FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines still be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week...	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates. Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

P. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT.

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER.

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R. C. S. AND L. M., ENGLAND. L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. E. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames street, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST, LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Oxide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anasthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

FOR THE COUNTY OF

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country.

Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

VANCE'S BAKERY

Still continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers,

Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE,

Thames Street.

Bread delivered in town daily.

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with Farmers.

Allows Interest on Deposits,

Which can be withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK

OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696

RESERVE - - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

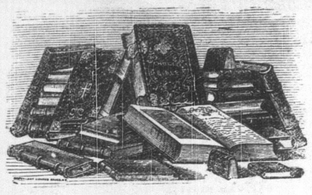
INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGISBERG, Prop.

LEADING LIVERY IN TOWN,



Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582y

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 19. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1583.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

The Undersigned having Bought out the

BOOK, STATIONERY,

AND

Fancy Goods Business!

LATELY CARRIED ON BY

MR. GEORGE A. ODELL,

Hereby respectfully intimates to the inhabitants of Ingersoll and surrounding country that by paying cash down he was enabled to buy Mr. Odell's stock amounting to over $8,000.00 at a large reduction from cost price, thereby enabling him to give

BARGAINS

Unheard Of Before in this Locality.

New Goods FOR the Holidays

I am opening out my very extensive and superb stock of Fancy Goods, Presentation Books, Etc., for the Holiday trade. An inspection of which is cordially invited.

WALL PAPER.

My stock of Room Papers will always be found up to the requirements of the wants of our customers. A fresh supply of Wall Paper just received.

PICTURE FRAMING.

Picture Framing will be carried on in all its branches.

Having had 18 years' experience in the Book, Stationery, Wall Paper and Fancy Goods' business, besides being able to buy on the Cash Principle, purchasers can rely on getting good value for their money, and a well selected stock to choose from.

☞ In consideration of the foregoing, and with our best attention in the future, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal patronage heretofore given to MR. ODELL, with as many new customers as may be pleased to favour us.

A. ROBINSON,

STATIONER, ETC.,

INGERSOLL and BELLEVILLE.

Nov. 8th, 1883. 1574

PURE GROCERIES!

—AT THE INGERSOLL—

CHINA TEA HOUSE.

Headquarters the best for

TEAS, COFFEE, SPICES,

And everything in the grocery line at prices which defy competition.

The Finest Stock of CANNED GOODS to be Found Anywhere.

FISH, LARD AND KEROSENE

—Always kept in stock.—

A Choice Lot of Molasses and Syrups, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos, and Stoneware.

CANDIES. CANDIES.

A FINE LOT OF LAMPS

And everything in the above line to be found in any well regulated Grocery. In addition there is the choicest and the most select assortment of CHINA in all Shapes and Patterns. CROCKERY to be had at all prices.

GLASSWARE that cannot be beat for variety and Cheapness.

A better assortment of Canned Goods cannot be found in the County.

THOS. J. THORNTON.

Ingersoll, Oct. 25, 1883. 1572

Wind Mills, Pumps,

Lead and Iron Pipe Fittings, &c.,

HOT AIR FURNACES, REGISTERS, &c.

These furnaces have been in use for some time, and their economy and efficiency can be vouched for by any of the following parties:

REFERENCES.

John Gayfer, Esq., Druggist, Ingersoll; Geo. Currie, Esq., Beachville; T. J. Thornton, Esq., Ingersoll; Trustees' Beachville School; Mrs. Thornton, Beachville; John Shaw, Esq., Kintore; John McKay, Esq., Thamesford, and many others.

As a wood heater these furnaces are unsurpassed for economy with efficiency, cheapness and urability,

JAS. SINCLAIR.

Ingersoll, Sept. 6, 1883. 565

Magnetism Extraordin'ry

Caused daily through the beautiful display of HOLIDAY GOODS shown in

CAMPBELL'S BOOK STORE WINDOW,

These being an ordinary sample of the entire stock of Fancy & Musical Goods, Toys, Christmas Goods, Etc.

All carefully selected from the latest productions of 1883.

And will be sold below Bankrupt Prices. Liberal discount allowed to Chrismas Tree Committees.

See our Beautiful Oil Paintings. Remember the place.

P. W. CAMPBELL,

WARNER'S OLD STAND, CHRISTOPHER'S BLOCK.

December 6th, 1883. 1578

HIAWATHA JOHNSON'S WOOING.

In the city of Chicago,
Where her father made his money
Selling wheat of which he had not
To the men from Cincinnati,
Lived a soft eyed pale faced maiden—
Minnehaha E. McNulty—
(With the ascent on the penult)
Who was young, and fair, and slender,
And who wore her hair in frizzes.

Very beautiful was Minnie,
Free from care of all description,
And as William J. McNulty
Paid her bills for fancy dry goods—
Bills for seven dollar stockings,
Corsets, crimping pins, and so forth—
He would often let his memory
Wander back a score of summers
To the time when he was courting
Agnes Genevieve McCarthy
(Now the mother of his daughter),
How they used to sit at even
On the front step of her father's Mansion on the Rue de Tom Cat
Swapping lovely lies about their Wild affection for each other.
And as William J. reflected
On the past and on the present
It occured to him that Minnie
Had a quite decided bulge on
Her mamma in point of wardrobe.

In the summer when the ball club
Of Chicago lost the pennant,
Lost the pennant that their hired
Men had held since 1880,
Minnehaha went out riding
In a nobby side-bar wagon,
And her parent drove an equine
That was thought to be quite speedy.
Down the boulevard they travelled,
Every now and then proceeding
To pull out and knock the socks off
Some more unpretentious flyer,
Until Minnie and her father
Had about reached the conclusion
There was nothing in Chicago
That could make the old mare hustle,
So they chatted on the topics
Of the day—Maud S., a record,
Mr. Beecher's indigestion,
And his love for Henry Irving

But anon the ear of Minnie (Pretty ear with pink of sea shell)
Caught the soft and murmurous breathing;
Of another horse behind them,
Of another horse that seemed to
Be in something of a hurry.
From the way in which he made the Landscape vanish in perspective.
So she punched her father gently
'Twixt the sixth and seventh riblets,
And suggested that, unless he
Had a wild desire to witness
The surrounding country through a
Cloud of dust, he'd better hit the
Old bay mare just about amidships
With the whip, and holler at her.

You have seen the tempest raging
On a wild and rocky seacoast,
You have read about the battles
In which thousands bravely perished—
They were nothing to the struggle
That took place between McNulty's
Old bay mare and gray gelding
That the stranger deftly handled.
He was handsome, was the stranger,
With a form like an Apollo,
And he steered the big gray gelding
With a skill that won the heart of Minnehaha as she sat there
And beheld her parent distanced

"Hold, brave youth!" cried out McNulty:
"Pull your horse up and come hither,
I would speak with you concerning
That good steed which you are driving.
Will you sell him? What's his record?
Does he ever have blind staggers?
Is his owner a poor widow
Who is forced by want to sell him,
Or who argues that the climate
Where her husband now has gone to
Is too sultry for fast driving?
Seek not to deceive me sonny,
With a tale extremely gauzy,
But get down to bed-rock figures
On your horse, and let me have them."

Then up spoke the youth whose driving
Had enamored Minnehaha;
"I will never sell my horse, sir,
For I value him too highly.
With the swiftness of a whirlwind
He can draw two in a buggy,
And the famed steeds of the desert
Fall so far in speed below him
That if one should try to pass me,
I opine his driver quickly
Would conclude that he was going
In the opposite direction.
He is bred just like St. Julien—
Hambletonian stock, and you can Bet your everlasting dollar
He is kind, and sound, and gentle.

"Money cannot buy this horse, sir,
But to you I'll gladly give him
If you only will allow me
To pay court unto your daughter,
She who sitteth now beside you,
In the flush of maiden beauty;
Sitteth there like any lily
Tall, and fair, and pure, and stately
I have loved your daughter madly
Ever since I first beheld her
As I came up on the near side
Of your buggy and went past you.
Without her my life is aimless,
All my hopes are wrecked forever
And unless my love returned is
I will jump into the river."

"You may have her," cried McNulty;
"Have her with a parent's blessing,
And before the winter cometh,
When the leaves are turning golden.
You shall marry Minnehaha
In a style to make your head swim.
For I love my only daughter,
And would make her whole life happy,
Take her, Hiawatha Johnson—
(You will notice that I know you)—
Take her with this horse and buggy,
And let me get in behind that
Gelding with Abdallah action.
I will give my Minnehaha
To the man who pleases her,
And console myself hereafter
With a horse that beats 2:30."

In the Carquinez Woods

BY BRET HARTE.

"No," he continued, bestriding a chair, and familiarly confronting Low over its back. "No, sir—no. And you want me to say no, don't you, regarding the little walks of Nellie and a certain young man in the Carquinez Woods—ha, ha. You'd like me to say that I know nothing of the botanisings, and the herb collectings, and the picnicing there—he, he—you sly dog. Perhaps you'd like to tempt Father Wynne further, and make him swear he knows nothing of his daughter's disguising herself in a duster and meeting another young man—isn't it another young man?—all alone, eh? Perhaps you want poor old Father Wynne to say no. No, sir, nothing of the kind ever occurred. Ah, you young rascal."

Slightly troubled, in spite of Wynne's hearty manner, Low, with his usual directness, however, said, "I do not want anyone to deny that I have seen Miss Nellie."

"Certainly, certainly," said Wynne, abandoning his method, considerably disconcerted by Low's simplicity, and a certain natural reserve that shone off his familiarity. "Certainly it's a noble thing to be able to put your hand on your heart and say to the world, 'Come on, all of you. Observe me; I have nothing to conceal. I walk with Miss Wynne in the woods as her instructor—her teacher, in fact. We cull a flower here and there; we pluck a herb fresh from the hands of the Creator. We look, so to speak, from Nature to Nature's God.' Yes, my young friend, we should be the first to repel the foul calumny that could misinterpret our most innocent actions."

"Calumny?" repeated Low, starting to his feet. "What calumny."

"My friend, my noble young friend, I recognise your indignation. I know your worth. When I said to Nellie, my only child, my perhaps too simple offspring—a mere wildflower like yourself—when I said to her, 'Go, my child, walk in the woods with this young man hand in hand. Let him instruct you from the humblest roots, for he has trodden in the ways of the Almighty. Gather wisdom from his lips, and knowledge from his simple woodman's craft. Make, in fact, a collection not only of herbs, but of moral axioms and experience,' I knew I could trust you, and, trusting you, my young friend, I felt I could trust the world. Perhaps I was weak, foolish. But I thought only of her welfare. I even recall how, that to preserve the purity of her garments, I bade her don a simple duster; that to secure her from the trifling companionship of others, I bade her keep her own counsel, and seek you at seasons known but to yourselves."

"But—did Nellie—understand you?" interrupted Low hastily.

"I see you read her simple nature. Understand me? No, not at first. Her maidenly instinct—perhaps her duty to another—took the alarm. I remember her words, 'But what will Dunn say?' she asked. 'Will he not be jealous?'"

"Dunn jealous. I don't understand," said Low, fixing his eyes on Wynne.

"That's just what I said to Nellie. 'Jealous,' I said. 'What Dunn, your affianced husband, jealous of a mere friend—a teacher, a guide, a philosopher—sir, impossible.' Well, sir, she was right. He is jealous. And, more than that, he has imparted his jealousy to others. In other words, he has made a scandal."

Low's eyes flashed. "Where is your daughter now?" he said sternly.

"At present in bed, suffering from nervous attack brought on by these unjust suspicions. She appreciates your anxiety, and, knowing that you could not see her, told me to give you this." He handed Low the ring and the letter.

The climax had been forced, and, it must be confessed, was by no means the one Mr. Wynne had fully arranged in his own inner conscience. He had intended to take an ostentatious leave of Low in the bar-room, deliver the letter with archness, and escape before a possible explosion. He consequently backed towards the door for an emergency. But he was again at fault. That unaffected stoical fortitude in acute suffering, which was the one remaining pride and glory of Low's race, was yet to be revealed to Wynne's civilised eyes.

The young man took the letter and read it without changing a muscle, folded the ring in it, and dropped it into his haversack. Then he picked up his blanket, threw it over his shoulder, took his trusty rifle in his hand, and turned towards Wynne as if coldly surprised that he was still standing there.

"Are you—are you—going?" stammered Wynne.

"Are you not?" replied Low drily, leaning on his rifle for a moment as if waiting for Wynne to precede him. The preacher looked at him a moment, mumbled something, and then shambled feebly and ineffectively down the staircase before Low, with a painful suggestion to the ordinary observer of being occasionally urged thereto by the nocasin of the young man behind him.

On reaching the lower hall, wever, he endeavoured to create a diversion in his favor by dashing into the bar-room and clapping the occupants on the back with indiscriminate playfulness. But here again he seemed to be disappointed. To his great discomfiture, a large man not only returned his salutation with powerful levity, but with equal playfulness seized him in his arms, and after an ingenious simulation of depositing him in the horse-trough, set him down in affected amazement. "Bleth't if I didn't think from the weight of your hand it wath my old friend Thacramento Bill," said Curson apologetically, with a wink at the bystanders. "That'th the way Bill alwayth uthed to tackle hith friendth, till he wath one day bounthed by a prithefighter in Frithco, whom he'd mithtaken for a mithionary." As Mr. Curson's reputation was of a quality that made any form of apology from him instantly acceptable, the amused spectators made way for him as, recognising Low, who was just leaving the hotel, he turned coolly from them and walked towards him.

"Hallo!" he said, extending his hand, "You're the man I'm waiting for. Did you get a book from the Exthpreth Offithe lathth night?"

"I did. Why?"

"It'th all right. Ath I'm rethponthible for it, I only wanted to know."

"Did you send it?" asked Low, quickly fixing his eyes on his face.

"Well, not exthactly me. But it'th not worth making a mythtery of it. Teretha gave me a commithion to buy it and thend it to you anonymouthly. That'th a woman'th nonthenth, for how could the get a retheipt for it?"

"Then it was her present," said Low gloomily.

"Of courthe. It wathn't mine, my boy. I'd have thent you a Tharp'th rifle in plathe of that nutthle loader you carry, or thomething thenthible. But, I thay! what'th up? You look ath if you had been running all night."

Low grasped his hand. "Thank you," he said hurriedly; "but its nothing. Only I must be back to the Woods early. Good-bye."

But Curson retained Low's hand in his own powerful grip.

"I'll go with you a bit further," he said. "In fact, I've got thomething to thay to you—only don't be in thuch a hurry; the Woodth can wait till you get there." Quietly compelling Low to alter his own characteristic Indian stride to keep pace with his, he went on: "I don't mind thaying I rather cottoned to you from the time you acted like a white man — no offenthe—to Teretha. She thayth you were left when a child lying round, jutht ath promithcuously ath sea wath; and if I can do anything towardth putting you on the trail of your people, I'll do it. I know thome of the voyageurth who traded with the Cherokeeth, and your father wath one—wathn't he?" He glanced at Low's utterly abstracted and immobile face. "I thay, you don't theem to take a hand in thith game, pardner. What'th the row? Ith anything wrong over there?" and he pointed to the Carquinez Woods, which were just towering out of the morning horizon in the distance.

Low stopped. The last words of his companion seemed to recall him to himself. He raised his eyes automatically to the Woods and started.

"There is something wrong over there," he said breathlessly. "Look!"

"I theo nothing," said Curson, beginning to doubt Low's sanity; "nothing more than I thaw an hour ago."

"Look again. Don't you see that smoke rising straight up? It isn't blown over from the Divide; it's new smoke! The fire is in the Woods!"

"I reckon that'th tho," muttered Curson, shading his eyes with his hand. "But, hullo! wait a minute! We'll get hortheth. I say," he shouted, forgetting his lisp in his excitement—"stop!" But Low had already lowered his head and darted forward like an arrow.

In a few minutes he had left not only his companion but the last straggling houses of the outskirts far behind him, and had struck out in a long swinging trot for the disused "cut off." Already he fancied he heard the note of clamour in Indian Spring, and thought he distinguished the sound of hurrying hoofs on the great highway. But the sunken trail hid it from his view. From the column of smoke now plainly visible in the growing morning light he tried to locate the scene of the conflagration. It was evidently not a fire advancing regularly from the outer skirt of the wood, communicated to it from the Divide; it was a local outburst near its centre. It was not in the direction of his cabin in the tree. There was no immediate danger to Teresa, unless fear drove her beyond the confines of the wood into the hands of those who might recognize her. The screaming of jays and ravens above his head quickened his speed, as it heralded the rapid advance of the flames; and the unexpected apparition of a bounding body, flattened and flying over the yellow plain, told him that even the secure retreat of the mountain wild cat had been invaded. A sudden recollection of Teresa's uncontrollable terror that first night smote him with remorse and redoubled his efforts. Alone in the track of these frantic and bewildered beasts, to what madness might she be driven!

The sharp crack of a rifle from the high road turned his course momentarily in that direction. The smoke was curling lazily over the heads of a party of men in the road, while the huge bulk of a grizzly was disappearing in the distance. A battue of the escaping animals had commenced. In the bitterness of his heart he caught at the horrible sugestion, and resolved to save her from them or die with her there.

How fast he ran, or the time it took him to reach the woods, has never been ascertained. Their outlines were already hidden when he entered them. To a sense less keen, a courage less desperate, and a purpose less unaltered than Low's, the wood would have been impenetrable. The central fire was still confined to the lofty tree tops, but the downward rush of wind from time to time drove the smoke into the aisles in blinding and suffocating volumes. To simulate the creeping animals, and fall to the ground on hands and knees, feel his way through the underbrush when the smoke was densest, or take advantage of its momentary lifting, and without uncertainty, mistake, or hesitation glide from tree to tree in one undeviating course, was possible only to an experienced woodsman. To keep his reason and insight so clear as to be able in the midst of this bewildering confusion to shape that course so as to intersect the wild and unknown track of an inexperienced, frightened wanderer, belonged to Low, and Low alone. He was making his way against the wind towards the fire. He had reasoned that she was either in comparative safety to windward of it, or he should meet her being driven towards him by it, or find her succumbed and fainting at its feet. To do this he must penetrate the burning belt, and then pass under the blazing dome. He was already upon it; he could see the falling fire dropping like rain or blown like gorgeous blossoms of the conflagration across his path. The space was lit up brilliantly. The vast shafts of dull copper cast no shadow below, but there was no sign nor token of any human being. For a moment the young man was at fault. It was true this hidden heart of the forest bore no undergrowth; the cool matted carpet of the aisles seemed to quench the glowing fragments as they fell. Escape might be difficult, but not impossible, yet every moment was precious. He leaned against a tree and sent his voice like a clarion before him, "Teresa." There was no reply. He called again. A faint cry at his back from the trail he had just traversed made him turn. Only a few paces behind him, blinded and staggering, but following like a beaten and wounded animal, Teresa halted, knelt, clasped her hands, and dumbly held them out before her. "Teresa!" he cried again, and sprang to her side.

She caught him by the knees, and lifted her face imploringly to his.

"Say that again!" she cried passionately. "Tell me it was Teresa you called, and no other! You have come back for me! You would not let me die here alone!"

He lifted her tenderly in his arms and cast a rapid glance around him. It might have been his fancy, but there seemed a dull glow in the direction he had come.

"You do not speak!" she said. "Tell me! You did not come here to seek her?"

"Whom?" he said quickly.

"Nellie!"

With a sharp cry he let her slip to the ground. All the pent-up agony, rage and mortification of the last hour broke from him in that inarticulate outburst. Then catching her hands again, he dragged her to his level.

"Hear me," he cried, disregarding the whirling smoke and the fiery baptism that sprinkled them—"Hear me! If you value your life, if you value your soul, and if you do not want me to cast you to the beasts like Jezebel of old, never—never take that accursed name again upon your lips. Seek her—her? Yes! Seek her to tie her like a witch's daughter of hell to that blazing tree!" He stopped. "Forgive me," he said in a changed voice, "I'm mad, and forgetting myself and you. Come."

Without noticing the expression of half-savage delight that had passed across her face, he lifted her in his arms.

"Which way are you going?" she asked, passing her hands vaguely across his breast, as if to reassure herself of his identity.

"To our camp by the scarred tree," he replied.

"Not there, not there," she said, hurriedly; "I was driven from there just now. I thought the fire began there until I came here."

Then it was as he feared. Obeying the same mysterious law that had launched this fateful fire like a thunderbolt from the burning mountain crest five miles away into the heart of the Carquinez Woods, it had again leaped a mile beyond, and was hemming them between two narrowing lines of fire. But Low was not daunted. Retracing his steps through the blinding smoke, he strode off at right angles to the trail near the point where he had entered the wood. It was the spot where he had first lifted Nellie in his arms to carry her to the hidden spring. If any recollection of it crossed his mind at that moment, it was only shown in his redoubled energy. He did not glide through the thick underbrush as on that day, but seemed to take a savage pleasure in breaking through it with sheer brute force. Once Teresa insisted upon relieving him of the burden of her weight but after a few steps she staggered blindly against him, and would fain have recourse once more to his strong arms.

And so, alternately staggering, bending, crouching, or bounding and crashing on, but always in one direction, they burst through the jealous rampart and came upon the sylvan haunt of the hidden spring. The great angle of the half-hidden tree acted as a barrier to the wind and drifting smoke, and the cool spring sparkled and bubbled in the almost translucent air. He laid her down beside the water and bathed her face and hands. As he did so his quick eye caught sight of a woman's handkerchief lying at the foot of the disrupted root. Dropping Teresa's hands, he walked towards it, and with the toe of his moccasin gave it one vigorous kick into the ooze at the overflow of the spring. He turned to Teresa, but she evidently had not noticed the act.

"Where are you?" she asked with a smile.

Something in her movement struck him. He came towards her, and bending down looked into her face. "Teresa! Good God!—look at me. What has happened?"

She raised her eyes to his. There was a slight film across them; the lids were blackened; the beautiful lashes gone for ever!

"I see you a little now, I think," she said with a smile, passing her hands vaguely over his face. "It must have happened when he fainted and I had to drag him through the blazing brush; both my hands were full, and I could not cover my eyes."

"Drag whom?" said Low quickly.

"Why, Dunn."

"Dunn! He here?" said Low hoarsely.

"Yes; didn't you read the note I left on the herbarium? Didn't you come to the camp fire?" she asked hurriedly, clasping his hands. "Tell me quickly!"

"No!"

"Then you were not there—then you didn't leave me to die?"

"No! I swear it, Teresa!"—the stoicism that had upheld his own agony breaking down before her strong emotion,

"Thank God!" She threw her arms around him, and hid her aching eyes in his troubled breast.

"Tell me all, Teresa," he whispered in her listening ear. "Don't move; stay there and tell me all."

With her face buried in his bosom, as if speaking to his heart alone, she told him part, but not all. With her eyes filled with tears, but a smile on her lips, radiant with new found happiness, she told him how she had overheard the plans of Dunn and Brace, how she had stolen their conveyance to warn him in time. But here she stopped, dreading to say a word that would shatter the hope she was building upon his sudden revulsion of feeling for Nellie. She could not bring herself to repeat their interview—that would come later, when they were safe and out of danger; now, not even the secret of his birth must come between them with its distraction, to mar their perfect communion. She faltered that Dunn had fainted from weakness, and that she had dragged him out of danger. "He will never interfere with us—I mean," she said softly, "with me again. I can promise you that as well as if he had sworn it."

"Let him pass, now," said Low; "that will come later on," he added, unconsciously repeating her thoughts in a tone that made her heart sick. "But tell me, Teresa, why did you go to Excelsior?"

She buried her head still deeper, as if to hide it. He felt her broken heart beat against his own; he was conscious of a depth of feeling her rival had never awakened in him. The possibility of Teresa loving him had never occurred to his simple nature. He bent his head and kissed her. She was frightened, and unloosed her clinging arms; but he retained her hand, and said, "We will leave this accursed place, and you shall go with me as you said you would; nor need you leave me, unless you wish it."

She could hear the beating of her own heart through his words; she longed to look at the eyes and lips that had told her this, and read the meaning his voice alone could not entirely convey. For the first time she felt the loss of her sight. She did not know that it was, in this moment of happiness, the last blessing vouchsafed to her miserable life.

A few moments of silence followed, broken only by the distant rumor of the conflagration and crashing of falling boughs. "It may be an hour yet," he whispered, "before the fire has swept a path for us to the road below. We are safe here, unless some sudden current should draw the fire down upon us. You are not frightened?" She pressed his hand; she was thinking of the pale face of Dunn, lying in the secure retreat she had purchased for him at such a sacrifice. Yet the possibility of danger to him now for a moment marred her present happiness and security. "You think the fire will not go north of where you found me?" she asked softly.

"I think not," he said, "but I will reconnoitre. Stay where you are."

They pressed hands and parted. He leaped upon the slanting trunk and ascended it rapidly. She waited in mute expectation.

There was a sudden movement of the root on which she sat, a deafening crash, and she was thrown forward on her face.

The vast bulk of the leaning tree, dislodged from its aerial support by the gradual sapping of the spring at its roots, or by the crumbling of the bark from the heat, had slipped, made a half revolution, and falling, overbore the lesser trees in its path, and tore in its resistless momentum a broad opening to the underbrush.

With a cry to Low, Teresa staggered to her feet. There was an interval of hideous silence, but no reply. She called again. There was a sudden deepening roar, the blast of a fiery furnace swept through the opening, a thousand luminous points around her burst into fire, and in an instant she was lost in a whirlwind of smoke and flame. From the outset of its fury to its culmination twenty minutes did not elapse; but in the interval a radius of two hundred yards around the hidden spring was swept of life and light and motion.

For the rest of that day and part of the night a pall of smoke hung above the scene of desolation. It lifted only toward the morning, when the moon shone high, picked out in black and silver the shrunken and silent columns of those roofless vaults, shorn of base and capital. It flickered on the still, overflowing pool of the hidden spring, and shone upon the white face of Low, who, with a rootlet of the fallen tree holding him down like an arm across his breast, seemed to be sleeping peacefully in the sleeping water.

* * * * *

Contemporaneous history touched him as briefly, but not as gently. "It is now definitely ascertained," said the Slumgullion Mirror, "that Sheriff Dunn met his fate in the Carquinez Woods in the performance of his duty; that fearless man having received information of the concealment of a band of horse thieves in their recesses. The desperadoes are presumed to have escaped, as the only remains found are those of two wretched tramps, one of whom is said to have been a digger, who supported himself upon roots and herbs, and the other a degraded half white woman. It is not unreasonable to suppose that the fire originated through their carelessness, although Father Wynne, of the First Baptist Church, in his powerful discourse of last Sunday, pointed at the warning and lesson of such catastrophes. It may not be out of place here to say that the rumors regarding an engagement between the pastor's accomplished daughter and the late lamented sheriff are utterly without foundation, as it has been an ex dit for some time in all well-informed circles that the indefatigable Mr. Brace, of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, will shortly lead the lady to the hymeneal altar."

THE END.

How the Widow Measured the Resolutions of Sympathy.

John William Blank belonged to the Ancient and Modern Highly Honorable Sons of Guns. If it wasn't that, it was some other fraternal order which meets every Monday night and pays so much to the heirs of every member who happens to die.

John William happened to die the other month, and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions and present them to his wife in person. The first part of their duties was fulfilled to the entire satisfaction of the lodge, but the committee had some little trouble in finding Mrs. Blank. They traced her from one neighbor to another, and finally found her at her sister's, hat and shawl on and ready to go out.

"Resolutions of sympathy, eh? Well, read 'em."

The chairman of the committee proceeded to read that John William was a good husband and a kind father and a citizen of unapproachable integrity, when the widow interrupted:

"Too much taffy! we used to have a fight every week, and as for his being a kind father, we never had any children. As for his integrity, he stole all the wood we burned last winter!"

The chairman gulped down something and continued to read that John William was an upright brother, a man with a heart full of sympathy for the misfortunes of others, and that charity and forgiveness were the beacon fires which guided his footsteps.

"Fudge!" sneered the widow. "I washed for the money to pay his dues to the lodge, and all the sympathy any one got out of him wouldn't buy a cent's worth of court plaster! Forgiveness! Well, some of you ought to have sat down on his hat some time! He'd have revenge if it cost him a year in State Prison. Beacon fires is purty good, considerin' that we never had a decent stove in the house!"

"Madam, your husband has been called hence."

"Exactly; I was at the funeral and ought to know."

"He was cut down like a flower."

"Well, flowers ought to let whiskey and saloons and plug tobacco and old sledge alone."

"And we trust that our loss is his gain."

"Well, if he's any better off I'm glad on't, but I guess the gain is on your side. Now that's all I want to hear. I can pick up a thousand better men than him with my eyes shut. I'm in a hurry to go down and see a woman who offers to sell a fur lined circular for $15, and if you have any more highfalutin Shakespeare to get off my sister will take it in and save it till I come back!"—San Francisco Exchange.

Why go limping and whining about your corns, when a 25 cent bottle of Holloway's Corn Cure will remove them?

Love knows hidden paths.

It Wasn't Heart Disease.

"And is this not bliss, Hortense?"

"Bliss, Alexis? Oh, more than bliss. Yet when I think of how our lives are drifting on this sea of happiness, when I think of how day after day nothing comes to mar our bliss, no cloud spot to fleck the bright sky of our peace, I sometimes shudder and the thought comes to me that something, some indefinable danger, may come to us and blot out forever this sweet dream of peace."

"Nay, say not so, Hortense. I know that our lives are happier far than come to the lot of most mortals, but why should we dread? Do I not love you?"

"Yes, darling, oh, so fondly."

"Have I not strong arms to battle for you in the race for riches?"

"Yes, darling, so strong."

"Then why do you conjure up such fancies, dearest?"

"Oh, I know not. But come, let us banish these forebodings. Whirl me in a waltz, darling, and, held in your strong arms, with your heart beating to mine, I will forget them."

They were lovers, and when the golden October came they were to be wed.

They had been seated on the sofa, and even as they had conversed her head had rested on his shoulder, and eye spoke to eye and lip to lip.

Oh, that they had remained there.

See, they rise. His arm is placed firmly around her supple waist, her hand is held lightly in his, and together they float around the room, the very poetry of motion.

But hark! A cry of anguish and Hortense tears herself away and staggers to a chair.

There she sits with pale, pinched lips and a look of agony on her face, while her young head is bent over till it nearly touches her lap.

"Oh

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1884.

THE Liberals of South Oxford met at Mt. Elgin to-day.

THE annual meeting of the Conservative Association of South Oxford will be held on Wednesday next.

THE Municipal Elections on Monday resulted in a large infusion of new blood at the County Council.

IT is almost daily becoming more evident that it is the duty of everyone to shoot down any man caught in a house in the dead of night. It is safe to assume that he is there for no good and if surprised is prepared to commit murder.

THE Christian Guardian—the organ of the Methodist Church of Canada—is well pleased with the decision that the Government of Ontario, and not the Dominion authorities, has a right to supervise the liquor traffic. Our contemporary says: "This decision will set at rest all doubt as to to the validity of the Crooks Act, and will greatly strengthen the hands of all lovers of law and order in enforcing its provisions."

IT is beginning to look as if the Hon. David Mills would yet be introduced to the Dominion parliament as member for Bothwell. Bothwell was one of the constituencies carved up by the Conservative administration in order to put Mr. Mills out and Mr. Hawkins in. Mr. Hawkins secured the seat through one of the deputy-returning officers throwing out twenty-five votes, on technical grounds. These votes have been admitted by the judge, and Mr. Mills now has a majority of nine.

THE agricultural products exported from Canada during the past ten years are shown by the trade and navagation returns to have been as follows:

1871	$22,436,071
1872	25,795,175
1873	29,238,457
1874	34,209,312
1875	29,958,865
1876	34,657,319
1877	28,909,993
1878	32,029,611
1879	33,729,068
1880	39,901,905
1881	42,628,546

THE Woodstock Sentinel-Review remarks that G. R. Pattullo (editor of the S.-R.) will not be a candidate for South Oxford. How considerate! Particularly when no one outside of the individual named ever thought of such a thing. South Oxford is going to elect a resident of the riding this trip, and even supposing we wanted an outsider we should look for some one more worthy the honour that a paid political hack who attempted to destroy the harmony of his party in his own riding. Our contemporary alarmeth itself unnecessarily. What chances the editor ever had in South Oxford are now shattered forever.

THEY have some strange liquor laws out in Illinois. The Attorney-General of that State has just rendered an opinion that the sale of intoxicating liquors is prohibited by the law within two miles of any incorporated city, town or village. The important point of the decision is that, in the designated belt around such corporations, neither the corporate authorities nor the country boards can grant a liquor license. Thus, while a county may issue licenses to sell liquor, and an incorporated city, town or village may do likewise, there must always be a circle around these municipalities two miles in diameter, in which absolute prohibition will be enforced.

THE Poor House by-law has been defeated. The result has been attained through ignorance of the question. In some quarters we learn that exaggerated accounts were given to the electors concerning the expense of erecting and sustaining such an institution. In West Oxford their was no municipal election, consequently comparatively few turned out to vote on the by-law. Ingersoll gave 425, Tilsonburg 117, South Norwich and Woodstock each 500 for the by-law. We believe if the by-law was again submitted to the vote of the people, after giving sufficient time for the question to be properly explained, an over-whelming majority would be recorded for it. The cost to the municipalities for caring for the poor would be much less than at present, and would be divided on all ratepayers alike. It will be the duty of the County Council at their next meeting to discuss the advisability of again submitting the by-law to the electors at an early date.

LENOX.

DIVORCE COURTS.

(Communicated.)

Our American friends are begining to feel somewhat uneasy about the looseness of their Divorce Courts, and the ease with which men burst the bonds wherewith God binds men and women together. Not but they have good reason for their uneasiness. When one city of his fatherland grants, on an average three divorces a day, the thoughtful man who loves his country and rejoices in her integrity cannot but feel anxious. How bitter must it be to a father when his girl, the joy of his home, entrusts her happiness to the mercy of a comparative stranger, to think that if her husband should at any time tire of her, the Courts offer every facility for ruining her happiness and casting a cloud over the rest of her life. How loose must be the morality of a country where "incompatibility of temper" is a sufficient excuse for breaking the most solemn vow known to us. Yet with all these bad features, the other side of the question is not one whit better. Bad men often marry good women, and vice versa. Is it just or human to force a wife to acknowledge as her husband the man who has broken every vow, brought disgrace and shame upon her by his crime and villany, and to crown all maltreats her for her constancy? Is it right that a man should work for and keep the woman who has dishonored him? Need we have either these extremes? Must we have either the looseness of the United States, or the unbreakable bond of the British Dominion. Can we not have a law founded upon reason and administered with justice and moderation? Can we not have a Divorce Court without so much looseness? One would think not from the way the Divorce Law works in Canada and the United States. Our lawmakers, disgusted with the operations of the American Courts, and knowing that it would scarcely meet the modern idea of justice to be without an apparent means of release from a union that had become unbearable, have placed the matter in the hands of a council of elderly ladies euphemistically called a Senate, (brought into existence seemingly for the express purpose of proving that the old motion of "'tis only noble to do good" is not a universal axiom,) knowing that they in their efforts to find "how not to do" anything would make the Divorce Law a blank upon our Statute Books. Some may think this is overdrawn. A certain Mr. Campbell would have thought so years ago. He was not quite convinced that "all that glitters is not gold" and tried to get a divorce from this bevy of old girls under circumstances that convinced the people of the justice of his request, but their ladyships sympathizing with their petticoated sisters have kept mixing and putting the matter off to the present day, and Mr. Campbell cannot for the life of him tell whether he is a benedict or a grass widower, and our lawyers are unable to help him out of his dilemma. Surely it is time the country came to the aid of this unlucky man by establishing a Court to put in operation a rigid divorce law; one that would not allow "incompatability of temper" to be a sufficient reason for parting husband and wife, but would separate a woman or a man from a libertine, a criminal or a vagrant.

(To be Continued.)

Washington Letter.

(From our regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 7, 1884.

To-day the real work of the session begins. Members have flocked back to the city, from their constituents and full of "views." It is noticeable that some come back in a combative mood. The outlook is squally, and indications are that the tariff will stir up a lively legislative whirlwind. But at present the two great committees of the House, those of the ouigo and the income, as Mr. Cox wittily describes them, entertain different views upon tariff legislation. Mr. Morrison, chairman of the latter, wants a long session and tariff legislation, while Mr. Randall wishes to hurry up the outgo in the shape of the appropriation bills have a short session, and adjourn without tariff legislation. The air is unusually fruitful of rumours of what is to be done.

There is certainly a general growing impression in Congress that something must be done for our Navy and coast defense. When one seriously considers it, our negligence in the matter of providing suitable defenses for our great cities is little less than criminal, and Congressmen are begining to realize this. A prominent member of one of the Houses of Congress, who made a tour through Europe last summer, had opportunity to learn how our defenses appeared to other nations. He says that among the first questions asked him by leading French politicans were: "What are the intensions of the United States Government in regard to the Lesseps' Canal? Will the theory enunciated in the Monore doctrine be adhered to?" "Your country is not strong enough," said M. Challemel-Lacour, a member of the French Cabinet, to him while discussing this matter, "in naval and military forces to compel any European nation to accept your theory of the supremacy of American ideas on the North American continent. Holding the opinions you do, it is the wonder of all Europe that you have permitted your means of defense and offense, that is, your army and navy to become so reduced. Your Navy has not a single modern ship of war. How, then, do you intend to maintain the Monroe doctrine if France questions your right of interference with the Lesseps' canal?" The American rather shamefacedly said that that doctrine had been the time honoured theory of the Government when it was less strong than it now is. "I admit your wealth but not your physical power," was the sharp answer, "The glory of the great country across the sea is an actual threat to every nation in Europe except France, and nothing would so please them as to witness your humiliation. Why there is not a first class fortification on the whole American coast line. It takes a whole year to build a first-class modern gun. Your cities would be shelled and sacked and laid under tribute while you were creating a navy, and how could you rebuild your fortifications with 1,000-pound shells falling about the ears of the workingmen? Be sure that your defenceless condition is thoroughly well known and commented upon by every power in Europe, and sooner or later your humiliation will come if you persist in your course of allowing the rich cities of the Atlantic seaboard to become a temptation by their defencelessness to the cupidity or arrogance of the ironclads of the weakest power in Europe." I have repeated only in part the material portions of this most interesting conversation. The members intends offering a resolution relative to the Lesseps Canal this session, and he will repeat on the floor in discussing it what is said in the interview above.

The report of the acting Secretary of the Senate for the last fiscal year develops some curious facts and figures, relative to senatorial beverages, pills, etc. It shows that 516 quarts of bethesda water were consumed by that body. The water is kept in bottles upon ice in the cloak rooms, and until last year members of the house used to come over and drink with the Senate. Then the Senate told the House that if it was so fond of mineral waters it might buy them out of its own contingent fund. 2,100 two-grain quinine pills were also purchased, an average of nearly 54 grains to each Senator. Among the peculiar purchases was a bottle of arnica, 3 dozen shoe brush sets, at $30 per dozen; 1 dozen Italian cosmetics, half a dozen Lubin's powder, 2 dozen bottles of ginger. Each Senator is allowed $125 for stationary and newspapers for the year. This account shows that some of them read a high class of literature, some liberally patronize home papers, and some, notably Senator Ingalls, provide their children with the best standard juvenile publications. David Davis drew $80.31 of his fund in cash.

LENOX.

SUICIDE AT TORONTO.

A Young Dressmaker Throws Herself over a Bridge.

Toronto, Jan. 8.—A sad case of suicide while in a state of mental depression occurred early this morning. Miss Catherine Miller, dressmaker, 355½ Yonge street threw herself off the White bridge at Rosedale, about 2 o'clock this morning, a distance of 15 feet to the ground, and when picked up was found to have broken her neck. The relatives of the deceased woman in this city can give no other reason for the strange action than that she was low spirited and in ill-health. She left the house about 6 o'clock in the evening for a short walk, and wandered as far as Rosedale, where she met her death. Great sympathy is felt for Miss Sarah Miller, her sister and partner in the business. The deceased was a consistent member of St. James' Square Presbyterian Church, and was universally respected. It is said that a married sister resides in Hamilton. There is to be no inquest, the police on finding the body handing it over at once to the relatives.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

Three School Children Found in a Snow Drift.

Last Wednesday forenoon, about ten o'clock, Mr. Sam Wheaton, of Nissouri, was walking along the 3rd line of London township, accompanied by Mr Mayland. A heavy blinding snow-storm was beating from the north-west, and it was as much as the two travellers could do to keep their heads up to the wind. Mr. Wheaton fancied he heard a feeble wail not far from the road, and proceeding to one side of the road they found three children hudddled together in a heap, and the snow drifting over them to such an extent as to lead a person at first sight to suppose they formed part and parcel of the drift which extended along towards the fence corner. The children belonged to S. S. No. 17, London, and were on their way to school, and when they were overpowered by the pelting snow they lay down to escape the biting blast. Messrs. Wheaton and Mayland just arrived in time, as the children were chilled through and through, and although not frozen, yet were powerless and numbed. The two men took them as best they could in their arms, and carried them a distance of nearly half a mile to Mr. Joseph Kernahan's, 2nd con., lot 4, when they were soon thawed out, refreshed, and sent home in a sleigh. These little ones had to walk a distance of two miles to the school house, and they were not half way when discovered.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

HAND in your subscriptions for any paper publication in the world, to J. G. Campbell in the Post Office Book Store. 51r

A GIGANTIC SWINDLE.

One of the Most Dazzling and Deadly Schemes ever Conceived.

The trial of the Marquis de Rays, charged with falsely inducing many people to subscribe to an alleged enterprise for the colonization of the island of Port Breton, in the South Seas, some two years ago, with misappropriation of funds, and also with inducing several hundred persons to embark and settle upon said island, most of whom perished through privations, has been concluded. The Court condemned the Marquis de Rays to four years' imprisonment. Four of his associates were convicted and sentenced to prison, two of them to two years each, one to eight months and one to six months. All of them were fined 3,000 francs each. Two others were sentenced to one and five years' imprisonment respectively. Three others, charged with complicity in the swindle, were acquitted.

AN ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMME.

In July, 1877, the Marquis de Rays, who is said to belong to an ancient Breton family, and to have such a passion for travelling that before the age of twenty he had travelled over America, and even attempted to found a West African colony in Senegal, advertised throughout France a scheme for colonizing Port Breton. He claimed that he had obtained possession of the territory by a treaty with Maragano King of the Island of new Ireland, at the south-west portion of which Port Breton lies. Intending colonists were offered fertile land for about $1 per hectare (nearly two and a half acres), and the Marquis painted for them bright pictures of speedy fortune. Subscription lists were opened in Europe, and were soon filled up by a number of small capitalists, chiefly hard working agriculturists. Styling himself King Charles I. of the new colony, and adding to his gains by creating an order of nobility and selling titles, the Marquis aroused great enthusiasm among his dupes, who became eager to start off at once for the land of promise.

The vessel Chandernagor was chartered by him and left a Dutch port with eighty-nine passengers. Then commenced the revelation of the falsity of the romance. The company's officials and the ship's crew were continually fighting and quarrelling; the captain was a brutal drunkard, and the mate a man named Seyhens, thoroughly incompetent to perform his duties. The berths were wretched, each consisting of a mattress and a sheet; the ship was filthy; the diet was detestable. Passengers fell sick, but there was neither doctor nor medicine-chest on board. Even this was not all. The captain called upon the emigrants to do the work of the crew, and if they refused he had them triced up by the thumbs until they fainted, when they were revived by being deluged with buckets of salt water.

HOPES BLASTED.

This wretched journey finished in January, 1880. Sixteen men were put on shore at Laughlin Island with a small quantity of provisions and left there. They could find neither fish nor game; the water was undrinkable, and the ground was so rocky that cultivation was impossible. Four of them volunteered to go in search of assistance, and, after thirty-five days' drifting about, they reached Test Island, where they were relieved by some English missionaries. Many of those left behind died from starvation and despair, and the survivors were subsequently rescued by an English gunboat and carried to Australia. The balance of the emigrants, or colonists, who had been carried to Port Breton, had suffered similarly. The Marquis sent out from Europe another shipload of colonists and only two of these were found to be alive when the ship India took out a third batch shortly afterwards. Still another crowd of men, women, and children, to the number of 180, were sent out from Barcelona. Many of them were comparatively well-to-do, and had paid large sums for settlements in Port Breton. At Singapore the captain heard rumours of the true state of affairs in Cape Breton, and tried to persuade the emigrants to go no further; but such was their confident enthusiasm in the colonization scheme that they persisted in their desire to be taken on to their destination.

Here is the public prosecutor's statement of what followed:—"On their arrival the colonists found at Port Breton, instead of a town, with churches, docks, and factories, two unfinished wooden buildings, and a poor, half-famished Italian. The man related his sufferings on the adjacent Isle of Bougainville. He had five companions. These were killed and eaten by the native cannibals. He, too, would have shared the same fate but for his tears. The barbarian chief thought it so funny to see him weeping that he spared his life on condition that he should weep or laugh whenever he was told to amuse the savages in that way. He was compelled to live on raw human flesh. He was rescued after three months' awful misery."

This narrative was a terrible blow to the hopes of the sanguine colonists, who found Port Breton to be shut in by mountains, with an eight months' rainy season, and absolutely without pasturage or arable land. They, too, suffered terribly from scarcity of food and malarial fever, and finally, out of 170 survivors, only four men were left in health. One of these, a carpenter, was so certain of his approaching death that he made his own coffin and cut his name upon it. Shellfish cast among the rocks were literally devoured, and even the rain-water that drenched them was a blessing, for it, at least, was drinkable. They were rescued and taken to Sydney, and many children, whose parents had died in Port Breton, were compelled to wander through Australia and beg for charity, and, as the agent of the Marquis in Australia absconded without offering to provide a passage back to France for any of the unfortunate Port Breton colonists, the majority had to seek the assistance of the French Consuls, who brought the scandal prominently under the notice of the home authorities, with the result that that the Marquis de Rays finds himself to-day at the gates of a prison.

FOUR GREAT ENGLISH EMPIRES.

New Powers Emerging.

Chicago Interior.

The Englishman at home are very much surprised at the action of their fellow-subjects in convention assembled at Sydney, Australia. North of the Australian continent lies the great island of new Guinea, which is itself nine hundred miles in greatest length and three hundred in greatest width—say 100,000 square miles in area. The Sydney convention met to determine upon the annexation of this huge preserve to the colonial dominions. Not content with this demand, they proclaimed the Monroe doctrine, and issued their manifesto to all the world in the audacious command, "Hands off the Pacific!" and they inform the Imperial Government that they are ready to inforce this policy and do so at their own expense. This, the Pall Mall says, "is not the idle vapouring of excited pamphleteers. These men are in earnest, They are the responsible representatives of States destined in the near future to cast the nations of the older world into the shade, and to rival the mighty growth of the American Republic," and the Gazette admits that the colonists are destined to have their own way about it. While the Imperial Government has put its veto upon the annexation scheme of the colonists, there is no mistaking the satisfaction with which those schemes are regarded in England, nor will there be any serious opposition on their part, There is no exaggeration about the future of the Pacific dominions. A great Republic is there far advanced in the formative processes. He who lives fifty years from this time we will see the United States of the Pacific standing alone, as one of the great military and maritime powers of the world. The probability is that the Australian continent, now divided into five Provinces, will be further divided into ten or twelve great States. Guinea two, New Zealand, Tasmania, the Sundias group, the Molucca group, the Solomon group, the New Hebrides group, each forming a State—twenty great States in all, with their confederated capital securely located on the continent. We shall have three, and (if the Canadians get up for themselves and do not come in with us) four great English Protestant Empires. The American dominates the western world; the Australian has just asserted its dominance of the Pacific; the British asserts her old claim of the sovereignty of the seas.

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

NEWS ITEMS.

A foot of snow is reported at Memphis, Tenn.

There are now 18,000 weavers on strike in north and north-east Lancashire.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company is preparing at Kingston for a second track.

The town of Prescott has voted to unite with the County of Leeds and Grenville.

The Czar is said to be suffering from delirium as a result of recent Nihilistic threats.

The mayoralty contest at London, resulted if favour of Ald. Hyman by 620 majority over Ald. Browne.

Simcoe, Berlin, St. Thomas and London carried the Free Library by-law and Whitby defeated it.

At Prescott, Friday evening, Mrs. M. C. McDermott, 75 years of age, fell into a cistern and was drowned.

A verdict tantamount to one of wilful murder has been returned in the case of the death of William Vansickle at Brantford.

An anti-organ member of the Shannonville Presbyterian Church locked the congregation out on Sunday last.

A St. Catharines lady is in a critical condition from a blow inflicted by a burglar, whom she discovered burglarizing her cellar.

At Monroevill, Pa., on January 7, Richard H. Beatty, who has squandered a fortune of $30,000, was frozen to death in his uncle's stable.

An extensive fire in Hope-street School Toronto, jeopardized the lives of the children, but the admirable order prevented any accident.

The Tichborne claimant will shortly be released from prison. His friends have bought for him the celebrated Granville hotel in London.

The Marquis of Lansdowne pays his first official visit to Toronto this week. The city is making preparation to receive him with the honour due to his high position as representative of the Sovereign and constitutional head of the Canadian Government.

On Monday Bishop Baldwin, accompanied by Mrs. Baldwin, visited Alma College, St. Thomas, and were accorded a hearty welcome by Principal Austin and the faculty. Bishop Baldwin made a very appropriate, earnest and eloquent address to the students on the subject of personal religion.

They have begun to enforce the "four-mile" law in Tennessee. It is virtual prohibition. As a result the river steamers are freighted with jugs of whisky for private consumers. The W. A. Johnson recently steamed away from Paducah with 800 jugs for distribution along the river bank.

Cardinal Manning has issued an order that a branch of the Catholic Total Abstinence League of the Cross be founded in every Catholic school, and that the manager of each school must be President and an abstainer. He has worked an extraordinary change among the Irish of Westminster, who, from being generally poor and thriftless, are now prosperous.

The observatory on the top of Ben Nevis, Scotland, is now in good working order, and M. Omand and staff are domiciled there. The last ascent was made with difficulty, as the snow was fourteen feet deep and a passage had to be cut through. The party sank often to the shoulder. The journey occupied nine hours. The observators will be cut off for months from the world.

The vacant Irish Chancellorship has been filled by the appointment of Sir Edward Sullivan. Much has been said by the English press about the enormous salary attached to this office $40,000, with a pension of $20,000 on retirement, wholly irrespective of duration of tenure). It is $10,000 a year more than that of the English Chancellor, whose duties as Chancellor, are twice as arduous, and he only receives $30,000 as Chancellor, his other $20,000 being for his duties as Speaker of the House of Lords. Besides, living in Dublin is at least 20 per cent. cheaper than in London.

Though there has been but one poet ennobled in England, there have been numbers of trades people, John Coventy, from whom the present Earl of Coventry is descended, was a mercer of London, and Lord Mayor in 1425; Stephen Brown, a grocer, gave Viscount Montague to the peerage; the Capels, Earls of Essex, are descended from a draper; Edward Osborne, the father of the Dukes of Leeds, was a cloth worker; from William Craven, a tailor, sprang the Earl of Craven, just deceased; Lord Dudley and Ward is descended from William Ward, a working jeweller.

In Waterloo County, it is the custom to confer the honor of the Wardenship on each municipality in turn. Next year, it is New Hamburg's turn. But it happens (as we learn from the Galt Reporter) that the village has a lawsuit with the county in regard to the erection and maintenance of a bridge; and if the suit is continued, and the usual course in regard to the Wardenship followed, the singular spectacle would be presented of the Reeve of Hamburg, on behalf of that municipality, being plaintiff in the suit, and as Warden of the County of Waterloo, defendant in the same suit! Here is a pretty mess of fish to fry!

The seventy-five men who lynched Charles Harvey, taking him from the jail in Petersburg, Pike county, Ind., between 1 and 2 o'clock on Sunday morning last, cut the wires that connect the town with places that have telegraph offices. They surrounded the jail silently and broke down the front door. The youth they sought fainted when he saw them. Every man had revolvers. They put a rope around his neck and pinioned his arms, and bade him walk ahead of them. At the edge of the town they halted under a locust tree, and five minutes later all was over. A corpse swung under a limb, and in its hands was a card with the words, "More to follow." There was a storm of sleet, and when, at 10 o'clock, the coroner cut the body down, it was covered with ice. Harvey was 21 years of age. The crime for which he was lynched was that of waylaying and killing Henry Custin, Jr., for purposes of robbery.

BURNING OF A CONVENT.

A Panic Seizes the One Hundred Female Inmates—Many Jump from Windows—27 Lives Known to be Lost.

St. Louis, Jan. 6.—The Institute of the Immaculate Conception, Sisters of Notre Dame, at Belleville, Ill., was destroyed by fire last night. There were ninety pupils, all girls, from ten years to adult age, several teachers and other inmates. After the fire started an attempt was made by the Sisters to extinguish it. Failing, efforts were made to remove the pupils. The flames spread so rapidly that no order could be preserved.

A PANIC SEIZED BOTH CHILDREN AND SISTERS, and there was a wild, confused rush to escape. Forty or more pupils are known to have got out, but several in their fright jumped from the windows,

EITHER KILLED OR BADLY INJURED.

Miss M. Campbell, teacher, leaped from the third story and died in a few minutes. Another climbed the roof of a portico and either fell or was blown off fatally injured. Among others injured by jumping were Daisy Eberman, of Belleville; Agnes Schneider, Lou Moit, East St. Louis; Fanny Rankes, Washington, Mo.; Sister Reparata, Sister Stylit, Manassa and fifteen to twenty smaller pupils. The fire department was of little avail against the flames, and in an hour the entire building was a mass of ruins. It is reported the fire started from a furnace in the basement. The flames spread upward

CUTTING OFF MOST OF THE EXITS.

When the ruins had sufficiently cooled volunteer corps went to work to bring out the bodies. At times the searchers found two or three charred masses huddled close together, seemingly seeking protection in one another from the advancing flames. Two bodies were found in the rear part of the building buried into an unrecognizable mass, but the majority were found beneath, where the dormitory is situated.

THE TOTAL KNOWN DEATHS ARE 27,

22 of which were pupils and five Sisters. Among the latter was Sister Superior Mary Jerome. On the fourth floor pupil boarders with three Sisters slept. On the third floor the remaining Sisters slept, and on the second floor orphans and half orphans slept. On this second floor the inmates escaped.

DISTRICT NEWS.

East Nissouri.

The East and West Nissouri and West Zorra Mutual Fire Insurance Co., meet at Kintore to-morrow (Friday.)

Beachville.

A successful magic lantern entertainment was held in the Town Hall, Beachville, on behalf of the Sunday School of Trinity Church, on Tuesday Jan. 8th.

North Oxford.

Our people had a hand to hand combat over the Reeveship, so closely did the contest run that each party were sure of electing their candidate, and the result shows they were pretty close in their reckoning, Mr. Jarvis winning by a small majority.

Woodstock.

The first of the meetings of the week of prayer was held Monday night in the school house of new St. Paul's Church. The rector of Woodstock, the Rev. J. J. Hill, A.M., presided, and after a hymn had been sung, expressed his great pleasure at the union and Christian feeling which prevailed in the town among the various branches of the Church of God, and his delight to meet with the clergymen of the various churches in our own school room. The Rev. C. Williams, of the Canada Methodist Church, the Rev. W. T. McMullin, of Knox Church, the Rev. W. A. McKay, A.B., Chalmer's Church, the Rev. T. Trotter, of the Baptist Church, and the Rev. Robt. Cade, of the Primitive Methodist Church, joined with the rector in making the opening meeting one of the most instructive and profitable which has ever been held in Woodstock. Mr. Pilcher presided at the organ, while the excellent choir assisted in singing the beautiful hymns selected from the Church of England Hymnal Companion.

Avon.

Mr. John Dafoe left on the 2nd inst., for Belleville. Mr. Wm. Jolliffe started on the 4th instant for Peterborough. Mr. P. E. Whaley, of this place, left on the 7th inst., for St. Thomas, where he will attend the Collegiate Institute. Mr. John Scoffin is visiting friends at Leamington. Miss Emma Laur, of Port Stanley, is visiting at Mr. J. Laur's. Mr. D. Jolliffe, of Thamesville, is visiting his friends and relatives in this place.

Mr. Wm. Rowe received from the Avon cheese company, for five cows, $2.050. This is a good return we think. Mr. Rowe's cows did the best of any patron that sent to the Avon cheese factory.

Mr. Wm. Monett is visiting his daughter at Oil City.

Mr. S. Morris left on the 7th inst. for St. Catherines, where he will attend the Collegiate Institute.

Mr. S. Lucas had his house (two miles north of Avon) burned about two o'clock Tuesday morning. It is not known how it caught but is supposed from a defective chimney.

Mr. D. McLachlan was returned Councillor over Mr. Thos. Lane with 35 majority.

Tilsonburg.

It is said that Mr. E. Borland, carriage builder, will shortly resume business, having come to some sort of a settlement with his creditors. We hope so, as the shutting up of his establishment would be a serious loss to the town.

Mr. J. A. Leach, cigar manufacturer, has assigned, but it is said that the establishment will shortly be re-opened and go into business on a more extensive scale.

A well attended missionary meeting was held in the English church on Monday evening last. Rev. Mr. Scott, of Orangeville, Rev. Mr. Fisher, of this town, and various other speakers addressed the audience, and were listened to with rapt attention for the space of two hours.

On account of the pastor of the Presbyterian church, Rev. M. McGregor, being indisposed, a student from Knox college filled the pulpit of that church last Sunday.

The young people of the Methodist church organized a "Mutual Improvement Literary Society" last Monday evening, and elected officers for the ensuing season. We have not learned the names of the officers elected.

A Mr. McMann has been appointed manager of Harrison & McTaggart's bank. He seems to be an obliging and genial gentleman, and no doubt will fill the position with credit.

Mr. John Haley, a farmer, living a few miles from here, and well known to the residents of this town, died from injuries received a few weeks ago, through his team having become frightened and running away, throwing him out. He suffered acute pain during his indisposition. He was buried last Monday.

Mr. J. D. Skein, son of Mr. John Skein, bookseller, of this place, was married in Toronto last Wednesday, to a young lady of that city. We wish Mr. S. supreme happiness.

As the Municipal Council for the ensuing year was elected by acclamation on nomination day, we were not troubled with that feverish excitement which generally follows an election contest. Still the various polling places were kept open to get the vote on the County Poor House By-Law. At the close of the poll the vote stood in favor of By-Law, 122; against, 5. The electors did not seem to care whether it was carried or defeated, and consequently a very small vote was polled.

LEARN SOMETHING USEFUL.—Below we give an extract from a letter to a friend in which the advice therein may prove useful to more than one young lad:—"As you say your son is doing nothing just now, I would suggest to him, if tired of school, the advantages of training his hands into useful members, either at carpentering or cabinet work or anything that would enable him to use tools to some purpose and without endangering one's own or somebody else's life and limbs. In these practical days the man who cannot help himself is sure to get left, and an educated head without correspondingly skilled hands appears to me about as useless as a steam engine without the steam or either the steam without the engine. If a good precedent is wanted, Prince Albert "the Good" provided a very respectable one by having his son's taught carpentry, and I suppose the Prince, of Wales could to-day (if not too fat) earn his board and a dollar or two by "shoving the jack plane," you see I'm "coming out strong" on this point, but its because I dislike to see a man who "can't iron off an duck's nest." In allusion to the old time custom of placing an old iron hoop or two about the nest of a setting duck or goose. I was a little surprised to see in the laboratory of our professor of chemistry a lot of tools sufficent for a village blacksmits or carpenter, and still more to discover our lecturer had not only a work shop for tools, but also for "Boys," and was well acquainted with our autocraes of eatomology.—DRS. HORN AND LECONTE."

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

CANDY.—One of our large manufactures had sixteen barrels of adulterated candy dumped in Toronto Bay by the Government Inspector. You can tell them by the price. The genuine article at Vance's, Thames street. 80

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

ALL grocers keep Moss & Co's Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, ask for it and take no other. 75

VANCE'S oyster parlour is now open. Give him a call. 71.

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ZOPESA at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

No table is complete without Moss & Co's Celebrated Mustard. 75

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

FOR Nettle Rash, Itching Piles, Ringworm Eruptions, and all skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 82¢

A good second hand organ wanted. Address box 435, Ingersoll. 81.

THE RED STAIN IN THE SNOW.

WEDNESDAY'S DISASTER ON THE GRAND TRUNK.

In the whirl and rush of the snow,
In the morning, chilly and grim,
Some men in the cars felt the cheerful glow
Of the dearest comfort a man may know,
That somebody's thinking of him.

And others glad in their fresh young life,
Sturdy of muscle and limb,
Eager to enter the world's greatest life,
Unblessed by a babe or the love of a wife,
Found never a morning dim.

They were only working men, of course,
Hardly refined to read
Up to the standard, in prouse or verse,
And one or two had been used to curse.
—But, talk no ill of the dead.

Yet ah, that valley of fire and snow!
The white banks lit by the red!
The mute meek faces that looked up so,
The mangled men, with their cries of woe,
And the frozen banks for a bed.

Bright hearths at morning grew black at night,
And hopeful hearts sank low,
And out of the doors there is naught in sight
But the dark, implacable, far spaced night,
And the whirl of the steady snow.

Ah Christ, the Christ of workingmen,
Bend down thy piteous brow!
Mary and Martha's Saviour when Thou gavest them consolation—then
Be with our women now.

—Toronto News.

Bosh!

London Advertiser.

Some of our esteemed contemporaries have of late adopted the system of breaklines in their paragraphs,
Because they they think it is smart,
And clever,
And frisky,
As though quad-lines represented thoughts.
The idea is not new,
It is old,
Old as the hills,
Or the valleys either.
Old as Brick Pomeroy,
Or George Francis Train,
Or the red-hot lunatic of the late lamented Okolona States,
Which is now dead,
Defunct,
As it ought to be,
A musician would call this style staccato;
A printer "fat,"
But plain, every-day, common sort of people, who don't jerk their words out between gulps, would say,
Bosh.

A STRANGE CASE.

Gertie Fuller's Husband Admits She is not a Man.

The mystery regarding the sex of Frank Dubois, the female husband of the Waupun young lady, has at last been cleared up. The Globe correspondent got a carriage and started on a search for the couple, finding them after much trouble at Brandon. Dubois was without a coat, and appeared to be a slender, effeminate person. She is 4 feet 11 inches in height, weighs about 100 pounds, and has broad hips, a full chest, short arms, and very small and slender hands and feet. The woman known as Mrs. Dubois—Gertie Fuller—is apparently about 17 years old, about Dubois' height, and is rather a pretty blonde, with dark hair. She was in tears, and appeared greatly distressed when the question of her husband's sex was mentioned.

"Mr. Dubois," said the correspondent, "you, of course, know the stories which have been circulated concerning you?"

"I do," was the hesitating answer, in a voice which could not be mistaken for that of a man.

"You are married to Gertrude Fuller, are you not?"

"I am. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. L. Morrison, in Waupun."

"You insist that you are a man?"

"I do; I am. As long as my wife is satisfied it is nobody's business."

"Mr. Dubois, you look like a woman and act like a woman, and there are dozens of reasons to suppose you are not Frank Dubois, but Mrs. Hudson, a woman. Do you refuse to reveal yourself."

"There is nothing to reveal."

"If you are caught in this disguise, you will be arrested. You should place yourself in your proper light at once, and thus avoid punishment."

"Oh, Frank, for God's sake, tell all, and have it over at this moment!" exclaimed the young and pretty wife, tears streaming down her face.

Dubois looked toward her with trembling lip, and in a moment burst into tears. "It is true," she said at last. She said she was really Mrs. Hudson, and had tired of her husband and family, and determined to lose all identity as a wife and mother by assuming the guise of a man.

Mrs. Dubois, or more properly, Gertie Fuller, appeared utterly heart-broken. She had married Frank Dubois, or Mrs. Hudson, and had on the night of their marriage discovered that her husband was of her own sex. They had agreed to live together, and had done so.

Mrs. Hughlitt, mother of the wife of Frank Dubois, stated this morning that she would commence an action against Dubois for the return of her daughter.—Boston Globe.

A Great River Discovered.

Lieutenant Storey, who went to Alaska on the last trip of the Corwin, reports, on his return to San Francis the discovery of an immense river. Indians had vaguely spoken of the river to former explorers, and Lieutenant Storey determined to see if it existed. He proceeded inland from Hotham Inlet in a south-easterly direction until he struck what he believed to be the mysterious river. He traced it to its mouth, a distance of about fifteen miles. He went up the river for a distance of fifty miles, where he encountered natives, from whom he learned that to reach the headwaters of the unknown stream would take several months. The Indians told him that they had come down the river a distance of 1500 miles to meet a fur trader, and that it went up higher than that. It is his opinion that the discovery of this river accounts for the large quantities of floating timber in the Arctic Ocean, which has popularly been supposed to come down the Yukon River. The Indians said that the river in some places is twenty miles wide. Lieutenant Storey found flowers and vegetation not hitherto discovered within the Arctic circle.

NATIONAL Pills purify the Blood, regulate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. 82¢.

BROWETT'S Baking Powder, fresh and pure, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

Sulphur and Iron Bitters at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

WARNER'S SAFE CURE at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

DESTROY the Worms or they may destroy the children. Use Freeman's Worm Powders, they expel all kinds of worms. 82¢.

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.25 The best value ever offered in Ingersoll.—S. P. Logee. 56

DR. Low's Worm Syrup will remove worms and cause, quicker than any other Medicine. 82¢.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4:58 a. m.	6:59 a. m.
11:57 a. m.	12:15 a. m.
12:32 a. m.	2:05 p. m.
5:05 p. m.	4:48 p. m.
7:47 p. m.	7:00 p. m.
2:11 a. m.	12:20 p. m.

Hop Bitters are the Purest and Best Bitters Ever Made.

They are compounded from

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Correspondents would oblige us by mailing their letters as early in the week as possible. We intend to send the paper to press at an earlier hour than formerly, and news items reaching us later than noon on Wednesday will run the risk of being left over—and out.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

The edition of THE CHRONICLE printed each week is now so large and increasing rapidly that in order to catch the mails the paper must go to press very early each week. Changes for contract advertisements must be handed in not later than Tuesday morning of each week to ensure attention for that week's issue. There will be no deviation from this rule in the future. Transient and legal advertisements will be received up to the time of going to press. We hope our advertisers will bear the above remarks in mind.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Dry Goods—I. Coyne.
Carnival—Rink Co.
Cheese Meeting—W. Gerrie.
Silks—Hearn & Co.
Reductions—D. White & Co.
The C. P. R.—Chas. Drinkwater.
Cards—J. H. Rigour.
Gold—Stinson & Co.
Agents—Hallett Book Co.
A Prize—True & Co.
966—H. Hallett & Co.
Estrayed—R. Ellis.
For Sale—H. O'Connor, Jr.
Horse Book—THE CHRONICLE office.
Drugs—D. Secord.
Notice—C. E. Chadwick.
Auction Sale—A. S. Porteous.
Song—Phillip Phillips.
Special—The Rink.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

REFORM CONVENTION.—We learn just as we go to press that it has been decided to hold the Reform Convention, to nominate a candidate for the Local House, on Friday next, 18th inst. The selection of delegates to be made in the usual way on Thursday, 17th inst. Look out for posters.

LOOK out for clothes-line strippers.

THE schools re-opened on Monday last.

CARNIVAL in the rink on Tuesday evening next.

FIRST carnival of the season on Tuesday. Ice in good condition.

HAVE YOU?—Have you turned over that new leaf?

THE ice on the rink is in capital condition and the ball is up.

M. T. BUCHANAN celebrated his victory by a jolly dance at his house in the evening.

LEAP YEAR.—Now girls, let us see which of you first comes out with a new silk dress.

THE Band serenaded the successful candidates after the election and were well received.

DANCING.—Prof. Degalles has opened a dancing school in Norsworthy's Hall. The class meets every monday.

SALE OF FARM STOCK, &C.—Attention is directed to the auction sale of Alex. S. Paterson, on lot 17, Con. 2, West Oxford.

A new time card has gone into operation upon the Great Western division and branches, but it involves very few alterations of importance.

FAILED.—Mr. Geo. Bailey, carriage maker, of this town, has assigned. The past year appears to have been particularly hard on those engaged in this business.

MOSES OATES said that the early part of January would be balmy with some days of early May weather. Moses is rather more off than usual this time.

SCOTTISH CONCERT.—Arrangements have been made with Findlay McGregor, the great Scottish vocalist, to give a concert in the town hall on Friday, Jan. 25th. Fuller particulars next week.

FROM FORMOSA.—In a private letter just received from Dr. G. L. McKay of Formosa, he says: "I am building a girls' school at Tansui. It is of cut stone, the same size as Oxford College, and near by it."

DEATH FROM EXPOSURE.—On the 3rd instant, Mr. Frank, of Otterville, was frozen to death while getting wood for his house. It is supposed he was seized with a fit, and becoming unconscious, died from exposure.

CURLING.—A curling match for the Smith Medal between rink Nos. 4 and 5 resulted as follows:—No. 4, John Brown, John Gayfer, W. A. Woolson, Dr. Walker (skip) 9; No. 5, Mr. Porteous, J. A. McInnes, O. E. Robinson, John Ross (skip) 3.

BOOMING.—The handle factory of Homer Campbell & Bro. is turning out a fine class of goods, this last week Messrs. Wood & Legatt, of Hamilton, ordered 100 dozen handles. The axe handles not only present a fine polished exterior, but are made of the best class hickory.

SNOW.—Snow everywhere! On the housetops and in the streets. Impeding railways and blocking roads. Falling noiselessly, slowly, filling every crack and cranny, and indulging in a mad whirl now and then along the thoroughfares. "Be thou chaste as snow," remarked Hamlet to Miss Ophelia. But he forget to observe that one can be chased farther by snow in America than in any other country.

S. S. ENTERTAINMENT.—The Sabbath School of the Charles Street Methodist Church will hold an entertainment on Tuesday evening next, 15th inst. Tea will be served in the basement of the church from 6 o'clock. At 8 o'clock a literary entainment will begin in the church consisting of dialogues, recitations, reading, singing etc., by the children. All are invited. Admission free. A collection will be taken up.

THOSE POLES—There appears to be a good deal of dissatisfaction with the manner in which the new telephone poles are placed in. If the town fathers would insist upon all telegraph and telephone poles being straight, and further that all should be painted white, the streets would not look so much like a burnt district in some pine woods. The company should also be careful that they are erected in such a way as to be as little of an eyesore as possible, as the Council have the power to say just how they shall be placed.

TESTIMONIAL.—It is with much pleasure that I testify to the worth of Mr. H. N. Warner, L. L. D., as a worker in the temperance cause. The thrilling story of his reformation from drunkenness as told by himself in a plain, simple, manly way cannot fail to inspire the faint hearted with courage, increase the order and energy of the temperance worker, and change enemies of the temperance work into its friends. He is not only a temperance worker, but a gospel temperance worker, and therefore we have the more hope of his work.—H. C. SPELLAR, Pastor Regular Baptist Church Ingersoll.

THE "SINGING PILGRIM."—Philip Phillips will give two evenings of song with dissolving views illustrative of a tour around the world, in the Town Hall, Wednesday and Thursday, January 23rd and 24th at 7:30. "Nothing can surpass the effect these pictures give to the songs rendered; as for example: while singing of shipwreck at sea, in a voice clearly enunciating each word, the pictures vividly displaying the foundering vessel, the lightning flashes, and the lifeboat coming just in time to save the sinking crew, make an effect the most startling and realistic." By the numerous slides in Mr. Phillips' collection he makes men walk, volcanoes smoke, waterfalls flow, snow fall, &c. Doors open at 7 o'clock. Tickets 25 cents, reserved seats 35 cents, to be had at Mr. R. Kneeshaw's corner drug store.

MADE A STAMP OUT OF IT.—The railroads made an unusual reduction on holiday rates this year, and the people appreciated the concession, judging by the amount of business which has been done in trip tickets. The business demonstrates one thing—that when a concession on rates is made it pays to make a liberal one. Dropping off the usual third fare and cutting the rates exactly in two has doubled the business. The Grand Trunk was the first in the field this year with the very liberal concession—and Mr. Robinson, the Grand Trunk passenger agent at Detroit, has the honor of making the happy suggestion. This road having announced these liberal terms, the other lines quickly saw it and made, with few exceptions, equally generous terms. It was, in fact, a Christmas gift from the railroads to the people.

A NEW DANGER.—The cook stove at the residence of Robert Matthews of Pittsburg, Pa., exploded Monday, demolishing the furniture and seriously injuring his two daughters. We are never safe. We resolve never to board a steamboat or travel by rail lest we beldrowned, blown up, crushed or scalded to death. We avoid all places of amusements and stay away from church for in case of fire and panic we may meet a horrible death. We sell our horses; riding and driving are dangerous, for if the horse runs away we may be thrown out and killed, or in crossing a railway track a train may strike us. We don't walk near buildings lest a load of ice fall off a roof and crush us. We avoid all these dangers, and many others, but as we sit by the fireside in our own houses smoking our pipes, and feeling safe, the cooking range explodes, and destroys our peace and our furnitrure, and perhaps our lives.

TRY Moss & Co's. Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, for sale by all grocers. 75

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Results in the Towns and Townships—The Poor House By-Law Probably Defeated.

The municipal elections in this town passed off without any particular excitement. For the First Deputy Reeveship, Mr. Watterworth has secured a majority over his opponent of 345—a fitting tribute to his ability. The Council for 1884 will be as follows:

Mayor—James Noxon.
Reeve—Thomas Seldon.
First Deputy Reeve—W. Watterworth.
Second Deputy Reeve—Joseph Gibson.
Councillors—Ward No. 1, J. A. McInnes, G. W. Walley, D. Horsman. Ward No. 2, M. T. Buchanan, F. Richardson, J. Waterhouse. Ward No. 3, A. Matheson, W. B. Nelles, H. O'Connor, Sr.

THE FULL VOTE.

Below is the total vote polled for each candidate:

FIRST DEPUTY REEVE.

	Stewart.	Watterworth.
First Ward	35	163
Second Ward	56	135
Third Ward	31	169
	122	467

FIRST WARD.

McInnes	179
Walley	138
Horsman	111
Foster	81

SECOND WARD.

Buchanan	175
Richardson	153
Waterhouse	145
Day	73
Norsworthy	30

THIRD WARD.

Matheson	167
Nelles	143
O'Connor	120
Norsworthy	111
Tripp	26

THE POOR HOUSE BY-LAW.

	For.	Against.
First Ward	148	31
Second Ward	176	14
Third Ward	172	26
	496	71

Maj. for By-law, 425.

ELECTIONS ELSEWHERE.

EAST NISSOURI.

Brown, Reeve; Councillors, Horsman acc., McCorquodale, Toul.

DEREHAM.

B. Hopkins, Reeve; Wm. Nanceskivell, 1st Deputy Reeve; E. B. Brown, 2nd Deputy Reeve; Councillors, S. Foster, T. Prouse.

NORTH NORWICH.

Reeve, Thos. Abraham; Deputy, R. Emeigh; Councillors, M. Emeigh; E. H. Snider, and W. Gair.

NORWICH.

Reeve, Geo. Cook; Councillors, L. F. Bungay, D. W. Miller, E. C. Palmer, L. D. Swartout.

SOUTH NORWICH.

Reeve, A. McFarlane; deputy, W. McCurdy; Councillors, R. Addison, G. Parson, Jas. Wilcox. Large majority for the poorhouse.

BLENHEIM.

Reeve, S. Hall; 1st Deputy, F. Burgess; 2nd Deputy, F. Vickert; Councillors, D. Kyle and Wm. Tennant.

EMBRO.

Reeve, R. Murray; Councillors, D. R. Ross, J. W. Upper, A. W. Campbell, Capt. Gordon.

NORTH OXFORD.

Reeve, E. Jarvis. Councillors—L. Buddick, E. H. Henderson, E. A. Nelles, Wm. Collier.

WOODSTOCK.

Mayor, Grant; Reeve, Totten; 1st Deputy, Wilson; 2nd, McLay; 3rd, Revell; Councillors, McKay, Martin, Morrison, Mitchell, Muir, Adams, Rapson, Hall, West and Carkson.

NORTH DORCHESTER.

Reeve, Jas. Gilmour, Councillors, John McFarley, Jas. Rouse, Neil Brown, D. McLaughlin, BURFORD TOWNSHIP.

Reeve, Thos. Lloyd Jones; Deputies, Alex. McIrvine, Jas. Harley. Councillors—C. S. Howey, Davis, Huffman.

EAST OXFORD.

Reeve, John Peers. Deputy Reeve, Allen Virtue.

WEST ZORRA.

Reeve, Jas. Munroe. Deputy Reeve, J. McKay. Councillors—Messrs. Blair, Munroe and Forbes.

TILSONBURG.

All the nominees were elected by acclamation. The following is the result:—Mayor, Dr. L. C. Sinclair; Reeve, Philip Falle; Deputy, John Thompson. Councillors—West Ward, James Canfield, Wm. Brady, Chas. Thomson; East Ward, R. R. Goulding, F. B. Tillson; South Ward, J. Smith, G. W. Hare, John Waterhouse.

WEST OXFORD.

Council elected by acclamation:—Reeve, F. Karn; Deputy Reeve, T. Mayberry. Councillors, J. Downing, J. Curry, and F. Falden, High School Entrance Examination.

The following is the revised list of successful candidates, the names being arranged in order of merit:—

Mary A. McDermott, Ingersoll.
Arthur Gordon, Ingersoll.
Austin Lowes, 3, N. Oxford.
Richard H. Ryan, S, Dereham.
Geo. A. Chambers, Ingersoll.
D. C. Choate, "
Maggie Smith, "
Annie Hoagg, "
Leonard Patterson, 3, N. Oxford.
Grace Flewelling, Ingersoll.
R. J. Mitchell, 5, Dereham.
Wm. Crawford, } Ingersoll.
Jessie Petrie, }
John Sheahan, 9, Dereham.
John Sandick, 3, N. Oxford.
Allen Barr, Mossley.
Minnie Henderson, 9, W. Oxford.
Hannah H. Beattie, 3, N. Oxford.
Samuel Watterworth, } Ingersoll.
Alice Chambers, "
Maggie Smith, Beachville.
Arthur W. Connor, } Berlin.
Bella Sutherland, } Ingersoll.
James Waller, 9, Dereham.
Susan M. McKenzie, Ingersoll.
Peter A. Poole, 2, Dereham.
J. H. Graham, } 12, Dereham.
Nellie McMurray, } Ingersoll.
Fred Gayfer, Ingersoll.
G. A. Webster, "
M. J. Morrison, "
Edith Boles, "
J. A. Campbell, Mossley.
Agnes Oliver, 5, E. Nissouri.
C. T. Hoagg, Ingersoll.
Anna B. Carroll, 2, N. Oxford.
Jeannie McKellar, } Ingersoll.
Theresa Reed, } 6, Dereham.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

ACCEPTABLE.—We hope our friends and subscribers will remember that the beginning of a new year is the time to renew subscriptions. We are specially anxious that all outstanding accounts and subscriptions should be paid now. Let our friends kindly bear this in mind.

WEDDING BELLS.—Mr. J. D. Skene, the manager of A. Robinson's book and fancy goods establishment, (late Odell's), was married last evening to Miss Louie Malcolmson. The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's father, 144 Upper Vanauley street, Toronto, in the presence of a large gathering of friends. The worthy bride was greatly esteemed as was evinced by the large number of wedding presents made by her friends. Mr. Skene and his bride arrived at their home in Ingersoll today. During this gentleman's short residence here, he has made many friends, and we feel sure his "better half" will soon help to extend his acquaintance, this lady being not only endowed with many eminent qualities, but is also an accomplished and gifted musician. We wish them all joy.

DEATH OF MRS. MCKENZIE.—The funeral of Mrs. McKenzie, wife of the Rev. Donald McKenzie of this town—so well known as the reverend pastor of Embro Church for nearly half a century—took place on Wednesday afternoon from their residence on Carroll Street, the remains being taken to Embro for burial. Notwithstanding the fearful storm, a large number of the old parishioners from Embro and Zorra came out to pay their last respects to the venerable partner of their old and beloved minister, both of whom had spent a life-time in their midst. The funeral services at the house were very interesting. The pall bearers were: Mr. Birss, Mr. Shaw and Mr. Gordon, of Ingersoll Church, and Mr. Smith, Mr. McKenzie and Mr. McDonald, of Embro Church. Amongst the friends from Zorra we noticed:—Wm. Stuart, Jas. Mann, R.S. McDonald, Jas. Murray, Alex. McDonald, Jas. Sutherland, J. G. V. McKay, A. L. Murray, Jas. Smith, Joseph Smith, Wm. McLeod, Robert McLeod, D. Sutherland, Wm. Clark, Hugh Sutherland, Alex. McCorquodale, Dr. G. Matheson, Hugh Frazer, D. Adams, Jas. Sutherland, Hugh Murray, Murdoch McKenzie, Angus McKay, Wm. Stuart, jr., Wm. Stuark., sr., &c., &c., The large attendance from a distance shows in itself the strong and lasting affection of the members of the old church in Embro. Had the weather been favourable this would probably have been the largest funeral that ever took place in Ingersoll.

CATTLE FAIRS.

Why Not Have These at Ingersoll.

Would it not be a good idea to establish monthly cattle fairs at Ingersoll, at which liberal prizes would be given for the best fat beast exhibited for sale? This would attract sellers and buyers and be of considerable benefit to the town. There has been a great improvement in stock in this district during the last few years, and a little judicious enterprise would make Ingersoll a first-class cattle market. At present when a dealer wants a number of beasts he has to scour the country at random to procure them, and as this absurd method incurs considerable expense and loss of time, the butchers would, no doubt, be anxious to co-operate with both town and country in trying to establish a periodical market for the sale of live-stock. When an abuse or bad custom is continued it generally happens that some one is interested to prevent its reform, but in the present case all concerned would alike benefit by the change. It is therefore to be hoped that an early meeting will be called to devise the best means for establishing a monthly cattle fair in Ingersoll, and to this end a circular should be sent to the members of township councils and to the leading farmers of the neighbourhood, inviting them to attend, to give their advice and help in any other way their experience may suggest to carry this long-neglected project into practice. At the Woodstock Xmas Fair a large number of the finest stock was purchased by our Ingersoll butchers. In most places the fairs are held monthly or fortnightly. Now, who will lead off? Perhaps Reeve Seldon and E. Caswell!

I. O. O. F.

Election and Installation of Officers.

OXFORD LODGE.

The following officers of Oxford Lodge, No. 77, I.O.O.F., were installed by D.D.G. M. John Andrews, into their respective chairs for the present term, on Monday evening:

Geo. A. Rose ..... N.G.
R. W. Smith ..... V.G.
John Andrews ..... Sec.
Thomas Budd ..... P.S.
A. Matheson ..... Treas.
John P. Webster ..... R.S.N.G.
George Scott ..... L.S.N.G.
Wm. Nanceskivell ..... R.S.V.G.
Spencer Leigh ..... L.S.V.G.
John Lovell ..... R.S.S.
George Bartlett ..... L.S.S.
John Bartlett ..... War.
A. C. Size ..... Con.
Charles Smith ..... I.G.
George Dennis ..... O.G.
Jacob Size ..... Chap.

SAMARITAN LODGE.

The following officers of Samaritan Lodge, No. 35, were duly installed by D. D. G. M. John Andrews, on Wednesday evening of last week:

Joseph Gibson ..... N.G.
T. H. Webb ..... V.G.
W. C. Bell ..... Sec'y.
L. Scofield ..... R.S.
A. Curtis ..... Treas.
W. Sutherland ..... R.S.N.G.
A. McLeod ..... L.S.N.G.
William Kerr ..... R.S.V.G.
William Garner ..... L.S.V.G.
John Birss ..... War.
Joseph Atkinson ..... Con.
M. Hyslop ..... I.G.
George Dennis ..... O.G.
James McIntyre ..... Chap.
W. Clouse ..... Organist.

UNITY ENCAMPMENT.

The following officers of Unity Encampment, No. 21, were installed on Tuesday evening by John Birss, D.D.G.P.:

John Andrews ..... C.P.
George Scott ..... H.P.
A. C. Size ..... S.W.
John Lovell ..... J.W.
M. Hyslop ..... Scribe.
John Birss ..... Treas.
John Size ..... 1st W.
John Bartlett ..... 2nd W.
Joseph Gibson ..... 3rd W.
Wm. Sutherland ..... 4th W.
R. Buckle ..... 1st G.T.
George Bartlett ..... 2nd G.T.
Thomas Budd ..... G.
S. A. Martin ..... I.S.
George Dennis ..... O.S.

Resignation of Father Boubat.

The following explains itself:—

C. M. B. A. Hall, Branch 19.
Ingersoll, Jan. 9th, 1884.

At our last regular meeting the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Moved by C. B. Ryan, seconded by Thos. Henderson, that we the members of Branch No. 19, C.M.B.A., of Ingersoll, have heard with deep and heartfelt sorrow that the Rev. Father Boubat is about to leave us, and we cannot let this opportunity pass without showing some respect towards him the spiritual adviser of this association and also as a truthful exponent of our holy religion. From the date of his arrival in Ingersoll his earnest wish and endeavours have been to advance the spiritual interest of us all. And that he may live for many years to work in the cause of the mother church and wherever his lot may be cast his endeavours may always be the same and that the memory of his many good deeds may never be forgotten, is the earnest wish of every member of this Branch, and that the Secretary of this Branch forward a copy of this resolution to Rev. Father Boubat.

T. P. COMISKEY, E. H. HENDERSON,
Recording Sec'y. President.

Chief Vance's Report.

The following report from the worthy Chief of the Ingersoll Fire Brigade will be submitted to the council at their adjourned meeting this (Thursday) evening.

To the Mayor and Council of the town of Ingersoll in Council assembled.

Gentlemen, I beg to submit the following report:—That there was three fires during the year 1883 with loss and insurance on same amounting to $10,380 which is the lowest fire loss that we have had for many years. I have also to report that the brigade has noticeably increased in efficiency and has made some remarkably short time for a volunteer brigade. I think the time is near at hand if it has not already arrived when your honourable body will have to procure increased means of extinguishing fire, and would recommend as a first step the procuring of a team of horses to draw the engine either by purchase or hire as might seem best to you. All of which is respectfully submitted.

ROBT. VANCE,
Chief of Brigade.

THE PRAYER OF THE BOOKS.

In this most literary town
There is a table richly spread,
Where wits and authors of renown,
Are waiting, waiting to be read.

Here's volumes large, and volumes small,
Here's wise old saws, here's pungent wit,
Come up kind friends, come in, come all,
Come fill ye full, or pick a bit.

Here's dear old genial, peerless Charles,*
Who truly painted age and youth,
Here's keen St. Barbe,† and though he snarls,
He snarls at folly, snarls for truth.

Of days gone by, some tell the story,
And with the truth mix in some lies
Of nation's shame, of nation's glory,
Of foolish people, people wise.

Of battles fierce, of victories won,
Of dire defeats, of truth beat down,
Rights set aside, of foul wrongs done,
By cruel, greedy human hounds.

Of privileged tyrants brought to book,
Of vulgar bullies straightened out,
When toiling and once cowering took,
And brought a healthy change about.

Some wander o'er the mountains grand,
Or tell of valleys deep and sweet,
The beauties limn of every land,
The sylvan glade, the city street.

The hoary tower, the dungeon deep,
The rampart high, the cannon grim,
The storm swept coast, the rocky steep,
The lava stream, the crater's rim.

Of burning lands, of fervent heat,
The dread tornado's awful roar,
Where earth and clouds in fury meet,
Where lightnings scorch, where torrents pour.

Of iceberge "architectiooral",
The palace of the growling bear,
(To rhyme that well I must say rural),
Pray Mr. Critic do not stare.

The poet's dish fit for a king,
Or better still for maiden sweet,
Composed of every luscious thing,
Of angel wings, of dainty feet.

Of pearly dews, of maiden's tears,
With radiant hopes, with longing sighs,
With faithful hearts, with groundless fears,
With blushing cheek, with melting eyes.

With passion pure, with gentle peace,
With consolations from above,
With hopes of joys that never cease,
And flavored all with potent love.

Longfellow sings Evangeline,
Grand Arthur‡ laves in his own river,
Of glorious thoughts in noble rhyme
Which like his brook will flow forever.

Tom Campbell winds his martial note,
Tom Hood sighs o'er his frail forlorn,
Tom Moore pipes through his dainty throat,
Tom Collins blares through passions horn.

And belted Will of all the king,
And yet may no one ever prove,
One dolorous song the King did sing,
That true love never did run smooth.

And now I trow enough is said,
'Twere well to pause, to fully stop,
These books are waiting to be read,
Pray do not let us shut the shop.

Ingersoll Mechanics' Institute,
Jan. 5, 1884.

*Dickens. †Thackeray. ‡Tennyson.

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $3 at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

The Cheese of 1883.

Mr. B. F. Van Valkenburg, of the statistical committee of the New York mercantile exchange, presented to the national butter, cheese and egg convention at Cincinnati, a report of the cheese trade in New York for the year ending November 30, 1883. His cheese summary was as follows:

	Boxes.	Weight.	Value per lb.	Gross value.
Eastern	2,168,809	119,174,495	11½c	$15,407,120 69
Western	301,418	13,563,810	9 c	1,220,742 90
	2,468,227	132,738,305	....	$14,627,873 59

Receipts of cheese have decreased from last year, 48,975 boxes.

The exports of butter and cheese for the same period were:

18,416,003 lbs butter valued at 23c per lb. $4,235,680 69
17,779,538 lbs cheese valued at 11½c per lb. 11,244,652 62

Total value of butter and cheese exp'd. $15,480,333 31

Export of butter during 1883 in excess of 1882, is ..... 11,115,117 lbs.

Export of cheese during 1882 in excess of 1883, was ..... 10,309,554 lbs.

It seems easy enough to account for the decrease in receipts of cheese. In the first place a large part of the western cheese has been shipped directly farther west, and to the south, instead of finding its way to New York for distribution. And secondly, considerable cheese from northern New York has found an outlet thro' Canada, or by way of Boston and Portland. These causes would easily make a difference of 40,000 boxes, the only wonder being that the shortage is not greater. But the decrease of exports is not so readily accounted for. In round numbers this may be said to equal 200,000 boxes, or one-tenth of the total exportation from New York. This is a large decrease for a single year, and the causes which brought it about must be serious ones. The proper way to look at it is to compare the decrease in receipts with the decrease in exports. By doing so it appears that the decline of exports is five times as great as that of receipts, so that the lessened amount of receipts can by no means be accepted as a reason for the decline of exports. There are, however, two causes which are probably the chief ones for this condition of things. Canada has been able to send out a much larger amount of cheese during the past year than ever before, and its quality has been quite equal to the general run of "states" cheese. It is quite natural that England should prefer to patronize her own dominion whenever she can do so satisfactorily. And Canada is making rapid progress in the manufacture of cheese. During all the past year an expert maker, salaried by the government, has been travelling among the factories, examining their cheese and their methods, and publishing each week the results of his examinations. Each factory was called by name, its stock was criticised, and the faults of manufacture, of machinery, or of buildings, were pointed out without fear or favor. Such a course as this could not but have a favorable result, which is shown in the largely increased exportations. Another cause of the decrease of our shipments is the increase of cheese-making in England. For a few years, English farmers ran crazy on the subject of supplying milk to the towns and cities, and their make of cheese was greatly reduced thereby. But last year they became convinced that, except in the case of dairymen who lived near the towns, and could get their milk to market quite fresh and at a slight expense, there was more money in good cheese. As a result, they turned back to cheese making in many instances, and the reports of the cheese fairs held thro' the season at different points, show a considerable increase in the amount manufactured, as well as an improvement in the quality.

