LAWRENCETOWN SCHOOL EXHIBITION

Pupils Make Creditable Exhibit in Industrial and Agricultural Lines.—Wider Interest in Sectional Exhibitions in Adult Life.

The third Annual School Exhibition was held on the Lawrence town school premises on Thursday, Sept. 12th, in the afternoon and evening. Under the superintendence of Principal Banks and his associate teachers, Miss Whitman and Miss Tupper, aided by the pupils and parents, the third Exhibition was a success and gave promise of far greater things in the future. Thirty-five dollars was raised by means of admission fees, the sale of ice cream, home-made candy, etc., and this amount was distributed in prizes to the pupils in the various departments.

The attendance of parents was large in the afternoon and evening. In the evening the Band was in attendance and short addresses were made by Principal Banks, Rev. Mr. Mallick, Rev. Landels, Rev. J. A. Hart, R. J. Messinger and others.

Exhibits in the following departments were exceedingly creditable:

1. Individual school entries.
2. Needlework.
3. Fruit and dairy cooking.

4. Collection of native woods.
5. Collection of native insects.
6. Pressed wild flowers.
7. Garden and house plants.
8. Starched cuffs and collar.
9. Ferns.
10. Drawing.
11. Writing.
12. Vegetables grown from school gardens.
13. Apples.
14. Oats and wheat.
15. Corn and Sunflowers.
16. Poultry.
17. Calves.

District and Provincial Exhibitions will have an increased educational value for the people when the time comes that the District Exhibition will chiefly consist of the collected exhibits of schools of the County or District; and District Exhibitions will in turn draw their exhibits from the various County Exhibitions. May this not be the ideal towards which the people of this country may hope for better results in Exhibition work.

Serious Floods at Montreal

Montreal, Sept. 21.—With intermittent downpours of rain continuing this morning, there were renewed fears of serious floods and reports from all over the countryside told of rising waters, dams yielding and bridges swept away. A state bordering on panic exists in the valley of the Magog River. The dam at the Patoz mill factory has moved about eight inches and fears are entertained that it will go out. Should it do so, the dams lower down are liable to be carried away and the entire valley swept by the turbulent waters. People are already driving their cattle to higher levels and preparing for a hasty exit. There is no immediate prospect for a cessation of the rain. McGill Meteorologist reports declared this morning. Since yesterday morning 1.4 inches of rain have fallen making nearly four inches for the week.

Camp at Aldershot

Over four thousand men are in camp at Aldershot, busily engaged in the annual drill. The best of order prevails. On Sunday many visitors were present at the usual service. The chaplain of the 75th (Lunenberg) Regiment preached. After the service there was the usual march past. It is said that it was considered the best in the history of Aldershot. Beside the usual cavalry and infantry the 78th Regiment in kilts from Picton, attracted much attention. This regiment was particularly honored by having the Honorary Colonel E. M. MacDonald, M. P., of Picton with them who marched with his men. At the close of the morning service the band gave the customary sacred concert at the staff lines. There is considerable activity in local temperance circles and raids were made in town last week and on Saturday. A large quantity of liquor was seized near Aldershot. The latter was a first offence.

Lord Stratheona a Worker Still

"Among the first essentials to success, in my opinion," writes Lord Stratheona in the Strand, "is that of being interested in what you have to do. After that comes diligence, and then system. But unless a young man is interested first of all, in his work, he cannot be expected to succeed in it. As a young man I did not require any special pleasures or diversions, even if I could have indulged myself in them, because the work I was engaged in afforded me plenty of scope for variety.

"To many it might have a lonely and dreary life, practically cut off from the world, but I was always aiming to do my best, and kept on the qui vive waiting for the opportunity which I knew always comes to the young fellow who does his best. I never had any hard and fast routine then, and I never have had since. I was ready for any job that turned up, and this sort of variety of work is quite as good as cricket and football and theatre going, or any of the other forms of recreation, in which young men nowadays indulge. Even to-day, in my ninetieth year, I am ready for work at half-past eight every morning, and my correspondence, official engagements and personal interviews generally keep me employed until late at night.

Founding a Sheep Flock.

Since the new edition of the bulletin "Sheep Husbandry in Canada" was issued a few weeks ago, there has been a constant stream of requests for its flowing into the publications branch at Ottawa. A great many of the applicants state that they are just commencing sheep raising and that they wish to learn how to handle a flock successfully. This bulletin contains a chapter specially prepared for such persons describing how best to establish a flock of commercial sheep. The author, Mr. J. B. Spencer, recommends a flock of fifteen ewes as the minimum for a farm of one hundred acres. Such a flock can be increased with experience, but not beyond twenty-five unless it is desired to make a special business of sheep raising. With the management and care described in the bulletin, an increase through lambs can be expected of from 150 to 175 per cent and it should be the latter.

The early weeks of autumn is stated to be the best time to purchase ewes as then one can select those that have raised good lambs.

Before the present edition of the bulletin is exhausted a still further supply will be ordered so no one need hesitate about ordering a copy which will be sent free to all who apply for it to the Publication Branch, department of agriculture, Ottawa.

