"Stratton is Guilty== To His Very Feet"

Strong Speech by the Member for Manitoulin—Repudiates the Report and Says Judge Boyd Should Be Ashamed of Himself—The Globe's Twisting and Doubling the Manoeuvres of a Religious Monstrosity.

Startling Testimony of Excluded Witnesses Read in the Legislature.

Geo. B. Wilson Alleged to Have Told Three Persons that He was to Receive $500 for Staying in Rochester and that Frank Sullivan Received $5,000 for Testimony With the Object of Clearing Stratton.

Mr. Gamey Intimates that He has Further Disclosures to Make at the Proper Time.

the Royal Commissioners is absolutely false, absolutely wrong and absolutely unfair to me," said Robert Roswell Gamey, the man from Manitoulin, in the course of a three hours' speech in the Legislature, in which in a most exhaustive, although somewhat rambling manner, he gave his reasons why the House should not adopt the find-ing of the Commission. Mr. Gamey hit right out from the shoulder at ers. He charged that Chancellor Boyd had deliberately twisted the evidence in an adroit manner as only a learned mind like that of the judge could do in order to relieve the Provincial Secretary as much as possible and reflect on him (Gamey). What had been ntended as a coat of whitewash for the Government had turned out to be ne declared, a coat of mud for the judiciary. He alluded to the editor of the Globe as a "religious monstrosity," and referring to a recent editorial in that paper he said he would much prefer to be likened to Titus Oates han to Rev. J. A. Macdonald. The black-clothed editor who had up to this been hanging his head over the press gallery, suddenly drew back surprised and then smiled. Mr. Gamey found particular fault with the inacjudges from beginning to end, and which he indicated in turn. One of the minor inaccuracies told them that Liberal members were fixing up election protests on Sunday. "If I were the Premier," said Mr. Gamey, amid most attentive hearing from the Opposition benches, but the Government desks were practically deserted and the ten or fifteen members on that side present, including Mr. Stratton buried themselves behind their newspapers.

A sensation was sprung on the Legislature this morning when Dr. Beattie Nesbitt read the affidavits of three witnesses whose testimony was excluded by the Commissioners in the Gamey case. These were T. W. H. Leavitt, Conservative organizer, Toronto; Archie C. Davis, insurance agent, Rochester, and George Palmer, express agent, Rochester, all relate to the alleged spiriting away of Geo. B. Wilson, of Newmarket, the fatherin-law of Frank Sudlivan, who was afterwards brought from Rochester to testify. From these affidavits Wilson, in conversation with chances acquaintances at Rochester, said he was to get $500 for staying away until after the investigation was over, and Toronto, June 19 .- "This report of that Frank was to get $5,000 for his testimony. The reason for sending to the States was, he told these men, that he had been aware of the scheme that he had been aware of the scheme to bribe Gamey from the outset, and that Frank Sullivan had been in hid-ing at Newmarket for some days after the revelations were made by Mr. Gamey. The connection of Mr. T. W. Gamey. The connection of Mr. T. W.

H. Leavitt occurred through the Conservative organization having received a "tip" from Davis. Mr. Deavitt want to Rochester and himself confirmed the fact that Wilson was making these assertions. Dr. Neshitt's reading of these affidavits caused when a systemach in the House. much excitement in the House.

Toronto, June 20.-Mr. Gamey spoke on the finding of the Judges in the Legislature yesterday for five hours, and will continue on Monday. He spoke forcibly, and replied to the

Mr. Gamey justified entering into negotiations with the Sullivans by the fact that he had to face a protest, with the prospect of financial ruin as a consequence. He admitted the folly of his trip to Buffalo, but said he needed a rest, and blamed his counsel for the scene they created in court after his disappearance. He said the others knew where he was, and they should have told Mr. Blake. By implication Mr. Gamey threw the blame on Mr. McEvoy for the missing leaves from the Crossin cash book. During his the Crossin cash book. During his speech he was surrounded by an eager group of Opposition members, one of whom, Mr. Hanna, who has been a constant adviser, sat at his side on the floor of the next row of benches. Those charges were made in his own rough, simple way, made without pre-the Premier," said Mr. Gamey, amid laughter, "I would throw Boyd's report back in his face after that." Many of these inaccuracies, he asserted, did him the gravest injustice, while they all went to show that the Chancellor had started out to produce a finding satisfactory to his employers. Mr. Gamey also complained of the way in which the judges had accepted the evidence of all the officials and grafters and rejected his own. They said Myers, Boland, Sullivan, et al., did so and so, why did not they say Myers said he did so and so, and leave the people to judge between them and himself. Mr. E. F. B. Johnston was characterized by Mr. Gamey as that blustering, bluffing senior counsel for the defence, who tried to throw dust in my eyes. Mr. Gamey received a most attentive hearing from the Opposition benches, but the Government desks were practically deserted and ed to torget was very relevant to the case. The Premier had also said there was nothing wrong in the patronage he had exercised, that the returning officer was appointed in the regular way, because he was the Sheriff, and of necessity must have got the appointment. That was absolutely wrong. The appointment was made because he (Mr. Gamey) wrote, saying the Sheriff must 'e appointed, although the Provincial Status had suggested the appointment. The previous returning officer.

Mr. Gamey, continuing, complained that the Premier had spoken of "the rirtue of the hon member for Manicullin—if he had any virtue," a nice it to the hon member for Manicullin—if he had any virtue," a nice it to the hon member for Manicullin—if he had any virtue," a nice it is that he remarkated when appointment the previous returning officer.

Mr. Gamey, continuing, complained that the Premier had spoken of "the cirtue of the hon member for Maniculin—if he had any virtue," a nice itatement for the Premier to make. He would say himself by way of off-setting this that he remembered when a boy that the school teachers and inspectors of the Province would say that if they wanted anything of the hen Minister of Education they could not take his word for it, but must have to in writing. Mr. Cameron had passid lightly over the slips of the Judges on some matters. Did they pass lightly over any errors he (Mr. Gamey) and made? Were they simply misses? Oh, no! The report of the Judges was besolutely false in many regards. The blustering, bluffing senior counsel of the defence had tried to throw dust not Mr. Aylesworth's eyes, and tried to get him to say things he had never laid.

Mr. Gamey next referred to the re-

Mr. Gamey next referred to the report as that document "which bore the lignature of the great high muck-annuck of this land." He quoted from Mr. Aylesworth's evidence, which, he laid, corroborated his statement in the House respecting the negotiations as to a "stock transaction." "So much or the speech of the great moulto a "stock transaction." "So much or the speech of the great mogul from west Huron," said Mr. Gamey. Then se took up the speech of the Provincial Secretary, and said it was absolutely false to say he (Gamey) had said legal advice in preparing his statement. Mr. Stratton had said that the Dposition had had knowledge of his statement beforehand. "I wonder if he blushed when he said that," remarked Mr. Gamey. "It is absolutely false, rust as false as the man is! What non-is that! (Laughter.) He said no Judge in the British Empire would him guilty on that evidence. Why in the name of Heaven didn't you give ne the naming of the Judges? (Laughher and applause.) You knew you poots, and you wanted to name the Judges—time-serving Judges.

Here there were cries of order, and Mr. Whitney said the mistake was in aot addressing the Speaker.

"I will address anybody you like," temarked Mr. Gamey, cheerfully.

If he had stayed on their side he sould have roped in about all the money he wanted. He wondered how Mr. Stratton had made all the money he had since he entered politics. The Judges had said the money came from somewhere, and the public thought all the roads led to Mr. Stratton. The fetter to the Premier had not embodied his sentiments, but it was the letter of Mr. Stratton and Mr. Aylesworth. The $f, coo paid for The Globe interview, he said, was a payment in advance; they had owed him $2,000 yet.

His bank books had all been produced, but Mr. Stratton's had not.

Mr. Stratton interrupted to say that his (Mr. Stratton's had not.

Mr. Stratton's had not.

Mr. Gamey said Mr. Price had toldhim only on Thursday that his (Gamey's) statement was correct. He preferred to take Price's word, but if the Speaker ruled he should take Stratton's, he would take both, he supposed. (Laughter).

"I regret some things I did in connection with his case," said Mr. Gamey, "but I want to say this, that I never exalted myself as a great patriot. I never made any such claim as that at all. The common attributes of ordinary mankind are enough to make anyone seek the rooting out of the condition of things that have prevailed in this Province for years back, his had not happened. I regret that I did not mention that $1,200 in my statement in the House on the 12th of human and others of heir kind, and one wish had not happened. I regr first complained of the omission of the letter from Frank Sullivan to himself on February 20th, saying that he had seen "the party mentioned." The commissioner said on page 23 that Sullivan, Aylesworth and Stratton had practically agreed, whereas, as he had shown, Aylesworth had corroborated his (Mr. Gamey's) evidence rather than the Provincial Secretary's.

