HELD FOR MURDER.

Mrs. Smith and Husband Committed for Trial at Moosomin. Winnipeg, Nov. 27.-The preliminary hearing in the Thompson murder case has been concluded at Moosomin, and has resulted in Mrs. Sylvester Smith being committed for trial for murder, her husband being an accessory, and the brother, Samuel, committed for perjury. The two brothers, Henry and Charles Albert, who were first arrested, charged with murder, which charge was afterwards changcharge of aiding and abetting suicide, will be discharged. The three prisoners who were committed will be sent up to Regina until their trial.

One of the brothers swore that he saw his sister, Mrs. Smith, bring into guardships shall be refused by the the house a can containing gopher Sultan a serious decision will be poison, which had been placed under a taken. tree near the house, and thaw the contents on a stove, then pour out a cup-ful, which she took into Sarah Jane's decided to press for the immediate bedroom in answer to a request from Sarah Jane for a drink of water. She returned from the room without the cup, after which she went to her ouse some miles away.

According to the evidence, her husband went over to deceased father's during the Sunday on which Sarah Jane was poisoned, made inquiries about the poison, and where the dogs were kept at night, noted the condition of the girl, and told his wife all that he had discovered. Then his wife came over to the house at midnight and administered the poison to her sister.

The evidence also went to show that on at least two occasions Mrs. Smith threatened to poison her sister, and also advised her brothers to do so. The analysis of the deceased's stomach by Prof. Kendrick, of Winnipeg, indicated that the girl was poisoned by

THE SULTAN IS SLOW.

Constantinople says that the Ministers report on the guardship demand which was sent to the Sultan, was returned for revision, accompanied by a memorandum from the Sultan's first secretary, which stated that his Majesty feared that the arrival of six warships would encourage the Armenians to renew the disorders. The Ministers again debated their report, and came to the conclusion that no reason could be seen for the Sultan's fears. They again recommended compliance with the demands. Halil Rifat Pasha, Grand Vizier, sought an audience with the Sultan yesterday, with a view to persuading him to sanction the firmans, but he was not successful. It is generally believed that if the Chicago-Four big passenger steamers, the Jay Gould, City of Duluth, the extra guard ships demanded by City of Traverse and Peerless, all of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation Company's line, were out on the lake in the big storm and up to late last night had not been heard from. Three large vessels are ashore off Glencoe, and are lying about 600 yards off shore. They are the wooden steamer John Emery Owen and her two consorts, the schooner barges Michigan and Elizabeth A. Nicholson. All are loaded with coal and bound from Buffalo to Chicago. Over 30 sailors were on board the three vessels when they struck. All of them were rescued by the Evanston life-saving crew. The steamer J. Emory Owen and the schooners Elizabeth A. Nicholson and Michigan went ashore off Winneka on the north shore near this city. All the crews were rescued from death by the gallant college boys of the Evanston life-saving crew, aided by the citizens of the suburb of Glencoe. Water was let into the holds of the vessels after they had struck the boulders to keep them from pounding to pieces. It is believed the Owen and Michigan may be saved, but the Nicholson may prove a total loss. The Owen is worth about $100,000 and insured for $75,000. A bitrator. Washington, Nov. 27.-The rname of Emperor William of Germany has been mentioned as available as an arbitrator for the British-Venezuela dispute if Lord Salisbury's answer to Ambassador Bayard proves favorable to arbitration. The suggestion of the Kaiser's name originated in semi-official circles in London. It appears to be conceded that the United States would not act as an arbitrator, owing to the general belief that the sympathy of this country is on the side of Venezuela. Germany's interests in Venezuela are very large, its merchants controlling all the commerce of Maracaibo and other large cities, and German capital has built the leading railroad lines of the country. The report from London that Lord Salisbury has completed his answer to Mr. Bayard is regarded in diplomatic circles here as having a favorable significance. The reply has been delayed so long that was a strong belief among officials that Lord Salisbury would make no answer, taking the position that the subject was one in which the United States had no concern. It is with some satisfaction.therefore.that the authorities here receive the report that an answer of Great Britain is about to be delivered. You Can Believe The testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Further Evidence for the Defense in the Great Toronto Murder Case.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the Hyams' murder trial, Robert B. Preston, clerk for Scully & Co., testified that on the Sunday morning before the death of Willie Wells, he and his father were out for a walk and they went along Colborne street, to see Hyams' warehouse. When they reached the warehouse Wells was inside, and took witness down cellar to show him how they manipulated the top and then took one of the weights off, and put on the other, re-changing them again. When Wells put the heavy weight on again, he only put the nose of the hook in the eye of the weight, and in this condition drew it up, until witness drew attention to it, when Willie let it down and left it.

As far as he could see, Willie did not before they left the cellar. On the Wednesday after Willie Wells' death, witness, in company with Tailor White and a man called Crone, made experiments to see if the weight would go into the shaft if the hook were attach ed to the eye of the hook, as he had last seen it when in the warehouse on Sunday. Robert O. Preston, father of the witness, corroborated this evidence as to the Sunday walk to the Colborne street warehouse, and to his son going into the building and theeting a young man there, to whom his son introduced

A poor little damsel I know had trouble with her mother not long ago. The direct consequence was that she was sent into her own room for meditation and, supposedly, repentance. A listener happened to overhear the mite's defiance, when she thought herself unmolested and alone. She threw herself on her knees before her bed, and burying her face in the pillow, bebegan a prayer for guidance. But the petition had the very significant commencement, "O, Lord, consider how I am treated!"

Mrs. Helen Campbell, the author of "Prisoners of Poverty," has admirably put the argument for the new times as contrasted with the old. She says that an energetic lady 80 years of age declared that the good old times were largely humbug. She said: "Don't I remember! There was my beautiful Aunt Adelaide, whose husband kicked her out into the snow one winter's night in one of his periodical sprees. He had done it before, and this time she would not go back. But the law | tions of women's dress in antagonizing gave him her property and the three children, and she ended her days in an insane asylum because she could not get them. No, my dear, thank God you live today and not a hundred years ago, and every new day will give you more and more cause for being thankful. It is a better time for every soul on earth, and this thing people call 'good old times' is a dreary humbug, that might better be decently interred and dene with. Give me the new time and the new man, for he is coming right along side by side with the 'new woman'-God bless her!" and God bless him, too!

For those who don evening dress only infrequently much danger lurks as all know, in the removal of highnecked underwear, and the sudden exposure of unaccustomed neck and shoulders to winter temperature. In such an event, a wise course to pursue is to begin the day before the festal occasion to bathe the chest, neck and shoulders profusely with alcohol, and to continue this treatment throughout the following day. There is no better preventive of colds, and alcohol does not, as is the case with so many such helps, leave an unpleasant odor behind. For the last twelve hours before putting on the evening clothes it is well to wear about the house a lighter weight bodice, or thinner flannels, to accustom one's self by degrees to the coming change.

SNUG LITTLE BONNETS.

Beautiful as the large picture hats with their "tossing plumes" are, and becoming as they are, too, still during the winter The Millionairess Marries Mr. S. H. there will come windy days when the onwers of the exquisite Rembrandts and Gainsboroughs will sigh for something smaller and snugger. This prospective need has been met in the shape of a charmingly quaint and picturesque suit of furs, which makes its wearer look like one of her own little Knickerbocker Dutch ancestors.