S. S. Workers

To the Sunday School Workers of Annapolis Co.:

For the past five years we have been a Banner County paying out apportionment of $160.00 to the N. S. S. School Association. We must have $27.00 before Sept. 30th to still hold our position. Cannot we rally and make up this amount from some source? Any amount will be appreciated. Send at once to

W. C. MACPHERSON,
Secretary.

Premier Borden, having returned from his European trip, has announced that parliament will commence in November, and promises that in a short time announcement will be made of the government's naval policy.

A Question re Nova Scotia Gravensteins

To all interested in the future apple trade of the Annapolis Valley I beg leave to submit a few simple statements.

We grow in this now famed Valley of ours, an apple that for productive quality and flavor in its season, anness, for appearance or colour, for quality and flavor in its season, an apple that cannot be excelled in the world.

Where ever Nova Scotians take, up their abode, whether in England, or the European continent or in the United States of America, or in the Canadian West, you can never satisfy their apple taste no matter how red the colour or how nicely packed in boxes without that delicious flavor of a real Nova Scotian Gravenstein.

This is why orders down to a single barrel come pouring in every fall for No. 1 Nova Scotian Gravensteins. This is particularly true of our own people who have made a home for themselves. Last year we opened up a trade in the west for N. S. Gravensteins. It was the first year, there was no "black spots" but the colour was a little off and the size rather small, especially when compared with Ontario apples, but Ontario apples were scarce last year and though many complaints were made about the size of our No. 1's and perhaps about the keeping qualities last year, on the whole I believe that the "black spots" was very favourably impressed with the new opening.

Early this season Winnipeg buyers were on hand to take contracts for this season's crop and to buy for co-operative companies, and sales of apples have been almost daily coming in. For this year conditions are much more complicated, there are more apples in Ontario, while in the western States and British Columbia there is an immense crop. There are different conditions also in our own valley, the size, colour, and I believe the keeping qualities of our own Gravensteins are superior to last year, BUT there is the "black spot" and in orchards not sprayed, and even in those that were sprayed, the supply of strictly first class No. 1's will be very limited. When we consider that tree-ruin Gravensteins will not be half of last year's crop, the black spot ravages will still further reduce the quantity of No. 1's.

Taking into consideration these conditions and complications, how will our Gravensteins be packed this season for the western trade?

Will we try to make all the No. 1's we possibly can without being fined and put in a little spot forgetting that when these apples are opened up after their long railway journey, this little spot has grown and developed as to open up regularly spotted Gravensteins. In my opinion everything depends upon this year's impressions. We cannot attempt to excuse and explain away as we did last year, we must raise our standard equal to Ontario and British Columbia size, we must rigidly exclude all "spot," we must make good this season or we will about lose that promising trade that we thought had been inaugurated last season.

Or, will we with the superior size and colour of this year, so pack our Gravensteins as to capture this promising market and forever after have a future for our productive and delicious Gravensteins? Which will you do, growers, packers, and buyers? I leave you to answer.

Tours truly,
President of the United Fruit Companies of Nova Scotia, Limited.

A Kentville Correspondent of the Morning Chronicle says:

Work is progressing rapidly on the Government farm where at present seventy-five men are employed getting every thing in readiness for the winter. The large barn is about completed and three houses are in the course of construction. Professor Blair is hoping to take possession of his new residence in November while work is being rushed on the house intended for his foreman and his assistant. A staff of men are busy surveying and laying out roads which will be graded before winter sets in. In about a month everything will be in good working order.

B. & Y. Steamship Notes.

The Eastern Steamship Company has taken possession of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Steamship Line, running between Yarmouth and Boston, and on last week, after the regular directors' meeting, permanent officers for the line newly acquired were elected to succeed the present incumbents. The line, retaining its individuality, will be known as Boston and Yarmouth Steamship Line and is a British Corporation. Since the Eastern took possession the Company's auditor has been over the accounts. On Jan. 1, 1913, the Boston terminal of the Yarmouth line will be moved from the head of Long Wharf to the head of Central wharf which is the next pier south.

Two new steamers, it is announced will be built for service on the Yarmouth route by the spring of 1914 but so far, according to President Austin of the Eastern S. S. Corporation no definite action towards the construction of the vessels has yet been taken, except that they probably will be built by English shipbuilders, in keeping with the fact that the Boston and Yarmouth Steamship Line is an English corporation, and also according to President Austin, because it will be cheaper. This is at variance with a previous report which stated that the steamers would be built in the United States. The addition of the new steamers will increase the Eastern fleet to thirty-three and its force of employees to 3500.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Visitors to Exhibition must be Fed

To the Editor Monitor-Sentinel.
Regarding the feeling that has arisen on the part of our hotel keepers and some of our citizens about the holding of tea-meetings during exhibition week, I must say that as manager of the exhibition, I sincerely regret that any friction has arisen and only want to explain that the executive committee appointed a lodging and entertainment committee in the expectation that the hotels could not by any means provide for the day visitors to the exhibition, and not to interfere with the just rights of the hotels.

R. J. MESSENGER.

The barn of G. L. Jacques of Wilmot was burned on Friday evening the 13. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin. A cow, horse and mower were saved and the remaining contents were destroyed with the building.

SHIPBUILDING AT COQUITLAM

Former Bridgetown Citizen Successful in Forming Large Industrial Organization to Build Sailing Vessels for Panama Canal Trade Between East and West, Reports the Vancouver World.

