Optimism Bears Down Opposition to Taft Deal

Some of Them May Have to Witness States to U. S. House Vote Against Reciprocity in Order to "Save Their Faces" With Their Farmer Constituents - Root Amendment Makes Trouble,

WASHINGTON, May 27 .- (Special.)-WASHINGTON, May 27.—(Special.)—
The plot to defeat reciprocity developed another phase to-day. The Democrats are to be used to encompass the downfall of the bill.

A plan is bing framed by the opponents of the measure to co-operate with those Democrats who are insisting upon the farmer's free list being at-

On the other hand, there is a group of Republicans who will not vote for reciprocity if the farmer's free list is attached to it. These votes also needed to insure the success of

The pian of the opposition is to cothe free list made a part of recipro-city and then leave it to the protec-tionist Republicans to defeat the bill

The only way out is for the Democrats, who want to attack the free list, to realize that reciprocity can be passed with a measure of tariff reform, f they will consent to consider it apart from the farmer's list; whereas, both reciprocity and the free list will be defeated at this session if they fall in the plot that is being arranged by the enemies of the pact. It is the choice that is offered of half a loaf or no bread at all. .In the meantime, the Root amendment, which will enable the paper trust to keep up the price of paper, a direct tax upon everyone who reads newspapers, magazines, book or handbill, is making progress.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts is now understood to have enrolled under the banner of Root and will vote for the amendment, Senator Lodge is one of those "friends" of reciprocity upon whom President Taft is depending to get his favorite measure thru. It will be recalled that made speeches for reciprocity in the campaign which resulted a few months ago in his re-election by a very narrow margin. Like several other of the president's "friends," he is for the principle of reciprocity, but against this particular reciprocity

Most of the Republican Progressives favor the principle, but are against each favor a brand of reciprocity that nobody cares for, so that the defeat of the pending bill will destroy the last hope of effecting any reciprocal with the great nation to the KINGSTON, May 27 .- (Special.)-Dr E. Ryan, chairman of the railway hind these bonds, and this common committee of the board trade, has just received plans for the proposed new Stanley. passenger station for the Grand Trunk and also the new freight station. The plans call for the removal of the present city station and freight sheds. The station will be built on the present site, one storey high and in the prevailing style of modern railway stations. The new freight station will be erected on the old hay market.

H. Moore and H. G. Frick lost $1,000. 000 to Andrew Carnegie in 1897, thru the forfeiture of an option on the Carnegie Steel Works, and the manner in which I Pierpont Morgan, Chas. M. General Diaz and his party, consisting of Madame Diaz, Col. Porfirio Diaz and the latter's family, left Mexico City on a special train, composed of three sections.

The first section carried the Eleventh Regiment of Infantry. The presidential party was in the second section, which was followed closely by the third, also carrying troops

When approaching Tepeyahualo they encountred a body of some 700 rebels. The leading section of the train pulled up and the federal troops dismounted. After a sharp engagement the federals succeeded in defeating the insurgents, who retired, leaving on the field 30 dead, their standards and a box containing 1000 pesos. The federal troops, which were 300 strong, registered three men wounded,

NEW YORK, May 27 .-- (Special.)-Following down the list of senators who have arrayed themselves openly against the pact, it is possible in each instance to make clear to the public the underlying basis of their determined opposition.

Selecting five senators at random, there are Smoot of Utah, Gronna of North Dakota, Smith of Maryland, Warring of Wyoming, and Heyburn of Idaho. #### One More Tyrant Gone, But There Are Others mm

As a tyrant exterminator the United States takes high rank. It has been instrumental in driving several tyrants out of Central America; it put the Spanish tyrant out of Cuba, and it has now put Diaz-one of the greatest tyrants-out of Mexico.

But when it comes to the United States, the country is absolutely powerless in dealing with the home-bred article. There are more tyrants in the United States than there are in any other country in the world. They tyrannize the public in regard to railways, in regard to the trust funds that are represented by the savings of the nation, in the creation of great trusts, in putting up the prices of all the necessaries of life and in a thousand other ways they have bred more tyrants to the square acre than any other country in the world. fight to-day of many of the monthly magazines, of President Taft, of Roosevelt in the past, of La Follette in the senate and all the insurgents, has been against these home-bred tyrants and the fight will go on in this way for a long while.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not look out, the United States will undertake to chase him out of Canada—and they have already got him into the game—if they can close up the deal. The first time he makes a missmove the press there will call for his extermination

EULOGIZED AS BENEFACTOR, DIAZ, THE DEPOSED RULER, EXPLOITED HIS COUNTRY

Fulsome Adulation of the Dictator of Mexico the Work of Magazine Writers Touring as State Guests-Thousands of Peasants Dispossessed of Their Lands by Tyrant-Madero His Nemesis.

Porfirio Diaz, ex-president of Mexico, made many romantic escapes in the days of the French occupation, and before he entered upon his long period of rule. For years he has been lauded as the great benefactor of his nation. Much ink has been spilt in describing his restor-

ation of peace and order, his stern enforcement of the law, his encouragement of foreign capital for the purpose of developing the country's resources and public services, and the vast prosperity that attended his administration. Underneath this fulsome adulation, the work mainly of pressmen and magazine writers touring as state guests, and passed on from one official to another, there lay a small substratum of fact, and a terrible amount of tyranny and oppression. Gradually the truth has come to light, and it is now known that during the later period of his practical autocracy he has been occupying a position, like that, in John Hay's picturesque phrase, of "a nigger, squat on the safety valve and the furnace crammed with resin and pine."

MEXICO EXPLOITED.

Nominally under the government of Diaz, Mexico has been really exploited by a group of about twenty wealthy men, who held the banks, manipulated the finances, controlled the avenues of trade, the franchises and concessions, the issue of national, state and municipal loans, the appointment of members, governors, judges and office-holders, and the collection and disposal of the national revenue. By most iniquitous land law, thousands and thousands of peasants and small farmers were dispossessed of lands held for generations. Out of the spoil, Diaz's friends and concessionaries built up huge estates, in some cases totalling 15,-000,000 acres. The incessant demand of foreign companies that had acquired rubber, tobacco and other plantations for cheap labor, and the necessity of providing for the starving Mexican and Indian peasantry, led directly to the introduction of a system of peonage that outdid in horror the worst features of Southern States' slavery. No wonder that the capitalists and stockholders who drew rich profits from the misery of the peons, who died like flies, hailed Diaz as an administrator, recognizing the sacred claims of wealth.

FRANCISCO MADERO.

Revolt was inevitable, and with it came the man who was to prove the Nemesis of Diaz. Few had heard of Francisco Madero until he emerged into view thru his arrest last year for presuming to contest the presidency with the dictator. Forced by Diaz to fly time and again for his life, he established his regolutionary government, and has since not only maintained its existence, but continually extended the area of its power. Madero has been described as a man in the prime of life, an idealist disliking the turbulence of war, cold and undemonstrative, and devoted to the true interests of his fellow countrymen. By his tact and patience, Madero managed to hold the revolutionaries together by the lightness and firmness of his rule, and the intensity of his patriotism. Madero has been the fixed point of the rebellion, conducting it in all its details, and yet finding time to pursue his literary studies. In his domestic life he is stated to maintain a standard far above that generally prevailing in Mexico, and he has, and follows, a thoroly Americanized idea of wifehood that has evoked animadversion from old-fashioned Mexicans. His resignation of the position of temporary president in favor of Senor de la Barra, the provisional successor of Diaz as chief executive, is quite in keeping with the whole tenor of his conduct during the course of the successful revolution.

Two Hundred Buildings Go Up in Smoke at Coney Island, New York, and Sixty Animals Are Burned — The Damage is Estimated at Three Million Dollars.

