HIGHLY INTERESTING "NOT GUILTY"

It Took the Jury an Hour and a Half This Morning to Free Man Charged With Uttering Worthless Cheques---He Did Not Intend to Defraud.

Hugh F. Linden was discharged from custody this morning in the county court by Judge Forbes. The jury retired at 10:30 o'clock and returned at 11:03, the foreman, Henry Dolan, announcing their verdict as "not guilty."

Before Judge Forbes began his charge to the jury M. A. Price was privileged to refer to two points of law, which he omitted yesterday in his citations. Mr. Price also urged that Mr. Linden was not the owner of the goods, being bankrupt, and he had no right to act as prosecutor in the case.

The judge said that this was an important case. The prisoner was a graduate of the U. N. B., and came of a very respectable family. He had passed cheques under peculiar circumstances.

The indictment charged the prisoner with obtaining goods under false pretences with intent to defraud on the 20th day of March last, from Charles Wilcox.

Prima facie the prosecution lies to all appearances a strong case, for Linden had drawn cheques when he had no funds in the bank. If he had been accustomed to having money there it would have been different, but he must have known that he never had money there.

His honor reviewed the case of Linden going to Wilcox's store and obtaining goods. He wrote out a check in payment. Mr. Wilcox became suspicious. He went to the bank and found out that Linden had no account there in the Dominion. It was better for them to be too sure than too slow and they invariably detected any criminal work.

The judge told Linden that he had acted foolishly and instructed him to be very careful about cheques in the future. The evidence in the case showed that Linden had told Wilcox that if his cheque was no good to go and get the goods at his house.

His honor then referred to the time when the prisoner reached the bank and found a light burning therein. His honor asked the jury to consider the prisoner's conduct there as an element. His honor said that the jury must not consider Linden's running away from the bank as evidence of fraud. It was simply an element.

The judge said that he thought that in the Cuddy and Hamilton cases the crown had not made out good cases, and he would not charge. His honor said that he did not intend to criticize the police in those two cases, as it was their duty to be prompt.

The judge then referred to the finding of the cheque book on Linden at the time of the arrest, but pointed out that the prisoner was a first class fellow. Two witnesses only were called for the defense.

MRS. BETTE TELLS THE STORY OF THE ASSAULT AT PASSEKEAG STATION

HAMPTON, May 29.—(Special)—At 9 o'clock this morning the preliminary examination of George Hector, the colored youth, who has been held in jail here since May 21st, on a charge of criminal assault and attempted rape, was held at the office of Sheriff Presser, court house, before Henry Piers, J. P. J. M. McIntyre appeared for the solicitor general on behalf of the crown. The prisoner was un-defended.

The witnesses examined were Constable James Campbell, who narrated the circumstances of the arrest, as already given in the press. Annie Bette, the complainant, a small, delicate looking woman of twenty-one years, followed. She gave her evidence in a clear and sufficient manner, but broke into tears when called on to state minutely what the prisoner said and did at the time of making the assault.

From first to last he was in the station about 15 minutes. He first accosted her as she stood looking out of the door, with the enquiry: "Are you going to St. John?" to which she made no response, but turned back into the room and sat down. The prisoner followed her in shortly afterwards, shut the door, sat down beside her and made an indecent proposition to her. She pushed him aside and said: "Go away and behave yourself." He took hold of her by the shoulders and threw her upon the floor. As she struggled to release herself he seized her by the throat, but she managed to roll away from him and as the engine whistled blew at the Iron Bridge she offered him a quarter to let her go. He took the money, and as the train came in, crossed the track in front of the engine and went off over the hill.

She was helped on board by the conductor and brakeman, in a very exhausted condition from the struggle she had gone through, which lasted about five minutes, as far as she could judge.

William Morgan, conductor, and James Gibson, brakeman, on I. C. R. train No. 133, on May 21st, testified as to the complainant's condition when taken on the train, and the evidence of a violent personal struggle she had endured. As she was helped on the train she said, referring to her assailant, "there he goes over the hill there now," pointing to the right hand. They looked at the man held in custody, and the evidence was read over to the prisoner, at his request, and at its close he said he had nothing to say.

After the noon recess Mr. McIntyre informed the magistrate that after consultation by telephone with the solicitor general, he had decided to ask that the prisoner be committed to jail on a kind of charge to that preferred, namely that of indecent assault. This was agreed to and Hector was sent back to prison to wait his trial.

Several of the jurors were fined $2 each for being absent on 9:30 a. m. until 11:20 a. m. on charge to non-attendance at jury.

In answer to the charge White pleaded not guilty. The solicitor general in opening said that the indictment contained eleven counts, that the last count only charged the defendant with forgery of endorsement and that the other ten counts charged White with forgery of express money orders. The solicitor general then reviewed the work that the Dominion Express Co. had exacted from Harry B. White while he was in their employ. The honorable gentleman went on to explain how White as a collector had to call once a week on the different branch offices throughout the city and after collecting the orders would hand in the amounts collected to the cashier. Up to January 8th, 1906, the defendant discharged the duties of collector. The duty of the cashier was to make a daily report to the head cashier, having sent his check to the bank and having shown that the company owes him, he can make a demand on the bank of Nova Scotia and the deficit goes on to the treasurer's office and it is all right, if the cashier is short he

INTERCOLONIAL LOSING SOME OF ITS BEST CLERKS

MONCTON, May 28.—The matter of junior clerks leaving the I. C. R. and going with other railways, principally in the west, is a question that is assuming something of a serious aspect. If the present rate of resignation from the Intercolonial service continues much longer, the management may have to face the problem of bringing in experienced clerks to take the places of those deserting the government road for more lucrative positions on company roads. There is probably plenty of material to draw from for some little time to come, and there are sufficient applicants for clerkships in the I. C. R. office to fill a good many places yet, but the difficulty is to get the help competent to do the work. Clerks after being trained in certain branches of work for a number of years find little difficulty in getting more wages from company roads than the government pays for the same class of work, and the consequence is the heads of departments find themselves conducting training schools for other roads the greater part of the time. It is said this question has been taken up with the minister of railways and his deputy with a view to remedying the matter. A larger number of junior clerks than usual left the Intercolonial this spring and it is said quite a number of others intend emigrating to western roads. As a result of the representations made to the deputy minister of railways in connection with the loss of clerks, it is rumored that after the close of the fiscal year a readjustment of salaries of the younger clerks, particularly, will be taken up by the department.

