Kruger Refuses England's Demands-Excitement Among the Boers.

Popular Feeling in England Very Little Disturbed.

Cabinet Crisis in Germany-All the Ministers Offer to Resign.

Cavalry Storm Guerin's House-Assault Begun This Morning-Venezuela's Weak Case.

London, Aug. 21. - There is no longer any doubt that President Kruger has refused to submit to the demand of Mr. Chamberlain for the appointment of a court of inquiry. He may have done so diplomatically or hedgingly. But, that his answer is regarded by the British Government as tantamount to a positive refusal is now an established fact. The colonial office is normally non-committal, but there are other evidences which amply justify the statement. The report that President Kruger has proposed new terms is some-what verified by the guarded comment of the colonial office officials and the irritability displayed there. There is not the slightest doubt that they believe war is now the only way to settle the controversy. They would far rather have had a curt, defiant answer than the temporizing reply which the Boer president has sent. With the former, Great Britain would have plain grounds for a quick commencement of hostilities. Under the circumstances, which it is believed now exist, aggressive action needs considerable explanation to justify it in the eyes of the world, and the English minority who still declare that war would be an out-

However, if Mr. Chamberlain has his way, it is believed President Kruger's counter-proposals will meet with scant attention, and unless the Boers completely back down, which is not likely, the crisis will quickly

DEVELOP INTO WAR. It is gathered that the colonial office has been aware of the nature of the Transvaal's reply for some days, and that it was communicated to the war office, hence it is probable that Great Britain will delay cial reception. In the course of the ceremony he prayed that if war were unavoidable, God might find right and truth on the side of the Afrikanders. little as possible. A high colonial official frankly exrepresentative of pressed to a the Associated Press his gust of Kruger's cupidity and hypocrisy." He said: "The kind of game which Kruger is playing must be clear to Americans. The protestations of the Boers that they wish to live a quiet, agricultural life may be the tune of some of the veldt, but the gang in Pretoria is simply after money. Though President Kruger says many harsh things of the uitlanders, he never hesitated to make money out of them, either by fair or foul means. This Transvaal question cannot be judged by recent occurrences. You must go back 50 years. It has been hanging fire all that time, and the sooner it is settled now the better." Though the official did not actually war was the only method of settlement. It is learned that the government is somewhat annoyed at the public's slight interest in the Transvaal. The official above quoted said to the Associated Press representative: "Dreyfus seems the only thing our people think about, though England is in a most serious crisis. This indiffer-ence is perhaps typical."

A special dispatch from Cape Town says there is great danger of an outbreak of violence on the frontier, and that the seum of South Africa are enlisting throughout the colony, and are being sent to Pitsani and Jameson, on the border.

Cape Town, Aug. 21.-The report that the Transvaal Government had handed ants, but made several arrests. During its reply to the British agent at Pretoria, to be forwarded to Sir Alfred and they charged on the mob with Milner, British high commissioner for South Africa, and governor of Cape four persons were killed and several Colony, is confirmed. It is believed, others were injured. vanced. Sunday was observed throughout the Orange Free State and Cape Colony with humiliation, prayer and sermons, advocating a peaceful solution of the crisis. Mr. Snytler, a leading Dutch reform preacher here, referred to the close ties uniting the Cape Colony to those of the Transvaal, which he added, were members of the great Afrikander family. If war was declared, he asessted, Great Britain would commit a "helmous crime before God and man, resulting in civil war in Cape

There is evidence of growing un-easiness of the Boers at Johannesburg. Great crowds gather at the railroad station, expressing disapproval at the departures for Cape Colony and Durban, Natal.

According to Afrikander reports the Transvaal's reply is a counter-proposal of a five years' retrospective franchise in the election of the president, and an increased representation. It is said that the suggestion is made to submit all other differences to arbitration. NOT A FULL ACCEPTANCE.

London, Aug. 20.-The colonial office, in confirming the dispatch already telegraphed to the Associated Press from Cape Town, saying the Trans-vaal Government had handed its reply to the British agent at Pretoria, says that Sir Alfred Milner has telegraphed a message to that effect. All that the officials of the colonial office would say in regard to the matter, was: 'The reply is not a complete acceptance of the proposal of Mr. Chamberlain, secretary of state for the

Many Large Excursions Out of London Yesterday-Port Stanley Drew Several Thousand Citizens.

Six or seven thousand Londoners spent the holiday out of the city. All the special railway excursions were largely patronized, and for the L.E. and D. R. R. it was one of the biggest days of the season on the Port Stanley line. In addition to the regular trains there were a number of specials, all heavily loaded, and the total number of people carried to the lakeside during the day was about 4,000. This crowd was increased also by hundreds of holidayseekers, who got away from the city on Saturday, and by the summer so-journers at the popular resort. To Detroit went several hundred excursionists via the C. P. R. and M. C. R., while Court Orient's excursion over the G. T. R. carried 450 people. Camp No. 1, Woodmen of the World, took with them to Sarnia 300 excursionists, and 200 more went to Niagara Falls with Court Magnolia.

LOOKING INTO LONDON'S STRIKE

A Cleveland Clergyman Comes Over to Investigate.

And Publishes His Opinion in the Cleveland World.

Rev. Arthur Ludlow's Conclusions-How the Situation Struck an Unprejudiced Observer.

The Cleveland World last week requested Rev. Arthur C. Ludlow, pastor of the Miles Park Presbyterian Church, Cleveland, to make an impartial investigation into the London street railway situation. The Cleveland and the London street railways systems are controlled by the one man-Mr. H. A. Everett-and there are strikes on both at present. Mr. Lud-low's report is as follows:

London, Ont., Aug. 18.—In the heart of the agricultural region of On-tario, Canada, one would not expect to see scenes similar to those which have been and are yet being enacted in the great industrial city of Cleveland. Can-ada is not a manufacturing country, and the province of Ontario especially has few large cities. Man's relation to man is primitive individualism rather than American consolidation, 'big' or "little."

London is a city of about 40,000 inhabitants, situated 113 miles east of Detroit and 23 miles north of Port Stanley, which is on the north shore of Lake Erie, about opposite Ashta-

London is an important railroad center, the half-way station between Detroit and Toronto. The city is a beautiful one, with asphalt pavements, substantial brick and stone business blocks, and comfortable homes. While the center of a rich farming region, London possesses on a small scale a diversity of industries, and union labor is very strong among artisan classes.

The natural, conservative orderliness of the city may be better comprehended when it remembered that

NO SUNDAY STREET CARS, and not only a fair Sunday closing of drug stores, but this class of merchants have also united for a Wednesday half-holiday during the months of July and August.

Looking into the faces of London's citizens no one would suspect "an-archy" lurking behind their rather conservative countenances, many of which are of the Scotch cast, but while the sons and daughters of Bonny Scotland have great reverence for law, human as well as divine, no class of people are more sensitive than they to Clevelanders, however, have read accounts of rioting and call for militia in this industriously inclined Canadian city. Having visited London in its normal condition, it seemed strange to see on a smaller scale the street railway trouble I left behind in Cleve-

The first thing noticeable after leaving the railroad station was an empty car. Its uniformed motorman was of elderly appearance, while behind him citizen's clothes, looking like a detective guardian. On the rear platform stood a younger conductor, with new, gold-braided cap. He was busy locking after his trolley rope or making up his accounts. Non-union conductors work most assiduously at their records of trips and passengers, when there are so few of the latter.

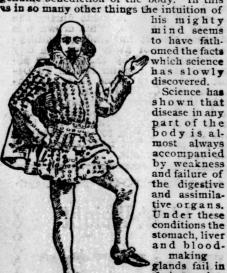

THE NEXT REMEMBRANCE OF HOME.

was the busses, bearing in large let-ters the sign: "No surrender; the strike is still on." The busses are operated by the strikers' union and not by individual enterprise. The present week is the twelfth of the strike, and its course seems indefinite, although the company assures the London public that the trouble is over. At the busiest corner of London, where the company's main offices are located, and where, under ordinary circumstances, cars would arrive and leave filled, I counted twenty cars in which there were not over a dozen passen-gers. These were women with small children, or travelers going to trains. It certainly looked as if some of the conflict were lingering around that principal corner.

As the system in London is not as extensive as that in Cleveland, the company employing only about 75 conductors and motormen, it appeared at first sight as though it would be difficult to win a strike upon so limited a shown that disease in any part of the body is al-most always accompanied and failure of the digestive and assimilative organs. Under these conditions the stomach, liver and bloodmaking glands fail in their appointedwork. Then the symptoms of disease appear, often in organs appar-ently remote from the real cause. Vitality lowered. There is a dull and sluggish feeling often accompanied by headache. The heart may seem affected. There may be lack of ambition and energy with mental irresolution. With such symptoms as these "delay is dangerous." Such a condition affords the favorite starting point for consumption. It is useless to "doctor" for the symptoms. The remedy that reaches the case must reach the cause of disease. The greatest medicine for all diseases of the greatest medicine for all diseases of the stomach and other digestive and nutritive organs is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores the appetite, re-establishes a sound digestion, purges out the bilious poisons which infect the blood, carries off waste and builds up sound and healthy tissues. railway if the mere importation of new employes would defeat it; but, on the other hand, the inconvenience to the London public is small compared with that of a greater city.

That sentence from Shakespeare is a genuine benediction of the body. In this

The longest line in London, excepting one to a pleasure resort, is about three miles in length, and the great majority of patrons ride but two or three miles at the most. Such a condition differs greatly from a seven-mile jaunt in busses to East Cleveland or to Newburg.

TALKING WITH THE COMMON PEOPLE.

as I could with store clerks and chance street or hotel acquaintances, I found strong sympathy with the strikers, and a determination not to ride, if necessary, until election time, when the citizens expect to have something to say to the present city government, popularly suspected of favoring the railway company.

Ascending the social scale of humanity, I found the "better class of citizens" either non-committal or against the strike, resting their opposition largely upon the boycott.

In other words, the situation is similar to that in Cleveland, citizens being arrayed according to their "atmosphere" or business interests.

The latest effort of the railway company in London to win is that of using the merchants as a coercive force. The proposition was made that all business men, with their clerks, ride on the cars, and thus destroy the impediment to down-town trade. A few merchants of the wholesale type seemed willing to accept the proposition, but when the appeal reached the retail storekeepers their answer three days ago was: "If the railway company alienates its pat-rons, the public, to the detriment of its business, it should not expect us to alienate out patrons in order to restore its patronage.'

