LOCAL OPTION GETS A SEVERE SETBACK

Results in 58 Municipalities Show 37 Defeats, Half by the Operation of the Three-fifths Clause—The Larger Places Go Strong Against Cutting Off the Bars.

ONLY CITY VOTING DEFEATS THE BYLAW

Local option met with a reverse in thirty-seven municipalities reported last night and carried in twenty-one. Particularly did the sentiment against the curtailment of "privileges" show itself in the larger places.

One of the features of the local option campaign was the fight in Brampton to regain license. The result was a three-fifths vote in favor of the license.

Dominion Alliance leaders to the number of a score gathered last night at the Confederation Life Building to hear the results of the voting on local option throughout the province.

FIVE CIVIC BYLAWS CARRY

Bloor Street Viaduct Defeated By 1500 GEARY'S MAJORITY IS 28,000

Harbor Commission Plan Receives Strong Endorsement

H. C. Hocken Heads Board of Control Poll and Replaces Thos. Foster and Two Aldermen Defeated.

G. R. Geary, re-elected with 25,000 plurality, the largest ever given a candidate for the office. Five money bylaws, involving over $2,000,000 expenditure, carried.

The municipal elections, while lacking the spice of a sharp contest for the mayor's chair, nevertheless attracted sufficient interest to draw to the polls a vote for the mayoralty of over 34,000—almost equalling that of the struggle of a year ago.

Vote on the Bylaws. All the money bylaws were carried by substantial majorities, except that for the Bloor-st. viaduct, which was defeated by 1545 votes.

How Slats Fared. The "Protestant" slate for the board of education elected J. W. Jackson, W. H. Hitz, John Noble, L. S. Leves, Alex. McKay, W. O. McTaggart, F. J. Conboy, W. W. Hodgson.

Worked Hard for Good Roads. On the surface the election passed off quietly, and the vote appeared to be gradually. The candidates themselves were the most active movers.

Call it an organized or unorganized attempt as you like, the board of trustees members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and the Ontario Motor League made the result possible. It was a victory well deserved.

H. R. Frankland Surprised. "I cannot understand it at all," said H. R. Frankland, who has been one of the prime movers for the viaduct. "The Bloor-street viaduct, so far as the eastern portion of the city is concerned, is absolutely essential for the welfare and building up of that portion. This, I think, is a retrograde step on the part of the ratepayers."

For the first time since the street car riot, public-spirited Toronto was down town last night. Between the hours of 6.30 and 10.30, while the wetness undertook to turn to that of slippers and the mercury fell from 38 degrees to 25, thousands of eager men, women and children, gathered in the cold hovers about the newspaper offices to watch the election returns as they were thrown on the canvas.

But the event lacked the enthusiasm of previous New Year's nights, and there was little cheering except that of some of the younger generation. When the picture of Controller Hocken was displayed the crowd cheered, and offices to watch the election returns as they were thrown on the canvas.

When the returns were not coming in fast enough to provide sufficient entertainment, the newspaper offices attempted to arouse a demonstration had failed.

Vote on Harbor Plan. The harbor commission and the majority in favor of the bylaw for Ashbridge's Bay improvements are two of the most satisfactory features of the contest, and

Toronto's Municipal Elections

The World took an especial interest in the Bloor-street viaduct bylaw. It was defeated by a small majority. The World thanks those who supported it and takes off its hat to those who went against it.

Public ownership was once delayed and kicked and cuffed; and some public men who have gone high in the esteem of the people once cursed it literally and otherwise. But it is here. It turned up in the municipal street car service bylaw and in a hydro-electric lighting bylaw in North Toronto.

But the most significant thing in yesterday's municipal election was the return of Mr. Hocken at the head of the poll in the contest for the board of control. Mr. Hocken, more than any other man, stands for the principle of public ownership of public utilities, and especially for a city-owned street railway system, partly by tubes and partly by surface lines.

The people endorsed the bylaw for a municipal system of surface lines in the outlying portions of the city, and these will in some way have to be joined together and extended to the centre of the city, either by an exchange of transfers or the use of tubes; but in some way Mr. Hocken is the man who will do a lot to work this out, and as we said, Mr. Hocken is at the head of the poll, and the by-law for civic street car lines has a splendid majority.

The viaduct is essential to the tubes and to the city street car line, and therefore will soon be an accomplished fact.

