) receive the salt of wisdom, May it be to thee a propitiation unto life everlasting." Amen. The salt of wisdom, is the virtue of christian prudence, which preserves us, and others by our example, from the corruption of sin. For it is the property of salt to preserve substances from corruption. In this sense did our Saviour say to his apustles and disciples : ye are the salt of the carth. Without that salt, we cannot be preserved uncorrupted unto life everlasting ; much less can we so, by our example, preserve others.

Then he adds : "peace be with thee!" Answer, 'and with thy spirit!" For the peace of the Saviour is the portion of those who have this salt.

The prayer that follows is:

"O God the author of all truth ! we humbly be-clory, in Christ crucified; and to cherish in do not permit him (or her) to hunger any longer; the Canticle of Canticles; shewing the powerful so as not to be replenished with heavenly food; enticements of grace: draw me, and I will run Neophyte on the forchead and breast with the sign to the end that he (or she) may always be fervent after the odour of thine ointments. "But thou be in spirit; joyful in hope; always obedient to thy gone, O devil; for the judgment of God is at name! Bring him, (or her) O Lord, we beseech hand." thee, to the laver of regeneration; that, with thy faithful, he (or she) may deserve the eternal re-fiselt, or by the moliths of his sponsor: (N.) "Dost wards, which thou hast promised : through Christ thou renounce satan? Ans. I renounce him." our Lord. Amen."

> The priest then commands, in the name of the living God, father, son and holy ghost, the devil to creature, about to be baptized ; and who, till baptized, is justly under his dominion, as an unregenerated child of the sintul Adam; but whom our God and Lord Jesus Christ has designed to call to his holy grace, benediction and the baptismal font. "And this sign, says he, of the holy cross, (signing it on the Neophyte's forchead) dare thou not to violate, O wicked spirit, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Then, laying his hand on the head of the Neophyte, the priest prays thus :

"O Lord, most holy Father Almighty, cternal God; the author of light and truth: I beseech thy eternal and most just piety in behalf of this thy servant, (N.) that thou would'st vouchsafe to enlighten him (or her) with the light of thy understand ing. Cleanse and sanctify him, (or her) give him (her) true knowledge; that, being made worthy of thy baptism, he (or she) may persevere in firm hope, righteous council, and holy doctrine, through Christ our Lord .- Amen."

The priest then lays upon the one to be baptized the extremity of his stole: (the distinctive ornament of the priestly office) and with it introduces him (or he linto the church, saying: "enter into the church of God; that thou mayest have part with Christ unto life everlasting." This is the first connection that takes place between the church of Christ, represented by her minister, (the redeemers legitimate deputy;) and the carnal child of Adam: on thus entering the church, the Neophyte repeats, or the god-father and god-mother in his hame, repeat first the apostle's creed; for that is the sum of the faith of the church, into which the one to be baptized, is admitted a member : then the Lord's prayer, to shew, that on our becoming a christian, we can then, and not till then, call God our Father, who art in heaven ; or address him as his children.

The priest then adjures the unclean spirit in the name of God the Father Almighty; in the name of Jesus Christ, his Son, our Lord and judge; and in the virtue of the holy ghost, to depart from (N.) the creature of God, which our Lord has designed to call to become the temple of the living God; that the Holy Ghost may dwell in it.-Amen. Neophyte with his spittle; (a ceremony partly used by Christ himself, when he healed the deaf and dumb; which every one is, in the spiritual and dumb; which every one is, in the spiritual Next a lighted candle is given him, or those, sense, till baptized) repeating the very word of who represent him, with these words: "receive are heneforth as christians, and like Saint Paul. to || servant (N.) and tasting this salt, the first food : || lity. This is an emblematical expression used in

Then the Neophyte is asked, and answers him-

"And all his works? Ans. I renounce them."

"And all his pomps? Ans. I renounce them."

This indicates that the acceptance of the Redeemer's covenant of mercy ; and the renounciation of our vassalage to Satan, under which we had fallen by our sinful and voluntary obedience to him, rather than to God, our creator and rightful Lord; must be equally free and voluntary, when we come to the use of reason, and capable of judging for ourselves; and on this condition is the saving grace imparted to us; signified, as we have abundantly shown, by the blessed oil, with which the priest then anoints the Neophyte on the breast and between the shoulders; soying: "I anoint thee with the oil of salvation in Christ Jesus our Lord, that thou mayest have eternal life."