These are the principal reasons for the decrease of our exports. But coupled with them is the fact that the quality of "states" cheese has not been up to the proper standard through the past season, so that exporters have found a great deal of fault with it. If we are to compete with Canada, and especially with the cheese made by the English themselves, our makers must take more pains with their product. It will not do to rely upon former reputation. Not in years has so little cheese been taken on its name, or so much sold by the test of the tryer. This fact testifies that exporters want quality, and that all brands must ultimately stand or fall by it.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The editor of THE CHRONICLE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

Letter From J. C. Norsworthy.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—Allow me space in your valuable paper to thank the people who voted for me at the recent election in spite of the slanders circulated about my character in a fly sheet headed "Caution," which was circulated, by some unknown persons, about the town late on Saturday night and during the Sabbath day preceding the Monday of election, for the purpose of injuring me. If the parties who issued that sheet have enough manhood to charge me publicly with any of the frauds they refer to, I will prove them all to be lies of the most villianous character. My name as a candidate has been before the public for several weeks. If they were so desirous to inform and serve the public as they profess, why did they not publish these charges before? Their action in sneaking about late on Saturday night and during the Sabbath preceding the day of election is in keeping with the most cowardly assassin who would stab you in the dark without giving one moment for defence.

J. C. NORSWORTHY.
Ingersoll, Dec. 8, 1884.

The Salvation Army.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

SIR,—I have taken some interest in the Salvation Army. I have often said "God speed them in their work," but I have to admit there are some things about them that I cannot reconcile with the superior devotion and sanctity which they profess to have.

Their strange performances and odd sayings I can look over. They would never make me more devotional, indeed I fail to see that they are in keeping with holy things. At the same time they seem to be attracting to a certain class of people, and by them I have no doubt some have been reached and brought within the circle of religious influences, so that, unlike some of my fellow christians, I can excuse these things. But there are other things practiced by the Army that I cannot excuse and things that certainly cannot be reconciled to the pure and holy teachings of the Lord Jesus. It has been the constant practice of members of the Army to speak, not only unkindly, but untruthfully and slanderously of Christian ministers, Christian people and Christian churches. This is well known to any who have been in the habit of attending their meetings, and it is even better known to persons who have been intimate with them in private life. How common it has been to hear them speak of ministers as lazy, indifferent about the souls of the people, as working for money, &c., and how often worthy Christian people who have been doing self-denying work for Christ for many years, have been spoken of as lifeless, dead, frozen up, &c. I read in the good book that Michael the archangel would not bring even against the devil a railing accusation, but our friends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing against Christian ministers and Christian churches. If these are the fruits of a higher Christian life I am free to admit that I never got that far in the Christian life. Indeed I find the nearer I get to the Lord the farther I get from evil speaking. They should also remember that such talk is still more objectionable when it comes from people whose characters and religion are things of yesterday. And what is worse still, some of those who were as ready and apt as any at this kind of thing, have in a few short weeks returned "like the dog to his vomit and like the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire." It should be remembered by those new made soldiers that those ministers and people of whose piety they speak so lighly, fought hard battles for the Lord before they enlisted and indeed before many of them were born, and will be likely to continue in the field and in the battle when they have thrown away their colors. The good book says "Let not him that girdeth on the harness boast as he that puileth it off." The Christian ministers of this town and of the surrounding county, have given the best of evidence for years that they are consistent and worthy Christian men, and the most of them work hard for little pay, and many of the things that have been said of them by the Army leaders have been not only unkind, but untrue. Indeed it speaks well for them that they have had grace enough to go steadily on with their work without stopping to "render evil for evil or railing for railing." I wish the Army success in every good work, but shall never be able to give them credit for very much religion until they manifest more of the kind and loving spirit of their Master.

H. D.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

MOSS & Co's. D. S. F. Mustard cannot be surpassed for excellence of flavor purity and strength, ask your grocer for it. 75

MRS. Pinkham's Medicine at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

GERMAN Syrup at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

PICTORIA, for Coughs and Colds, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

OYSTERS in every style at Vance's. 71.

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.

White Wheat, per bush	$1 00	to	1 10
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 10
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 12
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats "	20	to	33
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush	8 00	to	9 00
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50

PRODUCE.

Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples per lb	10	to	12
Tallow "	6	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	5 50	to	6 00
Live Hogs "	4 00	to	4 50
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 00	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	0 18	to	0 20

PROVISIONS.

Flour, new process, Spring, 100 lbs	0 00	to	3 00
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs	2 75	to	2 90
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 00	to	2 75
Oatmeal	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts	00 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	16	to	18
Butter, rolls, per lb	22	to	23
Cheese,	11	to	13
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	25	to	00
Geese,	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	60
Ducks,	60	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12

MONTREAL CHEESE MARKET.

The market manifests symptoms of increasing strength, a further advance of 1s per cwt. in Liverpool being cabled by both Beerbohm and the public cable, which quote 66s. Here there has been more business for English account. In New York there has been considerable activity, sales having transpired of about 30,000 boxes to exporters during the past week at 12¾c to 13¼c. Advices from New York state that there will be less than 100,000 boxes of cheddar shapes left after next Wednesday's steamers clear. We quote prices here firmer at 12¾c to 13c for fine to finest. The total shipments to Great Britain from the commencement of the season to date from the ports of Montreal and Portland were 945,099 boxes, against 779,058 boxes for the corresponding period last year, showing an increase of 166,041 boxes.—Gazette.

FARM AND DAIRY NOTES.

The annual meeting of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association will be held at London on the 13th, 14th and 15th of next month.

The scale test has advanced the value of Jerseys as a breed more than one hundred per cent. If applied to the common cows of the land there is every reason to believe it would advance their value five hundred per cent. It would not only leave the good ones, but it would take out the bad ones.

There is the reported yield of a Holstein cow at 18,000 pounds of milk in a year, and a little twelve months' old Ayrshire that weighed but 330 pounds giving 6,600 pounds of milk in thirteen months. This last cow was one of a small herd of six young cows which averaged from September to March 65½ pounds of butter weekly. So says the man who owned the cows in the Canada Farmer.

Here is the reported yield of the six best Jersey cows: Jersey Belle of Scituate, 85 lbs. in one month; Eurotas, 88 lbs.; Bombs, 89 lbs.; Lady Mel II., 90 lbs.; Mary Ann of St. Lamberts, 106 lbs., 12½ oz. Value II. was only tested for one week, when she made 25 lbs, 2½ ozt Jersey Belle of Scituate made in one year 705 lbs., Eurotas 778 lbs. Who can predict the possibilities of such cows?

Mr. Valancy E. Fuller, of Hamilton, has sold to Major Campbell Brown, Lolly of St. Lamberts 5380, dam of the celebrated Mary Anne of St. Lamberts 9770. Major Brown must have paid a long price for her. She has been sent to Stoke Pogis 5th, a full brother to Stoke Pogis 3rd. The progeny therefrom will have the identical blood elements of Mary Anne of St. Lamberts.

We are asked if Mr. L. B. Arnold is a "professor." Certainly he is. Any man who teaches is a "professor" at the North, just as any man who chews tobacco and says "begard" at the South is a "kernel." In Europe they designate those as professors only who are officially connected with institutions of learning, but here we show our contempt for titles by giving them to everybody.—American Dairyman.

At the Eastern Dairy Convention a question of cheese boxes was up, and it was decided that elm wood will soon be too scarce to make boxes, and that it is not good anyhow. Each box shrinks about three pounds from its wet to dry stage. It lets the flies and bugs in, and is not a standard size. A resolution was passed requesting the Federal Government to offer $1,000 for the best wood pulp cheese box, which, in the opinion of the speakers, could be made so as to obviate all the present difficulties.

A meeting of farmers of Ekfrid and Caradoc was held at Nichol's Hotel, Longwood Station, on the evening of January 4th, for the purpose of erecting a large cheese factory at Longwood. Mr. Walter Chisholm occupied the chair. Frank Atkinson, Secretary. It was resolved that Messrs. D. Leitch & Son proceed at once to build the factory, which, when completed, will, it is said, be the largest factory of the kind west of London. The milk from 350 cows was voted at the meeting, with a likelihood of 200 cows more to hear from. Messrs. Leitch & Son manufactured $50,000 worth this season, nearly all being white cheese.

We have received from Mr. Havemeyer, proprietor of the Mountainside Farm, Mahwah, N. J., a beautifully illustrated catalogue of his large herd of Jerseys. The book contains photographs of some of the most celebrated

THE BOGUS NOTE BUSINESS,

Suit of Deep Interest to Farmers who Signed Machinery Notes.

Montreal, Dec. 27. — Some two years ago one C. B. Mahon came to this city from the States and established what was known as the Empire Agricultural Implements Works. Mahon & Co," claimed to manufacture agricultural implements, and sent out travellers whose business was chiefly to appoint so-called agents upon easy terms among the farming community for the sale of their implements, and the modus operandi was to dupe farmers into signing promissory notes for various amounts payable at certain local banks, farmers supposing they were merely signing an agreement to become responsible for care of machines to be shipped to them for sale. As a rule they never received the implements, but were notified by the banks when the notes became due. This was continued for several months, but in the autumn of 1882 several farmers brought suits against Mahon, and capias were issued for his arrest. Finding it too hot for him in Montreal, Mahon skipped across the border and died in a western town about three months ago. The notes so obtained from various farmers were transferred to brokers and shavers in this city, and now various suits are being brought by the holders to recover the amounts of these notes. In a case heard by Judge Mathieu to-day James Baxter sued a farmer named Burneau for the amount of a promissory note. Bruneau contested the action on the ground that Baxter knew when he received the note that it had been fraudulently obtained. One of the witnesses was Chas. H. Walters, a well-known local money-lender, who when asked as to Mahon's whereabouts, said he could not tell whether he was above or below, at all events he was dead. Baxter has recently succeeded in several similar cases tried in the Superior Court, but the Court of Queen's Bench having reversed one of the decisions, the plaintiff asserts his intention of carrying the case to the Privy Council. It must be remembered that no case involving less than $2,000 can be carried to that tribunal without special permission from Council itself. The note in question is only for $370.

Winter and Spring Care of Calves.

The first winter is a trying time for calves. Some, who mean to be judicious feeders, think the calf needs to be toughened the first winter, so that he may not become too delicate, and may have a healthy, strong constitution. So the calf is often required to dig for his grass under the snow, pick at straw stacks, exposed in the most inclement weather with insufficient nutriment. If this is a good way for the young animal, why not apply the same practice, comparatively, with our children? If scanty nourishment and exposure strengthens the constitution, why not carry out the principle where it will have a more beneficial effect? The result of this most pernicious practice is too often seen in our thin, unsteady-gaited calves in spring, whose constitutions have been strengthened to the last degree of tenuity. Such thin animals are supposed to gain faster on the sweet early grass of spring; whereas they will require two months to regain their full weight, and two months more to reach the point they should have attained to the coming of spring grass. It is a most important point that the calf should never lose the thrift it possessed as a sucking calf—or, as it is sometimes expressed, should never lose its "calf flesh." When the calf is to be grown for beef, this view would seem to be too clear to require argument.

Wet Pastures.

One of the most serious obstacles in the way of successful dairying is a wet pasture. Land that is saturated with water produces unwholesome herbage, the grass is rank and sour, and sometimes the herbage consists wholly of sedges and other coarse plants that are not easily digestible. Such food cannot produce good milk, and the milk made from such food will not make good cheese or butter. But very often this coarse, rank food produces disease in the cows. This is more especially the case with yearlings and young cattle whose digestive powers are not fully matured. Another injury results from the use of such pastures. Vapor is constantly arising or settling over low wet lands, and the presence of this vapor greatly affects the temperature. Every farmer knows how frosts occur upon such low grounds when higher lands are free from them. Now, all these influences seriously affect the health of cattle feeding on such lands. The vapor arising from them is loaded with poisonous germs, which affects the blood when they are breathed into the lungs. The moisture which settles down upon them is cold, and as it condenses into visible vapor this absorbs from the cold air various unhealthful and injurious gasses which are always arising from the decaying vegetable matter in the soil. Every one knows more or less what malaria is and how it effects persons. Cattle are as subject to the atmospheric poisons as human beings are, and what we know as malaria frequently produces diseases which causes wonderment and surprise to the owners of the sick animals. So the cold which causes the frost in these low places chills the animals, and a chill to a milking cow is most apt to affect the udder first and produce garget, at which again the owner wonders and for which he cannot account. Pregnant cows suddenly chilled in this way, especially by lying down upon the ground, lose their calves, and still again the owners wonder how that can happen, when every care, as he supposes has been taken of the animals. But such things are caused by wet, undrained pastures, and every farmer should by every possible means remove such a constant danger from his farm by draining these lands. This is the season for such work, and wherever it needs to be done the opportunity of doing it should not be missed,

CAN'T Get It.

Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Kidney, Urinary or Liver Complaints cannot be contracted by you or your family if Hop Bitters are used, and if you already have any of these diseases Hop Bitters is the only medicine that will positively cure you. Don't forget this, and don't get some puffed up stuff that will only harm you.

Lovers think others have no eyes.
"Lost the cough I long did know,
Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.

Thousands affidavits prove,
That it doth man's ills remove,
Coughs and colds, and hooping cough
By its power soon are off." 83.

Lovers' purses are tied with cobwebs.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant to take; sure and effectual in destroying worms.

Love your neighbor but don't pull down his fence.

MRS. E. H. Perkins, Creek Centre, Warren Co., N. Y., writes: She has been troubled with asthma for four years, had to sit up night after night with it. She has taken two bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and is perfectly cured. She strongly recommends it, and wishes to act as agent among her neighbors.

Love, thieves, and fear make ghosts.

If you are bilious or have indigestion, sick headache or dizziness, try Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, used instead of pills; they cure constipation. Price 25c. per bottle. For sale by all druggists. 83.

A New Treatment for Neuralgia.

The latest agent introduced for the relief of neuralgia is a 1 per cent. solution of hyperosmic acid, administered by subcutaneous injection. It has been employed in Billroth's clinic in a few cases. One of the patients had been a martyr to sciatica for years, and had tried innumerable remedies, including the application of electricity no fewer than 200 times, while for a whole year he had adopted vegetarianism. Billroth injected the remedy between the tuber ischii and trochanter, and within a day or two the pain was greatly relieved, and eventually quite disappeared. It would be rash to conclude too much from these results, in the face of the intractability of neuralgia to medication but if it really prove to be as efficacious as considered, hyperosmic acid will be a therapeutic agent of no mean value. —Lancet.

Stop Before You Begin.

The first argument, my young friend, for total abstinence is that no healthy person needs an alcholic beverage; and even invalids had better be careful how they tamper with it as a medicine, Sir Henry Thompson and several other distinguished British physicians have deliberately declared that "alcoholic bevereges cannot, in any sense, be considered necessary for the maintainance of healthy life; that it is not a food in any true sense of that term; and that the steadiest and best work is done without it." Livingston, the heroic explorer of Central Africa was both a physician and a teetotaller. His testimony was: "I find that I can stand every hardship best by using water and water only." Even as a tonic medicine, wine and Bourdon may cover up a great deal; they cure but very little. Several friends I have known to be decoyed by them into drunkenness and disgrace.

Therein lies a second reason for avoiding all intoxicants. They are deceitful. Not only the sting of the serpent, but the subtlety of the serpent is in them. The deception lies in the fact that the habit of drinking will become confirmed before you suspect it. Every alcoholic drink has in it this quality, that it never satisfies, but awakens a constant demand for more. This is not the case with any wholesome food or beverage. Bread and beef do not breed excess; one glass of milk does not arouse a morbid thirst for two the next time. A healthful beverage satisfies appetite; a hurtful one, like wine or brandy, stimulates appetite until it becomes an uncontrollable frenzy. This I regard as the Creator's law against alcohol; and when you take your first social glass you begin to play with a deadly serpent.

You may say: "Every one who drinks liquors does not become a sot." Very true, but every sot drinks liquors; and not one in a million ever expected to become a sot when he began with his champagne or his "sherry cobbler." Will you run the risk? I would not. The two reasons why I am a teetotaller are, that I dare not trust myself, and I dare not tempt others by my example. The most deplorable wrecks are those of men or women who, at the outset considered themselves perfectly strong invulnerable. First glasses have peopled Hell! With whatever "odds" in your favor, will you run the fearful hazard? Then stop before you begin!

A third reason why alcoholic drinks are dangerous is that it is the peculiar property of alcohol to strike directly to the brain. The glass of brandy aims for the brain, as a hound makes for a hare. In striking the brain, it overturnes the throne of the reason, and turns a man into a maniac. Like the shot in a naval battle, which hits "between wind and water," the alcoholic death-shot strikes where body and mind meet, and sends both to the bottom. No brain is proof against it. You might as well put the pistol to your brain, and make swift, sure work with it, as to poison your brain by the slow and equally deadly process of the bottle. Ninety-nine hundredths of all the suicides in the land began with a thoughtless glass. Stop, my friend, before you begin! All intoxicating drinks are more dangerous in this country than in almost any other, from the nervous temperament of our people. Our climate is stimulating, and American life, almost in every direction; runs at a high rate of speed. Youth is commonly stronger at the engine than it is at the brakes. This is pre-eminently true of our young men. One unanswerable proof of the difficulty of stopping the drink-habit is found in the fact that so very few are actually reformed. I might multiply arguments in favor of total abstinence as the only certain safeguard. The grace of God is powerless if you voluntarily yield to temptation. It is a defiance to the Almighty for you to leap into the rapids and expect Him to save you from the cataract. No small part of my own life has been spent in fruitless efforts to save those who were in the swift and treacherous current. The remainder of it shall be spent in endeavoring to prevent young men from embarking on the stream which is all music and mirth at the starting-point and all death and damnation at the bottom. Tons of arguments and appeals have been printed on this vital question, "How to save young men from strong drink?" but they may all be condensed into one line—Stop before you begin!—Theodore L. Cuyler.

WIDE AWAKE DRUGGISTS.

Mr. John Gayfer is always alive to his business and spare no pains to secure the best of every article in his line. He has secured the agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The only certain cure known for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Asthma, Hay Fever, Bronchitis, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs. Sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free. Regular size $1.00. 82t.

Love, knavery, and necessity make men good orators.

If you want fast colors and brilliant shades use the popular Star Dyes.

Love subdues everything except the felon's heart.

A. Maybee, Merchant, Warkworth, writes: I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public "one of the best medicines they have ever used;" it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, &c., and is worthy of the greatest confidence.

Love rules his kingdom without a sword.

Some say "Consumption can't be cured." Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, as proved by forty years experience, will cure this disease when not already advanced beyond the use of medical aid. Even then its use affords very great relief and insures refreshing sleep.

Love others well, but love thyself the most; give good for good, but not to thine own cost.

Mr. C. E. Riggins, Beamsville, writes, "A customer who tried a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery says it is the best thing he ever used; to quote his own words, 'It just seemed to touch the spot affected.' About a year ago he had an attack of bilious fever, and was afraid he was in for another, when I recommended this valuable medicine with such happy results."

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, in Daily experience confirms the fact which has triumphed over all opposition for forty years, viz., that no means are known equal to Holloway's remedies for curing bad legs, sores, wounds, diseases of the skin, erysipelas, abscesses, burns, scalds, and, in truth, all maladies where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmities quickly is of primary importance, as compulsory confinement indoors weakens the general health. The ready means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which heal the sores and expel their cause. In the very worst cases the Ointment has succeeded in effecting a perfect cure after every other means had failed in giving any relief. Desperate diseases best display its virtues.

Didn't Announce His Principles.

Arkansas Traveller.

'Can you tell me when the train comes along here?' asked a travel-stained man of an old fellow who sat on a pile of crossties near an Arkansaw railroad.

'Yas, I rekin I ken.'

'But will you?' asked the traveler after a moment's silence.

'Yas, rekin I will.'

'Well, what time?'

'What time what, mister?'

'What time does the train come along here?'

'I dunno.'

'You said you did.'

'Didn't.'

'I say you did.'

'Say I didn't?'

'What did you say?'

'Said I'd tell you when it comes along, an' ef both o' us is here when she comes, I will, but I rekin yer ken see her as well as I ken.'

'You think you are very smart, don't you?'

'Not now. I was right peart till the rhumatic sot in.'

'Where do you live?'

'I'm livin' here now.'

'Is this your home?'

'Noah.'

'Then you don't live here?'

'Wall, I don't die here, do I? Long's I'm here I'm livin' here.'

'When the train comes do you suppose I can get on?'

'Yes, if it stops.'

'But that's what I want to know. Will it stop?'

'I kain't tell yh. right now, although I'm allers pleased ter gin a stranger any information in my power.'

'When can you tell me?' asked the stranger, evidently thinking that the old fellow was going in search of information.

'When she gets here.'

'Now, say, old man, I don't like to be made game of in this way. You may have nothing to do but to sit around and spend your life in joking, but I am thoroughly in earnest. I have come a long distance to reach this road, and I want to leave this devlish country. You would confer a great favor on me by answering my questions in a straightforward manner. If the train is not likely to stop at this wood-yard, why then I must walk on until I come to a station. Now give me your honest opinion. Do you think that the next train will stop here?'

'Now, stranger,' replied the old fellow, leaning over and tying his shoe, 'yer ken talk mighty pitiful, I must allow, an' ef yer was a preacher it would take all the plank at the saw mill ter make a mourner's bench big enough fur yer church. I'd be a mighty bad man ter hold back any news I've got about this matter, an' bein's as I like yer looks, I'll tell yer all I know about these trains.'

'I thank you most heartily, sir.'

'I expect I know as much about these trains as any man that lives in this here community.'

'I have no doubt of it.'

'An' all that I know about 'em stopping here I'll tell yer.'

'W'y, sometimes they stop an' sometimes they don't. That's all I know.'

'I am half inclined to jump on you and maul you,'

'Better walk ter the station, stranger, than ter try that. The last man what tried it ain't been able to attend the United States cou't since.'

'Well, how far is it to the next station?'

'Which way? thiser way or thater way?' pointing.

'Either way.'

'Well, they'se about the same distance.'

'How far?'

'Blamed 'fi know.'

'I'll be confounded if I stand this; come over here an' I'll lick you.'

'So would a cat.'

'Come over here, and I'll whip you.'

'Well, ef yer wanter whup me wus'n I wanter be whupped, yer'd better come over here.'

'I can do it, and don't you forget it.'

'Wall, ef yer do, I ain't apt ter forget it.'

'I'll try it anyway,' and taking off his coat a bottle fell out.

'Hole on. What yer got in that bottle?'

'Whisky.'

'Then thar's no use in fightin',' and throwing out a quid of tobacco, he limped across the track, took a drink, and said:

'Train ain't likely to stop here.'

Took another drink.

'Closest station's down this way.'

Another drink.

'Three miles.'

Another.

'Make it better. Two an'er half.'

Still another.

'Ga down thar an' them niggers will take yer on a han' car. Good-day, cap'n. Wush yer well. If yer 'nounced yer principles in the furst place thar wouldn't been all this argyin'.'

'James, my son, take this letter to the post-office, and pay the postage for it." The boy James returned highly elated, and said—"Father, I seed a lot of men putting letters in a little place, and when no one was looking I slipped yours in for nothing."

One Sunday, as a certain Scottish minister was returning homewards, he was accosted by an old woman, who said —"Oh, sir, well do I like the day when you preach.' The minister was aware that he was not popular, and he answered —'My good woman, I am glad to hear it. There are too few like you. And why do you like when I preach?' 'Oh, sir,' she replied, 'when you preach I always get a good seat.'

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

Love one that does not love you, answer one that does not call you, and you will run a fruitless race.

No sufferer from any scrofulous disease, who will fairly try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, need despair of a cure. It will purge the blood of all impurities, thereby destroying the germs from which scrofula is developed, and will infuse new life and vigor throughout the whole physical organization.

Ami moi-m peu, mais continue—Love me a little, but keep it up.

A host of bodily troubles are engendered by chronic indigestion. These, however, as well as their cause, disappear when the highly accredited invigorant and alterative, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, is the agent employed for their removal. A regular habit of body, and a due secretion and flow of bile, invariably result from its persistent use. It cleanses the system from all irregularities, and restors the weak and broken down constution to health and strength.

Love me little, love me long.

It should be more generally undestood among invalids that medicine, like heat, is a mode of motion or form of potential energy, which is set free when taken into the system, according to its chemical affinities. It possesses no cure-all nor specific properties, but aids nature by increasing the functional activity of the vital organs, which secures the digestion and assimilation of food, the only radical panacea we have in all forms of disease. The special value of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND GALISAYA consists in its being both medicine and food, containing agents that create nerve force, and tissue elements for repair.

Love makes time pass away, and time makes love pass away.

HOW TO TREAT WEAK LUNGS

Always breathe through the nose, keeping the mouth closed as much as possible. Walk and sit erect, exercise in the open air, keep the skin scrupulously clean, and take Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for coughs, colds and bronchial troubles. 80i

THE STAMP MANIA.

Famous Collectors and their Valuable Treasures.

While some foreign postage stamps are worth little more than their original government value (sometimes not so much), others obtain fabulous prices in the world's stamp markets. The most valuable stamp—the rara avis of the French collector—is that of Mauritius, 1850. Whether blue or red it is worth 15,000 francs cash to its possessor ($300); but it is not easy to find, as all the French consuls have been looking for it for years. The most valuable French stamp is the one-franc issued in 1849—orange color. Unused it is worth $40; cancelled it is worth $12. The first Hawaiian stamp issued bearing figures instead of a design, is worth $200. Stamps of La Reunion of 1852 (15 and 30 centimes respectively), printed with a handpress on blue paper, are worth $200. The Mexican stamps of 1867, known as the "White Cuadalajara" (1 real), is worth cancelled $50. British Guiana stamps of 1850 (round, and either black or yellow) are worth $55 cancelled. Red Spanish stamps of 1851 (2 reals) are worth $50 unused and $20 cancelled. These are a few examples of singular values attached to such bits of colored paper. New Orleans readers may be interested in these quotations; and some of our merchants may be tempted to overlook such of their foreign correspondence as dates from 1849 to 1860.

The value of certain collections is enormous. The most important in the world,—and it is not yet complete!—belongs to the ex-Duchess of Galliera. The sum paid for stamps alone—not including other large expenses—was upward of $300,000. But this collection consists of many hundred volumes!—albums containing stamps. It will take nine years more to complete the collection.

M. Arthur Rothschild's collection ranks next; it is worth only $50,000, or 200,000 francs, and comprises over 100 volumes.

M. Rothschild has founded a Stamp-Collectors' Society—"La Societe Timbrologique"—which studies and records the history and peculiarities of all known stamps in their relation to chronology, geography, finance, linguistics and fine arts. This society holds its meetings on the first Thursday of every month; it issues a yearly bulletin and is preparing a sort of encyclopedic dictionary of stamps.

So large as the commerce in real stamps has become, with its thousands of wholesale and retail houses in the capitals of the world, it is doubtful whether the trade in counterfeit stamps does not almost equal it. Turkish, Cinghalese, Indian, American, African, Chinese, Japanese stamps are manufactured to order by great firms in Germany and in Belgium, the counterfeiters being careful to cancel the stamps as soon as printed so as to escape prosecution. A new mania has thus been developed. Collectors of counterfeit stamps are numerous and some of their collections are quite costly. But as the majority of stamp-collectors, who care nothing for counterfeits, are perpetually liable to imposition, a new profession has also been created—that of timbrological expert. The expert can detect the best counterfeit as readily as a first class bank-teller can detect a bad bill, and his services are largely in demand. One of these experts, well known to all stamp collectors in Berlin, earns without effort $10 a day the year round.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE BOTTLE MAN.

A Professional's Views of Walking Advertisements.

The gilded neck of a contrivance fashioned in the similitude of a champagne bottle towered above the heads of the throng in Sixth-avenue. A pair of legs protruded from the bottom. Half way up, on the side which faced in the direction of its progress, was a small opening with a grating across it. Stepping alongside, the reporter rapped near the grating.

"Who's there?" came a challenge in hollow tones from within.

The response, "a friend," suggested itself, and was spoken.

"What do you want?" said the voice.

"Want to ask you how you like this thing."

The bottle became communicative, and as it toddled up the avenue, the voice said:

"It all depends upon the weather. A man as understands the business will accommodate himself to the seasons. He will tote a banner, or maybe carry a lettered umberella or wear a painted linen duster during the heated term, take to boards when the season of raw north-east winds come on, and go into a bottle for the winter. Boards is better than banners in cold weather. The wind always blows up or down the street, so a feller is pretty well protected most of the time. When he comes to a crossing, if he finds the wind whistling across pretty sharp, he can walk edgeways and protect himself. But in right down cold weather a bottle is as much better than boards as a double-breasted overcoat is better than a liver pad.

"Then again, in hot weather no man as knows himself will go into a bottle, without he happens to be a chap as has seen a great deal better days, and don't want to be recognized by his friends. Take a ward politician in reduced circumstances, for instance—he don't want to be seen carrying a banner or between boards; so he is glad enough to go into a bottle for the heated term. There is once and a while a chap as has reasons for sort o' keepin out of view, you know, and he is ready for a bottle any time in the year. I ain't tellin' no names, but I knew a party what kept away from the police for a month or more, till they got off his track, by doing the bottle act. He used to toddle along the avenue right by the side of the detectives who was looking for him. He wasn't any of your poverty stricken sort, but lived like a fighting-cock—carried a bottle of the best old stuff in his coat pocket, lunched on boned sardines when he was loafing along, and smoked real Havanas. The smoke? Oh that was all right. He blew it out of the lookout, and, if anybody saw it, they thought it just curled up from the cigar of somebody else who was passing."

THOUSANDS SAY SO.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Eclectric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 82i.

A cutaway jacket is the proper costume for an elephant.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of Shiloh's Cure Sold. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of Consumption have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. Secord. 75y

Great things are made from iron, but tin often makes grater.

WATERBRASH CURED.

Twelve years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia and Waterbrash, with which I suffered extremely ever since until last spring. I tried the Crowfoot Bitters and less than one dollars worth cured me perfectly.

ELIZABETH GILLSON, Collingwood.

Pressed for money—a suit of clothes.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dispepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by D. Secord. 75y

ITCHING PILES.—SYMPTOMS AND REMEDY.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

BANKS AND BANK NOTES.

A Few of the Stories Told of the Greatest Bank in the World.

On one occasion the Bank of England proved much too accommodating for its own interests. Somewhere about the year 1840, one of its own directors, a man of wealth and of unimpeachable honor, bought an estate for £30,000, and for convenience sake obtained a note for that amount. On returning home, just as he was about to put it under lock and key, he was called out of the room and placed the note on the mantelpiece. On coming back a few minutes later, no note was to be seen. No one had entered the room in his absence, and, after an anxious search, he came to the conclusion that the precious bit of paper had fallen into the fire and been consumed. Hurrying off to Threadneedle Street he told his colleagues what had happened, and they gave him a second note upon his undertaking to restore the lost one if it should come again into his hands, and in case of its being presented by anybody else repay the amount to the bank.

Thirty years afterward, when he had long been dead and his estate distributed among his heirs, the supposed non-existent note turned up at the bank counter, where it was presented for payment. All explanation of the circumstances connected with it were lost upon the presentee—the note had come to him in the course of business, and it must be honored without delay. There being no help for it, he was paid the £30,000. Application was made to the representatives of the defunct director to refund the money, but they promptly disclaimed their liability, and the bank perforce had to put up with the loss. The story goes that it was discovered (how or when we are not informed) that the builder employed to pull down the dead man's house preparatory to rearing a new one on the site, had found the note in a crevice of the chimney, and had kept it and his own counsel until he thought it was safe to reap the reward of his patience and unscrupulousness, and so become a rich man at a stroke.

The executors of Sir Robert Burdett found no less than £270,000 worth of bank notes scattered here and there about his house, some slipped into bundles of old papers, some between the leaves of books, without a memorandum anywhere to apprise them of the existence of such valuables, much less of their whereabouts. A little better advised were the executors of the gentleman who left behind him a scrap of paper marked "Seven hundred pounds in Till," although they failed to interpret its meaning until they had disposed of all the dead man's belongings. Then one of them recollected that his library had contained a folio edition of Tillotson's sermons, and wondered if "Till" had any reference to it. The books had been sold to a bookseller, who luckily had not found a customer for them, although he had sent them on approval to a gentleman at Cambridge, who had returned them as not answering his expectations. The executor bought the Tillotson back again, and going carefully through the volume, recovered notes to the amount of $2,500.

The watchman of a factory at New Haven, America, afforded the administrators of his estate no clew whatever as to the hiding place of the savings of which they believed him to have died possessed. Overhauling his clothes, preparatory to selling them by auction, one of them threw an overcoat aside, when a dirty piece of cloth dropped out of the pockets. On examination this was found to be wrapped around a large cartridge shell, within which lay notes of $1,800 value, which, but for a mere chance, might unexpectedly have enriched a purchaser of second-hand clothing.

Some sixty years since a Bank of England five-pound note was paid into a Liverpoal merchant's office in the ordinary course of business. On holding it up to the light to test its genuineness the cashier saw some faint red lines upon it. Examining them closely, he traced some half-effaced words between the printed lines and upon the margin of the note written apparently in blood. After a long and minute scrutiny he made out the words: "If this note should fall into the hands of John Dean, of Longhill, near Carlisle, he will learn hereby that his brother is languishing a prisoner in Algiers." The merchant immediately communicated with Mr. Dean, and he lost no time in bringing the matter before the Government. Inquiries were set on foot, and the unfortunate man discovered and ransomed. He had been a slave to the Dey of Algiers for eleven years when the message he had traced with a splinter of wood dipped in his own blood reached the Liverpool counting house. Liberty, however, came too late; the privations and hardships of the galleys had sapped his strength, and, although he was brought home to England, it was but to die.—All the Year Round.

Book-Keeping by Triple Entry.

The late Daniel Webster was not careful in pecuniary matters, and his fault was at times taken advantage of. At one time a man sawed a pile of wood for him, and, having presented his bill, it was promptly paid. The laborer being hard up during the winter, a neighbor advised him to call on Mr. Webster for the payment of his bill. "But he has paid me," said the man. "No matter," replied his adviser, "call again; it is a common thing for him to pay much larger bills twice over." The man carried in his account the second time. Mr. Webster looked at it, looked at the man, remembered him, but paid the bill. The fellow again got short some three or four months afterwards, and depending upon Mr. Webster's looseness in money matters, presented the bill for sawing wood a third time. Mr. Webster, looking at the man for a moment said: "How do you keep your books, sir?" "I keep no books," said the man, abashed. "I think you do, sir," continued Mr. Webster, "and upon a triple entry system. Go home, sir, and be honest. I have no objection to paying these little bills twice, but I cannot pay them three times." The man left the room, feeling as though he was suffocating for want of air.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diphteria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cts, Sold by D. Secord. 75y

A New York woman keeps a coach dog to match her freckles.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 90

A knotty question—What kind of tie do you wear?

THE BEST PROOF—The Globe.

"I sell more Burdock Blood Bitters than I do of any other preparation in stock," says B. Jakes, druggist, Toronto. If the reader will ask any druggist in the city he will get a similar answer to his query—a proof that it is the most popular medicine for the blood, liver and kidneys known. 80i

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted; "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498t-y

HIGHLY AGREEABLE

One very valuable feature of Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup is that it is highly agreeable to take, and all varieties of worms, tape worm included, can be safely expelled by it, without recourse to harsh and sickening drugs. 80i

Burns at Dumfries.

The great majority of the pilgrims whose curiosity leads them into the district are neither Englishmen nor Scotsmen, but Americans. Americans care very little for feudal times—for Maxwells, or Johnstons, or Kirkpatricks, for monks or for nuns—but they care a great deal for Meg Merrilies and Bertram of Ellangowan, for Robert Burns and Bonnie Jean, for Highland Mary and Tam O'Shanter. And here Burns, rather than Scott, is the potent attraction. All Scotland is the land of Scott—from Sumburgh Head to Kirkmaiden; but there are, as every one knows, two lands of Burns. There is the Ayrshire land, in which the poet spent his youth and his early manhood; and there is the Dumfriesshire land, in which he spent the last eight years of his life, which proved at once his saddest and his most brilliant as well as his most prolific days.

Dumfries still rings with the name of Burns from end to end. A marble statute of Burns, recently erected, fills the place of honor in the streets of the town. The Mausoleum of Burns, in St. Michael's Churchyard, is the centre of attraction to all from far and near who visit the place. The site of his pew in St. Michael's Church—for the pew itself was long ago purchased and carried off by a devoted admirer—is regarded with subdued reverence. The parlor in the Globe Tavern—"Burn's Howff"—in which he spent many a merry evening, and in which his favorite chair, occupying the Poet's Corner, is still sacredly preserved, is a point of interest which no pilgrim would dream of omitting. Unhappily, this same Globe Tavern has been the cause of endless misconceptions of the poet's good name. It has been assumed that, because he was a frequenter of taverns, he was therefore a hopeless abandoned character and an unmitigated sot. Those who leap to this conclusion are forgetful of the times and of the custom of the times in which Burns lived. They forget that the tavern was in those days what the daily newspaper is in these—the only available means of acquiring and discussing the news of the day.

That Burns, in his pursuit of social intercourse, sometimes drank to excess cannot be denied; but that he was an habitual drunkard is the reverse of the truth. The best proof of this is found in the fact, which is on record on the testimony of his wife and those who knew him best, that Burns was never known to drink to excess in his own house. His faults, grave as they were, were those of his time, and not of the man. No one, however, who goes to Dumfries and who drinks to the immortal memory of the bard in the Globe Tavern need be troubled with "compunctious visitings" on the ground that he is commemorating the fatal orgies of a confirmed bacchanalian. Burns was nothing of that kind. He had his weaknesses and his faults, like other men—more than other men, because of his tenderly-strung and super-sensitive nature, of a pulse that "ran like a ratton"—and mightily he suffered for them. But the sentimental prudery of the present day that affects abhorrence of the name of Burns because certain lordlings gave him the cold shoulder in the streets of Dumfries ought to be reminded that it was for his political far more than for his social excesses that he was made a martyr in his later days.

Infinitely more pleasant, however, than the memory of Burns as a frequenter of the Globe Tavern is it to think of him as pacing, evening after evening in summer time, the Dock Meadow, or the banks of "winding Nith," opposite Lincluden, and excogitating the century of immortal lyrics which have endeared his name to his countrymen. Next to the Elisland period the Dumfries period was the richest and most prolific in the history of his teeming fancy. "Duncan Gray," "Last May a braw wooer," "My heart is sair," "Ye banks and braes o'bonnie Doon," "Oh, wert thou in the cauld blast," "Scots wha hae," and the immortal "Auld Lang Syne," are among the products of the poet's muse in the Dumfries period. The enumeration does not suggest either mental decadence or moral deterioration. The real sadness lies in the reflection that the maker of these masterpieces of our literature, and of all literature, was at the time of their production a supervisor of excise with a salary of £70 a year, living in a house in Dumfries for which he paid no more than £8 a year of rent. —London Times.

Didn't Want It.

"Boss, I kaint take dis twenty-fi' cents. Its got a hole in it what's been plugged up," said a negro grocer to a customer.

"But you must take it. I got it from you last night. Don't you remember?"

"Oh, yes, I 'members. I knows dat I gin it ter yer, an' I gin it ter yer 'case I didn't want it. Ef I had wanted it I would hab gin yer some udder quarter. Git outen de way an' let me cut off a piece of bacon. Musn't stan' roun' de sto' when de customers is so rampant ter buy suthin'."

Religious Faith.

"I wanst's to know?" said an old negro man, addressing his wife, "whar yer got dat goose?"

"Ain't it a good goose?"

"Yas, but whar did yer get it?"

"Now, Silvey, yer knows dat I 'longs ter de church. Whar did yer s'pose I got it?"

"Stole it,"

"Dat's it, chile. I knowed dat yer didn't step aside very fur from yer teachin'."

—"Come, Johnny, you mustn't swallow the seed in the pears you eat." "Why mother?" "Because they are injurious. They might sprout and grow in your stomach." "Good golly, is that all? Oh, that would be bully fun. Wouldn't it make the fellers laugh to see me goin' around with a whole lot of little pear trees growin' out all round my body. How long will it take them to sprout, mother?"

—Compositors are the most generous people in the world. They are always setting em up.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea Table and Dessert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Lino Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Br

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GERNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, if mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the booksto es, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

THE CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates, Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

THOS. WELLS. P. J. BROWN.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L.R.C.P. & L.M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M.R.C.S. AND L.M., ENGLAND L.R.C.P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ontario. Teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office, on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER. WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a months notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

VANCE'S BAKERY

Still continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers,

Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE, Thames Street.

Bread delivered in town daily.

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with armers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which canbe withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696
RESERVE - - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada. Particular attention paid to collections for Custom ers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.
Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department.—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGISBERG, Prop.

LEADING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582r-y

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 20. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1584.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

The Undersigned having Bought out the

BOOK, STATIONERY,

AND

Fancy Goods Business!

LATELY CARRIED ON BY

MR. GEORGE A. ODELL,

Hereby respectfully intimates to the inhabitants of Ingersoll and surrounding country that by paying cash down he was enabled to buy Mr. Odell's stock amounting to over $8,000.00 at a large reduction from cost price, thereby enabling him to give

BARGAINS

Unheard Of Before in this Locality.

New Goods FOR the Holidays

I am opening out my very extensive and superb stock of Fancy Goods, Presentation Books, Etc., for the Holiday trade. An inspection of which is cordially invited.

WALL PAPER.

My stock of Room Papers will always be found up to the requirements of the wants of our customers. A fresh supply of Wall Paper just received.

PICTURE FRAMING.

Picture Framing will be carried on in all its branches.

Having had 18 years' experience in the Book, Stationery, Wall Paper and Fancy Goods' business, besides being able to buy on the Cash Principle, purchasers can rely on getting good value for their money, and a well selected stock to choose from.

☞ In consideration of the foregoing, and with our best attention in the future, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal patronage heretofore given to MR. ODELL, with as many new customers as may be pleased to favour us.

A. ROBINSON,
STATIONER, ETC.,
INGERSOLL and BELLEVILLE.

Nov. 8th, 1883. 1574

PURE GROCERIES!

—AT THE INGERSOLL—

CHINA TEA HOUSE.

Headquarters the best for

TEAS, COFFEE, SPICES,

And everything in the grocery line at prices which defy competition.

The Finest Stock of CANNED GOODS to be Found Anywhere.

FISH, LARD AND KEROSENE

—Always kept in stock.—

A Choice Lot of Molasses and Syrups, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos, and Stoneware.

CANDIES. CANDIES.

A FINE LOT OF LAMPS

And everything in the above line to be found in any well regulated Grocery. In addition there is the choicest and the most select assortment of

CHINA in all Shapes and Patterns. CROCKERY to be had at all prices. GLASSWARE that cannot be beat for variety and Cheapness.

A better assortment of Canned Goods cannot be found in the County.

THOS. J. THORNTON.

Ingersoll, Oct. 25, 1883. 1572

Wind Mills, Pumps,

Lead and Iron Pipe Fittings, &c.,

HOT AIR FURNACES, REGISTERS, &c.

These furnances have been in use for some time, and their economy and efficiency can be vouched for by any of the following parties:

REFERENCES.

John Gayfer, Esq., Druggist, Ingersoll; Geo. Currie, Esq., Beachville; T. J. Thornton, Esq., Ingersoll; Trustees' Beachville School; Mrs. Thornton, Beachville; John Shaw, Esq., Kintore; John McKay, Esq., Thamesford, and many others.

As a wood heater these furnaces are unsurpassed for economy with efficiency, cheapness and urability.

JAS. SINCLAIR.

Ingersoll, Sept. 6, 1883. 565

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.

LAND REGULATIONS.

The Company offer Lands within the Railway Belt along the main line, and in Southern Manitoba, at prices ranging from

$2.50 PER ACRE.

Upwards, with conditions requiring cultivation. A rebate for cultivation of from $1.25 to $3.50 per acre, according to price paid for land, allowed on certain conditions. The company also offer lands WITHOUT CONDITIONS OF SETTLEMENT OR CULTIVATION,

THE RESERVED SECTIONS,

Along the Main Line, i.e., the odd numbered Sections within one mile of the Railway, are now offered for sale on advantages terms, to parties prepared to undertake their immediate cultivation.

TERMS OF PAYMENT.

Purchasers may pay one sixth in cash, and the balance in five annual instalments, with interest at SIX PER CENT. per annum, payable in advance.

Parties purchasing without conditions of cultivation, will receive a Deed of Conveyance at time of purchase, if payment is made in full.

Payments may be made in LAND GRANT BONDS, which will be accepted at ten per cent. premium on their par value and accrued interest. These Bonds can be obtained on application at the Bank of Montreal, Montreal; or at any of its agencies.

FOR PRICES and CONDITIONS OF SALE and all information with respect to the purchase of Lands, apply to JOHN H. McTAVISH, Land Commissioners, Winnipeg. By order of the Board.

CHARLES DRINKWATER, Secretary.

Montreal, December, 1883. 1583r-m

FEY.

'Art sure they're not for hoisting t' drum? Run to the shed, my lass,
And tell us what the coastguard say, and tak a look at t' glass;
The surf is calling on the Scar, but that will be for He'll nobbut last till turn of tide—the wind is lound and still.

Frightened? Not as I knows on; I'se not much glen to fright,
Though I remember a scare I got once on a winter's night:
I said 'twas the cold, and mebby it wer, our hair stood stiff wi frost,
And the snow scarce let us see the waves come crashing on tut' coast.

And then the cries from t' rigging of the wreck we could not reach,
Though we started t' lifeboat a dozen times yonder on Sandsend beach:
She wer only lying—the barque, I mean—out upon Upgang rock;
So nigh one almost shivered oneself, as her timbers did, at t' shock.

The rollers gave as they struck her; each wer a murderous blow,
And we couldn't get to her, couldn't, though we tried for it ever so:
The seas then came aboard us, snapped the oars off in our hands,
And drove us back like a feather, and tossed us up on t' sands.

And at last a mighty wave came in, as high as Ketleness,
And broke in thunder over her, and the sea had a toy the less:
Gone, masts and hull and cordage, and the clinging shrieking men—
Gone, an as I just ha telled thee, I felt like "frightened" then.

Where were they? Gone in a minute, husbands and fathers no doubt!
Where were they? Still, in the pauses, we seemed to hear them shout.
If the Lord once walked the water, as t' parson reads t' t' Book,
Why does he give the sea its will? I asked mysen as I shook.

Ay, but then I went home and forgot it, as each hour brought its work;
It's not like that I feels to-night—it's more as I'd like to shirk;
As if I scarce dared step I' t' boat, nor steer, nor haul on't t' line—
If I wer as maddled as some are now, I'd tak it for a sign.

But I'll ha none o' sike fondness: I'se getten my duty to do;
If one nobbut keeps one's mind to that, there's less at t' end to rue.
And see tha, if the fish are rank, there'll be brass for Nance to spare;
Since her master and her lad were drowned, I reckon she's hard to fare.

Give us a hug, and tak up t' bairn—she'll sleep again enow—
I'd like to leave her daddy's kiss on t' bonnie wee warm brow!
Bless the woman! what's to fret about? The sea's as calm as aught,
And as to the ring about the moon, it's often there for naught!

An t' coble's taut and trim; an Bob, I doubt he's had a drop;
But it's as if I can't fend i' t' boat—thou wouldn'st ha me stop,
When all the Cragg have got agate? And there's no call for fear;
Thou'll trust my Father" for me, lass, till agaia thou hast me here?'

And brightly broke the sunny day, and the air was soft as balm,
And the fair false sea lay dimpling in its lovely laughing calm;
Only the foam gouts on the beach and some drifting spars to say,
Of the squall that rose at the dead of night, and swept over Whithy Bay.

And a woman in a cottage clasped a baby to her breast,
As she sobbed by the side of a stalwart man, as they streaked him for his rest;
They had found him floating on the waves, that kept his drunken mate,—
They should ha minded as he wer fey,' the neighbours said—too late.

THE SKELETON'S STORY.

Ride closer!

It is two miles ahead to the foot hills —two miles of parched turf and rocky space. On the right—the left—behind is the rolling prairie. The broad valley strikes the Sierra Nevadas and stops as if a wall had been built across it.

What is it on the grass? A skull here —a rib there—bones scattered about as the wild beasts left them after the horrible feast. The clean-picked skull grins and stares—every bone and scattered lock of hair has its story of a tragedy. And what besides these relics? More bones—not scattered, but lying in heaps —a vertebræ with ribs attached—a fleshless skull bleaching under the summer sun. Wolves! Yes. Count the heaps of bones, and you will find nearly a score. Open boats are picked up at sea, with neither life or sign to betray their secret. Skeletons are found upon the prairie, but they tell a plain story to those who halt beside them. Let us listen:

Away off to the right you can see treetops. Away off to the left you can see the same sight. The skeleton is in line between the two points. He left one grove to ride to the other. To ride? Certainly; a mile away is the skeleton of a horse or a mule. The beast fell and was left there. If he left the grove at noon, he would have been within a mile of this spot at dusk. It is, therefore, plain that he did not leave until mid-afternoon or probably at dusk. Signs of Indians may have driven him from his trapping-ground, or mayhap he had exhausted the game, and was shifting to new fields.

It is months since that ride, and the trail has been obliterated. Were it otherwise, and you took it from the spots where the skeleton horse now lies, you would find that the last three or four miles were made at a tremendous pace.

"Step! step! step!

What is it? Darkness has gathered over mountain and prairie, as the hunter jogs along over the broken ground. Overhead the countless stars look down upon him—around him is the pall of night. There was the patter of foot steps on the dry grass. He halts and peers around him, but the darkness is too deep for him to discover any cause for alarm.

"Patter! patter! patter!"

"There it is again! It is not fifty yards from where he last halted. The steps are too light for those of an Indian. A gizzly would rush upon his victim with a roar of defiance and anger. A panther would hurl himself through thirty feet of space, with a scream and unnerve the hardiest hunter.

"Wolves!" whispers the hunter, as a sound suddenly breaks upon his ear.

Wolves!" The gaunt, grizzly wolves of the foot-hills—thin, and poor, and hungry, and savage—the legs tireless—the mouth full of teeth which can crack the shoulder-bone of a buffalo. He can see their dark forms flitting from point to point—the patter of their feet on the parched grass, proves that he is surrounded.

Now the race begins. There is no shelter until the grove is reached. Instinct guides the horse, and terror lashes him with such a whip as human hand never wielded. Over space, through gloom, almost as swift as an arrow sent by a strong hand, dut a dark line follows. A line of wolves spread out to the right and left, and gallops after—tongues out—eyes flashing—great flakes of foam flying back to blotch stone and grass, and leave a trail to be followed by the cowardly coyotes.

Men ride thus only when life is the stake. A horse puts forth such speed only when terror follows close behind and causes every nerve to tighten like a wire drawn until the scratch of a finger makes it chord with a wail of despair. A pigeon could not skim this valley with such swiftness, and yet the wings of fate are broad, and long and tireless. The line is there—aye! it is gaining! Inch by inch it creeps up, and the red eyes take on a more savage gleam as the hunter cries out to his horse and opens fire from his revolvers. A wolf falls on the right—a second on the left. Does the wind cease because it meets a forest. The fall of one man in a mad mob simply increases the determination of the rest.

With a cry so full of despair that wells up from the heart of the strong man when he gives up his struggle for life that the hunter almost believes a companion rides beside him, the horse staggers—recovers—plunges forward—falls to the earth. It was a glorious struggle, but he has lost.

The wings of the dark line oblique to the centre—there is a confused heap of snarling, fighting, maddened beasts, and the line rushes forward again. Saddle, bridle and blanket are in shreads—the horse a skeleton. And now the chase is after the hunter. He has half a mile the start, and as he runs, the veins stand out, the muscles tighten, and he wonders at his own speed. Behind him are the gaunt bodies and tireless legs. Closer, closer, and now he is going to face fate as a brave man should. He has halted. In a instant a circle is formed about him —a circle of red eyes, foaming mouths and yellow fangs which are to meet in his flesh.

There is an interval—a breathieg spell. —He looks up at the stars—out upon the night. It is his last hour, but there is no quaking—no crying out to the night to send him aid. As the wolves rest a flash blinds their eyes—a second—a third—and a fourth, and they give way before the man they had looked upon as their certain prey. But is only for a moment. He sees they gathering for the rush, and firing his remaining bullets among them he seizes his long rifle by the barrel and braces to meet the shock. Even a savage would have admired the heroic fight he made for life. He sounds the war cry and whirls his weapon around him, and wolf after wolf falls disabled. He feels a strange exultation over the desperate combat, and as the pack give way before his mighty blows a gleam of hops springs up in his heart.

It is only for a moment; then the circle narrows. Each disabled beast is replaced by three which hunger for blood. There is a rush—a swirl—and the cry of despair is drowned in the chorus of snarls as the pack fight over the feast.

* * * * * * *

The gray morning—the sunlight of noonday—the stars of evening will look down upon grinning skulls and whitening bones, and the wolf will return to crush them again. Man will not bury them. They will look down upon them as we look, read the story as we have read it, and ride away with a feeling that 'tis but another dark secret of the wonderful prairie.

ENGLISH-AMERICA.

Some Pointed Remarks Thereon.

Our American cousins are very fond of national celebrations. On Monday they celebrated the centennial of the evacuation of New York after it had been held seven years by the British troops. Dr. Talmage, in referring to the change of feeling towards the people of England, said:—"It is a good thing that the English left, and it is a good thing that they are coming back. There are now more English in New York than before the famous evacuation, and they have come to stay. They are in our stores, our factories and our homes. They make up some of our best citizenship. The fact is that the English have made such a deep impression upon Americans that we are out Englishing the English—English doggarts, English hats, English shoes, English gesticulation, English accentuation. All the satire of the day will not be able to make English ideas and manners evacuate. We are more and more unified. Broadway is only an extension of London Strand."

The Graphic takes another view of the position and says:—

"Would the Government of New York as an English city be any worse than that of the New York of to-day? Would the officials of the Crown have robbed and stolen any more than those who have ruled the country for the last twenty years? Would the rule of the King have been any worse than the rule of the people? Would the rule of the Crown have been any more tyrannical than that of the Boss? Would the rule of the lordly lords have been any more powerful than that of our railroad lords? Would the authority of monarchy have been any more absolute than that of monopoly? Do you really think you have what your forefathers fought for? Isn't there a good deal of liberty in the wrong place among those who run the Government? How does a Republican navy compare with a Royal navy? Did the departure of the English lessen at all the love of our girls for becoming duchesses?"

Carlyle and George Washington.

The following amusing conversation between Carlyle and Mr. J.T. Fields, the American publisher, is recorded in "The Friendships of Mary Russell Mitford:"—"So, sir, ye're an American?" quoth the self sufficient Scotchman. Mr. Fields assented. "Ah, that's a wretched nation of your ain. It's all wrong. It has always been wrong from the very beginning. That grete man of yours—(did any one under the sun ever dream of calling Washington George before?)—"your grete man George was a monstrous bore, and wants taking down a few hundred pegs." Really, Mr. Carlyle," replied my friend, "you are the last man in the world from whom I should have expected such an observation. Look at your own book on Cromwell! What was Washington but Cromwell without his personal ambition and without his fanaticism?" "Eh, sir," responded Carlyle, "George had neither ambition nor religion, nor any good quality under the sun—George was just Oliver with all the juice squeezed out."

Scotch Beauties.

They are a wiry and hard-enduring rather than a muscularly massive race, though here and there the Scandinavian physique is found to prevail. In the island of Lewis it is odd to note how in the north, where the names of the villages and mountains have Norse terminations (bost and bhal), the population is of the stalwart, tall, fair-haired, Scandinavian type, while the smaller black-haired or red-haired Celt occupies the southern half of the island, in which the names of the streams and mountains and lakes are exclusively Celtic. The handsomest man I have ever seen was a boatman on the west of Skye, the calm and serious dignity of whose face seemed more suggestive of Leonardo da Vinci than of herring-fishing; and the handsomest woman I have ever seen was a young married lady who, some years ago, happened to be travelling in the Clansman, and whose gently modulated English indicated an Inverness origin. When a Highland girl, even of the peasant class, is pretty (and the phenomenon is not of very rare occurrence), the prettiness is of a refined and intellectual type: the forehead high, the eyes clear, full, and contemplative, the mouth fine, and the expression of the face gentle and yet firm. Wordsworth never forgot the beauty of the Highland girl he saw at Inversnaid. Indeed, it is said he had to recur to that fount of inspiration when he wished to pay a poetical compliment to his wife. For the rest, the way in which an educated Highland young lady speaks English is one of the most delightful things in the world, though no doubt she would be very much surprised, and even indignant, if she were told she had any accent at all.—WM. BLACK, in Harper's Magazine for December.

Lord Coleridge and Mr. Flynn.

When Lord Colegridge came down from breakfast yesterday morning he was accosted by a rough-looking son of the Old Sod who had been waiting for some time at the hotel door.

"Are yez Lord Coleridge, Yer Honor?"

"I am, sir," replied His Lordship with dignity.

"Lord Chafe-Justice av England?"

"The same, my good man."

"I hav a case before 'Squire Antony I wud like yez to plade fur me."

Lord Coleridge smiled faintly, and moved off toward the reading-room, remarking that he did not have the time.

"But yez must do it," urged the man in search of counsel. "I'm Mike Flynn, av the Saxth Ward, an a bloody duffer has brat suit agin mo fur bracken doon his fince wid my express waggon. Si Keck told me yez wud take the case fur me."

At this point the clerk came to the rescue of His Lordship, and Mr. Flynn, of the Sixth Ward, was invited to take a walk.

THE BUSINESS MEN'S CABLE.

The New Company of Which ex-Postmaster James is President.

A number of prominent business men of New York, members of the Produce Exchange and other exchanges, have organized a company for the purpose of laying ocean cables between America and England. The chief object is to meet the requirements of business, and to this end the cables will make as nearly direct connection between New York and London and Liverpool as possible, the western terminus having been fixed at a point within a few miles of New York city. The rates for business will be about half those now charged; and guarantees against amalgamation or pooling will be provided. The president of the new organization is Thomas L. James, ex-Postmaster-General, and among the directors are David H. Bingham, of David Bingham & Bros.; E. R. Livermore, of E. R. & R. B. Livermore; John H. Herbert, of Herbert & Allen; A. D. Straus, of A. D. Straus & Co.; John F. Blummer, of Pomeroy & Blummer; E. A. Quintard, President of the Citizens' Savings Bank; W. H. Guion, of Williams & Guion; and A. H. Rice, ex-Governor of Massachusetts. Mr. J. C. Hueston has accepted the position of secretary. Nearly all the money is assured, and contracts are in negotiation for two cables of a new type, at once cheaper and better than any heretofore manufactured. The active interest of business men, and especially members of the Produce Exchange, in the enterprise will, it is believed, insure its success as a business venture from the start.

Frightened to Death by a Snake.

Miss Lizzie Belle, daughter of Benjamin F. and Clara A. Stevens, died in Livermore Centre, September 27, under peculiar circumstances. Her age was 13 years and 9 months. Her parents write us as follows: "As some incorrect reports have been circulated in regard to the sickness and death of our daughter Lizzie, we wish to give our testimony. Lizzie was employed in the box factory at Richmond's Mill, covering the little boxes turned there. One morning a basket of boxes was turned upon her bench. She put her hands in them to sift the sawdust from them, and discovered something among them, which she took hold of and brought to light. To her great horror it was a very large spotted snake. She was speechless for a while, but at length revived and said to the boss of the mill, 'That awful bi snake.' He said it made him shudde to touch it. She kept about for several weeks after with the horror of that dreadful snake ever before her. She would go to bed nights, but could not sleep or even remain in her bed; for that dreadful snake was ever around her. She kept up as long as she could, and then took to her bed. The first week she seemed comfortable; then she was taken crazy. Her chief talk was the snake. It seemed ever in her be or around her. She did not even recognize her father or mother, and her sufferings were heartrending. She lay in this state ten weeks, and then was stricken with typhoid fever, which run three weeks. The last few days her senses returned in a measure. Up to the time the fever set in the doctor called it no disease, simply nervous prostration. We think that her sickness, suffering, and death all started from that terrible shock."—Lewiston Journal.

Jamie's Old Watch.

On Brush street, near Jefferson avenue, for an hour the other day a bruised and battered old dumb watch and chain lay in the gutter, where some foot had kicked it from the walk. If any one gave the toy a second glance it was to realize that some child had lost or flung it away. The case was batter-ed, the face scratched and scarred, and no boy would turn aside to pick it up.

By and by a curious procession came up from the Brush street depot. It was composed of a man and his wife, both past 50 years of age, and four children, the youngest of whom seemed to be about 12. They were spread out on walk and street, heads down and moving slowly, and there was a look of anxiety on every face. Some one asked the man if he had lost his wallet, and he replied:

"No, not that. Somewhere as we came along we lost our Jamie's watch."

"Very valuable?"

"Well, sir, not as far as money goes, but it's a relic of the dead, and, sir—and——"

"Oh, it was an old dumb watch, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

"You'll find it in the gutter up by that post."

The entire family made a rush for the spot, and the watch had no sooner been lifted than the mother kissed it, and the children shouted their exultation.

"It may seem foolish to you, sir," explained the husband, as he slyly wiped at something like a tear in the corner of his eye, "but it's a long twelve years since Jamie died. That watch was the first toy I ever bought him. We've been burned out of house and home twice since he died, and that's the only scrap of relic left us of the little one. You see it's old and bent, but money couldn't buy it. Every time we look at it we can call up his blue eyes and the chubby face, and the thought that he is waiting for us up there almost answers for a meal with mother."

"Are you going away?"

"Yes—across the ocean to our old home in England. We must leave the dead behind. Had we lost the watch, I believe the mother would have broken her heart. So long as we have it the boy's face comes up to us. We can almost hear his laugh again, and it seems more like we had him away to sleep for an hour or two. Thank heaven that we have it! It was Jamie's, sir, and we are never to see his grave again."

GENEROSITY.—Never be sorry for any generous thing that you ever did, even if it was betrayed. Never be sorry that you were magnanimous, if the man was mean afterwards. Never be sorry that you gave. It was right for you to give, even if you were imposed upon. You cannot afford to keep on the safe side by being mean.

The Overworked Oyster.

"My gracious, ole fellow," said the slice of lemon peel to the oyster, "you look mighty pale."

"Pale!" exclaimed the other, "and why wouldn't I? Here I've been up, night after night, attending church socials, church choir oyster suppers, and so on, and I'm about played out. All the work comes on my shoulders, and I ask myself, as I wander about the stew looking for a chum, 'O Solitude, where are thy charms?' I tell you, old Slice, it was mighty lonesome swimming around in that great tureen."

"Must have been," the other agreed, "but you'll get rest now, eh?"

"Rest! not much," answered the oyster, sitting down exhausted. "I've got to play a lone hand at a teacher's oyster supper to-night. They borrowed me for the occasion."

"It's stew bad," said the Lemon, sympathizingly, "but you're no worse off than I am. I, alone, furnished lemonade for 565 scholars at the Sunday-school pic-nic two weeks ago, and, since that, I've done duty in two saloons, and I reckon I've made fully 150 lemonades."

"My goodness, old man, you're as badly off as I am," said the oyster. "It's a lemoncholy business, ain't it?"

"You bet," replied the Slice; "but I must be off and sour up for another gallon of lemonade; tra-la."

"By-by."

Charlestown has a shoemaker named Jumi. He should be able to make some good chews.—Somerville Journal.

"Her" Mother-in-Law.

It is always his mother-in-law upon whom sarcasm spends its random ineffectual shots. Her mother-in-law escapes. With manly egotism editors and writers who are, invariably and heedlessly masculine, remorselessly put the stale slanders in cold type and assume that their mothers are perfect mothers-in-law. "Are we not their sons?" "Could so perfect a specimen of manhood spring from any but a most perfect source?" Assuredly not. But wives are proverbially known to be imperfect; hence their mothers are more so. Who ever knew a wife that could cook like "my mother," or make a shirt that set like mother's, or darn socks so they wouldn't hurt the tender feet? "Mother used to do it, I don't see why you can't." The wife being so faulty, what can her mother be?

It is never disagreeable to him to hear his mother say that "Mary Jane dresses too much," "that Mary Jane entertains too much," "that she is extravagant in her house-keeping, careless in the management of the children," "too demonstrative," or the reverse. Oh, no, it is his mother and she must know. But let her mother but hint in the kindest manner that "George stays out too late," or that the "club is too expensive for a young man just starting in life with his own way to make," "that his cigar bill would suffice to bring many a little luxury into his home," and then will flow the vows (made to his wife with profane prefixes unfit for ears polite) that he "won't stand that old woman's tyranny any longer, that he had put up with it long enough (although it may be the first hint that she does not think him perfect), that if she keeps on in that strain she will drive him straight to the devil," etc.

But these are nothing beside the trials of a young wife taken to live with her mother-in-law. Who ever saw a mother with a darling son that could find a girl good enough or pretty enough for the splendid creature who one day is going to make Rome howl with his phenomenal cleverness and wonderful abilities? Be she ever so pretty or ever so sweet—she is not too pretty nor too sweet to incur his mother's aversion. The first battle ground (it looks like tattle ground as written—ED.) is the housekeeping of this double household—and although all the drudgery of the house-keeper may be relegated to the young wife—be sure the reins of government are still in the hands of his mother. This gives her an opportunity to criticise and admonish that is not to be gained by any other arrangement. Who has not seen in their own circle of acquaintance some sweet young girl married and taken to live with her mother-in-law? Did no one notice how, little by little, the happy light faded from her eyes, the youthful elasticity from her step, until people began to say: "How Mary Jane is fading." "She used to be so pretty." "Those delicate, bright looking girls fade so soon." Her mother has seen it if no one else has, and perhaps this is the beginning of the trouble between him and his mother-in-law, of which he writes so fervently.—N. Y. Graphic.

The One Thing in Which She Was Not Extravagant.

Mr. Topnoody lighted his cigar the other evening, after supper, just before starting down town, and Mrs. Topnoody looked at him and said:

"You smoke good cigars, don't you, Topnoody?"

"I try to, my dear."

"I heard a lady say to-day her husband told her you smoked two for-a-nickel kind."

"The scoundrel," said Mr. Topnoody, indignantly.

"I told her I knew you had better taste than that."

"Of course I have, my dear, and I'm glad you defended me. I smoke only the best and these cost twenty-five cents a piece, wholesale."

"How many do you smoke a day?"

"I smoke only about a half a dozen; but I give away enough to make it average as much as ten a day. There's nothing mean about me, my dear, in that sort of thing."

"Ten a day," said his wife, meditatively, "three hundred and sixty-five days in a year, 3,650 cigars a year, at a quarter apiece, amounts to $912.50—Topnoody, I want a $500 sealskin sacque."

"What? You shock me. Why, I can't afford it. I never wear any $600 clothes."

"All the same, I'm going to have it, and if I have to select it I'll get one for seven-fifty sure, Topnoody."

"But, my dear——"

"Don't but me, Topnoody. You may be a goat, but I'm no target."

"Good heavens, woman, you'll bankrupt me with your reckless extravagance."

"You think I'm extravagant, do you?"

"Yes, I do; you are extravagant in everything from your jaw clear around."

"Not everything, Topnoody."

"Name one thing you ain't extravagant in and I'll give you a dozen sacques, if I have to mortgage the house to do it."

"Will you? Well, I'll tell you mighty quick. I'm not extravagant in my admiration of a man named Topnoody, and I——"

Topnoody didn't remain even to hear the conclusion.—Merchant Traveler.

—"I thought," said the senior Baggles as he produced a suspicious looking flat bottle from his son's valise, "that there was nothing but your surgical instruments in this bag." "That's what I said, dad." "Then, sir, what do you call this?" "That? Oh, that's my eye-opener, dad; very useful instrument, very useful; indispensable, I assure you!"

—The idea of a woman demanding equal pay for equal work! She ought to be willing to do all the work for no pay at all. This comes of your higher education. Once was the time when a woman was willing to enlist in matrimony and become wife, mother, washerwoman and maid of all work, for board and clothes, and sometimes fifty poor board and plagues to clothes; but now—really, we have no patience with the creatures!

He Wanted an Explanation.

"You look like a clergyman," observed a hard up man to the gentleman next him in the smoker.

"I am," was the reply.

"Then I'd like to have you explain something to me."

"What is it?"

"You know, the Bible says 'as ye sow, so shall ye reap.' Now I've been sewing up holes in these trousers for two years, and I want to know when I am likely to reap another pair."

And he got the whole seat to himself.

The Hunter's Music.

The thunder grew louder. The storm gathered, hovered, burst. In a moment we were all wet—but hark! through the roll of the thunder and above the swirl of the rain, there sounds the bay of the hounds upon the mountain side. Old Spot is giving tongue, and that means the game is a bear. Young Spot joins in, and—booom, boooonm—down the canyon they came. The younger dogs stop chasing deer, and add their sharper voices to the steady roar of the infallible old trailer who follows on, as sure and as relentless as death. Where else now is music? Where is any harmony other than that of the full-voiced pack a-cry! Oh! Patti, Gerster, Nilsson; oh! Remenyi, Rubenstein, we love thee all, but no, thank you! we can't come just now.—American Field.

A high calling—The hallooing of a guide on a mountain.

THE STAGE-COACH ROBBERS.

What the Passenger With One Eye Did.

There was an army officer, a sutler, a surveyor, and two men who might have been mine inspectors in the stage when it drew up at Burt Hill to take on another passenger.

"Howdy," said the new passenger as he crowded in.

As he stood for a moment in the light of the station lamp, all saw that his left eye was gone. He wore no shade or patch to conceal the loss, and those who gave him a second look felt that the fire in his remaining eye was bright enough to answer for two. Dark as it was in the stage he seemed to have "sized up" every man inside of a minute, and, seeming to be satisfied regarding the crowd, he settled himself back in his seat, and had no remarks to make.

By and by the army officer mentioned something about road agents, and directly the conversation became interesting. Coaches had been stopped at various points on the line within a week, and it was pretty generally believed that a bad gang had descended on the route and were still ripe for business. The man with one eye had nothing to say. Once or twice he raised his head and that single

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS

Correspondents would oblige us by mailing their letters as early in the week as possible. We intend to send the paper to press at an earlier hour than formerly, and news items reaching us later than noon on Wednesday will run the risk of being left over—and out.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

The edition of THE CHRONICLE printed each week is now so large and increasing rapidly that in order to catch the mails the paper must go to press very early each week. Changes for contract advertisements must be handed in not later than Tuesday morning of each week to ensure attention for that week's issue. There will be no deviation from this rule in the future. Transient and legal advertisements will be received up to the time of going to press. We hope our advertisers will bear the above remarks in mind.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

G. T. R.—Joseph Hickson.
Concert—Caledonian Society.
Royal Baking Powder.
Warner's Safe Cure.
Watches—H. Richardson.
Drugs—J. W. Browett.
Dry Goods—Godson & Co.
Special—Nonsuch.
School Books—P. W. Campbell.
Tenders—Wm. Sutherland.
Wood Wanted—W. T. Feightner.
Cream—De Laval Cream Separator Co.
Auction Sale—J. Boles.
Meeting—Thos. Seldon.
Notice—M. H. Gray,
For Sale—Wm. Crary.
Violin Tuition—P. W. Campbell.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

GOOD ice at the rink.

"AN Ambitious Woman."

SLEIGHING parties are popular.

"AN Ambitious Woman" next week.

HORSE race in the park this afternoon.

LARGE quantities of good ice are being harvested.

THE Ingersoll Rural Cemetery Co. meet on Monday, 21st.

MR. F. Wixson is erecting a handsome residence on Queen street east, which is fast approaching completion.

A GRAND TREAT IN STORE.—The Camilla Urso Concert Co. are to appear in the Town Hall, on Monday evening, Jan. 28th.

WE regret to learn that Messrs. Jas. F. McDonald and Wm. Ewart are confined to their houses with severe colds.

THERE was no quorum at the Agricultural Society meeting called for Thursday last A meeting is called for Saturday, 26th inst.

SCOTTISH CONCERT.—The programme of the Grand Scottish Concert appears in another column. Read it.

ON our second page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of the various kinds of baking powders now in the market.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.—Last meeting of the old council to-night. The new council will be sworn-in on Monday forenoon next, and the first regular meeting will be held the same evening.

M. E CHURCH.—The Sunday School Entertainment of this church on Tuesday evening last proved a most successful one. There was a large attendance, and the children acquitted themselves splendidly.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The young people of the B. C. Church, Oxford street, are arranging for a first class entertainment to be held on Monday evening, 28th inst. Look out for the "bill of fare."

PRINTED billheads look business like, and cost little more than the blank paper. They make the work of getting out accounts easier too. The CHRONICLE has a good and cheap line on hand. Call and examine samples, and learn prices.

SLEIGHS, ETC.—Mr. Geo. Bailey has been appointed agent here for the sale of carriages, sleighs, etc., made by John Campbell of London. He now has a large stock of sleighs on hand at his old warerooms opposite the Daly House.

DELEGATES TO GRAND LODGE.—At the last regular meeting of Anchor Lodge, Y. M. P. B. A., of this town, Bros. T. Bowers, M. D., J. E. Holden, and E. L. Smith were elected delegates to attend the Grand Lodge, which meets in Toronto on February 12th.

COMMUNICATIONS.—We have received several communications this week in reference to the reform convention to be held at Mt. Elgin to-morrow. As the convention will be over before THE CHRONICLE reaches the majority of its readers and the communications would therefore have no effect we have omitted them.

MARKING BALLOTS.—It is very gratifying to notice how generally correct the people of all classes have become in the marking of their ballots at municipal and other elections. A few years ago the number of spoiled ballots reported by returning officers was remarkable. Now, however, very few errors are ever made.

THE POOR House question was submitted to the people without giving them any information about its objects, working or expense. The people in the rural municipalities supposed the House was solely intended to keep the poor of the towns, and therefore voted solidly against it.—Woodstock Times.

SNOW ON SIDEWALKS.—It is announced that the snow by-law will in future be strictly enforced. There is very little use for one man to clear off the walk opposite his premises if his neighbour neglects to do his part. It is the intention of the authorities to see that the walks are all kept clear of snow in the future.

SLEIGHING.—Sleighing for the last week or so has been very good, and any branch of business in which teaming is necessary, has been correspondingly brisk, although the intensity of the cold a few days since, may have somewhat hindered operations. Large quantities of wood have been brought to market, selling rapidly at good prices.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.—The anniversary of Robbie Burns will be celebrated in Ingersoll by a grand concert under the auspices of the Caledonian Society, in the Town Hall, on Friday evening, January 25th 1884. The Society has secured the services of the great Scottish humourist, Findlay McGregor. He will be assisted by Miss Belle Parsons, the humorous elocutionist, contralto vocalist and pianist, of Detroit.

COUNCILS FOR 1884.—According to the municipal law the new councils for the current year are required to meet on the third Monday of this month; and as the reeves and deputy reeves have to assemble in county councils on the 4th Tuesday in January to elect wardens, etc., it so happens the present year that this compels them to meet on the next day after organizing in the local municipalities—the 4th Tuesday being the next day after the 3rd Monday.

A GREAT ARTIST.—Camilla Urso is one of the greatest artists that has ever visited this town. Ingersoll is to be congratulated on having the opportunity of hearing her, and we trust our citizens will show their appreciation of high artistic talent by welcoming this great artist with a full house. We do not believe (as has been alleged) that the tastes of our people can only be gratified by a band of negro jubilee singers. We believe they can understand and appreciate the finer music of cultivated artists.

CANADIAN WINTERS.—The good sleighing is being taken advantage of. The merry jingle of the sleigh bells is heard on the streets from early morn till dewy eve, and a good while afterwards. Were it not for the sleighing the Canadian winter season would be drill indeed, for cold without snow is highly unpleasant. Besides the sleighing there are such outdoor pastimes as skating, curling, snow-shoeing, tobogganing and ice boating although the latter of these exercises cannot be indulged in here.

EXPOSURE AT FUNERALS.—An exchange remarks:—At this time of the year a great deal of mischief is done by people standing with their hats off at funerals. The drive to the cemetery is apt to give one a chill, and the burial service in connection with some of the churches is unduly long. It is only right that people should take their hats off when the burial service is being read, but it is not wise for them to expose themselves to unnecessary risk. A cold at this season may easily develop into something worse. It would be better if the burial service in winter time were confined to the house.

FRANK LESLIE'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE.—The February number is even more than usually attractive with literary and artistic gems. The editor (T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.), has an exceedingly interesting article, "Wonders of the Century"; the Rev. E. Barrass, M. A., contributes an admirable one, "Methodism in Canada," with nineteen portraits and other illustrations, "Capri and its Blue Grotto," "Zwingle, the Swiss Reformer," "The Philipse Manor Hall at Yonkers," "George Frederick Handel," "Samson Agonistes," "Liturgies and Liturgic Worship," etc., etc., are among the other prominent articles. There are short stories, sketches, essays and poems, and with a most varied, edifying and entertaining miscellany, the present number may challenge comparison with the best of its contempor, aries. The price is 25 cents a number; $2.50 a year, postpaid. Address, Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, N. Y.

SOUTH OXFORD LIBERALS.

Annual Meeting at Mt. Elgin—Large Meeting of Representative Liberals—Convention to be held To-Morrow.

The annual meeting of the South Oxford Reform Association was held at Mt. Elgin on Thursday afternoon. The storm of the past two days had drifted the roads so badly that it was very difficult to reach the meeting from some parts of the riding. In spite of this, however, about 150 representative Reformers assembled. Among them were James Noxon, P. J. Brown, W. S. King, M. Day, T. Mayberry, T. L. Newton, G. H. Cook, C. J. Cook, W. Colyer, M. Hadcock, John Lee, H. A. Titus, E. Rinch, J. Connor, D. Tripp, W. S. Ferguson, S. Sherwood, T. J. Lammerman, J. Rice, J. Mines, D. Elliott, John Watt, Jas. Brady, J. F. McDonald, J. B. Capron, W. Watterworth, Wm. Schell, J. O. Flearman, J. V. Bodwell, W. Tripp, J. C. Hegler, F. Cody, Wm. McDonald, L. McLean, Geo. S. Oliver, Dr. McKay, E. B. Brown, Justus Miller, A. M. McKay, A. Ross, M. L. Stephens, James Fitzgerald, James A. Cody, W. Nancekivell, James Hunter, Jas. Ryan, Dr. Smith, R. Ryan, P. Kennedy, John Sheahan, J. M. Wilson, W. Ryan, John Tribe, Jas. Wilcox, J. Thornton, W. Brown, John Fulton, M. T. Buchanan, Wm. McKim, Joseph Bell, John Russell, John Frezell, W. Norris, Wm. Gait, Charles Thompson, J. C. Ross, D. W. Pratt, R. Butler, D. S. Butterfield. The press was represented by G. F. Gurnett, of THE CHRONICLE, and A. Pattullo, of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

The following officers were elected:

President—Seneca Pitcher, Norwich.

Vice-President—Wm. McDonald, Tilsonburg.

Sec.-Treas.—Jas. F. McDonald, Ingersoll.

Mr. Day, the retiring president, spoke of the harmony with which the party had worked during his time of office, and expressed the opinion that in the contest supposed to be impending they would be found harmonious and united as usual.

The following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Moved by James Noxon, seconded by E. V. Bodwell, That this association regrets the serious mental condition of our member, the Hon. Adam Crooks, which unfits him for the discharge of his duties as our representative, and we desire to express our high appreciation of his service as member of South Oxford, and to the cause of good Government.

Moved by H. A. Titus, seconded by Franklin Cody, That from information in possession of this Association, there is reason to believe that the representation for South Oxford will be declared vacant immediately on the assembling of the Legislature, on the 23rd inst., and in view of such an event, it is desirable that a candidate be selected to contest the Riding in the Reform interest: that for the purpose of making a proper selection of a candidate, a convention be held on Friday, the 18th inst., and that delegates be elected on Thursday, 17th inst.

The following were elected Vice-Presidents for the different municipalities:—

Name	Post Office.
SOUTH NORWICH.
1. W. L. Townsend,	Hawtrey.
2. John Singer,	Otterville.
3. M. Durkee,	do.
4. James Wilcox,	Springford.
5. James H. Spencer,	do.
NORTH NORWICH.
1. George Barr,	Norwich.
2. Elias Mott,	do.
3. W. H. Dennis,	do.
4. John Sheahan,	do.
NORWICHVILLE.
1. J. H. Farrington.
2. D. S. Butterfield.
3. W. P. Ray.
EAST OXFORD.
1. Allen Virtue,	Eastwood.
2. John Eade,	Oxford Centre.
3. T. J. Lammerman,	Curries.
INGERSOLL.
1. W. Watterwoth,	4. M. T. Buchanan,
2. W. C. Bell,	5. Peter Kennedy,
3. John Russell,	6. J. M. Wilson.
DEREHAM.
1. S. Foster,	Salford.
2. W. Nancekivell,	Ingersoll.
3. S. Sherwood,	Springford.
4. J. Ryan,	Culloden.
5. D. Smith,	Delmer.
6. J. Fulton,	Brownsville.
TILSONBURG.
1. J. C. Ross.
2. C. Thompson.
3. Jas. Connor.
WEST OXFORD.
1. Thos. R. Mayberry,	Salford.
2. Jas. Dicky,	Beachville.
3. F. Cody,	Sweaborg.
NORTH OXFORD.
1. W. Colyer,	Ingersoll.
2. W. Dunn,	Ingersoll.

THE CARNIVAL.

At the Rink on Tuesday Evening.

There was an excellent attendance at the Skating Rink on Tuesday evening, upon the occasion of the first carnival of the season. Good music was rendered, the ice was in fine condition and everything passed off in a most satisfactory manner. A goodly number of strangers from London, Woodstock and other places were present. There were several fine costumes shown. Among those present were the following:—

Miss Ada Palmer, Bride.
" Mira Hambly, Peek-a-boo.
" Lucy McCarty, Gipsy Queen.
" Jennie Rice, Hornet.
" May Boles, Red, white and blue.
" Marguerite Smith, Stars and stripes.
" Jennie McKellar, } Charity.
" Kate Vance, }
" Paulena Smith, Toy girl.
" Tillie Vance, Fairy.
" Kate Rose, Brigand's daughter.
" L. G. Oliver, Artist.
" Tottie Broderick, Sarnia, grandma.
" Josie Smith, good luck.
" Ella Greenaway, Spanish Girl.
" Bella Clark, purity.
" Nettie Palmer, Queen of the forest.
" Miza Buchanan, officer's lady.
" Nettie Murray, snow drift.
" Christena Buchanan, boots and shoes.
" Laura Ditchfield, good luck.
" Hannah Eyman, Swiss lady.
" Selena Mabee, sun flower.
" Emily Smith, Mary Queen of Scots.
" Jessie Wilson, waiting maid.
" Maggie O'Neill, winter.
" Annie McCarty, waiter.
" Emma McCarty, Spanish lady.
Mr. Joel McCarty, Mexican Cow Boy.
" Elmer Baker, } Sailor,
" Chas. Scoffin, } Cow Boy.
" Joe Doherty, Cow Boy.
" Geo. Baigent, Thamesford, Mexican Cow Boy.
" John McDonald, } Mr. and Mrs. Grumthy and " John Goble, } sick kid.
" Robert Rice, Mexican Cow Boy,
" John Cavanagh, white-washer.
" F. Keating, young cadet.
" James Stuart, washerwoman.
" Willie Morrison, sailor boy.
" Charlie Underwood, clown.
" Harry Mason, clown.
" C. T. Hoaga, Ghost.
" Harry Grant, Saratoga waiter.
" W. A. Smith, } Irish gentleman.
" F. Boles, }
" A. Middlemiss, Page.
" Jas. Gustin, Saltanbulus.
" J. E. Ross, clown.
" Barnett Secord, Uncle Sandy.
" Jos. Hambly, Aunt Dinah.
" W. Middlemiss, what is it.
" Chas. Penfold, John E. Dialima, horizontal bar performer.
" Sterling Warnock, } torch boys.
" Chas. Warnock, }
" Gus Kennedy, Anti Fat.
" D. G. Douglas, London, a Dude in season.
" Chas. Fonger, a Dude out of season.
" T. Loss, Woodstock, masher.
" Joe Sutton, Dutch emigrant.
" E. Keating, Brigand chief.
" Edgar Buchanan, butcher.
" A. McDonald, waiter.
" Chas. Rose, }
" J. Greenaway, } Barnum's Quartett of Curious
" F. Campbell, } Wonders.
" Jas. Noe, }
" F. Smale, Chinawoman.

LONDON BICYCLE CLUB:

Messrs. J. Hodgins, Wm. Begg, J. McArthur, A. Osborne, G. Cameron, A. Forsyth, Jas. Lamb, J. Muirhead.

IT is impossible to find one individual who felt certain—some time ago—that the winter would be an open one.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

Moss & Co's. D. S. F. Mustard cannot be surpassed for excellence of flavor purity and strength, ask your grocer for it. 75

OYSTERS in every style at Vance's. 71.

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

LADIES' Kid Boots at Logee's. 60

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

ASK your grocer for Moss & Co's. Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard. 75

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's, McCaughey's Block. 41.

DESTROY the Worms or they may destroy the children. Use Freeman's Worm Powders, they expel all kinds of worms 82t,

REV. FATHER BOUBAT.

Parting Testimonials From His Congregation.

The Rev. Father Boubat preached his farewell sermon, to the congregation over which he has presided the past seven years, Sunday morning, and was listened to with an earnestness and attention which seldom fails to the lot of a clergyman. After the impressive service concluded the school children read a feeling address to their spiritual adviser, and presented him with a handsome dressing case, to which the rev. gentleman made a suitable reply.

Subsequently Mr. James Brady, on behalf of a Committee of the congregation, asked the rev. divine's acceptance of a well filled purse, accompanying the same with the following address:—

"To the Rev. Father Boubat, Church of the Sacred Heart, Ingersoll:—

"REV. AND DEAR SIR.—It is with feelings of profound sorrow we learn that you have offered the resignation of your pastoral charge of this mission, and that, with the sanction of His Lordship, you are about to leave us with the view of taking charge of another field of labour. Such unexpected and sad news has filled the hearts of your parishioners with deep regret, and we cannot, therefore, let this opportunity pass without signifying the high estimation in which we hold you.

"Since your arrival amongst us, seven years ago, you have endeared yourself to all, and to day, rev. sir, the name of Father Boubat elicits loving remembrances from every one in the parish. It requires no words of ours to point to the many improvements and good works which stand as monuments of your zeal and piety—they speak for themselves—our magnificent new church, second to none in Ontario, also the new parsonage, etc., etc. We also owe you a debt of gratitude for the great interest you have always taken in our schools. Our children will remember with heartfelt thanks their beloved priest, and ever recollect the well-meant instructions given to them; that when you are far away they may ever think of you, remain good Catholics and be also good members of society. Brief though the time at our disposal, we cannot allow it to pass without giving, in some slight manner, a substantial proof of the regard and esteem in which you are held by your parishioners, for which purpose we beg your acceptance of this purse. In conclusion, rev. sir, we solicit a remembrance in your prayers and at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

"We subscribe ourselves, on behalf of the congregation of Ingersoll, your loving and sorrowing friends, James Brady, James Murdoch, Robert Keating, Michael Dunn, John S. Smith, Peter Kennedy, Thomas Henderson, John Flaherty, John O'Callaghan, Peter Carling, Richard Ryan, Wm. Crawford, J. S. Henderson, Michael Clear, D. O'Neil, Andrew Smith.

"Ingersoll, Jan. 13, 1884."

The younger members of Father Boubat's congregation also evinced their appreciation of his labours by asking his acceptance of a purse of money, together with the subjoined address:—

"DEAR FATHER BOUBAT.—On the eve of your departure from amongst us, the younger members of your flock are anxious to tender to you the sentiments of reverence, love and esteem which they entertain towards you, as also to assure you of the high appreciation they feel of the devoted energy with which you have laboured for their spiritual and temperal interests. To you, dear Father, we owe the erection of our magnificent church, which will be a lasting monument to your zeal for the cause of our holy religion in Ingersoll. Your goodness and personal kindness have endeared you to the hearts of your people, who do not forget the debt of gratitude due to you from them. You have, by word and example, conducted all under your care in the holy and safe paths of faith, piety and Christian virtue, which alone lead to eternal life. It is, therefore, with the deepest regret that we must now sever the ties that have bound us together so many years, feeling that the void in our hearts caused by your departure can never be filled.

"Dear Father, please accept this purse from your children as a slight token of the strong attachment and filial love they bear you. If our prayers avail on High, your future path will be a happy one, as we shall daily commend you to the sacred heart of Jesus, in whose honor you have done so much for us.

"We will now bid you a kind farewell, wishing you, dear Father, the success you deserve in your future field of labor.

"Committee—Alex. Murdoch, Thomas J. Henderson, Thomas Comiskey, Ella Brady, Emma Smith, Minnie Keating, and Annie Shea.

"Ingersoll, Jan. 13, 1884."

The rev. gentleman was visibly affected by these manifestations of kindness on the part of both young and old, and replied as follows:—

"MY DEAR FRIENDS,—

"I thank you very sincerely for your very kind addresses by which you so gracefully express regret and pain on the occasion of my departure from amongst you, and of the most probably permanent severance of the ties of pastoral and spiritual affinity which have existed between us, I may say now, for seven years.

"The kindness and generosity of this present step of yours, of the congregation as a whole, and of the young people in particular, is appreciated by me so much the more as, under present circumstances, my heart naturally swells and breaks, and in the course of human promptings is yearning and gaping for loving and sympathizing hearts wherewith to soothe its aches.

"My heart aches, dear, beloved friends, when I find myself taken away, as I may put it, by the irresistible hand of passing events from among beloved parishioners, many among whom have given unto me, in most trying difficulties, a more than common and ordinary measure of sympathetic and practical assistance and of personal devotedness.

"My heart aches when I find this certainly beautiful and most devotional church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus taken away from me perhaps by an allwise Providence to whom I have had me draw richer and holier results from this precious gift, 'The Sanctuary' which, I hope, will yet be found to be the diocesan focus of our Blessed Lord's radiating love unto the devout worshippers and followers of His Sacred Heart.

"My heart aches when this severance of most sacred ties calls fresh to my mind all the greater good that I have failed to do you and the imperfections which have retarded the little good I have tried to do.