A $500,000 shipbuilding plant will be built at once on a tract of eight and a half acres of land at the junction of the Pitt and Fraser rivers. This is the first tangible step that has been taken in the vicinity of New Westminster or Vancouver preparatory to the opening of the Panama Canal, and it is believed will give the Fraser river great prestige in future maritime developments in this vicinity. The land is located in the municipality of Coquitlam and has been purchased from the Coquitlam Terminal Company, according to Mr. L. D. Shafner of Bridgetown, Nova Scotia, the organizer and President of the company, who was seen by a British Columbian representative this morning in Vancouver.

The company has been incorporated as the Coquitlam Shipbuilding & Marine Railway Company, Limited, is fully financed, preliminary construction work begins today and work will be rushed as rapidly as possible. The new company has already some large orders and expects to have its hands full from the start. Mr. Shafner is the largest individual stockholder as well as president of the company. The other shareholders are from the Maritime Provinces, Vancouver and Victoria. Mr. Shafner will be in active management of the plant and will take up his residence in Coquitlam. He will leave in the course of the next two or three days for Nova Scotia where he will engage about 50 experienced ship carpenters, many of whom will bring their families with them. Mr. Shafner is well known in both the public and industrial life of Nova Scotia, and had a long experience in shipbuilding, chartering and operating.

"I am convinced," said Mr. Shafner, this morning, "that with the opening of the Panama Canal an extraordinary opportunity will present itself on this coast for a certain kind of shipbuilding and a certain class of the shipping trade. That is what primarily interested me in locating on the Pacific Coast. I have looked over all the locations in the Vancouver Metropolitan district and have found nothing better than the Coquitlam site, which I have finally purchased for the company. My plan is to build principally sailing vessels from 300 to 800 tons with auxiliary power to operate in the lumber trade between British Columbian points and the West Indies through the Panama Canal and also to South American ports. The new company will build these vessels, will sell some, and will operate others itself. We have no doubt that quite a fleet will be built up and operated by ourselves in the near future, that is, as soon as the Panama Canal is ready. In the meantime we will have our hands full taking care of building these ships and attending to other business which will naturally come to us. We have some very substantial orders already in hand.

"The advantage of the sort of merchant vessel we propose to build is that it is of the capacity that can be chartered to take care of the wants of one or two dealers, thus making it in demand in a trade which cannot economically be catered to by large and expensive steamships. I have built and operated vessels of this type for many years on the Atlantic Coast and believe they will be successful on this coast with the completion of the Panama Canal. Our yards will also be equipped with a marine railway slip large enough to haul out any class of ships coming to this port. Later on we will enlarge our organization, increase our capital and install large drydocks at Coquitlam. We will employ, just as soon as we get going, at least 100 high-grade workmen, many of whom will be men of family, and about half of whom we expect to bring from Nova Scotia to Coquitlam.

"My yard superintendent, Mr. George Wagstaff, who with his father has built twenty-three vessels. That is what primarily interested me in locating on the Pacific Coast. BRavery AS A Gift.

Bedouins Do Not Look Upon Cowardice as a Disgrace.

The idea that nothing is so disgraceful as cowardice is one that is not held by all races. Among the Bedouins a sheik may be the leader of his tribe only in peace. When there is war the chances are that he will relinquish his leadership to the fighting sheik.

"I have not the gift of courage," once said an Arab chief to an Englishman, apologizing for not putting himself at the head of a band that he had sent to attack another tribe.

The Englishman learned that these nomads esteem personal bravery as a gift, for the want of which a man is no more to be censured than he is to be blamed for not being handsome.

A Bengali says, without the least sense of shame, "I am timid." Yet he will meet death, even when it approaches in the form of the hangman, with the composure of a martyr.

The following instances illustrate strikingly this double nature of the Bengali.

A native had been sentenced to death for killing his wife. On the morning of the execution the officer who was superintending the hanging entered the condemned man's cell. Instead of finding him crouching in terror he was surprised to be greeted with a low bow and a request.

The man wished for some sweets with which to refresh himself on his way to the gallows. They were ordered, and on their arrival the procession set out.

The doomed man ate the sweets with a relish as he calmly walked along the way of death. When the gallows was reached the crowd which had followed seated themselves on the ground. The man waited a few seconds to finish the last morsel, then mounted the gallows with composure and was swung off.

Strange as it may seem, that man would have been panic stricken at the rush of some wild rumor. His timidity was natural, but his religion and discipline had trained him to accept with calmness the inevitable.—Detroit Free Press.

CRUEL PUNISHMENTS.

The Use of Torture in Legal Processes in Former Times.

The constitution of the United States and the constitutions of the various states in prohibiting cruel and unusual punishments were not fighting an absurdity. The use of torture in legal processes was not, when these instruments were framed, so remote as it is now.

When Sir Thomas Dole came as high marshal to Virginia he crushed a conspiracy by killing the ringleaders by torture. One had a bodkin thrust through his tongue and was chained to a tree until he died. Others were broken on the wheel. It is quaintly stated that "Sir Thomas was a man of good conscience and knowledge in divinity." Dole's date was 1611.

