Religious Miscellany.

ONE JOY. Earth has one joy known in heaven— The new-born peace of sin forgiven.

A TOUCHING SCENE. The Episcopal Methodist, in its account of the proceedings of the late session of the Baltimore Conference held at Staunton, Va., relates the following incident:

THE CHALLENGER has settled the question with regard to the Gulf Stream. It is found that the actual Gulf Stream is only a hundred fathoms deep off Sandy Hook, and that it is virtually broken up and dispersed in the mid-Atlantic.

Rev. Joseph Hart moved, and W. H. Tuck, Esq., seconded, a resolution expressing the pleasure with which the meeting viewed the continued support and sympathy this institution, in connection with the church, received from year to year.

I AM A REAL METHODIST, YOU KNOW.

So I said to cousin Carrie, as she rallied me upon the plainness of my dress? but as our paths diverged and I was left alone, how my words came echoing back accusingly to me.

BISHOP HAVEN BADLY TREATED. From some point in Alabama, Bishop Haven writes to the New York Independent—writes a eulogy upon the late Mr. Sumner, praises him (Sumner), Lincoln, and Seward as 'not surpassing Phillips, Garrison and John Brown.'

THE MURDERED MISSIONARY. The murder of Rev. J. L. Stephens, of the Boston American Board of Foreign Missions, at Ahuapalco, Mexico, on Sunday, March 8, has excited much interest in Protestant churches, and has revived again and strengthened the opinion that Romanism and freedom are incompatible.

FROM NEWFOUNDLAND. We have a private letter from Hon. J. J. Rogerson, Receiver General of Newfoundland, a staunch temperance worker, which though not designed for publication, contains information in regard to the temperance work in that Province of interest, and we therefore take the liberty of using some extracts for publication in the Courier.

General Miscellany.

EGGLESTON, THE METHODIST CARICATURIST. BY REV. GEO. C. MADDOCK. "Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked."—Deut. xxxii. 15.

A REMARKABLE CAREER. From the New York papers we learn that a curious case is agitating ecclesiastical circles in that city, and the story will not appear less striking when we add to it certain facts with which our Transatlantic contemporaries are evidently unacquainted.

CHARGES OF HETERODOXY. The two chief charges against him, published so far, are that by his pulpit utterances, he has avowed his disbelief in the 'Sabellian doctrine of a modal Trinity,' and his belief in the 'modal influence theory of the atonement.'

HONORS TO THE DEAD EXPLORER. A special despatch to the New York Herald states that Livingston's funeral, which took place in Westminster Abbey on Saturday, was the grandest witnessed during the present generation.

REVIVAL MOVEMENT IN GLASGOW.

At the noon meeting yesterday in Wellington Street U. P. Church, which was again filled, the Rev. George Stewart read numerous requests for prayer, among which was one for the conversion of a Duke and Duchess.

IMPORTANT SCIENTIFIC FACTS. The Challenger has well high performed her round among the seas, and the immense array of facts of all sorts, gathered by those in charge of her, is being arranged, systematized, and compared with previous knowledge.

THE CHICAGO BEECHER. There is a most admirable consistency about this story. She is remarkable in everything. The facts with regard to her trade in pork, in grain, in lumber, and in fire feed, are the general property of mankind.

Obituary. WEYMOUTH. Our Society has been called upon to sustain a severe loss, in the sudden death of Bro. WILLIAM PAYSON. The deceased was received into full connection with the church during the ministry of the Rev. R. Chesley.

WESLEYAN.

WESLEYAN. The annual meeting of the interests of education was held in the Centenary Church last evening. The Hon. Geo. E. King was called to the chair, and delivered a short address in which he referred to the position the Wesleyans had always occupied towards education, and the duty of still further support for their higher educational institutions at Sackville.

They have found large numbers of young seals on the ice abandoned by the mother seals, and of course, perishing from want of food. Now, the affection of the mother seals for the offspring is proverbial, and the difficulty is to account for this extraordinary state of matters, which is without a precedent.

THEORIES ABOUT THE SEALS.

