BERLIN ADMITS LINE PIERCED BY RUSSIANS IN GALICIA

First Front of Von Linsingen Has Been Broken.

Sweep of Grand Duke in Armenia Proving Irresistible.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, July 25.—Via London, 4:35 p.m.—Russian troops succeeded in penetrating the German first line on a small part of the front defended by the troops under command of Gen. Von Linsingen, according to the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff.

CLOSE TO ERZINGAN.

[Canadian Press.]
Petrograd, July 25.—Via London, 4:05 p.m.—Some Russian detachments already have reached positions about ten miles from the Turkish fortified town of Erzincan, in Armenia, says the Russian official statement given out here today, which says:

"Caucasus front: The Turkish armies are retreating in disorder before the irresistible pressure of our troops. Some of our gallant detachments are already 15 verst (about ten miles) from the town of Erzincan, in Central Armenia, in which, according to the reports of our aviators, the Turks are hurriedly preparing all kinds of provisions."

THE GERMAN STATEMENT.

[Canadian Press.]
Berlin, July 25.—Via London, 4:45 p.m.—The text of the German official statement dealing with the eastern front was:

"Attacks by weak Russian detachments southeast of Tiflis and by Russian patrols on the Dvina were repulsed.

"Army group of Gen. Von Linsingen: Enemy attacks on the front south of Stenokovka and on the front south of Berestechko, succeeded over a small front in penetrating our first line of defence.

"West of Burkanov, a Russian aeroplane was shot down in an aerial fight.

"Balkan theatre: There is nothing to report."

TRADE BLACKLIST TO OPERATE ONLY AGAINST HOSTILES

Cecil Declares Americans Are Laboring Under Misapprehension.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 25.—4:15 p.m.—Replying to questions in the House of Commons, Lord Robert Cecil, minister of war trade, said today that the American press criticism of the British blacklist was based largely on misapprehension. The act under which the statutory list of American firms was issued, he said, was passed last December, and lists referring to most of the neutral countries already had been published. No provisions of the act, he added, unduly stringent.

Only Hostile On List.

The French law, the minister said, provided that all persons of "enemy nationality, wherever living, were enemies of France, and that it was illegal to trade with them."

In the British case, only persons who had shown themselves hostile to this country, were put on the list.

Neither did Great Britain seek by these lists to interfere with the freedom of action of neutral citizens, Lord Robert said. It sought only to secure that British goods and credit be not used for the support and enrichment of those actively assisting England's enemies.

If any persons were unjustly included in the lists, the minister said, their names would be removed, and great care would be taken in applying the law to existing contracts. He was informed that Germany had taken similar action.

EXTRA

CLOUD BURST FLOODS ALL THE DOWN TOWN STREETS CAUSING HEAVY DAMAGE

Inundates Whole City, Pavements Being Covered by Many Feet of Water That in Places Climbed Beyond Hubs of Autos—Wire Services Interrupted.

A cloudburst which dropped over London at 2 o'clock this afternoon made Dundas street look as though the River Thames had been diverted into the main thoroughfare.

While the sky was livid with intense flashes of lightning which seemed to fill the air, a perfect torrent of swirling water was whirled along in a 40-mile gale.

Although the rain seemed needle fine a tremendous volume of water fell. It was said by old residents that it was such a cloudburst that caused the July flood. (Reporter just assigned to take a look at the river and London West asks for a bathing suit.)

Streets Swept by Floods.
The stream swept along both sides of all paved streets. Automobiles were buried hub deep in water. Business was suspended, excepting a very active business with brooms on the part of merchants who endeavored to sweep back the flood. One might as well try to confine Niagara Falls in a rain pipe. There was wild beauty in the storm, so our poetic reporter told us. Unlameable was a better word. Wash basins on the second floor were throwing up spurts of water from the overflowing sewers.

Looked Like Neptune.
At 2:45 Peter Taff of the street cleaning department, passed The Advertiser on the opposite sidewalk. The water was above his knees and Peter looked like Father Neptune.

Electricity flashed around linotype machines in The Advertiser, and the printers stopped getting out the great evening Journal in double-quick order. If your paper is late, blame Jupiter Pluvius, who is the original crab.

Serious results from the storm are believed to be confined to the wholesale flooding. So far, no lightning strikes have taken effect, at least so far as The Advertiser has learned. All wire services are crippled, as well as the street railway.

MANY FIRES FOLLOW IN WAKE OF STORM

First Congregational Church Spire, Garage on King Street and Other Places Fired by Lightning—Two Other Churches Struck.

During the progress of the afternoon storm the steeple of the First Congregational Church, between Waterloo and Colborne streets, was struck and fired by lightning.

The very tip of the spire blazed up like a gigantic match that had been thrown into the sky. From downtown streets the fire was an inspiring one, though a most peculiar one at the same time.

The loss was slight and confined to the tower.

The garage of Dr. F. L. Wood, King street, was struck and fired. The building was completely gutted.

The automobile was safely removed, but all other contents were destroyed.

At 3:18 Waterloo street, a limb falling across power wires caused a short circuit and fire, that resulted in an alarm being turned in to fire headquarters.

A call to Dundas Centre Church sent the fire truck on a wildgoose chase. Although careful search was made, no fire or damage could be found on the premises.

A tree at the rear of Sumner's drug store, Dundas street, was struck. It crashed through a glass door and knocked down a shelf of bottles.

Adelaide Street Church Struck.
Windows were broken in Adelaide Street Baptist Church. A bolt struck a fence at the rear of the Sunday school.

The lightning struck a tree between residences of Henry Jenkin and Peter Metcalfe, on William street, between King and Dundas streets, and lifted it bodily into the street. Wires were torn down and traffic impeded.

On Dundas street several trees, particularly in the vicinity of Colborne street, were torn down, and limbs were scattered everywhere.

Garage Ripped Off.
At the McCormick manufacturing plant in London East the high wind tore the roof completely from the garage and for a time fears were entertained that the basement would be flooded.

No damage was done by lightning, one tree near the asylum though being split asunder with the lightning.

KEG KNOCKED FROM HANDS; MEN ARE SLIGHTLY SHOCKED

George Ryan, driver of a Sheddin Forwarding Company lorry, and James Mitchell, shipper at the D. H. Howden wholesale hardware, had a narrow escape from death when a keg of steel, being handled by them, was knocked from their hands by lightning. Mitchell had just handed the keg to the forwarding company's employee when the lightning struck the keg knocking it to the ground.

Both sustained slight shocks.

TREES STRUCK IN ALL SECTIONS OF THE CITY

Split and Hacked Down as If by Gigantic Knives in Many Parts, and Bring Wires Down With Them.

Trees in all sections of London were struck down by lightning, and split and hacked as if by gigantic knives. Many of the falling trees carried down electric light, telephone, telegraph and fire alarm wires, with the result that short-circuits and burned-out wires were common. One tree, in front of the residence of J. H. Fowler, William street, was struck and split in two. From all parts of the city came reports of the heavy damage done to shade and fruit trees.

MEMBERS OF FAMILY STUNNED BY SHOCK

Members of the family of Drs. H. A. and W. J. Stevenson, next door to the First Congregational Church, when was struck by lightning this afternoon, were stunned by the bolt that struck the church.

The telephones both in Mayor Stevenson's office and in that of Dr. W. J. Stevenson's were put out of commission.

Dr. W. J. Stevenson declared that the water pressure was hardly such, when the fire department commenced their fight to save the church, that it would not lift more than 18 feet in the air.

ROPE SEEMED LIKE REAL "LIVE" WIRE

A rope from the banner calling for recruits for No. 1 Construction Battalion, strung across Dundas street, near Richmond, gave several hundreds a bad scare while the storm was at its height. The driving rain gave the rope the appearance of a trolley wire struck down by lightning, and as it was apparently "grounded" in the flood of water on the street, the whole section was given a wide berth.

YORK STREET FLOODED TO STATION PLATFORM

York street, from the steps of the warehouse of D. H. Howden & Co., was completely covered with water to the express platform of the Canadian Express Company at the G. T. R. station across the road. Despite the closed doors in the parcel room and G. T. R. baggage room, water found its way in through the cracks.

STANDS FOR GARDEN PARTY BLOWN OVER

Stands for the garden party, which was to have been held at the St. Mary's Church this evening, were blown over by the storm and the electric light wires, strung for illuminating purposes were rendered nothing but a tangled mass. It was impossible to do anything with the wires and broken stands, and the garden party was called off.

SEWER "SHOOT" WATER 40 FEET INTO RIVER

The Richmond street sewer, tapping a considerable outlet of the city's sewage, was shooting water 40 feet into the river, following the tremendous rush of rain water.

Residents of the section complained bitterly that the sewer was poorly constructed, its outlet being compressed, with the result that the backing up of the water was greater than it should have been.

RIVER ONLY SIX INCHES HIGHER NOW

The River Thames was hardly half a foot higher than normal at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The heavy rise will come later in the evening, when the creeks and sewers start to pour in the flood-water that is rushing through them now. Considerable apprehension is felt, in certain quarters, of a flood, for if the storm of this afternoon has been a general one, the river will be taxed with an unprecedented volume of water.

HUNDREDS OF BIRDS WERE ELECTROCUTED

Hundreds of birds were electrocuted by the wires on which they were roosting being struck. In front of St. Andrew's Church the pavement was strewn with dead robins and sparrows.

PRESENT DRIVE JUST BLOODING OF HAIG'S ARMY

High British Official Says Real Advance Commences Next Spring.

MILLION VETERANS THEN

German Losses in Battle of Jutland Declared Very Heavy.

MAY ATTACK DENMARK

Berlin Is Believed About To Invade the Little Kingdom.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 25.—A Washington dispatch to the Herald says:

In a letter just received here from a high official of the British Government, it is set forth that whatever comment the Germans make concerning the present Allied drive in the western front it now is only a temporary push.

The real drive, it was said, will not come before April or May, 1917.

"It is a mistaken idea that this is a drive that will end the war," wrote this official. "We are just blooding the new army, killing plenty of Germans in the effort and gaining ground. By next year we shall have a million more seasoned men who will know what war is. Reports continue to reach me that the German losses in the great Jutland battle were far heavier than were reported. We are certain that they lost the Kaiser and the Kronprinz, two of the newest super-dreadnoughts of the German empire, which were built since the war began."

Deceived by Rulers.
"There is at least a feeling in Germany among the working classes that they have been deceived by their rulers. Also I want you to remember this: The Germans are ready for a movement on Denmark. There have been many outward symptoms of it. Don't forget Herr Ballin's work. 'We don't mind how much gold we pay to Denmark, as we can always go and fetch it back whenever we wish to do so.'"

BOWLING TOURNAY OFF TILL TOMORROW

The bowling tournament ends that were to have been played this afternoon have been postponed until tomorrow morning, commencing at 9 o'clock, when the same rinks that were to have played today will play then.

The games have been cut down to fifteen ends for the forenoon.

STRIKES CROSSING RIPPING UP TIES

Lightning struck between the tracks of the C. P. R. Waterloo street crossing, ripping the plank sidewalk and tearing the ties for some yards. The rails were not damaged.

Marooned On Pavement.
While the storm was relaxing, a woman was caught between two great streams near The Advertiser office, being marooned on the bare pavement. Finally in desperation she plunged through the water over her boot tops.

Rubber boots and brooms were in demand. Everyone got busy, and several men were out in their bare feet, one of them a well-known merchant.

MILITARY CAMP SUFFERS HEAVILY; MANY TENTS DOWN

London's military camps at Carling Heights and at the 160th lines in the Grosvenor camp, suffered heavily from the storm. The big Y. M. C. A. tent on Oxford street was blown over. The Advertiser camp branch office suffered a like fate, while many of the concession tents along the street were laid flat.

In the regimental lines the amusements and canteen tents were lowered by the storm. Many of the bell tents of the men were knocked flat, while the whole camp area can best be characterized by calling it "one big lake."

No reports of anyone being struck have been received.

At the camp hospital many of the patients were chased out of their tents by the rush of water. The quartermaster's stores of the No. 1 A. M. C. Trenching Depot, in charge of the Field Hospital, were flooded.

Germans Chased From the Trenches to the North of Vermandovillers.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, July 25.—Noon.—On the south bank of the River Somme yesterday evening French troops captured a block of houses south of Estrees and drove the enemies out of trenches north of Vermandovillers, says the French official statement issued this afternoon.

