into a hardy, vigorous child, you must make sure you are feeding him properly. Baby should be fed at the breast if possible—and this will always be made easier if the expectant mother will prevent herself by including in one of her daily meals a bowlful of Neave's Health Food.

That when Baby has to be put on the bottle, extra care must be taken in the choice of the food. Neave's Food has nearly a century's reputation, and many eminent doctors represent the opinion that it is the best alternative to mother's milk.

CHAPTER XXVI.
Micky had just reached the unpretentious inn in the village where he had taken a room, when he was hailed from across the road by June; a very cheerful-looking June, in a business-like coat and skirt of rough tweed, and carrying a walking-stick, which she proceeded to wave at him vigorously.
"Back so soon!" She came across to where he stood by the car, and looked at his despondent face. "Not another row?" she demanded tersely.
Micky frowned.
"No—merely a sort of frigid silence this time," he said savagely, then he laughed. "It's no use, June, I may as well throw up the sponge. I seem to put my foot in it whatever I do."
June drew a pattern in the mud at her feet.
"Well, what have you done?" she asked. "Esther was all right this morning, and quite pleased to be going with you. I certainly never expected to see either of you till this afternoon. How did you go?"
Micky shrugged his shoulders.
"Oh, some little one-eyed place. We stopped at an inn and had some coffee, and that seemed to finish it."
"What, the coffee?" asked June with a twinkle.
Micky turned away.
"If you're going to make a joke of everything," he said with dignity. She laid her hand on his arm.
"I'm sorry, old boy. But you do explain things so badly, you know. You had coffee at the inn, yes—and then "I went outside to start up the engine, and when I came back she seemed to have utterly changed. She even looked different and she hardly spoke all the way home."

"It must be your imagination," He shook his head.
"No, it isn't; and when we get home she went indoors without even saying good-bye—confound her!" he added in savage parenthesis.
"Oh, Micky!" said June reproachfully.
He coloured.

"I didn't mean that, but I'm so fed-up with everything!" He leaned his elbow on the side of the car and looked away from her down the road. "I think I'll get back to town this afternoon," he said after a moment. "I was a fool to come at all."
June looked at him silently.
"Well, what are you thinking?" he asked.
She roused herself and answered briskly.
"I think you want your lunch, that's what I think, and I'm going to take you back with me to have some. Aunt Mary is expecting you." Her queer eyes twinkled. "Micky, she's quite made up her mind that you've come down here after me."
Micky laughed ruefully.
"It would be a dashed sight better for me if I had," he said.
He moved to the door of the car.
"Jump in, and I'll drive you back. I'm not sure that I shall stay to lunch, though," he added darkly.
"Oh, yes, you will," June said. "And when you see Esther you'll find that it was just imagination on your part—why, only coming down in the train the other morning she agreed with me that you were a perfect darling—she did, on my word of honour!"
When they reached the house Micky followed June into the hall.

"The table's laid," she informed him. "I'll just go and take off my hat and find Esther and Aunt Mary. Go in, Micky."
Micky took off his hat and coat and obeyed.
He looked several sizes too large for the little dining-room as he walked over to the fire and stood with his back to it; he looked round the room appreciatively.
This was a real home, he thought with sudden wistfulness in spite of its small rooms and general atmosphere of a bygone decade; a man could be very happy here with a woman he cared for.
"Micky—Micky—" called June urgently. She came clattering down the stairs anyhow—she burst into the room, she thrust a scrap of paper into his hand.
"She's gone—she's gone! Oh, what fools we were! I told you what it would be. I knew she'd find out sooner or later. Oh, why didn't you let me tell her?—I begged you to let me. It's not my fault. I warned you what it would be—oh dear! oh dear!" and June fell into a sobbing heap on the uncomfortable horsehair couch behind her.
Micky, about clutching the paper and staring at her; it was some minutes before he could find his voice, then he went over to where she lay, put his hand on her shoulders, and shook her almost roughly.

"What are you talking about, June? For heaven's sake sit up and behave like a rational woman. Who's gone? What do you mean?"
She raised her tear-stained face.
"Read it! read it! Oh, Micky, you have been a fool!" she said furiously. "It's all your fault. I knew what would happen."
"Oh, for heaven's sake shut up," said Micky.
He had unfolded the paper, and there was a moment's tragic silence as he read the three lines Esther had scribbled.
"I have gone to Paris; I can't live without him any longer. Please don't worry about me."
Twice his lips moved, but no words would come, then he broke out in a strangled voice.
"It's a joke—of course it is. She's done it to frighten you. Why, I—only left her here half-an-hour ago—it can't be more. It's a joke—of course it is."
"A queer sort of joke," said June sobbing. "Poor darling! and a nice sort of reception she'll get when she reaches Paris with that cad there."
"She'll never find him, she doesn't know where he is," Micky said hoarsely. There was a stunned look in his eyes—he took a step toward the door and came back again as if he did not know what to do.
June was drying her eyes and shedding more tears and drying them again; she looked at Micky angrily.
"Of course she'll find him," she said tartly. "She knows his address; she wrote it to her dozens of times, and she's written to him as well."
Her eyes searched his face with a sort of contempt.
"Well, what are you going to do now you've made such a glorious hash of everything?" she demanded.
Micky passed a hand across his eyes.
"I don't know. I'm trying to think. She can't have been gone long. She may still be in the village." He dragged out his watch. "There may not have been a train up to London."
"Yes, there was; the twelve-twenty." The eyes of both of them turned to the clock, and Micky gave a smothered groan.
"She must have gone by that. I must follow her, of course."
June bounded up.
"I'll come with you; I'll put on my hat again—She made a dive for the door, but Micky caught her arm and stopped her.
"You can't; I can't take you with me. Be sensible, June—I'll find her and bring her back."
She looked up at him stormily.
"She's my friend, and it's all your fault she's got into this mess. I told you not to interfere, and you wouldn't listen."
It was a woman all over to rave at him now, but Micky took it patiently.
"Very well, it's my fault, and as it's my fault it's up to me to try and put things right. Don't waste time arguing—I'm to match her before she leaves England."
June burst into fresh tears and sobbed.
"You won't be able to; she'll get over there and have to bear it all alone."
"Oh, Micky, I almost hate you when I think what we've done."
Micky went out of the room; he went down to the road and mechanically started up the car; he was getting into his seat when June followed and called to him—
"You haven't got your coat or cap, Micky."
He came back; he hoisted himself into his coat, and turned away again; June caught his hand.
"I didn't mean to be a beast, Micky."
He gave her fingers a squeeze.
"I know; it's all right; but don't keep me, there's a dear."
But she still clung to him.
"You'll bring her back safely, Micky—promise."
Micky turned away without answering.
". . . I can't live without him any longer."
In spite of everything, that was how she still felt about the brute.

