

STEAMSHIP COMBINATION

Has Been Called Off by Independents

This Conclusion Reached at Conference This Afternoon—Calderhead's Public Benefit.

The steamboat combination is off and there are indications that there will be all kinds of war on Monday. A meeting of the combine was held this afternoon when it was decided to meet the cut of the Tyrrell, but as there was no one present with power to act for the White Pass in the matter of making the reduction, it was agreed to dissolve the combine and return the forfeit put up some months ago. This action will make free lanes of all the lines. Manager Calderhead announces that during the three days of next week beginning on Monday he will sell tickets to Whitehorse good on any of his boats to October 1 for $20 and $25. This he designates as a benefit to the public which will last for three days only.

Public Benefit.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday we will sell tickets Dawson to Whitehorse good until October 1st, 1902, at $20 second class and $25 first class. Holders of these tickets will receive every attention and courtesy from crew. New boats, good board and clean rooms. Do not miss this opportunity to save money.

WATER FRONT NOTES.

The Hannah pulled out for St. Michael at 11 o'clock this forenoon and will make another trip up this season before tying up for the winter. It has been decided that the Hannah will winter at this end of the line and will be accompanied probably only by the Rock Island, the remainder of the fleet putting up at St. Michael to be transformed into oil burners. As is always the case when one of the big steamers pulls out there was quite a crowd at the wharf this morning. The following took

Little Damage to Mine

Deaver, Aug. 8.—Dr. George H. Stover, president of the Union Coal & Coke Company, which owns the mine at Bowen, Cpl., in which an explosion occurred last night killing thirteen miners, received advices today from General Manager Bowen to the effect that the damage to the mine is not so great as indicated in press dispatches from Trinidad. Dr. Stover was informed, also, that the powder magazine at the mine did not explode, and that the accident was caused by a windy shot in one of the entrances.

A Modern Industry

The census bureau shows that in 1900 more than $3,400,000 of capital was engaged in the manufacture of typewriters, though nearly 80 per cent. of that sum represents an increase over the amount invested ten years before. In itself, it is astonishing that a business in which less than $2,000,000 was used as capital in 1890 should absorb 49 per cent. additional in the course of a decade. It is instructive to recall now that the first typewriter placed on the market at a cost justifying an expectation of reasonable profits made its appearance in 1874.—Minneapolis Times.

DEPUTY MINISTER SMART

Now in Dawson Posting Himself on Matters Pertaining to Yukon Affairs—Interviewed by Nugget Representative—Will Remain Several Weeks.

Dawson is today entertaining a distinguished visitor in the person of the Hon. James A. Smart, deputy minister of the interior and confidential man of the Hon. Clifford Sifton, in the hollow of whose hand the destiny of the Yukon territory lies. Mr.

DEPUTY MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, JAMES A. SMART.

Smart arrived last night on the Whitehorse and immediately was escorted to the executive mansion which will be his official residence during his stay in the city. Shortly after the dust stains of travel were removed a number of the officials and heads of departments were received, the reception being wholly informal and more for the purpose of renewing old acquaintances and the making of a few new ones. Mr. Smart has so long been in public life that there are few people of note throughout the entire Dominion who can not claim the honor of his acquaintance, in consequence of which his visit here will seem less irksome by reason of him meeting so many familiar faces.

The present is Mr. Smart's first visit to the Yukon and while his trip is principally for the purpose of personally ascertaining the needs and desires of the territory, yet there is much business of an administrative nature which will devolve upon him on account of the illness of Commissioner Ross. Many things which have arisen within the past two or three weeks have been deferred until the arrival of the deputy minister and the first few days of his stay promises to be noted more for the business transacted than for sights seen or pleasures experienced. During the entire afternoon Mr. Smart was closeted with Acting Commissioner Major Wood and it was largely through the kindness of the latter that a short interview was accorded a representative of the Nugget.

Newspaper men are much given to classifying public men whom they are sent to interview into three classes—the man who refuses to be interviewed, the man who interviews himself, talks much and says little, and he who meets you half way,—and it is of the latter class that Mr. Smart belongs. His is a genial personality, he is an affable, easy talker, and one has no difficulty in securing all the information he desires—that is, up to a certain point. In politics there are many things concerning which ignorance is often a most blissful state of existence.

"Is Mr. Sifton going to visit us this summer?" was asked. "I expect Mr. Sifton to be in Dawson this fall," was the reply, "though I can not say so positively. I know that his program was to leave Ottawa about September 1, remain here a few days and leave for the east shortly before the close of navigation, but the demands on a minister's time are so great and so varied that one can never tell what may transpire at the last moment to was supposed at Ottawa to satisfy all concerned."

"Mr. Smart, does your coming signify any changes in department officials here?"

"That I can not say as much depends upon circumstances."

Asked about the creeks railway, Mr. Smart knew nothing of it and was surprised to learn the promoters were operating under the O'Brien charter. He had supposed it was purely a local affair.

"Will you assist in the election of the government candidate from the Yukon this fall?" was asked.

"No, I shall take no part in the election whatever. My trip here is almost solely for the purpose of acquainting myself with the territory and the conditions as they exist. I shall spend considerable time on the creeks as I have a great desire to meet the miners at home at their work. They are the bone and sinew of the country and must be protected to the fullest extent. There have been made many mistakes in the past but they have not been willful. We have been misunderstood and you have been misrepresented and it is to get at the true facts as they actually exist that I am here today. The department has nothing in view for the Yukon but the best interests of the territory. Concerning the reduction of the fees in the gold commissioner's office, one thing must be born in mind: Up to two years ago the territory yielded a surplus in revenue of something like $600,000, but last year there was a deficit of $250,000 and this year it will be even greater. The department will do all it can in the way of reducing such fees as the miner is required to pay, but it must not be forgotten that we are expending this year in new roads, trails, buildings, etc., a vast sum of money which comes from a source other than the Yukon. The territory is not regarded by the department as being a place of tremendous profits during the next few years."