NEW YORK, May 27 .- Coney Island the playground ow New York, suffered early to-day. Dreamland, the largest of the amusement parks, was wiped out, and four blocks adjoining, covered with booths, restaurants, hotels, various types, were destroyed

The fire broke out at 2 o'clock in the morning and was not under control until three hours and a half later. The

The children were taken out in their tittle glass houses and rushed out of danger taking out the animals, a costly colman-eaters. The trainers lost no time. While policemen with drawn revolvers stood at the entrance, to guard the crowd in the streets against any beasts that might escape; the attendants drove their charges from the cages. down the runways into the emergency vans, which are always ready. All went well until the transfer was nearly concluded. Then the biggest of the lions, in a panic, broke from his bonds, smashed his way thru the barriers and leaped into the street, already packed by a throng of specta- a tors. He dived straight into the middle of the throng. Consternation selsed the multitude and the crowd pushed pell-mell in all directions, in panic.

A mounted policeman came at the roughing heast in the centre of the wide avenue, with drawn revolver. Twice he shot and twice missed, the lion backing away from the glare and noise of the explosions. Then six more mounted policemen lined up in front of the growd and opened a fusilade. As soon as the crowd was assured that the lion was no more, they rushed in and literally tore the carcase to-bits for souvenirs. The first man on the scene took the tasseled tail the next three divided the long mane, and 50 men fought among themselves for the onor of possessing one of his teeth.

Considering the extent and rapid spread of the blaze, it was little short f miraculous that none of the summer inhabitants of the burned district lost their lives. The only casualties reported by the police were three persons overcome by smoke, one a fireman and he other two nurses in the Incubator Hospital. All three were revived, with-

Had the fire started two hours earlier when the crowd of sightseers thronged the concessions, the disaster would have been an appalling one Dreamland closed up shortly after midnight and the streets were nearly deserted at 2 o'clock. About 200 employes were still in Dreamland, but all escaped without difficulty.

The cause of the fire will probably never be definitely determined. The firemen had no information, except hat the first blaze was in the "Hell Gate" Scenic Railway, where workmen with tar pails were smearing cause-ways to protect the scaffolding against weather. It is supposed of course that the fire somehow had its origin

A new $250,000 scenic railway, built Chicago investors, which was to have been opened to-morrow, was among the structures which were de- us stroyed.

Coney Island has been swept more or less by fires ever since it became a great popular amusement place. The ost disastrous blaze before to-day's onflagration was one which started in the "Cave of the Winds" in Steeplechase Park on the morning of July 28, 1907. It swept some 35 acres clean and caused a loss of $1,500,000.

'Newsy" Lalonde Dead? Montreal Hears Rumor

MONTREAL, May 27.—Is "Newsy" Lalonde dead? Lacrosse players and officials round the Maisonneuve club house to-day are talking of a rumot which has come out of the west that the erstwhile National player has succumbed to injuries received in last Wednesday's game in the B.C.L.A. series at New Westminster, when Lalonde and "Bones" Allen, formerly of Capitals, were both seriously injured. Enquiry at Cornwall (Lalonde's home) fails to bring any confirmation of the OTTAWA, May 27.-A letter from he Toronto Equal Suffrage Association has been received by Sir Alan Ayles worth, minister of justice, in regard to the sentence of death on the Italian woman, Angeline Napolitano.

It will be remembered that this woman murdered her husband in North Bay on account of particularly brutal treatment. The evidence was that the husband urged the wife into immorality. The letter urges commutation of the sentence.

It seems, sed Pa, that sum of our grown up comeedians has a new joak from what I read in this paper. The paper says that these grown up comeedians wait till thay hear a hurdy gurdy playing on the street, then they take pennies & heat them on the stove, in a skillet, until the pennies are red hot. & then thay throw them down on the street for the organ grinders & the kids to pick up. It is a vary cheep joak, I know, sed Pa, but thay are doing it jest the saim, so if you are anyware near a hurdy gurdy doant pick up a coin that falls out of a window.

I betweer picked up any coins, I sed to Pa. I mite have picked up one if I had seen it, but I nevver seen any.

Well, sed Pa, I am jest telling you, thats all. A friend of mine naimed Mister Kiley was telling me the other day that his littel boy Bobbie picked up a penny to give it to the hurdy gurdy man, & caim hoam with his thum & finger all blistered. PRESERVE PRAYER BOOK

Says Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C., When Laying Cornerstone at Wycliffe.

In most ideal weather, before a brillient assemblage, representing the clergy and laity of the Anglican Church of Toronto, including the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, Assistant Bishop Reeves, Venerable Archdeacon Cody, Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C.; Canon Cayley, N. W. Hoyles, K.C.; Prof. Cotton, J. Herbert Mason, Rev. C. J. James, Prof. Dr. Griffiths Thomas, Rev. Prin. O'Meara, Sir Charles Moss, the corner-stone of the founders' chapel of Wycliffe College was on Saturday afternoon declared well and truly laid "in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost," by Hon. S. H. Blake.

The ceremony commenced at 4 o'clock with the singing of the hymn, "The Church's One Foundation." R. Millichamp, chairman of the building committee, presented the financial statement, and Rev. Archdeacon Cody read a Scripture lesson.

Dr. Howles spoke briefly, referring to a Scripture lesson.

Dr. Hoyles spoke briefly, referring to some of the men who had been connected with Wycliffe from the beginning, and in whose memory the chapel was being effected.

being erected.

Mr. Blake was greeted cordially. He spoke of the enhanced beauty Wychiffe would have when the new buildings were completed. He was glad the coun were completed. He was glad the council had agreed that the new building be Founder's Chapel in order that the memory of those who had nelped the college should be kept bright. He rejoiced that the prayer book had been deposited in the sealed box, as there was a movement on foot at the present time, whereby the liturgy and prayer book might be destroyed. "The true teachings of the Church of England today can carry us back to the first century, and we shall be false to God if we limit anything in it."

MADE A GRAND BONFIRE.

ITHACA N.Y., May 27. — Fire this morning, which was confined to the Ithaca Securities Company building, did $100,000 damage. The telephone exchange was on the upper floor, and the local system was put out of com-mission. Three hundred gallons of kerosene oil had just been placed in the basement, and added fuel to the flames.

C. N. R. Stays Here. the Canadian Northern Railway, gave an effective denial to a rumor that the headquarters of the railway would be removed to Montreal from Toronto. Mr. Hanna stated that there had been a partial reorganization affecting officials, who had to do with eastern or western lines only, but whose jurisdiction extended over the entire system. There has been a centralization of the management, but there would be no necessity for removing any officials. LOUISVILLE RESULTS.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS.

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BY REV. DR. LINSCOTT FOR THE INTERNATIONAL PRESS BIBLE QUESTION CLUB. (Copyrighted 1910 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

I have read the Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson, by Rev. Dr. Linscott, in this issue of The Toronto Sunday World.

Date, May 7, 1911.

THE CONTEST.

The most popular and the most practical plan for Bible study, togethe: with a prize Bible contest, is running in The Sunday World.

In short, the sunday School Lesson must be read each week for 52 weeks, also the "Suggestive Questions," and the coupon should be cut out each week and signed, certifying that this has been done. Then any five of the questions that are indicated to be answered in writing must also be answer ed, and at the end of the term the coupons and writting must also be answered with name and address, must be delivered to this office. The prizes will be awarded according to the number of coupons sent in, and the merits of the written answers. You can get all the help you want with the written ans-

Go in to win one of the solid-gold medals. If you complete the course, you will get a beautifully engraved Diploma, in three colors, in any event. Get all you can to join you in this course of Bible study.

Micah iv: 1-8.

Goiden Text—Nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. Micah iv: 3.

(1) Verse 1—What are your ideas concerning the Millennium?

(2.) What institution to-day stands as a mountain above every other institution?

(2.) What institution to-day stands as a mountain above every other institution?

(3.) When will Christianity probably sway the hearts of the nations, so that her beneficent laws will dominate them?

(4.) What are the influences at work to-day which make for the Caristianization of the nation?

(5.) Verse 2—What can churches and individuals do more than they are doing, to make the nations of the earth Christian?

(6.) Verse 3—When will nations begin "to beat their swords into plowshaves, and their spears into pruning hooks?"

(7.) There probably never was a time when the civilized nations were spending as much money on their armies and navies as now, or were more thoroly prepared for war, what does this indicate as to the coming of universal peace?

(8.) What is probably the cost per annum of (1) the standing armies, (2) the navies of the civilized nations?