At the present time, it is said, there are a good many cars away on foreign roads. The number away sometimes reaches almost as high as four thousand and just now the absent cars number a little over three thousand.

THE HELM OF NAVARRE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE. GROSSET & DUNLAP, Publishers, New York.

(Continued.) "Mademoiselle, it is not my habit to take advice from the damsel of my household. Nor do I admit them to my council-room. Permit me then to conduct you to the staircase." She retreated toward the threshold where I stood, still covering me as with a shield. "Monsieur, you are very cruel to me." "Your hand, mademoiselle." She did not yield to him but held out both hands, clasped in appeal. "Monsieur, you have always been my loving kinsman. I have always tried to do you pleasure. I thought you meant harm to the boy because he was a servant to M. de Mar, and I knew that M. de St. Quentin, at least, had gone over to the other side. I did not know what you would do with him, and I could not rest in my bed because it was through me he came here. Monsieur, if I was foolish and frightened and indiscreet, do not punish the lad for my wrong-doing. "Mayenne was still holding out his hand for her. "I wish you sweet dreams, my cousin Lorraine." "Monsieur," she cried, shrinking back till she stood against the door-jamb, "will you not let the boy go?" "You will look tomorrow," he said with his unchanged smile. "If you have your sleep tonight, my pretty Lorraine?" "A reproach to you," she answered quickly. "You will mark my words, and red eyes, and you will say, 'Now, there is my little cousin Lorraine, my good ally Monsieur's daughter, and I have made her cry her eyes blind over my cruelty. Her father, dying, gave her to me to guard and cherish, and I have made her miserable. I am sorry. I wish I had not done it.'" "Mademoiselle, the duke repeated, "will you get to your bed?" "She did not stir, but fixing him with her brilliant eyes, went on as if thinking aloud. "I remember when I was a tiny maid of five or six, and you and your brother came (when God rest!) would come to our house. You would ask my father to send for me as you sat over your wine, and I would run in to kiss you and be fed comfits from your pockets. I thought you the handsomest and gallantest gentleman in France, as indeed you were." "You were the prettiest little creature ever seen," Mayenne said abruptly. "And my little heart was bursting with love and admiration of you," she returned. "When I first could lip, I learned to pray for my cousin Lorraine and my cousin Charles. I have never forgotten them one night in all these years. God receive and bless the soul of Henri de Guise, God guard and prosper Charles de Mayenne. But you make it hard for me to ask it for my cousin Charles." "This is a great coil over a horse-boy," Mayenne said curtly. "Life is so short, a horse-boy as to M. de Duc de Mayenne." "I tell you I did not mean to kill the boy," Mayenne said. "With the door shut he could hear nothing. I meant to question him and let him go. But you have seen fit to meddle with what is no maid's business, mademoiselle. You have unlocked the door and let him listen to my concerns. Dead men, mademoiselle, tell no tales." "M. de Mayenne," she said, "I cannot see that you need trouble for the tales of horse-boys—the lord of half France. But if you must needs fear his tongue, why, even then you should set him free. He is but a serving-boy sent here with a message. It is wanton murder to take his life; it is like-killing a child." "He is not so harmless as you would lead one to suppose, mademoiselle," the duke retorted. "Since I have been investigating, you have heard how he kept your cousin Paul's arrangements." "For that you should be thankful to him, monsieur. He saved my cousin's skin from a cowardly crime." "Monsieur!" Mayenne exclaimed, "who foully murdered my brother?" "The Valois." "And his lieutenant, St. Quentin?" "Not so," she cried. "He was here in Paris when it happened. He was revolted by the deed." "Did they teach you that at the convent?" "No, but it is true. M. de St. Quentin wanted my cousin Henri not to go to Blois." "Fardieu, you thing them angels, these St. Quentins?" "I think them brave and honest gentlemen, as I think you, Cousin Charles." "That sounds ill on the lips that have but now called me villain and murderer," Mayenne returned. "I have not called you that, monsieur."

The Wornout Nerves, The Weak Heart, The Tired Brain, The Wasted Strength.

What a multitude of women there are who feel that these words exactly suit their case. From early morn until late at night they have been on the go, year in and year out, attending to the daily household duties, looking after the wants of her children and spending the rest of her time attending to social and church work. It is any wonder then that sooner or later there comes a general collapse? The action of the heart becomes weak and palpitating, the nerves become unstrung, the brain feels in a whirl half the time and the usual force of vitality is lacking. It is at this time a woman should look after herself. If she does not, serious female disorders may set in and often cause weary months and years of helplessness and miserable suffering. What she wants is something to build up her system. For this purpose there is nothing so equal

SAV ROSEVELT IS CHIEF MUCKRAKER

Muckrake Has Superseded Whitewash Brush in Washington—Work of United States Government Departments is Needlessly Behind—Senator Beveridge's New Bill.