On his trip down from Whitehorse Mr. Smart was accompanied by Mr. W. W. Correy and Mr. Hugh McKinnon. He states that it is his intention to remain here about six weeks, or until October 1, during which time he proposes to see all that is to be seen and acquire all the information possible about this rich region of the far north.

To Collect the Lepers

Washington, Aug. 8.—The navy department has received a report from Commander Schroeder, governor of the island of Guam, saying that the leper colony he proposed to establish would be ready for occupancy July 1. It was supposed that the lepers had all disappeared from Guam, but investigation developed that many victims had been secreted by their friends in various parts of the island and Commander Schroeder determined that they should be gathered in one place to prevent the spread of the disease.

Must Not Cut Cable

Washington, D.C., Aug. 8.—The United States & Haytian Telegraph & Cable Company, whose cable lands at Cape Haytien, has informed the navy department of a rumor that there is a threat to cut the cable at Cape Haytien and has asked that the Machias, now there, prevent this act. Orders have been dispatched to Commander McCrea to prevent the cutting of the cable.

GOOD NEWS FROM DUNCAN

Merchant Gordon Says It is a Winner

Good Trail From Steamer Landing to Diggings—Will be Busy This Winter.

Mr. Geo. Gordon who since last November has been located at Duncan landing, twelve miles below Fraser Falls on Stewart river, where he conducts a general merchandise store is in the city buying goods and otherwise preparing for what he is confident will be a heavy winter's business.

From Duncan's, or Gordon's landing to Duncan creek is 15 miles and a good trail for packing in summer and sledding in winter has already been constructed. Three heavy boilers were sledded over it last winter and others will be taken in as soon as snow falls. The trail leads over a low divide and is not difficult at any point.

In speaking of operations on Duncan creek Mr. Gordon remarked today that it is showing up well wherever prospected, $117 having been shoveled in by two men in two days last week on a bench claim, bedrock on the bench claims being only from 7 to 10 feet deep. Bedrock has only been struck on two creek claims and that at a depth of 95 feet, but there is from six to eight feet of pay dirt and it is very rich.

At present there are about 60 men at work on Duncan and Mr. Gordon is of the opinion that the number will probably be increased to 300 this winter.

The main creek is about 20 miles long with several tributaries and all the latter that have thus far been prospected are known to be gold-bearing.

Mr. Gordon will return to his place of business on the steamer Prospector next Tuesday.

Female Populist After Pay.

Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, the female Populist of great lung power, has found it necessary to bring suit against the Populist state central committee of Mr. Bryan's state for an unpaid balance of $450 for oratorical and literary work alleged to have been performed during the recent presidential campaign. The defense of the committee is that the great work of Mrs. Gougar did the party more harm than good, especially her references to William McKinley.—Butte Inter-Mountain.

Church Excursion.

At 3:30 this afternoon the steamer Whitehorse had not yet started on the St. Paul's church excursion which had every indication of being very extensively patronized as over $200 worth of tickets had been sold at the ticket office and probably three times as many by outside solicitors. The steamer will return with the excursionists at about 9 o'clock tonight.

WHERE ARE THE BENEFITS?

The manner in which the city council has dealt with the question of streets and sidewalks is in itself sufficient to condemn that body in the eyes of the taxpayers. The council has itself lost sight of the fact that they are presumed to represent the interests of the whole body of citizens. They have diverted from the general funds of the city large sums of money for the improvement of certain favored portions of the city, while other sections have been neglected and allowed to shift for themselves.

With characteristic thrift, the thoroughfare on which it happens that a number of the council own property has been graded, and paved like a boulevard while other streets have been forced to rest content with a few cart loads of gravel. The expenditure involved, all of which makes for the enhancement in value of the aldermanic property, has been met from the general funds which are supplied by the community at large. Thus it comes about that property owners generally are taxed equally with those who have profited directly by the thousands of dollars expended on the particular street in question.

The matter of sidewalks furnishes another illustration of the general policy. Small property owners on the outskirts of the city have been forced to build sidewalks in front of their property under threat of punishment by law, while within the very heart of the city there are blocks and blocks of land held for speculative purposes where not one single dollar for sidewalks has been expended.

The council has been weak and vacillating in many respects and when it has acted has usually shown discrimination in some form or other. The much-heralded benefits that were to accrue from incorporation have not as yet put in an appearance.

Sulphur creek is coming to the front in a manner that is exceedingly gratifying to those who had held to their faith in the richness of that creek. More claims are now in operation on Sulphur than ever before in its history and new plants are being established every week. Sulphur is a wide creek and consequently it has required considerable time and the investment of much money to definitely establish it among the heavy producers. The creek was an early victim of the lay system and for a long time suffered from the effects of spasmodic and naturally unsuccessful prospecting. It is now being worked in a business like, systematic manner with results which speak for themselves.

The purpose of the government in delaying the election for the Dominion house is not apparent. Before the close of navigation it is safe to say that several hundred supporters of the government will leave the territory for the winter and the strength of the government vote will be reduced to that extent. Many of the officials will be on their vacation and other sources to which the party in power will naturally look for strength will be similarly weakened. We are unable to see any reason for defining the postponement of the election as good politics.

The city council exhibits a remarkable spectacle. Six months in office and nothing to show but an accumulation of debt. The high-salaried city fathers (salaried at should be noted in direct violation of pre-election promises) might better be paid to give up their offices. They have no policy and when they exhibit symptoms of endeavoring to find one they are promptly called off. The system of governing Dawson has not been changed one iota by incorporation. The only observable difference is found in the fact that expenses have steadily been on the increase.

There is only one obstacle that stands in the way of Dawson becoming the centre of great quartz workings, and that obstacle is cost of operation. The Treadwell mines will not for a moment compare with what this country has before it. In natural resources this country stands second to none. Of this fact there can be no doubt. Time and money will do the rest.