Last year The World opposed Mayor Geary's election on grounds which we still consider valid, but during the past year Mayor Geary has harmonized his actions with the will of the people and seems inclined to continue this policy. So long as Mayor Geary keeps the people's interests in view we shall have no difficulty in supporting him, and we feel sure that he will secure of us of any capricious criticisms during the past twelve months. His return indicates a personal popularity in the city which is highly commendable, and a young man in public life, and assures him of a successful career in the future if he chooses to ally himself with the interests of the people on every occasion.

A regrettable result of yesterday's elections is the defeat of Controller Foster. Mr. Foster has been much misjudged in his attitude on public affairs, and while to some extent he has lent himself to hostile opinion by occasional narrowness in his point of view on civic policies, on the major matters of public business he has pursued a sound and sagacious course. His criticism of financial affairs has always been conservative, and therefore a valuable factor in civic legislation.

He has been on the right side of all the big movements, and in regard to his personal character we have an excellent example of what a municipal politician should be.

Mr. Foster may unquestionably return next year to ask the suffrage of his fellow-citizens once more, and be assured of their more substantial support. We feel sure that Mr. Foster will owe Mr. Hocken no grudge in having supplanted him on the board of control.

The success of the good roads bylaw is another testimonial to the way public opinion is running. Even if the viaduct is delayed the east end gets the Ashbridge's Bay improvement bylaw. This will do a lot for Toronto's harbor and shipping interests as well as industries. Incidentally it shows what the board of trade can do when they take a hand.

This year of 1911 is to be a great year for Toronto; that her civic government may be true to that future and to the people is The World's salutation as they assume their office.

BALLOONISTS MISSING. BERLIN, Jan. 2.—The spherical balloon Hildebrandt, which was launched in this city, last Thursday with four passengers, who intended making a 42-hour trip, has not yet been reported. The balloon, when last seen, was being towed in the direction of circles here, that the airman probably came to grief in that sea.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC CANDIDATES WINNERS

Result in Hamilton a Complete Victory for People's Power—Many Bylaws Carried in Ontario Municipalities—Public Improvements Are Voted.

HAMILTON, Jan. 2.—(Special.)—Geo. H. Lees, the hydro-electric candidate for mayor, was elected to-day by a majority of 500 over John Allen, the alleged Cator candidate.

Alexandra and Beaverton, Newburgh, Paisley and West Lorne will be dry villages on May 1.

Four townships, according to returns, will lose their licenses. They are: Eastward, E. Camden, E. Flamboro and Wolford.

The three repeal contests in Cremore Village, Beverly Township and Goulburn Township, which have been under local option, failed, and it will necessarily be three years before another contest will be waged.

It is noteworthy from a local standpoint that the municipalities surrounding Toronto in which there was a polling contest resulted in victory for the license-holders.

One of the features of the local option campaign was the fight in Brampton to regain license. The result was a three-fifths vote in favor of the license.

The improvement of the harbor in connection with the development of Ashbridge's Bay as a site for industries will do very much to build up the city, especially when the deepening of the Welland Canal has been carried out.

MARY ANDERSON'S HOME.

It is in Old Broadway, a Picturesque English Village.

(From The Gentlewoman.) When Mary Anderson married M. de Navarro and retired from the stage she went to another Broadway to live.

A little quiet village in Worcester-shire is Old Broadway. It was "discovered" by the artist about 30 years ago, and some of them were wise enough to buy for themselves the picturesque old stone houses characteristic of the place.

Viewed from the road, Court Farm is a characteristic Cotswold building. It is composed entirely of local stone, with unadorned windows and heavy slate roof.

Another outbuilding has been converted into a lives court, and near by an artificial lake has been constructed, where Master Tom spends many hours sailing his model yacht.

The grounds and gardens are extensive and beautifully laid-out, as is only to be expected when Alfred Foxon, the famous artist, was responsible therefor.

HAMILTON HOTELS

HOTEL ROYAL

Every room completely renovated and newly carpeted during 1910.

The world is gained as one nears the little grass plot adjoining. Here, surrounded by fine yew hedges, of innumerable years' growth, is a quaint old sundial.

If the exterior of the house and grounds calls to mind the "good old days," the interior is even more impressive. A tiny hall, containing ancient oak furniture, leads to a large, artistically shaped lounge or inner hall.

A fine casing window with deep window seat looks out onto the garden. Lining from here is the school room, where many childish possessions are displayed, and away toward the other wing is the huge music room.