Speaking of Mr. Stratton's visit to the trust company's office, Mr. Gamey said that if Stratton had remained there all the time it was claimed, Mr. Coffee would have been called. The fact that Mr. Coffee was not called was conclusive proof that Mr. Stratton was not there all that time.

When the commissioners wrote that Armstrong might be wrong to the extent of an hour in the time he saw him (Mr. Gamey) at the Exhibition grounds on September 9th, they were writing what was as false as if the words had been penned by the Provincial Secretary himself. The commissioners' comment on the evidence of the cab-driver, Green, was unjust and incorrect. Green did not confuse Stratton and Stratty in regard to the day in question. He was as positive as possible. Strathy in regard to the day in ques-tion. He was as positive as possible, and pointed Mr. Stratton out in the

and pointed Mr. Stratton out in the court.

Mr. Gamey spoke of the evidence of Dr. Chamberlain that he (Mr. Gamey) initiated The Globe interview. The whole tenor of Mr. Hammond's evidence was that Mr. Stratton told him to hang around so that they might get him (Mr. Gamey) to sign an interview for The Globe. He would bet dollars that that was what Mr. Hammond was to forget; nothing about the Carnegie library or the Niagara power. But they could not get Mr. Hammond to forget, though they did get Dr. Chamberlain to remember some things that he had never heard.

Mr. Gamey said that it was queer he had to keep on saying that Chancellor Boyd was wrong, wrong, wrong.

A Voice—"What about the other fellow?"

Mr. Gamey—Oh, the other fellow; he doesn't amount to a hill of beans, at which the Conservative memoers loudly applauded. A moment later he said he wished the Chancellor was there to-day, and he would rub it into him. (Laughter.)

Mr. Gamey pointed out other statements which, he said, were absolutely false. If he were Sir John Boyd, he said, he would take that star off his breast while writing that report against a man from the country; but he had not shame enough in him. Mr. Aylesworth had sworn to reading something in the newspapers on the afternoon of September 10, which was not published until the morning of the 11th. "I am not throwing bouquets at Mr. Aylesworth," said Mr. Gamey, "but in the main his evidence corroborates mine. Mr. Cavers' evidence had not been mentioned if it had hurt me. If Stratton aks The Globe reporter to alter a document or to forget something it is passed over, but if I do anything of that kind, down I go in the mud, and am walked all over." (Laughter.)

passed over, but if I do anything of that kind, down I go in the mud, and am walked all over." (Laughter.)

Mr. Gamey then adverted to his trip to Buffalo, saying that he had been hounded and threatened by Liberals of all grades, had gone through three days of the most severe cross-examination that an unserupulous lawyer days of the most severe cross-examination that an unscrupulous lawyer could give, was under no subpoena, and had gone away for a day or two as a rest. "I admit I was wrong; I say I was wrong in going away," said Mr. Gamey. He added that his counsel knew where he was; he had a telegram from them that day in Ruffalo. from them that day in Buffalo, and whether Mr. Blake knew it or not the others were wrong in permitting him that Tuesday morning to say he did Continued on Page Eight.

Press of Manitoutin Island has a few Things to say of the Judges and their " Finding."

The Algoma Conservator, published at Gore Bay, in Mr. Gamey's constituency, mildly describes the conclusions of the Royal Commission as "The rottenest report that has ever been produced by any two men of been produced by any two men of moderate intelligence in the Domin-ion of Canada," and adds: "Some call it a report, others a finding, some people call it a 'whitewash,' others say 'kalsomining,' its chief defect from a whitewashing point of view being that it is spread on too thickly, and is apt to 'chip' off in a heated atmosphere, like they have this week in the Parliament Build-ings at Toronto."

The Manatoulin Observer says:
"When the angel Gahriel blows his last trumpet and gathers home to the Lord the souls who have suffered in daring to do right in the face of insurmountable odds, on that great day when all shall be justly judged and equally rewarded, if Bob Gamey does not receive a whiter plume than Boyd or Falconbridge, we confess we would be inclined to lose our faith in the justness of things in heaven."

A BUSY PAIR

"I have heard stories about people starving for a week in preparation for a church tea-meeting,' said one of the managers of the recent Park St. lawn social, "but I never before suspected that this practice prevailed in connection with lawn socials.

"There were two couples who at-nded our social on the parsonage wn who have the record for lawn lawn who have the record for lawn social eating, as far as I know. First they ordered four dishes of ice cream; four dishes of strawberries followed; eight sacks of peanuts followed, and twelve bananas soon disappeared. Then they washed the whole mixture down with eight bottles of pop.

"If this thing keeps up, the doctors of the city should provide bonuses for lawn social promoters."

THE SYNOD OF HURON

The Anglican Synod at London has just closed its forty-sixth annual session. As might have been expected from the past awakening in the church, the spirit of missions prevailed and one and all showed a disposition to meet to the last dollar and the last man the urgent demands in our Northwest for the ministrations, of the church to the thousands who are immigrating to that country. The Diocese of Huron is responding splendidly for the call for support in the domestic and foreign mission fields.

His Lordship, the Bishop, gave special attention to two subjects-one, the urgent need in the spirtual work of help from the able men in every congregation, men who had become accustomed to use the Lord's Day for great yawn, and, the other, the sup-pression of the gambling spirit which he said was bred and nourished in the homes of the rich where ladies darkened their rooms and lit the gas and wasted their precious 'time in practising this awful crime under the euphonious name of progressive euchre, and later their sons and daughters took the finishing course in the open gambling dens or bucket

An Odd Advertisement. The sudden popularity some years ago of Mr. Shorthouse's book, "John Inglesant," is attributed to an odd incident. "Mr. Gladstone," says the London Express, "was sitting photographer and holding in his hand a copy of 'John Inglesant.' The gold lettering on the cover caught the light, and the title showed clearly in the photograph. The likeness of the great statesman proved a very popular one, and its circulation broadcast over country led to a widespread demand for the book."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at 'east one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. SOUTH BUXTON.

SOUTH BUXTON.

To-day has been a notable day in the history of Buxton, being the convention day of the local union of Raleigh and Tilbury Christian Endeavor societies. The day was fine and people came in from all quarters. The Endeavor people here had busied themselves in preparing to give the visitors a hearty welcome. St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was most artistically decorated with drapings of various colors, flags, mottoes, buntings, flowers, etc., which presented a very beautiful appearance. About three p. m. Rev. D. Johnson, of Tilbury, the president, took the chair and opened the convention with singing, reading the 27th Psalm, and prayer by Rev. Mr. Scott, who also gave a hearty address of welcome to all, which was warmly replied to by Rev. Mr. Monroe, of South Bush. After some preliminaries Mr. Monroe addressed the convention on the subject of missions and his broad and unselfish manner of address provoked a lively discussion, in which Mr. Burgess, of Rosedage, A. E. Roberted a lively discussion, in which Mr. Burgess, of Rosedage, A. E. Robertson and Rev. Mr. Scott took a lively part, the chairman always bringing up the rear with a most powerful wind-up, for which he is noted. Mrs. McCloud, of Veletta, then read an wind-up, for which he is noted. Mrs. McCloud, of Valetta, then read an able paper on Endeavor opportunities, which drew out much discussion, the chairman reasoning highly with fitty remarks. A paper by Mr. Burgess, of Rosedale, on Temperance, seemed to stir the whole convention, which read in part, "Resolved that we vote for no man for Parliament unless he is a known total abstainer." This subject was handled by J. M. Garel, Rev. Mr. Monroe, Ed. Hea, and the chairman, which provoked much interest and laughter. A very able and carefully prepared paper on Good Citizenship was read by Cassie M. Hill, and the subject was handled without gloves by Mr. Burgess, J. M. Garel and the chairman. J. M. Garel opened fire on the Christian church and pointed out that while the British Government had done and was doing all in its power to advence in the chairman and the read that we had been and was doing all in its power to advence in the chairman and the subject was handled without gloves by Mr. Burgess, J. M. Garel and the chairman. J. M. Garel opened fire on the Christian church and pointed out that while the British Government had done and was doing all in its power to advence in the chairman and the paper to advence in the chairman and the chairman its power to advence in the chairman and the chairman is the chairman and the chairman is not the chairman in the chairman is not the chairman is not the chairman in the chairman is not the chairman is not the chairman in the chairman is not t opened fire on the Christian church and pointed out that while the British Government had done and was doing all in its power to advance civilization and promote the Christian religion, that the Christian body of the Province of Ontario had sacrificed the great principles laid down by Christ to govern the actions of his followers and had joined themselves to the world to discriminate against the colored man, and that while Christ said "Love ye one another as I have loved you," and again, "Love thy neighbor as thy self," they had violated every principle of Christian love and, being largely in majority, they had closed the avenues of business life against the colored man, because it had pleased Almighty God to make the complexion of his skin a little different from theirs, and that in doing so they had not only sacrificed every Christian principle but had also put a stain on British honor. The chairman made a long and able reply, defending the love of Christ and fizing the blame firmly on those who stooped to such an inhuman, un-Christian, un-British act.

