

DEBATE EVENING, HOUSE GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS

Hon. George Graham remarked that the newspapers were full of this subject. "As a matter of fact," he said, "we are all quite unsettled about it and I would like to ask the Prime Minister whether or not he has made up his mind as to his successor."

"Except in so far as he can get relief from the newspapers, the hon. gentleman will have to remain unsettled for a time," replied Mr. Borden.

"Is it the intention of the government to allow the position to remain vacant for a considerable time?" queried Hon. Frank Oliver.

"A position of such importance cannot be filled in a moment," said Mr. Borden.

"Can the Prime Minister tell us if there are any applicants for the position?" asked Mr. McLean of Halifax.

"Up to the present time not one," said Mr. Borden.

Opposition members then introduced the matter of the selection of a site for an Empire building in London. Hon. Mr. Emmerson made special reference to the Aldwich site recommended by Earl Gray.

Mr. Borden said that there had been negotiations for the Westminster hospital site, but these had been discontinued. The advantage of purchasing the Aldwich had been urged upon the government but nothing had been done.

Hon. Frank Oliver drew attention to the fact that owing to his great wealth Lord Strathcona had been able to represent the Dominion with particular credit. In connection with the appointment of his successor he considered that the question of an increased remuneration might well be considered.

Mr. Borden agreed the question was a proper one. There had not been an idea in the minds of the ministers that in connection with the naming of a new high commissioner it would be necessary to materially increase the amount of salary paid.

In reply to another question, Mr. Borden stated that the late high commissioner had not suggested a successor.

The discussion was closed by Mr. Graham who suggested that the government should not consider the appointment of any minister in connection with both Canadian and imperial affairs.

Mr. A. K. McLean, Halifax, then brought up the matter of the usefulness of the conservation commission in connection with the consideration of that part of the estimates devoted to this body. He was curious as to whether the work of the commission could not now be performed by other government departments.

Mr. Borden said he had supported the establishment of the commission and saw no reason to change his views. He would go into the matter more fully later.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier rose to commend the work of the commission. It had been modeled on a similar body in the United States and its work had been eminently useful. The forestry works had been beyond praise as was particularly instanced by the decrease in the waste from forest fires in Ontario and Quebec. Its chairman was a thoroughly competent man. He recommended appropriation for a forestry congress. Hon. Geo. P. Graham also favored the commission's work but asked for reasons of his own, for a list of its members.

Mr. Foster explained briefly the advantageous plans now in operation by which the British consuls abroad render service to Canada. The minister expressed the hope that the time was not far distant when young men in this country would find a career in the trades service. It was not thought reticently today under the civil service act, he said, but he hoped to have the commissioner's report put upon a permanent basis. He would like also, wherever possible, to have men speaking the language of the country in which they were placed.

The Naval Estimates. When the estimates of the naval department were reached, Mr. A. K. MacLean, Halifax, was on his feet at once. He said that the government was making no effort to administer the act, the opposition would be justified in refusing to vote. There was no ship in the service, the Rainbow being out of active service and the Niobe tied to a dock at Halifax. He believed that the government had been a party to forcing men off the ships and had made no effort to complete enlistment. While refusing to carry out the act the government was actually increasing expenditures in this department. Oliver was fooling and trifling with the public and wasting public money.

Hon. J. D. Hason said that Mr. MacLean was wrong in saying that the appropriation for the naval service was increasing. Only the smaller part of this vote was for the navy, $31,607, while the balance, $76,490 was for wireless service, the tidal surveys and all the other work that was included in this department.

Evening Session. The first of the evening session was taken up with a number of opposition queries in regard to the future of the Canadian naval cadets now on training. Mr. Gauvrieu, of Temiscouata, introduced the subject, stating that he had a son taking this course. He wished to know whether the cadets now on board H. M. S. Berwick in Bermuda, would set a year's training at the naval college at Halifax later.

graduates therefrom could either enter the British navy or the hydrographic survey. The naval college in future would not be exclusively for naval purposes, but like the Royal Military College at Kingston, fit a young man for other than naval subjects, such as hydrographic work, marine engineering, etc.

Dr. Clark of Red Deer complimented the government on its effort to wear itself from its contribution policy back to the original one. He was followed by Mr. Sinclair of Guysboro, who reiterated the query as to the government's idea in increasing naval estimates.

Hon. Mr. Hason explained that by an arrangement with the British government the dockyards at Halifax and Esquimaux had to be kept up. The naval college at Halifax was being continued. There were 150 men on the Niobe, employed for a certain number of years and a like number on the Rainbow. The Marine and Fisheries Department dealt with a greater number of subjects than any other, and the naval service branch discharged so many of these duties that to abolish the naval service tomorrow would make little difference to the expenditure. The Niobe and Rainbow, he said, were now in a better state of repair than they had been under the late government. It was very doubtful if the Rainbow could be disposed of at any price, or the Niobe either.

Hon. Mr. Oliver again asked what the policy of the government with regard to the navy would be.

To the question, the Minister of Marine replied that the question was proper, inasmuch as Mr. Borden had already declared that before a permanent naval policy had been embarked upon the house would be advised and the people given a chance to record their decision.

Dr. Michael Clark suggested that the Rainbow be sold to the British Admiralty for target purposes, a suggestion which, replied Mr. Hason, would have every consideration.

Messrs. Carroll, of Kings, P. E. I., Turgeon, Gloucester, J. B., and Sinclair, Guysboro, spoke against the appropriation while Mr. H. Boulay, Rimouski, supported it, stating that the Liberals were to blame for the present state of affairs regarding the navy.

and the boat sank so quickly it is a wonder that many more were not drowned.

"The Nantucket stood by us and those of us who could, climbed on her rope ladder. Those who were not able to follow us were lifted with ropes placed under their arms. We then proceeded to Norfolk and did not see the Hamilton until about six o'clock this morning."

The law of the season that women and children must be saved first, cost the chief wireless operator of the Monroë his life. He was standing by boat No. 3, when he saw a woman without a life belt and promptly gave her his. Mr. Walker's statement counts him among the dead. The woman was saved. One of the passengers, a mining engineer, followed the example of the chief wireless operator. What became of him has not yet been learned.

But for the fact that there had been time to adjust life preservers many more lives would have been lost. As it was those rescued remained in the water from half to three-quarters of an hour before they were gotten out.

E. P. Lyons, whose name did not appear among those that were saved, by wireless this morning was not drowned. He was among the first of the passengers to come off the Nantucket after she had tied up at her dock. Clad only in half, he gave a graphic description of the collision, and the events that followed. "It was just one-thirty o'clock," he said, "and very foggy. I had undressed but had not gone to bed. The fog horn was blowing every minute. Suddenly it blew twice and repeated the double blast twice. Then almost like putting on the brakes, the Monroë stopped and I knew there was something the matter. Rushing on deck I saw somebody getting ready to put a lifeboat over. I asked him if there was any danger; he replied that he did not know but wanted to be ready."

Almost before the words left his mouth the Nantucket struck. I ran down stairs, tried to dress, but the ship was listing so that I could not stand up, so I hurried back. There were very few passengers on deck and one boat was overboard. As it pushed away Captain Johnson told me to jump in as there was room for one more.

"I had to jump to make it, and I left Captain Johnson standing on the deck of the ship. The boat went back and he got in. The Monroë went down easily and was below the water within twelve minutes after the collision. "The crew behaved splendidly, as far as I could see," continued Lyons. "There was not very many women on the ship, but they were allowed to get into the boats first. There was no effort on the part of the men to crowd them. While we were in the lifeboat we picked up a man and a woman. He was holding her by the hair in his teeth and was almost exhausted when we pulled him in. The woman died."

"There were many people who must have been caught in their staterooms. The collision occurred so suddenly

MRS. STUYVESANT FISHER, WHO HAS DANCED EVOLVED TO TAKE PLACE OF THE MUCH CRITICISED TANGO

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fisher, of New York, deciding to take the same stand as do many churchmen against the overdoing of the tango, requested Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle for their exhibition at her house recently as an after dinner entertainment to produce a new dance that should be as free from the possibility of criticism as was the stately minuet. So the professionals got together in their studio and evolved the formal and reticent "innovation" gavotte.

The dance marks a frank surrender to the criticism that has of late been heaped upon the tango, which general term, especially when printed in large type, now includes about everything but the old waltz and two-step, the debonair one-step and the dainty true tango. It was danced to tango music, with steps and poses of the minuet type, and most of the dance was done by Mr. and Mrs. Castle standing two feet from each other. They could have danced it just as well if Mrs. Castle had worn a hoopskirt as big around as a taxicab.

An Operation for Appendicitis was ordered by his doctor. But Complete Cure was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure. Dr. Chase's medicines have proven of wonderful benefit in our home as the Olintment cured my little girl of a severe burn when nothing else would bring relief."

YOUTHFUL AVIATOR RECEIVES BAD FALL. Youngsters have Three Wireless Stations and go in for all kinds of Science. Scientists are springing up all over the town. Outside of the Radio Syndicate, there are three miniature "wireless" stations, some distances apart, actually sending and receiving "wireless" messages.

A ten-year-old son of a prominent citizen has departed from that branch of science and for some weeks has been quietly constructing an airship. A few days ago several of his young associates gathered around the shed to witness his "maiden trip" from the roof. In describing it, one of them said: "It worked all right and flew about five feet, then something gave out. Anyhow, the boy received bad bruises and had to carry his arm in a sling for some time—but that boy will be heard from again.—North Shore Leader."

Sheriff and Mrs. John O'Brien and son Leonard left yesterday for Montreal to attend the big automobile show and will also visit Ottawa, Toronto, New York and Boston.—North Shore Leader.

The work of discharging the cargo was given to members of the Portland Longshoremen's Society, according to the agreement made by them in November with the various steamship managers, and came in very handy, as there are many of them out of employment just at present, the work at the English steamer wharves thus far this winter having been hardly up to the standard of some previous seasons.

ONE MY LIFE OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

They Did Me More Good Than All Other Treatments Combined.

Mrs. H. S. Williams, Palmerston, Ont., June 20th, 1913. "I really believe that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives.' Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctors' bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old stomach trouble and distressing headaches nearly drove me wild. Some time ago I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use. 'Fruit-a-tives' completely cured me.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noted my improved appearance and asked me the reason. I replied, 'I am taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' He said, 'Well, if 'Fruit-a-tives' are making you look so well go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can.' 'Fruit-a-tives' are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SNOW ON ROOF KEPT FIRE FROM SPREADING.

Caribou, Me., Jan. 30—M. E. O'Regan, who sustained a loss estimated at $16,000 when his two wooden blocks burned here Thursday, has practically decided upon rebuilding. It was due to the absence of wind that the entire business section of the town did not go up in smoke. As it is, the loss will amount to $20,000.

In addition to the damage to the O'Regan buildings, his restaurant and billiard hall, Miss Evelyn A. Smith lost $1,000 on her millinery stock. Byron O. Hoyes, $1,500 at his jewelry store, and A. V. Gould, $1,600 at his bookstore. It is thought that the fire started from an overheated stove in Miss Smith's establishment. The fact that the roofs of adjoining buildings were covered with snow and ice, prevented them from catching. The firemen had a hard fight with the flames, the temperature being below zero. A number of them suffered from frost bitten faces, hands and feet.

BRAKEMAN'S LIFE SAVED BY CLOTHING

Badly Injured in Fall off Freight — Crushed to Death if Clothing Hadn't Caught in Rigging.

Special to The Standard
Presque Isle, Me., Jan. 30—William Leavitt of Island Falls, twenty-one years old and a Bangor and Aroostook brakeman, is making a brave fight for life in the Presque Isle General Hospital here, after terrible injuries received in a peculiar accident at Squa Pan the other night. His left arm is broken, his shoulder is dislocated, and three of his ribs fractured, but the doctors say he has even chance for recovery.

Leavitt was working on a freight train which was making up at Squa Pan about midnight. He either fell, or was jared from the end of a car. He was saved from instant death by his clothing having caught in the brake rigging. No one saw the accident and, terribly injured as he was, Leavitt was dragged a long distance before his cries were finally heard by the other members of the crew and the train was brought to a stop. He was at once rushed here on a special train, but his condition was so serious that the doctors didn't dare operate until the next day. Leavitt has wonderful vitality and this may pull him through, the physicians say.

WAS CONFINED TO HIS Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush of the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1914.

TIME TO GET TO WORK.

If the port of St. John is to get a share of the mail business between Canada and Great Britain, which will mean that the most important steamers in the trans-Atlantic trade will make this port their terminus, it is time for an earnest effort along that line. The Halifax Board of Trade is already working to get a pronouncement in favor of Halifax from other cities in Canada. At a meeting of the Moncton Board of Trade on Thursday night a message was received from the Halifax Board asking their Moncton conferees to pronounce in favor of Halifax. Moncton quite properly refrained from expressing an opinion in the case, and it is possible they are waiting to see what St. John is going to do before stating their preference.

It has been shown conclusively that from Sable Island to Montreal is about two hours shorter by way of St. John than by way of Halifax. It is known also, despite the statements of Capt. Cliff, Mr. F. W. Wallace and others, and the silly canvasses of a section of the Halifax press, that the Bay of Fundy is as safe as any similar coastal water in the world, and that there can be no objection on that score to the largest and fastest ships coming here. Next year St. John will have better harbor facilities than ever before and it appears to be high time that something was being done to bring the claims and advantages of St. John to the attention of the powers that be.