(From our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24.—If the people of the country will watch the newspapers and magazines they will learn something about the goings on in Washington and especially in Congress. The white wash brush has given way to the muck rake and foul deeds long cryptic are being exposed. A number of senators and public men, the representatives of spacious trusts are being shown up. They are either on the defensive or in retreat. Some of them, as is well known, are hiding, but the search light of investigation is inexorable. The country realizes as it has never realized before that it has long been in the grasp of grand dukes of the senate and the house of representatives. The muckrakers, Senators Aldrich, Platt, Devere, Gorman, Elkins, Spooner have been exposed during the present session in a way that they doubtless never anticipated and if their states return them to the senate when their present terms expire they will do so in the face of the most palpable evidence of selfish self-seeking and outrageous disregard of public interests.

A million automobiles, or Hoe printing presses or as many Mergathalers have not the complications, the wheels within wheels, of a great modern government like the United States. All these delicate and intricate parts are liable to get worn, broken and out of order but where their running depends upon non-supervised human effort there is in addition to all other disabilities the element of human laziness and inefficiency. This clumsy prologue is apropos of about the worst condition the United States Patent Office has ever been in. This office left to itself would require no appropriation, it not only pays its way but brings a surplus revenue to the government every year. The fees paid by inventors for the examination and issue of their patents, more than pay the commissioner, the assistant commissioner, the examiner of interferences, the board of examiners in chief, the many principal examiners and the more than one hundred assistant examiners. But notwithstanding this powerful force, living off the fees of inventors, the work of the office is deplorably and unnecessarily behind hand, and in some cases of invention the applicant for patent must wait six or eight months before his application, after it goes into the Patent Office, is even looked at in many a case a year or two will elapse before the case is examined, and the patent allowed or finally re-

Absolute Purity in Bread is essential in order to give proper nourishment to the system. It is, however, dependent upon the purity of the flour. You cannot make pure bread with an impure flour. "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR is made by a process which insures absolute purity. From the time the wheat enters the mill until the flour reaches the cook it is untouched by human hands. The grain itself is thoroughly cleaned before grinding, whilst the flour is sifted, time after time, through the finest silk cloth in order to remove the smallest impurities. These processes render "FIVE ROSES" an easy and satisfactory flour to use, and insure better results on Baking Day than can be obtained with any ordinary brands. ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT. Wants Plumber to Head Mexican Concern

Hellfax, May 28.—J. H. Plummer, who arrived at Sydney last week after having paid a visit to the steel company's plant, says that operations are proceeding satisfactorily and that everything is in excellent condition. The company was looking forward to the future with every confidence in the expansion of all the departments. Mr. Plummer said further that he had not yet decided regarding the presidency of the Mexican Light & Power Co., which James Ross had requested him to accept. His first interest was with the Dominion

Get Sub G. T. P. Contract

Quebec, May 28.—(Special)—M. P. Davis, who has taken a sub-contract to construct fifty miles of the new transcontinental railway from the Quebec bridge site at Cape Rouge, west, from Hogan & McDonald, left this morning to walk over the ground with Engineer Grant. Mr. Davis expects to break ground in the course of ten days and make connection with the C. P. R. at Belair in a month's time, to enable the transmission of the steel required for the superstructure of the new Quebec bridge on the west side of the River St. Lawrence. It is calculated that the superstructural side from the Chaudiere will be completed this summer.

Honesty in Tweeds
It's so easy—and so much cheaper—to use cotton or rag shoddy instead of pure wool—in weaving TWEEDS. But pure wool means permanent colors—rich finish—and WEAR.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL TECHNICAL POSITION OF MARKET STRONGER
But It Promises a Fair Degree of Alternation, of Rise and Fall for Some Weeks Yet, Rather Than a Settled Affair.

(Boston Transcript.)
The crops, which promise well thus far, must be financed, and there are some issues of securities to be brought out, some foreign credits to be settled. Yet we keep on piling up record exports of merchandise, and this year's excess of exports over imports is so great as to point out a way for settling much of what is called invisible indebtedness abroad—payments for interest on foreign-owned securities, freights, travellers' expenditures and the like, there are two aids to the question of correct values on stocks—there always should be, if markets are to be normal. An all one way stock market never failed to bring disaster in its train. The matching of wise, analytical ability makes up the market. What stocks are worth under existing and prospective conditions, what demand will be, are interesting matters on which to figure. The seasonal rise among the coal stocks of late, a rise that has carried Lackawanna up some $15 and Reading $25 in the last three weeks or so, places those stocks, as well as the other hard coals on a divided basis of return so near to 3 per cent as to excite wonder in view of recent talk about the out of joint condition of share returns and money market. There always is a readiness to give values going on and conditions affecting one stock or group of stocks utterly fail to apply to another; value is a relative term and no end of considerations enter into and determine price or worth. With sensible using in the money strain of late, the basis for revised valuations in good stocks is plain. As to the "public" it still is quiet and the market to date has been a professional affair, none the less so because of this week's rise than owing to earlier May decline. But professional always have to expect things, the "public" generally takes long to convince and this year most men are too busy in general industry to meddle much with the stock market. The general attitude towards the market has changed to the extent that belief in comparatively easy money through the summer and in a broad, trading market in stocks, is held. Business in nearly all lines is decidedly active; the weekly trade reviews agree in this and railway earnings, bank clearings, demand for telephones and all of the customary indices of activity are so elementary as ever that this is America's big year. How far the continued prosperity will comfort with all money operations is the problem of the year.

ADVANCE IN SILVER
The continued advance in the price of silver during the past year, and the exceptional strength displayed in the market for that product last week, which almost daily advances in the price, have resulted in an accumulation of silver in the position of that metal. Bar silver in London on Saturday reached 31 1/4, while the quotation in this market rose to 37 1/2, which gains were maintained yesterday. Occasional spurts in the price have taken place at frequent intervals for several months past, and while they have usually been followed by some reaction subsequently, the value of the metal has again moved up to a figure above the previous top.