The text of the French official statement follows:

"South of the Somme yesterday, we captured in a small attack south of Estrees, a group of powerfully fortified houses. Our troops chased the Germans from some trenches north of Vermandovillers, and occupied them."

"Between the Oise and the Aisne we dispersed with grenades several reconnoitring parties which attempted to reach our lines in the sector of Tracy-Le-Val."

"On the left bank of the Meuse, an enemy attack with hand grenades against Hill 304 failed. Pier machine gun fire. On the right bank there was violent bombardment in the region between Fleury and Laufex."

"In Alsace after artillery preparation, the Germans delivered an attack upon our Balschwiller positions northwest of Altkirch. After lively fighting the enemy was driven out from some elements of the trenches, where they had gained a foothold."

"On July 22, Sub-Lieut. Nungesser brought down his tenth German aeroplane. On the night of July 24-25, one of our aeroplane squadrons bombarded the railroad stations at Pierrepont and Longuyon and the bivouacs near Mangiennes."

Between the Oise and the Aisne, several German patrols were dispersed near Tracy-Le-Val.

On the left bank of the Meuse, in the Verdun region, there was grenade fighting at Hill 304.

On the right bank of the Meuse a violent cannonading was in progress at Fleury and La Laufex.

A German attack on the French positions at Baschwiller, in Alsace, is claimed to have failed.

Sub-Lieut. Nungesser of the French Aviation Corps, brought down his tenth aeroplane.

DEUTSCHLAND READY BUT CANNOT DEPART

[Canadian Press.]

Baltimore, July 25.—"Circumstances and conditions over which we have no control are keeping us in Baltimore."

Thus did Captain Koenig, commander of the German merchant submarine Deutschland, explain his presence in Baltimore today, when asked what is delaying his sailing. What these "circumstances and conditions" are, however, he would not even hint.

Loaded with crude rubber and nickel and it is believed, with a large consignment of gold, the Deutschland lies at her pier all ready to start.

Following were the highest and lowest temperatures recorded in London during the 24 hours previous to 8 o'clock last night: Highest, 75; lowest, 63. The official temperatures for the 12 hours previous to 8 a.m. today were: Highest, 81; lowest, 64.

Haig's Official Report States British Have Captured Major Portion of Village After Furious Fighting, and Gain Some Ground Beyond.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 25, 3:05 p.m.—The British troops have captured the greater part of the village of Pozieres, says the British official statement issued this afternoon. The Germans brought up reinforcements of infantry and guns, but the counter-attacks everywhere, the statement adds, were repulsed by the British.

The text of the British statement follows:

"In the last few days the enemy brought further reinforcements of infantry and guns to the Somme front. Throughout yesterday the hostile bombardment was fairly continuous and at times became very heavy."

"An attempt to attack our right flank was made yesterday afternoon but it was frustrated by our artillery."

ALL ATTACKS STOPPED.
"Last night two further infantry attacks, preceded by a specially violent artillery fire, were launched against the centre of our line. These attacks also were stopped by the concentrated fire of our guns."

"At no place did the enemy succeed in reaching the British trenches, and his casualties in these fruitless attacks must have been severe. In other parts in the line there has been a good deal of hand-to-hand fighting, and our infantry worked their way forward in places."

"North of Pozieres, the greater part of which village now is in our possession, the enemy continued to offer strong opposition, but here also we gained some ground and captured two machine guns, and a few more prisoners, including two battalion commanders."

KAISER TELLS HIS SOLDIERS ENGLISH LAUNCHED WAR; SAYS THEY ARE CHIEF ENEMY

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 25.—A dispatch from Bern by way of Pontarlier, France given out today by the wireless press, says: "Another speech by Emperor William during his recent visit to the Somme front, is being discussed in Berlin. The emperor said:

"Comrades: It is your especial privilege to fight against the English, which means that you are fighting against a nation that has sworn to destroy Germany. The English built up during the years before the war the combination of countries, which at a given signal fell upon us, attacked us, the most peaceful and peace-desiring people in the world. The English led us to believe they were our friends when they were actually plotting our destruction."

"English diplomacy brought about the war, and now an English offensive is intended to carry the operations to German soil, into our towns and villages, to the peril and undoing of our helpless women and children. Your duty is to break the English offensive; to prove once more that Germany is invincible, and reduce to despair the relentless enemies of our country so that they will sue for peace on terms honorable and profitable to Germany."

"From conservative circles in Berlin comes the announcement that when the Reichstag reassembles in the autumn an interpellation will be addressed to the imperial chancellor asking why inspiring speeches by the emperor at the front are withheld from general publication?"

GENERAL DENISON FORMERLY SERVED ON LONDON STAFF

Famous Canadian, Now Retired, Was With R. C. R.

CHARGER STILL IN CITY

"Lady Betty" Is Link Between Barracks Here and General of South African Fame.

Brig-Gen. Septimus Denison, whose retirement from the Canadian militia with that rank, was promulgated in orders issued from Ottawa yesterday, was one of the best-known military men who ever held a command in this city. Prior to the South African war, Gen. Denison was attached to the Royal Canadian Regiment, at West End Barracks, this city, and left London with the 2nd Battalion of the R. C. R. to go to South Africa, where he served with such distinction.

"Lady Betty," the famous old mount of Brig-Gen. Denison and the horse that carried him through South Africa, is still here, the pet of the local garrison and camp.

The story of "Lady Betty," as related in The Advertiser of a week ago, is in part the story of her master. Both are now on the retired list, but the war record of the general stands out unique in the annals of Canadian military history.

Gen. Denison first served in the imperial service as a lieutenant of the 4th Battalion of the Staffordshire Regiment, which he joined in 1880, after his graduation from the Royal Military College at Kingston. Eight years later he retired from the Staffordshires, with the rank of major, to join the Royal Canadian Regiment.

Gen. Denison served as an aide-de-camp to the Marquis of Aberdeen when he was governor-general of Canada. During the South African war he served on the personal staff of the field marshal, Earl Roberts, and, as has been related in The Advertiser, it was on Gen. Denison's horse, the famous "Lady Betty," that a link between London and the new brigadier-general.

For his work in South Africa, Gen. Denison was mentioned twice in dispatches and was awarded the South African medal, King's and Queen's, with four clasps.

After serving with the R. C. R. at Halifax, the general was attached to the staff of the present King, then Duke of Cornwall and York, while the royal party toured in Canada in 1901.

In 1905 he was appointed general staff officer for Western Ontario, and in 1913 was made officer commanding the 4th military district, which included the headquarters at Montreal. In January of last year he was appointed general officer commanding military district No. 2 (Toronto), and seconded for service with the expeditionary force in Belgium.

Military officers of this district, while such a large part of the general's military career was spent, speak in the highest terms of his ability as a soldier, and the presence of "Lady Betty" will always be a link between London and the new brigadier-general.

PORT STANLEY FISHING INDUSTRY IN BAD STATE

Catches So Small That Tugs May Be Sold This Fall.

Port Stanley, July 25.—The fishing industry at Port Stanley is practically dead. The tugs and nets have been tied up all summer. Two tugs left dock this week to try the fishing areas, but returned with but a few pounds of fish. The bad streak started early in the spring and has kept up ever since. Running expenses have not been met on any trip this year, and the industry is in a bad state.

SECOND CHARGE LAID AGAINST HOUSEBREAKER

Self-Confessed Thief Accused of Stealing Jewelry.

A second charge of unlawful entry and theft was laid in police court today against George Moore of Baltimore, Md., who yesterday pleaded guilty to stealing jewelry from John Willis, Carlyle Trebilcock, optician, swore to the information. Moore will appear tomorrow morning on this additional charge.

The five diamonds and society buttons found on Moore by the police, in addition to the articles of jewelry owned by Mr. Willis, have been identified by Mr. Trebilcock as his property.

His house was entered sometime early Saturday morning, as he had noticed several things displaced when he returned, but had not reported the matter to the police.

Moore, who is at present in the county jail, is it is claimed, addicted to the drug habit, and in his desire to obtain the necessary "dose," it is believed, resorted to theft to procure money with which to purchase the drug.

LONDON LIQUOR MEN ASK NO CONCESSIONS

Not Following Toronto Lead to Request Extensions.

London wholesale liquor dealers propose asking no extension of time beyond September 15 in order to dispose of the stocks they have on hand.

In Toronto applications for extensions of this line, but local dealers will make no such requests to the Government, claiming that they will arrange their stocks that they will have no trouble when prohibition comes into effect.

"We will not doubt be forced to sacrifice to a certain extent, but we intend getting rid of the largest portion of our stock before prohibition becomes effective," said one of the dealers in discussing the action contemplated by the Toronto wholesalers.

"People are not buying the hard stuff during this hot weather the same as in cooler weather, and we are making provision to reduce our stock before prohibition. You might say this, though, that about the second week in September we expect the sales will reach an unprecedented figure, as many, we know, will store up an ample and sufficient supply for the long, dry spell ahead."

Although rains have been reported in practically all sections of Western Ontario, other than London, these motorists claim that the dust on some country roads is more than a foot thick.

APPEARS TOMORROW.—Arthur Drover, the former Barnardo home boy who was arrested on July 18, charged with a vicious assault on Mr. James Cushman of Melbourne, will appear before the Ontario court tomorrow afternoon for a preliminary hearing. Drover is only about fifteen years old, is alleged to have attacked Mr. Cushman, a well-known London merchant, and to have been previously to the attack on Mrs. Cushman, he claimed, attempted to assault his employer's wife.

FIGHT FOR LIBERTY, AVIATOR'S MESSAGE DROPPED ON BERLIN

Called on Germans To Cast Off Tyranny of Military Caste.

[Canadian Press.] Paris, July 25.—Lieut. Anselma Marchal, who recently flew over Berlin, throwing out proclamations as he passed, is 33 years old. After dropping the proclamations on the German capital, the aviator continued his flight to Russian Poland where he was forced by engine trouble to land inside the Teuton lines near Chelm, and was taken prisoner by the Austrians.

Lieut. Marchal received his pilot's license in 1910. He had been employed by German firms and had made frequent trips between Berlin and Cologne so that he was well acquainted with the country over which he flew. He was in Germany when the war broke out, but he was ordered to get back to France. Some of his relatives still are in Germany.

At first the pilot was attached to the Paris aerodrome depot. Afterward he was stationed at the military camp and took part in a number of bombing raids. He received the decoration of the Legion of Honor December 21, on the day of his capture. The marriage will take place shortly.

WEDDING BELLS

FLOWERS—MOONEY.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Mooney, 304 Grosvenor street, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Monday at high noon, when their daughter, Mabel Augusta, was united in marriage to L. William Flowers, of the city.

The bride, Miss Mabel Augusta, was beautifully gowned in a crepe de chine over cream tulle, with a crown of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The home was prettily decorated with arches and streamers of myrtle and sweet peas, presenting a beautiful setting for the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests set down to a dainty wedding breakfast, where the scheme of decoration was also of streamers and myrtle. Mr. and Mrs. Flowers departed in the early afternoon amid the congratulations of their friends for points west. Upon their return they will reside in London.

WHAT GERMANS CLAIM.

Berlin, July 25.—(Via London, 4:40 p.m.) The text of the German official statement reporting the operations on the western front says:

"North of the River Somme, after the unsuccessful British attack of July 22, the British and French forces yesterday made a resolute and combined attack on the Pozieres-Maubeuge front. It again broke down either through our fire, or in some places after sharp hand-to-hand fighting."

"East of the Pozieres at Fourcques Wood, near Longueval and near Guillemont, Brandenburger Grenadiers and two Saxon regiments again distinguished themselves."

"Simultaneously the French threw strong forces forward in a storming attack south of the Somme in the Estrees-Bocourt sector, which, however, only temporarily gained ground south of Estrees. Otherwise the attack was dispersed with the most severe and sanguinary loss to the enemy."

"In the Meuse region there were intense artillery duels from time to time. On the left bank of the river until the end of the day, the French launched several engagements, but the enemy's repeated attempts to recapture positions on the Froide Terre Ridge, he being repulsed by our certain of fire."