(9.) If fifty per cent of the vast sum spent in preparation for war were spent in educating the nations in the folly of war, and in the sufficiency of arbitration to settle disputes, how many years would it take to accomplish?

(10.) What would be the effect if the universities of the world were to establish chairs for teaching the folly of war, and the morality, and economics of peace?

CLAIMED BIG FORTUNE BELIEVED NEXT-OF-KIN AND SMASHED THE WIL

Paddy Changed His Name to James, Which Mixed Up Matters in the Probate Court.

LONDON, May 27 .- A happy ending has just been arrived at in a romantic case where the wrong family claimed an Irish emigrant's fortune by mistake and eventually withdrew when they discovered the real heirs. The story was revealed before the Lord Chief Justice of Ireland in the Dublin courts. Away back in the 'forties of the last century, the period of the great Irish famine, a family named Brazil, which had been prosperous in the County Limerick, sold out before that terrible scourage reached its climax and emigrated. Edmund, the head, brought with him his two sons. Patrick and William, to South Wales. Edmund and William later went to the United States: but Patrick remained near Swansea, carried on the trade of and amassed a fortune of between $40,000 and $50,000. This Patrick it is now said, was rather eccentric; and because he was chaffingly called "Paddy from Ireland," changed his Christian name from Patrick to James (which helped to cause some of the subsequent probate trcuble), after which it appears, his local sobriquet became "Jimmy the Brabes." The two branches of the emigrant Irish family thus pursued their widely separated courses—one in Glamorganshire, the other at St. Louis, Mo.,—and in the end James Brazil, returning to his native place to end his days, like so

A suit followed about his will, and very curious state of things happened. A Weish family, only by coincidence named Brazil, set up a case as nextof-kin that the testator did not know and approved the contents of the will. Briefly stated, they smashed the will. But their alleged relationship was all a mistake; they were Protestants and never had any connection with Ireland, whereas the testator was of a Roman Catholic family. It was an honest mis-take, all sides now fully concede, and the result of their litigation was to leave the estate to be divided among whoever were the next-of-kin. This is how the mistake was rectified: A member of the genuine American branch of the family came to Ireland who had very few of the family docuof the latter being a nun in the Good Shepherd Convent, St. Louis. Nothing remained but the legal formalities of setting the whole matter right, and that was what happened in a friendly arrangement in the Dublin courts. The Weish parties were technically the de-fendants, for whom Mr. Powell, K. C., appeared, and they helped to establish

More thrillers are promised for the crowds at Scarboro Beach this week. To "go one better" on the hurtling Hellkvists is no small feat, but George Moran, who is managing the attractions, believes that the NOLAS will just about turn the trick. They are especially recommended to baid-headed visitors, because of the hair-raising nature of their performance (near joke). Their specialty is on the high wire, the "firting with death" stuff, you know. They feature what they call a "teeth act," and you have to see it to appreciate the aptness of the word. The MASCAGNIS do a whirlwind dancing turn. MILLARD BROS. get many a laugh and many a gasp out of the spectators of their bicycle performance, and BROOKS AND KINGMAN are billed as high-class trick and comedy acrobats.

When VETALE, the musical midget, came along about ten days ago and said to Mr. Moran: "I am from Venice, where we don't know anything but music." George replied: "Well, I'm from Missouri." At that, the little fellow had the goods, and has won a week's re-engagement at a salary that ought to keep a band in Italy for six or seven years.

The advertisements from the Beach don't mention it, but one of the best things there in the entertainment line is the singing of George Sarois in the Electroscope. You don't often hear voices like that of Mr. Serois in a 5-cent

Fire Has Made Little Impression on the Gold Stocks Which Continue Vegetables and Eggs Exhausted to Show Resiliency-Some Cobalts Are Firmer.

Saturday evening, May 27. the greatest mining people of to-day world office, and at is in gold mining in particular The mining markets at the moment are watching nothing so closely as the extension of the railway line into the Porcupine. It is not to be expected that this of itself would prove a card and most outstanding success. The Withwatersrand of South Africa, is emphatically an English developed mining field; consequently the entry of the old country capitalists into the determining the trend of prices or even in influencing to the subgittest ceive at least the fair play which has stamped the previous field of operations where the English miffing fraternity has held sway. It may also be taken as a precursor of an assured interest by the small investor, who the first train into the gold camp will see a big influx of mining men into The mining markets at the moment that they have made their greatest the first train into the gold camp will even follows the lead of one original see a big influx of mining men into the operators, once the way is paved in an the operating area. It will also see established manner and he is given an opportunity of having a good run for the transfer of considerable machin-the transfer it is only to be expected that a great deal of activity of the right kind will follow on this account. This is above all things the greatest necessity of Porcupine to-day, and it will of itself do more to upbuild the market situation than anything else.

It is a matter of easy assumption that a short interest has been built that from now on their bill of fares must be cut down principally to meats and flour, both of which are in stock in good quantities.

Meat dealers drive the animals into a story the camp and then slaughter them. In tertion as

Playfair, Martens & Co. say in their circular:

Porcupine—Interest continues unabated in the Porcupine camp. Indications are, there is going to be a tremendous speculation as a result of the wonderful finds being made in the discrict. Mr. Moreing of Bewick-Moreing & Co., the big London mining operators who have taken options on fifty-one outside Timmins claims, under an agreement to spend. $500,000 in development work within a certain period preliminary to purchase of the properties at option figures, made a statement at a big dinner given by some Canadian capitalists, that he believed that within ten years the Porcupine district would be producing more gold than the Rand of South Africa. This is rather a startling statement, but is an indication of what the London mining interests think of the district, and they are all getting in there fast.

Naturally there are going to be lots of irresponsible statements and boom talk about the camp, but this will not be surprising, considering the prices.

of irresponsible statements and begin talk about the camp, but this will not be surprising, considering the prices that are being paid for properties. Prices ranging all the way from $110,000 to $500,000 are being paid for properties upon which there has really been no development work done. Well located territory does not seem to cut much ed territory does not seem to cut much figure in the district. In one part of the camp the veins run east and west, and camp the veins run east and west, and in another part they run north and south, and still in another section northeast and southwest. There does not seem to be any regularity whatever, and gold is being found at different points over a district ten miles wide by thirty miles long. The railroad is expected to be in in July, on completion of which there will be a great rush of people into the camp, and the stories they will bring out will start the speculative sentiment. This is when we will see the big speculative is when we will see the big speculative | Beaver At the present time the real Porcupine interest seems to be in London, where the papers are devoting a great deal of space to the camp. The Hollinger and Northern Ontario Exploration are actively traded in there, and the Rea will be listed there in the near future. Canadians and Americans will sooner or later awaken to the importance of this wonderful discovery, and will be clamoring for Porcupine stocks at much higher prices than those now prevailing. Up to the present time the public are not in the market, only a few of the most far-sighted investors in this country have gone into Porcupina to any extent.

Of course, the Hollinger property is the most advanced. head of a band of rebels operating against his erstwhile friend, President Juarez. Juarez died and was succeed-ei by Senor Lerdo, who put the rebel large army and moving steadily to-ward his strongholds. Diaz escaped to the United States, secreted himself aboard a boat bound for Vera Cruz, was discovered, made prisoner, and on the eve of sailing, plunged overboard. A vain search was made for him and the report was spread broad-cast that he had been eaten by sharks. In the meantime the vessel co on its way to Vera Cruz, with Diaz secreted in a narrow closet, where he sufered agonies because of his cramped quarters. At Vera Cruz he bribed some boatmen to take him ashore and so turned up in the very midst of Lerdo's country, with naught on his back but a ragged sailor's suit and naught Napoleon returning from Elba, the appearance of Diaz in the country of his birth was the signal for a great uprising. Joy crazed peons, remembering only his brave deeds during a decade of bloody strife, hailed him as their savior. From a ragged sailor's suit to the command of an army num bering thousands was the transi-tion of a day. The Lerdo regime tottered as the news of his appearance became current, and, winning victory after victory, he marched into the capital in 1867 at the head of 12,000 mer the flag of the republic proudly flying over a sea of flashing bayonets, to be elected president a few weeks later.