When it comes to car fare and to the ordinary necessities of life, the common people with large families are of more importance than the uncommon, at least in the estimation of London's retail merchants.

WHAT PROMPTED THE STRIKE, and what is its relation to similar labor difficulties in the States?

Answers to these questions should be of interest if the London and Cleveland strikes are but symptoms of a more universal social condition. No matter what may be the outcome of these local battles, the end, alas, is not yet.

For some years previous to the present electric system London had horsecar lines, whose employes were largely retained by the new organization. There being no Sunday cars, the employes worked six days a week at $1 50 for a day of 10 hours' work. This made their wages, but $9 a week—an exceedingly

Last October in London occurred the first strike, commonly termed a strike for wages, but in fact it was not due to great discontent over the wages, but rather due to the irregularity of even the $9 a week.

The real discontent was based upon the relation of the "extra" to the "regular" men. In order to give the extra, or relief, men, more work, the company was charged with laying off the regular men at every possible pretext. For example, if a car damaged any person or property, the regular men on that car were compelled to spend, without pay, the next two or three days collecting evidence. Thus the relief men were given more work. The

EMPLOYES FORMED A UNION, and the strike of October was waged of regular and relief men. The regular employes wished the relief men to have n irregular mode of procedure as that adopted by the company. The October strike was settled as follows: The regular men had demanded 15% cents an hour on the basis of nine instead of the former ten hours' daily work, thus yieldone hour for the benefit of the relief force of employes. The strike was settled upon a 15% cents basis for nine hours' work, although for the first six months of experience the pay should be only 13 cents, after which term to the end of one year the rate of wages should be 14% cents per hour. It is thus seen that the October strike for wages was a demand of the regu-lar men, working ten hours at $1 50, for the boon of working nine hours at $1 38, that their service might be more regular and that the relief men might have more daily work.

If these facts are true, and I secured them from the very best authority. other than the strikers, the October strike was not unreasonable.

In the settlement of that strike the company agreed to allow the employes to organize for any lawful purpose. Some employes at the end of the October strike did not belong to the union. THE OLD EMPLOYES CLAIM that the company then began in every way to discriminate against the union Not only were applicants for positions questioned as to their views of union labor and rejected or accepted according to their views, but old employes were discharged upon slightest pretext. One instance is cited where a young man alighting from a car fell and hurt his knee. He told the car employes that it was his own fault. A railroad official visited the injured man and urged him to make charges against the employe. The injured man refused to do this. The employe was discharged for the accident. Having been assured at the time of the accident that he was blameless, the discharged man sought the victim of the accident and secured from him a letter exonerating him of all blame. A newspaperman in London cited this as an example of treatment which led the employes to believe they would have no fair treatment as long as they maintained their organization, and so the present contest began, which is a fight for organized labor.

At the beginning of the present strike public sympathy in London was strong in favor of the men, and, although the company now claims public sentiment has changed, the general

CONDITION IS NOT ALTERED. Such a small electric system would not require many men to supplant the old employes. A sufficient number were imported. They are of a better type than some imported to work in Cleveland, nor do they look like professional strike-breakers from a "detective agency." On the other hand, they are ordinary motormen and conductors from other cities, employes of roads in close sympathy with the company in trouble. I talked with a few of these men. Asking one if there were any Pinkerton men at work, he said that, with the exception of detectives, who did not operate the cars, the new men were there from other cities, especially from the locality where the present superin-tendent formerly worked. I asked if it was the intention of the new men to remain in London in case the strike was broken, and he said it was not his purpose. Toronto's system, controlled by practically the same management as that in Cleveland and London, is operated by union employes. The union in Toronto was formed after the one in London. As is well known, the franchises of Toronto are more liberal than usual to the city. War against union labor in Toronto would not be aided by municipal authorities, as the city is virtually tockholder, or beneficiary through .

percentage of gross receipts. Thus in Toronto, when the city is financially in-terested, union labor has thus far been unmolested, but in other cities it does eem as if the general tendency of street railway employes to organize (even as steam railway employes form unions) is being

RESISTED BY UNITED OPPOSITION of street railway corporations. What the exact nature of this opposition is the public does not know. It consists, at least, of the loaning of men, as apparent in the London strike, and in the action of the Cleveland company in sending men to Brooklyn. This mutual, practical sympathy is further evidenced in the use made by the big consolidated superintendent of a tele-

Whether there is a union of leading street railway systems throughout the country, in sharing the actual financial losses in any one place, like that of Cleveland, the public does not know, but if the utter rout of union labor in such an important railway system as the "big consolidated" will free companies in other cities from similar labor difficulties, it would be worth the expense for all companies to financially aid the big consolidated in waging its present battle to a successful end. If the latter be the actual situation, ent strike, is a bigger consolidated than the citizens of Cleveland have dreamed. The whole problem will bear most careful scrutiny, for the symptoms of the disease are the same wherever the outbreak occurs. The disease being common, there must be a common cure. The analogy of events in London and Cleveland is very marked, making the problem of street railways in American cities all the more interesting.

TORONTO EXHIBITION

A Summary of the List of Attractions and of the Proceedings That Commence on Tuesday Next.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Major-General Hutton has consented to preside at the opening of the exhibition on the 29th inst., and to be present at the tattoo in the evening. Bishop Du-moulin, of Niagara, will officiate at the religious ceremonies, which always precede the great exhibition of Canada's resources in this city. The of-ficials at the office report most satisfactory progress in the preparations, which are said to promise the grandest display of the industries and products of the country, and of the world's inventions that has yet been made in Toronto. The management have seemingly left no stone unturned in their endeavor to be up to date in all departments, and merchants and manufacturers, agriculturists and breeders have splendidly seconded their efforts, with the result that in every class and in almost every secthere will be an abundance of tion exhibits. The amusement of the peo-ple will also be well looked after with the aforementioned tattoo, a brilliant dual military spectacle, the ride of the Dragoons, the maneuvers of the Streator Zouaves, and hundreds of the best attractions the world can produce. But the management have not forgotten the main objects of the Exposition, and by arranging for demonstrations in wireless telegraphy, wireless telephoning, high tension experiments and the improved X rays, have shown that if Canada should fall be-hind the times it will not be because they were lax in their efforts to bring for a different system in employment the march of events before the populace. Then there are the experiments in sub-marine gun cotton explosions, that are to be conducted by the Royal Engineers from Halifax, and the lifesaving from shipwrecked vessels life-saving crew, the great mining exhibit, which will certainly be the most imposing made anywhere by any one country, the exhibits of art and of music, the butter-making competi-tions and the display of live stock, which in all branches cannot be excelled by even the older countries of Europe, the whole truly forming a display of the energy, industry and wealth of a country that is unexcelled and unequalled, and that commends itself in most practical manner not only to every patriot, but to every stranger that would understand and appreciate the growth, rise and development of a youthful but giant-like nation. The railways have all consented to give a single rate from every point and to run special excursions. All the United States railways that tap Canada have agreed to this arrangement, and will give single fare for the round trip from all points in Michigan, Ohio, Il-linois, Indiana and New York States. In connection with the Provincial Firemen's Convention, to be held here next week, the exhibition people have arranged for a grand fire parade and drill, and for a series of appropriate competitions. A number of conventions will be held in the city during the next two weeks, the dates being as follows: Aug. 20—Opening and dedication, with elaborate ceremonies, of the new $2,500,000 City Hall and Court House. Evidence Today Proved More Favorable to Dreyfus-Sensational Episodes.

Rennes, Aug. 22.-Maitre Labori, leading counsel for the defense, who was murderously assaulted Aug. 14, was present in court this morning, when the second day of the third week of the second trial by count-martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, of the artillery, charged with treason, began. The proceedings opened at 6:30 a.m.

The arrival of M. Labori was the signal for scenes of extraordinary enthusiesm. The crowd about the Lyce building rushed up to M. Labori's carriage, and a number of people eagerly thrust their hands through the windows to greet the distinguished lawyer. When M. Labori descended he was surrounded by friends and a hundred hands pressed his.

As M. Labori, still accompanied by Mme. Labori and a physician, entered the court room, the audience greeted him by standing up, and there was a general roar of applause, accompanied by the clapping or hands, which was distinctly heard in the streets. Tears sprang to the eyes of the wounded man, who was evidently deeply affected by the warm welcome accorded Among those who greeted M. Labori were Generals Billot and Mercier, who courteously inquired as to his condition. The lawyer looked very well, considering his recent accident. He walked quite briskly, but held his left hand close to his side, in order not to disturb the wound. Counsel was conducted to a light, well cushioned arm chair, instead of the ordinary cane bottom chair behind the table set apart for the lawyers.

Dreyfus entered the courtroom soon afterwards, and after saluting the judges in the usual manner, he turned to M. Labori with outstretched hands and a smile of keen pleasure lighted up his pale and unusually impassive features. The lawyer took the prisoner's hand and shook it warmly, whereupon Dreyfus gave him another look of gratitude, and took his seat in front of the counsel's table with his back towards

Col. Jouaust next read from a paper an address to M. Labori, the tone of the president being quite sympathetic. The lawyer made an impassioned reply. He was deeply affected, and his voice was clear, though not so strong as before the outrage. He was very nervous and excited, and swayed to and fro when he delivered his reply, which profoundly impressed his hearers.'

Madame Rejane, the celebrated actress, was among those present in court today. She made the trip to Rennes especially to see the trial and return of M. Labori into the case, and she was one of those who applauded the most heartily his entrance into the court-

The first witness today was M. Grenfer, the former prefect of Belfort. His testimony resulted favorably to Dreyfus, inasmuch as his deposition was nostile to Esterhazy. Major Rollin, of the intelligence department, was asked during the course of his testimony by M. Labori, how a certain document, of a later date than Mercier's ministry, came into Gen. Mercier's possession. Major Rollins said was his not business to explain, but counsel insisted, asking whose business it was. Fin-ally M. Labori asked Col. Jouaust, to request Gen. Mercier to explain. The general arose and said he declined to answer. M. Labori insisted emphatically, but Mercier still refused to answer, and Major Carriere, the government commissary supported government commissary, supported him, on the ground that the examinatry, to be discussed publicly.