"Your kindness, therefore, is so much the better appreciated and my debt of gratitude to you is so much the heavier, when, unworthily faring better than our divine Master, my disciples and friends fall not asleep but are up round about me to protect me, if need there were, before a cold and not always a just world, and to assist my weakness by their fervent prayers before the most loving and most fergiving heart of Jesus.

"Very sincere thanks, then, again, my beloved friends, I give to you, the congregation of Ingersoll, and in particular to the young people thereof, for this and many other kind acts in the past.

"We may never meet again in person during our earthly pilgrimage, and never be united again in the bonds of pastoral friendship, but please remain assured that we shall often meet in the bonds of Christian charity the most grateful, and that when your spirit and your heart will be at the foot of Jesus, there also you shall find my spirit and my heart, and the incense of our prayers shall commingle and ascend through the sacred heart to the mercy seat of the Eternal Father.

"In earnest of which, believe me ever your grateful and devoted friend.

"B. BOUBAT."

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

VANCE'S oyster parlour is now open. Give him a call. 71.

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ZOPESA at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

NO table is complete without Moss & Co's Celebrated Mustard. 75

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.25 The best value ever offered in Ingersoll.—S. P. Logee. 56

DR. Low's Worm Syrup will remove worms and cause, quicker than any other Medicine. 82t,

TOWN COUNCIL.

An adjourned meeting of the Council was held on Thursday evening last.

Members present:—His Worship, the Mayor, in the chair, Messrs. Watterworth, Seldon, Matheson, Stewart, Horsman, Cragg, Dr. McKay, Waterhouse, Richardson and Walley.

Treasurer's report for December showing balance on hand $1,689.46 read.

Report of Chief Engineer of Fire Department read.

Letter from M. T. Buchanan, giving up Hook & Ladder House.

The following accounts were read: Ingersoll Gas Light Co, $84.85; J. W. Holmes, tile, $1.47; Thos. Henderson, repairs, $20; Brown & Wells, law costs, $12.12; R. M. Deuel, wood for town hall, $14.75; C. R. Patience, printing election, $3.75; R. A. Woodcock, election expenses, $30.32; Geo. Ross, coal, $35.63; Robt. Frezell, tramp's meals, $5.70; G. F. Gurnett, printing, $105.94; H. Rowland, printing and order book, $11.50.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved, That the taxes of the following ratepayers appearing on the accompanying list be remitted and the Mayor sign order in favour of the collector for the same amount, $79:—Miss Poole, $3.80; Mrs. H. McKay, $5.70; Mrs. A. P. Case, $2; Mary McCaskill, ½, $5.85; Mrs. Caroline Denning, ½, $2.62; Mrs. Hugill, ½, $2.62; Mrs. Robert Ross, ½, $2.85; Miss Rosina Stuart, $7.80; John Fraser, $5.35; Mrs. H. Lewis, ½, $2.80; Geo. Roberts, $2; Mrs. Cunningham, ½, $4.88; Mrs. Matheson, $2; Mrs. E. Edwards, ½, $4.28; Mrs. S. Collins, ½, $4.28; Geo. Cowse, $2.60; Mrs. McClary, $2.80; Mrs. J. James, ½, $4.52; Mrs. L. D. Kennedy, ½, $2.85; Mrs. C. Stonehouse, ½, $2.62; Mrs. Jackson, ½, $4.28.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Horsman, and resolved, That R. M. Deuel's account, $14.75, for wood for town hall and lock-up, be paid and that the Mayor sign an order on the Treasurer for the same.

Moved by Dr. McKay, seconded by Mr. Waterhouse, and resolved, That the salary of Mr. Gray, $50, for November and December, be paid, and that the Mayor sign order on the Treasurer for the same.

Moved by Mr. Walley, seconded by Mr. Matheson, That Geo. Ross' account, coal, $35.62½, be paid.

Moved by Mr. Matheson, seconded by Mr. Waterhouse, That an order be drawn in favour of Wm. Thompson for $168, salary of 28 men for 6 months ending December 31st, 1883, and the following salaries be paid: Thos. Henderson, 1st engineer, $25; F. Sheppard, 2nd do., $12.50; W. Towle, 3rd do., $6.25.

Moved by Mr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Cragg, and resolved, That the sum of $50 be placed to the credit of Dr. McKay, Secretary of Band Committee, being amount in full for the year just ended, and that the Mayor sign order on the Treasurer for the same.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, That the salary of C. C. L. Wilson, $50, in full to January 1st, 1884, be paid.

Moved by Mr. Matheson, seconded by Mr. Walley, and resolved, That the Mayor sign an order in favour of the Ingersoll Gas Light Co. for $81.46.

Moved by Mr. Richardson, seconded by Mr. Matheson, and resolved, That the Mayor sign an order on the Treasurer in favour of M. Gray for $5.70, being for 38 meals for tramps at R. Frezell's, in full to December 31st, 1883.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Horsman, and resolved, That $30.32 be paid R. A. Woodcock for election expenses.

Moved by Mr. Waterhouse, seconded by Mr. Matheson, and resolved, that the Mayor sign order on the Treasurer in favour of R. Vance for $50, yearly grant to Chief of Fire Brigade.

Council adjourned.

INGERSOLL BIBLE SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Ingersoll branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in the King Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening last. The Rev. E. M. Bland, 1st Vice-President, occupied the chair, and opened the meeting by announcing a hymn. The Rev. J. Reynolds read a portion of the scripture. Rev. H. C. Speller offered prayer. The choir of the church were assisted by a few from other choirs.

The Secretary read the financial and statistical report, showing the sales at the Depository to be considerably in advance of the previous year.

It was moved by Rev. W. W. Ross, seconded by H. Crotty, and resolved, That we do hereby express our deep regret at the loss of the Rev. John McEwan, one who by his catholicity of spirit, cultured and thorough going qualities, has endeared himself to us all, and that we follow him with earnest prayers and large hope to the important sphere of Secretary of the Sabbath School Association of Ontario, a position to which years of preparations have eminently qualified him.

The Ladies' Auxiliary reported a very satisfactory increase in the amount collected over the previous year. They have also sustained a great loss, as well as the Committee, in the removal of Mrs. McEwen.

The following motion was unanimously adopted by the 2nd quarterly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary: Whereas for seven years past Mrs. McEwen has rendered most reliable assistance in connection with our Bible Society work, not only in the way of sympathy, counsel and active effort, which she never failed to exert, but also by the cheerful hospitality of her home, which has, so many times been extended in connection with the societies' meetings. Therefore resolved, That we put on record our appreciation of the above, and our sincere regret at the removal from our midst of one so worthy of our esteem, both as a friend and fellow worker, so reliable and efficient in every department of Christian work. Our loving and grateful regards follow her to her new home, with the earnest prayer that she may be cheered, sustained and increasingly helped in the work of faith and labor of love.

The following is a financial statement for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1883:

Jan. 11, 1883. Balance in Treasurer's hands ..... $ 11 49
Collection at public meeting 9 00
Collected by Ladies' Auxiliary during the year 205 30
Sales at the Depository 62 49
$288 28

DISBURSEMENTS.

1883. Purchase of bibles and testaments, A. U. C. Bible Depository.. $ 59 00
Depositor's Commission 10 00
Sexton, services 1 00
Free grant to B. & F. Bible Society. 100 00
Free grant to U. C Bible Society . 100 00
Balance on hand 18 28
$288 28

STOCK ACCOUNT AT DEPOSITORY.

Dec. 31st, 1882. Stock of bibles and testaments on hand ..... $ 62 29
Stock purchases during the year 59 00
$121 29

Dec. 31, 1883. Stock on hand.. .... $ 57 90
Donation of bibles to indigent persons 90
Sales at the Depository 62 49
$121 29

After the passing of several votes of thanks the Secretary read the following list of officers and committees for the ensuing year:—President, Rev. E. M. Bland; 1st Vice-President, Rev. W. W. Ross; 2nd Vice-President, Mr. Gordon; Secretary-Treasurer, R. Kneeshaw; Depository, R. Kneeshaw's. Committee: Major Hopkin, H. Crotty, David White, G. Williams, Major McMillan, T. A. Menhennick, F. W. Merchant, Robt. McKay, R. McDonald, Jas. Turner, Mr. Jackson, J. B. Estey, Mr. Mills. Auditors: G. A. Thompson and D. White. Ladies' Auxiliary: President, Mrs. Wells; Vice-President, Mrs. W. W. Ross; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Watt.

The Rev. W. W. Ross, by invitation of the Committee was called upon to deliver the annual address.

We cannot pretend to give more than a sketch of a few leading points of the interesting, instructive and very profitable address. The following are some of the leading points referred to by Rev. W. W. Ross:—

The British and Foreign Bible Society was organized in 1834. The Rev. Thos. Charles, of Bala in Wales, may be called the father of the Bible Society. Its organization was providential. Rev. Thos. Charles became painfully aware of the great destitution of bibles in Wales at that time, and proceeded to London where he laid the matter before a Committee of the Tract Society. It was suggested that instead of a Bible Society for Wales, that they should organize one for the world. The idea commended itself to a few, who immediately took steps in that direction; hence the origin of the B. and F. Bible Society, whose motto is "The Bible for the world." The Bible Society rigidly adheres to the principle of giving the holy scriptures without note or comment. It was stated incidentally that the Welsh are probably the greatest bible readers in the world, not excepting the people of Scotland. The Earl of Shaftesbury is now, and has been for many years, the president of the B. and F. Bible Society; many of the Bishops and Archbishops of the church of England are among its vice-presidents, as also some of the leading members among dissenters. Her most gracious majesty Queen Victoria contributes largely to its funds each year; the Princess Royal of Prussia, (our Princess Royal), who contributed liberally before she went to Germany, still continues her subscriptions annually. The Emperor Frederick William of Germany has contributed for years, but since the Franco-Prussian war has largely increased his subscription, having realized the beneficial effects produced by the distribution of bibles among his soldiers during that struggle. The estimated number of bibles in circulation at the beginning of the 19th century was five million, and translated into fifty languages. Number of bibles in whole or part circulated by the B. and F. Bible Society are one hundred million. Price of a bible in the 13th century £37. Price of labour—working man's wages 3½d. per day. 10,000 bibles are issued daily in Great Britain. The bible is now translated into 250 languages and dialects and is now acceptable to two thirds—1,000 millions—of the human race, in their own language.

The address which occupied about one hour in its delivery was listened to with rapt attention by a very intelligent and appreciative audience.

A collection was taken up amounting to $12.

The singing of the choir contributed greatly to the interest of the meeting. At 9.30 p. m. the meeting was brought to a close with the benediction.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The editor of THE CHRONICLE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

Our Public Schools.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE;

SIR:—It must be pleasing to every person interested in the education of the youth of our town to note that Ingersoll stands first on the list of successful candidates at the entrance examination which appeared in your last issue, and that 20 of those candidates were pupils of our model school, making a total of 44 during the past year.

This success alone is worthy of our highest commendation, and reflects great credit on the efficient manner in which our Principal has conducted the school since his return to Ingersoll.

Mr. Deacon has, in addition to the work of his own room, had the model students in training, (all of whom passed successfully their professional examination) and given the teachers instruction in the Spencerian system of penmanship, which has enabled them to raise the standard in this important branch.

The Board of Education is to be congratulated on having secured the services of one who is competent to teach with marked success the work required of two teachers in other model schools.

Trusting that we may still continue to "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's" and thanking you for space in your valuable columns,

I remain, yours, &c,
GRATUS.

Ingersoll, Jan. 15, 1884.

Free Libraries.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

SIR:—To-day's Advertiser joyfully compares the interest taken by the Toronto citizens in their free library with that of Battersea, Eng., where out of 130,000 people only 600 could be induced to vote for such an institution, and chuckles to think that Canada takes so much more interest in literature than the mother-country. How will Ingersoll stand this comparison? With a population of nearly five thousand the Mechanics' Institute is unable to support itself, and unless the people take more interest in it and give it better support, will in all probability collapse. What is the cause of this? Are the people so degenerate and illiterate as to have no taste for reading, or are the Directors of the Institute so negligent that the institution is comparatively unknown? It seems almost incredible to me that people will refuse to pay one dollar per year for the privilege of selecting and reading two volumes each week out of a library of nearly two thousand standard works. I believe that if the town were properly canvassed the membership might be raised to three or four hundred. If the Directors do not feel it their duty to solicit subscriptions, let them engage the services of a good canvasser (one can be had without difficulty) and let him canvass every man in the town, and I will guarantee that the membership will be trebled or even quadrupled. It will of course cost something, but even if they give him 25 per cent. of all subscriptions it will be a profitable undertaking, as they will only be at the expense the first year, and it will not cost more to keep the library open for four hundred members than for one. How many small villages both in this country and in the old have made a Mechanics' Institute self-sustaining, and are the people of Ingersoll going to let their library go to the ground from indifference? Ingersoll has the name of preferring Christy Minstrels to Prima Donnas; do not give our enemies an opportunity of saying that we are too illiterate to patronize a public library. Though the people may seem somewhat to blame I do not think that the Directors are to be entirely exonerated. If they had any zeal for the institution which is entrusted to their care the books would not be compelled to go begging as they did most piteously last week. Let there be a stirring up of "dry bones" in their ranks. Let them meet the people half way and there will be no more prayer-meetings among the books even in a dignified poetical strain.

FRITZ.

Ingersoll, Jan. 16, 1884.

To-Morrow's Convention.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

SIR,—It is well known that the Licensed Victuallers are doing their utmost to secure the nomination on the 18th inst. of a candidate for South Oxford, whose sympathies are opposed to temperance and prohibitory legislation. The time has come when the temperance sentiment of this county should be respected, and I write simply to give fair warning that if the Mount Elgin Convention yield to the liquor influence, then the Oxford Temperance Association will bring out an independent candidate to contest the riding in the interest of temperance and morality. This is no threat, but it is well that the Convention should act with a full knowledge of all the circumstances.

W. A. MCKAY,
President of the Oxford Temperance Association.

Woodstock, Jan. 16th 1884.

[The writer of the above, we feel sure, is in error in suggesting that the liquor trade is interesting itself in the South Oxford election. The gentleman referred to goes before the convention as an independent citizen and as a Reformer. If he does not secure the nomination he will join heartily in supporting the nominee whoever he may be. If nominated he will expect the support of his party generally.—ED. CHRONICLE.]

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKET

Farm and Dairy.

An observant farmer will notice the fact where the soil is rich the grass continues green after such frosts as will shrivel np the herbage on poorer fields. It is undoubtedly the richness of soil of the blue grass region of Kentucky that makes its Winter feed so good in ordinary seasons.

A Michigan farmer who had long been troubled by a cat-hole swamp on his land, which he could not easily drain, relieved the excess of moisture by sinking a shaft down to a gravel bed, into which the surface water soaks away. There are probably many swamps which this plan of draining would help.

Official reports show that there are about 600 creameries in the state of Iowa, and the yield of butter is estimated at 100,000,000 pounds per annum which, at twenty-five cents per pound amounts to $25,000,000. The cheese product is valued at $2,000,000, making a total of $27,000,000 from that branch of industry alone. Iowa has one-thirtieth of all the milch cows in the United States.

The following note on the keeping qualities of English cheese is from the provision trade circular issued by Thomas Downes, Fenning's wharf, Tooley street, London, S. E.: "In reference to make and quality of cheese in American factories they can never be equal in quality to skilled English dairy farmers, whose wives look after the making. English cow-keepers who do not make good cheese find it more profitable, and less labourious, to sell their milk, and this steadily increases, fortunately for consumers, so do imports of American. Probably half our consumption is foreign, and quotations are a good test of quality. English improves by keeping; American deteriorates."

Household Hints.

If an egg is added to the butter for flour griddle cakes they will be surprisingly improved, and brown nicely.

GALVANISED iron pails for drinking water should not be used. The zinc coating is readily acted upon by water, forming a poisonous oxide of zinc.

FOR SPRAIN.—Bathe with arnica diluted with water, and bandage with soft flannel moistened with the same. A sprained wrist thus treated will grow well and strong in a few days.

FROSTED FEET.—Rub the parts affected with kerosene every night. Use plenty of it, and sit in front of a moderate fire while applying it. Three or four applications should complete the cure.

TO CLEAN DAMASK CURTAINS.—If crimson, wash well with ordinary soap and water, then rinse in clean cold water, wring through a wringing machine, and hang in the open air to dry. If the curtains are green, use gall instead of soap. Silk trimmings must be removed, as they cannot be cleaned.

REMEDY FOR CROUP.—It is said that a very effective remedy for croup is common alum, used as follows:—Take a teaspoonful of pulverized alum, mix it with about twice its quantity of sugar to make it palatable, and administer as quick as possible. Its effect will be truly magical, as almost instantaneous relief will be afforded.

POTATOES.—If you wish to have potatoes mealy do not let them stop boiling for an instant; and when they are done, pour the water off, and let them steam for ten or twelve minntes over the fire. In the spring of the year it is better to boil potatoes in two waters, pouring off the first as soon as it comes to the boil, and then covering the potatoes a second time with cold water, adding a little salt.

Resolutions for the New Year.

That you won't keep a worthless dog.

That you will be kinder to your wife, family and acquaintances.

That you won't go in debt.

That you will be a better farmer than ever before.

That you will live better this year than in the past.

That you will know what each crop costs, and what it brings in.

That you will be economical, but not penurious.

That you will take an interest in the public schools and the education of your children.

That you won't pasture the highways or allow your neighbors to do so if you can help yourself.

That you won't go off to your work swearing when the minister comes to call, and then sit in the shade three hours to be flattered by the man that gets you to put your name to what appears to be a simple contract for the agency of a sickle-grinder, but what happens to be a promissory note for two hundred dollars.

That you will keep your tools in the dry when not in use.

That you will oil the harness twice a year.

That you will plant only the best varities and use only the best implements.

That you will begin work at the earliest possible seasonable moment.

That you will prize the compost heap as the apple of your eye, and not allow it to burn its heart out or the rain to wash it away.

That you will keep the weeds in the fence corners cut down like the profits from bad farming.

That you wont plant a tree and then let it die for lack of attention.

That you will eat more fruit and be happier.

That you won't sell the best fruit and keep the inferior for your family to eat.

That at times you will give your stock plenty of pure water.

That you will provide shelter in summer and in winter.

That you will not feed with a sparing hand.

That you will keep only the best breeds.

That you will provide a variety of wholesome food at seasonable times for your farm stock.

That you will not abuse your horses and allow their shoulders to remain sore.

That you will not dose your horses with all the vile decoctions the fiendish ingenuity of ignorant, superstitious quacks has devised.

That you will have an early garden.

That you will eat more vegetables and pay fewer doctor bills.

That you will not allow the manure to accumulate in the poultry house during the winter but mix it with soil, sand or muck in a sheltered place.

That you will keep a chicken-proof fence around the garden and yard.

That you will have a beautiful home.

FEAR NOT.

All kidney and urinary complaints, especially Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and Liver troubles, Hop Bitters will surely and lastingly cure. Cases exactly like your own have been cured in your own neighborhood, and you can find reliable proof at home of what Hop Bitters has and can do.

Like angels' visits, few and far between.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator—nothing equals it.

The Spiritual Effects of Drunkenness.

An editorial in "Topics of the Time," of the December Century, says: "This loss of self-respect, the lowering of ambition, and the fading out of hope are signs of the progress of this disease in the character. It is a mournful spectacle—that of the brave, ingenuous, high-spirited man sinking steadily down into the degredation of inebriety; but how many such spectacles are visible all over the land! And it is not in the character of those alone who are notorious drunkards that such tendencies appear. They are often distinctly seen in the lives of men who are never drunk. Sir Henry Thompson's testimony is emphatic to the effect that 'the habitual use of fermented liquors, to an extent far short of what is necessary to produce intoxication, injures the body and diminishes the mental power.' If, as he testifies, a large proportion of the most painful and dangerous maladies of the body are due to 'the use of fermented liquors, taken in the quantity which is conventionally deemed moderate,' then it is certain that such use of them must result also in serious injuries to the mental and moral nature. Who does not know reputable gentleman, physicians, artists, clergymen even, who were never drunk in their lives, and never will be, but who reveal, in conversation and in conduct, certain melancholly effects, of the drinking habit? The brain is often inflamed with alcohol that its functions are imperfectly performed; and there is a perceptible loss of mental power and of moral tone. The drinker is not conscious of this loss; but those who know him best are painfully aware that his perceptions are less keen, his judgments less sound, his temper less serene, his spiritual vision less clear, because he tarries every day a little too long at the wine. Even those who refuse to entertain ascetic theories respecting these beverages may be able to see that there are uses of them that stop short of drunkenness, and that are still extremely hurtful to the mind and the heart as well as the body. That conventional idea of moderation, to which Sir Henry Thompson refers, is quite elastic; the term is stretched to cover habits that are steadily despoiling the life of its rarest fruits. The drinking habit is often defended by reputable gentlemen to whom the very thought of a debauch would be shocking, but to whom, if it were only lawful, in the tender and just solicitude of friendship, such words as these might be spoken: 'It is true that you are not drunkards, and may never be; but if you could know, what is too evident to those who love you best, how your character is slowly losing the firmness of its texture and the fineness of its outlines; how your art deteriorates in the delicacy of its touch; how the atmosphere of your life seems to grow murky and the sky lowers gloomily above you,—you would not think your daily indulgence harmless in its measure. It is in just such lives as yours that drink exhibits some of its most mournful tragedies.

NAPOLEON'S CARRIAGE.

In Which He Rode to Moscow and to Waterloo.

It is quite in accordance with the irony of fate that the state carriages of the Third Napoleon should be exhibited in England at sixpence a head. Not for the first time has the genial showman made money out of the carriage of a Bonapartist. More than sixty years ago an enterprising gentleman named Bullock, the founder of the London museum, now the Egyptian hall, Piccadilly, wrote to Mr. William Jerdan, afterwards well known as the editor of the Literary Gazette, telling him that he was about to offer his collection for public exhibition, and asking Mr. Jerdan to write some kind of a little introductory address to be delivered on the occasion, especially as regarded a certain Bonapartian relic—the famous imperial travelling carriage, which was captured by a party of Prussian dragoons commanded by Baron Kohler, on the night of Waterloo.

The history of this carriage is of the most curious nature. When it was lost Napoleon and his staff fled from the field on horseback, but the emperor was in wretched health and could hardly keep his saddle. At Philippeville search was made for a carriage to convey the imperial fugitive and his suite, but nothing was found available for the purpose beyond an old postchase, half broken to pieces, and in this dilapidated chariot the vanquished usurper was about to resume his flight when some carriages belonging to Marshal Soult entered the town and these the emperor's servants seized for their master's use. Soult lost his carriage and was proscribed into the bargain by the Bourbons for his adherence to Napoleon, but fate, always ironical, compensated him by permitting him to live long enough to be present as the embassador extraordinary of France at the coronation of Queen Victoria.

In order to attend that memorable pageant the marshal caused to be built one of the grandest of state carriages ever seen, the model for which was for many years a familiar object in a coach-trimmer's window at Longacre. Napoleon's travelling carriage was built at Brussels for the conveyance of the then master of Europe on his fatal exepdition to Russia. It carried him to Moscow and back to Dresden and Paris. It 1814 it bore him to the shores of the Mediterranean and was shipped with him to Elba. In March, 1815, the carriage was reshipped to Cannes. Napoleon's triumphant journey to Paris was made in this carriage; nor would he quit it, although a state carriage had been despatched from the French capital to meet him.

It bore him, finally, to Waterloo and destruction. With this heavy but admirably filled berline a greater literary interest is associated than lurks in the fact that Mr. Bullock asked Mr. Jerdan to write an auctioneer's puff about the Bonapartian relic. Its roominess and commodiousness appear to have attracted the attention of a famous English poet. In any case, Mr. J. C. Jeaffreson, in "The Real Lord Byron," tells us that when the Noble Childe, after his separation from his wife, repaired to the continent, he had built for him a travelling carriage which was an exact replica of the imperial berline captured at Waterloo. Mr. Jeaffreson adds that Byron, characteristically enough, quarrelled with the Brussels coach-maker about the bill.—London Telegraph.

What it Cost a Railroad President to Learn a Secret.

Mr. Kimball, the present Vice-President of the Rock Island, took a seat behind two section men as a coach leaving Davenport for Chicago. The conductor came in and collected fare from one of the men, the other having previously paid. Said the latter, to gag his friend:

"I can travel on this road whenever I want to, and never pay a cent."

"How's that?" said the other.

"It's a secret," said the first.

Mr. Kimball pricked up his ears and thought he had a good-sized "hen on." The Paddy who last paid his fare got off at a way station, and Mr. Kimball slipped into the vacant seat.

"Have a smoke?" he said to the remaining Irishman. "How do you manage to travel without paying? I do a deal myself, and would like to know."

"Would yez loike to know?" said Pat, looking cunning.

"Indeed I would, and I'll give you $10 if you'll tell me."

"No."

"Fifteen."

"No."

"Twenty-five."

"Done!" said the section hand, and the cash was forked over.

"Be jabers, I walk."

This same Pat is section foreman on the Rock Island, near Davenport.—Exchange.

WHAT A DRUGGIST SAYS.

Dear Sirs,—The Crowfoot Bitters are selling rapidly here and giving remarkable satisfaction, as evidenced by the demand which is daily increasing. PARKER & Co.,

$44 Owen Sound, Ont.

Coal Fields in the North-West.

The proof of the existence of coal, of various grades, in workable quantities, seems at last to be forthcoming. In quantity, the coal, in one or other of its forms, from lignite to true coal, bituminous and anthracite, appears to be practically inexhaustible. It is said that Mr. George Dawson's forthcoming report on the subject, will give the following estimate of quantities underlying each square mile of surface:

	Tons.
Main seam, in vicinity of Coal Banks, Belly River, coal underlying one square mile	5,000,000
Grassy Island, Bow River, continuation of Belly River main seam, underlying one square mile.	5,000,000
Horse-shoe Bend, Bow River, continuation of Belly River main seam, underlying one square mile.	4,000,000
Blackfoot Crossing, workable seam as exposed on Bow River	9,000,000

The extension of the coal beds which occur on the Bow and Belly Rivers is great both to the north and north-west. Lignite is found on the North Saskatchewan. One seam is six feet thick, and there is an outcrop at Edmonton. Thirty miles higher up, there is a seam which reaches the enormous thickness of eighteen feet. The quality is good and the composition as follows:

Water	7.92
Volatile combustible matter	31.35
Fixed Carbon	54.97
Ash	5.85

Outcrops exposing large seams are met with at other points. On the North Pembina, an eight feet seam occurs, and on the Athabaska lignite beds have been traced for several miles; and it is expected that near the mountains, coal of a better quality will be found. On the Peace River only thin veins, of doubtful economic value, have so far been found; but it is possible that further explanations may give better results. Coal from a two foot seam in the canon of the mountains, where they are pierced by the Peace River, yielded on analysis:

Water	2.10
Volatile combustible matter	21.54
Fixed carbon	71.63
Ash	4.73

Near the boundary line, coal is found much further east than on the North Saskatchewan. The coal in the Cypress Hills and at Medicine Hat is a distinctly marked lignite, which is of course not the most valuable. On the Souris River, the lignite beds are capable of yielding 7,136,864 tons the square mile. A large number of analyses of lignites found east of the 108th meridian, give the following result:

Water	15.46
Volatile combustible matter	37.97
Fixed carbon	41.21
Ash	5.36

The wide distribution of the beds of different kinds of coal is a most fortunate circumstance, reducing as it does the cost of carriage to the lowest limit, and bringing fuel, an article so much wanted in the North-west, near the homes of future settlers.

On the policy of the Government in dealing with these coal lands, much will in the future depend. The great thing to be guarded against will be the formation of rings that might carry prices to an artificial height. The profits of individuals and companies who acquire coal areas should be got out of the working, and not extracted from jobbing purchases and sales of coal lands. The regulations for the disposal of coal lands are in many respects, fair enough. After survey has been made, and this is to be done as soon as possible—the coal lands, within certain districts, will be periodically offered for sale by tender or public auction, at the option of the Government. Existing leases may be converted into freeholds on certain conditions, including payment in cash of the price placed by the Minister of the Interior on other coal lands in the district where the beds are found. Forfeiture will follow where the conditions to commence active operations within one year, and to work the mine within two years, have not been complied with. The Minister of the Interior has conferred upon him the power to sell at the upset price to persons whom he may find have spent "considerable sums of money" in exploring for coal; a latitude of discretion which will take certain lands out of the general regulations, as to sale by tender or auction.

The want of some regulation which would prevent rings being formed to make coal artificially high, will, we fear, yet be felt. What form such regulations to be effective could take, is a point on which scarcely any one has, so far, ventured an opinion.—Monetary Times.

He Wasn't to Blame for Having Chills.

"Good deal of malaria going round just now," observed Barton Brown as he stood at the desk.

"Yes," replied his Honor.

"Air seems to be chock full of chills and fever."

"Yes."

"Some folks can take quinine and some can't," continued the prisoner as he shifted his weight to the other leg.

"I presume so."

"And them as can't take quinine must take whiskey, you know."

"Yes, I know."

"I felt my bones aching yesterday, and being as I can't take quinine I took a small drink of whiskey. I presume that is the reason why I am here?"

"It is."

"I don't remember of being intoxicated, but I presume I must have betrayed more or less agitation or I would not have been arrested."

"Did the whiskey cure your chill?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir."

"Then you may hand the clerk the usual medical fee of $2.50. We can't play doctor without collecting our pay."

"I—I haven't got a nickel to my name!"

"Then you may go up for fifteen days."

"Am I to blame for having chills?"

"No sir. What I find fault with is the remedy you used. Fall back and give the next man a chance."

—Secular music cannot be played on Sunday upon an upright piano.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74r-y

Airy tongues that only syllable men's names.

NOTHING gives such beautiful colours as the Star Dyes.

She walks the water like a thing of life.

HAVE you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences.

WHAT Toronto's well-known Good Samaritan says: "I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint for over 20 years, and have tried many remedies, but never found an article that has done me as much good as Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure."

CLARA E. PORTER.

God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.

R. C. BRUCE, druggist, Tara, says: I have no medicine on my shelves that sell faster or gives better satisfaction than Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and the sale is constantly increasing, the past year being the largest I ever had. One of my customers was cured of Catarrh by using three bottles. Another was raised out of bed, where he had been laid up for a long time with a lame back, by using two bottles. I have lots of customers, who would not be without it over night.

Motto for the girls next year: "Look before you leap."

AYER'S Hair Vigor improves the beauty of the hair and promotes its growth. It imparts an attractive appearance, a delightful and lasting perfume. While it stimulates the roots, cleanses the scalp, and adds elegance to luxuriance, its effects are enduring; and thus it proves itself to be the best and cheapest article for toilet use.

A horse reporter should carry a Colt's revolver.

THE BEST I EVER KNEW OF.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential Citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of." Price 75 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

Don't Know.

"I don't know," is too often the remark made by a farmer or dairyman.

"How much milk does this cow give?" "I don't know." "How much butter?" "I don't know." "How much feed do you use?" "I don't know." Suppose the grocer or butcher is asked how much sugar or tea in a barrel or box or in that parcel, or how much does that quarter of beef or that side of pork weigh? and he should say I don't know; we should contemplate him with amazement, and silently count up how long it would be before the "know-nothing" would be sold out by the sheriff. But farming is so good a business that it will stand all this neglect and ignorance, and the farmer still make a living. The owner of a cow should know to an ounce how much milk she gives to a milking, in a day, in a week, each month, and in the year. He should know to an ounce how much butter each cow gives, and how much feed she eats to produce so much. He should also know the most he can get from the least feed, and the most feed, so that he can regulate to a cent the cost of his milk and butter. And a cheap spring balance and a note-book and pencil, used in this way, will be worth many dollars every year to him.—The Dairy.

A Chinese Shaving Parlor.

The Philadelphia Times describes barbering as practiced among the Celestials in that city. It says:

When the last man was getting shaved he fell into a doze, his head bobbing suddenly to one side. As it did so the razor slipped and cut off several hairs from the sleeper's queue. The barber, as he witnessed the accident, uttered an exclamation of astonishment, jumped up, and then falling on his knees assumed a supplicating air. One would have supposed from the expression of his face that he had mortally offended or terribly injured his customer, for which act he was asking pardon. The dozing Chinaman had also awakened and, putting his hand to his head, uttered a plaintive howl, and was at once surrounded by everybody present. Each person examined his head with consternation pictured on his face.

To a Times reporter, who was present to witness the Chinese shaving process, the owner of the laundry, who speaks English glibly, explained the cause of the sudden commotion. He said, substantially, that the man who was doing the shaving had cut off several hairs of the unfortunate man's pig-tail—one of the greatest calamities that could have happened to the latter. It was the belief of every Chinaman, he explained, that for each hair cut or torn from his queue, he would be kept one year out of the Flowery Kingdom, whence he expected to go when he died. As this particular man had lost, by careful count, four hairs, he would be compelled to roam in outer darkness after death for four years.

The reporter's informant also explained that many other superstitions and customs were connected with the pig-tail. He said that one Chinaman could not offer a greater insult to another than to pay him a visit with his hair wrapped around his head. He was always considered extremely polite and a mark of courtesy to plait the queue afresh just before making a call. In his pigeon English the knight of the flat-iron said that he would no more think of paying a visit to one of his countrymen without shaving his head, than one of the young men of Philadelphia would think of calling on a lady friend with an unshaven face. "Melican man shavee chinee, Chinee boy shavee headee."

The Privacy that Absorbed Workers Like.

They tell of one of the Harts, a painter, that when he is in the throes of labor he admits no one to his room. Some one called on him once and knocked. There was no response, but he heard a noise within, and kept the rapping up till the door suddenly opened.

"You'll excuse me," said the artist through three inches of aperture, "but I am peenting on a sky."

And he slammed the door and resumed his work.

It reads like a rudeness, doesn't it? But that same man who has ever tried to work under the fire of an old lounger with little or no sympathy in his toil, will not recognize it as a justifiable one?

A man can no more paint on anything he is seriously interested in under a foreign disturbance, than he could write a poem or compose an opera. There never was a painter yet, who, when he did good work, did not forget himself and his surroundings in it, and there never was one who could do work under any other circumstances. The majority need privacy for their labor, like the portrait painter, who when the mother of a baby sitter said to him:

"Mr. X, why don't you talk to me? I'm sure it's very dull here."

Replied with more excuse than politeness:

"Then take a walk around the block. When I work I think of what I am doing; not of what other people are not doing."

Hedging.

The Rockingham, N. C., Registrar of Deeds received the following postal card a few days since:

MR. C., September 12, '83.

Mr. Registrar:

DEAR SIR—I write to find out if there is any way to get money back as I will have to return These License as the girl has went back on me and Run away. Let me know soon.

Respectfully.

—[Rockingham (N. C.) Rocket.

"Can a man be a Christian and belong to a brass band?" inquired some one of Mr. Spurgeon, the great London preacher. "Yes," he replied, "I think he might: but it would be a very difficult matter for his next-door neighbor to be a Christian."

An Ohio dentist has devoted himself to active politics, probably on the ground that his calling has fitted him for "taking the stump."

Holloway's Pills—When inclement weather checks to a considerable extent the action of the skin, an alterative is required to compensate the body by means of other channels. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended as the easiest, surest, and safest means of attaining this desirable end without weakening the most delicate or incommoding the most feeble. When from frequently recurring chills or the inhalation of impure air the blood becomes foul and the secretions vitiated, these Pills present a ready and efficient means of cleansing the former and correcting the latter. By this salutary proceeding disease is arrested at its outset, its pains and inconveniences averted, and the nervous structures saved from the depressing effects entailed upon them by an illness.

Even his failing loaned to virtue's side.

WHEN digestion of albumenoids or tissue food is defective, the blood fails to furnish the proper nutriment for the muscles, functional activity is impaired, and muscular debility or a sense of weariness constantly felt. This is soon apparent in the heart, the most faithful, hard-working muscle in the body, and we have heart starvation, or a weak heart, which is often mistaken for fatty degeneration or other organic disease. The feeble pulse, tendency to fainting, impaired brain power, want of resolution and despondency, are purely functional disturbances from insufficient blood supply, and radically curable by the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA the best remedy.

The childhood shows the man, as morning shows the day.

IT is a remarkable fact that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is as good for internal as external use. For disease of the lungs and throat, and for rheumatism, neuralgia, crick in the back, wounds and sores, it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand. Jacob Lockman, Buffalo, says he has been using it for rheumatism. He had such a lame back that he could do nothing; but one bottle entirely cured him.

If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small.

ITCHING PILES.—SYMPTOMS AND CURE. The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

THE BAD BOY IN PETTICOATS.

And the Trick He Played Upon the Old Man and a Dearly Beloved Brother.

"Say, you think of about everything mean there is going, don't you?" said the grocery man to the bad boy, as he came in to show that his black eye had been cured. "The minister explained to me yesterday how you caused him and your father to lay and soak in the water for about three hours, one hot day last summer, in the lake, and they both blistered their backs. What caused you to play such a mean trick on them?"

"Oh, it was their own fault," said the boy, as he looked with disdain on a watermelon that was out of season, and had no charms in October. "You see, the night the sociable was at our house, the minister and some of the deacons were up in my room, which they used that night for a smoking-room, and while they were smoking they were telling stories about what fun they had when they were boys, and I remember one story the minister told about finding some girls in swimming once, and stealing their clothes, and making them wait till night, and then a girl had to fix herself up with newspapers and go home and send a waggon after the rest of the girls. The minister thought it was awful cunning; so, when the church had the picnic last summer on the bank of the lake, I remembered about it. Beats all, don't it, how a boy will remember anything like that? Well, after dinner I saw pa whisper to the minister, and they took a couple of towels and a piece of soap, and started up the lake about half a mile, and I knew they were going in swimming. Well, it don't take me very long to catch on. I get an overdress that one of the girls had been wearing to wash dishes, and a shawl, and stole a hat belonging to the soprano of the choir, and a red parasol that a girl left under a tree, and I went down in the woods and put on the clothes, over my pants and things, and when pa and the minister had got in the water and were swimming around, I put up the parasol and tripped along the shore like a girl pickin flowers, and when I came to the stem where they put their clothes I didn look toward the water, but acted tired, and sat down on the stump, and began to fan myself. You'd a dide to see pa look. He crawled up on the beach, in the shallow water, and said, 'Elder, do you see that?' The elder looked, with hisself all under water except his head, and said, 'Merciful goodness, squire, we are in for it. That interesting female is going to sit there and read a novel through before she goes away.' I peeked through the fan, and could see all they said, while I pretended to read a novel. They swam around, and made a noise, but I was deaf, and I thought it wasn't any worse for me to sit on the stump than it was for the minister, when he was a good little boy, to steal the clothes of the girls. I stayed until I got tired, and didn't hear them when they hollered to me to go away, and after a while they got water soaked, and had to do something, so the minister broke off a piece of a tree and dressed himself in it, and came up towards me, and said, 'Madam, excuse me for troubling you, but if you will go away while I get my clothes, I will take it as a favor.' I pretended to be insulted, and got up and walked off very indignant, and went back to the picnic and returned the clothes, and pretty soon they came up, looking as red as if they had been drinking, and the picnic was ready to go home. Somebody told pa it was me, but I don't know who it was that gave it away. Anyway, he chased me clear out of the woods with a piece of sapling. That was the time I told you I was too tired to ride, and walked home from the picnic. Pa has forgiven me, but I don't believe the minister ever will. By the way, whatever you do, don't ask pa if he was at the circus, 'cause he will kill you. You see pa and I drove up to the race track, where the circus was, the other evening, and after the circus was out he went to see the men take the tents down, and after they had gone, we started to drive home. It was darker than a squaw's pocket, and I drove out on the race track, and the old horse used to be a racer, and he pricked up his ears. Pa took the lines and said he would drive, 'cause we were out pretty late, and ma would be nervous. I told pa I didn't believe he was on the right road, but he said he guessed nobody could fool him about the road to town, and bless me, if he didn't drive around that track about eight times. Every time we passed the grand stand, which pa couldn't see on account of his eyes, I laffed, but I thought if he knew the road so comfortable well, I could ride as long as he could. After we had rode around the track about eight miles, and I was getting sleepy, I mildly suggested that may be we had better stop at a house and inquire the way to town, and pa got mad, and asked me if I took him for a fool. Then he drove around a couple of times more, and the man that keeps track he came out with a lantern and said, 'hello!' Pa stopped and asked him what he wanted, and he said, 'O, nothin',' and pa drove on and told him to mind his business. We went around the track again, and when we got to the same place the man was there, and I guess pa thought it was time to inquire the way, so he pulled up and asked the man what he was doing there, and the man said he was minding his own business. Pa asked him if we were on the right road to town, and the man said if we wasn't in a hurry he would like to have us drive on the track all night, as it was a little heavy, and he wanted to get it in condition to speed the colts the next day, but if we had to go we could drive out the gate and take the first left-hand road. Well, pa was mad, and he wanted to know why I didn't tell him we were on the track, but I told him he seemed to know it all, and it was dangerous to advise a man who knew it all. He didn't speak all the way to town, but when we put out the horse he said, 'Hennery, if this thing gets out your pa will have the reputation of being drunk. If you tell of it you are no friend of mine.' So I shall not say anything about it, 'cause it is a mean boy that will go back on his pa."

And the youth went out whistling, "She's a daisy."—Peck's Sun.

THOUSANDS SAY SO.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Eclectric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 82.

Not born to blush unseen—the nose.

LIKE all sterling remedies, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure deserves a fair trial. It would be absurd to suppose that this or any other medicine of kindred nature could produce instantaneous effects. For the thorough removal of Chronic Dyspepsia, Constipation, Liver Complaints, and other ailments to which it is adapted, its use should be continued some time, even after the chief symptoms are relieved. That it then effects complete cures is a fact established by ample and respectable evidence.

A flourishing genius—The writing master.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y,

Present time—In the sweet pretty soon.

ANOTHER'S GRIEF.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whopping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once. SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. For lame back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y i

Many a coarse rake wears fine hose.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, in its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498wy

TRUSTWORTHY TESTIMONY.

Prominent English Opinions Upon an Important Subject of Great Value to Every Reader.

The day for pretenders has passed. Men are judged by what they can do not by what they say they can do. The reading public of to-day is too discriminating to be long deceived by the spurious. If an article have merit it will become popular; if it is unworthy it will sink into oblivion. For years the people of England and America have put to the severest tests a compound regarding which most ambitious claims have been made. Under such ordeals as it has been subjected to, nearly every known preparation would have failed, but this did not. In England and the United States to-day, it is the most widely known and popular of all public preparations. In vealification of which note the following:

In September last, one of the English foresters of India returned to London, Eng., utterly broken down and debarred from further service by reason of what the examining physicians pronounced incurable kidney disorders and dropsy. He was a comparatively young man, and felt depressed over the situation. Incidently learning, however, of the power of Warner's Safe Cure, which has attracted so much attention of late, he began its use. Within three months he was thoroughly restored to health, passed medical examination as a sound man and is to-day discharging his duties as well as ever in the trying climate of India!

J. D. Henry, Esq., a near neighbor of the late Thomas Carlyle, Chelsea, S. W. London, Eng., became very much emaciated from long continued kidney and liver disorders, the treatment he had sought from the vast medical authorities working only temporary results. He then began the use of Warner's Safe Cure, and in May 15th last, declared, "I am now feeling physically a new creature. A friend of mine to whom I recommended the Safe Cure for kidney, liver and various diseases, also speaks of it in the highest terms."

R. C. Sowerby, Helensburg, N. B., was obliged to relinquish his professional duties because of a severe kidney and liver complaint. After using a dozen bottles of Warner's Safe Cure he says: "I am to-day better than I have been for twenty years and I cheerfully recommend the Safe Cure to all who are suffering from these diseases."

Mr. William Jones, 16 Wellington street, Camborne, Eng., says that he was thoroughly treated in St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, Eng., for urinary disorders and weakness. He used Warner's Safe Cure and he says: "I am like a new man." It cured him of indigestion, troubles of the bowels, excessive urination and nervous prostration. He adds: "I was taking various medicines for over two years from the best doctors, and all in vain, but after taking Warner's Safe Cure for only four weeks I was brought from death to life."

Mrs. E. Game, 125 Broad street, London, W. Eng., suffered for years from female weakness, skin eruptions and impure blood, but after using Warner's Safe Cure, she says: "My health is better now than it has been for years."

H. F. West, Esq., 16 Burton Crescent, W. C., London, from his own experience "strongly recommends Warner's Safe Cure to all persons suffering from kidney and liver complaint as the best remedy known."

Mr. Henry Maxted, 1 Pennsbury Private Road, Wadsworth Road, London, Eng., was cured by Warner's Safe Cure of severe kidney and liver which produced numbness in his left leg, with a dead heavy feeling on the right side of his head. "I have recommended it," he says, "to several of my friends, most of whom have derived great benefits from it."

Mr. W. Clarkson, Carlton House, Spital, Chesterfield, Eng., used Warner's Safe Cure for liver complaint, dyspepsia, flatulence, vomiting of bile, and mental depression. January 15, 1883, he writes: "After using the eighth bottle I feel better than for many years. It is an invaluable medicine."

Mr. J. Hiscock, station master, Taff Vale railway, Navagation station, was cured of abscess of the kidney, calculus or stone, discharge of pus, etc., by thirteen bottles of Warner's Safe Cure. "I had long and faithfully tried some of the ablest medical men in South Wales, in vain, one of them remarking that medical science has failed to find a remedy for confirmed kidney disease. The Safe Cure dissolved and brought away about two ounces of stone. I can never praise the Safe Cure too highly."

Mr. Robert Patten, New Delaval, Eng., was much overcome by severe inflamation of the bladder. "I had to urinate about every five or ten minutes with great pain and suffering. My water was full of matter and blood. Both kidneys and bladder affected, and in addition I had a bad cough and heart trouble, (all presumably the secondary effect of the kidney and bladder disorder.) He says that after curing his bladder, kidney and liver trouble by Warner's Safe Cure, his "cough and palpitation were quickly gone."

William Simpson, Esq., Daughty Mill, Kirkcaldy, N. B., suffered for years from Bright's disease of the kidneys and consequent dropsy. His body was dreadfully swollen. His appetite was fickle, he was full of rheumatic pains, his urine burned in passing and was full of mucous and brick dust sediment: his pulse was weak, his heart was irregular in its action, his breathing was very much impaired, in short he had all the painful symptoms of that dreadful disorder. He spent 17 weeks in the Royal Infinary, of Edinburgh, under the skill of the best physicians who, having exhausted all agencies at their command, discharged him "as incurable." He says: "I passed water every hour, day and night, having great pain while doing so. It was nearly white as milk, with albumen, and when it stood for an hour, the deposit was a quarter of an inch thick in the bottom of the vessel." When in this desperate condition, he began to use Warner's Safe Cure—the only known specific for Bright's disease of the kidneys—"I have used twelve bottles," he says, "and his health is so restored that he adds: "I bless the day when I read that Bright's disease was curable and for so little cost."

The following persons of quality in London and other parts of England, are a few of the thousands who have used and have commended Warner's Safe Cure, the great specific for kidney, liver, urinary, female and Bright's diseases:

Hon. Freeman H. Morse, 8 Park Villas East, Richmond.

Captain F. L. Norton, Glingall Villa, Lee Road, Blackheath, Kent.

Hon. S. B. Packard, 14 Alexandra Drive, Liverpool.

Hon. A. D. Shaw, United States Consul, Manchester.

The Rev. C. G. Squirrel, Stretton under-Fosse, Rugby.

Such testimonials from such unquestionable sources prove the value of this remedy, which is sold in every drug store, beyond the shadow of a doubt. They prove that it is the greatest of all modern medicines for these terrible kidney and liver diseases. What it has done for one it will unquestionably do for others, and as such it commends itself most warmly to public confidence.

"Lost the cough I long did know,
Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.
Thousands affidavits prove,
That it doth man's ills remove,
Coughs and colds, and hooping cough
By its power soon are off." 83.

Sweetness of love—Gumdrops.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1884.

IN addition to the candidates who will go before the Liberal Convention to-morrow, already published, is James Noxon, of Ingersoll. Mr. Noxon decided to-day to submit his claims to the Convention.

After the Hon. David Mills' seat in the Dominion Parliament has been usurped for one session by Mr. Hawkins, Mr. Justice Gait has decided that the usurper must go. Mr. Mills is given the seat which the electors of Bothwell decided should be his.

PROF. Leone Levi, in a letter to the London Times, points out that during the last 30 years the average income of the lower middle classes has increased about 37 per cent., and of the working classes 59 per cent. The tendency, Prof Levi shows, is more and more towards an even distribution of wealth.

ACCORDING to a report from Toronto, the composite series of readers which Mr. Ross, Minister of Education, has resolved to recommend for adoption are as follows: Primers and junior third book from Gage's Canadian series; second and fourth books from Canada Publishing Company's Royal Canadian series; senior third and fifth books from James Campbell & Son's Royal series.

A CURIOUS mistake for literary men to make is the frequent reference by western journalists to Matthew Arnold, who is now lecturing on this continent, as the author of "The Light of Asia." It is Edwin Arnold who wrote the magnificent religio-philosophical poem on the life Buddha, entitled "The Light of Asia"—which is one of the greatest poetic productions of the past quarter of a century and not Matthew Arnold.

THE Marquis of Lansdowne, seems to be a ready speaker. The first part of his oration at Toronto was mere words, but the concluding portion was brimful of ideas. In speaking of the Canadian Pacific he foreshadowed a coming event, the importance of which many Canadians have not yet thoroughly comprehended. He will be the first Governor-General to traverse the Dominion from end to end upon an all-rail route. Lord Dufferin and the Marquis of Lorne both visited British Columbia by water. The Marquis of Lansdowne will go there by rail. Three Governors General have witnessed the construction of the Canadian Pacific: Dufferin saw it begun—Lorne noted its rapid progress—Lansdowne will announce its completion.

IN every election a number of ballots are disallowed on account of irregular marking. It is therefore satisfactory to have a judicial decision on the common class of errors of this kind. In the Bothwell election trial Judge Galt ruled ballots marked as follows good and counted them:—Ballots marked with two or three crosses; marked with a cross in the margin above or below the marking of the compartment where the cross should be placed; crosses with the points crossed resembling a printed capital X; a cross for a candidate with a cross for the other candidate struck out, asif the voter had made a mistake; cross on the left side of a name; ballots with a small piece torn off the right end. Among the disallowed ballots were those having names or in it ials written anywhere on the ballot; thos ehaving a number placed upon them by the returning officer according with the voter's list and the poll book, by which the voters could be identified.

A. T. STEWART'S BODY.

The Facts of the Theft and Recovery —$50,000 Paid.

New York, Jan. 7.—The real facts about the body A. T. Stewart have been purposely withheld, and various stories have been given to the local papers here to satisfy the curiosity of their readers. Two of the chief of these papers have alleged within the last two months that it has never been recovered from the thieves who stole it from the vault on that dark night five years ago.

I am able to-day to give the true story for the first time, and on high authority. The restless remains of the millionaire were recovered more than two years ago, and for a year they have reposed under the Cathedral at Garden City, in a special vault so constructed and equipped that if an attempt be made to enter it, the touch would set in motion the chime of bells in the tower above and ring an alarm to the town. If Judge Hilton's conjectures are correct the robbers of Stewart's grave were three horse-thieves pretty well known in this state and Connecticut. Mrs. Stewart from the moment of her discovery that her husband's grave had been desecrated, insisted on the recovery of the body at any price, but Judge Hilton doggedly opposed it, declaring with some show of reason that public safety required a defense of the villains and a refusal to yield to their demands.

But in the fall of 1881 (I think it was) an event occured that woke Judge Hilton up to the peril of further persistence. One of his servants happening to go out of the door at night discovered some men at the foot of a long ladder that was erected against the side of the mansion. They immediately fled and he alarmed the household. At the top of the ladder a window was open—the window of the room where slept Judge Halton's seven-year-old son! Then came an anonymous letter, "You were in time last night. Next time you will be too late." Hilton yielded to Mrs. Stewart's view of the case and negotiations were re-opened.

There was a good deal of shrewd bargaining as to the actual sum of money to be paid, and a spirit exhibited on both sides that must have rejoiced the soul of the great merchant if it was present; but at last the sum of $50,000 was fixed on, and the terms C.O.D. Not precisely, either, for the thieves insisted on getting the money in hand before delivering the body. This condition was accepted by Hilton, as no other was offered to him by the commercial and supicious parties of the second part.

The place selected for the delivery was a small bare hill in Weschester county, commanding the approaches from every side. The directions to Judge Hilton ran virtually thus: "We will be there at 4 o'clock on Sunday morning with the body. You send one man, unarmed, on foot, with $50,000 for us. When he has given us the money we will leave him in possession of the body." This programme was actually carried out. A plucky servant of the late Mr. Stewart was selected to complete the purchase. He walked to the top of the hill and was examined for weapons by masked men, who then accepted the money and departed leaving the tormented body behind them in a trunk.

I have forgotten to say that while the negotiations were pending the villains proved their identity by sending to Judge Hilton a piece of paper exactly the size and shape of the piece of zigzag cloth they had cut from the lining of the rifled coffin they had left behind them in the Stuart vault. So ends the ghastly affair.

Since the recovery of the body Mrs. Stewart is very secluded and is contantly attended by detectives, who are hardly ever out of her sight. Judge Hilton thrives amazingly. Stewart's great projects of a cheap woman's hotel and a Garden City utopia have been allowed to go to dismal wreck, but Judge Hilton has, it is alleged, made money by the sweat of his ingenuity at the rate of more than a million a year. The million dollars that Stewart gave him has been turned over and over and over. Stewart himself is seldom spoken well of by those who knew him. I know of no more hideous pictures of wealth than his hollow life and revolting death and resurrection, or one better calculated to make the poor contented with their lot.

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79.

NEWS ITEMS.

Khartoum is to be evacuated.

Sir John A. McDonald is 70 years old.

The Canada Southern Railway is to be double-tracked.

Kent Dominion election will take place on the 29th inst.

The Pekin Government is now said to be resolved upon war.

Mr. Tweedle, of Stoney Creek, poisoned with ammonia by mistake, is dead.

El Mahdi is reported to be marching on Khartoum with 70,000 troops.

Sunday performances in two Buffalo theatres last night were stopped by the authorities.

It is reported the Directors of the Exchan Bank are to be proceeded against personally.

An American barque, bound for Portland, Oregon, has been lost at sea with all on board.

The actual cash subscriptions handed to the Mayor of Toronto for the Humber sufferers amount to $6,012.01.

Fleming and Loring, the Chicago grain swindlers, have been sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment and fined $500 each.

The sugar cane of Georgia has been injured by the frost; the orange groves of Mobile have also been damaged by the cold weather.

The Mechanics' Institute at St. Thomas is to continue open until May 1st. It is said an attempt will be made to quash the Free Library by-law in that city.

THE HUMBER HORROR.

Verdict of the Jury—Barber and Jeffreys Committed For Trial—The Company Held Responsible for the Crime.

Toronto, Jan, 15.—The coroner's jury returned a verdict finding Conductor Barber, Engineer Jeffreys and Mr. Chas. Stiff, superintendent of the Great Western Railway, culpably negligent in the recent disaster, and through them the Grand Trunk is responsible for the collision. Barber and Jeffreys were committed for trial. Jeffreys is too weak to go to jail and was allowed bail. The jury also demand that the road between Toronto and Mimico be double tracked.

Washington Letter.

(From our regular correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 14, '84.

The opening week of the year was a busy and fruitful one in Congress. Many of the three thousand or more bills which were introduced prior to the holiday adjournment were reported favorably from Committee, notably Mr. Dingley's shipping bill, which does away with many of the incidental burdens and annoyances which add to the obstacles in the way of reviving our marine. The virtues of the American hog were ably defended in the House, and retaliatory legislation was proposed to secure to him the right of immigration. Senator Van Wyck raked over the Star Route expenditures, and brought curious detective bills to light. The aggregate expenditures in the Star Route prosecution were about $107,286, and it is becoming painfully evident that one of the attorneys had a regular bonanza in the business. Then the investigation mill was set agoing again under Mr. Springer's leadership, and this time they are grinding at the Department of Justice. There is much work to come, and the measures that promise to demand the attention of Congress are of prime importance. Two of the appropriation bills are ready, and others will quickly follow, so that there will be no lack of routine business. Outside of these supply bills the legislation that will excite the most discussion relates to the revenues and currency. There will also be determined efforts to augment our military establishment, encourage shipping, help the whisky interest, benefit the Mississippi river, perfect the machinery of the electoral college, relieve the Supreme Court, arrange an improved system of dealing with private claims, frame a satisfactory bankrupt law, and alter the postal laws in some particulars. The railroads are to have no mercy, land grants will be strictly construed, the diplomatic and consular service is to be critically scanned, Fitz John Porter is to be restored to the Army, the Chinese must not come, and the Mormons must go. Thus it will be seen that enough work is mapped out to make a busy and a useful session, though it may be cut short by the anxiety of the various members concerning their campaign interests.

The question of social precedence in official life in Washington is still a favorite theme of conversation and a topic for reception newspaper paragraphs. The latest report is that the President was a little annoyed by the comments made upon his New Year's reception, mainly because he feared that they were disagreeable to the lady, Mrs. Carlisle, to whom he gave precedence. Another favorite topic generally discussed by statesmen and others at the time is the proposed law which is to alter or extend the line of Presidential succession. It seems a little curious that these two questions of social precedence and constitutional law should have become rife just at the same time. But there is a decided affinity between the two subjects. How much the particular question of social precedence as to the proper place among the highest officials of the Speaker and his wife depends upon the other one of the coustitutional law in regard to the succession to the presidency, none who have not given thought to the matter can understand. So close, however, is the relation between them that when the law regulating the presidential succession is altered in any way from that now in force, the social code of etiquette in regard to the four highest offices must be changed also. In fact a change of that law known as section 146 of the Revised Statutes, which provides for the succession in the order named: first, of the President pro tem. of the Senate and next of "the Speaker of the House for the time being," in case of a vacancy in the offices of both President and Vice-President, would bring about what the French would call a "bouleversement" in Washington society, so thoroughly mixed up are social gossip and constitutional law here at the National Capital.

Strangers in the city and new members of Congress have been asking lately; "Does the President ever have any receptions? Does anything ever go on at the White House in the way of gayety?" Those who remember that during preceding administrations four in a season has been the least number of public receptions given by night at the White House make inquiries as to why the Executive Mansion is so unusually quiet this year, tho' the season is two weeks gone. In fact, Mr. Arthur has held only four absolutely public receptions since he became President. All told, he has devoted just six hours to public hand-shaking—three hours in 1882, two hours in 1883, and one up to date in 1884. He manages to take a good deal of exercise on horseback this cold weather, and is paying careful attention to his health. LENOX.

Lord Tennyson.

The view which we venture to express of the peerage offered to Mr. Tennyson seems to be the view very generally taken by the journals which have written on the subject since the Poet-Laureate accepted the honour. It is felt on every hand that he has made a mistake, and that Alfred Tennyson really loses by condescending to become a lord. We have reason to believe that if the author of "Locksley Hall" and "In Memoriam" had been left to decide the matter himself, he would have remained in the ranks of that class which includes Shakespeare, Milton, Cowper, Burns, Wordsworth, Coleridge, and Keats, instead of going over to the class which is mainly recruited from plutocrats like the late Lord Overstone, and political schemers like Mr. Knatchbull-Hugesson. But Mr. Tennyson is a married man, and, like less distinguished folk, he must pay some deference to the good-wife. If he has accepted the peerage to please Mrs. Tennyson, he is certainly not the first man of whom the same might be said.

CANDY.—One of our large manufactures had sixteen barrels of adulterated candy dumped in Toronto Bay by the Government Inspector. You can tell them by the price. The genuine article at Vance's, Thames street. 80

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

ALL grocers keep Moss & Co's Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, ask for it and take no other. 75

FOR Nettle Rash, Itching Piles, Ringworm Eruptions, and all skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 82t

DISTRICT NEWS.

East Nissouri.

Only twenty-three men in this township voted for the Poor House.

Messrs. A. H. Cogswell and A. S. Shepherd are our new school trustees.

The new teachers, Mr. Kester and Miss Kester, commenced their duties last Thursday.

Tilsonburg.

In view of the union of the Methodist churches, a concluding service was held, and a farewell sermon preached in the M. E. Church, on Sabbath evening last, by the Rev. E. G. Pelly, of Springford. At the close of the service the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered.

Salford.

A good many people in this community have complained a great deal of having to pay toll, while the road was so bad.

The social at the personage here was quite a success. It seems the Methodist's lot to have stormy weather for all their entertainments, but the people do not seem to mind it. The autograph quilt was presented to Mrs. Hunt. About $55 was the proceeds of the social.

Rev. John Clark occupied the Methodist pulpit last Sunday morning, in the absence of Rev. Moore, who went to Ayr to attend missionary meetings.

The new teacher, Mr. Copeland is quite acceptable, but the stormy and cold weather has prevented many scholars from attending school.

A social will be held at Richard Wilson's, Dereham, next Monday evening, by the young people of the Methodist Church. A good time is expected, and everybody who comes are assured an enjoyable evening.

Putnam.

A public meeting was held in the Methodist Church here Tuesday evening to consider the advisability of joining the two Sabbath Schools into one for future work. Rev. R. B. Rowe presided, with Mr. O. White, teacher of this section, acting as Secretary. The best of feeling pervaded the meeting, and several resolutions were passed culminating in an arrangement to unite the schools, beginning with the 20th. Mr. O. White was elected Superintendent, and Mr. R. Uglow, Secretary. The officers elected were about half each from both schools. This change is a wise move, and probably the public services may be united soon if the time of meeting can be made to work agreeably with other parts of the circuit work.

At the residence of Jos. Rouse, Esq., a large party met last evening to spend a pleasant time together. After a good programme was gone through, the Secretary of the B. C. S. S. presented Miss Annie Rouse with an address accompanied with a purse in recognition of her services as organist. The pastor of the Church, Rev. Mr. Rowe, replied in behalf of Miss R. to the young friends who arranged the programme. About 60 sat down to a first class oyster supper and with devotional exercises the whole affair was most satisfactory.

Beachville.

Miss Laidlaw, of Woodstock, is in charge of the junior department of the public school.

Mr. J. M. Archibald received a handsome present from his highest class at the opening of the school after holidays.

Mr. Robert Beath lost his purse with considerable money on Monday. Any person leaving the same with Mr. John Fairbairn will be suitably rewarded.

The concert in the hall on Friday evening, 18th inst., under the auspices of the public school promises to be a great success.

Glad to report that notwithstanding the general depression of trade throughout the country, our merchants and mechanics are doing a good trade, while the mills are run continuously night and day.

The Salvation Army continue to gather in recruits and lately have met with more than their usual success. If less drinking, steadier work and happier homes mean success, the army may properly claim it here.

The Trustees of the village school have lately made improvements in the heating apparatus, and scholars and teachers rejoice in comfortable rooms these cold days. Thanks, sincere thanks! It is impossible for children to work in a cold room and we hold Trustees guilty of wasting valuable time besides endangering the health of the children who do not make every possible provision for having the room warm before the pupils assemble in the morning.

Dereham.

Somebody of the ink and quill craft has assumed the responsibility of informing the public through the columns of your valuable paper, that a Christmas tree was held at Ebenezer Church, third concession of Dereham. I don't suppose any person has any objection to that, but it would have been much to the credit of the writer if he had confined himself to a plain statement of facts instead of stooping to the misleading statement that was given purely for the purpose of having the satisfaction of laughing at the production of his own ponderous mind. The entertainment was a success in every way. If compared with other entertainments of a similar kind, it was second to none. To praise one and not another would be unfair, and to do ample justice to all would occupy too much space, but I will say that none who took part in the entertainment are ashamed of the result of their efforts. The trees bore many valuable presents for both pastor and congregation. Now sir, if the writer of the article referred to has no respect for himself, common decency calls for a becoming regard for others. If it was because the ambitious author did not receive anything that his invective spirit boiled over, we kindly invite him to leave his card at your office, and he shall receive a token of remembrance, if anything in either art or nature can be found that is long enough in the ears to be appropriate. NOVICE.

An oyster supper was given at the Bayham branch factory of the Brownsville Cheese Co. in honor of Mr. Wm. Waddel, who has been cheese maker at this factory for the past nine years. He has accepted the position of maker for the new factory near Ingersoll.

At the annual meeting of the Dereham branch agricultural society, held last week, the following officers were elected:—President, J. Baxter; vice pres., J. A. Brown; directors, D. T. Smith, E. D. Tillson, M. Armstrong, W. S. Thompson, J. Fulton, W. R. Thomson, Geo. Frost, D. Malcolm; auditors, M. Kelly and W. A. McCollom. J. Garnett, sec.-treas.

Kintore.

Mrs. Thurlow is seriously ill at the present date.

R. E. Towle left for Ingersoll yesterday to resume his studies.

Good sleighing now "boys," don't forget to take your girl out for a drive next Thursday evening.

Mr. John McMurray will leave for Dakota in May.

Jno. Morrison was elected public school trustee in the place of Jno. Shaw.

Miss Jennie A. Towle returned home last week, to spend the New Year holidays.

Miss A. McKay, who has been visiting her relatives here for some time, left for her home last week in Kincardine.

Mr. S. McKay recently celebrated his removal to a fine new residence by a "House warming." The attendance was large, and a pleasant time was spent.

The thoughtful expression noticed in the face of some of our bachelors is attributed to the fact that this is leap year. The ladies are organizing and time will show the result.

While Mr. Francis Thurlow was engaged at his work on the farm one day last week, he fell and bruised his shoulder severely.

The election of municipal officers for East Nissouri which came off on Monday was conducted somewhat quitely. E. H. Brown was re-elected reeve. In Ward No. 2, D. McQuordsie was re-elected as councillor, A. Welfare was elected for Ward 3, in Ward No. 1 and 4 there was no contest, C. Horsman and J. Towle, respectively being re-elected by acclamation.

One of those happy events that give to social life, those pleasant reflections was communicated by Mr. George W. Uren and Miss Sarah J. Goforth, on the occasion of their being united in wedlock. The nuptial rites were performed by the Rev. D. Sharp assisted by the Rev. T. Westforth of St. Marys. The villagers join in one in extending to the happy couple their best wishes. MOUNT ROYAL.

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

North Oxford.

The many friends of Miss Teresa Henderson, eldest daughter of Mr. James Henderson, formerly of North Oxford, now of Adelaide, will be pleased to hear of her marriage to Mr. Edward Smithers of McGillivray, which happy event took place on Monday Jan. 7th. The ceremony was performed in the R. C. church, Strathroy, by the Rev. Father Feron in the presence of a large number of friends, after which they returned to her father's residence where a sumptuous dinner was partaken of. The high esteem in which the bride was held was evinced by the large number of handsome and costly presents which she received. Tea was then prepared after which accompanied to the station by their many friends, the happy couple left on the evening train for the west, carrying with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Council met on Thursday the 27th day of Dec., at the clerk's residence.

Council opened at 11 o'clock a. m. All the members present. On motion moved and seconded the reeve signed orders to pay the following accounts:—Thos. Downing, for two lambs killed by dogs, $5.33; John Downing, for 67 loads of gravel, $4.02; Eli Ensign, for 78 loads of gravel, $6.24; Arch. McKellar for 48 loads of gravel, $5.84; John Brock, for wood supplied Mrs. Carpenter, $5.75; Henry Shearon, for one ewe killed by dogs, $4.00. On motion the sum of $9.14 was placed to the credit of division No. 5, to balance the expenditure in said division for 1883. On motion the collector was allowed until the 8th day of January 1884 to make returns of the collectors roll. On motion moved and seconded, By-law No. 154 to appoint Samuel Allen Deputy Returning Officer for Electoral Division No. 2, in place of E. A. Nelles resigned was read third time and passed. On motion the sum of ninety-two dollars was transferred from the general funds of the township to supplement the County grant for roads and bridges for the current year. On motion the reeve signed orders to pay members of the council wages for the current year the sum of eighteen dollars each and the sum of seven dollars each as road commissioners. On motion the reeve signed orders to pay the clerk the following sums: Balance of salary, $70,00 use of council room $12 00; school tax rolls, $10 00; precentage on county school monies $9.00; postage, stationery &c, $4,47. On motion the Reeve signed order to pay Mrs. Carpenter, indigent the sum of five dollars. On motion the council adjourned until Tuesday the 8th day of January 1884.——Council met according to adjournment on Tuesday the 8th day of January 1884. All the members present except W. Jarvis. Minutes of last meeting read and signed by the Reeve. Alex Holmes heard praying council to grant aid toward the support of Angus Morrison and sister, indigents. On motion the Reeve signed order in favour of Alex. Holmes for the sum of eight dollars for the benefit of Angus Morrison and sister, indigents. On motion the order drawn by the Reeve in favour of Alex. McDonald for the sum of $16.50 for gravelling on the Governor's Road was confirmed by the council. On motion the sum of $20.07 was placed to the credit of Division No. 1, to balance the expenditure for public improvements for the year 1883. On motion the Collector was allowed until the 21st day of January instant, to make final returns of the Collector's Roll. On motion of Mr. Henderson, seconded by Mr. Gerrie, and resolved that the thanks of this council be and is hereby tendered to Matthew Day, Esq., for his able, courteous and gentlemanly conduct during the time he has filled the possition of Reeve of the municipality which is for the last four years. On motion the council adjourned to meet again on Monday the 21st day of January instant at the hour of 10 o'clock a.m.—ABM HILLSDON, Tp. Clerk.

County and Vicinity.

The Middlesex County Council will admit no more paupers to the County Poor House from outside municipalities. The building is taxed to the limit of its accomodation to receive the local indigents, hence thenecessity for declining to take in the poor of other counties as has been the custom formerly.

Mrs. Riley Day, of the 8th concession, East Nissouri, was the recipient of a set of silver forks and a table cruet stand, recently by the Directors and Secretary of the Cherry Hill Cheese Manufacturing Company, for kind considerations during the season of 1883.

Mr. S. M. Fraser, Westminster, has lately purchased from Mr. J. Durand, ex Reeve of Dorchester, the famous Durham bull Red Duke, sired by Bironet (imported), dam Lady Oxford by Scotsman, and bred by Mr. R. Thomson, St. Mary's.

NATIONAL Pills purify the Blood, regulate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. 82t.

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

ESTRAY STEER.

Strayed into the premises of the subscriber, lot 19, 6th Line, Dereham, on or about the 12th December, a Yearling Steer. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take him away.

RICHARD ELLIS.

January 10th, 1884. 1583c

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE,

Cheap, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to

H. O'CONNOR, JR., Broker, Ingersoll.

January 10th, 1884. 1583m

FOR SALE.

That elegant Villa, in the Town of Ingersoll, and bout 2 acres of land a tiached, lately occupied by the late James Batterby, Esq. Terms easy. Apply to MESSRS. BROWN & WELLS, Solicitors, Ingersoll

BYCICLE FOR SALE.

An English Bycicle in good order. Cost $70, will be sold for $30. Apply at THE CHRONICLE Office.

Dec. 6, 1883. 1578

TO LET.

NORSWORTHY'S HALL,

Being the whole of the upper flat of Norsworthy's Block, King street. Would be given at a low rental for a term of years. Apply to

J. C. NORSWORTHY.

Ingersoll, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575cm

STOVE FOR SALE.

A Large Size Box Stove as good as new. Will be sold cheap. Apply at THE CHRONICLE Office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

At 6 per cent.—£500,000

H. O'CONNOR, jr., Broker, Ingersoll.

Office—Opposite Imperial and Merchants Banks.

Ingersoll, Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578t

FOR SALE.

A Cottage on the south side of Canterbury Street, in good repair, containing five rooms, situated on two lots; good barn, hard and soft water. Will be sold cheap. Apply for particulars to WM. DUNDASS.

Ingersoll, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

HOTEL FOR SALE.

That large three-storey brick hotel, known as The "Albion," Embro, is offered for sale or exchange for farm or town property; one of the best paying hotels in the County; also 50 acres improved land in Hough ton Township.

For terms and particulars, apply to C. GARNER, Thamesford P.O.

June 21st 1883. 1554f

THE 'SINGING PILGRIM'

PHILIP PHILLIPS

Will give two evenings of song with dissolving views illustrative of a tour around the world in the

TOWN HALL,

Wednesday & Thursday

JANUARY 23rd and 24th, at 7:30.

"Nothing can surpass the effect these pictures give to the songs rendered, as for example: While singing of shipwreck at sea, in a voice clearly enunciating each word, the pictures vividly displaying the foundering vessel, the lightning flashes, and the life-boat coming just in time to save the sinking crew, make an effect the most startling and realistic."

"By the numerous slides in Mr. Phillips' collection he makes men walk, volcanoes smoke, waterfalls flow, snow fall, etc.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. Tickets 25 cents. Reserved seats 35 cents, to be had of Mr. E. Kneeshaw, Corner Drug Store.

January 10th, 1884. 1583l

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that a general meeting of the shareholders of the

INGERSOLL GAS LIGHT CO.,

Will be held at the office of the Company, on Wednesday, the 23rd of Jan.,

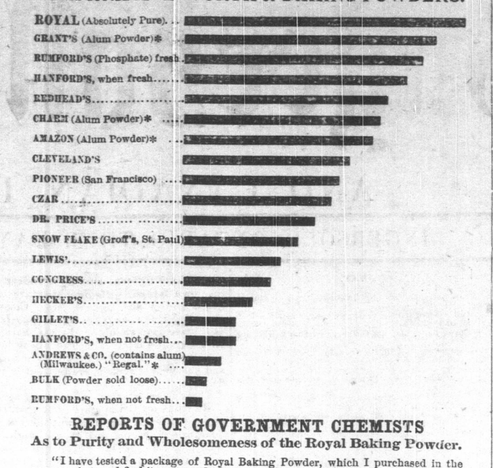
A.D. 1884, at 3 o'clock p.m.,

To consider and if so decided to confirm the proceedings of the Board of Directors at the meetings held on the 7th and 9th days of January, A.D. 1884.

JAMES NOXON, Secretary.

Ingersoll, Jan. 10, 1884. 1583l

$1 Cash



Will buy a set of Freeman's

Improved Geographical Cards!

The very latest thing out. An improved method of studying Geography. Endorsed by every teacher who sees them. One agent sold 300 sets in 5 days. Agents wanted in every city and town in Canada. Do not delay, but address at once, Jos. H. Rigour, Sole Agent, Prospect, Ohio, U. S. A., drawer E.

January 10th, 1884. 1583

COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It it a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure." "H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A one pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

Hearn & Co

ARE SHOWING A LARGE STOCK OF

BLACK & COLORED SILKS.

Black and Colored Silk Velvets,

Black and Col. Velvet Plushes,

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Also for evening wear a large assortment of

FLOWERS AND FEATHERS.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE OUR STOCK.

We are also selling the Balance of our winter stock at great reductions.

INSPECTION INVITED.

JAMES BADDEN

MANUFACTURER OF

Carriages, Buggies & Wagons

Of every description and the latest designs.

Call and examine stock before purchasing elsewhere. Shop on Charles Street, near McMurray's Hotel.

A RARE CHANCE.

An entirely new piano, of one of the best makes, for sale at a bargain. For particulars apply at THE CHRONICLE OFFICE.

Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that

GEORGE BAILEY, of the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, and Province of Ontario, Carriage Maker, has made an assignment to

ALFRED H. ELLIS,

Of the said Town of Ingersoll, Hardware Merchant, of all his real and personal estate for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said George Bailey, are requested to send by post prepaid to the undersigned, on or before the said

Ninth day of March next

A statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration.

The said Trustee will after the said Ninth day of March next, proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rata among the creditors of the said George Bailey, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll, this tenth day of Jan., A.D. 1884.

A. H. ELLIS, Assignee.

FARM TO RENT.

CONSISTING OF

200 ACRES,

Situated in the Township of West Oxford, County of Oxford, Lot 17, Con. 2; 180 acres cleared and in a high state of cultivation, well fenced and watered, large orchard, brick dwelling, one barn 30x50, one bank barn 40x60, situated one mile from the corporation of Ingersoll. This is considered one of the best farm properties in the County of Oxford. 25 acres of fall wheat sown; and 25 acres fall ploughing done.

Address JAMES ELLIOTT,

Ingersoll, or on the premises to ALEX. S. PORTEOUS.

P.S.—Possession given immediately if required.

January 3rd, 1884. 1582c

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Shiloh's Consumption Cure,
Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

AUCTION SALE OF FARM STOCK & IMPLEMENTS.

There will be sold by Public Auction, on Lot 17, Con. 2, West Oxford, known as the

HARRIS FARM,

ON

TUESDAY, 22nd JANUARY 1884,

At One o'clock p. m. sharp, the following:

20 first-class dairy cows, 3 yearling heifers, 1 yearling bull, 7 calves, 1 heavy draught mare 4 years old, 1 heavy draught mare 3 years old, 1 carriage mare 2 years old, 1 horse, aged; 1 mare, aged, in foal to Lord Haddo, 3 sows, 4 fall pigs, 14 small pigs, 1 reaper, 1 mower, 1 grain seeder, 1 horse power and cutting box, 1 sulky hay rake, 1 roller, 4 ploughs, 1 set iron harrows, 1 corn cultivator, 1 lumber waggon, 1 milk waggon, heavy; 1 light waggon, 1 buggy, 2 sets bob-sleighs, 1 set light bob-sleighs, 1 cutter, 2 sets double harness, 1 set single harness, 1 saddle, 1 hay rack, 1 fanning mill, 1 pair scales, 2 sets whiffletrees, 2 neck yokes, 1 hay fork and rope, 1 cauldron kettle, about 40 tons of hay, forks, shovels, chains, 1 wheelbarrow, 2 milk cans, 2 coolers, sap buckets.

TERMS.—All sums of $10 and under, Cash; over that amount, 8 months' credit on furnishing approved notes, without interest. Eight per cent. per annum off for cash.

JAS. BRADY, ALEX. S. PORTEOUS, Auctioneer. Proprietor.

January 10th, 1884. 1583l

$66 a week at home. $5 outfit free. Pay absolutely sure. No risk. Capital not required. Reader, if you want business at which persons of either sex, young or old, can make great pay all the time they work, with absolute certainty, Write for particulars to H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

BECK.

HAVING

Bought out the Business

Lately carried on by

ROBT. YOUNG

We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of

FRUIT

OF ALL KINDS,

CANNED GOODS

Fine Confectionery.

OYSTERS

JELLYS, JAMS,

Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,

And hoping by close attention to busines and

SELLING CHEAP

To merit the patronage of the public.

GEO. BECK.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th 1883. 1580

HOLD ON

—AND—

Dont be in a Hurry

—BUT—

GO STRAIGHT

—TO—

SHRAPNELL'S

AND BUY YOUR

Xmas Goods

Candies, &c.,

—AT—

Half Price

FOR

TWO WEEKS ONLY

AT

SHRAPNELL'S,

FOR CASH ONLY.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580l

Weddings!

Wedding Invitations

LATEST STYLES

—WITH—

ENVELOPES TO MATCH.

A Beautiful and Varied Stock

—AT—

The Chronicle Office.

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27. 1883. 1581c-m

SOMETHING NEW

—IN—

STOVES

MILLS AND BUCHANAN

DEALERS IN

COAL and WOOD

—STOVES.—

LARGE STOCK OF ALL THE LATEST IMPROVED KINDS.

FURNACES, FURNACES,

BEST IN THE MARKET.

MILLS & BUCHANAN

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582c

WHEAT WANTED.

800-Bushels Wheat Per Day-800

For which the very highest market price will be paid at the

Ingersoll Roller Mills.

Gristing Done on the Hungarian System, Chopping Done as before the change.

TERMS CASH.

WM. PARTLO.

Ingersoll, Nov. 22, 1883. 1705tf

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR.,

GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559y-r

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT.

J. C. HEGLER.

Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1577c-m

GOLD for the working class. Send 10 cents for postage, and we will mail you free a royal, valuable box of sample goods that will put you in the way of making more money in a few days than you ever thought possible at any business. Capital not required. We will start you. You can work all the time or in spare time only. The work is universally adapted to both sexes, young and old. You can easily earn from 50 cents to $5 every evening. That all who want work may test the business we make this unparalleled offer; to all who are not well satisfied we will send $1 to pay for the trouble of writing us. Full particulars, directions, etc., sent free. Fortunes will be made by those who give their whole time to the work. Great success absolutely sure. Don't delay. Start now. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

FOR SALE.

The undersigned will receive offers for the following

VALUABLE PROPERTIES,

Which will be sold in separate parcels.

PARCEL No. 1—The northerly 135 acres of Lot Number 25, in the 5th Concession of North Oxford, (formerly North Dorchester) in the County of Oxford. This is a most desirable property, and is situate about 5 miles West of Ingersoll on the river road. The buildings on the premises are in good state of repairs, and consist of a Frame House, about 30x32, one and a half stories high; Frame Barn about 40x30, with shed attached; Drive House about 32x26, and usual out-buildings. There are 2 orchards and 3 wells on the premises. The soil gravely loam. On this parcel there are from 33 to 35 acres of good lumber land, Maple, Beech and Hemlock. The River Thames runs through this parcel.

PARCEL No. 2—The Easterly 74 acres of Lot A, in

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 00	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	5 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the person contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates. Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS.

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

F. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000 private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh, — Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R. C. S. AND L. M., ENGLAND. L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

VANCE'S BAKERY

Still continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers.

Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE,

Thames Street.

Bread delivered in town daily.

THE MOLSONS BANK

INCERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with armers.

Allows Interest on Deposits,

Which canbe withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK

OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696

RESERVE - - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Rosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, to whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGISBERG, Prop.

LEADING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1587y-y

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 21. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1585.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

☞ Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

☞ Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR.,

GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559v-y

THE CREDIT VALLEY!

AND

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and North-western America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:10 a.m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and Northwestern points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line, and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Pauls, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:40 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12.26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS.

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:23 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on the Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your tickets from

F. SYMONS, Station Agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines, Thames St., Ingersoll.

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

SOMETHING NEW

—IN—

STOVES.

MILLS AND BUCHANAN

DEALERS IN

COAL and WOOD

—STOVES.

LARGE STOCK OF ALL THE LATEST IMPROVED KINDS.

FURNACES, FURNACES;

BEST IN THE MARKET.

MILLS & BUCHANAN

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582c

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27. 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,

Warner's Safe Cure,

Shiloh's Consumption Cure,

Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

A Fact Established,

—THAT—

Wilkinson's

IS THE

PLACE TO BUY

YOUR

Groceries, Crockery,

AND GLASSWARE.

Also a large assortment of Fancy Goods suitable for Holiday Gifts.

Prices to suit the Times.

Note the place, one door West of Daly House.

KING STREET WEST.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883.

$1 Cash

Will buy a set of Freeman's

Improved Geographical Cards!

The very latest thing out. An improved method of studying Geography. Endorsed by every teacher who sees them. One agent sold 300 sets in 5 days. Agents wanted in every city and town in Canada. Do not delay, but address at once, Jos. H. Rigour, Sole Agent, Prospect, Ohio, U. S. A., drawer E. January 10th, 1884. 1583

FOR THE CHRONICLE.

BETRAYED.

Out in the cold—
So cold—
Out in the cold and stormy night,
Her haunting fears,
Her falling tears,
Tell of a life of early blight

With bleeding heart—
Poor heart!—
She wanders forth to meet her death,
A gasp, a moan,
A bitter groan—
She draws, in anguish, her last breath.

Gone to her rest—
Long rest—
No funeral rite to her is paid,
No anthem tone,
No storied stone—
Nothing but that dark word, "betrayed."

Julius Ingram.

A TRIOLET.

The beauteous Ethel's father has a
Newly painted front piazza—
He has a
Piazza;
When with tobacco juice 'twas tainted,
They had that front piazza painted—
That tainted
Piazza painted.

Algernon called that night, perchance
Arrayed in comely sealskin pants—
That night perchance
In gorgeous pants;
Engaging Ethel in a chat
On that piazza down he sat—
In chat
They sat.

And when an hour or two has passed
He tried to rise, but oh! stuck fast—
At last
Stuck fast!
Fair Ethel shrieked, "It is the paint."
And fainted in a deadly faint—
This saint
Did faint.

Algernon sits there till this day—
He cannot tear himself away—
Away?
Nay, nay!
His pants are firm, the paint is dry—
He's nothing else to do but die—
To die—
Oh my!

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

CHAPTER I.

If any spot on the globe can be found where even spring has lost the sweet trick of making herself charming, a cynic in search of an opportunity for some such morose discovery might thank his baleful stars were chance to drift him upon Greenpoint. Whoever named the place in past days must have done so with a double satire; for Greenpoint is not a point, nor is it ever green. Years ago it began by being the sluggish suburb of a thriftier and smarter suburb—Brooklyn. By degrees the latter broadened into a huge city, and soon its neighbor village stretched out to it arms of straggling huts and swampy river lime, in doleful welcome. To-day the affiliation is complete. Man has said let it all be Brooklyn, and it is all Brooklyn. But the sovereign dreariness of Greenpoint, like an unpropitiated god, still remains. Its melancholy, its ugliness, its torpor, its neglect, all preserve an unimpaired novelty. It is very near New York, and yet in atmosphere, suggestion, vitality, it is leagues away. Our noble city, with its magnificent maritime approaches, its mast-thronged docks, its lordly encircling rivers, its majesty of traffic, its gallant avenues of edifices, its loud assertion of life, and its fine promise of riper culture, fades into a dim memory when you have touched, after only a brief voyage, upon this forlorn opposite shore.

No Charon rows you across, though your short trip has too often the most funereal associations. You take passage in a squat little steamboat at either of two eastern ferries, and are lucky if a hearse with its satellite coaches should fail to embark in your company; for, curiously, the one enlivening fact associable with Greenpoint is its close nearness to a famed Roman Catholic cemetery. It is doubtful if the unkempt child wading in the muddy gutter ever turns his frowzy head when these dismal retinues stream past him. They are always streaming past him; they are as much a part of this lazy environ as the big, ghostly geese that saunter across its ill tended cobblestones, the dirty goats that nibble at the placards on its many dingy fences, or the dull faced Germans that plod its semi-paven streets. Death, that is always so bitter a commonplace, has here become a glaring triteness. Watched, along the main thoroughfare, from porches of liquor shops and windows of tenement houses, death has perhaps gained a somber popularity with not a few shabby gazers. It rides in state at a dignified pace. It has followers, too, riding deferentially behind it. Sometimes it has martial music, and the pomp of military escort. Life seldom has any of this in Greenpoint. It cannot ride, or rarely. It must walk, and strain to keep its strength even for that. One part of it drudges with the needle, fumes over the smoky stove, sighs at the unappeasable baby; another part takes by dawn the little dwarfish ferryboat, and hies to the great metropolis across the river, returning jaded from labor by nightfall. No wonder, here, if death should seem to possess not merely a mournful importance but a gloomy advantage as well, or if for these toilful townsfolk philosophy had reversed itself, and instead of the paths of glory leading to the grave, it should look as if the grave were forever leading to some sort of peculiar and comfortable glory.

But Greenpoint, like a hardened conscience, still has her repentant surprises. She is not quite a thing of sloth and penury. True, the broad street that leads from steamboat to cemetery is lined with squalid homes, and the mourners who are so incessantly borne along to Calvary must see little else but beer sellers standing slippered and coatless beside their doorways, or thin, pinched women haggling with the venders of sickly groceries. But elsewhere one may find bystreets lined with low wooden dwellings that hint of neatness and suggest a better grade of living. A yellowish drab prevails as the hue of these houses; they seem all to partake of one period, like certain homogeneous fossils. But they do not breathe of antiquity; they are fanciful with trellised piazzas and other modern embellishments of carpentry; sometimes they possess miniature Corinthian pillars, faded by the trickle of rain between their tawny flutings, as if stirred with the dumb desire to be white and classic. Scant gardens front them, edged with a few yards of ornamental fence. Their high basement windows stare at you from a foundation of brick. They are very prosaic, chiefly from their lame effort to be picturesque; and when you look down toward the river, expecting to feel refreshed by its gleam, you are disheartened at the way in which the lumber yards and sloop wharves have quite shut any glimpse of it from your eyes.

In one of these two story wooden houses, not many years ago, dwelt a family of three people—a Mr. Francis Twining, his wife, and their only child, a girl, named Claire. Mr. Twining was an Englishman by birth; many years had passed since he first landed on these shores. He had come here nearly penniless, but with proud hopes. He was then only three and twenty. He had sprung from a good country family, had been fitted at Eaton for Oxford, and had seen one year at the famed university. Then sharp financial disaster had overtaken his father, whose death soon followed. Francis was a younger son, but even to the heir had fallen a shattered patrimony, and to himself merely a slender legacy. With this, confident and undaunted as though it were the purse of Fortunio, Francis had taken voyage for New York.

At first he had shown a really splendid energy. Slim of figure, with a pale, womanish face lit by large, soft blue eyes, he gave slight physicial sign of force or even will. But though possessed of both, he proved one of those ill-fated beings whom failure never tires of rebuffing.

His mental ability was unquestioned; he shrank with sensitive disgust from all vice; he had plenty of ambition, and the instinct of solid industry. Yet, as years passed on, both secured him but meagre recompense for struggle. He began his career with a clerkship; now, at fifty-three, he was a clerk still. All his hope had fled; he had undergone bitter heart burnings; he had striven to solve the problem of his own defeat. Meanwhile its explanation was not difficult. He had a boyish trust in his fellow creatures that no amount of stern experience seemed to weaken.

Chicanery had made him its sport. Five separate times he had been swindled mercilessly by men in whom he had reposed implicit faith. There had lain his rock of ruin: he was always reposing implicit faith in everybody. His life had been one long pathos of overcredulity. He could think, reason, reflect, analyze, but he was incapable of doubting. A fool could have deceived him, and naturally, on repeated occasions, knaves had not found it difficult. At fifty-three his last hard-earned savings had been wormed from him by the last plausible scamp. And now he had accepted himself as the favorite of misfortune: over the glow of his spirit disappointment had cast its dulling spell, like the deep film of ash that sheathes a spent ember.

He had now one aim—to keep his wife and child from indigence while he lived, and one despair—that he could not keep them from indigence after he was dead. But his really lovely optimism still throve. He had been essentially amiable and complaisant in all intercourse with his kind, and this quality had not lost a ray of its fine former lustre. With ample excuse for the worst cynic feeling, he continued a gentle yet unconscious philanthropist.

There was something piteously sweet in the obstinacy with which he still saw only the bright side of humanity. His delicate person had grown more slim; his rusty clothes hung about him with a mournful looseness; his oval face, worn by worriment, had taken keener lines; but his large blue eyes still kept their liquid sparkle, and kindled in prompt unison with his alert smile. The flaxen growth that had always fringed his lips and chin with cloudy lightness, had now become of a frosty gray. Seen passing him, one would have called him, as the current phrase goes, a gentleman. His wearied mien forbade the suggestion of leisure, while his broadcloth spoke of long wear and speedy purchase. But a close gaze might have caught the unperished refinement that still clung to him with sad persistence, and was evident in such minor effects of personal detail as a glimpse of cleanly linen about throat and wrist, a cheap yet careful lustre of the often jaded boot, a culture and purity of the hand, or even a choice nicety of the finger-nail.