On the breast, to signify that the divine grace may soften and make pliant our heart and will to the will of God; and on the shoulders, that he may strengthen us to bear manfully on our neck and shoulders the yoke and cross of Christ; and follow him through passing tribulation to eternal bliss.

After this the Neophyte is particularly asked thus, if he believes the chief articles of the christian faith: "Dost thou believe in God, the Father Almighty, creator of heaven and earth? Ans. I believe." "Dost thou believe in Jesus Christ, his only son, our Lord; who was born and suffered tor us? Ans. I believe. "Dost thou believe in the holy ghost; the holy Catholic church; the communion of saints; the forgiveness of sins: the resurrection of the body, and life everlasting? Ans. I believe." "(N.) wilt thou be baptized ? Ans. I will." For baptism, like all the other benefits of Christ's dispensation, must be freely sought for; not forced upon any.

Then is he baptized in the manner already described.

The preparatory ceremonies just detailed, shew what he is to become by baptism ; the subsequent ones what by it he is now become : a royal heir of God, the king of kings; and therefore, during the recital of the following prayer, is he anointed on the head by the priest with the holy chrism; the same as that with which sovereigns are anointed ; and bishops consecrated. "The Almighty God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ ; who has regenera ted theeby water and the holy ghost; John iii. 5. and who has given thee the remission of all thy sins: may be anoint thee with the chrism of salva-uon in the same Jesus Christ, our Lord, unto life everlasting. Amen." "Pcace be with thee !---

A white linen robe, or covering is then put over He then touches the ears and postrils of the the newly baptized, as an emblem of his spoiless innocence; which he is desired to carry unstained before the tribunal of our Lord Jesus Christ, that he may have life everlasting. Amen.

egech thee, graciously vouchafe to behold this thy Christ: Er Era, be opened: in the odogr of sance this burning light; and keep thy baptism without reproof. Observe the commandments of God; that when our Lord shall come to his nuptrals, (MP. XNV. 10) thou mayest meet him, together with the saints in the heavenly court; and mayest I we life eternal, and live for ever and ever. Ans. Amen.²

The whole is concluded with these words : (N.) "go in peace: and may the Lord be with thee! Ans. Amen."

BIELICAL NOTICES AND EXPLANATIONS. Continued

THE FIRST BOOK OF ESDRAS.

This book takes its name from the writer; who was a holy Priestand Doctor of Law.-He is called in the Hebrew Ezra, D. B.

Chapter 1.- verso 1. In the first year of Cyrus. hing of the Persians, that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremias might be fulfilled; the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, King of the Persiuns, and he made proclamation throughout all his Kingdom, and in writing also, saying Sc. In the prophesy of Jeremias, Chap. 25. Versel2, and Chapter 29. Verse 10. the end of the seventy years captivity of the Jews in Babylon: and their hiberation after the final overthrow of its Monarch, which was effected by the victorious Cyrus are clearly foretold.-But in this prophesy of Isaias ch. or portion, nor justice, nor remembrance in the spi-25. v. 1. &c. the very name of Cyrus is given, ritual Jerusalem. four hundred years before he was born; the sight of which alone, if shown to that monarch is the sacred and unchangeable books of the Jews, was enough to have made him confess, as he did in his edict the labours of the apostles and their lawful succesto rebuild the Jewish Temple, that the Lord, the for of list and for the Lord and God of Heaven, who had given him universal dominion on all the King-tons of the Earth. Thus saithlike Lord to his an-mointed Cyrus, whose right hand I have taken Chapter 1.—Verse 15. Every one of the buildhold of to subdue nations before his fall. These are the words of Isains, who even pointed out the way in which he was to make himself Master of Babyton: by turning the River Euphrates out of its bed. and entering that city in spite of its doors and gates so securely shut against him. Whose right hand, says the Prophet, I have taken hold of to snbdue intions before his foll; and to turn the backs of Kings, and to open the doors before him; and the heir own liberty, for pelf, and worldly considera-zates shall not be shut, I will go before thee: and itions! will break the gates of brass; and will burst the bars I Iron; that thou mayst Know, that I am the Lord who call the by thy name, the God of Israel. For There is then, in spite of Luther's, Calvin's and the sake of thy servant Jacob; and Israel Elect I the Presdyterian doctrine against good works; the sake of thy servant Jacob; and Israel Elect I the Preselvician doctrine against good works; have even called thee by thy name; I have made a (the doctrine evidently of the devil,) some merit ikeness of thre, and then hast not known me. Now in good works as the catholic church teaches. Cyrus knew him not, for he was a Pagan: But Chapter 7-Verse 64. These sought their wr how must that PagauPrince have been struck on | ting in the record, and found it not: and they were leading in a book so long composed before his time his exploits and success; and even his very name? he giving of which depended on thefree will and ancy of his parents?