There is a large, full cape of sealskin, with a band of chinchilla for the edge and little beads for fastening at the throat, and ruffled muffs, which are so much shown this season. FREEDOM IN WOMAN'S DRESS. Miss Potter Says That Skirts Cause More Trouble Than Corsets. The question of woman's dress incidentments of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union, which was held in Baltimore preliminary to the general convention of the union, says the New York World.

Several of the speakers referred to the ill-effects of corsets and other tight porphysical culture development. These references brought to her feet Miss Helen Potter, of Boston, who said:

"Skirts bother me more than corsets. What shall we do with these trailing things which are forever tripping us as we to upstairs? Look at a woman with a baby in one arm and a cup of milk in the other hand trying to walk upstairs. Even with divided skirts," and here she gracefully picked up a black divided skirt in which she was attired, 'one corner is sure to get under our feet unless held out of the way. With the new skirt of eight yards around the problem is more perplex-

I dream at nights of an emancipation coming for us as a result of bicycle riding," continued Miss Potter. "When I see girls riding with Turkish trousers and who were fermerly afraid to dismount when they wished to enter a store or publie place now getting down and walking about with perfect freedom I think the time of our emancipation is coming. When the state is reached that such attire will not receive a backward glance of a boy or young man the problem will have been in the newspapers. partially solved. The public only needs to get gradually used to the change not to pay especial attention to the wearers of the improved costume.

"Go about the house in the freedom of no skirts, but have your gown ready that may be fastened on with one stick-pin. Have this hanging convenient to reach, and when the door bell rings slip on your gown and you are ready to receive your caller. When the caller has gone drop off the gown, carry it on your arm and go upstairs in freedom. This I have practised with much comfort."

In conversation with a reporter after uniform attire can be adopted. The fat woman and the lean one must consider what is best suited to them to wear."

Fads in Hat Pins.

Hat pins are growing in elaborateness and expensiveness every day. Every conceivable design is made in rhinestones, luxuries for herself. silver, steel, gilt, gold and even jewels. A round ball seems the favorite conceit, and very effective it is in rhinestones, steel or what is called agate-a transparent blue glass, set with miniature jewels. The most useful and inexpensive black headed hat pin is no longer possible, alas! and if we cannot afford real jewels, gold, or silver we must deck ourselves in gaudy imitations thereof or be considered hopelessly behind the times.

The designs in silver are very varied and sometimes grotesquely inappropriate.

A small cupid poised on a ball, may be artistic, but is certainly not appropriate to hold on a hat, and yet this is only one of many equally remarkable pins.

Small Salad Plants.

The other day I saw several quaintly shaped delf and china dishes on a shelf in the sunny dining room window of a friend. They were covered with what, at a distance, looked like green moss. I was interested to know that my friend was raising her own winter salad plants in this way. A piece of white flannel is cut to fit the bootom of the dish; it is then sprinkled thickly with water cress, curled cress, mustard seed and kept very wet, when, after a week, the two latter are fit to cut; the water cress takes longer to germinate.

This is a very clean way of raising these plants, entirely disposing of the grittiness of the earth-grown plants, and is also entirely practicable, as a little management will keep up the supply all winter. It is essential that they be kept very wet. If it be not required that the dishes be ornamented, earthen pie dishes will answer.

it wasn't more than half an hour till he never came back."

Under a Wishbone of Lilies and Orchids-A Quiet, Homelike Affair-A Sensible Woman Who Does Good With Her Wealth.

New York, Nov. 27.-Miss Edith S. McCormick, at the latter's apartments, in the Buckingham Hotel, at 12:30 o'clock yesterday.

The apartments were beautifully de-The apartments were beautifully decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums, placed against a background of palms. The bridal couple stood within a wishbone of white lilies and orchids, beneath a wedding bell of the same flowers. The guests were composed only of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

Cormick and Stanley McCornoick; Mrs. Emmons Blain, and his cousins, the Misses Mary and Henrietta McCormick, of Chicago, were present at the ceremony, besides the Rockefeller family. Miss Alta Rockefeller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the following were the bridesmaids: Carrie McCormick, Miss Caldwell, Miss Scott, Miss Grace Scott and Miss Frances Adams. Stanley McCormick was best man. The following were ushers:
John D. Rockefeller, jun., T. Harvey,
Vance McCormick, Gerard Herrick,
Howard Colby, James Blair and Jacob

The Rev. W. H. D. Faunce, of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. John Hall, of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride cut the cake and distributed it to her more intimate friends who returned to the Rockefeller mansion, 4 West Fifth-fourth street, where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller, on behalf of the groom and bride, and where the wedding breakfast was served. The bride and groom remained at the hotel.

The ceremony was performed at Mr. McCormick's apartments because he had been suffering from a cold and pleurisy, and the doctor would not allow him to leave the house.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Young McCormick met Miss Rocke-feller while studying at Princeton, and ally crept into the conference of workers fell in love with her largely because, in the purity and physical culture depart- at that time she was sending 1,000 Christmas presents to the poor. When he proposed for her, old Rockefeller said he wouldn't give the girl over $1,000,000, but McCormick said he didn't care if he gave her nothing.

THE BRIDE. Miss Edith Rockefeller is the young-est daughter of her father, who is at the head of the Standard Oil Trust. Once he was a poor bookkeeper. To-day he is worth something over $140,-000,000, and is still making money at a marvelous rate.

Miss Rockefeller is 24 years of age. Miss Rocketener is 24 years of age. She would hardly be called handsome or even pretty. She is rather short of stature, not being much over five feet in height. She is a blonde, but not of a decided type.

For a young woman with as much money at her command as she has, her tastes are wonderfully quiet. For fashionable society she does not care at all. Although she has lived in mansion near Fifth avenue for several years she is almost unknown to New York. Before the announcement of her engagement, her name was rarely seen RICH IN GOOD DEEDS. She was not introduced to society with a blare of trumpets. In fact, society never saw her at all. While Consuelo Vanderbilt and Anna Gould were being "brought out," Edith Rockefeller was busying herself hunting up poor families and planning to become a missionary to foreign countries. Rockefellers might well live in a mansion as big and conspicious as any of those owned by the Astors or the Vanderbilts, but their home is not even on that avenue of creosuses. Miss Edith allows nothing to interfere with her hospital tour. She has a regular route, and goes about dis-tributing flowers and delicacies to the sufferers, many of whom never know who is their benefactress. She spends thousands in shopping, but a very small fraction of her money goes for

THE BRIDE'S SISTERS. The Rockefeller girls are never seen in the opera box. They go to the opera occasionally, for they are both fine musicians, and naturally are lovers of music; but they are contented with a seat in the orchestra circle, where they may hear and see without being seen. They never attend any of the swell balls, receptions or any other fashionable functions. They do not dance, and they have no taste for fashionable crowds. They are unknown to the 400. Both of the girls teach classes in the Sunday school. Mrs. Rockefeller and Mr. Rockefeller also teach classes. These Sunday school scholars are favored, indeed. They are often entertained in the Rockefeller mansion, and have merry times there. have merry times there. Miss Edith can converse elmost as well in French and German as she can in English, and she knows a good deal of Spanish and Italian. She even learned the Japanese language when she was preparing for the missionary work she intended to do. She understands how to manage the affairs of a big house, and can read Horace in the original. Her musical education is very thorough, and she is a remarkably fine performer on the violoncello. Her leaving home to be a wife will break up the somewhat famous home orchestra, which was a great source of pleasure to her father. John D. plays he first violin, his married daughter, Mrs. Strong plays the second violin when she is at home, Edith plays the 'cello and Alta the piano.