RITCHIE AND HAL B. JR. WIN IN HOLIDAY RACES

Ideal Takes Unfinished 2.13 Pace—2.23 Pace and Free-for-all. Go in Straight Heats.

One of the best winter meetings that have ever been held in Toronto was finished yesterday under the auspices of the Toronto Driving Club. While there has been some unpleasantness on one or two occasions when the public could not see eye to eye with the judges in some of the decisions, yet all must admit that those who were in authority had the courage of their own convictions, and while the penalty inflicted seemed severe, we think the majority of those present believe that the judges gave their decisions as they saw them.

Now that the meeting is over, it looks more like the fact demonstrated that the harness horse can hold its own. The attendance has been out of the ordinary. No doubt, a good deal can be said for the fact that the race day was the most successful of the season, the splendid track, with good, comfortable quarters underneath for the spectators, a covered betting stand, and the track itself, as well as the barns and the cooling-out sheds for the horses—nothing has been left undone to make the comfort of the patrons, as well as the comforts for the horses. Surely after this meeting, from the interest that has been taken in the sport, there will be some stake events opened, if not by our National Exhibition Association, then let the driving clubs take it up and show that Toronto, one of the foremost cities of our fair Dominion, can hold her place in the harness horse game, as in other sports.

The race for the best day was the unfinished 2.13 pace, the 2.23 pace (with 4 entries and 3 starters), and the free-for-all (with 5 starters and 4 runners).

Starter Baker called for the unfinished 2.13 pace promptly at 1.30, there being only two horses under the post, Alcyde and Burnham, chestnut gelding, having two heats, and Ideal, the Hamilton-owned pacer, driven by J. Rombough, having one heat. There was no unnecessary delay in starting, and they were given the word to a perfect break. Alcyde having the pole, he had been Ideal right at the sulky wheels of Alcyde, till they entered the stretch on the first half when Alcyde came up on even terms, and they stepped the first half in 1.08 1/2. They raced that way, and it was a beautiful finish, nose and nose, but Ideal just nosed Alcyde out in 2.13 1/2. The chestnut gelding, second, got to him, Ideal winning the heat and race in 2.20 1/2. The 2.23 pace was next called, and all away together. Violet, from R. J. Patterson's Empire Stable, drew the pole, with Dinky, in Nat Ray's string, second; Red Dart, and the little pony pacer went a splendid mile and was just nosed out by Ritchie's mile and a half in 2.23 1/2. The time was fast—2.14 1/2. In the second heat Ritchie had everything his own way, and he finished in 2.13 1/2. Ritchie and Knight Onward third and Violet fourth. Time of mile, 2.22 1/2. The third and final heat was also won by Ritchie, with Dinky third, and the time, 2.22 1/2.

The free-for-all was a disappointment to many, as they expected to see Lady May, who on Monday night had been withdrawn, also John McEwen and Ideal, having to finish up the 2.13 pace. However, the public saw a great race. Ritchie, St. Anthony, and Hal B. Jr. after one or two scores they got the word, and before the first turn they were racing. Ritchie, St. Anthony, and Hal B. Jr. were the mile would have been faster had not in the stretch, Ritchie, St. Anthony, and Hal B. Jr. were racing. Ritchie, St. Anthony, and Hal B. Jr. were the mile would have been faster had not in the stretch, Ritchie, St. Anthony, and Hal B. Jr. were racing.

BILL LANG, FIGHTER. FAVORITE IN ENGLAND.

Bill Lang, the Australian heavy-weight champion, has become a big favorite among English sporting men. He has been boomed by Promoter McIntosh on the other side to such an extent that the boxing critics have interviewed him at length. Lang talked of his ring career recently in a way that excited much interest. He was asked to tell which was his hardest fight and then went on in this manner: "My second fight with Tommy Burns in Australia was about the hardest I think. It went twenty rounds and Burns got the decision. I thought I had won, but as Mr. McIntosh was the referee, I guess the verdict was fair enough. When I met Jack Johnson at Sydney I was almost new to the game and not the improved man I was when I met Burns the second time. Johnson is a big clever fellow and Burns a strong resolute boxer. Johnson of course beat Burns cleverly. Yet I can't say which to me was the toughest customer. Johnson didn't knock me out in nine rounds, as it has been stated. He did not stop me at all. I'll admit he was having the best of the fight, but it was the police who stepped into the ring and put an end to the contest. I was still strong on my legs and wasn't in serious trouble. When I boxed Al Kaufman in Philadelphia an injured hand prevented me from beating him. I almost had him out in the second round and could have finished him if I had been able to use my right hand. He saved himself by clutching me around the neck until the bell rang. I was strongly advised by my physician not to box Kaufman. I had been side-knocked by Ketchel and I wanted a fight. So I had to box Kaufman with only one hand and they said he beat me on points. "The Americans treated me all right. They fight as we do in Australia, making the men protect themselves at all times. The fighting is always fair, but the men must take care of themselves."