CHEESE IS HIGH
MONTREAL, May 23.—Prices for both cheese and butter continue to display decided strength and yesterday the high prices to date this season were paid in the country. At Huntington no high as 12 1/2 was paid for white cheese. On the Kennebec board 12c per lb. was paid for white, and 11 1/2c for colored, while on several of the other Ontario boards 11 3/4c was the ruling price. Today's figures compare with a range of 10c to 9 3/4c at this date last year. The fact that stocks of cheese on the other side are exceedingly light is a strengthening influence on prices, and there is keen competition amongst buyers to obtain the offerings on the country boards. The Liverpool public cable today quoted net white cheese at an advance of 6d at 57 1/2, while colored was quoted at 55 1/2. Butter also had a sharp advance in the country today, as high as 27 1/2c being paid at Huntington for the best, but there being keen competition amongst buyers. The local market was quiet today with a stronger tone, quotations being 19 1/2c to 20c for choice creamery.

R. place a culvert underneath the track to act as a drainage, the natural drainage at the place having been stopped.

FILLING UP THE WEST
HALIFAX, N. S., May 23.—(Special.)—The steamship City of Vienna has arrived from Liverpool with 3,400 passengers, nearly all destined for the Canadian West.

In my position, said Martin, "I have no candidate, I must represent the whole party. But, sir, Bryan will be the next president. He never was so strong as he is to-day and his strength is growing. The name of Bryan means organization in democracy; organization brings confidence, and confidence leads to success."

He unquestionably made the position as the leader of his party, free from jealousy and bitterness, and had his confidence through close touch with American affairs through Mr. Roosevelt's constant visits from New York to this country.

He said to a visitor a few days ago and re-elected. His actions show he is more in the front today than he ever was. Nothing can get him out of it. If opportunity arises to him in the campaign party should, if I were at home, favor his nomination by the Democratic National Convention, as the situation stands today."

THINKS KING SHOULD COME
London Daily Telegraph Strongly Favors His Majesty's Visit to Canada.
LONDON, May 23.—In an editorial the Daily Telegraph strongly favors King Edward's acceptance of the invitation to visit Canada. The Daily Telegraph says that the British public has not yet awakened to a full appreciation of the extraordinary interest of such an event, which would be the first of the kind since the reign of Queen Victoria. The newspaper recognizes that possibly there are some reasons in the way of such a visit, but urges that "Canada is a living link between the American republic and the British Empire, and that if it can be accomplished it would be not only historic but memorable past all example in the record of royal progresses."

BRYAN OR ROOSEVELT?
Democratic Leaders Hold Different Opinions as to the Next President.
OMAHA, Neb., May 23.—Bryan will be the next president, was the emphatic declaration of Col. John L. Martin, of St. Louis, secretary-at-large of three national political conventions.
"In my position," said Martin, "I have no candidate, I must represent the whole party. But, sir, Bryan will be the next president. He never was so strong as he is to-day and his strength is growing. The name of Bryan means organization in democracy; organization brings confidence, and confidence leads to success."

Mayor Weaver's Boom for Governor has Collapsed.
PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—The Weaver gubernatorial boom was badly punctured at a conference of delegates to the Lincoln Party State Convention held here Wednesday.

After the conference it was declared that Mayor Weaver cannot expect to have twenty-five per cent of the delegates from Philadelphia to favor his nomination for Governor in the Lincoln Party Convention.

At a conference of the Lincoln Party and city party leaders held at the City Club, there was evinced an overwhelming sentiment in opposition to the candidacy of Mayor Weaver for Governor.

The Piano, as we know it today, is really a wonderful instrument. It is the twentieth century evolution of the "monochord" used by the Greeks twenty-six centuries ago. So intricate is its mechanism that only an expert can properly understand it. The average person, therefore, buys a Piano on faith, that is they rely on their faith in the word of the dealer, and in the reputation that the Piano enjoys.

There are two very potent reasons why you should buy that Piano from us. The first is, because we have exclusive control in the Maritime Provinces of the sale of only such Pianos as have earned the best reputation; secondly, because back of every statement we make is a clean, unbroken record of over a quarter of a century of square dealing. Enough said.

USE AND ABUSE OF LIQUOR

The letter of Mr. William Mill, of London, on the subject of liquor legislation, is interesting as a statement of the case from one point of view, but the conclusions arrived at will be disputed by advocates of prohibition. To his question whether there is any sound moral argument against the use of liquor, and his assertion that the value of alcohol is recognized by medical science, they will doubtless reply that alcohol has just been proved to be a poison, while the quantity used in other hospitals is small and growing steadily less. If liquor drinking is harmful to everybody there is no difficulty in arriving at a decision relative to the moral aspect of the case.

With regard to his second point, the universality of a habit does not stamp it with the seal of righteousness, nor will it be considered the difference between a Turk and an Englishman is at all due to the Turk's aversion to strong drink; nor will the consumption of liquor be accepted as a cause of national prosperity. Touching the "elementary rights of man," prohibitionists will doubtless question the right of a man to make a beast of himself and cause his family to suffer, as so many men do under even the strictest license law.

That prohibitory laws, and even license laws, are not strictly enforced is granted. Would Mr. Mill abolish them all? He would thus widen the field for the practice of "the two prime virtues, self-reliance and self-control." Prohibition, he says, has never taught these virtues. To give the fullest opportunity for their development there should, if his argument be pushed a little farther, be no restraint at all, except that which the individual exercises upon himself. But if history has proved anything, it is that "the legitimate and proper use of beer, wine and spirits" is even harder to enforce than prohibition. It is a realization of this fact that has led to restrictive measures, and a growing sentiment in favor of total prohibition. The conditions and habits of the people in Canada differ so greatly from those of the people of England that the latter cannot fully appreciate the situation in this country.