SAYS INDICATIONS POINT TO ULTIMATE VICTORY WITHIN SHORT TIME

Lieut. Joe Walters, Advertiser Reporter, Declares Officers Back From Front Are Sure of Speedy Victory, Though at Stupendous Cost of Men and Munitions of War.

Lieut. Joseph Walters, until his appointment as a platoon commander of the 31st (Bn) Battalion, a member of the editorial staff of The Advertiser, writes most interestingly of war time conditions in England following the start of the big drive. In a letter to a member of the staff he says:

"The 31st Battalion, C. E. F., is now tucked away safely 'somewhere in England,' (censor forbids name of camp) and at present your staff is at short notice, along with ten other officers of the unit, finding out what we do not know about musketry."

"So far we are into point to the front as such will soon be shattered. Every Canadian battalion since the 15th has been broken up and scattered to the four winds of heaven. They are sending them over in drafts, companies at a time, to fill in gaps in battalions already cut to pieces."

"Big Drive in Earnest."

"The long-talked-of 'big drive' is on in earnest. No more of your ahead ten yards and back ten yards. The Allies, according to the officers with whom I have talked on their return from months of service at the front, have at last reached the point where they can grip up their loins and smash through the Hun lines. These officers say that it will be a tough proposition and that the cost in lives and engines of war will be staggering. However, stupendous the effort those with the 'know' are confident of an ultimate victory in the near future."

"We said June 27 from Halifax on the Olympic. There were about 7,000 troops aboard, including our battalion, and although they were fighting 8 to 1 in new York that a sub would get us we didn't sight even a fishing smack on the trip across. The ocean was as pleasant as a millpond, and our trip really pleasant. The officers traveled first class, in the same luxury that John D. and Andy C. would revel in should they take the same trip."

"We disembarked the following Wednesday in Liverpool late in the afternoon, were rushed across England at top speed in two special trains, and are now encamped among the hills somewhere in the southeast. We can hear the guns booming almost intermittently."

Many Aircraft Present.

"Aircraft of all descriptions are continually present overhead. There have been several alleged air raids since our landing, but no damage of any account. I haven't seen 'Bat' Minihnick (Leopold) since he was shot down at the Station Hospital, and now at the Duchess of Connaught Canadian Hospital, who like Lieut. Walters, was an Advertiser reporter. He is with the C. A. S. C., and looks fit. He is to transfer to an infantry battalion. Lieut. Frank Miller is located a stone's throw from our camp. I am going to look him up tonight."

Nelson Port Wounded.

"Nelson Port, who went away with the first draft from the 7th Regiment under the command of Lieut. C. H. Scott, is back in England convalescing after receiving a shrapnel wound in the right arm."

Wonderful System in England.

"The English system of handling troops is wonderful. The sleeping and eating conditions, of course, are far better than in the trenches."

WEDDING BELLS

FLOWERS—MOONEY.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Mooney, 304 Grosvenor street, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Monday at high noon, when their daughter, Mabel Augusta, was united in marriage to L. William Flowers, of the city.

The bride, Miss Mabel Augusta, was beautifully gowned in a crepe de chine over cream tulle, with a crown of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The home was prettily decorated with arches and streamers of myrtle and sweet peas, presenting a beautiful setting for the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests set down to a dainty wedding breakfast, where the scheme of decoration was also of streamers and myrtle. Mr. and Mrs. Flowers departed in the early afternoon amid the congratulations of their friends for points west. Upon their return they will reside in London.

WHAT GERMANS CLAIM.

Berlin, July 25.—(Via London, 4:40 p.m.) The text of the German official statement reporting the operations on the western front says:

"North of the River Somme, after the unsuccessful British attack of July 22, the British and French forces yesterday made a resolute and combined attack on the Pozieres-Maubeuge front. It again broke down either through our fire, or in some places after sharp hand-to-hand fighting."

"East of the Pozieres at Fourcques Wood, near Longueval and near Guillemont, Brandenburger Grenadiers and two Saxon regiments again distinguished themselves."

"Simultaneously the French threw strong forces forward in a storming attack south of the Somme in the Estrees-Bocourt sector, which, however, only temporarily gained ground south of Estrees. Otherwise the attack was dispersed with the most severe and sanguinary loss to the enemy."

"In the Meuse region there were intense artillery duels from time to time. On the left bank of the river until the end of the day, the French launched several engagements, but the enemy's repeated attempts to recapture positions on the Froide Terre Ridge, he being repulsed by our certain of fire."

POISONOUS GAS KILLS 22 MEN AT CLEVELAND

Heavy Loss of Life by Explosion in New Waterworks Tunnel.

WORKERS WERE TRAPPED

Nine Men Brought Out by a Gallant Band of Rescuers.

SUPERINTENDENT KILLED

Accident Occurred a Hundred Feet Beneath Erie's Waters.

[Canadian Press.]

Cleveland, July 25.—Twenty-two men are dead and half a dozen others dying as the result of an explosion of gas in a waterworks tunnel five miles from shore underneath Lake Erie late last night. The dead include workmen who were trapped in the tunnel when gas exploded, and members of two rescue parties who attempted to save the men first trapped.

Of the dead eleven were trapped by the explosion. None of these escaped. The first rescue party consisted of seven men. Four of them perished and three were saved. The second rescue party consisted of eleven men, six of these lost their lives and five escaped. The first rescue party accomplished nothing. The second saved one of the first relief expedition. No one has yet reached any of the original eleven caught in the workings. Of the eight rescuers who got out alive two died later. The others may die. Two men were also overcome by fumes who did not go into the tunnel.

A third rescue party entered the tunnel at 8:30, and brought out alive Gustav C. Van Duzen, supervisor of waterworks construction, who had headed the second relief force. Van Duzen may die from his experiences. One body was also brought out by the third rescue party. This was a member of the second rescue crew. It had been supposed that Van Duzen had perished.

The tragic fate of the rescuers is the first and second instances was due to the fact that they worked without oxygen helmets, which were unavailable for use in attempting to resuscitate them. This lack of rescue apparatus was roundly condemned by the rescuers, and Mayor Davis today promised to conduct a rigid investigation into this shortcoming, as well as into the catastrophe itself.

The cause of the explosion has not yet been ascertained. It is supposed that some workman struck a pocket of gas with a pick, or possibly gas had collected in the tunnel and become ignited by an electric spark.

Side Show Wonder To Become British Army Instructor

Will Teach Armless and Legless Soldiers Use of Artificial Limbs.

When the Con T. Kennedy Shows appear here next week under the patronage of the Daughters of the Empire, one of their veteran performers will make his last appearance. He is known as "Determination" Murphy, the limbless wonder.

Years ago Murphy went to the Klondike, and, like hundreds of others, he had his arms and legs frozen, necessitating amputation of both legs and arms. Although most men would have given up hope, Murphy set to work and devised artificial limbs, by means of which he became as adept as most men who are under no physical handicap. He learned to do many things, and became a feature of the Kennedy Shows.

While in Toronto the shows were performing the benefit of the Irish Battalion, and a British officer, interested in the soldiers who have lost their legs and arms, saw what Murphy could do, with the result that he has been employed by the British Government as an instructor of the men who will have to use artificial limbs. Murphy will also devise artificial limbs for individual cases, and expects to enable the maimed men to do much for themselves.

He plays his last week in London, leaving for England immediately after.

TO PROSECUTE DOCTORS WHO FAIL TO REPORT

Chief Health Officer of Province Issues Warning Against Negligence.

Notwithstanding the cases of infantile paralysis reported from Toronto, Windsor and other cities in Ontario, none have yet been reported by any of the city doctors.

In Toronto several cases have come to light where doctors have neglected to report to the health board.

Dr. J. W. McCullough, chief officer of the provincial health board, as a consequence has issued a warning to all doctors throughout the province that neglect to immediately comply with this clause of the provincial health act will be followed by prosecution.

Inquiries today at the Health Institute showed an extremely satisfactory condition in this respect, as far as London doctors were concerned. Several years ago some of the doctors were warned because of laxness in reporting contagious diseases then existing, but in the past few years this condition has been different.

No trouble of this character has been brought to the notice of the city health officer lately, all doctors having reported cases promptly.

Fortunately this city has so far escaped the disease, which is raging with such terrible results in New York City.

At the first sign of the disease, city doctors will resort to the strictest measures to prevent its spread.

SEVERAL COUNTS AGAINST ROBLIN TO BE DROPPED

Judge Says Ministers Can Be Guilty On One Count Only.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, July 25.—J. B. Coyne, K.C., resumed this morning before Mr. Justice Prendergast his reply to the crown to the motion of the defence in the case of the ex-cabinet ministers that the indictment be quashed and the accused discharged. Mr. Coyne argued that the counts of the indictment were not vague and that all necessary particulars had been furnished to the defence. The judge told the counsel that accused could only be found guilty on one count, and on the charges involving William Salt.

"On finding against them is all the crown is looking for," replied Coyne. "It's all you can look for," replied the judge. Coyne stated that only one conspiracy charge and eight counts were put in to meet all contingencies. The judge stated that, subject to being converted by what Coyne counts, nine, ten, eleven and twelve or thirteen and fourteen.

TEUTONIC TROOPS MAKE STAND AGAINST RUSSIANS

Berlin Reports Attacks On Southern Volynia Front Stopped.

[Canadian Press.]

The statement follows:

"Russian front: The situation is unchanged. Russian attacks on the heights north of the Prispil Saddle, behind Lubaczowka (ten miles north-west of Berestechko) were repulsed. The East German approach of Russian detachments was frustrated by our artillery. North of the Dniester Austro-Hungarian troops carried out successful nocturnal surprise attacks. The Russian front: All attacks by the enemy have been repulsed. Our naval squadrons bombarded military establishments at San Giorgio, Dinagora, Gorfa and Montecore, causing fire to break out. Our aeroplanes returned undamaged."

SETTLEMENT ORDERED TO PAY EMPLOYEES

Carpenter Who Made Assignment Faces Non-Payment Charge.

Leonard Fitch, a carpenter, charged with non-payment of wages, appeared in police court this morning, and was ordered to make a payment with his employees within the next ten days.

Evidence tended to show that Fitch has issued checks to the men for the amounts due them, but the banks refused payment because of no funds. Fitch admitted owing the money, and said the bank had made payment on a draft that had so reduced his account that the balance was insufficient to meet the checks issued.

Fitch made an assignment Monday, and he said the amount would be paid by the assignee as a preferred claim.

COMMISSION ANNOUNCES SCALE OF ASSISTANCE TO DEPENDENTS OF DISABLED

Makes Sliding Scale and Provides for Vocational Training of Soldiers Not Only of C. E. F., but of Residents of Canada Serving in Allied Armies as Well.

Canadians are absolutely unanimous about one thing in this war—that justice and reparation must be secured for those who have suffered. The men who have volunteered to fight for us, while we have stayed safely home, these men, coming back shattered and torn, or with health in any way impaired by their service, must have reparation, and from us.

Our head as well as our heart, however, must be employed to devise a form of reparation that will really repair—that will as far as possible make up to these men what they have lost. From the beginning of the war it was recognized that a man offering his body to defend his country should have reparation for any injury his body might suffer in the carrying out of that task. A scale of pensions was adopted both for disabled soldiers and for their dependents, in proportion to the degree of disability. A revised scale, involving a large increase of expenditure, was lately agreed to by a parliamentary committee, and is already in force.

A pension alone, however, will not restore the injured man to his place as a citizen and useful member of the community, and that has got to be done by some means or other, both in the community's interest and in his own.

A very few of the injured will be found so totally helpless that this restoration is impossible. On the other hand, judging by our experience so far, a large proportion, in spite of their injuries, will still be fit for their former work. But between these two classes will be many men with intact physical handicapping them seriously in their old occupations or barring them out altogether.

Expect To Be Useful. Such men must not be condemned to perpetual uselessness. They would not thank us for that. They are not of the backboneless kind or they would hardly have thrown themselves into the war. They did not enlist to be coddled or spoon-fed, and they will not now. Having recovered their strength, they will naturally expect to use it. The question simply is, how?

To begin with, their disability can often be lessened by what is called "functional re-education." By special exercises, with or without the aid of the ingenious apparatus invented for the purpose, the muscles mutilated by wounds and operations, and weakened by compulsory disuse, can recover some of their strength and become more useful. Then, "vocational re-education," the men can be enabled to return to their original trade, or when that is impossible or undesirable, they can be helped to fit themselves for another occupation. There is no intention, by the way, to provide re-education for men who do not need it.