In the House of Commons, on Thursday, Hon. J. D. Hazen made an admirable defence of the Bay route and the port of St. John, for which he is entitled to all credit. There is no desire on the part of St. John to arouse hostility against Halifax, but the Board of Trade in the latter city seems to be inviting a direct comparison between the two ports and soliciting the support of Boards of Trade in other parts of Canada, and even in the province of New Brunswick, as in favor of Halifax and against St. John. This being the case, it would seem as if St. John should take steps to tell the world that this port has advantages of facilities, geographical position by two hours, and a perfectly safe sea lane from the Atlantic ocean to the docks in St. John harbor. In the search for business St. John has many things to sell. It is a general axiom of business that the size of the advertising appropriation and effort has a very close relation to the volume of business. The present arrangement whereby the Empire steamers are stopping at Halifax is but temporary. The C. P. R. president has said that next winter all the C. P. R. boats will come to this port. It is time to get ready for next season's business.

FREE WHEAT

One of the features of the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne in Ottawa during the week was the motion of Dr. Neely calling for the abolition of the duty on wheat and flour entering Canada from the United States. The idea being of course that Canadian wheat and flour would enter the United States free of duty. Dr. Neely and other speakers on the opposition side of the house pointed to the fact that since the reduction of the United States tariff on live stock thousands of head of Canadian cattle had crossed the line into the United States market, and asked that the western wheat raiser have the same opportunity as the cattle raiser, of selling his product in the United States.

There is nothing in the general conditions of the two countries to suggest that the adoption of such a plan as suggested by Dr. Neely in his amendment would greatly affect international trade. There are some things to suggest," says the Montreal Gazette, "that such effect as it would have would neither benefit the great Canadian milling industry or the greater Canadian agricultural industry.

Like Mr. Lemieux's free food declaration, however, its advocacy may serve a temporary purpose. It can hardly serve a permanent one. The tariff is a matter of many sides. There is nothing sacred about it or its schedules. It is simply a means to an end. It is the main source of the country's revenue, and when it is being revised the revenue and the charges it has to bear as well as the prospective minor benefit to any class or section of the community have to be kept in view.

The government has to remember this, whatever the free lunches of the opposition choose to do. Probably, also, the majority of the people, when appeal to them is made, will take the government side. The majority of forty-four in a house of 172 members, when the Laurier amendment was put to the vote, suggests that they will

NEW YORK'S NEWEST "COP."

J. P. Mitchell, mayor of New York, it is reported, has offered to Col. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, the position of Commissioner of Police of New York City and it is also reported that the canal builder has accepted. In his work in Panama Col. Goethals achieved a greater reputation for efficiency than that of any other captain of industry and in the new position to which he has been called he will have the opportunity of either adding to the reputation already won or impairing it.

In the present condition of affairs in New York it is a big man's "job" to efficiently administer the police department. If Col. Goethals is true to his record he will not take office unless it is with the understanding that he is to have the same almost autocratic power given to him in Panama. If he is allowed a free hand to follow only his own desire in the remodeling of the force which, since the Roosevelt murder, has been ticked as the home and abiding place of vice and graft, there will be no doubt that his work will result in a vast improvement. Even with restrictions as they now are a man of Col. Goethals' great ability and energy might do good work, but he would not be the man he is if he were forced to go to a political boss or a precinct leader to ask the privilege of dismissing a grafter or promoting a worthy man over the heads of machine appointees.

Certainly there is no department of civic administration in America that stands in more urgent need of a thorough and non-partisan cleansing than the New York police force and if Col. Goethals takes hold of the work that seems to be at his hand every city on the continent should watch the experiment with the keenest interest.

It will be interesting and instructive to learn if the almost despotic military methods used by the builder of the Panama Canal will prove effective in the administration of an organization which is popularly credited with possessing almost as much secret machinery as Tammany Hall in its palmy days. Another interesting point about it is that if Col. Goethals accepts this engagement it will be in the face of many other offers, including one from the city of Dayton, Ohio, which, on January 1st last, wanted him to take entire charge of the civic administration and which he refused. However, with the work of reforming the New York police force he should have his hands and mind well occupied for a considerable space of time.

PARCELS POST.

Postmaster-General Pelletier's statement in the House of Commons that parcels post will be inaugurated in two weeks has not been exceeded in importance by any announcement made in the House in some time.

The extent to which an organized and equipped parcels post system may enter into the daily life of the people, is so tremendous that everyone will appreciate the real significance of the announcement.

It will soon become evident that while the leader of the opposition has been talking of theoretical ways of reducing the cost of living, it has remained for the Government to take a step that will bring the producer and the consumer into the closer relationship and at a minimum of expense.

It should occur to all but the partisan that in giving effect to parcels post in Canada the postmaster-general is undertaking a task that must have baffled a less courageous administrator. Parcels post even in the crowded centres of population in the nation of ninety millions adjoining us has had its difficulties. There is, however, every reason to believe that in Canada the system will be a success from the outset.

The Liberals are almost as consistent and united on the free food question as on the Naval aid matter. While Sir Wilfrid Laurier eloquently pleads for the removal of food duties, which at the present time protect the Canadian farmer from competition by the United States, one of his followers in Quebec, Rodolphe Lemieux, asks for an increased duty on tobacco leaf, in order to protect the Quebec agriculturist who raises tobacco. Protect the French-Canadian tobacco grower in Quebec, but remove protection from the farmers in all the other provinces in Canada.

Arranging Approaches

Hon. John Morrissey, provincial commissioner of public works, was in the city yesterday in connection with securing more land for the approaches to the new highway bridge that is being built across the St. John river at the Falls. It was decided to take over the Morgan and Nugent properties between Douglas avenue and Stral Shore road, so that the road make the proper approach to the new bridge. Arrangements were being made yesterday for arbitrators.

Diary of Events

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

K—Historic Days—17th Feb. 1877. In 1780 he operated with Sir Henry Clinton in the siege of Charleston, S. C. In 1783 he was admiral of the blue, and on the last day of January in the following year he died.

On this date in 1839 Lord Durham's famous report on conditions in the North American colonies was sent in to the colonial office, and a few days later it was communicated to the British Parliament. Considered as the fruit of a labor of only six months, this report was remarkably complete in its summary of conditions and sentiments and tendencies in the provinces. He advocated responsible government, and as a result of the upper and lower provinces of Canada. The report was bitterly criticized, but it formed the basis of the great Dominion of the future.

January 31 is the birthday of Ulrio Stonewall Jackson, Dunbar, famous sculptor, at London, Ont., 1827.

THE PASSING DAY

CELEBRATES CENTENARY.

Faculty, students and alumni of Cornell University will celebrate today the centenary of the birth of Henry Williams Sage, one of the foremost men of the State of New York. Sage was the founder of Sage College for Women.

Sage was born at Middletown, Conn., Jan. 31, 1814, and was a descendant of the Sage family who settled at Middletown in 1652. He made a fortune out of the lumber industry in Canada and the West, where he had established factories. At one time he was the largest land owner in Michigan. He became a trustee of Cornell soon after its founding. His estate included the Cornell building, the university library building, $260,000; and endowment, $300,000; the Sage School of Philosophy, $200,000; the university library building, $260,000; and endowment, $300,000; the Sage School of Philosophy, $200,000; the university library building, $260,000; and endowment, $300,000.

"GO-TO-CHURCH SUNDAY."

The call issued by Chicago religious bodies for a general observance of tomorrow as "Go-to-Church Sunday" has brought favorable responses from clergymen, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, all over the United States and Canada. Every city and town between the Atlantic and the Pacific has been asked through the press to join in the movement, and while the observance is likely to be far from universal, it is probably that many people will go to church tomorrow who have not attended in months or years—provided the weather is favorable!

If all the people of the United States should accept the invitation to attend religious services tomorrow, the churches would be utterly inadequate. The total seating capacity of churches and synagogues in the United States, according to the latest available statistics, is 58,536,830, which leaves about two-fifths of the population unprovided for. The seating capacity, however, is much greater than the membership of religious bodies, which is 36,688,165 out of a total population now including those affiliated by family ties, there are about 75,000,000 Christians, both Catholic and Protestant, in the United States, and about 1,100,000 Jews who retain allegiance to the ancient faith.

Canada is vastly more religious than the United States, as the last census shows that of the 7,206,645 inhabitants of the Dominion, less than 4,000 are professedly hostile to the Christian faith. This is all the more remarkable in view of the large French population in Canada. In France, hostility to Christianity and all supernatural religions, which had its beginning with Voltaire and the other great free-thinkers of the eighteenth century, has grown until government and people are permeated with the spirit of free thought. French-Canadians have remained aloof from this movement, and practically all of them have remained true to the old faith.

The Roman Catholic Church leads in membership in both the United States and Canada. Methodists stand second in the Union and third in the Dominion. Baptists have third place in the United States, and fifth in Canada. Lutherans come fourth in the United States, and sixth in Canada. Presbyterians, second in Canada, and fifth in the United States, and Anglicans, fourth in Canada, are seventh in the United States.

A Straight Tip.

A middle-aged couple, made suddenly rich through an unexpected turn of fortune's wheel, were visiting the M. P. from their district at his Ottawa residence. A breakfast was the first morning after their arrival, the woman, nervously trying to chip off the top of an egg with her knife, attached to the problem, "I don't know what the egg was knocked under the table. Not knowing just what was the proper thing to do under the circumstances she said to her husband, "Hank! Hank!" she whispered, "I have dropped an egg. What shall I do?" "Don't cackle," came the matter-of-fact reply.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

AND HE DID.

When They "Cussed."
Lady—"Why, you naughty boy, I never heard such language since the day I was born."
Small Boy—"Yes, ma'am; I s'pose dere wuz a good deal of cussin' de day you wuz born."

Why They Were Wild.

"When I was shipwrecked in South America," said Capt. Bovsprit, "I came across a tribe of wild women who had no tongues." "Mercy!" cried one of his listeners of the fair sex. "How could they talk?" "They couldn't!" snapped the old salt. "That's what made 'em wild!"

Still Had It.

An old negro was taken ill and called in a physician of his own race to prescribe for him; but the old man did not seem to improve and eventually a white physician was summoned. Soon after his arrival Dr. Blank felt the old man's pulse for a moment, and examined his tongue. "Did your other doctor take your temperature?" he asked. "I don't know, boss," the old man answered feebly. "I hain't missed anything but my watch as yet."

How to Beautify a Weatherbeaten Face

(From Beauty and Health.)
It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by dirt, wind or cold. Ordinary mercurized wax, used like cold cream, will transform the worst old complexion into one of snowy whiteness and velvety softness. It literally peels off the outer veil of surface skin, but so gently, gradually, there's no discoloring. The worn-out skin comes off, not in patches, but evenly, in tiny particles, leaving no evidence of the treatment. The summer's healthy under-skin forming the new complexion is one of captivating loveliness. One ounce of mercurized wax, to be had at any drug store, is enough to remove any coarse, scallied, pimpled, freckled retiring or chapped skin. Apply before retiring, washing it off mornings.

Bright Children And Others

The difference between a dunce and a bright child may be the difference in their eyesights. Many a scholar has found it impossible to study because of weak eyes.

If your child is not doing so well in his school work as you think he should it is your duty to have his eyes examined.

Not only that, he may get along better in school, but also to avoid the risk of doing his eyes permanent injury.

Bring the child in to us any morning and we will examine his eyes and tell you just what they need.

An Awkward Question.

The curts of a large and fashionable church was endeavoring to teach the significance of white to a Sunday school class. "Why," said he, "does a bride invariably desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?" As no one answered he explained: "White," said he, "stands for joy, and the wedding is the most joyous occasion of a woman's life." A small boy inquired: "Why do the men all wear black?"

Exceeded Her Duty.

"Ma! ma!" "Why, what is the matter?" was the reply. "Well, you told Mary to wash my face, and she's washing my ears, too!"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL NEWS AND COMMENT

WEEKLY LETTER ON MONTREAL MARKET

(F. B. MURPHY & CO.)

Montreal, Jan. 30.—This has been the best week in the stock market for over a year past, in all probability. There have been active days during the past year upon which the volume of trading may have exceeded that of the week just ending, but the trading was unfortunately on the range downward so that it brought little pleasure with it to anyone. During the past week, however, the activity was on the up grade. Hardly a stock held steady in the entire market, practically all stocks advancing from one to half a dozen points. Even the few issues which showed a weak tone, and declined, broke almost immediately. Such was the case with MacDonald, which from twenty-one closed off to twenty, and then at the close of Thursday's market broke to eighteen, falling off to sixteen one-half on Friday forenoon. At the close of the session on Friday, however, it had gained back some of its loss and closed strong at eighteen one-half. Again in the case of Tram Power which rose to forty-four a short time since and broke to below forty, the tone was upward again on Friday and closed firm at forty-two.

The strength of the week was due, early in the reduction in the bank rate a week ago in London to four per cent. Later this strength was greatly increased when the rate fell again this week to three per cent. At the same time the rate of the Bank of France fell to three one-half per cent. from the previous rate of four per cent. and British Consols became very strong, advancing from day to day to the highest point experienced in a year or more. Although there had been predictions that the Bank of England rate would fall again presently, a week ago, it was not generally thought possible that any such decline could take place, more especially as the rate had already declined one point since the first of the month. This means that January began the month at five per cent. and ended with it at three per cent., a most unprecedented change. Although local financiers hardly know what change may portend. They are not inclined to think that such a change has actually come over the situation as to make money plentiful all at once and they are disposed to depreciate the action of the Bank of England in the radical decline, perhaps, in the market because of the influence it will have on the local money market. Rates here are still six per cent. for call money, having been six one-half per cent. for a long time past. The decline in England makes it look as though the rate would now have to come down to five one-half per cent. in the near future. This naturally is not relished by the bankers, over and above all of which money is still scarce here and bankers do not think the rate should decline. In fact, quite a problem is raised in this drop of rates abroad. Bankers are wondering whether or not this means that they will be more active in undertaking on this side of the Atlantic and for municipalities, railways and industrial developments which have been starting for a long time past because of the high rates and the difficulty of getting money at any price. Also, the lowering of the rate may have an unexpected influence on industrial activity.