CHAPTER XXVII.
Micky sat for a few moments breathless and exhausted before he pulled himself together, and taking off his hat wiped his hot forehead.
The train was gathering speed; he let down the window with a run and looked out; the station was out of sight altogether; they were crossing the bridge under which the silent Thames flowed sluggishly.
A breath of cold air touched his hot face and he shivered suddenly and drew the window up once more.
Something had driven his thoughts back to his first meeting with Esther, to the cold silence of the night, and the hard desperation of her voice as she said—
"I didn't mean to go home any more—I shouldn't have ever gone home again if I hadn't met you."
If it got to Paris before he saw her she would feel like this again. Micky groaned.
Fortunately he had the carriage to himself, but it was a third-class compartment, and not a corridor carriage. He cursed his luck here; if there had been a corridor he could have gone the length of the train and see if Esther were on it. As it was, he would have to wait till they reached Dover, and even then perhaps he would never find her.
He tried to calm himself with the conviction that everything would be all right, but in his heart he was despairing; if he found Esther and brought her back she would hate him for the rest of his life.
What had happened to make her rush off like this? He could not say. She had seemed so happy only that morning. What could account for the tragedy that seemed to breathe in every word of that little note she had left for June?
He took it from his pocket and read it again. It gave no hint of what had prompted this sudden flight. He wrote out a couple of telegrams to dispatch from Dover—one for June, and another for Driver.
He wished he had got Driver with him. There was a sort of security in the man's stolidness.
He realised that he was without luggage, and that he had not much money. Supposing he had to go on to Paris, what the dickens was he going to do?
When the train ran into Dover he got to his feet with a sigh of relief. Quietly as he was out of the train a great many passengers had left it before him. He started at a run down the platform. He stared at every woman he met, hoping it would be Esther. The crowd was getting thick; he had to push his way unceremoniously past people; porters with luggage trucks jostled him; he began to lose his temper—he was just answering with great heart a man who had ironically asked "who he was shoving," when some one touched his arm.
"Micky."
For a moment Micky's heart beat up in his throat; he turned quickly and found himself looking down into the brown eyes of Miss DeLam.
(To be continued)

When he got to the station he found there was no train to town for a couple of hours; he asked a sleepy porter an agitated question.
"Did you see a young lady go by the twelve-twenty—one of the young ladies staying with Miss DeLam? Oh, for heaven's sake hurry up and answer, man!"
The man scratched an unshaven chin with irritating consideration.
"Yes, I seen her," he said at last. "She came in running—caught the train to London—she."
But Micky had none; he would have to drive to town, he decided. If Esther had got to know the truth, better hear it from him than from that brute.
He drove off at breakneck speed. It seemed miles and miles to London; no matter how much of the winding road he covered, it unfolded again before his eyes, and mercifully again.
He went straight to Charing Cross; he left the car in the ward and dashed in to inquire about trains; he searched a time-table; 12-53—3 o'clock—4.5 . . . he looked up at the clock—three minutes past four now. Micky dashed across the big hall to a gate where a signboard said "Dover Express"; he had no ticket; he pushed by the protesting inspector; the guard was waving his flag; some one grabbed at Micky and missed as he flung himself breathless and panting into the last coach of the moving train.

Micky dashed across the big hall to a gate where a signboard said "Dover Express"; he had no ticket; he pushed by the protesting inspector; the guard was waving his flag; some one grabbed at Micky and missed as he flung himself breathless and panting into the last coach of the moving train.

Anglo-American Telegraph Company.

Effective commencing April 9, deferred Cable Service is reinstated—Great Britain and Ireland, and the principal countries in Europe, Africa, Asia, Dutch East Indies, Australasia (rate for Australasia is that via Eastern and Indo only), Argentine, Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay, Peru (except Wireless Stations), Uruguay and Brazil (except Acre District and Amazon River stations). The deferred service will be, on the usual basis of plain language and deferral in favor of full rate messages and the carrying of a prefix LCO, LCD or LCF as the case may be, in all cases including that of Great Britain and Ireland exactly one half the regular or full rate to country of destination.
This valuable service at one half normal rates has not been available since September 1918, when it was necessarily suspended because of the congested condition of the cable system throughout the world. The Anglo-American Telegraph Company and the Western Union have taken advantage of the first opportunity since the war to reinstate this service.

For Mother's Birthday

Mother's been a good pal
She sat up nights with us
When we were sick.
She kissed our
Bumps and bruises well.
Care of us and
Spending all her
Money on us
Worrying about us
Petting us and Praising us
All her life
That she never could
Afford to have music
Right at home
So we're going to buy her
A Columbia Grafonola

So she can have
All the music
Of all the world
By the greatest artists
In the world
For all the rest
Of her life.

Mother likes music
But she has been
So busy taking

She washed and ironed
And cooked and scrubbed.
She helped us all
With our lessons
And taught us manners
And truth
And courage
And honesty
And faith.

A Princely Post-Pupil.

Mr. John P. Hand has gone one further on his previous offer to his Alma Mater by guaranteeing for at least five years, $500 annually for scholarships, $100 to the Bros' Collection and the rent of a large field for the boys' games. Mr. Hand's princely contribution is an evidence of his success as a young business man, of his love for the land of his birth, and big affection for his old school—St. Patrick's Hall. Last week's marvelous success of "Puddings" shows that the donor's most generous offer is to pupils who can thoroughly appreciate his kindness.

Companion Lyon Honored.