MONEY IN A BIG CELERY FARM. Akron, O., Nov. 26.—The latest horticultural report of the Government states that the largest celery farm in the United States, if not in the world, is at Grantswey Ohio. is at Greentown, Ohio. The place is a hamlet fifteen miles south of this city. The farm is owned by the Borst heirs, and managed by C. H. Borst, one of them. Under cultivation and devoted entirely to celery are 125 acres. Mr. Borst employs the members of seven families, all of whom reside on the farm, in operating the place. Much of the celery produced is shipped to Chicago. The value of the annual product is about $20,000, but this year it will fall some $8,000 short of this. The New York, Nov. 27.—Miss Edith Very dry weather and frosts in October Rockefeller was married to Mr. Harold are responsible for this. The farm twelve years ago was a worthless swamp. Today it is valued at $75,000. Mr. Borst is authority for the state-ment that six acres devoted to celery culture will net a farmer as great an income as he would derive from 125 acres of ordinary farm land.

Many of our readers will be glad to see this portrait of Mr. Jas. Doan, whose keen judgment and far-sightedness were instrumental in bringing Doan's Kidney Pills before the public. They are the original Kidney Pills made from the receipt purchased many years ago by Mr. Doan, from an old Quaker lady who brought it to his store to be made up. Mr. Doan at once placed the pills upon the market, and they rapidly sprang into favor because of the uniform record of cures made by them; as an example we may quote the case of Mr. R. Ulch, of Kingsville, Ontario.

Mr. R. Ulch, of Kingsville, Ontario, is not a very famous man, but he is an honest man, much respected in Kingsville. Exposure to all kinds of weather brought about a severe kidney trouble, going from bad to worse. His condition became one of intense suffering. After many failures he finally obtains relief and cure, and recognizing the fact that hid and cure, and, recognizing the fact that kidney complaints are more prevalent than any other malady, he wishes the public to receive the malady, he wishes the public to receive the benefit of his experience, and gives the following account of his wonderful cure: "About two years ago I had such a lame back brought about by kidney trouble, that I was almost helpless, and could not do any work. I had tried several physicians but without any tried several physicians, but without any relief. Having heard of your Kidney Pills I was induced to give them a trial, and after using one box and part of another one, I was well, and have never been troubled since. They will indeed do all that is claimed for them. I feel as good and active to-day as when a young man, although I am fifty-six." Doan's Kidney Pills are sold by all dealers for 50 cents have one by consist bases for $2.50 or will be sent per box, or six boxes for $2.50, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price. Ross dedicated the library to learning and to London. was brilliant effort of a cultivated mind, and the audience several hundreds who had found room within the hall hung upon his every motion, and were most generous in their applause. The chair was occupied by Mr. Robert Reid, and with him on the platform were Trustees E. R. Cameron, C. E. Keene, Tal-Bishop Baldwin, Rev. Father Tiernan, Dr. Roome, M.P., Joseph Marshall, M. P., Robert Boston, M.P., Principal F. W. Merchant, Collegiate Institute; J. W. Letters of regret were read from Thomas S. Hobbs, and Wm. Shore, M.P.P.s, and Sir John Carling.

Robert Reid, Sen.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Reid, in opening, "allow me on behalf of the Public Library board, to bid you a hearty welcome to this, I hope, auspleious opening of our new I Public Library of the city London. We do not say one moment that it is all to for that could wish it to be. I think that the board, however, have done the best they could with the means at their command, and have exercised the strictest economy in every part of the work which has come under their review. And I must say, during the past three years, we have had to struggle through many difficulties and overcome many stumbling blocks which we had to face. Yet, having a single purpose in view, we have always come to a unanimous conclusion as to the wisest method to be adopted to attain the end we all had at heart. And, let me say here, there is a very pleasing object lesson to be learned from this fact, because we are not by any means a homogeneous collection of individuals, of one nationality, religion or politics. But, on the very contrary, of the nine gentlemen who compose our board, counting our mayor, we have Canadians. Englishmen, Irishmen and dians. Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen. And in religion we have Roman Catholics Episcopalians, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian.

HARMONIOUS DELIBERATIONS. "But at our deliberations it would be difficult to discover who was the Englishman, Irishman or Scotchman, or what his religion was. All were prompted by but one patriotic sentiment for the good of our common country, Canada, and the meral and intellectual reputation of our own beautiful city; all other differences were laid aside for the attainment of one common object. And now that our one common object. And now that our labor so far has been accomplished with the best of feeling and harmony, and while we rejoice in the introduction of the new era of public libraries. let us not forget that the old Mechan-Institute, which is now incorporated in the Public Library, for over 50 years has done a noble work in our good town and city. And allow me for a minute to give a few reminisoccurred some time about the middle of the fifties," said Mr. Reid. "It was one of those noble deeds, and because done by an obscure and humble workingman, was allowed to pass unnoticed and unknown. John Hurst, a young Englishman, came from Montreal as a gasfitter and plumber. I knew him well, for many an hour he spent in my bookstore, to which he was always well-bookstore, to which he was once associated, with which he was once ascingal and the allowed it to superior f "One other interesting and sad event of the Mechanics' Institute of London. On his deathbed he gave no indication of having any kindred either in Canada or in his native land. This inheritance set the institute on its feet. It enabled the managers to buy a lot and remove the managers to buy a lot and remove the building from its old site southwest of the present court house, to the building from its old site south-west of the present court house, to Talbot street, opposite Queen's avenue, now used as a wagon factory. This lot was bought by John Hurst's legacy. He was a good man, and I think a re-ligious man, because he never said much about it—(laughter)—but I know he had a most reverent nature. The he had a most reverent nature. The beautiful lines of Gray might well be engraved on John Hurst's tomb:

"Large was his bounty and his soul Heaven did a recompense us largely He gave to misery, all he had-a tear; gained from heaven, 'twas all he wished-a friend."

A statement of the cost of the build-(Applause.) ing followed, and also an account of the nature of the books ordered. Mr. Reid referred to Ald. Hallam's kind donation, and to Andrew Carnegie's donation, and to Andrew Carnegie's givings to free libraries. Then he said:
"I know that a new heresy has been started lately—that the people are being over-educated, with the result that this over-education breeds discontent this over-education breeds discontent among the people. I confess I have no sympathy with this pessimistic view of the effect of our progress and the growth of intelligence in our land. (Applement) plause:) I do not think that any of us plause:) I do not think that any of us would like to go back to the dark ages, when a few only had the key to knowledge, and the great mass of the people were held in mental slavery, and even the soil was held by the strongest hand."

CANADIAN PATRIOTISM. Mr. Reid dwelt in closing on patriotic Canadian history. "We may initiate our children, if we choose, into all the mysteries of science, make them walk-ing encyclopaedias of knowledge, and forget to tell them how the blood of forget to tell them how the blood of martyrs and patriots was poured out, that the bright legacy of freedom might be handed down unsullied and unimpaired; forget to tell them that next to loving God, their duty is to love their country with all their soul and with all their strength to treasure and with all their strength, to treasure its traditions, to extend its fame, to guard its privileges, and to widen its freedom. Forget all this—then, I say, God help Canada, for its doom is written. But I am not afraid of Canada's future on this continent. need not envy the numerous and ever increasing number of millionaires amongst our neighbors to the south of

"I hope that millionaires are not increasing in Canada, and I am very sure men are not decaying." (Applause.) Mr. Reid, in conclusion, referred to the promised donation from a celebrated former Londoner, Dr. Murray, of Edin-burg, of 50 volumes of the Challenger Expedition, which had been delayed owing to the fact that 400 volumes which were shipped to London, England, were lost. The will fulfill his promise " (Applause.)