Out Four Years, This position he has held ever since with the exception of four years, 1880 to 1884, when General Gonzales was given the office because Mexico's constitution later amended forebade the re-election of a president.
As president of Mexico, Diaz has laid himself open to the criticism of the world. For thirty years he ruled a republic with oligarchic despotism. He has been called, in one breath, the ountry's savior and a tyrant; he has been loved at home and hated abroad, his policies have been lauded and de-rided, and he himself has been the object both of the hero worship and the anthemas of the populace. Beyond a doubt both opinions are correct to a certain extent, but only a Higher Power can strike the balance that will fell whether he was a hurt or a hinper glass, and the size of the glasses are no deterrent to a healthy thirst on a hot day.

Indeed, the coming of the trains into porcupine is awaited now with more impatience than ever by the populace of an entire mining camp.

OLIVE SCHREINER'S "WOMAN AND LABOR"

Pethic Lawerence. A few days ago I got the book and since reading and re-readthe book and since reading and re-reading it I feel that the history of the past cise in a small barbed-wire enclosure.

hundreds of books have been read and forgotten but the characters and pic-tures, the pathos and the tragedy of that famous little story remains a vivid picture on my mind. Then I read her "Dreams in a Desert" those wonderful word paintings of the desert and human life—where the whole human race was crippled and dwarfed because its woman were not free. Its vision of the "Yet To Be" when motherhood should arise and face the east hand in should arise and lace the east hand in hand with the fatherhood of the race, strangely impressed all who read it. And then the voice of Olive Schreiner was silent for many years, but her pen and brain were busy. As a famous woman she made many friendships and had an appropriately for contract and had an opportunity for concrete study books were largely inspirational and prophetic but her keen brain longed for knowledge and she studied ditions and history so that when she would again give to the world a book it would be one where reason, and fact and critical analysis would assist her remarkable literary ability in compiling a story that would give to the world cause and effect and suggestive remedy. So for years and years this woman with a powerful cosmic urge. studied and wrote. Since sex and sex functions and manifestations form the great basis of physical life from the lowest form when two amebold globules coalesce on up thru a million variations, till in the mating of a male and female human being, a Voltaire or Shakspere, a Newton or an Edison is produced, naturally sex formed the subject for many a chapter of the "Musings" of Olive Scarelner. Year by year or month by month a chapter or an essay was written—till at last the book was about complete and typewritten almost ready for the publishers, when that terrible mistake in England's history happened "The South African War." Olive Schreiner

A few weeks ago I wrote a paragraph on this book after reading a review of it by that forceful writer Emiline of the box of this great woman. She two thousand years is laid out before me, interpreted by the greatest prophet of this age.

It is over twenty years ago that I read Olive Schreiner's "Story of an African Farm." In the meantime hundreds of books have been read and was given to the world. It is just a remembrance of her life's work, but the epitome is the essence of the intelligence of a highly evolved soul coupled with a thoroly trained mind.

Olive Schreiner's days are numbered but her life's work will stand out clear and distinct in an age that has produced many great women. She inscribes her book "Woman and Labor" to that heroine of the militant suffrage movement—Lady Constance Lytton—in these words "To my friend; not because I think it worthy of her, nor because of the splendid part she nor because of the splendid part she has played in the struggle of the wo-men fighting to-day in England for certain forms of freedom for all wo-men. It is, if I may be allowed without violating the sanctity of a close personal friendship so to say, because she with one or two other men and wo-men I have known, have embodied for me the highest ideal of human nature in which intellectual power and strength of will are combined with infinite tenderness and wide human sympathy, a combination which, whether in the person of a man or a woman, is essential to the existence of the fully rounded and harmonized human creat-ure; and which an English woman of genius summed in one line when she oried in her invocation of her great French sister.

"Thou large-brained woman and large-hearted man." One word more I should like to add, as I may not again speak or write on this subject. I should like to say to the men and women of the generations which will come after us: "You will look back at us with astonishment. You will wonder at passionate strug-gles that accomplish so little; at the to you obvious paths to attain our An Alexander might will to weld a ends which we did not take; at the Greece and Asia into one; a Napoleon intolerable evils before which it will might resolve to create of a diversified seem to you, we sat down passive; at the great truths staring us in dint of skill and determination they South African War." #### LOCAL TREATMENT FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

The health we enjoy depends very largely upon hother blood circulates in our bodies; in other words if we have perfect circulation we will have perfect health. There is a constant wearing out of the issues in every part of the body. The blood flowing through the veins carries off this waste o dead matter, while the blood coming from the heart through the arteries brings the fresh new living tissue, the essence of the food we have digested, to replace what has been carried off. This constant wearing out and expelling of the dead matter and the replacing of it with new matter, atom by atom, goes on day and night, until in about 7 years a complete change has been effected. Thus every man and woman has an entirely different body in every particle of it from what he or she had 7 years before.

It sometimes happens, however, from a variety of causes, that the blood becomes congested in certain portions of the body. This means that the blood vessels in these parts become weakened, and the circulation in that section of the body becomes singish and stagnant. The consequence is that the dead matter in that bart of the body is only partially carried away, and that but little of the new, vital matter is introduced there to build up and strengthen the tissues and nerves.

This condition invariably exists in all cases of fe-and stagmant. The consequence is that the dead move when the control of the new, with a way, and that but little of the new, with a way, and that but little of the new, with the carried introduced there to build up and strengthen the tissue and the control of t

Second Suggestion. That brings me to the second suggestion which is involved in this first the the house of lords persist in re- proposal of the joint sitting. You will analyze the numbers, you will see that began on adding this clause to the bill, if there were a joint sitting, even with there were not twenty members in the the diminished number of peers, and house, and the attack was left for the even with the greater representation most part to the minor members of of Liberals among them, no Liberal ministry would be able to pass a measure in such a joint sitting without 'a majority of sixty to seventy. Tory party will have the house of lords in its pocket; and any measure a Tory ministry and of Tory house of commons will pass, the house of lords will accept. The house of lords would accept any such measure, even the it had but a majority of two in its favor. And thus it would come to this-if the suggestion of the Tories for a joint sitting were accepted that to carry any measure the Liberals must have a majority of sixty to seventy, while the Tories would not require anything beyond the barest majority. This, indeed, would be to throw back the Liberal party and a Liberal House of Commons into the intolerable thraldom from which it now has such a splendid chance—indeed, certainty-of escaping.

Last Stand on Referendum. I take it, then, that these two suggested amendments will be ruled so promptly out of court that they will not be pressed for more than a short time. It is on the referendum, that the lords will make, I believe their last with the bill completely before the cor- stand. ## Poems of the Prairie And of the Homestead

New Volume by Robert J. C. Stead, Author of "The Empire Builders" - Pietures the Life of the Dwellers of the Great West.

Mr. Stead's new volume "Prairie Born and Other Poems" (William Briggs, Toronto), justifies his right to the title given him upon the publica-tion of "The Empire Builders"—poet of the prairies. In his new book the poems are based chiefly upon prairie experiences. They are written in a simple and orceful vocabulary and have a swing that carries the readerthe ballad form being the favorite. and the matter adopting itself most readily to that form. While presenting to us the attractiveness of the western country the poet shows no desire to blue-pencil the words which may hint at its disadvantages. The opening poem "Prairie Born" is a characteristic example of Mr. Stead's ballad style:-

The Music in The Parks

The season of band concerts is upon us. Twice a week, or so, the citizens of Toronto will flock to the public parks in thousands to enjoy the music of the different civil and military organ-

These open air concerts have become an important feature of our civic life and as such, are worthy of serious consideration. No one will deny the great educational value of good music; the better the music the greater the benefit. This brings us to the question of the programs rendered at public concerts.

It is the impression of a large number of people that the music provided at entertainments of this kind must be of a distinctly popular nature. The facts, however, do not substantiate Recently, the socialistic and presumably uncultured mayor of one of the big American cities demanded that the local bands give the people "lots of ragtime." Several of the newspapers put the question to a popular vote and a overwhelming majority in favor of music of a better class was the result.

