

TURKS ARE FALLING BACK TO LAST DEFENCE LINE IN COMPLETE DISORDER

Will Make Final Stand Against the Bulgarians in Forts Twenty-Five Miles From Constantinople.

BULGARS MAY OCCUPY CAPITAL TO PREVENT CHRISTIAN MASSACRE

MAP ILLUSTRATING BULGARIAN VICTORY

Lule Burgaz, the town captured by the Bulgarians in the three-day battle ending Thursday, will readily be found near the centre of the map. The lines between the various towns are the roads used by the opposing armies, but the battle stretched across country to Serai. The Turks have now been driven back to Tchorlu. The losses have not yet been officially estimated, but it is probable at least thirty or forty thousand men fell. It will be noticed that the fighting is getting closer to Constantinople, which is only seventy miles from Tchorlu. Adrianople is still holding out.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Nov. 1.—The Turkish army on which the fate of the Ottoman Empire depended has been outgeneralled and outfought. It has made what is believed to be its last stand, and is now falling back in disorder on its final line of defence at the forts of Tchataltja, 25 miles in a direct line from Constantinople. Grave doubts are expressed in military circles, and repeated even in the Turkish capital as to whether the remnants of the immense army of the Sultan will make any serious attempt to hold this line.

Peril of Christians.

Foreigners in Constantinople are fearful for the safety of the Christian populations of the Turkish towns, and the European powers have taken steps already in this connection by the dispatch of warships to Saloniki, Constantinople and other Turkish ports for the protection of their nationals. Old residents of Constantinople, who know the Turks thoroughly and are not inclined to take an alarmist attitude, say the foreign warships could afford some protection at Saloniki, Constantinople and other ports, but the widely-scattered missions and Christian populations in their opinion are already seriously endangered.

Bulgars Show Dash.

The Bulgarian troops, who have shown much dash since the opening of the campaign, are not likely to give the Turks much time to reorganize. It is said they have hundreds of dead and wounded, both Turkish and Bulgarian, to dispose of, and this must, according to military experts, delay them somewhat. They had, however, similar difficulties to contend against after Kirk-Kiliseh, and around Adrianople, but there was not much lull in the fighting there.

Another Wedge.

News comes today of the Bulgarian occupation of Domotica, thus placing another wedge between Adrianople and any remaining hope that the garrison of that city may have had of deliverance. Other parts of the line of invaders are pulling themselves together for another spring, which they hope will finally and definitely put an end to the Turkish rule in Europe.

TURK BATTLESHIP SUNK BY DARING GREEK TARS

Torpedo Boat Enters the Gulf of Saloniki, Destroys Warship Feth-J-Bulend and Makes Its Escape Unscathed.

[Canadian Press.]

Athens, Greece, Nov. 1.—The Turkish battleship Feth-J-Bulend was sunk during last night in the Gulf of Saloniki by a Greek torpedo boat.

The Greek commander's daring enterprise was carried out under the guns of the Turkish forts, without being observed, and the torpedo boat escaped unscathed.

SHELLED A LIGHTHOUSE.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 1.—The Turkish cruiser Hamidish discharged nine shells yesterday at the Cape Mine lighthouse, between the Bulgarian ports of Burgas and Varna. The lighthouse was damaged. The Bulgarian Government intends to protest against the bombardment of a building devoted solely to peaceful purposes.

CONFIRMED.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—The sinking of the Turkish battleship Feth-J-Bulend by a Greek torpedo boat in the Gulf of Saloniki, is confirmed in a dispatch from Saloniki. The warship sank in five minutes. Part of the crew was on shore at the time, so that the number of lives lost is not known.

Athens, Nov. 1.—The Greeks today occupied the Turkish island of Samothrace, in the Aegean Sea. Its population numbers about 5,000, most of which are Christians.

GOVERNMENT PREPARED TO GIVE LONDON $160,000 FOR FEDERAL SQUARE, RECEIVING SPENCER BLOCK AS NEW POSTOFFICE SITE

Ambitious Scheme For City Hall Is Under Way and Ald. Coles Will Go to Ottawa—Enormous Amount Involved in Securing Land and Buildings.

THOSE WHO FAVOR PLAN WOULD MOVE THAT CITY SPEND $800,000

The possibility of making the block bounded by Dundas, Waterloo, King and Wellington streets a civic square has not been abandoned, and it is probable that a definite announcement will be made within a week regarding the matter.

Ald. Coles is going to Ottawa to interview Hon. Sam Hughes, minister of militia, and Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, on the question, and he is confident that the Government will consent to make a large-sized grant towards the scheme.

The proposition is a large one, involving a great deal of money. The latest offer made by the Government is said to be $160,000, provided the city will turn over to them the Spencer Block as a site for the postoffice.

Offer a $115,000 Cash. This would reduce the offer simply to $115,000 in cash. A portion of the land could be utilized eventually for an extension of the armories, if that were ever considered advisable.

Ald. Coles' trip to Ottawa is to increase the Government's offer. It is hoped that $150,000 cash, together with $45,000 for the Spencer property, will be obtained. It is rumored that this amount will be given, but those on the inside declare that it is not at all likely.

The property to be purchased is assessed at $74,820 on the 1911 assessment, not including the McCormick property. The concern is given a fixed assessment of $75,000, but the McCormicks are asking $125,000 for the site occupied by their plant.

At present time they are considering offers to move their factory to Montreal, where they are already said to have a site.

Assessment at $74,820.

As mentioned above, the rest of the property needed is assessed at $74,820. All the Dundas street land between McCormick's and the armories can be purchased for $45,000. The assessment is $19,240. In other words, the land can be obtained at about two and a half times the assessment.

If that rate were preserved, and in truth it would not vary much, the whole block can be secured for approximately $190,000. This added to the price for the McCormick site would bring the total cost of the block to about $300,000, or a little better. Some real estate men figure that it can be secured for that amount of money.

If the Government agree to give $160,000 and take the Spencer Block, it will mean that the city will have to pay $185,000 for the remainder. The corporation would have to hand the Government $45,000 back in the Spencer Block, leaving the amount above mentioned to be raised by the ratepayers.

Pay Only for Location. This would mean that a money by-law would be submitted in January next. The city has available but $175,000, and this amount will no more than pay for the location.

It might not be sufficient, but assuming for the sake of argument that it would cover the property alone, the money necessary for the building would have to be raised by bylaw.

From information gathered at the city hall the idea of the promoters of the scheme is to erect a hall, costing from $400,000 to $600,000. They do not desire to erect a small building, but one that will be outstanding for many years to come.

It is a big proposition, as Ald. Coles points out, but he considers it high time that the city undertook something of this kind, keeping with the progress of London.

October Building Figures

Building Inspector Piper has issued his official figures for the month of October, showing 143 to have been issued for a total of $91,053. This is an excess over the same month in 1911 of $10,000.

The total for the ten months ending Thursday was $997,241, as against $822,785 last year for the same period.

UNION STAGE CREW, NON-UNION MAN, HANDLE SCENERY

Unusual Situation Develops in Connection With Strike at Grand.

STRIKERS MAY SEEK TO TAKE AWAY ORCHESTRA

Boy Who Advised Citizens Not to Enter Theatre Detained by Manager.

A strike of stage hands at the Grand Opera House, involving the crew in the operation of everything back of the footlights, did not serve to prevent the theatre from producing its attraction in the usual order on Thursday night.

The stage was manned by one non-union man and the union crew carried by "The Three Twins." Citizens wondered that the travelling crew, all union men, should have worked with a non-union man. This was explained by the statement that the "Three Twins" crew had received no notification from union headquarters to cease work.

It is stated today that the London stagehands will make an effort to have the orchestra quit work in sympathy with the strikers. Another effort will be made to prevent the union crew to appear tonight, for which is billed to appear tonight, from operating the show while a strike is on.

Stage Carpenter Dismissed. The trouble, it is admitted by both sides, arose over the dismissal by Manager Minihnick of A. J. Wilson, stage carpenter, whose duties place him in charge of the stage.

Mr. Minihnick claims that Mr. Wilson practically tendered his resignation, that it was accepted, and that he refused to accept the men the union proposed to work in Mr. Wilson's place. The local manager offered to bring a union man to the city from Winnipeg, and place him in the position, but this man was not acceptable to the union.

For some time there has been friction between the "front" and the "back" of the house. It is said that Mr. Minihnick had demanded that the expenses be cut down, claiming that it was costing more for help in London than in Hamilton and other places.

Ended in Argument. The matter came to a head when there was an argument between the manager and the stage carpenter.

Thursday night a boy posted himself in front of the theatre and called out to those who were about to enter the theatre: "There's a strike on! Don't go in!" He was detained in Manager Minihnick's office, and did not repeat the statement.

It was denied that he had been posted by the union men, who state that they believe trouble should be settled on its merits.

The theatre has been in communication with the international headquarters of the Stagehands' Union, and it is likely that a representative will be in the city shortly. The real cause of the strike, it is stated, was the refusal of the management to accept the men recommended for Mr. Wilson's position.

Officers Will Decide. The orchestra will act under instructions from the union officers in the city, and so far no decision has been made. The orchestra members have no grievance against the theatre.

Mr. A. J. Small, owner of the Grand Opera House, will be in the city in connection with the dispute.

TEMPERANCE UNION IS FOR "BANISH THE BAR"

Renfrew Convention Passes a Resolution Expressing Organization's Hearty Sympathy in the Policy of the Liberal Leader.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, Nov. 1.—In the Canadian Press report from Renfrew Thursday, the following reference to Mr. N. W. Rowell's policy on the liquor question was inadvertently omitted:

"Resolved, That we, the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ontario, are in hearty sympathy with the "Banish the Bar" policy of the Liberal party, and while because of our disfranchisement we are unable to actively assist in placing the party where its pledges can be implemented, we will endeavor to use our influence in its behalf."

HOCHELAGA FIGHT TO BE BITTER ONE

Prime Minister and Several Colleagues to Take Part in Campaign.

BOURASSA MAY RUN

Cohan, K.C., Denies That He Is To Be Candidate For The Nationalist Party.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, Nov. 1.—Elaborate plans are being made for the campaign here on the night of the nominations in the Hochelaga by-election of the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden; the minister of finance, Hon. W. T. White, and the minister of justice, Hon. J. B. Hertz. The Premier is to speak in St. Henri, the Finance Minister in Westmount and the Minister of Justice in Point St. Charles in support of the candidature of Hon. Louis Coderre, the new secretary of state.

The Liberals so far have not been successful in securing a candidate, though they all agree that a fight against Mr. Coderre's re-election should be made. Both Major Stephens and Mayor Rutherford, of Westmount, who are the choices of Liberals for the position, have intimated that they have no desire to enter political life just now.

C. H. Cahan, K.C., who it was rumored yesterday would run on the Nationalist ticket, denies that he has made any such decision, and this morning it was stated that Henri Bourassa himself may run. It is understood that if he does enter the fight he will do so without committee rooms, relying simply upon his appeals to the electorate through his paper, Le Devoir, and from the platform. The campaign has begun to develop bitterness. Le Canada yesterday drawing an analogy between the position of Mr. Coderre on the naval question and St. Peter when he denied the Saviour, Mr. Bourassa being compared to the cock that crowed thrice.

LONG-AWAITED REPORT ON ELECTRIFICATION, PUTS COST AT NEAR $900,000

Hon. Adam Beck Now Announces Himself in Favor of Operation of Line as a Municipal Enterprise.

YEARLY OPERATION WOULD BE $220,000 LAST YEAR'S RECEIPTS WERE $131,000

Yet Mr. Beck's Engineers Claim That Road Can Be Operated at a Profit—The Total Cost Figures Are Brought Down.

The long-expected report secured by Hon. Adam Beck on the cost of electrifying the London and Port Stanley Railway, was presented to Acting Mayor W. G. Coles at noon today, and given out for publication.

According to the figures submitted, it would cost $890,573 to electrify the road, double-tracking it from London to St. Thomas. The total yearly operating expenses, including interest and sinking fund, on the money needed to electrify the line, and also on the expenditure already made, would amount to $220,545. The hydro-electric engineer who made the report thinks that even with this expenditure the line could be made to produce a revenue of $17,500, or more.

Months Taken to Report. The report is the work of a staff of engineers employed by the hydro-electric commission, who for months have been studying the situation. They were engaged by Mr. Beck.

The document contains a preamble by Mr. Beck, who states that he is in favor of electrification. When Mayor in 1902 he failed to carry a lease of the line for 20 years, because he believed that London should electrify the line for 30 years, because he believed at that time has been confirmed by recent developments, and he is confident that the road, electrified, could be made a paying investment.

Road Is in Bad Shape. The engineers' statement contains a general review of the conditions of the line. It is explained that the road at the present time is in a bad condition. The rails and ties would have to be scrapped, and little else could be made of them. The road is 23.66 miles long, and the city has 33.63 miles of track, including switches. The buildings are in fairly good condition.

The total earnings of the line for 1911 were $141,264, and it is expected that the amount would be increased this year. The operating expenses in 1910 were $133,131. In 1911, they were $153,060, which did not include fixed charges. The sum of $50,000 was expended for fuel, repairs to engines, etc.

Compared With Traction Line. A comparison is made with the London and Lake Erie Traction Line. The receipts from this line was $122,988.82, and the operating expenses were $77,699.78. This left a good balance for the directors of the line, with which to meet fixed charges.

The engineers then recommend that the line be double-tracked from London to St. Thomas. This, they say, would enable the city to give a half-hour service between the two cities, with a 54-minute service to the Port. A faster train might be put on during the summer months. They would recommend that four freight locomotives, 60 to 75 tons in weight, should be purchased, with six passenger cars of the combination baggage, express and passenger type. Six trailers were to be purchased, together with six trailers.

The total cost of electrification is then tabulated as follows: Reconstruction of the present track, and new track $442,573 Overhead construction and binding 129,000 Passenger cars and locomotives 235,000 Substation and feeder equipment 84,000

The engineers then follow with an estimate of the operating expenses, which have to be met annually. They Superintendence, labor, operation, etc. $70,000 General expenses 30,000 Power 30,000 Interest and sinking fund at 6.5 per cent on $890,000 55,106 Interest at 4 1/2 per cent on present investment, $763,311 34,429

Total $220,545

Then is given a rather lengthy statement of the possible receipts. The freight business could be increased, and the passenger traffic, based on the fact that the Lake Erie Traction Line carried over 300,000 passengers, as compared with 168,000 on the London and Port Stanley, could be made to more than double.

"The road, if electrified, can be made to give a good profit to the city, as well as pay interest on the money invested," is the conclusion of the article.

The report contains a mass of detail, that it would be impossible to decipher in a few hours, giving a detail of the possible freight and passenger traffic to be carried.

"The report speaks for itself," said Mr. Beck to The Advertiser. "It will require some study, but I think the conclusions are logical and beyond dispute."

Motion by Executors. The moderator and session of New St. James' assert that the wording is perfectly clear, and that under the will the control of the mission fund is left with them absolutely to spend anywhere they may deem proper. This is strenuously disputed, and the court will be called upon to decide the question. The motion is brought before the court by the executors of the will, who desire to be relieved of all responsibility they might incur should the funds be improperly disposed of.

Dr. J. A. Macarthur, one of the executors, is of the opinion that Mr. Kent intended that the money be under the control of the Dominion body, but it is possible that the court will decide to the contrary, and leave the money as the will apparently directs to the moderator and session of New St. James'.