E. R. Cameron. Mr. E. R. Cameron, on behalf of the board, went into an explanation of the delay which will necessarily occur fore the circulating department of the library is open to the public. He went from phase to phase of the exhaustive work of cataloguing under the decimal system. Not more than five or six books can be catalogued by an expert in an hour, and when it was considered that the library comprised nearly 6,000 volumes, they could readily un-Egan, R. H. Dignan and Mayor Little; derstand the delay. Even with an increased staff it would be impossible to open the department until Jan. 1, when works of fiction will be ready. They got that portion ready first, because of the large demand for that class of literature.

Mayor Little. "It is not my intention to inflict a speech upon you," said the mayor, "even if I were able to make one. I am well aware that you have all come here with the same object I had in view—that is, to listen to the treat that is expected from the speaker of the evening. I think I would be committing a crime to take even one or two minutes away from those who are to follow me. As I am only an ex-officio member of the library board, and have only occupied that position during the present year, it will not be brought about what you see this even-I think they have worked very harmoniously, and I believe that your money has been spent to the very best advantage. The building is certainly creditable to the architect and to the board. I believe it is well adapted to the very purpose for which it was intended, and that the appointments throughout are as good as you could get with the means at your disposal. I have no doubt that the books have been selected with equal care and been selected with equal care and judgment, and that you will find that this Free Library will be an immense advantage to the city."

A HINT IN CATALOGUING.

with reference to the request for works ment, the great heart of the English of fiction made an impression on my mind. I believe it is very desirable to have recreation for the mind as well as for the body, and I would strongly urge upon the board and their coadjutors to provide a generous reference library. In the first place, I believe that nothing can be more important than that mechanics, artisans and professional men should have access the very best authorities dealing with their study. I think, therefore, that this portion of the library should receive, if possible, first consideration in cataloguing. Then we want the very best books on scientific subjects, matters of history and that kind, and only the standard authors in fiction. I don't profess to be a literary man, but I think with men who have only a certain amount of time at their disposal to spend upon books, that a provision of that kind will be most satisfactory. been my lot during the time I have had the honor to represent you as mayor, to take part in several important functions, and I think that amongst them all nothing, to my mind, is of greater importance and value to the city than the opening of the arts course at the Western University and the inauguration of this Free Library."

Judge Elliot. Judge Elliot congratulated the board, or three years his health gave way and he died, leaving his savings, which amounted to some $600, for the benefit amounted to some $600, for the benefit and the Mechanics' Institute of the Mechanics' Institute of the Mechanics' and the Mecha tangible opposition, except that in a publication called the New Review a writer complains that 80 per cent in all those libraries are devoted to fic-tion; and he says many of these works of fiction are really of a trashy description, and he mentions some in-stances—"The Green Gooseberry," and "The Yellow Aster," and some other names of that kind, which he says are veriest trash. But, of course, as the gentleman previous to me has hinted, a close discrimination should be exercised with regard to such books as this. But I would say at once that he who would exclude works of fiction from public libraries would exclude one of the most priceless gifts of genius to the human race. I believe that relaxation is necessary in the midst of toil and labor, and that relaxation cannot be more agreeably found than in works of fiction—not works of trash—standard works that will make the authors immortal by their productions."

The Minister of Education. Hon. G. W. Ross was announced amid applause, and for an hour he held his hearers willing captors by his splendid address so profitable in sub-stance and brilliant in form. He opened in a congratulatory strain. As a native of Middlesex, he remarked with pleasure the new symptoms of improvement that greeted his eye whenever he came to London. Her public schools were larger and more comfortable then to work ago, her colfortable than ten years ago; her Collegiate Institute was the largest in the Province; her hospital did her philanthropy credit; and the other day he had attended the opening of the Western University arts course, which, if it proved as efficient as the medical department, would give the citizens no cause to be ashamed. (Applause.) "And now, to cap the climax, and to furnish all your citizens with facilities for improvement, you have done the only thing you could do under the circumstances. Some ten or twelve years ago, when I had the honor to take charge of the educational department, there was, I think, but one free library in Ontario. This is now the twelfth maintained by public assessments. There were only 90 Mechanics' Institutes then in all the Province. Now there are 310, and a quarter of million of dollars is invested in a quarter of million of dollars is invested in a quarter of a million volumes, containing the best literature to be found anywhere. (Applause.)

"We can do little with a boy up to 14 years of age. We can give him the key to knowledge and cultivate his taste, but if it takes so long to drill him in the elementary subjects that him in the elementary subjects that he has but little time to gratify his inclinations, if he has literary desires. That desire can now be gratified by placing within his reach such an institution as this. You should all apprentice the great possibility for the ciate the great possibility for the moral, social and intellectual IMPROVEMENT OF THE COMMUN-which this library affords. Moral because it will induce many a young man who reads what is supplied here to absent himself from more questionable resorts; social, because it will economical problems constantly pressed upon us by the great activities of this present age." (Applause.) WHAT AND HOW TO READ. Under this heading the speaker gave some splendid advice. "Read the best in the library, if there be a best. Read just as the prudent man uses his food. Read deliberately. Masticate it thoroughly. Digest it well. Map out a course of study. I believe in system in all things. Let us take up a course in history first. Why? Carlyle says history is 'philosophy teaching by experience.' What we all want is experience. ence—the experience of others—if we are to shape our own aright. In history we see the experience of other na-tions. These are the elements which enter into the daily life of the individual and nation, and as history is almost the sum of all the humanitles, live. Carlyle said, 'Read history with years would not be a geography before you.'

"There are two or three accessorles necessary to SUCCESSFUL READING.

Every young man should have a dictionary at his elbow, and should never pass over a word he does not understand. The great want of the age is deliberation and solidity. We live too fast, grow old too fast, and die before out time. Gray spent thirteen years members of the board who have on his churchyard elegy, and it is a you are going to saturate yourself with knowledge in any line, you must proceed deliberately, meditatively, reflectively, and every idea must in that way become part of your own mental fibre, as productive and generative as a protoplasm." (Applause.) Mr. Ross pointed out that different histories would have to be read to secure all the phases of English history. Emerson said that the great epochs of history were the lengthened shadows The events of history of great men. eddied around them like the currents "You have only around Ailsa Craig. to read their biographies to see how wonderfully, through their enchantthrough all the great principles of con-stitutional reform; and it is through the inspiration from the lives of these men that our own lives receive that higher cast, that deeper stimulus, which may move us to imitate their example and principles, and transfuse into the life of our own nation some of that POTENCY AND PURPOSE, some of that resoluteness of will, some of that clearness of situation, which necessarily arises in the constitutional history of any country." (Applause.)