AT THE THEATRES

At the Royal Alexandra

Premier Performance of Judith Zaraine

To witness a play such as "Judith Zaraine," which received its first performance at the Royal Alexandra yesterday afternoon and evening, as once invited the question whether the political and social conditions that form its dark background are really attributable to the United States at this period of the republic's history. That is not a trite saying which discards modern business to war as ruthless, as disregardful of moral rights, of family and individual happiness and of the stability of the state as that of any victim of ambition who has waded through slaughter to throne. In the play by C. M. S. McLellan, the author of Leah Kleeschna, there is disclosed in vivid fashion a phase of the tremendous struggle between capitalist and the independent employer, between the claim of the few to enormous wealth and the right of the many to a reasonable measure of earthly happiness. Issues like these cannot be lightly waved aside, they are matters of constant discussion on the floor of legislatures, from the platform of the politician and the agitator in the columns of the press and of the weekly and monthly magazines. They have invaded the stage itself, an educator of the masses not the least in scope and efficacy. Presented as they are with exceptional force and strength of characterization in "Judith Zaraine," the influence of the appeal that is made can hardly be overestimated, but it cannot fail to be potent.

Apart from this aspect of the play, "Judith Zaraine" has a theme of gripping human interest. It is skilfully constructed, has little more digression than is necessary to relieve its tragic side and the evolution of the main story is artistic and natural. The earlier denouements are well managed and lead logically to the great climax in the third act where the protagonists on each side discard all pretense of the last card. When the curtain rises, the audience is at once introduced to the executive office of the temporary headquarters of the Pontifex, a New York newspaper company. Three thousand men have been thrown out of employment thru the action of the United Mining Company, a trust determined to drive all independent companies from the field. John Isaac has stood out and the company has established a rival plant and after a years struggle has compelled him to close his works. The men are filled with deep resentment against the trust and its strong man, David Murray. Their leader is Judith Zaraine, an employee of Isaac's, who has gained marked ascendancy over them by her own personally an-dite fervor of her demands for righteous dealing. To maintain order, troops under Pontifex have been sent in and he recognizes that if bloodshed is to be avoided, the girl must be silenced. Confident that he can secure this, he instructs her to be brought before him.

Unknown to Pontifex, David Murray has been on the ground for a week to find out the position for himself, posing meantime as a reporter from the New York newspaper the company controls. He has met Judith Zaraine, has fallen under her spell, has begun to feel that there is another side to the question than the right-of-the-trust-to-crush all opposition between it and the achievement of its monopoly. Murray wants time to settle the dispute, but strikes a snag in the person of Col. Pontifex, who has been chosen to command thru the company's influence and has been presented with a block of its stock. He is all for stern measures and the chief point in the first act is his interview with Judith, of which Murray is an unwilling witness. She refuses to abandon her position, the mob believing her under arrest attempt to storm the headquarters, many fall, among them her own brother, whose body Pontifex orders to be brought before her, unwittingly she is certain falls with her whispered word: "He is my brother."

Not second changes to the shoe shop of Conrad Borinski, whose grandchild is one of the leaders of the revolt. Hither Murray comes as Brandon, the reporter, in the vain effort to get Borinski to urge the men to disperse, and the plot deepens himself. The company will take them into employment. Col. Pontifex sends his ultimatum that he will attack at 9 o'clock, and knowing that if Pontifex does all he can to avoid bloodshed, Judith seizes a knife and leaves the house. "It is the only way," says the sentence-old grandfather, Murray in the third act goes to headquarters, makes another effort to delay the attack and again fails. Pontifex asks him to wait in another apartment, but Murray returns to find Judith waiting at the door of the darkened room and intercepts the blow intended for the colonel. Their interview leads to a declaration of love and her promise to allow him to take up her cause. Then comes the climax when Murray threatens Colonel Pontifex with exposure of his designs and connections with the company. Judith discovers who he is and stands a silent spectator of the dramatic scene. Pontifex finds that Murray is immovable, has made all arrangements for the publication of the truth in the event of his death, throws up the sponge and signs an order postponing the attack. The last act brings the triumph of love. Moved by his pleadings and believing he will work with her for the victory of her ideals, she yields and the curtain falls. Miss Lena Ashwell, who is the only female role, made a deep impression as Judith Zaraine. She has nothing of the mannerisms usually credited to the emotional actress, but perhaps on that account her fine artistic reserve and the interest quality of her interpretation all the more striking and powerful. She invested the part with true charm.