Relatives Deny It's Charity. While the suit of the relatives of Mr. Kent to nullify the will, asserting that the residuary bequest is not regular in that it is not in accord with the provisions of the law relating to perpetuities, was abandoned some time ago, it is again being pursued, although in a different form. The relatives contend that under the law relating to perpetuities, no legator is permitted to tie up his estate indefinitely, excepting for charitable purposes, and in this connection they deny that missions are charities.

The hearing of the motion in high court tomorrow should prove interesting.

Catholics May Eat Meat Today; First Time Indulgence Is Granted

Under a recent decree of Pope Pius, Roman Catholics the world over are today permitted to eat meat, this being the first Friday (excepting when Christmas falls on a Friday), in history on which such an indulgence was granted.

Pope Pius has ruled that when a feast day falls upon any day of abstinence, Catholics shall abstain on the previous day and celebrate the feast. Today is the feast of All Saints, and meat may accordingly be eaten.

POTATOES BY CARLOAD IMPORTED FROM OHIO

London grocers, despairing of getting sufficient supplies of potatoes from this district to fill their orders, are importing "spuds" by the carload from Ohio.

Already several carloads of fine tubers have been stored away, and many more are either on the way or have been ordered. Those who have seen the potatoes say that they are a fine sample.

One man stated to The Advertiser today that he did not think prices would be very much higher than they are now. Most of the farmers have enough for their own use and here and there some will have a few bags for sale.

Those, with the large quantities that are being imported, will it is thought, keep everybody supplied at much better prices than was expected a short time ago.

ELECTIVE SENATE FOR THE IRISH

London, Oct. 31.—The Government offered its amendment to the home rule bill providing for election of members for the Irish Senate according to proportional representation schemes in the House of Commons tonight. The members of the first senate are to be appointed by the Government. Introducing the amendment, Augustus Birrell, the chief secretary for Ireland, intimated that it was intended as an additional safeguard and defence against the objections of the Unionists. The debate on the amendment then began.

Ramsay MacDonald, the Socialist and Labor leader, astonished the House by asserting that though he was utterly opposed to proportional representation he was prepared to allow the experiment to be tried on the Irish Senate because Ireland, he said, "represented a low form of social organization."

Bona Law, the Opposition leader, opposed the amendment on the ground that it was utterly valueless as a safeguard.

John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, gave the amendment lukewarm support. He said he preferred a nominated senate, but as long as the nomination idea was to be maintained for the first critical five years he would support it.

The amendment was carried by a vote of 293 to 209.

M'NAMARA PLOT TO "GET" WM. BURNS DETECTIVE CHARGES

Chief Dynamiter, in Prison, Endeavored To Have the Hated Man Killed.

WITNESS AT TRIAL TELLS STRANGE TALE

Infernal Machine Intended For Killing Said To Have Passed Through Hockin's Hands.

Indianapolis, Oct. 31.—That J. J. McNamara, since he has been confined in San Quentin prison in California, has been plotting to "get" William J. Burns and Walter Drev, of the National Erectors' Association, was the subject of testimony given this afternoon by Edward J. Brennan, a Government agent, at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial. Brennan testified Hockin stated he (Hockin) had visited McNamara in San Quentin this year and that McNamara had said: "I would like to see them get Burns and Drev."

What McNamara Said. Another statement which Brennan said Hockin made to him was that Olaf A. Tveitmo, Anton Johansson, Theodore Yoell, president of the Asiatic Exclusion League, and a man named Lewis talked with Hockin about what McNamara had said.

When Hockin was going to the station to return to Indianapolis, Tveitmo, Johansson, Lewis and Yoell accompanied him, Johansson saying on the way: "Mac (meaning McNamara) is anxious for them to get Drev and Burns." Johansson then added to Hockin: "After you return to Indianapolis a strange man will appear on the scene. You will know him when he says, 'I am Arrow, Shot Darrow.' When he says those words to you, you will know he is the right man."

"Arrow" Brought Package. "Hockin did return to Indianapolis," said the witness, "and a short time later he was called on the telephone by a man, who said: 'I am Arrow, not Darrow.' Later he met the stranger and proceeded to open the package of him. The man brought a package, which he left at the ironworkers' headquarters."

A few days later Walter Davis, a member of a local ironworkers' union in New York city, came in. Hockin gave him the package, saying, "Take that out of here, and get rid of it." Davis returned with a check from the Union station. Hockin then took the check to District Attorney Miller. Later Fred Sherman, an ironworker, who is on trial, came in and asked for the check. Hockin pretended he had lost it. Another Arrow, Shot Darrow, returned and said, "Say, that man says you're a liar and a crook, meaning Hockin had not lost the check."

Brennan testified that he was all Hockin said he knew about it. United States Marshal Edward H. Schmidt was called upon to produce the package referred to in Brennan's testimony. Schmidt opened the package, identified the fuse, dynamite caps, alarm clock, and the date of the newspaper in which they were wrapped. He said the check for the package had been delivered to him by District Attorney Miller.

TURK GOVT. DENIES STORIES OF MASSACRES

Replies to Bulgarian Charges of Unexampled Atrocities.

London, Oct. 31.—The Serbian legation has received a dispatch from Belgrade giving accounts by returned Serbian officers of atrocities committed by the Turkish troops before abandoning the country conquered by the Serbians.

"Wherever the Turks passed," says the dispatch, "the Serbian army found only land strewn with bodies of men, women and children, mutilated in the most barbarous fashion. Bodies of men were also found buried in trees. They had been burned alive by means of fires kindled under their feet. One body bore indications of having been roasted on a gridiron."

Bulgarians Report Atrocities. Sofia, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarian army is vigorously pursuing the Turks, who are retreating in disorder and panic on Serai and Tchorul. Many guns and large quantities of ammunition have been captured. Aivali, near Lule Burgas, and Maras, have been burned. All the Christian inhabitants, according to the Bulgarians, were massacred.

Canea, Crete, Oct. 31.—The British armored cruiser Hampshire sailed from here today for Saloniki.

Turkey Denies. Vienna, Oct. 31.—The Turkish foreign minister, Noradunghian, declares that the apprehensions concerning the massacres of Christians in Constantinople and Saloniki are absolutely unfounded. Excitement in Turkey is not directed against the Christians. The Turkish Government has taken energetic measures to prevent trouble in European and Asiatic Turkey.

TURNING MOVEMENT FOOLED THE TURKS

Nazim Pasha, the Sultan's Commander, Was Completely Outmanoeuvred.

Sofia, Oct. 31.—News of the defeat of the Turkish army was received here late tonight with a feeling of great relief, but no noisy demonstration. Confidence in the success of the Bulgarian army had been mixed with great anxiety because of the lack of news for the last two days.

The people are now looking forward to Bulgaria becoming a great power in the Balkans, as Turkey formerly was.

It is understood that the fighting has been of the fiercest character, even night affording no intermission. The Turks suffered severely. Many were captured and great numbers of dead were left on the field. Little has been heard from the Bulgarian left wing, which stretched from Bunarhisza to Midia. In this territory the Turks greatly outnumbered the Bulgarians, who have been only just able to hold their own. Any slight success which the Turks obtained here, however, was of no material importance.

Completely Fooled Turks. In the meantime the Bulgarians were due to superior strategy, combined with the extreme energy of their offensive movement. It appears that the object of the rapid advance early in the week on Viza and Midia was not really to outflank the Turkish right, but to mislead the Turks. This was entirely successful. The Turks moved their reserves by sea and along the coast to strengthen the right wing, which reached to Istanbula, and directed all their efforts to meeting here what they believed to be the main attack.

In the meantime the Bulgarians were really concentrating at Eski Bazar, which is a strategic point, and by convergent roads from before movement. It appears that the Bulgarians' main force, on their right wing, was thus superior in strength to the Turks at Istanbula, and was able to hurl them back.

It is believed that the total Turkish force numbered 250,000, as compared with 150,000 Bulgarians, the latter being obliged to leave many men around Adrianople. Probably the decisive movement on the Bulgarian right was one through Atrokol, 15 miles to the south of Balka Bazar, which turned the Turkish flank. The Turkish reserves west of Yenikent, nine divisions strong, were pushed forward towards the centre of the Turkish line to check the Bulgarian advance, but it is believed that these reserves are also in retreat.

AMUSEMENTS

"Mutt and Jeff" Three Performances. That famous cartoon play of "Mutt and Jeff" opens at the Grand tonight for three performances. It has been a very successful musical comedy, and its appearance here last season proved to be interesting and enjoyable. The antics of Mutt and Jeff, with their songs and dialogue of the day, create continuous laughter.

"Everywoman." Beginning next Monday night, "Everywoman," a new musical comedy, will offer the dramatic spectacle "Everywoman." It is promised that the company is even stronger than the one that the leading roles will be played by the long run of the place in New York. "Everywoman" contains as much drama as the ordinary musical comedy, and as much comedy as the largest which has ever been taken on tour. Included in the dramatic and musical ensembles are over one hundred and fifty people. The company includes H. Cooper, Cliffe, in the important role of Nobody, a sort of moral philosopher, Mr. Cliffe is a distinguished English actor, a direct descendant of the great Kemble family, one of the choicest heritages of the stage. Seats on Saturday. Mail orders from outside city.

"Ben-Hur." The general public have little or no idea of the tremendous expense the staging of "Ben-Hur" has entailed during the past thirteen years. "Ben-Hur" is the biggest spectacular entertainment ever housed within the four walls of an American theatre. Its striking effects, notably the interior of a Roman galley, the Mount of Olives and the chariot race arena at Antioch are scenes that require a vast area of space for proper representation. The construction of playhouses throughout America prior to the production of "Ben-Hur" never took into consideration a spectacle of such stupendous proportions, therefore, when Klaw and Erlanger started to tour the country they were obliged to remodel the stage of every playhouse they visited. This season Klaw & Erlanger have put together the biggest production ever staged in America. "Ben-Hur" The Grand Opera House has secured the grandest play for presentation next Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, and Saturday matinee, Nov. 7, 8 and 9.

Auditorium Saturday Night. John B. Ratto, the characterist, and shrewd psychologist is to be the entertainer in the Auditorium Saturday night. Most of the sketches which he will give on Saturday evening are from character studies.

Annual Service of Praise. Monday evening, Nov. 4, the choir of St. Andrew's Church, under the direction of Mr. Charles Wheeler, will give their usual Thanksgiving service of praise. Miss Estelle Carey, of Hamilton, and other favorite soloists have been engaged for the occasion.

This will be the most important sale of the season—don't overlook the opportunity.

Out-of-town customers will be well repaid for coming any distance within a hundred miles for one of these Suits.

With such a collection it would be impossible to describe each style, as the assortment is made up of broken ranges, some of which there is but a simple suit left, but if your size is not here in every model shown, you will find ample choice in almost any size you may need.

Toy-Town Opens Tomorrow

TOY-TOWN, JOY-TOWN, JOLLY GIRL AND BOY TOWN ONCE AGAIN—How many hundreds have been following the advance notices this week and watching from day to day for this announcement? Well, here we are all ready for Saturday. Santa Claus has not yet arrived, but every toy is here, and some of the funniest things you ever saw. High carnival will reign in Toy-Town Saturday. See the new things, the merry-go-round, a real lake with boats running, enlarged magic lantern show, educational games, and the biggest doll show we ever made.

$15 To Be Given in Prizes

This is for the girls (no boys need apply). A doll-dressing competition, and boys can't dress dolls. They are better at harnessing a dog or taming a cat. Every girl will have a chance for one of these cash prizes, as the competition will be divided into three classes, grouping the different ages. For further particulars and rules governing contest, inquire at Doll Counter, TOY-TOWN.

Bondroom for Toys

We have made special provision to keep toys selected now until later on. Those who bought early last year know the wisdom of selecting their toys at the very opening of Toy-Town. The very thing the child's heart is set on may be gone if you delay. A deposit will hold them for delivery when you are ready.

LONDON, FRIDAY, NOV. 1.

A WICKED PERVERSION.

The curtain will formally rise on the German war scare in this country when the Borden Government brings down its naval proposals. The scare will be elaborately staged; the scenic artists are now putting the finishing touches on the canvas. Our local contemporary gives us a foretaste of this mendacious drama by printing a garbled version of a speech by the First Lord of the Admiralty, with the heading, "Hon. Winston Churchill Approves Lord Roberts' 'Beware England' Speech." There is not a single word in Mr. Churchill's address to indicate that he gave his support to the utterances of Lord Roberts, which have been officially censured by the Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey, and the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, Mr. Runciman. Had Mr. Churchill spoken as Lord Roberts did, or even expressed approval of Lord Roberts' anti-German speech, he would have given the signal for war.

The reassuring and pacific portions of Mr. Churchill's deliverance are deliberately omitted from the reports published by the war-scare papers in this country. The honest version shows that far from being provocative, Mr. Churchill dwelt on the present concord among the great powers. We quote the passages maliciously expunged by the London Free Press and some other journals:

"Mr. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in a speech at Sheffield tonight, said there were many signs which encouraged the hope that the long, dismal chapter of human history unfolded in the Balkans will be closed forever when the present war is ended by the united action of the powers.
"If Europe had really been animated by the passions of hatred and ambition which were occasionally ascribed by its pessimists, said Mr. Churchill, recent events might easily have brought about the predicted Armageddon, but so far as could be seen, all the Governments without exception were honestly striving to adjust their differences so as to preserve their unity, and bring their combined influence to bear to terminate the long, fierce, and disastrous quarrel and secure a settlement which would be just to the belligerents and beneficial to the populations concerned.
"So long as this loyal, honest spirit continues, declared Mr. Churchill, no problem will arise in the Balkan struggle which cannot be settled to the common advantage and to the last good of the Balkan peoples."
The exclusion of these words is not the only falsification. Appended to the garbled report of Mr. Churchill's speech is a violently anti-German excerpt from the News, which is described as an independent paper. The Daily News is the chief Liberal newspaper in London and strongly deprecates the German war scare. The Evening News, from which the quotation is taken, is one of Lord Northcliffe's papers, a Unionist organ which has made a specialty of trading in anti-German prejudice. The two incidents—the speech and the citation from a Teutonophobe party paper, described as representative of the independent press—are omens of the systematic campaign of duplicity and falsehood about to be launched in this country in order to whip up public feeling for the Government's naval proposals. These proposals are not to be framed with a view to the interests of the mother country or the Empire, but to enable the Government to evade its pledge to submit its naval policy to the people. This is the "emergency" for which an "emergency" contribution has been invented.

JUST A CANARD.

The story that Mr. N. W. Rowell contemplates withdrawing from the Ontario leadership of the Liberal party, or that any group of Liberals is trying to induce him to relinquish it, is the mean fabrication of a mean enemy.
In the first place, Mr. Rowell is not the man to give up a fight after a preliminary skirmish. In the second place, no Liberal group or faction wishes him to withdraw. In the third place, there is no reason why he should withdraw, and every reason why he should remain.
Mr. Rowell has just begun his campaign of education on questions of moral and social reform. He entered public life because these subjects were near to his heart. He took the leadership when the fortunes of the Liberal party in Ontario were not such as to attract a man who had only selfish objects in view. In the wake of the Liberal rout of September, 1911, he was able to rally his party that it did better than hold its own against the most overwhelming odds that could be brought against it then, or that can be brought against it in the future.
There has been a steady revival of the spirit of the party under Mr. Rowell's leadership. East Middlesex is no refutation of this. Against an independent candidate who could not poll the normal Liberal vote, and who was not acceptable to many of the temperance electors, the Government and the liquor organization exerted their whole power, and could only snatch the same majority for Neely as in the general election of 1908. There is nothing in the result to discourage the Liberal leader or to puff up the Government. Mr. Rowell has only begun to fight. In the next three years his aggressive campaigning will count enormously. In the first session of the present Legislature, he put the Government squarely on the defensive. He will have plenty of opportunity during three more sessions to force the fighting there on the social and economic issues to which Sir James Whitney presents an unreasoning resistance. The wish is father to the thought with those who are talking of Mr. Rowell's retirement. His opponents have felt his mettle, and will feel more of it.