Brilliant was the big issue of the week. A week ago it was selling around eighty-five, whereas it is now selling around ninety-two. The influence at the moment was the buying by insiders, it is said this buying having been induced at the moment by the lowering of the interest rate. C. P. R. has also had quite a good rise because of the same reason. Opening at 215 today, it held firm throughout the day, and closed almost four points up to 218 7/8. Another feature has been Ottawa Power, the price of which has advanced half a dozen points during the week. On Friday afternoon there was a jump to 170. It is not known whether there is some special reason for the advance, or it is simply the reflection of the general strength.

During the week, the announcement that the Canada Cement Company would close down four of its plants had an adverse effect on the price of the stock, but the general strength of the market was such as to support recent price, the quotation on Friday afternoon being thirty one-fourth to thirty one-half.

Altogether the market on Friday afternoon was wonderfully strong one, and if there are any shorts there will be having a most uncomfortable time, and will be forced to cover at a loss. It does not look, at the moment, as if there was any time to go short of the market. Whether it is the time to buy or not is another question, but the sentiment at the moment is exceptionally bullish.

Report from Shanghai Says Father Rich Killed by Bandits — Two others held for Ransom.

Shanghai, Jan. 30.—Advices received here today are to the effect that the bandits who on Thursday sacked and burned the town of Luian-Chow, province of Ngan-Hwei, murdered Father Rich, a French Jesuit missionary, and captured two Jesuit priests, Fathers Allain and Tallie, who are being held for ransom. A French gunboat has been ordered to make ready to depart for the disturbed district.

LIDLAW & CO'S CLOSING STOCK LETTER

(J. C. MACKINTOSH & CO.)

New York, Jan. 30.—During the early dealings today's stock market was rather dull, reflecting a general inclination to hold off purchases for a reaction. There was, however, little stock offering and under the strong quotations furnished by the London market, where dealings were said to be the largest in a long time past, the international issues, headed by C. P. R., gradually developed aggressive strength. In the early afternoon there was a general abandonment of the reactionary attitude which has been observed in commission houses for the past few days and the public became good buyers of the standard shares, this led to heavy short covering by professionals and the last hour witnessed perhaps the most impressive general strength that has been seen on this movement. The market was broad, but the standard issues maintained the leadership and this fact gave confidence to buyers. There was no particular news except that coming from the London market, but continued evidence of world-wide money ease is perhaps the chief factor of strength at this time. There were reports of heavy railway equipment purchases actual or prospective and this imparted a buoyant tone to the equipment shares. The sensational advance in C. P. R. against the short interest also materially helped general sentiment in-as-much as that stock had been one of the comparatively weak spots in the recent markets.

DROP IN CALL LOAN RATES INEVITABLE

Special to The Standard
Montreal, Que., Jan. 30.—The street has its ear to the ground waiting to hear some sound resembling a tumble in local call loan rates, now that there is such a marked disparity between rates here and abroad. There may have to be some patience exercised, but it is believed to be bound to come sooner or later.

NORTH AMERICAN LIFE HAD SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The annual report of the North American Life Assurance Company has been awaited with peculiar interest this year because of the general slowing up of business throughout Canada, and the comparative tightening of money. It was feared, in some quarters, that the extreme caution which has been characteristic of the investment field for over a year had possibly extended so as to affect the life companies. The statement for the thirty-third year of the North American Life, however, shows that so far as this company is concerned a highly satisfactory year has just been concluded.

New policies during the year amounted to $8,565,835, an increase of nearly a million dollars over 1912. Total policies now in force aggregate $52,308,338. The company's assets on December 31st, 1913 were valued at $14,043,155, an increase of $819,656 during the year. Net surplus at the end of 1913 amounted to $1,781,117, an increase of nearly a quarter of a million over 1912. $85,000 has been put aside into an investment reserve fund to cover the temporary reduction in the market value of securities.

Two miners were returning from a lecture, when one of them after a thoughtful pause, remarked: "Say, Bill! I don't see the necessity of bringin' chaps from Lunnnon to teach us about manners in the 'ome! We haint so bad as—that feller made hout!" "Of course we haint," replied Bill. "Not by a long way," said the first. "I never swear before my wife." "No more don't!" put in Bill. "I allus see ladies fust! That's me."

F. E. SAYRE CONFIRMS REPORT OF SALE OF STREET RAILWAY STOCK

The report that F. E. Sayre has sold out his interest in the St. John Railway Company, amounting to about 800 shares, was confirmed by Mr. Sayre yesterday, but Mr. Sayre said that he did not know of this having anything to do with any project for amalgamating the company with any other body. It was said that the purchasers of the stock were Col. H. H. McLean and F. R. Taylor, and that they now hold control of the company. Mr. Taylor did not deny the purchase, but would not confirm the report that he and Col. McLean now held control. He said that he had not been seen

WALL STREET RESPONDS TO CHEERFUL NOTE FROM ABROAD

New York, Jan. 30.—Stocks rose buoyantly today. Beginning with a moderate advance at the opening, the market gathered strength steadily. In the last hour the movement became more pronounced and trading expanded to large proportions. C. P. R. was forced up five points. Gains of more than two points were made on representative issues.

Sentiment fell in line with the great European exchanges, which are reflecting the pronounced improvement in financial conditions. The rapid rise of securities, particularly in London, signalled such a marked change in sentiment as to be of decided influence here. This factor in the situation was made more potent by extensive purchases in this market of stocks for foreign account. This buying continued today, London taking perhaps fifty thousand shares here on balance. Previous to the opening American stocks were marked up strongly in the London market.

Bonds moved up abruptly in spots, and the general demand was brisk. Total sales, par value, $4,570,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

AMES-HOLDEN REPORTS GOOD BUSINESS

Montreal, Jan. 30.—At a meeting of the directors of the Ames-Holden-McCreedy Company, business conditions throughout the Dominion were discussed. Mr. A. L. Johnston of Winnipeg, vice-president, reported business in the West improving and the outlook good. Mr. Clarence Smith, vice-president and general manager, says that the annual report of the year, ending April 30th, will show that dividends have been easily earned.

CONFIDEECE IN GOWGANDA RESTORED
Special to The Standard
Montreal, Jan. 30.—The Mann Mine in Gowganda, while it was announced recently had been sold to English interests represented by Mr. Claude Maitland, is said to have brought a sum in the neighborhood of $500,000. The fact that a transaction has occurred on such a basis has roused fresh interest in the Gowganda district and holders of claims there are feeling more hopeful.

Story of Another Successful Year
Continuous progress has marked the thirty-three years of the North American Life's history. In 1913 more substantial gains than ever were registered all along the line. INCREASED SUBSIDY FOR FERRY SERVICE

"Maggie Miller" to be Practically Rebuilt—Meeting of Members of Government Yesterday.

Arrangements for the publication of the annual reports of the River Glade Sanatorium were completed by Premier Flemming and members of the provincial government at a meeting here yesterday. The report will be printed and distributed throughout the province.

In response to an appeal by residents of Baywater for a better ferry service it was decided to increase the subsidy for the ferry between Millidgeville and that place, and the steamer will be given a thorough overhauling and practically rebuilt for the service next summer.

Drs. MacLaren, Bishop and Anglin asked for a grant to help to defray the expenses connected with the annual convention here next summer of the Dominion Medical Association, when about five hundred visiting medical men will be in St. John.

Messrs. W. H. White and F. R. Fairweather on behalf of the fire underwriters asked for the appointment of fire marshalls, who would enquire into the causes of all fires and make reports.

ON TRAIL OF A BIG GERMAN LAND COMPANY

New Brunswick Immigration Men See Opportunity of Securing Desirable Settlers for Province.

The matter of interesting a big German company which is undertaking the establishment of German colonies in Canada in the advantages of New Brunswick is now engaging the attention of James Gilchrist, superintendent of immigration, and A. B. Wilmet, the Dominion immigration agent at Fredericton. A German company with a capital of $2,000,000 has purchased 16 townships in Alberta, and will establish a colony of 3,000 Germans there this year.

H. H. Melanson, general passenger agent of the L. C. R., having learned something of the plans of the German colony, wrote to Mr. Wilmet and Mr. Gilchrist, suggesting that they try to interest the company in the advisability of establishing Germans on the land in New Brunswick. Both the immigration men are now on the trail of the manager of the company, Herr Schwiebs, who is at present in Canada. The German company will take up land on an extensive scale, erect houses and clear the land for every homestead, and find money for the establishment of various industries.

CANADIAN PACKERS MAY COMMAND HIGH PRICE FOR SARDINES

Member of Firm of Connors Bros. Says Business Dull but Outlook Bright.

Mr. Connors, of Connors Bros., Black's Harbor, who was in the city yesterday, stated that the fish business was rather dull at present. Connors Bros. is one of the firms which are pushing the sale of New Brunswick products in distant countries. In addition to shipping canned fish products to all parts of Canada, they sell fish, caught on the coast of New Brunswick, in Europe and as far away as New Zealand and Australia. Owing to the comparative failure of the sardine fisheries last summer, the Eastport packers are short of stock and Mr. Connors is of the opinion that the New Brunswick firms who have managed to make a fair pack of sardines, will be able to command high prices. The inability of the Eastport packers to meet their orders was shown by the fact that at the end of the season they were offering the fishermen $30 a hoghead for sardines, whereas at the beginning of the season the price was only $6.

A BOLD HIGHWAYMAN DEFEATED BY WOMAN

Footpad Caught Tartar on Garden Street, Last Evening—Used Umbrella as Club.

A bold bad highwayman who attempted to hold up a woman on Garden street got a surprise that indicated that the city might do worse than appoint a suffragette to the police force. It was only about eight o'clock when in a dark part of Garden street a man with a shuffling gait and a cantankerous disposition approached a woman and requested permission to examine the contents of her hand bag. The woman happened to be carrying an umbrella which she had left at a friend's the day before, and instead of complying with the request she showed that the female of the species was courageous, by slashing the umbrella into the visage of her vis-a-vis. Taken by surprise the highwayman gave ground, and the lady shouting for help forced the fighting such an extent that the bold bad hold-up man took to his heels, howling over his shoulder that he would attend to her yet.

A report of the affair was made to the police, and the capable lady believes that she can identify the highwayman.

At present there are quite a number of foreigners in the city, who are out of work, and it is feared if they once get the idea that they can hold up people with impunity, St. John may have an epidemic of serious crimes.

PROSPECTS OF INCREASE IN AFRICAN TRADE

The Canadian Trade Commissioner for South Africa, in Communication with Local Firms.

There is now every indication that a large export trade with South Africa will be established by St. John manufacturers. The secretary of the Board of Trade has been fostering the idea and several very encouraging letters have been received from merchants in Capetown. Through the efforts of the local Board of Trade several manufacturing concerns of this city have started negotiations with South African firms with the idea of sending more of the local products to that market.

The following letter was received by the secretary of the Board of Trade yesterday. For obvious reasons the name of the local concern is not given:

Capetown, South Africa, Dec. 30, 1913.

Henry T. Hoag, Esq.,
St. John Board of Trade,
St. John, N. B.

Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge the favor of your letter of November 21st, in reference to the Canadian Government. I have received a letter from this firm and am communicating with them, giving full particulars of the people who are anxious for trade with Canada in their particular lines.

Assuring you that this office is always at your command and that of any of your members,

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) W. J. EGAN,
Canadian Government Trade Commissioner.

Mr. Hoag said last night that the services of the board were available for any St. John manufacturers or merchants who wished to get in communication with outside markets.

COURTENAY BAY LABORER'S WIFE DESERTED HIM

Leon Kristnovitch Mourns Loss of Wife who Eloped with Nick Mikolish—Took Money.

Leon Kristnovitch, a Courtenay Bay laborer, is mourning the departure of his wife, who eloped last evening, leaving for the west on the Montreal train in company with Nick Mikolish. Kristnovitch and his wife had been married but a short time, but continual quarrelling led to his wife making threats she would leave him. These threats she made good last evening. Kristnovitch, who is a Pole, on returning from work yesterday afternoon, found his wife gone and at once appealed to the police and his countryman, Sears, who was without avail, however, and Kristnovitch, when he found his wife was indeed gone burst into bitter sobs.

The woman happened to be married with Mrs. Strosky at 699 Main street, where Mikolish was also a boarder. It is understood that the flogging couple after their marriage lived with Mrs. Strosky at 699 Main street, where Mikolish was also a boarder. It is understood that the flogging couple after their marriage lived with Mrs. Strosky at 699 Main street, where Mikolish was also a boarder.

It so happened that Louis Fader had seen the woman on board the Montreal train with the young boarder, but he had no idea that the pair were eloping. He succeeded in checking the lonely husband last evening when he despatched a telegram to Megantic informing the authorities there of the elopement. The Montreal was scheduled to arrive at Megantic about 3.30 this morning and as a good description of the woman was given it was thought that she would be held up.

"Let me come back to see me and tell me she no want me then I don't care where she go," said Leon, explaining his grievance to a reporter.