There are various opinions among our sailing captains and merchants as to the cause of this alarming state of the seal fishery, which looks so ominous for the future. Some are of opinion that the seals were disturbed last year at the period of conception, by the steamers hunting and killing them on their second trips; and hence the season for producing their young is delayed by a fortnight or three weeks this year. The slaughter of old seals last year was prodigious, and the number of steamers engaged in following up the hunt at late period was very great; but still it is wholly inconceivable that any considerable number of seals would be affected by them in the way described. Others say that the seals met with this year are not the usual herd, but the "northern pack," which are known to throw their young later than the others. This, however, is a mere conjecture, unsupported by facts. A much more satisfactory explanation is found in the fact that last year a vast number of old seals were jammed in the ice, and kept so till a late period—causing a corresponding lateness in the season for bringing forth their young this year. This, I think, will be found to be the real explanation; and if so, there need be no alarm as to the future, as such a casual occurrence may not present itself again for many years. As to the mother seals abandoning their young, the probability is that the instances in which such a thing occurred, have been very few, and that of these a sufficient explanation may be found in the movements of the ice.

DOLEFUL FOREBODINGS.

This exceptional state of affairs has created a panic here as to the future prospects of our seal fishery. Many are predicting the utter ruin of the fishery in consequence of the employment of so many steamers, and the destruction of old seals, on second and third trips, by these steamers. In my opinion, there is as yet no ground for such a prediction, or for anticipating the extermination of the seals. The employment of steamers has not as yet caused a much heavier draft on the seals than in former years when only sailing vessels were employed, and has not considerably increased the catch. But, at the same time, there is ground for some anxiety and for the greatest vigilance in watching the effects of the employment of so many steamers on the seal fishery. That it is a more wasteful and destructive mode of prosecuting the fishery than the old method cannot be questioned. In all probability, further legislation will be required. At present, steamers are prohibited from leaving port before the 10th of March. In my opinion, it will also be found necessary to fix a date for the termination of the fishery, beyond which it will be unlawful to prosecute it, and thus to secure a "close time" for our seals. After an immense destruction of the young at the regular time, the steamers go out on a second and third cruise, and slaughter the old seals. Let this practice be extended, and, in the long run, the extermination of the seal is certainly a draft, to a certain extent, will not tell seriously on the herd; but if we go too far, the species will gradually disappear. The destruction of old seals, after a certain date, should be prohibited.

FANCY DANCES.

We have frequently referred to "The Meteor," a paper issued quarterly by the inmates of the Lunatic Hospital, Quakerstown. It is a sprightly sheet. We wish we could find as good sense in certain quarters out of the hospital as we find in it—e. g., the following on Dancing:—

If by fancy dance was meant one in which the most capers are cut, an orobis who, with brooches rolled up, catching the birds on his thin calves might be styled a fancy dancer par excellence. But the term, by common consent, has come to mean, as was right, a dance in which, common sense and the judgment laid aside, the dancer's movements are swayed by the impulses of the imagination—the fancy.

A couple engaging in one of these would be pronounced most intimate and dear friends, for the liberties taken with their persons would, ordinarily, be tolerated only by such. The male grasps the female, not the tips of the fingers as in the old-fashioned quadrille, but around the waist with the combined clasp of hand and arm as though having of late married her, he was asserting that right to her person which the sacred rite had pronounced his. She, as if in defiance of the same idea, resolutely poses her soft hand on his manly shoulders. Hand to hand, arm to waist, head to shoulder, breast to breast, momentarily they stand, then away they go with a hop-skip and tumble bowing up and down, and, as though playing a Siamese-twins' game of hop-scotch in bare feet upon a hot piece of iron.

The attraction of these dances is not only the movements of the body, as executed by most persons, they convey ideas of the prances of a string-haired hero, rather than the graceful and elastic human movements. Near is the constitutional effect agreeable, for nine out of ten soon become so dizzy with the whirling motion as to require support to stand alone.

There are men with minds so peculiarly constituted that while assiduous in attending to their duties, in expectation of embracing the pretty women of their acquaintance, they object to their sisters or wives engaging in such dances. How inconsistent! How absurd to wish, if other men's sisters suffer the embraces of mere acquaintances that she should be deprived of them!

All hands who acquit these dances of a direct tendency to immorality, there might be differences of opinion as to their effect on the finer shades of character. Is it, or is it not, desirable that men should come to the marriage-altar with those sensibilities in reference to the opposite sex which have been, "dissipated out of mind, distinctive of the refined gentleman?" Is it, or is it not, desirable that woman should bring to her husband that delicacy of untarnished modesty which is suggestive of the aroma of a freshly-blown flower? Shall she, or shall she not, refuse to merge every idea of the beautiful in the grossly useful, and to subject to abrasion all the nice tonings of her angelic traits?