M. Labori then declared in a loud voice that he would reserve to him-self the right to take the necessary measures to obtain the desired information. The next point was made by Dreyfus, in his reply to Major Rollin. The latter had remarked that all the prisoner's papers were seized when his rooms were searched in 1894, and Col. Jouanst said that certain papers from his text book, the School of War, were

A porter of the war office, named Ferret testified seeing Dreyfus prying into other officers' work during their absence, and the prisoner replied excitedly, that Ferret's statements were concoctions by a former minister of war, which caused a sensation. Then, in a cooler manner, the prisoner made a statement explaining the difficulties in the way of a civilian, such as Fêrret, obtaining admittance to offices of the general staff.

Gen. Gonse thereupon presented two letters to the effect that the writers, both of whom were civilians, obtained easy admittances to the offices. Here Dreyfus retorted smartly that the regulations were most strict in this respect, and that, therefore, some persons were guilty of gross breach of discipline, and M. Demange scored by adding that if entry in these offices was so easy, anybody could procure the information which Dreyfus was alleged to have obtained so suspiciously. Lieut. Bertin, who was the head of Dreyfus's office in 1894, the next witness, showed himself to a most virulent enemy of the prisoner. He had evidently learned his testimony by heart, and declared it in a strident, aggressive tone, which grated upon the ears of the audience. Some of his remarks, particularly his declaration that he was convinced of Dreyfus's guilt by M. Bertillon's chart and his introduction of Esterhazy's statements as evidence against Dreyfus, elicited Windsor, Aug. 22.-High Constable Master has returned from investigating a case of alleged cruelty at Edgars, in Colchester township. It was reported that Thomas Bartley, a farmer, had been guilty of most inhuman treatment of his children. The constable says that if the stories told by the neigh-bors of cruelties the children are made to suffer are true, Bantley and his wife are a pair of fiends.

Annie, a 15-year-old daughter, who is small for her age, with a drawn and pinched face that tells of suffering, told the constable of the brutal treatment she and the other children had received from their parents. Frequently, she said, she had been lashed on the bare skin till the blood came, and exhibited marks on her body in support of her words. Once, she told, she had lain in hiding under the house for two days, without food, to escape her father. Finally she succeeded in stealing away from home, and trudged all the way to Windsor, a distance of twenty miles, and found shelter with Mrs. Deneau.

The child repeated her story of suffering to Magistrate Bartlet yesterday morning. The magistrate will consult with Crown Attorney Clarke with reference to what action should be taken to punish the parents. MARSHES ON FIRE.

WHAT AN AUTOCRAT CAN DO. [Cleveland Plaindealer.]

A ruler like the Czar of all the Russians is master of resources that can be but faintly imagined by the citizen of a republic. His word is law, his beck a command, he raises his hand and a million shackies fall. The word may be uttered in sofest tones, the hand may be gloved, but the unalterable edict is there, and the hand of steel is there, and woe betide the sublect who opposes either. This sovereign will is now shown in a novel way, one which will excite special wonder in foreign breasts. Russia's autocrate has altered the 5th commandment. According to the new Russian version, official and peremptory, the revised commandment reads: "Honor thy father and thy mother, the emperor and his officials, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth three."

It may safely be assumed that when the one commandment with a promise was framed the ancient lawgiver had no anticipation that an autocratic hand would interline it for a purely selfish purpose.

Intelligence has been received from the French Soudan indicating that Lieut. Klopf and Lieut. Majenier, who nt to take command of a column of troops there have, both been DISEASES OF WOMEN are always attended by symptoms that are entirely remote from the seat of disorder. Paleness, weakness, nervousness, are often experienced long before the true character of the disease is discovered. A FOURTEEN-INNING TIE GAME. Yesterday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, the Oregon and Rambler ball teams, east end rivals, began to play on the Queen's Park diamond and at 2:30 in the afternoon the game stood a tie at the end of the feutrement invitor. the end of the fourteenth inning-19 to 19. Tony Healey pitched for the Oregons, after puching and winning a game against the Imperials on Saturday. Batteries—Oregons, Healey and Healey, Carroll; Ramblers, Cook and Cripps. Umpire, Saunders. The game will be finished in the near future.

AQUATIC. A BLUNDER-NO RACE.

Toronto, Aug. 21. — The first day's racing for the Canada's cup was to have taken place today, but although the Genesee and Beaver started at the appointed hour, there was no race, as neither yacht sailed the appointed course. The Beaver, the Canadian boat, met with an accident a few seconds after the start, and within three minutes' start of the race was on her way back to harbor in a crippled state. There was lots of wind for the Genesee to cover the course in the appointed time of 5% hours, and most of the spectators took it for granted that she would do so. A blunder on the part of the helmsman threw away the grand opportunity, however. For the first three or four miles the Genesee held in the right course, but she was then steered away to the east, never approaching within three miles of the westerly buoy, and finished without sailing the first buoy of the triangle at all. The Genesee crossed the line first at 11:30:12. The Beaver crossed at 11:30:14, just two seconds behind her competitor, but to windward, and in a better position than the Genesee. The Beaver was rapidly forging ahead, when the pennant carrying the throat halyard block parted. This allowed the mainsail to drop, and the strain being more than the spreader could bear, caused it to bend almost double. The Beaver was then out of the race, and taking in her mainsail, made for port under a jib until taken in town by a steam launch. After holding on for thre miles on the right track, the Genesee altered her course, and went away off to the eastward. It subsequently turned out that she had expected the steam yacht Pathfinder to show her the westerly buoy, but the latter went to the easterly buoy instead, and the Genesee followed suit. Afterwards the American boat returned to the starting point. The judges declared there had been no race, and the Genesee accordingly loses the first match by her blunder. The Beaver will be in ship-shape against tomorrow, and the racing will begin at 11 o'clock. GETTING THE CHALLENGER

Ben Parker, of the katser's yachit Meteor, and his colleagues, to assist in sailing the Shamrock, Sir Timmas Lipton's challenger for the America's cup.

WHEEL. RACES AT TECUMSEH PARK. Although the spectators at Tecumseh Park yesterday afternoon were comparatively few, the bicycle races were of unusual interest, and the meet was one of the best held here for some time past. The races were keenly contested, and were characterized by close finishes and numerous entries. In one event only the old-fashioned high wheels were ridden. It was an interesting feature, suggesting the days of the spin-ning-wheel, and impressing one with the fact that the world is growing better-for the bicyclist, at least. R. A. Ingram won the one-mile city championship with ease from a field of five well-known riders. He took the pole at the start, and hugged the triplet pacing machine until it dropped behind, and finished well in advance. T. W. Barnes, of Hamilton, was the fastest man on the track, winning the mile open in 2:21%. In the one-third mile open he lost control of his wheel just on entering the stretch, and fell. There was a big bunch of evenly-matched riders, and although they passed Barnes safely, a mix-up occurred before the wire was reached. H. D. Stratton, T. D. Higley and F. F. Radway were injured in the spill, and their wheels were badly broken.

Ontario's Growing Mineral Wealth.

The report of the Ontario Bureau of Mines for 1899 has been issued. The publication is later than usual, but the delay has permitted the giving of statistics of metallic minerals for the first six months of 1899-a gratifying improvement, compared with the report for 1898. The able director, Mr. Archibald Blue, condenses a great deal of information in his introduction to the volume. Last year 49 mining companies were incorporated in Ontario with a capital of $30,762,998. In the past 31 years 335 companies have been organized, with an authorized capital of $194,823,378. Since 1892 there have been 1,171 locations sold, at $172,307, and 1,908 locations leased at $192,043. The total revenue from sales and rentals in these seven years has been $395,-460 66, being a yearly average of $56,-Last year the amount was $97,962 25, while for the first six months of this year it has been $109,140.

total mineral production in in 1891 was $4,705,673, and last year $7,214,341. products in 1898, stone and clay were valued at $2,922,379; oil, gas and carbide, $2,328,110; salt and gypsum, $282,886; graphite and mica, $13,500; iron, nickel, copper, gold and silver, $1,689,-002. The number of employes last year was 7,495, and the amount of wages paid $2,464,239.

Mr. Blue remarks that three years ago the iron industry of Ontario awoke from a long sleep. In 1896 the first blast furnace (at Hamilton) was blown in, and the company are now establishing steel works in connection with it. On Jan. 25 of this year a new charcoal furnace was erected at Deseronto and another will soon be built at Midland. For the first half of this ore and 35,510 tons foreign ore.

The gold production of the Province was only $50,781 in 1895, but this year there is a good prospect of it going over $500,000. Last year the production of refined nickel was 4,567,500 lbs., and of copper, refined, 8,373,500 lbs. From January to June inclusive this year, the nickel product was 8,224,000 lbs.. and the copper 3,334,000 lbs. The Canadian Copper Company alone employs from 700 to 800 men. The eminent metallurgist, Sir William Roberts-Austen, visited the Sudbury district last year and was greatly impressed with the extent and importance of the nickel deposits. If the Mond process proves successful on a large scale, a great impetus will be given this industry, which has a great future.

These few figures will serve to show the rapid development of Ontario's mineral wealth, which a few years ago was too insignificant to be noted. It is practically a "find" for the Province, and there is no visible limit to it.

The Strikers' Suffering of Today Is the World's Progress Towards Tomorrow.

[Ainslee's Magazine for September.] When viewing the labor question in a broader light, we have been looking into the crucible of progress, the smoke of whose burning goes up forever and ever. The forms of yesterday are being melted today to be moulded into forms for the morrow. Every moment sees a change, and every change suffering, and all suffering bespeaks progress. From this seeking mass what prodigies are constantly being hurled to the light? Phantasmal empires and portentous forms succeed one another like the figures of a nightmare. It is here we find the material and the forces of history. This universal crucible, seething like a volcano, hurls up today a revolution and tomorrow an empire. Now it shows us a Robespierre and now a Napoleon. A Martin Irons is succeeded by a Rockefeller, and a Debs by a Hanna. What these forces build up they also tear down, and from what is torn down new forms are constructed. The one law is change, and change brings strife. The laws that the struggling atoms make to relieve their distress are themselves the result of mightier laws that we can only guess What the further results will befor who shall dare to say that any result will be final-none can tell. can only base cur hopes on what the past has given us and do the duty nearest at hand after having made sure that it is really a duty and not a preference. But one thing is clear, and that is that not conquest, but adjust-ment, is the true solution of the difficulty. Instead of there being "nothing o arbitrate," all things are to be arbitrated. The final arbitrators must be all the people, rather than a class, and when we have an organization-a government-that will make such an arbitration possible, we shall perhaps see that the voice of the people is the voice

All Yesterday's Witnesses Hostile to the Prisoner.