Pay for Training As Well.

The parliamentary committee decided that the cost not only of pensions and artificial limbs, but also of this vocational training should be paid by the Dominion Government.

The military hospitals and convalescent homes, which have been in operation since the war began, have given a great deal of consideration to the matter, and have taken steps to organize the training required in military and civilian life. The complete establishment of the system may be expected very soon; for the Government, by order-in-council, has adopted a report of the Military Hospitals Commission, of which we are enabled to give this summary:

The commission aims at benefiting the disabled members of the Canadian expeditionary force, but also disabled members of the British Empire, and of the British Commonwealth, who were bona fide residents of Canada when the war broke out. The commission has received the assurance that it will be of the active operation of the provinces and various municipalities in carrying out such a policy. Technical schools, agricultural schools, and industrial public institutions have agreed to receive disabled men for training, and many others have also received from private commercial establishments to provide training and subsequent employment when the men have become proficient.

Training Periods Vary. The period of training for a new vocational trade varies according to the previous education and industrial history of each individual. The cost of tuition will vary in consequence, and also owing to the fact that the cost of the tuition will be free or the fees nominal. The training will be free to the men in all cases. If there is any charge, it will be made by the Dominion Government.

The commission has already undertaken the provision of training in general subjects and elementary vocational work for all men under treatment in the various hospitals and convalescent homes operated by the commission, irrespective of whether or not such men will later be subjects for vocational training leading to new occupations. In a few cases, arrangements have also been made for that special training.

The commission has no alternative, ever, to put into operation a general scheme of vocational training until a scale of maintenance could be arranged for the men undergoing the training and for their dependents. The commission has therefore prepared a scale under which a small sum for personal expenses is granted to the men undergoing training, while provision on a sliding scale is made for married men and their dependents, and for those unmarried men who may have persons legally dependent upon them.

Scale To Be Used.

Here is the scale which the commission has now been empowered to establish. It will be understood throughout that "maximum age" means 16 for a son and 17 for a daughter:

1. A single man, with pension, living in his own home, and with no other dependents, receives free maintenance; that is, board, lodging and washing.

2. A single man, with pension, living out—60c a day.

3. A married man, with pension, living in his own home, and with no other dependents, receives free maintenance and 8c a month, with the following additions:

For wife having no children, $35 a month, less her husband's pension.

For wife and one child, if child is under five, $38; from five to ten years, $39.50; from 10 to maximum age, $42.50; less, in every case, the amount of husband's pension and children's allowances under the pension regulations.

For wife and two children, from $41 to $47 a month (less pension and allowances) according to age of children.

For wife and three children—$44 to $50 a month (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

For wife and four children—$47 to $53 (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

For wife and five children—$50 to $56 (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

For wife and six children—$53 to $59 (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

A wife with seven or more children under the maximum allowance may be given the maximum allowance of $55, less pension and allowances.

To Be Paid to Wife.

All these allowances for wife and children will be paid direct to the wife, unless otherwise thought fit by the commission.

4. A married man, living at home, will receive 60c a day. (This, of course, is in addition to the allowances for wife and children.)

5. A widower, mother, if dependent entirely upon the unmarried soldier who is receiving training, and if the son made an assignment of his pay to his mother, and also arranged for her to receive separation allowance while he was on service, may be paid the same rate as the wife of a married man with no children.

6. The parents of a man undergoing training, and who are dependent upon him, may also be paid at that rate.

7. The guardian of a widower's children (under the maximum age) will be paid $17.50; for three, $22, and $25 for each child in excess of three, with a maximum of $35.

NO BAND OR AUTOS TO MEET RETURNED SOLDIERS TODAY

Boys From Front Allowed to Come In Unwelcomed.

SECRETARY LANE PEEVED

Says Returned Men Can Try Reception Committee Work for Selves.

When five more returned soldiers arrived in London this morning from Quebec at 11:15, there were no automobiles or bands awaiting them, as is usually the case. Capt. Norman Alexander of the Convalescent Home, and a number of members of the Returned Soldiers' Association were the only ones present to greet them. No arrangements had been made as to the usual dinner at the Tecumseh House, and it was at first thought that the men would have to be taken to the Convalescent Hospital to stay overnight, but autos were procured at the last minute.

Secretary Lane of the Soldiers' Aid Commission would not make a direct statement to "The Advertiser" as to the reason of the mismanagement, but intimated that the returned soldiers had been making so many objections to his management of affairs that he had decided to let them try it themselves. When asked if he had received such instructions from headquarters he replied in the negative.

Wounded at Givenchy. The other two were 1st Battalion men. Pte. H. Ryder has been in France almost since the beginning of the war. He fought through several of the big battles, but was wounded at Givenchy. "There are not many of the old bunch left now, I guess," he said. Although I haven't seen them for some time.

Pte. Munn of Woodstock was wounded at Ypres on April 23, 1915. A piece of shrapnel carried his left leg away, and shortly after, as he was trying to make his way out of the trench received another wound in the thigh. For a long period he has been at Folkestone convalescing.

He was most enthusiastic about the manner in which the wounded men were cared for in England.

"I wish you'd say something about Mrs. Frank Reid," he said to a reporter. "She comes from London, and there isn't anybody over there who treats the boys better. She used to bring us the London papers and others from all over the Dominion, as well as cigarettes and other things. I can't say too much for her."

ONE LONDONER IN PARTY OF SOLDIERS INVALIDED HOME

Sickness Barred 33rd Bugler From Front.

PRaises LONDON WOMAN

1st Battalion Man, Who Lost Leg, Tells of Mrs. Reid's Work for "Boys."

Bugler A. V. Faulkner of the 33rd Battalion, was one of a party of five returned soldiers who reached London at noon today from the discharge depot at Quebec.

He went over with the battalion, but was unable to reach France owing to illness. He was in the hospital for two months before being sent back. He was at both West Sandringham camp and St. Martin's, but for the past month had been in Epsom Convalescent Hospital, and has now received his discharge. Before enlisting he resided at 309 Central avenue.

His father, Sgt. E. Faulkner, went over with the 33rd. A brother, Will, is with the Cyclists Corps, another brother, Herbert, is a trumpeter with the 5th M. R., and Sgt. E. Faulkner is with the 2nd Divisional Cavalry.

Pte. J. E. Davis, another 33rd man, also went over with the battalion, but was invalided back.

Pte. E. Hale, trained with the 34th Battalion in this city, was another of the returned men, his home is in Guelph.

Wounded at Givenchy. The other two were 1st Battalion men. Pte. H. Ryder has been in France almost since the beginning of the war. He fought through several of the big battles, but was wounded at Givenchy. "There are not many of the old bunch left now, I guess," he said. Although I haven't seen them for some time.

2,000 COLLECTING AGENTS GO OUT ON STRIKE

Prudential Insurance Employees Claim Company Will Not Confer With Them.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Two thousand and collecting agents of the Prudential Life Insurance Company went on strike today. The walkout followed a spirited mass meeting here, at which it was said the strike would tie up the company's collecting business in the east as Chicago unless the men's terms were met. Chief among the grievances named was the refusal of the company to confer with the men.

Officials of the International Insurance Agents' Union, which is only two weeks old, declare that the failure of the Prudential Company to restate fifty agents here and about half that number in Philadelphia, who were discharged for organizing the union, would very likely result in the calling out of collecting agents in cities in the east and middle west.

AN OLD PROVERB

It used to be proverbial that every man (and it is certainly no less true of women) is either a fool or a physician at forty. This means that every intelligent person must learn so much about caring for his own health that by the time he is forty years of age he can almost be reckoned as a physician.

Why, then, is there so much talk by doctors against "self-medication"? A woman can recognize all ordinary ailments without calling on a doctor. If they are ailments distinctive to her sex she generally knows enough to use that greatest of all remedies for such ailments, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and likewise she is familiar with the standard remedies for other diseases.—Adv.

GIRLS! MOISTEN A CLOTH AND DRAW IT THROUGH HAIR

It Becomes Beautifully Soft, Wavy, Abundant and Glossy at Once.

Save Your Hair! All Dandruff Goes and Hair Stops Coming Out.

Surely try a "Dandarine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Dandarine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Dandarine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Dandarine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and stimulates them; it is exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandarine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Save your hair! Keep it looking charming and beautiful. You will say this was the best 25 cents you ever spent.

Cocoon Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mild coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mild coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Adv.

AUSTRALIANS HAVE TAKEN 151 PRISONERS SO FAR

LONDON, July 24.—11:30 p.m.—The British official statement from headquarters in France, issued tonight, reads:

"The fighting has continued in the village of Posieres, where the number of prisoners taken by the Australian troops has reached a total of six officers and 145 other ranks."

"In other parts of the battle front there has been considerable artillery activity on both sides."

"Between the Ancre and the sea nothing of importance has occurred."

This afternoon's statement said:

"Apart from continuous heavy shelling by both sides during the night comparative calm followed the severe fighting of yesterday."

"Yesterday, between Highwood and Guillemont, repeated counter-attacks by the enemy gained for him no advantage, and very heavy casualties were inflicted by our artillery and machine gun fire."

"We gained some ground near Highwood and in the direction of Guillemont. In the neighborhood of Posieres we secured important advantages in spite of stubborn defence of the enemy, and a large portion of the village is now in our hands. Here we have captured two guns and 60 more prisoners."

COMMUNION SERVICE AND THEN BANQUET ON DEUTSCHLAND

German Submarine Is Partially Submerged at Her Slip—Anxiety Regarding Bremen May Delay Departure.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 24.—A communion service was held tonight aboard the interned North German Lloyd steamer Neckar, lying alongside the submarine Deutschland, for the captain and crew of the submarine. A German immigrant missionary conducted the service. In his prayer, he asked that the vessel and her crew may have a safe voyage home.

The service was followed by a banquet. It was learned that the Deutschland was partially submerged at her slip this evening. The water is not deep enough for full submergence.

WORRIED ABOUT BREMEN. NORFOLK, Va., July 24.—Appearance of a strange allied warship off Cape Henry today led to rumors that a British and French fleet of considerable size was in the vicinity of the southern drill grounds, awaiting the departure of the German submarine merchantman Deutschland or the arrival of her sister ship, the Bremen.

Failure of the Bremen to appear caused considerable disappointment in German circles here today. The feeling prevailed that the departure of the Deutschland from Baltimore might be delayed indefinitely, pending receipt of news regarding the Bremen. If she has fallen into a trap, it is pointed out, it would be unwise for the Deutschland to put out to sea unadvised.

As the report of the presence of a considerable allied force outside the capes gained ground, the belief that the Bremen might have been captured or destroyed was more widely accepted. There was no tangible evidence, however, to support it.

IRISH SITUATION WORSE NOW THAN IN MANY YEARS

London Papers Deplore Collapse of Negotiations. SEE ONLY TROUBLE AHEAD

LONDON, July 25.—2:05 a.m.—All the morning papers commented editorially, earnestly and gravely, on the collapse of the Irish negotiations. The Daily Telegraph says:

"The abandonment of the recent hopes of a settlement means trouble—trouble in Ireland and trouble in the House of Commons. We have the old millstone tied once more around our necks in a heavier and more dangerous shape than ever, and we shall be fortunate if it does not hamper our progress at every step through the deep waters to be traversed."

The Daily News says: "The collapse of the negotiations leaves the Irish problem not merely unsettled, but worse than it has been at any time since the eighties."

Deplorable Tragedy. The Express says: "The whole business is a deplorable tragedy. There has been a plethora of delay and misunderstanding, until now we are faced with the breakdown of a political truce which has existed since the beginning of the war, and the leaders of the nation, who should be devoting all their minds to defeating the enemy, are again to be distracted by an internal feud and dissension."

The Graphic says: "Once more the attempt to establish home rule has failed, because, like previous home rule schemes, it neither satisfies Irish sentiment nor secures justice for Great Britain."

INFANTILE PARALYSIS APPEARS NEAR TORONTO

Twelve Cases in Province—Epidemic Not Feared.

TORONTO, July 24.—Two cases of infantile paralysis have been discovered at Tottenham, a suburb of this city. These are the first reported about Toronto. Cases have been found at North Tilbury, Newmarket, Windsor and Ford City, some twelve in all in this province. Dr. McCullough of the provincial board of health says he does not fear an epidemic of the disease such as is occurring in New York.