MANY BOYS ATTEND SWIMMING CLASSES

In the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday afternoon the two hundred and fifty applicants from the public schools of the city were given their first lesson in the art of swimming by Instructor William L. Harvey, and many who previously had not acquired the knack of stroking out perfectly were yesterday given their first valuable lesson. Of this number, twenty fully yesterday, thirty or forty had already learned the swimming, and for those it was only necessary to be taught the proper strokes and positions in the water.

The boys were divided into groups, and judging from the delight and interest they showed in the instruction and demonstration, they fully appreciated the work of Mr. Harvey.

The school classes will be given regular instruction.

REPORT FROM WATER EXPERT ON HAND SOON

Commissioner Wigmore Expects Document Next Week—Plan to do Much Work this Year.

Com. Wigmore expects a report from the Bovin expert on the water system in St. John some time next week. During the present year the city will spend more money than usual on renewals of water mains in the city proper. Last year the city spent about $13,000 on renewals in Carleton, and as about all the old concrete pipes there have been cleaned up, this year more attention will be given to the east side.

Speaking about the enormous consumption or waste of water in St. John, Com. Wigmore said that in the future the meter system would, no doubt, be adopted here. In other cities where meters have been put in the consumption or waste of water has been greatly decreased. In St. John the consumption of water per capita is about 300 gallons a day. In many cities where meters are used the consumption is about 100 gallons. A small tap if left running will account for a large number of gallons in a day, a half inch tap will run 1,500 gallons per hour.

Com. Wigmore is of the opinion that in many houses in St. John the water taps are running constantly, certainly in cold weather.

There is, of course, plenty of water available. The Boston expert expressed surprise at the amount of water which St. John could draw on at Loch Lomond. He also expressed his satisfaction at the quality of water.

AGITATION OVER THE QUALITY OF PAVEMENT

Residents of Queen Street Claim Work not in Accordance with Specifications—May not Pay.

Even the city commissioners are not exempt from the troubles which sometimes beset the chairman of committees under the old regime. The latest turmoil at city hall has been caused by an agitation among certain residents of Queen street, who claim that the street was not paved in accordance with specifications, and that they will not pay their proportion of the cost until an impartial inspection has been made.

Com. Ager said yesterday that no complaint had been made to him, though he had heard of the agitation. The commissioner pointed out that the city had the guarantee of the Warren Bithumatic Company that the street would be maintained in good condition for five years, and he did not see that the residents could have any good ground for a kick.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN SOUTH AMERICA

Canadian Trade Commissioner to Big Southern Republics in Canada—Interesting Business Men.

The Board of Trade has received a letter from the secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, requesting the Canadian Trade Commissioner to South America, in Canada and ready to give information about southern markets. It is understood Mr. Fousette will make a tour of Eastern Canada and personally interview those wishing to talk about conditions in South America. A sufficient amount of interest is displayed in that country by business men in the Maritime Provinces, who are mainly concerned with the matter of developing trade with the big republic South of the Panama.

MR. WOODS AS WELL AS A MANAGER

One of His Plays, "Billy The Kid" is Remembered Here.

SIEGE OF OJINAGA HAD NOTHING ON IT

Has had Success in Theatrical Career, and Many Present Day Stars Owe Success to Him.

The following report approving the principle of Com. Aar's local improvement Act was adopted by the council of the Board of Trade yesterday, and will be submitted to the meeting of the full board on Monday. To the council of Board of Trade, St. John, N. B.:

A special committee convened by department of civics to consider the proposed act respecting the paving of the streets and sidewalks of the City of St. John, wishes to report as follows:

In a country it is found that not only is the principle of assessing abutting property owners for a portion of the cost of permanent street paving, generally adopted by all the principal cities of Canada and the United States, but also that the proportion assessed against abutting property owners is usually much larger than that provided for in the proposed act for this city, and it further appears that it is customary to make such assessment against local property owners, whether the improvement is initiated by them or by the city authorities.

The principle that where there is local benefit, there should be local assessment, is so manifestly fair, that there can scarcely be any objection to it. There is, however, to be a wide difference of opinion as to the proportion of local and general benefit derived from any particular improvement that may be proposed, and it seems desirable, therefore, that some rule should be established by law to determine what portion of the cost of any improvement undertaken by the city, shall be assessed against local property owners and the city at large. The only other alternative would be the reference of each case to a permanent arbitration board, which would not only be very costly, but would also cause considerable delay in the undertaking of needed improvements.

While, however, the committee is of the opinion that such a law as that proposed is correct in principle, and necessary in the interest of the community, they feel that it should receive the endorsement of the Board of Trade under an opportunity has been afforded for discussion of its details by a full meeting of the board. It is, therefore, recommended that the matter be taken up as the principal subject for discussion at the February meeting of the board.

W. F. BURDITT,
Chairman, Dept. of Civics,
St. John, N. B., Jan. 27, 1914.

MR. WALTER WOODS

In the theatrical Who's Who of America, Walter Woods of the Thompson-Woods Stock Company, now playing at the Opera House, has two claims to distinction. In the first place he is the greatest little leader of ferocious hopes in the show business and in the second he is the sole author of "Billy the Kid" of the first record he talks with pleasure but does not say much about the second, that is not until he has been cornered and then he hastens to explain that he is doing his best to live it down.

Mr. Woods to tell it properly is a member of the firm of Thompson & Woods of Boston. For a number of years the firm has been prominent in theatrical ventures and at the present time in addition to the local company are proprietors of the Brockton Stock Company as well as a number of profitable road organizations. Starting out as an advance agent, Mr. Woods soon learned the essential things in that end of the theatrical business. He could talk shop with the tank town reporters and jolly them into a half column of free advertising right under the nose of the business manager and then make them feel they were indebted to him for a good story. It is said of him that he was a success a head of a show but his immortal soul was not satisfied. Way down deep under his hat he had the idea that as a real live actor he had the most of them lashed to the mast and every time he had an opportunity to allow his show to find with him he used to stand in the back of the house first nights and make faces at the hero just by way of showing his utter contempt for all so-called actors.

Finally one dark night his boss happened to be in the audience and not noticing a commotion in the rear of the theatre, wended his way back to find Walter making a contemptuous moue (the writer has been told that "moue" is a very stylish word, and much more up to date than moue, which it is intended to represent, consequently "moue" goes proof reader or no proof reader). Anyway that what he was making. Well when the boss came along and surprised the advance man at his wily way he uttered a few utterances to the effect that if Mr. Woods was not satisfied with the work of the ladies and gentlemen on the stage he could either show that he could do better himself or else throw up his job. Truly opportunity was knocking at his door with an axe.

In consequence he was translated from the back of the house to the back of the stage and for some time played with success. But the discontent was strong in him and from showing that actors, all and sundry, did not know their business he started in to criticize the plays. He said he would write better ones himself and again came opportunity with an axe. Consequently he evolved "Billy the Kid." Ever see Billy the Kid? Then you have no idea what you have missed. Funny how some people are born to fortune. The writer has seen it and he thought he would ever look upon it like again he would at once give the genial author an opportunity to become plaintiff in a suit for assault and battery.

However, such as it is, Mr. Woods wrote it and it was a money maker. Also it was once in St. John. Just a little more than a year ago "Billy" arrived for a one night's visit. Early the next morning he left and has not returned. Possibly a brief resume of the story of the piece which brought money and enemies to Mr. Woods might be of interest.

ATTACK ON BAY OF FUNDY BY CAPT. CLIFT REFUTED IN HOUSE BY HON. MR. HAZEN

Capt. Clift is not an Official of Marine Department.

STATEMENT IS BOTH UNFAIR AND UNJUST

Report on Cobequid Disaster will, in all Probability, Show it was Not due to any Inherent Danger in Bay.

Special to The Standard.

Jan. 30.—The attack upon the Bay of Fundy, which has been made by a number of the Liberal newspapers, including the Ottawa Free Press, has caused keen controversy in the capital. The basis of the attack is a report which was played with success and have proven money winners.

Mr. Woods was born in Erie, Pa. His father was the editor of a newspaper in Erie, "Billy the Kid" they changed their minds. They said he ought to be an armament trust. Since that time he has done about as he wished, always managing to keep out of the clutches of the law. As a theatrical manager he has been particularly successful. By his tact, ability and knowledge of what the people want, he has managed to turn many apparent failures into pronounced successes and in this connection is especially proud of the record his company has made in St. John.

When a permanent stock, with one bill a week was first announced for the Opera House the theatre-going public were certain it could not be successfully conducted, but Mr. Woods thought otherwise and time has proven the wisdom of his judgment. In Holyoke, Mass., he had a similar experience, and yet the company played the longest engagement on record in Holyoke and proved a prime favorite for months. Mr. Woods is particularly enthusiastic over St. John. It is his intention to keep the company here until the end of May and during the summer run the Opera House for travelling attractions. Next season the Thompson-Woods stock will return with as many of the present favorites as possible.

St. John theatre-goers owe much to Walter Woods, his foresight, enterprise, pluck and money, have made possible the most enjoyable attraction for years. Aside from a momentary lapse, of which "Billy the Kid" was the result, he has done no harm to any man. And he is doing his best to live his one mistake down. So let all join in helping him to forget. He is a great man.

The articles in an alleged interview with Captain R. F. Clift, of Montreal, who was a passenger on the ill-fated Cobequid, are so full of errors and misstatements that it is nothing short of manslaughter, no, it is worse, it is murder, to compel vessels to traverse the Bay of Fundy in the face of such terrifying hurricanes are likely to crop up and when fogs make it almost impossible to be certain of a safe route, the danger is increased.

An attempt has been made to prove that Capt. Clift is an official of the Marine and Fisheries Department, and to convey the impression that Capt. Clift's views were the official views of the department.

Capt. Clift is not an official of the Marine and Fisheries Department, he is a retired sailing master living in Montreal. "From time to time," said Hon. J. D. Hazen, in referring to the matter in the Commons, "for a good many years past the wreck commissioner in investigating wrecks in the St. Lawrence route is assisted by two nautical assessors familiar with the conditions of navigation. The wreck commissioner has on several occasions called Capt. Clift in for such purpose and he has acted in the capacity of a nautical assessor. But he is not an official of the department; he is not in the pay of the department. The impression which it would seem he himself tries to create that he is an official is entirely without foundation."

"I had read," said Mr. Hazen, in a warm defence of the Bay of Fundy and the port of St. John, "the unfair and unjust statement to which the honorable gentleman refers and which would place a slander in the Bay of Fundy, at once called the attention of the Board of Trade of St. John to the matter and suggested that it would place the facts fairly before the public. Inquiry had been made into the wreck of the Cobequid, by the wreck commissioner, Capt. Lindsay, assisted by two nautical assessors. "I understood that the report and judgment of that court has been prepared and in a few days will be given to the public through the press. While I have no right to forestall the conclusions which the court has reached, yet, having followed the evidence given to the court, I am in a position to state that the wreck was due to any inherent danger existing in the Bay of Fundy but to other causes also."

"I think it unfortunate, that in connection with the disaster of this sort anyone should attempt to make capital against any special locality or any special waters over which navigation into Canada has to take place. Charges from time to time have been made with regard to the navigation of the Bay of Fundy as there are dangers to be found in all waters which ships navigate.

Yet I think it has been demonstrated in the past time and again, that the dangers which exist in the Bay of Fundy are no greater than those which exist in many other navigable

Former Nova Scotian Telegrapher's Interesting Reminiscences—Repeated First Message Over Atlantic Cable from Queen Victoria to U.S. President

Hardland, N. B., Jan. 27.—"I have never made any statement, on any paper or party, what my intentions are along political lines. If any statements have appeared in the public press, as coming from me, they are entirely without foundation." These are the words of Mr. B. F. Smith, of Florenceville, in answer to a query by your correspondent as to the truth of insistent remarks here regarding his withdrawal from an active part in politics in Carleton county. Mr. Smith has just returned from Ottawa, and during his absence last week the statement appeared in one of the opposition papers of the county that Mr. Smith was to retire from politics and considered that some compensation was due him for his loyalty to the Conservative cause during the past years, and that he was looking forward to a seat in the Senate of Canada as his reward. In the light of Mr. Smith's statement, as given above, the inference must be drawn that somebody is making politics where there is little material to work with.

That there is good stage talent in Hardland was bountifully shown on Monday evening, when some members of the High school here put on the boards at the Lyric a delightful little comedy in three acts entitled "All Tangled Up." There was a capacity audience and the audience was delighted with laughter from the rise of the curtain until the last lines were spoken in the third act. The scenes were well set, the lines clearly enunciated and the parts very well played for an amateur aggregation. The male actors were Curtis Simmons, Kenneth Keith, Lyric Giesen, Ray Plummer and George Boyer; while the ladies in the cast were Misses Mary Carr, Pearl Ridcomb and Anna Murdoch. Each player did justice to his or her part and Mr. B. F. Smith, who was carried off the honors of the evening, Miss Eisa Sippel furnished excellent music between the acts. The proceeds of the entertainment go towards providing additions to the books in the school library.

Principal Alexander and his wife deserve no small degree of praise for their part in the training of the pupils and the general management of the play.