Presiding Judge Jouaust Showed Marked Prejudice Against Dreyfus.

Prisoner's Bearing Shows New Confidence-Trial May End Sept. 7.

Rennes, Aug. 21.—The third week of the second trial by court martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, of the artillery, on the charge of treason, began without incident at 6:30 this morning. There was a large attendance in the Lycee at the opening of the court, in view of the possible reappearance of Maitre Labori, leading counsel for the But though he is progressing satisfactorily, his physicians deem-ed it best for him to remain quiet. The court settled quickly down to business, and by 9 o'clock five witnesses had already appeared at the bar. If this rate is continued it is calculated the court will be through with the ninety odd witnesses by the beginning of September, and it is considered probable that verdict will be delivered by Sept. 7. All of the witnesses today were hostile to Dreyfus. The evidence was mostly a reiteration of old statements. audience, among whom were a number of women, who always manage to secure seats under some pretext or other, listened to M. Greibeiin's statements about Dreyfus' relations with demimondeus with characteristic relish. A subdued titter went round when M. Greibelin even professed to know the exact amount Dreyfus had spent upon his various amours. M. Greibelin gave his testimony with an honest demeanor and apparent sincerity. But he did not strike one as being particularly intelligent. Nothing in his appearance would contradict the contention of the Dreyfusards that he was Major Lauth's tool in the machinations of the general staff against Col. Picquant, former chief of the intelligence department, who listened to M. Greibelin with an air of contemptuous impatience. Maitre Demange, counsel for the defense, was more successful than usual in cross-examining, and visibly DISCONCERTED M. GREIBELIN. Counsel scored a distinct hit when he got M. Greibelin to admit that he was mixed in the intrigues of Paty de Clam and Henry to shield Esterhazy, and when M. Greibelin was finally disposed of his evidence had suffered badly. Dreyfus created a better impression today. He entered the court with a more confident bearing and replied to the witnesses in a calm voice, without theatrical gestures, and his remarks were put so lucidly that he appeared to make an impression on all the judges, all of whom are reputed to be bitterly opposed to him. The session wound up with a scene on account of the extraordinary conduct of Col. Jouyear the Hamilton and Deseronto fur-naces have smelted 14,452 tons Ontario the extraordinary conduct of Col. Jou-the general staff that year, in order to discover the author of the borde-ed display of partiality. M. Berkullus had been confronted with the last witness, Capt. Junck, and Gen. Gonse had defended the latter, when Col. Picquart rose and asked to be allowed to refute some of Junck's remarks. Col. Jouaust made a gesture of impatience, and shouted. "What, again?" An outburst of boohing and hissing came from the audience at such a display of UNFAIRNESS FROM THE PRESI-DENT. The judges and gendarmes quickly suppressed the noise, but Jouaust understood the well-merited rebuke administered him, turned red and ad-journed the court ten minutes later. Three points stood out prominently in today's proceedings. They were Col. Jouanst's display of partiality, the new attitude taken up by Dreyfus, and the contemptible conduct of the last witness, Junck. The spontaneous utterance of Jouanst of the word core" (again) when Picquart asked to be heard, has been the topic of conversation this afternoon, as Jouaust, for the first time, thus openly and candidly revealed his partiality and holsted anti-Dreyfus colors. Throughout the trial neither he nor any of the judges have ever shown any particular love for Picquart, but he has never committed such a flagrant violation of justice and his duties as a judge as he did today. Col. Picquart's attitude of manly in dependence and utter fearlessness when at the witness-bar, his refusal to gently muriur evidence in the ears of the judges, instead of, as he did, uttering his testimony in a trumpet voice, so that not a person in court missed syllable, IRRITATED THE JUDGES, who showed their impatience in tone of the questions they put to him. Picquart today was perfectly within his rights, even his duty, to ask to be heard in the true interest of justice, in order that the fullest light should be shed on the affair, and it is well remembered that when, last week, Gen. Billot, and other generals, asked to be confronted with Picquart, M. Bertullus and other witnesses, Col. Jouanst readily accorded permission. The Dreyfusard press is certain to take up the matter. The only Dreyfusard newspaper at Rennes has already published a protest. The second point, the change of attitude upon the part of Dneyfus, has given universal satisfaction to his friends. Hitherto has has confined him-self, when asked by the judge if he had any reply to a witness, to utter an impassioned protestation of his innocence. This made an immense impression on his hearers. But it only left a transitory impression. Moreover, Gen. Roget made the significant remark in court last week that an innocent man does not merely protest his innocence, but defends himself. This, undoubt-edly, stung Dreyfus into the line he adopted today, when he rose and replied argumentatively and in a calm voice to the various points raised by the witnesses. It was in response to Capt. Junck that he made his longest statement, occupying ten minutes. He used notes he had taken while Junck was speaking, and with methodical arrangement of facts and in unequivocal language, effectively discussed the inaccuracies of Junck's testimony. The prisoner punctuated his remarks with moderate, well-chosen gestures of his right hand, standing erect, facing his judges, and holding pointed out that no one but a con-temptible person repeats them in court, his gold-braided kepi in his left hand. The third point, the conduct of Junck in repeating confidences made to him as a comrade by Dreyfus disgusted his hearers, and in the mind of any right-thinking man must have considerably impaired the value of the remainder of his evidence. He and Dreyfus sat together in the same office, and natur-ally exchanged confidences regarding their relations with women. But it was hearers, and in the mind of any right-

Considerable Progress Made in especially in the case of a man posing as an officer and a gentleman. Dreyfus, as an officer and a gentleman, Dreyfus, in replying, scored distinctly when he brought out Junck's utter lack of sense of honor, and himself declined to enter into a discussion of the matter.

THE EVIDENCE. Gen. Fabre, former chief of the Fourth Bureau of the general staff, was the first witness today. He said that in his official capacity he compared the handwriting of the bordereau with the writing of various officials in his bureau, including the hand writing of the probationer had been in the bureau during the previous year, and who had not favorably impressed his colleagues. This probationer, Dreyfus, who was regarded as untrustworthy and insincere in his pretensions was, according to the witness, equally disliked by his comrades and superiors, was, Fabre added, constantly endeavoring, by all sorts of means to learn the secrets of the plan of concentration of the eastern rail-way system, and in his anxiety to secure information neglected his duties. His official duties, witness also said, placed in Dreyfus's power to disclose the documents referred to in the bordereau Witness could emphatic-ally deny all Dreyfus had said on this When Major Bertin showed subject. witness the bordereau, the latter was struck with the resemblance of the caligraphy. Dreyfus was the only officer who made a bad impression on his bureau, and the opinions of the chief of staff and heads of other departments confirmed witnesses' belief. Gen. Fabre, in conclusion, declared he still as firmly convinced as in 1894, that the PRISONER WAS THE AUTHOR of the bordereau. (Sensation.) After M. Demange had pointed out the discrepancy in Fabre's present statement and those he voiced in 1894, Col. Jouanst invited Dreyfus to re-The prisoner's reply was made calm, measured tones, and his frankness seemed to favorably impress the judges.

COL. DABOIVELLE, formerly deputy chief of the Fourth Bureau, related how Fabre had showed him a photograph of an anonymous note in which the writer intimated to his correspondena, "evidently foreign to army," that he had confidential documents to communicate. The witness told Fabre that the documents mentioned showed the writer could only be an artillery officer belonging to the general staff who participated in the expedition of the headquarters staff in June and July, 1894. The position of Dreyfus corresponded with these conditions, and "to their great surprise," a very great resemblance were seen in the writing of Dreyfus and the anonymous letter. Witness further declared that only a propationer could possess the information mentioned in the bordereau. It was not only because of the resemblance of the handwriting that suspicions were directed at Dreyfus, but because he was in a position to be acquainted with the documents enumerated. M. Demange wished to know why Col. Daboivelle said in 1894 that he thought it necessary to investigate the officers who participated in the expedition of by the expression in the bordereau, "I am going to the maneuvers," for he considered the expedition of the general staff equivalent to the maneuvers, although troops were not actually present. Counsel pointing out that a great deal of argument was found on the "I am going to the maexpression, "I am going to the ma-neuvers," said it should not be forgotten that in 1894 the expression was understood to apply to the expedition of the headquarters staff.

In reply to the usual question, Drey-fus remarked, "that he had never held any conversation with Col. Sandherr, the late chief of the intelligence department, who was so little acquainted with him that he once addressed him by another name.

ARCHIVIST GREIBELIN. M. Greibelin, the principal archivist of the headquarter staff, was then called. He testified with great volu-bility, and expressed the opinion that when Dreyfus was arrested in 1894 he was enacting a role by systematically denying all the charges against him, even the most obvious and least important things, and in declaring himself ignorant of matters which should have been known to every of-ficer of the general staff. M. Greibelin recapitulated the discovery of the leakage at military headquarters, the arrival of the bordereau, etc., and dwelt on the system of espionage conducted, under cover of diplomatic im-munity, by agents "A," "B" and "C." Colonel Jouaust-When was the bor-

For Three Years. Nights Itching and Burning Terrible. Wife Suggests CUTICURA. Uses it. Presto! What a Change.

Feels Like Kicking Doctors for Three Years' Suffering.

The itching and burning I suffered in my feet and limbs for three years were terrible. At night they were worse, and would keep me awake a greater part of the night. I consulted doctor after doctor, as I was travelling on the road most of my time, also one of our city doctors. None of the doctors knew what the trouble was. I got a lot of the different samples of the medicines I had been using. I found them of so many different kinds, that I concluded I would have to go to a Cincinnati heapital before I would get relief. I had frequently been urged to try Curtioura Remedies, but I had no faith in them. My wife finally prevailed upon me to try them. Presto! What a change. I am now cured, and it is a permanent cure. I feel like kieking some doctor or myself for suffering three years when I could have used Curicura remedies.