The next notable instance of the use of torture was in 1692, in the Salem witchcraft excitement, when Giles Corey was pressed to death—the "paine dure et forte," the most horrible of deaths.

Executions were in public throughout the east until comparatively recent times. When Quetch, the pirate, and six others were hanged in Boston, Sewall wrote in his diary, "When the scaffold was let to sink there was such a screech of the women that my wife heard it, sitting in our entry next to the orchard," though the gallows was a mile away and the wind unfavorable.

The use of torture to wring the truth from witnesses is said to have been recognized as legal in Austria until well within the last century.

Needless Use of Opiates. It is perhaps a conservative estimate that only 10 per cent of the entire drug consumption in this country is applied to the purpose of blunting incurable pain. Thus 90 per cent of the opiates used are, strictly speaking, unnecessary.

In the innumerable cases that have come under my observation 75 per cent of the habitual users became such without reasonable excuse. Beginning with small occasional doses, they realized within a few weeks that they had lost self control and could not discontinue the use of the drug.—Charles B. Towns in Century.

Two Enough For Her. He was a small boy with a dark, eager face, and he was waiting at the end of the line of eight or ten persons for a chance to make his wants known to the librarian. When his turn came he inquired briefly, "Have you got 'Twenty Thousand Legs Under the Sea'?"

"No," responded the librarian a little snappishly, for she was tired; "I'm thankful to say I've only got two, and they're not under the sea!"—New York Press.

All He Was Fit For. A tramp was passing a martins store, and, seeing the man at the door, he asked in a joking way, "Do you buy rags and bones?"

"You've guessed it first time, old chap," answered the man. "Get on the scales!"—London Telegraph.

Down the Rhine. "Look at this beautiful castle," "Don't bother me. How can I read the guidebook if you keep pestering me to look at rocks and castles?"—Washington Herald.

JUST LIKE GHOSTS

The Norwegian Vardogrs and Their Curious Warnings.

A STUDY IN PSYCHIC FORCE.

Voices and Sounds and Visions That Foretell to Those Properly Attuned to the Phenomenon the Speedy Coming of Relatives or Friends.

In Norway, or at least in certain parts of it, there is a well known phenomenon of which are of frequent occurrence, known locally by various names, but the most of the country continues to call it vardo. My term is understood a certain property, attaching itself to particular persons, by which their arrival at a particular place, most frequently their own home, is announced beforehand by distinctive sounds, such as are usually of naturally made by the person in question.

It is only a limited number of persons to whom this property is attached who "have a vardo," as the phrase is, and the premonitory sounds are not always heard nor by all persons. Very often it is only members of the family or near relatives who notice them at all. Much more rarely the person is seen instead of being heard some time before his or her arrival. It is to be particularly noted that the idea of the vardo is not one which is confined to the uneducated classes. It is equally recognized and its reality admitted by persons of education and culture.

The following interesting account was given by Miss P., a schoolteacher in the town of Drammen:

"It is nothing unusual to find people in Norway who have a vardo—that is to say, that one can hear or see them before they really come in person. Such cases are found in nearly every family, but in some more frequently than in others. In the cases of my father and eldest brother it happens so often that we do not think it in the least remarkable. I remember one particular instance which I shall relate.

"We expected my father home from a long voyage and got word that he had arrived at a little harbor in the fjord, but at the same time there came a message saying that unfortunately he could not get home for several days as the ice pressed him from coming up. We were very much disappointed, because we were just then about to have our family gathering. When we had finished in the evening we talked about how delightful it would have been if father could have come. My mother then took a book and read aloud, while we children worked, when we all heard the kitchen door open and father's well known step come in. He put down a box which he was carrying, and we heard him speak to the servant, who sat in a side room.

"Oh, there is papa!" shouted three or four of us together and rushed out to the kitchen to be the first to welcome him. But there was no one there. We ran in to the servant, but she had heard nothing. We thought that perhaps he had gone out again, but no—there was no one. So distinctly had we all heard him, however, that my youngest sister, who was rather nervous, burst into tears, thinking it must be a warning that something had happened to him. It was the first time she had heard his vardo, but my mother, who was well accustomed to it, said very calmly:

"Go to bed, children. It was only papa's vardo, and now we know for certain that he will be home for tomorrow."

"Sure enough, an hour afterward we had him safely home. Now, since he has got older, and especially since he gave up going to sea, we hear him much more seldom. But in his youth his mother heard him constantly and sometimes even heard him knock on her window and call her by name. Sometimes it woke her by night, and she would rise and go to open the door, but there was no one there the first time. An hour later he would actually come. That happened particularly when he was expected home from sea."

Another lady, Miss R., gave the following account, which shows that the vardo does not merely announce what might naturally be expected, but conveys impressions of facts quite unknown to the person hearing it:

"It was in the year 1901. I was staying in Christiania with my uncle and aunt, who had no children of their own. Uncle and aunt went away for two days and intended to come home between 11 and 12 in the evening. The servant girl had gone home that night, so I was alone in the house. "I was just about to undress when I heard them come. I heard the sound of the street door, heard them come upstairs and open the hall door and talk to each other. It seemed to me that uncle carried something heavy, and I heard them talk about 'being careful.' I wondered what they could have brought home with them. I expected to hear them open the room door and go in, but suddenly all was quiet.