GREAT RESULTS EXPECTED

The relief of denatured alcohol from the internal revenue tax as expected to produce great results in the United States. Discussing the subject the Boston Transcript says: "If the free alcohol bill goes into effect on January next, as now seems probable, it will prove one of the most sensational legislative events of many a year. The American people became aroused on this subject, and the senate has been compelled to act. The Standard Oil Company will have to get along as best it can with a competing commodity. The thing the public will have to look out for from this time forward is a 'jobber' in the bill, to prevent its becoming really effective. If this can be avoided, free alcohol when it becomes operative, will do more than anything in legislation of late years to reduce the price level in extensive lines of manufactured articles, or what is still better, to improve the quality at the same standard price. The number of articles in a great department store which will bear a different label, under untaxed grain alcohol, should be one of the pleasant surprises of the future. The number of manufactured commodities now made pocky because of the unattractive substitute which have to be employed, that will attain a new quality and do new honor to American manufacturers, should be another part of the same story. It is hardly too much to say that, unless the experience of other countries differ from our own, Republican conventions next year will be 'pointing with pride' to the boon which they have given American manufacturers in relieving alcohol, one of the most widely useful of industrial agents, of a tax which is practically prohibitive. The provisions of the bill are as follows: "The bill provides that after Jan. 1 next domestic alcohol of such degree of proof as may be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue may be withdrawn from bond without payment of internal revenue tax for use in the arts and industries and for fuel, light and power; provided said alcohol shall have been mixed in the presence and under the direction of an authorized government officer with denaturing material which destroys the character as a beverage and renders it unfit for liquid medicinal purposes. The sum of $250,000 is appropriated to carry out the provisions of the act. The additional employees under the act for the first two years are to be appointed regardless of the classified service. The secretary of the treasury is directed to report to the next session of congress the progress of the work."

The action of the board of health in determining that there must be greater care and cleanliness in connection with the city's milk supply, should be followed by continuous oversight, to see that the regulations are continually observed. The difficulty the board labors under, as this paper has already pointed out, is that a parsimonious county council cuts down the estimates and cripples it by refusing to provide sufficient funds. The people, who have had so many lessons on the need of an active and well equipped board of health, should take occasion to impress their views upon the county council.

The advice which the Hon. Mr. Fielding gave yesterday to insurance policyholders in Canada is the same that the Times and other papers have given since the insurance investigation began. Nothing has developed or is at all likely to develop to justify policy holders in letting go their policies. Whatever reform in methods the enquiry may suggest, and whatever weak points in administration may be shown, it is not even hinted in any quarter that any company is unable to meet its obligations to the public.

The alderman who will act as a subcontractor on a civic work in the market is able to show that other aldermen have done the same. It may be taken for granted that the alderman will approve of the work done by the subcontractor, when it comes before him in his aldermanic capacity. The best that can be said of such a system is that it is no worse than that which permits an alderman or his firm to sell goods to the city.

The proposal of the British government, to appropriate $22,500,000 to assist Irish laborers in securing comfortable cottages of their own, is somewhat socialist in tendency, and marks a forward step in British legislation. If, as Hon. Mr. Bryce states, a cottage and land can be provided for $850 the laborers will still be very far removed from opulence.

The news that Reggie Vanderbilt lost $200,000 in Cardiff's gambling quarters may cause a little more comment than the young man had lost it in speculation on Wall Street, but what is the real difference?

The people at the headwaters of the St. John river may as well understand that it is not with any malicious designs upon the log-drives that this town is gathering to itself the rainfall that should be distributed over the whole province.

REV. M. J. SAVAGE

(New York Commercial.) As the pastor of Henry H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate, Dr. Minot J. Savage might have been expected to yield overmuch to the materialistic forces of the day in his religious philosophy and teachings. But the eloquent colleague of Robert Collier, whose fortune it is to retire from the active work of the Unitarian ministry at the Church of the Messiah while yet the elder clergyman holds the field, has gone so far away from materialism as well nigh to have espoused the notion that matter is only an inferior expression of spirit. Dr. Savage's withdrawal from the ranks of the metropolitan clergy means a severe loss to a body now overcrowded with brilliant men. He has sustained to his associates of the cloth a relation somewhat similar to that which Stanford Brooke long sustained to the London clergy. As a teacher his gifts are those of the elegant essayist rather than the orator, and his sermons, though often highly effective in the delivery, are usually more effective in type. There is too much logic in his make-up to permit him to fall into the errors of the transcendentalists; and the vagaries of a Heber Newton he would deplore as earnestly as any follower of Huxley.

The central committee of the Independent Order of Foresters last night arranged for the annual parade of the order to divine service. It will be on Sunday morning, June 17, at St. Matthew's Presbyterian church, Douglas avenue, where the sermon will be delivered by Rev. A. H. Foster, B. D. The procession will start from the Foresters' hall, Charlotte street. The Royal Foresters will be in the parade.

ONE CAME BEFORE ME

(By Theodora Garrison.) One came before me, winged and wondrous-eyed, And laughing spake, "Behold me, I am Love!" And I, the thrice deceived, made answer, "Prove! That thou art he indeed—the Undenied!" And straight Love's laughter fled him and he sought And in his eyes I saw the great tears move (Oh, woful tears!) and at the sight thereof, "Now by thy tears I know thee, Love," I cried. Ah, many little, lower gods there be Whose laughter is as lovely as Love's own. What wonder they delude us through the years. Thus only may we guess the Deity Who's suddenly one day, his laughter flown, Love lifts a face made exquisite with pain.—From The Booklover's Magazine (May).