Col. Marsh, of Fredericton, who last week celebrated his 85th birthday, is a native of Carleton county, and was born in Upper Simonside, N. B., 35 years ago. Like the late chief constable, he grew up with the force—rather the force grew up with him. Appointment of the volunteer force of twenty men the year of the great fire, 1886, he assumed the command of the first paid force when it was created four years later. At that time the equipment was all hand-made; now the greater part of it is self-propelled. There are fourteen fire halls in the city, manned by 182 firemen, of whom are from New Brunswick. Although nineteen pieces of apparatus are auto-driven, over 30 horses are still used in the department mostly to pull the steam fire engines, only one of which is an automobile. Fourteen pieces of apparatus are horse-drawn. Chief Carlisle introduced the auto fire apparatus into Vancouver in 1908 before the experiment had been tried in any other Pacific Coast city and soon after the system had been inaugurated for the first time in the western half of the continent.

A prominent member of the International Association of Fire Engineers and a prominent official of the Pacific Coast Association of Fire Chiefs.

Alderman Kirkpatrick, who was last year chairman of the Fire and Police Committee of the City Council, is a native of Parrsboro, N. S., and one of Vancouver's successful lumbermen.

A prominent merchant of Parrsboro and a native of Prince Edward Island died in the General Hospital here last week in the person of Mr. A. E. MeLeod. He had come west in search of health and was visiting his brother-in-law, Mr. T. H. B. Witter, Lakewood Drive, prior to leaving for a health resort in California.

Mrs. Henry Lawson, a native of Prince Edward Island, celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday in Victoria last week.

To have worked as a telegrapher for nearly sixty years, during which he was employed on nearly every important telegraph line in America, has been the experience of Mr. W. P. Archibald, who, last month, celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday. He has been manager of the C. P. R. office in Nanaimo, Vancouver Island, for nearly nineteen years and an office of the C. P. R. for over twenty-four years. There are few men that up to a short time ago could send faster than Archibald, who must soon retire, however, because of his failure in his eyesight.

Mr. Archibald's experience anti-dated the introduction of the cable wire across the Atlantic. He remembers the days of the pony express in the Maritime Provinces, when the presence of a cable service, newspapers were taken off the steamers from the old country and carried by hard-driving horsemen to the nearest railway line, there they were conveyed to the nearest telegraph office for transfer to the Associated Press.

He started at telegraphy in 1852 in Nova Scotia and six years later had the honor of repeating the first message that ever came over the Atlantic.

The resignation of H. T. Hoag, secretary of the St. John Board of Trade, was presented to the council of the board at a meeting yesterday. The resignation, which came as a surprise to the council, was not accompanied by any explanation, but as it was of a definite character, the council was forced to accept. It will take effect on March 1.

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save your hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now.

This, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scourge. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on the life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; it is incomparable in gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

She Was Helpless For Two Years

Why Mrs. Baldwin Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She Could Find Nothing to Cure Her Rheumatism Till On a Neighbor's Advice She Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Walburg, Sask., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—"I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for any one suffering from Rheumatism." These are the words of Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, a highly respected resident of this place. And Mrs. Baldwin gives her reasons.

"I was nearly helpless with rheumatism for two years," she states, "I got medicine from the doctor, and tried several other remedies but nothing helped me. Then one of my neighbors advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought four boxes and they helped almost from the first. I have used nearly two dozen boxes and am nearly cured."

"That rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys is again shown in Mrs. Baldwin's case. She had headaches, stiffness of the joints and backache, her sleep was broken and unrefreshing, and she was always tired and nervous. Her limbs ached and she was always thirsty. These are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. When she cured her kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills the symptoms vanished—and so did the rheumatism."

DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE---Historic Battle Scenes

THE HEIGHTS OF ABRAHAM.

The attack was planned with great art. The British batteries thundered across the Montserrat, and a fleet was made of fording that river higher up, so as to distract the attention of the French, whilst the boats of the fleet threatened a landing near Quebec itself. At half-past five the tide was at its lowest, and the boat-fortilla, swinging round at a signal, pulled at speed for the patch of muddy foreshore already selected. The Grenadiers and Royal Americans leaped ashore in the mud, and waiting nobles for orders, nor leaders, nor supporters dashed up the hill to storm the redoubt. They reached the first redoubt, tumbled over it and through it, only to find themselves breathless in a semicircle of fire. The men fell fast, but yet struggled fiercely upwards. A furious storm of rain broke over the combatants at that moment, and made the steep grass-covered slope as slippery as mere glass. "We could not see half-way the hill," writes the French officer in command of the battery on the summit. But through the smoke and the driving rain they could still see the Grenadiers and Royal Americans in ragged clusters, scarce able to stand, yet striving desperately to climb upwards. The reckless ardour of the Grenadiers had spoiled Wolfe's attack, the sudden storm helped to save the French, and Wolfe withdrew his broken but furious battalions, having lost some 500 of his best men and officers.

The exultant French regarded the siege as practically over; but Wolfe was a man of heroic and unquenchable tenacity, and never so dangerous as when he seemed to be in the last straits. He held doggedly on, in spite of cold and tempest and disease. His own frail body broke down, and for the first time the shadow of depression fell on the British camps when they no longer saw the red head and lean straggly body of their general moving amongst them. For a week between August 22 and August 29, he lay apparently a dying man, his face, with its curious angles, white with rain and haggard with disease. But yet no plans of attack. On September 10 the captains of the men-of-war held a council on board the flag-ship, and resolved that the approach of winter required the fleet to leave Quebec without delay. By this time, too, Wolfe's scanty force was diminished one-seventh by disease or losses in battle. Wolfe, however, had now formed the plan which ultimately gave him success, though at the cost of his own life.

From a little cove, now known as Wolfe's Cove, five miles to the west of Quebec, a path, scarcely accessible to a goat, climbs up the face of the great cliff, nearly 250 feet high. The place was so inaccessible that only a post of 100 men kept guard over it. Up that track, in the blackness of the night, Wolfe resolved to lead his army to the attack of Quebec! It needed the most exquisite combinations to bring the attacking force to that point from three separate quarters, in the gloom of night, at a given moment, and without a sound that could alarm the enemy. Wolfe withdrew his force from Montserrat, embarked them on board his ships, and made every sign of departure. Montcalm mistrusted these signs, and suspected Wolfe would make at least one more leap on Quebec before withdrawing. Yet he did not in the least suspect Wolfe's real designs. He discussed, in fact, the very plan Wolfe had adopted, but dismissed it by saying, "We need not suppose that the enemy have wings." The British ships were kept moving up and down the river for several days, so as to distract and perplex the enemy. On September 12 Wolfe's plans were complete, and he issued his final orders. One sentence in them curiously anticipates Nelson's famous signal at Trafalgar: "Officers and men," wrote Wolfe, "will remember what their country expects of them." A feint on Beauport, five miles to the east of Quebec, as evening fell, made Montcalm mass his troops there; but it was at a point five miles west of Quebec the real attack was directed.

At two o'clock at night two lanterns appeared for a minute in the malinot shrouds of the Sunderland. It was the signal, and from the fleet, from the Isle of Orleans, and from Point Levi, the English boats stole silently out, freighted with some 1700 troops, and converged towards the point in the black wall of cliffs agreed upon. Wolfe himself was in the leading boat, silently through the darkness on that desperate adventure. Wolfe, to the officers about him, commenced to recite Gray's Elegy:

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth
e'er gave,

Await alike the inevitable hour.

The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

"Now gentlemen," he added, "I would rather have written that poem than take Quebec." Wolfe, in fact, was half poet, half soldier. Suddenly from the great wall of rock and forest to their left broke the challenge of a French sentinel—"Qui vive?" A Highlander of Fraser's regiment, who spoke French fluently, answered the challenge. "De la Reine," answered the Highlander. As it happened the French expected a flotilla of provision boats, and after a little further dialogue, in which the cool Highlander completely deceived the French sentries, the British were allowed to slip past in the darkness. The tiny cove was safely reached, the boats stole silently up without blunder, twenty-four volunteers from the Light Infantry leaped from their boat and led the way in single file up the path that ran like a tread along the face of the cliff. Wolfe sat eagerly listening in his boat below. Suddenly from the summit he saw the flash of muskets and heard the stern shout which told him his men were up. A clear, firm order, and the troops sitting silent in the boats leaped ashore, and the long file of soldiers, like a chain of ants, went up the face of the cliff. Wolfe amongst the foremost, and formed in order on the plateau, the boats meanwhile rowing back at speed to bring up the remainder of the troops. Wolfe was at last within Montcalm's guard!

When the morning of the 13th dawned, the British army, in line of battle, stood looking down on Quebec. Montcalm quickly heard the news, and came riding furiously across the stern of the city to the scene of danger. He rode, as those who saw him tell, with fixed look, and uttering not a word. The vigilance of months was rendered worthless by that amazing night escalade. When he reached the slopes Montcalm saw before him the silent red wall of British infantry, the Highlanders with waving tartans and wind-blown plumes—all in battle array. It was not a detachment, but an army.

The fight lasted fifteen minutes and he told in almost as many words. Montcalm brought on his men in three powerful columns, in number double that of Wolfe's force. The British troops stood grimly silent, though they were tormented by the fire of Indians and Canadians lying in the grass. The French advanced eagerly, with a tumult of shouts and a confused fire; the British moved forward a few rods, halted, dressed their lines, and when the French were within forty paces threw in one fierce volley, so sharply timed that the explosion of 4000 muskets sounded like the sudden blast of a cannon. Again, again, and yet again, the flames ran from end to end of the steadfast line. When the smoke lifted, the French columns were wrecked. The British instantly charged. The spirit of the clan awoke in Fraser's Highlanders: they flung aside their muskets, drew their broadswords, and with a fierce Celtic slogan rushed on the enemy. Never was a charge pressed more ruthlessly home. After the fight one of the British officers wrote: "There was not a bayonet in the three leading British regiments, nor a broadsword amongst the Highlanders, that was not crimson with the blood of a foeman." Wolfe himself charged at the head of the Grenadiers, his bright uniform making him conspicuous. He was shot in the wrist, wrapped a handkerchief round the wound, and still ran forward. Two other bullets struck him—one, it is said, fired by a British deserter, a sergeant broken by Wolfe for brutality to a private, "Don't let the soldiers see me drop," said Wolfe, as he fell, to an officer running beside him. An volunteer, and a private carried Wolfe to a redoubt near. He refused to allow a surgeon to be called. "There is no need," he said, "it is all over with me." Then one of the little group, casting a look at the smoke-covered battlefield, cried, "They run! See how they run!" "Who run?" said the dying Wolfe, like a man roused from sleep. "The enemy, sir," was the answer. A flash of life came back to Wolfe; the eager spirit thrust from the swoon of months, he gave a clear, emphatic order for cutting off the enemy's retreat; then, turning on his side, he added, "Now God be praised; I die in peace."

That fight determined that the North American continent should be the heritage of the Anglo-Saxon race. And, somehow, the popular instinct, when the news reached England, realised the historic significance of the event. "When we first heard of Wolfe's glorious deed," writes Thackeray in "The Virginians"—"of that army marshalled in darkness and carried silently up the midnight river—of those rocks scaled by the intrepid leader and his troops—of the defeat of Montcalm on the open plain by the sheer valour of his conqueror—we were all intoxicated in England by the news." Not merely all London, but half England flamed into illuminations. One spot alone was dark—Blackheath, where solitary amidst a rejoicing nation, Wolfe's mother mourned for her heroic son—like Milton's Lycidas—"dead ere his prime."

THE GREAT LORD HAWKE

The English flag. "What is the flag of England? Winds of the world, declare!

The lean white bear hath seen it in the long, lone Arctic night. The musk-ox knows the standard that floats the Northern light.

Never was laid so little, never was seen so lone,
But over the scud and the palm-tree an English flag has flown,
And to hang for a wisp on the Horn;

I have chased it north to the Lisard-ribbons and rolled am torn,
I have wrenched it free from the dying, and spread its folds o'er the dying,
I have hurled it swift on the slaver, and seen the slave set free.

Never the lotos closes, never the wild fowl wakes,
But a soul goes out on the East Wind that died for England's sake—
Man or woman or suckling, mother or bride or maid—
Because on the bones of the English, the English flag is stayed.

The dead dumb fog hath wrapped it—the frozen dew hath kissed it—
The naked stars have seen it, a fellow-star in the mist.
What is the flag of England? Ye have but my breath to dare;
Ye have but my waves to conquer, go forth, for it is there!"

—Kipling.

"The great Lord Hawke" is Burke's phrase, and is one of the best-earned epithets in literature. Yet what does the average Englishman today remember of the great sailor who, through the bitter November gales of 1759, kept dogged and tireless watch over the French fleet in Brest, destroyed that fleet with heroic daring amongst the sands of Quiberon, while the fury of a Bay of Biscay tempest almost drowned the roar of his guns, and so crushed a threatened invasion of England?

Hawke has been thrown by all-de-voicing Time into his wallet as more "alma for oblivion"; yet amongst all the sea-dogs who ever sailed beneath the blood-red flag no one else has deserved that fate. Campbell, in "Ye Mariners of England," groups "Blake and mighty Nelson" together as the two great typical English sailors in point both of time and of achievement, though he had more in him of Blake than of Nelson. He lacked, no doubt, the dazzling electric strain that ran through the warlike genius of Nelson. Hawke's fighting quality was of the grim, dour home-spun character that was a true genius for battle, and as long as Great Britain is a seapower the memory of the great sailor who crushed Conflans off Quiberon deserves to live.