GOT DIARRHOEA FROM DRINKING BAD WATER.

HAD TO GIVE UP WORK

Mr. H. M. Ryckman, Port Rowan, Ont., writes: "Last year I was out in Saskatchewan. The water was very bad, and I was taken with diarrhoea. In a few days I was in such bad shape I had to stop work. I got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and had only taken a few doses when it was stopped, and I was soon able to go back to work again."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past seventy years, and has had such great success in curing all bowel complaints that many firms have undertaken to provide a substitute for it, even going so far as to use a similar name.

Do not be led into taking a substitute for "Dr. Fowler's," but insist on getting what you ask for.

"Dr. Fowler's" is safe and sure, and by taking some of these rank substitutes you may endanger your life.

"Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry" is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25c.

THOUSANDS FLEE IN HUNGARY WHEN COSSACKS APPEAR

Russians Penetrate 30 Miles Into Country.

REFUGEES BLOCK ROADS

Are Without Food and Hammer Military Transport on Highway.

LONDON, July 25.—3:15 a.m.—A dispatch to the Morning Post from Budapest, dated July 15, says:

"Some Cossack detachments succeeded in crossing into Hungary yesterday, creating a panic throughout the frontier towns and villages, and causing thousands of refugees to swarm down on the plains. The Russians penetrated about 30 miles and then rapidly withdrew, fighting continuously with detachments of gendarmes."

"Correspondents explain the panic of the populace by saying that a dozen Cossacks are sufficient to frighten and put to flight a hundred thousand women and children."

"These refugees," continues the correspondent, "have greatly embarrassed the local authorities, who cannot supply them with accommodations. Moreover they block the road, hampering military transport and holding up supplies. The refugees are entirely without food. The cattle which they drove with them also have had nothing to eat, owing to the sparse vegetation in the mountains."

"Journalists who have seen the exodus in the Bukovina region say that only the Serbian flight into Montenegro and Albania can be compared to it. Everywhere are to be seen bands of persons who died from exhaustion, and often beside them the carcasses of horses."

"On the right bank of the Meuse, after a spirited engagement, our infantry occupied a redoubt immediately west of the Thiaumont work, taking five machine guns and about forty prisoners."

"Calm prevailed on the rest of the front. One of our pilots, Sub-Lieut. De Lorme, already cited six times in army orders, is again cited because of a series of bombardments carried out by him on stations held by the enemy."

In the official statement of July 21 it was declared that Col. Tatarnoff died in the latter part of June, south-west of Dubno, while crossing a river at the head of his regiment "under a murderous fire and putting the enemy to disorderly flight."

WILL OPEN NAVIGATION ON HUDSON BAY SOON

OTTAWA, July 24.—The department of marine is preparing for immediate opening of navigation of Hudson Bay and Straits. Construction supplies are on the way for a dozen lighthouses, ten in the straits and two at Port Nelson.

Now for 1917

Another new 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers, 7 passengers, 122-inch wheelbase, $1775 f. o. b. Walkerville, Ont. And the original 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers, doubly refined, 115-inch wheelbase, $1475 f. o. b. Walkerville, Ont.

Picture a giant of rare strength and ability, and clothe him in fine garments—and you have a mighty good picture of this new Chalmers—the 1917 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers with the 122-inch wheelbase, double cowl body and French pleated upholstery.

A good day's work was done when they made it. They took as a base the 1916 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers. A car that had 1,000,000 miles of record behind it. And a service mark of 99.21 percent perfect. They didn't touch the 3400 r. p. m. power plant. They stood pat there.

And on this magnificent chassis they laid a body that surpasses the ordinary man's power of expression.

You get an optic sensation that fills the mind with a picture you'll never forget.

Lines—ladies, they're so severely modern that at first the Chalmers people thought they'd have to change them—too far ahead of the procession.

But Mr. Chalmers finally said to go ahead. And he was right, because the first one that sailed up the avenue stopped traffic.

Men driving cars actually drove up ahead in front to see what car it was. And performance—gentlemen! There's never been but one that could touch her—her 3400 r. p. m. sister.

But what I like most about her is the perfectly corking body.

I'm going to tell about one little feature of the body, and then you'll have to come and find the rest out for yourself.

It's about the upholstery. Now, there's been reams written and tons talked about upholstery. Some one once measured it in inches. Another described it in curlicue springs. Some one else reduced it to "real hair."

I don't know the thickness of it—and care less; but when I get in the tonneau and sit down I have a feeling that I never want to get out.

It fits the fat man as well as the thin man. They're long pleats—French pleats—which say good-bye once and for all time to the "button and biscuit" kind.

She's a real car, gentlemen, and a wonderful value—$1775 f. o. b. Walkerville, Ont. You put away in your wardrobe the equivalent of four good suits of clothes, a couple of pairs of ten-dollar shoes, and a five-dollar hat when you lay down the money for her. You save about $275.

Don't let me forget to call attention to her smaller sister—the 1917 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers with the 115-inch wheelbase.

Because she's a 3400 r. p. m'r, great on the hill, smooth in traffic, full of spunk any time any day.

She's just like her 1916 predecessor. Neither you nor I could tell the difference. And you're dead sure when you buy her because her record is as clear-cut as a cameo—1,000,000 miles of use with service record of 99.21 percent perfect.

Both cars are ready. If you haven't seen them you've missed a day's treat. Better than going to the art gallery.

These new 1917 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers are built in Canada by the Chalmers Motor Company, at Walkerville, Ontario. They are essentially Canadian cars, designed after careful consideration of the tastes and requirements of Canadian people.

THE NEW ORDER.

IF A BATTLE were in progress within one hundred miles of London it is probable that news reports of the event would be voluminous, and that the newspapers would be selling by the thousands, providing that people were left in the city to buy them. But it is doubtful if the reports, except for what might be called local detail, would tell the story in more complete fashion than the reports of Frederick Palmer are telling the story of the present British offensive. The noted correspondent of the Associated Press has been actually "at the front" since the concerted attack was launched early in the present month, and almost every day he sends his dispatches to American and Canadian papers a few hours within the time of actual fighting. And after almost two years of dry official statements, doubtful descriptions of battle written by men a hundred miles away, and best of all, censored letters from soldiers, Palmer's thrilling narratives, which tell as much in a sentence as most correspondents tell in a column, are indeed welcome.

But the dispatches of Mr. Palmer and other correspondents who can now say, "I saw ten thousand men rush upon a German trench today," may have a greater significance than appears on the face of them. Is the radical departure of permitting newspapermen to visit the front and to witness not only preparation, but actual fighting, merely the indication that Britain is ready and willing to permit the world that glimpse behind the scenes so long denied? Or does it mean that the new commanders have decided that a policy of hedged-in secrecy which was enforced so rigidly during the late Earl Kitchener's lifetime was unnecessary, and that there is a benefit in granting correspondents the opportunity to describe in detail the glorious feats of arms of the British and French forces? Certainly it is evident that one of these conjectures comes near the truth. Either the British have nothing to hide at present or they realize the value of telling the people of the Empire just what is the state of affairs. This much is evident, that there has never been such a feeling of satisfaction with the news that comes from the British front as today, and not solely because it is news of sustained and constant victory, but because of the personal glimpses it gives of the men in action, the sweeping charges and the blood-stirring advances. Official statements and second-hand versions are never completely trusted. When a writer is able to say, "I saw the British sweep forward for five hundred yards" or "I talked to 40 German prisoners twenty minutes after they had been captured," why the words commence to live, and from the living picture of the fight the pulse catches a new beat. It is to be hoped that within a short time representatives of the Canadian press will have an opportunity of visiting the front.

SAFETY FIRST.

GLANCE over your favorite newspaper any day, and the list of preventable fatal accidents in a few adjoining counties will appal you. It is safe to venture the opinion that several scores of people have been drowned. Yet thousands are taking chances every day.

Children have been burned, or run over by automobiles. Yet thousands are continuing to take chances.

It is time that a safety first campaign of a personal nature were taken up.

Don't let it be said of you that "it was too bad, but he or she would take chances."

A POET OF THE PEOPLE.

INDIANA may congratulate herself on having set aside October 8, last year, in which to do honor to James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, for had the occasion been delayed another year it would have been too late. Death would have prevented the native poet from being present and having the satisfaction of knowing in what high regard he was held.

On that day the governor requested every town and city in the state to do honor to the poet, and the request was very faithfully granted. From all parts of the country men of note attended the banquet at Indianapolis, and Mr. Riley had the somewhat unusual pleasure of hearing generous tributes paid to him and his ability. Too often these celebrations only take place after the death of the one mainly concerned. In the passing of Mr. Riley, America lost one of her foremost, if not her very foremost, typical poets. As a youth, impatient of restraint, with no taste for the study of law, which his father urged, he became an itinerant sign painter and sketcher. In spare moments giving expression by means of pen and paper to the natural poetic feelings which burned within him.

Devoting himself to a great extent to dialectic verse, he became essentially Indiana's own. He wrote her language and chronicled her habits and customs,

As Robert Burns was to Scotland, James Whitcomb Riley was to Indiana. But unlike Burns, he never married. Once in defending his dialectic writings, in this instance the "baby-talk" of childhood, Riley said: "I am fond of the dialect of childhood, and I think that the child who should be prevented from speaking in the broken prattle of infancy would be unjustly deprived of one of the sweetest things of life, and grow up warped." He loved children and understood them, and his tastes were simple as theirs. While some purists have sneered at his work, viewed in the light of "literature," he has appealed to those whom he meant to reach, the common people, and by them he will be most sincerely mourned.

AN ENLIGHTENING LETTER.

WRITING to his friend, Captain of Detectives A. MacKrell of Pittsburgh, Herman Koedel, of the submarine Deutschland's crew, says his seven former fellow-members of Pittsburgh's German band have been killed in naval action, and he has been disabled. He says he has now entered the merchant marine.

How does this agree with the finding of the American authorities that the submarine and her crew are in no way connected with the German navy, and that the vessel is privately owned and not controlled by the Government at Berlin? There seems to be some connection.

Germany is short of men. She is not discharging men from the navy who are fit and able to undertake the voyage from Bremen to Baltimore as members of a submarine crew. If Herman Koedel is fit for this work, he is fit to be with the pirates who sink merchant vessels, and he probably is with one—the Deutschland.

If Washington is really trying to be fair in her dealings, an investigation of Herr Koedel is in order.

AN EFFICIENCY POINT.

THE German soldier's diary has been of great interest to the allied nations in giving irrefutable proof of atrocities and crimes which the neutral world might have doubted, save for the confessions which the enemy unwittingly placed on record.

But it was not with a desire to aid the Allies that the keeping of diaries was made a part of the German army discipline. These diaries were to have been passed back to the commanders of regiments, and those of them which related to some fact which would be valuable in army organization would then be placed with the war experts. Millions of men would discover many wonderful things, improvements of equipment, feeding, refinements of many kinds, and suggestions for future use.

It was the plan to make use of this information which gives away Germany's intention of making militarism and aggression the keystones of the nation. It was another trace of German efficiency, developed for war, as other men develop every other possible idea for the arts of peace. Let it be hoped that those who come upon these diaries in the future will read into them a different lesson.

A battery in training in this city found a member who persistently annoyed women on the street. Though he was warned, he persisted in the practice, with the result that he was given a ducking in the river. The men responsible were given several days "C. B." A battery so jealous of its good name, will not fail to hit the mark in active service.

Sir Robert Borden, premier of Canada, has done a good service to the newspapers and many public men by sending out large numbers of volumes of the famous Kaemker's cartoons. These creations have stood out among the art production of the war as being the most vital contributions to the spirit of the allied cause. Their influence upon the stability and courage of the nations involved has been worth many battalions of men. Germany is painted as a murderer of women and children, the Kaiser a mad fiend who slaughters the innocent—the Herod of modern times. Kaemker's cartoons go to the extreme in condemnation as Germany has gone to the extreme in cruelty.

On the Sand

By Louise Oliver.

The swim out to the sandbar and back six times repeated had made Ted tired. Add to that a scorching July sun, the inviting shade of a beach chair, and a natural propensity for sleep at any time and under all conditions, and you can readily understand why Morpheus found him an easy victim that eventful morning.