Recent reports Trom medical men in various sections, indicate that rheumatism is on the increase this summer. This being the case, we implore rheumatic victims to make every effort to remove this dangerous febrile disorder before the intense hot weather comes on. During the month of June, a few bottles of Paine's Celery Compound will speedily banish articular, inflammatory or muscular rheumatism. Mr. G. J. McDonald, Cornwall, Ont., speaks about his cure as follows:

"For three years I suffered terribly" from rheumatism. It seemed to me fizing the blame firmly on those who stooped to such an inhuman, unchristish act.

Evening Session.

About 7.30 p. m. the chairman took his seat and opened the session with singing, reading and prayer, and then read the report of the nominating committee as follows:

Andrew McCormick, of Toronto, Tells of a Cure for the most Dreaded of all Diseases.

Toronto, June 15.—(Special).— In these days when the dreaded Bright's Disease seems to be selecting its victims at will the report of an authenticated cure is received with relief by all classes of the community. And such a report comes from Andrew McCormick, of 243 Spadina avenue, this city.

McCormick, of 243 Spadana avenue, this city.

That Mr. McCormick is well known and highly respected, is evidenced by the fact that he has held high offices in several fraternal societies, and was for several years President of the Bricklayers' Union. Interviewed regarding the cure, Mr. McCormick says:

garding the cure, Mr. McCormack says:

"I suffered with an attack of Bright's Disease and naturally was much troubled concerning it. I heard of the wonderful cures effected by Dodd"s Kidney Pills and concluded to try them. The result was so satisfactory that it gives me pleasure to recommend them."

Make and keep the Kidneys sound by using Dodd's Kidney Pills and there can be no Bright's Disease.

Colored Woman Convicted of the Theft-A Story of Misplaced Confidence.

George Campbell, of the Township of Romney, an unsophisticated country youth, came to the city Thursday of Romney, an unsophisticated country youth, came to the city Thursday to see the circus. Being enamored of city life he lingered in the village over night and Yesterday morning wandered out to see the sights in the Tenderloin district, otherwise known as Colborne St. He had as much as $15.70 in real money in his pants pocket when his fancy led him to mingle in the life of the Tenderloin. He mingled, and shortly afterwards was seeking assistance from the police to get his $15 back. He was willing to let the 70 odd cents go. As a result of Mr. Campbell's investigations into the mysteries of city life, Ida Sullivan, a colored woman, was arraigned before Judge Houston. Campbell told the Court his story of misplaced confidence. He visited Harvey Wilson's house and put up 20 cents for whiskey. The men in the house went own to get it. Then Mina Wilson went down stairs to "cook fish." Campbell figured as a sucker and was cooked for his 15 belongs. John Bedford, Park Ave., purchased the trotting horse "Romeo" recently at a good round figure. Arthur Roy, of the Fred Quian farm at Glencoe, is in the city. He is looking for a farm in Kent to either purchase or rent. Mr. Quinn intends selling his farm at Glencoe in the Rev. T .T. George took the topic at Victoria Ave. League last evening. It was Mr. George's last evening at the League. Rev. A. W. Torrie, of the League. Rev. A. W. Torrie, of William St. Baptist Church, gave a capital address on Temperance. N. A. McGeachy, of Harwich, will shortly move into the Brooke place on Park Ave. Mr. McGeachy made the purchase of the ten acres and resi-Campbell figured as a sucker and was cooked for his 15 plunks.

After hearing all the evidence, Judeg Houston found the woman guilty and remanded her till Monday dence for $3,000. The residence when built cost in the neighborhood of $7,-

ANOTHER OIL WELL

On Friday a good well was struck three hundred feet from the O'Keefe well on the Doyle farm in Harwich. It has been named the "Walker" in honor of J. R. Walker, one of the promoters, and gave a large flow, and every indication of proving one of the best. The oil filled to the top of the casing and overflowed in considerable quantities before being capped, and to-day pumps are being placed in position for active operations. The success that has attended the company's efforts in Harwich has given a fresh impetus and a number of oil operators who were early in the field have returned to the city. Already six shipments have city. Already six shipments have been made and three more carloads are awaiting shipment, but at pres-ent cars are not available. It will probably be sent out next week.

INTER QUARTERS.

UR first scout did no differ much in dura-tion, accidents and results from scores which followed it. Go out whatever road we might, we were al ways sure to find the same old stand and unwillang to be interfered with. We always could reach them in a day's march, consume another day in passing along their entire front and still another in return Ing to camp. They seldom returned our attentions in force, probably because they had not a large enough force to feel safe when far from home. Besides, they could learn all they liked about our post and its camps, for every farmer and planter in the county was a source of information to them We never got into a big engagement. It wasn't our business, except when we were accompanied by a large force of infantry and artillery, to worry the Confederacy by making believe that the "on to Richmond" movement of the Potomac army was to be made from our direction. When we went alone, the enemy did not worry much, Tor they had a broad, deep stream along their entire front. They could quickly take up the planking of the only bridge within ten miles, so they exchanged shot and shells with us dence of the card player who holds all

Our colonel had been quite right in saying that the first scout was worth more to us than a month of drill. The men learned to sit in their saddles and men learned to sit in their saddles and not to be afraid of their horses, so we were able to begin mounted drill in good shape and progress rapidly. Man ranks lower than his horse in all good cavalry regiments, so it was not until we had completed the stables that our own winter quarters were begun. By this time however, we leaved the this time, however, we learned, to our lelight, that we were too valuable to consume our time in common labor. A aumber of the "contrabands" (fugitive slaves) who had made our post a place of refuge were sent into the woods to out trees and split shingles, and just before Christmas each company had a great log house, about 15 feet by 50, for its winter home. A small contribu-tion from each man enabled us to put up a stove, which tempered the winter ways lived in the tenement house district in New York, said he never before had known so comfortable a home,

Killing time in the winter season was almost as hard as killing the enemy. Tor there was such an appalling dot of time ahead of us. Some men played cards all day, except while eating and sleeping; others read incessant-dy; still others did nothing but smoke. Some seemed to spend much of their mine writing. I liked to observe these, For they had more heart in their faces for the time being, and as I knew some of the people to whom the letters were going I amused myself by imagining the scenes when the letters were re-

But it troubled me much that Hamalton and Brainard were writing so persistently to my cousin May. I did mot see the letters, but I heard of them knew that Brainard, who visibly wor shiped May's portrait sometimes when the supposed I was not looking, and probably hundreds of other times, was not the sort of man to change his regard for any one, much less for a weet girl. Some one had seen in Hamilton's hands a portrait of May. I Summerton. I was also troubled by his manner toward Brainard. It was anot ugly, but it contained a suggestion of condescension not unmixed with contempt, and I fancied Brainard noeticed it. Still, what could I do in such a unatter? May was no fonder of counsuch than very young women in general, amor was she less averse to admiration a large quantities. I could not imagine her in love with any one, for she and I had been rough and tumble playanates, and I knew only the tomboy and fun loving side of her nature. after much thought over the rivals and their respective chances, I could only hope, for the sake of peace, that she would not give the slightest encouragement to either, but would be won by some other worthy Summerton youth. I believed that both Brainard youth. I believed that both and Hamilton were manly enough to recover from any sorrow occasioned by the loss of something, no matter how precious, that was not their own and had not ever been promised to them. Our special comforts were not confined to shelter and rest. Two or three of the married men knew something about cooking, and so did one man who had been a logger in Maine; so the mompany cook was coaxed, bullied and dattered until he learned to do somechartered until he learned to do some-thing besides merely boil the several zaw materials dealt him. A ration of cornmeal would sometimes be served as fried hasty pudding and again as "crackling bread"—corn bread-contain-ing tiny dice of fat pork which had been fried thoroughly and drained of grease. Remains of a dinner of sait beef and potatoes would reappear next rice, modified only by cheap molasses was about as unpopular as castor oil, but with a little coffee, which would not be missed, we could trade with a native for enough milk and eggs to make that once detested rice so popular that there always was some man offering his supper portion of bread for half of some other man's rice.