BABY'S FACE SOLID SORE

My little nephew, John Staunton, was afficted with the worst sores I ever saw all over his body. His head and face at times were a solid scab and he suffered dreadfully. He was apitiable sight. His father was all the same and all the same all the same and all t suffered dreadfully. He was a pitiable sight. His father used all the remedies that he heard of, and destored withrall the doctors. He wore a tar cap, elso, which did no good, but got no relief until he used the Cuticura (cintment) and Cuticura Boap. Now he is a clean, healthy child.

dereau received in the intelligence department? M. Greibelin-The bordereau arrived at 1 in the morning, in September, 1894. After examining it we did not hesitate to attribue it to an officer of the headquarters' staff. Col. Jouaust-When was it submitted to Col. Sandberr?

M. Greibelin-Why, the very first The witness added: As the bordereau arrived through the ordinary channels, or what at any rate was regarded as such, no doubt was entertained as to its authenticity. plying to further questions, M. Greibelin asserted positively M. Esterhazy never came to the intelligence department. In regard to the dictation test, the witness recalled Dreyfus' reply to Du Paty de Clam when the latter pointed out that his hands were shak-ing, namely, "My fingers are cold." A member of the court martial referred to M. Greibelin's statements concerning the use Col. Picquart made of the secret service funds. Witness admitted the truth of Picquart's evidence that the surveillance of Esterhazy cost but little. Questioned as to the alleged indiscretion of Colonel Picquart's in showing M. Leblois the secret dossier, witness admitted that when he saw M. Leblois in Picquart's office in the autumn of 1896, while the secret dossier and the dossier of the carrier pigeon service were lying on Picquart's table, they had not been removed from their envelopes. The envelopes, he explaind, were open, but, he added, that was customary. When questioned concerning "liberadocument, M. Greibelin admitted he still wondered how it came into Esterhazy's hands, and could not understand why Esterhazy was not arrested when he brought the document to the ministry of war.

Col. Jouaust, the other judges and M. Demange closely questioned M. Greibelin on various points, and, in replying, witness imparted some information regarding the Petit Bleu, and the circumstances under which the dossier was communicated to Picquart. Replying to M. Demange, M. Greibelin admitted having mixed up Du Paty de Clam's and Henry's intrigues

IN FAVOR OF ESTERHAZY. The admission created a sensation. It was by order of Col. Henry, witness added, that he (Greibelin) put on spectacles and went to the Rue de Lou to hand Esterhazy a letter, to which the latter was to reply "yes" or "no." It was also Henry who ordered witness to accompany Du Paty de Clam to Mon't Soullis Park, at the time Du Paty de Clam masquerade

UNDER A FALSE BEARD. Witness thought it would have been much simpler to have summoned Esterhazy to the ministry of war, especially as it was known Matthew Dreyfus was about to publicly denounce him, M. Demange remarked that the denunciation of Matthew Dreyfus could not well have been foreseen when these "romantic interviews" with Esternazy were occurring, considering ternazy were occurring, considering Matthew himself had not then con-

M. Greibelin replied that at any rate It was known measures were in progress against Esterhazy.

M. Demange — Why, then, since it was a question of saving him, were false beards and blue spectacles recorted to? M. Greibelin-You had better ask Paty de Clam when he comes here. (Laughter.) Do not imagine it amused me. (Renewed laughter.) Replying to further questions, M. Irefbelin denied that he had ever opened a letter addressed to Picquart. Counsel then wanted to know why the letter signed "Sepranza" was not sent to Picquart, since all his letters were opened at the ministry of war. M. Greibelin - As I never opened a letter addressed to Col. Picquart I do not know why. Col. Picquant expressed surprise that the question of the employment of secret service money should be constantly mixed up with the Dreyfus case, with which, he added, it had nothing whatever to do. He also denied he had given M. Leblois the slightest information regarding the secret dossler, and said the only document the dossier revealed, and that was not by himself, was the "Cette canaille de Dment, which had been utilized by the enemies of Dreyfus. There was also the "Liberateur" document, which was delivered to Esterhazy, who used it to levy the most

SHAMEFUL BLACKMAIL. Major Lauth followed. He said that when the bordereau reached the intelli-gence department, Henry was absolutely the omy officer who knew the agent who furnished it, and was the only officer known to the agent. Henry, he explained, had appointments with the foreign spy in question only in the evenings at 8 or 9 o'clock, at various places, so it was impossible for Henry to hand the papers to Col. Sandherr the same evening. Therefore he took them home and brought them to the office in the morning. Very often these appointments were kept on Saturday, and Major Lauth believed the packet containing the bordereau was handed to Henry on Saturday, Sept. 22, and was taken to the office on Sept. 24. morning," said Lauth, "it may have been Sept. 24 or another date, though it cannot matter much, I arrived at the office, and was about to enter the room in which I usually worked, when Col. Henry, who was talking in the corridor, called to me and took me into his room. Capt. Mathon arrived simultaneously. We had scarcely entered when Col. Henry showed the packet received, and, exhibiting some pieces he had pasted together, said: 'It is frightful. Just see whalt I have found in this packet.' We walked to a window, and all three began to read the contents of the paper, which was mone other than the bordereau. cussed who could be the author. I must add Ithait M. Greibelin entered the room and was informed regarding document. At the some time the bordereau was shown to Col. Sandherr, half or three-quarters of an hour later, when he arrived." Next, discussing the Petit Bleu, Major Letth said ilt reached Col. Picquart, inclosed in a packet, early in March. Continuing, witness proceeded to speak of Picquart's orders to destroy all evidence of the Petit Bleu having been torn, and to deter-

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—This was a day of liquidation and selling short in wheat. Improvement in domestic crop conditions, large Russian shipments and a poor cash demand made the weaker-kneed longs unload in considerable quantities. Corn dropped %c to %c for September on the improved crop conditions. Deferred futures were not so weak. Oats declined %c and provisions 2½c to 12½c. The visible sup-ply statement showed a disappoint-ingly small decrease—39,000 bushels, in-stead of the 1,000,000 bushels expected. Minneapolis and Duluth receipts were 327 cars, compared with 231 last week and 939 a year ago. Chicago receipts were 135 ears. Total primary receipts were 722,000 bushels, against 1,406,000

2,000 Are Still Missing-Murders, Accidents and Riots Claim Other Victims.

2,500 PERSONS KILLED.

Ponce, Island of Porto Rico.-Aug. 21. It is now estimated that the bodies of 2,500 victims of the recent hurricane have been buried, that 1,000 persons were injured by the storm, and that 2,000 people are still missing.

TWENTY PERSONS DROWNED. Norfolk, Va., Aug. 22. - A special to he Virginia Pilot from Washington, N. , says that the recent storm played havoc on Occracock Island, destroying 30 houses and two churches, washing away the Norfolk and Southern Railroad plers, grounding several steamers and schooners, wrecking some smaller craft of fishermen, drowning not less than 20 men, and all the horses and cattle on the island. The island was under water three days. THIRTY INJURED - A NUMBER

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 22.-A headon collision occurred Saturday between two trolley cars on the Norristown, Chestnut Hill and Roxbury Railway in Plymouth township, Montgomery county, a few miles north of the city. Thirty persons were injured. The following are believed to be fatally hurt and are in the charity hospital, Norristown: John Parsons, Philadelphia; Wm. Herstlin, West Point, Pa.; Mrs. Bridge, Nunam. The railway is a single track road, with switches. The passengers of the southbound car assert that the motorman failed to wait at the switch for the arrival of the car going north, and the accident resulted. Seeing that the accident could not be averted, many of the passengers jumped and were seriously brutsed. RIOTING AT LEAVENWORTH. Leavenworth, Kansas, Aug. 22.-A riot between the soldiers of the Thirty-second volunteer regiment and North Leavenworth negroes took place yesterday afternoon. Corporal Johnson was shot in the left leg. Alex. Johnston was shot in the left shoulder, and is seri-

At Fulton, Ky., Maltthew McFall, negro attempted to assault Lillian Clapp, aged 4 years. He escaped, and the citizens are scouring the country for him.

A well-armed posse of farmers in Sullivan county, Tenn., are close on the rail of an unknown negro, who has been followed from near the hamlet of cinley Flats, to a point in the mountains near the Kentucky line. The egro attempted an assaut on Abner E nalling's daughter. Smalling, the father, is leading the mob.

At Shelbyville, Gib Ray, colored, has been arrested, charged with assaulting been arrested, charged with assaulting Mary Hays. He was guarded there all night at the jail by a posse of officers. The sheriff took him out yesterday morning, and is going toward Lewisburg, and a mob is following.

Lenora Olden, aged 15, was assaulted Sunday night on one of the principal streets of Chattanooga by Tom Downs. Physicians say her recovery

Downs. Physicians say her recovery is doubtful, Jailer Nick Bush arrested Downs near the George state line yesterday morning. The negro element is excited, and a half-brother of the girl has organized a mob to lynch Downs.

AT DAWSON Two Indians and a White-The First

TRIPLE HANGING

Legal Execution.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 21.—Passengers on the steamer City of Topeka, which arrived last night from Skaguay, Alaska, bring, news of the first legal execution in the Klondike. A triple hanging occurred at Dawson on Aug. 4. The parties hanged were two Indians, Daw-son Nantuck and Jim Nantuck, and white man, Edward Henderson. Henderson was convicted of murdering his partner, named Peterson, on the trail near March Lake in September, 1897. The Indians were convicted of murdering William Mahan and injuring his partner, James Foss, on the McClintock River in May 1898. There were originally four Indians implicated in the murder of Mahan, but two of them died in fail at Dawson last fall. The execution was private, and passed off without special incident.

A LONG TROLLEY LINE

It will Run from New York to Washington.

New York, Aug. 21.—The Tribune gives details of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's project to construct a trolley car line from New York to Washington. The plan does not contemplate merely the relief of local pas-senger traffic, but includes the transportation of freight for the relief of accommodation freight trains, and it is said that immediately after the through trolley line is opened, freight cars will be run. An official said: "The Pennsylvania road is wisely providing for the fu-ture. The use of electricity as a motive power is practically new, and its possibilities are not known. It may be developed until steam roads are a thing of the past. The company is securing franchises and rights of way and will parallel its routes to Washington with a trolley line, and will thus secure an advantage over rival steam lines by having open tracks for through express trains."

LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best-results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a aged by water, to what extent cannot state that I doubted the power of any yet be determined. #### TO REGULATE RELIGION

Japanese Government Assumes Supervision of All Matters of Faith.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—A special to the Times-Herald from Seattle says: "Japan's new law, regulating all faiths and beliefs has gone into effect, and much complaint has risen in conse-quence. A copy of the regulations has been received at the Japanese consul-ate here. According to it, all sects, pagan and Christian, are placed under the absolute control of a local governor. Without his permission even a church cannot be built or meeting held. The regulations even go so far as to demand detailed information regarding the pastor.

"Before commencing religious work, propagators of a faith must go before the governor with full details. The scheme of faith must be fully explained, church finances accounted for, and the personal and religious history of the applicant, preacher and members outlined in writing."

THERE is not a more dangerous class of disorders than those which affect the breathing organs. Nullify this danger with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—a pulmonic, of acknowledged efficacy. It cures soreness and lameness when applied externally, as well as swelled neck and crick in the back; and, as an inward specific, possesses most substantial results. MAKING IT A COMPANY

Fighting Spirit Uncrushed by Repeated Defeat-Otis' Press Censorship.

Manila, Aug. 19, via Hong Kong, Aug 22.—The Filipino rebels appear to retain much more of a fighting spirit than might be suspected after their recent San Fernando experience and

Gen. Lawton's drubbing in the south. After giving up San Fernando with a feeble struggle, they entrenched themselves at Angeles, working for several days and impressing non-combatants into the work, thus saving the armed men for the fighting. They engaged Lieut.-Col. Smith's regiment and the artillery warmly for four hours, making one of the most stubborn resistances of the campaign. But the Americans are indebted to the usual poor marksmanship of the Filipinos, as well as to their strategy, for their small losses.

In the Province of Cavite, where it was supposed the rebels had been scattered and demoralized beyond recuperation, they have assembled an army of several thousand men, distributed among the important towns. tributed among the important towns, from the lake to the bay.

After the San Fernando engagement the rebels attempted to dissuade the Americans from a further advance northward by menacing the railroad communication. Several hundred of Gen. Pio del Pilar's men crossed the Rio Grande, between the American outpost towns and threatened Balinag, Quinqua and other places with small American garrisons, while during Sun-day and Monday nights small bands tried to tear up the railroad track at several ports between Bigaa and Malolos. Reinforcements of American wind west to north, velocity, 16 miles troops, however, were sent along the per hour; probably blow fresh till even- railroad from Manila to San Fernando, while the forces and Balinag and Quinqua sallied out against Gen. Pio del Pilar's men, and the rebels were easily driven away. In brushes between these Filipinos and Americans during three days, the Americans lost several men, while the Filipinos lost many of their number. Of these operations the Associated Press correspondent was permitted to send only an inadequate dispatch, dictated verbatim by Major-Gen. Otis. Gen. Otis says newspapers are not public institutions, but private enterprises, and the correspondents are here on sufferance only.

All reports from the rebel territory agree that the scarcity of food is increasing, and that the rebel commanders at Aparri and other points refuse to obey Aguinaldo's order in regard to closing the ports held by the rebels against American ships, and say that any ship bringing stores will be welcomed. Several ships from Manila are now at such ports.

Hundreds of people come into Manila daily and return to the rebel lines with food and other commodities. The guards stationed along the road reported that 5,000 people passed through the lines in four days, and that 40,000 tons of rice were carried out in small parcels on the same road in ten days.

THE TRANSVAAL CRISIS.

London, Aug. 22.—A parliamentary paper dealing with the Transvaal crisis was issued today. It details the efforts of the Boer Government during the past year to have the question of suzerainty of Great Britain submitted to arbitration, and Great Britain's repeated refusals to discuss this basic point. document adds that Sir Alfred Milner, the governor of Cape Colony and high commissioner of South Africa, writing to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the secretary of state of the colonies, last June, said: "The way in which the secretary winner. Eleven horses ran the two-year-old course, five furlongs straight. 1884 is rather irritating to a plain man." The final dispatch from Mr. Chamberlain, dated July 13, 1899, to Sir Alfred Milner concurs with the latter's view as to the untenable Transvaal convention, adding that the British Government had no intention to continue to discuss the question of the suzerainty with the Transvaal.

PEACE IN PARIS. Paris, Aug. 21.—Paris is quiet today, after one of the most exciting periods since the days of the Commune. The police are out in force and any gathering, however small, is at once dispersed. The authorities, for the moment have the situation in hand, but Paris is fearful that the Anarchists and Socialists, having had a taste of blood-shed, that further turmoil and riot will ensue. From today on, all the churches will be guarded by pickets of Republican Guards, and detachments of infantry and cavalry will be held in readiness for eventualities. The damage done by the rioters to the Church of St. Joseph is estimated at 8,000 francs. It is surrounded by police, and no one is allowed to approach the building. It is pointed out that most of the persons arrested for rioting are youths from 15 to 20 years of age. The Rue Chabrol is occupied by the Seventy-fourth and One Hundred and Thirtyfirst Infantry, with fixed bayonets. All the approaches are guarded, and it is impossible to traverse the crowds, which are everywhere increasing. The papers of the city, in commenting on the riots, are unanimous in pronouncthe situation to be of the most George paused a moment and then said, tentatively: "To me, unlike as the style of the two stories is, there is an underlying resemblance. In both there is the idea of hampering and involuntary bondage. Perhaps the idea attracts you? I think many writers have some one notion that inspires them, and takes various forms.

"But you ought to know how it works with the chains broken," said George. "I can't write stories about the astral plane or any such places," said Helena, dryly, "and this world doesn't generally exhibit broken chains. They birches the little establishment was as commonplace and as like hundreds of others, as the beautiful old house at Chiswick, at which George Gladwyn had once presented himself, was inter esting and unique. But the little drawing-room, in which Miss Nora Wynne was sitting on the afternoon of the party at the Corners, had some-thing of the old richness of color and ornament, the remnant of the old brica-brae and china had been disposed by the same skillful hand, and the room had a distinct character.

Miss Wynne looked older than on that memorable occasion, but her great rolling, dark eyes were still full of fire and sentiment, and cast the same rest-less glances from one side to another. In truth she was thinking of that very afternoon, and her absence from a kind of social gathering which was usually very agreeable to her was caused enby this recollection.

She had never forgotten George Daniel Gladwyn's peculiar name and equally peculiar action, and as soon as she knew that he was to be a neigh-bor and an acquaintnce she began to written therein; for then thou shalt bor and an acquaintnce she began to recollected all about him when Helena had told her of the meeting at Wardale, and though he had apparent-ly proved that he could hold his tongue, she felt that the situation was

She would have shared his banishment if he had asked her, and when he did not do so, the fault was all in those who had banished him. She lived upon her love and her disappointment; they made and her disappointment; life more interesting than hum-drum good fortune. Then Richard Wentworth married a woman with money, and Nora made even that into food for her Nora made even that into food for her devotion. She was still his in soul.

There is no doubt a fascinating grandeur in a life devoted to one idea, in an unswerving faith to one love; but the loved idea grows tyrannous, and, like other idols, sometimes requires human sacrifices. By and bye Richard Went-worth, his wife and boy, returned to England, and intercourse was renewed. Nora derived excitement and a strange pleasure in playing what she conceived to be a dangerous game-in what she called "treading the edge of the abyss." She posed to herself as the guardian angel of the Wentworth's, who could be friend and sister, and crush her own feelings for their sake. Perhaps the game was less dangerous than she thought it, for Richard was

How the great idea grew up it was hard to tell—the great restitution, as she called it. Whether the notion of a marriage between the son of the injured man and the unjustly enriched girl flashed upon her vivid imagination, or was suggested to it by Richard Wentworth, and cherished and nourished by her ardor, she herself did not know, but when it had once presented itself it fascinated her utterly, and it appeared to her that she had, with much difficulty, to persuade Mr. Wentworth into so rash and romantic a step. into so rash and romantic a step. Whether he was really overpowered by the magnetism of her passionate will, or whether he had plans for making the Experience affair appear more reasonable and justifiable, she had never considered.

It was easy enough to talk the romantic girl into an action which appears to the control of the contr peared to her, as well as to her aunt, splendidly heroic. The boy was more difficult to manage; Miss Wynne did not quite like to think of how he had been managed, nor of her own share in his management. in his management.

The deed was done, and the first drop of cold water on the fire of enthusiasm which had burnt in Nora's soul came on the wedding day, when the poor bride, once more with long school-girl hair and short school-girl frocks, had replied to her tender reference to the good deed they had done, not as before, with dreamy enthusiasm or proud delight, but with a burst of sobs and tears, and violent language.

"I hate myself, and I hate him, and I hate you, and I'm ashamed down into my very bones, and I never knew it would be like this! And I'll never, never speak about it any more!"
She kept her word. She confronted her aunt with a nature as hot as Miss Wynne's own, and a much tougher

Then had come the sudden death of Richard Wentworth, and with it, of course, the stoppage of all his plans for guarding or revealing the secret, or for accounting for the proceedings. the fortune that had been in question, had vanished, together with most of Miss Wynne's own inheritance. Helena would be 23 now in a few weeks, but her birthday meant little more for her than for any other young woman, and she had never yet asked a question about her marriage. She had not been thrown much with men, nor with girls whose minds were turned in that direction, and as far as her aunt know, she had never had, nor wished to have, a lover.

She came suddenly in as Nora's thoughts had brought her to wonder-ing whether that snowy December morning had been indeed forgotten by all but herself.

"Well, my dear, was it a pleasant party?" asked Miss Wynne, waking up with a start.

"Very pleasant. It was a great pity you did not go." "Ah, Nella, before you are my age you will know that there are times when we do not feel in tune with gay society

"Ah, we must join the Browning so-ciety," said Miss Wynne; "life is full

"Oh, nonsense, Aunt Nora! you know you'll soon be much deeper in the Browning and the lectures and things than ever I shall. You're much the younger of the two. If you'd only get a bicycle—you're so slim and straight a bicycle—you're so slim and straight, I'd be proud to ride with you!"

Sermon Preached by Prof. James Stalker, D.D., in Free St. Matthew's Church, Glasgow.

"This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success."