He had married after reaching these shores, and his marriage had proved another instance of misplaced confidence. His wife had been handsome when a young woman, and she had become Mrs. Twining at about the age of five-and-twenty. She was personally quite the opposite of her husband: one was an inch taller than he, and had an aquiline face, splendid with a pair of very black eyes that she had rolled and flashed at the other sex since early girlhood. She had rolled and flashed them at her present husband, and so conquered him. She was a good inch taller than he, and lapse of time had not diminished the difference since their union. She had been extremely vulgar as Miss Jane Wray, when Twining had married her, and she was extremely vulgar still. She had first met him in a boarding-house in East Broadway, where Twining had secured a room on his arrival from England.

At this period East Broadway wore only a waning grace of gentility; some few conservative nabobs still lingered there, obstinately defying plebeian inroads. Its roomy brick mansions, with their arched, antique doorways devoid of any vestibule; their prim-railed stoops that guessed not of ornate balusters; and their many-paned, thin-sashed windows where plate-glass had never glittered, were already invaded by inmates whose Teuton names and convex noses prophesied the social decline that must soon grasp this once select purlieu. Jane Wray was neither German nor Hebrew; she was American in the least pleasant sense of the word, both as regarded parentage and breeding. She was an orphan, and the recipient of surly charity from unprosperous relatives. She wanted very greatly to marry, and Twining had seemed to her a golden chance. There was much about her from which he shrank; but she contrived to rouse his pity, and then to lure from him a promise which he would have despised himself not to keep.

The succeeding years had brought bitter mutual disappointments. Mrs. Twining had believed firmly in her husband's powers to sound the horn of luck and slay the giant of adversity. But he had done neither, and it now looked as if his bones were one day to bleach along the roadway to success. She became an austere grumbler, forever pricking her sweet-tempered lord with a tireless little bodkin of reproach. Her vulgarities had sharpened; her wit, always cruel and acute, had tipped itself with a harsher venom and fledged itself with a swifter feather; her bright, coarse beauty had dimmed and soured; she was at present a gaunt, elderly female, with square shoulders, and hard, dark eyes, who flung sarcasms broadcast with a baleful liberality, and seemed forever standing toward her own destiny in the attitude of a person who has some large unsettled claim against a nefarious government.

Claire Twining, the one child who had been born of this ill-assorted marriage, was now nineteen years old. She bore a striking likeness to her father; she possessed his blue eyes, a trifle darker in shade, his broad white forehead, his sloping delicacy of visage, and his erect though slender frame. From him, too, had come the sunny quality of her smile, the gold tints in her chestnut hair, the fine symmetry of hands and feet. Rather from association than heredity she had caught his kindly warmth of manner; but in Claire the cordial impulse was far less spontaneous; she had her black list of dislikes, and she took people on trust with wary prudence. Here spoke her mother's share in the girl's being, as it spoke also in a certain distinct chiseling of every feature, that suggested a softened memento of Miss Jane Wray's girlish countenance, though Claire's coloring no more resembled her mother's of past time than wild-rose is like peony, or pastel like chromo.

But there was one more maternal imprint set deep within this girl's nature, not to be thinned or marred by any stress of events, and productive of a trait whose development for good or ill is the chief cause that her life has here been chronicled. The birthright was a perilous one; it was a heritage of discontent; its tendency was perpetual longings for better environment, for ampler share in the world's good gifts, for higher place in its esteem and stronger claim to its heed. But what in her mother had been ambition almost as crudely eager as a boorish elbow-thrust, was in Claire more decorous and interesting, like the push of a fragile yet determined hand through a sullen crowd. In both cases the dissatisfaction was something that is peculiar to the woman of our land and time—a desire not to try and adorn the sphere in which she is born, but to try and reach a new sphere held as more suited for her own adornment.

Yet Claire's restless yearning lacked the homely grossness of her mother's: it reflected a finer flash; it was not all cut from one piece; it had its subtlety, its enthusiasm, even its justification. It was not a mere stubborn hunger for advancement; it was a wish to gain advancement by the passport of proper worthiness. She did not want the air to lift her away from hated surroundings, but she wanted wings that would turn the air her willing ally. It was what her father had made her that touched what her mother had made her with a truly poetic tenderness. By only a little prouder curve of the neck and a little happier fulness of the plume, we part the statuesque swan from considerably more commonplace kindred. Something like this delightful benison of difference had fallen upon Claire.

CHAPTER II.

Circumstance, too, had fed the potency of this difference. Claire had not been reared like her mother. When she was nine years old her parents were living in a tiny brick house near the East River, among New York suburbs. But Claire had been sent to a small school near by, kept by a dim, worn lady, with an opulent past and a most precarious present. She had studied for three years under this lady's care, and had lost nothing by the opportunity. Her swift, apt mind had delighted her instructress, whose name was Mrs. Carmichael. Claire was remarkably receptive; she had acquired without seeming effort. Mrs. Carmichael was one of the many ladies who attempt the education of youth without either system or equipment for so serious a task. Her slight body, doubtless attenuated by recurring memories of a cherished past, would sometimes invisibly quake before Claire's precocious questionings. She knew all that she knew superficially, and she soon became fearful lest Claire should pierce, by a sort of adroit ignorance, her veneer of academic sham. She had a narrow little peaked face, of a prevailing pink hue, as though it were being always bathed in some kind of sunset light, like the rosy afterglow of her own perished respectability. Her nervous, alert head was set on a pair of sloping shoulders, and she wore its sparse tresses shaped into rotulæ and banded which had an amateurish look, and seemed to imitate the deft handiwork of some long-departed tirewoman. She carried her small frame with erect importance. She was always referring to vanished friendships with this or that notability, but time and place were so ignored in these volunteered reminiscences as to make her allusions acquire a tender mythic grandeur.

Claire had watched well her teacher's real and native elegance, and she had set this down as a solid fact. Perhaps the child had probed her many harmless falsities with equal skill. As for Mrs. Carmichael, she would sometimes pat her pupil on the cheek and praise her in no weak terms.

"I wish that I had only known you a long time ago, my little lady," she would say, in her sonorous treble voice. "I would have brought you up as my own dear child, for I never had a child of my own. I would have given you a place in the world to be proud of, and have watched with interest the growth of your fine mental abilities, surrounded by those poor lost friends of mine who would have delighted in so clever a girl as you are."

"When you speak of your friends as lost, Mrs. Carmichael," Claire had once replied, "do you mean that they are all dead now?"

At this question the lady slowly shook her head, with just enough emphasis not to imperil the modish architecture of her locks.

"Some of them are dead, my dear," she murmured, with the least droop of each pink eyelid, "but the rest are much too grand for me at present. They have quite forgotten me." Here Mrs. Carmichael gave a quick, fluttered cough, and then put the tips of her close-pressed fingers to the edges of her close-pressed lips.

Claire privately thought them very churlish friends to have forgotten anybody so high-bred and winsome as Mrs. Carmichael. And she publicly expressed this thought at supper the same evening, while she sat with her parents in a small lower room opening directly off the kitchen.

A weary maid, whose face flamed from the meal she had just cooked, was patiently serving it. Mrs. Twining, who had lent no light hand to the Monday's washing, was in the act of distributing a somewhat meagre beefsteak, which fate and an incompetent range had conspired to cover on both sides with a layer of thick, sooty black. Mr. Twining was waiting to get a piece of the beefsteak; he did not yet know of its disastrous condition, for a large set of pewter casters reared its uncouth pyramid between himself and the maltreated viand; but although such calamities of cookery were not rare to his board, he was putting confidence, as usual, in the favors of fortune, and preparing himself blandly for a fresh hit e stroke of chagrin.

Outside it was midwinter dusk, and a bleak wind was blowing from the ice choked river, pale and dull under the sharp stars. One-Hundred-and-Twelfth Street was in those years a much milder spot than now; its buildings, its flagstones, were capricious incidents; its boon of the elevated railroad was yet undreamed of by capitalists; you rode to it in languid horse-cars from the remote centres of commerce, upward past parapets of virgin rock where perched the hut of the squatter, or wastes of houseless highway where even the aspiring tavern had not dared to pioneer.

Mr. Twining had just ridden hither by this laggard means, and he was tired and hungry; he wanted his supper, a little valued chat with his beloved Claire, and a caress or two from the child as well. After these he wanted a few hours of rest before to-morrow reawakened, with its humdrum austerities. One thing he desired, and this was a blessing more often desired than attained. He had the wish for a peaceful domestic interval, as regarded his wife's deportment, between home-coming and departure.

But to-night it had been otherwise decreed. Mrs. Twining's faint spark of innate warmth was never roused by the contact of suds. Monday was her day of wrath; you might almost have fancied that she had used a bit of her superfluous soap in vainly trying to rub the rust from her already tarnished hopes.

The small room where the trio sat was void of any real cheer. A pygmy stove at one side of it, stood fuel-choked and nearly florid in hue. From this a strong volume of heat engulfed Mrs. Twining in its oppressive smell, but lost vigor before it reached her husband or Claire, and left corners of the apartment so frigid, that a gaunt sofa, off where the light of the big oil lamp could only vaguely touch it, took upon its slippery hair-cloth surface the easy semblance of ice.

Two windows, not fashioned to thwart the unwonted bitterness of the weather, were draped with nothing more resistant than a pair of canvas shades, gorgeously pictorial in the full light of day, when seen by the passer by who seldom passed. These shades were of similar designs; in justice to Mrs. Twining it must be told that they had been rented with the house. On each a plumed gentleman in a gondola held converse with a disheveled lady in a balcony. The conception was no less Venetian in meaning than vicious in execution; but to-night, for any observant wayfarer, such presentments of sunny Italy, while viewed between blotches of wan frost that crusted the intervening panes, must have appeared doubly counterfeit. Still, the chief discomfort of the chamber, just at present, was a layer of brooding cold that lay along its floor, dogged inexterminable, and the sole approach to regularity of temperature that its four walls contained.

It made Claire gather up her feet toward the top rung of her chair, and shiver once or twice, but it had not chilled the pretty gayety of her childish talk, all of which had thus far been addressed to her father.

"And so you like Mrs. Carmichael, my dear?" Twining had said in his smooth, cheerful voice. "Well, I'm glad of that."

"Oh yes, I like her," replied Claire, with a slight, wise nod of her head, where the clear gold of youth had not yet given way to the brown-gold of maidenhood. "But I think it strange that all her fine friends have dropped off from her. That's what she told me today, father; truly, she did! Why don't they care for her any more? Is it because she's poor, and has to teach little dunces like me?"

Twining's feminine blue eyes scanned the rather dingy tablecloth for a moment. "I am afraid it is," he said in a low voice, pressing between his fingers a bit of ill-baked bread that grew doughy at a touch.

Mrs. Twining ceased to carve the obdurate beefsteak, though still retaining her hold on the horn-handled knife and fork. She lifted her head so that it quite towered above the formidable group of casters, and looked straight at her husband.

"Don't put false notions into the child, Francis," she said, each word seeming to strike the next with a steely click. "You're always doing it. You know nothing of where that woman came from, or who she is."

Twining looked at his wife. His gaze was very mild. "I only know what she told me, Jane," he said.

Mrs. Twining laughed, and resumed the carving. Her laugh never went with a smile; it never had the least concern with mirth: it was nearly always a presage of ireny, as an east wind will blow news of a storm.

"Oh, certainly; what she's told you! That's you, all over! Suppose she'd told you she'd been Lady of the White House once. You wouldn't have believed her, not you! Of course not!"

"What is a Lady of the White House?" asked Claire, appealing to her father. She was perfectly accustomed to these satiric outbursts on her mother's part; they belonged to the home-circle: she would have missed them if they had ceased; it would have been like a removal of the hair-cloth sofa, or an accident to one of the lovers on the window shades.

Twining disregarded this simple question, which was a rare act with him; he usually heard and heeded whatever Claire had to say.

"Please don't speak hard things of Mrs. Carmichael," he answered his wife. "She's really a person who has seen better days."

"Better days!" echoed Mrs. Twining. "Well, then, we ought to shake hands. I think she's just the plainest humbug I ever saw, with her continual brag about altered circumstances. But I'll take your word for it, Francis. The next time I see her I'll tell her we're fellow unfortunates. We'll compare our 'better days' together, and calculate who's seen the most."

Twining gave a faint sigh, and looked down. Then he raised his eyes again, and a new spark lit their mildness. Something to-night had made him lack his old patient tolerance.

"I'm afraid Mrs. Carmichael would have much the longer list," he said.

"Oh, you think so?"

"I know so."

Mrs. Twining tossed her head. The gloss was still on her dark hair, whose gray threads had yet to come, later, in the Greenpoint air. She was still, as the phrase goes, a fine figure of a woman. Her black eyes had not lost their fire, nor her form its imposing fulness. She raised herself a little from her chair, as she now spoke, and in her voice there was the harshness that well fitted her bristling, aggressive mien.

"Oh! you know so, do you?" she said in hostile undertone. Then her next words were considerably louder. "But I happen to know, Francis Twining, Esquire, who and what I was when you took me from a comfortable home to land me up here at the end of the world, where I'm lucky if I can get hold of a yesterday's newspaper tomorrow, and cross over to the cars without leaving a shoe behind me in the mud!"

The least flush tinged Twining's palo cheeks. He looked very steadily at his wife all through this speech. And when he now spoke his voice made Claire start. It did not seem his.

"You were a poor girl in a third-rate boarding-house, when I married you," he said. "And the boarding-house was kept by relatives who disliked and wanted to be rid of you. I don't see how you have fallen one degree lower since you became my wife. But if you think that you have so fallen, I beg that you will not forever taunt me with idle sneers, of which I am sick to the soul!"

Mrs. Twining rose from her chair. Her dress was of some dark-red stuff, and as the stronger light struck its woof the wrath of her knit brows seemed to gain a lurid augment. She had grown pale, and a little mole, just an inch or so to the left of her assertive nose, had got a new clearness from this cause. She did not speak, at first, to her husband. She addressed the heated and fatigned maid, who waited to hand Twining his share of the doleful beefsteak—in this case a true burnt-offering.

"You can get into the kitchen, Mary Ann," she said, with tones that had a kind of rumble, like the beginning of a large thunder-peal, before its threat has become fury. "See to the range, you know. Dump all the coal out, and then sift it."

Mary Ann went uneasily toward the door. She understood that this order thinly masked a bluff command for her absence. Mrs. Twining slowly turned her head, and followed the poor factotum with her kindled black eyes till she had quitted the room. Then she looked with stern directness at her husband.

"I've stood a good deal from you," she said, pitching her voice in a much shriller key, "but I ain't going to stand this, Francis Twining, and it's time I told you so."

Twining rose. He did not look at all angry. There was a weary distress on his face, mixed with an unhabitual firmness.

"What have you stood?" he asked.

"Being browbeat by you, sir, because I see fit to talk out my mind, and ain't the weak-spirited goose you'd like to have me!" retorted Mrs. Twining, all rage and outcry.

"I don't want't a quarrel," said Twining, calm as marble. "God knows I don't, Jane! But the time has come for me to speak plainly. I have never browbeaten you. It has been quite the opposite. I have already borne too much from you for the sake of peace. But no peace springs from that course. So now I mean to try another. You and I must live apart, since we can't agree." He turned to Claire, at this point, and reached out one hand, resting it on the girl's head. "Let our child choose which of us she will go with," he added.

Claire started up, sprang to her father's side, and nestled herself against him, catching one of his hands in both her own and drawing his arm about her neck. She was trembling with what seemed sudden fear as she looked up into his face.

"Father," she cried, "I'll go with you? I couldn't live alone with Mother. If you go, take me with you! Promise—please promise! Mother isn't good to me a bit. I couldn't live alone with her! She is cross nearly all the time, when you're not here, and she struck me yesterday, and she often does it, and I didn't ever tell you before, because I knew it would trouble you to know!"

These words were spoken in a high, pleading, plaintive voice. The child's sad little secret had been wrung from her by sheer terror of desertion. There was no accusative resentment in her tones; she might have gone on for a long time hiding the truth; it had leapt to her lips now only in the shape of an impetuous argument against the dreaded chance of being left behind, should her father's menace of departure become fact. Mrs. Twining moved from her own side of the table to where her husband and daughter stood. She looked persistently at Claire, during this action, and had soon drawn very close to her.

"You sly young vixen!" she exclaimed. Her cry had a husky note, and she raised one hand. It was plain that she meant wicked work to Claire. Twining pushed Claire behind him, quick as thought, and seized his wife's hand while it fell. He had grown white to the lips. His clasp was not weak about the wrist which he still retained. He did not appear at all like a man in a passion, but rather like one filled with the resolve which gets new sinew from excitement.

"You shall never strike that child again." Then he released his wife's wrist, and half turned, putting his arms round Claire, while she again nestled at his side. "I will do all I can for you," he went on, "but neither she nor I shall live with you after to-morrow. It was bad enough to have you make things hard for me, but you shan't spoil her with your own coarseness." The next moment he turned to Claire, wrapped her still more fervently in both arms, and kissed her twice or thrice on the uplifted forehead.

Mrs. Twining stood quite still, for a short while. She was watching her husband and daughter. Something new in him had revealed itself to her; it blunted the edge of her anger; she was unprepared for it. Personal defiance in Twining might merely have quickened her own long-petted sense of grievance, which had grown morbidly dear, as we know. But a fresh experience fronted her; she found herself repelled, so to speak, by the revolt of an insulted fatherhood.

It was a very serious rebellion, and she felt its force. Past concessions from her husband gave the measure of his present mutiny. He had never been humble to her, but he had yielded, and she had grown more used than she realized to his pliant complaisance. This abrupt change shocked her with an actual fright. Her ready little-guard of man

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1884.

THE total majority against the Poor House By-Law all over the county was 2,356.

COL. Morin (Liberal) has been confirmed in his seat for Welland; and Dr. Dowling (Liberal) has been elected by 346 majority in Renfrew.

THE damage caused by the floods of last year, proved a serious mater for the County of Oxford, $6,700 having been expended in repairs and new bridges.

FROM Bradstreet's we learn that Canada had 42 failures last week as against 25 the corresponding week of 1883, and 8 the corresponding week of 1882.

THE Ontario Legislature met yesterday. It is expected that Mr. Mowatt will have a clear working majority of thirteen. South Oxford and Muskoka where elections are yet to be held will most probably go Liberal, thus increasing the Liberal majority to fifteen.

THERE will be no change in the Speakership of the Ontario Legislature this session, the government having determined to renominate Col. Clarke, who was Speaker in the last legislature. No better selection could be made, Col. Clarke having filled the chair with acceptance to all parties, and being equally popular among the members of both side of politics.

THE more substantial English farmers, hoping for a rise in prices, have not threshed their wheat. This keeps them short of cash and reacts unfavorably on trade. Still, there appears to be plenty of wheat in store in Great Britain to keep prices low both there and on this side of the water. Though there is a short crop in Canada, it looks as if our farmers were to get as small prices this year as in times of plenty.

THE determined band of hog avengers in the U. S. Congress, cannot but feel strongthened in their purpose by the news from Germany and France. In both these countries high medical and scientific authorities have declared that there is no valid sanitary reason for continuing the edicts against pork. As for the French and German exporters of wine, wool, silk, and other products, they are naturally agitated over the retaliatory legislation which they practically admit to be deserved. Not for many years has the scream of the American eagle caused such a perturbation as is now produced by the grunt of the American hog.

THE second session of parliament opened at Ottawa on Wednesday, and promises to be of more than ordinary interest. The "speech from the throne" has no features of special interest. Following the custom of late years, the Opposition refrained from moving any amendment to the reply to the speech from the throne. Mr. Blake, however, made a speech in which he brought to the notice of the House a number of important omissions from the Ministerial programme He criticized at length the proposal to give additional aid to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, which had spent too much money on branch lines in Ontario, and had made undue haste in reaching the Rocky Mountains. He referred to the Hodge decision, and gave proofs of the lamentable failure of the N. P. to fulfil the promises of its promoters.

MR. George Stephen, the President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, has issued an annual circular to his company which contains many statements of general interest. During the past year the company has built 693 miles of railway; consisting of 553 miles of main line and 140 miles of branch roads. On the Prairie Section 377 miles of rails have been laid and the track completed to the summit of the Rocky Mountains, 960 miles west of Winnipeg—leaving a gap of less than 300 miles to connect with the Pacific ocean. North of Lake Superior 167 miles of track were laid during the year, and 54 miles more will be added within a few weeks, leaving 430 miles yet to be built in that section to complete the through all-rail communication between Montreal and the North-west. The company expect to have the whole road completed from ocean to ocean before the end of 1885, and we can then make the journey from Montreal to the Pacific in ninety hours! The cost of finishing the line will not exceed $27,000,000—barely the amount of the cash subsidy and the land grant bonds unsold, and remaining in the hands of the Government. Next season the company will have its own steel steamships running over the lakes between the two ends of the rails. There is one feature of the report worthy special consideration, and that is the business of the road is much greater than could fairly have been expected before the completion of the line. Canada has staked so much upon the construction of this road, that any little straw of this kind will be readily seized, for if the Canadian Pacific does not fulfil all its expectations in developing our interprovincial trade and commerce our country will become irredeemably bankrupt.

NEWS ITEMS.

Personal and General Gossip.

Montreal is petitioning for an Insolvent Act.

An ice-bridge has formed over the St. Lawrence at Quebec.

The use of nursing bottles for children is strictly prohibited at the Maternity Hospital. Paris.

A French writer, who estimates that the world contains 193,000 doctors, complains that two of our most exasperating affections, asthma and catarrh, defy their utmost skill.

Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, of Galt, have given notice of a reduction in the wages of their employes, to take effect on Monday next. Messrs. Cant, Gourlay & Co., and Warnock & Co., of the same place, made a reduction some time ago.

The great Winter Carnival in Montreal, 4th to 9th February, is attracting thousands upon thousands of sight seers from all parts of the continent. The attack, defence and capture of the Ice Palace, the great skating carnival on a scale of unprecedented grandeur, the snow-shoe torch-light procession by thousands of snow-shoers, the tobogganing fete on Mount Royal, the great sleigh-drive turn-out, embracing five thousand superb sleighing equipages, the living arch manned by the snow-shoers in club uniform, cheering their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Lansdowne as they are drawn through the triumphal arch, all these striking and starling features of the great fete, and many others, are to be splendidly illustrated in the Carnival number of the Montreal Star, printed on superior paper, with full and double-page colored illustrations. The special Carnival number of the Montral Star will be of wonderful interest to all people in all lands. It is gotten up by the best artists in this country, and will take place of the Canadian Illustrated News, suspended. Ten cents, in stamps, sent to the publishers, Graham & Co., will get a copy. Newsdealers will have them for sale.

Moss & Co's. D. S. F. Mustard cannot be surpassed for excellence of flavor purity and strength, ask your grocer for it. 76

OYSTERS in every style at Vance's. 71.

Public School Promotions.

No. 2 to No. 1, North; Miss A. V. Dyke, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 N. Chamberlain,	5 Robbie Case,
2 Katie Tapley,	6 Arthur McCarty,
3 Bertie McDonald,	7 Robbie Divine,
4 Robert Middlemiss,	8 Tom Kenney.

PASS CLASS.

1 Tom Denning,	5 Alex. Evens,
2 William Dickens,	6 Oliver Hewitt,
3 Frank Walley,	7 Henry Collins,
4 Bertha Bucknell,	8 Ewart Bell.

No. 1 North, to No. 7 Central; Miss Barr, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Harry Silk,	4 Minnie Augustine,
2 Mary Dickins,	5 Charlie Hambridge.
3 Bertie Ackert,

PASS CLASS.

1 Willie Augustine,	5 George Christie,
2 Nellie Wilson,	6 Janet Bower,
3 Edgar McFee,	7 John Bishop,
4 Lennox Clue,	8 Willie Bishop.

CENTRAL SCHOOL.

No. 10 to No. 9; Miss McNeil, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Minnie Moore,	7 John Bowman,
2 Frank Dennis,	8 Millie Campbell,
3 Della Gibb,	9 Delia Touil,
4 Emma Trout,	10 Robert Hayhoe,
5 Grace Millar,	11 Elsie Monroe,
6 Robbie Smith,	12 M. McCausland.

PASS CLASS.

1 Frank Cavanagh,	7 Lizzie Russell,
2 Willie Dryden,	8 Willie Woodroofe,
3 Jessie Murray,	9 Matilda Webb,
4 Morley McKim,	10 James McKay,
5 Bertha Stephens,	11 George Knox.
6 Minnie Ross,

No. 9 to No. 8; Miss Stimson, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Willie Watson,	5 Fred Elder,
2 Annie Sandick,	6 Una McKim,
3 Max Richardson,	7 Frank Adair,
4 Louisa Webb,	8 Sarah Beadle.

PASS CLASS.

1 John Bower,	9 Charlie Smyth,
2 Ernest Chambers,	10 Fred Ward,
3 Willie Adair,	11 Lily Sutherland,
4 Winnie Ross,	12 Herbert Beadle,
5 Jennie McBain,	13 Walter Marshall,
6 Fred Murray,	14 James Wilson,
7 George Vanpatter,	15 Charlie Thompson,
8 Evy Dundass,	16 Edith Partlo.

No. 8 to No. 7; Miss Crawford, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Clara Estey,	12 Hugh Munro,
2 Herbert Noxon,	13 Annie Potter,
3 Nellie Ross,	14 Harry Ward,
4 Jennie Tripp,	15 George Cowan,
5 Willie Todd,	16 Bertie Vance,
6 George Carey,	17 John Matheson,
7 Mary McKay,	18 James Davie,
8 Frank Marsden,	19 Charlie Murray,
9 Annie McKenzie,	20 Edith Porteous,
10 Katie Porteous,	21 William Trout,
11 Lena Hill,	22 Rose Bailey.

PASS CLASS.

1 Josie Thompsen,	7 Charlie Knox,
2 James Mines,	8 Jack Boles,
3 Maggie Wight,	9 Dolly McDonald,
4 John Schofield,	10 Finlay Enigh,
5 Willie Munro,	11 Beatrice Sumner,
6 Florence Deacon,	12 Ollie Pardoe.

No. 7 to No. 6; Miss Baxter, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Lizzie Hebson,	9 Ethel Ashcroft.
2 Maggie Campbell,	10 Jennie Henderson,
3 Mabel Maud,	11 Willie Flook,
4 Fred Feeny,	12 Willie Hillman,
5 Austin Stuart,	13 Ettie Dunn,
6 Lulu Tripp,	14 Willie Minkler,
7 Arthur Crawford,	15 James Smith,
8 Lucy Rowe,	16 Richard Petrie,

PASS CLASS.

1 Albert Pellow,	13 Katie Armour,
2 Louisa Chambers,	14 Fred Bradbury,
3 Nellie Hooper,	15 George Hambidge,
4 Carrie Ross,	16 Maggie Hambidge,
5 Carrie Day,	17 Ernest Sumner,
6 Charles Hill,	18 Bert Walley.
7 John Johnston,	19 Howard Siggins,
8 Edith Maud,	20 Edie Rowe,
9 Chone Oliver,	21 Kay Day,
10 Era Stevens,	22 Sidney Sumner,
11 Libbie Stevens,	23 Harry Greenaway.
12 Eliza Adair,

No. 6 to No. 5; Miss Gardiner, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Eva Hirst,	8 Arthur Dominey,
2 Lavinia Knox,	9 Blake Hegler,
3 Lily Cavanagh,	10 Ina Reynolds,
4 Jessie Reader,	11 Maggie Morgan,
5 Lizzie Daugherty,	12 Mary McKay,
6 Bella Matheson,	13 Mary McDonald,
7 Gordon Brown,	14 Hattie Williams.

PASS CLASS.

1 Sarah Barnum,	12 Alice Shortt,
2 Lavinia Knox,	13 Charlie Caswell,
3 Mary Bevins,	14 Jack Gayfer,
4 Mary Denning,	15 John Borland,
5 Nettie Sutherland,	16 Flora Badden,
6 Janet Sutherland,	17 Mary Miller,
7 Ralph Clarke,	18 Willie Morrison,
8 Olive Roach,	19 Mary Mallaby,
9 Alice Sutch,	20 Henry Hewitt,
10 Lizzie Snider,	21 Cecelia Ferris,
11 Edith Snider,	22 Arthur Thornton.

No. 5 to No. 4; Miss Dyke, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Charlie Dennis,	13 Vivian Ackert,
2 Edith Geddes,	14 Lottie Gee,
3 Minnie Hirst,	15 Lena Marshall,
4 Beauchamp Stiff,	16 George Matheson,
5 John Gibbs,	17 Fred Deacon,
6 Howard Gray,	18 Jean Christopher,
7 Sophia Lillywhite,	19 Willie Gibson,
8 Julia Touil,	20 Clara Barraclough,
9 Willie Gordon,	21 Emma Cobben,
10 Millie Macintyre,	22 Daniel Munroe,
11 Nellie Macintyre,	23 Willie Size,
12 Flora Campbell,	24 Tom Gibson.

PASS CLASS.

1 Herbert Odell,	9 Emma McLeod,
2 Lydia Bucknell,	10 George Lillywhite,
3 Lizzie Huntley,	11 Maggie Hager,
4 Minnie Sutherland,	12 Adam Palmer,
5 Mary Talbot,	13 Bertha Size,
6 Willie Stickwood,	14 Mary McCrae,
7 Tom Paton,	15 Willie Hagle.
8 Herbert Partlow,

No. 4 to No. 3; Miss Graham, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Lulu Menhennick,	11 Herbert Ellis,
2 Blanche Crawford,	12 Lizzie Stuart,
3 Thomas Ashcroft,	13 Maggie McGee,
4 Mary Mason,	14 Fred Ackert,
5 Flora Macdonald,	15 Mary Armour,
6 Mary Porteous,	16 Henry Baker,
7 Nellie McKellar,	17 Jessie Fraser,
8 Jessie Winters,	18 Nettie Moore,
9 Ettie Carroll,	19 Sidney Partlo.
10 Susie Caswell,

PASS CLASS.

1 John Aikman,	9 Harry Scofield,
2 James Gayfer,	10 Laura Ryman,
3 Laura Ditchfield,	11 Herbert Pittman,
4 James Galloway,	12 Maggie Munro,
5 Arthur McKellar,	13 Sarah Bowman,
6 A. Middlemiss,	14 Teenie Denning,
7 Euphemia McGee,	15 Minnie VanPatter,
8 Ida Reynolds,	16 Hattie Campbell.

No. 3 to No. 2; Miss Poole, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 Carrie Bourne,	11 Maud Bell,
2 Nettie Jenkinson,	12 Minnie Myers,
3 Mary Giles,	13 Minnie Gardiner,
4 Wm. Campbell,	14 Ada Silk,
5 Millie McDonald,	15 Hugh Cook,
6 Katie Livens,	16 Gertie Sandick,
7 Wesley Husband,	17 Osmon Lyman,
8 Annie Stickwood,	18 Susie Boles,
9 Eva Boles,	19 Lizzie Dundass.
10 John Smith,

PASS CLASS.

1 May McMulkin,	6 Marion Sharpe,
2 John McDonald,	7 Joel McCarty,
3 Hattie Hearn,	8 Albert Crisp,
4 Ellen Wood,	9 Willie Husband,
5 James Tripp,	10 Chris. Buchanan.

No. 2 to No. 1; Miss Hudson, Teacher.

HONOR CLASS.

1 George Crawford,	7 John Wight,
2 Jennie Reynolds,	8 John Stuart,
3 Bertha Deacon,	9 James Grieve,
4 Alfred Mason,	10 Fred Walley,
5 Edgar Buchanan,	11 Willie Gemmel.
6 Lena Rowe,

PASS CLASS.

1 Flora McMurray,	8 Harry Grant,
2 Ernest Allen,	9 AnnieBarraclough,
3 Jennie Bell,	10 Sam Gibson,
4 Arthur Lee,	11 Mary Rowe,
5 Hattie Brady,	12 Willie Jane,
6 Aggie Sutherland,	13 Andrew Horsman.
7 John Shrapnell,

Twenty pupils passed from room number one to the High School at the late examination: the list has been published. The teachers north of the river have two grades each under their charge and the promotion class is, therefore, much smaller than in the corresponding rooms in the Central.

J. S. DEACON,
Principal.

Ingersoll, Jan. 18, 1884.

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

ASK your grocer for Moss & Co's. Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard. 75

IT is impossible to find one individual who felt certain—some time ago—that the winter would be an open one.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

DISTRICT NEWS.

Avon.

The house of Mr. Silas Lucas, on the 5th concession, was burned on the 8th inst., about two or three o'clock in the morning. It is supposed to have been caused by a defective chimney. It was insured for $300.

Mr. William Rowe received $250 from five cows and not $2,050, as stated last week.

Mr. Henry Herron who is superintending the gravelling of the Avon side road, expects to have one concession finished this week. The contractor, (Mr. Wade), who has taken the job of gravelling from the sixth to the fifth concession, North Dorchester, intends commencing next Tuesday.

We expect soon to have a good gravel road to Ingersoll, which will be a great boon to the people in this locality, as Ingersoll is the main market for produce.

Mr. J. A. Robins and W. McIntyre left for Newberry, Mich., on the 9th inst.

Beachville.

It is our sad duty to record the death of Kate, third daughter of Mr. Alexander McIntyre. Just two years ago Miss McIntyre caught a severe cold, the effects of which she never entirely recovered from, and despite the best care of kind friends, and the best endeavors of skilled physicians, it soon became painfully clear that she must ultimately fall a victim to that fell destroyer, consumption. For some time her sufferings have been intense, until a few days before death, when all pain ceased, and at 6 p. m. Friday, she peacefully sank to her rest smiling, while all around her wept. The deceased young lady for some time taught in the Public School here, and was greatly beloved by her pupils, who will ever cherish her memory. She was also held in high esteem by all her acquaintances who greatly regret her early death, and deeply sympathize with the sorrow stricken family. The remains were taken to Oxford Centre cemetery on Monday, whither they were followed by a large number of friends.

The driving belt of the oatmeal mill broke on Friday, and after repairing it Mr. Sutherland and Mr. John Tibbenham had a narrow escape. In attempting to put it on the belt slipped off the pulley and bound them to the shaft. Their escape with a few bruises was almost miraculous.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Canfield have just returned home after an extensive wedding trip across the lines. We extend to them a cordial welcome, and wish them a long, happy and prosperous married life.

We are glad to report that Mr. John Phelan has resumed work, and that hopes are now entertained that his eye can be saved.

Mr. Herbert Dickey has been home for his holidays. He is pursuing a course of study at Ann Arbor. We always like to hear of the success of our boys, and are glad to find that our friend is succeeding so well.

The Sweaburg Choral Society presented a musical and literary programme in the town hall, Friday evening, which was highly creditable to all taking part. The programme consisted of twenty six selections, each of which showed good taste in selection, besides great care and skill in preparation. Mr. Parr, teacher, as founder of the society, may well feel proud of the work being done by it, and the people of Sweaburg may count themselves fortunate in having the services of one whose influence for good is so marked and praiseworthy.

Putnam.

The Sunday Schools met last Sabbath for the first time in their united form in the B. C. Church before the morning service. The arrangement promises to be a great success. In the evening the B. C. Church was well filled to hear the Rev. Mr. Rowe deliver his illustrated lecture on Missionary Work in New Zealand. R. Venning, Esq., occupied the chair with great ability. The audience showed their appreciation of the lecture by a standing vote of thanks and by a special collection, making the receipts of the evening $17.00, to assist the Quarterly Board.

We are glad to say Mr. Geo. Rippin is improving slowly, and is much comforted by the return of his son George from the State of Kansas, who, we understand, will remain the most of the winter.

Things in general are quiet around here, as in most places.

The young folks of the Ingersoll B. C. Church will give an interesting entertainment in the church here on Wednesday evening next, 30th inst. Readings, recitations, dialogues, vocal and instrumental music, etc. See the excellent programme. Admission 15 cents, or two for 25 cents.

Thamesford.

The Rev. C. R. Morrow preached in the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath.

Elder Hawkins preached in the Methodist church afternoon and evening to a crowded house. He certainly surprised his hearers, a great many coming out of curiosity, thinking they would like to hear a negro preach, not expecting a spiritual treat. However, all were dissapointed in that respect, seldom do we hear a more sound, practical sermon and a stronger appeal made to a congregation than was given by the Elder. In the evening he sang a couple of pieces assisted by his troupe.

The troupe give a concert here on Wednesday evening which no doubt will be well attended and give entire satisfaction.

Mrs. Robert Cameron of the 11th con, East Nissouri, died on Friday last. She was one of Nissouri's oldest settlers. The remains were interred in the Ingersoll cemetry on Monday. The funeral was very large, a great many friends came from a distance to pay the last tribute of respect although the weather was very cold.

On Monday night the stable of Mr. H. Bray, merchant at Evelyn, about five miles from this place was destroyed by fire. Four horses, a cow, buggy, and a quantity of other stuff was destroyed. It is not known how the fire originated.

Mr. W. Kester was very agreeably surprised the other evening by his employer N. G. McCarty, Esq., presenting him with a handsome wolfe robe worth about twelve dollars. Mr. Kester has been in Mr. McCarty's employ going on nine years.

Mr. McQueeney is reported progressing favorably since the doctors amputated four of his toes.

Mr. P. Hunrajan and family have removed to Ingersoll, the old people who are much respected here felt very sad at leaving, having spent so much of their life here.

Mr. D. McDairmid has removed into the house just vacated by Mr. Hunraham.

Mr. Jas. Fillmore has been confined to the house for several days. We are pleased to learn he is improving.

Tilsonburg.

Mr. G. H. Hansler has disposed of his boot and shoe business here to Mr. S. Ostrander, and has removed to Aylmer, where he has opened out.

The Salvation Army has became a permanent institution in this town,

The band paraded Broadway last Saturday night, and played with a vim and spirit that was really surprising. They are a deserving body, and the Council of the present year should grant them a reasonable sum, and not cut them off with a shilling as their predecessors saw fit to do.

The Mechanics' Institute are holding a night school in their room. Mr. G. L. Gale, a graduate of Commercial College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has been engaged, and is making a complete success of his work.

A large number of our townspeople attended the concert at Culloden last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Presbyterian church of that place, which is under the pastorate of Rev. M. McGregor, M. A., of this town. Miss Churchill, the noted elocutionist of Boston, Miss Cooper of London, and the best local talent of this place participated in the programme. The concert was a success.

The Caledonian Society will celebrate the annual anniversary of Bobbie Burns on the 25th inst., by having a grand banquet at the Connor House. Of course all true Scotchmen will make it possible to be present, as besides the honor of doing homage to the memory of the great poet of the "land of the mountain and the flood," visions of haggis Atholo brose, and "just a wee drappie to keep a' doon," will make it next to impossible for them to absent themselves. An immense time is expected.

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

Mt. Elgin.

The convention of the delegates at the Mount on Friday, was quite an event. Friend Gould's "hotel" presented a very animated appearance and the adjournment for dinner caused a regular stampede. Owing to some arrangements too previous to allow the use of the hall the dining room of the hotel had to be substituted, and nearly two hours were consumed in feeding the multitude. Several suggestions were made in reference to moving the dinner table to the garden, but weather and snow interfered with this. However, all seemed disposed to put up with the temporary embarasment. Its a pity hotels, like dining tables, could not be built on the extension plan, thereby enabling them to extend their guests into the adjoining lot.

East Nissouri.

It is our painful duty to announce the death of the widow of the late Robert Cameron, J. P., at the old homestead in East Nissouri, at the extreme old age of 80 years and 6 months. Mrs. Cameron was the daughter of Mr. Donald Ross, of Cornwall, who was one of the original members of the Hudson's Bay Company. She spent her early years in the city of Quebec, where she received her education, and shortly after her return to her home, when she was scarcely 18 years old, she was married to her late husband in Cornwall. She lived with him over fifty years and about 12 years ago she celebrated her golden wedding with nearly all her children to rejoice with her. In the autumn of 1821 she came with her husband to the west and settled upon the site of the present homestead where the family has resided ever since. She entered upon the duties and hardships of her early pioneer life with a cheerfulness and courage that is not often seen in these modern days. She was a woman of many personal attractions and of admirable traits of character. She had strong common sense, a keen perception of right and wrong, great moral courage and firm integrity. She was a member of the Presbyterian church and always manifested a deep interest in its service, and a conscientious carefulness in all of her religious duties. About nine years ago her husband died, and since that time she has divided her time between her sons Mr. John Cameron, the governor of our County prison, Mr. George Cameron of Montreal, Rev. R. Cameron of Brantford, and Mr. W. W. Cameron of the old homestead, where she spent the last year of her life until she passed to her final rest. With her demise, another of the old pioneer settlers of our County has passed from our midst and of all the number there was none of them who was more universally respected than Mrs. Cameron. On Monday last a very large number of sympathizing friends followed her remains to our cemetry and the funeral services were conducted by her pastor, the Rev. Mr. Cameron, of Thamesford.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The Editor of THE CHRONICLE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

Cattle Fairs.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

SIR:—I had occasion lately to buy a cow and had to hunt through town and country for a week before getting what would suit. During my search I could not help reflecting on the apathy of the Ingersoll authorities in not making more strenuous efforts to establish a monthly cattle fair. I wish you success in your efforts to establish a cattle fair in this town.

CITIZEN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 22, 1884.

The Late Races.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

SIR—Thinking that the subscribers to the late races would be interested in knowing how their money was appropriated, and wishing to clear ourselves of any blame in the matter, we hope you will give us room in your paper for a few words of explanation. In the first place we had nothing whatever to do with the collection or disposing of the moneys, and our names were placed on the committee without our consent. The free for all race was won by Mr. D Cairns of Beachville, and second money by Mr. J. Guggisberg. Neither have been paid. The Treasurer refuses to either pay the prizes or to show his books. This explanation we think is due the public and ourselves.

W. T. FEIGHTNER.
J. WELSH.

January 23rd, 1884.

The death of Jean Trottet of Geneva recalls a man of an energy and courage which have been unsurpassed. He was born without legs, hands, or feet, yet he learned to write, fastening his pen at his elbow, and when he grew older became an active haymaker, used the reins with dexerity, and was so good a shot that he often carried off the village prizes for mark firing. He was independent and segacious, and has left a widow and four children amply provided for. Tempting offers were made to his parents, and later to himself, by showmen, but were invariably declined.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

VANCE'S oyster parlour is now open. Give him a call. 71.

NATIONAL Pills purify the Blood, regulate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. 82L

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall-st., N. Y.

January 24th, 1884. 1586-454

A RARE CHANCE.

An entirely new piano, of one of the best makes, for sale at a bargain. For particulars apply at

THE CHRONICLE OFFICE.

Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580

Hop Bitters are the Purest and Best Bitters Ever Made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and dandelion,—the oldest best, and most valuble medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest Blood purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Apetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use Hop Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for cases it will not cure or help.

Do not suffer or let your friend suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunkard nostrum, but the purest and best Medicine ever made; the "Invalid" Friend and Hope," and no person or family should be without them. Try the Bitters to-day.

Wedding Invitations
—AT—
The Chronicle Office.

ESTRAY STEER.

Strayed into the premises of the subscriber, lot 19, 6th Line, Dereham, on or about the 12th December, a Yearling Steer. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take him away.

RICHARD ELLIS.

January 10th, 1884. 1583c

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE,

Cheap, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to

H. O'CONNOR, Jr.,
Broker, Ingersoll.

January 10th, 1884. 1583m

FOR SALE.

That elegant Villa, in the Town of Ingersoll, and built 2 acres of land a stached, lately occupied by the late James Batterby, Esq. Terms easy. Apply to

MESSRS. BROWN & WELLS,
Solicitors, Ingersoll

BYCICLE FOR SALE.

An English Bycicle in good order. Cost $70, will be sold for $30. Apply at

THE CHRONICLE Office.

Dec. 6, 1883. 1578

TO LET.

NORSWORTHY'S HALL,

Being the whole of the upper flat of Norsworthy's Block, King street. Would be given at a low rental for a term of years. Apply to

J. C. NORSWORTHY.

Ingersoll, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575cm

STOVE FOR SALE.

A Large Size Box Stove as good as new. Will be sold cheap. Apply at

THE CHRONICLE Office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

At 6 per cent.—£500,00)

H. O'CONNOR, jr.,
Broker, Ingersoll.

Office—Opposite Imperial and Merchants Banks.

Ingersoll, Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578t

FOR SALE.

A Cottage on the south side of Canterbury Street, in good repair, cantaining five rooms, situated on two lots; good barn, hard and soft water. Will be sold cheap. Apply for particulars to

WM. DUNDASS.

Ingersoll, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

HOTEL FOR SALE.

That large three-storey brick hotel, known as The "Albion," Embro, is offered for sale or exchange for farm or town property; one of the best paying hotels in the County; also 50 acres improved land in Hough ton Township.

For terms and particulars, apply to

C. GARNER,
Thamesford P.O.

June 21st 1883. 1554f

FARM FOR SALE.

100 ACRES IN WEST OXFORD.

Choice farm, 3 miles from Ingersoll, consisting of 100 acres, being Lot 12, Con. 2, West Oxford. New House, with good stone cellar, bank barn nearly new, well finished. 5 acre orchard, well fenced and in good state of cultivation, within 130 rods of Gallo way's Cheese Factory, school on the adjoining lot. Price moderate. Terms liberal. Apply to

JAS. BRADY,
Real Estate Agent.

Ingersoll, Oct. 25, 1883. 1572tf

FARM TO RENT.

CONSISTING OF

200 ACRES,

Situated in the Township of West Oxford, County of Oxford, Lot 17, Con. 2; 180 acres cleared and in a high state of cultivation, well fenced and watered, large orchard, brick dwelling, one barn 30x40, one bank barn 40x60, situated one mile from the corporation of Ingersoll. This is considered one of the best farm properties in the County of Oxford. 25 acres of fall wheat sown; and 25 acres fall ploughing done.

Address

JAMES ELLIOTT,

Ingersoll, or on the premises to ALEX. S. PORTEOUS.

P.S.—Possession given immediately if required.

January 3rd, 1884. 1582c

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that

GEORGE BAILEY, of the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, and Province of Ontario, Carriage Maker, has made an assignment to

ALFRED H. ELLIS,

Of the said Town of Ingersoll, Hardware Merchant, of all his real and personal estate for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said George Bailey, are requested to send by post prepaid to the undersigned, on or before the said

Ninth day of March next

A statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration.

The said Trustee will after the said Ninth day of March next, proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rata among the creditors of the said George Bailey, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll, this tenth day of Jan., A.D, 1884.

A. H. ELLIS, Assignee.

Xmas & New Years.

R. H. YOUNG

Has on hand a large assortment of

BLANKETS

And all kinds of

HARNESS!

And everything required for the winter campaign.

ESPECIAL GOOD VALUE.

OLD STAND, PHOENIX BLOCK,
Opposite the Market,

Cash or Wood taken in exchange for goods.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1780

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF BAYLOR UNIVERSITY,

"Independence, Texas, Sept. 26, 1882.

Gentlemen:

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons:—

1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,

WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from unclean, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

BECK.

HAVING
Bought out the Business
Lately carried on by
ROBT. YOUNG

We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of

FRUIT

OF ALL KINDS,

CANNED GOODS

Fine Confectionery.

OYSTERS

JELLYS, JAMS

Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,

And hope by close attention to busines and

SELLING CHEAP

To merit the patronage of the public.

GEO. BECK.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580

BENEFIT MY SUFFERING SISTERS!

Mrs. Geo. M. Franklin, 65 Hunter street, Hamilton, Ont., suffered from torpid liver, congested kidneys, ulceration and falling of the womb, weakness and palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia and catarrh. She complained of pains in the left side, small of back and between shoulders; nervousness and biliousness; pain over kidneys, headache and cold feet; inability to sleep on the left side; back very weak, feeling "as if there was a load against it" in the morning; ached from small of back to knees; often felt as if her heart would stop and as if she would smother. Had also every symptom of female weakness. After her case had been abandoned as hopeless by several physicians she took treatment of the Drs. K. & K., who speedily CURED her. She says: "Benefit my suffering sisters by publishing the facts of my case."

LIFE LOOKS BRIGHT TO ME.

Mr. I. D. Boardman, editor of the Peterstburgh (Mich.) Bulletin, says: "My health having become undermined when fighting for this Union, I was attacked in '69 by consumption in its worst form. I had severe pains in the left breast, a dry hacking cough, night sweats, daily fevers and frequent violent bleeding from

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Special—Warner's Safe Cure.
Special—Camilla Urso.
Medical Drs. K. & K.
Special—Routledge Pub. Co.
Assignee's Sale—A. H. Ellis.
Meeting—G. W. Francis.
Royal Baking Powder.
Lands—C. & N. W. Ry.
Seeds—D. M. Ferry.
Seeds—Wm. Rennie.
Meeting—E. W. Smith.
Auction Sale—Geo. W. Wells.
Io'anthe—Holman Opera Co.
Auction Sale—A. McKellar.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1884.

"AN AMBITIOUS WOMAN."

Our New Continued Story by Edgar Fawcett.

"An Ambitious Woman" is the title of a new novel by Edgar Fawcett the well-known author of "A Gentleman of Leisure," "Tinkling Cymbals," "A Hopeless Case," etc. This novel deals with New York Society, a field which Mr. Fawcett has made peculiarly his own. "An Ambitious Woman" is attracting wide attention and cannot fail to interest our readers generally. It is commenced this week and a liberal instalment will be given in each issue. This novel is not published in book form and THE CHRONICLE has made arrangements to secure the sole right to publish it in this vicinity. Read the first chapters.

TOWN NEWS.

WOOD wanted by the public schools.

READ advertisement of the Scottish Concert.

IT is the collector who is first to find a man out.

CAMILLA URSO, the great violinist, town hall, Monday next.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.—Grand Concert in the town hall to-morrow, (Friday) night.

CAMILLA URSO.—Plan of hall and tickets at H. Richardson's jewellery store.

PARTS 25 and 26 of Picturesque Canada are being delivered in town by the agent.

FINDLAY McGREGOR will sing in the town hall on to-morrow (Friday) evening.

"HINTS on house plants" are among the many interesting articles on our fourth page.

FAILED.—Messrs. J. L. Perkins, grocer, and Chas. Cragg, harness maker, have made assignments.

A treat for Ingersoll—Camilla Urso and Company, in the town hall on Monday evening next, 28th.

THE WARDENSHIP.—John Peers, Reeve of East Oxford, was elected Warden of the County on Tuesday.

THE I. O. G. T. will hold an open lodge in Y. M. P. B. A. Hall, Thames St., on Monday Feb. 4th. All are invited.

AM. EXPRESS CO.—Mr. J. W. Lyall is the newly appointed agent of the American Express Co. here, in room of F. H. Doty.

LAID OVER.—Several communications and other items of local interest are crowded out this week. They will appear in our next.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE.—The stock of Mr. Geo. Bailey is offered for sale by auction on Tuesday next 29th inst., by A. H. Ellis, assignee, at his shop. Read adv.

MR. Vennor has kindly reduced the hideous slush that was to have pervaded January to a mild thaw of three or four days at the end. We hope this prophecy will be as well fulfilled as the others.

SPEEDING HORSES.—Complaints are being made of fast driving on the streets, and Constable Gray is on the alert to bring parties to time. The park is a fit and proper place for indulging in the pastime.

MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY. — The Rev. Dr. Meacham, of Japan, will conduct the services next Sabbath, morning and evening, in the King-street Methodist Church. Collections in behalf of Missions.

R. C. CHURCH.—The Rev. Father Molphy, of Maidstone Cross, takes charge of Ingersoll parish for six months. Rev. Father Atkinson, of London, England, will take charge of his parish while he is away.

TELEPHONES.—There has been a large increase in the number of telephones in use here recently, now that there is communication with neighbouring places. Mr. C. C. L. Wilson is the agent here.

ENTERTAINMENT IN CENTREVILLE. — The young folks of the Ingersoll E. C. Church will give a pleasing entertainment in the school house, Centreville, on Monday evening next, 28th inst. An interesting affair may be looked for. See programmes. Admission 15 cents, or two for 25 cents.

INGERSOLL COUNCIL.—In the Town Council for 1884 there are 5 manufacturers, 1 miller, 1 post master, 1 butcher, 1 shopkeeper, and 4 men of means who have no particular employment. There are 8 Liberals and 5 Conservatives; but politics do not enter into municipal matters here.

SPRING FAIR.—Mr. Gordon H. Cook has been appointed to collect subscriptions for the Spring Fair, which is to be held at the place subscribing the largest—Tilsonburg, Norwich or Ingersoll. We hope our townspeople will respond liberally and thus secure the Fair for Ingersoll.

CAMILLA URSO—We have the pleasure of announcing the visit to Ingersoll of the most favored and popular of all the violin virtuosi that have ever visited this country. Her name and fame have become as household words, not only on the American continent, but throughout the civilized world, she has become endeared to the lovers of music wherever she has appeared.

FARM SOLD. — Mr. C. D. Inglesby, of Springford, one of THE CHRONICLE'S veteran subscribers in the fine township of South Norwich, has sold his farm, consisting of 100 acres, north half lot 24, con. 7, to Mr. Thos. Veale, for $7,000. Mr. Inglesby informs us that the sale of the farm was effected wholly through advertising it in THE CHRONICLE. This is strong testimony of the value of THE CHRONICLE as an advertising medium. No advertiser could ask for better.

YOUNG FOLKS' ENTERTAINMENT.—An excellent entertainment will be given in the Oxford street B. C. Church, on Tuesday evening next 29th inst., when a programme of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc., will be submitted. There will be cornet and concertina solos, besides other instrumental attractions. It will undoubtedly be an attractive affair. See programmes. Admission only 15 cents, or two for 25 cts. Funds go to church purposes. Remember the night—Tuesday, 29th.

BEEKEEPERS ASSOCIATION.—A number of the beekeepers of the county of Oxford held a meeting on Saturday week. It was resolved to form a permanent organization to be called "The County of Oxford Bee-Keepers' Association." The following officers were elected: President, J. B. Hall, Woodstock; vice-do, John Peers, East Zorra; 2nd-do, J. E. Frith, do; directors, Martin Emigh, Holbrook; F. Malcolm, Innerkip; Wm. Goodger, E. Zorra; Jas. Tennant, Blenheim; and Dr. Duncan, Embro; Sec-Treas., M. S. Sebell.

THE BACHELORS' BALL.—The Ball which was given on Friday night last proved an unqualified success, reflecting the highest credit on the junior bachelors, who got it up. It was held in the town hall and was attended by nearly 250 people, St. Thomas, Woodstock, London, Stratford, Simcoe and other places being represented. Those who were present pronounced it one of the best affairs of the kind ever given here. The music was delightful, being provided by the Italian String Band of London—seven strong. The ladies provided an excellent supper and otherwise added greatly to the success of the ball.

IN MEMORIAM.—Mrs. Christena Cameron McKenzie.—Died on the evening of Monday, Jan. 7th, 1884, at the family residence, Ingersoll, Christena Cameron, wife of the Rev. D. McKenzie, in the 74th year of her age. Born in Inverness-shire, Scotland, she, in company with one brother and four sisters, came to Canada in the year 1836, and settled near St. Thomas, Elgin Co., and on Nov. 28th, 1838, she was married to the Rev. D. McKenzie, who at that time was the only Presbyterian Minister in Western Ontario. Mrs. McKenzie was a remarkable woman in all the qualities of good deeds that adorn the Christian life. Her piety was of a calm and placid type, yet deep and genuine, manifesting itself in deeds of kindness and self-denial. By her exemplary conduct at home, in society and in the church, she witnessed a good confession, and now is gone home to receive her reward. As in life, so in death, she was quiet, peaceful and happy. Concerning her, it can truly be said, "Her end was peace." Her remains were borne by loving hands, (followed by many sympathizing friends, both from Ingersoll and Embro), to the quiet graveyard in North Embro, where she now sleeps beside her two children, awaiting the resurrection of the just.

THE wonderful perfection to which the printer's art has been carried may be judged from our advertisement of the Drs. K. & K. U. S. Medical and Surgical Association in another column of this issue. 85b.

FOR Nettle Rash, Itching Piles, Ringworm Eruptions, and all skin diseases; use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 82t

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79.

THE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

Annual Meetings and Election of Officers.

THE SOUTH OXFORD SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the agricultural district association for the South Riding of Oxford convened at Gould's Hall, Mt. Elgin, on Wednesday, 16th inst. The Board of directors met at 10 a. m. to wind up the business of the association for the past year, and at one o'clock the members met for the annual meeting.

The day being fine and the roads excellent the attendance was good. On motion Mr. A. L. Wilcox took the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year:

President, E. Monk; 1st vice-do., B. Minkler; 2nd vice-do., D. S. Butterfield. Directors—Jas. Ryan and Jas. Chambers, Dereham; M. Harris and R. Addison, South Norwich; I. D. Swartout, North Norwich; G. H. Cook, West Oxford; James Park, East Oxford; Jas. Connor, Tilsonburg; T. Choate, Ingersoll. Auditors—W. F. Kay and A. L. Wilcox.

The treasurer's and auditors' reports were then read and accepted, showing a balance of $156.39 in the treasury.

It was moved by Mr. G. H. Cook and seconded by Mr. Jas. Ryan, that Mr. Henry Parker, of Woodstock, be appointed a member of the Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association of this Province for section No. 9, being the Counties of Elgin, Norfolk, Brant and Oxford. Messrs. E. Monk and D. S. Butterfield were appointed as representatives of this district to attend the meeting of the Agricultural and Arts Association. A vote of thanks was then tendered to the retiring President for the able manner in which he had discharged his duties, which was replied to by Mr. Ryan in very appropriate terms.

On motion the President elect then took the chair. Alex. McFarlane was then elected secretary for the year 1884. After considerable discussion it was resolved that there be a spring show, and that Messrs. G. H. Cook, of West Oxford, Jas. Connor, of Tilsonburg, and D. S. Butterfield, of Norwich, act as collecting committee, and that they report to the Secretary by the 15th of Feb. next. It was also resolved that Messrs. M. Harris and James Ryan be also added to this committee to arrange for the spring show.

Moved by D. S. Butterfield, seconded by James Ryan, and resolved, that the annual county show be held on the usual grounds at Otterville.

Meeting then adjourned.

NORTH OXFORD SOCIETY.

The following officers are elected:—

President, M. M. Nesbitt, Woodstock; 1st Vice-President, Joseph Peers, East Oxford; 2nd Vice-President, James Anderson, East Zorra. Directors—Chas. Wilson, E. W. Chambers, Jas. Sutherland, H. Parker, F. Mitchell, T. Horner, J. Clarkson, R. Moysey, W. Donaldson. Secretary-Treasurer, J. Craig; Auditors, A. W. Francis and J. W. Wadland.

WEST ZORRA AND EMBRO SOCIETY.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

Pres., D. J. Matheson, (re-elected)., Vice-Pres., Robt. Youngs; Directors, Wm. McIntosh, Alex Matheson, Walter Meadows E. Cody, Jno. Youngs, Geo. Walker, Angus McKay, E. L. Sutherland, Jas. McKay, Jas. Campbell (Merchant). G. M. Creighton, D. G. Murray, Dexter Day. Auditors, Wm. Loveys, H. G. Anderson. Sec.-Treas., Wm. Stewart. The Auditors report showed a balance of $148.24.

SOUTH NORWICH SOCIETY.

The following were elected to hold office for 1884:—

Martin Harris, President; John Johnson, Vice-President; Alex McFarlane, sec.-treas. Directors—Chas. Patterson, Ephriam Monk, I. J. Darling, Thos. McNally, B. Coliver, Jas. Griffin, Chas. Hardy, Chas. Treffry, Michael Siples. Honorary Directors—L. Swartout, Norwich; R. Tufford, Windham; Thos. Herron, Middleton. Auditors—R. C. Coote and Thos. Purvis.

DEREHAM SOCIETY

At the annual meeting of the Dereham branch agricultural society, held last week, the following officers were elected:—President, J. Baxter; Vice Pres., J. A. Brown; directors, D. T. Smith, E. D. Tillson, M. Armstrong, W. S. Thompson, J. Fulton, W. R. Thompson, Geo. Frost, D. Malcolm; auditors, M. Kelly and W. A. McCollom. J. Garnett, sec.-treas.

INGERSOLL, N. AND W. OXFORD SOCIETY.

This society meets on Saturday next in the Town Hall, Ingersoll. A full attendance is requested.

NORTH DORCHESTER SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of this Society was held on Thursday, 10th inst., when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, B. Venning; vice-president, James Creighton; directors, Joseph Weir, James Wilson, D. Conner, W. Turnbull, J. H. Rawse, J. Dibb, C. Campbell, T. J. Cornish, D. McLaughlin; sec.-treas., S. Stockdale.

The girl or boy
Who learns to skate,
Starts out with joy
And air elate.

Soon—bump, kerflump!
Two sudden jars,
A thundering thump,
Ten thousand stars.

CAMILLA URSO.—In breadth of style, accuracy of intonation, and command of the bow, both in legato and staccato passages, this artist surpasses all the violinists who have lately appeared before the public, whilst the elegance of her phrasing, the variety of her "nuances" and her classical taste, proclaim her one of the first virtuosos of the day. After each movement of the quartette, Madame Urso and her able coadjutors encountered the most enthusiastic applause, while the variations of C minor created a perfect furore. Madame Camilla Urso, on the conclusion of the quartette, had to return three times to the orchestral platform to acknowledge the overwhelming compliments paid her.—London (Eng.) Standard.

NOVEL IDEA.—A skating rink manager of London adopted a novel plan, but one that is liable to put some young ladies and gentlemen in a position where they may be misunderstood. He advertises that on a certain evening gentlemen will be charged 15 cents admission, but if accompanied by ladies the charge will be 10 cents for two. Now, if a gentleman invites a lady to attend the rink on that particular evening, it may possibly raise a suspicion in her mind that she is invited in order that her escort may save 5 cents.

UNRELIABLE THERMOMETERS. — It may surprise some to find that an impression prevails among eminent scientific men that the ordinary thermometers are wholly unreliable and of comparatively little value. Professor Draper says that for all low temperatures alcohol thermometers must be employed if even ordinary accuracy is to be attained. Mercurial thermometers should not be used when the temperature falls to 10 degrees below zero, for after this point the most correct of the instruments will vary slightly.

AN OPEN WINTER.—And this is our open winter! Well, if down to zero and ten to twelve degrees below, with snow storms from the four corners of the compass, snow piled in heaps and in winrows, and fences invisible in various directions constitute an open winter, we have it right here, and now, in all its grandeur. Vennor, Moses Oates and other weather forecasters should be called upon to do their road work in advance of next summer. It might slacken their inclination to fool with things they know just as much about as any other man, and no more. Even the squirrels and others of the brute creation failed last fall to give us the desired information, and the oldest inhabitant is equally astray.

UNFAIR GRANTS.—At the meeting of the County Council in Woodstock last week a motion to appoint a committee to communicate with the Minister of Public Works and if necessary to wait upon him, with a view to procuring the construction of a Post Office and Custom House building in Woodstock was passed. Mr. Nancekivell objected to the resolution on the ground that the matter pertained to the town of Woodstock only. The County had nothing to do with the question. Mr. Nancekivell was right. Let Woodstock look out for herself in matters of that kind. The County has no right to lend its influence to build up that town at the expense of other towns within its limits. Everything that helps to build up Woodstock serves to set back Ingersoll and Norwich, and, to a certain extent, Tilsonburg also. Let the towns and villages in the county go ahead on their own merits and by their own enterprise.—Tilsonburg Observer. The same might be said of the Fat Stock Club to which the County Council made a grant, although it was purely a Woodstock scheme for the benefit of that town.

THE HOLMAN'S.—The members of the Y. M. P. B. A. have at quite a large expense engaged the Holman English Opera Company, to give the latest New York and Boston success "Iolanthe," on Friday evening, February 1st. The Company is now considered one of the best travelling, and is engaged for an extensive tour through the United States, under the management of Mr. G. M. Brown, of Boston. Miss Sallie Holman, the Prima Donna, a great favorite wherever she has appeared, has a pure, sweet soprano voice of great compass, and in the leading role of the piece which will be presented here, the New York Herald says, cannot be surpassed. She is supported by a company of artists well and favorably known in the musical world, among whom may be mentioned Misses Blanche Bradshaw, Adella Parker (late of Emma Abbot Opera Co.,) Hattie Davis (late of Haverly's Opera Co.,) Messrs. J. R. Dalton, A. D. Holman and D. F. Young. The costumes are elegant, stage appointments complete, the music charming. In fact everything is first-class. We hope our citizens will turn out en masse, as they are sure to enjoy a pleasant evening. Tickets 25 and 50 cents, to be had at Richardson's jewelry store.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Last Meeting of Old Council—First Meeting of the New Council.

An adjourned meeting of the Town Council was held on Thursday evening last.

Members present.

His Worship the Mayor in the chair.

No quorum.

Special meeting called on Saturday evening for general business.

Members present—His Worship the Mayor in the chair; Messrs. Seldon, Stewart, Matheson, Waterhouse, Richardson, Watterworth, and Hegler.

The following accounts were read:—From R. A. Woodcock, stationery, $6 36; do., reg. 225 dogs, $22 50; do., Ingersoll cheese market, showing a deficiency of $80.16; A. Magill, repairs to market, $1.85; R. M. Duell, wood, $5.75; Mills & Buchanan, market, $1.55; G. F. Gurnett, printing, $103.44.

Report of Printing Committee read recommending that $100 be paid to G. F. Gurnett for full amount of his account.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Richardson, and resolved, That the Report of the Market Committee be adopted.

Report of Fire, Water and Gas Committee read, showing expenditure for the year $137.34.

Report of Street Watering Committee read showing the expenditure for the year $345.01.

Moved by Mr. Richardson, seconded by Mr. A. Matheson, and resolved, That the report of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee just read be adopted.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved, That this Council resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the accounts which have been read before this Council.

Council in Committee of the Whole, Mr. Waterhouse in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved, That this Committee do now rise and report, recommending the payment of the following accounts: Brown & Wells, law costs, $10.12; R. A. Woodcock, stationery, etc., $28.86; Grant to cheese market, $75.00; Mills & Buchanan, market-repairs, $1.55; R. M. Duell, wood for market, $5.75; Adam Magill, repairs to market, $1.85.

Council resumed the Mayor in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Hegler, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, and resolved, That the Council do now adopt the report of the Committee of the Whole, and that the Mayor sign an order on the Treasurer for the amounts specified therein in favour of the various parties.

Moved by Mr. Matheson, seconded by Mr. Waterhouse, and resolved, That the Mayor sign an order in favour of Thomas Henderson, for the sum of $20, for rejoiting four joints in suction hose.

Chas. Cragg enters and takes his seat.

The Mayor leaves the chair and the Reeve takes the same.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Matheson, and resolved, That this Council beg to express its sincere thanks to his worship the retiring Mayor.

First for his willingness at all times and under all circumstances to call this Council together for consultation.

Second for his watchfulness and care for the public interests, for his uniform genial manner towards the members of Council in Council assembled, and generally for his pubic service in behalf of the town for the many years he has occupied a leading position in its Councils, and hereby express a wish that he may be loug spared in the enjoyment of health and prosperity in the future. As a number of the gentlemen who have had the pleasure of meeting around this Board from time to time during the past year cease their connection with the Council this night, we beg to express our regret at parting with them and hope that health and prosperity attend in all their future undertakings.

THE COUNCIL STANDING.

On motion the Council adjourned.

On Monday morning the first meeting of the new Council was held at 11 o'clock.

The following having made their declaration of office and qualification, took their seats, viz:

Mayor: James Noxon; Reeve: Thomas Seldon; 1st Deputy Reeve: Wm. Watterworth; 2nd Deputy Reeve: Jos. Gibson. Councillors: 1st Ward, G. W. Walley, D. Horsman, J. A. McInnes; 2nd Ward, F. Richardson, M. T. Buchanan; 3rd Ward, A. Matheson, W. B. Nelles, H. O'Connor.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Richardson, and resolved, That Messrs. Watterworth, Gibson, Richardson, Matheson, and the mover be a Committee to strike the standing Committees for the present year and to report at next session of Council.

Moved by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Horsman, and resolved, That the Council do now adjourn to meet again at half-past seven o'clock this evening.

Council adjourned.

Adjourned meeting of Council. Members present: His Worship the Mayor in the chair; Messrs. Seldon, Gibson, Horsman, Waterhouse, Walley, Nelles, McInnes, Richardson, Buchanan, O'Connor, Watterworth and Matheson.

Mr. Waterhouse made his declaration and qualification of office.

Minutes of first meeting were then read and approved, and signed by the Mayor.

Application from S. H. Young for office of assessor, $200; from J. H. Hegler, for office of Clerk, $240.

Letters from R. Buckley asking for relief, A. M. Ross, minister of agriculture, with schedule for auditors report, A. B. Klein, Mayor of Walkerton, asking that a petition be sent to Provincial Legislature, replacing bridges in towns under the charge of County Councils.

Report from Committee appointed to strike the standing Committee, recommending the following:—

Finance—Messrs. Watterworth, Seldon, Gibson, Richardson, Nelles.

Fire, Water and Gas—Messrs. Matheson, Walley, McInnes, Nelles, Buchanan.

Market, Park and Printing—Messrs. Seldon, O'Connor, Waterhouse, Matheson, Gibson.

Railway.—Messrs. Gibson, Watterworth, Seldon.

Indigent—Messrs. O'Connor, Horsman, Buchanan.

The first named of each Committee to be chairman.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That the rules governing the Council be read.

Rules governing former Council were then read.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, and resolved, That the rules governing the Council of 1883 bo adopted for 1884, except the rule regarding the appointment of the Committee on sidewalks, roads and bridges.

Moved by Mr. Richardson, seconded by Mr. McInnes, and resolved, That the reports of the Special Committee just read be adopted.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Nelles, and resolved, That the accounts and communications not otherwise disposed of be referred to their respective Committees and that this be a standing rule for the year.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, and resolved, That the mover have leave to bring in a By-law for the appointment of municipal officers for the year 1884 and that By-law be now read a first time. By-law was also read a second and third time and passed in Committee of the Whole.

Moved by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved, That the taxes of Mill Hill, amount $13.32, be remitted for 1883, and that the Mayor sign an order in favor of the collector for the same.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Waterhouse, and resolved, That the account of H. Rowland, amount $11.50, be paid, and that the Mayor sign an order for the same.

Moved by Mr. Walley, seconded by Mr. Nelles, and resolved, That a Committee consisting of Messrs. Watterworth, Seldon, and the mover, be appointed to receive applications for the position of town constable, and recommend the appointment of some suitable person to fill the position at the next regular meeting of this Council.

Council adjourned.

Personal.

Mr. R. F. Hunter left for Denver, Col., on Monday.

Mr. Chas. Gilroy and family have returned to Ingersoll from Brantford.

Messrs. Pottinger and Heaton, Inspectors of the Merchants and Molsons Banks, have been in town during the past week on business.

P. S. Ross, accountant, of Montreal, is engaged in his annual inspection of the Noxon Mfg. Co's. business for the past year.

DESTROY the Worms or they may destroy the children. Use Freeman's Worm Powders, they expel all kinds of worms. 82t.

BROWETT'S Baking Powder, fresh and pure, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. (77

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

CANDY.—One of our large manufacturers had sixteen barrels of adulterated candy dumped in Toronto Bay by the Government Inspector. You can tell them by the price. The genuine article at Vance's, Thames street. 80

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

ALL grocers keep Moss & Co's Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, ask for it and take no other. 75

MRS. Pinkham's Medicine at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

LADIES' Kid Boots at Logee's. 60

GERMAN Syrup at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

PECTORIA, for Coughs and Colds, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

HAND in your subscriptions for any paper publication in the world, to J. G. Campbell in the Post Office Book Store. 81r

TRY Moss & Co's. Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, for sale by all grocers. 75

Sulphur and Iron Bitters at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

SOUTH OXFORD LIBERALS.

The Convention at Mt. Elgin—Jas. Noxon of Ingersoll Secures the Nomination—A Large and Enthusiastic Assemblage—An Intensely Exciting Contest—Names of the Delegates.

On Friday forenoon last the Liberals of South Oxford met in Convention at Mt. Elgin for the purpose of nominating a standard bearer to represent the riding in the Ontario Legislature in room of the Hon. Adam Crooks. The Convention was called for 10 o'clock, and by that hour their were 158 delegates present, every sub-division but one being represented, besides a large number of Liberals who were not delegates, from all parts of the county. The meeting was probably the largest and most representative ever held in South Oxford, showing the keen interest taken in the nomination. After Mr. Jas. F. McDonald, the energetic secretary, had read the minutes of last meeting, the following candidates were nominated by ballot:—J. V. Bodwell, Mount Elgin; Jas. Noxon, P. J. Brown and Dr. McKay, Ingersoll; Jas. Lund, East Oxford; Jas. Brady, W. Watterworth, Ingersoll; G. H. Cook, West Oxford; A. L. Wilcox, Springford; A. Patullo, Woodstock; H. A. Titus and F. A. Titus, Otterville; Wm. Nancekivell, Thos. Nancekivell and E. B. Brown, Dereham; John Sheahan, Thos. Abrahams, North Norwich.

All these gentlemen withdrew except Messrs. Bodwell, Nancekivell, Brown, Noxon, Brady and Cook.

Below will be found the result of the balloting:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Bodwell....	3	6	6	5	4	5	6	5	3
Nancekivell	36	41	46	47	49	51	52	70	81	76
Brown.....	2	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	0
Noxon 27	41	47	50	54	60	64	64	75	82
McKay.....22	17	15	15	11	4	2	4	0
Brady.....36	35	34	32	32	32	30	12	0
Cook.....18	13	9	9	7	6	5	3	1
Titus..... 6	3	1	0	0	0

On the ninth ballot Mr. Nancekivell had 81 ballots, one more than the number required to elect him, but it was found that 160 ballots (2 more than the number of delegates) had been cast and on another ballot being taken Jas. Noxon was declared the nominee by a majority of 6 over Mr. Nancekivell. Towards the last the excitement became most intense, although the best of order prevailed. At the close Mr. Noxon, Mr. Brady, and others addressed those present briefly, when the meeting adjourned.

Below is a list of the delegates:—

SOUTH NORWICH.

W. L. Townsend, Jno. Singer. M. Durkee, Jas. Wilcox, Jas. H. Spencer, Vice-Presidents; Samuel Innes, Wm. McNamara, Thos. Duyre, H. A. Titus, W. Roseheart, R. Addison, J. J. Darling, E. M. Schooley, D. G. Donnocker, Robert Wilcox, Martin Harris, A. L. Wilcox, C. D. Inglesby, Dan Hicks, D. Bell.

NORTH NORWICH.

Geo. Barr, J. H. McLees, W. H. Dennis, John Sheehan, Vice-Presidents; Dan Dager, Wm. Fewster, A. Frame, Jas. McLees, Leonard Burgess, Ezra Hendershott, J. L. Farrington, W. E. Dennis, E. H. Snider, Chas. E. Burgess, John Topping, Wm. Gair, Michael Furlong, W. W. Austin.

NORWICHVILLE.

W. H. Miller, D. S. Butterfield, Vice-Presidents; C. Dake, H. Dager, L. D. Swartout, J. F. Inglesby, Jas. Stephenson, J. L. Moore, W. F. Coker.

DEREHAM.

Stephen Foster, W. Nancekivell, S. Sherwood, W. Ryan, Dan Smith, John Fulton, Vice-Presidents; Dr. Smith, H. Boyse, L. Harris, F. Jacobs, Geo. Stockdale, R. Nancekivell, Simeon Sage, Geo. Dunphy, Dan Pratt, R. Miller, John Snell, H. A. Bodwell Geo. Ellis, John H. Reid, J. F. Williams, Jas. Hunter, Albert Simmons, L. A. Perry, R. Wessenger, W. S. Ferguson, R. W. Hawkins, J. L. Wooley, W. H. Brown, E. B. Brown.

TILSONBURG.

J. C. Ross, Chas. Thompson, Jas. Connors, Vice Presidents; Michael Kennedy, H. Weatherwax, D. Merrill, John Smith, John McIntyre, L. McLean, Peter Graham, Adam Matheson.

WEST OXFORD.

T. R. Maberry. Jas. Dickie. F. Cody, Vice-Presidents; Nicholas Smith, Ben. Harris, Robt. Wilson, Geo. Galloway, F. Karn, R. Peers, John Fairburn, Dr. Brown, J. A. Cody, Joe Withrow, D. Watt, O. Brown.

NORTH OXFORD.

Wm. Colyer, W. Dunn, Vice-Presidents; D. Morrison, W. Telfer, M. Day, N. B. Morrison, A. Gordon, Michael Dunn, Alex. Ross, Wm. Hayes, R. M. McDonald.

EAST OXFORD.

Allen Virtue, Alex. Davidson, T. J. Lammamin, Vice-Presidents; R. Kipp, W. Lazenby, I. Schell, H. Nillems, R. Leek, E. Swazey, J. Virtue, Jas. Lund, Jas. Tunis, and John Rice.

INGERSOLL.

W. Watterworth, W. C. Bell, John Russell, M. T. Buchanan, P. Kennedy, Jas. Wilson, Vice-Presidents; Peter Carlin, John A. McInnes, Wm. Tripp, D. Horsman, John Calder, J. C. B. Galer, Hec Campbell, John Gayler, E. Day, W. K. Sumner, John Todmore, Jas. Stevens, W. R. Burke, H. Stevens, D. Day. W. S. King, John Lee, Wm. McKim, John Frizell, A. Matheson, J. H. Hegler, W. B. Nelles.

SOUTH OXFORD CONSERVATIVES.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Conservative Association of South Oxford was held at Mt. Elgin on Wednesday 16th. The attendance of member, from all parts of the riding was very fair. Dr. Williams, president occupied the chair. After the transaction of the ordinary business of the Association, the following officers were elected: President, Mr. John N. Chambers, of East Oxford, Woodstock P. O.; Vice Presidents, Alexander Bell, of Mt. Elgin; Secretary, M. Walsh, Ingersoll; Treasurer, John Hopkins, Brownsville. The chairmen for the several divisions were elected as follows:

DEREHAM.—No. 1, S. Grigg, Salford; 2, Thos. Nancekivell, Ingersoll; 3, Thos. Scott, Tilsonburg; 4, W. J. Bigham, Culloden; 5, W. S. Scott, Tilsonburg; 6, John H. Wood, Brownsville.

SOUTH NORWICH.—1, J. C. Garrett, Tilsonburg; 2, Wm. McCurdy, Otterville; 3, Wm. Fralick, Springford; 4, James Wallace, Otterville.

NORTH NORWICH.—1, Hugh Burtch, Norwich; 2, Andrew Graham, Norwich; 3, Samuel Wallace, Burgessville; 4, Thos. Timms Mt. Elgin.

EAST OXFORD.—1, J. Mighton, Vandecar; 2, C. Fetch, Burgessville; 3, J. L. Peers, Woodstock.

NORWICH.—L. F. Bungay.

NORTH OXFORD.—1, Edward Jarvis, Ingersoll; 2, Jno. Henderson, Ingersoll.

WEST OXFORD.—1, Wm. Wilkinson, Ingersoll; 2, Thos. Taylor, Beachville.

TILSONBURG.—1, H. J. Caulfeild; 2, Peter Campbell; 3, Thos. Waller.

After the payment of accounts, a vote of thanks to the retiring officers, and a special vote of thanks to the retiring president, Dr. Williams, of Ingersoll, who had contested the riding in the last general election, the meeting adjourned.

A $20 Biblical Prize.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer twelve valuable rewards in their Monthly for February, among which is the following:

We will give $20.00 to the person telling us which is the longest verse in the Old Testament Scriptures by February 10th, 1884. Should two or more correct answers be received, the reward will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner February 15th, 1884. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the March Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. Address RUTLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Easton, Penna.

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

DR. LOW'S Worm Syrup will remove worms and cause, quicker than any other Medicine. 82t.

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ZOPESA at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

NO table is complete without Moss & Co's Celebrated Mustard. 75

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.25. The best value ever offered in Ingersoll.—S. P. Loges. 56

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

A good second hand organ wanted. Address box 435, Ingersoll. 81.

Is Alum Poisonous?

Dr. Hall's Journal of Health, in a recent issue, says:

"The question has caused a good deal of discussion. Alum is used by many bakers to whiten their bred, enabling them to use an inferior flour. It is more extensively employed as a cheap substitute for cream of tartar in the manufacture of baking powders. It has not been considered immediately dangerous; although if continued it induces dyspepsia and obstinate constipation. But the fact that many cases of poisoning have occurred from baking powders which contained alum, put the question in a more serious aspect, and prudent people will exercise caution in the selection of baking powders.

"Under what conditions, then, does this substance—formerly used only for mechanical or medicinal purposes—become poisonous? They are certainly obscure, and at present we can only surmise what they may be. We suspect that the cause exists in the individual poisoned; some peculiarity of the constitutions producing a morbid change in the secretions of the stomach, with which the alum combines and forms an active poison; or the secretions may be healthy but in unusual proportions, and that these less or greater proportions, in combination with the alum, constitute a poison.

"For example, two parts of mercury and two parts of chlorine form calomel, which is not poisonous; but change the proportions to one part of mercury and two parts of chlorine, and we get corrosive sublimate, which is deadly poison."

"Then, again, we know nothing of the causes of constitutional peculiarties. Why is it that one person can eat all kinds of green fruits and vegetables with impunity, while the same course might cost another individual his life? One person can handle poison ivy and sumac without being in the least affected; another is poisoned if he approaches to within ten feet of them. Out of a family residing in a malarial district, some of the members will suffer half the year with fever and ague, while the others will enjoy excellent health during the entire year. Foods that are wholesome to some persons are actually poisonous to others. This is especially true of some kinds of fish. There is no safety in taking alum into the stomach, as it is shown to be always injurious and often dangerous. Baking powders properly compounded, and containing pure cream of tartar instead of alum are more convenient than yeast; and bread and pastry made paltable. We are in entire sympathy with the manufacturers of of the Royal Baking Powder—who commenced and are vigorously conducting the war against the use of alum in baking powders.

"Before committing ourselves, however, we made tests of a sufficient number of baking powders to satisfy ourselves that the substitution of alum for cream of tartar in their composition has not been over-estimated, with a careful examination of the Royal Baking Powder confirms our belief that Dr. Mott, the Government Chemist, when he singled out and commended this powder for its wholesomeness, did it wholly in the interest of the public.

"We do not hesitate to say that the Royal Baking Powder people deserve the gratitude of the community whom they are endeavoring to protect.

FARM AND DAIRY.

Holland Cattle.

To an excellent breed of dairy and beef cattle the absurd name of Holsteins has been given. This breed deserve notice because of the persistent efforts made by importers and breeders to introduce it to public notice, as well as by its intrinsic merits. It is truly the only breed which serves at once all the purposes for which cattle are kept. It is excellent for the dairy; especially the milk and cheese dairy; the steers make as good beef and fatten as easily and as quickly as any other breed; while they are unsurpassed for working oxen. The only question which has to be decided in regard to them is whether in our circumstances under our peculiar climate, and for our special purposes these cattle, excellent in their own country, under their peculiar climate and for the special purposes of the Dutch farmers, will become of equal value here as there.

At the outset of this enquiry we find these cattle laboring under the disadvantage of a name to which they have no claim or right and which is as absurd as though we should call a native of Holland a German and persist in doing so in spite of the fact that he and his ancestors were Dutch for more than a thousand years past. The facts in this respect are as follows. About 2,000 years ago the lowlands of North Western Europe bordering upon the shores of the North sea and now known as the Netherlands or literally low lands was occupied by an enterprising and independent race of people then known as Friesians. They were made tributary to the Romans about that period and paid their taxes in hides of cattle, and from this fact the excellence of their herds at that remote period became a matter of history. This country is well known to consist of low level rich meadows or polders, mostly below the level of the ocean whose waters are kept back by a system of world renowned dykes or enbankments. The well known Zuyder Zee is about the centre of this rich grazing country. And it is from this country we are drawing our stock of black and white cattle which are really North Holland, Dutch or Dutch Friesian. By an unfortunate and stupidly perverse and wilful blunder, some of these cattle imported into Massachusetts about 20 years ago were called Holstein, following in this respect the name given an English writer more than 40 years ago who called them Dutch or Holstein cattle. The writer drew attention to this mistake soon after the importation was made in 1860 and public notice was drawn to them; but until within the last few years was left single handed to maintain the right of these fine cattle to their own distinctive name as North Holland or Dutch and to resist the fastening upon them of a name which was misleading and injurious to them; because Holstein was then a Danish province distant and quite separate from Holland, and the Holstein cattle were neither dairy cattle nor like the Holland cattle in color or quality. As an example of the inconsistency and stupidity with which this wrong name was retained might be mentioned the fact that in an article descriptive of these wrongly called Holstein cattle given in the report of the Agricultural Department, Washington, in 1864, they were all the time referred to as Dutch, North Holland, and North Dutch cattle, and as being particularly Holland or Dutch cattle, and yet they were mentioned in the heading of the article as Holsteins, and therefore Danish cattle, and would now be German cattle, as Holstein is a German province, but could not by any possibility be called Dutch if they were really Holstein.

To make the matter worse for these cattle, there are now three herd books for their record and three separate associations of breeders of them, one the Holstein; another the North Holland and another the Dutch Friesian. In this description we shall retain the name to which they are really entitled as Dutch-Friesian or North Holland.

These cattle then have been bred with care for the special purpose of the dairy for many centuries. They have been fed upon the richest and most luxuriant pastures. They have enjoyed a mild moist climate; alike free from intense Summer heats and long continued cold in the Winter. They are consequently distinct in type, of a regular black and white piebald color, but some are more white than others; of a large size; and as a rule large milkers; while some yield milk rich in fat; although this is an exception. From the peculiar domestic kind of management in a Dutch dairy, where the cow stable adjoins the kitchen and where the women do most of the milking and the feeding, and where the herdsmen sleep in the stable in bunks near the cow stalls these cattle are exceedingly docile and are quiet. But it must not be forgotten that no other meadows and pastures in the world excel and very few if any equal those of North Holland where the rich moist soil yields a rank and luxuriant growth of grass. At the same time this moistness of soil and rankness of vegetation has a corresponding effect upon the constitution of the cattle and there is no other race more predisposed to the deadly disease pleuro-pneumonia, than the Dutch. It has been Holland cattle that have brought the disease into England where it has become the constant dread of the dairymen and graziers, and it was these cattle that introduced this same disease into America. As this disease is exceedingly infectious it is one drawback to the great value of these cattle, which must be noticed in doing justice to the American Agricultural interest; for it is our purpose in these articles and others to follow upon our farm cattle to "naught extenuate and naught set down in malice" or ignorance, but to give exact facts in each case, leaving our readers to form their own judgments from an impartial but actual personal knowledge and experience.

Some of these cattle are very large milkers. In the winter's dairy some have given 24 quarts a day; but much larger yields have been reported. As a rule some discount should always be made from such reports, because they give but one side, and so far the records of but a very small proportion of the cattle in this country have been published. There are probably over a thousand imported animals in America (Canada is always included in this term) and perhaps four times as many native here, but the records include about one or two out of a hundred, and one might ask very justly for the records of a whole herd and that the least should be given with the greatest. Some of these records claim an enormous butter product equal to 500 lbs in 250 days and in one case 99 lbs in 30 days. But it is not fair of course to take this as an actual index to the general character of the race. Some few cows are credited with 30 to 40 quarts per day; but although the writer has requested the owners of cows for which such records as these are claimed to personally test the accuracy of them, the invitation has never been accepted. This too is a fact which should in justice be mentioned for the information of the American farmers. Moreover the fact too that prominent farmers who have tried them, have discarded them after a time as unprofitable should be mentioned.

The fact too should be considered that our climate and the character of our soil, generally, differ in a remarkable degree from those of Holland, for we have no such pastures as will support these cattle as they should be fed to maintain them in high condition, and it is a question if the average farmer or dairyman can profitably feed animals of this large size and corresponding appetite for their larger product. It must of course be considered whether 20 or even 30 quarts of milk can procured as cheaply, by the quart, from a very large and hearty feeding cow, as 12 or 16 quarts can be had from a smaller and more easily fed animal; for large product is not so necessary as cheap product, and it may be that two cows may produce 30 quarts of milk at a less price per quart than one cow. These cattle however are now on probation here. Few of them are yet in farmers' hands and few will be while the prices of them are as high as they now are. If they prove themselves fitted for our uses and purposes they will make their way; and it is that farmers may turn their attention to them and watch them and determine this question for themselves, that we have given this impartial account of them.

Ensilage.

Prof. Brown's recent experiments, at the Ontario Experimental Farm, in preserving various green fodders by means of portable or permanent silos, are amongst the more interesting, valuable, and carefully-conducted that have come under our notice. In portable silos three experiments were made with ordinary air-tight barrels, two of which had square boxes fitted inside so as to secure more uniform packing than is possible in a simple barrel. These barrels were packed with green, succulent pasture fodder. A large tun was used for the fourth experiment, and filled with the green grasses and with green oat fodder. After eighty-six days' enclosure the tun was opened and the grass fodder found to be juicy and sound in fibre, though it had a strong, sour taste and smell. The grass in the small barrels was found to be similar. The green oat fodder preserved in the tun was, however, "sound, sweet, and as palatable as that from the permanent silo." The permanent silo, the walls of which had been made smooth, was filled with 28 tons of green oat fodder, packed, and covered with boards and earth. After 89 days, or on December 31st, it was opened, and the ensilage was found to be, to quote Prof. Brown, "one body of sweet, well-coloured oat-stalks, leaves and heads." Generally the material "has a brown but not dark tinge, very slightly spoiled by fermentation or other form of decay, and when taken out actually smells sweet and tastes slightly salty," but acquires a smell and taste on exposure. In addition to the successful issue of these experiments with the silo, Mr. Brown secured by carefully conducted thermometer tests the daily variations and degrees of heat prevailing in various parts of the silo during the fermentation in progress. The average of the whole mass after the first week was 68°, and of the central parts 87°. That this heat continued for three months did not destroy the fodder will no doubt be interesting to those who know how heat and moisture combined very quickly ruin grasses and grains on the open field.

Farm and Dairy Notes.

If you want to rent, sell or buy a cheese factory; if you want a situation as cheese maker or want to engage one, advertise in "The Ingersoll Chronicle and Canadian Dairyman," the most widely circulated paper among the Canadian dairymen.

Canadian authorities have always insisted that peas were the best and cheapest feed for hogs. Our own farmers have occasionally retorted that this preference for peas was due to inability to grow good corn, thus claiming an advantage from a necessity. This year, when much corn is poor this side the lakes, many farmers are falling in with the Canadian idea. There will be a large area sown with peas the coming Spring.—American Paper.

The difference of opinion among farmers as to the value of pumpkins for cows depends largely on the manner of feeding. Those who make the feeding of pumpkins a success are careful to remove the seeds. These are strongly diuretic, and with some cows operate so strongly in stimulating the kidneys that the secretion of milk is actually lessened by their use. There are however some cows that can eat pumpkins, seeds and all, with benefit; but it is generally safer to remove the seeds before feeding.