A VOTING EXPERIMENT IN IRELAND.

An unexpected turn has been given to Irish legislation by the British Government's decision to make the Irish Senate elective instead of appointive, and to base the election on proportional representation.

The change has not been demanded by the Irish Nationalists, who would prefer an appointive House, and are not enamored of proportional representation; but they have wisely agreed to it as a conciliatory offer to the Ulster minority, and as a response to the goodwill of an influential group of Protestant Irish peers who have accepted the principle of the home rule bill. Among these peers are the Earl of Dunraven, Lord Macdonnell, and Lord Rossmore, the latter at one time grand master of the Orange body. These Irishmen and former Unionists have imbued the national spirit; they feel that Irishmen of all creeds, of Saxon or Celtic strain, ought now to unite in working the machinery of self-government, since home rule is inevitable. For this reason they deplore the agitation carried on by Sir Edward Carson and Mr. Bonar Law in the new Irish Parliament, they will form an important and moderating influence. Their present attitude is a good omen for the new regime.

The system of proportional representation has never been tried in the British Empire, except in the little state of Tasmania. But it has been recently introduced into France, and has worked smoothly in Belgium. In the latter country, the cause of strife has been plural voting; both the Liberals and the Socialists profess themselves satisfied with the proportional representation plan. In Ireland the result will be that in the second chamber the Protestant minority will be certain that its minimum of representation will be proportionate to its voting strength in the country. The Protestants number between a third and a fourth of the whole population, and they will be assured of between a third and a fourth of the seats in the Senate. But what is more likely to happen is that the Irish will not divide on religious but on strictly political lines, as in other countries. Either this, or the Catholic majority will divide on regular party lines, and the Protestants will hold the balance of power.

The Turkey trot in the Balkans has broken into a run.

Hon. Robert Rogers will take charge of Mr. Coderre's campaign in Hochelaga. What is it this time—a railway or a bunch of postoffices?

The garbling of Winston Churchill's speech is one of the many signs that the Ottawa Government's naval policy is to be launched on a sea of mendacity.

On the eve of the Presidential election the United States is experiencing that sense of crisis which intervenes when two strikes and three balls have been called.

Christians in the troubled areas of Turkey are being massacred and mutilated by Turks. But these troubled areas would not be in Turkey but for the jealousies of the so-called Christian powers thirty years ago.

Premier Sifton of Alberta says the feeling for wider markets there is growing instead of diminishing. Alberta sends one Conservative member to Ottawa and two to Edmonton. If pro-reciprocity sentiment gets any stronger the next federal and provincial elections should see a Conservative whitewash.

There will be no repetition in Hochelaga of the Drummond and Arthurs by-election, when the Nationalists and Conservatives joined in downing the Liberal candidate by decrying naval expenditure in any form. If the Liberals do not put up a candidate they will at least not strike hands with the Nationalists.

The possibility that neither Wilson, Taft, nor Roosevelt may be elected President should awaken the American people to the ridiculous anomaly of their present system, by which the President is elected by 531 dummies who are elected by the people. The direct election of the President by the people is a reform that will surely follow after such a lesson.

Mr. Rowell told The Advertiser in confidence, says that journal, that he had no hope of being successful in East Middlesex. Then he owes the temperance people an apology for seeking to drag them into a losing fight—Stratford Herald.

With its usual slipperiness, the Herald suppresses the fact that Mr. Rowell made this prediction on an independent candidate who could not poll the normal Liberal vote, and who was not acceptable to many of the temper-disinclination of Liberals to perfect their organization in behalf of an independent Conservative.

THE AUTO FIEND.

(Rhurbarb Kipling.)
There is today a lot of jays
Who think they own the public
ways,
As they shoot along with their machine,
Propelled by the power of gasoline.

They toot their horns and make you jump
While your heart beats with a heavy thump.
I like to see his tires go flat
When he runs his machine so fast as that.

At the crossing he does not seem to care
Unless the policeman is standing there.
He don't give a rap for the people at all,
This automobile crank with awful gall.

I have many times been made to swear
When I see these brainless drivers dare
To break our laws, likewise our bones,
And throw us on the paving stones.

THE CHASE.

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)
"I understand you have just bought an automobile?"
"Yes, I saw seven of them chasing one pedestrian the other day and I decided that I was on the wrong end of the sport."

KEEP IT COOKED.

(Atlanta Journal.)
Liquor improves with age. The longer you keep it cooked the better it is for you.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

(Washington Star.)
"Patience," said Upton Sinclair at a dinner in Arden, "is dying out. Internationalism is succeeding it. Today we don't merely love our country—we love all countries."

"A captain was training a band of recruits.
"Phillips," he said, to a red-haired chap, "why should a soldier be ready to die for his fatherland?"
"Phillips nodded approvingly.
"That's just what I say, Cap," he cried. "Why should he, indeed?"

THAT WHITE STREAK.

(Indianapolis News.)
The white streak in the centre of a block of artificial ice is the last part of it to be frozen and, therefore, contains the waste air and other gases that were dissolved in the water before freezing. Hence, the "snowy" appearance.

KEEPS ALIVE.

(Detroit News.)
William Augustine Munson, of Mount City, Kan., who is 74 years old, has matriculated at the University of Kansas. A graduate of Wesleyan University in the class of 1897, Mr. Munson received his master of arts degree from the same institution in 1879, and in 1882 two divinity degrees from Yale. He still directs to continue his education in order to "keep busy in the very best way to keep the mind awake and active."

WHEN THE DUKE WAS WEST.

(New York Times.)
When near Winnipeg the Duke asked a man what a certain building was, and received this reply: "How the devil should I know? I've only been here a few days."
The Duke laughingly related the incident when he returned to the train.

A CHARM DISPROVED.

(Syracuse Herald.)
In its football squad this year Yale has a young Walter Camp and a Charley White, Jr. Both are showing up in practice, thereby disproving the assertion often heard that sons of great men never amount to anything.

SUBSTITUTE FOR PICKWICKIAN.

(Chicago Record-Herald.)
"I understand that you have called me a liar."
"Merely in a political sense, sir—merely in a political sense."

BEATING THE LAW.

(Kansas City Journal.)
"You are charged with going forty miles an hour, said the rural justice, and you are fined $50."
"Judge," said the motorist, "I have only got $2."
"Well, you've got a nerve going forty miles an hour on a reserve of $2. Hand me the money."

SEEMS LIKELY.

(Detroit Free Press.)
"Does your husband drink to excess?"
"I don't know about that, but I suppose he does. Any excuse is good enough for him to drink to."

REASON OF THE DELAY.

(Goderich Journal.)
All this talk of an "emergency" contribution is just a scheme to postpone the adoption of a permanent naval policy. Mr. Borden does not like to admit that the Laurier plan of a Canadian navy is the right policy, but he cannot find a better one, so he delays.

COLOSSAL NAVAL COST.

(London Daily News and Leader.)
An admiralty white paper issue yesterday at the instance of Mr. Chiozza Money, M.P., gives the total naval expenditure of the principal powers down to the present year. Issued annually, this return always serves as a useful reminder to the public of the enormous sums spent by the world's naval powers. Turning to the total expenditure of the same powers in the ten years, 1903-12, we get the following remarkable result:

Great Britain $356,246,000

United States 240,455,000

Germany 169,101,000

France 138,711,000

Austria 117,905,000

Italy 62,955,000

Japan 63,516,000

Austria-Hungary 34,700,000

Total $1,154,689,000

In regard to personnel, Great Britain has at present 135,700 men, compared with Germany's 66,700 and 44,780 for the United States.

A POINTER FOR THE MAYOR.

(Montreal Gazette.)
Mayor Graham, of London, has been expressing the opinion that the local news printed in the papers is colored to suit the ideas of the reporters or editors and is unreliable. He added that he only read the foreign news, Mayor Graham not logical. The foreign news of one lot of newspapers is bad, the local news of another lot, and vice versa. If the foreign news is to be believed there must be some honest men on the press.

NOT SURE.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)
"What do you think of the war?"
"What war?"
"The war in Tripoli?"
"I really can't say; I haven't seen any of it."

Every Canadian Should Read Parkman's Works

[By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram]

It is the patriotic duty of every Canadian to place in the hands of his children the works of Francis Parkman. For in his works we have a series of moving pictures of the old French Regime; he has covered the whole period of the French rule in Canada, and he has performed his great task with an easy grace of style, a human interest, and a pictorial power that makes him one of the ablest writers that this continent has produced. Many parents will be unable to procure the whole set of Parkman's works, even if they are admirers of such classics as "The Conspiracy of Pontiac" and "Montcalm and Wolfe." The fact that Parkman's books have always been rather high-priced has been a great pity. I believe that if some enterprising Canadian publisher could issue them in cheap form, say at twenty-five cents a volume, that there would be an enormous sale in Canada. We need an Everyman's series of books of peculiar interest to the people of this country. We shall have to wait some time for such a series, however, and in the meantime let us be grateful to Miss Louise S. Hasbrouck for compiling "The Boys' Parkman" (McClelland and Goodchild, Toronto). In this attractive volume the editor gives us selections from Parkman, indicated by such chapter headings as the following: "Indian Tribes and Traditions," "The Discovery of the Mississippi," "La Salle's Winter Journeys," "Tonty's Adventures with the Indians," "La Salle Finds the Mouth of the Mississippi," "The Fall of Quebec," and "The Siege of Detroit." The book is also well illustrated and is provided with notes to clear up difficulties for twelve-year-old readers.

In her introductory essay, Miss Hasbrouck has drawn the attention of her readers to the pluck and determination shown by Parkman in writing these sparkling narratives. Some idea of the difficulty under which he labored is given by her in her introduction to the "Conspiracy of Pontiac." "For about three years," he says, "the light of day was unimportant, and every attempt at reading was completely debased. Under these circumstances, the task of sifting the materials and composing the work was begun and finished." Parkman suffered from a most mysterious nervous ailment. The doctors told him that his mental work would be fatal, but he hung to it. In fact, he did all his immense amount of work in a grain of sugar. During three-fourths of the time he had "to sit on his mind to keep it quiet." He was seldom able to read more than five minutes without rest, or to be read more than twenty minutes at a time. But in spite of his bad knee, his bad eyes and out of three score years and ten and left to posterity a dozen brilliant volumes, which have established his fame as the Scott of America and the most picturesque of all historians.

BRYAN CERTAIN OF WIN FOR WILSON DEMOCRACY'S YEAR

Can Find No Indications of Success for Either Taft or Roosevelt.

ONE HOPE RESTS WITH HIS PARTY

Says Colonel Roosevelt Did Nothing in Three Terms to Bring About Reforms.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Nov. 1.—William Jennings Bryan issued an appeal to the people of the United States yesterday through the publicity bureau of the Democratic national headquarters. Mr. Bryan declared the outlook for Democratic success was bright indeed, and asserted that in no state he had visited did he find any indication that the electoral vote would go to either President Taft or Col. Roosevelt.

Democratic success seems as absolutely certain as anything human could be, Mr. Bryan said, and of all presidential years within the last score this seemed essentially to be Democracy's year. Mr. Bryan then went on: "It is not strange that the voters of the country should turn from President Taft and condemn his failure to lead the people's fight for reform, but it is strange that anyone who opposes Taft should turn to Roosevelt for relief."

"Col. Roosevelt had twice as long in which to secure reforms as Taft had, and now he asks for a third term—and we do not know how many reforms he wants—in which to do what he could have done when he was president."

"After giving us Mr. Taft and then failing to help him to make good, he asks us to accept him as his substitute for Taft. Could anything be more audacious?"

The One Hope.
"Governor Wilson is the only hope of the nation, if we would free ourselves from the burden of taxes and the menace of monopoly. He is a big, brainy statesman, and particularly a man who has the courage of his convictions, and who, if elected, will make this country one of the best and safest presidents it has ever had."

'BEAUTY'S TWIN SISTER IS PATIENCE' MISS BURKE TELLS US

MISS BILLIE BURKE.

By Billie Burke.
THE FIRST WORD—Impatience is one of the great foes of beauty.

I receive many letters from girls and women who have neglected themselves all their lives and now want me to tell them how to remedy beauty evils of years standing. In a week or a month. One girl writes: "My hair has been coming out badly for over a year. Tell me something which will stop it at once. I took the advice of our local hair dresser a few days ago, but I cannot see any improvement."

Of course, I do not know what the advice of her local hair dresser was, but one would scarcely see any improvement in two or three days in a trouble of a year's standing, whatever the treatment.

There is nothing that needs more patience than the remedying of discoloration of the scalp, unless it is reducing one's flesh. It will often be weeks before one will see any improvement in one's hair, even if one is most careful to follow the best directions. But impatience with the regimen and neglect to give it a fair trial are the greatest possible foes to the ultimate recovery of one's glory crown.

If one's hair has been falling out for a year, one can be sure that it will take at least a year or even longer to put the scalp back in healthful condition; consequently, one should have plenty of patience. And in reducing one's flesh, anything that will give a quick reduction is certainly harmful to one's health. There is nothing which needs more patience and entails longer suffering than continually denying oneself the food one likes and goading oneself to constant exercise.

I have found that my system of physical culture, if persisted in, will reduce one's flesh. It is taken in connection with proper diet. I have a friend who was growing too fleshy and who used the stretching exercises, beginning with 10 minutes in the morning and 10 minutes at night, and increasing each week 10 minutes until she was able to exercise a half hour in the morning and a half hour at night. Her diet was: The juice of a lemon in a glass of hot water sipped slowly 30 minutes before her breakfast, which consisted of one cup of coffee without sugar or cream, two slices of bread cut very thin, toasted hard and eaten with salt instead of butter, one small piece of either broiled steak or fish or the lean part of one lamb chop. For luncheon she ate a vegetable soup, a salad made with lemon juice instead of vinegar and very little oil; this was eaten with toasted wafers. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon she had a cup of tea and a wafer. The tea was served Russian fashion with lemon. She commenced her dinner with fruit, being able to eat any kind except peaches or bananas. Then she ate spinach, celery, raw or stewed tomatoes without sugar, cauliflower or cabbage—only one kind of vegetable and one kind of meat being eaten at a meal. With these she had two slices of well toasted bread or their equivalent in wafers. Before she retired at night she drank a glass of hot water in which she squeezed a slice of lemon. Upon this diet and with the exercises she lost about three pounds a week, which is as rapidly as one should reduce one's flesh. Otherwise the skin will become wrinkled and loose. It can easily be seen that if one wishes to lose 25 pounds of flesh it will take 10 weeks, yet the ordinary woman will not have the courage to attempt it, or the patience to continue this Spartan way of living, even to recover her youthful lines.

JUST ONE LAST WORD—You must decide whether you will give up your taste for living or your slender form.

Billie Burke

DEFECTIVE SCHOOL CHILDREN

Some Rather Startling Figures Given by Well-Known Woman Physician.

It has been estimated that of the 20,000,000 school children attending the public schools in America today at least 75 per cent. of them are defective in some way and need attention for physical defects, writes Dr. Edith B. Lowry. A child who is not sound physically has not the same chance in the mental battle as one who is sound and whole. This fact has become so well recognized recently that in many communities every child is given a physical examination in the beginning of the school year and its parents are advised as to its needs.