These are certainly prosaic days. A titled Frenchman recently slapped a fellow countryman's face for an alleged insult. The slapper then withdrew to his domicile to await a challenge. Instead he was served with a warrant for assault. And this in the country of Alex. Dumas!

William Jennings Bryan will not be a candidate for the presidency in 1904. W. Jennings is a wise man. Two defeats such as he has sustained should be sufficient to satisfy any one.

It was Sunday morning and Deacon Ironside's two boys came downstairs too late to get ready for church.

"William," he said, "how is this?"

"I clean forgot it was Sunday," answered William.

"Chalmers," he said, turning to the other, "how is this?"

"I didn't forget it was Sunday, father," replied Chalmers, "but I was just too lazy to get up."

"William," said the deacon, "you will go without your breakfast. The command is, Remember the Sabbath day."

Amid the angry surges the gallant ship pitched and tossed, now burying its nose in the waves and anon standing on end, while the breeze whistled hoarsely through the rigging and the spray mingled with the smoke from the immense funnels.

"Have you got your sea-legs on?" smilingly asked the Intensely Practical Passenger, bundled to the neck in thick wraps.

"No!" haughtily replied the Intensely Sensitive Passenger. "My legs are tuned to F sharp!"

And the wind continued to whistle hoarsely through the rigging.

"It seems to me," remarked the Observant Foreigner, "you allow your girls great freedom in the matter of choosing their masculine companions."

"Yes," responded the Plippant Native, "we seem to give them all the laddie dude they want."

CITY BYLAW SUSTAINED

Regarding Business of Transient Trader

Although Decision Does Not Accord to City All Authority Claimed by It.

The following decision rendered this morning in the police court by Magistrate Wroughton is self-explanatory and is a partial victory for Dawson's municipal government in the enforcement of its bylaw regarding transient traders:

In the Police Court, Dawson, Yukon Territory:

Between
The City of Dawson, Plaintiff and Skagerling, Mayhood & Brown, Defendants.
Contravention of City Bylaw No. 16.

JUDGMENT.
In deciding this case it appears to me that there are two principal points at issue, i. e.:

1.—Did the defendants commit the offense as charged, contravention of the now existing bylaw?

2.—Is the bylaw a reasonable and proper one, and for the following reasons—

(a) Is the bylaw strictly within the limits of the ordinance incorporating the city of Dawson? (The defendants contend that it is not.)

(b) Are its provisions such as to amount to a prohibition and restraint of legitimate trade? (The defense contend that it is.)

As regards the first point, it has been proven that the defendants, Skagerling, Mayhood and Brown, did carry on a business in partnership, occupying premises on Third avenue between Harper and Princess streets; that their business involved the selling and offering for sale of articles of commerce such as cream, perishables and groceries; that the premises were only to be occupied for a temporary period; that the names of the defendants had not been entered on the assessment roll of the said city of Dawson in respect of income and personal property for the current year; and that the stock sold and offered for sale was not the stock of an insolvent estate.

I also find that the defendants come within the bylaw as transient traders, and that they had taken out no license.

With regard to the second point, it is contended by the defense that the bylaw is not within the limits allowed by the city charter. The ground taken is that the charter gave the city council the right to fix the sum to be paid for a license, but that it did not give the city council the right to fix the length of time for which that license should be given.

Mr. Worlock, in his evidence, stated that the license year expired on the 31st of December, and, as license inspector, he attempted to collect a license fee from defendants. Mr. Worlock was evidently under a misapprehension of the powers conferred upon him as license inspector by the bylaw. Section 5 of the bylaw, as far as I can find, in no way bears out Mr. Worlock's statement, and does not limit the time for which the license is granted. On the other hand, it seems to me to clearly state that the license will hold good as long as the license remains in the city. Furthermore, it is the city clerk who issues the license upon payment of the license fee to the city treasurer under this bylaw. Undoubtedly Mr. Worlock's statement was misleading, although I do not think intentionally so, but, nevertheless, it cannot in any way invalidate the existing bylaw. I must therefore over-rule this contention.

The defense contend also that the provisions of this bylaw amount to a prohibition and restraint of a legitimate trade. The evidence upon this point is most conflicting. Unfortunately the premises upon which much of the adduced evidence was based was unsound with respect to the bylaw under consideration; both parties arguing from the point that the license expired on the 31st of December, 1902. This is not the case and the evidence on that particular point cannot therefore be considered.

The city charter gives the city council power to license, regulate and govern transient traders. Every regulation is more or less of a restraint and necessarily interferes with it, or with those engaged with it. The restraint must be clearly shown to be undue restraint interfering detrimentally and materially with legitimate trade, or discriminating in favor of certain individuals to the detriment of others. From the evidence before me this has not been shown. The weight of evidence both for and against is fairly equally balanced, and in such cases it must be generally conceded that governing bodies of the country whether municipal, territorial or federal, to whom jurisdiction is given in matters of legislation, must be relied upon for exercising a just and sound discrimination. If a bylaw is had in any way, and should be quashed, any interested person can make an application to a judge for that purpose. There is no evidence before me that any such application has been made with regard to this bylaw. I must therefore take the bylaw as I find it. I find the defendants guilty of the charge laid against them. As it is the first conviction under this bylaw I will impose a fine of twenty-five ($25.00), together with the costs of court in this behalf, to be paid forthwith. In default of payment forthwith of the said fine and costs, I hereby order, that the said defendants, Skagerling, Mayhood and Brown, be imprisoned in the guard room of the North West Mounted Police at Dawson, in the Yukon Territory, for the term of one (1) month, without hard labor, unless the said fine and costs, and all costs of and incidental to this order, be sooner paid.

Dated at Dawson, Y. T., this 16th day of August, 1902.

(Signed), G. A. WROUGHTON,
A Justice of the Peace in and for the Yukon Territory.

SMUGGLER PAYS $50

James Young's Speculation Comes to Grief

Second Steward on Hannah Would Supply Dawson With Contraband Cigars.