"About ten minutes after I heard exactly the same noises. This time they really came, and they brought a little cousin with them. She was fast asleep, and they had to be careful not to wake her. Next morning I told them what I heard, and uncle said: "That is not so wonderful. You have only heard a vardo." Innumerable other instances which are striking might be cited.—W. A. Craig in Blackwood's.

M. K. PIPER
PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER, 25 1912

A citizen claims he was nearly run down while on his wheel by an automobile driven by a citizen on Queen Street, yesterday, and had a very narrow escape. The auto driver failed to sound his horn, and the motorist is desired to again call attention to the very careless practice that prevails in our town in regard to the sounding of an alarm especially when passing the corner of intersecting streets. The fact that there has never been a serious accident from the disregard of this practice is no assurance in respect to the future. Carelessness is bound, sooner or later, to have its sure and certain consequences. The driver of a machine, no matter how expert in practice, can never safely ignore the necessity of caution in the guidance of one of these powerful machines either for his own safety or the security of the public.

So far as the MONITOR is aware there is no certificate required for the privilege of driving an automobile in Bridgetown. Negligence in this matter will ultimately result in a serious disaster. An examination of the fitness of an individual to run one of these machines is just as imperative as that an engine driver on a locomotive should have his credentials required of him, and any carelessness or disregard of speed rules and alarms should be treated like any other infraction of the laws.

N. S. Horticultural Exhibition

Friday afternoon, Oct. 4th, will be School Children's day.

All school children under fifteen years will be admitted for the afternoon at 10 cents each. Trustees will grant a half-holiday.

Prof. Blair will give a demonstration in box packing during Exhibition week.

Belleisle

Belleisle, Sept. 24th.—Mr. and Mrs. William Amherst, of Granville Ferry, and Miss Olive Robblee of Karadale, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Archie P. Troop.

Mr. Fred Moxie of Wakefield, Mass., is visiting relatives here.

Mr. Kenneth Gesner, who has been a Wolfville during the summer, is at home again.

Miss Maude Coleman, who for the past few weeks has been visiting friends in Halifax, has returned home.

Mrs. Batekman, of Granville Ferry, made a week-end visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Bent.

A most painful accident, attended by fatal results, occurred on the H. & S. W. Railway on Tuesday of last week, in which Victor Cook, a section foreman, lost his life. Your reporter could not learn the details. They started with the injured man immediately after the accident for Halifax, Dr. Smith of Granville Ferry, accompanying him, but he died on reaching Chester. Mr. Cook was a native of Barton, Digby Co. He was a man of most sterling qualities and by his kind and courteous manner he had made a host of friends along the line, who learned of his untimely death with feelings of deep emotion. The accident took place about one mile above Granville Ferry.

sels for me in the East, is already here.

"I find that the lumbermen of this coast are greatly pleased to know that vessels of this type and size that we propose to build are to be provided. One big British Columbia lumber company has taken a large block of stock in the company and others have stated that they will be prepared to charter ships from us as soon as we have them ready.

"The Coquitlam location is admirable as we have a fine fresh water harbor there, easy of access to the big Pacific Coast terminal yards of the C. P. R. at Coquitlam, and also to the lumber mills at Westminster, Vancouver and the coast generally via the Fraser River. The shipbuilding yard will undoubtedly bring some attendant industries to Coquitlam, and we know of several industries that are figuring now on locating there. The harbor facilities, the large terminals of the C. P. R., the cheap and level land, and the liberal attitude toward industries, the cheap homes for workmen and other facts which I do not need to mention, make Coquitlam the ideal location for such a plant as ours as well as for other industries.

"Incidentally I might say that we will establish a saw mill in connection with the shipbuilding plant and will build the same immediately."

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Charles Peters, and family, desire through the Monitor to extend their sincere thanks to the many friends who came to her assistance in her time of sickness and death and all those who so kindly contributed to the beautiful floral offerings, also the music and singing, so beautifully rendered by the Hampton choir at the burial of her late husband, Charles Peters.

ASK FOR MINARD'S AND TAKE NO OTHER.

DIDN'T NEED A TRUNK.

He Was a Master of the Art of Traveling Without Baggage.

Sir Charles Napier was once delightfully pictured in Punch as setting out for Scinde with "his soap" and very little besides. De Latocnyne, a Breton emigre of 1796, who traveled in Ireland, chiefly on foot and invariably turned up at the houses of his friends with almost no visible baggage, carried nearly as simple an outfit. Yet in some mysterious way he was always able to appear at dinner in full dress. In his book "Promenade en Irlande" De Latocnyne tells how he accomplished the feat:

"I had my hair powder in a bag made of a lady's glove. My razor, needles, thread, scissors and a comb all went into a pair of dancing pumps. In addition, I carried two pairs of silk stockings, bunches of such fine stuff that they would fold up as small as my fist, three cravats, two very fine shirts, three pocket handkerchiefs and a dress coat with six pockets.

"Three of these pockets I kept for letters, portfolio, and so forth; in the others, whenever I was going to call at a decent house, I stowed away my belongings, which were packed some in the pumps, the rest in one of the pairs of stockings.