Insufficiency of drink is one reason why fowls do not lay more eggs in Winter. When water freezes in their houses it requires some care to keep a fresh and clean supply through the day. If fowls take to eating snow it is still worse than doing with too little drink. They always fall off in weight rapidly when forced to eat snow for drink.

On farms where wheat is largely grown rye is bad weed, and if allowed to seed will soon get into the manure and appear from year to year. In one case under our observation where a rye crop was grown, it was fully ten years before the land was entirely freed from the weed in the wheat. Since then this farmer occasionally sows rye for soiling or green manure in the Spring, but he never allows it to seed. Where only Spring grains or hoed crops are grown this objection does not apply.

From a wide range of inquiry we are satisfied that as good butter can be made from ensilage feed as from any ordinary ration, not excepting roots. Those who claim that poor butter alone results from feeding ensilage are generally of the class who have had no experience in its use.

Many breeders of horses who have considerable Spring work to do, prefer to have their mares cast their foal in the Fall. The mothers are none the worse for doing a good summer's work, and the colts being suckled through the first Winter and fed with a little grain can be weaned without stunting their growth when they get fresh grass in the Spring.

One reason why creameries make better butter than farmers' dairies is because of daily churning of the cream. There is some change going on in milk or cream from the first, and in Winter where few cows are keep it is almost impossible to make good butter. With only one cow the cream should be churned at least once a week and if necessary to make more bulk, some slightly soured milk should be mixed with it.

The first Winter of a calf's life is the most trying ordeal. If kept thrifty at this season the animal will be much larger and can be bred younger than if stunted. Warm quarters are essential to success. If possible give some green food and a little grain. Oil meal is excellent to make the coat smooth. If the coat becomes rough and staring the animal will very likely be troubled with lice and be worth much less in Spring than the cost of wintering.

Mr. R. A. Harrison, Chemist and Druggist, Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia, Impure Blood, Pimples on the Face, Biliousness and Constipation—such cases having come under my personal observation."

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Home Economy.

It is a remark often made by unreflecting people that a woman, who devotes a large portion of her time to the performance of domestic duties, more especially those pertaining to the culinary department, sinks all her higher aspirations to the level of household care.

Now this a grave mistake, for we all know that the health and strength of a family depend, in a great measure, upon the ability with which healthful as well as palatable dishes are prepared for the daily round of breakfast, dinner and supper. It takes brains, and active ones too, to keep the household machinery in running order, and there is as much need of artistic skill in the preparation of an elaborate entertainment as in the composition of a book or the painting of a picture.

Every housekeeper desiring to practice economy in her family often feels at a loss to know how to dispose of the seemingly useless accumulation of different articles of diet—such as dry slices of bread, a plate of cold potatoes, and pieces of roasted or boiled meats, too good to throw away, and yet a nuisance to keep. It would be well, perhaps, to give a few thoughts to this perplexing subject.

In the first place, stale bread griddle cakes are excellent for breakfast when made in this manner: Pour cold water over the bread, just enough to cover it. Let it stand until thoroughly soaked, then drain it as dry as possible, and pour enough milk over it to cover it again. Let it stand until morning. If it is too thick, thin it with a cupful of milk, and stir in flour enough to make a batter; then add a little salt. If the milk is sour, to every quart of the batter add a teaspoonful of soda—if sweet, use three teaspoonfuls of Royal Baking Powder. Bake a cake, and it it does not turn over nicely, stir in a little more flour. If the griddle is rubbed over with the half of a turnip, instead of suet, the cakes will turn easily, and you will avoid the disagreeable odor that generally accompanies the baking of griddle cakes.

A very good pudding is also made of pieces of bread by soaking them in water as for the cakes. After it is well drained, thin it with milk, add spice, a cupful of raisins, a small piece of butter, and two eggs. Bake about an hour, and serve with a liquid pudding sauce.

Cold potatoes, too, are excellent cut in thin slices, seasoned with pepper and salt, dusted with flour, and fried to a nice brown colour. They are also very palatable cut into small squares, and put in the frying pan with milk to cover them, adding salt, pepper and butter to suit the taste. When they boil thicken them with a little flour.

Cold ham cut fine is a good addition to an omelet, and small pieces dipped into fritter batter and fried make an enjoyable breakfast dish.

Slices of cold beef, especially if underdone, can be seasoned with salt, a small portion of red pepper and mustard, broiled on a gridiron for a few minutes, laid on a warm dish and slightly buttered. This preparation is remarkably excellent, and is preferred by some to the beef when freshly cooked.

Cold mutton makes a very acceptable stew, chopped fine, seasoned with salt, pepper and butter, a minced onion, and a small portion of shredded sweet herbs. Add enough water to moisten, and stew about fifteen minutes.

Small pieces of cold, roasted veal, or poultry, may be made into a most appetizing hash, by the following recipe:

Cut into very small pieces any cold roasted veal left from dinner. Season with salt, red pepper and mustard. Add to it a cup of cream, and two hard-boiled eggs, the whites and yolks both being chopped fine. After boiling add a wine-glass or more of sherry wine, and if not thick enough, stir in a little wheat flour.

Cold chicken, turkey, or veal, is very palatable when made into dumplings. Put the pieces of cold meat, or poultry, into a stewpan, with water enough to barely cover them. Let them cook slowly for a few minutes; then take out the meat, and chop it fine, placing the saucepan back on the range, where the broth will keep hot. Season the chopped meat with pepper, butter and salt. Moisten with a little milk. Make a biscuit dough, cut it into as many pieces as you want dumplings, and roll each piece out half an inch thick, and as large round as a pint bowl. Put a tablespoonful of the prepared meat in the centre, gather up the edges of the dough, pinch together closely, and put the smooth side up on a buttered dish that will fit into your steamer. Place the dumplings close together, and steam twenty minutes. Be careful not to lift the lid while they are cooking. Put a little cold gravy, if you have it, with the broth in the saucepan, season it with butter and salt, thicken with a little flour, cook a few minutes, and turn into a warm gravy-dish. The dumplings should be steamed on a dish that they may be served in, as they should not be removed to another when taken to the table.

Any one having sufficient courage to try these recipes, with the despised scraps left in the kitchen, will be surprised at the result.

Flower Garden and Lawn.

Hardy Annuals.—To have early flowers sow seeds in window boxes described elsewhere. Candy-tuft, Ten Weeks' Stocks, Pansy, and other hardy kinds may be sown and the plants thinned or transplanted to other boxes. The Pansy, which fails to give fine flowers in hot weather, if sown in this manner may be had in bloom early, and at its best.

Manure for the Lawn.—Reserve enough of the most thoroughly decomposed and fine manure for top-dressing the lawn. In the absence of this, apply ashes, nitrate of soda or some other fertilizer.

Plants from Cuttings may be propogated now for planting out in the garden. Verbenas and other plants which form root readily, may be propagated in window-boxes, described elsewhere for sowing.

As the sun becomes more powerful, bloom will be abundant and plants will start into growth in the greenhouse and window, and need more water. Ventilation can now be given more freely, especially to window plants. Insects will increase more rapidly and will demand attention. Those who give their window plants daily care, are able to stop the first attacks of insects, and save much future trouble. Fumigation with tobacco smoke, is best for the greenhouse, but is not easily practicable with house plants. For these showering with tobacco water is best.

Tobacco Tea.—Pour boiling water over tobacco stems, or other cheap form of "the weed," and when cool dilute it to the color of strong tea, sprinkle the plants with it, or what is better, having the liquid in a pail or tub, dip the plants in it.

The Red Spider, because so small and not always "red," and living mostly on the under side of the leaves, is often an unsuspected cause of much injury to window plants. Moisture is the best remedy; go over the leaves, especially the under side, with a soft sponge, using very weak soap suds.

The Mealy Bug, so called because it is covered with a mealy powder, is often a great pest. It is usually in the forks of the stems, and may be picked off with a sharp pointed stick.

Faded Flowers.—Flowering is very exhausting to a plant, and seed-bearing is still more so; as soon as flowers begin to lose their beauty they should be cut away before the formation of the seeds begins.

Roses.—The stems that have borne flowers should be cut back to a strong bud, which will soon push.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

How Working Men May Help Themselves.

I met with a passage in the Times, which gave me some insight into this, and I never was so startled in my life. It is a quotation from the Lancet, which is, I believe, the leading medical paper. The passage contains the statistics derived from twelve of the leading London hospitals, and there is a list of the amount of beer and spirits taken by numbers of the working classes who have been in these twelve great London hospitals during the last year. There are some fifty instances; I will only give you a few. It says that many of these patients were there because of their previous habits, and here is the quotation showing what certain patients are reported to have been accustomed to previous to admission. One had a daily consumption of ten pints of beer and ten glasses of whiskey, aged 33; one hard drinker, chiefly of rum, aged 30; another indulged in great excesses, often drank two bottles of brandy a day, aged 43; one eight pints of beer a day, aged 42; one or two pints of beer a day, with ten glasses of spirits, aged 36; one ten or twelve pints of beer a day, and four glasses of whiskey, aged 22; one twelve pints of beer and eight glasses of spirits aged 38, and so on. Fifty or sixty items of this kind, ending with, "The largest consumer of beer said he never exceeded 26 pints a day, aged 35; the largest consumer of spirits only took twenty to thirty glasses of gin daily, aged 30."

Now these are not statistics invented by me, or by anybody. The facts are taken and recorded by purely disinterested persons, and the remarkable thing is that in the long list only one total abstainer can be discovered. Another thing is in the absence of high ages. A third is that a large proportion of these diseases are self-induced. A single ounce of fact is worth a ton of argument or reason. And I put these plain facts before you as a proof not only of the vast quantities of drink taken at very young ages by members of the working class, but also that they are taken by members of a class which, as I said, can least afford that enormous drain upon their resources.

And now, perhaps, you will answer me—"Very well, this man spent sixpence a day on something that was good for him—beer." In answer to that I will simply say that whether it is good or not, this is certain—it is not necessary, and our illustrious chairman, to-night, Dr. Richardson, has done more than any living man to bring home to the minds of Englishmen the truth that alcohol is not in any way necessary as food. He would say—and I believe with absolute scientific truth on his side—that it is not a food. That I will not say, because I know it is disputed; but at any rate it is not a necessary food. Baron Liebig came to the conclusion that nine quarts of beer contain exactly as much nourishment as you might put in a little sprin ling of meal, or on the end of a table knife. In other words, if you were to spend £36 in buying so many gallons of beer, you would have bought as much nourishment only as you could get out of a five pound loaf.

That it is not necessary for health, I think, is capable of the most easy proof. I believe there are a great many people who say that after middle age they do find it useful to them. I think that is only because they have not discovered something which, without any danger to themselves, would produce the same result. But that alcohol is not a necessity for health can be proved in one moment by the fact that there are hundreds of thousands—it is said 5,000,000, but I do not know—of total abstainers in England who are notoriously as healthy a body as all England contains. It is proved decisively and irresistibly by the fact that there is, it is safe to say, less mortality among the 20,000 now in prison in England than among any other body, and there is no way of accounting for that so decisively as the fact that from the moment that they enter the prison, no matter how large their previous consumption of beer, they are not allowed a single drop, and the fact of their being deprived of alcohol is one of the causes which tend to their extraordinary longevity.—Canon Farrar.

It is very rare that soil is rich enough to bear successive crops of the same kind of grain without exhausting fertility; but by changing crops different elements of plant food are required. This gives the soil a chance to recuperate. By the time the grain crop comes around in the rotation the soil is ready with another supply of needed food. Rotation may therefore be considered a negative kind of manuring; but there is a limit beyond which its good results do not extend.

LIVER, KIDNEY AND BRIGHTS DISEASE.

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Complaints, and has power to root them out of the system, is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof of this can be found by one trial, or by asking your neighbors, who have been cured by it.

Financial circles—$(1),000,000.

THOUSANDS SAY SO.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes "I never hesitate to recommend your Eclectric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 82t.

Woman is the crown of creation.

Great results are speedily accomplished by the leading alterative, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. Indigestion ceases, biliousness disappears, constipation gives place to regularity of the bowels in consequence of taking it. Ladies suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex experience long wished for relief from it, and impurities in the circulation no longer troubles those who have sought its aid. Give it a trial and you will not regret it.

Two for assent—Bride and groom.

THE BEST PROOF—The Globe.

"I sell more Burdock Blood Bitters than I do of any other preparation in stock," says B. Jakes, druggist, Toronto. If the reader will ask any druggist in the city he will get a similar answer to his query—a proof that it is the most popular medicine for the blood, liver and kidneys known. 80i

Dead broke—A shattered mummy.

THE LOSS of power to digest and assimilate food in anyone who has a weak spot, whose weakness renders perfect nutrition a necessity, requires immediate attention; the lungs impaired by inflammation, the heart by rheumatism, and the liver or kidney by over-stimulation, will soon cry out from starvation when the blood is insufficiently fed and the tissues ill-nourished. Failure of nerve power and a weak stomach are the chief factors in these troubles, and the elements of nerve nutrition and essential agents of the gastric juice in Wheeler's Phosphates and Calisaya the best remedy.

MYSTERIOUS!

The Terrible Undertow that is Sweeping Away so Many—What Well-known Canadians Have to Say.

It is an unquestionable fact that thousands of people are to day enduring the most intense torture or are afflicted by the most unaccountable symptoms for which they can assign no reason whatever. They have frequent headaches, are strangely languid; have a ravenous appetite one day and none whatever the next, and feel dull pains in various parts of the body, but they imagine it is only a cold or some passing minor disorder. Indeed, few people realize the presence of grave and serious dangers until they are upon them. The following experiences of well-known people in the Province are timely and valuable.

Rev. William J. Henderson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Prescott, Ontario, says: "For a number of years and until recently, I had been gradually, but steadily, declining in health. I was subject to severe pains in various parts of my body, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a distressing hacking cough. I consulted physicians, one of whom informed me that I had been 'carrying too many pounds of steam.' Another stated that I was on the eve of a general constitutional 'break-up;' another pronounced me as far gone in liver complaint, and feeling that the last had hit it, I commenced a course of his one treatment, without, however, any benefit. Feeling that I was going down hill very fast, I grew somewhat despondent, and finally resigned myself to an early death. At this juncture I resolved to try Warner's Safe Cure, and I may say that I felt almost immediate relief, and now I am nearly as well as I ever was in my whole life. My cough has disappeared entirely and I seldom feel any of my old symptoms. I have always been somewhat disposed to prejudice against proprietary medicines, but I feel it to be an act of justice to make this statement for the good of others."

John Evans, residing at 139 King Street, London, says: "For two years I have been troubled with gravel in my kidneys and have suffered untold agony. The passage of the gravel from the kidneys into the bladder threw me into paroxysms of pain and completely broke me down. Upon the recommendation of a friend I began the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which seemed to dissolve the gravel and it passed from me in the form of dust. I recommend Warner's Safe Cure to everybody who is suffering at all as I have suffered."

Mrs. M. Lemon, residing at 5½ Victoria avenue, Hamilton, says: "For ten or fifteen years I have suffered from female complaints and liver disease. I have consulted all the prominent doctors in Hamilton, but none were able to cure me. Six months out of every year I was laid up in bed from nervous prostration and debility, and frequently while working about the house I would faint and remain unconscious for more than half an hour. Hearing of Warner's Safe Cure, I began its use and am now in good health. All previous troubles have left me. It has worked wonders in my case and I can recommend it to all the ladies in the country."

Mr. Charles M. Syme, foreman in W. H. Smith's saw factory, St. Catharines, said: Five years ago I began to be afflicted with almost distressing troubles which increased in violence until I was compelled to remain in bed. My symptoms were terrible and I kept getting worse and worse all the while. The doctors could not agree as to the nature of my disease, and I finally lost all hopes of ever getting well. Learning of some cases similar to my own that had been helped by Warner's Safe Cure, I began its use and commenced to improve from the first day, and I am happy to say that I am now as sound as a dollar and can do a day's work without its hurting me."

Doctor Samuel T. Rodley, of Chatham, says: "I have seen Warner's Safe Cure used very extensively and have heard of the most gratifying results. I am convinced that it is an unequaled medicine for disorders of the kidneys and urinary organs, and I can freely recommend it."

Mr. A. J. McBlan, clerk of Crawford House, Windsor, says: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney difficulty and did not know what it was to be free from excruciating pains, which at times were so bad that I could neither stand nor remove my clothes. At that time I was conductor on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, and no doubt the constant jolting aggravated the disease. Noticing an advertisement of Warner's Safe Cure, I procured the medicine and from the first it acted like magic, and it has completely and permanently cured me. I cannot too highly recommend it, as I know what it has done for me."

The above statements are from men of unquestionable veracity, and such as merit the greatest consideration. No one who is suffering from any form of physical disorder can afford to neglect even the slightest symptoms, which can be so readily controlled if taken in time, and which are so dangerous if permitted to continue.

The seat of learning—The bench.

Use the Star Dyes if you want brilliant and fast colors.

High time—Twenty-four o'clock.

THERE is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms.

A fashionable article—Woman.

HOLLOWAY'S Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts.

The easiest thing to kill—Time.

AYER'S Pills cure constipation, improve the appetite, promote digestion, restore healthy action, and regulate every function. They are pleasant to take, gentle in their operation, yet thorough, searching, and powerful in subduing disease.

A little lam—A light whipping.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla, being highly concentrated, requires a smaller dose, and is more effective, dose for dose, than any other blood medicine. It is the cheapest, because the best. Quality and not quantity should be considered.

The first wager—The alphabet.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—The infirmities of our nature almost necessitate disease. Impurity of the blood, functional disturbances and loose living constantly give rise to despondency, debility, or distempers. In the above named remedies, the community can and do have, at a little cost, the safe and certain means of preventing or checking and curing both outward ailments and inward maladies. Ample plainly printed and very intelligible directions accompany every package of both Ointment and Pills, which only require attentive study to enable every invalid to be his or her own medical adviser. The earlier these powerful remedies are employed after discovery of the disease, the more rapid will be their action in expelling from the system all noxious matter and restoring health.

Women teach us repose, civility and dignity.

MR. Henry Harding, of Toronto, writes: My little daughter, 7 years old, has been a terrible sufferer this winter from rheumatism, being for weeks confined to her bed, with limbs drawn up, which could not be straightened, and suffering great pain in every joint of limbs, arms and shoulders. The best of physicians could not help her, and we were advised to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which we did, and the benefit was at once apparent; after using 2 bottles the pain left, her limbs assumed their natural shape, and in two weeks she was as well as ever. It has not returned.

Tempora mutantur—We have adopted the new time.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea' has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

Brought down the house—The building mover.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of Shiloh's Cure Sold. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of Consumption have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. Secord. 70y

Woman is the Masterpiece.

MR. W. Maguire, merchant, at Franklin, writes: "I was afflicted with pain in my shoulder for eight years—almost helpless at times—have tried many remedies, but with no relief, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. After a few applications the pain left me entirely, and I have had no pain since. Do not take Electric or Electron Oils, but see that you get Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Makes tracks—The railroad builder.

"Lost the cough I long did know,
Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.

Thousands affidavits prove,
That it doth man's ills remove,
Coughs and colds, and hooping cough
By its power soon are off." 83.

A STRANGE PEOPLE.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

Why is a leaky tub like a poor rule—Because it doesn't hold good.

If you are bilious or have indigestion, sick headache or dizziness, try Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, used instead of pills; they cure constipation. Price 25c. per bottle. For sale by all druggists. 83.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dispepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

Working in wood—The beer in the keg.

WHAT A DRUGGIST SAYS.

Dear Sirs,—The Crowfoot Bitters are selling rapidly here and giving remarkable satisfaction, as evidenced by the demand which is daily increasing. PARKER & Co.,
84i Owen Sound, Ont.

A party that bolts—The turkey.

ITCHING PILES.—SYMPTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1 25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

Woman is born for love, and it is impossible to turn her from it.

HIGHLY AGREEABLE

One very valuable feature of Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup is that it is highly agreeable to take, and all varieties of worms, tape worm included, can be safely expelled by it, without recourse to harsh and sickening drugs. 80i

But one thing on earth is better than the wife, that is the mother.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

Women are a new race, recreated since the world received Christianity.

WIDE AWAKE DRUGGISTS.

Mr. John Gayfer is always alive to his business and spare no pains to secure the best of every article in his line. He has secured the agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The only certain cure known for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Asthma, Hay Fever, Bronchitis, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs. Sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free. Regular size $1.00. 82t.

All the reasonings of men are not worth one sentiment of woman.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT

Frank Spink, Wilton Avenue, Toronto, some time ago received a bad injury by an accident on the G. T. R. The severe contusions were quickly healed by the use of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. 80i

The sweetest thing in this life is the unclouded welcome of a wife.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU EAT

The best medical authorities declare that worms in the human system are often induced by eating too freely of uncooked fruit and too much meat, cheese, etc. Whatever may be the cause, Freeman's Worm Powders are speedy and safe to cure; they destroy the worms and contain their own cathartic to expel them. 80i

All that I am my mother made me.

No man can either live piously or die righteous without having a wife.

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's, McCaughey's Block. 41.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Dishes, Mill Grinders, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms, Mops, Floor, Stove Horse, and Scrubbing Brushes, Damps and Chimneys, Clocks. Eavetroughing and repairing done promptly, Heating Drums and Stove Pipes, Dishes of all kinds, Smoothing Irons Mrs. Pott's Cold Handle Smoothing Irons, Scales, large and small, Spades, Forks, Shovels and Hoes, Mixed Paints, all ready for the brush; any tint or colour Boiled and Raw Oils, Root Cutters, Children's Carriages, Baby Jumpers, Corn Planters, Farmer's Bells, Carpet Sweepers, Dry and Liquid Measures, Bird Cages, Lanterns; Stove Polish, Lead and Iron Piping, Gas Fittings, Hog Rings and Hog Holders, everything in the House Furnishing Line, Axle Greese, Cistern Pumps, Wheelborrows, Sinks, and everything that is wanted to keep house with.

Cash paid for old Rubber Shoes, Bones of all kinds, Woollen and Cotton Rags, Old Brass, Copper and Lead, old Zinc, old Wrought and Cast Iron, all kinds of Furs, Beef Hides, Sheep Skins, Calf Skins, Horse Hair, Tallow and Beeswax. 47. H. CAMPBELL.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4:56 a. m.	6:50 a. m.
11:57 a. m.	12:15 a. m.
12:32 a. m.	3:05 p. m.
5:05 p. m.	4:48 p. m.
7:47 p. m.	7:00 p. m.
2:11 a. m.	12:20 p. m.

CATARRH.

CATARRH.—A New Treatment whereby this hitherto incurable disease is permanently cured in from one to three applications, no matter whether standing for one year or forty years. Descri tive pamphlet sent free on receipt of stamp. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada. 1560vy

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Props.

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

LITTLE DOT

—IT IS THE—

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship. Ask for the

"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.

Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

$66 a week at home. $5 outfit free. Pay absolutely sure. No risk. Capital not required. Reader, if you want business at which persons of either sex, young or old, can make

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed Advertisements: Servants wanted—Artizans Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	⅛ In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week...	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Courts of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates. Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street. Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

F. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thamesstreet, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE :—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R. C. S. AND L.M., ENGLAND L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Occulist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anasthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers.

Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE,

Thames Street.

Bread delivered in town daily.

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with arisers.

Allows Interest on Deposits,

Which canbe withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK

OF CANADA

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696

RESERVE - - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE,—TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Deals in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department —Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGISBERG, Prop.

LENDING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582y

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR.,

GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559-y

THE CREDIT VALLEY!

AND

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and Northwestern America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:40 a. m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and Northwestern points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line, and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Pauls, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:40 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12.26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS.

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:23 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on the Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your tickets from

F. SYMONS, Station Agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines, Thames St., Ingersoll.

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

SOMETHING NEW

—IN—

STOVES

MILLS AND BUCHANAN

DEALERS IN

COAL and WOOD

STOVES.

LARGE STOCK OF ALL THE LATEST IMPROVED KINDS.

FURNACES, FURNACES;

BEST IN THE MARKET.

MILLS & BUCHANAN

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582c

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27. 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,

Warner's Safe Cure,

Shiloh's Consumption Cure,

Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

A Fact Established,

—THAT—

Wilkinson's

IS THE

PLACE TO BUY

YOUR

Groceries, Crockery,

AND GLASSWARE.

Also a large assortment of Fancy Goods suitable for Holiday Gifts.

Prices to suit the Times.

Note the place, one door West of Daly House.

KING STREET WEST.

Ingersoll, Dec, 20th, 1883.

ATKINSON'S

Parisian Tooth Paste

Agreeable and Safe for Cleaning the Teeth

Sold in every Town and City of Canada.

PRICE 25 CENTS. 1575-y

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 22. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1586.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

CHAPTER III.

Twining's menace was not carried out. There was no actual reconciliation between husband and wife, and matters slowly rearranged themselves. The domestic machinery, being again set moving, went at first in a lame, spasmodic way, as though jarred and strained through all its wheel-work.

But by degrees the old order of things returned. And yet a marked change, in one respect at least, was always afterward evident. Mrs. Twining had received a clear admonition, and she was discreet enough permanently to regard it. She still dealt in her former slurs and innuendoes; the leopard could not change its spots; no such radical reformation was naturally to be expected.

But Twining had put forth his protest; he had shown very plainly that his endurance had its limits, and through all the years that followed, his wife never lost sight of this vivid little fact. She had been seriously frightened, and the fright left its vibration of warning as long as she and her husband dwelt under the same roof. Her sting had by no means been extracted, but its point was blunter and its poison less irritant. She never again struck Claire. She was sometimes very imperious to her daughter, and very acrimonious as well. But in her conduct there was now a sombre acknowledgment of curtailed authority—an under-current of concession, occasionally rather faint, it is true, yet always operative.

During the next year the family deserted One-Hundred-and-Twelfth Street for a new place of abode. Twining received a few extra hundreds as earnest of sundry thousands promised him by a gilt-tongued rogue who was to appal the medical world with a wondrous compound that must soon rob half the diseases known to pathology of their last terrors. The elixir was to be "placed handsomely on the market," and toward this elegant enterprise poor Twining gave serious aid. For the lump of savings that went from him, however, he was paid only a tithe of his rash investment. One day he learned that the humane chemist had fled from the scene of his proposed benignities, and a little later came the drear discovery that his miraculous potion was merely an unskilful blending of two or three common specifics with as many popular nervines.

Meanwhile the halcyon promise of bettered fortunes had induced Twining to secure easier quarters. For several months he set his household gods within apartments on the second floor of a shapely brown-stone residence in a central side-street. This was really a decisive move toward greater social importance. The very tone of his upholstery bespoke a distinct rise in life. There was not a hair-cloth sofa in his pretty suite of chambers. The furniture was tufted and modish; one or two glowing grates replaced the dark awkwardness of stoves; draughts were an abolished evil; to sup on burnt beefsteak had grown a shunned memory, since the family now dined at six o'clock each evening in a lower room where they had a small table all to themselves, and ate a repast served in courses with a distinct air of fashion, if not always cooked after the loftier methods.

Here they met other groups at other small tables, and bowed to them with the bland nod of co-sharers in worldly comfort. It was all a most note-worthy change for the Twinings, and its effect upon Mrs. Twining was no less obvious than acute. She seemed to clutch the new favors of fate with a mingled greed and distrust. She was like one who crushes thirstily between his lips a luscious fruit, won by theft, and thought to be watched with the intent of quick seizure.

She had already quite lost faith in anything like the permanence of her husband's good fortune.

"I'd better try and make hay while the sun shines," she would exclaim, with a burst of laughter that had, as usual, no touch of mirth in it. "Lord knows when it 'll end. I'm sure I hope never. Don't think I'm croaking. Gracious me, no! But even the Five Points won't seem so bad, after this. They say every dog has his day, don't they, Francis? So, all right; if mine's a short day, I'll be up and doing while it lasts."

She was undoubtedly up and doing. She carried her large frame with a more assertive majesty; she aired one or two fresh gowns with a loud ostentation; she had a little quarrel with a fellow-lodger of her own sex about the prevailing fashion in bonnets, and said so many personal things during the contest that her adversary, who was a person with nerves, retired in tearful disarray. On more than one Sunday she induced her husband to walk with her along Fifth Avenue and "see the churches come out." At such times she would lean upon his arm, grandly indifferent to the fact that her stature overtopped his own, and stare with her severe black eyes at all the passing phases of costume. It is probable that the pair made a very grotesque picture on these occasions, since all that implied refinement in the man's face and demeanor must have acquired a fatal stamp of insignificance beside the woman's pretension of carriage and raw spruceness of apparel. But Mrs. Twining was making her hay, as she has told us, while the sun shone, and it is hardly strange that she should not be critical as to the exact quality of her crop. A good deal of rough experience in the woes of dearth and drouth had, naturally, not made her a fastidious harvester.

Claire, meanwhile, had begun to feel as if she dwelt on quite a new sort of planet. Her environment had lost every trace of its former dulness. Its neutral shades had freshened into brilliant and exciting tints. Little Mrs. Carmichael, with her hoard of memories stowed away like old brocades in a scented chest, had herself faded off into a memory as dim as these. Claire had of late become one of the pupils in a large, well-reputed school, where she met girls of all ages and characters, but seemingly of only a single social rank. The academy was superintended by a magnificent lady in chronic black corded-silk, whose rich rustle was heard for a half minute before she entered each of her various class-rooms and held bits of whispered converse with the instructresses under her serene sway. Her name was Mrs. Arcularius, and its fine rhythmical polysyllable seemed to symbolize the dignity of its owner's slow walk, the majesty of her arched nose and gold eye-glasses, and the white breadth of her forehead, from which the gray tresses were rolled backward in high solidness, with quite a regal effect of hair-dressing.

This lady was the direct contratype of Mrs Carmichael. It was widely recorded of her that she had once been a gentlewoman of independent wealth, had chanced upon adverse times, and had for this reason become the proprietress of a school. But she had made her grand friends pay the penalty of her misfortunes; she had acquired the skill of using them as an advertisement of her venture at self-support. She had not gone up to One-Hundred-and-Twelfth Street and mourned their loss; she had stayed in Twenty-Third Street, and suffered their children, little and big, to come unto her. She had at first graciously allowed herself to be pitied for her reverses, but she had always possessed the art of handing back their patronage to those who proffered it in the wholly altered form of a gracious condescension. This is a very clever thing to do; it is a thing which they alone know how to do who know how to fall from high places with a self-saving rebound; and Mrs. Arcularius, who was a decidedly ignorant woman, was also a marvellously clever one. She knew rather less, in a strictly educational sense, than poor, unsuccessful Mrs. Carmichael. She had been a friend of Mrs. Carmichael's in the latter's gladsome days, but she was now not even aware that her old associate was teaching school anywhere.

Everybody was aware, on the other hand, that Mrs. Arcularius was teaching school, and just where she was teaching it. Poverty had crushed one; it had stimulated the other. Mrs. Arcularius was now exceedingly particular as to regarded her visiting book. She was a conspicuous figure at the most select receptions. Whether the fact that she presided over a fashionable school had made her lose caste or no, she chose secretly to believe that it had, and for this reason let her voluminous black silk robes rustle only in the most irreproachable assemblages.

She greatly desired that her pupils should all bear the sacred sign of aristocratic parentage. She did not object to the offspring of struggling plutocrats; for she was wise in her generation, and had seen more than one costly-laden camel squeeze itself through a needle's eye straight into the kingdom of the blessed. But she had strong objections to having her school lose tone. Above all things, this was her dread and abhorrence.

And therefore she had been covertly distressed by the application of Twining for his daughter's admission. She had placed him before he had spoken three words to her. She always placed with equal speed everybody whom she met for the first time. He was a decayed foreigner, and she abominated decayed foreigners. He was a person who wanted to make his common little daughter profit by the prestige of her establishment, and she had a like distaste for all persons of this class. She looked at Claire's attire, and inwardly shivered. The girl had on a frock cut and trimmed in a way that struck her observer as positively satanic. The lovely natural wave of her hair had been tortured by her mother into long ringlets, made sleek and firm under the stiffening spell of sugar and water, and pendant about her shoulders with a graceless vertical primness.

But the head and front of the poor child's offending was, in the sight of her new critic, a hat which Mrs. Twining esteemed a triumph of taste, which she had bought as a great bargain the day before, and which was half smothered from crown to brim, in small, white roses, each bearing a little movable glass bead, that was meant to imitate a dew-drop.

Mrs. Arcularius decided, however, to receive Claire as one of her pupils. There had been a falling-off, of late, in their list. A good many sweet girl-graduates had gone off at her last commencement day. Besides, it was absurd to suppose that any flock could be kept from an incidental black sheep or so. More than this, there was a fascinating intelligence about Claire's face, with its two dark-blue stars of eyes, and a musical sorcery in the child's timid tones when she spoke, that no diablerie of millinery could dispel.

It soon proved that Claire's fellow-scholars were far from sharing this latter opinion. She was received among them with haughty coolness, varied by incidental giggles. She suffered three days of silent torture, and at their end told her father, in a passion of tears, that he must take her away from Mrs. Arcularius's school. The girls there all despised her and laughed at her; hardly one of them had yet even spoken to her; they seemed to think her beneath them; it was horrible; she could not stand it; it was just the same as if she had some disease, and they were all afraid of catching it of her.

"There is one girl," sobbed Claire, with her arms round her father's neck, and her head on his dear, kindly breast, "that I know I shall slap or throw something at if I stay. She has red hair and very white skin, with little freckles over it, and she is quite fat. She wears a different dress every day, and it's always something handsome, but queer to look at.....I heard her tell another girl that all her clothes came from Paris. She brings two bananas for lunch, and long cakes spread over with chocolate, that spirt out something soft and yellow, like custard, when she bites into them, and soil her fingers. .....Well, father, that girl sits near me, and she is always making fun of me behind my back, and whispering things about me to the others that make them burst out laughing, and watch me from the corners of their eyes.....Of course this is only at recess, but at all times, father, I can feel how they are thinking that I have no right, no business among them.....And perhaps I haven't. Oh, father, I want to be a lady as much as you want me to be one, but.....isn't there some other way of learning how? If you'll only take me from that dreadful place I'll.....I'll go anywhere else you please!"

Indignant, yet pierced with sympathy for his darling, Twining promised her that she should go back no more to Mrs. Arcularius's.

Claire kissed him, and then put her wet cheek against his. But an instant later she had lifted her head. She had thought of her mother, who was paying one of their fellow-boarders a visit that evening, and at this very moment was stating to her hostess, with a sort of saturnine braggadocio, that Claire's new school "ought to be a regular first-class one, and no mistake, for it was going to cost a regular first-class kind of price."

"But mother?" said Claire, in anxious query, "what will she say, father?"

"Never mind what your mother will say, my dear," answered Twining in his gentle undertone. And Claire remembered a certain night in One-Hundred-and-Twelfth Street—a night which she had never really forgotten, as we know, and whose incident was fated sharply to revisit her through many an eventful year yet unlived.

But Claire's tears were scarcely dried before she regretted the promise won from her father, and asked him to revoke it. Her young face looked pale and resolute as she did so. Her brief burst of weakness had passed. The ambition to seize and hold any near means of advancement was already no weak impulse in her youthful being. As it afterward struck the great key-note of her life, and became the source of every discord or harmony which that life was to contain, so now its force had begun to stir secret centres, and to prelude the steady influence which must soon impel and sway her.

"Let me try a little while longer, father," she said, standing near him, and holding his hand. Her head was slightly thrown backward; her mouth was grave and firm. She was so slender and fragile that this solemn mood might have made one think, as he regarded her, of a lily that had found some art to cast aside its droop, while all its lightsome traits of stem or petal still remained.

"Yes, I mean it, father," she continued, with a very deep seriousness. "I have begun to climb the hill, and I shan't get tired so soon and sit down to rest. You told me I must not, and I won't. I do not want to sit down at all until I reach the top.....But you can help me if you will; you can make it easier for me." She pressed his hand. "Will you make it easier, father?" she said.

"Yes!" he answered. He spoke the word without knowing what she meant. He could have spoken no other at this moment, with her eyes fixed on him like that, and her clinging hand tense about his own.

He loved her so well that he would have faced any peril to save her from any harm. She was his chosen, his pride, his hope, his happiness. He thought her the most beautiful little girl in all the world. He had forgotten to tell himself that her mother made her look like a guy in seeking to make her look more pretty. To him she was always his innocent, blameless idol—his Claire, whom he had named after his own dead mother, known only in the idealizing years of early childhood. He never looked into her face without feeling his heart beat a trifle quicker. He had been in love with her from the time when he first held her, a new-born baby, and he was in love with her still. It was a love which had the best glow and thrill of those dramatic passions that make our tales, our tragedies and our epics, only that by the absence of the one fevered sentiment knit and kinned with these, it so gained in purity and unselfishness as to strip from all hint of over-praise the holier epithet divine.

Naturally enough came Twining's afterthought.

"What is it that I can do for you, Claire?" he asked. "How can I make it easier?"

"In this way, father. Listen. I want to dress differently at school. I want to wear another frock—I know which one—I'm afraid you wouldn't recollect which one it is if I told you. But it is not the pink merino which I have on now. Pink merino is not nice. And my new hat with the white roses is not nice either. I didn't think of this till I noticed how the other girls dressed at Mrs. Arcularius's. Then I remembered that mine was something very like the style in which Mrs. Halloran used to dress her little girl, Bridget, every Sunday. You do recollect Mrs. Halloran, don't you father? Her husband used to work on one of the Harlem boats, and they lived down near the river in that small red house, and there was a bee-hive in the garden, and a horrid bull-dog that used to jump out of his kennel if he heard the least noise, and bark so, and try to break his chain. But little Bridget used to have pink kid shoes, though, to match her dress, and very proud they made her. And her hair was curled in that stiff way, just as mother curls mine. Now, father, I want you to brush all the curl out of my hair except what it has of its own free choice, and to let me tie it in a bunch behind with a dark ribbon, and to let me wear my brown bonnet, which is rather shabby, perhaps, though I don't mind that. And if mother cares to buy me anything new, I want you to go with us—say some Saturday evening when the stores keep open—and to let me use my own taste in choosing quiet and pretty things. But that will be afterward. I'd like you to think, just now, only about to-morrow, you know. I'd like"— But there Twining stopped her with a kiss. He was smiling, but his eyes were moist.

"You shan't dress like little Bridget Halloran any longer, Claire, darling," he said. "I'll see to it as soon as your mother returns."

He kept his word. When Mrs. Twining reappeared he sent Claire out of the room. She knew a storm was coming; she was glad to be away while it broke and raged. She went as far away as possible, into her own bedroom, two chambers off, closing the intermediate doors. Once, while waiting here, she heard the smothered sound of a high, wrathful voice. It was her mother's, no doubt. But she knew that however hot the conflict, her father had made up his mind to be victor.

And he was. The next day Claire went to Mrs. Arcularius's without her white roses or her pink merino.

"You look for all the world like a charity-girl," her mother said to her, in gruff leave-taking. "Still, I don't s'pose it matters any. You might as well practice for a short spell beforehand."

Claire's altered raiment produced an immense sensation among her classmates. Even several of the teachers showed signs of surprise. The new plainness of her attire brought out her unquestioned beauty, as gaudier and illblended vestments had before marred and obscured it. The back-drawn effect of her chestnut tresses, which were still streaked here and there with sunny threads, could not be doubted as charming even by the most prejudiced cavalier. Her brow and temples were shown in their full purity of moulding, and the eyes beneath them gained poetic tenderness from this lovely exposure. She was not yet a girl clothed at all after the dainty manner of the girls about her, but she was at least no longer spoiled and hampered by unbecoming and vulgar garments. Everybody felt this promptly, and Claire herself soon recognized, by an intuition which always stood vassal to her singularly quick preceptions, that everybody had felt it.

This was to be a memorable day with her. It may seem trivial to employ so august a term when dealing with one yet on the threshold of our truly vital episodes, but, after all, there is a reality about the chagrins and victories of childhood which is none the less potent while both exist because both must shortly drop into shadow before harsher pangs and warmer transports.

Claire had resolved to be a kind of miniature heroine if occasion should ask her to play that part; and she had a conviction, based on very fair grounds of reasoning, that some such demand might be made of her before the school-exercises for that day should reach their end.

Nor was she wrong. The recitations began, and were continued under various teachers until the twelve o'clock recess. Claire had suffered hitherto from the embarrassments of her surroundings, as regarded any frank assertion of what she knew and just how she knew it. But to-day she had conquered embarrassment; she was on her mettle, as the phrase goes; it was the main aim of her meditated plan to let herself be browbeaten in no particular, and the excitement born of this resolve had put her best faculties into nimble readiness.

Her understanding was of the quality beloved by instructors; it had a prehensile trait; it seized things and clung to them. The alarm of Mrs. Carmichael lest her pupil should unmask her elegant deficiencies had been no unfounded one. This lady's tuition of Claire had been but a series of suggestions, each of which the girl had rapidly tracked to its lair of remoter truth. Mrs. Carmichael had pointed her the path—quite often, it must be owned, with a somewhat faltering finger—and she had glided whither it led at a pace no less swift than secure. This was especially true of the French language, for which her aptitude was phenomenal, and which, under new conditions of instruction, she soon almost mastered.

As a matter of mere fact, she had been placed, at present, among her inferiors in knowledge. She was much more advanced than the class of superb young misses who had wounded her with their callow disdain. And to-day she made this tellingly evident. Her answers came placid, self-assured, unhesitating. She sat, all through the morning, with hands folded together in her lap, and with looks that paid no seeming heed to any of her associates. Some of them were extremely stupid. They gave stammering responses, or rattled off the wrong thing with fatal glibness, or preserved that stolid silence which is the most naked candor of ignorance.

The freckled girl, who ate bananas, cut an especially dull figure. Through some novel freak of parental indulgence she had been permitted to wear, this morning, a ring of clustered sapphires and diamonds, very beautiful and precious; and this she turned and returned, while puckering her forehead, whenever a question was put to her, as though the fair bauble might prove talismanic and show her some royal road out of learning's tangled mazes. No one appeared to think her replies particularly illuminating or famous.

Ada Gerrard suddenly burst into tears. They were very irate tears; there was not the least tincture of remorse or shame in them. She flung herself back into her chair, and covered her face for several minutes while she wept.

Claire watched her, tranquilly, for a little while. Then she sat down again and reopened her book. An intense silence reigned, broken by the sobs of Ada Gerrard. Claire leaned her head on her hand, feigning abrupt absorption in the page that she regarded, and feigning it very well. But her mind was in a secret whirl, now. She was mutely, but impulsively asking herself: "Will they think I was right? Will they take my part? Will they treat me any more kindly, or just as before?"

These silent, pathetic queries were fated to receive a speedy answer. Before the school hours of that same day had ended, the ostracism which had so wrung poor Claire's spirit was in a measure ended likewise. Less than a week had elapsed before she was on friendly terms with a number of her classmates. A little adverse clique soon shaped itself against her. Ada Gerrard, fiercely unforgiving, headed this hostile faction; its remaining members were a few staunch personal adherents who had never been able to resist the dazzling fascination of Miss Gerrard's toilets and lunches. But this opposing element was not actively inimical. Claire's party had the strength of multitude and the courage of its opinions. Still, its members were by no means ardent devotees; they sometimes hurt her with the sly stab of patronage, and they often gave her furtively to understand that her claims upon their favor were of a sort which they practically recognized without theoretically approving.

It would be hard to define just how they conveyed this impression. And yet Claire frequently felt its weight, like that of some vague tyranny which offers no tangible excuse for revolt. She could neither realize nor estimate the force with which she had been thrown into contact. Her years were yet too few, her experience was yet too limited; nor was the force manifest in active strength as Mrs. Arcularius's school, a narrow enough theatre for its exercise, and one where its full-grown momentum must of necessity dwindle into something like mere juvenile parody. Claire was yet to learn with how much rank haste its evil growth had sprung up in the big metropolis outside, thwarting and clogging any pure development of what has been called the republican idea, and making us sometimes bitterly wonder if the great dead philosophers were not tricked, after all, by wills-o'-the-wisp no less lovely than elusive.

But there were a few girls who met Claire on a perfectly equal footing, and left from their intercourse, at all times, the least frosty sparkle of condescension. Some of these may or may not consciously have undertaken their roles. But with one, past doubt, and for excellent reasons, the kindly impulse was in every way spontaneous.

The name of this pupil was Sophia Bergemann. She professed a deep fondness for Claire, and it was evidently sincere. She belonged among Mrs. Arcularius's tolerated plutocrats. Her father was a German brewer who had made a very large fortune out of lager-beer, and who dwelt in Hoboken, where he had built an immense house on spacious grounds. It was said that the lawns were adorned with statues in bronze and marble, and that the main drawing-room of the mansion was frescoed with a design representing Germany offering a tankard of foaming beer to Columbia, in colossal sociability. But the latter statement may have been only the caustic invention of Sophia's foes. She was stoutly disapproved by the conservative element, and this fact had helped to make her so warm a supporter of Claire. Being at daggers drawn with Ada Gerrard, she naturally hailed Claire's public rebuke with rapture, and immediately became her stanch ally.

"I was afraid you'd stay meek and mild right straight along, just as you began," she afterward confessed. "Somehow you looked as if you hadn't got any spunk. And I do like spunk. I believe in it." This article of faith Sophia had several times frankly verified. She had once pulled the ear of her fellow-pupil, and again narrowly escaped expulsion by slapping another's face. She had a buxom figure, a broad-blown countenance, nearly as round as a moon at the full, solid cheeks of constant vivid coloring, and hair so yellow that its keen tint blent with her brilliant complexion in producing the effect of an expensive wax doll enlarged and animated. She was drearily stupid at all her lessons, rivaling Ada Gerrard as the regnant ignoramus of the academy. Her gestures were painfully awkward; her walk was a cumbrous prance; she seemed incapable of seating herself without an elastic bounce. She grew very fond of Claire, as weeks went on, and gave her repeated invitations to pass a portion of the summer holidays at the grand Hoboken abode.

To be continued.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla wonderfully improves the complexion, and brings to old and young the bloom of health. As a purifier of the blood it has no equal.

The Deadly Oil.

Kerosene becomes more deadly every year as the hours of evening lamplight lengthen, and the frequent lighting of fires become a daily duty. The fact that these accidents are utterly unnecessary renders them the more lamentable. In the hope of preventing some of these accidents, we state a few facts which everybody ought to know.

It is not the kerosene that explodes, but an invincible gas that rises from it.

If the oil is poured into a lamp that needs filling, this gas rises out of the lamp or can, or both, and explodes, often with deadly force, if there be any fire within reach.

Pouring oil from a can upon a burning fire or into a lighted lamp ought to be followed by a terrible explosion. Sometimes it happens that no explosion occurs, but the risk is frightful.

The only safe rule is never to pour oil on a burning fire or into a lighted lamp.

Now, you may give Bridget positive orders with regard to the fire, but when no one is at hand in the morning hours, the temptation is strong to assist the smouldering blaze by the aid of a little kerosene. She has done it without injury formerly, why not do it again? So the nose of the can is tilted over the range or grate, there is a flash, a scream, and poor Bridget will never have a chance to disobey orders. Perhaps it would be better, if Bridget must be allowed access to the can at all—the suggestion is timidly made—to show her how she may aid the fire with comparative safety. All she has to do is to pour the oil from the cup upon the fire. It is not likely that she will suffer much injury from the comparatively mild explosion that may follow.

Mines of Precious Stones

Gems of all kinds possess a curious interest to human beings. From the earliest times precious stones have had a strange attraction for the wealthy and powerful of the earth. So far no diamond fields have been discovered in the United States, but precious stones are found in several localities. In New Mexico there is a famous turquoise mine which must have been worked literally a thousand years ago, for it yielded up its treasures to the Aztecs and to other prehistoric races which dominated in Mexico and adjoining countries. It is believed this mine can still be used for bringing out its peculiar treasures, but in the eager hunt for gold and silver mines, the mining of gems is overlooked. In Alexander County, North Carolina, they are discovering emeralds, and in such quantities that the mining of them is likely to become a profitable industry. A Mr. Hidden has sunk a shaft some thirty-six feet on the Stevenson plantation, and in it discovered numerous pockets of emeralds. These are not of much commercial value, as the colors are defective, and flaws in the gems are numerous, but further mining may develop a great wealth of these gems.

An enthusiast named Bryne, in Mott Haven, New York, is even now investigating the subject of diamond-making. He thinks he is on the point of finding out the secret of nature in the production of diamonds. But this is probably as wild a dream as that of the alchemists of the middle ages who supposed they could transmute the baser metals into gold.

Lightning.

On a warm summer evening one often sees the clouds of the horizon lit up with brilliant glows of lightning, unaccompanied by any sound of thunder. To this appearance the name of "heat lightning" has been given, and the warm weather is often assigned as the cause. In point of fact, the heat lightning is only that of a thunder shower so far off that, while the observer can see the flash no sound of the thunder reaches him, and the intervening clouds veil and reflect the flash until it becomes a glow, instead of the sharp streak usually seen. Where the flash, starting from one point, branches out and divides into several parts, it has received the name of "forked lightning." This is usually seen when the discharge is near the observer. Single flashes, bearing a zigzag or crinkled aspect, are denominated "chain lightning," probably from their resemblance to a chain thrown loosely on the ground. Again, when several discharges occur from about the same place at the same time, and are screened by rain or clouds so as to light up the heavens with a broad, bright glow, the title of "sheet lightning" is applied. These four comprise all the common forms. There is, however, one manifestation called "ball lightning." In this phenomena a small globe or ball of apparent fire rolls slowly along the ground, and after a time suddenly explodes, scattering destruction around. There are few instances of this on record, and no very satisfactory explanation has ever accounted for the curious appearance.

—Smith met Brown on the avenue with his bride. They have just returned from their wedding tour. "Where are they going to live?" "I don't know. He told me he had been house-hunting since yesterday morning, and intended to take a flat." "Ah! indeed! He has then decided to follow his wife's example."

—She brushed away a ringlet,
A poet's ringlet, long;
She soared upon a winglet,
A poet's winglet—song.
She thought a little thinglet
And put it into rhyme.
She jingleth now a jinglet,
It brought ten cents a line.

—An English psychological society is racking its brains over the conundrum, "Are angels ever sleepy?" Not very often, but when you hear a bootjack rolling down the front stairs, you can make up your mind that the angel's father is sleepy, which practically amounts to the same thing.

—A French lady, on her arrival in this country, would eat only such dishes as she was ac

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1884.

ENGLAND has virtually assumed the Government of Egypt.

WELLAND, South Victoria, Prescott and East Northumberland appeals dismissed with costs! All Liberals.

ONLY nine petitions from various municipalities praying that the franchise may be extended to women having property qualifications, were presented to the Legislature.

TWENTY-nine petitions from various municipalities praying for the adoption of the "Torrens land system" in Ontario, were presented to the Legislature on Monday.

IN the Ontario House, the Opposition number 36, and on the Government side there are 49 on the floor with the speaker in the chair. This gives a total of 50—an undoubted majority of fourteen, with Muskoka and South Oxford to hear from.

MR. Henry Smyth, Conservative, has been re-elected to the House of Commons for Kent by a considerably increased majority. Mr. Temple, Conservative, has also been elcted for York, N. B., to the House of Commons. This constituency was formerly represented by a Liberal.

THE two following extracts are taken from our local conservative contemporary of last week. Both appeared in the same issue and in the same column, one following the other:

The Reform Convention held on Friday, at Mount Elgin, was the largest and most representative ever held in the riding. In addition to accredited delegates a large number of active members of the party were present — a proof of the wide interest taken in the result and the determination of the Reformers of South Oxford, to stand by the Mowat Administration at the present juncture. After several ballots Mr. Jas. Noxon, of Ingersoll, was nominated. The nomination was then made unanimous amid great enthusiasm. The result of the Convention has created the greatest enthusiasm.

The recent Grit nomination has left a lot of sore heads among the party who have been limping around like so many lame ducks. The coup d'etat of the nominee was very successful, and the orders of the little Premier have been faithfully obeyed, the nominee having been sprung upon the convention at his instigation under the promise of a seat in the Cabinet on the first opening. The lame ducks before referred to are not at all enthusiastic over their nominee, and evidently wish he had been in the bottom of the Red Sea with Pharoah and his host.

Isn't this ludicrous?

So many railway accidents have occured recently, that the public may well begin to consider who is to be responsible for their safety. It is painfully apparent that the railroad companies pay more attention to the passengers' fare than their lives. The travelling public at the present time embraces such a large portion of the community that we may reasonably demand the most careful supervision for their safety. When the slightest mistake plunges the traveller headlong into eternity or ruins him for life, we may justly hold the official through whose negligence the mistake occurs responsible for the results of his carelessness. "I forgot," is small consolation to the widow and orphans whose bread-winner and protector has been taken from them in such a frightful manner through forgetfulness; and yet the citizens of Toronto think the above plea a sufficient excuse for the wholesale slaughter that occured on the Humber a short time ago. Is it because it was a lot of poor hard-working men who were so fearfully mangled that the jury looked upon the case so leniently. Their families will suffer not only pain but poverty. Those men were murdered by official carlessness and the officials upon whose heads the responsibility rests are as deserving of punishment as an ordinary murderer and yet the people seem to be guided by some such maxim as "accidents will happen in the best regulated families" and dismiss the case accordingly. When is this blundering to cease? Certainly not so long as the blunderers escape with impunity. Every little while we hear of an accident on a railway or steambost in which many lives are lost merely through the carelessness of those who are in charge and the public mind is so engrossed with horror and sympathy that they allow those responsible for the calamity to go unscathed. So it will continue until justice is done and an example made of some of them. Carelessness is too flimsy an excuse for burning, scalding or crushing men into eternity without sufficient time to say "God have mercy on their souls." We know of no other position of trust in which such criminal carelessness would go unpunished. Think of a sentinel whose inattention to duty had sacrificed the lives of twenty or thirty of his companions, excusing himself before a court-martial with such cant as "I forgot." We are under the impression that a file of infantry would drown such an excuse with a volley of musketry and at the same time teach the salutary lesson that carelessness is no excuse for sacrificing the lives of those entrusted to our care.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The editor of THE CHRONICLE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

Scott Act a Failure in Halton.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE;

SIR:—

How do we know that the Scott Act is a failure in Halton? Because a few days ago the temperance people of that County met at Milton and publicly confessed that there was whiskey drank and drunkards seen staggering on the streets. That "respectable men" violated the law, and homes were made miserable. Surely that is sufficient proof. But did the Act do no good whatever? Well, I don't know, perhaps, for we are told that the delegates (not "ministers who have no vote" but business men, farmers, mechanics,) from all parts of the country, declared that drinking and drunkenness had died in the country districts, and, dealt a terrible blow, is fast dying in the towns and villages. There the open bar is now closed, treating is stamped out, and the whole traffic bearing as it does the awful stigma of illegality, and disrespectability is gradually finding its way into the darkest corners of the most obscure dens, where none ever think of entering but those who long ere this have been brought low under seal of common decency by its damning influence. What? Scott Act a failure in Halton? No! With these facts before us who dare say that the Act is a failure? Far from it. Is it not a great success? Speaking as philanthrophist, I must answer yes: as I see homes made comfortable and families happy by its power. Speaking as a business man, I must say yes: as I see the old drunkards reformed, coming and buying new clothes for their children and paying outlawed debts. Speaking as a minister, I must answer yes: as I saw the moral love of community raised, churches filled, and one of the greatest enemies of God and man (the liquor traffic) laying his dead in the dust of death never to rise again. Now if the Act is no failure, but a grand success; what then? Let the temperance workers of this County of Oxford take courage. Let no man influence you to vote against the Act on the ground of its being a failure, as the experience of Halton has clearly shown, it will save our young men from an open bar, and should it do no more, that itself would be an inestimable boon to country, town and village.

SOBRIETY.

Ingersoll, Jan. 29th, 1884.

IF YOU ARE RUINED

in health from any cause, especially from the use of any of the thousand nostrums that promise so largely, with long fictitious testimonials have no fear. Resort to Hop Bitters at once, and in a short time you will have the most robust and blooming health.

A good second hand organ wanted. Address box 435, Ingersoll. 81.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at VARCO'S. 71.

OXFORD COUNTY COUNCIL.

January Session.

The members of the county council met on Tuesday, 22nd inst.

The certificates and declarations from the several township clerks were read certifying that the following gentlemen had been duly elected:—

Municipalities.	Reeves.	Deputy Reeves.
Blandford,	Henry P. Welford
Blenheim.	Stephen Hall.	1st Francis Burgess
		2nd Fred'k Vickert
Dereham.	Benj. Hopkins.	1st W. Nancekivell
		2nd E. B. Brown
E. Nissouri.	E. H. Brown.	John Tevle
N. Norwich.	Thos. Abraham.	Ransom Emigh
S. Norwich.	Alex. McFarlane.	Wm. McCurdy
N. Oxford.	Edward Jarvis.
W. Oxford.	Freeman Karn.	T. R. Mayberry
E. Zorra.	Jas. Anderson.	1st W. Harrington
		2nd Conrad Stock
E. Oxford.	John Peers.	Allan Virtue
W. Zorra.	Jas. Munroe.	John A. McKay
Woodstock.	Warren Totten.	1st A. McLay, M.D.
		2nd Chas. Wilson
"		3rd R. M. Revell
Ingersoll.	Thos. Seldon.	1st W. Watterworth
		2nd Jos. Gibson
Tilsonburg.	Phillip Falle.	John Thompson
Embro	Robt. Murray.
Norwich.	Geo. A. Cook.

On the Roll being called all the members above mentioned answered to their names. The council then proceeded to elect a warden by ballot, and on the first ballot being taken it was found that John Peers, Esq., Reeve of East Oxford, had received twenty-one votes, Mr. Munroe, receiving thirteen. Mr. Peers was then declared elected and conducted to the chair by Mr. Munroe.

The Warden briefly thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him, and promised to faithfully fulfil the duties of the office up to the full measure of his ability.

On motion made and seconded the council adjourned for twenty minutes to allow the Warden to make the necessary declaration of office, at the expiration of which time the Warden again took the chair.

The following communications were then read. 1st, from the secretary of the Canada Land Law Amendment Association requesting that the subject matter contained therein be brought before the council.

2nd, from Pratt & Tracy, Publishers, Stratford, in reference to late publication entitled The Municipal Councillors Hand Book.

3rd, from Henry Bray, of Nissouri, asking that a pedlar's licence with one horse, be issued to him for the year 1884, for $10 on account of his licence for 1883 not having been taken out until 3rd Sept. last.

4th, from S. B. Fuller, manager Imperial Bank, acknowledging receipt of extracts from finance committees report &c, in reference to Credit Valley Railway sinking fund.

5th, from the county clerk, County of Simcoe enclosing memorial to the House of Commons for the Dominion praying for the passage of the McCarthy Act, and asking the co-operation of this council.

6th, the annual report of the Woodstock and Norwich Plank and Gravel Road Company for the year 1883.

7th, the annual report of the new Ingersoll and Thamesford Gravel Road Company for the year 1883.

8th, from the department of public works at Ottawa, acknowledging receipt of copy of resolution passed by the council at its December session in reference to the erection of new public buildings at Woodstock.

9th, Clerk's statment of the number of votes polled for and against the By-law to establish an Industrial House in the County of Oxford, as returned by the Municipal clerks.

10th, Sundry accounts against the County.

11th, Petition from Robert Williamson and others in the Township of North and West Oxford, referring to obstructions in the River Thames, causing injury and inconvenience by forcing back the water upon their land and praying for relief from the hands of this council.

12th, From Provincial secretary's office acknowledging receipt of municipal returns.

On motion, Messrs. Hopkins, Totten, Hall, McFarlane, Munroe, Abraham and E. H. Brown were appointed a select committee to nominate the standing committee for the year.

Messrs. C. E. Chadwick, of Ingersoll, and James Scarff, of Woodstock, were appointed county auditors on behalf of the county and the warden respectively.

Mr. Totten chairman of the select committee appointed to nominate the standing committees brought up their report as follows: Finance and assessment.—Messrs. Totten, Hopkins, Cook, Seldon, Murray, Anderson and Burgess. County Buildings and Property.—Messrs. Welford, Wilson, Waterworth, Nancekivell, McFarlane, Munro and Jarvis. Roads and Bridges.—Messrs. Hall, Falle, Abraham, Towle, Stock, Virtue and Karn. Education and Schools.—Messrs. McLay, Gibson, Vickert, Emigh and E. B. Brown. Printing.—Messrs. E. H. Brown, McCurdy, Thompson, Mayberry, Revell and Harrington. Bridge Commissioners.—Messrs. Hall, Abraham and Hopkins. Equalization.—The Reeves of the several municipalities.

The report was adopted and the several communications read were referred to the proper committees to report thereon.

Messrs. Nancekivell, Towle, Cook, McKay, Harrington, Mayberry and Murray were appointed a select committee to deal with all communications coming before the council not properly referrable to any standing committee.

The council then adjourned for the day.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY.

A communication from G. T. Denison and others, a committee of correspondence, in reference to the celebration of the U. E. Loyalist Centennial in Toronto during this year was read.

Copies of the County and High School accounts for the half year ending 21st December last were laid on the table.

Moved by Mr. Hopkins, seconded by Mr. Cook, and resolved, That the half yearly report of the County Treasurer laid on the table be referred to the Committee on Finance for their report thereon.

On motion Messrs. Cook, Gibson and Murray were appointed a Committee to examine into the validity of the County Treasurer's sureties, and report at this session of Council.

The Council then adjourned till 2 o'clock p. m.

SECOND DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. John Robinson, who was appointed to take the census of the village of Plattsville, brought up his report, showing the population to be 765.

On motion the first report of the Standing Committee on Printing was adopted.

On motion a By-law to incorporate the village of Plattsville was introduced and read a first, second and third time, and finally passed, and numbered 266.

Dr. McLay, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Education and Schools, brought up their first report, which was read and adopted.

Mr. Welford, Chairman of the Standing Committee on County Buildings and Property, brought up their first report, which was read and adopted.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow a. m.

THIRD DAY—THURSDAY.

The semi-annual report of the Auditors on the County and High School accounts were read and referred to Finance Committee.

Mr. Murray, Chairman of Select Committee appointed to report on what bridges should be assumed by the County, brought up their first report, which was read and adopted.

THIRD DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

On motion the Clerk was authorized to destroy the ballots recently cast on the Poor House By-law without the usual formalities.

Moved by Mr. Nancekivell, seconded by Mr. E. B. Brown, and resolved, That the Clerk be and is hereby authorized to prepare a memorial to the Lieutenant Governor and government of the Province with a view to securing the enactment of a law more clearly defining what property constitutes County Bridges within this Province, and be signed by the Clerk and Warden of the County, and that the corporation seal be attached.

Mr. Hopkins, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Finance and Assessment, brought up their first report, which was read.

On motion of Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, Council went into Committee of the Whole on the report of the Finance Committee.

The first nine clauses and the eleventh clause of the report were read and passed.

The tenth clause was laid over for future consideration.

Council resumed and granted leave for the Committee to sit again at this session.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow a. m.

FOURTH DAY—FRIDAY.

The following communications were read: 1st, From Lt. Col. W. D. Otter, secretary of the Ontario Rifle Association asking for a donation of $10 to the annual prize meeting of the association.

2nd, From Dr. Rosenberg, Treasurer of the Ontario Prisoners Aid Association asking for a grant to assist in prosecuting the work of the association.

3rd, Draft petition to the Legislature of Ontario, as demanded by Mr. Nancekivell's motion of yesterday. Moved by Mr. E. H. Brown, seconded by Mr. Towle and resolved that the communications just read be referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Welford chairman of the Standing Committee on County buildings and property, brought up their second report, which was adopted.

Moved by Dr. McLay, seconded by Mr. Anderson and resolved, That this Council request the various Municipalities of the County to consider the propriety of doing away with the Railway board fences running North and South along the highways of our Municipalities and that the Clerk be authorized to forward copy of this resolution to the Clerks of the several Municipalities in the County.

Moved by Mr. Welford, seconded by Mr. Nancekivell, and resolved, That the County Solicitor be requested to furnish this Council with the amount paid to this County for conveying tramps and drunkards to the County jail for the year 1883.

Council adjourned until 2 o'clock p.m.

FOURTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council went into Committee of the whole to consider section No. 10 of the 1st report of the Committee on Finance and Assessment. Mr. Munroe in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Nancekivell, seconded by Mr. Hopkins, that clause No. 10 of the report now under consideration, be amended by striking out one hundred and substituting fifty in lieu thereof. Carried.

The yeas and nays being called for there voted, yea; Messrs. Abraham, Anderson, E. B. Brown, Emigh, Falle, Hall, Hopkins, Karn, Mayberry, Munroe, Murray, McCurdy, McLay, Nancekivell, Revell, Thompson, Totten, Wilson, 18.

There voted nay; Messrs. the Warden, E. H. Brown, Burgess, Gibson, Harrington, Jarvis, McFarlane, McKay, Seldon, Stock, Towle, Vickert, Virtue, Waterworth, Welford, 15.

Moved by Mr. E. B. Brown, seconded by Mr. Falle, and resolved, That the Council do now go into Committee of the whole to consider draft petition on county bridges. Mr. Hall in the chair.

On motion, Committee rose and reported the memorial as passed in Committee without amendment.

Council resumed and adopted the report.

Moved by Mr. Waterworth, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That whereas the Municipal Council of the County of Oxford has now certain monies on hand collected for a sinking fund to pay debentures issued to assist the Credit Valley Railway, and will have to collect further sums from year to year, and it is desirable that interest should be received on said funds as soon as collected and the same cannot be immediately invested in the securities provided by section 377 of the Municipal Act of 1883. That this Council request that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, by order direct this Council be authorized to deposit such monies as may from time to time, be received for the purposes above mentioned, in some chartered bank, in the Province of Ontario at interest, and that the Clerk of this Council send a copy of this resolution certified by the Clerk and Warden, and with the corperate seal of this corporation attached thereto to the Provincial Secretary of this Province, requesting the assent of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to this resolution.

Moved by Mr. McKay, seconded by Mr. Harrington, That the Committee already appointed to define what should constitute county bridges, be appointed further, through their Sub-committee to wait on the Attorney General in regard to the memorial adopted this afternoon.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Hopkins, seconded by Mr. E. B. Brown, That three members of Council be named a Committee to wait on the Local Government with regard to the matter referred to in the memorial on county bridges, and that Messrs. Nancekivell, Munroe and Stephen Hall, compose said Committee.

The amendment on being put was carried.

On motion made and seconded the Council adjourned until seven o'clock p. m.

FOURTH DAY—EVENING SESSION.

Mr. Nancekivell, Chairman of Select Committee appointed to report on Communications not referable to any standing Committee brought up their report which was adopted.

Mr. Hopkins, Chairman of the Finance Committee brought up their second report which was adopted.

Moved by Mr. Nancekivell, seconded by Mr. Falle, That the Clerk be, and is hereby instructed to notify the Imperial Bank that the agreement for the deposit of sinking fund in said Bank will be held to terminate this day, six months, and that the fund will be then required.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Jarvis, That the matter of giving notice to the Imperial Bank with regard to the withdrawal of the Credit Valley Railway fund, be deferred until the June session.

The amendment was put and carried.

On motion made and seconded the Council adjourned to meet on call of the Warden.

REPORTS.

First report of the Standing Committee on Finance and Assessment, recommending payment of several accounts.

The County Treasurer has reported to Committee that the County Registrar has paid to him the sum of $1,006.63, being amount of fees due the County for 1883.

The County Treasurer also reports a special deposit receipt from agency of Imperial Bank for the sum of $18,102 in favour of this County, being amount raised in the year 1883 for Sinking Fund, C. V. R. debentures.

Committee also reports that with one exception the treasurer of the several municipalities in the county have paid to the County Treasurer the county rates (town of Tilsonburg being the exception)

Your Committee find from accounts audited a balance to the credit of the County of $14,760.75, in addition to the $18,182 referred to, making a total balance of $32,942.75. That $1,000 be placed to the credit of the Chairman of Bridge Commissioners. That the Treasurer be authorized to pay said amount on order of chairman of said committee.

Committee further recommended payment of $79.45 to the Clerks of the several municipalities to defray all expenses in connection with the Industrial Home By-law.

Your Committee recommend that the additional sum of $100 be given the Treasurer by way of increase to salary, and that his total salary be hereafter $800, to begin from 1st January, 1884. That $100 be placed to the credit of the Chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Property to pay any small bills for work or material from time to time, and that the Treasurer be authorized to pay the same on order of chairman of said committee.

This report was amended by substituting the word fifty for one hundred dollars in 10th clause.

Report of Committee on County Buildings and Property recommending payment of several accounts.

Sub-committee has succeeded in getting 100 cords of wood at $4.70 and 50 cords at $4.40 per cord, and the Clerk have necessary contract entered into for delivery of the same.

Second report of Standing Committee on Finance and Assessment recommend that the application of Ontario Rifle Association for grant of $10 be granted.

Committee had also considered the appeal of Ontario Prisoners' Aid Association, and cannot recommend this Council to make further donation to said Association.

Report of Select Committee appointed to nominate the Standing Committees for 1884.

1st. Finance and Assessment, Messrs. W. Totten, B. Hopkins, G. H. Cook, Seldon, Murray, Anderson and Burgess.

2nd. County Buildings and Property, Messrs. Welford, Wilson, Watterworth, Nancekivell, McFarlane, Munroe and Jarvis.

3rd. Roads and Bridges, Messrs. Hall, Falle, Abraham, Towle, Stock, Virtue, and Karn.

4th. Education and Schools, Messrs. McKay, Gibson, Vickert, Emigh, and E. B. Brown.

5th. Printing, Messrs. E. H. Brown, McCurdy, Thompson, McKay, Mayberry, Revell and Harrington.

6th. Bridge Commissioners, Messrs. Stephen, Hall, Thos. Abraham, and B. Hopkins,

7th. Equalization, the reeves of the several municipalities.

First report of Select Committee.

Your Committee have taken into their consideration the communication of Robt. Williamson and others asking us to adopt measures for the removal of certain obstructions on Thames River, but from best information at our command are of opinion that this Council has no jurisdiction in the premises, and recommend no action being taken.

Also communication from County Clerk of the County of Simcoe anent "McCarthy Act" recommend that the Clerk and Warden sign and execute accompanying petition, and forward the same to James Sutherland, Esq., for presentation.

First report of Select Committee, appointed to consider what bridges shall be assumed by the Council, recommending Messrs. Hopkins, Munroe and Welford to examine such streams during the early part of the summer, and on receipt of the report your Committee hope to be able to submit some definite plan. From information before your Committee they are under the impression that this Council should assume all bridges of 30 feet span and upwards.

BY-LAW NO. 265.

By-law of Municipal Council of the Corporation of the County of Oxford was enacted as follows: Scarff and Chadwick, Auditors; H. McKay, Gaol Surgeon and President; Jno. Douglas, High School Trustee, Woodstock; J. C. Norsworthy, High School Trustee, Ingersall; Wm. Smith, County Engineer; Jas. Munn and H. Parker, Board of Audit; F. R. Ball, County Solicitor; Stephen Hall, Thos. Abraham and Benjamin Hopkins, Bridge Commissioners; Mrs. Stewart, keeper of Court House and Offices; Jno. Dunall, Messenger of the Council.

Inspectors of Auctioneers' and Pedlars' Licenses: Woodstock, Richard Martin; Ingersoll, R. H. Young; Tilsonburg, Archibald Pow; Embro, J. W. Barton; Norwich, L. D. Hunt; Blandford, J. H. Sylvester; Blenheim, J. W. Kennedy; Dereham, D. Elliott; W. Nissouri, John M. Hall; N. Norwich, W. H. Dennis; S. Norwich, Jno. Cooper; N. Oxford, L. Ruddick; E. Oxford, Jno. Ede; W. Oxford, J. B. Thornton; E. Zorra, Alf. Harwood; W. Zorra, Jas. A. Ross.

F. R. Ball, Municipal Director on behalf of the County of Oxford in the C.V. R.; Alex. White, County Architect.

Washington Letter.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 21, 1884.

Anyone who makes the round of calls and receptions, teas and germans, that go to make up society at the Capital, is first impressed, this season, by the number of charming young ladies who surround the matrons presiding over the elegant private salons, or beautiful suites des apartments which are characteristic to Washington. Most of these maidens are the debutantes of the season, and many of them have come from the fashionable hearts of other cities to pay their first homage at this national social centre. A comparison of notes in a quiet hour, locates grace here, beauty there, accomplishments at this place, refinement in every place. But these calls are usually formal, short, and sweet, and it is generally reserved for one who devotes himself to an intimate acquaintance with a few to find out and enjoy those places where all these are gathered within the the four walls of a dwelling. At the receptions upon "Cabinet day," and at other times, one will meet matrons who are patterns of all that is charming among women, and he will be fascinated by the younger coterie. But upon these occasions there is a certain degree of reserve and formality; merely the personal attractions and conversational attainments are displayed. It is at an informal evening call that the inner features of the social life of a Washington winter are seen. Then one will meet rare attainments, and will find that musical and other accomplishments of the highest order supplement personal attraction. Some will entrance you with strains of the harp, and when to these melodies is added that of a sweet cultivated voice and the charm of a pretty face the picture is complete. Another will surprise you with the variety of music that lies in the strings of the banjo when struck by beautiful fingers trained to that use. Again, at some places the soft chords of the guitar exert their fascinating pawer. Truly there are some pretty scenes which transpire within the massive walls of Washington's American palaces, scenes which embody a degree of social refinement, grace, and accomplishment rarely found outside of the Capital.

Members and Senators and others in official life complain that the hours at evening receptions are growing later and later. If the hour of 9 o'clock is on the card of invitation, guests put in an appearance at 9.30, and if that hour is fixed, they go at 10 o'clock. In this respect, Washington affects the foreign custom of very late hours in the matter of evening parties. But there are so few men and women of leisure in society here that it plays sad havoc with business. The only way is to make the hours for work late also. As it is now, the President is supposed to be in his office by 10 a. m. and the Cabinet Officers are at their desks almost as promptly as the clerks in the departments. Senators and Representatives go to their committees in the early forenoon, and in fact all officials begin their work in the morning. It is a matter of remark how some of them stand this continued strain. The President, especially, is tried by his social duties. He seems to entirely disregard the rule common to some of his predecessors, of never accepting invitations, for he goes to nearly all the affairs he is invited to attend.

The revised code of rules in the Senate emphasized the prohibition of the sale of liquor at the Capitol restaurants in language that gave rise to a sharp discussion between Senators Bayard and Frye at the debate upon the rules. Mr. Bayard thought a distinction should be drawn between spiritous and malt liquors, while Mr. Frye contended against the sale of all liquors. Mr. Frye gave a lively picture of the scenes frequent at both resturants. According to his observations, it seems that "hiccups" and common china tea cups go together at the Capitol. Finally the debate was compromised by the adoption of the convenient word "intoxicating," to cover the point at issue, and the rules were adopted.

The opponents of the Mexican treaty mustered just enough votes to defeat it in the senate. The grounds of objection were various. The chief reason lay in the danger apprehended by the sugar and tobacco interests and the successful fight made on their behalf is regarded by some as a proof of the difficulties which lie in the path of any free-trade tariff legislation this winter. Mr. Cox has waxed sarcastic. He says the party has practically relieved him from all cares and placed him on the retired list, and that Mr. Morse is the real head of the naval affairs committee. He expresses himself as very much gratified for their kindness in so relieving him of all responsibility. "Set Sun Cox" is what some of the wicked wags are calling him now.

The local papers devote considerable space to the discussion of the marriage of Fred. Douglass with a white woman. There is a division of sentiment among the colored people as to the effect on Douglass' leadership, but it is generally believed that the old man has lost his standing as an exponent of Negro rights by renouncing his race in selecting his wife. LENOX.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

STRAY STEER.

Strayed into the premises of the subscriber, lot 19, 6th Line, Dereham, on or about the 12th December, a Yearling Steer. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take him away.

RICHARD ELLIS.

January 10th, 1884. 1583o

MONEY TO LOAN.

At 6 per cent.—£500,000

H. O'CONNOR, jr., Broker, Ingersoll.

Office—Opposite Imperial and Merchants Banks. Ingersoll, Dec, 6th, 1883. 1576

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall-st., N. Y.

January 24th, 1884. 1585-4m

A RARE CHANCE.

An entirely new piano, of one of the best makes, for sale at a bargain. For particulars apply at

THE CHRONICLE OFFICE.

Dec 20th, 1883. 1580

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT.

J. C. HEGLER.

Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557c-m

SADDLE FOR SALE.

An imported English Saddle, in good condition. Will be sold cheap. Apply at

THE CHRONICLE Office.

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE,

Cheap, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to

H. O'CONNOR, JR., Broker, Ingersoll.

January 10th, 1884. 1583m

BYCICLE FOR SALE.

An English Bycicle in good order. Cost $70, will be sold for $30. Apply at

THE CHRONICLE Office.

Dec. 6, 1883. 1578

TO LET.

NORSWORTHY'S HALL,

Being the whole of the upper flat of Norsworthy's Block, King street. Would be given at a low rental for a term of years. Apply to

J. C. NORSWORTHY.

Ingersoll, Nov. 15, 1883. 1576cm

FARM FOR SALE.

100 ACRES IN WEST OXFORD.

Choice farm, 3 miles from Ingersoll, consisting of 100 acres, being Lot 12, Con. 2, West Oxford. New House, with good stone cellar, bank barn nearly new, well finished. 5 acre orchard, well fenced and in good state of cultivation, within 130 rods of Galloway's Cheese Factory, school on the adjoining lot. Price moderate. Terms liberal. Apply to

JAS. BRADY, Real Estate Agent.

Ingersoll, Oct. 25, 1883. 1572tf

FARM TO RENT.

CONSISTING OF

200 ACRES,

Situated in the Township of West Oxford, County of Oxford, Lot 17, Con. 2; 180 acres cleared and in a high state of cultivation, well fenced and watered, large orchard, brick dwelling, one barn 30x40, one bank barn 40x60, situated one mile from the corporation of Ingersoll. This is considered one of the best farm properties in the County of Oxford. 25 acres of fall wheat sown; and 25 acres fall ploughing done.

Address JAMES ELLIOTT,

Ingersoll, or on the premises to ALEX. S. PORTEOUS.

P.S.—Possession given immediately if required.

January 3rd, 1884. 1582c

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that

GEORGE BAILEY, of the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, and Province of Ontario, Carriage Maker, has made an assignment to

ALFRED H. ELLIS,

Of the said Town of Ingersoll, Hardware Merchant, of all his real and personal estate for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said George Bailey, are requested to send by post prepaid to the undersigned, on or before the said

Ninth day of March next

A statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration.

The said Trustee will after the said Ninth day of March next, proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rata among the creditors of the said George Bailey, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll, this tenth day of Jan., A.D, 1884.

A. H. ELLIS, Assignee.

BECK.

HAVING

Bought out the Business

Lately carried on by

ROBT. YOUNG

We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of

FRUIT

OF ALL KINDS,

CANNED GOODS

Fine Confectionery.

OYSTERS

JELLYS, JAMS,

Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,

And hope by close attention to busines and

SELLING CHEAP

To merit the patronage of the public.

GEO. BECK.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th 1883. 1580

HOLD ON

—AND—

Dont be in a Hurry

—BUT—

GO STRAIGHT

—TO—

SHRAPNELL'S

AND BUY YOUR

Xmas Goods

Candies, &c.,

—AT—

Half Price

FOR

TWO WEEKS ONLY

AT

SHRAPNELL'S,

FOR CASH ONLY.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580t

BENEFIT MY SUFFERING SISTERS!

Mrs. Geo. M. Franklin, 65 Hunter-street, Hamilton, Ont., suffered from torpid liver, congested kidneys, ulceration and falling of the womb, weakness and palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia and catarrh. She complained of pains in the left side, small of back and between shoulders; nervousness and biliousness; pain over kidneys, headache and cold feet; inability to sleep on the left side; back very weak, feeling "as if there was a load against it" in the morning; ached from small of back to knees; often felt as if her heart would stop and as if she would smother. Had also every symptom of female weakness. After her case had been abandoned as hopeless by several physicians she took treatment of the Drs. K. & K., who speedily CURED her. She says: "Benefit my suffering sisters by publishing the facts of my case."

LIFE LOOKS BRIGHT TO ME.

Mr. I. D. Boardman, editor of the Petersburgh (Mich.) Bulletin, says: "My health having become undermined when fighting for the Union, I was attacked in '79 by consumption in its worst form. I had severe pains in the left breast, a dry hacking cough, night sweats, daily fevers and frequent violent bleeding from the lungs. I also suffered from indigestion, heart disease and general debility, and was greatly emaciated. In '81 I was told that I must soon die by all the local physicians and in despair applied to Drs. K. & K. I was then a complete wreck. Their first month's treatment set me on my feet; in four months I was Cured. I am now in good health, life looks bright to me, I bid fair to live and work for years, and I owe all this to Drs. K. & K."

AT HARD, SOLID WORK.

Garrison Shadd, of North Buxton, Ont., was operated on for fistula in December, 1882, by the Drs. K. & K. His recovery was complete and rapid. In November, 1883, he wrote: "I am permanently cured of the fistula for which you treated me, and have been at hard, solid work most of the season."

AS BRISK AS A BEE.

Mrs. S. J. Finnie, Oshawa, Ontario Co. Ont., 66 years old, previous to Sept. last had considered her diseases—Rheumatism and Prurigo—incurable. After one month's treatment by the Drs. K. & K. she writes: "My disease is quite gone and so are the wandering pains in my limbs. I am as brisk as a bee and feel better than I have in ten years."

OTHER REFERENCES BY PERMISSION. Space does not permit the publication of the innumerable instances of cures performed by the Association. The following are all we have room to give: Mrs. Adelaide McGill, wife of the manager of the Ontario Bank, Bowmanville, Ont., nervous debility, heart disease and FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED. Mrs. Wm. Hendrye, Parmington, Mich., general debility, BRONCHIAL and LUNG DISEASE CURED. Mrs. R. Cook, Homer, Mich., DYSPEPSIA CURED. Wm. Dafoe, Avon, Ont., excessive nervousness AMAUROSIS CURED. Mrs. Fred. Shipp, Bellevue, Mich., female weakness and GENERAL NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED. Mrs. Geo. McIlyar, Detroit, Ovarian Tumor Removed.

A WALKING ADVERTISEMENT.

Miss Hattie Cameron, a school teacher of Kemptville, Ont., had suffered for three years from a most annoying and painful eruption on her face and nose. Unable to obtain relief at home she took treatment of the Drs. K. & K. She now says: "In April, 1883, I commenced treatment and was soon entirely cured. I have been a walking advertisement for Drs. K. & K. since I commenced to improve for everyone thought my face was spoilt for life."

EQUALLED MY MOST SANGUINE EXPECTATIONS.

Mrs. A. H. Skillin, Ames, Curay Co., Colorado, had been terribly afflicted with scrofula, indigestion, catarrh, liver complaint and female weakness. Since her 10th year she had large bunches on her neck, blotches and pimples on her face, and swollen glands. She suffered constantly from chills and fever, heartburn, weak back, sleeplessness, costiveness, catarrhal discharge from the nose and throat, headache and other very distressing symptoms. Weary and hopeless she regarded herself as incurable, but was persuaded by friends to try the Drs. K. & K. She wrote in October last: "I am at last well and strong, and thank Drs. K. & K. The remedies have equalled my most sanguine expectations and I feel most grateful for the wonderful benefit I have received."

MAY YOU LIVE LONG ON THE EARTH TO DO GOOD.

Mrs. Eliza Chute, Novi, Oakland Co., Mich., had been troubled many years by an erysipelatous condition of the blood, complicated with indigestion and slight female weakness. She had dull, heavy pains after eating, belched wind constantly, felt weak, was very restless at night, had frequent headache, aching pain in small of back and the eruption of the skin known as hives. After one month's treatment with the Drs. K. & K. she wrote them: "I am quite cured, no doctor round here could help me but your medicine is so good and I know it; I feel its good effects in good health. I thank the good Lord for sending us such good doctors and may you live long on the earth to do good."

Send three two-cent stamps for illustrated books. You can write freely, all communications are confidential. Charges are reasonable.

DEFORMITIES SUCCESSFULLY TREATED. CHRONIC DISEASES EXPERIENCED BY 18 SPECIALISTS. CURED 1884 Organized 1878. Incorporated 1882.

THE ASSOCIATION'S BUILDING, Cor. Michigan Avenue and Griswold St., Detroit.

The Drs. K. & K. U. S. Medical and Surgical Association. Detroit, Mich. Incorporated under Act of the Michigan State Legislature. Over Fifteen Thousand Cases were Cured in 1883 by this Association.

RIVER PARK SANITARIUM AND WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Windsor, near Detroit, is owned and controlled by this Association. Write for information.

President and Medical Supt., JOHN D. KERGAN, M. D. Vice-President, FRANK B. SMITH, M. D. Treasurer, HON. MOSES W. FIELD. Secretary, WILLIAM W. KERGAN.

SURGEONS OF THIS Famous Association MAY BE CONSULTED AT THE

CALL DALY HOUSE, INGERSOLL, ONT., CALL

ON MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY, FEB. 4th, 5th and 6th, 1884.

CALL ON OR WRITE TO DRS. K. & K. DETROIT MICH.

WOMEN suffering from ailments from the effects of exposure; OLD results of excess and indiscretion; a scrofulous predisposition; those of All Ages and Both Sexes who suffer from any chronic disease, from deformity of any description or from any Cancerous, Consumptive, Nervous or Rheumatic Complaint, should consult them.

CALL ON THEM.

peculiar to their sex; MEN suffering and YOUNG MEN suffering from the PARENTS whose children inherit

OR WRITE TO DRS. K. & K. DETROIT MICH.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

FULL STOCK ALWAYS ON HAND.

OFFICE SUPPLIES.

Blank Books, Inks, Blotting, Mucilage, Etc. Only the best quality

MUSICAL INSTRUMENT

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Personal—THE CHRONICLE Office.
Produce—H. W. Hill.
Bargains—D. White & Co.
Executors Sale—John Thompson.
Auction Sale—Jas. Lougfield.
For Sale—T. C. Patteson.
To Rent—Ira Carroll.
Notice—Chas. T. Gilmour.
Notice—D. J. Ruckle.
Special—Frank Leslie.
Special—Drs. K. & K.
Special—Holman Opera Co.
Honey—R. Vance.
Special—Royal Baking Powder.
Special—McGregor and Parke.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

EGGS are scarce and high in price.

HOLMANS in "Iolanthe," to-morrow (Friday) night.

TELEPHONE poles are being put in. There was five feet of frost in many places.

THE I. O. G. T. hold a public Installation of Officers on Monday evening next.

THE appearance of herring barrels remind us of coming church observances.

ABOUT the most objectionable bill to pay up at this season is last summer's ice bill.

FINDLAY MCGREGOR delighted a fair audience in the town hall on Friday evening.

HOTEL BY AUCTION.—Campbell's Corners Hotel will be sold by auction on the market on Saturday next.

SACRED CONCERT—The choir of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, purpose giving a sacred concert in St. James' Church, here, shortly.

KNOX CHURCH.—Rev. Mr. Ballantyne, of Paris, preached in Knox Church on Sabbath last.

RUMOUR.—It is rumoured that Mr. A. Macaulay will succeed Godson & Co., in Hunter's old stand.

DRS. K. & K. will be at the Daly House, Ingersoll, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday next, 4th, 5th, and 6th Feb.

THE entertainment at Centreville, given by the young folks of the B. C. Church on Monday evening, proved a good success.

HORSE SOLD.—Mr. C. W. Clinch, manager of the Molsons Bank here, has sold his chestnut Stockwood mare to C. J. Alloway, V.S., of Montreal, for $300.

THE HOLMANS.—"Iolanthe," Gilbert & Sullivan's sparkling opera, promises to draw a large audience in the town hall to-morrow night. Already 150 reserved tickets have been sold.

NEW BUTCHER.—Mr. Robins, late from Bayswater, Co. of Simcoe, has bought out Mr. Tune's meat business, north of the river. We wish him all the success attained by his predecessor.

OYSTER SUPPER.—An oyster supper will be held in the M. E. Church, Charles St., on Wednesday evening next, Feb. 6th, at 7 o'clock p.m. All are invited. Admission as usual. See small bills.

NEW GROCERY BUSINESS. — We understand that Messrs. Nelles and Stevens are about to succeed Mr. O'Neil in the grocery business on Thames street. Look out for announcement in future issue.

OPEN LODGE.—The I.O.G.T. of this town will hold an open lodge in the Y.M.P.B.A. hall on Monday next. There will be speeches, readings, recitations, etc., during the evening.

SCOTT ACT.—Thursday, March 13th, has been appointed polling day on the Scott Act in Oxford County. The Temperance Committee have called a convention for Tuesday, Feb. 5th, to be held in the Woodstock Methodist church.

THE WEATHER—Thursday night was pronounced the coldest in forty years by "the oldest inhabitant." The thermometer ranged from 32 to 37 degrees below zero. On Tuesday it commenced to thaw, and the probabilities are that we shall lose our snow.

DISORGANIZED.—The trains on the G. T. R. seem off their base. On Tuesday evening the 5.05 train was one hour and twenty minutes late, and the accommodation was over four hours behind. We hope the thaw may have an influence in favor of regular time.

PHILIP PHILLIPS, who has travelled round the world, delighted those present at his entertainments in the town hall, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The scenes presented by lantern were the finest without doubt ever presented to an Ingersoll audience. The attendance was fair.

HANGING ON SLEIGHS.—The deadly handsled and the small boy have come into prominence again. A young lad had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday. He was hanging on a sleigh with a number of companions and accidentally fell off. Before he was able to scramble to his feet again he was run over by a second sleigh which was following behind. Fortunately he escaped being trodden on by the horse attached to the vehicle, but the runner passed over his leg and slightly injured it.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—An adjourned meeting of the Ingersoll, North and West Oxford Agricultural Society was held at the Secretary's office on Saturday last, when the following officers were appointed for the ensuing year: Thos. Choate, Pres.; Edmund Jarvis, Vice-Pres.; Directors for West Oxford, G. H. Cook, E. Caswell, Thos. Mayberry. Directors for Ingersoll, A. Buchanan, John McKellar and Wm. Tripp. Directors for North Oxford, B. Minkler, W. Gerrie and W. Hayes.

WHOSE FAULT IS IT?—The Times of Woodstock says: "The Ingersoll carnival, on Tuesday night, was attended by about a score of young people from this town. While enjoying themselves, they could not help remarking upon the poor encouragement the managers of the rink were receiving for their endeavors to promote a healthy and exhilirating amusement. The attendance of Ingersoll people was very small." We repeat "whose fault is it?"

SPECIAL SERVICES.—The special religious services in connection with the third quarterly meeting will be held in the Bible Christian Church, Oxford Street, next Sabbath. In the afternoon at 2.30, an appropriate sermon will be preached, to be followed with the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. In the evening at 7, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Rowe, will give a lecture on "Ancient Egypt," illustrated by large coloured diagrams. A very interesting time may be expected, especially for the young people. The quarterly offering will be taken up at each service.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY.—This periodical for February is already on our table, and is, as usual, overflowing with good things in prose, poetry and illustrations. The articles particularly interesting are: "Henry Irving and His Work," "New York City in its Early Days," "Sobieski and the Relief of Vienna in 1683," "The Colossal Statues of Germany and France," "Life on the Surface of the Ocean," etc.—they are profusely illustrated. Sketches, Adventures, Poems, etc., by favorite writers—many of the poems are beautifully illustrated. The price of a single number is 25 cents, and the yearly subscription $2.50, postpaid. Address, Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N.Y.