It is estimated that 5 per cent. of all school children have tuberculosis. Naturally such a child in school is a menace to himself as well as to the other pupils. As long as he remains indoors he probably will be growing worse, while if he could be out in the open air all day he would have a good chance for recovery. Tuberculosis is a contagious disease in that it may be contracted from association with one afflicted with the disease. Therefore, one child afflicted with tuberculosis exposes the entire roomful of children to the disease.

Five per cent. of all children have curvature of the spine. If taken out of school and given proper treatment this usually can be remedied, but if the child is allowed to continue his present habits he probably will become deformed for life.

Five per cent. of all children have defective hearing. Many a backward child owes this condition to the inability to hear correctly. If the child's condition is understood it probably will be possible for the teacher to arrange the seating so this child will be able to hear all that is being said. Twenty-five per cent. of children have defective vision. Frequently a child fails to tell the teacher she can not see the board and so is unable to do her work, is accused of neglect and falls behind in her classes—all because of lack of proper glasses. Twenty-five per cent. are suffering from malnutrition. In many schools it has been found that the children have not the proper food at home and the teacher has been advised to tell them that when hot soup was served to the children at noon the class work improved. Recently in one school it was observed that the children did the poorest work at the last period in the afternoon. The experiment was tried of giving each child a glass of milk during the afternoon recess, and then it was found that the children did not become so exhausted and the work of the last period improved.

Thirty per cent. of all children suffer from enlarged tonsils or adenoids. This interferes with the breathing apparatus and makes the child stupid and backward.

Half the children have defective teeth, which interferes with their health and, therefore, their mental capacity.

SIMPLE.

"My wife," said Mr. Clarke, "sent $2 in answer to an advertisement of a sure method of getting rid of superfluous fat." "And what did she get for the money?" Was the information what she wanted?" asked Mr. Simmons.

TRY APPLE CURE.

Few realize the efficiency of apples in throat disorders and indigestion. Apples contain more phosphorus acid than any other fruit, and everybody ought to know that the best thing to do to promote the action of the liver and thereby secure sound sleep is to eat an apple before going to bed. Apple puddings of all kinds, apple sauce, or salad of apple and celery for lunch, baked with cream for breakfast, any and all ways the apple is the old standby.

The Birthday Calendar

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY Do not change if fairly well satisfied or attempt unfamiliar things on a large scale. Trouble threatens you and those dear to you, and a too wifely course on your part will make matters worse. Those born today will have positive natures and will run to extremes in their emotions, but with their natural intelligence they are easily taught self-control, so necessary to their success. Unhappy marriages are foretold for their children.

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received.]

Is He Serious?

Dear Miss Grey—I have been keeping company with a gentleman for four years and have been engaged to him one and one-half years. Being a physician, he left the city to practice in a small town one year ago. On leaving he said: "Just as soon as I have my practice worked up I shall come for you and be married." Since that time he has been in and out of town, but every time he leaves me he has the same story to tell, saying he is not ready to be married yet.

"I think a great deal of him and he does of me. What I would like to know is, do you think he is putting me off too long? Folks think he should marry me now, but I think as long as we understand each other it is best to wait. A physician has no regular salary to depend on, but my parents cannot see it that way. Kindly give me some advice as to what you think of this matter."

It takes a long time for a young doctor in a country locality to build up a substantial practice. No doubt the man will marry you just as soon as he is in a position to do so. Why not write to him and ask him when he thinks he will be able to marry you? Not a curt letter, but a letter telling him that if you knew definitely what his plans were it would make it much easier for you.

Hat or Veil?

Dear Miss Grey—What should a bride wear with a white dress cut en train? Would a veil be necessary or could a hat be used? 2. Is it proper to wear a theatre cap for a wedding hair dress? And what would you suggest with a walking-length dress of white?

MAUD S. A—I think it would be best to plan for a veil if the bride dress is cut with a train. A picture hat could be used. However, it would be more appropriate with a walking-length white dress or a suit. The theatre cap does not appeal to me as a becoming wedding head dress.

Blue Bill is Grateful.

Dear Miss Grey—Thanks, very much, for your help. I find it is excellent advice that you offer, and also find it useful. Keep on, Yours truly, BLUE BILL.

Should She Forgive?

Dear Miss Grey: I am a very interested reader of your columns, and as I am in trouble I thought I would write to you for advice.

I went with a young fellow in a neighboring town for nearly three years. He was very fond of me, and I loved him dearly. In fact, he is the only boy that I ever went with that I really loved. He went away to work and wrote to me for a year after. Then one day I got a letter from him asking me not to write to him any longer. I was heart-broken over this. I did not write to him, but a few weeks ago I received a very nice letter asking me to forgive him for his conduct to me, and also asking me to return to the past with him again. He has been away four years and in that time has sent me postcards. Now, do you think he really loves me, and did I do right to forgive him once again?

MADEGE. A—Since you have written "forgiving" him all, there seems little use in my saying anything. His request to cease writing was certainly odd, and I think he owes you an explanation, but as long as "girls are girls" and "boys are boys" I suppose some love affairs at least are bound to be carried on in this way.

Reads Column Daily.

Dear Miss Grey: We read your column every night and enjoy it very much. Will you kindly tell me the birthday calendar for May the 15th, 1912?

Yours sincerely, INQUISITIVE ANNE. A—"You will leave your home or change your occupation with advantage. If you travel, success is indicated. Quarreling will diminish your good fortune."

Those born today will be often changing, but generally for the better. They will be successful but inclined to discontent.

Kitchenettes

If you are distressed to find that some careless person has scratched the new white paint with a match, try rubbing the darkened surface with part of a cut lemon.

Blood oranges added to the ice cream give a delicious flavor and many like the sherbet made of this fruit.

Meat loaf of chopped veal or beef is made much more moist if three or four tablespoonsful of cream are added at the last just before baking.

A good way to wash bottles or vinegar cruet is to put crushed eggshells and warm soapy water together in them and shake well. This will clean the glass well and will not scratch it.

A clever device for letting the oil drip slowly from the bottle when making a salad dressing is this: Cut two grooves in the cork on opposite sides; one groove admits air, while the other permits the oil to run slowly and evenly.

Do not throw away candle ends which are no longer fit for burning, but collect them all and put in a jar. Stand it on the side of the stove till melted, then mix a little paraffin oil until it becomes the thickness of cream. Applied to cloths, boys, it makes an excellent polish, being bright, but not dangerous and slippery for children.

When no rubber hot water bottle is available a good substitute can be made of a glass bottle or jar covered with paper or cloth to protect the patient from burning. Be careful that the bottles are not too hot, especially when using them about an unconscious patient.

What They Say

"There's something extremely fascinating about these honied places that project over the sidewalk on Dundas street. I never pass this one in front of The Advertiser, but I think of what somebody said once about the delight of the unknown. One never knows with whom one is going to come across, and face in turning these corners. How romantic it would be to run into Prince Charming in this way."

"If she thinks she's spiting me by being like this—"

"Took so many raw eggs he was ashamed to look a hen in the face for cent's after."

"Says nothing makes me so bitter as to have a sweet city girl-visitor pointing a kodak at him every time he went out to do the chores, or draw in oats."

"Why do I think her queer? Well, she reads her sweetestest buy her a set of classics instead of an engagement ring. No normal girl would do that."

"Yes, when the young lawyer said something about 'damnum absque injuria,' in discussing the case, she rebuked him sternly for swearing in her presence."

"It's really a very naughty book, but I sold auntie I read it only for its literary style and epigrammatical tone—ahem!"

"Couldn't quite decide whether to spend a dollar for one show at the Grand, or to go ten times to the moving picture theatre."

"She's one of those women who pretends to be your best friend, but the minute she meets somebody who frankly admits he dislikes of you, milder lady sits in with her at once, and between them your reputation is torn to shreds."

HYNES AND COURTNEY DRAFTED ON STRENGTH OF ADVERTISING

Portland Owner Adopts Novel Method of Picking Up Recruits
—Studies Newspapers in League Towns and Picks
Out the Players Most Advertised.

That Matt Hynes, of the London Club, and Lou Courtney, of the Brantford Club, in the Canadian League, were drafted by Portland, in the Pacific Coast League, merely on the strength of newspaper notices has just been brought to light by a statement made by Owner McCredie, of the Portland Club.

McCredie, in his effort to secure new material from the minor leagues, started the system last spring of securing newspapers from every town or city that boasted of a ball club. He tried to get as many papers as possible from towns in the same league, and he studied the accounts of the different games. By this means he was able to find out just who the best players in the league were and also to see what they were doing.

Both Players Advertised.

He saw that Matt Hynes was credited with being the best and most consistent pitcher in the Canadian League. Hynes received more newspaper advertising than any other pitcher in the league. Courtney was also advertised, although he was not termed the best shortstop in the league. However, his

NEW MARK MADE FOR 440 YARD SWIM

Chicago Swimmer Breaks Indoor Record Formerly Held By C. M. Daniels.

[Canadian Press.]
Chicago, Nov. 1.—Indoor record for the 440-yard swim was lowered eight seconds by Perry McGillicuddy, of the Illinois Athletic Club, in an open meet here last night. McGillicuddy went the distance in 3:55.33. C. M. Daniels was the former record-holder.

MONTREAL READY TO MEET TIGERS

Players Have Engaged in Final Workout and Expect to Beat Hamilton Club.

[Canadian Press.]
Montreal, Nov. 1.—The Montreal team held its last practice yesterday, preparatory to meeting the Tigers for the last football game of the season here tomorrow. The team will likely be minus the services of Bailey, injured at Ottawa Monday, and Brophy, its great half-back. However, it is likely to jump back into the game, and his presence should strengthen the team. Brophy, the wing line, who has been transferred to his bank to Sherrill, Ben Gilmour, of the Montreal team, will referee the game, and be assisted by Hughie Gall, of Toronto.

The probable lineup of the local team follows:

Back, Tanny Smith; halves, Dean, Craig and Green; quarter-back, Gilmour; full-back, McCallum; ends, Ross; inside wings, Kelley and Hulme; middle wings, McMurtry and O'Shea; outside wings, Cameron and Coolan; or Fraser.

BENEFIT FUND FOR FORMER DIAMOND STAR

Cupid Childs, Once Big Leaguer, Is Dying in Cleveland.

[Canadian Press.]
Cleveland, O., Nov. 1.—A benefit fund for Clarence (Cupid) Childs, former big leaguer and manager of the Cleveland "Spiders" in the days when the Baltimore Orioles were the National League champions, is being raised in this city. The fund is being managed by the National League, and the fund-raising committee, headed by the National League, has been received, saying, "Committee's application for assistance for Cupid Childs. Will pass on the matter in a few days."

Childs is ill in a Baltimore hospital with Bright's Disease, and he has been there for some time. He has been a big leaguer for many years, and he has been a manager for many years. He is now in his 40s, and he is in poor health.

PLAYERS ARE NOT TO BLAME SAYS "ONE WHO KNOWS" IN REPLYING TO "CRITICUS"

Only a Few Members of the Team Can Get Off at Four O'Clock in Order to Turn to Practice—Will Prove Alibi on Saturday.

To the Sporting Editor of The Advertiser:
London, Nov. 1, 1912.

Dear Sir—My attention and that of several others connected with the Western University Rugby Club was drawn to the letter from "Criticus" in your paper of Oct. 31, and while we agree with the said writer in his statement that the practices this week have not been attended by every member of the team it is very unfair of "Criticus" to imply that the team are suffering from a case of swelled head. Apparently the writer is not as fully versed in the rugby situation in this city as he might be, and his letter is liable to do the patronage deserved by the team a world of harm.

In some of the larger cities where rugby football has a good hold on the citizens, arrangements are made with the employers of the various players so that the men are allowed to quit work two or three afternoons a week at an early hour, so that daylight practices may be held. In this city there are only six or seven of the regular members of the team who are in a position to turn out at 4 or 4:30 each afternoon, and in justice to those it must be said that they are very regular in their attendance at practices, whether rain or shine. It may not be known in the city that not more than four members of the team are very regular in their attendance at practices, whether rain or shine. The majority of the players hold positions in offices and factories, where the employees are compelled to work until 6 o'clock. As it is dusk at that time those players cannot put in any outdoor practice throughout the week, and I think that the members of the team are to be complimented upon their showing so far this season.

As everyone who is interested in rugby in this city knows, the officers and players of the club this year took a heavy task upon their hands this fall when they entered a team in the O. R. F. U. This city has not made much of a showing in rugby circles for a number of years, and last year the attendance at the games was such that there was a deficit of nearly $400 at the end of the season. The club is endeavoring to pay up this amount of arrears, and to say the least, the general public will not attend games when the result is so emphatically forecasted, as in the letter from "Criticus" last evening.

Rugby is, perhaps, the most strenuous of outdoor games, and a player has to be in the best of condition to last through a hard game, such as that of tomorrow will undoubtedly be. The players are very severe in their criticisms of the statements made public by "Criticus," but expect to be able to furnish a satisfactory alibi on Saturday. Thanking you for your kindness, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Woodstock, Oct. 31.—In one of the most interesting football games seen here this season, St. Thomas defeated the team representing the local collegiate by a score 12 to 1. The locals put up a great exhibition of tackling, but their backs fumbled a great deal, allowing the visitors to make repeated gains. St. Thomas team proved to be a well-balanced aggregation.

During the 1912 season there were 208 signs, which hits have netted the fortunate players $10,400 in cash. There have been approximately 2,000 home runs for which the heavy hitters have received 180,000 packages of smoking tobacco.

BAT NELSON SIDETRACKED FOR BIKE RACING EVENT

Lightweight Pug Is Sore Because of Action of Boston Promoters.

Bat Nelson, the lightweight pug, is sore because of the action of the Boston promoters. He is sore because of the action of the Boston promoters.

A Slight On Boxers. "It sure is a slight on us boxers," said Nelson. "To think that the profession has fallen so low that they will cancel a boxing bout just to stage a bicycle race. I take the action of the Pilgrim Athletic Club officials in Boston as a personal slight and ask every fair-minded boxer to stick with me in a boycott of that organization. Just think, they called off a boxing exhibition to stage a bicycle race. Wow."

Bat Feels Bad. The former champion worked himself into a frenzy of grief for his lost chance of making a few dollars and continued knocking the Boston fight club while there were listeners in his vicinity. Bat feels sure that the Pilgrim Athletic Club can never atone for its action. He says the boxing profession has received a black eye that will not down. He infers that it would have been reasonable to cancel the bout if the hall were to be used for a political speech or something on that order, but to postpone a boxing bout for a bike race is the limit, according to the Battler.

Matched With Gary. Deciding to ignore the Boston promoters for all time the Dane accepted a bout in Cincinnati with Tommy Gary, the affair to be a ten-round exhibition and to be staged Nov. 11. He has been in active training for the last few weeks getting ready for the Baldwin battle that did not materialize and should have no trouble getting ready for Gary. Tommy also is in good condition after his sojourn in New York and predicts a big time for the Dane.

In Boston they called off a bout between Bat Nelson and Matty Baldwin in order to stage a six-day bicycle race. No doubt Boston wants to get a long run for its money.

Some Attractive Possibilities for Canadian-Bred Horses

Hersey and Ambette are this season's instances of the possibilities for a good Canadian-bred. Neither of these can be any stretch of language be called a great horse, but Hersey earned this year $7,357, though he started but seven times, and was first home only in three of those. Ambette had a more active campaign though by no means a hard one, since she ran only fourteen races, of which she won four. Her earnings amounted to $6,400. Every year opportunities for home-breds will be multiplied, and the amounts distributed in races confined to horses foaled in Canada will be increased, so that the value of Canadian thoroughbreds is bound to mount up steadily, and a farmer could make no better investment than the maintenance of a good brood mare or two. Their progeny, from a sire of any reputation, would return the cost of the mares in a couple of seasons.