Turning to the history of Canada,
Mr. Ross said it must be studied from the standpoint of philosophy to some extent, owing to the two currents arising from the presence of two races.
Mr. Ross alluded to the loyalty of the French-Canadian race in the crises of 1774, 1812, 1841 and 1867, and said there seemed to be greater harmony between the two elements now than ever be-fore. He pointed out that 40 years before. He pointed out that 40 years be-fore Wilberforce's plea for the aboli-tion of slavery on British soil, Canada had destroyed the iniquity once and forever, and 30 years before Lincoln struck the shackles off the Southern slaves, Canada was their refuge from slaves, Canada was their reruge from bloodhounds and pursuers. In 1854, the separation of church and state, a problem with which English politicians were struggling today, and which might not be solved for all time, was accomplished in Canada, and it was accomplished in Canada, and it was shown that men could enjoy the utmost religious liberty without the superintending care of the state. Whatever was patriotic in Canadian history, and the names of our forefathers who were was patriotic in Canadian history, and the names of our forefathers who were connected with the laying of the foundation of Canada's history should be treasured by every Canadian."

RHEUMATISM.

Its Cause and Cure.

Poisonous Acid in the Blood, Which Needs Removal-Only One Means for a Radical Cure. Rheumatism is a blood disease, due to the presence of uric acid—a poison—in the system, and it is only by the removal of this pain-producing poison that a radical cure can be effected. Acute rheumatism is nereditary, and thus it is that young children are often victims to this torture. The use of liniments, embrocations and outward applications may give temporary relief. but can never cure, for the poison is in the blood, and until it is expelled rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia pains will continue. Scott's Sarsaparilla cures rheumatism by removing the cause—by neutralizing and expel-ling this poisonous acid. In chronic cases, this medicine reaches the source of the disease as no other medicine can. It gives renewed energy to the organs that sustain life, the forces that make the blood. For the nervous troubles of youth, for the debility that precedes old age, for ladies in their severe ordeals, it is without a compeer. Scott's Sarsaparilla is a concentrated compound of the finest medicines known to modern medical science. The dose is from one half to one teaspoon ful, and during its use the ordinary vocations are not interfered with.

Tore Down the Bridge.

Culmination of the Difference Between the Hamilton Bridge Company

And the London Street Railway Company Over the Ridout Street Bridge-Railway Crossings as Far Away as Ever.

Yesterday the bridge over the Thames t Ridout street south, which is being altered and enlarged for street railway purposes, was about half completed. Today not a vestige of the superstructure remains. As stated on another page, the street railway company and the bridge company have a difference over the terms. It arose early in the negotiations, but was not considered sufficient to deter the bridge company from proceeding with the work. They great sufferer with nervous prostration evidently anticipated a satisfactory settlement. Several days ago President Hendrie and Engineer Schwal were in town, and in close communion with the street railway people, but the expected adjustment did not materialize. Then bad weather delayed the work, but yes-terday, when a gang of bridge builders again put in an appearance, it was thought that the work would be rushed through. One of the two spans had been completed. Instead of going on with the work, the builders began to take apart what was already up, and although it took a couple of weeks to put the structure together, it did not taken more than a day to take it down again. At present only the cylinder abutments remain standng, although all the material for the bridge construction is vet on the ground.

Manager Carr and Director T. H. Smallman, who went to Hamilton about the matter yesterday, returned early this morning. Mr. Carr says the difficulty is not yet settled, but expects that it will be adjusted in a day or so, when Mr. Hendrie comes to town. Car No. 60 has been fitted with heaters, and the other cars will be rapidly placed in shape.

The trouble over the rallway crossings are just as far from settlement as ever. Mr. Carr asked Mr. Hobson for permission to put in a temporary crossing over the G. T. R. at Richmond street. Mr. Hobson referred Mr. Carr to the company's solicitor, Mr. Bell, but no answer has been received as yet. A similar request was made of the L. E. and D. R. R. Company to allow the company to traverse the Hamilton road by crossing the London and Port Stanley, but the Lake Erie people gave an emphatic refusal. The horse crossing at the C. P. R., although a means to an end, is not very satisfactory. The old flat rails are in use over the crossing, and the jolting of the heavy cars is continually loosening the short strips that are placed between the rails. A car was derailed at the crossing yesterday.

Another County Heard From. Reference was made in these columns last week to the magnificent record of the Lakehurst Institute treatment for alcoholism in an eastern town. This week, from the village of Wellington, in the county of Prince Edward, there has come news even more gratifying. During the past eighteen months twelve of the best known drinking. men from this picturesque locality have made the pilgrimage to Oakville, and our advices are that there is not a failure in the lot. Every man a living, speaking example of the complete success which has invariably attended a course of treatment with us. Had these been dependent upon their will power during that time, in order to abstain from the use of intoxicants, probably not one could have stood the test. Their unanimous testimony now is that liquor is no temptation to them; they know that the stuff will do them tharm, therefore they abstain. The treatment at Lakehurst Institute removes the disease, eliminates the alcohol from the system, and makes them free men, and their intelligence prevents them from putting the shackles on again. ## BROKE HIS PLEDGE.

The Porte Did Not Protect American Missionaries as Promised.

The United States Will Demand an Indemnity-Herrible Massacres of Men, Women and Children.

Constantinople, Nov. 27.-More details have just been received here of the burning of the American mission buildings at Kharput. They show that the Turkish Government officials, in spite of the abundance of promises of protection for the American missionaries and their property, made by the Porte, to the United States Minister, Mr. Alex. W. Terrell, and to the Americans themselves, the authorities of Kharput utterly failed to guard the Americans. There was no protection offered or given until after the American mission buildings had been burned to the ground. It is estimated that the value of the American property is about $100,000. It consisted of the girl's college, the theological seminary, chapel and five residences. All the burned buildings were looted by the Turkish mob before being set on fire, and all the personal effects of the American misisonaries, the libraries, scientific instruments, etc., were stolen, and so far only a small portion of the property has been recovered. The lady missionaries, naturally, were in a state of great terror while the rioting was going on, and Mrs. Gates, the wife of one of the missionaries, was so prostrated with alarm that she gave premature birth to a child, which did not live.

The authorities of Kharput, however, protected the missionaries after the latfled from their residences to the official quarters. From that time on the Americans were kept under guard, and those who so desired were furnished with escorts to the Black Sea coast. All reports agree in establishing the fact that the rioting was of a most horrible description, that several hundred of Armenians, men, women and children, were butchered, that the massacre seemed to be premeditated, and that the Turkish troops, if they did not take part in the slaughter, as the Armenians claim, certainly made no effort to put a stop to it. Mr. Terrell, when he was informed of the destruction of the Armenian mission buildings at Kharput, made a strong formal protest to the Porte, and as soon as the work of collecting all the data neces-sary is completed, he will make a demand for the immediate payment of an indemnity. In fact, Mr. Terrell, when he intimated that this would be done, was assured that the Turkish Government would pay the indemnity requir-ed as soon as all the facts in the case were established, and the blame placed Unconfirmed rumors reached here today that fresh troubles of a serious nature have broken out at Marash, in the Allepo Government, where the mustering of Turkish troops for the advance on Zeltoun, held by the Armenians in force. has been in progress for some time past. The dusky islanders sat in a ring, listening with eager expectation to the Lord Chancellor, as he read to their monarch the latest communication from the Foreign Missionary Society. ### GREATEST WHISTLE ON EARTH To Be Placed on Sing Sing Prison to Rouse the Surrounding Country When Prisoners Escape.

Sing Sing, Nov. 27.—Beginning next Wednesday morning a terrible noise will be heard in this little town daily and sometimes nightly, and the sound wil go echoing and reverberating for 30 miles up and down the river and rolling away among the hills.