"At other times," he concludes, with more than French vivacity, "I tied the three pumps in a handkerchief and carried them at the end of my walking stick, on which I had managed to fix an umbrella."

Thus equipped he stayed at Lord Kenmare's for a week, at Hazelwood and at Florence Court for the same length of time, at Lord Altamont's and Ballynahinch for longer still, no doubt to the astonishment of housemaids as well as of hosts. But he was never disturbed by his lack of luggage and steadily refused all proffered loans of clothing.

By the time De Latocnyne got to Sligo the weather had broken, and he was obliged to add a spencer to his wardrobe.

MAGIC FIRE WRITING.

How to Perform an Amusing and Mystifying Trick.

This recipe for "magic fire writing" is given by the Pathfinder: Dissolve saltpeter in water until the water will take up no more. Then take the "wrong" end of a penholder and, dipping it in the solution, draw in thick strokes some name or design on a piece of light paper, taking care not to break the continuity of the writing anywhere—that is, all words must be joined. When dry the writing will be invisible. Fold over or roll up half an inch of each end of such a paper after it has been allowed to get dry and stand it on something that will not burn. Light a match, then blow it out and apply the glowing tip to some spot touched by the design (you can make an ink mark before applying the saltpeter to serve as a guide), and a tiny glowworm of fire will travel all along the lines traced and end by leaving the device burned out of the paper, no other part of it being destroyed.

By the use of a little ingenuity all sorts of amusing designs for this purpose can be got up. For example, you can draw in pencil or ink on the paper a picture of one boy throwing a baseball to another and also trace an invisible curved line in the saltpeter from the hand of the thrower to that of the catcher. Then when you touch fire to the thrower's hand the fire will follow the saltpeter line right to the other's hand.

Those who see the thing and are not in the secret will be much mystified as to why the fire follows this line and does not burn the rest of the paper. Saltpeter enters into gunpowder, and wherever it has touched the paper it makes it burn.

Chemical Changes.

By taking some lime-water and blowing one's breath into it a fine white powder will be formed in the water. By adding some common salt to a solution of nitrate of silver a thick white powder is produced which, if placed in the sunlight, will turn brown. Pour the juice of a red cabbage into a test tube or thin glass bottle, drop in very gradually a solution of washing soda, shaking the bottle every time you put the washing soda in, and you will see the red solution gradually turning blue. Go on adding the soda solution, and the blue color will give way to green.

Their Reward.

Dr. Strachan, bishop of Toronto, was waited upon by two churchwardens, who complained that their clergyman wearied his congregation by repeating the same sermon. He had preached it twelve times. The bishop asked for the text. Neither of the churchwardens could remember. "Go back," said the bishop sternly, "and ask your clergyman to preach the sermon once more and then come back and tell me the text."

Quick Action.

"Rube, how cold did you ever see it?" He said, "Well, sir, one time when I was living down in Pickaway county, in box killing time, we had a kettle of boiling water setting on the stove, and we took it out in the yard, and it froze so doggone quick the ice was hot."—National Monthly.

Rural Schools

In March Canadian Home Journal there is a very capable and just attack, by Dr. Annie Backus, on the condition of nearly all rural school-houses. This is the second of a series now appearing in the Journal that should be read by all parents sending their children to the country schools.

In going about the country the one thing which most strikes the traveller is the uniform ugliness of the rural school buildings, and the sad bare disorder of the grounds. This, with the two hideous little buildings so prominent in the background, and quite unscrupled from every point of view, makes one wonder what ideals of beauty and modesty can be developed in such surroundings.

The earliest impressions of the child—what it sees in its own home is of great importance in after-life,—and next to the home the impressions the child receives in school and school surroundings are the factors which influence mind and body in the years to come.

If we owe any education to our children at all, it should be a practical one, and to learn how to beautify and care for the school grounds is to learn how to make beautiful and care for that part of the great earth which falls to the lot of anyone so taught, and which she or he calls home. The grounds about our school-houses should be a constant object lesson in order and beauty, and the interior of our school-house furnished with some thought of the welfare and comfort for children who must sit there so many hours in the day.

Go into any well-regulated dairy stable in the province and you will find the stalls graded to the cows; but in the rural school-houses tall and short children are expected to accommodate their bodies to the seats and desks, too often at a sacrifice of comfort and health.

The ordinary schoolroom is more like an untidy barn than anything else. In some places you will see the pail for drinking water in the corner, and the tin cup for all. Even if there were no danger of contagion from this, it would be a bad example. No truly clean person cares to drink of water that has been standing in a room where the atmosphere is contaminated with the exhalations from many lungs, and from the dust floating about from blackboard and books.

All schoolhouses should have proper lavatory equipments, and every child taught to be particular in habits of cleanliness in order that those children coming from well-kept homes should not have their sensibilities blunted by carelessness, and more particularly in order that children coming from ill-regulated homes be taught that cleanliness is very near akin to godliness.

A few hundred dollars added to the appointments in the schoolhouse would mean only a trifle in taxation, but it would mean a value beyond price to the health and moral influence of the children. If the schoolrooms were made more pleasant and comfortable, and used by the people of the section for entertainments in the evenings, debates, dialogues, lectures and kindred subjects, it might awaken a pride and care for the appearance of the room.

MONEY NO ONE CLAIMS.