Suddenly something hit him with sickening force in the solar plexus, and he sat up before he was aware with him the idea that the largest projectile of a foreign bombardment had selected him for a target.

"Then something soft, 'Goo!' came into Ted's head. 'Goo!' again. A baby looked up at him with placid blue eyes and twisted the corners of its little rosy mouth into a thousand smiles, beating the air with its tiny arms and legs, and with a few delighted gurgles, 'Goo!' again. A baby looked up at him with placid blue eyes and twisted the corners of its little rosy mouth into a thousand smiles, beating the air with its tiny arms and legs, and with a few delighted gurgles, 'Goo!' again. A baby looked up at him with placid blue eyes and twisted the corners of its little rosy mouth into a thousand smiles, beating the air with its tiny arms and legs, and with a few delighted gurgles, 'Goo!' again.

"Where did you come from, baby dear? Out of the everywhere into the here?" came into Ted's head. "Hello, there, mister, or miss or whatever you are!" he exclaimed. "Where did you come from?"

Baby gurgled an answer. "You don't say so? Well, if you had only sent word I might have been better prepared to receive you. But it seems to be the thing nowadays to drop in informally. I suppose—"

Ted looked around and saw no one who appeared to have lost a baby recently, or who might in any way be associated with one. "I suppose," he said, "that you fell out of the chair, and that you had such a nice soft thing to land on."

"Here—that won't do," as baby tried to stuff a moist, sand-covered hand into its mouth. "I'll bet you're a boy!" Ted looked at the baby and saw no one who appeared to have lost a baby recently, or who might in any way be associated with one. "I suppose," he said, "that you fell out of the chair, and that you had such a nice soft thing to land on."

"Boys are always thinking of their stomachs! But when you smile at me so sweetly I think you're a girl. The girls all like me to pieces. Honor bright!" The wide-open blue eyes searched him inquiringly. "All except one, and she doesn't think I'm worth two a cent. But it's all right, she doesn't know me. We have never been introduced. By jove, here she comes now!"

A variety of reasons caused him to pick her up. He was only trying to hide the confusion which he always felt when the girl came near, or because it looked heartless to let a beautiful, embroidered, shell-pink baby lie unprotected on the sand. But, anyway, he picked it up and laid it over his shoulder in the way babies love, as though he had been head nurse in a foundling asylum all his life.

The girl passed, but not before she had taken the stage setting and the chief performers of the little act. To go back, Ted and the girl were staying at the same hotel. He had liked to meet her—as he had explained to the baby—but no mutual friend had so far appeared. But he had managed to let her know he was interested. She had fairly to fall over him on her way to the dining-room, he chose to bathe at the place where she took her daily dip, and at the same hour, and he frequented the amusements she liked best. On the other hand, the girl continually frowned her displeasure at his presence, and it was evident that she was just as keen to avoid meeting him as he was anxious to meet her.

The girl walked along with her companion, but turned back as she saw something lying on the sand. Ted's heart nearly stopped when he saw her pick it up. Devoting himself to a great extent to dialectic verse, he became essentially Indiana's own. He wrote her language and chronicled her habits and customs, be chums, then, I suppose, with a common grievance like that; but I think it's time we parted company. Back you go where you came from, babykin. Nurse or some one will be back soon. I'll come along in five minutes or so to see if you are all right." He laid baby in its soft nest, gave it the rattle and tried to collect his scattered senses by another swim to the bar.

Sure enough, when he returned baby was gone! He breathed more freely than he felt personally responsible as long as no one else materialized. Another day? Ted came out of a movie just as a woman paused wheeling a baby perambulator. Something flew out of the carriage and landed at his feet. He recognized the blue rattle and his friend, the baby, and handed it over.

"Oh, thank you," beamed the mother. "She's always throwing it out." She was young and pretty—scarcely more than a girl. It occurred to Ted to relate the episode of the baby's fall, and he did so, suiting his step to her own.

Of course the girl passed just then, as the young mother was listening with all attention to Ted. "Darling," he exclaimed, stopping. "I beg your pardon?"

He apologized profusely. "I forgot something and must go back if you will excuse me," he said, as he lifted his hat and turned in the direction the girl had taken. He could still see her, and, thank heaven, she was alone.

He followed unabashed, desperate! She looked around and saw no one who appeared to have lost a baby recently, or who might in any way be associated with one. "I suppose," he said, "that you fell out of the chair, and that you had such a nice soft thing to land on."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

The Windsor Incident.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: I am heartily in accord with the sentiments expressed by the Hamilton Spectator, regarding the action of Windsor's chief executive. As you say, Mr. Editor, "that he was bravely right in following the dictates of his own best judgment." Was it the act of his own best judgment, or was it just a "play to the gallery?" I would think it the latter. While I am not a member of that organization that displayed this banner, or do I approve of all its acts, I do heartily sanction the words on this banner; there could not be any reasonable objection to it excepting "school," and I have reason to believe our public school system is unexcelled.

I read the remarks of a celebrated speaker on the separate school, which may be worth repeating here, "Religion," he said, "should be the last thing to separate people. Men may quarrel over a line fence or a dog fight, but shouldn't about religion. Protestants and Catholics have practically the same religion. They may differ somewhat in creed, but their fundamental faith is the same. If Catholics think they have a better religion, and a more stable morality than we—if they think their girls purer, and their boys nobler—if they think they can teach us righteousness, then I'm willing to lay them out straight in. Let Catholic children mingle with our children—let each get what is best out of the other's religion, and the place to start is right in the schoolhouse. It's a crime to try to make religion a barrier between children whom God and nature intended should love and help one another."

A SUBSCRIBER.

Mad Things of Summer. To the Editor of The Advertiser: Careless motor driving, speeding brakes and the many dangers, vulgarities and dangers commonly indulged by motor novices, will all of them in good time drop into oblivion, and a more sobering nuisance of early bicycle days.

United States motorists are not always innocent of ill-breeding; but a motor-loving citizen of London recently related how, on a trip to the border, he overtook a number of large American cars, and with no single exception, each drew aside on hearing his horn blared, and allowed him to pass, while at his speed that every little tin snail of a car did afford was jammed on to try to keep ahead.

Though he is regarded as a moderate, careful driver, this gentleman believed himself to have been soundly converted (partly by that experience) to a slower, safer habit of motoring, involving less mental strain and more wayside pleasure per mile and per hour.

The story sounds a note of hope long deferred. And London needs encouragement if her patience is to continue; if citizens are not to form Ross rifles clubs for pinching, pot-shooting and the pin-pointing, as a street sport that would be less dangerous than reckless motoring, and some such reprisal seems to be the only means likely to keep raw motorists within bounds.

An "accidental" shooting or two would promptly reduce the number of accidental deaths and injuries due to careless motoring, besides abolishing many minor motor offenses.

During these busy dog days all mad things should be treated alike—dogs, speeding motors and noisy cut-outs, street cars with punctured tires and their noisy clatters, and all with those idle watering cars. Each should be pinked and punished on the spot; and those responsible for each such nuisance should be sent to drive a similar vehicle for six months' service on the fringe line in France.

Let policemen and police commissioners be at once armed with Ross rifles. And, please, Mr. Chief, pink them promptly at our idle water-cart bosses. Send them over seas, and let Sir Adam dig another well. And doesn't that prove it was Premier Hearst who was in prohibiting a "dry" carnival before September? Just think what would have happened with no water wagon and this scorching, blistering dust in a W. C. T. U. "dry" town.

A PAGE OF GENERAL INTEREST TO WOMEN READERS

GILLET'S LYE

Tempting dainties for the picnic basket are home-pickled beets with dressing, or sliced in vinegar, and stuffed eggs. To make the latter, boil the eggs hard, remove shell and cut in half crosswise. Scoop out the yolks and mix to a paste with vinegar, a little cream if liked, pepper, salt and mustard to season; mash into a paste and return again to the whites. Each half may be wrapped in a piece of waxed paper and packed neatly into a box.

People Narrow-Minded.

Dear Miss Grey,—We read with much interest the letters to your Mail-Box, and notice to our satisfaction that the writers are getting beyond such trifling subjects as kissing, length of skirts and writing. We have read many interesting letters touching on the present war. One cannot help but notice the narrow-mindedness of the majority of people regarding enlistment. They either entirely uphold the soldier and look down on the civilian, or vice-versa. They do not seem to realize that there are good and bad in both. No doubt there are a great many of the soldiers who have enlisted because they feel it their duty, and feel that they are doing something for those at home, and we should rightly be proud of them. Then there are others who possibly do not realize what war means, who are going for the soldier's life and what they get out of it. Everyone has a right to his own opinion, although they may not be allowed to express it these days, and perhaps those civilians who have not offered themselves feel that they would rather be called slackers or cowards than to endure the remorse of killing a fellow-man who may be as innocent in this great struggle as any Canadian. We must not forget that all men are brothers, and the Germans are forced to fight. The British are fighting for justice and right, but when we think of the grating, etc., that is going on, we cannot entirely blame the man who hesitates; even if it is only fair to some men rob their country while pretending loyalty and service, others may serve it honestly and right. We honor the man who dies for his country, and we honor the man who stays at home and tills the soil, although he may be covered with abuse by Sylvia Pankhurst and others. Now, Miss Grey, do not think that we are pro-German, but we cannot help but feel that every man knows his own circumstances best, and can better judge what he should do.

Daily Bible Question Club

By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D. (All Rights Reserved.)

The six daily studies for this week constitute the International S. S. Lesson for next Sunday. Read the Bible Story on which this study is based, as you ponder the following questions:

The word of the cross—1 Cor. 1:1, 2:5.

Golden text.—Far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. Gal. 6:14.

5. Verses 9-11. How much may a true Christian businessman actually bank upon the faithfulness of God in connection with his business?

6. How much may any Christian trust to the faithfulness of God, for success in time and eternity for himself and all who are his?

To what extent does God expect all true Christians to be of the same opinion in politics, philosophy, theology and other matters? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

also "Seaside Sue," but if I cannot come, will you think of me, and I would love to have kissed you, "Sally from Mull," but when I am in London I will call and see you, so for the present it is an avowal to you and all the other readers of the Mail-Box. Well, good-bye till I get settled.

ANS.—Au revoir, "T.O." and may you have the best of health and fortune. (Just a way of explanation, readers, let me inform you that "Sally from Mull" is about old enough to be "T.O.'s" grandma, so it is quite permissible for her to kiss her!) Re the address you ask for, I have not got it, as the lady is continually "on the move." If I hear shall let you know.

Has Enough Flags.

Dear Miss Grey,—Well here I come again, but do, please, excuse this writing this time, as I have just come in from playing tennis, and I am very excited yet, so cannot write straight. I cannot thank you enough "Gentle Sea Breeze" for those flags. You sent me nearly enough to do my whole cushion. I am very sorry indeed that Miss Grey has promised to make your block for "Aunt Nannie's" quilt, as I would have been only too glad to have done it for you in return for your kindness.

Say "A Gentle Sea Breeze," won't you send your name and address stamped on a piece of satin so that I can put it in the centre of my cushion? But, please, hurry, as I am anxious to get at it.

With best wishes to all the Mail-Box readers, and of course you, too, Miss Grey, I still keep the pen-name.

ANS.—If "Gentle Sea Breeze" responds, I shall be very pleased to send it on to you. Too bad I get ahead of you on that block—too bad for you, I mean. How about the tennis game? Was it "love" or "deuce," to get you so excited?

From Just Lou.

Dear Miss Grey,—Would you please answer a few questions? I just want to know: How did February 4 and 10, 1900, fall on?

2. I am 16 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weigh 125 pounds. Am I proportioned right?

3. How soon will the 110th Battalion go overseas?

4. What do you think of my writing?

5. May I call again?

I will sign myself, JUST LOU.

P.S.—I would like to correspond with another girl about my age, with brown eyes and brown curly hair.—J. L.

ANS.—The 4th came on a Sunday; the 10th on Saturday.

2. Sounds pretty well.

3. I do not know.

4. Very good right.

5. Yes, any time.

Clovers and Roses.

Dear Miss Grey,—I'm in a hurry, so please excuse my letter. I just want to know: How to make a rose jam?

I've got the petals in a sealer, with salt. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it. I do wish you would tell me how to do it.