PLEASING PRESENTATION.
On Tuesday evening last when the officers of Shannon Chapter were being installed, Comp. W. A. Ellis, P. G.H.P., who was one of the installing officers, on congratulating Very ex-Companion W. H. Hynes on being again elected to the highest office in the Chapter, said before sitting down that he had another pleasant duty to perform. He opened his remarks by referring to the Secretary, Companion E. W. Lyon, who has given long and faithful service to the Chapter, having just completed his twenty-fifth year in office, and it was a great privilege and pleasure to him to present him with a silver salver, suitably engraved, in recognition of his services. He said further that it was not only the Companions of St. John's that had contributed to it, but many that were far removed. He referred at length to Companion Lyon's secretarial work, which has given great satisfaction to the Chapter, and as far as he knew, never missed a convocation in a quarter of a century. He concluded his remarks by hoping that he would live many more years to carry on the work he has so faithfully and constantly performed.

Companion Secretary, who was taken by surprise, as he was unaware that anything of the kind was to take place, was very much affected, and in returning thanks to Comp. Ellis and the members of the Chapter, the donors of the beautiful silver plate said in part that twenty-five years was a long time to look forward to, but to him it was but a pleasant memory, and said he always took a keen interest in Capitular Masonry, and has seen Shannon Chapter grow from a small position to one of the most prosperous in the jurisdiction, and as to the part he took in it they were the best judges and verified it to-night by presenting him with the costly plate. He hoped that he and Mrs. Lyon would live a few more years yet to prize it, and before they were called he would see that it would be passed on to other members of the family, who would value it as much as they did. This presentation is perhaps one of the most valuable ever given to a Mason in Newfoundland, being a model of the silversmiths, and engravers art.

"The Veteran."

We thank the publishers of the "Veteran" for a copy of the second number of their interesting publication. Like its predecessor, this volume contains a great number of articles of varied interest, some excellent poetry and two very good cartoons, one of which is the work of a boy of 13, Martin Thos. Drover. Amongst the articles, perhaps, those of particular interest deal with the past history of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment in France and Gallipoli, but the other articles are also very clever and entertaining ones. On the whole the Editor and Publishers of the "Veteran" have good reason to feel proud of the "Gallipoli Issue" of their journal.

Fire at Manuels.

On Friday last the house of Martin Nell, of Manuels, was destroyed by fire. The residents of the settlement turned out in numbers to fight the flames, but despite their efforts the house was razed to the ground and all its contents destroyed. The place was only partly covered by insurance and the loss to Mr. Nell and his family is a severe one.

Ends Lifetime of Suffering in Her Sixty-Eighth Year

Can't Express Gratitude I Feel Toward Tanlac, Says Mrs. Burrington.

"From childhood until I got Tanlac, I suffered from indigestion and stomach trouble," said Mrs. J. A. Burrington, 540 Stanford Ave., Los Angeles.

MRS. J. A. BURRINGTON
Los Angeles, Calif.

Calif., "and that's been a long time, for I'm now in my sixty-eighth year." "I remember when I was a child I was kept on a strict diet of lime water and milk for weeks and I have been in constant distress all these years. I suffered terribly from bloating and had to be very careful of what I ate. I became so weak and nervous I could hardly go about my housework and was in a miserable condition. About two years ago my husband got such splendid results from Tanlac he insisted on my taking it and the medicine wasn't but a little while in riding me of my troubles. It gave me a splendid appetite and I could enjoy a good hearty meal, even things I hadn't dared touch before, without any fear of it troubling me. "Then I had the influenza and became dreadfully sick and weak, but my stomach kept in good order and it only took four bottles of Tanlac to build me up again to where I'm now feeling better than at any time I can remember. I have gained eleven pounds in weight, too, and words can't express the gratitude I feel toward Tanlac. I keep Tanlac in the house all the time now, for I know it is a medicine that can be depended upon."

Lloyd George a Pugnacious Youth.

John Thomas, also known by his bardic name as Myrddin Fardd, a retired Carnarvonshire village blacksmith, is telling in a Welsh newspaper some interesting reminiscences of the early years of Premier Lloyd George, when the latter occupied a stool in a country lawyer's office. In his youthful days he was not unwilling to push an argument to a physical struggle. Myrddin Fardd relates that one morning young George's employer was astonished to hear sounds of strife in the office, and on investigating he found the youngster fighting with two other clerks—and holding his own. Myrddin Fardd also relates how he provided the Premier with his breakfast on his wedding morning. "Early one morning," he says, "Richard Lloyd and his nephew David called on me and asked if I could give them something to eat, as David was on his way to Felchaeuwydd Chapel to be married to Maggie Myrddin Edymfed. I lived in lodgings at the time, but said I would gladly give them breakfast if I could get my landlady, old Shan Roberts, to prepare it. She did, and after breakfast I recommended them toward Pencaeuwydd. Near Groesion, Llanarfon, we were overtaken by a big old four-wheeled coach carrying the bride and her friends. Richard Lloyd and David joined them, and I trudged back to my work."

Miners Federation Turn Down Proposals.

Looking for Negotiable Basis— Australian Premier Has Confidence of Parliament—Schooner "Bluenose" Sails for Banks.

NO SETTLEMENT TILL NEXT WEEK.

LONDON, April 20. It is practically certain there will be no settlement of the coal strike before next week. The Miners' Federation has decided that the new proposals made public by owners are too vague to afford a basis for negotiations. Both sides, however, continue to display a desire to get together if a negotiable basis can be found, and should Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Union, succeed in the admittedly hard task of swinging the delegates at conference Friday to his side, it is believed that another joint conference will assemble possibly Monday. The statement of the Miners' Federation regarding the proposals issued last night by the owners says they are vague and meaningless and in the main merely reformulate previous offers. The Federation adds that its own proposals are perfectly clear, a National Wage Board with the poorer pits to pay the rates of wages agreed upon out of fund contributions through a levy by miners and mine owners. In the event of a new conference this point will be thoroughly discussed. It involves neither state control nor state subsidy. Meetings of Welsh miners are being held in protest against any compromise on the original demands, but it is considered doubtful if the conference of delegates will insist upon the resignation of Hodges, who indirectly was the cause of the withdrawal of the railwaymen and transport workers from their threatened strike. Both sides in the dispute are still issuing statements justifying their opposing attitudes, which will have the effect of clearing the air for future negotiations. An appeal signed by a number of leading Bishops and Non-conformist clergymen, including Rev. Reginald J. Campbell, former pastor of the City Temple, Right Rev. Alfred Clifford, Dr. Robert F. Horton and Rev. Frederick B. Meyer, has been made public, urging a dispassionate consideration of the miners' demands for a fair wage on the basis of the tonnage levy proposed by the Miners' Federation.