James Young pleaded guilty before Magistrate Wroughton this morning to the charge of smuggling cigars for which he paid a fine of $50 and costs. Young is assistant steward on the steamer Hannah arrived night before last from St. Michael and the offence consisted in his efforts to get the cigars, of which there were 550 in 22 boxes, ashore without their passing customs inspection, consequently to escape paying duty.

Leroy Payne, a waiter on the steamer, was first arrested as it was he who was carrying the packages of boxes ashore.

The detection was made by Landing Waiter T. Ross Moulton. The boy Payne at once told the name of the owner of the cigars and both were arrested and taken to the guard room. Payne was dismissed this morning, it being apparent to the magistrate that in carrying the cigars ashore he had acted only under instructions from Young who, as second steward, he being Payne's superior in position and accustomed to obeying his orders.

As the cigars were confiscated by the crown, Young is considerably out of pocket on his attempted speculation.

WERE AFTER SALVAGE

Two Boatmen's Race for Derelict

Which Turned Out to be Occupied by Two Small Boys—Fun on the Waterfront.

Yesterday afternoon during the heavy downpour of rain a whitehull boat, apparently empty, came drifting down on the board bosom of the Yukon. About the time the supposed derelict was opposite the Canadian Bank of Commerce two men who were seeking shelter from the elements in Tom Thisholm's saloon, saw it and both made a mad rush for the ferry landing where each followed hastily untied a small boat, jumped in and started to salvage the floater. The race was a hot one and fully 100 people having seen the men running to their boats, braved the elements to witness the outcome of the race.

Each man bent himself to the bars and when they were within twenty feet of the floater it was neck and neck.

"I claim her!" shouted one.
"She is mine!" shouted the other.
Bump! Both boats struck the floater at the same time when two small boys stuck their heads over the side and from under some canvass under which they were taking shelter in the bottom of the boat from the rain, and in one voice said:

"What's the matter with youse fellers?"

Little Jacques and the Witch.

Once upon a time, in a small village in France, there lived a boy named Jacques. On the outskirts of the same village there was living in a rude hut an old woman who every one excepting Jacques believed to be a witch. He said she was no more a-witch than he was and that there were no witches anyhow.

One day Jacques was passing by the hut with some other children, added, "and we will show you where they are."

They took him to a place where the rocky walls were covered to their tops with spiders' webs, over which thousands of spiders were crawling. Here they taught him how to catch the spiders with two twigs, but instructed him to catch only those with red mouths. Jacques learned his lesson quickly and soon had a when he noticed a broom standing by the door. "Hello!" he cried, there's the broom the old witch rides on through the sky. I'm going to take a ride on it myself."

With that he straddled the broom, when—"Whisk!" and Jacques gave a yell—but before he could jump off of the broom he was a hundred feet in the air! His astonished companions stood in wonder watching him soar through the sky until he was only a dim speck in the distance.

When Jacques mustered courage to look down he saw they were flying along over mountains and lakes and rivers and plains. On they went until they reached the other side of hundred spiders in a glass jar, with which they had provided him. After his task was completed the witches gave him a squirrel, nicely cooked, and he helped himself to fruit from the trees.

The witches treated Jacques very well until one day he had only ninety-nine spiders, when the largest sister beat him with her broom until he was one mass of bruises. But when she had gone the little one came and rubbed some salve on his bruises and they were all well in an instant. From that day Jacques and the little sister were good friends and often played together.

Jacques was continually trying to the moon, then they descended into a valley surrounded by precipices a mile high. No sooner had Jacques gotten off of the broom than it rose in the air and in a few minutes was lost to sight. This made Jacques feel lonesome, as he had begun to consider the broom his companion in adventure.

He found himself in a very nice place. There were trees on every side loaded with fruit of every kind; the grass was soft and green, and almost at his feet was a brook with water clear as crystal.

Jacques stood undecided which way to turn, when he heard voices over his head, crying, "Ho! Ho! Ho! Ho! Mother has sent us a boy!"

find some way out of the valley, but there seemed to be none, for everywhere the rocks were straight up and down, with no projecting ends for a foothold. Once when he was looking very sad the little girl asked him what was the matter, and he told her that he wanted to get out of the valley, so that he could go home to his parents. The little witch appeared to be very sorry for him and offered to let him use her broom. When Jacques tried it he found the little broom was not strong enough to carry him. It would rise a few feet, stagger around in the air, and then tumble to the ground. He tried over and over again, but it was of no use—the broom was too weak.

The Broom Flew Away With Him.

He looked up and saw three young witches sailing around on their brooms. Two of them were good sized girls, but the third one was smaller than Jacques. They watched him for a short time, then the oldest one said:—"We won't harm you if you will do what we ask of you, and we will give you a rabbit or a squirrel every day for dinner, and you can take all the fruit, you want."

Jacques asked her what they wanted him to do, and she told him he must catch a hundred spiders for them every day. "Come along," she

One day Jacques saw a rainbow with one end resting in a large, open space, and the other extended away over the cliffs. He ran to the bottom of it, and to his amazement saw that there were steps leading to the top. He did not hesitate an instant but started up the steps. He had gone but a short distance when he heard a sweet voice calling, "Jacques!" It was the little witch who came flying on her broom. She had a bag in her hand which she gave to him and said, "Jacques, here are provisions and a bottle of water. You will need them for it's a long

The bright colors poured from the openings on opposite sides of the building and kept extending further and further along the rainbow until they reached the ground. It was the most magnificent rainbow that was ever seen, yet the colors were so soft that they did not dazzle the eyes.

When they re-entered the house the dwarf looked at Jacques good humoredly. "Ha, ha!" he laughed, and said, "I'm glad to see you. You're the first human being that I have seen in five hundred years. But now that you are here what do you propose to do?" Jacques said he wanted to go down and start for home.

The dwarf asked him where his home was. When Jacques told him the dwarf whistled and said, "Why, that is on the other side of the earth."