BEER AND HOMES

(Ottawa Citizen.) Taking for the first time the counsel of John Burns, the great labor representative in the British cabinet, to working men, "if they would spend less on beer and in attending gladiatorial combats on Saturday afternoons, they would have more to pay in rent for better houses and would do more for the welfare of their wives and children." The Peterborough Examiner, Hon. Mr. Stratton's paper, preaches this by sermon.

"In this city the average workman is steady and sober, and, therefore, as a rule, he thrives. Though, in some instances, the rate of rent may be a problem to the working man, yet in a great many cases working men can afford to laugh at high rents, for they own their own houses. This ownership was not brought about by hoarding on the part of the landlord, or by junketing and picnicking and partying on the part of the wife. The husband earned good wages, and the wife spent them wisely, and did her share in saving money and building a home. If working men would refrain from expensive habits of living, and wasteful forms of dissipation, their general state would be satisfactory—they would be less poverty, less unhygienic, and greater prosperity and comfort. It is not so much what a man earns as what he—or his wife—spends, that counts."

The doctrine propounded by the Examiner can be endorsed by scores of examples from real life in this city and hundreds of instances can be cited illustrating the part played by the wife in providing the home and keeping the wolf from the door. Given a sober, industrious husband with a knowledge of some craft and a loving thrifty wife, and one may safely predicate a happy home with ever improving fortune and competence in old age. There is no earthly reason why any young man and woman in Canada answering to the above description and in love with one another should not pool their fortunes of health, industry and economy and get busy at once in the glorious work of building up a true Canadian home where want will be unknown, happiness reign and where children through coming years will rise up to call them blessed.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

The Ontario Stock Company opened a week's engagement at the Opera House last night in a robust melodrama entitled "Lost in the World." It was a strenuous production and the villain was kept busy all the time. As a straight acting organization the company is not endowed with wonderful strength, neither is it especially weak but would come up to the average repertoire troupe. Miss Scott, the soprano, is pretty and winsome and two or three of the character parts were really well taken. The special vaudeville features, however, are excellent. The Bonnie Melba sang two selections in a manner that delighted the audience. She has a voice of wonderful range and power while her upper notes ring remarkably sweet and true. Moreover she sings with much dramatic expression. The Murrys, Pete and Marie, do an exceptionally good singing and monologue act which has the merit of a bright line of talk and jokes which are never below the ordinary. Nick Judica soon shouter and J. J. O'Donnell in a musical act were well received.

Manager Speers has the faces re-written by some popular author and thus the entertainment is never stale and its patrons know each season they are going to see something new and original. This fourth season they are to see the work of Edgar Seldon and the edition is said to be the funniest yet made, so that a good story with a well defined plot, abounding in complications and situations of the most laughable nature. The fun is natural and never forced and an auditor never loses interest in what is going on, as the action is brisk and the fun rapid. A number of high class specialties are interspersed throughout the action of the play. The company is headed by Murphy and Micks, who are ably assisted by an expert crowd of fun makers. Nearly every member of the company is a vaudeville specialist; consequently many interesting specialties can be confidently expected.

New York, May 26.—According to contracts signed by Joe Weber yesterday, Miss Stella Mayhew will appear next Monday evening at Joe Weber's Theatre as the leading comedienne, taking Miss Marie Dresser's place in "Twiddle-Twiddle" and in the two burlesques, "The Jays" and "The Squaw Man's Girl of the Golden West."

The performance at Drury Lane Theatre, in London, in honor of the jubilee of Ellen Terry, will probably take place on the 12th of June. Arrangements for the program have not yet been perfected. A. W. Pinero is the chairman of the special committee.

Tyrone Power is to be starred next season in Barabas, the dramatization of Marie Corelli's novel.

Louis James is to make an elaborate revival of The Merry Wives of Windsor.

Theodore Kremer's new melodrama for next season includes Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl, A Woman of Fire, For Her Daily Bread, and Honor Among Thieves.

Lulu Glaser is to appear in a George Cohan play—a strenuous combination.

Ada Rehan sailed for London on Saturday and will immediately go to Cumberland to pass the summer in her bungalow.

When Sir Charles Wyndham and Mary Moore visit America next season they will be seen in Herbert Henry Daves' Captain Drew on Leave, and also David Garrick.

J. I. C. Clarke, who dramatized The Prince of India, has accepted and is exercising the position of press agent for the Standard Oil Company at the New York office.

Channing Pollock is writing a play for James K. Hackett, entitled The Right to Happiness.

AN ENGLISHMAN'S VIEWS CONCERNING PROHIBITION

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir—At a recent weekly dinner of a London literary club, where plain living alternates with high thinking, post-prandial eloquence and wit found ample vent in discussing the question, "Is Hummer the Want?" Many were the specimens cited, pro and con, and as proof of its abounding vitality in the land of the maple leaf was quoted a letter in the Halifax Chronicle, quoted in part by the Times, advocating the prohibition of cockroaches.

Satire and ridicule are the best weapons with which to fight intolerance, and where there is any appreciation of humor, shafts are bound to strike home. Strange that the advocacy of total abstinence from drinking induces greater intolerance in language than any other topic!

factor in national revenue, it must, necessarily always be subject to control and supervision; but subject to these limitations while it is contented and protected by the government, the legitimate needs or desires of individuals are entitled to their proper gratification throughout the Dominion, as long as any trader is prepared to meet them. The deprivation of such facilities, by the despotic will even of the majority to make locally the test of legality, is neither immoral nor an unjustifiable encroachment on personal liberty, a slur and a slander on the minority. It stigmatizes moreover as an offense what, inherently, is neither immoral nor illegal, and is calculated to generate that respect for the law which is the sole support for its due observance.