ENTERTAINMENT AND PRESENTATION.—On Tuesday evening, a very pleasing entertainment was given by the young folks of the Oxford-street B. C. Church. A good audience was present, and judging from the applause bestowed the programme must have given great satisfaction. The violin selections by Messrs. F. Dominey and A. Winslade were well rendered, as also the concertina solos by Mr. Harry Gee, who is quite a proficient with this instrument. The recitations and dialogues were excellently given. In short, everything conspired to make the affair an interesting one. Just before the close of the programme, the organist of the church was "called to the bar," and there "addressed" as below, and presented with a beautiful Album, containing cabinet and other pictures, as a recognition of his services as organist. The presentation was made on behalf of the congregation by Miss M. Estey, the address being read by the pastor, Rev. R. B. Rowe. The recipient was entirely taken by surprise, not having received the slightest hint that such an act was to be performed. However, Mr. Rose briefly thanked the kind friends for their graceful recognition, and for their kindly-worded address, which was as follows:—

TO MR. GEO. A. ROSE.

Dear Bro.—The friends of this Church feel their obligations to you, the leader at the organ, in your services of song, in connection with our public worship. You are well aware that a blending of circumstances over which we had no control have contributed to weaken our hands numerically and otherwise, during the last twelve months, in connection with our church work. Be assured that it very much increases our appreciation of your services—aside from your ability—in finding you, with a few others, due and true, amid all surrounding influences. You may be sure of this, had we the ability equal to our heart's desire, your spirit to-night should be gladdened a thousand-fold more than what now it can possibly be; yet, withal, be pleased to accept this Album, with its selected cabinet pictures within, with "more to follow," as a small token of our high esteem and appreciation. Long may you be spared to use your talent for God in the Church Militant, until you render your part among the harpers in the song of the Redeemed of the Church Triumphant above.

In behalf of the church and congregation,
MISS MARY ESTEY,
MRS. R. B. ROWE,
Com.

Ingersoll, Jan. 29th, 1884.

Personal.

Miss Jennie Paton, of Ingersoll, is visiting at the residence of A. Allison, Putnam.

Miss Gertie Niles, of Nilestown, has returned to her school at Ingersoll.

Miss Stevens, of Collingwood, is visiting friends here.

Messrs. C. C. L. Wilson and C. W. Clinch purpose attending the Montreal Carnival.

Mr. John G. Oliver returned to his home in Battleford, N.W.T., on Monday.

Col. Wonham, D.L.S., formerly of Ingersoll, and Mr. Fletcher, of the C.P.R., are at present in the Rockies, where they intend laying out a National Park, and a summer hotel is to be built for tourists.

Mr. W. G. Eakins, M. A., Barrister, formerly of Ingersoll, has given up the practice of law, and entered the journalistic profession, having accepted the position of associate editor of the Toronto Mail. Mr. Eakins is an able writer, and having a predeliction for journalism, will, no doubt, achieve great success in that line.

Mr. Charles H. Schell, formerly of Ingersoll, son of Mr. D. Schell, of Riverside, Southern California, for some time past the chief clerk in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe office, has been appointed contracting agent of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. Mr. Schell is looked upon as a first-class man.

Curling.

Ingersoll plays Thamesville for the Caledonia Medal at London, to-morrow (Friday.)

The rink was closed yesterday, owing to the thaw. There is mourning among the curlers.

At the curling match on the rink on Monday evening Walley's rink beat Canfield's by 4 shots.

A very close match took place on Friday evening last, between Walley's and Walker's rinks, resulting in favor of Walley by 2 shots.

A match was played on the rink here on Monday evening last, between three rinks of Woodstock, and three of Ingersoll, resulting in a victory for Woodstock, by 12 points.

A curling match at Woodstock yesterday for the Oxford County Medal, between Ingersoll and Woodstock, resulted in a victory for the home team by a majority of eleven.

Viscount Melgrund, the aide-de-camp to Lord Landsdowne, has sent to the curling clubs throughout the country the regulations about the competition for the governor-general's tankard.

The local competition for sundry medals, and other club emoluments is going on actively. THE CHRONICLE will immortalize the victors by placing on record their names and the glory to their achievements.

It has been ascertained that there are a number of curling clubs in the eastern townships and the district of Chateauguay who play with wooden curling stones. These clubs will be represented at Montreal.

STOCK SOLD.—Geo. Bailey's bankrupt stock was sold by auction to Messrs. Sutherland & Siggins of this town, for $385.

LECTURE.—E. J. Redman will deliver his popular lecture—"Will England's Glory Fade Away, or the Sceptre Pass From Her," in the M. E. Church, on Tuesday, Feb. 5th. Admission 25 cents.

CAMILLA URSO.—A fair audience attended the concert given on Monday evening by Madame Camilla Urso and her talented assistants. Madame Camilla Urso's selections were given with grace and skill. That she was thoroughly appreciated is proved by the fact of an encore after each number. An artist who has appeared before nearly all the crowned heads of the world, and has charmed the most competent critics of civilized countries, needs no tribute of praise from us to add to her well-earned reputation. Since the death of Paganini, it is not too much to say that Madame Urso ranks in popular estimation as the greatest violin virtuoso in the world. The Mechanic's Institute is deserving of thanks for their efforts in providing our citizens with high class entertainments. We believe it is their intention to bring the Boston Opera Co. here shortly, and we hope to see a full house.

INGERSOLL CEMETERY.—A meeting of the Ingersoll Rural Cemetery Company took place on 21st January. W. A. Rumsey, Chairman; D. White, Secretary. The annual report of the directors of 1883 was read, showing there were seventy-nine interments and seventeen removals. Out of the seventy-nine, 21 died of consumption and lung disease, 6 of old age, 4 each of apoplexy and consumption of the bowels, 3 of blood poisoning, 3 of croup, 3 of fits, 3 of bronchitis, remainder (1 each) of various diseases. Of the seventy-nine, 40 died in Ingersoll, which, taking the population at five thousand, shows a death rate of only 8 to the thousand. A strong argument in favour of Ingersoll as a healthy town. The following are directors for 1884: W. A. Rumsey, J. Gayfer, T. Brown, D. White, T. Hipkin, J. Browett, J. M. Wilson, W. B. Nelles, W. Dundas; S. H. Young, W. Tennant, Auditors; C. E. Chadwick, Secretary.

DISTRICT NEWS.

Tilsonburg.

A number of young men were fined by the P. M. last week for disturbing the Salvation Army services.

The C. M. Church began revival services on Monday night last. They are well attended.

The Cornet Band serenaded the Councillors elect for 1884, on Tuesday night, and thereby, no doubt, raked in considerable filthy lucre.

Beachville.

The White Bros. will give two of their grand concerts as follows:—Beachville Methodist Church, on Friday, Feb. 8th, at 7.30 p.m., and Zion Church on Saturday, Feb. 9th, at 7.30 p.m. These far-famed Canadian singers are among the very best. They never fail to delight their audience. Unlike most troupes of singers they are always wanted a second and even a third time. Tickets, 25 cents; children, 15 cts. Proceeds for the church. All are invited.

Woodstock.

Our Bachelors intend giving a ball shortly. Nobody outside of "our set" will be there.

Business has been very quiet for the past week. Wood still keeps up to famine prices.

The Woodstock Amateur Opera Company will render "The Pirate of Penzance" on Thursday and Friday evening, February 7th and 8th, in the Town Hall.

The Fruit Growers Association of Ontario held their annual meeting here on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. I will endeavor to give you an account of its deliberation in next week's issue.

The County Council adjourned on Friday evening after a very successful four days sitting. It was really a legislature in miniature. The Warden filled his position with much dignity, and the deliberations were carried on in the most amicable manner, in fact the County of Oxford may boast of a model County Council for the year of our Lord, 1884.

In the Town Council of Woodstock for 1884 there are two lawyers, one doctor, one dentist, one druggist, one grocer, two tanners, (one of them a boot and shoe merchant) also, one soap and broom manufacturer, one mason, one coal dealer and drayman, and four gentlemen who have no particular employment. There are seven Liberals and eight Conservatives.

The Presbytery of Paris has been investigating charges preferred against Mr. Alex. Watson, one of the elders of Chalmers Presbyterian Church, Woodstock, by Rev. W. A. McKay, the pastor. The Presbytery has passed a resolution to the effect that while the charges in the main have not been proven, it recommends Mr. Watson, in the interests of the congregation to resign. Mr. Watson has handed in his resignation accordingly.

Mt. Elgin.

Dan Tripp's snow plow does good work on our gravel road.

Mr. P. Size has removed to the house recently built by J. Mayberry.

C. Colyer is leaving the employ of J. & R. Miller, he intends going to Guelph.

Miss Mary Miller, of Detroit, is home at present visiting her parents.

Wesley Moyer, who has secured the Kintore school at a salary of $425, leaves to take charge this week.

Miss Annie O'Connor, one of Guelph's fair and talented daughters, is visiting friends here.

Jacob Bolton and family of Culloden, are moving in. He goes into the employment of J. & R. Miller.

Many changes taking place in our village at present. Joseph Bell and family are about leaving for Nebraska. John Scott and wife accompany them.

R. Smart is selling out his entire stock of general merchandise and is going to move to Kansas, where he goes into lumber business with his brother.

Rumor says that Mrs. H. D. Johnson has rented the store now occupied by R. Smart, and is going to open out a general stock of goods. It is doubtful if the object desired will be attained, as the people of this vicinity are not noted for subsisting to monopolies, which this really amounts to, as there is not likely to be opposition with Mr. J. in one store and Mrs. J. in the other.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY IN TILSONBURG.

A Grand Gathering.

From time immemorial the Sons of Auld Scotia, have been pre-eminently distinguished for their lofty patriotism and adherence to their native land, wherever their lot may be cast. The Scot, although constituting himself a loyal and worthy citizen, and putting forth every effort towards the progress of his adopted country, still retains his inherent love for the "land of the broom and heather," and all the associations connected therewith, and reverts with feelings of pardonable pride to the glorious and historical prowess of his ancestors. The Scotchman, although generally the most staid and docorous of citizens, occasionally unbends, and relaxes his reservation and graveness and becomes inspired with enthusiasm and ardency, especially when celebrating occasions of national importance, and this was palpably manifested by the manner in which the Scotchmen of Tilsonburg celebrated the 125th Anniversary of Robbie Burns, whose name will be lovingly cherished as long as there are Scotch hearts in the world. On Friday night of last week, about 60 persons assembled at the Matheson House to do honor to nature's poet, and shortly after 8 o'clock they all sat down to a table literally groaning beneath its precious burden, and on which was a large number of choice Scotch dishes, which only a native of the "land of brown heath and shaggy wood" can fully appreciate. Mine host, Connor, is to be congratulated on his excellent spread, and the fact that the repast was keenly relished by all present, and satiated the taste of the most fastidious of epicures, is sufficient praise to bestow upon the genial gentleman. Among those present we noticed Mr. Jas. Brady, of Ingersoll, and others from a distance, and a large number of our own citizens, and those of the surrounding villages and townships. Mr. T. Bain, Esq., Mayor, Mr. W. S. Law, of the Observer, acted in the capacity of chairman and vice-chairman respectively, and fulfilled their arduous duties in a most becoming manner. Mr. Bain arising drew attention to the object of their meeting, and gave a short review of the life and works of the great poet. He was followed by Major Norris, in response to a toast. The Major is an able speaker, a clear reasoner, and a brilliant word painter, and his eulogy of Burns was by far the best speech of the evening, in fact, part of his oration being really sublime, and he sat down amid great applause. We have no space to enumerate the whole proceedings, but suffice it to say, that the whole affair passed off pleasantly. We may, however, say that the happy hits of Messrs. Jas. Brady, James MacIntyre, A. Pattullo and W. S. Law, were well received, and appreciated. The proceedings were interspersed with select Scotch Songs of which we may briefly mention:—"O' A' the Airts the Wind Can Blow," and "Jeanie Dean," by Mr. John Jack; "Scotland Yet," and "Afton Water," by Mr. Ferguson; "Willie Brew'd a Peck O' Man," and "My Annie, O," by Mr. Anderson; "Get Up and Bar the Door, O," by Mr. Jno. Northway; and "Sandie Mackay," by Mr. Lowrie. The gathering was brought to a close at about 3 a.m. by the whole company singing "Auld Lang Syne," when all repaired to their respective places of abode, and no doubt their thoughts were in accordance with the follwing quotation, which we cull from "Johnnie Armstrong's Last Good Night!"

"What I have done for lack O' wit,
I never, never can recal;
I hope you're in' my friends as yet;
Good-night and joy be with you a'."

Dereham.

Richard Ryan, son of Mr. James Ryan, Culloden, has just passed a very creditable examination for the high school.

We are pleased to state that Mr. S. Foster, who has been ailing for some time, is improving.

The C. M. Church have commenced a series of meetings at the McDowell Church, Brigham's Corners.

Rev. Mr. Woodward, of Burgessville, who has received a call to this charge, occupied the Baptist pulpit on Sunday morning last.

Some contemptible poltroon has been breaking into a Dereham school house and writing his "sentiments" on the blackboard. The sentiments fit the "critter" to a nicety.

The honey social at Richard Wilson's, under the auspices of the Methodist church, was a success, although not largely attended, owing to the severe weather.

The Presbyterian Church, Culloden, had a literary entertainment on Thursday evening, in aid of their Sabbath School. They realized about $20.

The treasurer informs us that every cent of the taxes for 1883 have been paid in, for the first time in twenty years. What other municipality is there in the province that can show that every cent of their taxes has been paid in at this date?

There will be a basket social at the house of Mrs. Moulton, on the 4th con. of Dereham, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 5th. All are invited and a very pleasant time may be expected. The proceeds are to assist in paying for the new shed at the Ebenezer Church.

The members of the B. C. Zion's Church, M.T. line, held a meeting of their membership on Wednesday, 16th, to decide whether at the time of union they would give up their place of meeting and unite with the congregation at the McDowell Church, provided the C. M. Church on the tenth concession will move their church north on the M. T. line, and so divide the distance.

Dereham Council Elect, met at Mt. Elgin, on Monday the 21st January, 1884. The Clerk administered the declaration of qualification and office, and the Council took their seat. The Reeve in the chair. The following were read: Communication from the Hamilton Bridge and Tool Company, also from the Land Law Amendment Association. Applications for Assessor from Jno. Scott, John F. Stroud, Jas. Ryan and Wm. Harris; for Collector from J. James and T. Nancekivell, for the current year. David Philips asked to be changed from S. S. No. 7 to S. S. No. 5, by allowing Mr. Prouse to be changed from S. S. No. 5 to S. S. No. 7. On motion Andrew Smart was appointed Auditor, and the Reeve appointed Jas. V. Bodwell the other Auditor for the current year. On motion the regular adjourned meetings of Council to be held as follows: the first Monday in February at Mt. Elgin; the first Monday in April at Culloden, the first Monday in June at Tilsonburg, the first Monday in August at Brownville, the first Monday in October at Culloden, the first Monday in December at Mt. Elgin. The following accounts were ordered to be paid: John Shelton, 81 loads gravel, $5.05; Rousell & Hutchison, election material, $8; E. G. Pool, plank, $2.62; Clerk registration fees, $17.40; Clerk, election expenses, $59; W. S. Law, printing, $6.75; H. Howland, pens, 60c; W. Foster, overcharge on Deer Creek, $1. Council then adjourned.

GEO. LISH, Clerk.

Dereham Centre.

Mrs. H. D. Johnson has closed up business here for the present.

A man by the name of Ridgwood Carr, who is in the employ of Anson Adamson, froze one of his large toes so badly that part of it has had to be taken off.

The Butler Bros. have closed down their mill for the winter. They are filling up their yard rapidly with stock for the coming season. The greatest quantity of logs already arrived are elm, for cheese-boxes. This business seems to increase with every year and the Butler Bros. have had to enlarge their capacity for manufacturing. They are also making preparations to turn out a large quantity of tile next summer. This business is superintended by Mr. Foreman, whose father has a kiln near Ingersoll. Mr. Wm. Butler has fitted up a run of chopping stones in his large barn, which he will drive with his threshing engine. He intends doing custom work for the farmers until the mill here opens in the spring.

Putnam.

Miss Lena Phillips, of London, is visiting friends here.

On Friday, the 18th inst., the members of the C. M. church of this village assembled at the residence of Mr. Chas. Dundas for the purpose of tensifying to Miss Maggie J. Dundas how highly her services were appreciated as organist. All sat down to an excellent supper provided by the ladies. After which Mrs. Jas. Dundass read an address and Miss Catharine Dundas presented the organist with a large album and silver cake basket. Miss Dundas made a short reply. Both Sabbath schools are now united into one and held in the Bible Christian church, at a quarter to ten, with Mr. White as superintendent.

FOR Nettle Rash, Itching Piles, Ringworm Eruptions, and all skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 82t

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79.

FOR pure and unadulterated honey, in comb and extract, go to R. Vance's. 86

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS in every style at VANCE'S. 71.

West Oxford.

Alex. Kyle, one of the oldest residents of this township died yesterday morning at an advanced age. He has been ill for a long time past. He leaves a widow well provided for.

North Oxford.

Mr. Jas. Park is drawing brick for a fine brick house.

Four more of Mr. Beattie's scholars have passed the high school entrance examinations.

Miss Dora Henderson, daughter of Mr. John Henderson, is very ill with inflammation of the lungs.

The council for North Oxford have twice extended the time for the payment of taxes but the money seems harder to get than time.

The members of the old Council met to wind up the business of 1883, and receive the final returns of the collector on Jan. 21st. Present—Mr. Jarvis, Mr. Colyer, Mr. Henderson. On motion, Mr. Henderson was appointed chairman in absence of the Reeve. On motion the chairman signed orders in favour of the collector to remit the following taxes: Charles Bird, 1 dog, 1 dollar; William Poole, taxes, $7.50; George Brown, 2 dogs, 2 dollars; Calvin Harris, 1 dog, 1 dollar. Order in favour of Thos. Downing to remit dog tax, 1 dollar. On motion the chairman signed order in favour of the collector for sixty dollars, his salary for the year 1883, and accepted the roll and returned his bond. On motion Council adjourned.

Proceedings of first meeting of the members of the Council for the current year. The following gentlemen took and subscribed the declaration of qualification and of office in presence of the clerk: Edmund Jarvis, Reeve; Wm. Colyer, Lawrence Ruddick, E. A. Nelles and E. H. Henderson, Councillors. On motion, By-law No. 155 to appoint Auditors and other officers was read third time and passed. Officers appointed—John I. Henderson and Albert Connor, Auditors; George Allen, Assessor; Henry S. Revell collector. On motion, the Reeve signed orders to pay the following accounts: Town Clerk fees for registeration of births, marriages and deaths, $6.20; Robert Sutherland, one sheep killed by dogs, $4; for the benefit of Mrs. Carpenter indigent, $5; Sam Allen, deputy returning officer, division No. 2, $3; Gilbert Telfer deputy returning officer, division No. 1, $2; for use of Temperance Hall for nomination and polling, $5; for use of polling place in division No. 2, $4; for Constable, division No. 2 $1; Town Clerk for services connected with this election, $5. On motion, the Council adjourned until the first Monday in March next. at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., to meet at the Clerk's residence.—ABM. HILSLEN, Town Clerk.

West Zorra.

The West Zorra Township Council met at Youngsville, January 21st, at 11 o'clock, pursuant to statute. Members all present, and having made and subscribed the declarations of office and of qualification, took their seats, the Reeve presiding. Minutes of last meeting read, approved and signed by the Reeve. Communications read. Account from J. H. Hobbs, tin box for assessor, $1; Alex. Matheson, Stratford, municipal forms, $11.80, and George Innes, registering births, deaths and marriages, $11.70, was read and laid on the table. The Treasurer was ordered to pay to John Sutherland, John McDonald and Sam McCauley, indigent, $5 each. A by-law was passed appointing municipal officers for the current year. The Reeve was appointed to attend to the case of John Winter, in regard to a ditch made by him on the 4th line, it was resolved, that the Reeve and Treasurer purchase at par, with school funds, the debentures to be issued under the provisions of By-law No. 6, for the year 1883. The Treasurer was authorized to pay the accounts of J. H. Hobbs, $1.50; A. Matheson, $11.80, and Geo. Innes, registration fees, $11.70. A By-law was passed appointing Commissioners for expending monies in the several divisions as follow: for Division No. 1, W. R. Munro; No. 2, James Munro; No. 3, J. A. McKay; No. 4, James Forbes; No. 5, John Blair. Following are the officers appointed: Collector, John R. McKay; Assessor, E. L. Sutherland; Auditors, R. G. Murray, H. C. Ross; Fence Viewers, Hugh Ross, G. Walker; Pound Keepers, John Ross, John Youngs, A. L. Murray, D. B. McKay, A. Clark, D. Murray. C. Youngs, W. Innes, John Pitt, E. Sutherland; Pound Keepers, A. McDonald 5x2, A. Kinsteau, C. McLeod, H. Sutherland 7x5, J. Micheleson, Alex. Beard, H. McKay, T. Bean, W. Wadland, Thos. Audison, D. Matheson, J. Conway, A. Green. Road overseers, west townline, Division 1, John Hossack, 2 D. Sutherland, 3 M. McCaul, 4 A. McKee, 5 J. A. Baker, 6 R. Murray, 7 F. Leslie. East line, division 1 H. Walker, 2 J. Cheworth, 3 H. Fraser, 4 W. McCorgadale, 5 Ira Cline, 6 W. Worthey, 7 A. Dannell. Second line, division 1 D. Chisholm, 2 W. Campbell, 3 J. Smith, 4 Dan Murray, 5 W. Sutherland, 6 J. McCombs, 7 John Morris. Third line, division 1 G. M. McKenzie, 2 W. Loveys, 3 W. McPherson, 4 D. Matheson, 5 D. Murray, 6 J. Green, 7 John Conway. Fourth line, division 1 D. Sutherland, 2 O. Reed, 3 G. Bean, 4 Geo. Manson. Fifth line, division 1 W. Carroll, 2 A. Mathwin, 3 J. Campbell, 4 R. Burtch, 5 J. McBurney, 6 C. Youngs, 7 R. G. Murray. Sixth line, division 1 J. Henry, 2 J. Campbell, 3 H. M. Munro, 4 W. Clark, 5 T. M. McKay, 6 T. Rutherford, 7 J. McLeod. Seventh line, division 1 W. McIntosh, 2 A. S. McDonald, 3 W. Smith, 4 T. Lancaster, 5 J. Craine, 6 J. G. Lindsay, 7 J. McIntosh. E. Town line, division 1 J. Fuller, 2 A. Murray, 3 A. Ross, 4 H. Anderson, 5 N. McIntosh, 6 C. Wettlanfer, 7 P. Heinbauch. Governors Road, division 1 G. Bolt, 2 L. Bowie, 3 Levi Jarmine. 1st sideline, division 1 W. Walker, 2 H. Cody, 3 G. Gould, 4 W. Murray. 2nd sideline, division 1 H. Stewart, 2 D. J. Matheson, 3 J. M. Sutherland, 4 R. Forbes. 4th sideline, division 1 A. Lindness, 2 A. Cowan, 3 H. McBurney, 4 W. Ross. 5th sideline, division 1 J. McIntosh, 2 W. Chenoweth. 3 W. Innes, 4 H. McIntosh. 6th sideline, division 1 G. Darling, 2 J. Betzner, 3 J. Reid, 4 W. B. Kirk, 5 T. Bean. North Town line, division 1 A. Clifford, 2 A. Morris, 3 J. Kerr. Commissioner street, A. Campbell. The Assessor to receive the sum of $60, and Auditors the sum of $6 each, for their services. Next meeting of Council on the 4th Monday in February, at 10 a.m.

GEO. INNES, Clerk.

Brownsville.

Rev. Mr. Moore, Baptist minister, leaves Brownsville before long and will be sadly missed.

Mr. Meznie, our new principal, in the public school is filling very ably the vacancy caused by removal of Mr. Greenlees. Miss Brown, his assistant, is proving by her work that she has not missed her calling.

Rev. Mr. Irvine, C. M. minister, has been assisting in revivals on the Belmont circuit, and in his absence, Rev. W. Cridland, of Belmont, preached on Sunday evening in Brownsville.

W. A. Sherwood, storekeeper, who received a severe sprain a short time since, is improving, and will soon be able to fill his place in the store.

Harrietsville.

Mr. James Britton, who built the Dufferin House at Harrietsville, died last week of typhoid fever. He had been to Manitoba and came home sick.

Miss Anna Swales, formerly of this neighborhood, but who with her people removed to Ingersoll a short time ago, was buried in the Jackson burying ground on Friday last. Her disease was consumption. This is the third of that family who have died of consumption in less than three years, the father and two daughters.

Mr. Sidney Smith who formerly made cheese in the Harrietsville factory went to Prince Edward Island to run a factory last summer, and while there formed the acquaintance of a young lady and married her. He and his wife are now visiting friends in this place.

Messrs. James Jackson and Walker Franks of Harrietsville have just purchased the Imported Clydesdale stallion, here, from Hugh Love, Esq., Hills Green. They also purchased two Clydesdale Fillies from Charles Mason, Esq., Brucefield. They are all registered in Clydesdale Stud Book.

DESTROY the Worms or they may destroy the children. Use Freeman's Worm Powders, they expel all kinds of worms. 82t.

HAND in your subscriptions for any paper publication in the world, to J. G. Campbell in the Post Office Book Store. 81r

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.
White Wheat, per bush.	$1 00	to	1 05
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 05
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 05
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	30	to	33
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush	7 00	to	8 00
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50
PRODUCE.
Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples per lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	6	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	6 00	to	7 00
Live Hogs "	4 00	to	5 00
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 00	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 00	to	0 80
Pelts	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	0 18	to	0 20
PROVISIONS.
Flour, new process, Spring, 100 lbs.	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs.	2 75	to	3 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 00	to	2 75
Oatmeal	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts	00 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	16	to	18
Butter, rolls, per lb	22	to	25
Cheese,	11	to	12
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	25	to	00
Geese,	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	50	to	60
Ducks,	00	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12

NEW YORK CHEESE MARKET.

The New York Journal of Commerce says: "The market is well sustained on all grades and the stock is working down steadily. Shippers are steady although moderate buyers, but with the home trade a fairly satisfactory business is in progress. The best of the white are held at 14c, and coloured are at 13¾ 13¾c." The Liverpool public cable was steady at 69s.

THE DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION.

The seventh annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario, will be held in the city hall, London, on the 13th, 14th and 15th proximo. The following gentlemen have announced their intention to be present and address the convention:

Prof. L. B. Arnold, Rochester, N.Y., the secretion of milk.

Benj. D. Gilbert, Utica, N.Y., mites of cheese and lumps of butter.

Hon. Harris Lewis, Frankford, N. Y., butter and butter making.

Prof. Brown, Agricultural Col'ge, Guelph, influence of food on milk, cream, butter and cheese.

Robert McAdam, Rome, N. Y., demands of the cheese trade and the defects in the supplies.

L. D. Curtis, Syracuse, N.Y., dairying in the States.

C. C. Buell, Rock Fall, Ill., the present state of the cream gathering creameries of the States.

FARM AND DAIRY NOTES.

The annual meeting of the Culloden Cheese Company will be held at the home factory on Wednesday, Feb. 20.

The annual meeting of the Bayham and Malahide Cheese Company will be held at the School House near the Factory, on Saturday, February 2, 1884, at 1 p.m.

The Middleton and Bayham Cheese Company will hold its annual meeting at the Company's factory, Acacia, on Thursday, February 7, 1884, at 10 o'clock a.m.

The annual meeting of the patrons of Tavistock Cheese Factory will be held at the factory on Saturday, 2nd of February, 1884, at the hour of two o'clock p.m.

Mr. Jas. McKay, (Sailor) of Harrington, has purchased the Harrington Cheese Factory from the stockholders, and intends to carry on business next summer in the most improved and modern system.

The average of milk which it took to make a pound of cheese at the Thamesford factory for the past season was 10 1-15th pounds, which is one of the lowest we have heard of this season.

The quantity of milk received at the People's Cheese and Butter Factory, Howick, last season was 1,571,030 pounds, out of which 164,642 pounds of cheese were made.

Mrs. Jones, of Brockville, Ont., has purchased Diana of St. Lambert 6636, whose butter record is 16½ lbs per week. She is of Stoke Pogis stock, the best strain of Jersey blood.

The annual meeting of the Dutton Cheese Factory was held in Nelson's Hotel, Dutton, Monday, Jan. 21st. Following is the statement:—Total amount of cheese made during last season, 57,993 lbs.; average price per lb. 10¼ cents; average price paid to patrons per 100 lbs. milk 76 cents; average milk to make one lb. of cheese 10.14.

The London Free Press speaks of an Ingersoll buyer purchasing cheese last week. Our cotem. should know that the last box of cheese in Western Ontario was sold over six weeks ago, and the factories quoted sold before two months since. Our cotem. has been confounding shipments with purchases and should keep posted on cheese matters by reading THE CHRONICLE more carefully.

Mr. Fuller, of Hamilton, has just completed his seventh month of testing Mary Anne of St. Lamberts', his cow with

FARM AND DAIRY.

Dutch Friesian vs. Holstein.

It is one of the most curious, not to say absurd, developments of commercial conservatism and downright obstinacy that prevents the breeders of Dutch cattle in this country coming out and with one voice discarding the wretched "trade name" put upon this breed by an early importer simply to throw dust in the eyes of others who might also want to import them.

Dr. Chenery, who saddled this German-Danish name upon the Dutch cattle in this country, is remembered as the person primarily responsible for the introduction of pleuro-pneumonia into Massachusetts. It came with his importations of cattle and was disseminated through a pair of oxen which he sold, if we remember rightly. To him we owe this high sounding and beautiful name of Holstein—which is pronounced indifferently Hole-steen, Holsteen, Hole-stine and Hol-stine, and which it is of not the least consequence how it is pronounced, or spelt either, for the matter of that, now that there is no longer any real danger of pleuro-pneumonia in it. Why he selected this name for good, honest, Dutch and Friesian cattle nobody knows, except that he wanted a trade name and did not want people to know where the cattle came from.

Now our good American breeders hold on to the false name for genuine goods with an obstinacy certainly surpassing even the native Dutch themselves, who are famous for having wills of their own and for dogged perseverance in carrying them out.

They shut themselves out from any cordial co-operation with the Dutch breeders of these magnificent cattle, and their pigheadedness in this matter is really a great hindrance to the well deserved popularity of the breed in this country. Intelligent people know the name is a sham and a delusion, and suspect it of being a snare.

They ask, "Why should the best breed of milch cows in the world sail under false colors, or worse than that, a false name?" We have asked the question often, and would like to have it answered.

The fact is, there is no answer, except in the very positive statement that—They should not—that their home name is good enough for them the world over—that they are no frauds and ought not to be stigmatized by an alias.

Several years ago the United States Consul at Amsterdam forwarded a rather long-winded but certainly a very convincing "Protest against the incorrect name given to North Holland or Friesian cattle," written by Mr. G. J. Hengweld, of Utrecht, Holland (Professor of the Science of Breeding in the National Veterinary Academy), to the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, which was published in full by the Board, together with certain certificates of representative men in Holland.

Mr. Hengweld concludes his epistle thus: "Trust in the love of truth and fairness of the American breeders of Dutch cattle induces me to believe that they will yet give to that race the name which is its due."

The certificates are as follows:

"The undersigned declares that in the Netherlands it is not customary to cross native with Holstein cattle, and that "no breed of cattle is known in all Holland under the name of Holstein cattle." DR. TH. H. MCGILLAVRY, President of the National Veterinary College.

"Utrecht, Nov. 17, 1872."

"The Central Board of the Dutch Society of Agriculture declares that in this country no Holstein cattle are bought or imported for the breeding or improvement of our native race; and that even the name Holstein cattle is, in general, unknown in Netherland.

"A. H. VAN DER BOON MESCH, President.

"P. F. L. WALDECK, Secretary.

Similar certificates were signed by the Burgomaster of Opmer, the Secretary of the Department of Opmer, the President of the Society of Agriculture and cattle breeding in Friesland, and others.

It seems certain that the absurdity of their position will one day dawn upon the so-called "Holstein" breeders and whether it does or not the steady growth of the opposition to the name, as embodied in the Dutch-Friesian Association of breeders will eventually win.—American Dairyman.

Orchard and Nursery.

A New Orchard.—One about to plant trees can hardly give too much thought to the selection of varieties. Procure catalogues and study them. An orchard for home-use should yield fruit for every season. For a near market, early fruit is usually the most profitable. In selecting later varieties have but few sorts, and those of kinds generally in demand. Order all fruit trees early.

Old Orchards are numerous. The land is exhausted by bearing two crops these many years, a crop of fruit and one of grain, hay or some other. If the trees are still sound they may be renovated, but not unless the soil is also renovated. Providing food for the trees is the first step. Manure may be hauled out while snow is on the ground. A liberal dressing turned under by a shallow plowing, and keeping off all crops, unless it be clover to be pastured by swine, are essential.

The Trees.—In a damp time cover the trunks and large branches with soft soap, made thin enough to apply with a brush. Prune away all crowded and superfluous branches, to form an open head.

Grafting Old Trees.—If the fruit is poor and the trees sound and healthy make a new head by grafting with desirable sorts. In renewing an old tree it is better to extend the work over three years, grafting the lower third first and the upper third last.

Feeding Farm Animals.

Horses.—Don't forget to daily exercise your brood mares. Overfeeding ruins as many horses as overwork. Keep the stable clean and stalls well littered.

Cattle.—Feed sliced roots or potatoes once or twice a week, as an appetizing change in the rations. Milch cows require careful handling, as they approach the time of calving. Raise only the best calves from superior animals.

Sheep.—Those grown for wool thrive on a mixed ration of bright straw, hay and grain. Early lambs are profitable, but need constant care when they first come. Old sheep for the shambles should be pushed forward rapidly with a daily grain ration.

Swine.—Young pigs require warm and comfortable quarters, and a thick, dry, cut-straw bed.

Poultry.—Laying hens thrive with much sunshine and plenty of food, both green and dry, with a full supply of pure water, and some form of lime.

The whole subject of feeding farm animals requires most careful study by all keeping them, and especially during the winter season.

FLUID LIGHTNING.

There are but few that have never suffered almost intolerable pain from Toothache, Neuralgia, or like acute pains. To them such an instant relief as Fluid Lightning is an untold blessing in time of trouble. No disgusting offensive medicines to be taken for days. One application of Fluid Lightning cures. Sold at Gayfer or Kneeshaw's drug store.

The Fruit Garden.

Pruning.—If any pruning was left unfinished last fall, complete it in the first mild spell.

Dwarf Pears.—With the exception of Duchesse d'Angouleme, and perhaps Louise Bonne de Jersey, standard pear-trees are preferable to dwarfs as a matter of profit. If one wishes to raise many varieties in a little space dwarfs will do this.

Supports for Vines, including trellises for grapes, should be made ready. The woodwork may be painted, or treated with several coats of petroleum.

New Plantings.—If it is intended to set out shrubs, etc., the coming spring, the selections, whether for home supply or for market, should be made while the matter can be properly considered.

Grape Vines.—Occupy all the available places with vines, planting them wherever there is a barn or other surface against which they can be trained.

Not True Farmers in the North-West.

From the Minneapolis Pioneer Press.

In Mr. Finkle's store to-day a farmer came in to settle for a load of wheat and made a number of purchases, and among them, were several pounds of very ordinary butter and three or four dozen packed eggs. I inquired if this sort of thing was a common practice of the farmers in the vicinity.

"Farmers," repeated the merchant contemptuously: "why, we haven't got twenty real farmers in this county. They are all nothing but wheat raisers, and that is a long way from being a farmer. A large number of farmers in Dakota who own whole quarter sections of land seldom have a drop of milk in the house, and the butter they eat is bought at the nearest store. They don't even keep a cow or pig, or try to raise vegetables enough to provide for the winter."

Dairy Notes.

The Maryland Farmer says that if the base of the horns and the inside of the ears of a cow are a good yellow she is sure to be a good butter cow.

During severe cold weather cows will often refuse to drink as much water as they should if it is filled with ice and is nearly down to the freezing temperature. It is really better that the water be slightly tepid and the cows be induced to drink more of it by making a thin mash with bran and meal.

The question as to which is the best cow for butter depends upon several things. It is not the quantity of butter given, in instance, which makes the most profit, but the cost of the butter per pound and the price realized for it. There are cows which will make more butter than others, but consume more food in proportion to the butter product, and some cows for various reasons cost more than others. Still, the first cost is but a small element in the case. for if a one-hundred-dollar cow makes twice as much butter as a fifty-dollar cow, the former is the cheapest of the two, although she may consume a little more feed. It is not a question, either, of breed, for there are good and poor cows of all breeds, and some native cows are as good as many of the more costly pure-bred ones. Generally speaking, the best butter cow is a grade Jersey, whose dam was a good native cow and the sire from a good butter family of pure-bred Jersey stock, such cows are cheap, that is, have no fancy vaine put on them, are hardly moderate eaters, and as good for butter or better than the average pure-bred cow. —N. Y. Times.

The Sham And The Real.

Every good thing has its host of imitators; every genuine article its counterfeits. Bad manners and wicked habits have theirs also; but he who shams the bad never boasts of it, while they who ape the virtues of the good or simulate the genuine never hesitate to place the counterfeit before the public in their most alluring tones. When these people imitate they always choose a pronounced type or popular subject to copy from; and when they claim to be as good as "So-and-So," or to sell an article equal to "So-and-So," the public may depend upon it that Mr. "So-and-So" and his article are always the best of the kind. Thus the sham is always proving the genuine merit of the thing it copies.

A firm of enterprising gentlemen produce and popularize an article of household use, such as the Royal Baking Powder, whose convenience, usefulness and real merit make for itself an immense and universal sale. A hundred imitators arise on every hand, and as they hold out their sham articles to the public, yelp in chorus, "Buy this; it's just as good as Royal, and much cheaper!" The Royal Baking Powder is the standard the world over, and its imitators in their cry that theirs is "as good as Royal" are all the time emphasizing this fact. In their laborious attempts to show by analysis and otherwise that the "Snowball" brand has as much raising power "as the Royal;" or that the "Earthquake" brand is "as pure as the Royal," as well as by their contortive twistings of chemical certificates and labored efforts to obtain recognition from the Government chemists and prominent scientists who have certified the superiority of Royal over all others, they all admit the "Royal" to be the acme of perfection, which it is their highest ambition to imitate. But the difference between the real and these imitations, which copy only its general appearance, is as wide as that between the paste and the true diamond. The shams all pay homage to the "Royal!"

Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney, Liver or Urinary Diseases,

Have no fear of any of these diseases if you use Hop Bitters, as they will prevent and cure the worst cases, even when you have been made worse by some great puffed up pretended cure.

Darwin's body lies mouldering in the grave, but the dude goes marching on.

MERIT PROVEN.

Dollar upon dollar is frequently spent on the faith of recommendations for articles entirely worthless. Not so with McGregor's Speedy Cure; you are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call at Gayfer or Kneeshaw's drug store and get a free trial bottle, and if not convinced it will cure you of the worst form of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, etc., no matter how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50c. and $1 bottles. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

A sage remark—"A little more of the dressing, please."

THESE ARE SOLID FACTS.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetizer, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 86i.

"Oh, haven't I got the sand?" sings the sugar dealer.

IT HAS MADE A NEW MAN OF ME.

I am the most agreeably surprised man in this section of country. I don't think any one could feel worse physically than I did when I commenced taking Crowfoot Bitters. It has made a new man of me. It is the best dollar I ever spent. I could not eat or sleep, and felt miserably dejected. After taking Crowfoot I could eat, sleep, had a splendid appetite, and felt first-rate. I believe it to be the best medicine of the period for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

WM. GUTHRIE,
Fairmount, Ont.

86i

The ruling passion is strong in a schoolmaster.

STOP that cough, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral — the best specific ever known for all diseases of the throat and lungs. It will soothe the rough feeling in your throat, give the vocal organs flexibility and vitality, and enable you to breathe and speak clearly.

The farmer's wife should wear gros grain silk.

MESSRS. Mitchell & Platt, druggists, London, Ont., write Dec. 1881: We have sold Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil since its first introduction, and we can safely say, no medicine on our shelves has had a larger sale, or gives better satisfaction. We always feel safe in recommending it to our customers.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Home Economy.

It is well to understand how to launder flannels properly. Perhaps every housekeeper has a method of her own with which she is satisfied, and which she would not be willing to change for another. Nevertheless I would like to say that a strong solution of Dobbins' Electric Soap, poured hot over soiled flannel garments laid dry in a washing tub, will, with a very little rubbing with the hands, become entirely clean. When they are rinsed through a warm soapy blue water and dried, they are soft and white, without shrinkage, and present a better appearance than when laundried in any other way.

For cleaning blankets this method is an admirable one. A lady, at whose house I happened to be visiting, said to me:

"Just look at this great pile of soiled blankets. They have never been washed, and my experience with laundries abroad, and washerwomen at home, has been such a sad one, that I almost despair of ever having them in a condition fit for use again."

"If you are willing to trust me," I replied, "I think I can remove your difficulty."

Selecting a blanket more soiled than the others, we carried it to the kitchen, and, having laid it on the bottom of a stationary washing tub, we immersed it in a solution of the soap, say about a third of a pound to as much water as would cover the blanket, and shut down the lid, leaving it to steep for a few minutes. After the water had cooled sufficiently, we gave the blanket a good stirring with our hands (there was no use of rubbing it, for the uncleanliness had all come out in the water) and after passing it through the wringer, into a clean tub of warm, soapy water, and from that into another tub of of warm blue water, with a little soap in that also, our blanket looked like a heap of snowy wool, the nap being so long and white. After it was partially dry, we took the blanket down from the line on which we had hung it, and gave it a good shaking, when it looked almost like a new one.

It is unnecessary to say that my friend was well satisfied with our experiment.

As colored hosiery is now so universally worn, it is a good plan, when washing it, to put black pepper in the water, about a tablespoonful and a half to a pailful. Put it into boiling hot suds, and, when cold enough, wash the hose, rinse in one water, and hang immediately to dry.

If a liberal quantity of salt is added to the water in which black and white cotton dresses are to be washed, the colors will not run. Some persons dip these garments into strong brine and dry them without rinsing. They can then be washed the usual way, not using too much soap, and will not need a second preparation.

Although the price of kid gloves is much lower than formerly, they still cost enough to render acceptable to some, who have not a superabundance of pin money, a reliable recipe for cleaning them. You can get a pair of gloves cleaned for ten cents, but you have the trouble of taking them to the cleaner's and of calling for them again, when the same amount of money and time expended will clean you half a dozen pairs.

Procure at a druggists' a quart of deodorized benzine. This quantity will be sufficient for many pairs of gloves: but you must be expeditious in the use of it, as it evaporates rapidly when exposed to the action of the air. A portion of the liquid is to be poured into a basin, and the gloves, one pair at a time, are to be put in it and washed, inside and out, as you would a piece of cloth, until all your soiled gloves have been passed through it. Then renew the benzine in the basin, and wash them a second time. After you are sure that the uncleanliness is all removed, give the gloves a rinsing in the remainder of the benzine, pull them into shape with your hands, and hang them in the air to dry. The odor of the benzine soon passes off, and your gloves look almost as good as new.

[NOTE.—As benzine is very inflamable, all persons using it must be very careful that no light, nor spark, nor fire of any kind, be brought near to it. Some very serious accidents have happened from persons having benzine-soaked gloves on their hands which they were drying at a fire. ED. ORIENTAL CASKET.]

Great Dish of the Future.

The following is worth knowing:—The stew is the great dish of the future. The uncertainty of meal-taking brings with it a craving for stimulants. Steaks should not be cooked too long, as the best particles evaporate. It is impossible to get warm in cold weather with undigested food in your stomach. Fish should never be boiled, but steamed, so that no fine properties are dissolved in the water and so lost. Exclusive diet on peas, beans, and lentils does not develop the brightest and quickest tone of mind in man. Food is only coarse when coarsely cooked, as the plainest materials contain nutritious and dainty elements. It is a great mistake to eat half-raw steak on a cold winter's day. Half-raw meat yields less nutrition than well-cooked meats. If meals are kept irregularly in youth, something creeps up in adult age which shows diminished vitality. The want of a warm meal in the middle of the day is, to people who have had perhaps but a slight breakfast and have been in the cold winter air, the cause of disease and want of vitality.

WHAT TO DO.

If troubled with an unhealthy, slow healing sore use McGregor & Parkes' Carbolic Cerate. You will find it invaluable for healing, cleansing and completely removing your trouble. If the Blood is out of order, take with it a few doses of McGregor's Speedy Cure from Gayfer or Kneeshaw's drug store.

Snow-bound—The ash heap in the back yard.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74r-y

To cure a man of whistling—Blow him up.

AN IMPORTANT ENQUIRY.

Are you threatened with Consumption? If so, the cause may be in the blood. Impure blood and Scrofula are close companions, and Scrofula and Consumption are still closer related. Burdock Blood Bitters cure all forms of Scrofula by cleansing the blood and regulating the secretions.

The readiest and surest way to get rid of censure is to correct ourselves.

Holloway's Pills—Bilious complaints and irregularities of the system, produced by redundancy of vitiated bile, can always be corrected by a few doses of these inestimable Pills, which are everywhere admired for their rare combination of mildness and power; for though they conquer with ease and rapidity the most obstinate disease, they never weaken the stomach or necessitate any interruption of ordinary duties or amusement. On the contrary, they increase the appetite strengthen the organs of digestion, give increased energy and life to all the animal functions, and fit both hand and brain for fresh exertions. The sick and enfeebled may by a single trial speedily discover what a happy revolution these Pills have the power to effect in the human system.

A great misfortune gives grandeur even to an insignificant being.

HELP REQUIRED.

Dyspepsia does not get well without assistance. It requires careful diet and thorough treatment. Burdock Blood Bitters have effected the most remarkable cures on record of chronic Dyspepsia.

Miscellaneous.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months. Free Trial Bottles of this certain cure of all Throat and Lung Diseases at Gayfer's Drug Store. Large bottles $1.00. 86t.

Satan never learned to skate for a red-hot reason.

"Lost the cough I long did know,
Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Downs' Elixir.
Thousands affidavits prove,
That it doth man's ills remove,
Coughs and colds, and hooping cough
By its power soon are off." 83.

A well-directed snowball will make even dominie dance.

If you are bilious or have indigestion, sick headache or dizziness, try Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, used instead of pills; they cure constipation. Price 25c. per bottle. For sale by all druggists. 83.

The skate's trap—A hole in the ice.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

Light weight—A pound of candies.

MOTHER Graves' Worm Exterminator has no equal for destroying worms in children and adults.

Off the coast—The sledless boy.

If you want fast colours and brilliant shades use the popular Star Dyes.

An ice thing—A skate.

INVALIDS who take Wheeler's Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya remark how promptly and uniformly increased appetite and improved digestion follow its use. This is explained by the universal adaptability of the preparation to the most sensitive, irritable conditions of the stomach, which secures its absorption and distribution to the nerve ganglia. Phosphates being, par excellence, the food of the nervous system, it is easily seen why this elegant compound has proved of such great value in so wide a range of diseases depending on failure of nerve power and blood impoverishment.

If a barrel is a cask is a keg a casket?

THE best way to repair strength and increase the bodily substance is to invigorate the stomach and improve the circulation with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. Simultaneously with the disappearance of indigestion it relieves that morbid despondency, and the nervousness which are as much the product of dyspepsia as the weakness of the stomach and loss of vigour and flesh which proceed from it; as a blood purifier it has no equal.

A dumb belle—A mute beauty.

REV. J. McLaurin, Canadian Baptist Missionary to India, writes: During our stay in Canada we have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil with very great satisfaction. We are now returning to India, and would like very much to take some with us, for our own use and to give to the diseased heathen.

Ground rents—Mole's furrows.

WHAT THE FIGURES REVEAL.

G. M. Everest, of Forest, says that in one year one family purchased over fifty bottles of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their own use and that of various friends. He has sold this invaluable throat and lung remedy over sixteen years, and its sales are steadily increasing.

A midnight call—"Meaow!"

TIMELY AID.

A little daughter of the Captain of the Steamer "Empress of India" was suddenly attacked with Croup while at a friend's house in Toronto. No medical aid being handy, recourse was had to Hagyard's Yellow Oil; this popular household remedy afforded prompt relief and the little girl was as lively as ever in a few hours.

Love is better than spectacles to make everything seem great.

NARROW CHANCE OF ESCAPE.

A person exposed to the sudden changes of our northern climate has little chance of escaping from colds, sore throat, rheumatism, frost bites, and other troubles incident to change of temperature, to say nothing of accidents and emergencies. The best external and internal ready remedy is Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

Honor demanded is as worthless as insult undeserved is hurtless.

ANOTHER'S GRIEF.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whopping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once. SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. For lame Back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

He lives most who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

Affected simplicity is refined imposture.

SURE SIGNS.

Distress before or after eating, loss of appetite, belching of wind, heart-burn, irregular action of the bowels, and nervous irritability are sure signs of Dyspepsia. The sure cure is Burdock Blood Bitters.

ITCHING PILES.—SYMPTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25, (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

The latest fashionable craze in England is mule riding. "Ears a go!"

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by al druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

A trained skirt would seem the proper thing for railroad travel.

MRS. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes: "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caused a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Mr. Popplewell, chemist, of our city, to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

A point not well taken—that of the pin when you hug the girl.

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

If you own a horse and cutter and want to killtime—slay it.

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's, McCaughey's Block. 41.

It is right to be contented with what we have, not what we are.

THE BEST I EVER KNEW OF.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential Citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of." Price 75 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

Man's inhumanity to man make countless thousands mourn.

Hop Bitters are the Purest and Best Bitters Ever Made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and dandelion,—the oldest best, and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest Blood purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Apetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use Hop Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for cases it will not cure or help.

Do not suffer or let your friend suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunkard nostrum, but the purest and best Medicine ever made; the "Invalid" Friend and Hope," and no person or family should be without them. Try the Bitters to-day.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Maple Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms, Mops, Floor, Stove Horse, and Scrubbing Brushes, Dampe and Chimneys, Clocks, Eavetroughing and repairing done promptly. Heating Drums and Stove Pipes, Dishes of all kinds, Smoothing Irons Mrs. Pott's Cold Handle Smoothing Irons, Scales, large and small, Spades, Forks, Shovels and Hoes, Mixed Paints, all ready for the brush; any tint or colour Boiled and Raw Oils, Root Cutters, Children's Carriages, Baby Jumpers, Corn Planters, Farmer's Bells, Carpet Sweepers, Dry and Liquid Measures, Bird Cages, Lanterns; Stove Polish, Lead and Iron Piping, Gas Fittings, Hog Rings and Hog Holders, everything in the House Furnishing Line, Axle Grease, Cistern Pumps, Wheelborrows, Sinks, and everything that is wanted to keep house with.

Cash paid for old Rubber Shoes, Bones of all kinds, Woollen and Cotton Rags, Old Brass, Copper and Lead, old Zinc, old Wrought and Cast Iron, all kinds of Furs, Beef Hides, Sheep Skins, Calf Skins, Horse Hair, Tallow and Beeswax.

47. H. CAMPBELL.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4:56 a. m.	6:59 a. m.
11:57 a. m.	12:15 a. m.
12:32 a. m.	3:06 p. m.
5:09 p. m.	4:48 p. m.
7:47 p. m.	7:00 p. m.
2:11 a. m.	12:20 p. m.

CATARRH.

CATARRH.—A New Treatment whereby this hitherto incurable disease is permanently cured in from one to three applications, no matter whether standing for one year or forty years. Descriptive pamphlet sent free on receipt of stamp. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada. 1560yr

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Props.

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

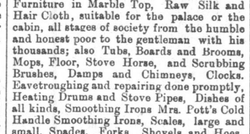
LITTLE DOT

—IT IS THE—

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship

Ask for the



"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.

Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

JAS. McINTYRE

UNDERTAKER,

HAS REMOVED BACK TO HIS old stand in the

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

A Large Stock of COFFINS, and CASKETS HROUDS and ROBES on hand.

FURNITURE

All kinds in stock. Residence first house north of warehouse, King street, Ingersoll. suber 22, 1881.

HARDWARE.

AXES.

Canadian and American

X Cut Saws

Champion,
Diamond,
Lance.

Large Assortment of Files.

Large Asst. of Butcher Knives.

Guns and Ammunition

A LARGE STOCK.

Second growth hand made Axe Handles.

A. H. ELLIS,

SIGN OF THE GOLDEN ANVIL.

Nov. 15, 1883. 1577

BUSINESS CHANGE.

The Undersigned having Bought out the BOOK,

STATIONERY,

AND

Fancy Goods Business!

LATELY CARRIED ON BY

MR. GEORGE A. ODELL,

He ebly respectfully intimates to the inhabitants of Ingersoll and surrounding country that by paying cash down he was enabled to buy Mr. Odell's stock amounting to over $8,000.00 at a large reduction from cost price, thereby enabling him to give

BARGAINS

Unheard Of Before in this Locality.

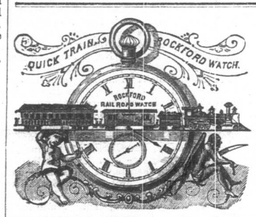
New Goods FOR the Holidays

I am opening out my very extensive and superb stock of Fancy Goods, Presentation Books, Etc., for the Holiday trade. An inspection of which is cordially invited.

WALL PAPER.

My stock of Room Papers willl always be found up to the requirements of the wants of our customers. A fresh supply of Wall Paper just received.

PICTURE FRAMING.



Picture Framing will be carried on in all its branches.

Having had 18 years' experience in the Book, Stationery, Wall Paper and Fancy Goods' business, besides being able to buy on the Cash Principle, purchasers can rely on getting good value for their money, and a well selected stock to choose from.

In consideration of the foregoing, and with our best attention in the future, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal patronage heretofore given to MR. ODELL, with as many new customers as may be pleased to favour us.

A. ROBINSON,
STATIONER, ETC.,
INGERSOLL and BELLEVILLE.

Nov. 8th, 1883. 1574

H. RICHARDSON

Richardson's Block, Ingersoll, Ontario,

Dealer in Watches, Clocks, Jewelry,

SILVER AND PLATED WARE.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 1st., 1883.

This is to certify that we have appointed H. RICHARDSON, Sole Agent for the sale of the Rockford Quick Train Watch, in Ingersoll, Ontario, and that we will, to the fullest extent, sustain the usual warranty given by him to purchasers of our movements. No warranty whatever attaches to these goods when offered for sale by others than our duly appointed Agent.

ROCKFORD WATCH CO.,
H. P. Holland, Sec.

PURE GROCERIES!

—AT THE INGERSOLL—

CHINA TEA HOUSE.

Headquarters the best for

TEAS, COFFEES, SPICES,

And everything in the grocery line at prices which defy competition.

The Finest Stock of CANNED GOODS to be Found Anywhere.

FISH, LARD AND KEROSENE

—Always kept in stock.—

A Choice Lot of Molasses and Syrups, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos, and Stoneware.

CANDIES. CANDIES.

A FINE LOT OF LAMPS

And everything in the above line to be found in any well regulated Grocery. In addition there is the choicest and the most select assortment of CHINA in all Shapes and Patterns. CROCKERY to be had at all prices. GLASSWARE that cannot be beat for variety and Cheapness.

A better assortment of Canned Goods cannot be found in the County.

THOS. J. THORNTON.

Ingersoll, Oct. 25, 1883. 1572

ONLY TWO WEEKS LONGER

REMEMBER

THIS IS YOUR

LAST CHANCE!

For Goods at half price. Twenty-five per cent. less than cost. We also offer Safe, Mirrors and other Shop Furniture at a bargain.

WILL COMMENCE ON SATURDAY Night Next

19th INST., A

Great Auction Sale

And continue each night till end of month.

GODSON & CO.,

The Great Bankrupt Stock Emporium,

Ingersoll, January 17th, 1884. 1564

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

WM. C. BELL

Having bought the Lumber belonging to the

Estate of the late ADAM OLIVER

And RENTED THE MILL, he is prepared to execute all

Carpenter & Joiner Work

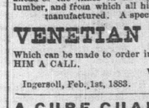
Entrusted to him. He will also

Contract for Buildings!

OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS,

And supply House Building material at the very lowest prices. It is a well known fact, from the easy financial position of the late firm, they were always ahead of the times in having thoroughly seasoned lumber, and from which all his inside work will be manufactured. A specialty in making

VENETIAN BLINDS,



Which can be made to order in short notice. GIVE HIM A CALL.

WM. C. BELL.

Ingersoll, Feb. 1st, 1883. 1535

A CURE GUARANTEED

MAGNETIC MEDICINE.

BRAIN & NERVE FOOD.

For Old and Young. Male and Female.

Positively cures Nervousness in all its stages, Weak Memory, Loss of Brain Power, Sexual Prostration, Night Sweats, Spermatorrhœa, Leucorrhœa, Barrenness, Seminal Weakness, and General Loss of Power. It repairs Nervous Waste, Rejuvenates, the Jaded Intellect. Strengthens the enfeebled Brain and Restores Surprising Tone and Vigor to the Exhausted Generative Orgative Organs in either sex. With each order for 12 packages, accompanied with five dollars, we will send our Written Guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. It is the cheapest and best Medicine in the market. Pamphlet sent free by mail to any address.

Mack's Magnetic Medicine is sold by Druggists at 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50, or will be mailed free of postage on receipt on money, by addressing

J. W. BROWETT, Chemist,
Next to Golden Anvil, Ingersoll, Ont.

157Sv-y

Rx No 66.

Endorsed by the FRENCH ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

*For

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.00 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

H. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates, Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

P. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000 private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R. C. S. and L. M., ENGLAND L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Occulist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. R. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 20th, 1883. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER.

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Duncan street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers.

Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops on Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE,

Thames Street.

Bread delivered in town daily.

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with armers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which can be withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK

OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - $5,698,696

RESERVE - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

Imperial Bank of Canada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchase Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegraphs to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department.—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGISBERG, Prop.

LENDING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582y-7

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR.,

GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1550y

THE CREDIT VALLEY!

AND

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and North-western America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:46 a. m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and North-western points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line, and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Pauls, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:40 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12:26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS.

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:23 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your tickets from

P. SYMONS, Station Agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines, Thames St., Ingersoll.

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27. 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,

Warner's Safe Cure,

Shiloh's Consumption Cure,

Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

GAIN

Health and Happiness.

How? DO AS OTHERS HAVE DONE.

Are your Kidneys disordered?

"Kidney-Wort brought me from my grave, as it were, after I had been given up by 15 best doctors in town."—R. W. Devereux, Mechanic, Ionia, Mich.

Are your nerves weak?

"Kidney-Wort cured me from nervous weakness &c., after I was not expected to live."—Mrs. M. B. Goodwin, Ed. Christian Monitor, Cleveland, O.

Have you Bright's Disease?

"Kidney-Wort cured me when my water was just like chalk and then like blood."

Frank Wilson, Peabody, Mass.

Suffering from Diabetes?

"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I have ever used. Gives almost immediate relief."

Dr. Phillip C. Ballou, Monkton, Vt.

Have you Liver Complaint?

"Kidney-Wort cured me of chronic Liver Diseases after I prayed to die."

Henry Ward, late Col. 6th Nat. Guard, N. Y.

Is your Back lame and aching?

"Kidney-Wort (one bottle) cured me when I was so lame I had to roll out of bed."

C. M. Tallmage, Milwaukee, Wis.

Have you Kidney Disease?

"Kidney-Wort made me sound in liver and kidneys after years of unsuccessful doctoring. Its worth $10 a box."—Saml Hodges, Williamstown, West Va.

Are you Constipated?

"Kidney-Wort causes easy evacuations and cured me after 15 years use of other medicines."

Nelson Fairchild, St. Albans, Vt.

Have you Malaria?

"Kidney-Wort has done better than any other remedy I have ever used in my practice."

Dr. H. K. Clark, South Hero, Vt.

Are you Bilious?

"Kidney-Wort has done me more good than any other remedy I have ever taken."

Mrs. J. T. Galloway, Elk Flat, Oregon.

Are you tormented with Piles?

"Kidney-Wort permanently cured me of bleeding piles. Dr. W. G. Kline recommended it to me."

Geo. H. Horst, Cashier M. Bank, Myerstown, Pa.

Are you Rheumatism racked?

"Kidney-Wort cured me, after I was given up to die by physicians and I had suffered thirty years."

Hibridge Malcolm, West Bath, Maine.

Ladies, are you suffering?

"Kidney-Wort cures of peculiar troubles of several years standing. Many friends use and praise it."

Mrs. H. Lamoreaux, Isle La Motte, Vt.

If you would Banish Disease and gain Health, Take

KIDNEY-WORT

THE BLOOD CLEANSER.

AGENTS wanted for "The Lives of the Presidents of the U. S.," the largest, handsomest and best book ever sold for less than twice our price. The fastest selling book in America. Immense profits to agents. All intelligent people want it. Anyone can become a successful agent. Terms free. HALLETT BOOK CO., Portland, Maine.

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 23. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1587.

For THE CHRONICLE.

THE SECRET.

Baby Ethel, fair and tender,
Gazed about with wond'ring eyes
When they told her that the angels
Dropp'd her from the azure skies.
Said mamma, you little darling
You came down with all your charms;
I was watching for your coming,
And I sought you in my arms.

Five years old, and still 'twas baby
That they called the little girl
As they fondled and caress'd her,
Gently stroked each silken curl;
But among the many changes
Happ'ning in this lower sphere,
One that ev'ry plan deranges
To mamma now happen'd here.

Soon a diff'rent voice called baby,
Around other footsteps moved;
But the face and voice were winning,
And the new mamma was loved.
One glad morning in the summer,
When the world was full of light,
Baby came with childish wonder
Telling what she'd seen last night.

O! mamma, a lovely lady
With a face so sweet and fair,
And upon her pretty shoulders
Fell her wavy auburn hair,
And she said I must not grieve you
From her eyes was shed a light
As she whisper'd very softly
Always do what's just and right.

And aside then turned the lady,
In her eyes there stood a tear;
While she spoke so very sweetly,
Ethel thou wert dreaming dear;
Then she said with deep emotion,
And her face looked strange, but mild,
As she gazed at her she added,
"Come from heaven to see my child."

Years rang out the knell of changes,
Childhood now had passed away;
Hopes and fears and cares to Ethel
Came and went from day to day;
When one night upon retiring
She lay dreaming of the past,
That a light both bright and mellow
All around the room was cast.

Then appeared the self same vision
She had seen in years before,
In the dawning of her childhood,
In the early days of yore;
And it spoke thus to her sweetly:
Now's the turning point of life,
You must soon take part my darling
In the great world's din and strife.

Do thy duty, though ten thousand
Seek to lure thee or ensnare,
Ever keeping right before thee,
Thou the queenly robes shalt wear;
Robes of an immortal texture,
Robes not made by earthly hands,
They are wrought by angel's fingers,
In the far off heav'nly land.

There will come a time my Ethel,
When thy bark of life shall be
Cast upon the stormy waters,
Of an angry, troubled sea;
In that hour of pending danger,
In that hour of grief and pain,
Through the mists and gloomy shadows
I will come to thee again.

Suddenly the vision vanished,
And the girl lay lost in thought
At the glorious scenes of beauty,
That the night to her had brought;
All those years she'd loved the lady
Who had come in days gone by,
Often dreamt of golden tresses,
And a sparkling hazel eye.

One by one the hands were folded
Of each loved and loving breast,
One by one the final summons
Called them to their endless rest;
One by one their hearts ceased beating,
Hearts as true as sterling gold,
One by one their lips were sealed,
And the secret was not told.

Womanhood had come to Ethel,
And the vision spoke once more,
I am waiting for thy coming
To the bright eternal shore;
Friends will sing the songs of welcome
To a fairer world than this,
They will clash to their golden cymbals,
As thou ent'reth into bliss.

And amidst the throng, the lady
With the crown of golden hair,
Is thy mother weary Ethel,
Once pressed down with worlds of care;
Seeing all thy fair hopes blighted,
Shedding oft-times bitter tears,
Treading paths to her unmerited,
Through the dreary tiresome years.

She appeared that she might strengthen
Thee, to bear thy heavy load,
Chase away thy fears, and lengthen
Out thy patience on the road.
All her ministry is ended,
Now thou'st entered into rest,
While your joys together blended,
Swell the chorus of the blest.

—MARY K. HANLY, Brooklyn, N.Y.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

CHAPTER IV.

But before the summer holidays arrived, Claire had left Mrs. Arcularius's school for good. Twining had awakened to one more dismayed perception of having been grossly duped; the reed on which he had leaned had snapped beneath him; proposed retrenchments became inevitable; his poor ventured thousands were dissolved, as a last ironical sort of ingredient, in the worthless elixir.

For a long time his affairs stood miserably involved. His innocent share in a matter of imposture and chicanery was misconstrued and sharply censured by his employers. He was discharged from his clerkship, and put face to face with the worst threats of need. Mrs. Twining, forced to resign her briefly-worn robes of ease for the old garb of drudgery, spared no zeal in proving herself not to have been a false prophetess of disaster.

"I ain't a bit surprised," she would declare, with one of her thin, acid laughs. "Mercy, no! Don't mind me. I was prepared for it, Francis. So here we are over in Jersey City, and a pretty shabby part of it, too! Oh, well, it's better'n keeping a peanut-stand, anyhow. You'll bring me there, some day; you're bound to. I ain't eaten a peanut in ever so long. I'm saving my taste for 'em."

Twining secretly writhed under these thrusts. His meagre stock of money was slipping from him daily. But he was still cheerful. The tough texture of his optimism still refused to be rent. A few more years, and its severance must come, warp and woof, but as yet the sturdy fibres held good against every strain.

He secured another position at last. The salary, smaller than before, was at least regular. But the quarters in Jersey City, though humble and restricted, made too strong an annual drain upon his impoverished purse. After two years of pitiful struggle, the family removed to Greenpoint. Claire was then sixteen. But before this new change occurred, Twining's evil genius had again tempted him, and with the usual malign result. He trusted a fellow-man once more, and once more he was confounded.

This time it was of necessity a much smaller hazard. Only three hundred dollars went, though millions were of course to be ultimately realized. One day a sallow, elderly man, with eyes bleared from dissipation and clothes that hung glazed round a bony figure, fell in with poor Twining, and talked to him glibly about a miraculous patent. It concerned the giving of signals on railroads by an electrical process. It was to effect a sublime security against all future accidents of travel by land. A few primary steps were to be taken before this marvel should obtain the indorsements of eager capitalists.

The sallow little man, in three interviews, during which he cleverly contrived not to smell too strongly of liquor, convinced Twining that he was a neglected genius. The money was given him, and a receipt for it was signed with a hand whose insecurity passed for grateful emotion. But this origin might have been ascribed with more truth to the rheumy moisture that filled the recipient's eyes when he placed a plump roll of bills within his threadbare waistcoat-pocket. Twining never saw him after that eventful conference. He died about three weeks later of delirium tremens in a city hospital. It was his seventh attack.

This fresh blow leveled Twining. Neither his wife nor his child ever knew of it. But it struck into him a sort of terror at himself from which he never recovered. He had trusted humanity for the last time. He still remained amiable, genial, gentle. But despair had turned his heart to lead. Both Claire and Mrs. Twining saw the change, though ignorant of its cause. The Greenpoint epoch had now begun.

In Jersey City Claire had been sent to a public school. Here she had met genuine daughters of the people. Some of them were almost in rags; others represented thrifty home-surroundings; all were very different from the sleek children of wealth and caste whom she had known at Mrs. Arcularius's. At first she suffered torments of disgust. But by degrees the slow, continual pressure of habit wore away the edge of her distaste, as a constant sea-wash will blunt the rim of a shell. She absorbed herself in study, made rapid progress, and learned much that a fashionable school would have left untaught.

Her fastidiousness in a measure vanished. A good deal of the old acquired nicety stayed, but her age was impressionable, and ceaseless contact with rough manners and crude opinions wrought its certain effect. She was now rubbing against taffetas, and before it had been against silk. She was hearing the boorish laugh and the slovenly idiom to-day, when yesterday she had heard the mirth of culture and the phrase of decorum. Her young life had thus far been a strange discord of opposing influences. She felt this in periods of half-bewildered retrospect, and sometimes with moods of passionate melancholy as well.

The contrast of the changes through which she had passed, disheartened while it stimulated her. She meant to try her best; she wanted with all her energy to gain secure and permanent elevation; she had no intent of sitting down and resting before she reached the top of the hill, for her father's heated words of admonition and entreaty yet swept their insistent echo through her spirit.

But the hill seemed a sheer steep, defiant of any foothold. If she was eager to ascend, loath to rest, full of splendid activity, what mattered these favoring conditions when circumstances turned to mockery?

They were at Greenpoint, now. They had been there three years. Claire was nineteen. Her school days had ended. They could no longer afford to keep a servant; she had to help her mother in all menial domestic offices. She had to bake, to sweep, to wash, to sew. She hated the place; she hated the life. But she saw her father's hidden despair, and so hid her own. More than this, she foresaw certain signs that his health was failing. He would have seizures of sudden weakness at morning or night; she feared to ask him whether they also occurred when he was absent at business, lest he might suspect the acute nature of her anxiety, and so acquire new cause for worriment.

She loved him more than ever. The dread of his loss would steal with ghastly intrusion along her dreams at night. She thought of her grim, acrimonious mother, and said to herself: "If he should die it would be terrible! I should be worse than alone!" Every kiss that she gave him took a more clinging fondness.

He never spoke of his future. He never spoke of hers. She understood why. Each always met the other with a smile. There was something beautiful in their reciprocal deceit. They heard the dead leaves crackle under their footsteps, but they strove to talk as if the boughs were in bud.

And so the weeks went on. The bitterness of their second winter in Greenpoint had now yielded to the mildness of a second spring. But the vernal change brought no cheer to Claire. In the little yellowish-drab wooden house where they dwelt, with lumber-yards and sloop-wharves blocking all view of the river, with stupid, haggling neighbors on either side of them, with ugliness and stagnation and poverty at arm's-reach, was a girl so weighed upon and crushed by the stern arbitraments of want, that she often felt herself as much a captive as if she could not have moved a limb without hearing the clank of a chain.

"Oh, not a bit," returned Mrs. Twining, who could never cow her daughter nowadays, and avoided all open skirmishes with Claire, preferring to fire her volleys under cover of ambiguous sneers, being sure of rout in any fairly-fought engagement. "Not a bit, certainly. When he knows you've pottered away at anything, he'll eat it and smack his lips over it, whether it's roasted to a cinder, or as raw as a fresh clam."

"I'm very glad to hear you say so," returned Claire with a weary little smile. "It's pleasant to think father loves me like that."

Mrs. Twining vigorously resumed work on her potato, speaking at the same time. "Pity about both o' you two, I do declare," she retorted, lapsing into the vernacular with which she loved to accompany her worst gibes. "'Pears to me that if he's so fond o' you he might n't have made you the poor, mean fag at nineteen that he's made o' me at forty-four; and if you are so fond o' him, why, you might try and catch a decent husband, with a few dollars in his pocket, to raise up the family out o' the mud and muck Francis Twining's got in in."

Claire's eyes flashed a little; but she was not specially angered; she was so used to this kind of verbal savagery.

"Father never meant anything but good to either of us," she said, "and you know it. I don't want to hear you speak against him when he is away and can't defend himself. I am able to defend him, if I choose. I think you know that, mother, by this time. I'm going out, as I told you. I shall be back rather soon, I suppose."

She left the kitchen, and presently the house as well. She might have stayed to wrangle; but she knew that would be for no purpose. She had stood up for her loved father so often, and always with the same results. Her wit was quicker than her mother's; it could thrust deeper and parry more dexterously; but she was very tired of this aimless warfare, where she got wounds that she hid and gave wounds that it cost her only pain to deal.

She had no definite idea whither she would go, on quitting the house. At first she took her way through the cheap and vulgar main street of Greenpoint. It was the first real day of Spring; the air was bland; something had called her forth to breathe it, even here in this dreary spot. She did not quite know whence the silent summons had come. She was by no means sure if it were her own youth that had called her, conspiring in some subtle way with the push of leaves and grasses out toward the strengthened sunshine. She had felt old and tired, of late; the monotony of toil had dulled her spirits; her mother's arrowy slurs had pierced and hurt her more than she guessed. But the mild atmosphere, stirred by tender breezes, made it pleasant to be abroad, even in this malodorous thoroughfare.

Everything was dull and common. It seemed a sort of beautiful outrage that the pure, misty blue of the afternoon sky should arch so contentedly over these slimy gutters, shabby tenements, dirty children, and neglected sidewalks. A German woman jostled against her as she passed onward; the woman carried a pail of liquid refuse, and issued from a near doorway. She had a tawdry red bow at her throat, one or two smaller bows to match it in her tossed blonde hair, and an immense flat water-curl glued against either temple, with the effect of some old hieroglyph. She was a beer-seller's wife, and she was about to empty her vessel of stale malt upon the neighboring cobble-stones. But the random speed of her gait caused her to collide abruptly with Claire's passing figure, and some of the contents of her pail shot out upon the latter's dress, making an instant stain.

Claire paused, and looked at the woman with a slight annoyed motion of the head. The offender was a high-tempered person; it was currently whispered by members of their special Tenton clique that her husband was a rank socialist who had been forced to fly the police of his native town overseas, and that she shared in secret his rebellious opinions. This may or may not have been truth; but the woman flung her pailful fiercely into the street, and then as fiercely confronted Claire.

"Vell, vat you got to say?" she cried, shrilly. "You looks at me as if I vass to blame for you running against me, ain't it? I see you before. You ain't much, annerhow. You got a big lot of airs; you valks shust like a grant laty." Here the virago dropped her pail, set a hand on either hip, and attempted, with sad lack of success, while two long, tarnished ear-rings oscillated in her big flushed ears, to imitate Claire's really graceful walk. "Sho," she continued, in sarcastic explanation of her parody, "You valks jush sho! Bud you ain't much. You ain't no laty. You better stop ride avay treing to be one. Dot's too thin, dot iss. Aha, you're off. I fought I'd freiden you!"

Claire was indeed "off," and moving somewhat briskly, too. She had grown rather white. This rude encounter left a harsh memory behind it. For some time she could not dissipate the recollection of the German jade's insolence.

"Perhaps she was right," her set lips at length murmured. "I am not a lady. I had better stop right away trying to be one."

A little later she had quitted the main street of the town, and gained an open expanse at whose verge the houses stood with wide gaps between them, as though a forlorn effort had been made to conquer vacancy by ugliness. But vacancy had won the fight; space never resisted time with more complete conquest. An immense drab plain, shorn of the least green feature, now stretched before Claire's gaze. On one hand, like a slow, interminable snake, wound a black thread of slimy creek, flanked by ragged embankments of crumbling clay. On the other hand was a dull, bare sweep, unrelieved by even a single hut. Far to the eastward, facing Claire, gleamed a wide assemblage of cottages; this was a settlement that some wag or optimist, whichever he may have been, had long ago named Blissville.

Claire had a fanciful thought, now, as she walked along the hard macadamized road which the incessant trains of funerals took toward Calvary, that Blissville, seen so distantly at the end of this treeless, herbless waste, was like the mirage glimpsed by a wanderer on a desert. But she might more aptly have compared the lonely desolation which encompassed her to those classic fields where the Greek and Roman dead found their reputed bourne. The shocking creek would have made an excellent Styx, and even the most barren imagination could have traced ready analogy between these monotonous levels of sun-baked mud and the flowerless lands where disconsolate shades were supposed to wander.

The tender amethyst sky, arching over this hideous spot, alone saved it, to-day, from the last sort of infernal suggestiveness. An enormous funeral presently appeared in sight, just as Claire reached a certain uncouth bridge that spanned a curve of the impure current. The slow procession of dark carriages uncoiled itself, so to speak, from the massed habitations of Greenpoint, and drew gradually nearer without yet revealing its final vehicle. It was a mortuary cavalcade of phenomenal length, even for the present place, where New York quite often sends some of her worst reprobates to their graves under conditions of the most imposing solemnity. The whole retinue was at last unfurled upon the smooth roadway, along which it crawled with something of the same serpentine stealthiness as that of the almost parallel creek. A sombre rivalry seemed evident now, between the two different streams.

This blank tract of repulsive land, so strangely dedicated to death, had lost every hint of Lethean likeness. The arrival of the funeral had wrought striking change. Here we had the modern mode of dealing with death. It seemed to make paganism wither and vanish. An old, half-rotten barge, moored in a slushy cove, might have served for an emblem of the decay and contempt now fallen upon antique legend. Was this the melancholy boat that once ferried the ghosts to Hades? Ah! but if so, the oars were lost, the planks leaked wofully, and the grim pilot had gone permanently away into the great shadow-land of all the dead gods! Claire looked toward the coming funeral, and shuddered in silence. There seemed so unholy a contrast between her own fresh, vital maidenhood and this ghastly, morbid domain. How had her healthful young spirit ever courted death, that it should thus force upon her its continued grisly fellowship? She placed both elbows on the rough balustrade of the bridge, leaned her fair girlish chin against both hands, and stared straight before her across the bleak heath.

Not far off several venturesome swine were waddling, they were near enough for their absurd grunts now and then to reach her, and for her to see the pink flush of their cumbrous bodies between coarse, soiled hairs, and the earthward thrust of their long, gray, cylindrical noses. But a moment later a flock of pigeons suddenly lighted just at the foot of the bridge, on a little loamy flat. The sight gave her a thrill of pleasure. It was so odd to get any bit of beauty here, and each bird was a true bit of beauty, with its flexible irised neck, its rounded sleekness, and its rosy feet. Presently the flock began their rich peculiar coo, and the sound fascinated Claire as much as their shapes had done. She quite forgot the advancing funeral; here were color, grace, and a sort of music. They had fallen to her, as might be said, from the skies.

In a dumb, unformulated way she wished that more of all three charms would so fall to her. It was such a wretched doom to dwell in this abominable suburb. All her youth was being wasted here. She was already getting rather old. She was already nearly twenty—four months of her twentieth year had gone—and she had been accustomed to think people quite old when they were twenty. Would it last years longer? Ah, to fly as those lovely birds could. Why have they come hither, of all places in the world? If she were a green and purple thing, with strong wings, like any of them, she would soar away to the window of some rich lady's house on Fifth Avenue, and be taken inside some handsome chamber, perhaps, and fed and petted—yes, even put into a cage, if the lady chose. A cage there would be better than one's full freedom here, where the dead were always going to their graves.

From a reverie which may or may not have resembled this if it had been made into actual language, the sudden spontaneous flight of the whole charming flock roused poor ruminative Claire. She now perceived that the funeral train had drawn much nearer. A sort of metallic resonance sounded from the many horse hooves on the hard surface of the road.

But another sound, at this point, turned her attention elsewhere. It was a cracked, thin, piping voice, and its utterances were delivered only a short distance from her side. She discovered that an old man had joined her on the bridge during her absorbed preoccupation with the pigeons. He was a very old man; he leaned on a staff, and was clad in an evident holiday attire of black, whose rusty broadcloth hung about his shrunken shape with tell-tale looseness; it had too evidently been cut for a far more portly person. He had a wrinkled face, and yet one of rubicund plumpness; a spot of red flushed each cheek, centring in a little crimson net-work of veins there, while the same peculiarity cropped out a third time, as it were, on the ball-like lump at the end of his irregular nose.

Claire had a feeling, as she looked at him, that he was a reformed toper. Everything about him told of present sobriety, but he was like a colored lantern seen without the illuminative candle; you had a latent certainty, as you regarded him, that only a few glasses of sufficiently bad liquor were needed to warm up those three red spots into their old auroral splendor. While speaking, he put forth a brown hand that trembled a good deal. The tremor came, no doubt, from senile feebleness, and the hand was so gnarled and knotty that it might also have been one of those rough excrescences which sometimes bulge from tree-trunks, instead of the sad rheumatic member that it really was. The new-comer spoke with an extremely strong Irish accent, and in a hollow, husky voice that implied, on first hearing it, a kind of elfin and subterranean origin.

"Begorra, ma'am, here it is, ma'am! I'm alludin' to the funeral, ma'am. Shure I made th' ould woman dress her up in mee besht clothes thish day, ma'am, so I did. Fur it's Mishter Bairned McCafferty that's to be buried thish day, I sez, ma'am, sez I to th' ould woman, I sez, an', sez I, ever since I haird he wasn't expected, I sez, it's his wake I wants to be goin' to. An' if I was too ould, I sez, to crossh over an' pay mee respecbits when they was to him in the city, sez I, it'll be meeself, I sez, that'll shtand here an' watch 'em parade 'im to Calvary, ma'am, sez I."

Claire had a pity for the old man, at first. But before his speech ended he had roused in her a repulsion. He appeared quietly hilarious; he had produced several distinct chuckles, and his wa'ery, pale eyes, which one of his misshapen hands soon shaded, revealed an actually gay twinkle.

"I don't see why you wanted to come out and watch the person go to his grave," said Claire. "What pleasure can that possibly give you?"

"Pleasure, ma'am, is it, ma'am?" was the startled response. "Why, shure, ma'am, it's the foinest funeral that's been seen in these parts, ma'am, fur manny a day! An' it's mee own son, Larry, that's drivin' the hairse, ye'll understand, ma'am, an' it's a proud day for Larry, so it is. Excuse me, ma'am, but do ye take sighs o' the hairse yet?"

"Oh, yes; very well," said Claire. "It has a number of wooden ornaments along its top, that are gilded and look like large black cabbages." She gave a little burst of weary laughter as she finished the last sentence, whose irony was quite lost on her dim-sighted companion. "And its sides are glass," she continued, "and you can see the large coffin within quite plainly, and there are four horses with white and black plumes."

"An'—an'—the carriages, ma'am, if ye plaise, ma'am?" eagerly questioned the old man. "Shure there should be forty if there's wan, ma'am, an' a few loight waggons thrown in behoind as well. How's that, ma'am?"

"I think there must be forty," said Claire, turning a curious look on the questioner, as he bent excitedly forward to hear her answer. "And there are several light waggons, also."

The old man rubbed his weird hands together in gleeful ecstasy, nearly toppling over as he did so, because the act necessitated a transient disregard of the needful prop lent by his staff. "Shure I towld th' ould woman jusht that!" he cried, in great triumph. "Shure I sez to her, sez I, Barney McCafferty's too daicent a man, I sez, to go to his grave, sez I, anny less daicenter nor that, I sez. It'll be forty carriages, I sez, if it's wan. An' there'll be a shport or so, sez I to her, ma'am (bee thish shtick in mee hand, ma'am, I sed it, ma'am), there'll be a shport or so that'll bring a buggy or so, sez I, for a woind up at the end, I sez. An' it's you I'm thankful to ma'am fur the loan o' your two broight eyes, ma'am, that lets me see the soight that. God's denied me, ma'am; an' I mean, wid a blessin' to yer, the shytle o' the hairse an' the gineral natur o' the intertainment altogether, ma'am, the Lord love yer fur yer friendly assistance!"

"Perhaps you can see the 'funeral better when it gets in front of the bridge," said Claire somewhat kindly, but with a shocked sense still remaining. Her varied past, that had shown her so many differing human phases, had not till now presented her the extraordinary fact of how positively festal are the associations with which the Irish, as our shores find them, are wont to accompany death.

At the same time she felt interested and rather curious. She could always manage, on brief notice, to feel interested and curious regarding any fellow-creature; and this trait (one that has grown historic among the most noted charmers of her own sex) was now tested to perhaps its last limits.

"Does your son always drive hearses?" she continued, unconsciously looking at the old man as if he were something in a museum, to be marveled at for antiquity and strangeness, but not, on pain of expulsion, to be touched.

"Oh, no, ma'am. Larry's wan o' the hands to a livery shtable, ma'am; but yer see, ma'am, he's timperance, an' so they gives 'im the hairse at mosht o' the high-toned funerals, bekase they're shure, then, that there'll be no dishrespect showed to the corpse, 'y understhand. An' it's always the behavior o' the hairse that's mosht cruticized, fur if that goes an' conses quiet, wid no singin' nur shkylarkin' on the part o' him that drives it, d' y' understhand, why there's lesh talk nur if all the mourners an' relashuns should come home shtavin' drunk, ma'am, d' ye mind?"

"And who is this Bernard McCafferty?" asked Claire.

"Is it Barney McCafferty that ye're ashkin' about?" was the old man's amazed response, a sharp falsetto note piercing through his usual huskiness. "Why, shure, ma'am, he run six places acrosh in the city fur tin years all to wanst, so he did, an' that nin't countin' the wan he kept in Harlem, naythur."

This explanation was delivered with an air of astonished rebuke, as though one should enumerate the possessions of some slighted prince.

"What sort of places do you mean?" inquired Claire.

The old man put his head on one side and looked at her with uneasy suspicion, as though he feargl she was making sport of him.

"Places? Why, liquor-athoros, to be sure."

"Oh," said Claire. "And what did he die of? Drink?"

Her companion brightened noticeably, and seemed to gain confidence in his questioner. He scratched one cheek, where the unshorn beard showed in white, b

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1884.

THE columns of THE CHRONICLE are open for the publication of short letters, either for or against the Scott Act.

THE first division in the Ontario Legislature took place yesterday morning, the Government being sustained by a majority of twelve.

THE Woodstock Times hints at the probability of opposition to Mr. Noxon in South Oxford, but we are of the opinion that it is simply idle talk on the part of our contemporary.

THE Scott Act will be submitted to the electors of the County of Oxford on Thursday, 20th March. A meeting of the advocates of the Act was held in Woodstock on Tuesday to organize for the campaign.

IT is positively asserted in Detroit that the main line of the Credit Valley railway will be extended to that city next summer. The majority of the knowing ones assert that it will be built from St. Thomas parallel with the Canada Southern track, but there are some who say that the extension will be from a point west of Ingersoll and will pass through London. The Canada Pacific is at the back of the scheme, and a charter will probably be applied for during the present session of Parliament.

WE are glad to see that an effort is being made to dispose of the old agricultural grounds and move the buildings to the town park, where from its convenient distance from town and ease of access, the annual fall fairs would receive a larger attendance, and no doubt prove more successful in every way. Some of our leading citizens have joined with others from the townships of North and West Oxford, and a determined effort is being made to hold each year an exhibition worthy of both town and country. A report of the meeting will be found elsewhere.

DISTRICT NEWS.

West Zorra.

Mr. Wm. Matheson has sold his fine span of general purpose mares for $400.

Mr. Jno. McLeod intends re-building the Harrington Hotel which was burnt down a couple of months ago.

The saw mill is running every day. Mr. S. Lampman has taken a contract from S. F. Rounds for cutting, drawing and sawing 300,000 feet of pine and hemlock.

Messrs. John McLeod and P. Dunbar, Harrington, cut a 2 foot log through in 38 seconds with a cross-cut saw; and Messrs. G. McKay and D. Reid did the same work in 1 minute and 10 seconds.

Thamesford.

The members of Court Thamesford I. O. F. spent a very enjoyable evening on Tuesday last. After Lodge they met at King's Hotel, where the proprietor and his good lady had provided an oyster supper and the table laden with everything that could be desired. After all had done good service to good things set before them, the usual toasts were proposed and responded to. The party dispersed in good order. Much credit is due to Mrs. G. W. McCarty, the proprietress, for the rich and bountiful spread. We wish the I. O. F. every success.

A number of young men of this place have a scheme on foot for the organization of a Joint Stock Farming Company. The capital stock to be $2,600 divided into shares of $25 each to stock and equipe a 200 acre farm, which will be rented. If successful in the forming of such a company, we hope their profits will be large. Mr. J. John Lake, President; Mr. Peter Forbes, Secretary.

North Oxford.

Thomas Chapman slaughtered a hog, which, when dressed, measured 6 feet 1½ inches in length and 29 inches through the shoulders. He was 2 years old, and weighed 750 pounds when dressed.

On Wednesday evening, January 30th, a successful attempt was made to organize Oxford Lodge I. O. G. T. at Dickson's Corners. A large number from Thamesford Lodge were in attendance as well as a good number from Beacon, Lodge, Ingersoll. Owing to the absence of grand organizer Rodden, of Toronto, Bro. D. Noxon, of Beacon Lodge, who had been especially commissioned a Provincial Deputy for the occasion, occupied the chair, and conducted the ceremonies of initiation and installation in a manner creditable to himself and to the Lodge of which he is a member. Oxford Lodge once more starts on its way with a membership of fifteen, all good workers, many of whom are old members of the Order. Following is a list of the officers for the ensuing term:—

W. C. T.—Bro. Wm. Colyer.
W. V. T.—Sister Mary Dickson.
W. S.—Bro. E. Elliott.
W. F. S.—Bro. Robt. Kerr.
W. M.—Bro. J. Hutchinson.
W. I. G.—Sister A. Winters.
W. O. G.—Bro. A. Kerr.
W. C.—Bro. W. Telfer.

At the close of the re-organizing ceremonies a good programme was gone through with, prominent among which was the following:—Instrumental music, Sister Maybee, Salford; Reading, Bro. N. Cowper, Thamesford; Song, by six Sisters of Thamesford Lodge, (loudly encored); Reading, Miss Bardnell, Thamesford; Comic Song, Bro. Pound, Thamesford; Reading, Bro. John Forbes, Thamesford; Recitation, Chester Henderson, Ingersoll; Duett, Sisters Bardnell & McClelland, Thamesford; Reading, Bro. P. Forbes, Thamesford.

Dercham.

R. Smart, Mt. Elgin, is selling off his stock by auction. Now for bargains.

Big sale of cows, etc., at Mt. Elgin, on Feb. 19. The property of Jas. Bell.

Protracted services are being held in the Ebenezer church near Culloden under Revs. Russell and Hamilton.

The Culloden Methodist Sabbath school has been reorganized. Mr. Albert W. Williams and Mr. R. J. Reddon are the superintendent and assistant for this year.

The White Bros. will give three of their very interesting concerts on the Salford Circuit as follows: Salem, Wednesday, February 13th, Salford, Thursday, February 14th, Ebenezer Church, Friday, February 15th. Concerts to commence at 7:30 p.m. Tickets 25 cents. Children 15 cents. Proceeds for the church. All are invited. D. HUNT, T. A. MOORE.

Salford.

The attendance of scholars at the school is growing. At a meeting of the school-board last week it was decided to hire an assistant teacher. Miss Aggie Barr, of Ingersoll, is engaged, and commenced her duties on Monday last.

Your correspondent is informed that Rev. Mr. Grant has resigned his charge of the Baptist church here, and a call has been extended to Rev. Mr. Woodward, of Burgessville.

The young people have been making the most of the good sleighing and moonlight nights. A number of sleighing parties have gone from here to enjoy the evening with friends, enjoying the ride, the visits and all the rest—even the upsets.