The dwarf thought for a moment, and then said, "Let me see," and he looked on the side of the wall where there were a lot of figures. Addressing Jacques, he said, "You know the rainbow travels all over the world, and I see we will be in your village in three months and a day. You had better stay with me and I will take you back home safe enough."

Jacques said he would think about it. But when he went out and looked down he could see nothing but dark woods, and what he believed were wild and savage animals moving through them, he concluded he would stay.

It was a strange life he passed with the dwarf. At times they were over the ocean, and again over large cities, and then again over wild and desert countries. They must have been nearly all over the world.

A few days before the three months elapsed Jacques wanted to start for the bottom of the rainbow, but the dwarf told him he need be in no hurry, for while it took five days to climb up he could descend in a few minutes.

On the day they were to reach his home Jacques watched with straining eyes. At last, in the early afternoon, he could see the church spire, then the school house and then his own house. The rainbow slowly settled down, and one end rested in the meadow behind his home.

Jacques gratefully thanked the dwarf, and had started to go when the dwarf called out to him. "Hey," he said, "if you want to get even with the old witch get her broom and make her give you fifty bags of gold before you will return it to her. She has a hundred bags of gold. But don't let the broom get between your legs or it will carry you off again."

When Jacques rushed into the house there was great rejoicing, for his parents had mourned him as one who was lost.

Jacques arose at daybreak the next morning and went to the old witch's house. The broom was outside the door, and Jacques seized it and ran

The old witch heard the noise and opened the door with a loud "Ha! Ha!" But when she saw that Jacques was running away with the broom, instead of the broom carrying him off, she sprang after Jacques, shrieking at the top of her voice for him to bring back her broom.

Jacques was young and active, and he had no difficulty in keeping far in advance of the old woman. The broom tried to get between his legs, but he held it fast so it could not.

When Jacques reached his home he rushed in the back door and shut and bolted it; then he went to a window and looked out. At a distance he saw the old witch standing and shaking her skinny fist at the house.

For days the old witch followed at the heels of Jacques, wherever he went, and always begging him to return the broom to her; but Jacques turned a deaf ear. One day she said to him, "If you will return me my broom I will give you a bag of gold." "No," Jacques said; "I want fifty bags of gold and will not return it for less." The old witch offered five, and ten, and twenty, and forty bags of gold, but finally she gave Jacques fifty bags of gold, and he returned her the broom.

Race Horses Attached.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 8.—Phil T. Chinn and wife today filed attachment suits against Mrs. Bessie L. Ferguson, widow of the noted starter, J. B. Ferguson, and mother of Mrs. Chinn. Late in the day fourteen thoroughbreds belonging to Mrs. Ferguson and located at Kingston stud were levied upon. Chinn alleges that Mrs. Ferguson is indebted to him in the sum of $2,433, money expended by him while managing Kingston stud, which Mrs. Ferguson sold to R. L. Baker this week. He sues for recovery of the $2,433 and for a half interest in four thoroughbreds claimed by him under a contract with Mrs. Ferguson. He alleges in his petition that the defendant is attempting to transfer her horses to Mrs. Maud Ferguson, wife of the son of the defendant, Garnett Ferguson, of San Francisco, and unless restrained by law would ship said horses out of the state.

ATHLETIC BUILDING

Progress Being Made in Securing Funds

Promoters Are Very Sanguine of Securing All the Funds Necessary.

The work of soliciting subscriptions for the athletic association building is progressing nicely and the gentlemen who have the matter in charge are more than sanguine of their ultimate success in raising all the funds that will be required to erect and thoroughly equip the building. Since the project first assumed a tangible shape, but two days ago, Thos. Hinton, assistant comptroller, has secured pledges from the civil service employes alone of nearly twenty per cent. of the necessary amount. None of the other sub-committees have as yet given any intimation of the success that has attended their efforts as the time has been so short that no opportunity has been had to make anything like a thorough canvass. There is no one, however, who has been spoken to about the matter who is not more than enthusiastic over the scheme. Social affairs during the winter months are dull enough at their best and without some institution such as that which is now being projected there would be practically no place in the city where an hour or two's recreation could be had. Reference was made in the Nugget a couple of days ago to the feasibility of acquiring a tract of ground on the government reserve in the block in which the administration building rests and it is the intention of a committee to wait upon Deputy Minister of the Interior Smart in a few days and lay the project before him with the object of securing his aid and co-operation. Mr. Smart is known to have a very great weakness for athletics and those who have the honor of his acquaintance do not doubt that he will do all in his power to further the scheme along. It will be impossible for the association to secure an out and out deed to the ground desired, but a lease could be executed for a long term of years at a nominal rental which would answer the same purposes. Then, too, the property being on government land would be exempt from taxation which in future years would be an item worthy of consideration. At the meeting held a few evenings ago when the question of a site was taken up informally there was a disposition on the part of a few to oppose the location on the government reserve, saying that it was not sufficiently central. The same gentlemen proposed a block nearer town, but such action would be manifestly unwise as it would require the purchase of the land needed at an outlay of several thousand dollars.

A suggestion has been made that in the construction of the building a sectional floor be employed which in the winter could be taken up for the purpose of flooding that portion used as an ice rink and in the warm weather when the ice had disappeared the floor could be replaced and the space utilized either for tennis or hand ball courts. The cost of maintenance will be nominal outside of the lighting as no heat will be required other than in the dressing and reception rooms. If the present plans are carried out the association will be a credit to the city and the means of many pleasant hours being spent in healthful and innocent recreation.

Wants His Cash

Washington, Aug. 8.—C. F. W. Neely, who was convicted of the Cuban postal frauds and afterward granted amnesty by the Cuban legislature, has applied to the attorney general to be reimbursed for the money found in his possession at the time of his arrest, amounting to $6,234. This money was sent to Cuba and an exhibit at the trial of Neely, and was returned to the war department, which is holding it until an adjustment is made and a balance struck between the Cuban government and the late military affairs. The officials have not yet determined what action they will take after this balance is struck.