that neither impaired Judith's essential womanliness nor her loyalty to the ideal for which she was willing to die. Miss Ashwell is supported by a small but highly capable company. To Chas. Waldron as David Murray, the strenuous of the play, full and proved fully equal to the exacting demands. John E. Kellard was admirable as Colonel Pontifex, Howard Kyle as a good character study of Conrad Borinski, the old cobbler; Gordon Johnston's Jack Borinski was also a thoroughly satisfactory offering. The minor roles were filled acceptably and the stage management deserves the word of praise. The play was enthusiastically received by the crowded audiences and in response to persistent recalls at the close of the third act, Miss Ashwell spoke a few graceful words in acknowledgment and thanks. The play was finely produced and will be given during the week with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

At the Princess.

A. E. Matthews in "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Brilliant Irishmen have always made the English stage scintillate with their wit, and since Richard Brinsley Sheridan a generation has never passed without contributions of a memorable character to the British drama from Ireland. While Oscar Wilde has nothing like the same depth as George Bernard Shaw he was in many respects a forerunner of the Shavian cult, and in the paradox and topsy-turvy whimsicality of his dialog he has nothing to learn from his successor. Those who know society and the world of fashion cannot fail to be intensely amused with the satire and jest of "The Importance of Being Earnest." The dialog bristles with flowers and jeers at social conventions and the unostentatious in the audience who sit and wonder what others are laughing at are almost as amusing as the actors. There are but few, however, who do not see the aim of the pointed epigram and the poignant repartees. The story and the plot are familiar, and "Bunburying" has become proverbial. The play is a society burlesque, in fact, with the ancient elements of the child lost in infancy. John Worthing was found in a leather bag at a railway station and Lady Bracknell objects to him as a son-in-law. She would not permit her daughter "to marry into a cloak room or form an alliance with a handbag." But John has provided himself with an imaginary brother, Ernest, who is impersonated by his friend Algernon Moncrieff, much to John's mortification, and the delight of his ward, Cecily Cardew, in setting right these complications. The characters get off such gems as these: "Girls never marry the men they flirt with. Girls don't think it right." "There's the whole truth, pure and simple, to which the reply is, "Truth is rarely pure and never simple." "In married life, three is company and two is none. A lady who loses her husband looks twenty years younger." "Her hair has turned quite gold from grief." "Music is very troublesome. If you play good music they won't listen. If you play bad music they won't talk." "Ignorance is like a delicate exotic fruit. Touch it, and the bloom is gone." "Was he born in the purple of commerce, or did he rise from the gutter and call a spade a spade." "It is Gwendolen's crushing retort. "It is obvious our social positions are widely different, but Gwendolen is in low spirits in the country, and Cecily is sure it must be the agricultural depression from which the aristocracy suffer." "Do not speak disrespectfully of society," warns Lady Bracknell. "Only people who can't get into it do that."

The success of angel cake and trifle and such light fare is in the cooking, and the company at the Princess is a most excellent one. A. E. Matthews as Algy has the insufferable conceit and the west end accent which carries off the character of Hamilton Revy. He is also excellently suited to the part of Worthing. The girls are done with particularly clever ingenueness, and Irene Fenwick and Jane Oaker are admirably adapted to the parts. Elthya Winthrop as Lady Bracknell is slightly artificial in a caste where the utmost naturalness is necessary to sustain the true note of burlesque, but she made her points in good style. Florence Edney, Robert Rees, Frederick Raymond and Albert Tavernier were all quite good. The crowded houses yesterday betokened a good run for the week.

At Shea's

Clarice Mayne at Shea's. All odds the best bill since the opening of the new house, is to be seen at Shea's this week. Clarice Mayne, a beautiful woman with a sweet voice and a varied list of songs, is billed as a hit. Her performance serves the place by reason of the brains of her piano accompanist, James Tait, who is a genius in facial comedy. The actor has that rich quality of good English acts and leaves a flavor of elegance and excellence upon the mental palate.