NEWFOUNDLANDER MISSING; FEARED DROWNED.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., April 20. Abe Mumford, a young Newfoundland-er here awaiting deportation to Newfoundland, disappeared from his lodgings last night and it is feared he jumped over the wharf and was drowned. A thorough search failed to find any trace of the young man, except a cap alleged to be his property which was found on a wharf. Mumford came about a week ago from Sydney in a destitute condition. He was given lodgings by the Immigration authorities pending deportation.

Print Newspaper While Flying.

Now Comes the "Aerial Mail" Sponsored by Lord Northcliffe.

London.—The latest thing in the field of Journalism is the Aerial Mail, a daily newspaper, which is edited, printed and published from an airplane in flight.

There probably will be editions for Boulogne, Rouen and Amiens, as well as for Paris and London. Airplanes will leave Paris and London, the one leaving Paris to print the Aerial Mail in English and the one from London to print it in French.

A Chemical Eye.

"Give us a light that we can see and that the enemy cannot." Such was the amazing demand of the United States Government, and it has been met by Dr. R. Woods, a Baltimore scientist.

There are as many different invisible light rays as there are visible ones in the spectrum. Ultra-violet rays are just beyond the violet, which are the last rays in the spectrum that can be seen by the human eye.

A new machine invented by Dr. Woods produces invisible rays, and includes a wide angle telescope device, which has been called a "chemical eye" through which these rays become visible, taking on a phosphorescent appearance.

The "chemical eye" will be used by warships, airplanes, and land forces to receive invisible signals transmitted by ultra-violet rays generated by a mercury lamp.

By means of this device a room can be made luminous, with no source of light visible.

At the Bar of the House.

PETITION PRESENTED BY UNEMPLOYED.

At 2 p.m. yesterday a great gathering of the unemployed assembled in the Casino Theatre, preparatory to parading to the House of Assembly, where a set of resolutions were to be presented to the Government to act upon. Before leaving the Hall the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. E. Whitty, addressed the assembly, cautioning all to be calm while the Committee were inside the House getting an answer to their petition. The speaker then called upon Mr. P. F. Jordan to come forward and bear the Union Jack. The meeting then adjourned and ranks were formed and the march began. The line of route was up New Gower Street, Hutchings Street, thence to Cochrane Street, via Water Street. Some members of the Cadets made up a scrap band and played a few tunes during the march. The procession was followed by a large number of teamsters with their horses. Arriving at the Assembly grounds the band played the National Anthem, after which the Committee entered the building and proceeded to the bar of the House. Mr. Whitty addressing the Speaker said that they had come with a set of resolutions, which he wished the Government of His Majesty the King to consider and give answer to. Thus addressed he craved permission to say a few words further. "They had brought with them to the bar of the House the flag that protected them all, and the man that bore it had only one arm, the other was in France. We are here as law-abiding citizens to do our business in a proper manner, and it is not a plot against the Government. We men are only in need of employment. With your permission Mr. Speaker, I will now read the resolutions. The Speaker gave his assent and Mr. Whitty read the following:—

TO THE HONORABLE THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY IN LEGISLATIVE SESSION CONVENED. May it Please Your Honorable House. WHEREAS WE, the Workmen of St. John's held a meeting on April the sixteenth and discussed the unprecedented conditions which at present prevail among the working classes of the city and country;

AND WHEREAS at the said meeting, which was largely attended, and which was non-political, it was the unanimous opinion that these conditions were largely brought about by the Fishery Regulations Act, whereby the foreign markets were closed to the sale of our fish, the staple product of the country, with the result that about four hundred thousand quintals of fish, valued at four or five million dollars are at present in the country unsold, thereby causing coopers, blacksmiths, sailmakers, shipwrights, labourers and others who earn their livelihood through means of the fishing industry to be without employment, to the great hardships of themselves and those dependent upon them.

AND WHEREAS the condition of the country brought about by these Fishery Regulations are such that fish buyers and fish exporters are not inclined to supply for the coming fishery.

AND WHEREAS owing to lack of employment many of our people are forced to leave the country and seek employment elsewhere. AND WHEREAS the fishery is not likely to be properly prosecuted and if so the result will be most disastrous to the country and its people. AND WHEREAS it was also clearly shown that sugar could be purchased, imported and sold in this country for twelve cents per pound and even less, but the people of the country have to pay the sum of twenty-five cents per pound to their great loss, hardship, and detriment and especially so now where there is so little employment and money is so scarce, and further that owing to the high cost of sugar, candy and other factories have to discharge their employees and those kept on are only working at half time.

AND WHEREAS peace has been proclaimed and all other countries have repealed their War Measures Act, and in the opinion of the said meeting it is desirable that our Legislature should also repeal its War Measures Act.

AND WHEREAS at the said meeting it was unanimously resolved "That the Fishery Regulations Act and the War Measures Act should be repealed."

AND IT WAS FURTHER RESOLVED "That the Food Control Board should be abolished." Now therefore your petitioners pray that your Honourable House will accede to the request of the Workmen as expressed in their resolutions passed at said meeting and repeal the said Fishery Regulations and the War Measures Act and will abolish the Food Control Board.

And as in duty bound they will ever pray, etc. Signed on behalf of the Committee representing the said workmen. EDWARD J. WHITTY, Chairman. PATRICK KAVANAGH, Secretary.

Dated at St. John's this 18th day of April one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one. The Sergeant-at-Arms took the resolutions to the Speaker, who asked the Clerk to read them to the House, after which they were handed to Premier Squires, the latter after sending a "hearty welcome" to the delegation, assured them that the matters contained in the petition had been considered and the requests granted.

ed the Clerk to read them to the House, after which they were handed to Premier Squires, the latter after sending a "hearty welcome" to the delegation, assured them that the matters contained in the petition had been considered and the requests granted.