KITCHENER AND CHAFFEE

Compared by the Atlanta Constitution

Says Chaffee's is Most Glorious Reward—Many Would Prefer Kitchener's.

Lord Kitchener took over the Boer situation after Lord Roberts had smashed the two republics and broken their armies to fragments. He had only to take up the tedious work of resisting and decimating the guerrilla bands of burghers until physical and economic exhaustion compelled a final surrender. That he did with a tactical skill and dogged persistence that marks him as an exceptionally capable and reliable commander. And for it all he gets a great ovation from king and people, an order of merit, a promotion in the peerage, a donation of $250,000 and the sure prospect of other and greater military honors in the near future.

On the other hand General Chaffee did some of the most serious and brilliant fighting in the most perilous part of the battle line at San Juan, he served as the financial and executive right hand of the governor general of Cuba for two years and made easier possible their successes, he went to China and reflected glory upon the American name by his soldierly skill and statesmanship, and then went to the Philippines and accomplished the similar but largely more difficult work with the Filipinos that Kitchener did with the Boers.

And what does Chaffee get? He is given a major generalship and its hardly significant increase of salary. He is complimented in some forty words of a cablegram and given a department command full of routine and worry. Although as a soldier of forty years' constant service and standing second back from the line precedents of promotion to the command of the army, he is threatened with losing that last distinction by the preference of a staff general, who has never seen an hour of service outside of a sinecure at Washington since the civil war.

The difference in the visible fortunes of the two great officers is the difference between the monarchial and the American democratic fashion of service and reward. Although General Chaffee does not receive donations of orders, titles and cash, he does receive the plaudits and appreciation of eighty millions of people who know his worth, his valor and his patriotic devotion. He carries about with him that which cannot be put on or off with a safety pin, or stolen by thieves—the sense that he has done his duty like an American and so vindicated his right to the pure, unpurchased, gratitude of his fellow citizens.

CALDERHEAD'S COURTESY

Gives His Employees a Theatre Party

And Regales Them With Friends at Supper on Board the Steamer Thistle.

Prompted by an unwavering belief in Bobby Burns' saying "A man's a man for a' that," Manager R. W. Calderhead of the Merchants Transportation Line, operating the two swift and popular steamers Thistle and La France, invited the entire crew of the former from captain to deckhands, and all his office and warehouse men to a theatre party at the Auditorium, which they invaded twenty strong, each man wearing a ribbon badge bearing the word "Thistle."

It was a happy crowd and its appearance caused Manager Bittner of the Auditorium to express the wish that Mr. Calderhead's thoughtfulness and consideration for the men in his employ would prove contagious in steamboat circles.

After the theatre the Calderhead party, with half a dozen others, including press representatives and local business men, repaired to the steamer Thistle which lay at her dock where, under the guiding hand of Steward Frank Hall, a midnight supper fit for a king was served. Salads, liquors and cigars were abundant, an orchestra furnished excellent music, a number of vocal selections were rendered and everybody present made a speech, told a story or sang a song. In fact, some present made various, divers and sundry speeches.

All present had a good word for Manager Calderhead and all, especially his employes, expressed themselves as being of the unanimous opinion that he is in all respects the whitest and most considerate employer of labor in the Yukon, and for that reason the advancement of his interests are as eagerly sought by those in his employ as by himself, and to his uniform treatment of his men is due the fact that between he and them friction is unknown and every man from the highest to the lowest works to advance the interests of his employer.

This strong feeling for Manager Calderhead in his business family circle has its influence outside that circle with the result that his steamers, the Thistle and La France, are the most popular on the Yukon today.

It was after three o'clock this morning that with three cheers and a tiger for Manager Calderhead, his men and his boats, the merry party was brought to a close and its members passed over (or were assisted over) the gang plank.

Another of those popular Sunday outings will be given by the White Pass Company tomorrow, this time on its large, swift and elegant steamer, the Whitehorse. ## Woes of Journalism.

Under the heading "Important Notice," The Sandon, B.C., Paystreak says in its last issue: "The editor of this paper being unavoidably detained in Victoria, the manager has decided that all subscribers who have shown a contempt for paying their subscriptions shall be sentenced to do without this journal. To those who are short of money this may seem unduly severe, but as necessity, in addition to being the mother of invention, knows no law, we must insist upon the cash before allowing this literary production in blue to leave our doors. The public can readily see that we have strong reasons for demanding money in advance. With the editor in jail and his bank account all torn to pieces by the shot of hard times, it must be evident to all intelligent folks that the manager pro tem. has no bed of roses upon which he can slumber in blissful oblivion to all things financial. ## Street Numbers.

Editor Nugget:—Dear Sir,—Referring to your editorial of recent date in connection with the matter of numbering the dwellings and business houses of Dawson, I wish to commend your attitude on that question. It would certainly be an absurdity to make any change in the system which has already been adopted. Many of the business institutions of the town have already numbered their places in accordance with the plan adopted and any change therefrom at this time would merely lead to endless confusion and to little expense to many. The system now in vogue is essentially practical and the only thing needed is to have it carried out. Yours truly, OBSERVER.

JUDGMENT RENDERED

In Case of Norwood Versus Marshal

Trial Consumed Several Days and Decision is of Unusual Interest.

Judgment was today handed down by Mr. Justice Dugas in the case of Norwood et al vs. Marshall et al, an action quite complicated and one which consumed several days at its trial. The decision is quite lengthy and reviews to considerable extent the causes which preceded and led up to the action. The gist of his lordship's opinion is as follows:

"During the year 1904 the plaintiffs made advances to the defendants Faulkner and Kronert to the amount of $18,682, whereby they became interested in certain claims mentioned in the statement of claim and also in an agreement between the defendant Faulkner and the plaintiffs, dated 26th December, 1900. During the different transactions which took place Kronert was disinterested and the plaintiffs with Faulkner remained alone proprietors. Finding that operating the mines together was not satisfactory, as Faulkner was demanding more advances in order to continue the working of the claims, the plaintiffs determined not to advance any more moneys. There was an informal agreement that if the interests of the plaintiffs could be sold and they reimbursed for whatever they had put into the transaction, they would be satisfied. Faulkner represented, in the month of September, that he had found some purchasers, which evidently were the defendants, Marshall and Pauley, whereupon the plaintiffs passed the agreement already referred to.