Homor B. Mason, Marguerite Keeler & Co., present a splendid comedy sketch, "In and Out." Here again is one whose name is little known, but who is responsible for the major part of the fun. This time it is Porter Emerson Browne who wrote the sketch. His lines are delightfully funny with a real brand of humor.

Then there is Eddie Leonard with Mabel Russell. Eddie makes a hit, but it is not his old stuff which goes the best, but a copying of Nora Bayes and Jack Norwood's love-making and Jack Norwood's method of kidding the other acts on the bill. Eddie's new songs, while good, are not so good as the old ones. Mabel helps Eddie a lot.

Victor Niblo has taught three birds to talk and the School of Pedagogy should give him a diploma. The four "Boles" have a good adrobal. The hobbie skit is a trapeze. The motion pictures are good.

At the Grand.

"Way Down East." "Way Down East" has been presented in this city many times, but the popular old rural play was never before given here with the scenic equipment and farm appurtenances as used in the production at the Grand Opera House. It is also a question whether a more able company has presented the play since it was first produced.

Two large audiences witnessed the performance yesterday and the enthusiastic manner in which the pretty story of New England life was received testified to the popularity of the play, and showed that there are still many Toronto theatregoers who can be won when they are offered a wholesome drama.

The story is well known. It is one of the plays often seen in never forgotten. It retains its old friends, who have loved it for many years, and creates new ones. Its merits are familiar to the theatregoers of three generations past. It is a play that attracts the best of rural plays. Its native pathos and unsophisticated humor, its snowstorm, and the real live horses and cows of its farmyard scene draw tears and laughter.

Grace Hopkins, who is presenting the character of "Anna" this season, succeeding Phoebe Davies, gives a splendid interpretation of the role and lends a touch to the almost perfect sympathy of the audience. John R. Armsong as the squire is a typical puritanical farmer and physically and artistically fills the role perfectly. Ella Hunt Wood as "Martha Perkins" has been with the play so long that a production would not be complete without her. Daniel Roach as "Holler" gets as much comedy out of the part as he always did. In fact, the cast in its entirety is first-class and could not be improved upon in any part.

"Way Down East" is a splendid offering for the first week of the New Year at the Grand and will no doubt play to capacity all week, and especially at the matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

At the Gayety

Al. Reeves' Beauty Show. Manager J. J. Henry of the Gayety Theatre has made a New Year's resolution to make this show better than ever this year, and he has certainly begun well by securing Al. Reeves and his famous Beauty show for the opening week. Al. Reeves has one of the best shows in burlesque, far which he has secured one of the sprightliest and classiest choruses ever seen on the boards of the theatre, and every song has a swing.

Al. Reeves opens the show by introducing each girl in the company by card to the audience. Then puts on the skit, "The College Tour," introducing Andy Lewis and Steve Hickey, who make good in a sprightly plot. Lydia Uynyer plays her part as the injured wife to perfection. "Conology" revised introduces Toronto's old favorites, Al. Reeves. He is just as good and better than ever. "Give Me Credit, Boys," sung by Mr. Reeves, had the house. The American ragtime, sung by Mae Busch, was well received. Mary Brandon, the American toe dancer, can dance. The olio was well up to the mark. The Busch-Deyere four, introducing Billy Busch, the marvelous cornet soloist, in illustrated solos and songs are all to the good.

At the Star. "Miss New York Jr." The Star enjoyed a large patronage yesterday which spoke volumes for the Miss New York Jr., Company, who are put on several sketches, all well received.

In the first burlesque the scene was laid at a summer resort in Newport, R.I., in "The Mother's Last Wish." John L. Black made a decided hit. James Fairburn as Lem, a college lad, also deserves mention. "Paying the Penalty," a Parisian Apache dance and burlesque was unusual in scenic effects. The final skit, "Slow Town Junction," is the best comedy of the whole performance. Will H. Cohen, the celebrated Hebrew impersonator, is fully up to the standard. Billy S. Newton as bellhop and train announcer evoked much applause by his original stunts and difficult impersonations. Ray O'Dell, Sophie Frank and Pearl Black were favorites, while Ada Corbett in her imitations of Harry Lauder was specially good.

THE SHEEP INDUSTRY.