Sir Michael Cashin followed and said it surprised him to hear the Premier express such a hearty welcome, as in reality it was occasion for shame and grief. It was the first time in his 30 years' experience in the Assembly that the Union Jack had to be brought to the bar of the House by a needy people. After Sir Michael had assured the Committee that the Opposition party had pledged themselves to render all the assistance possible, Mr. Whitty asked the Premier some questions about employment and the position of the Government as regards guaranteeing of a loan to be raised by the Municipality. When the replies were received the Committee withdrew and from the Assembly steps informed the waiting multitude that the resolutions had been favorably received and that an Employment Bureau would be opened at the Municipal Council Office, where the unemployed would be registered. Photographs of the Committee were taken by Mr. J. C. Parsons, after which the gathering dispersed. Mr. George Ayre, B.L., who was present at this never-to-be-forgotten scene, kindly gave the bearer of the Union Jack a five dollar bill. Mr. Whitty's effort at the House was highly commented on by all. The Committee as well as all concerned are to be complimented on the manner in which the affair was conducted.

Police Court.

Fined $30.—A man was charged with loose and disorderly conduct on the public street. Accused pleaded that he was under the influence of drink at the time. He was fined $30 or 30 days.

Gets 90 Days.—A woman who was found in company with the defendant in the previous case was charged with a similar offence. She had a defence to make. A doctor's certificate stated that she was suffering from the effects of various dopes. She was sent to the penitentiary for 90 days, where she would be well looked after. His Honor regretted having to send the prisoner there, but as there was no home for unfortunates such as the accused, he had no other course open to him. This only serves to show up more and more, the need for such a home.

A drunk was discharged as it was his first offence.

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding took place last night, at 8 o'clock, at St. Patrick's Church, when Maurice Gillingham and Miss Monica Blackmore were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, by Rev. Dr. Kitchin. The bride looked charming in a suit of cream silk and hat to match. Mr. Leo Gillingham, brother of the groom, acted as best man, while Miss Lizzie Meany performed the duties of bridesmaid. After the wedding service the happy couple proceeded to the groom's home, Queen Hotel, where a reception was held, attended by a large number of friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Broderick from the bride's home, Gambo. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Gillingham a very pleasing voyage over the sea of matrimonial bliss.

Unusual Scene at the House.

Petition Presented by Unemployed --Members Pass Vote of Censure on Daily Star--A Generally Exciting Session.

Amongst the many happenings which were to make yesterday's session of the House of Assembly a noteworthy one, two are outstanding. The first one was the presentation, at the Bar of the House and under the Union Jack, of the resolutions passed at a meeting of unemployed, by a deputation from that meeting, and the second was the scathing indictment, and motion of censure on the Daily Star moved by Sir John Crosbie.

THE PREMIER'S REPLY.
The Resolutions were then handed to the page and presented by him to the Speaker who ordered them to be read by the Clerk of the House.
The Premier then rose and extended a hearty welcome to the representative of the workmen at the Bar of the House and said that he appreciated the interest they were taking in problems which affected the whole community. Those who were sitting in the Chamber were the representatives of the people, their opinion of whom the people had an opportunity of expressing every four years. He was greatly pleased to see constituents of his amongst the deputation. This deputation meant one of working men who recorded the interest they themselves took in the subject of the petition. He was also glad to see a woman amongst the deputation as the problems which affected the men also affected the women. He then dealt with the various parts of the resolution.

THE RESOLUTIONS.
Mr. Whitty addressed the Speaker and said that he would avail of the opportunity to lay on the table of the House resolutions which he would ask the Government of H. M. the King to consider and to deliver upon them (the deputation) the answers regarding these resolutions. Before reading the resolutions, however, he would ask the Speaker to grant him the privilege of just a few minutes.
They had brought with them to-day the flag under which they lived and they had brought also a man who had left one of his arms in France fighting to protect that flag. They were there as law abiding citizens to do their duty in a law abiding manner. They had no ulterior motive, political or otherwise but were there solely for the benefit of the whole island. He then read the resolutions which will be found in another column.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN'S SPEECH.
The Leader of the Opposition then addressed the deputation and said he did not agree with the Premier in welcoming the deputation. Rather did he sympathize with them in having to come there. It was now nearly 30 years since he first took his seat in the House and this was the first time he had seen the Union Jack, "the flag that braved a thousand years, the battle and the breeze," brought to the Bar of the House by a needy people. He was not going into details nor was he going to talk politics. He sympathized with the bearers of the flag in coming and asking for relief. He had been in the House now for three weeks and he could tell the bearers that no relief could come under existing conditions. The reason was that there was nothing left in the Treasury to relieve anyone in the country. He had been Minister of Finance for twelve years and he spoke with authority. When he handed over the reins of Government there were four million dollars in the chest. Since then the present Government had spent 35 millions in revenue and the surplus of 4 millions. The Premier was trying to use camouflage. The only trust the people had was in God. He promised on behalf of the Opposition everything possible would be done that could be done to have the deputation's requests complied with. They were to take that from the Opposition, and further, that that body wanted nothing for themselves and would act in the people's interests only. He said the Premier was not telling the strict truth when he said the War Measures Act was enforced only to let the sealing ships sail earlier this spring. The Hon. Minister had forgotten to tell that the Supreme Court had pronounced against the Fish Regulations and that the Government had taken it on itself to enforce the War Measures Act to turn down the Supreme Court. Why did the Premier try to cover that up. The truth had got to come out. Our people to-day were desolate. Thousands all over the country were starving. Only last Sunday a man died of starvation. The whole country was afflicted. The Government was gone financially and so was the country. Water Street, from where supplies should come, was gone. And as yet the Government had given no inkling of their policy. They were exactly in the same position as when the House opened. No man had yet been found to solve the problem. There was no one in the Government. No man would sooner relieve the crowd at the Bar than M. P. Cashin because he was a workman himself. The man the country looked up to had deserted his seat in the House. Take the seal fishery. Last year's catch was not yet disposed of. Bowring's found a load of seals wouldn't pay this year, but Sir Edgar Bowring said that their ships should go if only to provide employment. Speaking of sugar, Sir Michael said there was a loss, through F.C.B. hanging, of $300,000 on this commodity. Some of this loss was on sugar, which had never come through the Narrows, but had been rotten when it was bought in Canada and had been rehold there. There were still 400,000 quintals of fish in the country or yet unsold, said Sir Michael. Who was going to move the Government? He promised to do his best for the deputation.