"The defendants, Pauley and Marshall, have pleaded separately, and in their statements of defence, declare that in September, 1900, Faulkner, holding himself as representing the plaintiffs Clark and one H. H. Norwood, offered to sell to them their interests in the claims in question, as well as the machinery, plant and tools in connection therewith by which, amongst other things, they were to advance upward of $8,000 to pay off prior encumbrances upon the said property, pay all the share of the plaintiffs' indebtedness in the property, and they admit that they agreed afterwards with Faulkner, who represented the plaintiffs, that they should purchase plaintiffs' share in the claims in question and in the machinery, tools and implements for $18,682 in gold dust at $16 per ounce payable on or before the 15th day of July, 1901. It is alleged that when, on the 26th day of September, 1900, the agreement to that effect was reduced to writing, it was not accurately signed by the defendant Faulkner, as purchaser, who thereafter transferred the same to these defendants, and by the plaintiffs that it contained inaccurate recitals and that the said written contract should be reformed so as to express the true intent thereof, though they do not say how. Upon said transfer of said agreement to these defendants by Faulkner they proceeded to mine and operate the claims in question in partnership. They further allege that the dumps, worked out contained $50,000 and the expenses for wood were $3,065.25, supplies $12,362.42, and wages $22,910.80, part of which has been paid and part of which is still due; said amounts paid were partly produced from said claims and partly supplied by the defendants, Marshall, Pauley and Faulkner, from their own personal funds. Faulkner in his defence recites the different transactions with the plaintiffs and with Pauley and Marshall, and alleges as to the other defendants that the sale was to be made to Pauley and Marshall, though Faulkner appears in his own name therein, and repeats in part the allegations contained in Pauley and Marshall's statement of defence. He alleges also that before the signing of the agreement it had been orally understood that the plaintiffs would be paid after the payment of the share of the laymen, prior encumbrances, the cost of labor, machinery, tools, implements, repairs and supplies used in connection with the working of said claims. During the operation and working of the claims the plaintiffs found that contrary to the special clause in the said agreement, the defendant applied some of the gold dust otherwise than to pay the first encumbrances, and afterwards pay them. The uncle of the plaintiff Norwood, who admits that he had some interest in the deal, was, by a common understanding, sent on the claim to receive the gold dust and see that it would be applied as by the deed it was understood. He received a certain amount of the gold dust of which he disposed in a manner it seems agreeable to everyone, but afterwards the defendants refused to abide by this understanding any more and, as their pretention was that the deed did not convey the conditions agreed upon they would themselves dispose of the gold dust and it is admitted that their intention was to pay part of it on account of the wages due for the working of the claims. Upon application Captain H. H. Norwood was appointed receiver, and there is now in court 707 ounces of gold which the plaintiffs claim should be applied in part payment of their advances.

"The only question in the case is, whether the defendants are bound by the deed of agreement as signed between Faulkner and the plaintiffs. Whatever may have been spoken about orally, either with Faulkner or with Pauley and Marshall, I have no hesitation in declaring that the deed so definitely signed between the parties is the agreement to be accepted and to be acted upon. What happened afterward shows that Faulkner had in view a subsequent transaction between him and the defendants Pauley and Marshall, by which he could put into effect his undertaking to meet his liabilities toward the plaintiffs. The deed being clear in its terms and the defendants not having been able to prove either mistake, surprise or fraud, I could not permit to prove anything which would have contradicted the same and more particularly the special clause which relates to the payments to be made to plaintiffs. I believe that the undertaking by Pauley and Marshall to advance $8,000 as they did, strengthens the terms of the agreement as the labor was to be paid in part, at all events, out of that sum. There is no doubt that there exists in this territory a great feeling in favor of the laboring man who is too often deprived of his hard earnings. This is due to the circumstances under which claims here are worked, by which the laborer is made to wait a longer time than in any other place before he is paid his wages. In a place where wages are paid generally weekly or monthly, a provision to protect the same in a deed would not generally be thought of. Here there is an inclination to believe that the rights of the laboring man should always be protected, and I for one regret that the condition under which he is generally should not permit him either to be less provident or to obtain better chances of not losing his earnings, yet, whatever sympathy one may have for him cannot change the law, nor give him any right of preference whenever, either by agreement or otherwise, that preference is not secured to him. I take the agreement as binding upon all the parties, and as operating an equitable assignment, in favor of the plaintiffs, by which, after the first encumbrances are paid out of the products of the mines in question, they become entitled to get whatever gold is produced until they are paid their $18,682, which Faulkner so agreed to pay.

"It must be remembered that the plaintiffs had great interest in protecting themselves that way as the more placer claims are worked and the gold extracted therefrom, the less value they have, and, therefore, a deed of this kind must be taken or accepted as protecting deserving interests. Judgment will, therefore, be entered in favor of the plaintiffs, who will, after accounts are established as to what may be the balance due to the first encumbrances, be entitled to receive whatever gold is in court, the value thereof to be applied in deduction of their claim at the rate of $16 an ounce, and also, to the other products of the said claims until paid. I think, by what I understood at the trial, that the parties can agree as to what is due the first encumbrancers. In that case it would not be necessary to establish the accounts by the ordinary reference, otherwise it will be ordered and judgment drafted to meet the case."