Second Meeting of Hamilton Jockey Club Opens on Wednesday.

W.O.B.A. Tournament Gets a Splendid Start

Two Games Played in Qualifying Rounds—Annual Meeting Held—R. B. Rice of Toronto Elected President and John Macpherson Re-elected Honorary Secretary.

Under ideal conditions the twenty-first annual tournament of the Western Ontario Bowling Association got away to a good start yesterday afternoon. Of the sixty rinks entered only four failed to show up. They were A. T. Wicks of the Brantford Dufferins, A. E. Walton of Toronto, E. P. Hughes of Strathroy and A. E. Lovell of Watford.

In accordance with a new ruling of the tournament committee no scores are published, the names only being given with the designation as to whether the rink won or lost. It is thought that by doing this with a low score will not become disheartened by thinking they have no chance against a rink with a large score and thus forfeit the game.

Although no scores are given out at a glance at the results will show that the London rinks and the out-of-town rinks broke about even. A number of exceptionally close games were witnessed at the different greens and at the Elmwood Club in four of the first nine games extra ends were necessary to decide the game.

The three clubs were tastefully decorated and the greens in splendid condition. At the annual meeting of the association, which was held at the Telemachus House in the evening, about 75 members were present, with the retiring president, James Smiley, in the chair. The treasurer's report was read, showing a balance of $55.45 on hand, which was adopted without discussion.

A motion of James McDougall, seconded by Dr. English, it was decided to hold next year's tournament during the last full week of July. The only two questions which aroused any discussion were the accompanying of fees with the entry, and the present system of drawing, in which London rinks are pitted against out-of-town rinks. The majority of the members present were of the opinion that the question of fees should be left at present, as the mover of the motion to have the fees accompany entries withdrew his motion.

The main discussion of the evening arose over the system of drawing, which is being used by the committee this year. Caught up of opinion that the present system was not satisfactory, but the majority of those present appeared to feel that it was as fair as any that could be devised. The only drawback in the minds of some was that out-of-town rinks could not meet any other outside rinks, but had to play the whole series through with the London rinks. It was decided to leave the question in the hands of the executive, who would be able to judge much better on the merits of the system, after it had been tried during the present tournament.

At the election of officers R. B. Rice of Toronto was elected president, and James Smiley, the retiring president, was elected honorary president. John Macpherson was re-elected honorary secretary. Votes of thanks were passed, thanking Messrs Smiley and Macpherson for their work in connection with the association. The following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year: Patron, Sir John Willison, Toronto; honorary president, James Smiley, Paris; chairman, W. N. Nichol, Dundas; president, R. B. Rice, Toronto; first vice-president, E. W. R. Hill, Aylmer; second vice-president, J. A. Connor, Long Branch, Toronto; honorary secretary-treasurer, John Macpherson; auditors, J. Lochard and G. E. Coombs.

Where Does Connie Get Them? Managers All Ask

Athletic Manager Has Habit of Picking Youngsters Direct From College or Sand-Lots and Molding Them Into Stars a Few Years Later.

Secretary London of the Hamilton Jockey Club has announced that the present feeling of the club is in the selling rule is being abused, and will eliminate the selling clause at its meeting which opens Wednesday. The following notice has been sent to horsemen: "In all unclosed races to be run during the meeting (except handicaps), and all starting in the race, including the winner, shall be liable to be claimed for its entered and selling price. The value of the purse to the winner."

The Boston Red Sox and the Toronto Leafs played an exhibition game in Toronto yesterday to a 5-5 tie. The game was called in the ninth by mutual agreement. Russell, the Leafs' pitcher, opposed the champions, and held them to eight hits. Wyckoff, the former Athletic, did the hurrying for Boston, and was touched up for seven hits.

I shouldn't be at all surprised if in two or three years fast ball players are again singing the praise of Connie Mack. He is rebuilding his team during a period of baseball depression, and is reaching the high-water mark. He is going along at a minimum expense while most clubs are carrying a top-heavy list of stars. He is experimenting with youngsters. Other clubs are standing pat with their veterans; in most cases long-time contracts are forcing such action upon their part.

When some of the present-day strong clubs begin to stop, Mack with a team of practicing youngsters is very likely to spring another sensation.

They All Want to Play for Him. Of great help to Mack in picking up star players is the desire most youngsters have of getting a chance to play on his team.

Mack looks with favor on the collection, first, because he ought to have some brains; second, because he has been brought up in a training atmosphere that forbids liquor, smoking, and other forms of dissipation; third, because he has never played under any other manager, major or minor league, and has not set ways of doing things.

Mack is always looking into the future. A good many managers, when they have developed a star at some certain position, cease to worry about that portion of their club. When Mack has a player who can play the ball, he regards it as his duty to get an equally good substitute, or player who looks as if he would be ready to take the place of the regular the moment he begins to show signs of slowing up. Because of this system, Mack is seldom caught napping. If something serious happens to one of his players, he conditions on the club demand the removal of a certain player, he is able to meet such a condition by having an extra man able to step in and acceptably fill his place.

Short Grass has been assigned 152 pounds in the Saratoga Handicap, which is to be run July 31, the opening day at the Springs. Roamer gets the second highest with 128, and Pennant 126. Regret, the Finn and Ed. Trum are about 124. (Montgomery is in with one pound less, while Strombolli is asked to carry 121. In the three-year-old division, Spur, 108, is rated one pound better than Rock, Thunder and George Smith, and two pounds better than Dominant, Chicle and Star Hawk, who are required to shoulder 108 pounds.

Manager Bill Carrigan of the Boston Red Sox, was very much impressed with the work of McTigue, and said he could not understand why the Toronto fans were so lousy about wearing a Red Sox uniform in the near future.

Umpire George Johnson was knocked unconscious in the American Association game at Toledo on Sunday, when he was hit on the head by one of the 50 or more bottles that were thrown at him from the stands, when the fans were dissatisfied with a decision that meant the defeat of the Toledo club. As a result of the assault, Manager B. Bresnahan announced that no more bottle throwing would be allowed on the grounds.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Demented, angry or dependent, an unidentified man took his beautiful wife and six-months-old son along the west bank of the Skokie River in Lake Forest, Illinois, and within a short distance of the fashionable Onwenta Club, is thought to have waited till they had fallen asleep, then killed them both and himself. The bodies were discovered on Sunday.

The police learned that the victims of the tragedy lived in Flint, Michigan, where the man, whose initials were "L. A. C." was a bookkeeper in the office of the Buick Automobile Company. The family came to Lake Forest on Thursday. They said they had been in Chicago on a vacation.

Woman From Simcoe.
FLINT, Mich., July 24.—Newspapers have identified the victims of the Lake Forest triple tragedy as Lloyd A. Crandall, his wife and their baby, Arthur.

Mrs. Crandall, whose maiden name was Norma Tisdale, came here from her home in Simcoe, Ontario, to marry Crandall.

Soon after the marriage, the couple moved to Port Dover, Ont., but later returned to Flint. One week ago Crandall resigned his position with the automobile company here, and left the city, taking his family with him.

This was the last heard of them until news of the tragedy came. Crandall's brother and several sisters live in Brantford, Ont.

VICTORY IN FEW MONTHS. PREDICTS LLOYD GEORGE AS HEAD OF WAR OFFICE

LONDON, July 24.—6:35 p.m.—"British resourcefulness and British intelligence are going to snatch victory in a few months," was the statement made in the House of Commons this afternoon by David Lloyd George, the successor of Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, at the head of the war office.

"One thrills with pride when one thinks one belongs to the same race. They are pressing back the formidable foe who devoted his best efforts to the study of war for generations. I feel confident that victory is assured to us."

Continuing, Mr. Lloyd George said: "Numbers and all other resources are on our side. There was only one fear—that years of training and thought on the part of great military powers might be something that might be insuperable. Our men have demonstrated that it is not so, and that British resourcefulness and intelligence are, as in fields of commerce in the past, when they have been able to snatch victory out of what appeared to be complete commercial disaster, GOING TO SNATCH VICTORY AGAIN IN A FEW MONTHS FROM WHAT APPEARED AT ONE MOMENT TO BE SOMETHING THAT WAS INVINCIBLE."

There is no doubt at all that the lesson of this battle is that we have simply to press on with all our resources, and with the material at our command and victory will be ours."

ASQUITH AND LLOYD GEORGE MAY RESIGN AS RESULT OF THE HOME RULE COLLAPSE

Premier Says He Is Ready To Ask Country
if Government Proposals Are Not Fair.

[Canadian Press Cable.]

LONDON, July 24.—11:42 p.m.—A significant remark was made in the House of Commons this evening by Premier Asquith at the conclusion of a debate on a motion for adjournment made by John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, following an announcement by the premier that the Government had no intention of introducing any home rule for Ireland bill, with regard to which there was no substantial agreement among all parties.

The Nationalists are not to be given the opportunity of bringing home rule into immediate operation, Mr. Asquith said. Significant Statement.

"I ask the House, and will ask the country, if necessary, if the Government's proposals are not fair."

Just before the motion of Mr. Redmond was voted down, Mr. Asquith directly addressed the Nationalists, denying that they had been shown to either side during the negotiations. Mr. Asquith declared that the exclusion of the six Ulster counties from the operation of the home rule bill was not a concession, but a necessary condition of any agreement.

The Daily News reports that David Lloyd George, in view of the failure of the Irish negotiations, in which he was the chief agent, offered to resign his office.

"The premier's attitude," says the News, "is understood to be that if Mr. Lloyd George resigns he should consider himself obliged to resign also. The matter is not now being discussed."

"There is no doubt that the events of the last week, culminating in the Irish fiasco," adds the paper, "have weakened the coalition Government's position."

LONDON, July 24.—Confusion publicly the suspicion that the cabinet had been unable to reach a decision in regard to the home rule bill, Premier Asquith in the House of Commons today announced that the Government would not introduce any bill of this kind, with regard to which there was no substantial agreement among all parties. This was taken in the lobbies of parliament to mean that home rule had been dropped for the time being.

The stumbling block appears to have been the retention in the Imperial Parliament of Nationalist representation in undivided Ireland, which the Government would not agree to.

John Redmond, leader of the Nationalists, moved an adjournment of the House to discuss the premier's reply and a lively debate, when the regular business of the House of Commons was concluded, was anticipated.

Redmond Speaks.

The decision of Mr. Redmond's motion to adjourn the House of Commons in order to call attention to the rapidly-growing feeling of unrest in Ireland and the deplorable effect on the regular business of the House, which resulted from the Government's proposal to carry out in entirety the terms offered by it for a settlement of the Irish difficulty as accepted by the Irish cabinet, began with a speech by Mr. Redmond.

The Irish Nationalist leader declared he did not want to attack anybody, but he wanted to bring home rule into immediate operation under any conditions, and he regretted it deeply and thought that it was a disaster. He still believed a high-spirited and energetic man could only be governed by his consent, and the Government certainly would not force this proposal on them.

Continuing Mr. Lloyd George said that if that was the Irish view it would be idle for the Government to introduce a bill bringing home rule into immediate operation under any conditions, and he regretted it deeply and thought that it was a disaster. He still believed a high-spirited and energetic man could only be governed by his consent, and the Government certainly would not force this proposal on them.

Mr. Redmond said that when he went into negotiations he thought only of what was best to help win the war, compared with which home rule, or anything else, mattered little. He would have never touched the negotiations except as a war measure and had made it perfectly clear from the beginning that the six Ulster counties were not to be included in the home rule act. He was not asking, however, for permanent exclusion, Sir Edward added. No settlement made by the prime minister, that the Ulster counties could not be included without a bill.

Concluding, Sir Edward appealed to the Nationalist members not to lose all the good that had come out of the negotiations.

It would not be a bad day for this country, for Ireland, and for the war, if Mr. Redmond and myself should shake hands. But if that is to be done there can be no idea of coercion of Ulster. Let Ulster be struck out of the bill. Then go on and win the war, if she can be won by good government.

"At the end of the war we will have had enough of fighting. We will have had great questions to deal with and it is inconceivable that we should resume our old quarrels."

William O'Brien, leader of the Independent Nationalists, said: "Fortunately for England and for Ireland the partition plot is dead and damned. Millions of the Irish race will rejoice with all their hearts over its death."

GERMANS TREATING THEIR PRISONERS AS THEY WOULD BEASTS

Terrible Conditions Reported by American Attache.