Joshua, i., 8. This is the last of the course of lectures I have been giving on "A Young Man's Life," and the special subject this afternoon is "His Ideal." Let us take for the texth the eighth verse of the first chapter of Joshua: "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest obprosperous. and then thou shalt have good success." "Then thou shalt have good success."
"Good success"—what does that mean? Does it imply that there is a kind of success which is not good? Certainly there is such a thing; there are forms of success which strike the vulgar eye, but are spurious. But what is good success? What are the elements of that success which entitle a man to be callform as picturesque and dramatic as ed happy by good judges, and if, like her niece, she had been comentitle a man in his best moments to be satisfied with his own life? To find out this is to find out e girl as handsome as Helena, and far what should be a young man's ideal, for more winning, consumed with a parsion his ideal may be nothing else but to for her charming, scapegrace cousin, live so that in the best and truest Richard, trusting him, defending him, passionately siding with him when he you thought about this? What things, if you win them, will make life a success, and if you miss them, will make it a failure? That is the problem that I a failure? That is the problem that I their ancestors, but they omit to menam to be discussing this afternoon, when the advantages of heredity, and speaking about a voung mon's ideal. speaking about a young man's ideal. Let me give you one hint before I go further. I believe it is a good thing when you are studying this problem to transport yourself by an effort of the imagination from the beginning of life, where you actually stand, to the end of life, where you will be some day, with your life behind you completed. and with a great white throne in front of you. This is a position from which life can be judged very clearly. Well, if you were standing in that position, what would be the things which, if you had gained them, would entitle you to consider your life a success, and, if you had missed them, would compet you to think it a failure? Very clear are the eyes of the dying, very solid is the true intentions and the laws of the eyes of the dying, very solid is the ought to finclude a vision of a home of the laws of the eyes of the dying, very solid is the ought to finclude a vision of a home of the eyes of the dying. self when he is just about to pass to the judgment of God. We will try today to combine this retrospective view, in view, and to work after the home we shall wish that we had lived when we come to die. We all know what, in the vocabulary rising in the social scale; it means a fortune, and the world is not very particular about the means by which mo-ney is made. It thinks that we must even if it does not go so far as Horace, the Latin poet, declares that men of the world went in his time. He says good success which I will mention. that they used to say to their sons THE PASSION FOR DOING GOOD. when they went into business, "Make St Paul in one of his writings demoney, honestly if you can, but if not, by any means and every means make money." I will not take the trouble to say what the judgment of the pulpit on such a scheme of life must be. It is a much more delicate question which many minds are occupied with at present, the question whether this kind of success is desirable, however fair the means be by which it is attained; whether the happiness derived from acquiring and possessing property be right at all. There is a great deal of writing at present being eagerly voured in which it is more than hinted that property is in itself an evil rather than a good thing, and that to be rich is a crime. People read such books with mixed feelings. I do not think they really alter their life, their own common-sense and the customs of the world are too strong for that, but they make them doubt, and take out of the effort somewhat of its spring and energy. Such doubts are very salutary, I daresay, in some cases-if, in a man's business or in his way of carrying it on, there is something dishonest—but in my opinion they are poisonous if they take the spring and the enjoyment out of honest industry. CHARACTER AND HAPPINESS The acquisition and possession of property are the rewards provided by nature for getting out of men their best effort. Men would not otherwise give their best, and the world would and the resolution to help others. I not reap the advantage of their doing their best. In the trades combinations which are so characteristic of our century, and with the aims of which, in general, I am in full accord, one thing which is distasteful—always has been distasteful to me, is the suspicion under which they lie of not encouraging men to do their best; because I hold every man's prime right is the right to display his own manhood to the full, by doing the very finest work and the greatest amount of work that he is capable of.

It is not talent, however, that tends in this direction, but character. Character has a distinct commercial value. and I venture to say, in spite of the many instances which I know could be quoted against me, that it is character, as a rule, that gets on. A family of character is always a rising family, and I question if you will anywhere find a family which for three or four generations has been well-doing in which there has not been a corresponding rise in social condition. The socialistic or semi-socialistic writings, to which I have been referring, are suspiciously silent about the part played by sin in producing poverty and I have noticed that they very seldom venture to speak honestly of such a subject as drunkenness. They repre-sent human beings as the will-less victims of social mal-arrangements instead of teaching that they are masters of their own fate. They gloat upon the evil results of heredity, the neu-rotic constitutions and the hopeless circumstances inherited by many from they omit to nerve men to moral effort by pointing out to them that the constitution and the environment of those that are to come after them are in their hands, to make or to mar. The family is the rock on which socialism goes to pieces, and the most crucial question you can ask a real socialist is what he makes of this question. A young man who is looking forward to wedded life has the very strongest motive for self-control and industry, so that he may begin his family on a satisfactory economic basis, and when God sends a man children he never lacks a constant spur to industry. My his own, where pure love will receive its fruition, and to work with this end and thus endeavor to anticipate how is formed for its support and development, are among the very safest mo-tives of conduct; and I venture to say that the material rewards that are won of the world, success means. It means by this kind of work are among the getting on, it means making money, purest things in this world. Therefore, whether it will be misunderstood or not, I venture to put in a young man's ideal even the thing that the world calls success; and to make my meannot be too scrupulous, too squeamish, ing unmistakeable I will even give it the plain and common name of "hap-

St. Paul in one of his writings defends private property in a very characterisitic fashion. "Let him that stole steal no more; but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth." That is a noble conception of industry-to be industrious that you may have to give to him that needeth. I would recommen every man to put that element into his ideal. You will very soon find, and you will find more and more the older you grow, that this world is divided into two classes of people, each class very large-those who are ways asking and getting help, and those who are always giving it. It is a good thing to rise into the ranks of the givers, and it is worth while to be industrious in order to be able to give cheerfully and bountifully. It was Jesus Christ who first introduced into the world the ideal of a giving life. His life was all giving, and he illustrated the principle primarily in his death, for even the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many. In his own poverty he carried about a bex from which to relive the poor. He was the friend of the destitute, the champion of the weak. He is the foun-

He saw quite clearly that those evils were merely the symptom of disease, the seat of underneath the very seat of the disease. Remake the man, and the man himself will remake his circumstances. he will not need your eleemosynary dole, but, on the contrary, will be in a position to assist others. This was the tion: "What am I, and what spiritshould attempt to communicate my spiritual benefit to others?" Helena, by old Mr. Wentworth's will, have ventured freely to criticise the did not come of age till she was 23, socialistic and semi-socialistic opinions and before that date came heariy all of our day, but for all that I rejoice that the company in the company that we are living in a century in which men have oeen learning more and more to help one another. The wrongs of the oppressed now receive a voice, the sufferings of children, who suffer through no fault of their own, command pity, and even the sufferings of those who do suffer through their own fault awaken the instincts and impulses of rescue. There is a widespread passion for making the world Now, every young man should try to have this passion in him, the passion for making the world better; only, see that it is a practical thing with you, and no mere wind and words. It is possible to go on dreaming and vaporing about the improvement of the world without doing a single act or real kindness to any human being. Our sentiments in this respect require to be changed into deeds, and I think it is here that the church has such an advantage. While its ideal is the most comprehensive imaginable, it breaks down the vast task into pieces so small that every man can take a little of it. A young man may teach in the Sabbath school or superintend a boys' brigade, or even bring a single person to the house of God, and that is reality; but merely to talk about the regeneration of society may be sound and fury signifying nothing. At all events, I to put into your ideal.

One other great difference between the socialistic and semi-socialistic philanthropy to which I have been alluding, and the philarithropy of Jesus Christ, is this: that while the former aims only at material and tender care of the bodies of those who which was deeper, and he went down Create him anew, making him a self-respecting, God-fearing man, and then principle of the philanthropy of Jesus, and it is a great truth which his church can never forget. That man has a very imperfect sympathy with the philanthropy of Jesus, whose idea of doing good to the poor means nothing but an occasional spare copper or an occasional dole of bread; but as soon as we rise to the loftier aims of Jesus in this respect, as soon as we begin to care for the souls as well as the bodies of men, we are thrown back on ourselves, and have to face this quesual experience have I had, that I man can ask himself, and which at failure must be finally tested. What kind of man are we ourselves? That ness, in the sense in which I have used that term. When a man becomes suddenly rich who retains a vulgar and uneducated mind, he becomes the sub-ject of the wit of the satirist and caricaturist, and this is quite just. It be accentuated between mental deit seems to me that if we have finer insight for still higher incongruities, we shall think it equally incongruous to see a man able to appreciate all the discoveries of science and the beauties of art, and pet insensible to the laws one has said that every man's Call-fornia is himself. The best gold you can ever bring out of anywhere is to be brought out of your own nature, and I think the very highest ideal a

These, then, are the three leading elements in a young man's ideal; hap-piness, usefulness, goodness. It has suited my convenience to describe them in this order, but I will finish by saying that I think the reverse is the true order; not happiness, usefulness, goodness, but goodness, usefulness, happiness. Make these three things your ideal, and seek them in that order, and then I venture to affirm that you will receive the fulfillment of the promise of the text, you will have good suc-

Business at Montreal is very good. The fall trade is getting more active, as it usually does on the approach of the autumn season ,and orders for the fall trade are more numerous. There is a great deal of produce and general merchandise coming forward for shipment, and the demand for ocean room is very active. Shippers are very busy now, and are likely to have their hands full from now till the end of the season receiving and shipping goods. Travel-ers' reports of business in the Northwest are encouraging, and indicate excellent conditions prevailing for getting in a large crop of good sound wheat.

Remittances continue good. The retail trade at the coast has been good the past few weeks, and the prosects for business for the fall are very encouraging. Building operations continue active, the mills are busy, and the shipments of lumber are large. The scarcity of suitable dwelling houses in some centers continues. and the demand for houses, if it goes on, will lead to a continuance of the activity in building operations next

Trade at Winnipeg is fairly active for this season. Much interest is now being taken by business men in the harvest operations, as the crucial period for the wheat crop makes the present an anxious time for the province. Wheat cutting is in progress, and should be pretty general in a week or ten days. was a good deal of rain this week, but the weather is now favorable for the harvest. The prospects for trade are good. There has been a good demand in wholesale circles at Toronto this week for fall goods. A good many buyers have been in the city this week, but the great majority are holding off till the the Toronto Industrial Exhibition. which will doubtless bring in many country buyers. The demand for money for mercantile purposes is good, and rates are well maintained.