The sound will come from the prison. It will be called the prison whistle, and will in all probability be the largest and loudest steam whistle in existence. It is said that under the most favorable circumstances it can be heard 30 miles distant, and that in ordinary weather it will easily be heard 10 miles. It is to be used to alarm officers and citizens in case of escape, an uprising in the prison, or fire. It will also signal the beginning of work in the shops in the morning and the shutting down at night. The whistle is known as the Fitts patent 12-inch three-barrel steam gong, and is the largest in use. It is composed of three cylindrical bells or barrels placed one a ve the other. The lower barrel is three feet high and measures 12 inches haliameter. The middle and upper barrels are respectively 18 and 14 inches in height and reduced proportionately in diameter. These barrels are fastened to the steam conductor, which passes through them. The entire whistle is eight feet in height, and contrary to ordinary whistles, the barrels or resonators are inverted. Each barrel has a different tone, thus producing a blended sound, without ear-splitting effects. The whistle, from which an enormous volume of sound will be emitted, is to be placed on the north end of the messroom, directly over the boiler house. After the escape of a long-term con-vict one night last month, Warden Sage decided to procure a telling alarm. Copies of the following code of signals have been distributed among the prison officials and townspeople: One long blast followed by two short ones indicates commencing and leaving off work.

One long blast followed by three short ones indicates fire.
One long blast followed by four short ones indicates an escape. One long blast followed by five short ones is a call for officers, on hearing which, all officers outside, not on duty, will repair at once to the prison, and those inside will be alert.

The New York Sun Reviews Mr. Goldwin Smith's Article in the Saturday Review.

The New York Sun prints the following article: "In a late num-ber of the Saturday Review Mr. Gold-win Smith discusses the Copyright Act recently passed by the Parliament at Ottawa, and the effect of such independent legislation on the attitude of the mother country toward the Dominion of Canada. It is well understood this Canadian law is regarded by British. ish authorities and publishers as destructive of their rights and as subversive of agreements into which the British Empire has entered with foreign powers. The British North America Act, which forms the constitution of the Dominion of Canada, while it delegates legislative powers to the Parlia-ment at Ottawa reserves a right of veto to the Imperial Government. It is the exercise of this right which British authors and publishers have invoked and against which a number of Dominion Ministers have protested, on the ground that it is the business of the law-makers at Ottawa to conserve Canadian interests without references to those of the United Kingdom, and that, as regards the claim to copyright within the bounds of the Dominion, the will of the Canadian Parliament must be accepted as final. That is to say, the Dominion Minister, who is pecially responsible for the Canadian Copyright Act asserts, and herein he the tacit if not the avowed support of his colleagues, that one clause of the British North America Act is valid, viz., that which delegates legis-lative powers; but that another clause which gives to the Imperial Privy Council a right of review and veto is null and void. "This assertion, as Mr. Goldwin Smith points out, is tantamount to an invitation to review and recast the constitution formulated in the British North America Act, not only from the view point of the veto on colonial legislation, but also with respect to the right possessed by the Imperial Government of acting diplomatically on behalf of the whole British Empire. For the Canadian copyright law the Dominion has repudiated the engagements made by British diplomatists and assented to by the rest of the empire in pursuance of suggestions made by the copyright convention of Berne. Whether the veto power with which the Imperial Government is invested ought to be exercised in the ery. We stand excelsiors present case is a question of expediency which Mr.Goldwin Smith does not presume to answer; on the contrary, he frankly says that a hearing of the parties interested by the Crown in council might be advisable. At the same time he maintains that if the copyright question is to be decided by the Imperial Privy Council not on its merits, but on the ground that the veto power lodges in the Government at Westminster, and must be regarded as annulled; as inoperative practically as is the Crown's power of veto in the will of the British Parliament, then a dreatile register of the British North drastic revision of the British North America Act and of other acts embodying colonial constitutions seems imperatively called for. Why? Because the people of the Dominion, unlike the people of the United Kingdom and un-HUGE SNOWBALLS ROLLED BY THE like the people of the United States, have in practice no power of control-ing the hasty, perverse or mistaken ac-Flint, Mich., Nov. 26. - Passengers on the Flint River division of the Fliat and tion of the Dominion Parliament. TORONTO.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—The market was dull today and quiet: a few cattle were left in the pens at the Western cattle yards at the close. Offerings today were 47 car loads, which included 955 sheep and lambs, 1,700 hogs, about a dozen calves and nearly 20 cows. In butchers' cattle trade was dull and slow, and quite a few cattle remained unsold. Common butchers' cattle could hardly be sold at all. These were quoted at from 1\frac{1}{2}e to 2c per 1b. Very few really good cattle offered. Top price paid was $335 per cwt for one carload, the best cattle on the market. Choice cattle are wanted. The ruling figures for good cattle were from 3c to 3\frac{1}{2}e per 1b, the latter for choice.

Sheep—There were not so many in, and the market was slightly firmer during the forepart of the day, 2\frac{1}{2}e to 3e being paid, as dealers required some to fill space, but before evening prices sagged again to 2\frac{1}{2}e per 1b.

Lambs—There was a slightly firmer tone to $2 75 to $3 25 per cwt. Quite a few sold at $2 80 to $3 20 per cwt.

Bulls—A few fat bulls for export are wanted. One bull was sold for 2½c per lb today, which would have brought 3½c two weeks acc. Some more bulls went at 2c per lb. Milch cows and springers—Prices were unchanged at from $20 to $35 per head.

Hogs—Prices were low again today, the top figure being about $3 70 per cwt. Very few touched $3 76 weighed off the cars. The market was weak at that, and prospects are for still lower prices. still lower prices.

British Grain Trade.

London, Nov. 25.—The Mark Lane Express in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: "English wheats have been dull, with an average decline of 6d. Foreign wheats have been quiet, Duluth cargoes being quoted at 25s 3d, and California at 26s. Corn has been weak; American new crop, for January shipment, has been quoted at 15s 6d. Flours, barleys and oats have been depressed, and beans and peas firm. Today the markets have been slow. English wheats were offered at the decline above mentioned. Foreign wheats were better supported, with the exception of American, which was 3d lower. Flour. both English and American, declined 6d; and brewing barley also fell 6d. The teeding kinds of barley were 3d dearer. There was no demand for oats and corn, which was 3d lower.

In Argentina (South America) most of the interest now centers, recent reports being distinctly favorable, and even those who a few weeks ago were telegraphing alarming news now admit that weather is favorable in every respect for the wheat crop, and that the export surplus may probably exceed last season's by 1,000,000 quarters. Our own correspondent in Buenos Ayres has never swerved from his opinion that there will be a good average wheat crop in the republic this season.-Corn Trade News.