Finally Hamilton, who felt that as commissary sergeant it was his duty to study up on cookery, electrified us one day by announcing that on the following Sunday there would be a des-sert of plum pudding. Up to that time about half of the men had called Hamilton "stuck up." Worse still, many had called attention to the fact that never once in our many skirmishes and fights had Hamilton been under fire. Brainhad combated this story for the honor of Summerton, but one day he, too, learned that Hamilton had a picture of my cousin May. That silenced him. But the mention of plum pudding caused the grumblers to recant, Mick McTwyny going so far as to borrow a pipe of tobacco from Phil. Our gusta-tory anticipations were marred only by Hamilton's statement that the pudding would be made entirely from army rations.

"Where will he get the raisins?" asked one family man.

"And the suet?" said another. "And the flavoring?" suggested a third.

"Does the quartermaster issue pudding bags?" another wanted to know. Nevertheless the pudding was an absolute success. The flour came from the commissary stock; finely chopped fat pork, well soaked, answered for suet; dried apples, partly boiled and then candied in boiling sirup made from sugar, took the place of raisins. The sauce looked as if it were only sirup of sugar, some of Which had been carameled to give it special flavor and color. There rose from the sauce, however, an odor which caused Mick Mc-Twyny to utter an ecstatic "Whoorroo!" and Cloyne to ask:

"Is brandy an army ration, Phil?"
"Yea." said Hamilton—"that is, 'tis

"The quartermaster issues cotton drawers," Phil replied, "and you'll learn, if you choose to ask, that he charged two new pairs to my personal clothing account this morning. The puddings were boiled in the legs of them."

"Be hivin," said Mick McTwyny, with an approving shoulder slap that nearly knocked our enterprising commissary sergeant into the cook's fire, "the likes of yez niver was born, and the fust money the paymaster gives me yez shall git that dhrunk wid me that yez won't know yer mout from a hole in the ground!"

"Thanks, sergeant," said Hamilton, rubbing his shoulder. "I assure you that you're the first man who ever was houghtful enough to make me so handsome an offer."

Miss Nettie Blackmore, Minneapolis, tells how any young woman may be permanently cured of monthly pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Young Women:—I had frequent headaches of a severe nature, dark spots before my eyes, and at my menstrual periods I suffered untold agony. A member of the lodge advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I only scorned good advice and felt that my case was hopeless, but she kept at me until I bought a bottle and started taking it. I soon had the best reason in the world to change my opinion of the medicine, as each day my health improved, and finally I was entirely without pain at my menstruation periods. I am most grateful."—Nette Blackmore, 28 Central Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

Painful Periods

Are quickly and permanently overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The above letter is only one of hundreds of thousands which prove this statement to be a fact. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality,—if it is painful something is wrong. Don't take narcotics to deaden the pain, but remove the cause—perhaps it is caused by irregularity or womb displacements, or the development of a tumor. Whatever it is, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is guaranteed to cure it.

If there is anything about your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

THE RADIUM PEOPLE

VISIT TO THE CURIES, DISCOVER-ERS OF WONDERFUL MINERAL.

and Wife Joint Laborers for Many Years in the Realm of Science-A Visit to Their Home in France-Courteous and Willing to Talk of the Nature of the Mineral.

Few people are aware that the wonderful new mineral called radium was made known to the world through the efforts of a woman, Mme. Curie, who is the wife of Professor Pierre Curie, himself a scientist of no mean note. They are Parislans and for the moment are the most striking and interesting personages in the French capital. Their home is in a small cottage in the most inaccessible southern district overlooking the fortifications and far away from the intellectual and fashionable centre of the capital. Nevertheless this little cottage, as may be expected, has become a Mecca for be expected, has become a Mecca for all interested in scientific progress and research. While reticent regard-ing the uses to which they expect radium to be put—Professor Curie is now organizing a company to exploit the mineral—they are courteous and willing to talk concerning the discovery and the nature of the mineral.

It appears, as Mme. Curie informed the correspondent, when he visited their pretty little home recently, that her experiments which resulted in the extraction and isolation of the wonderful substance were due to her having heard of the accidental discovery by Becquerel, another French scientist, that uranium, which is derived from pitchblende, emitted light rays. She at once resolved to secure some pitchblende and try to determine its chemical analysis. In the subsequent experianalysis. In the subsequent experi-ments she was of course assisted by her husband, and thus it is that the nonor of discovering radium is in the of the scientific world shared jointly by them, although, as a mat-ter of fact, she can justly claim sole title.

After subjecting the pitchblende to chemical tests she finally found that it contained a mineral exhibiting an activity many times greater than activity many times greater than the famous cathode rays.

This mineral Mrs. Curie named polonium in honor of her native country, Poland. There remained another substance, however, which possessed a thousand times greater activity, scientists estimating that it will throw off particles with a velocity sometimes reaching 120,000 miles a second. This substance is radium. radium.

So much has been written regard-ing its wonderful properties that it is not necessary to detail them here. is not necessary to detail them here. It might be proper, however, to mention some of the peculiar effects it has upon the nervous centres of human beings and animals, as indicating the extreme caution with which the Curies were obliged to pursue their inquiries. A glass tube containing one or two milligrams of radium will when carried in the waistcoat pocket produce a painful wound, requiring months to heal. Tubes of radium placed in contact with the necks of guinea pigs kill the animals in a few hours. Professor Curie says that it would probably be death to a man to enter a room containing a pound of the wonderful mineral. Bach week reveals starting additions to its weird properties, and scientists are now beginties, and scientists are now begin-ning to ask themselves if Mme. Cur-ie has not in radium discovered perpetual motion.
The talented Frenchwoman bears her honors modestly and insists that her husband is as much the discover-er of radium as she is. They have worked together for many years. She is a very attractive woman, a deli-cate blonde, with light blue eyes. In addition to her laboratory experients she gives lessons four week at a normal school for girls in Sevres.

Sevres.

Professor Curie himself is forty years old, tall and well built. He is essentially a dreamer, but the business ability that is lacking in him is to be found in full measure in his wife. He dresses with the negligence so often found in men of genius. Altogether he impresses one as a man of marked individuality and possesses a fascination of manner which is difficult to explain. Like his wife, he is devoted to their little daughter, a girl of six, and both the daughter, a girl of six, and both take personal charge of her educa-tion. She was born about the time they first got a glimpse of the mineral which is destined to make their names famous in the world of science.

It must be said it is altogether un-It must be said it is altogether unlikely radium will be a commercial possibility for some time to come. This is owing to the cost of extracting it from the pitchblende, Professor Curie estimates that the initial operation whereby but two decigrams were secured cost $2,000, but he is hopeful a cheaper process will soon be found.

"The blood is the life." Science has never gone beyond that simple state-ment of scripture. But it has illum-inated that statement and given it a ment of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgment are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. No one can be well balanced in mind and body whose blood is impure. No one can have a wholesome and pure life unless the blood is pure. Foul blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the blood is pure, body and brain are alike healthy and life becomes a daily happiness.

not know. He referred to the missing leaves from the Crossin piano books, to say that, according to Crossin's evidence, Mr. McEvoy saw the entries intact. The whole Liberal party believed those books would show where the money came from. If Mr. McEvoy saw those entries, and they showed that the money came from anywhere other than he (Gamey) said it came from, wouldn't he go into the box quicker than scat and say so? Who was this man McEvoy? He didn't believe he had much reputation for any other kind of thing than that. He was the man who got together enough evidence to clear Sifton of a charge of murder, of which he thought everyone believed him guilty. He and Johnston were the chaps. He wasn't saying who stole the leaves, but he himself was never alone in the Crossin office after Mr. McEvoy saw the books. He would leave the country to judge whether McEvoy stole the leaves or not.

Contradicting Sullivan's Father-in-law

The main point of Dr. Nesbitt's peech was the reading of three affi-avits to contradict the evidence given davis to contradict the evidence given before the commissioners by Geo. B. Wilson, Frank Sullivan's father-in-law. The affidavits were by T. W. H. Leavitt of Toronto, Conservative organizer; A. C. Davis and Geo. Palmer of Rochester, who were subpoenaed to give evidence before the commissioners but whose avidence was rejected.

of Rochester, who were subpoenaed to give evidence before the commissioners, but whose evidence was rejected. The affidavit of Davis was as follows:

I, Archie C. Davis, of the city of Rochester, N. Y., insurance agent, make oath and say:

(1) On Friday, the toth day of April, 1903, I met one G. B. Wilson on Main street, Rochester, and he asked me to direct him to the National Hotel. He told-me that he was from Newmarket, in Canada, and I told him that I was a Canadian. In a conversation which followed he said they were having a great time in Canada. I asked him what it was about. He said a man named Stratton, who was in the Government, had bought a Tory by the name of Gamey, and that Gamey had charged Stratton with the crime. He said that he knew all about the business, and his son-in-law, Frank Sullivan, had told him.