The quarterly meeting of the Methodist church was held at Salem last Sunday, when the Rev. Mr. Archer, of Dereham Centre, preached to a large congregation in his usual acceptable manner. Rev. Mr. Moore occupied Mr. Archer's pulpit.

Mr. W. Elliott, teacher of the school two miles east of our village is going to have an entertainment for the benefit of his school next Friday evening. A good time may be expected.

The members of the Salvation Army from Tilsonburg, who attend the next banquet in Ingersoll, will receive the hearty thanks of our citizens if they make a little less noise on their return home. We do not care for the loss of our rest, but are anxious the army should have no stigma attached to it.

The temperance cause is the topic of conversation with nearly everybody here. There were many who feared the petition had been rejected, but since it has been announced that the 22nd of March was to be voting day, everybody has had something good to say for it. There are many friends of the Canada Temperance Act in our village, and though divided in many things, we are a unit in trying to sweep our country of the accursed traffic.

The gravel road continues to be the subject of much complaint. Although the pitch-holes are very numerous and very deep, the tolls are collected all the same.

Society circles have been in a buzz of excitement during the past few weeks. The occasion was the marriage of one of the daughters of our respected fellow citizen, Mr. John Wilson, to Mr. Wm. Garry, of Mt. Elgin. The affair came off on Wednesday of last week, at the residence of the bride's father, when in the midst of about fifty of the friends of the happy couple, Rev. D. Hunt asked the usual questions, received the usual answers, bestowed the usual benedictions, and pronounced them man and wife. The happy couple launch the Benedictive barque, accompanied with many good wishes for fair weather and favorable winds, as they sail away over the sea of Matrimony.

Woodstock.

Bachelors' ball on Friday, 22nd Feb.

G. A. Hammett, oil dealer, has assigned to J. E. Boosey.

S. B. Fuller has sold his fine horse "Surprise" to Lord Melgund, secretary to the new Governor-General.

We are sorry to hear that G. R. Pattullo, of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, is seriously ill. He has been confined to his house for several weeks, but is now improving.

Miss Sadie Clutton, formerly of Aylmer, but whose parents are now resident at Watertown, Dakota, died at the Woodstock College a few days ago, this being the first death of a student at the institute.

Baker Pasha has sustained a severe defeat.

Sheriff Munro of Elgin County is dead.

Malcolm Graham, of Middlemiss, has identified the mask recently found near Iona as made of print sold by him to Albert Wrightman, now awaiting trial for the murder of Grant Silcox. The murdered man's pocket-book has been surrendered to the authorities by the party to whom Wrightman handed it at the time of his arrest.

NEW YORK'S FIRST STOCK EXCHANGE.

Speculators Who Dealt in the Certificates of Revolutionary Soldiers.

There is no reasonable doubt of the existence of an association of stock brokers in New York in 1792, and it is probable that it was formed at least three years earlier. After the peace of 1783 the impoverished officers and soldiers were compelled to sell their claims for services to speculators at very low rates. The value of these securities fluctuated with the probability that they would be recognized by a united government. After the inauguration of Washington and the meeting of congress in New York in 1789, there were fierce disputes about the recognition of these securities. The parties who dealt in them, and who were known as brokers, realized very large profits when Alexander Hamilton, the secretary of the treasury, carried through congress his measure by which certificates bearing a low rate of interest were issued to the holders, payable by the United States at a future day. There was an advance in values of from seventy to eighty per cent, but the soldiers, who had endured the hardships and risked the perils of the war, having for the most part been compelled to part with their claims, derived but little benefit from this funding law.

Large fortunes were made and much excitement followed. Wall street was the place where the principal transactions took place, and the centre of operations is said to have been near the spot where the old Tontine coffee house stood, on the northwest corner of Wall and Water streets. A soap boiler who invested about $1,500 in certificates is said to have retired to Newburg with sufficient means to live upon, and there were numerous cases of persons in humble circumstances whose profits enabled them to live at their ease and give their children advantages of which they had been deprived by their formerly narrow circumstances. The attention of the legislature was called to the evils produced by these speculations, and in 1792 an act was passed forbidding sales unless the sellers were the bona fide owners and holders of the securities they offered.

It is likely that this association languished in after years, and became a thing of the past, to be subsequently revived in later years, but it was the original Stock Exchange Association of New York.

Paper in Japan.

Paper is an article of great utility to our sisters in Japan. Not only do they use paper fans, pouches, and lanterns, but also paper pocket handkerchiefs, umbrellas, waterproof coats, walls, windows and string. The Japanese obtain it from a different source from our own. Instead of old rags being converted into clean paper, they make use of the bark of the Broussonetia papyfera, stripped, dried, and then steeped in water till the outer green layer comes off. It is cheap; four sheets of the ordinary quality being worth about one farthing. It is paper that does not tear evenly; some kinds are tough—more like cloth. When required for string it is deftly twisted into a strong twine, which in some cases is made of part of the paper forming the wrapper. When oiled, it is made into waterproof clothing, or stretched on a neatly constructed bamboo frame and used as an umbrella. One kind is manufactured to assume the appearance of leather, and is made into tobacco pouches, pipe and fan cases. The conjurors use a kind of white tissue paper in the famous butterfly trick, when a scrap, artistically twisted, hovers over a paper fan with all the fluttering movements of the living insect.

The Making of Shot.

The material is first prepared from the coarse pig lead by a refining process. This is carried to the top of the tower by means of a steam elevator. It is then thrown into the smelting-pot, which has a capacity of six tons. A composition, the chief ingredient of which is arsenic, is mixed with lead. This is done by a skilful hand, and the greatest care is necessary in the preparation. A certain temperature of heat is also required in the smelting process. The lead being in proper order, it is poured into a pan or sieve about twelve inches in diameter, containing several hundred round holes, from which a stream of shot drops to the bottom of the tower into a tank filled with water. The newly-made shot as it drops from the sieve very much resembles a shower bath stream. Here the use of arsenic and the necessity of the great drop is seen. The arsenic is used to keep the little ball of lead made by the sieve compact, while the drop is necessary to cool the missile in order that it retains its rotundity before reaching the tank. In this manner four tons of shot per hour are manufactured, different sieves being used for different sizes.

A Coming Dividend.

Last fall, when a would-be purchaser of railroad stock called upon Russell Sage, and asked him regarding the outlook of certain stock, Mr. Sage replied: "Splendid idea! That stock is certain to rise fifteen per cent."

"Upon what do you base your calculations?"

"Upon the immense crops to be moved along that line."

The other day the same gentleman again interviewed Mr. Sage regarding the same stock, and the great financier replied:

"Best outlook in the world for that stock! Certain to advance fifteen per cent."

"Do you base your calculations upon last fall's crops?"

"No, sir; it's going to be an open winter, and the line will save enough in snow-plows to declare a dividend of five per cent."

SERMON.

Preached by the Rev. W. W. Ross, in the King-street Methodist Church, on Sunday, Feb 3.

He spake also the parable: a certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and sought fruit thereon and found none. Then he said unto the dresser of his vineyard, Behold these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree and found none. Cut it down, why cumbereth it the ground? And he answering, said unto him, "Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it, and if it bear fruit, well: and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down."—Luke 13, 6-9.

This parable, brethren, has a double application, in particular at the time it was spoken to the Jews themselves. The lesson I read from the 5th of Isaiah has a parallel meaning, illustrating its application to the Jews. Its second application was generally to the Gentile world to the end of time. It comes to us and therefore I make no further reference, but apply it directly to ourselves. Our text contains a three-fold thought—blessing, the purpose of blessing, and the penalty of not filling that purpose.

First, then, blessing. Here we have a string of pearls; let us try to estimate the value of these pearls of blessings. I need hardly say that the fig tree is a symbol of a man, Jew or Gentile. The first blessing is the blessing of origin. A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard. That certain man is God himself. It was illustrated in the lesson read, 5th of Isaiah. I know there are some people who are ever ready to say, "It doesn't matter much whence it comes if you will only give him freedom, put him in the field, give him fair play." Give any man fair play, and if he have the right metal in him he will make his mark. Give him fair play—that is the point. Can any man have fair play in the battle of this life as a probationer, when he believes that he is come from nobody, a creature of chance? If a man is taught and believes that he is a creature of chance, without providential care, the probabilities are his life will be a life of chance. On the other hand if a man believes what my text teaches, that he comes from God, the probabilities are, other things being equal, that he will rise in the scale of life, that his battle will not be a failure. Take this for illustration: Here are two streams, one has its sources in the low lands, the other in the high lands away among the distant mountain ranges. Now, which of these streams has its advantage in its flow? The stream that has its origin away up beyond may fall in its descent very low, may wind about many tortuous windings, may go into many dark, forbidden places, yet all the time there is within that stream a force which makes it tend always upwards towards its source, but the stream that has its source in the low lands cannot get higher than its source. Just so exactly with us. I may make many crushed paths for myself. I may come into many dark places and through the "muddy waters of impurities." But if I believe in God, that I have my being from God, and know God if I have it, in that very thought there is an inspiring force of something better and higher. For man that cometh into the world hath this life in him, for "this is the light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." Now, I ask, doesn't it matter whether a man believes whether he came from higher or lower sources? What am I to gain by believing in this if I only expect probation in his hands? Let no man say (whatever he is) it doesn't matter where you came from! It does matter. Any man that does keep in mind every day—I came from God, how many temptations it will bring him through. He keeps this in mind—a conservative and reforming power. "A certain man planted a fig tree in his vineyard." The certain man was God. When the son of the celebrated Buffon came coolly to meet his doom at the gallows, he said "I am the son of Buffon." That explained to the people that wondered at that young man for the dignity, calmness, and beauty of his bearing until he takes his stand on the fatal drop. If there is anything that can make a man firm it is this—that God is my Father. I am the son of God. "I will be his God and he will be my son."

Another blessing. Blessing of character. The symbol is a fig tree. There is only one tree called by name in Eden. They sowed the leaves of the fig tree together and the Jews have a tradition written in their books that the tree of knowledge of good and evil was the fig tree and it is symbolical of man so hedged around by this awful prediction. If there is any truth in this then we have a shadowing of the greatness and dignity of the work of man. When Jesus wanted food when coming from Bethany to begin his work in Jerusalem He looked to a fig tree. Why does God look to man? A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard. Now take another blessing; the blessing of position. "Planted in a vineyard." It isn't common. It is a place selected adapted to its purpose. Fence it, builds a tower in it to shelter it from the storms and for a watch tower. This fig tree planted in a vineyard is man and the vineyard is this world. Brethern don't forget I want to be free from cant. I don't forget that this world is streaked and scarred and tainted by this sin yet at the same time the more I sit down and think upon it and compare one thing with another and try to get at facts (the hardest thing in this world) I declare the more I love the word which God has made. Don't misunderstand me. I believe the word which God has made is given us and every day I live no matter what trials come, the older I am the stronger the desire to work out the time alloted to me. This world is God's vineyard; it is a beautiful world. But it is apt to poison us; we don't look at it through the right kind of eyes. Jealousy gives the green eye. Look at the green eye. The false thing gives the false light on the beautiful things. What a beautiful world it is. We talk about the stormy severe winter and yet look—the cold snow which is playing outside is beautiful; take up that snow and subject it to science and your heart will thrill with joy as you study each snow flake. So with everything else.

The blessing of care. Then he said to the dresser of his vineyard, &c. This figure would be very familiar to the vine dresser of oriental lands. The vine dresser gives account of the vineyard to his lord. That is a very crude doctrine that Vishua made the world, flung it into space, and left it to work out its own salvation. Well it is a terrible doctrine, I go out to-morrow and take down my shutters, go out into the streets and have to deal with men that I don't know, and yet, no care over me, no direct sympathy to help, no overseeing eye, left wholly to myself amid pitfalls. Who of us would go out to-morrow and do our best with such a doctrine? and therefore I have a great deal of forebearing care that the Hiadoo don't care to meet. The vineyard was in care of the vine dresser. The vine dresser here means Jesus. When did the care of Christ commence over man? The scripture to my mind teaches me this, that it began as soon as man was made and put in the garden of Eden. Oh! it is a beautiful thought, and then following it down without a missing link, all things were made for him, the second person of the Trinity, and so when the Trinity had made man the father committed the care to his son, and hence I get one reason that he was so ready to go and save that man, not that he didn't exercise wisdom and power. Jesus said I will go and save the man with my own sacrifice. I give the teaching of God's book from Genesis to Revelation and cannot find one step that Jesus is not Trinity in the care of man. Christ is the vine dresser: Christ in his sympathy, wisdom, constancy and power. Again; take the blessing of extras:—I don't know how else to name it, it is this, "And he answering said unto him, Lord let it alone this year also till I shall dig about it and dung it and if it bear fruit, well; and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down." Let it alone this year also till I shall dig about it. You know the nature of a tree that the roots hold the sap that they become bound so sap cannot flow that in orchards apple and peach trees must often be dug about by the vine dresser. A man looking on over the fence, thus don't understand it, thinks it will destroy the trees. I am only loosening them and a little while in sunshine and shower there will be fruit in their season. So in life. Thus one of the extras is affliction. It is digging around and manureing with its enriching influences. Now just a thought before I come to my second line. I ask is there a spot on this earth (and I don't speak inadvisedly), as peaceful as this of ours? You may take it for the freedom of its press or its political, social and religious liberty, its general educational principles, character of the soil and general climatic influences, our peace in relationship to other people. Why are we not wonderfully enriched in the blessings we call extras and yet we don't think of it much after all of the many religious advantages of this sabbath day. Next point—purpose of blessing. Fruitfulness; God never gives a blessing to a man or brute but he intends it will yield fruit—further—on anything that has a power of reproduction, the grass of the field or herbs of the soil. The importance of this, may we gather from the symbol of the figtree. You know it is one of the most fruitful of all trees. On the Island of Malta the average weight of fruit on this tree is 280 pounds. One reason it is a symbol of man is the very nature of the tree having the leaves always follow the fruit contrary to the force of nature. Just so with man. Behold I come these three years seeking fruit on this fig tree. He gives man to see if that man is a reality. You will see this, that everything from the man, down or up bears fruit—man and God. The man, as Sir Walter Scott puts it, "The man is the God and God Jehovah is the God of man." Did you draw the line just there, take this tree. There's the bark, the bud, the flower and the fruit and the fibre, not a thing but will administer good to that man. Much as man receives from God it is he that has the most difficulty to yield fruit to the glory of God, when God looks for fruit it is bitter grapes.

"A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and sought fruit thereon and found none." It is a terrible thing. Take a man who has enjoyed the privileges of Sunday, the free press of the country, where you get God's own word for about nothing, and attending thousands of privileges to develop his brain, his moral and religious nature, who says: "I won't thank God; His sun may rest upon me, and his rain fall upon me, and his bread come into my mouth, I am not to thank God." The tree that would not bear God said cut it down. Then comes in the vine dresser who gives the penalty of not bearing fruit. Cut it down. I know the first thought that strikes you is severity. It doesn't say cut it partially through. Cut it down. It means destruction. I hear poets singing: "I trust that God will be the final good of all somehow."—good will be the final of all. With all my truthfulness of heart I cannot find anything to justify Tennyson in it. What am I? I have said I am an infant crying in the night, etc. Cut it down. Then God's son, the vine dresser says, let it alone this year, I will dig about it and bring greater influences to bear upon that man's life, and then if he won't bear fruit Jesus says cut it down. It was the purpose of blessing. It is just. There had been ample provision. "Another year." I find in the Bible men seemed to have two periods of probation in the influences of this world. One in Eden, and the other outside. The antedeluvian world had two thousand years of probation. It seems that this six months revival which we have had is our second probation. Influences are at work in this town; there has been an extra digging. I have worked as I never did before to get men saved, and I know that I don't stand alone, and perhaps men and ministers in this town have worked harder. I believe this is our second probation. Let it alone this year also, and then if it bears not fruit, cut it down.

LITTLE KNOWN CITIES.

Some of the Marvels of the Magnitude of India.

The English are beginning in a vague way to realize the magnitude of India, and to comprehend that it contains some 50,000,000 more people than all Europe west of the Vistula. Few, however, are quite aware of the number of its cities, or believe that it includes sixty-two with more than 50,000 people, and twenty-two with more than 100,000; namely, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Hyderabad, Lucknow, Benares, Delhi, Patna, Agra, Bangalore, Umritsur, Cawnpore, Lahore, Allahabad, Jeypore, Rangoon, Poona, Ahmedabad, Bareilly, Surat, Howra, and Baroda. We give them in order of population; but, properly speaking in the English way of counting, Howra, the Southwark of Calcutta, should be included in the capital, which with it contains above 866,000 souls, and it is the greatest, as it is by far the wealthiest, city in the Empire.

Below the limit of 50,000 the towns become much more numerous, and there are hundreds with populations above 20,000. The majority of the latter are quite unknown to Europeans, an active magistrate or two excepted; and, so far as we are aware, there is no book in English which gives the slightest account of their organization, or of the life and people in them. Yet many of them have histories of 2,000 years, and in all flourish families which think themselves noble, and have long pedigrees and stirring tales to narrate. We hear every now and then much of Indian princes who, in India, are hardly mentioned, and of "educated natives," a scarcely perceptible class, but of the true "British India" as little is known at home as of the eastern provinces of Peru.—London Spectator.

Marvellous Changes of Fifty Years.

Fifty years ago there was not a steam railway or an electric telegraph in the world. Now there are 90,000 miles of railroad and 300,000 miles of telegraph in this country.

Fifty years ago there was not an ocean steamship afloat. Now the greater part of the foreign trade of the United States is done by steamships. That trade in the year 1880 amounted to more than $1,500,000,000.

Fifty years ago the population of the United States was about 13,000,000. In 1880 it was more than 51,000,000.

Fifty years ago there was not a friction match, a revolver, a breech-loader, a percussion cap, or a sewing machine in the world.

Fifty years ago Bessemer steel, the photograph, the power-press, the mower and reaper, the process of electrotyping and stereotyping were unknown; illuminating gas had been introduced but eight years.

Fifty years ago the production of anthracite coal was but 174,734 tons; in 1880 the consumption was more than 25,000,000 tons.

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Baker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store. Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1584c-m

FOR SALE.

That elegant Villa, in the Town of Ingersoll, and bout 2 acres of land attached, lately occupied by the late James Batterby, Esq. Terms easy. Apply to MESSRS. BROWN & WELLS, Solicitors, Ingersoll

TO LET.

NORSWORTHY'S HALL,

Being the whole of the upper flat of Norsworthy's Block, King street. Would be given at a low rental for a term of years. Apply to

J. C. NORSWORTHY.

Ingersoll, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575cm

AUCTION SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE
FARM PROPERTY.

There will be sold by Public Auction, at Brady's Hotel, in the Town of Ingersoll, In the County of Oxford, on Saturday the 16th day of February

A.D. 1884, at 2 o'clock, in the afternoon, by

James Brady, Esq., Auctioneer,

The following valuable farm properties, viz:

PARCEL No. 1—The northerly 135 acres of Lot Number 23, in the 5th Concession of NORTH OXFORD,

(Formerly North Dorchester), and more particularly described in instrument registered in the Oxford Registry Office, No. 86,918. This parcel is situate about 5 miles West of the Town of Ingersoll, on the river road, and within a short distance of a church, School House, Cheese Factory. The soil is a light gravley loam, about 20 to 25 acres is timbered with Beech, Maple and Small Hemlock. The property is well fenced. There is on the Northern portion of this Parcel, a good Frame House about 30x22, 1½ storeys high, with wood shed attached. Frame Barn, about 40x30, with shed attached. A Frame Drive House, about 32x26; Frame Hog Pen about 16x14; An orchard containing a number of Apple, Peach, Cherry and Plumb Trees. There is on the Southerly portion of this Parcel, a log house, a good frame barn about 60x36, with good hog pen attached, a young and thrifty orchard.

This parcel will be sold subject to a mortgage for $5000; bearing 6 per cent. interest, and extending over a period of years. The purchaser to have possession on March 1st, 1884.

PARCEL No. 2—The Easterly 74 acres of Lot A, in the 5th Concession of the Township of NORTH DORCHESTER,

South of the River Thames, in the County of Middlesex; and more particularly described in instrument registered in the Registry Office for said County of Middlesex, at London, as No. 6,081. This parcel is situate about 10 miles from the Town of Ingersoll, and 6½ miles from Mount Elgin; about 15 to 20 acres of this parcel is high-land soil, sandy loam. The lowland is swampy. Government drain runs near by, making property easily capable of drainage. The knolls are timbered with Beech, Maple, Cherry, Oak and some Pine, the low parts with Black Ash and Tamarac. Possession of this parcel given immediately upon condition of purchase. This Parcel will be sold subject to a mortgage for $800.

The above properties will be sold in Separate parcels and subject to a reserved bid.

TERMS OF SALE.—Ten per cent. of purchase money to be paid down on day of sale, balance within 30 days thereafter.

For further particulars, apply to JAMES BRADY, Esq., Ingersoll.

Or to GEORGE W. WELLS, Vendor's Solicitor Simcoe, Ont.

Dated January 23rd, 1884. 1585

NOTICE.

FRIDAY
The First of February next, will be the last day for receiving petitions for Private Bills.

FRIDAY
The Eight of February next, will be the last day for introducing Private Bills to the House.

THURSDAY
The Twenty-First of February next, will be the last day for presenting Reports of Committees relative to Private Bills.

CHARLES T. GILLMOR,
Clerk of the Legislative Assembly,

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall-st., N. Y.

January 24th, 1884. 1585-48t

SOMETHING NEW
—IN—
STOVES

MILLS AND BUCHANAN
DEALERS IN COAL and WOOD
STOVES.
LARGE STOCK OF ALL THE LATEST IMPROVED KINDS.

FURNACES, FURNACES;
BEST IN THE MARKET.
MILLS & BUCHANAN
Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582c

Will be mailed FREE to all applicants and to customers of last year without ordering it. It contains illustrations, prices, descriptions and directions for planting all Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, etc. Invaluable to all.
D. M. FERRY & CO. WINDSOR, Ont.

ATKINSON'S
Parisian Tooth Paste!
Agreeable and Safe for Cleaning the Teeth
Sold in every Town and City of Canada.
PRICE 25 CENTS. [1575vy

HARDWARE.

AXES.

Canadian and American
X Cut Saws
Champion
Diamond,
Lance.

Large Assortment of Files.
Large Asst. of Butcher Knives.

Guns and Ammunition
A LARGE STOCK.

Second growth hand made Axe Handles.

A. H. ELLIS,
SIGN OF THE GOLDEN ANVIL.
Nov. 15, 1883. 1577

I. COYNE

Has just received an immense stock of

Grey and White Cottons, Check Shirting, Denims, Cottonades, Ducks, Prints, Etc.,

For the early spring trade, which he now offers by the yard or piece at

Rock Bottom Prices!

Piles of Prints from 5 cents per yard up. See our 35 inch Grey Cotton at 6¾cts. See our Check Canada Shirtings at 10c and 12½cts, worth 20 per cent. more. See our 30 cent. Cottonades for 25 cents. In Dress Goods and Silks I. Coyne offers astonishing value. Coloured Silks for 37½ cts worth 50 cts. Dress goods at 10, 12½ and 15 cts per yard, worth 20 per cent more.

You will consult your best interests by calling on I. COYNE when in Town and examining his immense variety of NEW GOODS. We take a pleasure in showing you through, no matter whether you buy or not.

I. COYNE has also just received a wholesale stock of Embroideries in beautiful designs, which he is selling at prices much below those of last spring.

EVERY LADY IN WANT OF EMBROIDERIES SHOULD SEE OUR IMMENSE VARIETY.

The largest stock and the largest assortment of New Goods in Ingersoll are to be found at I. COYNE'S.

PRICES DEFY COMPETITION.

I. COYNE.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

JAMES BADDEN
MANUFACTURER OF
Carriages, Buggies & Wagons
Of every description and the latest designs.
Call and examine stock before purchasing elsewhere. Shop on Charles Street, near McMurray's Hotel,

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT.

J. C. HEGLER.
Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557c-tf

SADDLE FOR SALE.

An imported English Saddle, in good condition. Will be sold cheap. Apply at THE CHRONICLE Office.

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE,

Cheap, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to H. O'CONNOR, Jr., Broker, Ingersoll.
January 10th, 1884. 1583m

BYCICLE FOR SALE.

An English Bycicle in good order. Cost $70, will be sold for $30. Apply at THE CHRONICLE Office.
Dec. 6, 1883. 1572

MONEY TO LOAN.

At 6 per cent.—£500,000

H. O'CONNOR, jr., Broker, Ingersoll.
Office—Opposite Imperial and Merchants Banks.
Ingersoll, Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578t

HOTEL FOR SALE.

That large three-storey brick hotel, known as The "Albion," Embro, is offered for sale or exchange for farm or town property; one of the best paying hotels in the County; also 50 acres improved land in Houghton Township.

For terms and particulars, apply to C. GARNER, Thamesford P.O.
June 21st 1883. 1554f

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that

GEORGE BAILEY, of the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, and Province of Ontario, Carriage Maker, has made an assignment to

ALFRED H. ELLIS,

Of the said Town of Ingersoll, Hardware Merchant, of all his real and personal estate for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said George Bailey, are requested to send by post prepaid to the undersigned, on or before the said

Ninth day of March next

A statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration.

The said Trustee will after the said Ninth day of March next, proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rata among the creditors of the said George Bailey, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll, this tenth day of Jan., A.D, 1884.

A. H. ELLIS, Assignee.

BECK.

HAVING
Bought out the Business
Lately carried on by
ROBT. YOUNG
We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of
FRUIT
OF ALL KINDS,
CANNED GOODS
Fine Confectionery.
OYSTERS
JELLYS, JAMS
Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,
And hope by close attention to busines and
SELLING CHEAP
To merit the patronage of the public.
GEO. BECK.
Ingersoll, Dec. 20th 1883. 1580

HOLD ON
—AND—
Dont be in a Hurry
—BUT—
GO STRAIGHT
—TO—
SHRAPNELL'S
AND BUY YOUR
Xmas Goods
Candies, &c.,
—AT—
Half Price
FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY
AT SHRAPNELL'S,
FOR CASH ONLY.
Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580

DAVID WHITE & CO.

Having gone through their stock preparatory to stock taking, find they have still lines to be sold out

AT BARGAINS

Before the opening of the spring trade.

REMEMBER

We give BIG DISCOUNTS off Furs, Mantles, and all Wool Goods.

DAVID WHITE & CO.

Ingersoll, Jan. 31st, 1884. 1586

NOTICE.

Just Received an Immense Stock of

Wall Papers and Borders

Of the newest designs, which will be offered at VERY LOW PRICES in order to induce customers to commence house cleaning early, at

L. THOMPSON'S

Wall Paper, Stationery, Oil, Color and Window Glass Store, McCaughey's Block, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, Februury 7th, 1884. 1587

VALENTINES. VALENTINES.

FINE ASSORTMENT

5c up to $5, all in boxes ready for mailing. Also full Line of Comics, Hitemhards, Etc., at

P. W. CAMPBELL'S
BOOK STORE.

Ingersoll, Feb. 7th, 1884. 1587

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.

LAND REGULATIONS.

The Company offer Lands within the Railway Belt along the main line, and in Southern Manitoba, at price ranging from

$3.50 PER ACRE.

Upwards, with conditions requiring cultivation. A rebate for cultivation of from $1.25 to $3.50 per acre, according to price paid for land, allowed on certain conditions. The company also offer lands WITHOUT CONDITIONS OF SETTLEMENT OR CULTIVATION,

THE RESERVED SECTIONS,

Along the Main Line, i.e., the odd numbered Sections within one mile of the Railway, are now offered for sale on advantages terms, to parties prepared to undertake their immediate cultivation.

TERMS OF PAYMENT.

Purchasers may pay one sixth in cash, and the balance in five annual instalments, with interest at SIX PER CENT. per annum, payable in advance.

Parties purchasing without conditions of cultivation, will receive a Deed of Conveyance at time of purchase, if payment is made in full.

Payments may be made in LAND GRANT BONDS, which will be accepted at ten per cent. premium on their par value and accrued interest. These Bonds can be obtained on application at the Bank of Montreal, Montreal; or at any of its agencies.

FOR PRICES and CONDITIONS OF SALE and all information with respect to the purchase of Lands, apply to JOHN H. McTAVISH, Land Commissioners, Winnipeg. By order of the Board.

CHARLES DRINKWATER, Secretary.

Montreal, December, 1883. 1583t-m

Hearn & Co

ARE SHOWING A LARGE STOCK OF

BLACK & COLORED SILKS.

Black and Colored Silk Velvets,

Black and Col. Velvet Plushes,

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Also for evening wear a large assortment of

FLOWERS AND FEATHERS.

DON'T FAIL TO

SEE OUR STOCK.

We are also selling the Balance of our winter stock at great reductions.

INSPECTION INVITED.

WHEAT WANTED.

800-Bushels Wheat Per Day-800

For which the very highest market price will be paid at the

Ingersoll Rolle Millls.

Gristing Done on the Hungarian System
Chopping Done as before the change.

TERMS CASH.

WM. PARTLO.
Ingersoll, Nov. 22, 1883. 1765tf

An Old Soldier's
EXPERIENCE.

"Calvert, Texas,
May 5, 1883.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Special—Royal Baking Powder.
Special—Warner's Safe Cure.
Special—Butter Colour.
Medical—Kidney Wort.
Special—Kidney Wort.
Special—Diamond Dyes.
Dry Goods—I. Coyne.
Valentines—P. W. Campbell.
Notice—L. Thompson.
Notice—T. R. Mayberry.
Cattle Fair and Sale—G. W. McCarty.
Town Hall—Haverly's Minstrels.
Town Hall—Only a Woman's Heart.
Notice—T. R. Mayberry.
Horses Wanted—D. H. Knapp.
Auction Sale—Joseph Bell.
Notice—Jas. Dunphy.
Auction Sale—Robt. Smart.
Carnival—The Rink.
London Loan Co—M. J. Kent.
Jerseys—Valancey E. Fuller.
Wanted—W. H. Hayes.
Special—Jas. McIntyre.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

CARNIVAL on Friday evening, 15th.

H. J. LEWIS, grocer, has made an assignment.

FIRST spring show of umbrellas on Tuesday.

NEXT Thursday will be St. Valentine's Day.

THE Lenten season begins February 27th, and closes April 13th.

THE soft spell just got here in time to be called a January thaw.

REMEMBER the fancy dress skating carnival on Friday evening, 15th inst.

WOOD is cheaper. Good green beech and maple is selling at $3.50 per oord.

MINSTRELS. — Haverly's Minstrels will appear in the town hall to-morrow (Friday) evening.

DRAMATIC.—"Only a Woman's Heart" Dramatic Company will appear in the town hall on Tuesday next.

SERVICE was held in KNOX church, St. Thomas, on Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Ross, of Ingersoll, occupying the pulpit.

FINED.—Three young men were fined by J. M. Wilson, J. P., for running the toll gate on the Port Burwell gravel road.

NEW GROCERY.—Nelles and Stevens have opened out in groceries, etc., in the store lately occupied by J. O'Neil, Thames St.

OLD David Hall and wife (coloured) who lived a long time in Ingersoll, and removed to Pennsylvania last fall, both died recently.

OPERATIC.—The opera of "Martha" and "Sir Marmaduke," in the town hall this (Thursday) evening, by the Boston Opera Co.

ALWAYS AHEAD.—Mr. McIntyre has purchased a very stylish new glass hearse, which, with the former hearse, will enable him to fill all orders in the undertaking line promptly. 87t

THE telephone wires have been put up on the street poles. The reporter watched an active chap at work climbing the poles for half an hour hoping to get an item but was disappointed.

PASSED.—The Central Committee of Examiners of the Education Department, upon re-examination of the papers, granted a 1st Class Certificate to Miss Aggie Barr, a pupil of the Ingersoll High School.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT. — Alex. Webster, switchman on the Grand Trunk Railway, here, met with a painful accident last Thursday morning, while coupling cars. A portion of his hand had to be amputated.

FLOUR STOLEN.—On Friday night last some parties broke into the Carroll Mill carried on by Mr. Jas. Smith, and stole about 500 lbs of flour. A man named Robb. Roberts has been arrested on suspicion.

THE E. T. Barnum wire and iron works company, of Detroit and Windsor, are looking for a better place than Windsor, to erect large shops. Perhaps a little exertion on the part of our town fathers, would induce them to settle here.

AMUSEMENTS.—Messrs. Hobbs and Robinson, of Woodstock, are making a circuit of the different towns in this and adjoining counties, with several dramatic and operatic troupes, so that our citizens may look for several attractions in the near future. The Haverlys and the 'Only a Woman's Heart' companies are being brought here by the above.

CONCERT AND LITERARY ENTERTAINMENT. —Beacon Lodge, I. O. G. T., of this town, have shown considerable enterprise in securing the Fax Family and Company to give one of their humorous and artistic entertainments, which takes place in the Town Hall, on Thursday evening, February 14th. From what we know of the abilities of the Fax Family, we feel warranted in saying the affair will be a good one, and that the audience will not in any way be disappointed. Our citizens will do well to patronize this Concert.

SUNDAY NIGHT LECTURES. — On Sunday evening last, Rev. R. B. Rowe gave his first "Sunday Night Lecture," in the Bible Christian Church, his subject being "Egypt." This lecture proved to be one of the most interesting and pleasing ever given in this town. Mr. Rowe used maps, diagrams and so forth, and from beginning to end kept his congregation riveted in deep attention to his instructive lessons. The second lecture will be given in the above church on Sunday evening next, being a continuation of the subject already mentioned. We are convinced that those present last Sunday evening will not miss the future lectures, and no doubt many others will also be present. The lectures given free, but for all that they are well worth a good admission fee. Remember the next lecture will be given on Sunday evening, 10th inst,

TEA MEETING.—The adherents of the Ingersoll Baptist Chapel will hold their annual tea meeting on the evening of Wednesday, 20th inst. The tea will be spread in the basement, after which a musical and literary programme will be submitted in the main body of the church. The noted White Bros. will furnish the musical portion, which is a sure guarantee that it will be a rich treat. The Ministers of the town will give short addresses. Our Baptist friends are known for having the most successful tea meetings in this section, and we are satisfied this one will even surpass, if possible, all former efforts. Tickets, 40 cents, or three for $1. We are pleased to note that affairs have flourished since the Rev. Mr. Speller took charge, and that the debt which hung over the congregation for a long time has been wiped off, and everything looks bright and satisfactory. This fully justifies us in saying that the coming anniversary will be the most auspicious in the annals of the Ingersoll Baptist Chapel.

HYMENEAL. — On Tuesday morning St. James' Church was the scene of a large gathering the occasion being the marriage of Miss Bland to Mr. George Beck of Detroit. Some time before the commencement of the ceremony the spacious church was filled to the doors. At 11.30 the bride appeared leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Harry Bland, by whom she was given away. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward M. Bland, brother of the bride and rector of St. James'. Miss Bland's bridesmaids were Miss Manning of Toronto, Miss S. Stinson and Miss Paine of Ingersoll, Master Maltby Bland and Miss Agatha Bland, nephew and niece of the bride, acting as pages. The groomsmen were Mr. Adam Beck, brother of the groom, of Detroit, Mr. C. Warnock, Galt, and Mr. Muller, Hespeler. The bride was dressed in handsome cream satin, with veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were dressed in cream nun's veiling and crimson velvet bonnets. The organist of St. James', Miss G. O'Grady, rendered some appropriate selections on the organ, and the choir, under the leadership of Mr. W. Robinson, sang beautifully. Below is the musical programme:

INSTRUMENTAL.

Fantasia Alla Marziale.....Suppe
Wedding March.....Berg
Interlude from "Puritani".....Bellini
Swedish Wedding March.....Sodermann
(Played during the entrance of guests.)
Extract from "Grand Offertoire," Wely, and Wedding Chorus from "Les Huguenots" Bellini
"Take this Ring."
(Played as Interlude during ceremony.)
The Chimes.....Wagstock
(Played immediately on conclusion of ceremony)
Wedding March.....Mendelssohn
(Played as bridal party walked down the church.)

VOCAL.

Opening Hymn, 464, "The voice that breathed o'er Eden."Sullivan
Duin Misericator, duet and chorus.....Kingsley
Hymn 455, "Rest on the Lord."Dykes

At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the rectory for breakfast. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome and useful presents. The newly-wedded couple left on the afternoon train for New York, carrying with them the best wishes of many Ingersoll friends.

HAND in your subscriptions for any paper publication in the world, to J. G. Campbell in the Post Office Book Store. 81r

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver crust stands at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79.

FOR pure and unadulterated honey, in comb and extract, go to R. Vance's. 86

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

Personal.

Dr. McCausland has gone to Galveston, Texas.

T. C. Patteson, P. M., Toronto, was in town Monday.

Thos. Ballantyne, M. P., President of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association, was in town Monday.

Messrs. Jas. Simister, C. W. Clinch, C. C. L. Wilson, and Mrs. Haskett left for Montreal on Tuesday. Mr. Norsworthy ticketed the party through to their destination.

B. Robertson, of Montreal, grandson of Mrs. J. Alexander, of this town, who has been spending his holidays here, returned home last week. His tobbogan was very much appreciated by some of our young ladies.

Alex. Rumsey, accountant in the Imperial Bank, St. Thomas, and son of W. A. Rumsey, of this town, having been promoted to a position in the Toronto agency, was entertained by his fellow clerks to a complimentary supper. The spread was an excellent one, and an enjoyable time was spent. During the evening Mr. Rumsey was presented with a couple of oil paintings.

Curliana.

The Tilsonburg curlers are thinking of giving the Ingersoll club a whirl.

A rink of young players from Sarnia play a rink of young players of the Ingersoll Club, on the covered rink here to-day.

A curling match was played at the Richmond Street Rink, London, Friday afternoon between the Ingersoll and Thamesville clubs, for the Caledonian medal. After a well contested game the Thamesville club came out victorious by thirteen shots.

Why don't our curlers win a game for a change?

"The rink is swept—the tees are marked—
The bonspiel is begun, man;
The ice is true, the stanes are keen,
Hurrah for glorious fun, man."

It is claimed on behalf of Ontario curlers that iron is inferior. Quebec men deny this most emphatically, asserting that there is really more science and better work done by iron stones. "Give me iron stones for fine work," said the oldest of Canadian curlers. Stones, it appears, are satisfactory on rough outdoor ice but Quebec rinks are all well supplied with good smooth ice the winter round and iron suits them best.

SKATING carnival a week from to-morrow.

SALVATION ARMY.—The farewell banquet to Capt. O'Leary in the town hall on Thursday evening last was attended by a large number. The all-night service in the barracks was also well attended, many from a distance being present. Capt. O'Leary goes to Woodstock.

BOGUS BANK NOTES.—A gentleman in town who is in pecuniary difficulties has received a sympathetic letter from a New York rascal offering to supply him with bogus bank notes. It is sufficient to say that those goods are not even manufactured. If one sends his money he will receive by mail a package of brown paper or sawdust—but no bogus goods even.

LIQUOR CERTIFICATES IN HALTON.—A return of all the certificates granted for liquor, under section 99, chapter 3, of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act of 1878, by physicians of the county of Halton, from May 1st to Dec. 31st, 1882, laid before Parliament, shows the number of such certificates to have been 607.

SHARPERS.—A Goderich paper says there are cunning, designing agents travelling; some with shoddy cloth, some with fence material, others with books. Do not be deceived by the bargains offered to you, and do not accept an agency, or give your name; be sure and sign no order that has a lot of printed stuff on it that is intended to catch you. Look out for them.

DANGEROUS.—Now that the ice business is in full blast, our authorities should see that precautions are adopted to protect people from falling into the holes out of which the ice has been cut. The contractors should be compelled to fence or otherwise give warning of any open water made by them in getting out their ice.

FRUIT GROWERS MEETING.—The winter meeting of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association was held at Woodstock on Wednesday and Thursday last. The meeting was a most successful one. We shall give some of the most important addresses from time to time in our Farm and Dairy department, on fourth page.

THE HOLMANS.—"Iolanthe" was presented to a crowded house by the Holmans on Friday evening last. Every seat was occupied and many standing. The audience showed their appreciation of the play by frequent applause, and we have no doubt when this popular company visits Ingersoll again they will be as well patronized.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES. — Anniversary services will be held in the Presbyterian Church, Ingersoll, next Sabbath, 10th. The Rev. J. Allister Murray, of London, will preach morning and evening. On Monday evening, 11th, a school entertainment will be given. Tea served for the children at 6 o'clock in basement of the Thames street church. After tea all will go over to Knox Church, when addresses will be given by Revs. Murray of London, and McKay of Woodstock. Excellent music furnished by the S. School children. All interested in S. S. work are invited to attend.

THOSE TELEPHONE POLES.—The poles which have just been erected in this town are a credit to the Bell Telephone Company. They are straight and uniform in appearance and we are informed by the agent of the company here, Mr. C. C. L. Wilson, are to be painted a uniform colour. The company showed consideration for our business men by not erecting poles on our principal business thoroughfare from Charles to King streets. The company also applied to the council for a permission and a committee of the council was appointed to superintend the work. The men who had charge proceeded with their work with a view of discommoding our business men as little as possible. The epithets applied to them by a contemporary last week are therefore not warranted by the facts.

I. O. G. T.—A public installation of officers of Beacon Lodge, I. O. G. T., took place in the Y. M. P. B. A. Hall on Monday Feb. 4th. Owing to the absence of Bro. A. C. Size L. D., Bro. T. H. Hirst, Senior P. W. C. T., acted as installing officer, when the following officers were installed for the present quarter. :—

W. C. T.—Bro. E. M. Henderson.
W. V. T.—Sist. J. Baker.
W. S.—Bro. H. Lindsay.
W. F. S.—Bro. C. Traut.
W. M.—Bro. B. Secord.
W. O. G.—Bro. J. Baker, Jr.
W. C.—Rev. G. Lawrence.
W. D. M.—Sist. B. Cole.
W. A. S.—Sist. T. Watson.
W. R. H. S.—Sist. J. Reid.
P. W. C. T.—Bro. D. Noxon.
L. D.—Bro. A. C. Size.
Organist—Sist. S. Mabee.

A number of officers who were elected were not installed owing to their not being present. After the installation a lengthy programme was gone through with, prominent among which was the following: A reading by Bro. Page was very appropiate and well rendered, as was also a song by Mr. E. Fairbanks of Centerville, who was loudly encored, a duett by Sist. E. Fairbanks and Bro. T. H. Hirst received an uproarous encore, to which Bro. Hirst responded and sang Jim Fisk, receiving loud applause; Miss Emma Traut sang a song in a beautiful manner, although only six years of age she could be distinctly heard in all parts of the hall. Those who were fortunate enough to hear the performance of Messrs. Winslade and Dominey on the violin will never forget it, the rendering of the Mocking Bird was done in a masterly manner and reflects great credit on both performers. The temperance choir under the joint leadership of Bro. T. H. Hirst and E. M. Henderson, considering the short time in which they have been in practice, acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner, their rendering the anthem, Rise up to Labor, was very fine. Rev. Bro. Lawrence occupied the chair and performed his duties in a very pleasing manner. The above lodge have secured the world renowned Fax family to give a concert in the Town Hall, Feb. 14th, this will be the best entertainment given in Ingersoll this season and no one should miss it.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

ALL grocers keep Moss & Co's Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, ask for it and take no other. 75

A good second hand organ wanted. Address box 435, Ingersoll. 81.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

No table is complete without Moss & Co's Celebrated Mustard. 75

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.25 The best value ever offered in Ingersoll. — S. P. Logee. 56

TRY Moss & Co's. Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, for sale by all grocers. 75

TOWN COUNCIL.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening last.

Members present: Messrs. Seldon, Watterworth, Gibson, Horsman, Waterhouse, Walley, Nelles, Richardson, McInnes, Buchanan and O'Connor.

In the absence of Mayor Noxon, Reeve Seldon took the chair.

The minutes of the preceding meetings were read and signed by the chairman.

Treasurer's report for January read showing balance on hand of $1800.22.

Mr. Noxon enters and takes his seat.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That the sum of $17.90 be paid Mr. Woodcock, being the statutory amount due him for registration of births, deaths and marriages within the limits of the corporation for 1883, and that the Mayor sign order for the same.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved, That the mover have leave to bring in a by-law to raise funds to meet current expenses of the town and that by-law be now read the first time.

By-law 177 to raise funds was read first and second times when the Council went into Committee of the Whole with Mr. Waterhouse in the chair.

On motion it was decided to raise $15000 to meet current expenses.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, secondad by Mr. Seldon and resolved, That the Committee of the Whole do now arise and report by-law 177 as passed in Committee of the Whole with blanks filled up.

Council resumed His Worship in the chair.

On motion the by-law was read for the third time and finally passed.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Nelles, that there be a Board of Works for the ensuing year and that the following gentlemen comprise said Board: Messrs. Watterworth, Matheson, Gibson, Richardson and the mover.

Mr. Gibson said he would like to enquire what the duties of the Committee were likely to be. If they were to be anything like last year he could not undertake it. Mr. Gibson was willing to do anything reasonable, but would not consent to undertake a work which would take three months of his time in addition to three weeks in Woodstock. The mover of the resolution should define his policy —what he means by it!

Mr. Seldon said the reason he moved the appointment of the Board so early in the year was to secure the lumber required which could be done to better advantage now than later on. The duties of the Board would probably be the same this year as last. He, Mr. Seldon, didn't intend to spend the time on the work this year he did last. More satisfaction was given by a Board of Works than by Ward Committees. His reason for making the selection he had was to give each Ward fair representation.

Mr. Watterworth was in favour of a Board of Works properly constituted. He objected to his name being placed first on the Board and giving aim the chairmanship. He had spent a good deal of time on the work last year but didn't intend to spend so much again. The town was perfectly able and should engage a competent person to act as superintendent at a salary. He, Mr. W., insisted on his name being placed otherwise than first on the list.

Mr. Seldon failed to see why Mr. Watterworth objected to having his name first. It wasn't customary for the first named on the list to be chairman. The Committee could elect their own chairman.

Moved by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, and resolved, That the Council go into Committee of the Whole on the resolution now before the Council appointing a Board of Works.

Council in Committee of the Whole, Mr. McInnes in the chair.

Mr. Gibson said under certain circumstances he was in favour of a Board of Works. The town was tired of the Ward Committee system, but yet that system might be worked better. The Board of Works promised to become more objectionable if members of the Council were expected to spend three months of the season going over the work. He wouldn't take the position if he could not do it justice, and he could not give three months of his time to the work.

Mr. Noxon thought the resolution proper as far as it went but it should be followed by another resolution that the town employ a competent engineer. It would be economy on the part of the town to employ a competent person to act as engineer. The town would not be benefited by going back to the Ward Committee system. He, the speaker, made it a motion that the Board of Works be assisted by a competent engineer to prepare estimates and superintend the work. Mr. Gibson seconded it.

Mr. Seldon said the engineer would cost about one quarter of the amount expended by the Board.

Mr. Watterworth said that any good practical man would make a good engineer. The work this year was largely repairing. There would be no work of any great importance.

Mr. Richardson thought it impossible for an engineer to come down to approximate estimates when the work was that of repairing old sidewalks. The Board was perfectly competent to handle the money and would make no ill use of it. The employment of an engineer would take about one quarter of the funds handled by the Board.

Mr. Gibson said some of the members were needlessly alarmed at the cost of an engineer. They had stated he would cost one quarter of the amount handled. Last year the Board of Works had handled $2600. The cost of an engineer for two months, which would be about all the time he was needed at $3 per day would be but $156 and from having their superintendent always on the spot the extra exertion put forth by the workman would more than pay the engineer's salary.

Mr. Seldon was willing to withdraw his motion or add anything to it.

Mr. Watterworth—The best thing is to adopt the suggestion of Mr. Noxon and employ an engineer.

Messrs. Matheson and Buchanan were also in favour of the employment of an engineer.

After some further debate it was found that the resolution on which the Council had gone into Committee of the Whole had been torn up by the Clerk, an act which called forth a stiff rebuke from the Mayor.

On motion the Council resumed without reporting.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That inasmuch as the Clerk has seen fit to destroy a motion moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Nelles, appointing a Board of Works, thereby destroying all record of what the Council went into Committee of the Whole on, and the Council resumed in consequence without reporting, the Council begs to express its strongest disapprobation of the Clerk's action.

On motion Constable Grey's salary for January, $25, was ordered to be paid.

Moved by Mr. Seldon, seconded by Mr. Nelles, and resolved, That there be a Board of Works for the ensuing year and that the following gentlemen comprise said Board: Messrs. Watterworth, Gibson, Richardson, Matheson and the mover, and that said Board be assisted by a competent person to prepare estimates and superintend the work as required.

On motion Stephen King's account ($39) for six street lamps and frames was ordered to be paid. An order was also ordered to be drawn in favour of W. J. Murdoch for $2.50 for one cord of wood supplied the fire department in September, 1882. Account of R. M. Deuell, $13.45, for wood was ordered to be paid.

On motion $60 was placed to the credit of the chairman of the Indigent Committee.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That the Treasurer be authorized to place the various amounts now standing to the various Committees of 1883, in general fund in order to balance the books. Save and except what moneys are standing to the credit of the Street Watering account.

Moved by Mr. Walley, seconded by Mr. Horsman, that the Committee on the constable business have their time extended in which to report for one month, and that the Committee be empowered to advertise for applications.

Mr. Gibson said there was one thing about the constable business which struck him as being somewhat strange, the old Council knew that Mr. Grey did not discharge his duties satisfactorily, yet they did not discharge him. What did the present Council know about Mr. Grey? It looked as if they were going to dismiss an official without evidence of his inefficiency.

Mr. Seldon said it was plain enough that the Constable had not done his duties.

Mr. Walley's motion on being put was carried.

Moved by Mr. Matheson, seconded by Mr. Buchanan, and resolved, That the Mayor sign an order in favour of the Gas Light Co. for the following accounts for December: 38 street lamps, $69.68; town hall, $7.31; engine room, $5.60.

Moved by Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. McInnes, and resolved, That each member of this Council be supplied with a copy of the rules governing the Council.

On motion the Board of Works was given power to purchase 9000 feet 3x4 inch white oak scantling.

On motion $25 was placed to the credit of the Market and Printing Committee and a like sum to the credit of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

Council adjourned.

THE SCOTT ACT.

Prohibitionist Meeting at Woodstock on Tuesday—Organized for the Fight.

On Tuesday last the Prohibitionist people of the county to the number of about 150, gathered in the Methodist church, Woodstock, for the purpose of discussing and arranging matters in connection with the Scott Act campaign now in progress in the county of Oxford. The delegates came from all parts of the county and each seemed to be in the best spirit, while the reports were all of the most encouraging nature.

The meeting was opened by the President, Rev. W. A. McKay, B. A., and after singing and prayer the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The President made a number of very encouraging remarks in reference to the work already done in this county, and expressed satisfaction with the progress made by the temperance cause.

The lecturer of the association, Rev. C. R. Morrow, then brought his report before the convention, in which he referred to the work that he had done. He had attended meetings in some sixty different places, had been well received, and promises of success were very bright from each place.

Mr. C. W. Oliver, solicitor of the association, then made his report. He had received letters from the Secretary of State desiring further information regarding the petition, and as each of these requests was founded on complaints that had been made, he had been kept very busy showing up the groundless nature of the complaints. He had conferred with Mr. Ball, County Attorney, and they had struck off from the voters some 500 names that were duplicated. It had been announced that the 13th day of March, 1884, was the day appointed by Government for voting on the Act, but on the publication of the announcement in the Canada Gazette, the 20th of March was proclaimed as voting day. The change was made so that the elections would not come on the same day as the voting for representative to the Legislature for South Oxford. He was encouraged because after all the complaints laid the petitions had come through clear and sound, and now the day of polling is announced, notwithstanding all opposition.

Committee for nomination was appointed and business proceeded with expedition. Arrangements were made to hold meetings throughout the different municipalities of the county. The auditing committee reported that the total receipts have been $1119.72, and the expenditure $915.77, leaving a balance of $203.95 in our treasury.

The announcement that every minister in the county is in favor of the Temperance Act was received with much pleasure and the delegates were delighted with the report that already temperance houses are being established in the different places.

The Rev. Mr. Brethour, of Milton, was introduced to the convention. He was glad to be at this most important convention, the outcome he thought he betokened success. During the past few weeks he had been associated with the leading temperance men of our Dominion, and they had only words of cheer. The Dominion Alliance had given the opinion that temperance sentiment had made wonderful strides. From British Columbia the news came through Mr. Shakespear, M. P., that the movement is making great advances, and now, in the interest of this curse there is a bill before the House of Legislature asking for suffrage for women. In Prince Edward Island they are about to take a repeal vote in Prince County with prospect of sustaining the Act by a large majority. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are both going ahead. In your present contest you have a bold enemy. The petitions, while at Ottawa, he was in a position to know, met with a most determined opposition. Your enemies have tried to move heaven—no, not heaven, I take that back—but earth and the other place, to get the Act voted down out. But their efforts have failed, and your plans must be made with caution, guarding every step as carefully and wisely as if you were electing a man to the highest office in the gift of the people. As for himself, he came from Halton, that county that has gone up, gone down, snowed in, roads unbroken, not a rag in the stores, no business in the county, and all because we have no whiskey. Many of the reports from Halton are like that of the man who recently rode through that county and said he could get neither food for himself nor horse, but it afterwards leaked out that there had been no hotels on the road he had travelled for over twenty years. There has been a great decrease of crime—over 70 per cent. —in Halton, comparing the sixteen months since the Scott Act came in force with the last six months under license, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. If the Act has ruined Halton we want to ruin it some more, and hope you will ruin Oxford in the same way.

Rev. Mr. Earle, of Norfolk, was introduced. He was pleased to be there because Scott Act work is an old work with him. This is a decided meeting, and he was glad that Norfolk is also taking steps such as we are taking. Mr. Brethour had said the only business ruined was the whiskey business, but he did not agree—the constable business was completely gone, and if the hotels claim remuneration he thought the constables should also claim remuneration. Norfolk is going ahead to conquer.

After noon recess the convention arranged for meetings of municipal organization as follows: Ingersoll, 6th, at 7.30; Tilsonburg, 6th, at 2; N. Norwich, at Burgessville, 11th; S. Norwich, at Otterville, 14th; S. Blenheim, at Drumbo, 13th; N. Blenheim, at Washington, 15th; E. Oxford, Oxford Centre, W. Oxford, at Beachville, 12th; N. Oxford, at Dickson's Corner, 12th; Dereham, at Mt. Elgin, 15th; E. Nissouri, 12th; W. Zorra and Embro, 8th; E. Zorra, at Strathallan, 15th; Norwichville, 18th; Blandford, at Innerkip, 12th. Each of these meetings is to be attended by some member of the executive; the township meetings to be held both afternoon and evening.

The Scott Act Association of Lambton in session at Wyoming sent greeting as found in I. Cor., xv. 58: "Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

The convention acknowledged receipt of greeting and sent reply: prospects bright, all hopeful. "Watch ye, quit you like men."

The solicitor's account was brought before the convention and ordered to be paid. The executive was ordered to secure the services of speakers from outside the county to assist us in this campaign. It was decided that Mrs. Youmans be employed to lecture in different parts of the county. Arrangements were made to provide for the acceptance of any challenge made by the liquor party, and it was also carried that in the announcement of our meetings we invite discussion from the opposite party.

The convention decided to offer a reward of $5 to any person furnishing information leading to the conviction of any person of an act of bribery; also $25 for the conviction of any liquor seller who shall sell or give away any liquor on the day of voting.

It was requested that each minister throughout the county would bring the subject of temperance before their people on Sabbath, 16th March. Rev. C. R. Morrow was continued as lecturer for the county. After some further conversation, and some further arrangements in money matters the convention was closed with prayer by Rev. W. Williams.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

THE INGERSOLL FAIR.

Meeting of the Directors of the N. & W. O. Agricultural Society—New Life Infused—Prospects of a Strong Association—Proposition to hold the Fairs in Victoria Park.

The Directors of the North and West Oxford Agricultural Society were notified to meet at the Council Chamber, Ingersoll, on Monday last. From various causes several failed to put in an appearance. The President, Mr. Thos. Choate, called upon several prominent citizens to assist in re-organizing the Society, and several suggestions were made by Mr. Caswell and others as to the feasibility of removing the building from the agricultural grounds north of the river to the park. Mr. Caswell was very sanguine of the success of this project, and thought the citizens of Ingersoll should enter heartily into the matter. Mr. Gibson thought that unless additional ground could be procured adjoining the park the people would hardly approve of having the park interfered with. Mr. Brown was of the opinion that no serious objections could be raised if the grounds were properly attended to—the fair only lasted a short time, and any disturbances could be easily rectified. Mr. Noxon spoke at some length on the disadvantages attending the holding of fairs in a place that was scarcely visited by any one except at fair time; that placing the fair grounds in a more central position would increase the attendance very materially. Mr. Seldon also spoke very strongly in favour of the suggestion. Mr. Brown suggested that a committee be appointed to investigate the feasibility of removal, providing additional grounds could be procured. Mr. Cook was sure the old Society would be willing to aid in every way to put matters on a sound footing. Mr. Caswell asked would the people of Ingersoll aid in making it a success. Mr. Brown thought there would be no difficulty in this, and that there need be no directors chosen in Ingersoll. Mr. M. T. Buchanan said the directors should be composed of old heads in the business. Mr. Noxon was called upon to draw up a new basis or report. The following compose the outlines: Whereas the directors appointed at the general annual meeting of the North and West Oxford Agricultural Society were notified to meet this day for the purpose of organizing the Board, and whereas the parties so appointed as Directors failed to attend or refused to act as such Directors, and whereas the following gentlemen: Gordon Cook, I. N. Hall, Joseph Gibson, M. T. Buchanan, J. Russell, Thomas Seldon, Thos. Brown, W. K. Sumer, Edmund Jarvis, Thos. Choate, John Fishley, Jas. Noxon, Edwin Caswell and Thos. Mayberry met by request to take such action as may be thought proper to organize the Society, it was moved by E. Caswell, seconded by G. H. Cook, that Mr. James Noxon be appointed chairman and Mr. Thomas Mayberry Secretary. Moved by Mr. M.T. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. Thos. Choate, and resolved, That Messrs. Noxon, T. Brown, G. H. Cook, Jos. Gibson and E. Caswell be appointed a committee to report as a general meeting as to what steps were necessary to re-organize the Society on a satisfactory basis. Moved by Mr. Cook, seconded by Mr. Choate, and resolved, That a notice be given of a general meeting of the North and West Oxford Society to be held at the Town Hall, Ingersoll, on Monday, February 18th, at 2 o'clock p. m., to elect directors and transact such other business as may be properly brought before the meeting. Immediately after the meeting the committee consisting of Messrs. Noxon, Brown, Cook, Gibson and Caswell proceeded to business, and, no doubt, the meeting on the 18th will show that our citizens are alive to the fact that a well conducted Agricultural Fair in a position more convenient to the public and the town generally, will conduce to its welfare and prosperity. Mr. Noxon also brought up the subject of horticulture, and impressed on the meeting the importance of cultivating a taste for flowers and the products of the garden and orchard.

BEST BAKING POWDER.

Interesting Tests Made by the Government Chemist.

Dr. Edward G. Love, the present Analytical Chemist for the Government, has recently made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Love's tests were made to determine what brands are the most economical to use, and as their capacity lies in their leavening powers, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder. Dr. Love's report gives the following:

Name of the Baking Powders.	Strength Cubic Inches Gas per each ounces of Powder.
"Royal" (cream tartar powder)	127.4
"Patapsco" (alum powder)	125.2
"Rumford's" (phosphate) fresh	122.5*
"Rumford's" (phosphate) old	32.7*
"Hanford's None Such," fresh	121.6
"Hanford's None Such," old	84.35
"Redhead's"	117.0
"Charm" (alum powder)	116.9*
"Amazon" (alum powder)	111.9*
"Cleveland's" (short weight 2 oz.)	110.8
"Sea Foam"	107.9
"Czar"	106.8
"Dr. Price's"	104.5
"Snow Flake" (Groff's St. Paul)	101.88
"Lewis's" Condensed	98.2
"Congress" yeast	97.5
"C.E. Andrews&Co's" (contains alum)	78.17*
"Hecker's"	92.5
"Gillets"	84.2
"Bulk"	80.5

*In this report the Government Chemist says:

"I regard all alum powders as very unwholesome. Phosphate and Tartaric Acid powders liberate their gas too freely in process of baking, or under varying climatic changes suffer deterioration."

Dr. H. A. Mott, the former Government Chemist, after a careful and elaborate examination of the various Baking Powders of commerce, reported to the Government in favour of the Royal brand.

East Nissouri.

The Township Council of East Nissouri met at Kintore, January 21st, at eleven o'clock a.m., pursuant to law. The members were all present, and having made and signed declarations of office of qualification, took their seats, the Reeve presiding. Minutes of last meeting read, approved and signed by the Reeve. Communications read. On motion N. C. McCarty was appointed auditor for the year of 1884. The Reeve appointed J. G. McLeod as the other auditor. By-law was passed appointing township officers for the current year, viz: David Lawrence, Thamesford, Treasurer; Francis Howes, Nissouri, Assessor; George Alderson, Kintore, Collector; C. R. Commander, Clerk. On motion the following pay. ments were ordered to be made: T. B. Cameron, $8; John Ross, $10; Indigent account, $18; P. Kearney, for separate school municipal grant, $4.40; J. J. Crabbe, printing ballots, $6; J. McCaul, salary as Inspector of pedlars'licenses $5; J. B. Cade, taxes refunded on account of damage by flood, $3.37; Municipal election, nomination and polling, $28; Geo. Alderson, salary as collector 1883 and receipts, $61.50; J. Douglas, use of hall for ten sittings of Council, $10; Eli Ensign, gravel for E. McCarty's beat, $5.28; D. McDonald, services as Clerk at first meeting, $1. Next meeting of Council fourth Saturday of February at 10 a.m.

C. R. COMMANDER, Clerk.

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80

Moss & Co's. D. S. F. Mustard cannot be surpassed for excellence of flavor purity and strength, ask your grocer for it. 75

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp.

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

ASK your grocer for Moss & Co's. Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard. 75

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 86

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

LADIES' Kid Boots at Logee's. 60

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.
White Wheat, per bush	$1 00	to	1 01
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 05
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 05
Barley	50	to	66
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	30	to	33
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush	7 00	to	8 00
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50
PRODUCE.
Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to

FARM AND DAIRY.

Poultry—Now for Eggs.

The greatest profit from poultry is from the eggs laid in the Winter, and from the early chickens. When eggs are 3 cents each the hens are making money, and if they begin laying now, they will brood very early in the Spring, and the young pullets will be laying in the Fall. The profit of any business is in the management of it. If a man has a mill he must oil the machinery; keep it clean; see that the water wheel is kept free from ice; that his roof does not leak, and that the work is always going on. If a man has a store, he must buy his goods cheap and get such as will suit his customers; he must always be on hand to meet purchasers; he must keep his store clean, and his goods neatly exposed to view, and he must watch his credits. A poultry keeper cannot let things go at loose ends any more than any other business man, or he will fail, with the greatest certainty. Just now the hens must be well fed and kept in good health. The house must be clean and warm. The food must be right, and such as will supply the material for eggs. Eggs contain a large quantity of nitrogen, some oil, sulphur, phosphoric acid and lime. To supply these a variety of food is needed. Oats or corn alone will not do. Wheat or bran, which is better, some meat, crushed bones, and also some gravel are all required and must be given. Once a day some warmed food is needed, and this is better given in the afternoon just before dark. A mess of baked potatoes mashed with some milk, and mixed with bran is excellent, and a mixture of wheat, oats and corn in the morning is a good feed for the morning. Some pure water a little warmed toois indispensable. Over feeding is to be avoided, especially for the large kinds of fowls. Some clean nests are also wanted, and to prevent the hens from eating the eggs some porcelain nest eggs should be put in the nests and no eggs left to freeze and break, which tempts the hens to eat them. Once this vice is contracted it is impossible to cure it.

An English Dairy Farm.

In a description of a dairy farm record by a practical dairyman in England, the Agricultural Gazette gives a table which shows the following particulars, divided into two periods of 19 weeks' winter feeding and 20 weeks' summer feeding, so that they can be compared on one sheet:

1. The total milk obtained per week.
2. The number of milking cattle giving it, and whether they are cows or heifers.
3. The cash results of that week as taken from my dairy account book.
4. The estimated value or the skim milk.
5. Calves born, and their produce.
6. The gross results, calves born, and skim milk added to cash results.
7. Weekly cost of labor, artificial food, hay.
8. Feeding of the cows.
9. An epitome of my dairy account book, showing the quantity of butter churned, and how and in what quantities and at what price the produce of the dairy was disposed of per week.

At the bottom is shown cash and gross returns per gallon for the two periods, and the totals.

Farm and Dairy Notes.

There is much said about Jersey cattle being too small for beef. What has size to do with beef. Highland steers, the best beef in the world, are no larger than Jerseys.

Prof. Sheldon says of ensilage: "It may probably be said that it is a good thing to preserve about one-half one's forage in the form of ensilage, and the rest as hay, feeding half and half to the stock."

Some smart Aleck of a dairyman in Orange County, New York, has been diluting his milk with from five to six quarts of water to the can, to which an admixture of borax and saltpeter had been added to conceal the adulteration. This milk was sent to the Borden milk condensing factory, and a chemist has caught the scamp, and we hope he will get the full limit of the law. Such men injure their companion dairymen more than they do the company they try to swindle.—American Dairyman.

At the meeting of the Minnesota Butter and Cheese Association, held at Austin, in December, the Secretary said since holding the meeting in Olmstead County the number of cows in that county had increased from 8,000 to 17,000, and since the development of the dairy interest in that county there had been three mortgages taken off the records to one put on, and that the system of credits in the stores no longer existed. These are the solid arguments in favour of dairying that render the occupation so popular at the west, and should be powerful in introducing it at the south. It is one of the occupations that there is no danger of overdoing, and brings blessings to every one connected with it.

A practical farmer, who has done a good deal of tile draining, says that he has two fields, apparently alike originally, one of which is drained in lands ten paces apart, with drains 2½ feet deep. The other is drained in fourteen pace lands with tiles laid 3½ feet in the ground. It is many years since the draining was done; but the deeper drains have uniformly carried off surplus water best. They have besides deepened the soil. The roots of clover in the deeply-drained soil are larger and go farther than in the other. Although the first field is reckoned pretty dry, he has serious thoughts of taking up every other drain that is put down 2½ feet and sinking it a foot deeper.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

The best of all men—Chris. Chin.

Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for the cure of Eruption, Chafes, Chapped Hands, Pimples, Tan, &c. 87t

An acceptable man—Bennie Fit.

Hard and soft corns cannot withstand Holloway's Corn Cure; it is effectual every time.

An impractical man—Theo. Ry.

Nothing gives such beautiful colors as the Star Dyes.

A fine looking man—Hans Some.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87t

A communicative man—Bill Doux.

Miss Mary Campbell, Elm, writes: "After taking four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I feel as if I were a new person. I had been troubled with dyspepsia for a number of years, and tried many remedies, but of no avail, until I used this celebrated Dyspeptic Cure." For all impurities of the Blood, Sick Headache, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Costiveness, etc., it is the best medicine known.

A calculating man—Matthew Metics.

A letter from P. O. Sharpless, Druggist, Marion, Ohio, in writing of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: one man was cured of sore throat of 8 years' standing with one bottle. We have a number of cases of rheumatism that have been cured when other remedies have failed. We consider it the best medicine sold.

A mealy mouthed man—Johnnie Cake.

Going By

DORA READ GOODALE.

She pushes back her bonnet brown,
A rustic glance to raise,
Her blue-black lovelocks slipping down
To veil the bashful gaze;
In kerchief white and russet gown
A-dreaming on the painted town,
Quite bold and wholly shy,
She lifts her head—her foot she stays,
As I go by.

The lonely pastures stretch behind
In yellow parching heat;
I watch the dappled river wind
By shadows clear and sweet
Through many footpaths far and blind,
With silver birch and poplar lined,
My leafy way shall lie—
Beyond them runs the village street—
And I—go by.

Across the laurel-bordered rise
The hills are blue as steel—
The splendor of the harvest skies
Is white against my wheel.
Again the look of swift surprise,
The graceful arm, the restive eyes,
The gesture, frank and shy—
A stranger's glance of lost appeal
As I go by.

I cross the bridge—I mount the hill
All black with hemlock shade;
I pass the ancient, ruined mill,
The green and silent shade—
Yet haste or linger where I will,
Her girlish figure draws me still
And rudely waits reply—
Late, late I come, my mountain maid,
And all the world goes by.

Very Accommodating Disposition.

"What time will you come home tonight, my dear?" asked Mrs. Colonel Yerger of her husband when he was going down town to attend a meeting of the vestry.

"Whenever I get ready," answered the husband crossly.

"Oh. Well don't come any later, please."

Brooklyn ladies are proverbial for their accommodating disposition.

What She Objected To.

"I would like to see how you look without bangs," said an old duffer to a young lady, attempting to push the hair from her forehead.

"Well, just wait a moment until I get a razor," she returned, "I would like to see how you look without a mustache."

"The reason I first cultivated a mustache," he said, with an impudent look into her face, "was to prevent the ladies from kissing me. So if you find it in the way, why cut it off."

"It is not the mustache I object to so much, but the attachment I find in the way," eyeing him suggestively from head to foot. He took the hint and relieved her of his presence.—Pretzel's Weekly.

Thought He Was in Chicago.

Backus, the minstrel, had an enormous mouth. One summer he and his fellow minstrel, Birch, parted, Birch to go fishing and Backus to go to Chicago. When Birch one day had fished for a short time, there came a tremendous yank at his hook. Using all his might he pulled to the surface a fish of surprising proportions, and with the largest mouth he had ever seen in any member of the finny tribe. "Great gollyhoop, Backus," cried the burnt cork angler in amazement, dropping his tackle and springing to his feet, "I thought you were in Chicago!"

Mrs. Murphy's Idea of It.

"The top o' the mornin' to ye, Mrs. Moriarty."

"The same to ye, Mrs. Murphy. How's all the family?"

"All well, tank God, but Mary Ann, and she's got but a headache owin' to bein' over the river late last night to a chamber concert. I believe it is they calls it."

"Faith an' phwat kind of a concert is a chamber concert?"

"Troth an' I dun know; I niver axed Mary Ann. But I suppose its the making of music wid chambers. They're gittin' to make music these days wid almost anything that's got a sound to it."—Kentucky State Journal.

How Senator McDonald Combs His Head.

General Tom Browne is always telling something on somebody. He and Senator McDonald and several other gentlemen, were sitting in the Ebbitt House rotunda on one of those warm Spring afternoons, which in Washington are more oppressive than Summer. The Senator was stroking his head where the hair is thinnest, and fanning himself with his hat. A peddler came in with fans, combs, etc., and after selling combs to General Browne and others he approached Senator McDonald, displaying several huge combs. "I don't care for the combs," said the Senator, waiving them aside with his hand, "but give me a fan." Just as the peddler was withdrawing from the scene of his commercial transactions, General Browne said to him: "Why don't you sell the Senator a comb?" "He don't want any comb," replied the peddler. "He combs his head with a Turkish towel."—Midland Monthly.

The Seventh Son of a Son of a Gun.

A young tough went to a fortune teller to see what she could do for him in a love affair.

"You want to know the future, sir?"

"Betcher life I does, mum."

"In what particular, sir?"

"I'm dead stuck on a gal, and I wants ter know'f I'm goin' to corral her, or'f some other snoozer 'll take the pot."

"Ah, it is a love affair, is it? My services will be worth two dollars, sir."

"Moses in the bulrushes, mum. D'yer want ter make me a penniless bridegroom, like them actors play?"

"That's a small amount, sir. I'm the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, I'll have you to know, sir."

"Come off, now, will yer? Seventh dorter of a seventh dorter's good. Well, betcher tiffy, I ain't onto the dorter racket. I'm the seventh son of a son of a gun, from Powderville I am, and ye can't two dollar me. I'll lay fur the snoozer with a club. Tootle te toot, Sis; so long."—Philadelphia Times.

—Mr. Beecher says four-fifths of the inhabitants of Heaven are women. Massachusetts comes nearer being a heavenly State than any other in the Union, on that basis, for she, too, has a large preponderance of women.

THESE ARE SOLID FACTS.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetizer, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 86t.

A musical man—Phil. Harmonic.

Dr. Low's Worm Syrup has removed tape worms from 15 to 30 feet in length. It also destroys all kinds of worms. 87t

A learned man—Ed. U. Casion.

Indiscretions in diet bring on dyspepsia and irregularity of the bowels. Eat only wholesome food, and if the trouble has become permanent—as it is very prone to do—try a course of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The combined effects astonish and delight the sufferer, who soon begins to digest well, regain functional regularity and improve in appetite; the blood becomes pure, and good health is restored.

A strong man—Frank Incense.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87t

A dangerous man—Dan O'Mite.

HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mankrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 87t

A craving man—Hank E. Ring.

The potential energy of the nervous system exists in the brain and other nerve ganglia in the form of a complex body, known as lecithin, derived from the fatty matter, nitrogen and phosphates in our food. In all forms of nervous debility prostration of the vital forces results from a failure of supply of this reserve force of the nerve centres, owing to indigestion and mal-assimilation. Wheeler's Phosphates and Calisaya will make up the deficiency, and no imitation nor substitute should be used in its place.

A positive man—Alle Gation.

We do not sound a needless alarm when we tell you that the taint of scrofula is in your blood. Inherited or acquired, it is there, and Ayer's Sarsaparilla alone will effectually eradicate it.

Beast Taming.

Faimali, the celebrated tamer of wild beasts, declares that there is no empirical recipe for beast training, and that the great secret is to fear nothing. No doubt it is to a great extent a matter of nervous organization; but the animals are probably also subdued by deprivation of sleep, not food, and by the administration of lowering drugs. And herein, in our opinion, consists the difference between the sportsman who boldly seeks his carnivorous opponent in its native haunts, and him who seeks to further subjugate an already half-broken-in animal. It seems that the hyena is the least intelligent and most irreclaimable of all the carnivora; the leopard, the most affectionate and tractable; while the Cape lion is in this respect superior to his congener of the Sahara and Senegal. Individuals of the same species, however, show great differences in disposition. The lion is most easily tamed between three and four years old, while his character is, so to speak, in process of development.

Care as to ventilation and cleanliness is much required for the health of the animals, which are more liable to suffer from heat than cold. The lion refuses mutton, goat's flesh, cat and dog, and prefers veal and beef, but will accept fowl and horse. The tiger, wolf and hyena are less fastidious, and the last prefers its meat high. The black bear eats bread, meat and fruit, and can fast for a week without inconvenience. All the great carnivora have a passion for milk.

Though the wild animals will breed pretty freely in captivity, Faimali's experience was that the young are never vigorous or healthy; and of eighty lion whelps born in his menagerie, we are surprised to learn that not one survived its third or fourth year. In most of the feline tribe the maternal instinct requires to be assisted by a curious precaution—the total exclusion of light from the mother and her cubs during the first nine or ten days of their existence; otherwise, these fierce matrons would reverse the order of nature, by devouring instead of nourishing their offspring.

According to the authority quoted, an adult tiger is the most expensive of the carnivora, costing 6,000 francs; but as much, or more, may be given for a chimpanzee. The lion costs an equal sum, but the lioness may be had for from twelve to fifteen hundred francs; the Java panther cost from two thousand to three thousand; and of lynxes, from six hundred to eight hundred; while leopards are sold for 1,200 francs the pair. Wolves may be had at a very much cheaper rate; and hyenas from sixty to one hundred francs; but in Africa the latter may sometimes be purchased as low as a franc.

The Habits of Carrier Pigeons.

"I have often watched my birds," said Dr. Clegg, "coming home. They are up in the air until they look about as big as sparrows. About a quarter of a mile off they set their wings, and with a rush they come to the window, never going a foot past it, or evincing the slightest uncertainty as to the locality of their homes. I have a hundred pairs or so now. All around this neighborhood people are breeding and flying homing pigeons. I use mine often to send messages home to my family. I write the message upon tissue paper, and roll it up until I can stick it in a quill. This I tie to the leg of the bird, between the foot and the knee, with yarn. Thread would cut in and stop the circulation. They never seem to mind the load, and never pick it off. If you want to fly a match, a female bird who wants only two days of hatching her eggs, is the quickest. Fly her before 2 o'clock, and she tries to get back in time to go on her nest at 3:30 to relieve the male, which has been on duty since 9 o'clock. A male bird flies best when the female is laying her eggs, over which operation he usually exercises the most lofty superintendence. They are loving, jealous birds, and the attachment to the spot of their birth and breeding-place is so great that they will rather starve than leave it."

"How can you tell when your pigeon arrives in a match?" was asked.

"By this electric bell," replied Dr. Clegg, stepping to the panel and touching a tiny striking apparatus. "I have a board on the entrance to the window, set on a spring. The weight of the pigeon that alights on it presses it down so that it completes the current and rings this bell. The judge and timers then score, while I go catch my pigeon. Sometimes I take a whole basketful of young pigeons up to Havre de Grace for a little afternoon airing. They come come back thirty-five miles under the hour easily."—Baltimore Sun.

Missing Money Strangely Recovered.

In August, 1882, a young man belonging in Middleboro, lost a roll of bills in a Boston depot, amounting to about $30. The loss was advertised, but nothing was heard from the missing money until a few days since, when the loser received a letter from a man in Boston, asking him to describe the bills, the place where they were lost, etc. The letter was answered, and on Thursday last the money was returned. It seems that a young Irish boy found the money, and spent it unbeknown to his parents. At confession, however, the priest learning of the finding of the money refused to give him absolution until the cash had been restored to its rightful owner. The little fellow went to work at $5 per week, paid his board, bought his clothes, and saved up money enough to make up the sum found, and through one of his playmates the affair came to the knowledge of one of the South Boston police, and he restored it to its rightful owner.

She sings with a voice like a fairy
And plays like a queen of her art,
Her movements are sylph-like and airy,
Her winsome ways capture each heart.
Her beauty is ranked by none other,
Her eyes are blue, lustrous and deep,
But the story comes straight from her brother,
That the fair creature snores in her sleep!

—A wag says to one of his friends in the most solemn manner, "If my employer does not take back what he said to me this morning, I shall leave his house." "Why, what did he say?" "He told me that I could look for another place!"

——"Why! What's the matter?"

Lady—(With face enveloped in roll of hot cloths)—"Oh! I'm crazy with that Neuralgia that continually troubles me."

——"Well, how foolish! Why don't you go to Gayfer or Kneeshaw's drug store and get a bottle of Fluid Lightning? It cured me in less than one minute. I always keep a bottle in the house. It only costs 25 cts."

A seedy man—Tom A. Toe.

One trial of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will convince you that it has no equal as a worm medicine.

A frightful man—Terry Fy.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer imparts a fine gloss and freshness to the hair, and is highly recommended by physicians, clergymen and scientists as a preparation accomplishing wonderful results. It is a certain remedy for removing dandruff, making the scalp white and clean, and restoring gray hair to its youthful color.

A specimen man—Sam Pell.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem so prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dispepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

A thieving man—Rob Bery.

CURE FOR CHILBLAINS.

Bathe the feet for ten or fifteen minutes in water as hot as can be borne; then apply Hagyard's Yellow Oil, and a cure is certain. Yellow Oil cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Deafness, Lameness, and Pain generally; and internally cures Colds, Sore Throat, Croup, Asthma, and many painful affections. 87t.

A useful man—Steve Dore.

A LONG TIME.

Fifteen years of suffering from the tortures of Dyspepsia is indeed a long time. A. Burns, blacksmith, of Cobourg, was thus afflicted, but it only required four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters to completely cure him. 87t.

A stubborn man—Will Full.

IN DIXIE'S LAND.

J. Kennedy, dealer in drugs, &c., Dixie, Ontario, recommends Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam to his customers, it having cured his wife of a bad cough. It is the safest and surest remedy for all Throat and Lung troubles, such as Asthma, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough and most pectoral complaints. 87t.

ALL grocers keep Moss & Co's Celebrated Yorkshire Mustard, ask for it and take no other. 75

A MODERN RESURRECTION.

A Miracle that Took Place in our Midst Unknown to the Public—The Details in Full.

(Detroit Free Press.)

One of the most remarkable occurrences ever given to the public, which took place here in our midst, has just come to our knowledge and will undoubtedly awaken as much surprise and attract as great attention as it has already in newspaper circles. The facts are, briefly, as follows: Mr. William A. Crombie, a young man formerly residing at Birmingham, a suburb of Detroit, and now living at 257 Michigan Avenue in this city, can truthfully say that he has looked into the future world and yet returned to this. A representative of this paper has interviewed him upon this important subject and his experiences are given to the public for the first time. He said:

"I had been having most peculiar sensations for a long while. My head felt dull and heavy; my eyesight did not seem so clear as formerly; my appetite was uncertain and I was unaccountably tired. It was an effort to arise in the morning and yet I could not sleep at night. My mouth tasted badly, I had a faint all-gone sensation in the pit of my stomach that food did not satisfy, while my hands and feet felt cold and clammy. I was nervous and irritable, and lost all enthusiasm. At times my head would seem to whirl and my heart palpitated terribly. I had no energy, no ambition, and I seemed indifferent of the present and thoughtless for the future. I tried to shake the feeling off and persuade myself it was simply a cold or a little malaria. But it would not go. I was determined not to give up, and so time passed along and all the while I was getting worse. It was about this time that I noticed I had begun to bloat fearfully. My limbs were swollen so that by pressing my fingers upon them deep depressions would be made. My face also began to enlarge, and continued to until I could scarcely see out of my eyes. One of my friends, describing my appearance at that time, said: 'It is animated something, but I should like to know what.' In this condition I passed several weeks of the greatest agony."

"Finally, one Saturday night, the misery culminated. Nature could endure no more. I became irrational and apparently insensible. Cold sweat gathered on my forehead; my eye became glazed and my throat rattled. I seemed to be in another sphere and with other surrroundings. I knew nothing of what occurred around me, although I have since learned it was considered as death by those who stood by. It was to me a quiet state, and yet one of great agony. I was helpless, hopeless and pain was my only companion. I remember trying to see what was beyond me, but the mist before my eyes was too great. I tried to reason, but I had lost all power. I felt that it was death, and realized how terrible it was. At last the strain upon my mind gave way and all was a blank. How long this continued I do not know, but at last I realized the presence of friends and recognized my mother. I then thought it was earth, but was not certain. I gradually regained consciousness, however, and the pain lessened. I found that my friends had, during my unconsciousness, been giving me a preparation I had never taken before, and the next day, under the influence of this treatment, the bloating began to disappear and from that time on I steadily improved, until to-day I am as well as ever before in my life, have no traces of the terrible acute Bright's disease, which so nearly killed me, and all through the wonderful instrumentality of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy that brought me to life after I was virtually in another world."

"You have had an unusual experience, Mr. Crombie," said the writer who had been breathlessly listening to the recital.

"Yes, I think I have," was the reply, "and it has been a valuable lesson to me. I am certain, though, there are thousands of men and women at this very moment who have the same ailment which came so near killing me, and they do not know it. I believe kidney disease is the most deceptive trouble in the world. It comes like a thief in the night. It has no certain symptoms, but seems to attack each one differently. It is quiet, treacherous, and all the more dangerous. It is killing more people, today, than any other one complaint. If I had the power I would warn the entire world against it and urge them to remove it from the system before it is too late."

One of the members of the firm of Whitehead & Mitchell, proprietors of the Birmingham Eccentric, paid a fraternal visit to this office yesterday, and in the course of conversation, Mr. Crombie's name was mentioned.

"I knew about his sickness," said the editor, "and his remarkable recovery. I had his obituary all in type and announced in the Eccentric that he could not live until the next issue. It was certainly a most wonderful case."

Rev. A. R. Bartlett, formerly pastor of the M. E. Church, at Birmingham, and now of Schoolcraft, Mich., in response to a telegram, replied:

"Mr. W. A. Crombie, was a member of my congregation at the time of his sickness. The prayers of the church were requested for him on two different occasions. I was with him the day he was reported by his physicians as dying, and consider his recovery almost a miracle."

Not one person in a million ever comes so near death as did Mr. Crombie and then recover, but the men and women who are drifting toward the same end, are legion. To note the slightest symptoms, to realize their significance and to meet them in time by the remedy which has been shown to be most efficient, is a duty from which there can be no escape. They are fortunate who do this; they are on the sure road to death who neglect it.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value, we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be, I have taken three bottles and am nearly well and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than I ever expected to be. Free trial bottles at Gayfer or Kneeshaw's drug store.

A ladies' man—Otto Man.

A GOOD COSMETIC.

The best cosmetics are good soap and water, to obtain purity of the skin; while for boils, blotches, obstinate humors and impurities of the blood, Burdock Blood Bitters is the best af all purifiers. 87t.

A nervous man—Tim Idity.

AN OPEN LETTER.

MESSRS. T. MILBURN & CO.

Dear Sirs,—I can honestly recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil as the best reliever of rheumatic pains of all the many specifics offered for sale, and as a sufferer for years I have tried every known remedy. I remain, respectfully yours,

JOHN TAYLOR,
87i 190 Parliament St., Toronto.

Blessed is he that hath a clean shirt on, for he may wear his vest unbuttoned.

BLOOD RELATIONS.

The best blood relations consist of a perfect circulation of healthy, vital fluid—pure blood and proper circulation may be established in the system by the use of that grand blood purifier, Burdock Blood Bitters. 87i.

Church music is not difficult to a choir.

IT HAS MADE A NEW MAN OF ME.

I am the most agreeably surprised man in this section of country. I don't think any one could feel worse physically than I did when I commenced taking Crowfoot Bitters. It has made a new man of me. It is the best dollar I ever spent. I could not eat or sleep, and felt miserably dejected. After taking Crowfoot I could eat, sleep, had a splendid appetite, and felt first-rate. I believe it to be the best medicine of the period for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

WM. GUTHRIE,
86i Fairmount, Ont.

Would a law against tight lacing be inimical to the freedom of contracts.

A STRANGE PEOPLE.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

When the man with the deep voice sings, he is sure to get of his bass.

ITCHING PILES.—SYPMTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25, (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

A man don't have to live long in Paris to learn the road to Rouen.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of Shiloh's Cure Sold. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of Consumption have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. Secord, 75y

MARVELS WROUGHT WITHOUT MIRACLES

We are told that miracles have ceased. Possibly they may have been discontinued in order to give full scope to human intelligence. Certain it is that the wonderful developements and achievements of science in these latter days have rendered direct supernatural interposition in human affairs unnecessary. This is especially true of the improvements in Medical Science. Two thousand years ago THOMAS HOLLOWAY would probably have been deemed a worker of miracles. The cures effected by his Pills and Ointment would have been considered supernatural. Even now they are looked upon as marvels; yet we know that the medicines which have healed the sick in all parts of the world are the legitimate fruits of profound thought, unwearied study and research, and a long series of practical experiments. It is a singular fact, and one that establishes beyond question Holloway's theory of a common origin of disease, that the people of every country into which his medicaments have been introduced have considered them specially adapted to the complaints most common in such country. The reason is that they operate upon the deleterious principle in the blood of the patient, which is the immediate cause of his disorder, whatever it may be, and hence their effect is always salutary. In Canada every settler on new land who has ever tried them in intermittent or bilious remittent fever, will aver that there are no diseases in which they work such wonders as in these. The Canadians also are impressed with the belief that the cutaneous and glandular disorders to which violent extremes of heat and cold render them peculiarly subject, are more readily eradicated by the Ointment than any other diseases for which it is prescribed. It is in evidence, however, that just what these great remedies are doing for Canada, they are doing for all nations under the sun. It so happens indeed that the ailments upon which the preparations excite the most direct and powerful influence are precisely those which are the chief scourges of British America, and hence they seem to be, and in one sense are, more especially required in that region than in some other countries. But their unbounded celebrity, and the enormous increase of the demand for them in all our colonies, indicate their value more significantly than any eulogism that we could bestow. Within a few years they have become staples of the medical market throughout North America. The constant inquiry for them renders it inexpedient for any drug house or apothecary's shop to be without them. The druggist who does not keep them, makes, in effect, a tacit admission that he is unacquainted with the wants of his customers. His stock is not merely incomplete; it lacks two essential articles which the sick must and will have from some source or other.

Such popularity as this is the meed only of superlative excellence, and it places the superiority of Holloway's Remedies beyond all controversy.—The Elocutioner.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFEERING

"Brown's Household Panacea' has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

A cutaway jacket is the proper costume for an elopement.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by al druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

A stitch in Time must make the old chap feel sew sew.

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

Not levelled by love—The rank of an onion.

The balloon that will not go up is not good for ascent.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms, Mops, Floor, Stove Horse, and Scrubbing Brushes, Damps and Chimneys, Clocks. Eavetroughing and repairing done promptly, Heating Drums and Stove Pipes, Dishes of all kinds, Smoothing Irons Mrs. Pott's Cold Handle Smoothing Irons, Scales, large and small, Spades, Forks, Shovels and Hoes, Mixed Paints, all ready for the brush; any tint or colour Boiled and Raw Oils, Root Cutters, Children's Carriages, Baby Jumpers, Corn Planters, Farmer's Bells, Carpet Sweepers, Dry and Liquid Measures, Bird Cages, Lanterns; Stove Polish, Lead and Iron Piping, Gate Fittings, Hog Rings and Hog Holders, everything in the House Furnishing Line, Axle Grease, Cistern Pumps, Wheelborrows, Sinks, and everything that is wanted to keep house with.

Cash paid for old Rubber Shoes, Bones of all kinds, Woollen and Cotton Rags, Old Brass, Copper and Lead, old Zinc, old Wrought and Cast Iron, all kinds of Furs, Beef Hides, Sheep Skins, Calf Skins, Horse Hair, Tallow and Beeswax.

47. H. CAMPBELL.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4:56 a. m.	6:59 a. m.
11:57 a. m.	12:15 a. m.
12:32 a. m.	2:05 p. m.
5:05 p. m.	4:48 p. m.
7:47 p. m.	7:00 p. m.
2:11 a. m.	12:20 p. m.

CATARRH.

CATARRH.—A New Treatment whereby this hitherto incurable disease is permanently cured in from one to three applications, no matter whether standing for one year or forty years. Descriptive pamphlet sent free on receipt of stamp. A. W. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada. 1569vy

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Pr

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

LITTLE DOT

—IT IS THE—

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship. Ask for the

"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.
Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

BUSINESS CHANGE.

The Undersigned having Bought out the

BOOK, STATIONERY,

AND

Fancy Goods Business!

LATELY CARRIED ON BY

MR. GEORGE A. ODELL,

Hereby respectfully intimates to the inhabitants of Ingersoll and surrounding country that by paying cash down he was enabled to buy Mr. Odell's stock amounting to over $8,000.00 at a large reduction from cost price, thereby enabling him to give

BARGAINS

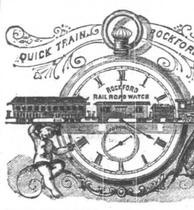
Unheard Of Before in this Locality.