Chapter 3. Verse 2. And Joshue the son of Joshrdech rose up 5. It is still Joshue, or Jesus Chapter 3. Verse 2. that rises up &c. to build the Altar of the God of led at the court of the King of Persia, where he was Israel. It is only the Saviour. who, and those cup-bearer; or that, as some think, this name signiwhom he chooses for his associates who can set the Altar, that is the religion of God upon its basis. Verso 3.

Chapter 4 Verse 3. The refusal of Zerobabel, Joshwe, and the rest of the chief of the Fathers of Isra-Ale, and the rest of the chief of the Fathers of Isra-el, to allow the Samaratans to build with them a Ten-ble to the Lord the God of Israel; shews, that as Samt Paul says, the Failiful can have no part with the unbelievers;—The prople of God must dwell a-lone. Numbers 23.9. Deut. 33.28. Hence the ommon hatted borne towards them; and the joint them, to stir up, by misrepresentation, calumny and build with them a Ten-them to stir up, by misrepresentation, calumny and build with the second discussion of the christian abbath. Second the the christian subbath. Chapter 9.—verse. 1. The Children of Israel Care together with fasting and with Sackcloth, and Earth upon them. Sc. Why are Caladaes rudicu-tions made by those not allowed to build with them, to stir up, by misrepresentation, calumny and build with them a termoral nowers against them. Vituperation, the temporal powers against them. Doctrine and disci Chapter 8-Verse 23. And we fasted, and be-Sect.

sought our God; and it fell out prosperously unto us. Still the Catholic doctrine of fasting and prayer proved from scripture to have been always that of the church of God.

and a falling off from the true faith. D. B.

Chapter 10-Verse 6. He cat no bread: and drenk no water: for he mourned for the transgres . Having lived to the age of one hundred and two sion of them, that were come out of captivity. In how many places of scripture is the pentential foretells the destruction of Niniveh and the discipline of the Catholic that of fasting and absti-discipline of the Catholic that of fasting and abstinence shewn from scripture to have been always observed by the true believers.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAS, OR THE SECOND BOOK OF ESDRAS.

This book takes its name from the writer, who was cup bearer to Artaxerxes, surnamed Longi-manus, king of Persia, and was sont by him with a commission to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. It is also called the second book of Esdras: because it is a continuation of the history begun by Esdras; Esdras, of the state of the people of God after their return from captivity. D. B.

Chap. 1 Verse 4. Still fasting joined with prayer. Chapter 2-Verse 19, 20. Those who oppose the rebuilding of Jerusalem, represent the enemies of the church: who are strangers, and have no part Chapter 3. The building up of the gates and walls of Jerusalem, begun by the high priest and his brethren; and carried on by the rest; represents sors in the propagation of the faith, and establishpriest, Saint Peter, in the face of their rurrounding ers, in the sportual must be girded with the sharp sward of wisdom or knowledge and truth.

Verse 20. They will cooperate, and support each other in the work; and in repelling the adversary

Chapter 5-Verses 1, 2, 3, 4. How many, like the Jews, barter their portion in the city of God; sell even their sons and daughters, and give up even Verse 10. Remember me, O my God, for good according to all that I have done for this people!

cast out of the priesthood. So is every one cast out of the christian priesthood, (of which the Jewish was but a figure,) who cannot produce the record of their ordination.