CREMATION.

There is a good deal said at this time about cremation. Scientists maintain that the interment of bodies in cemeteries in our near cities and towns is prejudicial to health. They have discovered a method of reducing bodies to ashes in an hour or so by chemical agents without the escape of gases. The remains can be inurned by surviving friends as was the custom among the Greeks, Romans, and other ancient nations. See Sir Thomas Browne's curious and learned essay on "Hydriatick, or the Art of Embalming." Cremation is a rational one, and would probably be adopted, but for certain deep-rooted prejudices—especially among the clergy. Now, we do not know how they are affected, but the clergy are so prejudiced against it, it is intimated that in some way or other it is not exactly in keeping with the eleventh article of the Creed; but how that affects the question we are at a loss to conceive. We confess that, personally, we desire to be laid with our kindred in the tomb—there may be some sentiment—some poetry about this:

The graves of all his saints be blessed,
And softened every bed,
Whose should the driving winds rest
But with their dying head!

We do like to remember that
There once the flesh of Jesus lay,
And left a long perfume,
But what has this to do with the article of the resurrection of the body? We presume very few of clergy are ignorant of the fact that, whether by "Decay's effacing fingers," by fire, chemical agents scientifically applied, or by any other method, the body will be resolved into its fourteen elements (less or more)—and so await the resurrection. Whatever of those elements may be necessary for the resurrection-body will obey the behest of Him who is the Resurrection and the Life, and will be changed and made like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself. We feel very easy on that score. We venture to speak for "the clergy of all denominations" that they will interpose no dogmatic bar to cremation. The crematoriums have more to apprehend from sentimentalists, undertakers, cemetery committees, anatomists and resurrectionists, than they have from the clergy. Already some of those classes are opening their batteries against cremation—here is a jeu d'esprit on the subject:

A CREMATION EPILOGUE.

De mortuis non even boep.
"Where is thy grave my love, I want to weep."
—Festus

The chimney-stack through which my love has flown
Be sacred now with all perpetual fire;
Her ashes, blundered to the bottom of the pot,
Are all that's left of dead love's fond desires.

How oft when wandering near this hallowed spot,
And thinking of the days that are no more,
My yearning eyes shall seek your chimney-pot,
To watch the sweet Elen's volatile dust pour.

Sweet Carbon, loved ammonia, water fire,
H2O, CO2, NH3, of dustiest mold,
And all that was of Elen's life, and all that she repine,
Since not for us the chemist forces hold.

Ye powers that hold above the silent dead,
That thaw the frost that binds so dear a head,
That melt the golden spirit of the silver cord.

To you, ye viewless spirits of the air,
Cohesion, chemical affinity,
Struggle have I yielded up my Elen fair
To act upon her as you will.

And you my brothers, when my days are ended,
I pray you this last favor for me do,
Ah! lay my body there, whence she descended,
To fly up through the flue up which she flew.
—Vaseline's deté.

FROM ELDER GARRETT, PASTOR CHRISTIAN CHURCH, DUKE STREET, MR. T. GRAMM, GREAT ST. JOHN.—I have been for several years under particular obligations to you for a bottle of your PAIN EXPELLER. You no doubt remember having met me in Grand Manan about eight years ago, when I was then laboring about eight months under the distress of a very lame knee, the result of a severe fall. I had previously tried most all the popular remedies under the name of "Pain Killer" &c., &c., but no effect. Your one bottle cured me permanently, and I always praise the bridge that carries me safely over.

Yours, with gratitude,
GEORGE GARRETT,
St. John, N. B., Dec. 19, 1872.

WANTED.

THE subscriber wishes to engage a young man who thoroughly understands the BAKING BUSINESS. Also offers for sale a few choice BUILDING LOTS, situated in the heart of the future Town, in proximity to the Spring Hill Coal Mine. A Wesleyan Church is under contract for erection, near by. Taken altogether this locality presents one of the best building sites for a large plant, and we have seen in North America, and in every place on this continent, have fairer prospects than in any other place.