Many people who depreciate classical music and who claim that it gives them no pleasure do so in ignorance. Their only knowledge of it is gained from a few teaching pieces badly played by some amateur, or from the jokes in the comic papers. It should be the aim of the local band masters to change this state of affairs. They must show the public thru the medium of carefully selected programs that the best music, in addition to being the work of scholarly men of genius, is also melodious. harmonious and full of rhythm. Of course there are many compositions too heavy and complicated for anything but a thoroly musical audience. These need not be considered. On the other hand, with German, French and Italian opera, in addition to the more modern American and European composers, the bandmaster has a huge field of valuable

The local bands have already done much towards raising the popular musical taste, but they must do still more.

Song Study

When you have selected a song to learn first read the text over carefully again and again. If the lyric is a good one you will find enough in it to employ your best thought and imagination. Next go over the melody associated with it time and again. If well written you will find it closely wedded to the meaning of the text: the intervals, time, rhythm and accent bring out the bought contained in the poem, giving in additioal color and interest. With this preparation you may begin to sing the song. To the illectual grasp you add the singer's instinct or faculty, and the song becomes thrice valuable, for you have endowed it with the combined power of three mighty forces—poet, musician and singer. It is difficult to say which is used in the greatest of these, but it is true that most devolves upon the singer.

Hutcheon courteously replies to my comments upon his views regarding divorce. Mr. Hutcheon reiterates and emphasizes his views, which in brief ligious viewpoint and mine are far apart. Doubtless they are, but those who know me will rather smile when they read that I look at this thing from an ecolesiastical standpoint. Mr. Hutcheon suggests that if I could separate myself from ecclesiasticism and become natural I would see the advantages of divorce. For all Mr. Hutcheon knows I migh be an atheist, an agnostic or divorce. For all Mr. Hutcheon knows I migh be an atheist, an agnostic or even a free lover and yet opposed to divorce. My position can be summed up in a few words. It is that I believe with Jean Jacques Rosseau that it is advisable to choose both a proper mate and a proper time to marry. In addition I believe that the knot having once been tied, it should be indissoluble.

bers of the church choir, without ask-ing if they have their parents' consent and why they did not get married in their own church, it appears to me that the condition of things has reached a common scandal. Licences and cerea common scandal. Licences and ceremonies are both far too easily procurable. Wherein a remedy is to be found may be debatable ground and difficult of definite decision, but the good of the majority should prevail and there should be more questioning and oath taking before the licence is issued. Again licenses should not be hawked around as they are and pade to thick the first work and procurable. Whatever my religious views may be, altho I am free to confess they lean to thigh Church, has, as Gilbert sings. hawked around as they are and ped-dlers of such things should not be so easily and freely appointed as they are. Craven puts in his play of "Meg's Diversions" what might prove, and, with the grace of God, would prove, a long lease. Mr. Hutcheon suggests that lust, drunkenness and neglect should be causes for diverse. Lust is too frequently the for divorce. Lust is too frequently the and in England. What is permitted in Britain is surely good enough for Canlove but that in reality is only its own iniquitous and selfish self. It is this lust that in Mr. Hutcheon's view makes divorce advisable. In my view it should be punished not rewarded by being given a legally loose rein.

Of course one of the partles might not be lustful, then that party would rather bear the ills she has than be disgraced and stamped as a divorcee. All she would require would be support and that her husband should be compelled to give her while at the same time granting her peace by being re-lieved of his presence. But he should lieved of his presence. But he should by saying, so I conclude by saying, not be given the legal right to hunt the situation is ridiculous and is bringfor another victim. The surgeon's knife should be used wholly and solely to heal and the law into disgrace and disreto heal and never wilfully to destroy. Divorce destroys more than it heals.

The Better Half of Creation. The majority of women are so shaped that they would suffer anything rather emphasizes his views, which in brief are that divorce in some cases is as necessary as the surgeon's knife—this his own simile—and presumably equally as efficient. He also says that his religious viewpoint and mine are far apart. Doubtless they are, but those who know me will rather smile when they read that I look at this thing from an ecclesiastical standpoint. Mr. Hutcheon suggests that if I could separate myself from ecclesiasticals and become matural I would see the advances of the men 99 out of every 100 who seek the men 99 out of every 100 who seek or consent to divorce do so that they may form other ties and become more If divorce were desirable vorced woman should not be presented Divorce Entirely Unjustifiable.

In that respect he had the bulk of the highest pitch of intense expectancy, and ready at a confront those responsible for the administration of justice in the realm he had the bulge on the other teams, all of them not excepting the Leafs beginning the campaign with flingers, a long way from being ready. The cold weather which prevailed in the spring played havoc with the arms of the twirlers who had done their conditioning in the south and consequently they practically had to pitch them selves into shape. This was an expensive way of going for the clubs, many games being thrown away purely because of the inability of the pitchers

By W. Milton Yorke of Porcupine. There's a gleam that tells the dawning, Of the brighter Northern day, Silver tinted-streaming Southward-With its night dispelling ray.

> 'Tis the beam born of the gold gleam (The long drawn night is past) And the world neglected Northland, Yields its hidden wealth at last.

As a diadem of glory, On a field of wealth untold, Bursting barriers-stands triumphant: Wreathed with crown of glittering gold.

Now the man-forgotten desert; Of the dreary Arctic night-Giantlike stands forth resplendent, Tide of Empire sets to Northward. 'Neath a peerless sceptre's sway. Can't you hear the clarion summons? To the Northland's crowning day.

> Let us seek where gold lies hidden, Follow up its magic gleam; In the land long deemed 'Forbidden' Land of myriad lake and stream

Robed in green and golden light.

Land of beauty-Land of sunshine, Land of shadowy Jack pine sway, Its unpeopled places calling, To the cities day by day.

Let us seek the land that beckons; As our fathers sought of old. Wielding axe, or pick and paddle, Tilling soil and finding gold.

Let us blaze the trail of progress, Let us dare the great alone, Follow Giant-minded leaguemen, As they probe the "Great Unknown."

> Shall we stand by idly dreaming? As the days go flitting past, Shall the flag of progress streaming. Show the Briton marching last.

There's a murmur from the Pine tops, (To Pilot-minded MEN) Borne southward from a land of wealth I know, And our Lode star still to guide us; Tho weal or woe betide us. 'Tis the wooing of the Northwind-We must go.

YOUNGMEN SHALL SEEVISIONS-OLD MEN SHALL DREAM DREAMS = 375T

For Youth and Physical Power There Are the Joys of Ambition, of Selfish Hopes and Striving, THE SEEING OF VISIONS.

HERE are many periods in the lives of human beings, each with its possibilities of happiness and compensation.

Especially distinct and different are the extreme ages of active youth and thoughtful old age. In the life of the man who lives properly there is great joy in youth, but greater joy in age.

Each extreme of life is happy, and the life

Each extreme of life is happy, and the life of youth and of age ought to be as far apart as the valley and the mountain peak.

One of our ablest most useful men. Thomas

One of our ablest, most useful men, Thomas A. Edison, indignantly puts away the suggestion that he should begin to rest in old age, stop the hard work and change his life. He declares that life must be all hard work, the same steady work from the day when the brain begins its maturity to the day when it is put away in the grave.

But Edison is wrong.

Man is not put here to be fastened to the plough like a beast of burden, and to pull at the traces all his life. There is one life, one activity, one set of emotions for youth and another and different life for age.

The Bible tells in few and beautiful words the separation of youth and age: "And your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams."

What could be more beautifully expressed.

The life of the young man is in his visions, his hopes of the future, in plans of achievement and success FOR HIMSELF. From his boyhood he sees visions, follows them to success or defeat.

And then comes old age, the day when the old man dreams dreams.

Youth is the age of striving and of selfishness; old age the period of advising unselfishly, of dreaming dreams for the young and for the future that age is not to see.

In our civilization the trouble is that all is for youth and too little for age.

The man who can lift the load, run swiftly, hit hard and push his fellow down the hill is the man for whom all the plans are made. There is little planning, little place honor in the world of to-day for the old; little heed is paid to their dreams, there is little appreciation of their kindness and unselfishness.

But it will not always be thus. The day will come when youth will listen with respect to the teachings of the old and look with love and reverence upon the unselfishness of the old. That day will come, and, let us hope, will not long be delayed.