THE GOVERNMENT GUARANTEE.
The Premier asked the indulgence of the House to refer to Sir M. P. Cashin's suggestion that he had not told the truth whilst speaking of the War Measures Act.
Sir M. P. Cashin said he would take it back. The Premier might not know any better.
The Premier observed that the only things the War Measures Act was used for were mentioned.
Sir Michael Cashin said the Hon. Minister was only splitting hairs and asked if it were not true that an exporter of fish won a case against the Government in connection with the Fish Regulations and that the Government then enforced the War Measures Act.
The Premier replied that he had heard since he came back from his trip that this had been done. He had discussed only recent months.
Sir Michael Cashin—"Why didn't you look up your secretary's diary?"
Mr. Whitty asked the Premier to answer two questions. First, if $50,000 was available at the present time to be used in providing work and, secondly if the Government had agreed to be the guarantors of $150,000 that was to be borrowed to be used for the relief of unemployment in St. John's.
The Premier said that $50,000 had been allocated for work on the Long Bridge in St. John's West, on which work was to be started shortly, and that the Government had guaranteed the principal and interest on a loan of $150,000 to be made by the Royal Bank of Canada to the Municipal Commission to be used in work in St. John's.
Mr. Whitty then thanked the House for the consideration the deputation had received at its hands. The deputation then took its departure and the business of the House was continued with.

MR. SULLIVAN'S SPEECH.
Mr. Sullivan rose to support the Amendment under discussion. He said it was seen at once that the Fish Regulations were going to have disastrous results. There were several points in the Minister of Marine and Fisheries speech applicable to present conditions. He was surprised that we had not changed our Government 24 times instead of 4 times like France. The Hon. Minister had got off a lot of hot air in his speech. Why didn't he tell the country that was responsible for the low price of fish? The reason the Norwegians understood us was that the British Government had bought their fish to prevent the Germans getting it. Mr. Coaker had said we are suffering because of the regulations and the way they were carried out. He was quite right. Mr. Coaker said most of the exports of fish were sold at a profit. If this were so why is there so much talk of insolvency? Mr. Sullivan also touched briefly on the salt question. Referring back to the fish question he asked what provision was made for those outside of F.P.U. contingencies. The Opposition had brought in an amendment to abolish the regulations. Mr. Coaker said he wouldn't support it. Did that show he was sincere in wanting to get down to work? He must say that the Hon. Minister had been man enough to get up and admit he had made a mistake. But his reply was not the speech one would have looked for from the Hon. Minister. He had made the amends honourable but all his pleadings for mercy would not bring back to the people all the thousands of dollars they had lost. He had given no idea of his policy or how he was going to get us out of the hole we are in. As a politician the Premier was a misfit although he (Mr. Sullivan) had the greatest respect for him in private life. He had allowed Mr. Coaker to dictate to him throughout. Mr. Sullivan went on for some time criticising the actions of the Government in a severe manner and in a way which called forth volumes of applause from the crowded Galleries. The Government was there to give an account of their stewardship, and it was not an account of which they might be proud. He had a telegram in his desk from Florence, stating that a young man had just died of starvation. The Fish Regulations and the Sugar Control were being taken off because the Opposition--backed by the people--had insisted on it. But it was a deathbed repentance. Just as surely as the Opposition saw that these obnoxious regulations were removed so would they make the Government toe the line in the future. Mr. Sullivan referred at length to several other important matters in the course of his speech. It would take a long time before the country would recover from the damage done it by the regulations. He had great pleasure in supporting the amendment.

THE STAR CENSURED.
Sir John Crosbie then asked the indulgence of the House whilst he drew attention to an article which had appeared in the Star of Tuesday last and to the same paper's editorial of Wednesday. Concerning the latter, he said that there would be no necessity for the people to pull down the Star building as he knew that a writ for $5,000 had been issued against it. That would be sufficient. The other article--that in Tuesday's paper--was without exception the most indecent, disgraceful and scurrilous compilation ever penned since the Star was founded--which was saying a lot. It reeked with blasphemy and the worst sectarian appeals. He served notice on the Prime Minister that unless he cleared himself of any complicity in this loathsome screed he would hand him the treatment such shameless conduct deserved. He appealed to his colleagues on the other side of the House to say if this was not a blasphemy and a disgrace to the creed which they in common with the Prime Minister held. He could almost be ashamed of his religion to think that such things were done under his cloak. There might be some excuse for sectarian appeals uttered in the heat of contest. This was written in cold blood. Some unscrupulous degenerate had deliberately penned this attempt to split the country along religious lines. Sir John then read the article which was an offensive parody on Scripture, containing slanderous and sectarian appeals. Things said in the heat of campaign he did not so much mind, but this continuous abuse of the Star long after the fight is over, has only one explanation--that the sole stock-in-trade of the "young tribune" was to make Catholic hate Protestant and Protestant hate Catholic. If he did not call a halt to it the honest men behind him would repudiate him. He appealed for the last time to the Premier to cut out the blasphemy and sectarianism of the Star.

Mr. MacDonnell asked leave to make a few remarks on this matter. He had discovered through yesterday's Advocate that he had a number of political godfathers at Fort Rexton who wished to put him out of public life. He asked the members for Trinity to send that copy of the Star containing the article Sir John had read, to the Fort Rexton Council, and ask them to adjudicate on them.
The Premier replied and said that the whole Chamber agreed with the critical part of Sir John Crosbie's speech. He regretted that the article was published and said he had no connection with it. He thought that personal abuse formed no part of real politics. All our public men must necessarily be discredited when they are subject to personal abuse in the press. He was sure the House represented the article in question and he particularly regretted that his name was played with in it. He was sure Sir John Crosbie's suggestions regarding himself were not meant.