EYESIGHT BEING INJURED

Sixty-four Men Found in a Room Ten by Thirteen Meters.

[Canadian Press Cable.]

LONDON, July 24.—8:12 p.m.—A dark picture of the treatment of British prisoners at the Ruhleben Camp in Germany, where civilians are interned, is given in a report by Dr. Alfonso E. Taylor, attaché of the American embassy at Berlin. The report reached Viscount Grey, the British foreign secretary, from James W. Gerard, American ambassador to Germany, through Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador to Great Britain.

"The barracks at Ruhleben," says Dr. Taylor, "are overcrowded. It is intolerable that people of education should be herded six together in a horse's stall and in some lofts, the bunks touch one another; the light for reading is bad, and reading is a necessity if these poor prisoners are to be detained during another winter. In the lofts above the stables the conditions are even worse."

64 in One Loft.
Dr. Taylor cites as an example one loft ten by thirteen meters in width with the ceiling ten feet high in the centre and four and a half feet high at the sides, where 64 men live.

"The light from the little window," says Dr. Taylor, "is so faint that the prisoners will be seriously injured if their sight is not permanently lost. And this semi-darkness will undoubtedly cause depression and mental trouble."

The report complains of inadequate heating of prisoners' quarters and the lack of facilities for drying the clothes of the men who often have to wear the roll call in the heavy rains outside. Many things, like soap, which are usually given prisoners even in jails, Dr. Taylor says are not given the prisoners at Ruhleben.

The report of Dr. Taylor says that the writer is satisfied the camp officials are aware of what can be done to better the conditions of the prisoners, but they have not the authority to make the needed improvements.

The Daily Graphic, commenting editorially on the report of the treatment of the British prisoners at the Ruhleben camp in Germany, says:

Makes Painful Reading.
"To his many humanitarian services the American ambassador, Mr. Gerard, has added another by a remarkably outspoken letter, descriptive of the miseries of the British civilian prisoners at Ruhleben. The letter makes painful reading. Its importance lies in the fact of its being the impartial report of a representative of a power at no friendly terms with Germany."

What its effect may be on his own relations with the German Government Mr. Gerard clearly cares little. He is more concerned for the sufferers at Ruhleben than for the peace of the world. He is a placating friend of a nation to which he is accredited. Perhaps his fearless attitude may influence his Government to take action in this deplorable matter."

DISLodge GERMANS
FROM ANOTHER POINT ON THE LIPA RIVER

Russians Take Galitichanie and Some Prisoners.

PETROGRAD, via London, July 24.—"The official statement from general headquarters tonight said: 'There is nothing important.'"

An earlier statement announced that the Germans had been dislodged from another position along the River Lipa. The statement said: "Nothing."

"On the Lipa yesterday we dislodged the Germans from the village of Galitichanie and took some prisoners and one machine gun. On July 21, near the village of Kozlovka, on the Lipa, an Austrian company of 133 strong surrendered to our troops."

GERMANS HOPE
WORST IS OVER.

ON THE DVINA FRONT SOUTH-EAST OF RIGA, Thursday, July 20, via Berlin, July 23, and London, July 24.—"The strong Russian offensive which began July 15 along the sector between Plakien and a point just south-eastward of the eastern end of the Island of Dalen in the Dvina river, has come to a temporary end. The correspondence of the Associated Press has just returned from a visit to the foremost trenches of the Dvina front, and the correspondent has just returned from the Russian attack."

The scene was a peaceful one, only a single cannon or rifle shot breaking the silence. The correspondent stood near a hill, the summit of which had been flattened a few hours previously by the Russian drum fire.

Had Five Divisions.
The attack in this section was carried out as was an attack further eastward toward Uskuli, by five divisions. It appears the attack was designed chiefly as a diversion in connection with the Russian offensive on both sides of the main road running from Kekka southward to Bausk. German officers' scout suggestions that the whole offensive was merely a relief movement designed to counteract the pressure on the Russian lines further south. They say that the nature of the offensive showed that beyond a doubt it was serious effort to break the German lines at this point.

Fifty Hours Drum Fire.
Along a line some four or five miles long where the fighting was hottest, the Russians, after fifty hours of drum fire preparation, launched an offensive with the 3rd, 12th, 13th and 16th Divisions—all elite troops—and the 121st Infantry Division. The result of the five days' of desperate efforts was the capture by the Russians of a lone German listening post, which was to have been transformed eventually into an advanced permanent position. Russian prisoners repeatedly reported that there were only five or six survivors in their company.

German officers naturally make allowances for exaggeration in such cases, but all the officers with whom the correspondent talked declared the enemy losses had been very great. The German losses also naturally were not inconsiderable, but were declared to be light in comparison with those of the Russians.

May Be a Renewal.
Whether the Russians will renew their efforts in this section cannot be predicted, but a new offensive would not come as a surprise since the strategic value of breaking the German front along the Kekka road is plainly understood fully by the enemy. Such a breach, if it could be made, would compel the abandonment of the present German line for a considerable distance both south and west of Riga. Prisoners taken reported that the enemy was taking steps to strengthen the line to the operations here by the Russians.

Germans Are Confident.
Every effort made by the Associated Press correspondent expressed the most absolute confidence that the German front here is impenetrable. The German front still follows the left bank of the Dvina River from a point about a mile north of Bersemaude to as far south as a powerful field glass can carry from the highest observation point in the whole region, with the exception of a small sector between Ragasen and Duenhof, where the front keeps to a straight line to the Uskuli bridgehead. The line has been held without change since last autumn.

A TOTAL WRECK.
St. Johns, Nfld., July 25.—The British steamer Matatus, which went ashore near Cape Race on Saturday, has become a total wreck, it was learned today. There is a chance that her cargo of lumber may be saved, but at present the weather is too stormy for salvage work.

We guarantee Goodyear Wingfoot Air Heels to outwear any other rubber heels you have ever worn, or any others you can now buy. Should they not meet this guarantee, return them to us at Toronto, or to any Goodyear Branch, and get a new pair free.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited - Toronto, Ont.

It is Worth While to Pay More for Goodyear Rubber Heels

It is worth while to pay a little more than the ordinary price to get a heel that's better than ordinary heels.

The ten cents extra which you pay for Goodyear Wingfoot Air Heels will be worth many times more to you in extra wear, extra comfort, extra satisfaction.

We could make a heel to sell as cheaply as other heels. But it would not be the best Goodyear could produce.

Therefore, Wingfoot Air Heels are offered you at the lowest possible price which permits Goodyear standards of excellence to be maintained.

Wingfoot Air Heels are thick, lively, adding a lift to your walk. The air cushions soften the pavement. With Wingfoot exercise becomes a pleasure as well as a duty.

HOT WEATHER RULES FOR HORSE OWNERS

The following hot weather rules for horse owners have been issued by the London Humane Society:

1. Load lightly and drive slowly.
2. Stop in the shade if possible.
3. Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few sips if he is going to stand still. Do not allow him to drink at night after he has eaten his hay.
4. When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet, but not his legs.
5. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.
6. Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.
7. Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.
8. A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.
9. If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.
10. If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.
11. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.
12. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

ESCAPED HAIL OF SHELLS TO FALL BEHIND TRENCHES

London Boy, Who Dodged Bullets in Open, Wounded.

YPRES FIGHT WAS WORSE
Engagement of June 2nd Gave Pte. Chestnut Satisfaction of Seeing Huns Fall.

A. W. Chestnut, a former Londoner who was wounded late last month and is now recovering from shrapnel wounds in the knees, in a British war hospital, graphically describes the action in which he fell, in writing to a London friend.

Pte. Chestnut joined a university reinforcing company that went overseas some time ago, and was wounded on June 23. In his letter he declares that he is making a speedy recovery, and the greatest trouble is from water on the knee that followed the wounding. In part his letter follows:

"I was wounded on the night of June 23, during a heavy bombardment. The Huns had been 'straffing' the Huns from early morning till dark without letup, but the Huns had failed to answer at that another few and thought, were sent to guide a couple of men to a listening post some distance in front of our front line trench.

"We were sneaking along a road toward the post, stopping every time a German flare went up, when suddenly all the German machine guns started sweeping the road with short bursts of fire. 'We lost no time in jumping into the ditch at the side of the road, and believe me we expected to die at any moment.'

"By this time the Germans were also throwing over big trench mortars at the post for which we were bound, but as the Huns did not seem to have the range of that place, some of the miniature mines were lighting too close to us for comfort. Finally we thought, considering the meagre protection that the ditch offered, it would be safer to make a dash down the road for the front line trench. So up we got and down the road like a whirlwind broken loose. We did not stop for the German flares or anything. Shells were bursting in all directions, but somehow we got through.

"Talk about 'cannons to right of them cannons to left of them' those shells were bursting in front, behind and on both sides of us.

"We arrived at the front line safely, and lay on the ground for a while for the bombardment to cease so we might start out for the post again. It was while lying here that a big piece of shrapnel, from a high explosive, came over the parapet and hit me on the knee. However, it might have hit me on the head.

"Nothing to June 2 Fight.

"This bombardment was nothing to the one we had on June 2, however. I suppose you have read in the newspapers all about that. They gave a fairly accurate account. I was in the front line at the time and was among the few to come out.

"I understand that the engagement is known as the 'third battle of Ypres.' I have one satisfaction in knowing that more than one Hun bit the dust when my rifle cracked.

CRINAN SPRING CROPS THREATEN TO BE FAILURE

Some Farmers, However, Have Good Corn and Wheat.

CRINAN, July 25.—The hay crop, which has been exceptionally heavy this year, is nearly all safely either in barns or stacks. The wheat in the section is very poor, only on the sandy land and river flats. Cutting is general. The spring crop on the clay belt is an absolute failure. The heavy rains of the early spring kept seedling late, and since the sowing has taken place the continued dry, warm spell has hindered growth very much.

Robert Dobson, concessionaire, who occupies the Thomas Simpson farm on the river flats, has corn five feet high at present, which is a record for this year. D. B. McGill, who also has a farm on the river flats, reports good crops. His wheat, which he has finished cutting, will yield at least 25 bushels to the acre, and his beans are now in flower and filling the rows.

FIRE DEPARTMENT EQUINE VETERANS STILL ANXIOUS TO RESPOND TO ALARMS

"Doc" and "Frank," After Decades of Service, Still Able To Do Their Part When Called On For Gruelling Runs.

Those two old equine veterans of the city fire department, "Doc" and "Frank," are today, after many years of faithful service and many a hard run, able to perform their duties every bit as satisfactorily as when "colts." Both are stationed at No. 1 fire hall, King street.

"Doc," a large, handsome bay, is 19 years old, and has served under three fire chiefs, Roe, Clark and Atkinson. At present he runs on the hook and ladder truck. He has never failed for a moment when needed, and at the sound of the gong is ready and prancing to be away.

Shaking Hands His Specialty.
His specialty when visitors are around is to shake hands, and then winny for oats, a trick he has learned to perfection. His handshake on the word of command: "Shake hands, Doc," is with the right front foot, and is a trifle heavy for the ordinary individual, notwithstanding "Doc's" apparent cordiality during the act.

Sixteen Years Old.
"Frank," the well-groomed, handsome black, so well known to Londoners, is 16 years old, and has been running the chief's buggy for years. His stall, at the rear of the hall, next to the chief's buggy, is visited by many, as Canners Prophecy Higher Prices for Vegetables.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
WEST THORNE, July 24.—In the recent entrance exams Miss Elsie Petherick of this place, stands first in the list of successful candidates for West Elgin. Out of 31 pupils who wrote here, 25 were successful.

The following passed with honors: Ida Chasely, Jack Ferguson, Edward Purvis, Elsie Petherick, Violet Thomson. The following pupils of Miss Georgina Haig have passed recent examinations of the London Conservatory of Music, taking first-class honors: Theory, grade 2—Fannie Robinson; Piano, grade 2—Maurine Skinner; grade 1—Marion McKillop.

PEAS POOR CROP.
WEST THORNE, July 24.—The local branch of the Dominion Canners has been canning peas, which, on account of the heavy rains of the spring, will not produce as well as in previous seasons. The local management of the canners is due for a raise in price, as the season has so far been poor for the production of peas, corn and fruits. The price of packing will also be higher on account of the scarcity of labor and tin.