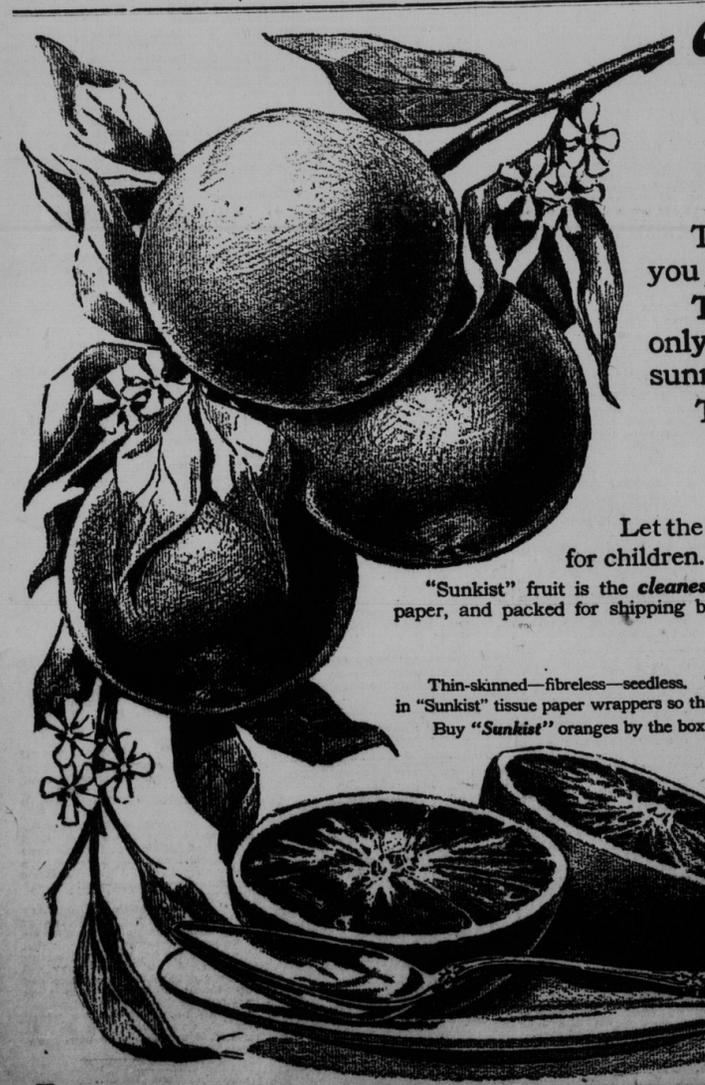

Hawke, too, was a great man in the age of little men. The fame of the English navy had sunk to the lowest point. Its ships were rotten; its captains were paralysed by a childish system of tactics which made a decisive battle almost impossible. Hawke, in command, as "iron-sick," the wood was too rotten, that is, to hold the iron bolts, so that "not a man in the ship had a dry place to sleep in." His men were "tumbling down with scurry"; his mainmast was so pulverised by dry rot that a walk on the deck would thrust it into another ship, the Ramilies—his favourite ship, too—he says, "it became water-logged whenever it blew."

But in 1759 the nation was in a rank crop of grass, alms, barnacles, &c., till the sluggish vessels needed almost a gale to move them. The French ships of the line were not uniform. The French ships of that day were better built, better armed, and sometimes better fought than British ships. A British 80-gun ship in armament and weight of fire was only equal to a French ship of 53 guns. Every considerable fight was promptly followed by a crop of court-martials, in which captains were tried for misconduct before the enemy, such as today is unthinkable. Admiral Hawke was broken by court-martial for having, with an excess of daring, pierced the French line off Toulon, and thus sacrificed pedantic tactics to victory. But the list of court-martials held during the second quarter of the eighteenth century on British captains for beginning to fight too late, or for leaving off too soon, would, if published, astonish this generation.

After the flight of Toulon in 1744, two admirals and six post-captains were court-martialled. Admiral Byng was shot on his own deck, not assiduously as Voltaire's mot describes it, pour encourager les autres, and not quite cowardly, for Byng was no coward. But he had no gleam of unsatisfied patriotic fire, and nothing of the gallant fighting impulse we have learned to believe is characteristic of the British sailor. He lost Minorca, and disgraced the British flag because he was too dainty to face the stern discipline of a fight. The corrupt and ignominious temper of English politics—the legacy of Walpole's evil regime—poisoned the blood of the navy. No one can have forgotten Macaulay's picture of Newcastle, at that moment Prime Minister of England; the sly, greedy, fawning politician, as corrupt as Walpole, without his genius, without honour, without truth, who loved office only less than he loved his own neck. A Prime Minister like Newcastle made possible an admiral like Byng. Horace Walpole tells the story of how, when the much-enduring British public broke into one of its rare but terrible fits of passion after the disgrace of Minorca, and Newcastle was trembling for his own head, a deputation from the city of London waited upon him, demanding that Byng should be put upon his trial. "Oh, indeed," replied Newcastle, with fawning gestures, "he shall be tried immediately. He shall be hanged directly!" It was an age of base men, and the navy neglected, starved, dishonoured—had lost the great tradition of the past, and did not yet feel the thrill of the nobler spirit soon to sweep over it.

But in 1759 the nation was in a rank crop of grass, alms, barnacles, &c., till the sluggish vessels needed almost a gale to move them. The French ships of the line were not uniform. ...of Wellington's highlanders at the battle of Te Anau, while his fighting had been but a mere rehearsal of the prowess of Cromwell's Ironsides. The British people came to realize that he was a sailor with the strain of a buccaner in him; an indomitable fighter who, ordered to blockade a hostile port would hang on, in spite of storms and scurvy, while he had a man left who would pull a rope or a powder bag, a fighter, too, of the type dear to the British imagination, who took the shortest course to the enemy's line, and would exchange broadsides at point-blank distance while his ship floated.

In 1763 a great French army threatened the shores of England. At Havre and Dunkirk huge flotillas of flat-bottomed boats lay at their moorings; 18,000 French veterans were ready to embark. A great British fleet under the command of Conflans—one of the ablest seamen France has ever produced—was gathered at Brest. A French squadron of 12 ships, under the command of John Conflans, swept the narrow seas, and convoy the French expedition to English shores. The strategy, if it had succeeded, would have changed the fate of the world.

To Hawke was entrusted the task of blockading Conflans in Brest, and a greater feat of seamanship is not to be found in British records. The French fleet consisted of 25 ships, manned by 15,000 men, and carrying 108 guns. The British fleet numbered 23 ships, with 12,295 men, and carrying 159 guns. The two fleets, that is, were nearly equal, the advantage on the whole, being on the side of the French. Hawke therefore had to blockade a fleet equal to his own, the French ships lying snugly in harbor, the English ships scouring by November gales and rolling in the huge seas of the Bay of Biscay. Sir Cloudesley Shovel, himself a seaman of the highest quality, said in an admiral's report: "The French fleet was not to be broken up after the end of September, and to be shot if after October." Hawke maintained his blockade of Brest for six months. His captains broke down in health, his men were dying from scurvy, the bottoms of his ships grew foul, and a stormy sea was in the stormiest of seas. Again and again the wild north-west gales blew the British admiral off his cruising ground. But he fought his way back, sent his ships, singly or in couples, to Torbay or Plymouth for a moment's breathing space, but himself held on, with a grim courage and an unshakable will which have never been surpassed. On November 6, a tremendous westerly gale swept over the English coast, and Hawke, who had been with his fleet for three days, and then ran, storm-driven and half-dismantled, to Torbay for shelter on the 10th. He put to sea again on the 12th. The gale had veered round to the south-west but blew as furiously as ever, and Hawke was once more driven back to his post. On the 14th, he struggled out again on the 14th, to find that the French had escaped! The gale that blew Hawke from his post brought the French fleet into the Channel, which ran into Brest and joined Conflans there; and on the 14th when Hawke was desperately fighting his way back to his post, the French put to sea, and with the gale behind him, ran on his course to Quiberon. There he hoped to brush aside the question of the French fleet, and the French transports, embark the powerful French force assembled there, and swoop down on the English coast. The wild weather, Conflans reckoned, would keep Hawke storm-bound in Torbay till this scheme was carried out.

But Hawke with his whole fleet, fighting his way in the teeth of the gale, reached Ushant on the very day Conflans broke out of Brest, and, fast as the French fleet ran, the white sails of Hawke's ships, showing over the stormy rim of the horizon, came on the Frenchman's track. Hawke's frigates, outnumbering the heavy sea-warriors, his line-of-battle ships, hung on Conflans' rear. The main body of the British fleet followed, starting under their pyramidal sails, with wet decks and the wild north-west gale on their quarter. Hawke's best sailors gazed steadily on the English coast, and when Hawke obeyed the perils tactics of his day he would have dressed his line and refused to attack at all unless he could bring the French fleet into action. But, as Hawke himself said afterwards, he "had determined to attack them in the old way and make downwind work of them," and he signalled his leading ships to attack the moment they brought an enemy's ship within fire. Conflans could not abandon his base, and he reluctantly swung round his van formed line to meet the attack.

As the main body of the English came up, the French admiral suddenly adopted a strategy which might have baffled a less daring adversary than Hawke. He ran boldly in shore towards the mouth of the river, and a wild stretch of most dangerous

HAD INDIGESTION.

Almost Deceased of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The action of the gastric juices have been confined entirely to removing the unassimilated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that indigestion and dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several doctors and medicines claiming to give it a cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from indigestion."

REASONS FOR ROTATIONS

(The Journal of Agriculture and Horticulture.)

At the basis of all genuine rotations lies the fact that plants differ from one another; they differ from one another in their demands upon the soil, both chemical and physical; they differ with regard to their root system, depth of feeding, their moisture requirements, their time of feeding, their dates in reaching maturity, etc.

Many plants impoverish the soil; a few enrich it; some soil its physical condition, while others improve it in both chemical and physical; they differ in growth, while others either are able to hold the weeds in check or require such cultivation and treatment as will prevent their growth.

All these differences fit plants for different places in rotation, and a well-arranged rotation is one in which the plants of one crop follow so as to fit into the weak points of another, or vice versa, and in this way reduce deficiencies to a minimum.

One of the requisites of a large amount of one element should be followed by one that requires less of that element and probably more of another.

The Adulteration Of Maple Production Not Diminished

(The Journal of Agriculture and Horticulture.)

The Laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, has recently published in Bulletin Nos. 258 and 259 a report upon the maple sugar and maple syrup offered for sale throughout Canada last winter. This is the first report published upon maple products since the adoption of legal standards by the Government in October, 1911, and is therefore of more than ordinary interest. As regards the percentage of samples found to be adulterated, however, this report shows practically the same condition as those issued previous to the adoption of standards. About thirty per cent. of the samples of syrup and about forty per cent. of the samples of sugar analysed are condemned. "In several cases," the bulletin states, "vendors have acknowledged that they sold artificial maple syrup, claiming unimpeachable oversight. In many other instances the vendor claims to have acted in good faith, believing the article offered to be genuine maple syrup, having been purchased by him as such. Careful examination of the label, or of the form of warranty furnished by the manufacturer would have led him to see his mistake, and yet one cannot but surmise that in some cases the careful wording of these labels or guarantees shows a device on the part of the manufacturer to conceal the real nature of his goods."

A careful examination of the maple syrup report reveals the fact that thirty-one of the thirty-seven adulterated samples come from five firms—four located in Montreal and one in Toronto. On referring to the Montreal directory the discoverer made out two of the Montreal firms co-business at one address and the other two at one other address. Moreover, five of the six samples which do not come from these Toronto and Montreal addresses were of unknown source. It therefore appears that the business of adulterating maple syrup is concentrated in three houses. Turning to the maple sugar report we find that there were thirty-four samples condemned as adulterated. Of nineteen of these, the manufacturers' names were not ascertained. Of the remaining fifteen no less than thirteen came from the three addresses to which we have referred—two in Montreal and one in Toronto. The business of adulterating maples sugar as well as maple syrup seems to be largely in the hands of this small number of manufacturers—and the Montreal firms, naturally, have the bulk of it. These houses have been the adulterating business for many years and the fact that they can continue in spite of the recurrent condemnation of their products by the Government officials scarcely shows that the Adulteration Act in its present form is incapable of meeting the situation, which gravely menaces one of the important agricultural industries of this province.

Repeated representations to the Government by dealers in genuine maple products, and later by the Puro Maple Sugar Makers Co-operative Society have so far failed to produce the desired result. The Chief Analyst has himself suggested special legislation for this purpose, his proposal being to impose a heavy fine upon the manufacturer who is brought to the attention of the Government by anyone furnishing evidence which would lead to a conviction. This proposal has been endorsed by the Hon. Mr. Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue, the Hon. Mr. Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, and the Hon. Mr. Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue. When these gentlemen begin to get letters on this subject by the hundreds we imagine they will "sit up and take notice."

The Agricultural Survey Of 1912

(The Journal of Agriculture and Horticulture.)

That part of the Fourth Report of the Commission of Conservation recently published relating to agricultural conditions in the various provinces of Canada, obtained by means of an agricultural survey, makes very interesting reading. We are naturally more interested in the conditions found to obtain in Quebec than in the other provinces, consequently we shall confine our remarks to the findings of the Report with regard to this province.

It is very evident that the majority of Quebec farmers are still following old methods and are not giving much heed to the advice of the progressive neighbors. To such fundamentally important matters as systematic rotation of crops, the selection of seed grain, the growing of clover and use of manure they pay but little attention. As a result the weed problem has become a serious one. The lands are polluted with persistent weeds such as couch grass, chicory, ox-eye daisy and paint-brush. Too little care is given to the cutting of weeds in the fence corners and along roadsides.