(2) Wilson asked me to call and see him at the hotel, which I did repeatedly, having with him at least six interviews, and in these interviews Wilson re-told the story which he told me on the tenth of April, and he 'added the following:

(3) Wilson said he had left Newmarket hecause he was a frail to the contraction of the contraction of

(4) Wilson said that some time ago (4) Wilson said that some time ago Frank Sullivan had come to his house to stay over night, and that Frank Sullivan had asked him (Wilson) not to go to bed at the time the other members of the family retired. When the rest of the family were in bed Sullivan had taken out of his pocket a paper, which was an agreement signed by Gamey, in which Gamey agreed to support the Ross Government. Wilson said he had read said agreement, and handed it back to Sullivan, at the same time remarking to Sullivan that same time remarking to Sullivan that he had better be careful, to which Sul-livan answered "Gamey is all right; he will stick."

(5) Wilson said that Sullivan told s interview that Gamey was to get $5,000 for supporting Ross, but that the money had not all been paid

(6) Wilson said that, at a later time, when Parliament met, Gamey gave the whole plan away on the floor of the House of Parliament, and that Frank had to resign his position in the Parliament buildings.

(7) Wilson said that Frank Sullivan was scared, and that he came out to Wilson's house, near Newmarket, and hid for a time, so as to avoid being served with a subpoena, but after a time he (Frank) went off to a place called North Bay, where they caught him.

IS CHATHAM DISQUALIFIED? Under the heading, "Canadians may be Expelled," the perfoit Journal of yesterday contains the following editorial, doubtless from the pen of city editor Wm. McDonald, late secretary of the Peninsular League, and a member of the executive of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association, of Torrotte.

The Chatham lacrosse club not only lost its game with Detroit Thursday afternoon, but will undoubtedly lose its amateur standing in the Canadian of the Lacrosse Association, in consequence of playing against Brusso, the alleger professional member of the Detroi

The rules of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, which governs the game in Ontario, provide that any team in Ontario, provide that Jany team that knowingly plays against such a player, shall be disqualified. Reinstatement is possible, but this in only accomplished when the clubs at fault can prove that they unconsciously violated the regulations. In this connection, there seems to be some probability that Chatham players may tion there seems to be some probability that Chatham players may purge themselves of the professional taint. They were assured before the game that Brusso would not be played. Capt. Fearak Babcock saw to it that he got this assurance before his men went on the field. To his surprise, however, five minutes after the game was started, one of the members of the Chatham team identified Brusso, who was playing under the name of Kennedy.

who was playing under the name of Kennedy.

Capt. Babcock ordered the game stopped and told the Detroit management that he would take his men off the field if Brussio was not put out of the game. The Detroit players denied that Brusso was playing, and Brusso himself was indignant to think that he should be taken for Brusso.

Brusso himself was indignant to think that he should be taken for Brusso. "Why, I know you, Brusso," spoke up the Chatham player, who recognized him. "I used to go to school with you down at Fergus, Ont. You can't work your bluff on me." Brusso was obliged to admit that he was the alleged professional. The Detroit management, however, succeeded in keeping Brusso in the game, having convinced the Chatham players that the matter would be hushed up and skept from the Canadian Lacrosse association.

"Anyway, you are all professionals crosse association.

"Anyway, you are all professionals now, since you played five minutes against Brusso," argued the Detroit players with the Chatham team.

Brusso's alleged professionalism lies in the fact that he is a pugilist, who fights for money.

in the fact that he is a pugilist, who fights for money.

The Detroit club will also suffer for playing Brusso. It will be branded by the Canadian Lacrosse Association as a professional organization, and all the Canadian clubs will be warned against playing with it. This will be a serious blow to the team, as it is dependent on Canada for matches. There are but two or three teams in the United States, outside of the colthe United States, outside of the col lege organizations.

The game was a poor exhibition, as was to be expected, on account of the wet condition of the ground and the general weakness of the opposing general weakness of the opposing team. The players slipped all over the field and they seemed listless through-out the game. The Detroits, who proved to be much better stick-hand-lers than the visitors, had the ball to themselves most of the time.

Blenheim team. Blenheim won by a score of 1 to 0.

The game was a good one and was hotly contested. The two clubs were very evenly matched, as the score shows. "Pete" Chrysler in goal was the star of the game and his work before the net was very brilliant. He stopped everything that came his way and the only goal scored on him was scrimmaged through. The Chatham intermediates feel highly elated over the result of the game when they consider that eight of the Blenheim seniors were playing against them. The only goal scored in the game was soored by James Baird, who has been playing inside home in the Blenheim senior team for many years. All defences on the Chatham team played well and they were responsible for keeping the score down. The boys had a good time and enjoyed their trip Immensely.

Were I a writer and able to do the subject justice, nothing could afford me more pleasure. However, I will try and mention a few things. Leaving home we come on the Grand Trunk via Toronto, passing through Barrie, Orillia, and Muskoka district, joining the main line of the C. P. R. at North Bay. After going a little north from Orillia, there appears to be but little of the country fit for agriculture, being mainly rocks with now and again a little patch around a house cultivated like a garden. The country is thickly covered with small trees or spruce and hemlock. In passing through one cannot but admire the many beautiful small lakes and islands which seem very inviting for fishing and hunting. There are several nice little towns on this line. I might specially mention Graven-hurst and Burk's Falls, which are seemingly the largest. We did not see the sanitarium at Gravenhurst as it is about two miles from the

Their combined population is about 7,000, and with the extraordinary shipping facilities, located as they are on a splendid harbor of Lake Superior, with their large grain elevators, and their prospective water power, together with other substantial advantages, gives promise for this place to become at no distant day one of great importance. PUBLIC LIBRARY

A TIMELY PROTEST.

The bill introduced by Senator Feramuson to prohibit Dominion or Prowincial judges from acting on any po-Bitical commission or enquiry is timely. The recent manner in which the Can adian judiciary has been disgraced. and hamiliated by the conduct of two of its members in lending themselves #o ar attempt to distort evidence and amislead the public into acquiescence with their effort to whitewash and cover up political and public wrongdoing, has been a source of deep regret and disappointment to every Canadian patriot-and a terrible commentory upon the much vaunted in-Regrity and ability of the Canadian

The people will heartily say Amen to any patriotic enactment prohibiting repetition of such costly farces on Canadian justice.

The Government acted recklessly in mnviting the judges into the political arena-they forced upon the prosucuagainst their expressed protest, the tribunal; they made their selection of judges and published the fact long before it was even decided that such a commission should be appointed: They carefully selected their commissioners, men largely dependent on Government favors - one with a whole family of sons feeding at the amblic trough, paid by the people. They got the result they aimed for -the whitewashing was complete The judges showed themselves either meanable or unwilling to deal with the matter in an unpartisan or judicial manner. They acted the part of mervile henchmen to the party they merved, who got them their appointument and its fat perquisites.

But Canada has paid high for the Messon. The people of the Province will be taxed to the extent of $35,-1960.00 to pay for this commission, and the judiciary, formerly held in estheem, is now succeed and jeered at. At a recent convention of the veterans in Toronto an allusion to the parobity of the Canadian bench was greeted with ironical jeers. The other day at a picnic gathering in our own county reference to the judiciary mansed a loud outburst of laughter.

The judges have shown themselves mitterly incapable of entering the po-Mitical arena and, at the same time. preserving the prestige of the Canadan bench-and it is well and timely to prolibit them making spectacles of themselves again, by a bill such as that proposed by Senator Ferguson.

STRATTON'S SPEECH.

The man who is provincial secretary by the grace of Chancellor Boyd assaisted at his own whitewashing yeswerday with a speech which does not gread like the utterances of a man who lines been the innocent victim of a foul Conspiracy—like that of a man who Price. has suffered from misrepresentation and slander. Such a man would be a Bittle careful how he made serious accusations against others. But Stratton was not careful. He accused everybody on the Tory side of coolitics who had anything to do with The Gamey case, and many who had Succeeds the keen and frosty night. mothing to do with it. He forgot the Thou comest not when violets lean Tuss his party made about "irrespon, O'er wandering brooks and springs unsible insinuations," and charges which the makers dared not put in writing that they might be investigated, and proceeded to charge the Tory party with having conspired and plotted against his innocent self. He would mot say that "all the opposition knew of the plot, but believed that some of Chem did."