Five Suspects Taken

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Gus Hyatt, who escaped with fifteen other convicts from the Nashville penitentiary last Monday night, is now sought as the leader of the train robbers who held up the Burlington express at Savanah, Ill., twenty-four hours after the escape. At St. Paul, Minn., five men who are suspected of complicity in the robbery, are under arrest. They were taken in a body as they alighted from a Great Western train. They gave their names as Geo. McKinnon, H. D. Coleman, Henry Lee, F. D. Patchen and William Dunn. Steps have been taken to ascertain whether these men or any of them can be identified as escapes from the Tennessee penitentiary.

Which Rescued Family of a Miner—Wife Tells of Petty Acts of Violence.

Shenandoah, Pa., Aug. 8.—A platoon of the governor's troop of cavalry went to Turkey run hill today on an errand of mercy and rescued a small family from violence of the neighbors. Petty acts of violence have been reported from that territory nearly every day for a week. Today Gen. Gobin received a pathetic letter from the wife of a non-union workman who is employed in the Gilberton colliery of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Co., in which she tells of the treatment accorded her by strikers in that vicinity. Among other things she said rocks had been thrown through the windows at night, one of them nearly striking her sleeping child; the house was damaged and while she was out doors one night a shot was fired at her. She also said crowds gathered around the house, hooted and jeered at her and the child, and hung crepe on the door. Her husband, she concluded, was compelled to stay in the mines in order to earn money to keep them from starving, and as he could not leave his work she asked the commanding officer of the troops to protect her. Turkey hill run has no police protection and Gen. Gobin decided to help the woman. He learned that she was not in the best of health, and it was decided that she had better be taken from the place to the Pottsville hospital. To carry this out the general ordered a platoon of cavalry to make a demonstration in that section, and while there to escort the woman and child to the railroad station. This was done.

The troops rode all over the territory and found that the population which is made up of many foreigners, was not in the best frame of mind. The soldiers were hooted and jeered and called uncomplimentary names. Only one stone was thrown at the horsemen, and this was done by someone in a crowd on a high ridge out of reach of the soldiers. The cavalrymen stopped their horses and the crowd scattered instantly.

The two Lithuanians, who were yesterday held responsible for the death of Joseph Boddall in the riots of last week, were today committed without bail to the county jail at Pottsville on the charge of murder. Another Lithuanian charged with rioting was released on $2,000 bail. It is understood that a large number of other arrests will be made and more charges of murder will be brought.

The police officials are having much difficulty in ferreting out the participants in the riots. The foreigners are standing together and are not volunteering any information. It was feared that an attempt would be made to rescue the two Lithuanians held for murder and the other charged with rioting from the little lockup early this morning. In consequence a company of soldiers on guard duty close at hand are kept in readiness to march. Extra guards are on duty at the borough building, in which the men are confined.

Mills Close Down

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—One of the twenty-eight plants of the American Tinsplate Company, operating 274 mills, fifteen plants with a capacity of 179 mills, have been closed indefinitely. These suspensions have followed the refusal of the tinsplate workers to accept a reduction in wages in order that export business to the amount of 1,500,000 boxes might be obtained.

Gasoline Starts a Fire

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 8.—A special to the Telegram from Silver City, Utah, says that fire there this afternoon destroyed eight buildings in the heart of the town, involving a loss of about $25,000. The insurance is less than half. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove. The town is without fire protection, and but for a fortunate change in the wind would probably have been totally destroyed.

CARNEGIE DONATIONS

To Provide Equipment as Well as Building

Mr. A. F. Nicol Thinks No Difficulties Will be Met in Making That Arrangement.

Mr. A. F. Nicol, who has conducted the negotiations dealing with the proposed institution of a Carnegie library in Dawson, was seen by a representative of this paper today.

"I am of the opinion," said Mr. Nicol, "that no difficulty will be experienced in securing Mr. Carnegie's consent to divide his donation of $25,000 between a building and proper equipment for the same.

"I am heartily in accord with the view of the matter as taken by the Nugget and I think that no difficulty will be experienced in arranging with Mr. Carnegie on some such lines as have been suggested.

"I shall begin correspondence immediately, and anticipate that when the situation is explained in detail to Mr. Carnegie that he will consent to have the donation disposed of in the manner noted. I am quite agreed with the idea that an expensive building without books or other equipment would in no way serve the required purpose.

We can do your repairing on short notice. Geo. Brewitt, the tailor, Second avenue.

Returns From Panama

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 8.—H. M. S. Amphion, which has been spending four months at Panama looking after British interests, arrived at Esquimaut this morning. The officers while at Panama visited the camp of the rebels at St. Davids bay, and they report that the men are well drilled and well armed. The Chileans, whose country was also visited by the cruiser, were feeling uneasy, fearing trouble with Argentine. While at one of the Chilean ports a stoker of the ship, named Payne, was murdered. He was enticed into a lane by a woman and killed by a man, who lay in waiting for him. He was given a naval funeral. Some of the exciting scenes of the revolution in Panama were witnessed by the crew of the cruiser.

No Lives Lost.

New York, Aug. 8.—An overturned lamp in the engine room of the ferryboat New Brunswick, plying between New Brunswick, N. J., and New York, set fire to the boat and so rapidly did the flames spread that the vessel had to be beached on the Meadows about three miles below New Brunswick and allowed to burn to the water's edge. The boat carried a crew of twenty-three men, and there were sixteen passengers aboard. Capt. George F. Rogers of Brooklyn gave orders that the lifeboats should be lowered when it became apparent that the flames could not successfully be fought and the passengers were taken ashore so speedily that there was no excitement. The engineer of the boat, William Traver, of Bath, N. Y., was badly burned about the face and hands.

Two race horses were pushed overboard and swam ashore uninjured. The vessel was valued at $60,000; partially insured.

A Suggestion to Carnegie

Cleanliness is next to godliness and possibly far ahead of "book-larnin'." Perhaps if Mr. Carnegie were informed that 77 per cent. of the inhabitants of large American cities have to do without bathtubs, he might be so shocked that he would at once write checks for a public swimming pool and bath in every town where the unwashed constitute the majority of the population. — Baltimore Sun.