The impression is evidently gaining ground amongst the breeders of pure bred sheep in Canada that the only prospect of securing for themselves a steady annual market for their stock lies in the direction of the encouragement and development of sheep raising as a business in our own country. A year ago they were confronted with quarantine restrictions imposed by the United States, which created conditions for which they were not prepared, and which, in the end, depressed sales in a marked degree. During the greater part of the past season the market has no doubt been a buoyant one, but latterly the feeling of confidence in a continuous demand for Canadian sheep in the United States has steadily declined. The reasons were none too satisfactory for Canadian breeders, and it was evident that the outlook for a steady or increased trade was not particularly encouraging.

It may seem most natural that Canada should be able to obtain a firm and advantageous foothold in the markets of the United States for her sheep and wool, but it is now quite clear that, until the trade policies of the two countries become more firmly established, the Canadian sheep raiser is dependent so largely on the United States for his export market, rests upon a very unstable foundation. Fortunately, however, other and very encouraging outlets are available. It may be noted at this point that the home market is not unworthy of consideration. This year not more than five carloads of lambs were shipped to East Buffalo from Ontario, while in 1907 almost 100 carloads were shipped to that city. The Toronto and Montreal markets have absorbed practically the whole output during the past season, and at prices equivalent to that paid for similar grades in Ontario. Buffalo, a fact in itself indicating the strong and growing demand for mutton on the Canadian market.

Notwithstanding the proximity of the United States, the safest outlet for the Canadian product is still to be found in the British and, possibly at an early date, in the European markets. The English wool market is the centre of distribution for the product of the great wool producing countries of the world, including Australia, New Zealand and Argentina. If the sheep industry in this country can ever be developed to reasonable proportions, it is not to be expected that any more natural or reliable market can be found for surplus Canadian wool. In addition to this, when the extent of the industry may make possible the necessary grading and sorting of the product, such that it may be placed upon the British market in attractive condition, the prices realized, may be found much more remunerative than those at present obtained.

It is clear also that the great and natural outlet for our surplus meat products, including those of mutton and lamb, is to be found across the sea. The producing power of the land is unable to yield sufficient for the necessities of the crowded populations of long inhabited countries. Great Britain has a deficit of many millions of sheep plus of the world's meat supply, and it seems probable that she is shortly to have competitors in the market for foreign meats. There is a movement in the British market, many which will eventually result in the opening up of these countries to a chilled and frozen meat trade. A steady market is without doubt thus assured for all the mutton that Canada can produce.

The breeders of pure bred sheep, therefore, if our argument holds, would do well to direct their best energies to the development of the sheep industry in our own country. As a matter of fact, a strong local demand is the safest market in the long run. A material increase in the sheep population of the country would create a thoroughly healthy home market for breeding sheep, and one much to be desired. The opportunities in this direction may well be worthy of somewhat careful consideration.

It is fortunate that, at this time, the federal government is interesting itself in the sheep industry of the Dominion and is making a thorough investigation with a view to the adoption of a policy which may lead to its general encouragement and development. There is reason to believe that sheep raising in Canada may become at no distant date a decidedly profitable industry, and the minister of agriculture has undertaken a measure which we may expect to be productive of much good result. We learn that the members of the investigating commission, having completed their researches in the United Kingdom, are to spend the next few months in studying conditions in the Dominion, and are now engaged in interviewing a number of the prominent sheep breeders of Ontario. We are hopeful that they may meet with the full co-operation of sheep raisers and farmers generally in the prosecution of their work.

AMERICANS BEST MEDIUMS

Says Spiritualist, Who Says He Has Spoken With Cleopatra and Newton. Vice-Admiral W. Osborne Moore is a spiritualist who speaks with a quiet conviction of the reality of the strange things he has seen. That was how he impressed a London audience, fashionable and attentive, the other evening, when he told how he had gazed in turn on the forms of Cleopatra and Sir Isaac Newton, and spoken with them.

He has been a spiritualist for some years, and has held seances in both America and England, but he said: "It is in America that the best results are obtained, because the atmosphere is more profoundly electric there than in England." "It was in America that I saw the forms of Cleopatra and Hypatia, and the voice of Sir Isaac Newton spoke. Of course, they may have been personations," he naively added, "but in absence of evidence to the contrary I believe in what I saw and heard."

The admiral also had the remarkable experience of attending a seance where two separate voices spoke, one in each ear, and a third addressed him from the front, the medium also speaking at the same time. Occasionally the spirit voices would cease talking to him and argue with one another.