The young man in his full strength, climbing the hill, meeting and overcoming obstacles, adding to the knowledge and possessions of his fellow men, indifferent to pain in the pursuit of his object, is an admirable being animated by a thinking mind.

Far more admirable and beautiful is the old age of peace and of unselfishness. The old man looks upon the grandchild, dreaming dreams for that child's welfare, thinking not of himself, yet deeply and intelligently considering the future in which he is to have no share, guiding and restraining impetuous youth, and wisely stimulating imagination. There is a sight more to be admired than any accomplishment of fiery youth.

So it is with the women that have created the human race, have borne its burdens and shared so little in its honors.

The young woman in all her beauty and power, with her courage in childbirth and her marvellous capacity for devotion, is yet not as beautiful or as noble a specimen of our race as the white-haired grandmother, unselfishly devoted to younger people, happy in the memories of her youth and serene in the peace of old age, unselfish and benevolent and as far in peace, dignity and beauty above the turmoil and passionate eagerness of youth as is the white cloud above the black soil cut into furrows.

It will be well for the world when human beings shall realize that they live in one life MANY LIVES, when their lives shall be divided properly, in order that in each year the mind and the body may do their best, and give to the Spirit that dwells within the closest relationship with the universe and the sense of fullest accomplishment.

Beauty of Dreams, Planning for Others,
UNSELFISH HAPPINESS.

For Old Age, After a Life Well Spent, There Is the

The trouble is that we put into one age the duties and the feelings of another. Our children are men and women before they have really been children. And the old are cursed with the anxiety of the struggle which should be borne by vigorous youth alone.

There is little honor for the aged, and our civilization lays upon nine-tenths of all human beings such a load of hard labor and selfish struggle that they cannot grow old in

The visions of youth are clouded by unworthy, selfish and petty ambitions, and the dreams of age are made hideous by poverty, anxiety and other evils that old age should never know.

However, a better day is coming, and coming quickly. For the first time in the history of this earth there are entire great nations, ALL OF WHOM CAN READ AND MAY THINK IF THEY WILL.

Selfishness will die out as thought and intelligence progress. Knowledge is no longer in the possession of a few, keeping the majority in ignorance and in want.

Already we see in the old age of our richest and most powerful men signs that point to a better future. The very rich give away their money; they do it intelligently, to help human beings on this earth.

In their plans for education, distributing knowledge, combating disease, they dream dreams of a better and happier world. Great fortunes are no longer spent to bribe unseen powers and buy eternal felicity for the individual and not very important soul. The rich man of to-day plans for the happiness of those that he has to leave on this earth dreams dreams for the earth dwellers.

Already in an imperfect way we see a realization of what we take to be the meaning of that text from the Bible.

A young man starting out, even in our ditorted civilization, sees visions of wealth and power for himself. He has the power and gets the wealth, and in his old age dreams dreams of a better world, and gives back tens of millions to those from whom he took the money and power that he cannot and world not take beyond the grave.

We hope that Mr. Thomas A. Edison, who, like a hero, has served his fellow men as few have done, will change his mind, and decide at least eight or ten years from now to give up the hard work and devote his life from seventy years of age onward to the dreaming of dreams, the contemplation of the marvel lous universe that lies around us in the vast ness of space, and the wonderful future possibilities of this home-earth, and the intelligent and wonderful race that will one day inhabit it.

Love's pursuit is a circle where it is difficult on occasion to tell which of the runners is pursuer or pursued. Time alone reveals who is the

To the June bride the future has all the glory and freshness of a dream. Her path is strewn with roses rich and rare, as the bloom upon her cheek. Nature responds to her happiness with its wealth of flower and foliage, its radiant sky. Its wind touches her "like the sweet south that breathes upon a bank of violets, stealing and giving odor." Happily for the world the poetry, of love can never die. Each generation wakes to it in all its pristine purity. Every spring the young man's -fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. Every June launches its quota on the ocean of wedded life soon to find that all is not plain sailing, that the compass and the card, the lead and the lookout are just as necessary for them as for those that go down to the sea in ships.

Modestly he waits at the altar. actual or metaphorical, target of criticism, object of comment, alternately pitied and ridiculed. Like patience on the monument he smiles at delay while tortured with doubt and filled with anxiety. 'One inch of delay more is a south-sea-off discovery, just what can the poor mortal do. The June bride must be arrayed in her finery tho the heavens fall and the canonical hour is on the stroke. Furbelows and fripperies, wreaths and wedding veils, orange blossoms and beauty roses count for more than the pangs of agitated love.

Still the hour comes when the maiden paces into church or room to the strains of the wedding march, accompanied by her bevy of attendants. Here is the supreme moment to reach which time's pace was so hard that, as the witty and lovelorn Rosalind observed, tho the interim be but a se'nnight it seemed the length of seven years. Brief, indeed, at the longest is the performance of that ceremony which links two lives together in the closest of all human ties. From it the June bride emerges having suffered a sea change, rich and strange, to receive the congratulations of her kin and her friends, the silent blessing of father and mother yielding her from the home of her childhood and youth to that which is to be her very own. Peace and happiness, happiness and peace be with her now and always pray those who love her best and whose smile hides the tenderest of tears.

The marriage feast is spread, the toasts are made and honored, the June bride slips away to prepare for her honeymoon tour. Her mother voices her last adieux in that sacred moment that none but mothers know all that it means. With her mother's kiss still trembling on her lips the bride trips down to face the showers of confetti, and on her husband's arm passes from the old home. away even as our artist has so faithfully depicted with Cupid at the lever and the wheel and the old boots dangling behind. "We are Married," is the legend, but that advertisement is superfluous, for who is so blind as not to know Benedick, the married man and his Beatrice.

Joy go with the June bride, with all brides that come with the rolling years. Joy does not travel with every one, there are failures in matrimony as in life's other ventures, but then fortunately in this also it is the exceptions that prove the rule. Even June brides have to learn by experience that all is not gold that glitters, that bear and forbear are good companions at the beginning of a long journey and to the end. Crosses and trials are the common lot but love will conquer and from the bitter. extract an added sweetness. Time is a great reconciler when the start is right, and tho the first glamor will pass, something richer, deeper and truer will be the reward of persevering affection.

In his "Ode to a Grecian Urn," Keats embodied in lovely poetry what the une known artist had portrayed in the beauty of decorative tine. The lover would forever hend to kiss and her he loved forever wait the pressure of his lips. But as the

The kicking exercise is another admirable one for developing the leg muscles. If you wish, a football car be used, giving more reality to the sport. But if this is not convenient, as on a crowded beach it is not, the kicking can be done without this actual aid. Hold the arms straight out before you and bring the palms together, as though you were clapping your hands. Then swing one leg slowly up as high as the waist. Swin it back into position and repeat the movement with the other leg. Alternate. This is another exercise for development of grace and vigor.

A third, which has the same purpose, is more difficult. It is the same movement, but backward. Bring the arms behind the back by a long, sweeping motion, the backs of the hands meeting. Then kick with the right leg, raising the foot as far as you can without losing your balance. Swing the left leg upward in the same way. Then alternate. This is a good abdominal exercise. A fourth exercise which gives this exercise, bending as far back ward as possible to secure the same desired flexibility.

A difficult but valuable exercise is this, which is of special use in developing the upper half of the body: Standing erect, feet parallel and hands clasped behind you, twist the apper half of the body slowly and as far as possible to the left, turning the Lead slowly in unison with the movement. Then slowly bring the body back to its first posttion, and twist it to the right. Gradually and never violently swing the upper half of the body thus in a half circle. I must warn you to never make this motion suddenly or violently lest you disturb and perhaps displace the internal organs.

The most complex of the exercises which can be practiced to greater advantage upon the footing of soft" sand, with the tonic salt air in the nostrils and the sunshine encompassing the fair gymnast, is this. valuable both for poise and vigor:

Resting the weight on one leg and placing the hand at the waist, kickout at the left, extending the left arm straight from the shoulder. Hold this posture as long as possible. Then shift the weight to the left leg and repeat the exercise with the right, reversing and repeating, stopping short of weariness, for in beauty development at least, all es ercises should stop short of fatigue.