THEIR FIRST ANNUAL PICNIC.

The employes of the Canadian Packing Company, with their families and friends, held their first annual picnic at Port Stanley yesterday, and had a big day of it. On arriving at the lakeside about 11:30, the party proceeded up the hill, and laid a substantial spread under the shade trees. Early in the afternoon a list of sports were run off, and all were keenly contested. Dancing also formed part of the programme. A ball game between the single and married men resulted in a win for the latter by a score of 17 to 18. The success of the picnic is in a great measure due to Messrs. Attended by About 2,000 People-A Splendid Programme-Rev. Father Tiernan the Guest of Honor.

Some 2,000 people attended the garden party and concert given at the Mount Hope Orphanage last evening, under the auspices of the Catholic Club, and thoroughly enjoyed the evening's entertainment. The grounds were prettily decorated with flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns of various colors, and unique designs. Booths were erected in various parts of the spacious grounds, where refreshments and flowers were on sale. The booths were presided over by the Children of St. Mary, the Ladies of the Sodality and the members of Ste. Anne's Society.

The Seventh Band was present in full strength, and rendered a number of selections at intervals during the evening. The band volunteered its services in honor of the retiring rector of St. Peter's, Rev. Father Tiernan. The best local talent contributed to the programme.

Rev. Father Tiernan spoke briefly during the evening, thanking those present, and particularly the members of the club, for the splendid entertainment they had provided. On his return from Europe and the Ho.y Land he promised to deliver an address under the auspices of the club. The band played 'For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and 'Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot' at the conclusion of the reverend gentleman's remarks.

In the afternoon a number of races vere run off for the children. The musical programme was as folows:

No Need of Looking Shabby.

Old Dresses and Suits Look Like New.

Economical and smart women can make wondrous creations from seemingly useless garments. The old dress that is out of style or too faded to wear can be readily dyed with Diam-ond Dyes to a fashionable color and made over so that it will look equal to new. Suits for boys can be made from old ones discarded by the father, and a bath in Diamond Dyes will make them as handsome as new. Dresses and cloaks for the little girls can be made with little trouble, and at small expense from cast-off garments of the older folk, and when they are dyed with Diamond Dyes the new make-overs will look as though they were fresh from the dressmaker.

Diamond Dyes are made especially for home use, and it is impossible for even the most inexperienced to have ill-luck or meet with disappointments. Diamond Dyes color anything from ribbons, laces and feathers to heavy suits, jackets and dresses, and always make lasting colors that even the profes-sional dyer cannot rival.

After a short adjournment, the court reassembled, and the judges questioned Major Lauth. They asked his opinion of the Schneider letter of Nov. 30, 1897. Witness replied that it was authentic, and emanated from Agent Pierre.

Replying to M. Demange, witness said he never saw the photograph which certain newspapers had asserted he took, representing Picquart and Schwartzkoppen strolling arm in arm at Carlsbad. "I suppose it was I who took it," the witness added, iron-

you. At the instance of M. Demange, Col. Picquart again described the alterations of the Petit Bleu, and declared that the last time he saw it, the day before he started on his mission, the Petit Bleu was still in the same condition as when Major Lauth handed it to him in November, 1897. When Picquart saw it in the possession of Gen. Pellieux, former minister of war, it seemed to him (Picquart) that the handwriting had been somewhat modified, and at the Tavernier inquiry he noticed that alterations of quite a serious character had been made. Ruled lines had been erased. Moreover, experiments showed the address had been written in ink made of gallnuts, while a superimposed word was written in ink made of logwood, CAPTAIN JUNCK. Capt. Junck followed. He said he was a probationer simultaneously with Dreyfus, but in another department of the war office. He saw the prisoner a great deal, and detailed conversations, in which he alleged Dreyfus spoke of great cams he had lost in gambling and in intercourse with loose women. "One day," the witness proceeded, "when we were visiting the Concourse Hippique, we met three immoral women, who bowed to us. Dreyfus returned their greeting, and I said to him: "Well, for a married man, you have nice acquaintances."

He replied that they were old friends one of them, said her name was Valtezze, and that she had a house on the Champs Elysee, where she gave nice parties, where pretty women were to be met, and where there was much gambling. Dreyfus also boasted of his large means, and spoke with great relish of his comfortable house and The witness, continuing, travels. said Dreyfus was well acquainted with the scheme for the concentrating of troops, and could trace it on any map, as most of the other probationers could. Witness then detailed the work of the different bureaus, and proceeded to demonstrate that the probationwere cognizant of the plans for ers transport and concentration of troops, and how Dreyfus was orthe dered to draw up a report on the German artillery, comparing it with the French artillery, and having access to all the necessary documents. In regard to the Madagascar route, Dreyfus, Junck claimed, told the witness that his cousin had procured him interesting information. Capt. Junck spoke of the efforts of Dreyfus to secure the firing manual, and discussed the theory that Henry might have divulged the documents in the bordereau. Such a supposition, the captain declared, was utterly impossible. Later, the witness corroborated the statement that Col. Picquart

Pays that were said to have taken place in the magistrates' office, one evening, when Esterhazy and his mistress, both in the highest spirits, discussed what they should drink, and, he added, Mademoiselle Pays removed her bodice, exposing her bare arms and bosom. M. Bertullus rose suddenly, and in a loud voice, asked permission to

Col. Jouaust-You will have an opportunity in your turn, sir. You will have it presently. Sit down. Capt. Junck proceeded, and his account of what occurred on that occasion was punctuated with laughter from the audience. M. Demange asked Capt. Junck why he had not given the court of cassation information of the character which he adduced today as proof against Dreyfus, and why he said he had told the court of cassation he had seen nothing in the conduct of Dreyfus to lead to the belief that he was a traitor. This somewhat CONFUSED THE CAPTAIN, who replied that he had not thought of it, but added that he adhered to today's statements about the character of the prisoner.

Dreyfus, after being asked the usual question, replied: "I will not speak to the witness of private confidences he has made to me. If Capt. Junck's ideas of honor allow him to divulge private conversation, mine do not. I have clean hands, and I will keep them clean. But there are a number of facts to which I will refer. I will speak first in regard to all the losses it is said I sustained at the club at Mans. I declare I was never a member of the civil club at Mans, never visited it, and consequently never gambled there. I am convinced that the members of the club are very respectable, and ask you simply to have an inquiry made in order to know if I am speaking the truth. In regard to the lectures in the offices of the headquarters staff, at which it is asserted I was present, they occurred in December, 1893. I was absent at that time, and consequently did not attend the lectures." The prisoner then proceeded to show that in July, 1894, the probationers were informed by an official circular that they were to pass a period of probation in the army, the first year in August and September, the second year in October, November and December-therefore at a period when there were no maneuvers. Regarding the officers directing the dispatch of troops at various points, Dreyfus dwelt upon the fact that he at that time, was on a mission, and was not at the maneuvers at all. "We was not at the maneuvers at all. must be precise," he added, "and not play upon words." (Sensation.) "In "In August, 1894," continued Dreyfus, second year probationers knew definitely that they were to go to various regiments in October, November and December, and that consequently they would not attend the maneuvers. I do not know what gessip the witness (Junck) has detailed in regard to Siam and Madagascar. I do not understand it very well. It is certain that I should have greatly desired to participate in any expedition. It is the natural feeling of every officer. But I could never have had information through a cousin in the foreign office, for I had no cousin there." Regarding proposed postmarking the Petit Bleu the plans for provisioning and convey-

ESTERHAZY, THE TRAITOR. When Dreyfus had finished speaking Col. Jouanst invited M. Bertullus to speak, and ithe latter literally sprang up the steps to the platform, and, leaning sideways against the witness-box, and speaking slowly and distinctly, he turned to Junck and said:
"Monsieur le President, I will not do
Capt. Junck the honor to reply to particulars with which he has regaled the court regarding the visit to my office on July 26. I explained everything before the united court of cassation. here; therefore I have not been punished, and thus my explanations satisfied the judges of the supreme court." M. Bertullus admitted he left the office with the late Lieut.-Col. Henry and Capt. Junck, and accompanied them to the end of the gallery adjoining the office, because he was particularly interested in the investigation, "which," he added, "I may say had no result." The magistrate greatly desired to know what special papers they were hunting for, but did not succeed in learning, in spite of all his efforts to extract the information. "Now," continued M. Bertullus, "one point is clear, and in regard thereto, I declare Capit. Junck's wish was the flather to the thought, and he is wrong in saying I told him I did not think Esterhazy was a traitor. My conviction on this point, gentlemen, has been unshaken since July 2, the day I arrested him, because at the bottom of my heart I was convinced I was in the presence of a traitor, of the sole traitor, and that in Esterhazy was the key to the trial from which France is perishing. That is why I arrested him, and the conviction, gentlemen, has become more profound in proportion as I proceeded with the cast against Ester-hazy. I never could say he was not a traitor. I did not say so, because I think Esterhazy is a traitor, and I will maintain so to and against every-

Gen. Gonse-I wish to say a word. Col. Jouaust-Please speak, my gen-

Gen. Gonse-I should not have intervened if I had not heard Capt. Junck's evidence contradicted. Capt. Junck's evidence of his conversation with M. Bertullus and Col. Henry in the corridor of the miagistrate's office is per-fectly correct as reported to me. These gentlemen called on me and reported the conversation they had with M. Ber-tullus, and all Capt. Junck told you he informed me of when leaving M. Bertullus. The latter said: "I know Esterhazy. Now, he is a flashy fellow, a nobody, a man of straw, but so far as treachery is concerned, there is nothing

Col. Jouaust, addressing M. Bertullus, said: "Did you use these words?"

M. Bertullus—I will not contradict Gen. Gonse, who was not there; but I assert and maintain that Capit Junck's wish was father to the thought. I use the most polite form of expression.

"WHAT, AGAIN?" It was thought the incident was closed, but Col. Picquart jumped to his feet. Col. Jouaust—What, again? Col. Picquart insisted, and, referring to the Petit Bleu, in order to demonstrate how valueless was Capt. Junck's evidence, he said the court had only to compare the coptain's evidence with the report of the Ravary, Fabre and Travernier inquiries to see the contradictions between him and Major Lauth. The court, he added, then would see the utter valuelessness of Capt. Junck's statements. (Sensation.)

The count then edjourned