In the dairy districts but little attention is paid to cow-dung work, but many herds give evidence that some careful breeding has been done. The scarcity of labour is widespread, even on the French-speaking farms where families are larger than those on the English-speaking farms. This labor factor has had the effect of lessening the number of dairy cattle

THE NEW AMERICAN TARIFF

(The Journal of Agriculture and Horticulture.)

Economists cannot always tell exactly how a Tariff will affect the industries of a country in the long run. Frequently new and unsuspected turns will develop. The long fight in Congress over the Underwood-Simmons Tariff shows that the people of the United States are far from unanimous regarding the extent of the benefits they are likely to derive from the lowering of the duties on food products and other articles.

However, so far as Canada is concerned, the new Tariff is likely to benefit the farmers, the makers of farm machinery, and the dressed-meat industry. Cattle, sheep, swine, eggs, corn, rye, milk and cream are now placed on the free list. The duty on horses has been reduced to 10 per cent; on poultry to 1 cent per lb. live and 2 cents per lb. dead; on wheat to 10 cents per bushel; on barley from 30 cents to 15 cents per bushel; on oats from 15 cents to 6 cents per bushel; on peas from 25 cents to 10 cents per bushel; on fruit from 25 cents per bushel to 10 cents per 50 lbs.; on turpins from 25 per cent to 15 per cent; on butter and cheese from 8 cents to 2 1/2 cents per lb.; and on hay from $4.00 to $2.00 per ton.

With regard to dressed meats, bacon, beef, canned meat, hams, lard, mutton and pork are entitled to free entry. The removal of duties from milk and cream will undoubtedly stimulate the trade in these articles in the border districts. This extension of the milk and cream trade will undoubtedly have an injurious effect on some of our cheese and butter factories established by a great deal of effort by our government.

The ready market for our raw farm products in the border cities of the States will certainly tend to raise the price of these products in Canada, so that while the farmers will benefit the consumers in our cities will likely be compelled to pay higher prices for the necessary articles of food. It is probable, however, that the farmer will have to pay higher prices for the articles he buys in the city—such as clothing and machinery.

WEEDS SEEDS IN MILL FEEDS

(The Journal of Agriculture and Horticulture.)

The purchase of bran, shorts and chip feed has little to fear in the way of falling to receive the nutrient value for which he pays. Out of 396 samples collected by the Inland Revenue Department in September and October, 1912, only fifteen were found to fall below the Government standards, which are as follows:

	Proteins	Fat	Min.	Max.
Bran	14	3	10
Shorts or Mid-Glins	15	4	8
Chop Feed	10	2	10

Even among the fifteen samples below standard the deficiencies were for the most part slight.

There is, however, another point to be considered in reference to feed stuffs. This is the liability of introducing new weeds to the farm through the medium of purchased feeds. It is well-known that the vitality of some weed seeds survives not only the milling process but even the destructive action of the processes of digestion. Fresh manure from animals fed on feeding stuffs containing weed seeds is, accordingly, a source of contamination of the fields upon which it is used. This is recognized by the Government in the provision added to the standards of feeding value that bran, shorts and chop-feed "must be free from vital seeds of any of the poisonous weeds defined by the Government-Council under the Seed Control Act."

Of the 396 samples examined, 200 conform fully to this requirement, 20 had less than 5 vital weed seeds per pound, 51 had from 5 to 25 per pound, and 45 had more than 25 per pound, several of them running up into the hundreds. Wild mustard, wild oats, false flax, sow thistle, Canada thistle, stinkweed and campons were among the seeds commonly found. The seeds appeared even in shorts and middlings, indicating that some millers are in the habit of adding "screenings" of "chaff" to feeding stuffs; a practice which may account for the evil effects sometimes noted in the health and appetite of the animals using them.

By referring to the Government report upon this subject, which is issued as Bulletin 254 of the Laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department, stockmen and retail dealers in feeds may ascertain what millers have been putting out dirty goods and what millers have been conforming to all the requirements of the standards.

THE PROTECTION OF OUR BIRDS

(The Journal of Agriculture and Horticulture.)

On October 14th ten persons were fined in Montreal for killing song birds. It is high time that the indiscriminate destruction of our birds should be dealt with by a strong hand. In the great majority of cases the culprits are men and boys from cities and towns, who have no higher ideal of true sport than that anything which runs or flies should be shot. Such persons require to be given a salutary lesson so that the offence will not likely be repeated.

Canadian as a rule do not sufficiently value the services of the birds. Aside from their aesthetic value, which every lover of nature rates very highly, their economic value is incalculable. Most of our common birds get their living by feeding on insects which are injurious to trees and crops of various kinds. A competent authority has stated that if it were not for the work of the birds it would be impossible to grow the majority of our crops.

A few years ago Scotland suffered severely from the ravages of field mice. A Commission of the Board of Agriculture after thorough investigation reported that the excessive numbers of mice were due to the indiscriminate killing of hawks and other vermin. It is guaranteed to cure or benefit or money refunded after a fair trial. Alcura No. 1 can be given secretly by any wife or mother wanting to restore a dear one to health and usefulness. Make Yourself Over

THE FIRST WORD—You can have anything that you want in this world if you want it bad enough.
My mail is full of letters from girls who want to be changed in the twinkling of an eye. Girls bewail the fact that they are fat, or they are lean, that they are tall or short, that they have bad complexions, ugly teeth, scanty hair, and other imperfections, and they want these blemishes made beautiful right away.
The girl who is too fat has probably put on only ten pounds a year for the last three or four years, yet if one should tell her something that would only take off ten pounds within a year, do you suppose that she would practice the self-denial for that length of time but be sure that not too rapid melting of her flesh? When people tell me that they do not eat anything and still remain fat, I know that they are not only deceiving me but themselves.
They may not be eating such great quantities of food, but they are eating flesh-making foods—starches and sweets and fats.
If one who wishes to grow thin will walk five miles a day and eat no potatoes, no rich gravies, and no sweetmeats, no rich gravies, and live mostly upon lean meats, fruits, and salads, cutting down one's meals to two a day, one can reduce one's flesh but it is a long and laborious process and few women have the strength of mind to do it.
Actresses must practice this self-denial, as there is nothing to succeed destroying to the actress as fat.
Then there is the girl who has pimples on her face. She probably has had them for months and even years, but she will return you a letter saying that your remedies are of no use if within four weeks her face is not cleared up and her complexion perfect.
The girl who has acne or eczema, must be very careful of her diet, omitting all fats, made dishes, pastries, and foods that are highly seasoned. She must be scrupulously careful to bathe her entire body daily, using a brush and coarse towel to remove the impurities thrown off by the skin and keep all the pores open. Then, if she uses a healthy ointment and antiseptic she will find in time that her face will become smooth, although she may never have the fine skin of the girl who has not allowed her face to become pimply through neglect.
There is, however, another cause for pimply face, and that is nervousness, and the girl who feels that her nerves are frayed should take long walks in the open air, practice and southern models is the applied hours a day.
JUST ONE LAST WORD—Don't get impatient. It takes as long to remedy beauty ills as it does to develop them.

Helpful Hints

- A Sugar Paste
In order to prevent the gum from cracking, to 10 parts by weight of gum arabic add 3 parts of sugar, add water until the desired consistency is obtained. If a very strong paste is required, add a quantity of flour equal in weight to the gum, and boil the mixture. The paste improves in strength when it begins to ferment.
- Tin Box Cement
To fix labels to tin boxes either of the following will answer: 1. Soften good glue in water, then boil it in strong vinegar, and when cooled, while holding with fine wheat flour, so that a paste results. 2. Starch paste, with which a little Venice turpentine has been incorporated while warm.
- Paper and Leather Paste
Cover 3 parts, by weight, of glue, with 15 parts of cold water, and allow it to soak for several hours, then warm moderately till the solution is perfectly clear, and dilute with 60 parts of boiling water, intimately stirred in. Next prepare a solution of 30 parts of starch in 200 parts of cold water, so as to form a thin homogeneous liquid, free from lumps, and pour the boiling glue solution into it with thorough stirring, and at the same time keep the mass boiling.
- Commercial Mucilage
The best quality of mucilage in the market is made by dissolving clear glue in equal volumes of water and strong vinegar, and adding one-fourth of an equal volume of alcohol and a small quantity of a solution of alum in water. Some of the cheaper preparations offered for sale are merely boiled starch or flour, mixed with nitric acid to prevent their gelatinizing.
- Acid-Proof Paste
A paste formed by mixing powdered glass with a concentrated solution of silicate of soda makes an excellent acid-proof cement.
- Paste to Fasten Cloth to Wood
Take a pump pound of wheat flour, one tablespoonful of powdered resin, one tablespoonful of finely powdered alum, and rub the mixture in a suitable vessel, with water, to a uniform, smooth paste; transfer this to a small kettle over a fire, and stir until the paste is perfectly homogeneous without lumps. As soon as the mass begins to thicken, transfer it to a very thin layer to the surface of the table; the cloth, or leather, is then laid and
- To Remove Red Stains From Linen
Moisten the cloth and hold it over a piece of sulphur, then wash thoroughly, or else the spots may reappear.
- To Remove Oil Stains
Take 3 ounces of spirits of turpentine, and 1 ounce of essence of lemon, mix well, and apply it as you would any other scouring drops. It will take out all the grease.
- Iron Stains May Be Removed by the Salt of Lemons
Many stains may be removed by dipping the linen in sour buttermilk, and drying it in a hot sun; wash it in cold water, repeat this three or four times.
- To Remove Oil Stains From Wood
Mix together fuller's earth and soap lye, and rub it into the boards. Let it dry and then scour it off with some strong soft soap and, or use less than to scour it with. It should be put on
- To Remove Tea Stains
Mix thoroughly soft soap and salt—say a tablespoonful of salt to a tea-cupful of soap, rub on the spots and spread the cloth on the grass where the sun will shine on it. Let it lie two or three days, then wash. If the spots are wet occasionally while lying on the grass, it will hasten the bleaching.
- To Remove Stains From Muslin
If you have stained your muslin or gingham dress, or your white pants with berries, before wetting with any, the stains and they will disappear. Before your juice dries it can often be removed by cold water, using a sponge and towel if necessary.
- To Remove Acid Stains
Stains caused by acids may be removed by tying some pearl ash up in the stained part; scrape some soap into a bowl of water, and rub the linen until the stain is gone.
- To Disinfect Sinks and Drains
Coppers dissolved in water, one-fourth of a pound to a gallon, and poured into a sink and water drain occasionally, will keep such places sweet and wholesome. A little chloride of lime, say half a pound to a gallon of water, will have the same effect, and either of these costs but a trifle.
- A preparation may be made at home which will answer about as well as the chloride of lime. Dissolve a bushel of salt in a barrel of water, and with the salt water slack a barrel of lime, which should be made wet enough to form a thin paste or wash.
- To Disinfect a Cellar
A damp, musty cellar may be sweetened by sprinkling upon the floor pulverized copperas chloride of lime, or even common lime. The most effective means we have ever used to disinfect decaying vegetable matter is chloride of lime dissolved in water. One pound may be dissolved in two gallons of water. Plaster of Paris has also been found an excellent absorbent of noxious odors. If used one part with three parts of charcoal, it will be found still better.
- How to Thaw Out Water Pipe
Water pipes usually freeze up when exposed, for inside the walls, where they cannot be reached, they are or should be packed to prevent from freezing. To thaw out a frozen pipe bundle a newspaper into a torch, light it, and pass it along the pipe slowly. The ice will yield to this much quicker than to hot water or wrappings of hot cloths, as is the common practice.

The Magnetic Girl
How She Compels Others to Obey Her Will
100,000 Copies of Remarkable Book, describing peculiar Psychic Powers to be distributed Post Free to readers of "The St. John Standard."

"The wonderful power of Personal Influence, Magnetism, Fascination, Mind Control, call it what you will, can surely be acquired by everyone no matter how unattractive or unsuccessful," says Mr. Elmer Ellsworth Knowles, author of the new book entitled: "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces." The book is a share many astounding facts concerning the practices of the Eastern Yogi and describes a simple though effective system of controlling the thoughts and acts of others; how one may gain the love and might of those who are friendly and how to remain indifferent; how to quickly and accurately judge the character and disposition of an individual; how to cure the most obstinate diseases and habits without drugs or medicines; even the complex subject of projecting thoughts (telepathy) is explained. Miss Josephine Davis, the popular stage favorite, whose portrait appears herewith declares that Prof. Knowles' book opens the door to success, health, and happiness to every mortal, no matter what his or her position in life. She believes that Prof. Knowles has discovered principles which, if universally adopted, will revolutionize the mental status of the human race. The book, which is being distributed broadcast free of charge, is full of photographic reproductions showing how these unseen forces are being used all over the world, and how thousands upon thousands have developed powers which they little thought they possessed. The free distribution of the 100,000 copies is being conducted by a large London institution, and a copy will be sent post free to anyone interested. No money need be sent, but those who wish to do so may enclose 5 cents (stamps of your own country) to cover postage, etc. All requests for the free book should be addressed to: National Institute of Sciences, Free Distribution Dept. 1506 St. No. 225, Westminster Bridge Road, London, S.E., England. Simply say you would like a copy of "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces," and mention The St. John Standard.