Verse 65. Athersatha, that is, Nehemias, as appears from ch. 8. verse 9, either that he wasso calfies governor; and he was at that time governor of Judea. D. B. Chap. 8—Verse 16. And they made themselves tabernacles, every mun on the top of his house, Se. Their houses were, as they are in the East to this

Doctrine and discipline in every upstart reforming

THE BOOK OF TOBIAS.

This Book takes its name from the Holy Man Tobias, whose wonderful Virtues are herein recor ded. It contains most excellent Documents of Chapter 9-Verse 1, 2. This shows how sinful great piety, extraordinary patience, and perfect re-it is to informarry with those, whom the church signation to the will of God. His humble prayer forbids us, on account of the danger of perversion (was head; and the Angel Raphael was sent to and a folling off from the true frith D R relieve him. He is thankful and proises the Lord. calling on the children of Isreal to do the same. years, he exhorts his Son and Grandsons to piety : foretells the destruction of Ninivch and the rebuil-

This Book, though acknowledged by the Catholic Church, as canonical Scripture ; is disowned as such, by protestants; Indeed, how could they, who pretend to build their faith on nothing but Scripture, admit it as such, and yet deny what it so clearly displays; the intervention in Man's behalf of the Blessed Angels :- As there is nothing particularly figurative, or difficult to be understood in it, we pass it over without any further remark as well as those of Judith and Esther ; which, though inspired, and written for our instruction and Eidfication. are Chiefly historical, and easily understood by every one.

To be continued.

ON REASON

Extract from a M. S. poem. Not all those luminaries bright, that roll Wide scatter'd round our globe from pole to pole; The flaming sun by day; the moon by night, Fresh trimming at his ray her borrowed light; Win stars innumerous twinkling o'er the sky, Might c'er, with her compar's, in beauty vie. Theirs all is transient, and to space confin'd: Hers boundless flowing from th' eternal mind. And, were the whole of this material world Back reeling, where it spring to nothing hurl'd; With uniminish'd lustre still would shine Her radiance, streaming from its source divine: Would millions then, no further change that know. Than change of bliss; still feel her vital glow. As fresh delighting objects they pursue, And joyful prospects, op using on their view. Ev'n here, so from her centre far remov'd On man is reason's influence pow'ful proved: Extract from a M. S. poem,

Ev'n here, so from her centre far removid On man is reason's influence pow'rful proved: Though all her noon-tide blaze in twilight guise He through his prison's chicks but dim descrics. "Tis she calls forth; unfolds, and nurses kind The infant buds of knowledge in his mind; Thil genius, art aud science flourish gay, And bear their fruits, full ripen'd in her ray-

The Catholic

Will be published weekly at the Office of the Patrior and Farmer's Monitor, Kingston, Upper Canada and issued on Friday. Terms-$2 per annum. (exclusive of postage, which is four shillings a year payable in advance

All Communications to be addressed " to the Editors of the Catholic, Kingston," and Post Paid AGENTS.

Mr. Bergen, Merchant.
Mr. Macan. Do.	Nigeara
Mr. L. O'Brien.
Day Mn Crhwler	Peterboro
Der Mr. Crowy	Belville
Rev. Mr. Drennan	Tullington
MIT. MIACFAIL
Patriot Ollice
Rev J Macdonald
Mr. Hugh O'Beiroo,
Mr. J. A Murdock, P. M.
Alexander McMillan, Esa	Prescoit
Nr. Touch Merchant
Rev. Wm. Fraser
Mr. Cassady, Student, St. R	aphaels Glengary
Angus Mellonell, Eso, P. M	[. Alexandria Ditto
Col I P Leprobon Compt	of Customs Coteau dn Lac
Mr. Moriarty Schools	naster at the Recollets, Montreal
Hon Jamas Cathbart	Manorhoase, Berthicr
Mr. Ten Dumo	Lower Town Quebec.
Die 35 Openalie	New York
Lev. Mr. Camusky	And af St. Mamile Collog.
Rer. Dr. Furcel	resident of St. Mary's Colleg-[Emmet'sBurgh, Maryland.
	A

Mr. MichaelFitzgerald,..... Augusta, Georgia."