What plot? Where is the evidence of any plot in which Gamey was the "tool?" If Mr. Stratton knows of a maket, why does he not make his charge paroperly and honestly? Why does he exactly what he accuses the opposection of having done?

Mr. Stratton said the Tory press was emalignant, and that the independent press was more malignant and "treach-He called on a Fifth avenue physician and reported that he was knockeditor of the Toronto Globe, for instance—have to induce it to denounce Mr. Stratton without cause—without exceedingly good cause? Were the independent editors in the "plot" too? Mr. Stratton said the Conservative prescription said:

Stratton had a chance to say a word in his own defense, in the Legislature, immediately after Mr. Gamey made the expose. But Mr. Stratton then uttered not a word. He mow says he went to the premier, made his denial to him, and tendered his rea word in his own defense! But Mr. his denial to him, and tendered his resignation. Nobody will believe it; no-Esedy would believe it if Mr. Ross corresponsed the story. . Mr. Stratton's conduct on that occasion was, as Goldwin Smith pointed out, the conduct of guilty man found out. He was par-

Mr. Stratton charged that Mr. Whitney had said that the judges had been false to their oaths; but he was compelled to retract that statement.

He wanted to know why McGregor was not called, characteristically "forgetting" that the class of evidence which McGregor could have given was barred out.

Mr. Stratton charged that Mr. Blake's chief object throughout the investigation was to vent his spleen upon his former political associates, and wound up his tirade against all and sundry by intimating that Mr. Gamey was a lunatic!

Thus did the amiable Mr. Stratton establish his own character for true goodness by blackguarding other peopie -- Hamilton Spectator.

THE UNGENTLEMANLY SUICIDE. Bobcaygeon Independent.

It will always be a disputed point whether a man in committing suicide is a hero or a coward. There cannot, however, be the slightest doubt that when a man does suicide, he has no right to occasion his friends 'a long period of anxiety and a vast amount of labor. The man who drowns himself proves himself to be thoroughly selfish, and void of one of the first principles of a gentleman, consideration of others. A man is at liberty to take himself off in any way he pleases. If he selects the water route, then he should at least have sufficient consideration for his friends and acquaintances to arrange matters so as to avoid giving them trouble and loss of time. A weight to his feet, and a cord from his body to the boat, and there he would be. It is time the public gave its opinion of such thoughtless inconsiderateness that gocasions so much trouble.

Aged, needy, deserted did alone, branded as an evil doer, we find the great apostle to the Gentiles writing this, his last letter, knowing his death is at hand; and that all who live godly in Christ Jesus will be persecuted, while the ungodly become worse and worse, he exhorts Timothy to stand firm in the old paths and in the old truths, as learned at mother and grandmother's knee, that not only the Old Testament Scriptures, which they had, but "every Scripture inspired of God is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness, that the man of God (wherever or whoever he be) may be complete, furnished unto every good work."

Paul's last change is to preach the word, while men will hear, for they may soon turn away from the truth to fables; having itching ears; this kimd of itch is very fashionable and hard to cure; we can see how this is continually being done to-day; men forsaking God's word for isms and seisms. SUFFER THE LITTLE ONES.

A MESSAGE TO EVERY HEART THAT BEATS TRULY ON EARTH.

BLOSSOMS OF HUMAN JOY.

Duties of Parents and Teachers Lovingly Pointed Out in Eloquent Words by the Rev. Dr. Talmage-Hints For Their Training and Culture in the Nurture of the Lord.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1913, by William Baily, of Toronto, at the Dep't of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, June 14.-In this sermon ic talk to the children, appropriate to the day, there is a message to the heart and life of every boy and girl and to the parents also. The text is Matthew xix, 14, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me."

The second Sabbath of June is here This is Children's day. This is the morning when the Sunday schools of America, headed by their superintendents and teachers, have made a America, headed by their superintendents and teachers, have made a grand charge and captured the pulpits and pews and choir lofts of all Protestant churches for their own sacred service. This is the day when the church auditoriums are, for the most part fragrant with two kinds of flowers. Here are the flowers which were produced in the greenhouses and the back yards and the front yards and the wild country hillsides and the meadow lands. Here are also the human buds which were gathered out of the nurseries of many homes. Here they are, these human flowers, in clusters of many classes.

My, my! Did you ever see so many beautiful flowers abloom all in one garden? We know hot which to admire most—the pale lillies in the cheeks, the red roses in the lips, the goldenrod dancing among the yellow curls or the rogulsh glances of these "black eyed Susans." If any one should ask me what I considered the most important day in the church year, without hesitation I would answer, Children's day. This is the Sabbath morning when parents not only bring their children to the churches where Christ is preached, but when their own thoughts, I believe, are irresistibly drawn toward the divine teachings. If a father cannot feel his affections stirred with holy sanctuary, his heart must be indeed as dead as a stone.

This is children's day. I would holy sanctuary, his heart must be indeed as dead as a stone.

This is children's day. I would talk to the children for a little while about one of the sweetest scenes in all the Bible. There was a great crowd jostling and pushing about Jesus Christ. It was the time of the Saviour's earthly popularity. Among others there were in that crowd surrounding Christ a great number of tathers and mothers who had children by their side and wanted Jesus to bless them, so that their boys and girls might grow up to be good as girls might grow up to be good as Christ was good.

But in the crowd surrounding Christ there were also a lot of unsympathetic men and women. They belonged to that great class of people who think that children are a born unisance and that they should never be seen and never heard in public places. They think, if they go and risit a married friend, that friend should have his children eat in the kitchen while they are there, or else have the children wait until the older lks are through and then go to the dable. Now, I do not believe the right way to bring up that is the right way to bring up that is cirls. If my friends who boys and are not willing to eat visit my home ale with my babies sat the same the at the same to not visit me at they need not come and visit me at they need not come enough to all. I am just headsfrom "igh for believe that what is good enough for my my children is good enough for Ariends.

There were some men that day, too, who followed Jesus wherever he went and were called his disciples. They knew how precious every word he uttered was and how many sick and blind and deaf people he was curing, and they did not want his time taken up with little children. So these disciples told the fathers and mothers not to bother Jesus with their children. They said: "Here, fathers and mothers, what are you bringing those thildren here for? Why do you not take them home, where they belong?" But Jesus, hearing the commotion, stopped and asked the cause. Then when Christ heard that these men were driving the bables from his side he turned and practically said: "Ah, that is not right. Do not push those little ones away. Open a path there and let the children come to my arms and be blessed." Then he uttered the sweet words of my text, "Suffer little children and forbid them not, to and be blassed." Then he uttered the sweet words of my text, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Christ gave this sweeping invitation to all children to be brought to his arms. Therefore I shall try, children, in a few plain, simple words to tell why it is important—very important—for you to come to Christ.

dren, in a few plain, simple words to tell why it is important—very important—for you to come to Christ while you are young. And when I show you that it is important for you to come to Christ I would also try to show you that Christ is the best friend a little child, a young boy or girl, can ever have. Yes, he is even a better friend than your father or mother, sister or brother. He is a friend whose love is beyond your mental grasp, whose love "passeth all human understanding."

Let me tell you what Jesus Christ can do for you. In every child's nature there are two kinds of seed. One of these is capable of growing into a tree of righteousness, and the other is capable of growing into a tree of wicketness and sin. Now, when Jesus takes charge of a child's nature it is the good seed that grows, and then the child's life starts well, and when the child becomes a man or woman that life is a happy one and a blessing to the world. Children, these words may be very hard for you to grasp, but I think I can explain my meaning by a very simple illustration. I hold in trees. Some of them were so big that after I had climbed them I found four or five birds' nests in the same tree."

That answer is right, my boy. An apple grows upon a branch in an orchard. But where did those big trees come from which produced the apples? "Oh, I do not know," answers the boy. "I suppose they have always been there. Why, mother said that some of those apple trees were forty or fifty years old. Some of them were as old as my grandfather and grandmother, and they are awfully old." Yes, my boy, you are right again. Some apple trees live to be very, very old. But those trees did not just grow. Every tree had a beginning. If you cut open the apple which I hold in my hand you will find in the centre of it an apple core. Right in the centre of the apple seed and plant it in the ground in the springtime that seed will burst open and begin to grow. The little roots of that seed will begin to grow down. A little green shoot like grass will begin to grow up. Then the green grass will change after awhile into a stern. The stem will grow the branches. From the blossoms will afterward grow the apples. The apple tree does not come forth from nothing. The apple tree first grows from the little seed like that which I hold in my hand.