TROOPS GUARD POLLS IN CUBAN ELECTIONS

Havana Expecting Trouble and Takes Radical Precaution to Prevent Disorder.

[Canadian Press.] Havana, Nov. 1.—The general election, on the face of it, has been a success. It is believed to depend, opened auspiciously. Despite the almost unanimous predictions that the election would be marred by nationwide disorders, the hope is now rising hourly that whatever the result of the election, the registering of the voters will be effected in exemplary order. The voting began at 6 o'clock this morning, and will continue till sundown. Many voters waited the opening of the polls to cast their ballots, and these were compelled to disperse immediately afterward by squads of police and troops. Throughout the city during the morning there was complete tranquility. This is considered to be largely due to the extensive military precautions taken by the Government, and to the realization in all quarters that the occurrence of serious factional disorders would almost certainly result in the downfall of the republic. The approaches to every polling place in Havana were guarded from an early hour this morning by strong detachments of infantry and artillery, who stood on sentry duty with fixed bayonets, challenging all comers, and not permitting anybody except voters to pass, and these only singly. For the first time in the history of Cuba, the sale of alcoholic liquors was prohibited, all bars and cafes being closed by presidential decree during polling time. Indication can yet be obtained as to the probable result of the election.

Remarkable Record of the Greatest Pacer

Toronto, Nov. 1.—W. J. Fleming, of Portage la Prairie, Man., who drove the mighty Joe Patchen, II, in all his races this year, was in Toronto yesterday after a visit to his daughter at school in Peterborough. He left last night for his home and after Christmas will join the Mackenzie horses at Pleasanton, Cal., as second trainer with Havis James. Mr. Fleming says that when Joe was shipped from Lexington last Monday for Ariz, the horse looked better than when he began the season in July at Lansing, Mich. Not once during the season did Joe take a lame step, a great tribute to Trainer James' ability. Up to the close of the Lexington meeting he had earned $16,000, winning 14 races in 16 starts, everyone of them in straight heats. His winnings constitute a record for a racing horse for a season.

PRESBYTERIAN SUPPER WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Special Celebration Held in the Hyde Park Church Was Well Attended.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Hyde Park, Nov. 1.—Following special services in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday conducted by Rev. Mr. Nixon, a fowl supper was held on Tuesday evening in the new schoolroom. The program included selections by Mrs. C. E. Wheeler, Miss Vivian (soloist in Askin Street Church), Mr. Parquhar, and Mr. and Mrs. Coburn.

During the evening addresses were given by Rev. Dr. Nixon and Mr. U. A. Buchner, of London. The proceeds totaled $80.

The annual thankoffering of the W. F. M. S. was well attended. Mrs. (Rev.) Nixon presided. Mrs. (Dr.) MacCrae, of Westminster, gave an excellent address on Home Missions. She made a strong appeal to the people to make a special effort to save the society ladies from wasting valuable time attending afternoon card parties, and for them to spend this time working for Christ.

Miss Skippon, who has acted in the capacity of secretary for some years, was presented with a life membership certificate.

Miss Mary MacKenzie read a suitable address, while Mrs. Wm. Weir

The Silent Barrier

(BY LOUIS TRACY.)

Helen, out of the corner of her eye, became aware that Mrs. de Courcy, Valet, of the British matron ruffled for battle. It was not in human nature that the girl should not recall the slight offered her the previous evening. With the thought came the temptation to repay it now with interest, but she thrust it aside.

"Yes, that is my name," she said, smiling pleasantly. "Well—General has asked me to—invite you to take part in some of our tournaments. We have tennis, you know, an golf, an croquet, an that sort of thing. Of course, you play tennis, an I rather fancy you're a golfer as well. You look that kind of girl—eh, what?"

He caressed a small moustache as he spoke, using the finger and thumb of each hand alternately, and Helen noticed that his hands were surprisingly large when compared with his otherwise fragile frame.

"Who is the General?" she inquired. "Oh, Wragg, you know. He looks after everything in the amusement line, an I help. Do let me put you down for the singles an' mixed doubles. None of the women here can play for nuts, an I've been waitin' for someone like you to turn up."

Yes, better known as George. "You are Mrs. Vavasour, are you not?" "And you arrived in Maloja last evening, I think. Well, do play with me, an I'll be glad to play fairly well some years ago."

"By gad! just what I thought. Go slow in your practice games, Miss Wynion, an' you'll have a ripplin' handicap." "Would that be quite honest," said Helen, lifting her steady brown eyes to meet his somewhat too free scrutiny.

"Honest? Rather. You wait till you see the old guard pullin' out a bit when they settle down to real business. But the General is up to their little dodges. He knows their form like a book, an' he gives every one of 'em shaken out by the first round—eh, what?"

The arrangement seems to be ideal if one is friendly with the General," said Helen. "Vavasour drew up a chair. He also drew up the ends of his trousers, thus revealing that the Pomeranian brown and myrtle stripes in his necktie were faithfully reproduced in his socks, while these master traits were thoughtfully developed in the abnormally hues of his clothes and boots."

"By Jove! what a stroke of luck I should have had had I not been so chucked. I'm pretty good at the net, Miss Wynion. If we manage things properly, we ought to have the match decided with the first half. An' in the ladies' singles you'll be a Queen's Club champion at six-stone nine, what?"

Though Vavasour represented the species of insane young man whom Helen detected, she bore with him because she hungered for the sound of the English voice in friendly converse this bright morning. At times her life was lonely enough in London, but she had never felt her isolation there. The great city appeared to her in all its moods. Her heart did not sensitive nature did not shrink from contact with its hurrying crowds. The mere sense of aloneness among so many millions of people did not shrink from contact with its hurrying crowds.

Here in Maloja things were different. While her own identity was lost in the while men and women canvassed her name, her appearance, her occupation, she was cut off from them by a social wall of their own contriving. The attitude of the younger women told her that treated her as a forbidden within that sacred fold. She knew now that she had done during this—outraged one of the cheap clique-ridden Swiss valleys, an' she had times have sought lodgings in some homely village inn, and mixed with the humdrum of the ordinary life on the diligence or tramped joyously about, hand in glove with the sympathy of any of these shallow natures.

Even while blustering to "George's" efforts to win her smiles with stinging sentences, she saw that Mrs. Vavasour had halted in mid-career and joined a group of women, evidently a mother and two daughters, and that she herself was the subject of their talk. She wondered why. She was somewhat perplexed by the conclusion broke up suddenly, the girls going to the door, Mrs. Vavasour re-emerging, and the other elderly woman drawing a short, fat, red-faced man away from discussion with another man.

"Jolly place, this," Vavasour was saying. "There's dancin' most nights. The dowager brigades want the band to play classical music, an' that sort of rot, you know; but Mrs. de la Vere and the Wragg girls like a hop, an' we generally arrange things our own way. We'll have a dance tonight if you wish it; but you must promise to—"

"George," cried the pompous little man, "I want you a minute!" Vavasour swung round. Evidently he regarded the interruption as a "beastly bore." "All right, General," he said, alitly. "I'll be there soon. No hurry, is there?"

"Yes, I want you now!" The order was emphatic. The General's only military asset was a martinet voice, and he made the most of it.

"Rather rotten, isn't it, interferin' with a fellow in this way?" muttered Vavasour. "Will you excuse me? I must see what the old boy is worryin' about. I shall come back soon—eh, what?"

"I am going out," said Helen; "but we shall meet again. I remain here a month."

"You'll enter for the tournament?" he asked over his shoulder. "—think so. It will be something to do."

"Thanks, awfully. And don't forget tonight." Helen laughed. She could not help it. The younger members of the Wragg family were eying her sourly through the glass partition. They seemed to be girls, too, and she made up her mind to disoblige them speedily if they thought that she harbored designs on the fellow youth whom they probably regarded as their own special cavalier.

When she passed through the inner doorway to go to her room she noticed that the General was giving George some instructions while he listened to in sulky silence. Indeed, that remarkable ex-warrior was laying down the law of the British parish with a clearness that

LETTERS OF A SLIM-MADE WOMAN TO HER FAT SISTER.

Sixth Letter: On the Slim-Made Man Who Found a Thin Liver Remedy.

Dear Sis,—I can hardly wait to write you the news. Who of all people do you suppose I have seen? "Fatty" Beane, you remember him—how he tagged around at the beach last summer, and how mortified I was—two "fatty" together—and what a figure he cut in bathing suit. It was his porpoise-like splashes and the facetious remarks people made about his "overweight" ocean, that kept me out of the water.

Well, Sis dear, I met him last night at Sadie's musicale and didn't know him, and he didn't know me—we had to be introduced. My how he has changed—so much as I have—and how well-set up and handsome he looks since he became slim. He has the same "peppy" complexion, only now so, and he promises to dine with him tonight, and we've agreed to make it a "spread." Not like the "diet" dinners we had at the beach when I ate my crackers and he'd sip his tea and toast, and we'd both envy the other diners and grow fatter and sadder on our slim diet. That was the only bond of sympathy we had then—but now—we have another bond.

You remember the simple, harmless reducer I used to reclaim my slim, trim, firm figure—the Marmola Prescription—well, he used that, too, only he found it at the drug store in tablet form—Marmola Prescription Tablets at 75c the box—trust a man to find the easiest way. The tablets must surely be convenient—just a little disk after meals and at bedtime. It seems all druggists sell the tablets, too. They are made by the Marmola Company, 1191 Monroe Avenue, Detroit. Attention, please.

was admirable. He had been young himself once—damned!—and had a keen eye for a pretty face as any other fellow; but no gentleman could strike up an acquaintance with an unattached female under the very nose of his mother, not to mention the noses of other ladies who were his friends. George broke out in protest.

"Oh, but I say, General, she is a lady, an' you yourself said—"

"I know I did. I was wrong. Even a wary old bird like me can make a mistake. Mrs. Vavasour has just warned my wife about her. It's no good arguing, George, my boy. Nowadays you can't draw the line too rigidly. Things permissible in Paris or Nice won't pass muster here. I'm sorry, George. She's a high stepper and devilish taking, I admit. Write for some ha'penny rag—perhaps for some cheap society paper, I hear. Why, dash it all, she will be lampooning us in it before we know where we are. Just you go and tell your mother you'll behave better in future. Excellent woman, Mrs. Vavasour. She never makes a mistake. Gad! don't you remember how she spotted that waiter from the Ritz who gulled the lot of us at the dinner last winter? Took him for the French marquis he said he was, every one of us, women and all, till Mrs. Y. fixed her eye on him and said, 'Gustave! Damme! how he curled up!'"

George was still abashed. A masquerade affair held her eye on him and said, "Gustave! Damme! how he curled up!"

"You have not remained long in suspense," she could not help saying. "You are Mrs. Vavasour, are you not?" "And you arrived in Maloja last evening, I think. Well, do play with me, an I'll be glad to play fairly well some years ago."

"By gad! just what I thought. Go slow in your practice games, Miss Wynion, an' you'll have a ripplin' handicap." "Would that be quite honest," said Helen, lifting her steady brown eyes to meet his somewhat too free scrutiny.

The petitions have already been presented to Town Clerk Smith, and all arrangements are being made for a most active campaign.

Several more deer hunters left yesterday to join the advance guard of the different parties who left here and surrounding districts a few days ago. Those who reach the hunting grounds first have much arduous work getting the camp in shape. LIBERALS TO FIGHT FOR HOCHELAGA

Candidate Will Be Named to Contest Seat With Coderre.

ROGERS TO TAKE HAND Will Give the Montreal Conservatives Pointers on How to Run a Campaign.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—At a largely attended meeting of Liberals held in Westmount tonight it was unanimously decided to oppose Hon. Louis Coderre. A special committee was appointed to secure a candidate. It is expected that a decision will be reached tomorrow. The names suggested are: S. Letourneau, M.P.P., and Liberal organizer for Montreal, and Mr. Leduc. The feeling then was that a French-Canadian should be selected.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—This afternoon the situation in the Hochelaga election campaign was given a twist by the announcement that C. H. Cahane, K. C., who has taken an active part in denouncing a contribution by Canada to the imperial navy, would run as an independent candidate. Mr. Cahane is a Conservative. It was also rumored that Mr. Cahane would be given the support of the Nationals if he ran, and perhaps the Liberals would not oppose him.

What of Bourassa. Mr. Coderre, in speaking of the contest now on in Hochelaga, said he had no fear as to the result. At first there was some hesitation, but those who hesitated were now back in the ranks and they were prepared for a straight fight. He could not say what the ministerial policy would be, or at least, he was not able to say so before the Prime Minister had spoken. He wanted to say, however, that he had never contributed or consented to the resolutions adopted by St. Eustache, and elsewhere condemning both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden. As a matter of fact, when the meeting took place at St. Henri he had made a statement to the effect that if ever George Brown were to contribute from Canada, he for one would not refuse a helping hand from this rich country.

Mayor Rutherford, of Westmount, said it was true that he had been pressed to accept the nomination, but had refused.

A Bourassa boom gathered strength during the day. It is understood that the Conservative decides to enter the fight he will open no committee rooms, making it an oratorical campaign only, and leave the issue to the electorates to decide.

Pointers From Rogers. Ottawa, Oct. 31.—Hon. Robert Rogers and Hon. Louis Coderre left for Montreal this afternoon to start at once organization work in Hochelaga for the by-election there. Mr. Rogers has gone down to give the new Secretary of State a few pointers on how to win by-elections.

BULGAR ATTACK TOO FIERCE FOR SULTAN'S TROOPS

Line Finally Gave Way Before
Repeated and Impetuous Assaults.

DETAIL ACCOUNT OF GREAT BATTLE

Moslems of Constantinople
May Launch an Uprising
Against Christians.

[Canadian Press.]

Sofia, Nov. 1.—Details thus far of the rout of the immense Turkish army by the Bulgarians show that the Bulgarian forces were numerically far inferior. The Turkish army is reported to have aggregated 200,000 men. It included the garrison which had retreated from the captured fortress of Krik-Kiliseh as well as the main body of Turkish troops which had advanced from Constantinople. It comprised practically the whole of the Turkish troops remaining in Europe, apart from the garrisons of Adrianople, Saloniki, Monastir, Scutari and a few other towns. This great army was under the personal command of Nazim Pasha, minister of war and commander-in-chief, who was assisted by some of the most able Turkish generals serving in the army at the present time.

Scouts Start Fight.

The fight opened with the discovery by the Turks of a number of Bulgarian cavalry scouts. The Turks drew in their outposts, and these were closely followed by lines of Bulgarian skirmishers, who were succeeded by the main Bulgarian army in fighting formation.

The battle, which was destined to last several days, and result in the defeat of the Turks, was soon in progress all along the line.

Fierce Attacks.

The Bulgarian troops repeatedly delivered fierce attacks, sometimes at one point, sometimes at another, along the Turkish line, extending from Lule Burgas to Surai.

The Turkish troops offered a stubborn and desperate resistance, but were unable to withstand the onslaught of the impetuous Bulgarians, and finally they turned and fled in great disorder toward Tchatalja in the south.

The losses of the Ottoman army are reported to have been enormous in dead, wounded and prisoners, as well as ammunition and other supplies.

The capture of a third Turkish military train near Lule Burgas before the battle was of immense advantage to the Bulgarians, as it furnished them with more facilities for the transport of their troops and supplies in the district where the fighting took place.

Way Open to Capital.

Kustendje, Roumania, Nov. 1.—(By Wireless from Constantinople, Oct. 31, 11 p.m.)—The defeat of the Turkish army under Nazim Pasha opens the way to Constantinople for the Bulgarian troops. This will, in the opinion of diplomatic circles lead to a situation which will almost inevitably bring about European complications.