But it is no such thing. Both men and women doomed to serious invalidism know in their hearts that they have no right to marry. In doing so they betray, not love, but deepest selfishness.

If, therefore, a girl finds herself being wooed by a man troubled with chronic ill-health, or whose family consists almost entirely of invalids, she may know at once he is unworthy of any nice woman's love, and she would do well to avoid him -not because of his affliction altogether, but because his selfish desire is greater than his love. Such a man could make no girl really happy.

RUSSIAN AUTO SELLING IS NOT TOO EASY

Bad Roads and Bad Chaffeurs Have Shaken Confidence Of Public

Russia presents a great many difficulties in the way of developing the automobile industry at the present moment. Moscow, whose population is 1,360,000, has no electric automobiles, and a total of only 720 automobiles whose propelling power is gasolinean astonishing fact when the city is compared with Paris, where there are compared with Paris, where there are 18,000 motor cars to the 3,000,000 inhabitants. Here are some of the reasons why Russia does not make a better showing in the automobile industry: long distances; inadequate means of communication; insufficient railway lines; the unsuitability of the gasoline automobile in the country, owing to the scarcity of even half-way competent chauffeurs and their inability to make repairs. Russia needs a motor car simply constructed, so that anybody may be able to drive it, and accommodations for making repairs, in the event of breakdowns. Some Russians assert that the electric motor car would be the most suitable, provided that it was not too avacative. vided that it was not too expensive and possessed the durability to run over Russia's characteristically bad highways. Besides, its upkeep would need to be low. There is a feeling of friendliness toward electric motor cars, particularly in Moscow. But it is no use to try to sell machines on the strength of catalogues, because no one especially an electric one, without having previously seen it. The demonstration of electric passenger motor cars on the streets is the proper means through which to make sales. Every car should be accompanied by all required accessories for recharging the batteries, and by the most precise in-structions, printed not alone in the Russian, but in the German language.

USE OF POWER HAULING on Finish of Motor Car IN BUILDING OF ROADS

Feasibility of Power Traction for This Work Demenstrated in United States

The availability of steam or gasoline traction engines or road rollers for use grading and scraping is coming to be very generally recognized thruout the State of New York. The feasibility of the use of power tractors was demon-strated in several towns of the state a considerable number of years ago. In one town in particular in which a steam roller has been used for power for the longest term of which we have any accurate record, this roller has been used for sixteen years during which time the expense for labor of horses as power has been so insignifi-cant as to be a negligible quantity, and for several years last past no horses at all have been used, but a second machine has been purchased and that town now uses two steam rollers for tractive purposes to the entire exlittle more than one-third of all the towns in the state are equipped with power tractors of some kind. By their use road machine work is done a considerable saving of money, or, where an equal amount of money expended as was formerly done, a correspondingly greater amount of road

In addition to the economy of their use the possession of one of these machines by a town, renders the town superintendent comparatively independent as regards the hire of teams, and in localities where team labor is scarce or where team owners by reason of scarcity are inclined to prices or "soldier" on the job, being in possession of steam power relieves the town superintendent entirely of this embarrassment.—From the annual re-port of the New York State Highway

Don't try to do so much with the thands that you are liable to forget that the Creator gave you a head.

The merchandising of cars does not mean a loss to either the manufacturer or the dealer, it generally means money to both; at least it means a sale, and a merchandising sale is always superior to a price-cutting sale. Where changes are to be made in a car body, its fittings or equipment, it is natural for the buyer to expect to pay for these changes, and where a change can be made on this underaway course.

GREENWOOD-SPENCER.

In the Church of St. Margaret's, Westminster, London, England, the marriage of Mr. Hamar Greenwood, M.P., to Miss Margery Spencer, daughter of Mr. Walter Spencer, Townhope Court, Herefordshire, was celebrated on Tuesday before a large assemblage including many Canadians. The aisle was lined with a squadron of King Edward's Horse, of which Mr. Greenwood is captain, and the service was fully choral; the Rev. Canon Hensley Hensore, rector, and the Rev. Herbert Attull of Digswell, with the Bishop of New Westminster, B.C., officiating The bride was given away by her father, and wore a beautiful gown of white brocaded satin, veiled in pearlembroidered chiffon; her veil was of exquisite Sicilian lace, a gift from bridegroom, arranged over a coronal of orange blossoms and white heather, the bouquet being of white roses and maple leaves. The bridesmaids were Miss Offive Spencer, the Misses Mangery and Gladys Greenwood, Miss Harrison (Staffordshire) and Miss Margaret Sale of New Zealand, wearing dresses of cream satin and lace, large cream straw hats with pink plumes, and bouquets of pink carnations and maple leaves tied to tall white staves; they wore pink enamel pendants, given by the groom. The best man was Sir H. Verney, Bart. M.P., Clayton Hall. Bucks. After the ceremony a reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Hamar Greenwood left for France, the going-away s being of grey satin, veiled in ninon, embroidered with steel plumed hat of petunia straw.

The Democratic Ideals of Victor Hugo By HENRY LEWIS

Among the writers of the nineteenth century Victor Hugo stands pre-eminent as a champion of democratic ideals. He stood for peace and fraternity, for even-handed justice at home and international concord abroad. He battled for freedom of thought and intellectual hospitality. His mind swept the hortzon of civilization from its dawn, and fraternized with the luminous spirits of all ages. ing $7,000,000 on its new shops opposite Springfield, a suburb of Winnipeg. These shops will be completed this year, and will employ at the start 2,000 to 3,000 men, which will be increased to 5,000 to 6,000. This would mean a population of 20,000 to 25,000. That these shops will form the nucleus of an important manufacturing suburb there is no doubt. The Grand Trunk Pacific selected the site for its shops because of the many advantages which it offered. It is convenient to Winnipeg—about six miles from the heart of the city—yet far enough away to insure plenty of room for expansion and afford freedom from the densely populated districts. The surrounding territory is admirably adapted to residence purposes, affording homes for the thousands of employes within a few minutes' walk of the shops. Artesian wells supply an abundance of good water, and the Red River affords facilities for an excellent system of drainage. field, a suburb of Winnipeg. These shops will

Work on the Grand Trunk Pacific shops was begun in the fall of 1909. Much progress was made during 1910, and most of the buildings are now completed. It is expected that the shops will be in operation before the close of 1911. These will be not only the largest railroad shops in Canada, but the most modern in construction and equipment. The planning and construction of these shops was carried out with that thoroughness of detail and high quality of material and workmanship which has characterized the building and equipment of Canada's leading transcontinental railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific. When these shops are completed the principal construction and repair work for the entire Grand Trunk Pacific System will be done there,

WINNIPEG TO REACH THE MILLION MARK

Prediction of J. Bruce Walker, Com-missioner of Immigration, and the "New York Commercial," as to the future Metropolis of Canada.

That Western Canada would have a population of at least 25,000,000 and Winnipeg, its trade centre and supply point, a population of one million within twenty-five years, was the prediction of J. Bruce Walker, Dominion Commissioner of Immigration, in an address in Winnipeg recently. The statement was warmly applauded by Premier Roblin of Manitoba, who was present.

by Premier Roblin of Manitoba, who was present.

The New York Commercial, the leading commercial and financial paper of the United States, in a recent issue published an article in which it was predicted that Winnipeg would have a population of one million within ten years. "The corporate limits of Winnipeg now comprise about twenty-two square miles and, with, say, 175,000 population, fourteen square miles are practically occupied," says The New York Commercial. "This being so, what will be Winnipeg's occupied area when it has 300,000, which at the present ratio of growth it should have in 1915? Why is Winnipeg probably the last and certainly the fastest growing of the great cities? As the Canadian West unfolds its limitless wealth in the land, the forests, the mines; as its railroad facilities for handling the enormous annual output of rich commodities increase, there will be the same demand for people—millions of people—to carry on the work and the responsibilities I have enumerated. There can be no escape from a proper provision for future population. Upon Winnipeg must fall the greater responsibility of providing the principal manufacturing and commercial needs of the Canadian West. In almost like ratio Winnipeg's responsibility is identical to that of Chicago two decades ago. The demands upon Winnipeg's commercial resources will create a population of more than 1,000,000 in less than ten years."