Now, a little child's life can be compared to a seed. How? Because you know a seed does not grow unless it is rightly planted in the right kind of ground. Weeds will grow anywhere without any care. So if the good seed I spoke of just now does not grow unless it is rightly planted in the right kind of ground. Weeds will grow anywhere without any care. So if the good seed I spoke of just now does not grow unless it is rightly planted in the right kind of ground. Weeds will grow anywhere without any care. So if the good seed I spoke of just now does not grow unless it is rightly planted in the right will not grow, but the bad seed will and your lives will become like w your heart grow about the rock of Calvary, upon which once stood the Saviour's cross. Do you not see, children, how important it is that you give your life to Christ now if from your little selves must come all that is good or all that is bad?

Little children should come to Christ soon, very soon. Their Christian fathers and mothers will not be able much longer to shield them from tian fathers and mothers will not be able much longer to shield them from the evil temptations as they have been able to do. When my little boys and girls were at home I could do what I pleased with them. I could say "Susan" or "Gertrude" or "Thomas De Witt" or "Frank"—for I have four children—"I wish you would not associate with that little boy you were with this morning." boy you were with that fittle boy you were with this morning." And if one of my little girls should say, "Why, papa?" I would answer: "I do not think he is a nice little boy. I heard his mother call to him to-day to come into the house, and he answered, 'I won't come." And when his myther Wort of the him. to-day to come into the house, and he answered, 'I won't come.' And when his mother went after him he lay right down in the street and began to kick and scream and bite. Now, no good little boy will ever act like that, and I do not want you to go with him."

But, children, though I may have been able to guard and shield and protect my little girl while she was at home, there came a momentous day when she went beyond my direct care and guiding influence. That day first came when we sent her to first came when we sent her to school. It was a sad time for the parental heart when our oldest child had to pack her little school books 'vave home. Her mother took have home. Her mother took and her up and girls and left with little boys school we knew here there. In the lis as well as good girls, bad boys as to sit these good girls, had boys as good boys, and she had to sit the and associate to some extent with them all. Now, who is going to look after my little girl when sh. goes to meet the temptations of school unless Christ, who loves little children, goes along and takes her by the hand?

Some grown up people do not think that little children have any big temptations. But I know that some of the greatest temptations we ever have in life come to us when we are young, very young. I knew of one little boy who did not take Christ along with him to school. One day his playmates were teasing him. Then, because he did not have Christ with him, he lost his temper and picked up a stone and threw it at the boys, and he hit an eye of one of with him, he lost his temper and picked up a stone and threw it at the boys, and he hit an eye of one of the boys and put it out. That little boy, who afterward grew up to be a big man, had to go through life with his eye blinded. I knew of another little boy who, because he did not have Christ with him, wanted to frighten a playmate, as bad boys sometimes do. He pushed him from a bank into the river and the little boy was drowned. I saw his poor little body after it was taken out of the water and I heard the broken hearted mother weeping over it. Ah, children, you cannot afford to go to school and meet the temptations of the playground unless you take Christ along as your divine protect-tor.

Then, after awhile you must go still farther away from the protecting care of your parents. As young men and women you must go out into the great wide world and live antirely after and mother and earn your own living. Then, if you do not have Jesus by your side, there are many, many temptations which will beset you and trip you up. Are you not going to drive Christ away from your heart and life? Remember he is your chief protector. I once read a heautiful story my hand an apple. Where did it come from? "Oh, I know," says a young boy sitting in that class behind his teacher. "My mother last summer took me to the country. While I was there I used to visit a farmer who had a farm just back of our hotel. There in his field he had a great big apple orchard. The farmer used to let me climb those trees and pick the apples which grew upon the branches. They were awfully big trees. Some of them were so big that after I had climbed them I found four or five birds' nests in the same tree."

That answer is right, my boy. An dogs and hunt out the travelers and save them. Around the necks of these dogs was tied a little box filled with food and wine, which the travelers could eat and drink when the dogs found them. Among those dogs was one so intelligent and strong that he had saved sixty-eight persons who had been lost in the snow. But one night this intelligent dog found among the snows. snow. But one night this intelligent dog found among the snows a traveler nearly-frozen to death, and so to warm him and bring him back to life the great dog stretched his big body upon the dying man, as your mother might cover you up with a fur lap robe when you go sleighing. After awhile the traveler awoke. He thought the big dog lying upon him was a big bear or wolf. He took out his knife and drove it into the heart of the dog, and killed it. Then the monks, missing the dog, went out in search and killed it. Then the monks, missing the dog, went out in search for him and found the dog and the man both dead in the snow. If the man had only known that the dog was trying to save him he would have been thankful to him instead of killing him, and his own life would have been saved. But, you see, he did not know what a friend the dog was. Now, I do not want you to make such a mistake as that, I want you to understand that Christ is your friend, the best friend riend, the best friend you can have, for he can save you from dying eternally. So I want you to welcome him and cling to him when he wants to help you and save you, not only from the sins of the schoolroom, but also from the sins of the great wide world at large.

Boys and girls, if you have a father who never goes to church, what a good thing it would be if you could bring him! Suppose you should go home from this service and clam-ber up into his lap and say: "Papa, ber up into his lap and say: "Papa, why do you not come to church? Why do you not love Jesus?" How good a thing it would be if he should put his arm around you and should say, "Yes, darling, for your sake I will go to church and learn to love Jesus." Boys and girls, what do you think your mother would do if you would climb up into her lap and put your arms about would do if you would climb up into her lap and put your arms about her neck and ask her why she did not have family prayers? I tell you what she would do. Perhaps she would get down on her knees and put her arms about you and then and there consecrate her life and yours anew to the Saviour. Oh, chil dren! Oh little children that is one dren! Oh, little children, that is one reason why I want you to respond to Christ's invitation, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." I want you to come to Christ to-day to be saved, that you may also ask your big brothers and sisters, your fathers and mothers and all your lit-tle playmates to come along by your Having talked perhaps already far too long to the children, I would like to speak a few words in closing directly to the parents and the grown up people here assembled. Fa-thers and mothers, are you to let an opportunity for your own salvation like this go amiss? When your litthe children are ready to surrender their hearts to Christ, are you not willing to consecrate your lives to his service as never before? You know that the strongest ties we have know that the strongest ties we have on earth are those which bind us to our children. Are we to be a spiritual stumbling block in their way?

Men and women, you know you love your children better than your lives, therefore will you not conserate your lives for their sakes to Jesus Christ? In all your earthly existence you will never be brought nearer to Jesus than now by any plea. It is not myself that begs you to give your heart to the Master. It is the object lessons which are before you this Children's day of your own little ones commingling in yonder classes.

Standing amid this beautiful human flower garden of little children, I have one more word to speak. I congrafulate this church because it places its chief emphasis in the place where it belongs. What The People Have Found Out.

When Malta-Vita was first brought out, a laboring man was heard to say, "It tastes good and I like it but I want something substantial. I don't mind if I do feel a lump in my stomach after a meal, I must have something solid that will help me to lift big stones and that will put steam behind my hammer," But-there's always a "but"-experience has shown the fallacy of his first conclusion and to-day thousands of laboring men find that Malta-Vita, eaten twice a day, gives abundant strength for the heaviest work.

The office man said-"I think that I must eat meat to give me life. I have to think quickly and my brain must be alert. Meat, I believe, will give a man stamina and grit. I know I feel heavy and sleepy after my meals but"—that but again-"that wears off after a while." After eating Malta-Vita for breakfast and supper for a week, he said to his wife, "Do you know, I find I feel brighter and can do more work on Malta-Vita than I can when eating anything else."

Malta-Vita contains all the food properties of wheat, combined with the tonic and digestive qualities of barley malt. It is palatable and nourishes both body and brain.

No work, no heat, just cream—then eat.

The secret of the excellent baking and roasting qualities of the Imperial Oxford oven is found in the diffusive flue - an improvement which no other range possesses.

This flue draws fresh air from the floor, superheats it and delivers it into the top of the oven through perforations which diffuse it evenly to front, sides and back. This gives a uniform heat throughout the oven, resulting in uniformly cooked food.

It is simple to prove the fuel economy of the heat-diffusing flue of the

When your oven is at baking heat block up the inlet and you will find the temperature of the oven will drop immediately, just like an ordinary range, unless the fire is stirred and more fuel added. The fuel economy and cooking perfection of the Imperial Oxford Range is equalled by no other range on the market.

* Little Red Riding Hood

The Maid Has Gone West Looking for Wolves Writes the Satellite Telling a Sad Story of Unsuccessful Search

Mr. Satellite, Chatham, Ont.:

Revered Wise Man in the East,-Yours of May 4th arrived some time ago. I was delighted. You write so much like Horace Greely. When I get a letter from either of you I'm always in ecstacy, because I imagine it's from the other one.