The most immediate danger, however, concerns the position of this city itself. Most authorities agree that no real defence can be made along the Tchatalja line supposed to protect the capital.

Fear a Sack.

In the event of hordes of demoralized soldiers falling back on the capital it is difficult to foresee what human intervention could save the city from sack and pillage. This fear is present with most of the inhabitants, who realize that the fate of the Turkish Empire hangs in the balance.

Christians in Peril.

It is reported that a secret meeting was held recently in the Mosque of Fatcheh, in the most fanatical quarter of Stamboul, where inflammatory speeches were delivered by a number of Mussulman priests who advised a rising against the Christians.

When the news of further Turkish defeats was received the authorities ordered the state of siege to be made more strict. The bridges between Galata and Stamboul are now not opened until some hours after dawn.

Savoff's Record.

Sofia, Nov. 1.—General Savoff, the commander of the victorious Bulgarian forces received his military training in Russia. He is the organizer of the modern Bulgarian army and played a brilliant part in the war of 1885. He served as minister of war in the cabinets of 1906 and 1907.

READY FOR MEDIATION

Paris, Nov. 1.—The Matin publishes an interview with Noradunghaan Effendi, the Turkish foreign minister, who is quoted as saying: "Turkey cannot lay down her arms until she is victorious. However, if Europe intervenes by an offer of mediation we are ready, as in the past, to follow the advice of Europe. We cannot forget that we participated in the labors of the conference at The Hague, and today, as yesterday, we shall not disavow a single one of the dispositions adopted at that conference."

"M. Poincare will find that Turkey will not stand in the way if he takes up the courageous task of attempting to re-establish peace. Tomorrow, as today, we shall show the great powers of the west that peace has no supporter more loyal than Turkey."

TURKEY TO SUE FOR PEACE.

Constantinople, Friday, Nov. 1.—The cabinet is in session. It is believed to be discussing the question of suing the Balkan States for peace. It is known that grave news has been received from the front, but its exact nature has not been divulged.

NAZIM PASHA SHOT.

London, Friday, Nov. 1.—Nazim Pasha, the Turkish minister of war, and commander-in-chief in Thrace, has been either shot or taken prisoner, according to a dispatch from Sofia to the Post.

HEADQUARTERS CAPTURED.

Sofia, Friday, Nov. 1 (5 a.m.)—A dispatch received from Bulgarian headquarters reports that Nazim Pasha's headquarters at Tcheriali, to which town the remnant of the Turkish forces retreated, was captured by the Bulgars yesterday (Thursday) afternoon.

(This forces the Turks within the defensive lines of Tchatalja, the only remaining fortified position protecting Constantinople. It lies 25 miles to the northwest of the capital.)

Sofia, Friday, Nov. 1.—A few more details have reached here of the four days' battle between Adrianople and Constantinople, which resulted in the utter rout by General Savoff, Bulgarian commander-in-chief, of the Turkish army of 250,000 men, under Nazim Pasha, the war minister. The battle extended along the line from Lule Burgas eastward to Serai. The Turkish front was over 31 miles long.

BULGARIANS OUTNUMBERED.

The Turkish forces greatly outnumbered the Bulgarians, the latter not exceeding 150,000, many having been left investing Adrianople.

The eastern wing of the Turkish army, at Viza, was able to maintain its ground at first against the Bulgarian troops, but could gain no success, and, after three days' fighting, fled. The Bulgarian army vigorously pursued the Turks, who retreated in disorder and panic on Serai and Tcheriali. Yesterday they were driven from this stand. Many guns and large quantities of ammunition have been captured. Aivali, near Lule Burgas, and Maras have been burned. All the Christian inhabitants, according to the Bulgarians, were massacred.

POWERS NOW LIKELY TO OFFER MEDIATION

Vienna, Oct. 31.—The crushing defeat of the Turks is being acknowledged on all sides, and the paramount question here now has become: What of the future? It is creditably stated that M. Poincare, the French premier, has proposed to the powers that the time has come to offer to

THOUSANDS OF DEAD

Expected That Adrianople City Will Fall Within a Few Hours.

London, Friday, Nov. 1.—Dispatches from Sofia late last night and early this morning confirm the reports of a great victory won over the Turks by the Bulgarians. The Turks, with between 150,000 and 200,000 men stretched out in a line a little more than 30 miles long, in defence of the approaches to Constantinople, were driven from their fortified positions by a considerably smaller force of Bulgarians, and are retreating in panic southward. The Bulgarians are in pursuit. This seems to indicate that the lines which the Bulgarians are drawing about Constantinople are being brought materially nearer the capital, with only a disorganized and fear-stricken army between the Bulgarians and their goal. The Ottoman losses in killed, wounded, and prisoners were enormous. Many guns and flags and large quantities of ammunition and other equipment were captured. Bulgarian advisers received last night stated that the villages of Aivali, near Lule Burgas, and Maras, near Adrianople, were burned by the Turks, and all Christians massacred.

Adrianople Assaulted.

The dispatches are not so definite or so well confirmed with regard to the fighting about Adrianople. One report sent to a news agency from Sofia states that there was a general assault on Adrianople on Friday, and that following this the Turks raised the white flag in the city. This report was not confirmed. Vienna hears that the fighting about Adrianople is continuing.

Sir William Meredith Succeeds Late Chief Justice Moss

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—The cabinet today decided upon a number of important Ontario judicial appointments. Sir William Meredith succeeds the late Sir Charles Moss as chief justice of the court of appeal of Ontario.

Mr. Justice R. M. Meredith, of the court of appeal, goes to the common pleas division as chief justice, replacing his brother.

Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., Toronto, is appointed to the extra judgeship created at the last session.

James Leith, K.C., chairman of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, goes to the high court in place of Sir William Meredith, who becomes an appellate judge.

Whether the action of the powers will take this form or another, it is regarded as certain here that the European countries are about to intervene in the Balkans. It is stated that joint representations will be made at Constantinople or the other capitals tomorrow or Saturday.

tinuing desperately, and that the fate of the city will soon be decided. A dispatch received at Vienna from the Montenegrin frontier states that King Nicholas' troops lost 300 killed and wounded in an attempt to rush the fortifications at Tarakosch Friday night. The Turks, the dispatch adds, still holds the town, which has been the scene of so many engagements in the past few days.

Thousands of Dead. Belgrade heard last night that the Servians had captured Prizrend and Ipek, in Monastir. Details were not given in the dispatches. Servian reports place the Turkish losses in recent Turko-Servian battles at a high figure. According to the Servians the Turks lost 16,000 in killed and wounded in the battle of Koumanova, while the Servians lost 400 killed and 2,000 wounded. Five thousand Turks are said to have been lost in the defence of Velles, which the Servians captured.

Athens is awaiting news of the surrender of Salonica and Janina, where the Greeks do not expect serious resistance. The Greeks look for serious fighting at Monastir, against which another Greek army is now advancing.

The battle at Lule Burgas occupied three days. At its conclusion the demoralized Turks fled back to Tcheriali, where they are expected to make another stand. The eastern wing of the army is still along a line drawn through Serai and Estrandia. Tcheriali is on the railway between Constantinople and Adrianople, and is at the junction of the railroad, and the road from Rodosto, the seaport which the Bulgarians now have as one of their objective points. It is reported that Bulgarian cavalry already are nearing Rodosto.

Although the Bulgarians have withdrawn practically all their regular troops from the vicinity of Adrianople and have left the operations about that city in the hands of reservists, the town is so completely invested that it is deemed probable that it will fall very soon if the present reports of its surrender should be proved premature. Nazim Pasha, upon whom the Turkish generals at Adrianople had been depending for reinforcements, cannot spare any men to relieve Adrianople, for it is a matter of doubt whether he can protect Constantinople by the use of all his forces, although it is pointed out that by a judicious selection of his position he can throw a line across the narrow isthmus to the westward of the capital, and, if his troops are massed at the strategic points, can at least put up a strong defence, and may be able to turn back the invaders.

MUNICIPAL DEPUTATION TO WAIT ON BORDEN

Will Ask For Legislation Giving Cities Complete Control of the Streets.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—A deputation representing the Union of Municipalities will wait on the Prime Minister at noon tomorrow to ask for general legislation guaranteeing to municipalities the control of their streets and remedying the situation created by the decision of the privy council in the case of the Toronto and Niagara Power Company. Controller T. L. Church, of Toronto, was here today completing arrangements for the deputation. It is expected that the attorney-generals of four provinces will be present to support the application. A second request will be made for legislation requiring a telephone company to obtain a municipal permit before tearing up a street or streets.

HELD FOR ROBBERY.
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Windsor, Oct. 31.—The police have been notified of the arrest in Grand Rapids, of Harry Turner, 19, of Windsor, who is held for a hotel robbery committed in that city. Turner has been following circuses around the country for some time and has a bad record.

DEAD ON THE ROAD.

Guelph, Ont., Oct. 31.—William Steel, a driver for the Sieman brewery, was found dead on the road seven miles from Guelph last night. His team walked into the city and an automobile was sent out, when the body was found at the side of the road. The coroner has the case in hand. The cause of death has not yet been ascertained.

COAL BARGE SUNK.
Kingston, Ont., Oct. 31.—A coal barge in tow of the steamer Captain Hermer was sunk on the Rideau River on the way to Washburn. Part of the cargo was saved, and the crew had no trouble in getting off. The cause of the accident is unknown.

FOUND SKELETON.

Prescott, Ont., Nov. 1.—The skeleton of a middle-aged man was found in the woods here yesterday. There were no indications of a crime having been committed. From the condition of the clothes it was obvious that the man must have died many years ago, probably from exposure. The only clue to the identity of the deceased was a gold watch found in one of the pockets.

LOWER PRICES RULE IN FARM PRODUCE

Easier Tone Prevails in Most Lines—Dressed Hogs Are Going Up.

Only five loads of hay were offered on the market today, and the prices ranged from $14 to $15 per ton. No straw was offered, in fact, there is a great scarcity of straw, and as a result the price is $19 per ton at present, and but a small supply in sight.

Potatoes are easier at present than for some time, the prices ranging from $1.10 to $1.25 per cwt.

The prices of both young and old beef are also rather easier than a few weeks ago, the present prices being from $8.50 to $9.50 per cwt. for heifer meat and from $7.50 to $8.50 for older beef. Dressed hogs were firmer in price, being quoted at $12 per cwt., with an indication of a somewhat higher quotation in a few days.

TURKS ARE FALLING

Servians Hold Macedonia.
The Servians, having completed the occupation of Macedonia, are establishing civil administration there and releasing some of their troops to go to the assistance of their allies at Saloniki. On the latter place armies are converging from many directions.

Nothing new has been heard from the region of Scutari except a report that the powder magazine in Tarabosha has been destroyed by Montenegrin shells.

Having decided to take steps to protect themselves, the European powers are now keeping touch, with a view to acting in concert when the opportune moment arrives. Bulgaria, however, has let it be known that Turkey must negotiate with the allied Balkan nations directly, so that all the powers can do as they please to look after their own interests when the war is over.

Believe in Peace.
London, Nov. 1.—The belief is held by some diplomats here that the Bulgarian army will be impelled to occupy Constantinople by military and other considerations. While the Bulgarians disclaim any ambition to retain Constantinople, they consider that the quickest way of arranging peace will be to dictate it to Turkey in its own capital. The Bulgarian army would also be able at the same time to protect the Christian residents there.

Official Newspaper.
Sofia, Nov. 1.—The official newspaper, the Mir, says today:
“If Turkey desires peace she must negotiate directly with the Balkan States and not seek the intervention of the powers.”

It is reported that a Bulgarian column has captured the Turkish town of Strumitza, 55 miles to the north of Saloniki.

A Third Levy.
Belgrade, Nov. 1.—A third levy of conscripts has been ordered by the Servian war office. The men as soon as they are equipped will be dispatched to the territory occupied by the Servians in Macedonia, where they will act as reserve.

Strength of Servian Armies.
The strength of the Servian armies has completely surprised the inhabitants of the conquered country, and particularly the Musulman. Armies of 100,000 men are now being equipped, and these are now abandoning the Turks and swearing allegiance to King Peter of Servia. Many of them have given up their arms, and at the same time disavowed the names of the chief supporters of the Turks and of the authors of the massacres of Christians.

The Villages occupied by the Servians have been grouped into districts and placed under Servian governors.

Against Intervention.
Vienna, Nov. 1.—Negotiations are in progress between Representatives of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro and Greece with a view to reaching an agreement in regard to their demands from Turkey, at the conclusion of hostilities, according to the Neue Freie Presse.

It is the intention of the four Balkan states to take joint action in this respect the allies would prefer to enter into direct and immediate negotiations with Turkey, but it is understood that the chief supporters of the Turks refuse to accept this proposition and will in all probability appeal to the European powers for mediation. It is uncertain, however, whether the Balkan States would tolerate any intervention.

To Prevent Massacre.
Berlin, Nov. 1.—European governments have not yet agreed whether to intervene in the Balkan war or to offer mediation at the present moment.

The meeting of the European ambassadors at Constantinople last evening discussed exclusively the measures to be taken for the prevention of possible massacres.

The various schemes for the division of Turkish territory among the Balkan allies, which have been published, are declared by the German foreign office to be based wholly on guesswork, as no negotiations on the subject have yet taken place.

Communication Cut.
Sofia, Nov. 1.—Bulgarian troops today occupied the Turkish town of Demotika, thus completely cutting off the possibility of communication between Adrianople and Constantinople.

Weather for Month.
Rainfall Heavy, But It Was Not as Damp as October, 1911.

While a hailstorm at noon today bore some resemblance to a snowstorm, London has not as yet had the first touch of the weather which introduced the winter of 1912-13. However, this is no better than a year ago, when the first fall registered 5 1/2 inches on Nov. 2.

During the month just ended, 2.13 inches of rain fell, as compared with 4.30 during October of 1911. The highest temperature this year was 78.5 above on Oct. 6, and the lowest 27 above on the sixteenth. In October, 1911, the highest was 70 above on the 4th, and the lowest 23 above on the 28th.

Resolution in Regard to Boys Smoking.

OPPOSE RACE BETTING.
Federal Government Will Be Asked to Amend Laws to Wipe Out Gambling.

Want Prohibition.
Whereas the sale of the cigarette to the criminal code is the prohibition of the cigarette submitted by the Laurier Government, has proven inadequate to cope with this disastrous national pest, and whereas the present Government voted almost unanimously for a prohibitory bill, therefore resolved that we as a provincial body heartily endorse and co-operate with the Dominion W. C. T. U. in asking the present Government to amend the laws so as to bring it into force as soon as possible.

Female Taken to Station.

Ewen, was taken to the police station by that officer. The offender gave his name to the police and was sent away with a warning.

LOUIS BERLIN TAKES STAND DENIES WILFUL OFFENCE.
Claims He Expected Draft, On Strength of Which He Issued Checks, From Former Partner To Be Deposited to His Credit.

The trial of Louis Berlin, who first entered the local hall of fame by promoting an ice arena about six weeks ago, was opened at noon today before Judge Macbeth, and when the court adjourned at 1:30 but one of the three charges of wilful offence had been heard.

Prisoner on Stand.
The prisoner was called to the witness box and in answer to his counsel, Mr. H. Greenlee, stated that he had lived in Winnipeg until February last, and was a partner in the Empire News Company in that city. The firm dissolved, and he was given a note for $100, due on the 1st of October. In September he claims that he received word to draw on his former partner for $100 in the middle of October, and that it was on the strength of the sum to be realized on this draft that he had issued the checks. As soon as he was informed that the draft had not been accepted, he stopped the issuing of checks.