Sir John Crosbie then moved a vote of censure against the Star for publishing the article.
The Premier had pleasure in seconding the resolution. He hoped that this abuse would stop.
Sir Michael Cashin--"I draw the line at this hypocrisy."
The Premier--"My Honorable friend has seen it to interrupt."
Sir Michael Cashin--"I must interrupt, Sir. Your words show you to be a political hypocrite of the worst kind."
The Premier said he had never been discourteous to Sir Michael.
Sir Michael Cashin--"You are too big a coward. You do it through your dirty power."
Mr. Bennett rose to support the Resolution. He did not read the article in question, but he thought the House should commend Sir John Crosbie for bringing the matter up. He strongly condemned the judging of a man, not by his merits, but by his religion. On every occasion he had set his face against that cursed sectarianism. He knew more of this matter than any other man in the House, and he deplored the actions of certain politicians who had never hesitated to use it for their own ends. Let us put our country first and leave religion out of politics. Were we going to disgrace the good name made for us by our soldiers? Let the Premier serve notice on the Government press that they would get no more support if they did not cut out these tactics. Let the Leader of the Opposition do likewise to the Opposition papers if it be necessary. Must the time of the House be taken up in discussing a vile publication? The Opposition would help the Government all they could but not while their families and themselves are subject to vile and scurrilous attacks in the Government press. He hoped that this would be the last occasion the matter would be brought up in the House.

Hon. Minister of Justice thought Sir John Crosbie had done a service in bringing the matter up to-day. The personal abuse that politicians were subject to was enough to drive them out of public life.
The Hon. Minister of Public Works had no use for personal abuse. When the Star or Advocate published a scurrilous article, he did not consider they were representing the Government. He gave the motion his hearty support. The vote of censure was then put and passed unanimously.
Mr. Fox moved the adjournment of the House until 3 p.m. to-day.

Passover.

Passover, the feast of unleavened bread, is to be celebrated this year beginning Friday evening, April 22, and continuing a week, the concluding service of the holiday falling on Friday, April 29.

The festival of Passover, called in Hebrew "Pesach," reaches back to remote antiquity when it was observed by the early Hebrew tribes as an agricultural spring festival. At an early period Pesach was transformed into a festival celebrating the redemption of the Hebrews from Egyptian slavery.

By connecting this festival with the wondrous deliverance of the Hebrews from the Egyptian yoke, new intent was provided for its observance. The festival and the ritual ceremony observed during the seven days in which it is celebrated among Reform Jews, or eight days among the Orthodox, is not only identified with the Exodus of the children of Israel from Egyptian tyranny but further symbolizes joy in the triumph of liberty and freedom over oppression and slavery.

The festival of Pesach was used by the synagogue as a means of consecrating the Jewish home to God, who is regarded as the Redeemer and Protector of Israel. The story of the deliverance of their forefathers from bondage and slavery reminded the Jews of God's providential guidance and gave them confidence in their final redemption from all oppression and woe.

The Passover feast endowed the Jew ever anew with endurance during the dark night of medieval bigotry. This trust in the "Keeper of Israel" who slumbereth not nor sleepe, sustained the Jews during the severest hardships. Upheld by the confident hope that Israel's glorious redemption opened the gateway of liberty to all who are oppressed, Passover came to be regarded as the festival of liberty for all mankind.

During the Passover week the "matzoeh," unleavened bread, is eaten. This food, described as the "bread of affliction," is a grateful reminder of the present generation of the busy Exodus of Israel from the land of oppression.

The feast of Passover is ushered in with a home ceremony, the "Seder," held on the eve of Passover. All members of the family participate in its observance. The ritual of the Seder includes the reading of a richly adorned tale of deliverance, "The Hagadah," wherein the various events leading up to the Exodus and immediately following are told.

The "Seder" celebration radiates an exuberant spirit of thankfulness and joy. The symbolism of the Seder reflects the circumstances of the enslavement of the Children of Israel in Egypt, as well as the hopeful outlook for the final triumph of freedom for all mankind.

Winnickes' Comet - Due Next June.

WILL COME CLOSE TO MOTHER EARTH—REID'S COMET TO KISS THE SUN MAY 10.

Cambridge, Mass., April 18.—Winnickes' comet, a periodical comet which approaches the earth at intervals of five years and eight months, will come "very near" to the earth in June, according to the prediction of Dr. Cometin, the English astronomer. It also has been sighted by Professor F. E. Bernard of the Yerkes' observatory at Williamsbay, Wisconsin. Word to this effect has just been received at the Harvard College observatory.

Reid's comet, which was discovered at Capetown, South Africa, on March 13, and is now steadily increasing in brightness, will make its nearest approach to the sun on May 10, according to word received at Harvard from Dr. Luschner, of the University of California.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A VULGAR HABIT.

I heard a man swear at his children the other day.

I don't mean a man from the slums, the type of person who swears almost as naturally as he speaks.

I mean a man of the middle class, a man who expects to be thought of as a good citizen, a respectable, a reasonably well-bred man.

His children had been annoying him by indulging in a noisy pillow fight. He was evidently in a state of nervous tension, and he suddenly rushed into the room where they were, fell upon them and dragged them from the room, telling them he would break their blankety blank necks if they didn't stop their noise.

Makes One Feel Sickened.

Profanely I wasn't supposed to hear. I don't know. But I couldn't help hearing, and a wave of almost physical sickness swept over me.

It seems to me that blasphemous profanity (I don't mean just an occasional damn, you know), in a man would be one of the hardest things to put up with.

It is such an unmistakable index of an absolutely uncontrolled temper. You notice I don't say uncontrolled temper. There isn't such a thing except in a person of unbalanced mind or otherwise diseased condition. And if there is anything in the world more selfish, or any greater cause of unhappiness than an uncontrolled temper, I don't know what it is.

Didn't Like It From Her.

I don't see how women stand being sworn at. I once heard of a woman who found out after her marriage that her husband had this trick of using profanity in moments of exasperation (it is interesting commentary on whether "uncontrolled" or "uncontrollable" is the word to use in such cases, that he never did it before he was married) and who after one horrible experience was ready for the second. The minute the terrible words were out of his mouth, she drew herself up to her full height and with flashing eyes cursed him back.

He was horrified and abashed. But he never did it again!