I reached here in time to celebrate All Fools' Day with feast and song, according to my custom. You've heard that misfortunes never travel singly, and it is so, for there were five Miss Fortunes in our party. But the other four forbade me to call them such, so I'll tell you their real names, whence, whither and why. Miss De Cow. M. A., and sister, of Leamington, were going to Langenburg to teach Miss Kenney, Leamington, was labelled for Moose Jaw, same reason; Miss Russell, of Blenheim, was bound for Brandon, as book-keeper. We had a good time, all five of us, every minute of the journey. We were together as far as Winnipeg. We spent several hours there with Margaret Scott, who used to teach in Leamington, too, before coming to Edmonton and Winnipeg with her Business College. This region is even better than I expected. Just one disappointment so far. From my remote infancy I've been reading about the wolves of Canada, fine, big, ravenous brutes, which enatch a man off his horse and devour him bodily, saddle, bridle, boots, buttons, jack-knife, everything. This is what I like and I came to see some of it. I never doubted that I should be able to board three or four miles from school and that, for variety, the wolves, twenty or thirty in a pack would chase me home a couple of nights per week as long as I lasted. Or take turns with the blizzards making me spend an occasional night locked in the school-house, I remember how pleased I was when I first noticed the three lamps on wall-brack ets at school. They were there, I thought, so that when the wolves came to serenade me I would nail up the windows, pull down the blinds, light the lamps and amuse myself reading until they'd go off. I even made a selection of books and supplies suit able for such occasions and took them over. When you get lost near my school and seek shelter therein (the door hasn't been locked in four years) you will find some sea biscuit and salt horse-(radish) where I keep them in tin box in readiness for a siege, along with a copy of "With Wolfe at Quebec," and the sequel to it, "With Another Wolf at Rome," written by Romulus and Remus. I'm perfectly, ready for the wolves if they would only come, but they never do. My first week I expected them every day, the next week I used to go home the longest way so as to meet them, and the third week I was a wicked scep-ic doubting their very existence. The tic, doubting their very existence. The next Sunday my landlady was coming from church, when she turned a corner and met one of her black hens, dead enough, being carried along by a wolf.

My grief is that I wasn't with her, but I go to school by that road even since. No use. He never shows himself. I prime up every morning now. self. I primp up every morning now, trying to look as appetizing as possible, and I'm wearing my best dress to school every day just because it is

red. (I thought he would think I was Little Red Riding Hood and come forth. But even this stratagem fails to allure him. His classical educa-tion has been neglected; he doesn't realize what the traditions of ancient history require of him. Or else he starves under the delusion that I'm not very fat.)

Maybe you think—as I did—that a

Maybe you think—as I did—that a Northwest rural school must be a very crude specimen of architecture. Mine is far better than I had allowed myself to expect. It is frame, dimensions 20 by 25 feet. Outside is painted pale blue and brown. Six windows, three on the east, three on the west. From the west I can look out, to-wards Japas, and see this scene:—

Harris implement agency, livery stable, harness shop, blacksmith shop, and seven or eight dwelling houses. There will soon be regular trains and a daily mail. Now, I think I've described the the "outside" of my schoolhouse very fully. You see, my schoolyard is about 10,000 acres in area, and Rocanville, being within my playground limits, is entitled to a share of description. Besides the town, then, my other outside ornaments are of description. Besides the town, then, my other outside ornaments are a well, wood-pile, stable with sod roof, a gopher and some cows. Yes, and I have two ladders, so if I want to climb the roof there is nothing to hinder. Nobody knows why there should be two ladders, but I've concluded that one is for going up and the other for coming down, and shall govern myself accordingly. The door faces north, and the key hangs on a nail outside; nobody knows why. The door is never locked, but I suppose that would-be marauders think it is when they see the key hanging there, and so turn away baffled. Wolves, too, would notice it and come to the same conclusion.

The inside of my school is not at all

The inside of my school is not at all different from the orthodix school-house of Ontario. Besides the furniture usual to school-houses, I have a ture usual to school-houses, I have a good organ and a large sky-green wooden chest which stands just under the Orange Lodge charter. I guess it contains the Orangemen's goat, but am not sure. In fact, it's locked. Oh yes, and I have a Visitors' Book, too—something I've heard of but never saw before coming here. Who says we are behind the times? When the wolves chase you in some evening, please register in that book. All kinds of distinguished folks have been inscribing their autographs there, by fits and starts, since 1881. Among sundries, I have a vanilla bottle full of varnish wherewith to shine the organ when the spirit moves me, a feltgan when the spirit moves me, a felt-lined contribution plate, and a tin biscuit box full of Presbyterian hymn Pbocks. I have sweet peas and morn-you're sending him a new story, the latest out, just written by Rudyard Kipling, and that the real heroine, who has newly gone west, is still almost in her 'teens (never mind which side) and consequently not half so incidible as the venerable missionary, Miss Ellen Stone, that the Armenian bandits had so much fun with. Because, I know if you should let it slip out that the real Red Ridding Hood episode occurred when Wilham the Conqueror was a little boy, he will sass you. He will telegraph back beseething you to find him a nice young mummy of Rameses III.'s daughter for picnic lunches and such like.

But I've told you enough about the wild beasts I have (not) found out here. Next time I'll tell you about the people. I like them. We have long day-lights here. It is now 9.15 p' m. and still scarcely dark enough to light a lamp, so I think I'll give you a rest and go take a stroll through the bluffs to see if perchance a wolf has dropped into some of my pitfalls.

Yours sincerely,

Yours sincerely, ED. ROSS. Rocanville, Assiniboia, June 4, 1903.

I have now taken you to the Rocky mountains, but there is still over 600 miles to travel before reaching the west end of our journey. This last 600 miles I will not attempt to describe, even if space would permit, for I could not in any way do it justice, and it would be vain for me to attempt in my inexperienced way to try to describe the Great Banff Hotel, finished and furnished in the most elaborate style to accomodate some three or four hundred guests. The great Government Park, with its inhabitants of buffalo, deer and othern animals; the wonderful hot springs that boil up continually out of the mountain, filling a basin of about 30 feet in diameter and six to sevem feet deep, exhausting through a pipe replacing this quantity of warm water every 2 -1.2 hours, neither can I describe the long natural subterranceus passage which the Government caretaker led us through away in under the mountains, which they say is over 9,000 feet high, the construction of the C. P. R. through the mountains shows great engineering skill. One could hardly believe that long trains could make such short curves or climb such steep, long grades as they do. Great precaution is used in running these trains. We had two large engines, one in front and one behind, our train of nine passenger cars. At the bottom of particularly steep grades there is about a quarter of a mile of trussel work with a track laid on a very steep up grade. The main track is always connected with this, so that should anything happen that the train would get past control or run away it would run on this up grade, which is made yery steep, and stop. There are men always at these places, and if the train comes down all right they throw in the track and it passes on.

We stopped at Vancouver three days and got a good knowledge of the city. The population is about 26,-000. We drove through they have such the seals, wild animals and birds, but the greatest wonder to me was the large trees. We measured cedar trees 15 feet in diameter and ver it.

Leaving Vancouver we take a very nice boat (also belonging to the C. P. R.), and after a pleasant sail of about 70 miles we reach Victoria, the capital of the province of British Genumbia. This is a beautiful city of 23,000 on the Island of Vancouver. Genumbia. This is a beautiful city of 23,000 on the Island of Vancouver. We visited the parliament buildings here, which they claim are quite equal, both in beauty and design, to those at Ottawa. A large portion of this building is set apart and used as a museum, containing all the species of animals, fish, birds, wood, grain, etc., of the province, a very wonderful and extensive collection. The residental part of this city far exceeded our expectation. There are so many beautiful homes maintained after the old aristocratic English style. A drive through the City Park, with its artificial lakes, rustic bridges and wild animals, would convince one that there is a considerable wealth in the city. The streets are all good, the whole city being built on a mountain rock. There are no agricultural lands in this locality, all being mountains and rocks.

We visited the British Graven docks.

tain rock. There are no agricultural lands in this locality, all being mountains and rocks.

We visited the British Graven docks at Esquamoult (Esquamo). In the bay there were several British gun boats; one called the "Floro" is in the dry dock for repairs. One of the officers kindly showed us through it and explained the working of the guns. It is wonderful how easily and quickly those great massive concerns are handled. This is a very important British port. A great many regulars are here, their barracks covering a large space.

This is the end of our tour on British territory. Next we go by boat to Seattle, a sail of 80 miles, and remain there a day or two. From there along the Pacific Coast to San Francisco, where we will remain a short time, then turn homeward via Ogden, lenver, Pikes Peak, Salt Lake, Omaha and Chicago, stopping over at places of note, and hope to reach home early in July.