Berlin was cross-examined to consider the length by Crown Attorney McKillop as to his business connections in Winnipeg, and subsequent movements until the time of his arrest. Mr. McKillop questioned the prisoner as to his movements and dealings in Toronto during the three days before his arrest, during which he ordered goods to the value of over $200. In reply, the prisoner stated that he intended to continue the manufacture of caps in this city, and that he had been promised financial assistance by his family and others.

Denise Beating Hotel.
He denied that he had beaten a hotel in Michigan for a bill of $15, stating that the firm for which he was travelling had promised to pay the account.

Judge Macbeth, when court was adjourned, stated that he would give judgment on the charge as soon as the court returned in the afternoon. There are two other charges upon which he will be tried this afternoon.

News From Western Ontario

GROWERS REFUSED TO DRAW THEIR APPLES

Claimed They Were Not Being Fairly Dealt With By Packers.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Kincardine, Nov. 1.—There was a meeting of a number of farmers who have leased their orchards to the National Fruit and Land Company, and Mr. Carey, of Toronto, president of the company.

Some of the farmers refused to draw apples out, and were very indignant at the treatment received from the company. Mr. Carey admitted that some unavoidable circumstances had transpired whereby the company was unable to fulfill its obligations to the farmers, and showed to the satisfaction of most of those present that all would come right. Great difficulty is experienced in getting apple barrels and pickers.

In some cases farmers are going to pick and pack the apples and be given good prices per barrel, delivered at the station. The fallen apples are being picked and taken to the evaporator here.

The evaporator has been idle the last few days owing to the farmers being too busy to leave the plow, thrashings and other fall work.

FOUND DEAD ON ROAD

William Steele Was Stricken With Apoplexy Near Fergus.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Guelph, Oct. 31.—The dead body of William Steele was discovered lying in the middle of the road last night by William Searles, employed by a farmer as a thrasher. The body was about three miles above Morden on the Fergus road, near what is known as Flewelling's Hill.

Deceased had been to Elora and Fergus for the Sleeman Brewery Company, and it is surmised had got down from the wagon, when he was seized with apoplexy. Nothing was known in the city of the affair until the horse walked into Guelph, when a search party was sent out.

NEW FACTORY

Galt Will Loan Shoe Industry Fifteen Thousand Dollars.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Galt, Oct. 31.—Today the ratepayers voted on a bylaw to raise $15,000 as a loan to the Galt Shoe Company Limited. The votes registered were 605 for and 28 against, a majority of 577 in favor. Only a small vote was polled, but there was so little opposition to the bylaw, which meant an enlarged factory for the town, that a large majority in favor was easily piled up by energetic members of the board of trade.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Windsor, Oct. 31.—The ratepayers voted favorably today on two bylaws, one authorizing the expenditure of $12,000 for a fire engine and the other granting the usual exemptions to the Leckie & Platt Spring Bed Company. HYDRO FOR WINDSOR IS LATEST SCHEME

Experts Are at Border Finding Out How Much Power Is Needed.

Windsor, Oct. 31.—With the arrival in the city this afternoon of S. R. C. Clement, one of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission's experts, the plan to have the transmission lines extended to Windsor has taken on new impetus.

At a conference held at the city hall with Mayor Shepherd and several members of the city council this evening, a plan was adopted which it is confidently expected will bring the matter to a head speedily. Tomorrow, in company with representatives of the city, Mr. Clement will personally call upon every manufacturer in Windsor, Walkerville and Sandwich with a view to ascertaining what quantity of power each user will agree to take in the event of the line being extended to Windsor.

As the city's agreement with the hydro-electric commission calls for a minimum of but 5,000-horsepower, and at an estimated cost of $38 per horsepower per annum, there seems to be no doubt but that the required amount can be readily contracted for from prospective consumers who are at present depending to a greater or less extent upon natural gas.

LAWRENCE--LIGHTFOOT

Varna Pastor Officiated at Pretty Wedding in Milton.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Milton, Nov. 1.—A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Lawrence, near here, when their eldest daughter, Mabel A., became the wife of Mr. Wm. Lightfoot, of Clarkson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lightfoot, of Peel County.

Rev. D. Johnston, of Varna, uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. Mr. Terry, of Omagh, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a number of invited friends and relatives.

The bride looked most charming in a beautiful wedding gown of white messaline silk, trimmed with shadow lace and ruchings, and carried a bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and smilax.

Little Miss Margaret Johnston, of Varna, cousin of the bride, performed to perfection the duties of flower-girl.

The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father, Miss Cybilla Lightfoot, sister of the groom, played the Wedding March. A splendid wedding dinner was served in the dining-room.

The ceremony took place in the parlor in front of a bank of flowers, under a beautifully decorated arch of evergreens.

The bride's going-away dress was a brown suit of whipcord, with shot-silk waist, and brown Napoleon hat trimmed with plumes. The happy couple left on the evening train for Hamilton and other points. On their return they will occupy their beautiful new home at Clarkson.

CLAIMS $3,000 FOR DAMAGES TO FARM

Interesting Case in Connection With Hydro To Be Settled Shortly.

Woodstock, Oct. 31.—An interesting case has been up for arbitration, that of M. S. Schell, ex-M. P. for South Oxford, and the hydro-electric commission. The commission erected towers on some land of Mr. Schell's, and for damages to trees and easement of the land, offered him $3,000.

This Mr. Schell refused, asking $3,000 for damages, including the injurious effect on his farm. Arbitrators, Judge Morgan, of York, Judge Barron, of Stratford, and Wm. Gorman, K. C., of Welland, sat here, and much evidence was taken. Mr. Schell claims that the land, which is just outside the city corporation, was valuable for town lots, and in this he is supported by prominent real estate men. The commission claims the lands are good only as farm lands. The opinions of witnesses as to fair remuneration for Mr. Schell varied from $425 to $3,000.

The valuations of trees also varied tremendously, the commission's witnesses valuing old shade maples at $10, and Mr. Schell's witnesses putting them at $100 each. Argument of counsel was reserved until Nov. 8, in Toronto. S. G. McKay, K. C., for Schell; J. G. Wallace, K. C., for commission.

HORRIBLY BURNED IN TRYING TO SAVE BABY

Child Perished When House Caught Fire and Mother May Die Too.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Owen Sound, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Charles Tebbitt, of Berkeley, near Chatham, was critically injured in an attempt to save her child from a burning house. She was removed to the hospital here at once and since yesterday has lain in a precarious condition. Mrs. Tebbitt left her 7-months-old daughter in a cradle in the kitchen while she went out to the barn. In her absence a fire originated, and when she came out of the barn she saw flames issuing from the kitchen. She rushed in in a desperate attempt to get her child, but her efforts were futile, and she was severely burned about the face, arms and body. The house burned down and the remains of the baby were completely incinerated. Mrs. Tebbitt's recovery is doubtful.

FLASHED ON LIGHTS AND FOUND BURGLAR

The Lad Had Been Robbing Mitchell Store for Many Months.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Mitchell, Oct. 31.—William Stoneman made a clever but ineffective capture of a youthful burglar, who has been visiting his store at regular intervals.

On Monday night the store was entered again from the back, and all the money in the register abstracted. On Tuesday night Mr. Stoneman kept watch and at 4:30 a.m. he heard a noise at the back. He waited for his man to enter, which he did, and made his way to the register. He was very cautious in lighting it up and just as he did so Mr. Stoneman switched on the lights, and found a boy about 14 years of age. The boy had worked around the store at one time and kept every means of entrance to the premises.

On being questioned by Mr. Stoneman as to how many times he had been in the store, he admitted being in many times, and had gained entrance in five different ways.

After talking to the boy for a few minutes, Mr. Stoneman locked him in the store, and went outside to call the night watchman. He was only out about two minutes, but before he got back the boy had taken advantage of his absence to unbolt a back door and get away. Up to late last night he had not been found, but he had been seen by a lady in the north ward. He came into her yard and went to the stable, and took a bicycle belonging to a schoolboy, along with a scarf and cap, telling the lady that he was just going a short distance and would be back in a few minutes.

CITY CAN'T CHECK BELL COMPANY

Phone Poles May Be Erected
Despite the Protests of Municipalities.

LAND FOR INCINERATOR

Mr. George Carty Gives City Thirty Days During Which to Buy His Property for $14,450.

The erection of poles on the streets by the Bell Telephone Company caused a discussion at the meeting of the board of works Thursday evening, but the request of the company to place two poles was granted.

Ald. Moore suggested that the board delay granting the application until it was discovered what legislation the Government would bring down governing this matter.

"We cannot do that," said City Clerk Baker. "All the company has to do under their charter is to give the city seven days' notice of the fact that it intends erecting the poles, in order to give the city council time to order the work done under the supervision of the engineer's department. It does not give the company permission, the poles will be erected just the same."

As there was nothing else to be done the board granted the request.

Offers for $14,450.

A communication was received from Mr. George J. Carty, saying that he would accept $14,450 for his property at the foot of Waterloo street, upon which it is the intention to erect an incinerator.

He added that the offer held good for 30 days only, and if the property was not secured by the city at the expiration of that time the offer would be withdrawn.

Mr. J. Cook, also owning property in the vicinity, offered to accept $800 for his lot. It is assessed now at $250.

The committee instructed Assessment Commissioner Grant to make a valuation of the property and report back to the committee. It is possible that expropriation proceedings will be taken.

More Piles for Breakwater.

Several accounts were presented from Mr. W. J. Anthistle, but on the advice of City Solicitor Meredith payment was withheld until the investigation into the walks is completed.

As there was no quorum present, merely routine business was transacted.

FAREWELL TO MISS NASH WHO GOES TO CHINA

Bishop Announces That Year
Has Been Important in Missionary Effort.

Miss Marjorie Nash, the South London young lady, who leaves tomorrow for Honan, China, where she will commence a missionary career under Bishop White, was tendered a farewell reception by the Women's Auxiliary in Cronyn Hall on Thursday evening.

The Bishop of Huron was chairman for the occasion, and in his opening remarks he pointed out that the present year had been a notable one in missionary history for the Anglican Church in Canada, no fewer than fourteen having been sent out to labor in the foreign fields in behalf of Christianity. The bishop stated that in sending Miss Nash to the foreign field they were only discharging a debt which the Christian world owed to the heathen races. The Christian races had undermined the past faith of the heathen, civilized brethren, and it was their duty to substitute the true religion in place of their former beliefs. God had also made them the guardians and distributors of his Word and to carry the same the world over.

Canon Tucker also spoke briefly on "China," which country he considered the fairest on earth, and the people among the foremost. In saying farewell to Miss Nash he expressed the hope that the young lady would carry on her chosen work with the peace and power of the gospel.

MRS. C. C. EASTLAKE DIED AT KINGSVILLE

Had Resided Around Ridgeway for Over Half a Century.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ridgeway, Oct. 31.—The death of a former well-known resident of Ridgeway, Mrs. Eastlake, was announced at the family residence, Kingsville, on Monday evening. Mrs. Eastlake was born on the McCully farm, near Rushton's Corners, in 1837, and was a resident of that district and Ridgeway until about twelve years ago, when she moved with her husband, who still survives her.

Deceased was a daughter of the late Sarah McCully, who died in London a few years ago at the age of 100 years. She is survived by five sons and two daughters—John, of Kingsville; Charles, of Ridgeway; Dr. L. F. of Chicago; Herbert, of Milwaukee; William, of Kansas City; Mrs. Charles Titus, of Detroit; Mrs. E. H. Lamb, of Ypsilanti.

Service was conducted at the home in Kingsville by Rev. Mr. McFarlane, of West Lorne, a former pastor of the Kingsville Baptist Church, and also officiated at the graveside in Greenwood Cemetery. The remains were brought to Ridgeway on the P. M. train today.

Many Changes To Be Made In Ontario Municipal Act

Two Years' Revision Cuts Down the Old Act By Many Sections—More Power for Railway Board—Election Act Changes.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—A revised municipal act is one of the promises in force for Ontario at the next session of the Legislature. Perhaps more than a revised act, the Government's bill is almost a new act, designed to be an improvement on the existing statute, simplified, clarified and made workable.

At the last session of the Legislature, Hon. W. J. Hanna, provincial secretary, introduced what purported to be a revision of the municipal act. The bill was given a first reading, and subsequently withdrawn, so that it might be placed in the hands of county and district court judges, solicitors and municipal officials for criticism and suggestion. The bill is now printed, and will be distributed within a few days. Those receiving a copy will be asked to send any observations they may have to make to Mr. W. B. Wilkinson, law clerk of municipal bills, so that they may receive consideration by Mr. Hanna before the bill is actually introduced.

Old Act Cut Down.

The revision represents the work of two years by expert draughtsmen specially engaged for the purpose, and, following the minister's instructions, the old act containing about 750 sections, including the numerous amendments since 1905, has been cut down to 538 sections, and at the same time incorporating a number of other acts and parts of acts which should more properly be included.

As the municipal act is practically a text-book to municipal officials, the object of the Government has been to make the procedure as simple and uniform as possible, and as nearly as may be to express the intention of the Legislature in language so that he who runs may read.

Among the many changes the following more important have been noted: To remove doubt in matters relating to annexation of territory as to what constituted a ratepayer the word "elector" is used throughout.

The occupant of land under an agreement of sale with the owner is deemed to be the owner, and the unpaid purchase money is to be deemed a mortgage.

Wherever power to acquire land for the purpose of the corporation is given, the power to expropriate is to be included.

Municipalities in districts are to be placed in the same position as municipalities in counties, except as to the amount of property qualification required. This gives widows and spinners possessing the necessary property qualification in a township in any of the districts the right to vote at municipal elections and on local option bylaws, etc. At present only males have the right to vote in municipalities formed in unorganized territory.

Railway Board.

The power to erect a village or town into a city, which is now possessed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council, is to be transferred to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, as is also the power to separate a junior township from a union of townships in an unorganized territory, and the senior township is made liable to creditors for all debts of the union.

A change has been introduced providing that all bylaws conferring rights, privileges, franchises, immunities or exemptions on a factory in a territory which is detached from one municipality and added to another, shall remain in force.

Where a village is incorporated, or territory is detached from one and added to another municipality, the taxes for the current year belong to the municipality from which the territory is detached.

The property qualification for candidates for aldermen in cities in unorganized territory is fixed at $400 if freehold, and $800 if leasehold.

Election Act.

Changes in the election act provide that where a candidate is unable, through illness or absence, to file a declaration of qualification, any person who knows the facts may make the declaration for him if he believes the candidate will accept office, if elected. Returning officers and deputy returning officers are made conservators of the peace, and are given power to cause, by verbal order, the arrest of any person causing a disturbance on election day. Where a voter cannot speak English, an interpreter may be employed, and, if an interpreter cannot be found, the person is not to be allowed to vote. The provisions dealing with offences relating to ballot papers and documents connected with the election have been adapted from the election act which have jurisdiction over it. Proceedings begun by one council may be continued and completed by a succeeding one.

The power to license a trade, business or calling includes with it the power to prohibit the carrying on of such trade without a license. The action of the board of police commissioners in refusing or revoking a license cannot be questioned in any court.

A corporation expropriating land may, on paying into the high court a sum sufficient in the opinion of the judge to satisfy the compensation, enter upon the land, and the judge may issue his warrant to the sheriff in case any resistance is offered.

The provision giving the board of police commissioners in cities of over 10,000 power to prohibit the posting up or distribution of posters which in the opinion of the board or any officer are indecent has been amended by striking out all reference to "the opinion" of the officials.