British Banks Have Millions That Owners Never Call For.

Twenty millions of unclaimed money are in the coffers of British banks—derelict gold which nobody owns and which the banks are naturally pleased to take care of—gold more than sufficient to pave every square foot of Cheapside with sovereigns.

Some years ago, when Mr. Goschen's conversion scheme was in the air, it was found that the Bank of England alone had nearly 11,000 of these dormant accounts. Forty of them had more than $30,000 apiece to their credit. One balance was written in six figures—$907,900. The total at the bottom of the long list was $30,248,875. This amount was very largely made up of unclaimed dividends on government stock.

For seven years the bankers keep the accounts open, prepared to pay over the balance to any who can prove title to it. This term expired, they regard the forgotten gold as their own. Five million dollars of such ownerless money went to build London's splendid law courts. The city, it is said, has more than one magnificent bank building reared from the same handy material. The Bank of England, one learns, provides pensions for clerks' widows out of such a fund.

But, whatever becomes of it, these millions of "mystery gold" are always growing, fed by man's carelessness or forgetting, their secrets hidden away in thousands of musty bank ledgers.—London Tit-Bits.

A BONE IN THE THROAT.

Lemon Juice, It is Said, Will Quickly Melt It Away.

Sitting at a planked shad dinner, a laughing guest drew a bone into his throat, and he began to strangle. Some one suggested that the sufferer swallow a fragment of dry bread.

"Oh, no!" exclaimed one man. "Don't give him bread. It might catch the bone, and it might not. Give him something that is sure to give relief." Beckoning to a waiter, he said, "Bring me a lemon, cut in two." And it was brought without delay. Taking one section, he offered it to the choking guest and told him to suck the juice and to swallow it slowly. Directions were faithfully followed, and in about a quarter of a minute the afflicted one placed the half lemon on his plate, looked into the anxious faces around the table and smiled.

"Well, Joe," said one, "how about it?" "It's gone," was the reply. "The bone has slipped down." "Not exactly that," said the man who suggested it. "The bone slipped down, all right, but it was melted first by the citric acid. I never knew it to fall to dissolve a fishbone. You can test the power of lemon juice by dropping some on the fishbones you may have lying on your plate."

Several dinners made the experiment. In each case the acid reduced the bone to liquid gelatin.—New York Press.

They Tell a Different Story.

There are peculiarities of our English language which no other language exhibits. Did you ever notice how many English words are formed by simply dropping the first letters—for example, wheat, heat, eat, at; sham, ham, am; wheel, heel, eel; whale, hale, ale, and scores of others? Again, we have in our mother tongue two words which joined together, make a distinct word of an entirely different meaning, just as a single word disjoined does. Take the words "since" and "rely" or the separate word "sincerely." To illustrate: Your letter came in words that tempt me dearly. You wrote them, sweet, most truly and sincerely. For praise like that heroes might gladly die. But on another's love you since rely.

Origin of "Chauffeur."

There were chauffeurs long before automobiles. History tells us that about the year 1705 men strangely accoutered, their faces covered with soot and their eyes carefully disguised, entered by night farms and lonely habitations and committed all sorts of depredations. They carried their victims, dragged them before a great fire, where they burned the soles of their feet and demanded information as to the whereabouts of their money and jewels; hence they were called "chauffeurs," a name which frightened so much our good grandmothers.—Paris Journal.

A la Crimzon Gulch.

"These great nations," remarked Plute Pte as he thoughtfully folded his newspaper, "have pretty much the same idea that we have here in Crimzon Gulch." "In what respect?" "They sort of take it for granted that the one that kin shoot quickest, straightest and oftenest is sort of naturally entitled to be considered boss."—Washington Star.

Phonograph Records.

"The family in the flat next to ours have a phonograph." "Have they any good records?" "Yes; they have one record for six hours continuously playing and another of six hours and twenty minutes almost continuous."—Kansas City Journal.

"YOU'LL SUFFER ALL YOUR LIFE"

That's what the Doctor told him

"Fruit-a-lives Cured Him"

CHESTERTON, ONT., Jan. 25th 1911 "For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and that I would be a sufferer for the rest of my life."

I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but none of them suited my case.

Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-lives," I have been using this fruit medicine steadily all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured.

I give "Fruit-a-lives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible. I am now seventy-six years old, and in first class health.

GEO. W. BARKLEY. In all the world, there is no other remedy that has cured so many cases of so-called "incurable" kidney disease, as "Fruit-a-lives."

This famous fruit medicine acts directly on the kidneys—helping and strengthening them—and ridding the system of the waste matter that poisons the blood. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

KING OF FRUITS.

To Eat a Durian You Must First Overcome Your Sense of Smell.

The orangut furnishes in the durian one of the strangest of fruits. It has been called "the king of fruits, as the orange is the queen," but there are many who entertain no liking for it.

There is this difficulty about the durian. Its consumption presents the same obstacle to enjoyment as a ripe cheese. To eat a durian one must first overcome one's sense of smell. The odor of the durian suggests limburger cheese, onion sauce, brown sherry and other incongruities. It has also been compared to the smell of a limekiln in full operation.

The Malays are excessively fond of the fruit, and those Europeans whose sense of smell is not overdelicate contend that the durian is like rich but very custard flavored with almonds.