Glimpses Of Spring Styles

NEW styles for spring are of raine, linen and cotton drapery weave. Colors are to be found as easily as white in the suit models. The new loose-sleeve, so large that the lower edge begins at the waist tapers down to a narrow cuff about the wrist. This baggy skirt that makes the early spring body of the coat seem one is one of the newest features of tailored suits says the New York Herald. Another detail that will mark the early spring and southern models is the apert band on the skirt, attached to it on the upper edge only, and often having the same ripple along the lower edge that one sees in all the new coat suits; while these encircle the skirt horizontally they also often take the same line as the lower edge of the coat, generally one of the cutaway coat curves.
The skirt itself remains simple, though some of the newest models have the lower part from under the flounce down to the hem laid in flat, mechanically laid pleats. These preserve the narrow look about the feet, even when walking, as they do not fly out in the same fashion as the narrower accordion or machine laid pleats.
Dancing dresses of filmy materials are often a cloud of fluffy ruffles. The skirt on which they are worn, however, is cut so that the silhouette remains up to date—that is to say, wide at the top and narrow at the hem, the reverse of the old crinoline. These look very effective in the ballroom on young or slender figures.
Little summer morning dresses of two different cotton weaves have adorable details. One that is cleverly cut to preserve the modish contour, in spite of its simplicity, is of a striped elonzo and a plain linen, both white. A very attractive manner of buttoning is introduced. Cherry red and shapd but, these dangle from red cords from a double row of buttonholes. The frock, of course, fastens underneath invisibly. There is a touch of red on the collar.
It does not take Paris fashions long to transfer themselves from the French ateliers to New York workrooms. The new coats of conical shape are already to be found here, and an occasional glimpse of them may be caught on the avenue in the promenade. Whether falling in gods all about, or simply gathered into a belt placed at an odd distance below the waist line, they have all the effectiveness of the last word from Paris.

ALL THE NEWS FROM THE ATHLETIC WORLD

RINGMEN REACH ZENITH OF EARNING POWERS AS MITCHELL INVOICE SHOWS

So far as we consider the income of the average champion fighter we might well exclaim the millennium has arrived. Only the other day the telegraphic dispatches told us that Willie Ritchie in a little over a year's time had earned $50,000 by the activity of his fists and brain. Some earning capacity, we dare say, even for the most learned professional man or skilled inventor, to say nothing about a youngster with only twenty-two summers accounted for in his short life.

"Was not ever thus. In the day of real fighting, in the days when the champions were enticed with the sport and would fight for a button as quickly as they would for a hundred-dollar note. In the days when fighters were reckoned as pugilists and not as men who had learned their little 'b. c.' in the financial primer. Those were the days when they fought in the ring with their fists instead of in the box office with the indelible lead pencil. And, mind, we have not to retrace many years in order to prove this condition. Twenty-five years ago when Sullivan, Dempsey, McAniff, Tommy Warren and Gene Hornbacher ruled the roost in the different fighting divisions is not so awful long a span of years.

Even in so recent a time select gatherings met in the wee hours of the morning in some secluded spot or in the nearby woods. While the ring was being erected and the principals wrapped in big blankets awaiting the call of the referee, our sentinels were on the outskirts, and some of our officious sheriff was about to emulate the feat of Paul Revere in warning the constabulary and arousing them to action.

Wagering Fan Split With Sullivan

When in front of the hotel at Mississippi City, near the very spot at which President Wilson is now resting, it meant psychological moment of Sullivan's life had arrived. The battle had attracted world-wide attention. He was facing Paddy Ryan, the man who defeated Joe Goos for the title. And all he got out of that battle as his gross share was one-half of the 10,000 that Jim Keenan of Boston had wagered on his chance. Yet Jeffries was given just thirteen times Sullivan's share for his one-third interest in the moving pictures of his defeat at Reno, Nevada. Some difference, we should say. Mind, too, that out of the Sullivan share Billy Madden, Mike Gillespie and Pete McCoy were given their reward for assisting in preparing John L. for the issue.

Dempsey, although the undisputed middle weight champion of the world, a few years later offered to meet any man in the world for $250 as a purse. Not until Dempsey fought the Marine did he ever dream of battling for a $10,000 purse, and, strange to say, he only two times he did fight for big money (the Marine and Fitzsimmons) he lost on both occasions. Poor Jack would do an "Arab scoundrel" in his grave if he could realize what fighters—men not to be compared to him—are receiving for a ten-round bout now. Unfortunately, Jack was young.

ahead of his time. This seems to be the case of all achievements, and the fighter manages to get his portion of the cake as it evolves around the circle. He is, therefore, to consider himself lucky in having arrived at such a stage in the world's progress. That is the only way we can figure it.

In reviewing some old anecdotes, I ran across one regarding Charlie Mitchell that will bear repeating. It shows that one night Mitchell was slumming in the Whitechapel district of London. A rough female character was just at that moment bothering some men and women who were bent on the same mission that brought Mitchell to this disreputable neighborhood. Mitchell came to the rescue, pushing the troublesome woman out into the streets. She was angry beyond control, threatening to bring her "man" to trim the elegantly dressed fighter. Hardly had the Mitchell party been seated in a nearby cafe when the door suddenly opened.

"There he sits, Bob," she shouted, pointing to Mitchell.

"Why, that's Charley Mitchell, my word!" said Bob, and attempted to make a sneak for the door. Mitchell stepped in front of him.

"Say, Bob, you rotter! You've come here to get a battle and you shall have it, for I shan't let you have your journey for nothing." With this Mitchell stepped in front of him.

"Sandy, without a word, of reply, simply grabbed Lord Drumharry by the middle of the body and threw him clean over the hedge and then resumed his work as if nothing had happened. When his lordship got on his feet, however, the farmer looked up and said:

"Well, have ye anything to say to me?" His lordship simply said, "No, but perhaps you'll be so good as to throw me my horse."

Marquis of Queensbury vouched, when he told me this story, that it was absolutely authentic.

SPORTOGRAPHY "GRAVY" Old New York Boxing Club Passes its 21st Milestone.

One of New York's oldest boxing clubs, the New York Polo Athletic Association, will celebrate its twenty-first birthday anniversary tonight. The New York Polo Club, the scene of many great fist battles, was incorporated in 1893. Its exhibitions of the manly art were originally staged in a clubhouse near the Polo Grounds, but this was destroyed by fire about five years after the opening, and the club removed to a building at the corner of Park avenue and 129th street. For seven years the New Polo club operated under the old Horton law, which permitted twenty-round contests to be held at reputable clubs, to which an admission could be charged and at which the referees were allowed to render decisions.

It is like resurrecting the dead to mention some of the star boxers who have fought at the Polo Club. Some of them are dead, and many of them are all but forgotten, such being the temporary nature of fame, as has been pointed out by other gifted authors. The Weir, the Belfast Spider, first Queensbury featherweight of the world, now dead, displayed his prowess be-

FIVE FINGER BROWN

NEWLY FOUND PORTRAIT OF FAMOUS TROTTER.

Ever since George Wilkes (222) came into overshadowing prominence as a progenitor of trotters horsemen have been searching for a portrait of the little brown stallion made in action in his lifetime. One painted in 1864 by Marshall, a noted animal painter of that day, was mentioned in the Times many years ago, but it remained undiscovered until Ed. L. Weitzel found it recently on Long Island in the hands of a son of "Sam" McLaughlin, the man who trained and drove the horse fifty years ago and who is portrayed in the skeleton wagon behind him. The Spirit of the Times called it a capital likeness of Wilkes in action.

HINTS ON HEALTH AND EXERCISE

By Mac Levy of Babylon.

(The author of these "Hints" is recognized as one of the world's foremost authorities on the subjects of physical culture and athletic training, and his advice is based on an experience of eighteen years.)

Art and Muscle.

The campaign recently conducted by a New York newspaper to have the Metropolitan Art Museum opened in the evenings, so that those employed during the day might have an opportunity to enjoy its treasures, should appeal to physical culturists, as well as those who advocate the innovation on intellectual and esthetic grounds. The relation between art and muscle, and the development of an appreciation of both, is closer than it may seem at first thought. The sane and normal mind finds its fit habitation in a sound, healthy and beautiful body. What greater incentive and inspiration to physical improvement and well-rounded muscular development could be found than the study of the great works of the master sculptors and artists of the perfectly formed, magnificent and virile specimens of manhood and womanhood. The sculptors of ancient Greece found models in the youths who participated in the Olympian games, and in turn, the athletes were encouraged to seek a nobler and more perfect physical development by the work of the sculptors. Art and athletics inspired each other in that distant period when Greece was great. During my experience of eighteen years as a trainer and body-builder I have come across many young men who have been shamed into undertaking the work of a healthy development by "odious comparisons" between their own insignificant physiques and the perfect sculptured figures shown at museums and art galleries. Americans, especially the inhabitants of great cities, are rapidly degenerating into a race of weaklings, with flabby muscles, jump nerves, narrow chests, round shoulders and spindling legs and arms. This is true largely because they lack the inspiration of the ideal, such as is supplied by the works of the great sculptors. This is a phase of the usefulness of art museums to which little attention has been paid, and yet it is highly important.

should be taken to begin with. Do not walk directly after meals. About two hours should elapse after meals before beginning active exercise. Breathe deeply and fully as you walk, filling the lungs with fresh air, which not only develops the lungs but strengthens the heart action and invigorates the whole system. After a few days of walking change the pace to an easy jog, not too fast, and cover about the same distance. This should be followed by a shower or sponge bath, using cold water, and a thorough rub-down and kneading of the muscles. After a few days of jogging, begin walking again, extending the distance to five miles. Later the five miles can be covered at a jog trot.

Don't extend yourself to the limit, nor subject yourself to undue strain, for this winter work is only preparatory, and is designed to maintain your general health and to keep your muscles limber and active. As to diet the same rule applies to runners as to other athletes. Eat meals at regular hours—each meal at exactly the same time each day, if possible. Substantial, nutritious, well-cooked food is demanded. The idea that a runner must have a strict and faddish diet is nonsense. Of course, indigestible foods should be taboo, as well as tobacco and alcohol. Unless the candidate for running honors be in bad condition, and burdened with surplus fat, to begin with, this preparatory work should not cause any decrease in weight. Rather, after the first week or two, there should be a slight gain. Go to bed early and get enough sleep. By following these directions, the runner will be in the condition to begin real training for either a sprint or a Marathon.

Women and Athletics.

We are now so accustomed to the athletic woman that we accept her as a matter of course, although she is still more the exception than the rule. When it is considered, however, that athletes for the fair sex is, in America, a development of the last quarter of a century, it must be admitted that wonderful progress has been made. Most of us can remember the time when croquet was the most strenuous "sport" in which American women considered it proper to indulge. By following these directions, the runner will be in the condition to begin real training for either a sprint or a Marathon.

JOBS FOR EX-PUGILISTS

Bob Fitzsimmons, who used to train at my place, is feeling pessimistic these days because the athletic commissioners consider him too old to return to the ring. The former middle weight and heavy weight champion of the world is now in his fifty-second year, but I do not doubt that he could make a good showing against some of the white hopes who are now battling for Johnson's crown. Ruby Robert complains that he is being deprived of his means of a livelihood, and this suggests a method by which retired pugilists could perform a real service. Why should not street railway companies running lines to summer resorts and amusement places employ a squad of retired boxers and athletes to act as conductors on their cars? The young hoodlums and toughs who so often terrorize women and children passengers on cars running to summer amusement places could be effectively squelched by the inauguration of such a "strong-arm" squad. This way of earning a living might not appeal to Mr. Fitzsimmons, but if it should, there isn't any doubt that "Bob" could handle almost any number of the sort of hoodlums who insult women, and reduce them to speedy submission. If this scheme for giving employment to worthy boxers who have outlived their usefulness in the ring doesn't meet with the approval of the transportation magnates, they might arrange to provide boxing lessons for the conductors who are in charge of cars on lines patronized by the tough element. Even people who are opposed to boxing will be forced to admit that a hot blow to the solar plexus or a sporty punch to the jaw would be about the best thing that could happen to a street car rowdy. I mention the matter now in order that the transportation companies may have sufficient time to develop their pugilistic squads before the summer season begins.

TRAINING FOR LONG RUNS

Young men who are ambitious to shine as runners in spring and summer should begin now to get into condition. A morning or evening walk of three miles or so, at a brisk pace,

Vic Sailer

The place of Frank Chance, on first base, is filled very acceptably by Vic Sailer in Chicago. While not the fighter that Chance was, he puts lots of earnest endeavor into his work, and it is appreciated by the home fans, too. He is the best Cub batter to come up in a pinch—many a runner would get the play into his work, and he has brains and youth to combine with batting, fielding and base running ability.

SYDNEY DEFEATED BY NEW GLASGOW

New Glasgow, Jan. 30.—To the tune of 5 to 1, the New Glasgow team played Sydney to a standstill in the Arena here tonight. It was not exactly winter polo, but the ice was heavy and the Millionaires had equal chances in every particular.

In the opening period Gregory and Wilkie for the locals and Fraser of Sydney made one count, New Glasgow, 2; Sydney, 1.

In the second period, Wilkie swelled the count by one goal for the Black Foxes, score New Glasgow, 3; Sydney, 1.

In the third period Mag McGregor and Gregory added two tallies for New Glasgow. The game was comparatively clean and was witnessed by a fair sized audience.

CRESCENTS, 6; SOCIALS, 3

Halifax, Jan. 30.—The Crescents maintained their unbeaten record on Halifax ice tonight, when they defeated the Socials in a fast and exciting game by six goals to three before about 1,000 fans.

Dugan Was Safe

Dugan, the roofer, was sent to a millionaire's palatial home, to try to find a leak in the roof. As he entered the front hall, the butler whispered to Dugan, "You are requested to be careful of the hardwood floors as you go upstairs, they've just been polished." "Sure, there's no danger as me slipping on them," Dugan replied. "Oh, no, spikes in me shoes."