Is there not in the moral treatment of this subject of the consumption of alcohol a begging of the whole question, induced either a failure to grasp the real point at issue, or, by what is immeasurably worse, a deliberate attempt to evade or pervert it? The use of intoxicants, per se, is either harmful physically and morally, or not. The evils of abuse are conceded; but a surfeit of tea, or mutton, or fruit, or anything else equally entail their Nemesis.

In view of the universality of the habit throughout the globe, the applications of medical science, as exemplified both in private and hospital practice, the place of alcohol in dietetics and therapeutics is established beyond cavil. Among the cradles of all civilization, there is only one water-drinker, the assual, the lethargic, the decadent Turk.

With all the uncalculated panaceas for the salvation of society and the regeneration of mankind inflicted on a silent community, one is tempted to exclaim with the great satirist on your side of the water—"Wal it's a marcy we've got folks to tell us."

Although the particular form in which the stimulant appears is practically a matter of climate, the taste for alcohol, in some guise or other, is so cosmopolitan and world-wide, as to indicate an inherent natural craving, a physiological want which could not be met by the scientific authors have defined a stimulant as that which renders available for use, or releases, pent-up energy, and it is, or is charged with depressants, that the desire was felt for a glass of wine or other intoxicant. The craving for stimulant is one inherited from primal times. Primitive man found his in the chase, in avoiding, or seeking for, his enemies, and in warfare. Civilized man in a healthy state finds his stimulant in the struggle for existence, theatre-going, race meetings, gambling, or even holidays. When work was unnecessary and amusements palled man had to invent some false excitement.

Despite the ever widening average devoted to grapes and cereals for alcoholic purpose, which the skill of man by the invention of the still has been able to preserve for future use, the world grows physically and morally weaker, precisely in those countries like Belgium, Germany and France, where the consumption of alcohol is the highest. The traffic in it is virtually a barometer of national prosperity, rising with the general wealth and falling as national trade declines.

Morally, can any sound argument be used against the legitimate and proper use of beer, wine, or spirits? If yes, then how illogical is the attitude of prohibitionists! Instead of a policy of pin-pricks, by trying to stem some of the little tributaries of distribution, if they have the courage of their convictions, why do they not boldly attack the enemy at the source, and prevent importation of production? Cakes and ale, if immortal in the settler's cabin are not a bit more virtuous than a royal palace, but as long as the classes, by virtue of their greater financial resources, are permitted to procure their supplies and to indulge their taste without any vexatious interference with their personal comfort or convenience, the elementary rights of man demand that similar freedom of action should be accorded to the masses. As the liquor trade is such an important prohibition areas, whether in the States or in Canada, cannot but, have smiled at the futility of the attempt to abolish stimulants by Act of Parliament. The only effect is to drive the trade underground, to produce a plentiful crop of Peckhamfian vice, while the same hypocrite puts its tongue in its cheek, and orders its whiskey in apple barrels.

Prohibition has never taught the two great virtues—self-reliance, and self-control. Dr. Magee, the celebrated Bishop of Rochester struck a vital note when he launched his well known program that he would rather see England free, than sober. "Free" to evolve her own destiny, by a self-reliance and self-control that he would rather see England free, than sober. "Free" to evolve her own destiny, by a self-reliance and self-control that he would rather see England free, than sober.

With all the uncalculated panaceas for the salvation of society and the regeneration of mankind inflicted on a silent community, one is tempted to exclaim with the great satirist on your side of the water—"Wal it's a marcy we've got folks to tell us."

TWO I. C. R. CASES IN EXCHARGE COURT

One an Action for Damages for Injury and the Other for a Rebate.

An Ottawa despatch gives this summary of two important I. C. R. cases, arising in Nova Scotia, in the exchequer court, before Mr. Justice Burdick.

The case of Oshesaw vs. The King began last February, and was regarded as a test case against the Dominion Government for damages arising out of injuries sustained by the applicant while riding as a passenger in a train running over the rails of the Intercolonial Railway on the 2nd of February, 1904, near Millford Station, N. S., when said train was derailed, owing to the negligence of the Crown's servants in charge of the train.

The applicant charges that the accident was due to undue speed and defective rails. The evidence given before the court in February showed that the train was that known as the C. P. R. train, which then left Halifax at 8:40 a. m. for carrying passengers over the rails of the Intercolonial. The case in this train was all C. P. R. case, but the employees were intercolonial officials. The theory of the case put forward by the applicant at the February sitting was that it was due to defective trucks on one of the cars in the train, which would have been ascertained if the train had been properly inspected before leaving Halifax.

The applicant offered to prove this, as it was not alleged in the petition. Counsel for applicant obtained leave to move at a later date for an order to amend his petition so as to introduce this evidence, and asked for an adjournment of the case to allow the applicant to do so. The court was then in New York, to attend and give evidence. The court, judgment was given in favor of the applicant, who was then in New York, to attend and give evidence. The court, judgment was given in favor of the applicant, who was then in New York, to attend and give evidence.

Many varieties of headache exist, some most prevalent being sci or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, etc.

Headache is an effect of disease, the cry of the suffering body for relief from some depressing disorder.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed in order to cure the headache permanently. Wrong action of the stomach, liver or bowels is responsible for nine out of ten cases of headache.

To stick headache (a very common form) there is sometimes nausea and vomiting and usually constipation.

In nearly all forms of headache

has proved itself a specific - a medicine that cures where all others failed.

Keep the stomach, liver and bowels in perfect working order by the use of nature's regulator and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters, which cures all forms of headache by removing the cause.

Miss L. Smith, Morrisburg, Ont., writes: "I desire to let you know how much good Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled with headaches all the time, and could get no relief, until a friend told me of your Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles of it, I can say that I am completely cured."