A British officer at Penang once dined a number of parliament about to leave for home. Among other delicacies an overripe durian was placed upon the table. The guest, on being pressed to partake of it, declined, with this remark:

"It may have been very good last season, but if you will excuse me I would rather not venture on it now."

The durian is as large as a man's head and is covered with sharp spines. It grows upon a large tree, somewhat similar to the walnut. When ripe it falls, and if it should strike any one the chances are that it would inflict damage. The natives, knowing the danger of a blow from a falling durian, stretch nets under the trees in populous places so that the fruit may be caught as it falls.—New York Sun.

Flagrant.

A senator was condemning a piece of political deception. "The thing was as flagrant," he said, "as the railway case. Two men, one of them very short, were passing through a station toward the train gates, when the bigger one was heard to say:

"I've took a half ticket for ye, George. Yer so little ye'll pass all right."

"But," protested George, "how about my beard?" And he twiddled his chin beard nervously.

"Oh," rejoined the other, "tell 'em it's a mole."—Washington Star.

Bildad's Car.

"Well, Bildad," said Jimponberry, "I suppose, now that you are living out in the country, you have a car."

"Yes," said Bildad. "That is, my neighbors and I have one together." "Really?" said Jimponberry. "Co-operative arrangement, eh? Not a bad idea. What make is it?" "Oh, just plain trolley."—Judge.

A Mere Man's Opinion.

"Do you mean to tell me," demanded Mrs. Whackhurst, "that it is a bad thing for a woman to have an aim in life?" "I do," said Whackhurst, "especially if she's going to throw bricks. She might hit something."—Harper's.

SMOKE FOR A LIVING.

French Tobacco Testers and Their Peculiar Line of Work.

In the French ministry of finance there is a class of officials whose activity is little known to the outer world. These men are the official tobacco testers, and they pass judgment on every kind of tobacco manufactured in France.

They consist of a chairman and five assistants, and from morning to evening they have nothing to do but smoke cigars, cigarettes and pipes, in order to arrive at an estimate of the different kinds of tobacco submitted to them.

It is not only the products of home industry that come before them for judgment, but the cigars and cigarettes that are sold in France have also to make their appeal to the decision of their palate, and the pleasantest part of the day's work comes when it falls to their lot to test the high price Havana cigars sold by the state.

The officials who undertake this difficult and responsible duty are inspectors of tobacco manufacturers who have passed a certain number of years in the state's service and have given proof of their capability for this peculiar kind of work. Their by no means light duty consists in smoking from 9 in the morning to 5 in the evening, and every often it is by no means the best kinds of tobacco with which they have to deal. The injurious influence of this tobacco debauch, which produces great dryness of the mouth and throat and might easily lead to nicotine poisoning, they endeavor to combat by drinking great quantities of black coffee, which acts as an antidote to the effects of the nicotine imbued. And it is only black coffee that renders it possible for them to distinguish between and estimate the value of the various kinds of strong tobacco.

The danger run by these valiant officials can best be gauged by remembering the highly poisonous character of nicotine as brought out especially by the experience of a Croatian in the Crimean war, who, on finding a snake in a wall, knocked the bowl off his chin-bowl and plunged the end into its mouth, with the result that it fell dead at his feet as stiff as a piece of iron.—Hamburger Nachrichten.

Everything Out.

A "cub" reporter was sent out by his city editor to cover a fire in the Back Bay district. Before he could reach the house the fire had been extinguished and the fire department gone. Nothing daunted, the reporter rang the bell of the house and soon was confronted by a servant girl.

"I wish to see Mr. Robinson," said the reporter, politely tipping his hat.

"He's out," tersely answered the servant.

"Is his wife at home?" asked the reporter.

"No; she's out," said the girl.

"Well," came back the reporter, "I understand you have had a fire here."

"Oh, that's out, too," and the reporter went slithering away as the door slammed in his face.—Boston Traveler.

A Suggestion.

The retailer stopped one of his oldest customers on the street. "I want to speak to you," he began. "Go ahead, and see if I care."

"You've got to care. This bill of yours has been running a long time now."

"Poor thing! How can you be so cruel as to let it run a long time?" "Well, what are you going to do with it?"

"I'm going to make you a suggestion. If that bill has been running for as long as you say it has give it a rest. Let it stand for a month or two."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Wideawake Prisoner.

"The jury has unanimously found you guilty, prisoner at the bar," said the judge dryly, "but for some reason unknown to me they have recommended you to the mercy of the court. In view of your crime you must be hanged, but in view of that recommendation to mercy you may choose the method of hanging."

"A right, you're honor," replied the prisoner. "If that's the case I guess I'll be hanged in effigy."—Harper's.

Allayed His Fever.

Old Bachelor—Whatcher looking so blue about, old man? De Chapple—Reason enough. Last night I dramatically told Doc De Rocks that I was consumed with love for his daughter, and the old chump prescribed quinine for a fever and said he'd send the bill later.—Boston Record.

Fills the Bill.

"A sentence with the word exposure," the teacher demanded, and a sturdily boy put up his hand.

"If you fellows don't quit your grafting I'll exposure," he quoted grandiloquently from the noted reform lecturer he had heard.—New York Times.