Few men in Canada have a more creditable record than Ald. John Hallam, the well known Toronto dealer in wool and hides, who was one of the speakers at the opening of the London Reported by C. E. Turner, broker, Masonic Free Library. From Chorley, Lancashire, he came, some 40 years ago, to Toronto, though resident for a very short time both in London, and in the Strathroy neighborhood. Coming to the Province penniless; more than once or twice he knew what it was to be hungry. But his Lancashire energy and honesty and ability pulled him through, and today he is a man of wealth and strong financial standing. He has been Alderman in Toronto for 22 years. For three years he was connected with the Toronto Free Library, to which he has given personally some 3,000 volumes. In the Toronto City Council his pet hobby has been the Parks and Gardens Committee. In the matter of flowers, his own residence, Linden Villa, has for years been a pleasant object lesson. He was chairman of the first Industrial Exhibition Committee. Some time ago, he went up in the Northwest and purchased practically all the wool between Winnipeg and Calgary. Ald. Hallam prides himself on being a plain man of the people. He does not put on any frills, oratorically, but speaks straight and strong to the point. Whenever there has been municipal extravagance or corruption to oppose, Ald. Hallam is always to be found in the

The boy was put off at Hyde Park, but waited for the next train and came on to London. FOUR CRIMINAL CASES. The December sessions of the county of Middlesex will open at the court house on Monday next, Judge Edward Elliott presiding. The criminal docket contains four cases, the most serious of which is the Queen against Wm. Doxtater, jun., a Delaware Indian who is alleged to have shot Lazarus Schuyler in the knee. Schuyler is also an Indian, and lives across the road from the accused. The shooting affray arose over Doxtater killing Schuyler's dog. John Dykes, a young Yarmouth farmer, will be put on trial on the of obtaining a buggy under false pretenses from Wm. Thompson, a London carriage maker. James Ellice, of Parkhill, will answer to a charge of assault. True bills were returned against Ellice and Dykes at the June sessions, but thhe trials were postponed. George W. Denning, of Metcalfe, is also to be tried for assault. George Donnelly and Granville Brooks had elected trial by jury on the charges of assault and theft, but changed their minds. Brooks was convicted by Judge Edward Elliott Tuesday. Donnelly comes up on Saturday. JACK HARKAWAY LAST NIGHT.

A scenic production of commendable and meritorious worth was presented last evening at the Grand Opera House. Not alone was this the one excellent feature, but the cast assuming the characters of the play was one of unusual talent. From the star down every character was almost faultless. An interest was taken in the entire play that frequently called forth applause and curtain calls, and at the end of the second act, every character came to view and bowed their thanks. When Theodore Babcock and Miss Taylor drew aside the curtain to respond, the audience heaped an extra amount of cheers upon them. From beginning to end the scenery and mechanical effects are marvelous for a stage production. Every act abounds in strong situations, and to the production must be given the credit of being the best in scenic appointments that has visited London. The costuming was also of a picturesque and attractive nature. Theodore Babcock, the star of the company, is an actor of such pleasing manners and personality that he finds himself immediately a favorite. His acting was never overdrawn and at all times met the fullest requirements of his part and won for him deserved recognition. Manager Sparrow has a play that should be a success wherever it appears. CHAPTER IX.

With grave hospitality, untinged by any flutter of maiden delight in welcoming as guest the man whose lifelong guest she may become, Molly Wilder received the new-comer, invited him to throw off his wraps, and to seat himself at the bountiful tea-table. Reuben accepted the invitation with alac-rity, and, having placed himself in the seat of honor—at the foot of the table -he asked a blessing, followed at once by a smile of bashful delight, as he "Seems almost as if we were married already, don't it, Molly?" Molly made no reply; her whole con-sciousness seemed absorbed in the great resolve she had just made, and never for a moment forgot; and while Reuben, full of vulgar hilarity, heaped his own and his sister's plate with many a jest 2 to his generosity as a provider, and the bountiful table he loved to keep, and while Mercy, luxuriating in unlimited dainties, forgot all but their enjoyment, their hostess was watching both with dispassionate scrutiny, and figuring to herself a life wherein three times in every day she must confront that crafty and vulgar face, lighted as now by the greed of animal enjoyment, hear those harsh and uncultivated accents, and reply to jests that found no sympathy in her more refined sense of humor, or gos-sip that did not interest her. She was aroused from this reverie by her lover's direct address: "You ought to have gone over to the "You ought to have gone over to the "Twouldn't stay, anyhow, after you much news stirring—about the fighting much news stirring—about the fighting using my brother in such a fashion," exclaimed Mercy angrily. "I reckon you'll sing another song, though, after you'll be me go up there and be a soldier, would you? Not before we're married, anyway, and after that I wouldn't want to go.' "Do you now?" asked Molly, with a strong flavor of scepticism in her "Well, the pay is better than for farming, especially in the winter time; but maybe I'll make some money with-out risking your chance of getting a husband. They say, over at the Corporation of the say, over at the Corporation of the say, over at the Corporation of the say, we say the say of the say o

Now, if a fellow could find one of them lurking round and get the $20, eh?" "Would you sell a poor, trembling fugitive that trusted you?" asked Molly in a low voice.

"Would I? Wouldn't I, though:

chuckled Reuben, filling his mouth with mince-pie. "It would just be fun to lead him on, thinking you were going to hide him away safely, and once he was in the trap, phew! how quick you'd kick away the prop and let down the door! And it ain't likely they'd be armed, so there wouldn't be any great That's a consideration, certainly, replied his fiancee in so strange a voice that Mercy, whose capacity for poundcake and cream-toast was utterly exhausted, turned and looked sharply at her for a moment, then exclaimed: "Why, Molly Wilder, what's the matter with you? You're as white as a sheet, and your eyes are like a cat's in the dark. If there'd been anything to lay it to, I'd say you were awful But as there isn't," said Molly, pushing back her chair.

"But as there isn't," echoed Reuben, also rising, "I think we'd better be going. You know, Molly, mother wants you to come over there tonight and stay till the storm's over." Your mother is very kind, as I said to Mercy," replied Molly, steadily, "but I cannot leave home."

'Oh, but you must," retorted Reuben, with easy positiveness. "Mother and I both think it's best, and mother won't let Mercy stay over here, anyway." "I am sorry, because in that case I must stay alone," replied Molly, still in her tone of calm and immovable de-

Mr. Hetherford began to wax angry and to exchange his lover-like tone for the surly and tyrannical one befitting his idea of the marital character and privileges. "It's all waste time and breath for you to say any more about it," announced he at length. "You're a-going over to my house in just about ten minutes, and you may as well go with a good grace. A girl like you can't judge what's best for her, and, while your father and mother are away, me and my mother are the ones to say for

"I do not acknowledge the right at all, Mr. Hetherford," replied Molly, coldly; "and, although very grateful to your mother and yourself-

"Hang it all!" roared Hetherford; "I say you're to go, and you're going." I deny your right to command, and I shall not obey."

'I should like to know who has a better right to command a woman than her husband, or he who is soon to be her husband?"

"You will never be my husband, Reuben Hetherford."
"Oh, pshaw! I've heard girls talk before.

"I never talk without meaning what I never talk without meaning what I say. I have determined, fully determined, to break off the engagement to you, and I now do so. It is a thing altogether settled in my own mind, and your violence just now has only hastened the announcement of my pur-

"Nonsense, Molly!" interposed Mercy, who read more shrewdly than her brother the signs of determination and strength in the face of her friend, and who wished to temporize if possible, and gain time to bring the maternal forces into the field. "Don't you and Reuben go to quarreling tonight. Sleep over it, and you'll feel different in the morning; and, if you won't come over to our house for him, come for me. It's awful lonely for us two girls in such a storm as this, in this empty house; and, besides, I daren't stay when mother has sent for me. She'd be awful mad, and maybe come over after us herself. Do come home with me, and Reuben sha'n't say a word about it, anyway."

But Molly put her arms about the girl's neck, and, kissing her tenderly, repeated as firmly as ever:

"I must stay here, Mercy; for my father and mother left me here, and I must obey them as you do yours. As for Reuben, I do not love him, and I could not make him happy or be happy myself with him, and it is much better the thing should end here. I hope you will still be friends with me, Mercy-you and your house."