Winnipeg's population increased from 30,000 in 1905 to 160,000 in 1910—doubled in five years. The estimate for the 1911 census, which is now in progress, is between 200,000 and 225,000. The value of Winnipeg realty in 1905 was $63,000,000; in 1910 it was $158,000,00, an increase of 150 per cent. in five years. Winnipeg has 236 factories, employing over 14,000 hands, and representing

It lies south-east of the station, and the northern end of the property is within 120 yards of the main line of the G. T. P. Railway and the shop grounds, and about 200 yards of the station. The lots in Springfield are admirably located for business and residence purposes, high, dry and level, and on account of their southeasterly location from the smoke producers will not be molested by dust, dirt and smoke from the shops.

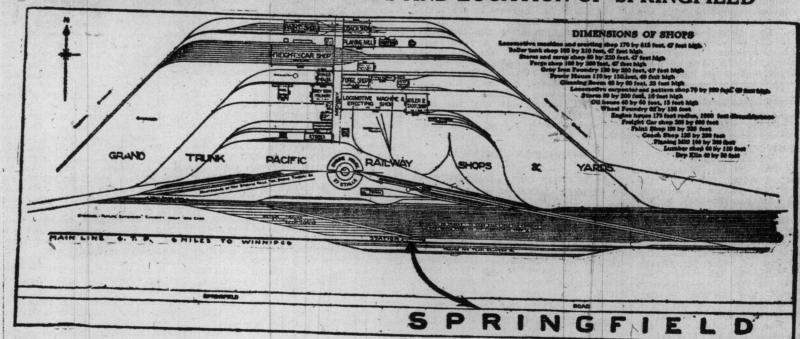

Springfield, by location and condition, forms the nucleus of what will be one of the busiest and most prosperous spots in Canada,

It is certain that no one buying property at Springfield can make a mistake, as it is an as-surance based upon the principle of increase of land value with population.

All real estate in Springfield must go up in value as the thousands of people for the works, their families, followed by tradesmen and business ventures, seek their location.

Investments in Western Canada are beyond doubt without parallel. The wealth of the country, the richness of its soil, the buoyant climatic conditions, make Western Canada a spot where one works with pleasure, earns good wages, achieves good results and where invest-only emergency repair work being done at the other shops. Here locomotives, cars and coaches will be built and rolling stock of all descriptions overhauled and rebuilt. As the system expands and its traffic increases, the force of employes at the shops will have to be increased. It is easy to see why it is predicted that these shops, together with the other manufacturing industries that will cluster around them, will support a population of 20,000 to 25,000 souls. To provide homes for these, to accommodate trades and business enterprises, will require every available foot of ground within a radius of at least two miles of the shops. Cheap power, unequalled railroad facilities and proximity to millions of consumers in Western Canada will make Winnipeg time leading manufacturing centre of Canada. The electrical power plant now being constructed at Point du Bols on the Winnipeg River at a cost of $4,000,000, will develop 100,000 horsepower—sufficient to provide for Winnipeg's development along manufacturing lines for many years. It is stated that scores of American manufacturers are at this time negotiating to build important factories at Winnipeg

Lace jabots are also much favored by fashion, absolute demanding however, the permanent addition of a high neckband of the same lace, the connecting link between the two being provided by a flatly looped bow of black velvet centred with gleaming circlet or buckle of paste. Or else a big and variety, the first mentioned fabric being, however, in my opinion, preferable. These are obtainable would advocate the simultaneous acquisition of those two dainty additions, as then their effect will be doubled and the corresponding increase in cost made up for. Fine crochet lace is often used for the making of the band (it measures beautiful cameo with figure in the centre, its Wedgewood blue and white coloring showing up well against the soft black velvet. A jabot which can boast of this distinctive and decorative adornment being, I may tell you, a very wise choice on your part. For, later in the season, it will be the correct and charming wear with those most from, say, six to ten inches in length) to which the pleated fubric up-to-date hats or toques whose draperies of supple straw or silken ribbon will most certainly be held in place by a cameo ornament. Look out for this new millinerial trimming and, having been thus forewarned, try to arrange to be among the first to display it.

Another neckwear novelty of which you may like to hear is designed for those who—rightly or wrongly—prefer to give some definite touch of color to a white shirt This consists of a neckband of folded satin ribbon, bordered at the top with gold tissue, and fur-ther finished off in the front with a flatly pleated bow—for all the world like those which adorn the "pump" shoe, beloved by all Americans, and now almost equally favored by Englishwomen. On this bow there are set three or four little buttons of dark mother-of-pearl, rimmed round with some special color-say, ruby red-or else the buttons will be in colored and black enamel—cerise or royal blue is exceedingly effective in this connection-in which case a fold of satin to match will take the place of that bordering of gold tissue.

And now do you want an introduction to the newest and smartest scarfs? If so-and I think it is probable—let me tell you that one for daytime wearing is of soft black or colored satin lined with chiffon and all along its soft and supple length at either side—cut in a series of deep scallops, to which a certain firmness as well as finish is given by double rouleaux of the same satin. Then, holding it in at either end is a big doubly-looped bow, made of the satin (cut on the cross) so that, you see, there is real durability as well as much smartness in the scheme. Then, with satin again as the chosen fabric for its making, the widest and silkiest of Russia braid is introduced as a trimming, first banding in the stole midway in its graceful career, and then bordering the widening ends, its novelty being further proclaimed by an applique design in Paisley or indian patterned ninon. White or black chiffon is generally used for its lining, but it would be quite permissible—and indeed pretty—to then make further use of the patterned med with gold lace bound all round with green velvet and gold.

The other scarf, whose acquaintance I want you to make—and cultivate—is the destined and delightful companion of evening gowns, its fabric being a filmy lisse in white or some delicate color. All along its three-yard length, it is sewn with countless beads a first broad band of the pretty things being perhaps in white—if the back-ground he of pale him white-the ground be of pale blue-while the other half of the scarf is covered with little golden beads. Again on a white scarf white porcelain and glittering silver beads will be similarly contrasted, while then if I ilarly contrasted, while then if I can do its charms justice you will surely love, as I do, another and lovely affair, which seems to have caught the shimmer of moonbeams. For its lisse is of the deeply beautiful blue of a Summer sky at niste and half of it is showered with myriads of tiny jet beads, while from the other there shimmer out an equal number of tiny points of steel and sliver, the whole thing in fact being a treasure trove for the woman who wishes her possessions to bo an who wishes her possessions to bo artistic, as well as fashionable tri-

Mainz Cathedral in Danger.

The famous Mainz Cathedral, one of the oldest and most interesting in Europe, is stated to be in serious danger, owing to the action of the underground water. Special drainage operations have before been carried out with a view to removing the danger, but apparently the results have not been lasting, water having again collected, and it is feared that the effects on the foundations of the cathedral will be disastrous. It is now proposed to proceed without delay with the work of strengthening the foundations, not only of the cathedral, but also of several other old buildings including the ducal castle.—From The London Globe.

A House of Commons Grost.

An interesting house of commons ghost is the "Radiant Bov" This child ghost has been many times seen and heard. Its compexion is of the colorless purity of Chinese white, a halo of silver sparkles about its head during its peregrinations, and its eyes gleam in their sockets like bright electric lamps. It is evidently in agony, for the palms of its hands are stiff and turned downward, and as it paces from room to room it gives utterance to moans of anguish and never lifts its gaze from the floor. So far as can be ascertained, this particular ghost has no pre-spectral history, and why it should have chosen the house for its haunt is a mystery.—London Climpice.

London is rapidly filling with visitors from every part of the British Empire for the Coronation and a variety of interesting schemes are being matured for their entertainment. Amongst the most novel and important of these is one conceived and visitors almost more than anything else. To this end Mr. Norton Griffiths, who is an enthusiastic Imperialist, inviting the leading representatives from Canada and other overseas dominions of the Empire, their friends in England and leaders of the Unionist party, to make it their informal rendez vous every week-end. It is believed that these gatherings will do much to