Statistics of the legacy duties paid in 1909, which were published yesterday, show once more how small are the majority of fortunes in France. There were 379,418 successions, causing the disposition of 6,746,000,000 francs, or $118,000,000. Four-fifths of these successions varied from 1000 to 10,000 francs, or $200 to $2000; forty-six exceeded $5,000,000 francs, or $1,000,000; ten exceeded 10,000,000 francs, or $2,000,000, and only two exceeded 50,000,000 francs, or $10,000,000. The amount of duty paid was 271,000,000 francs or $54,200,000.

WHAT A C.P.R. FIREMAN OWES TO ZAM-BUK. George H. Duffus of Robertson St., Fort William, a C. P. R. fireman, says: "The water gauge of my locomotive burst and scalded the whole left side of my face terribly. I had a box of Zam-Buk in my pocket, which I was using for a sore on my lip, and when I had recovered from the first shock of the accident, I produced the balm and had it applied freely to the scalded parts. I was suffering acute agony, but within a wonderfully short time Zam-Buk gave me ease. I was able to continue my journey and upon reaching home, I obtained more Zam-Buk and continued the treatment. Zam-Buk acted wonderfully well, and in a few days had the wound nicely healed. I don't know anything so fine as Zam-Buk as a healer of burns, scalds, cuts, and similar injuries, which workers are so liable to, and, in my opinion, a box of Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every worker's home."

STRICTER DISCIPLINE TO GOVERN RANGERS

How Mr. Cochrane Plainly Intimates That Reorganization is Needed

"Chief rangers have been somewhat slow to exercise the power of dismissal vested in them by the department. In future any failure to dismiss an incompetent ranger after fair trial will be visited upon the chief responsible. Rangers must understand that the power to dismiss is vested in the chief, and govern themselves accordingly."

The foregoing statement in an official notification to provincial fire rangers issued by Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of mines, is significant of an intention to enforce seriously the discipline to which fire rangers are subject.

Warning to Nimrods.

Mr. Cochrane says further: "Persons whose hunting instincts are stronger than their sense of duty need not apply. In view of the loss of life last year thru the careless handling of firearms, and the temptation to kill game for food, rangers will hereafter not be permitted to carry arms of any kind, nor to have them in possession. Rangers must remember that they are ex-officio game wardens as well as fire rangers, and it is their business to thoroughly enforce the fish and game regulations. Any ranger found deficient in this respect will not only be dismissed, but he will be made a public example of."

Must Give Whole Time.

It should not be necessary, but it apparently is, to remind rangers that they must not undertake other employment while employed by the department. This applies particularly to rangers stationed near railway construction work and mining operations. Nor may rangers, who are local men, leave their beats to work on their homesteads. Any infraction of this regulation will entail summary dismissal and loss of pay.

Experienced Men Required.

The aim of the department is to have the staff, as far as possible, composed of experienced men, and preference will be given applicants with experience whose record with the department has been satisfactory. Sound judgment is necessary and obedience to the instructions and directions of the chief rangers is expected. Lack of judgment, foolishness and disobedience of orders resulted in the death of five rangers last season. In no instance was the loss of life incidental to the discharge of duty. The department must decline to bear the expense of searching for bodies or meeting in whole or in part funeral expenses where death has resulted other than from the discharge of duty.

Salary and Perquisites.

It is pointed out that the season usually lasts from May 1 to Sept. 30, that the salary is $250 a day, and the department supplies canoes, tents, cooking utensils, etc., and the rangers pay their own railway fare and supply their own food stuffs.

The List will Close on March 31.

Mr. Cochrane complains that last year a number of students appointed as fire rangers on May 1 were unable to take up their duties until late in the month, causing confusion. This year an applicant not ready at the appointed time will forfeit consideration.

Must Have Woodmen's Skill.

Attention is called to the fact that rangers must be prepared to swing an axe in cutting portages, building shelter huts, etc., when not actively engaged in fighting fire. Rush experience of that sort is essential. The fact that many declare their ability to handle a canoe when they are better adapted for work along the railways. The department requires as many men for one class of work as the other, and it would save confusion and annoyance, the loss of the position and possibly the loss of life, if applicants would bear this in mind.

Applicants who are not strong physically should not apply. Anyone found to be in ill-health, or not physically fit on reporting, or who, after trial, is found to be deficient for any reason whatever, will be dismissed, and will thus lose the money spent in traveling.