"As for that, I don't know," replied Mercy a little viciously, for her temper was getting the upper hand of her diplomacy. "I don't suppose we should feel just the same, any of us. But I don't believe we need spend much time settling all that until your mother comes home, and we hear what she

"Yes, I guess she'll bring you to your senses, Mistress Mary," chimed in Reu-ben, whose face had for some minutes presented a curious study of conflicting emotion, alarm and wounded love holding place inferior to a sort of cruel impatience, as if he longed above all things else to have this calm and haughty rebel in his power, and to try upon her fair person and disdainful spirit some of those arts of subjugation mentioned by his sister a little while previously. But, looking at him with a smile of superb contempt, she said very quietly:

"It is of no use for us to talk more upon this matter, Mr. Hetherford. No human power can compel me to become your wife, and most certainly I never will. Neither will I leave this house; and, since Mercy cannot remain with You ought to have gone over to the me, I must remain alone."

your mother comes home. You'll be glad enough to eat humble-pie then, and maybe-

"Hold your tongue," interrupted Reuben savagely, he being one of the many persons who cannot endure anybody's ill-temper but their own; and, turning to Molly, with an attempt at her own quiet dignity, he said: "Well, Mary, we shall have to leave

Doctors and nurses Make slender purses; The road to health Is the way to wealth.

Many persons of slender means have seen the savings of years swallowed up in a few weeks by exorbitant doctor bills. Serious illness and its result, heavy bills, may almost be prevented, if taken in time. When the system seems to be run down, the blood weak and impure, causing eruptions, headache, weakness and lassitude, backache, scrofula, biliousness, chills, aversion to work, etc., there is reason for belief that serious illness is threatened. A bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will drive the impurities from the system, enrich the blood, bringing sound health, energy, strength and ambition. All dealers in medicine.

Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. You can see the creations of those wonderful minds with which of those wonderful minds with which they are endowed. You can see them rise before you: the witch scene of Macheth; Hamlet meditating suicide; Othello's fiery outbreaks; Desdemona's struggles, and Iago's villainies. Ald. Hallam, Toronto.

Ald. Hallam said: I am delighted to be here tonight to take part in the opening ceremonies of the London Public Library. So much has been said, and so well said, by the Hon. Minister of Education and other gen-tlemen, that I will not try your patience with any lengthy remarks.

I am here to show my sympathy with public libraries, and with those who take an interest in such movements. Some years ago you voted to establish a rate-supported library, but somehow or other the act was not then brought into force; now you have succeeded, and the citizens of London will have an opportunity to judge of the advantages of a municipal library.

This should be an epoch day in the history of the Forest City, and I am sure the citizens will never regret necessary addition to her other useful institutions. I am certain that the benefits to your people of a reference and lending library of well-selected books will aid in the progress of your commerce and the social advancement of your city.

The books in this library should be of solid, standard matter-of-fact literature, avoiding the vulgar and sensa-tonal. The Board of Management should see that the library is practical in its aims, and not a mere curiosity shop for a collection of curious and rare books.

Books, especially, such as relate to Canadian history, travels and biography; technical works relating to all the different trades in your locality; general history; works on political economy, and the best class of clean, imaginative literature. The poets and dramatists should find a-corner in your library; works on the field and forest agricultural chemistry, and kindred subjects should receive special attention from your board.

Such a library would be useful and have a special claim on all who desire to see your city advance to the front rank and keep pace with other cities, not only in Canada but in the United States, in art, science and technical education. The advantages of such a library are many. They are the people's university; they help on the cause of education and promote public virtue. Their influence is on the side of order, self-respect and general enlightenment. They are the literary parks where all can enjoy themselves; they are supplementary to the common schools for supplying the masses with what defective training or limited means may have deprived them of.

I look upon such a library as the best possible agency and material aid which can be devised. Viewed from the commonest standpoint, looked at in the light of dollars and cents, a maintain that such an institution is a profitable investment for rate-paying bodies.

The Minister of Education takes a deep interest in everything relating to social and material advancement of the people of Ontario. I hope he the desirability of convincing the Ontario Government of the necessity of encouraging the opening of rate-supported libraries by a substantial annual grant.

In conclusion, I heartily congratulate you on the success of your undertaking, and I hope the good cause will spread to every town and village in Ontario.

Eishop Baldwin.

"Speech is said to be silver and silence declared to be gold," said the bishop. As I have none of the first article I shall give the second at this hour of the evening, only just making the remark that I sincerely rejoice in the establishment of this free library the use of the good people of London and of our portion of the penin-sula. I am sure that if our people are to be enlightened, as they should be enlightened, that one way is to give them the trophies best on which to meditate and by which to clear the intellectual vision for deeds of honor and for works of love. I would therefore rejoice in the establishment of this library and trust that by the munificence of our citizens and by generous use of funds it may become more and more worthy of public esteem. I wish to indorse the very proper sentiments that have been uttered with regard to libraries themselves. All literature is not good and all books are not to be recommended. In and busy life we may introduce one we love to someone who will benefit them, uplift their moral character, make them stronger, make them more extrest, and do them good in the particular than the particular grimage they have to tread. But we may introduce them to others who will do everything in their power to lower do everything in their power to lower their character and weaken the power that they should possess. The Minister of Education, in one of the most powerful speeches we have had the honor of listening to lately, spoke of the language of the late Cariyle, who said that he who would read French literature would need to be washed seventimes in Jordan to be pure again. And times in Jordan to be pure again. And dear friends it is not in this meta-phorical, it is not in this typical, but it is the awful ghastly fact that we are being flooded with literature, which for the mind is most terrible, fearful form of temptation. Let our library, then, not be to introduce our young to works that can only deteriorate their character and make them more ready to tread the paths of infamy and shame and blood. But let it be a library to uplift the moral and the nobler sentiments of the heart, to lead them upwards to things that are great and good and strong, to point them to God and to the works of his eternal truth, and our library will be a benefit not only to our citizens in this fair city but to the community at large."

The meeting concluded with the Nasithout labeling them poisons? Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of Its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Knew that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose ?

Contract Was Not Signed, as the Company Does Not Want a Guarantee Clause Inserted-Street Railway Officials in Hamilton-Other News From London's Trolley Line.

Mr. Chas. E. A. Carr and Director T. H. Smallman, of the street railway company, are in Hamilton endeavoring to make a satisfactory settlement of a little difference which exists between them and the Hamilton Bridge Works Company, in reference to the railway of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. bridge on Ridout street. Of the tend--Bishop Baldwin and Archdeacon Davis ers for the building of the structure, will address the annual missionary meeting the Hamilton company was lowest, of St. George's Church, Sarnia, on Friday their figures being $4,400. This was accepted by the railway officials, and the agreement was drawn up for signature, with a guarantee clause inserted. This was to cover the bridge until the termination of the street railway the guarantee clause was insisted on. The railway people would not consent to its being withdrawn, and the con-tract was never closed. The Hamilton company, however, began work on the bridge, and they have been pushing it along at a business-like gait The cylinders are in, and a great part of the superstructure has been erected, but a halt has been made. Manager Carr notified the builders several times that no payments would be made until —The Department of Weights and the contract was signed. City Engineer Measures has decided that hereafter the Graydon finally informed them that standard of measures for liquids shall be they were trespassing, and finally Mr. one of bulk instead of weight.