A change has been made in the highway sections to provide that the freehold of every highway shall be vested in the municipality or municipalities which have jurisdiction over it. Every municipality shall have jurisdiction over the highways in it unless that jurisdiction has been conferred upon another council.

Power is given to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board to approve of forms of bylaws, notices and other proceedings, and every form so approved shall not be open to objection on the ground that it does not conform with the provisions of the act. This removes the danger of technical objections interfering with municipal management.

LIBERAL LEADER SPEAKS ON EMPIRE

Mr. Rowell Traces Development of the Imperial Conference.

CENTRAL UNIFYING BODY

All Sections of the Empire To Be Drawn Together Through Co-operation.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—Before the Empire Club yesterday Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., M. P. P., gave a lucid address on the Imperial Conference. He traced the history of the movement from the first Colonial Conference in 1887 until the formation of the first Imperial Conference in 1911, and suggested the line of development that the imperial idea would probably take in the future.

In opening, Mr. Rowell pointed out that the question of imperial organization was one that was occupying a larger place in the public mind today than it ever perhaps did. There were four constitutions or forms which the Imperial Conference might take.

First, the older idea was that the self-governing Dominions, in time to be represented in the Imperial House of Commons and in the House of Lords, and that the present Imperial Parliament, with this representation, would constitute the real legislative body for the whole Empire in dealing with matters of imperial concern. This idea was presented by Mr. Chamberlain to the Colonial Conference of 1902, although he stated he preferred the creation of a real council of the Empire, to which all questions of colonial interest might be referred. These ideas, which might be described as the centralizing of authority in London, were both abandoned in favor of some more modern conception. The conference was unanimously against Mr. Chamberlain's first proposal, and since that day it has not been proposed by any responsible statesman of Great Britain or any of the self-governing Dominions.

Imperial Defence.

The second form was that of the new Imperial Parliament of defence, which was presented by Sir Joseph Ward at the Imperial Conference of 1906. That was mainly a parliament which would deal solely with imperial concerns of defence and foreign policy. It would contain representatives of the mother country and of the self-governing Dominions, and would be the legislative body of the whole empire for the purposes for which it was constituted, and should have power to impose taxation. The proposal was practically unanimously rejected by the Imperial conference of 1911, some opposing it on the ground that it was premature, others that the proposal was one which was not in the best interests of the empire.

The third idea was that the present Imperial conference constituted the nucleus of an organization which might prove in time the real Imperial organization for dealing with matters of imperial concern.

The Imperial conference itself was a development from the colonial conference, and the progress so far made in practical methods of co-operation was one of the best evidences of the possibilities which lay in this conference, and just as the British cabinet system was evolved on the British system of government to meet the needs of government in Great Britain, so this conference might gradually evolve into the real organ of government for the whole empire.

Central Body.

The fourth form of organization is that the committee on imperial defence should be the central and unifying body for the forces of the empire, upon which the mother country and all the self-governing Dominions should be represented, and that this should gradually work out to be the organ of government for the empire.

One having been rejected years ago, the other having been rejected last year, the latter two are most likely to prove the real basis of Imperial organization in the further development of the scheme.

Contrasting the conference and the defence committee, Mr. Rowell pointed out that on the former Great Britain and the self-governing Dominions would each have one vote, while on the latter the mother country would, of course, have the preponderance of representation. The Imperial conference is organized to deal with subjects of common interest; the imperial defence committee is limited to matters of defence and foreign policy.

The result of this active co-operation in the past has been to draw the empire more closely together. "As we have worked together," said Mr. Rowell, "truly loyal and imperial sentiment has been increasingly developed, has been developed, not only in Canada, but in all parts of the empire."

FLOWERS DECORATE C. P. R. STATIONS

Regular Distribution of Seeds and Bulbs to Station Agents in Canada.

Twenty-three years ago the stations along the Canadian Pacific Railway from one end of the system to the other, commencing at St. John and traversing its length to Vancouver were in a semi-state of wilderness, and this continued until the inauguration of the Floral Department, which has its headquarters in Montreal, and every year since that time the station agents along the line have taken more and more interest in the decoration of their stations until they have attracted considerable attention from outside sources. Every year the Floral Department devotes much time to the sending out of numerous packages of seeds, perennials, shrubs, plants and bulbs, according to the season of the year. Thousands of packages are distributed all over the system, and the plots of land adjoining the stations not in use are cultivated and the seeds planted, well watered, and in due course the station instead of presenting a dismal appearance, forms one of the joys to the weary traveller as he alights from the train and his eyes rest on the delightful bit of garden scenery. The gardens along the C. P. R. have become famous, and in some places vacant plots have been transformed into miniature parks. The station agent is encouraged in this direction as much as possible, the company taking as much pride in the cultivation as the station agent himself, and prizes are offered for the best garden along the system. But the cultivation of flowers does by no means end here, the delightful, sweet-smelling beauties of nature are even to be found among the grimy roundhouses and many other places, where one would never dream of finding them, so thoroughly is the work of distribution carried out, that every one is encouraged to cultivate a taste for nature's beauties. The Saskatoon Sun of recent date contains the following: Among the prettiest lawns in the city are those on the east and west side of the C. P. R. station. Much credit is due to the company, who provide such a pretty sight for travellers on their line, and to the gardener who keeps the two little parks in such perfect trim. The grass is as fresh as if it were just making its first appearance in the spring, and the flowers have not yet begun to lament the coming of winter. On the east side of the station the lawn is bordered by a row of trees, also a row of trees along the south side, while in the corner between these two is a small grove of trees edged with flowers. Then there are two circular flower beds, flanked with crescent-shaped plots in which sweet alyssum and lobelias are used for bordering with red and pink geraniums in the centre. On the other side of the station the lawn is bordered by a row of trees, then a row of shrubs, and inside of that a row of flowers. Sweet alyssum, nasturtiums and phlox are the most prominent flowers in this border. One large circular bed in the centre, and two long, narrow beds have a good showing of gladioli, corn flowers and phlox. And all this sum-

POCKET COINS AID MANY DUELLISTS

M. Dorcières Describes Some of the Combats He Has Refereed.

SOME NARROW ESCAPES

Crack Shots Foiled by a Sou or Penknife Left in Pockets.

Paris, Oct. 31.—Under the title "On the Field of Honor," M. E. Rouzier-Dorcières is writing in the Quotidien a few reminiscences of duelling drawn from a store collected in the more than two hundred encounters he has directed. This week he treats of "the little trifles" of a duel.

"Your principal, monsieur, has nothing in his pockets, trousers, waistcoat or coat, which could form even a partial protection. Would you be kind enough to make sure of this point to which I have the honor of drawing your attention?"

This is the kind of phrase by which the director of a pistol duel who knows his business recommends the seconds to see that the adversaries have kept nothing in their pockets, no watch, purse, handkerchief, which could stop the bullet that may soon come. Many a duel has been falsified in its result by not carrying out this regulation in the letter. "No one has more reason to be glad of it than I," writes M. Rouzier-Dorcières, "since on more than one occasion this negligence has saved a man's life in duels at which I have presided."

SAVED BY A MEDAL

"Of course, you know the story of Prince Napoleon's pistol duel with Count de la Valette. The two principals reached the Bois de Boulogne one autumn morning and were placed, with their pistols duly loaded, at 25 paces from one another. When the word 'fire' was given the two reports were heard at the same second. The count missed his adversary, but was seen to strike as if he had received a severe blow from a fist. The seconds rushed towards him and on examination it was found that the count had received the prince's bullet just at the height of the liver, but that it had struck a coin in his waistcoat pocket. The bullet was found embedded in the coin as if soldered there."

"My congratulations, monsieur; you keep your money well placed," said Prince Napoleon as, with a smile, he shook the count's hand. The pun is better in French; as the same word means 'placed' or 'invested,' the coin was indeed well invested."

PRINCE'S ODD HOBBY

IS DESIGNING DRESSES

Emperor William's Fourth Son Exhibits Work in Art Galleries.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—Emperor William's fourth son, Prince August William, has for his hobby the designing of women's dresses, domestic furniture and interior decorations.

At an exhibition in the Hohenzollern art galleries the prince displays a number of photographs of ladies and gentlemen of the Berlin court clad in costumes designed by himself and fashioned under his supervision. His ideas for summer costumes for ladies and gentlemen next year are shown on a lampshade which is so constructed that the light, passing through the shade, gives the dress materials the proper tone.

Designs for Furniture.

Last year the prince exhibited elegant designs for furniture and also table decorations.

Prince Frederick Leopold, a nephew of the emperor, also shows drawings of ladies' costumes designed by himself.

In the exhibition, which is one of the most remarkable Berlin has ever seen, are costumes worn at various periods through all the centuries.

Countess Zu Dohna and other members of the court circle, German royalty and the nobility have lent most picturesque costumes which have been preserved in their private museums or in ancient chests, many being the robes worn by ladies of the court in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

Crown Prince William and the crown princess made one of their bustling visits to Berlin the other day to hear Caruso and to inspect the completed models and sketches for their new palace, which is building near Potsdam. German critics score the prince's plans. They claim that he is creating an enormous complex palace on lines only suitable for an English shooting box or a Queen Anne cottage.

Emperor Not Interested.

It is asserted that the emperor has refused to take the slightest interest in the plans and has not even looked at them.

But the emperor's taste in architecture does not suit the Russians. St. Petersburg is laughing at the new German embassy just opened to public gaze on the Admiralty shore. People there say they never before saw anything so ugly. When the plans were sent in for the city's approval they were refused on account of the ugliness. St. Petersburg is built in the classic style and the embassy plans showed such a mixture of futurism and modernism that architects shuddered.

What was the mayor's astonishment when Premier Stolypin gave him a gentle hint that the plans must be approved, because Emperor William drew them himself and would be fearfully offended if St. Petersburg refused to have the building in that beautiful city. So the mayor gave in and now the town looks to scoff at the German emperor's ideas.

"Of course you think very carefully about what you are going to say in a speech," "Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "you want to be cautious about thinking too carefully. You are liable to discover arguments that are not on your side of the question."

ALFRED TURNER TELLS OF SEEING STEAD'S SPIRIT

General Says Titanic Victim Talked With Occultist at Seance.

London, Oct. 31.—Gen. Sir Alfred Turner, K. C. B., published his autobiography a week ago. Having been on the Nile expedition of 1884-85, commander-in-chief in Ireland in 1885-86, and commissioner of police in Cork, Kerry, Clare and Limerick from 1886 to 1892, when enthusiastic Nationalists thirsted for his blood, he has much of interest to say.

But until this week the general, who is well known in London society and in literary, artistic and dramatic circles, has never published anything of his experiences in occultism.

He now writes a column in Vanity Fair in which he says, "I have made a serious study of the occult nearly all my life, and for the last twenty years I have devoted much thought and time to the investigation of the subject, in which I was closely associated with a dear and valued friend, the late W. T. Stead."

Sir Alfred writes: "On the Sunday morning following the wreck of the Titanic I visited a lady who has great powers of clairvoyance to endeavor to obtain information regarding him from over the border. I may here say that the clairvoyant knew nothing whatever of my acquaintance with Mr. Stead."

"After a few moments she saw a figure standing behind me which she described exactly as Stead, and said that he looked quite calm and happy and was holding a little girl by the hand. He could not manifest to me directly in any way."

"I at once communicated what I had seen to Cambridge House, Wimbledon, where I was to have met him in the flesh on May 11, and I was informed in reply that an apparition of our friend exactly similar to that described to me and holding a child in his hand had been seen at Cambridge House."

"A few days later I held a small seance at my own house; the sitters were all serious and long experienced occultists. We had hardly commenced when Mr. Stead's voice, well known to every one present, was heard; he remained speaking to us for a considerable time, but did not materialize."

He expressed various wishes to a lady from Cambridge House, who had been his private secretary, and he then described to us his transition from this world to the next, which to him, beyond a short struggle as the spirit left the body, was but a little more than passing from one place to another—as might be expected with confidence in the case of one for whom death had no terrors and who regarded it as the means of passing to a world better in every sense than this.

"A few days later I attended a seance at Cambridge House on the appointed evening. Mrs. Wright, the wonderfully gifted American medium, was present. On this occasion our friend did not speak, but he showed himself twice to us for less than a minute each time."

And His Stomach Is All Right

"Thousands With Poor Teeth Have Good Digestion by Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets After Meals."

Whether or not we eat too much is a matter for individual judgment. Benjamin Franklin tried the experiment of living on a handful of raisins. But he discovered that the question wasn't what he ate nor the quantity thereof, but one of digestion and assimilation. The normal person eats heartily, and with keen enjoyment. That is because his mind doesn't anticipate trouble. And if he does have an attack of sour stomach or indigestion he knows that the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give quick relief.

A Gentleman of the "Old School" Who Keeps Up With the Times.

Many people have poor teeth, weak gums, sore teeth and other bothersome troubles that prevent a vigorous assimilation of food. And instead of eating soft, mushy food that palls on the appetite, they go in for those savory dishes, the very odor of which starts the saliva and makes the stomach fairly revel with anticipation.

This is but a natural condition. Anything else burdens upon the indifferently healthy, fosters indigestion and chronic dyspepsia.

It may be safely said that it should not be a question of diet or kind of food, or teeth or even any of the reflexes which are supposed to have their influence in deranging the stomach. It is simply a matter of supplying the stomach and digestive organs with those known assistants as pepsin and hydrochloric acid, both of which have a direct and powerful action upon the contents of the stomach.

One grain of a single ingredient in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food. This saves your stomach and gives it the rest it needs. All muscles require occasional rest if they are ever over-taxed. The stomach is no exception to this rule.

Try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and you will wonder how you ever got along without them. They are sold at 50 cents by all druggists everywhere.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Critic Criticized.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

In his criticism of the London people who have opposed the Boy Scout movement, it has pleased Mr. George F. Copeland, as reported in The Advertiser, to make some absurd statements.

That we are "always ready to jump on any plan that is calculated to put ginger, grit and spirit into a lad," and that we "appear to believe that these qualities are only present in soldiers and cannot be attained by a civilian without inducing the martial spirit." Now, really, Mr. Copeland takes himself and his plan much too seriously.

Every morning before eight o'clock there come to my house two delivery boys, the one with a newspaper, the other with milk. That will go on all through the winter. Here are two jobs that will put "ginger, grit and spirit" into these boys, and at Christmas I intend to show my appreciation of their possession of these qualities. There are hundreds of boys in the City of London who show ginger, grit and spirit in their ordinary occupations, which is the most sensible and useful way to show and employ these qualities without the fuss and feathers and showy pretentiousness that go with the Boy Scout movement. Evidently Mr. Copeland has, as the saying is, another thing coming on this matter.

Mr. Copeland contrasts unfavorably the citizens of London in general with certain Torontoians—"such men as Col. Gooderham, Capt. Wilson and others." Now I do not know what may be the virtues of the "others" here referred to, but with a fairly good knowledge of Toronto, I am unable to see that the gentlemen definitely named are of such surpassing excellence that we need worry over the fact that we are not like them. Moreover, use Toronto spirit, as it usually manifests itself in regard to any ideas or movements of an imperialistic nature, is the very last kind of spirit that any other city should seek to emulate if it wishes to retain a reputation for sense and sobriety of judgment.

The monstrous selfishness of its protected interests, the jingoistic braggadocio of its professional militarists, and the ignorance and racial prejudices of too many of its citizens, combine to produce a very noisy and blustering sentiment which passes with the thoughtless outside observer as high imperial patriotism, but which after all is but a base counterfeit. That London in this regard is not like Toronto—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmless, sure, its certain, unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.