I don't know whether I could ever bring myself to say such words even under such conditions. But if I could I think I should be doing it in a good cause and that Saint Peter would mark it down against me—at least, not at his full value.

Profanely is So Under-Bred.

There is something so unspeakably vulgar, too, about profanity. It is not only wicked and selfish, but it is cheap and under-bred. It is one of those things that decent people just don't do, like picking their teeth at the table.

Nothing can more quickly stamp a man as basically under-bred than a lack of control that lets him swear, especially in the presence of women folks, and above all at his children.

Only an abnormal mental state could excuse such a performance—and people in abnormal conditions should see a doctor.

Miracle Motor-Gas Tablets.
15 to 40 PER CENT. SAVE ON YOUR GASOLINE BILL.

Directions for Using.

Each of these tablets is sufficient for charging one gallon of Gasoline. MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS renders the gasoline more combustible—more active—therefore CARBURETOR ADJUSTMENT is unnecessary. While it will show some results without any adjustment, if you want to get the best results and learn what it will really do, make the following adjustments:

For Carburetors having Needle Valve and air adjustment; Screw down needle valves on carburetor until engine slackens speed and power; then give more air until power and speed return and engine runs smoothly.

For Carburetors having one Gasoline adjustment, reduce the flow of the Gasoline from one-half to one-third.

For Carburetors having high and low speed adjustment, turn down both till car runs smoothly.

For Carburetors having stationary pressure plunger, unscrew plunger with solder and rebore nozzle hole about 4 points smaller and regulate by giving more air.

Thus you see, by the use of MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS you feed less gasoline and give more air.

CAUTION—Never interfere with the Carburetor Float or Springs of the Automatic Air Inlet. Simply reduce the flow of Gasoline and use more air.

There is no way of telling just the exact results of MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS in any particular case, as it will depend on the condition of your engine, spark plugs and carburetor; but there is a CERTAINTY about the results if you will continue in its use until it has had time to do the work it was intended to do.

For instance, your engine may be heavily carbonized, and spark plugs foul, in which case you are likely to become discouraged. You will remember that every dose of medicine will give some evidence of its presence, if it is going to do you any good.

The first effect may be sluggishness of the engine, and a tendency to choke when on a heavy pull; also it may spit and sputter.

All you have to do is to CUT DOWN THE GASOLINE FEED at the Carburetor.

After you have done this, go ahead and when it gets to doing the same thing again, cut it down again. That is what you want.

Cut a little at a time, as often as it needs it, until your engine is as clean as when you first bought it. Every time you reduce the feed you are reducing the amount of carbon that is what MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS is for.

Now, on the other hand, you may not notice any effect on the running of the engine, if it is clean to start with and the spark plugs in good condition, you will notice very little change in its operation; but if, after running several miles you will cut your carburetor a little, you will notice a difference.

The fact that it did not make your engine run bad is no sign that it was doing all it should do before. CUT DOWN THE GASOLINE. That is what MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS is for—to reduce the consumption of gas, and at the same time you will experience a stronger running engine. Also, you will find that you can climb hills on high that were impossible before, and at the same time remember you are burning less gasoline. MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS is guaranteed to reduce your gasoline consumption, as well as clean out the engine, but it cannot do this unless you cut a little on the carburetor.

But whatever the seeming results, if you will only follow directions you will get the results claimed and your engine cleaned and running cooler than ever before. MIRACLE MOTOR-GAS is the one preparation that will not heat the engine.

If the Carburetor adjustment gives you any inconvenience, just spin along to the undersigned, where all your troubles cease. The adjustment costs you nothing, $1.25 per package, sufficient for 50 gallons.

THE THINGS THAT MATTER.
When a fellow's getting old An' his tale is mostly told, When he knows life has in store At the best a few years more, An' it's settled in his mind That he ain't got to find Any mine of gold, or claim Special notices from fame, Then he gets in closest touch With the things that matter much.

YOUTH LOOKS EVER FAR AWAY
To some better, other day
That is always 'goin' to be,
When he'll gain the victory;
Then he's always got his eyes
On some glittering future prize
Which he fancies he may win

Tellin' all along the way
He'll do something big some day.

Brilliant Lady Editor.

Winnipeg, April 12.—Miss Mary P. McCallum has been appointed assistant secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, of which the secretary is Norman Lambert. For four years Miss McCallum has been associate editor of the Grain Growers' Guide and before that was on the staff of the Regina Post. She is a native of Manitoba. It is understood that Miss McCallum's appointment will mean that a woman's department corresponding to those of the affiliated provincial organizations will be established in the federal body.

THE OTHER SIDE.
They say that Jinxon beats his wife, when he needs exercise; and if his home is full of strife, the fault with Jinxon lies, this morning sundry neighbors came to my ancestral caves, and said, "It is a beastly shame the way that guy behaves. Remembrance is that guy behaves, though protests have been strong, and so we'll ride him on a rail, if you will go along." I said, "If Jinxon is at fault he on a rail should ride; you've heard one talk—now call a halt and hear the other side. If I should gaily trot along, and thus your course 'ndorse, and then find out we all were wrong, I'd perish of remorse. Perhaps he could a tale relate that would afflict our souls, of bread that has a grindstone's weight, or burned and bricklike rolls. Perhaps the crockery is flung by one he fain would pet; perhaps a tireless nagging tongue his reason has upset. His wife was married once before, by gossips it is said; perchance she proves a frightful bore by bragging of the dead. It may be she is prone to rake his pockets for the man; it may be that she fries a steak, when broiling should be done. Oh, prithce, neighbors, have a care that justice shall prevail, before you take him from his chair, and seat him on a rail!"

Mr. Bennett—To move that a Select Committee of this House be appointed, with power to send for persons, papers and things, and to take evidence on oath to enquire into the proceedings of the Food Control Board, so called, and especially into the purchase of sugar, and contracts for sugar, whereby certain persons, firms and companies were relieved of onerous obligations, and heavy losses which they should have incurred, were imposed instead upon the taxpayers of the Colony.

(a) If a cargo of fish was exported from Port Union in August during the last few months contrary to the act providing for the Standardization of Codfish.

(d) If no such legal opinion was obtained to state on whose authority the conclusion was reached that the Act permitted the export of codfish tallow.

Sir M. P.