NOT THE SCENERY; BUT STRONG MEN

What Most Impressed Prof. Kennedy in the Lonely Mountains of the West.

(Toronto Globe.)

Professor H. A. A. Kennedy of Knox College has just returned from a trip to Vancouver, where he took part in a conference held under the auspices of the Synod of British Columbia. He was greatly impressed by what he saw - the vastness of the country, the towering heights of the mountains, the variety of scenery, and the wonderful possibilities.

What impressed me most deeply, and what surprised me most of all, was not the prairies or the cities or the mountains, but the men who are doing the Church's work, the missionaries from the lonely mountain stations and the ministers in the raw, new towns. The strength of these men, their brain power, their intellectual alertness, and the breadth of their culture - that impressed me most of all. The way these men grasped the subtlest points and showed themselves at home in philosophical and theological literature was really splendid. I heard a paper on the Church and the Labor Problem from a man from the interior of British Columbia that for knowledge of the facts, mastery of the principles and thorough grasp of the whole question was as good as any I have ever seen. The Canadian Church has much to be proud of, and the country has much to be thankful for, that in these pioneer settlements with their seething life there are men of the temper and the training such as I met at Vancouver."

What a Letter Will Do. A professor, ancient the importance of trifles, read from his note book these absurd sentences, each made by the omission of a single letter:

"The conflict was dreadful and the enemy was repulsed with great slaughter."

"When the president's wife entered the humble sitting room of the miner she was politely offered a hair."

"A man was yesterday arrested on the charge of having eaten a crabman for demanding more than his fare."

"An employee in the service of the government was accused of having stolen a small ox from the mill. The stolen property was found in his vest pocket."

KEEP LIFE POLICIES

Hon. Mr. Fielding Advises Policy Holders Not to be Frightened by Insurance Disclosures.

OTTAWA, May 28.—The matter of insurance investigation occupied the greater part of the time at today's session. W. F. Maclean moved for a parliamentary investigation of life insurance matters in Canada. He thought the investigation by commission was too slow and that a committee of the house would be more in touch with the facts.

STEAM vs. SAIL

Nine Small Steamers in Commission—All Doing a Thriving Coastwise Trade With This Port.

This spring a large number of small steamers are trading between this port and ports in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, all of which are doing a thriving business. These small steamers are taking the places of sailing vessels or small schooners, which, according to present conditions, will in a few years be a thing of the past. These small steamers are giving quicker returns and dispatch to the city merchants here, who trade with Nova Scotia and other points on the Bay of Fundy.

All the captains of the small steamers trading between this port and other points in the following is the list of steamers now in commission: Steamer Aurora, 100 tons, Captain Ingersoll, calls at Digby, Bear River and intermediate ports. Steamer Brunswick, 70 tons, Captain Potter, calls at Chatham, N. S., Wolfville, and other ports. Steamer Westport III, 60 tons, Captain Captain Powell, calls at Westport, Yarmouth and other ports. POLICE COURT

William Dixon Charged with Assault Allowed to Go on His Wife's Request.

After one drunk had been disposed of in the police court this morning, William Dixon was asked to answer the charge of aggravated assault upon his wife. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and elected to try the case before a jury.

Mrs. Dixon swore that on Wednesday night her husband entered her home and struck her down and knocked her in the side. He followed her up and struck her in the eye and on the head. Sarah Jane Dixon was present at the time and Dixon offered the excuse that he had been drinking.

It appeared in court that a Mrs. Kennedy was the seed from which the Dixon trouble had sprung, as she had been living with Dixon. Mrs. Kennedy said that she did not wish anything done with her husband if he would agree to live with her and keep away from the Kennedy woman, who is also of the African race.

Dixon agreed to give up the company of Mrs. Kennedy and go to live with his wife in the North End.

Judge Ritchie pointed out to the prisoner that he had inflicted several injuries upon his wife and his honor had instructed Dr. Berryman to examine the injuries of the woman. The doctor had reported that none of the injuries were serious.

His honor said that he would adjudge the prisoner guilty and would fine him $100 or three months in jail. The judge said, though, that as Dixon's wife wished the sentence to be allowed to stand against him he would allow him to go. If, however, his wife complained again about his conduct or the police reported him in the future he would be collected or he would go to jail for three months.

The judge also told Dixon that he could have Mrs. Kennedy ad him before him on a charge of adultery.

Offers also been made to some local players to go to Glace Bay. The departure of the two Finmores will leave the Trojans in a weakened condition.

FAVORS AMENDED DECK LOAD LAW

Percy W. Thomson Says if Adopted it Will be Good Thing for St. John.

Percy W. Thomson, of Wm. Thomson & Co., said this morning, in speaking of the proposed amendment to the deck load law, that the change would be a welcome one to shippers, and he thought it would prove more satisfactory to underwriters and others interested. There has always been a difficulty in securing the decks when the rain here say 4 or 4 1/2 feet high, while the decks were only allowed to be piled 3 feet, as there was little or no chance to lash them properly. He thought that as steamers are allowed to carry 4 or 4 1/2 feet in the winter months, they should be allowed to carry that amount, carry cattle on the stowage deck, but those that did not would have a chance to make it up with the deck. He thought it would be a good thing for St. John if the law was amended as proposed.

Daniel Daley states that last night about eight o'clock on Douglas Avenue he was robbed of $14 by Hugh Connell and Daley has reported the matter to the police.

Daley's story is to the effect that he and Connell were drinking together and the latter in the presence of others deliberately put his hand in Daley's pocket and extracted therefrom $14.

No cognizance was taken of Daley's story this morning as he had not wholly recovered from his celebration.