New Goods FOR the Holidays

I am opening out my very extensive and superb stock of Fancy Goods, Presentation Books, Etc., for the Holiday trade. An inspection of which is cordially invited.

WALL PAPER.

My stock of Room Papers willl always be found up to the requirements of the wants of our customers. A fresh supply of Wall Paper just received.



PICTURE FRAMING.

Picture Framing will be carried on in all its branches.

Having had 18 years' experience in the Book, Stationery, Wall Paper and Fancy Goods' business, besides being able to buy on the Cash Principle, purchasers can rely on getting good value for their money, and a well selected stock to choose from.

In consideration of the foregoing, and with our best attention in the future, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal patronage heretofore given to MR. ODELL, with as many new customers as may be pleased to favour us.

A. ROBINSON,
STATIONER, ETC.,
INGERSOLL and BELLEVILLE.
Nov. 8th, 1883. 1574

H. RICHARDSON

Richardson's Block, Ingersoll, Ontario,

Dealer in Watches, Clocks, Jewelry,

SILVER AND PLATED WARE.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 1st., 1883.

This is to certify that we have appointed H. RICHARDSON, Sole Agent for the sale of the R

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2 00 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

THE CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 2 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5: 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates. Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS.

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

F. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000 private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH, Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.;

M.R.C.S. AND L.M., ENGLAND, L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

H. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Oxide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SEDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,

PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock.

January 31st, 1884. 1580y

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Baker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store.

Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1584c-m

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country.

Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with sstors.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which canbe withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - $5,698,696

RESERVE - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfer Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Deals in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR., GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559r-y

THE CREDIT VALLEY!

AND

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and North-western America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:10 a. m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and North-western points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Pauls, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:40 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12.26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS.

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:22 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on the Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your tickets from

F. W. SYMONS, Station Agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines, Thames St., Ingersoll.

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27, 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,

Warner's Safe Cure,

Shiloh's Consumption Cure,

Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers, Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE, Thames Street.

Bread delivered in town daily.

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGISGBERG, Prop.

LENDING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582-y

KIDNEY-WORT

THE SURE CURE

FOR

KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, CONSTIPATION, PILES, AND BLOOD DISEASES.

PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT HEARTILY.

"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I ever used." Dr. P. C. Ballou, Monkton, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort is always reliable." Dr. R. N. Clark, So. Hero, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort has cured my wife after two years suffering." Dr. C. M. Summerlin, Sun Hill, Ga.

IN THOUSANDS OF CASES

it has cured where all else had failed. It is mild, but efficient. CERTAIN IN ITS ACTION, but harmless in all cases.

If it cleanses the Blood and Strengthens and gives New Life to all the important organs of the body. The natural action of the Kidneys is restored. The Liver is cleansed of all disease, and the Bowels move freely and healthfully. In this way the worst diseases are eradicated from the system.

PRICE, $1.00 LIQUID OR DRY, SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Dry can be sent by mail.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington Vt.

KIDNEY-WORT

AGENTS wanted for "The Lives of the Presidents of the U. S.," the largest, handsomest and best book ever sold for less than twice our price. The fastest selling book in America. Immense profits to agents. All intelligent people want it. Anyone can become a successful agent. Terms free. HALLETT BOOK CO., Portland, Maine.

ATKINSON'S

Parisian Tooth Paste

Agreeable and Safe for Cleaning the Teeth

Sold in every Town and City of Canada.

PRICE 25 CENTS. 1575-y

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 24. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1588.

LINES BY FRIAR JUNIUS.

Found in an Old Bible of the Sixteenth Century.

Here is the Judge that stints the strife,
When men's devices fail,
Here is the bread that feeds the life,
That death cannot assail.

Here is the tree where truth doth grow,
To lead our lives therein,
Here is the stream whence waters flow,
To quench our heat of sin.

The tidings of Salvation dear,
Come to our ears from hence,
The fortress of our faith is here,
And rock of our defence.

Then be not like the hog that hath
A pearl at his desire,
But takes more pleasure in the trough,
And wallowing in the mire.

Read not this book in any case,
But with a single eye,
Read not, but first desire God's grace,
To understand thereby.

Pray still in faith with this respect,
To fructify therein,
That knowledge may bring this effect,
To mortify thy sin.

Then happy thou in all thy life,
Whate'er to thee befall,
Yea, double happy shalt thou be,
When God, by death thee call.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

There was something symbolic in the isolated saliency of these spires; they seemed to typify the permanence of a faith which had already defied centuries. But still more, their vague group merged every detail of creed into one pictorial whole; you forgot, as you gazed, what various paths towards salvation this or that steeple might be supposed to point to. The whole effect was simply and powerfully Christian.

Claire fixed her eyes upon the shadowy city. A few early lights already dotted its expanse with gold, as if to outspeed the tardier stars overhead. It spread away, for the gaze that watched it, like a huge realm of fascinating mystery. Claire forgot how much sin it hid; perhaps she scarcely knew if it hid any. She thought only of the diversions, relaxations, festivities that would soon hold sway there. Odd memories of her old school-fellows crossed her mind. Doubtless Ada Gerrard was there now, thinking of some new robe in which she could show her plump, white neck with the little freckles on it, that very evening. It should be a pale-blue dress, Claire decided; that would suit Ada's red hair best. How full was the big city, yonder, of happy, handsome, prosperous people! And so many of them were saying, now that nightfall had begun, "I shall go to this ball to-night," or "I shall go to that theatre."

They were getting the theatres ready for the plays, now; the entrances were being lighted. She could see Wallack's and the Union Square, each with its small court and the baize doors beyond. Oh, how pleasant it would be to do something, to look at something, to hear something to-night, that she had not done and looked at and heard, again and again, for weeks and months past! The girl's blood and bone hungered for a holiday. She must go back home, soon. And there was only one thought to make the prospect of return endurable; that thought was meeting her father. But he would be tired; he was always more tired nowadays than in other times. When he lay upon the lounge in the basement, and she got the stool and sat down beside him, he would smile to have her put both arms round his neck and press her cheek up close to his, but he would go to sleep very soon afterward; he would be so tired that he would forget even to ask her if she had had a hard time with her mother that day. And then her mother would grumble a hint that the dishes were yet to be washed, and she would take her arms away from the beloved neck, and scrape and clean for quite a long time; and then she would get sleepy, more because she remembered how early she must rise to-morrow than because a little diversion would not have made the alert young lids loath to shade her eyes for hours to come.

It would be the same as on other nights. It was always, every new night, the same as on that which went before. There was the dull burden of it. When would the burden be shifted? Would it ever be shifted? Would it not merely grow heavier, and slowly crush her down, till her back should get the crook of age, and so bear it with better ease?

She went nearer to the edge of the hillock, and set her eyes once more upon the city, as if for a farewell view. Its lights had become more numerous; the tips of its spires were lost in tender vapor. Above, the tiny scraps of luminous clouds had begun to fade; the river had roughened and grown dull, and there was a damp keenness in the freshening breeze. That exquisite melancholy, which is sure to breathe from evening when it sheds a spell over the triple charm of blended sky, land, and water, was now in the full tide of its lovely power.

Claire lifted her hand to her lips, and waved a kiss toward the glooming city.

It was a pretty gesture, and so furtive and stealthy that it might have fled the notice of any one who stood quite close at her side. And the low words that now succeeded it, too, were just low enough to escape such heed, though their sense might easily have met a possible listener with the effect of broken and half-audible speech.

"Good-night," she said to the city. "Good-night, and be merry for hours to come. You seem just like something alive and breathing, but I know that if you had one mind and one heart to think and to feel with, instead of the thousands and thousands that you have got, you would pity me because I'm so sorry that this big, cold river is always between us!"

Claire nearly broke into a laugh at her own soft and quaint little apostrophe. Like most lonely people who dislike their solitude, she felt the temptation to soliloquize; especially since her imagiuation was vigorous, and sometimes loved, as well, to let mount from its wrist the agile falcon of fancy. But a practical bent, as we call it, and a rather sharp sense of the humor of things besides, usually mingled to repress this volatile impulse. As it was, she gave a strong, tired sigh instead of a laugh, and turned her face homeward, though not her steps quite yet, for she still remained standing on the mound beside the water.

"My holiday," she thought, "is over." She did not know that it was just beginning.

Her last action had brought her into abrupt contact with a girlish figure, whose countenance she might have recognized had not the dusk so deepened.

CHAPTER V.

"I was mos' sure 'twas you, Miss Twining," said the new-comer, holding out a hand to Claire, "so I run a little further up the hill, jus' to make reel certain sure."

"Well, you were not wrong, Josie," said Claire, giving her own hand. It did not occur to her that she had been called "Miss Twining," and had answered by "Josie." In this case she took her rights of superiority without thinking; she did not stop to consider their soundness; it had always been to her an accepted fact that she was an alien and an exile; here in Greenpoint, and that the few residents whom she knew, must of necessity admit her claim to having existed under better previous conditions. There was no taint of arrogance in this unargued assumption.

"You ain't often out's late's this, Miss Twining," said Josie, with a little burst of laughter. "Are you now?"

"No, indeed," answered Claire. "I am not often out at all." She sighed again, quite unconsciously. "Why Josie," she went on, "I must be getting back home. I've been away too long, as it is. You seem to be dressed in your very finest. Does it mean that you are going to enjoy yourself somewhere?"

Josie gave another laugh. "I expect so, Miss Twining," she said, with a touch of mysterious piquancy in her manner. She turned herself quickly about, looking over her shoulder all the while with the air of waiting for some one to appear. Claire watched her closely during the unconscious but significant by-play.

The name of this young girl was Josephine Morley. She was of Irish parentage; like her, he abjured the accent of his ancestors, having been born here, and having breathed into his being at an early age that peculiar shame of Celtic origin which belongs among our curiosities of immigration. His wages were meagre, and his hours of work numerous. To-night was a precious interval of relaxation. He had been released at three o'clock that afternoon, and had gone heavy-lidded to a tiny cot in a garret-room, where he had slept the exhausted sleep of one who is always in arrears to the drowsy god. Not long ago he had waked, highly refreshed, and pierced with the expectation of soon meeting his beloved Josie.

He had four dollars and seventy-five cents in his pocket, and the possession of this sum gave him a firm sense of pecuniary security. The strong faith that he was finely dressed, too, increased his confidence. He had a little low hat of black felt, tipped sideways on his ungainly head; an overcoat of muddy cinnamon-brown, with a broad black binding along its lappels and edges; and a pair of boots so capably polished that their lustre dissuaded you from too close scrutiny of the toe-joint bulging from either clumsy foot. He was entirely satisfied with his general effect. He knew that nature had not made him comely, but he felt complete repose of conscience in the matter of having atoned artistically for this personal slight.

Josie's tidings left him almost speechless. In a trice his glowing hopes had crumbled to ashes. He had long known Claire by sight. He had, in a way, admired her. But she was not of his monde, and he saw with woe and dismay that for this reason her company would prove all the more burdensome. As a matter of expense, too, it presented the most painful objections. New drafts must be made upon his limited capital. All his past calculations were suddenly rendered null. Who could say that financial disaster might overtake him, if he should now aspire to three oyster-stews after three seats at the theatre? Would his four dollars and seventy-five cents not pass its powers of elasticity if subjected to this unforeseen stretching process? Claire, meanwhile, was wholly unconscious of his distress. It was not till they had embarked on the ferry-boat that the thought of her escort's possible poverty occurred to her flurried mind.

"Oh, Josie," she soon found a chance to whisper, "I am afraid I shall be a great expense to your friend! I would have thought of it sooner if you had not pressed me so, without any warning beforehand. And I have only a little change in my pocket, so I can't."—

But here Josie interrupted her with a magnificent murmured fiction to the effect that they were under the protection of a young man who "jus' made money hand over fist"; and Claire, believing this handsome falsehood, let Josie talk with her gallant while she relapsed into silence.

They were all on the forward deck of the steamboat, close against its wooden railing. Claire was a little apart from her companions; she had instinctively withdrawn from them. The night had now woven its web to the full. Overhead the stars beamed more richly; below, the black river shimmered with glassy lustre where it met the sides of the speeding vessel, and then rolled off again into darkness with great swollen waves. Long points of light pierced the gloom below the opposite shore, like golden plummets that were slowly fathoming its opaque tide.

Here and there scarlet or green lights moved over the waters, given by the viewless barques that bore them the look of weird, wandering, jack-o'-lanterns. These were simply fantastic. They held no human analogies. A sloop, thus brilliantly decked, hove on a sudden into sight, not many yards from Claire's peeping gaze. Its expanse of canvas, tense in the sharp breeze, caught a momentary unearthly pallor; it slipped into view like a monstrous phantom, and like a phantom it vanished again.

This, too, was a merely elfin and quaint apparition; no sense of vital reality lay behind it. But the journeying ferry boats, that voyaged to their several goals on either side of the river, took, with their curved lines of small, keen-lit windows, and their illuminations at various other points, the likeness of stately galleys gliding after nightfall to some opulent port. All their horrors of nautical architecture were deadened by merciful shadow.

Claire felt the quiet splendor of the suggestion. Her varied educational past made this fully possible. But the whole effect of transformation, of magic, of mystery, and of beauty, which follows the advent of night along all the watery environs of our great metropolis, appealed to her with deep force.

She had a fancy that the hard prose had left her life forever; that she was now being softly swept into luxurious and romantic surroundings; that the festal and poetic look of city and river symbolized a fairer and kindlier future. The indulgence of this fancy thrilled her delightfully; it was a sort of intoxication; she felt no longer culpable, unfilial; she leaned her graceful young head far over the boat-rail, as though to gain by this act a stronger intimacy with the sweet, drowsy sorceries that encompassed her.

"My! ain't it reel chilly out here though?" said Josie. "We'd ought to a' staid inside, hadn't we, Miss Twining?"

This half broke the spell with Claire. "I like it so much better out here," she answered. "The air isn't too sharp for me, and then everything is so beautiful and strange." She slightly waved one hand toward the brilliant city, as she spoke.

Josie did not understand at all. How could there be anything beautiful in a lot of boats screaming to each other after dark with steam whistles. But she said "yes," and cast a glance at Mr. MacNab, which was meant to veto in him the first symptom of surprise. Claire's superiority must not have the least slight cast upon it. It would never do to encourage Mr. MacNab in undervaluing the compliment of her companionship.

The boat soon landed, and Claire's lovely illusions fled. Still, here was the city, noisy, populous, alluring. After disembarking at the ferry they were yet far away from Niblo's, and a long ride ensued, in a car crowded and of illodor. Then came a walk of considerable length, fleetly taken, for they were a little late by Mr. MacNab's silver timepiece, which afterwards proved to be fast.

Mr. MacNab was meanwhile in a sort of nervous trance. He had made what for him was a tour de force in general arithmetic, though he still remained insecure about the exactitude of his calculation.

However, he felt certain of one thing: three seats, of a certain kind, would cost three dollars. A dollar would solidly remain to him, though the precise amount of surplus change now in his pocket defied all his mathematical modes of discovery.

Pride forbade that he should take out the silver bits and count them. But his residual dollar could at least pay the homeward fares. Cold as this comfort may have been, it took, no doubt a certain degree of warmth when contrasted with pecuniary exposure.

They at length reached the theatre, and easily procured reserved-seats that commanded an excellent view of the stage. The curtain had not yet risen. Claire was glad of that, she had the desire not to miss a single detail of the coming performance. She was intently examining her play-bill, when, on a sudden, a man's voice, close at her right, spoke to this effect:

"Hello, Jimmy, is that yerself?"

The next moment Claire perceived a hand and arm to have been unceremoniously thrust in front of her, while a young man leaned his body very much sideways indeed. She receded, herself, not without annoyance.

Josie sat next to her, and then came Mr. MacNab, who now permitted himself to be shaken hands with across the laps of the two girls.

"Hello, Jack," he responded at the same time, "What you doin' here?"

"Come t' see the show," said the person called Jack.

"Is that so?"

"Course. Nuthin' strange 'bout it, is there?"

"That's all right."

"S'pose you're on the same racket yerself. Hey?"

"You bet, ole boy."

All these utterances were exchanged in tones of the most easy cordiality. The two young men had ceased to shake hands, but were leaning each toward the other, apparently quite unconscious of the inconvenience which they inflicted upon both Josie and Claire.

"I got sold 't night," Jack continued with a blended wink and giggle.

"How's that?"

Jack gave a demonstrative jerk of the elbow, meant to indicate a vacant seat on his further side. "Me an' my gal was comin' t'gether, but she gimme the slip after I'd got mer seats. Sent word she had the headache. Well, I dunno how 't is, but I reckon I'll have to punch some feller's head, 'fore long. Hey, Jimmy?"

This hostile prophecy was hailed by Jimmy with a laugh whose repressed enjoyment took the semblance of a goose's hiss, except that its tone was more guttural, and its volume more mas sive.

"I guess that's 'bout the size of it, Jack," he replied. The next moment he straightened himself in his seat, having received an exasperating nudge from Josie.

Mr. MacNab's friend followed his example. Claire felt relieved. She examined her programme again. She had already managed to see quite as much as she wished of the person seated next her.

His name was Slocumb. He had a cousin in Greenpoint, an undertaker's son, whom he would occasionally visit of a Sunday, bringing across the river to the doleful quarters of his kinsfolks a demeanor of high condescension or patronage.

He was in reality a loafer of very vicious sort, feeding his idleness upon the alms of an infatuated woman, whose devotion he did not repay with even the saving grace of fidelity. He had contrived to hide his real badness of life and lowness of repute from both uncle and cousin, and had won the latter to believe him a superior kind of metropolitan product. Together MacNab and he had partaken of refreshment at the shop of the former's employer, and from such events had sprung an intimacy with the oyster-opener which had given his most active development in a near drinking-shop.

Mr. John Slocumb had a dull, brownish complexion, a light-brown eye, and a faint brown moustache. His face was not ugly, judged by line and feature, but it had a hardness that resembled bronze; you fancied that you might touch its cheek and meet no resistance. There was a look of vice and depravity about it that was not to be explained; the repulsive element was there, but it eluded direct proof; it was no more in eyelid than in nostril, but it was as much in forehead and chin as in either. Claire felt the repelling force almost instantly.

Mr. Slocumb's dress was not designed in a fashion to decrease its effect. He wore a suit of green-and-blue plaid, each tint being happily moderated, like evil that prefers to lurk in ambush. The collar of his shirt sloped down at the breast, leaving an unwonted glimpse of his neck visible. But you saw a good deal of his cravat, which was green, barred with broad yellow stripes, and pierced by a pin that appeared to be a hand of pink coral clutching a golden dumb-bell. His figure was slender almost to litheness, but his shoulders outspread two such long and bulky ridges that you at once placed their athletic proportions among the most courageous frauds of tailoring.

The orchestra had now begun to play a lively and rather clangorous prelude. And meanwhile Claire was gradually made to learn that Mr. John Slocumb was keeping up a cool, persistent stare at her half-averted face. She soon became troubled by this unrelaxing scrutiny, as minutes slipped by. Mr. Slocumb had a slim black cane that looked like a polished and rounded whalebone and ended in the head of a bull-dog, with two white specks of ivory for its eyes. Holding this between his knees, he flung it from one hand to another in nervous oscillation, while continuing his stare.

He had decided that Claire was a damned good-looking girl. He had a secret contempt for her escort, Mr. MacNab. He judged all men by the capabilities of their muscle, and he had practical reasons for feeling sure that his own wiry frame held easy resources for the annihilation of "poor little Jimmy." "She looks putty high-toned," he was reflecting, 'but I guess that's on'y a put-up job to tease a feller. She can't be much if she's along with that young un. I'll say somepn."

He was on the verge of carrying out this resolve and addressing Claire, when an event occurred which had the effect of thwarting his meditated impertinence.

The mind of James MacNab was dull and sluggish. But he had seen a way of perhaps securing for himself the undivided attention of Josie. He did not wait for the latter to sanction his design; he feared her opposition to it, and suddenly spoke, leaning forward again with his look directed full upon Claire.

"Miss Twinin'," he said, "low me t' intrerdooce a friend 'o mine, Mr. Slocomb. Mr. Slocumb, Miss Twinin'; Miss Twinin', Mr. Slocurub."

During this ponderous formula of presentation Claire had started, colored, turned toward the neighbor thus pointedly named, and finally bowed with extreme coldness, at once re-averting her face after doing so.

She seized the chance of whispering to Josie: "Why did he do that? I don't want to meet any strangers to-night. I hoped he would understand."

"He'd ought to," replied Josie, in swift aside. "I do declare it's too bad!"

The next moment she addressed Mr. MacNab. Claire could not hear what she said to him, but her brisk asperity of gesture somewhat plainly denoted reprimand. Her remarks, whatever their nature, were met in stolid silence. He who received them rather enjoyed being scolded by Josie. Her wrath had the charm of exclusiveness; for the time, at least, it vouchsafed to him her unshared heed.

Slocumb made prompt use of his new opportunity. "I guess we'll have a putty decent show to-night," he said. "They say it lays over most ev'rything that's been here fur a year or two."

Claire was now forced to turn and look at the speaker. To ignore him was no longer to preserve dignity. He had received his right of way beyond the barriers of her disregard; he had become an authorized nuisance; civility from herself had taken the instant shape of a debt, due her present escort.

"I shall be glad if it is a good play," she said. Her tones were chill and forced; her manner was repellent because so restrained. Immediately after speaking she looked at the stage. The orchestra had just stopped its brassy tumults. The green width of curtain was slowly rolling upward.

The play began. It was one of those melodramas that are the despair of reformatory critics, yet reach the protective approval of the populace through scenic novelty, swift action, and vivid if coarse-lined, portraitures. Claire was too infrequent a theatre-goer not to promptly fall under the spell wrought by a playwright deft enough for the capture of others far more experienced than she in tricks of climax, dialogue, and situation.

Occasionally, during the progress of this act, she would murmur pleased comments to Josie. She betrayed an interest that was childish: she had forgotten the proximity of Slocumb. He still stared at her; he had not been effectually repulsed by her suppressed, colorless demeanor. Her refined accent and the musical quality inseparable at all times from her voice had affected him like a new sensation. He failed to follow the actors while they diligently stored up material for future agony. He had enormous confidence in his own powers of fascination with women. It did not occur to him that Claire might be a lady. He knew nothing of ladies. He had met some women who disliked him at sight, who would have none of him, whose fortresses of prejudice he could not storm. But these incidents of disfavor were rare; his list of conquests far outnumbered them.

"She's playin' off," sped his further reflections, once more shaped in the vernacular of actual speech. "I'll let up on her fur a spell. When the first act's through I'll tackle her agin. She ain't offish as she looks. Bet she ain't!"

The act progressed, and at length ended. Its finale foretold a plenitude of woe and disaster; a great deal of pipe, so to speak, had been laid for future calamity; everything promised to be inclement and tempestuous. The audience exchanged murmurs of grim approbation; it was going to get its money's worth of horror.

But now an event abruptly took place which for lurid reality far eclipsed all within the limits of canvas and calcium. Just as the drop-curtain had reached half-way in its descent, a sudden burst of flame was seen to issue from one of the wings. It may at once be said that the fire was completely extinguished soon after the curtain had touched the boards, and that nothing more serious had caused it than the momentary conflagration of some gauze side-scene which was to serve in a coming effect of misty moonlight.

But the large mass of the people who witnessed the blaze, and who saw and smelt the smoke as it curled and eddied in black spurts forth from behind the edges of the fallen curtain, had no knowledge of their own slight peril. Here, in the upper tiers, they rose impetuously; it was a prompt and general panic. Dashes were made on every hand toward the staircases. Cries of "fire" sounded from many throats. Claire felt herself swept by sheer bodily pressure at least twenty yards. A few seconds before this she had heard a sort of whimpering shriek from Josie Morley, and then had seen a sidelong wedge of close-packed humanity pry itself between her own form and that of the girl. Josie was clinging with both hands to the arm of James McNab at the moment of her disappearance.

Claire was more shocked than frightened. She had never before found herself in physical danger; to-night was a crucial test for her nerve and coolness. Both stood the test well. John Slocumb, who had kept close by her side, with his stout arm clasped about her waist, now felt a thrill of admiration as she turned to him and quietly said, while they stood jammed together in the panting throng, whose very fierceness of impetus had produced for it a brief, terrible calm, "I wish you would not hold me like that, please. There's no need of it."

We sometimes hear of the ruling passion that is strong in death. Claire knew there was danger of her being crushed. But she had not lost her head, as the phrase goes. She could still prefer solitary extinction to the fate of being annihilated while in the embrace of Mr. John Slocumb.

He removed his arm. "All right," he muttered, "if you'd rather go it alone."

"I would, thank you," said Claire.

(To be Continued.)

A SPECIAL INVITATION.

We especially invite a trial by all those sufferers from Kidney and Liver complaints who have failed to obtain relief from other remedies and from doctors. Natures great remedy, Kidney-Wort, has effected cures in many obstinate cases. It acts at once on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleansing the system of all poisonous humors and restoring a healthy condition of those important organs. Do not be discouraged but try it.

A LONG TIME.

Fifteen years of suffering from the tortures of Dyspepsia is indeed a long time. A. Burns, blacksmith, of Cobourg, was thus afflicted, but it only required four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters to completely cure him. 87i

Something About Thermometers.

When a thermometer is to be made, the glass-blower first blows a bulb on the end of a long tube. While this tube is hot the end of the tube is inserted in mercury, and as the bulb cools the mercury rises and fills the bulb. This process is repeated until the bulb and part of the tube are filled. The bulb is then immersed in snow or chipped ice and the mercury settles to the freezing point, which is marked on the scale as 32°. If a Fahrenheit scale is to be followed. Next the bulb is put in boiling water, and the point to which the mercury rises is marked on the scale as 212°. Ten degrees of the mercury is now detached from the column by jarring, and the whole length of the tube is tested. The process is repeated with five degrees of the column being measured all the time by a standard thermometer to see if the tube is conical at any point.

They generally vary about two or three degrees, owing to the irregularity of the opening of the tube, which causes the mercury to rise slowly where the opening is too large, and too fast where the opening is too narrow. It requires great skill to blow a tube with a uniform opening the whole length.

They should be allowed to stand not less than one month—one year is better—to allow the mercury to settle, before the scale is made.

The self-registering thermometer is used for marking the highest and lowest points reached within a given time. The bulb is filled with mercury, above which, in the tube, is inserted a fine piece of steel spring; the remainder of the tube is filled with carbolic acid or creosote. The steel spring rests at the highest point it is pushed to by the mercury and is afterward drawn down by a small magnet. By a duplex arrangement and reversing the scale the lowest or coldest point is indicated in the same way. The deep-sea thermometer is of the same pattern, and is incased in a heavy copper tube to preserve it against the pressure of water. It has, besides, a self-regulating attachment. The fever or clinical thermometers are made with great nicety, and are used for determining the temperature of the human body.

Mercury is commonly used for filling the bulbs, it being highly sensitive to heat and cold, but for the extreme northern climates it will not answer, as it freezes at forty degrees below zero. When this temperature is liable to be met spirit thermometers are used, being made of alcohol colored red or blue. These spirit thermometers will not answer for high temperatures, however, as the alcohol volatilizes too readily.

There is no government standard for testing thermometers. The Signal Service uses the Fahrenheit scale. The Winchester observatory of Yale College has established a thermometric bureau for testing thermometers, either for dealers or others interested in procuring exact instruments. A small fee, ranging from fifty cents to two dollars, is charged, and a Yale certificate of correctness, is furnished. The observatory has elaborate apparatus for testing the instruments, and its services are of great value to physicians in testing clinical thermometers.

There is a new style of plain thermometer made with an elongated bulb with the tube balanced near the centre on a pivot. As the mercury rises above the pivot, the point of the tube is depressed, and moves along an index like the hand of a clock. This thermometer can be read with ease across a large hall. There are also many new contrivances for registering degrees of heat and cold with clock attachments to indicate the hour the temperature indicated was reached. Thermometers are also made with wire attachments, so that the mercury rising to a certain point will touch the wire and complete the circuit of a galvanic battery and sound an al

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1884.

It is expected that Mr. Fletcher of Woodstock will run as usual for South Oxford. Mr. Fletcher always runs.

The celebrated Weekes prejury case was concluded on Saturday, the charge being dismissed for want of the missing original of the declaration.

Mr. Gladstone's policy in Egypt is vehemently attacked by the Times editorially. The Pall Mall also declares that further delay in activo interference would be criminal.

The floods in the Western States are increasing, and the situation of the homeless and destitute people imprisoned by the waters, and in many cases without food, is growing desperate. Active measures to send relief are being adopted in many of the large cities.

The tariff bill introduced in the United States Congress, by Mr. Morrison, of the ways and means committee, besides placing a number of raw products on the free list, provides for a reduction of 20 per cent. on a great portion of the goods in the different schedules.

The petitions pouring in upon the U. S. Congress attest that few subjects of public importance are exciting a more widespread interest just now among our American neighbours than divorce. Scores of memorials, coming from all parts of the land, ask Cogress to provide for the collection of divorce statistics, with a view of learning what legislation can be had. If these sudden and remarkable manifestations of a general interest in divorce are to be taken as an index of public opinion, Congress will probably feel bound to pay some consideration to them.

It is scarcely to be wondered at that the British do not like to have the Soudan relapse into semi-barbarism, with slave-selling as its principal industry. There are, it is announced, in that Province 15,000 Christians and 40,000 Egyptians; there are 1,000 commercial houses owned by Europeans and 3,000 by Egyptians, and the import and export trade is valued at £13,000,000 annually. If authority at Khartoum can be maintained by General Gordon, the sheiks pacified and the False Prophet allowed to advance no further than El Obeid, this commerce may be saved without much more blood-shed; but should General Gordon fail in his mission, Great Britain may find it necessary to send a substantial, well-disciplined army to subdue the Mahdi.

York County Council, in its present-ment suggested that the Grand Jury system should be replaced by the appointment of an officer for every county similar to the Procurator-Fiscal in Scotland. There is no county on the face of the earth where justice is meted out with greater care than in Scotland, or where the scandals attending trials are so few. We attribute this satisfactory state of affairs to the fact that in that country the majority verdict is enforced, and the petit jury is thus placed beyond a possibility of being tampered with. Doubtless, too, the ability with which the trained Procurators-Fiscal inquire into cases before trial adds to the confidence of the people in their judiciary. The system is comparatively inexpressive.

A deputation consisting of Mr. F. R. Ball, Oxford; Jno. Watson, Waterloo; D. Wheelihan, Halton; Jos. Featherstone, Peel; and J. R. Wissler, Wellington waited upon the Attorney-General on Tuesday to suggest action being taken to compel railways aided by Government grants to comply with the conditions upon which such aid was granted. The gentlemen mentioned were, under the Act incorporating the Credit Valley, elected directors for their several counties, which had heavily bonused that railway; but the fact of their being directors at all appears to have been wholly ignored, and since the absorption of the road heavy rates, violating the terms under which aid had been granted had been charged. The subject is a large one, and the municipalities have apparently much ground for complaint.—Globe.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

COMMUNICATED.

This may, with good reason, be termed the age of Democracy. Every country inhabited by the Caucasian race shows its determination to be ruled by a council elected from among the people. The Nihilists of Russia and Socialists of Germany are plotting and murdering to enforce their recognition by the constituted authorities; had they political privileges which we enjoy they would remain quiet. France has returned to Republicanism, and Italy and Spain are beginning to show their desire for civil rights. The infection has spread to India, and the natives there now demand equal rights with their conquerors. The Australians at the late convention held at Sidney show a determination not to submit to regal authority when it conflicts with their own interests. The Irish are clamouring for Home Rule, and the Scotch for a minister who will devote his time to their interests and not be mixed up with the English Cabinet. In the Dominion two of the Provinces are muttering discontentedly with an occasional display of teeth, and old, sober-sided England, which seems to be, latterly, a rendezvous for Nihilists, Socialists and agitators of every description, is showing unmistakable signs of a Republican feeling. For some time the average opinion has decided that the House of Lords was not necessary to the good government of the State; that it is rather a clog impeding legislation demanded by the majority of the people. Not being responsible to the people and not being under the necessity of cultivating their good will in order to obtain a continuance of their position, the Lords are not likely to serve any one's interests but their own, nor will they pass any measures hurtful to their own order, be they ever so necessary to the people. They are the landed proprietors of Britain, and the people of Great Britain know too well that the interests of the land-owners often clash with their own, and they (the people) suffer accordingly, and consequently demand that the Lords meet their representatives upon the floor of the House of Commons, and that the institution be made supreme in the government of the State. But the great difficulty is how to get rid of their Lordships. The Bill providing for their dissolution must obtain their consent before it becomes law, and it will probably be a long time before the peers consent to their own destruction. The only way left is by a revolution, but the English people have good reason to believe that little good is accomplished by such means. They ridded themselves of this august assembly once before by means of a revolution, and found themselves tamely submitting to a despotism when they had cooled their ire. The English very sensibly consider that every revolution is followed by a reaction which leaves them in a worse state than when they began. It is very probable that the people will leave their constitution to be modified gradually by time, and it is not likely that they will get rid of the Lords just yet.

S. W. R,

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

The Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections met yesterday morning to consider the case of Hon. Adam Crooks, M. P. P. for South Oxford. The Attorney-General presented a copy of the record of proceedings in the Court of Chancery, which appointed trustees for Mr. Crooks's estate, and Drs. Spragge, Clarke and Hall were examined as to the nature of the late Minister's ailment. Their testimony agreed in two particulars —that Mr. Crooks is insane, and that his ailment (paresis) is incurable. The Committee will probably report to the House to-day.

Manitoba and Dakota.

THEIR LAND POLICIES CONTRASTED.

There has been a great deal said and written (pro and con) by persons of different political stripes about matters and things in Manitoba and about the exodus to Dakota, etc. As I have spent nearly two years in that part of the country, and as many people are enquiring of me with reference to the North-west, I will give you a few facts about it, which you can give to your readers if you feel inclined.

In the spring of 1882 I started for Manitoba intending to take land and make myself a home in the southern part of it. I thought that was the best part of the great country, and I think most people who are acquainted with the country are now of that opinion. I located land early in the spring before the snow was off the ground, and when summer came found that I had more water than land. My land was useless. I could not homestead a second time without trouble and expense that I was not prepared to undertake, nor indeed could I do it south of the C. P. R., as I saw the land agent for that part and learned from him that all the land south of the railroad had been withdrawn from homesteading. I had friends who came from Ontario to locate in that part of the country with me, who found after a good deal of trouble and expense that they could not get land from Government and that the railroad land in that part was not in the market and soon after found that the railroad land in the southern part of that country had passed into the hands of an English Land Company. Finding it impossible to get land in the most desirable part of our own North-west, both my friends and myself, discouraged and then disgusted, pulled up stakes and made for Dakota. We found the northern part of that Territory unsurveyed, and as far as white people are concerned unsettled; but we found good land and good water and a good supply of wood and timber, and as we had failed to get homes in Southern Manitoba we resolved to have them in Southern Dakota. A little less than eighteen months ago six of us commenced operations in our new location at the east end of Turtle Mountain, and though we have had many of the difficulties to meet which have to be contended with in all new countries, we are contented and prosperous and the difficulties peculiar to all new countries are fast passing away.

We have now a large settlement of thrifty Canadian farmers, and though our settlement is so young we have a thriving town which we call St. Johns; we have four stores, two hotels, a saw mill, a blacksmith shop and many other conveniences, and there is every prospect that other industries will be started in the spring.

The Washington Government has been very considerate, and even kind, and has connected our settlement with the railroad at Devils Lake, a distance of eighty miles, by a tri-weekly mail and stage, and we have the assurance that the railroad will be extended to Turtle Mountain before the coming summer. The land in Southern Manitoba is good, and if we could have secured homes there we should not have looked for anything better, but as we could not get land in our own country we sought and found it in the neighbouring State, and are now quite satisfied that we made the change. And whatever may be said to the contrary, it is a fact that Canadians are constantly coming from Manitoba and other parts of the Dominion to this part of Dakota, and we are quite willing they shall come. I have just received word from that country that there have been hundreds of Canadians there this winter looking for land. I have nothing to say against my native land; I love her still, but I feel that we were drawn from her by the fickleness of the Ottawa Government with reference to the land in Southern Manitoba. I felt very much grieved at the time, but the prospects in our new location and the kindly consideration of the Washington people have made me feel quite at home under the stars and stripes.

J. C. Hunt.

St. Johns, D.T.

NEWS ITEMS.

The Ohio River is again rising.

An entire village in Kentucky has been swept away by the floods.

Severe gale and snowstorms are prevailing in Scotland and Wales.

Catewayo is once more reported to be dead, this time of heart disease.

It is reported that 300 Christian catechists have been murdered in Tonquin.

The pope has granted the title of count to Edward Dunne, late chief justice of Arizona.

An Irish farmer has been stabbed and his throat cut by agrarians on the highway at Newross.

The Governor-General has sent a check for five hundred dollars for the poor of Montreal.

While a wedding party was crossing the River Thessis, near Vienna, Austria, the ice broke, and 35 of the party were drowned.

The Scott Act vote in Princess county, Prince Edward Island, was: For repealing the act, 936; against, 2,582; majority against, 1,646.

A painful sensation has been caused in Austria by the Emperor conferring a decoration upon the Hugarian mayor who instigated the recent prosecution against Jews for murdering a Christian girl.

Documentary evidence of plots against the lives of high personages in Astria will be submitted to the Reichsrath on the debate over the rigorous measures adopted against Socialism. Proof has been obtained of a connection between Socialists in Austria and Russia.

A lady died suddenly in Dayton, Ohio, last month, and was buried. Suspicion having been aroused, her parents had her exhumed, when the horrible discovery was made that she had been buried alive. The body bore terrible evidence of her narrow prison.

The news from the Soudan is anything but assuring. Col. Baker seems to be in a very precarious situation. The number killed in the fight at Tokar was very large. The Egyptian troops under Col. Baker seem to be utterly worthless, and it is doubtful whether he has at his disposal parties capable of offering efficient defence.

The reported negotiations for an Anglo-French occupation of Egypt are declared to be without foundation. The position of the garrison at Sinkat is simply horrible. They have devoured everything in the shape of food; all the camels, cats, and dogs have been eaten, and they are now subsisting on the eaves of trees.

The case of the Baccarat Clubs has revealed unsuspected depths of aristocratic gambling in London, England. Charles Russell, who defended the culprits, declared that in many clubs judges, bishops, and statesmen played nightly for high stakes; and Russell ought to know, for he is notoriously the boldest gambler as well as the greatest advocate in the English Courts.

It is four years ago since the murder of the Donnelly family took place in Biddulph, Middlesex County, and there is yet no clue to the murderers. Bill Donnelly is now a constable in that county, and he does not despair of yet being able to get at the real culprits. He was interviewed in London recently, and told a reporter that he had waited four years for his revenge, but if need be he would wait twenty more, so certain was he that his family would be vindicated at last. He claims that there has been a great mortality among the people who were alleged to be concerned in the murder, and he looked upon it as a sort of vengeance. He says fifteen persons, some of whom were called as witnesses at the trial, and others who were arrested for the murder, have since died.

THE CARNIVAL BALL.

Dresses Worn by Some of the Ladies.

Writing of the great carnival ball which was held at the Windsor House, Montreal, on Friday night, a correspondent says: In regard to the costumes, cream and canary colored silks seemed to predominate. Diamonds in the hair generally formed the ornaments. The following among other dresses were noticed:

The Marchioness of Lansdowne—Bodice of gold, satin broche, cream satin skirt trimmed with Turkish embroidery and a quantity of cream lace; ornaments, diamonds and rubies.

Lady Melgund—White satin bodice, gold broche, skirt of white tulle with gold feathers, flowers and sash; ornaments, pearls, stars and tiara of diamonds.

Lady Florence Anson — Brown tulle, yellow ostrich feathers and satin ribbons.

Lady Alexander Russell—Violet brocade, satin, honiton lace, pearls and diamonds.

Miss Hendrie, Hamilton—Corn silk, shirred, gold ornaments.

Miss Alice Ewing Park, Hamilton—Pale pink satin, with beaded front of white and pink water lilies; Honiton lace; ornaments, diamonds and natural flowers.

Mrs. M. G. Holder, Ingersoll—White satin, trimmed with lace and ostrich feathers; moire train; Medici collar of ostrich feathers; ornaments, pearls.

Mrs. Joseph Hickson — Black silk, white lace and pearls and ostrich feathers; ornaments, diamonds.

Mrs. H. H. Cook, Toronto—Elegant toilet of black embossed gossamer, over coral satin, petticoat and corsage of variegated pearls; ornaments, carnations and diamonds.

Miss J. Rutherford, Galt—Pink India lawn, with ruby velvet bodice; gold ornaments.

Miss Cameron, Woodstock—Pink silk and Spanish lace; gold ornaments.

Miss Turner, Hamilton—Black satin, court train of Spanish lace, pearls and diamonds.

Miss Kate Turner — Pale blue satin skirt with white satin court train and pearls and jewels.

The following is a list of the flowers used in the decorations of the ball room: 5,000 roses, 5,000 pinks, 2,000 violets, 1,009 lilies of the valley, 1,000 hyacinths, 2,000 camelias, 1,000 japonicas, and a variety of other plants all grown in this vicinity.

The Industrial Census of India.

British journals bring interesting details of the industrious census of India in 1881. The total population of the country is 253,891,821, and of this enormous number only 85,544 persons are British-born subjects, and 56,646 are soldiers and 12,088 females. Practically less than 17,000 male civilians, wielding an army of 56,000 men, control the vast empire. The whole number of Europeans returned is only 146,612. The occupations of 102,629,000 persons are defined, and of these 71,199,000 are engaged in agriculture or the care of animals. In industrial occupations 21,041,000 persons are engaged, 12,859,000 males and 8,182,000 females. The workers in cotton and flax number 5,485,455; in clothing, 2,815,280; in vegetable food, 3,165,429; in stone, clay and earthenware, 1,850,974; in houses and building, 836,553; in guns and resins, 762,526; in bamboo, cane, rush, straw and leaves, 680,732; in gold, silver and precious stones, 472,956, and in iron and steel only 473,361. Engaged in the work of government, national, local and municipal, are 1,843,000 persons, of whom 315,000 are classed as belonging to the army. The professional classes embrace 1,451,000 persons.

Assessing the Damages.

A few weeks since a railroad collision on one of the roads leading out of New York killed, among others, a passenger living in an interior town. His remains were sent home in good shape, and a few days after the funeral the attorney of the road called upon the widow to effect a settlement. She placed her figures at $20,000.

"Oh, that sum is unreasonable," replied the attorney. "Your husband was nearly fifty years old?"

"Yes, sir."

"And lame?"

"Yes."

"And his general health was poor?"

"Quite poor."

"And he probably would not have lived over five years?"

"Probably not, sir."

"Then it seems to me that two or three thousand dollars would be a fair compensation."

"Two or three thousand," she echoed. "Why, sir, I counted that man for ten years, run after him for ten more, and then had to chase him down with a shot gun to get him before a preacher. Do you suppose that I'm going to settle for the bare cost of shoe leather and ammunition?"—Wall Street News.

He Was Going to Take Something Warm.

Thimblethorpe was going to take a Russian bath the other day when he met his friend Boomby.

"Where are you going?" was the first greeting that met Thimblethorpe's ears after they had shaken hands.

"Oh, I am going to take something warm," as he slowly contracted his left eyelid. "Come along?"

Nothing loth Boomby caught on, and followed his bosom crony into what he thought was an exceedingly hot room.

"Let us take a drink of water before we order the stimulants," remarked Thimblethorpe.

"A good idea," was the answer, "for I feel awful warm."

He partook of the aqua pura, and soon the perspiration began to ooze from every pore.

"Come out of this," he said; "I couldn't drink anything stronger than soda now." Just then, as he glanced at the shelves around the room, on which were reclining several nude figures, it began to dawn upon him that he had been made a victim of a huge practical joke,

"Don't say a word about it and I'll stand a quart bottle," he whispered, as he darted out of the street door and into the nearest apothecary shop to cool off. —Boston Courier.

A Hard-Boiled Egg.

A commercial traveller jumped from the train at a small station, and shouted to the proprietor of the lunch counter to give him a hard-boiled egg and a piece of mince pie.

He ate the pie hurriedly, and was attempting to break the egg when the conductor gave the signal for starting.

"What in Great Cæsar's name is the matter with this egg?" he yelled.

"Is it rotten?" asked the proprietor.

"Rotten? no, but I can't make any impression on it, and here I am as hungry as a wolf and the train half way out of the yard;" and he made a dash for the back platform of the rear car, which he just succeeded in reaching.

"Well, I'm blowed," said the proprietor of the lunch counter, poking it with a knife, "I didn't give the young man a china nest egg."—Ex.

Sixty Feet Under the Sea.

"I was once a diver—not a wrecker, but a pearl diver—and a hard business it was," recently observed the captain of a Spanish brig to a reporter of the California Times. "We worked off the Mexican and Panama coasts, principally on the Pacific side. Sometimes we worked alone, but generally on shares, and sometimes for pay. We went to the grounds in small sailing vessels, then we took to the small boats and covered as much ground as possible. Each man had a basket, a weight and a knife. For sharks? Yes, but it is a poor defence, for it is almost impossible to swing the arm with any force under water. The best weapon is a short spear. When you reach the ground you strip, put your feet in a big sinker, take the basket that has the rope for hoisting, drop over, and soon find yourself at the bottom.

"Then your business is to knock off as many oysters as you can and pile them into the basket before you lose your wind. It is a terrible strain, but I could stand it in those days for six minutes, and I have known some men who could stay down ten; but it is sure death in the long run. If the ground is well stocked you can get twenty or more shells, but it is all luck. When the basket is full it is hauled up, and after Bradlaugh took his seat in the British House of Commons, but was excluded again by a vote of 228 to 120.

How Fast They Stick Hogs in Chicago.

I arose early this morning and went to the stock-yards, where it is said, they kill, dress and freeze a steer in one minute. I thought this a gross exaggeration, but when I saw a pig put through its performance in 35 seconds, I can believe the story.

Phil Robinson, in that very charming book of his called "Sinners and Saints," gives, to a nicety, the operation of pork killing as carrried on in this city, which is both graphic and elaborate. As I cannot give you Mr. Robinson's history of the stock yards in full, I might condense the same.

For instance, we saw a pisbald pig grunting and snorting in his pen, a quarreling member of a quarrelsome family. Now, what happened to that porker was this: He was suddenly seized by the hind leg and jerked up on a small crane. This swung him swiftly through the fatal door through which no pig ever returns. On the other side stood a man with a long, glittering knife in his hand. One plunge of the cruel weapon in his fair, fat neck, and the dead pig shot across a trough and through another doorway, and then there was a splash. He had fallen head first into a vat of boiling water. Some unseen machinery passed him along swiftly to the other end of the terrible bath, and there a waterwheel picked him up and flung him out on a sloping counter. Here another machine seized him, and with one revolution scraped him as bald as a nut. And down the counter he went, losing his head as he slid past a man with a hatchet, and then presto! he was up again by the heels. In another dreadful handful a man emptied him, and while another squirted him with water, the pig—registering his own weight as he passed the teller's box—shot down the steel bar from which he hung, and whirled around the corner into the ice-house. One long cut of a knife made two "sides of pork" out of that piebald pig. Two hacks of a hatchet brought away his backbone. And then in 35 seconds from his last grunt—dirty, hot-headed, noisy—the pig was hanging up in two pieces, cleaned, tranquiled, iced.

Think of it. That poor and most unfortunate porker, who, before he had quite made up his mind whether to resent the first liberty taken with his hind leg, was dead as a door nail, and half a minute later was actually ready for the cook.

An Even Thing.

The teller of a bank in New York reports the following incident:

A German citizen, approaching the window, requested that a check payable to the order of Schweitzercase be cashed.

"Ja, dot's me," he nodded reassuringly, in answer to the teller's look of inquiry.

"But I don't know that you are Mr. Schweitzercase. You must get yourself identified," said the teller.

"How vas dot?" asked the German citizen, with a puzzled look.

"You must get some one to identify you," repeated the bank officer; "I don't know you."

"Ah, ja," cried Hans, much relieved. "Dot's all right. I don't know you neider."—Washington Capital.

Railroading in Russia.

On the whole, however, railway travelling in Russia is not disagreeable. The "scenery" suggests Scotland only as opposites suggest one another. But the eye soon grows accustomed to the vast monotonies of this neutral-tinted "Europe of plains," and the slowness of motion itself tends to concentrate the attention of the passenger upon the interior phases of his progress. Well, as I know the route between New York and Omaha, I prefer the comfort of a Russian first-class carriage on any of the large lines. This second-class accomodation is superior to that of English railways; third-class carriages are generally without upholstery. The open, end-to-end system is, however, applied to all the classes—an advantage which, where the distances travelled are great and the stoppages few, as is often the case in Russia, becomes a positive luxury. From a west European point of view, moreover, fares are decidedly low. For six roubles, or twelve shillings, a ticket is supplied for a journey of about one hundred miles; the same distance in the second-class involves an expenditure of four roubles, while the cost of travelling in the third is about a half-penny per mile. Formerly nobody travelled third-class in Russia, save peasants, workmen or poor students. During the last dozen years a change has taken place in the habits of railway passengers. Whether class distinctions are breaking down through the failure of the chin to keep them in robust vitality, or whether the fact I am about to state is referable to the "scarcity of money," so much proclaimed in Russia at the present time, I cannot undertake to decide. What is certain is that the "moneyed" classes—the landed proprietors, capitalists and people who have means without occupation—are beginning to content themselves with railway travel in its cheapest form, and that on some of the lines, as if responding to the change, a third-class carriage has made its appearance, more spacious, more comfortable than the old, and lighted, not like it with a tallow candle, but with gas. But the new elements of the third-class passenger traffic—to use for a moment the language of an annual report—do not drive out the old. Fully half the occupants of a third-class carriage remain peasants—children of the steppe and plain—giants in bark sandals and sheepskin overcoats, whom, thanks to Tourgeneff, one feels one has met somewhere before.

Why She Didn't Consume as Much Gas as Usual.

"How is it that my gas bill is smaller than usual? I certainly consumed as much last month as the month previous."

"The bill is according to the meter. You are not burning as much in the parlor as you did during the previous month."

"On the contrary," said the man of the house, "we are burning more. Month before last my daughter was absent from home and the gas was never left burning later than nine o'clock in the parlor, but last week she returned, and it is often twelve o'clock now before I hear the young man who calls on her take his departure."

"Well, I am unable to explain it. I only know that I pass your house every night and I notice through the window that the gas is turned down, very, very low."

"H'm, yes; just receipt the bill, please."

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

FOR pure and unadulterated honey, in comb and extract, go to R. Vance's. 86

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

THE reason why "Nonauch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms, Mops, Floor, Stove Horse, and Scrubbing Brushes, Damps and Chimneys, Clocks. Eavetroughing and repairing done promptly, Heating Drums and Stove Pipes, Dishes of all kinds, Smoothing Irons Mrs. Pott's Cold Handle Smoothing Irons, Scales, large and small, Spades, Forks, Shovels and Hoes, Mixed Paints, all ready for the brush; any tint or colour Boiled and Raw Oils, Root Cutters, Children's Carriages, Baby Jumpers, Corn Planters, Farmer's Bells, Carpet Sweepers, Dry and Liquid Measures, Bird Cages, Lanterns; Stove Polish, Lead and Iron Piping, Gas Fittings, Hog Rings and Hog Holders, everything in the House Furnishing Line, Axle Grease, Cisterns Pumps, Wheelborrows, Sinks, and everything that is wanted to keep house with.

Cash paid for old Rubber Shoes, Bones of all kinds, Woollen and Cotton Rags, Old Brass, Copper and Lead, old Zinc, old Wrought and Cast Iron, all kinds of Furs, Beef Hides, Sheep Skins, Calf Skins, Horse Hair, Tallow and Beeswax.

47. H. CAMPBELL.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4:46 a. m.	6:55 a. m.
11:57 a. m.	12:15 a. m.
12:32 a. m.	3:05 p. m.
3:05 p. m.	4:48 p. m.
7:47 p. m.	7:00 p. m.
2:11 a. m.	12:20 p. m.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall-st., N. Y.

January 24th, 1884. 1585-48t

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT.

J. C. HEGLER.

Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557c-m

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE, Cheap, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to H. O'CONNOR, JR., Broker, Ingersoll

January 16th, 1884. 1583m

BYCICLE FOR SALE.

An English Bycicle in good order. Cost $70, will be sold for $30. Apply at THE CHRONICLE Office.

Dec. 6, 1883. 1572

MONEY TO LOAN.

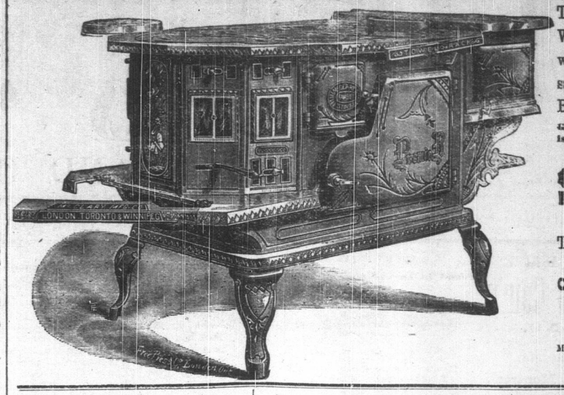
At 6 per cent.—£500,000

H. O'CONNOR, jr., Broker, Ingersoll.

Office—Opposite Imperial and Merchants Banks.

Ingersoll, Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578t

NELLES & STEVENS



Having opened out in the O'Neil stand, in General Groceries, take this their first opportunity of soliciting a call from the people of Ingersoll and vicinity. Our stock will at all times be found replete with everything to be found in a First-class Grocery. TEAS A SPECIALTY.

By strict attention to business, care in the selection of a first-class article in buying, we hope to merit a portion of the trade of the community and still retain the very liberal patronage bestowed upon the late proprietor,

W. B. NELLES. M. L. STEVENS.

Ingersoll, February 14th, 1884. 83

COMBINATION STOVE.

The Most Perfect Coal and Wood Stove Made, Con- with round fire pot, on the same principle as a Base Burner.

Guaranteed to Give Perfect Satisfaction. Call and See it Working at the Store of

S. KING

Star House,

Thames Street, Ingersoll.

Cheese Vats, Milk Cans, Sap Pans, and Pails

MADE TO ORDER.

PRICES LOW.

HOTEL FOR SALE.

That large three-storey brick hotel, known as The "Albion," Embro, is offered for sale or exchange for farm or town property; one of the best paying hotels in the County; alac 50 acres improved land in Hough ton Township.

For terms and particulars, apply to C. GARNER, Thamesford P.O.

June 21st 1883. 1534t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that

GEORGE BAILEY, of the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, and Province of Ontario, Carriage Maker, has made an assignment to

ALFRED H. ELLIS,

Of the said Town of Ingersoll, Hardware Merchant, of all his real and personal estate for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said George Bailey, are requested to send by post prepaid to the undersigned, on or before the said

Ninth day of March next

A statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration.

The said Trustee will after the said Ninth day of March next, proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rato among the creditors of the said George Bailey, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll, this tenth day of Jan., A.D, 1884.

A. H. ELLIS, Assignee.

AUCTION SALE —OF— VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY.

There will be sold by Public Auction, at

Brady's Hotel, in the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, on

Saturday the 16th day of February

A.D. 1884, at 2 o'clock, in the afternoon, by

James Brady, Esq., Auctioneer,

The following valuable farm properties, viz:

PARCEL No. 1—The northerly 135 acres of Lot Number 23, in the 5th Concession of

NORTH OXFORD,

(Formerly North Dorchester), and more particularly described in instrument registered in the Oxford Registry Office, No. 26,918. This parcel is situate about 6 miles West of the Town of Ingersoll, on the river road, and within a short distance of a church, School House, Cheese Factory. The soil is a light gravley loam, about 30 to 35 acres is timbered with Beech, Maple and Small Hemlock. The property is well fenced. There is on the Northern portion of this Parcel, a good Frame House about 20x22, 1½ storeys high, with wood shed attached. Frame Barn, about 40x30, with shed attached. A Frame Drive House, about 22x36; Frame Hog Pen about 16x14; An orchard containing a number of Apple, Peach, Cherry and Plumb Trees. There is on the Southerly portion of this Parcel, a log house, a good frame barn about 60x36, with good hog pen attached, a young and thrifty orchard.

This parcel will be sold subject to a mortgage for $6000; bearing 6 per cent. interest, and extending over a period of years. The purchaser to have possession on March 1st, 1884.

PARCEL No. 2—The Easterly 74 acres of Lot A, in the 5th Concession of the Township of

NORTH DORCHESTER,

South of the River Thames, in the County of Middlesex, and more particularly described in instrument registered in the Registry Office for said County of Middlesex, as London, as No. 6,081. This parcel is situate about 10 miles from the Town of Ingersoll, and 6½ miles from Mount Elgin; about 15 to 20 acres of this parcel is high-land soil, sandy loam. The lowland is swampy. Government drain runs near by, making property easily capable of drainage. The knolls are timbered with Beech, Maple, Cherry, Oak and some Pine, the low parts with Black Ash and Tamarac. Possession of this parcel given immediately upon condition of purchase. This Parcel will be sold subject to a mortgage for $800.

The above properties will be sold in Separate parcels and subject to a reserved bid.

TERMS OF SALE—Ten per cent. of purchase money to be paid down on day of sale, balance within 30 days thereafter.

For further particulars, apply to JAMES BRADY, Esq., Ingersoll.

Or to GEORGE W. WELLS, Solicitor, Simcoe, Ont.

Dated January 23rd, 1884. 1585t

BECK.

HAVING Bought out the Business Lately carried on by ROBT. YOUNG

We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of

FRUIT

OF ALL KINDS,

CANNED GOODS

Fine Confectionery.

OYSTERS

JELLYS, JAMS

Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,

And hope by close attention to busines ard

SELLING CHEAP

To merit the patronage of the public.

GEO. BECK.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th 1883. 1580

HOLD ON —AND— Dont be in a Hurry —BUT— GO STRAIGHT —TO— SHRAPNELL'S

AND BUY YOUR

Xmas Goods

Candies, &c., —AT— Half Price

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY AT SHRAPNELL'S,

FOR CASH ONLY.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580

I. COYNE

Has just received an immense stock of

Grey and White Cottons, Check Shirting, Denims, Cottonades, Ducks, Prints, Etc.,

For the early spring trade, which he now offers by the yard or piece at

Rock Bottom Prices!

Piles of Prints from 5 cents per yard up. See our 35 inch Grey Cotton at 6¾cts. See our Check Canada Shirtings at 10c and 12½cts, worth 20 per cent. more. See our 30 cent. Cottonades for 25 cents. In Dress Goods and Silks I. Coyne offers astonishing value. Coloured Silks for 37½ cts worth 50 cts. Dress goods at 10, 12½ and 15 cts per yard, worth 20 per cent more.

You will consult your best interests by calling on I. COYNE when in Town and examining his immense variety of NEW GOODS. We take a pleasure in showing you through, no matter whether you buy or not.

I. COYNE has also just received a wholesale stock of Embroideries in beautiful designs, which he is selling at prices much below those of last spring.

EVERY LADY IN WANT OF EMBROIDERIES SHOULD SEE OUR IMMENSE VARIETY.

The largest stock and the largest assortment of New Goods in Ingersoll are to be found at I. COYNE'S.

PRICES DEFY COMPETITION.

I. COYNE.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

NOTICE.

Just Received an Immense Stock of

Wall Papers and Borders

Of the newest designs, which will be offered at VERY LOW PRICES in order to induce customers to commence house cleaning early, at

L. THOMPSON'S

Wall Paper, Stationery, Oil, Color and Window Glass Store, McCaughey's Block, Thames Street,

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

Learn & Co

ARE SHOWING A LARGE STOCK OF

BLACK & COLORED SILKS.

Black and Colored Silk Velvets,

Black and Col. Velvet Plushes,

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Also for evening wear a large assortment of

FLOWERS AND FEATHERS.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE OUR STOCK.

We are also selling the Balance of our winter stock at great reductions.

INSPECTION INVITED.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

FULL STOCK ALWAYS ON HAND.

OFFICE SUPPLIES.

Blank Books, Inks, Blotting, Mucilage, Etc. Only the best quality

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Including Violins, Flutes, Piccolos, Concertinas, Harmonicas, &c.

PICTURE FRAMING.

Promptly and Properly executed at

P. W. CAMPBELL,

WARREN'S OLD STAND, CHRISTOPHER'S BLOCK.

January 16th, 1884. 1584

HEADACHES

Are generally induced by Indigestion, Foul Stomach, Costiveness, Deficient Circulation, or some Derangement of the Liver and Digestive System. Sufferers will find relief by the use of

Ayer's Pills

to stimulate the stomach and produce a regular daily movement of the bowels. By their action on these organs, AYER'S PILLS divert the blood from the brain, and relieve and cure all forms of Congestive and Nervous Headache, Bilious Headache, and Sick Headache; and by keeping the bowels free, and preserving the system in a healthful condition, they insure immunity from future attacks. Try

Ayer's Pills.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

Xmas & New Years.

R. H. YOUNG

Has on hand a large assortment of

BLANKETS

And all kinds of

HARNESS!

And everything required for the winter campaign.

ESPECIAL GOOD VALUE.

OLD STAND, PHOENIX BLOCK,

Opposite the Market,

Cash or Wood taken in exchange for goods.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1780

JAS. McINTYRE

UNDERTAKER,

HAS REMOVED BACK TO HIS old stand in the

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

A Large Stock of COFFINS, and CASKETS BROUDS and ROBES on hand.

FURNITURE

All kinds in stock. Residence first house north of warehouse, King street, Ingersoll.

ember 22, 1881.

A Fact Established,

—THAT—

Wilkinson's

IS THE

PLACE TO BUY

YOUR

Groceries, Crockery, AND GLASSWARE.

Also a large assortment of Fancy Goods suitable for Holiday Gifts. Prices to suit the Times.

Note the place, one door West of Daly House.

KING STREET WEST.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883.

THE "Little Wonder."

Re-Opening!

Me and my father, my father and me,
Can sell you the best of Black and Green Tea,
The very best Sugar and choicest of Spice,
With Lard, Pork and Ham, and very good Rice,
In fact all the Groceries you can well name.
My father kept good ones and I'll do the same,
So come with your orders and with your money
For business without is not pleasant as honey.

E. H. HEWITT, PROPRIETRESS.

Ingersoll, Nov. 1, 1883. 1573

THOS. HENDERSON

Practical Machinist.

THE CELEBRATED

WHITE SEWING MACHINE

At

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Specials—C., R. I. & P. R'y.
Credit Sale—John Phillips.
Auction Sale—W. H. Cope.
Auction Sale—D. M. Sutherland.
Advertisers—J. C. Hough.
Warning—Guggisberg Bros. & Co.
Hardware—A. H. Ellis.
Auction Sale—Wm. Harris.
Executors' Sale—Wm. Dundas.
Notice—Bell Telephone Company.
Executors' Notice—J. C. Hegler.
For Sale—Jas. F. McDonald.
Notice of Divorce—Daniel Bullis.
Stoves—S. King.
Groceries—Nelles & Stevens.
Special—O. T. A.
Special—W. C. T. U.
Special—W. C. T. U.
Special—Mass Meeting.
Special—Frank Leslie's,

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

THIS is St. Valentine's Day.

CARNIVAL to-morrow night.

THE Oxford Medical Association is in session here to-day.

HELLO!—Our friends can now communicate with THE CHRONICLE office by telephone.

THE Boston Opera Co. gave an excellent entertainment to a small audience on Thursday evening.

LEFT.—J. S. Palmer, cheese buyer, seems to have left town without advising some of his most interested friends of his departure.

SCOTT ACT.—The Scott Act will be voted on in this county on the 20th prox. Both sides seem very sanguine of success.

WHITE BROS.—Do not forget the tea meeting on Wednesday evening next at the Baptist Church. The White Brothes will furnish a choice selection of music.

DELEGATES.—Thos. Bowers, M. D., and Mr. E. L. Smith of this town are delegates to the grand lodge, Y. M. P. B. A., now being held at Toronto.

NEW HEARSE.—In purchasing another hearse Mr. McIntyre seems to be ready for every emergency. This now one has several new features and can readily be changed from runners to wheels.

SUNDAY NIGHT LECTURES.—Remember the lecture in the B. C. Church on Sabbath evening next. The one of last Sabbath was well attended and the lecture proved a most instructive one.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.—The following have been reappointed License Commissioners in this county:—North Riding—John Dunlop, Angus Munroe, John Douglas. South Riding—David S. Butterfield, William Dunn, Robert Vance.

OYSTER SUPPER.—The employees of the office of Noxon Bros. Mf'g Co. and the heads of the various departments with their wives, were entertained to an oyster supper at the residence of Mr. Dexter Day on Tuesday last. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

BANKRUPT STOCK.—J. L. Perkins' bankrupt stock of groceries was sold on Saturday last in Hamilton at the high figure of 71 cents on the dollar, to Mr. Brand of Embro, where the stock has been removed. We have heard that Mr. Brand is sick of his bargain. 88i

BUSINESS TROUBLES.—Business seems to be panicky just now in Ingersoll. We hope the storm will soon blow over and business matters settle down into quiet and orderly shape again. The few failures that we have had have not been unexpected nor have they been very extensive.

M. E. CHURCH.—Rev. Wm. Williams, D.D., chairman of the Woodstock district, and ex-President of the London conference, will preach the anniversary missionary sermons in the M. E. Church, Charles-street, on Sabbath, Feb. 24th, a week from next Sabbath. More next week.

NOXON MANUFACTURING CO.—The Noxon Works resumed work yesterday after having been closed down for over a month past, to allow the removal of the machinery to the new shops. The screech of the whistle again is a welcome sound to the large number of working men employed by the Co.

SCOTT ACT MASS MEETING.—A temperance mass meeting will be held in the town hall on Monday evening next, 18th inst. Addresses will be given by Rev. John Neil, B. A., of the County of Halton, and Rev. Mr. McMullen, of Woodstock, to commence at eight o'clock. 88r

A BROOM BRIGADE.—A broom brigade has just been formed in town consisting of ten of the fair daughters of Ingersoll. They intended giving an exhibition at the carnival to-morrow night, but owing to a row in the ranks last night and the captain becoming insulted the show was deferred to some indefinite period.

NOXON WORKS FIRE PROTECTION.—On Saturday the Noxon Co. waterworks threw two streams of water to the top of Erskine church steeple. The system of waterworks now in use in this establishment is most complete in every respect, rendering it next to impossible for a fire to gain much headway.

SOCIAL.—The friends of the B. C. Church Oxford Street, have arranged to have a splendid social on Tuesday evening Feb. 19th. The provisions consisting of fruit, cakes and candies will be served around in bags. After which a programme of vocal and instrumental music will entertain the meeting, interspersed with short addresses. Tickets at the door 15cts. Doors open at 7.30, commencing at 8.

PRESBYTERIAN.—Last Sabbath, Rev. J. A. Murray, London, preached able sermons to large congregations in the Presbyterian church here.—The anniversary services of the Presbyterian Sabbath School was held on Monday evening. There was a large attendance of scholars and parents. Tea was served to the children in the basement of Erskine church, and a literary entertainment was held in Knox church.

CATALOGUE.—We are in receipt of a "Catalogue of Small Fruits" from A. M. Smith, of St. Catharines. Mr. Smith is well known to all leading horticulturists as one of the pioneers in choice fruit in Canada. His small fruit consists of select varieties and we are pleased to note that those of "improved stock" are called after old familiar names such as "Niagara", &c., and one choice variety of strawberry is called "The Canada."

OYSTER SUPPER.—A very enjoyable evening was spent by the brothern of St. John Lodge on Thursday evening last, in the oyster parlour of Bro. Vaney, it being the after piece to the installation of Bro. Jackson into the mysteries of Masonry. Mr. Jackson since his coming to Ingersoll has made many friends. After the refreshments the company were entertained with songs, recitations &c., from Bros. Hegler, Gibson, Thompson, McLeod, Sumner, Underwood and others.

N. R. OF O., B. & E. O. AG. SOCIETY.—A meeting of the Directors of the North Riding of Oxford, Blandford & East Oxford Agr'l Societies was held on Saturday, the 2nd February, when it was resolved that the two latter societies amalgamate with the North Riding of Oxford society this year for exhibition purposes on the same terms as before. It was also resolved to hold a seed grain fair on Wednesday, 12th March, and a stallion fair on Wednesday, 23rd April, at Woodstock, under the auspices of the united societies.

SNOW, ICE, RAIN.—The weather during the past week has accomodated itself to the whim of every forecaster in every almanac and newspaper in the country; snow, hail, rain, have followed in rapid succession.

What is it falls so soft and slow,
In country white as lillies blow,
In city black as any crow?
The snow.

What is it that is puradise
To those who out a strange device,
And tumble on it just like dice?
The ice.

What causes children to complain,
From counting snakes as all refrain,
And with the skating raises Cain?
The rain.

COURSE OF TEMPERANCE LECTURES.—The ladies of the Ingersoll C. W. T. U. have arranged to have two lectures of the "Star Lecture Course" as managed by Dr. Youmans of St. Catharines given in Ingersoll. The first will be delivered in the town hall, Wednesday, Feb. 27, by Geo. W. Bain, Kentucky's "Silver tongued temperance orator." He is one of the most gifted speakers of the United States. Let us not miss the treat of hearing him. The San Jose Daily Mercury says: "He has personal magnetism which is wonderful, a fund of humor inexhaustible, and perfect ocean of eloquence." The second will be delivered April 3rd, by Hon. John B. Finch, of which further notice will be given. Tickets for single lecture 20 cts; for both lectures 35 cts. Remember the dates.

ALWAYS AHEAD.—Mr. McIntyre has purchased a very stylish new glass hearse, which, with the former hearse, will enable him to fill all orders in the undertaking line promptly. 87r

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store: Sign big lamp. 80.

Personal.

Mr. John Webster, who has been section boss for the last twenty years on the G.T.R. is dangerously ill.

Mr. P. H. Paine, of Lake Linden, Mich., is visiting friends in town.

Mr. Jas. McGolrick, of Chatham, formerly of Ingersoll, is in town.

Mr. Joseph McKay, brother of Dr. McKay, has returned from Manitoba for a brief period. He is with his family at Mt. Elgin. Mr. McKay speaks highly of his location South of Brandon.

Mr. Perkins, father of Messrs. Geo. and J. L. Perkins of this town was seized with a fit of apoplexy on Saturday last and at present is very low. Slight hopes of his recovery are entertained.

Curliana.

The Ingersoll junior curlers played a return match with Sarnia at the later place yesterday, the result being another victory for our boys.

"For oh, it is a glorious game,
There's nane on earth that ye can name
Will gar your heart bleeze a' aflame,
Like our gran' game o' curlin'."

A rink of young players of the Sarnia Club played a similar rink from the Ingersoll Club, at Ingersoll, on Thursday last:—

SARNIA.	INGERSOLL.
J. Ross,	C. Slawson,
J. Sims,	Ralph King,
Wm. Thomas,	O. E. Robinson,
W. B. Ireland, skip.....7.	Jas. Vance, skip....27
Majority for Ingersoll, 20.

Tilsonburg curlers have received a challenge from the Ingersoll club.

Let southern climes hae gems fu' rare,
And flowery glades that scent the air,
But a' their joys can ne'er compare
Wi' our gran' game o' curlin'.
Our brose, our parritch and our kale,
Aye leave our sons baith stout and hale,
O' men they are the pick and wale,
I' our gran' game o' curlin'.

Board of Education.

The regular meeting of the above was held on Monday, January 28th.

Members present:—The Chairman, Messrs. King, Williams, Sutherland, Hewitt, Sudworth and Ferguson.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Several accounts were read and on motion referred to the Finance Committee.

Declaration of office made by Wm. Sutherland, A. McKay and J. H. Hegler.

The Board then organized.

On motion Mr. Sudworth was appointed Chairman and Mr. Gordon Sec.-Treas.

The Special Committee appointed to strike the Standing Committees for the current year brought in their report, as follows: Committee on teachers, Messrs. Hegler, Williams, King, McKay and Slawson; Finance, Messrs. Ferguson, Flewelling and Vance; Property, Messrs. Sutherland, Hewitt and Norsworthy; the first named in each case be the chairman, which was on motion adopted.

Board adjourned.

MANITOBA WHEAT.—Mr. Partlo has just received the first carload of Manitoba wheat ever delivered in Ingersoll. It reached here yesterday via. C. V. R. It is a very fair sample.

SMOKING LEGISLATORS.—The Kincardine Standard complains that the Council meetings there are held in a dense cloud of tobacco smoke, so general is the use of the weed.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Col. Bain, Kentucky's great temperance orator, will deliver a lecture in the Town Hall here on the 27th of this month, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Association.

TELEPHONES.—The Telephone Co. are hard at work, and every business place of importance in town is likely to be put in direct communication with every where. The wires are spread out to the four corners of creation.

CEDAR BLOCK.—The town of Galt is laying in a large quantity of cedar for block paving in the summer. This kind of roadway for towns and cities is becoming recognized as the most pleasant as well as most durable and economical.

DOMINION LICENSE ACT.—An extra of the Canada Gazette, just published, contains the names of those appointed as License Commissioners under the Dominion Act, the mayor in cities and the wardens in counties being on the Boards by virtue of their offices. Those for Oxford County are Judge Macqueen and M. Walsh.

BELL TELEPHONE CO.—Connecting lines are now open for conversation or message to London, St. Thomas, Chatham, Windsor, Woodstock, Paris, Brantford, Hamilton, Toronto, Port Hope, Peterboro, Lindsay, Kingston and intermediate points. For particulars apply to the agent of the central office, C. C. L. Wilson.

WOOD.—The high price of firewood this winter has caused many people to make enquiries regarding the relative cost of coal and wood for cooking purposes, and there is no doubt that many will change their stoves before next winter. Coal is now very generally used for heating purposes, and by using it for cooking also, the necessity for wood in the households where the change is made, will be done away with.

A GOOD PLACE TO LOCATE.—The Barnum iron and wire works of Detroit and Windsor, are on the lookout for a suitable place to establish works in Canada. At present they employ 700 hands at Detroit, and 50 at Windsor. They would probably employ 200 to 300 hands in the new factory. If they want a central location, with plenty of railway accommodation, they should inspect our thriving town.

A VITAL QUESTION.—In various localities people are awaking to the importance of having something done to mitigate the evils arising from the snow blockade. At the last meeting of the Oxford county council, a resolution was adopted to "request the various municipalities of the county to consider the propriety of doing away with the rail and board fences running north and south along the highways of the municipalities, and that the clerk be authorized to forward a copy of the resolution to the clerks of the several municipalities in the county.

NOT GONE YET.—Some philanthropic citizens are endeavoring to console themselves and their friends, with the thought, the "back of the winter is broken." Well, perhaps it is, but many of us will likely be thinking six weeks hence, that it "still lives." A venerable resident of the town has said, that we are living in "an age of suppressed candor" and it may be that these rash statements about the probable duration of the winter season are the result of spasmodic efforts to control a desire to express disgust with things generally, the weather in particular.

CURLING AND SKATING.—Curling is all the rage at present and is entered into with great enthusiasm by players here. Those who play the game, as well as those who indulge in the exhilarating exercise of skating, will do well to take great care of themselves, as a cold may be so easily contracted by standing about on the ice, and a cold at this time of the year is not the easiest thing in the world to get rid of. There have been several instances of people being laid up by inflammation of the lungs in this way. The changeable weather we have had is very treacherous.

CANDLEMAS DAY.—Saturday, 2nd inst., at noon, if the traditions of the past are true, the woodchuck, the ground hog, or the bear, just as you please, came out of the hole in which he has been spending his winter, and took his bearings. The legend says that if he saw his shadow on the snow he will go back and curl up for six weeks more of cold weather; but if he saw no shadow he will not go back, for he will know that there will be little more cold weather this year. Just why these beasts choose this day — Candlemas day—for this purpose is not known, but to say that they do not go through this performance would be to fly in the face of a very old tradition, which has been preserved in the following form:

Ye ye wuddy-chukke seez hys shaddo inn ye sunne
Six wekes of wynterre shall have begunne.
Yf ye wuddy-chukke hys shaddo doe notte see
Six wekes of spryage-like weather thayre shall be.

The tradition has also come down to us in solid prouse, thus:

If ye ground hog cometh out of his habitation in ye ground, and seeth his shadow by light of ye sun, it will return to its habitation and ye weather will be cold and stormy for ye next six weeks; but if ye little animal seeth not its reflection or shadow, it will return to its winter quarters no more, and fine weather will be ye consequence.

This is the day when the farmers calls to mind the couplet:

Candlemas day,
Half your corn and half your hay.

He will also remember the adage, "As far as the sun shines in the barn door so far will the snow blow in." If he is of Scotch origin, the day will call up the old rhyme.

If Candlemas day be dry and fair,
The half o' winter's to come and mair;
If Candlemas day be wet and foul,
The half o' winter's gane at Yule.

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 80

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

THE METHODIST CHURCH OF CANADA.

Meeting at London.

The ministers and representatives of the different Methodist bodies residing in the London district, met in the Dundass Centre Methodist Church in London, last Wednesday and Thursday, to re-arrange the work in the different circuits in the future.

The gathering was large and the best of spirit and good feeling pervaded the meeting.

Dr. Ryckman presided with great dignity and fairness through all the discussions.

In reference to London city it was decided to keep all the city churches open for another year, excepting the B. C. Church, London South.

A slice has been taken from the Dorchester circuit and added to Avon. Avon circuit is now composed of Longfield, Avon, Harrietsville and Zion.

Dorchester station is composed of Mossley, N. Oxford, Chivers, the Station, Putnam and Hamilton Road. This arrangement takes the B. C. society at Putnam into the Methodist society, making of them one in the future, that is, after next June.

The Thamesford station will be composed of Thamesford, Bailey's and 7th concession. This will be a small circuit and it is thought that Spearman's Corner will be taken from Dorchester, which arrangement would make them both good stations. The re-arrangement of the work farther north and west will be of no local interest, so we forbear.

These arrangements will be submitted to the provisional district meeting to meet next May, to be ratified by the first annual conference meeting in the month of June.

OXFORD STREET B. C. CHURCH.

At the third quarterly meeting of the B. C. Church, Oxford Street, held last Friday, it was decided by resolution, that as Putnam society has been taken into the London district, leaving Ingersoll in the Woodstock district, that next year Ingersoll church cannot maintain a separate pastorate. It was also resolved, that the B. C. Church be kept as a mission church and worked in connection with the other Methodist churches of this town, as may seem best to future Quarter Boards.

Different influences have combined to make the working of this church "a steep up grade" during this year, yet the receipts are ahead of any previous year of its history, notwithstanding.

A certain brother who was found guilty of trying to injure the society and pastorate to a most reckless extent was by unanimous resolution respectfully asked to leave the society and never trouble it any more.

The Rev. Dr. Gardiner, and Rev. Jas. Reynolds, favored the meeting with their presence by invitation, while the meeting was presided over by Rev. W. H. Butt, chairman of the district.

The lecture services illustrative of bible lessons will be continued in the B. C. Church for several successive Sabbaths. The diagrams for next Sabbath evening will be "The miraculous supply of manna," "The rock of Horeb" and "Wady Feiran" or the desert home of Hagar and Ishmael.

COL. WONHAM INTERVIEWED.

A National Park in the Rockies—A Yarn by the Colonel.

Winnipeg Times.

Among the arrivals from the far west on Saturday evening, was Col. Wonham, of Ingersoll, who for the past two months has been engaged in the Rocky Mountains in surveying a Park for the Dominion Government. This morning a reporter obtained from the Colonel the following account of his work:

"Some time ago I received instructions from the Department of the Interior to proceed to the Rockies and survey a park in the Cochrane Ranche Co.'s timber limit, using my own judgment as to the best location. The spot I located is about 4 miles from East Padmore and about 64 miles from Calgary in the first range of the Rockies. The scenery is grand and beautiful in the extreme, rivalling anything I have ever seen. The surface of the park, which is traversed from one end to the other by the main line of the C. P. R., is heavily timbered and contains one large lake and several smaller ones. The surface is very rocky and broken and the hills are picturesque in the extreme. As the train service does not extend past Calgary the journey west of that point has to be made by hand-car. On the return journey the hand-car party separated, and owing to the strong wind and the track being on a down grade we ran the car at the rate of thirteen miles per hour for seven hours by standing up and holding open our coats sail fashion to catch the wind."

Col. Wonham leaves for Rat Portage to-morrow, where he will survey a timber limit.

Literary Review.

There has been received at this office an advance copy of an address by Sir E. Beckett, Batt, Q. C., on the subject of "How did the world evolve itself?" It is a review of the scientific theories of Spencer, Darwin, Huxley and others, who speak of the creation by persistent force and without the aid of an actual Creator. The address is vigorously written.

FRANK LESLIE'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE.—The March number is filled, as usual, with delightful reading matter—edifying and entertaining, and admirable embelishments. The popular editor, T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., contributes a characteristic article, "Alarming Things of To-Day," and The Home Pulpit contains one of his sermons, "Sensitiveness of Christ." "Count Zinzendorf," the founder of the Moravian Church; Salem, the Old Moravian City in North Carolina"; "The Boston Institutions at Deer Island"; "Annals of Little Compton"; "Anthony Vandyck, a Court Painter"; etc., are finely illustrated and exceedingly interesting articles. "The contents are so varied and abundant that no one can fail to be gratified at the price is 25 cts a number; $2.50 per annum, postpaid. Address, Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York, N. Y.

ST. JAMES CHURCH.

Sexigesima Sunday.

MATENS.

Venite.....Dr. Crotch
Gloria.....Dr. Barnby
TeDeum.....Barnby
Benedictus.....Goss
Kyrie.....Elvey
Gloria Tibi.....Humphreys
Hymn 193, tune Evangelist.....Mendelsshon
" 138 " Balfour.....Palmer

EVENSONG.

Gloria.....Crotch
Magnificat.....Trimmell
Nunc Dimittes.....Barnby
Anthem—The Lord is My Shepherd.....Macfarren
Hymn 534, tune Eurocldon (by request).....Torrance
" 15, " Hesperus.....Baker

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The editor of THE CHRONICLE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

Free Libraries.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE;

SIR:—In a late issue a correspondent calls attention to the indifference shown by our townspeople to the Mechanics' Institute. I agree with him that it reflects discreditably upon us to allow the only public library we have to go to the wall. I am convinced that there are many mechanics and workingmen who would gladly avail themselves of the opportunities afforded them of making the acquaintance of many authors who would otherwise be unknown to them if they knew of its existence, and I firmly believe that it is among the working classes that the Institute must look for its support. Most of our wealthy citizens find no difficulty in purchasing the books that they wish to read, but to the poor man it is a great privilege to enjoy the reading of a hundred dollars worth of books upon payment of one dollar. But if the Directors of the Mechanics' Institute find it impossible to keep their Institute in operation, let us have the Free Libraries Act submitted to the people. The Mechanics' Institute could then sell their stock to the Town and the library would be open to all ratepayers. This act has been passed in several municipalities and has given perfect satisfaction. The public money cannot be spent in a better way than by cultivating and improving the minds of the people.

JUVENIS.

Ingersoll, Feb. 12, 1884.

Brooksdale.

The dedication of the new Presbyterian church at Brooksdale took place on Sabbath last, the 10th inst. The service in the morning and evening were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Smith of Galt, and in the afternoon by Rev. Mr. McPherson, of Stratford, the house being crowded to its utmost capacity on each occasion. The building which is beautifully situated on an eminence is of bright red brick. It has seating capacity of about 250, and a lecture room, the basement, capable of seating about 200.

A good second hand organ wanted. Address box 435, Ingersoll.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

DISTRICT NEWS.

West Zorra.

Monthly examination report of S. S. No. 1, West Zorra. 4th class, over 80 per cent. of work.—Allie Sutherland, Hubert Thornton, Alfred Chenoweth. Over 50 per cent.—Violetta Harris, Lila Elliott, Clara Bennett, Robert Walker, Arthur Elliott. 3rd class over 60 per cent.—Millie Greenfield, Freddie Thornton, Ollie Hossack.

North Oxford.

Mr. Jas. Park intends building a fine brick residence the coming summer.

On the afternoon and evening of Wednesday last, Feb. 13th, a large number of the friends and relatives of H C Cope, Esq. and family, gathered at his residence, Spearman's Corners, to witness the nuptials between his eldest daughter Kate Francis, and Mr. Wm. Irwin, of N Oxford. Rev Mr Reynolds, of Ingersoll, united the happy pair in "Holy Wedlock," after which a sumptuous repast was partaken of, and one of the most enjoyable evening we have ever seen, passed into the "small hours," when the friends retired. The bride received many rich, beautiful and valuable presents. May the lives thus united be happy and bright to their close, is the wish of their friends.

Putnam.

The Rev. Mr. Rowe gives a lecture on Ancient Egypt, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Scott and family are moving to Detroit.

A union prayer meeting is to be started this (Thursday) evening in the Methodist church. After this week it will be held from house to house.

The trustees are making preparations for some extensive improvements to the school house during the coming summer.

It is reported on good authority, that should the union of the churches take place the B. C. church will be sold and service held in the C. M. church, after first of June next.

Salford.

The Rev. Mr. Grant, Baptist minister at Salford, has resigned owing to some of the congregation wanting to introduce Salvation Army worship in the church.

The following are the officers elected of Fidelity Lodge, No. 630, I.O.G.T., for the ensuing term:

W. C. T.—Bro. T. L. Newton.
W. V. T.—Sis. A. Hoag.
W. S.—Bro. W. J. Elliott.
W. T.—Sis. L. Lawrence.
W. F. S.—Bro. R. Hunter.
W. M.—Bro. O. Foster.
W. D. M.—Sis. Mary Lewis.
W. I. G.—Sis. A. Foster.
W. O. G.—Bro. Jno. Haycock.
W. A. S.—Sist. E. Foster.
W. C.—Bro. W. Newton.
W. R, H. S.—Sis. F. Hoag.
W. L. H. S.—Sis. E. Mayberry.
Organist—Sis. R. Hunt.
P. W. C. T.—Bro. J. Lewis.
L. D.—Bro. Jas. Mayberry.

Installation will be attented to by the Lodge Deputy next Tuesday evening when a full attendance is requested.

Mt. Elgin.

Nelson James has purchased Robert Smart's house and lot, Mt. Elgin, for $700.

Constable Elliott of Mt. Elgin arrested a Silver peddler on Saturday, who was sent down to Woodstock for twenty days. Cause why? No licence.

The members of Mt. Elgin Lodge, No. 222, I.O.G.F., will hold their annual entertainment at their hall, Mt. Elgin, on Friday, Feb. 15th. A fine array of talent has been secured for the occasion, consisting of music by the celebrated Ghent and Agnew families of Norwich; A. Murdoch of Ingersoll, Dutch and Irish comic; Mr. Sumner, Ingersoll, instrumental music; J. Ingleby, Springford, vocal and instrumensal; J. T. and M. Mayberry, instrumental; Jos. Gibson, Ingersoll, the well-known and eloquent speaker, will entertain the audience in his own unrivalled manner. Recitations by several talented ladies and gentlemen. Having secured the services of our old and much esteemed chairman, the Rev. C.A. Moore, of Lynden, to preside, a rich treat may be expected. Doors open at 6.30. Concert commences at 7.30. Admission 25 cts., children under 12 years, 15 cts.

Avon.

Mrs. Morris, of Otterville, is visiting friends here.

Mr. R. C. McKenney, of Watertown, Dakota, is visiting in this locality. He speaks very highly of the west and expects to return in a few weeks.

Miss Susie Collins, of Putnam, is visiting friends here.

Mr. Henry Stevens and sister Sarah, of Putnam, spent the Sabbath here.

Mr. Wade expects to finish his job of gravelling by Tuesday evening.

Mr. William McIntyre returned from Michigan last week looking as pleasant as ever.

Mr. Daniel Trimmer, of Hagarsville, is visiting friends in this locality. Mr. Trimmer was formerly a resident here.

The officers of the Northern Star Lodge, I. O. G. T., for the ensuing quarter were installed into their several offices last evening, Bro. D. McIntyre acting as L. D.

W. C. T.—Bro. C. A. Whaley.
W. V. T.—Sister Emma Cook.
W. F. S.—Bro. Will Reid.
W. T.—Sister Bertha Whaley.
W. S.—Bro. Frank Rowe.
W. M.—Bro. Geo. Dafoe.
W. O. G.—Bro. D. McIntyre.
W. S.—Sister C. A. Whaley, R. Griffin.
Organist—Sister Dafoe.
P. W. C. T.—Bro. Duncan Campbell.
L. D.—Jonathan DeGroat.
W. C.—Duncan McIntyre.

Dereham.

Council met at Mt. Elgin, Feb. 4, in regular adjourned session, all the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of former session read and confirmed, the following were read: Copy of resolution passed by the County council, moved by Dr. McLay, sec'd by Mr. Anderson, and resolved, That this Council request the various municipalities of the County to consider the propriety of doing away with the rail and board fences running north and south along the highways of our municipalities, and that the clerk be authorized to forward a copy of this resolution to the clerks of the several municipalities in the County; also circulars from the Canada Law Amendment Association; also from Pratt & Tracey, publishers, Strathroy, for municipal councillors hand book; also concerning the celebration of the intended U. E. Loyalist Centennial to be held in Toronto, in June, 1884. D. J. Ruckle applied for assessor, G. W. Dunphy for collector for N. half Tp. On motion, the tender of W. S. Law was accepted. By-law appointing Tp. officers was passed, J. V. Bodwell and Andrew Smart, auditors; G. W. Dunphy and Job James, collectors; Samuel Nagle, Librarian; Jas. Ryan, assessor. Fence viewers, W. S. Ferguson, C. T. Pinel, Nicholas Cuthbertson, Jas. Bradburn, J. V. Bodwell, A. Fierheller, Samuel Gregg, Wm. Wilson, Jas. Hunter, Jno. Markham, Thos. Bushell, John Fulton, J. D. Freeman, John Baxter, Alex. Bell, Jas. Ryan. Pound keepers, J. Corbett, H. Jones, E. Nicols, Thos. Scott, Jas. Service, T. Hockey, E. Corbett, J. Kipp, W. Wilson, E. Wright, J. Gould, J. Lewis. A By-law defining the engineers salary, was read a first and second time. Wm. Nancekivell gave notice that on the first Monday in March he would move to introduce a By-law to make bonuses offered under the Ontario Tree Planting Act available to the residents of this municipality. Also a By-law to offer bonuses to persons who will build wire fences along Nos. 5 and 8. roads at points where it is deed on the partons "to feed their cows." On the whey question, he would say he approved of selling it as far the best plan; would advise those raising hogs to buy whey; besides benefiting the hogs it enriched the land. Do not try to raise calves on whey; retain the calves of your best cows and feed them liberally on the start. Again referring to dividends he said: every bit of cost must be got out of the milk, and it was folly to put in in any other light. He also referred to his letter which appeared in THE CHRONICLE some time ago. Mr. Malcolm made a good many more suggestions, but as he observed on the start, he did not propose to deliver a lecture, but rather answer questions. He was interrupted quite often, which made it difficult to follow his answers, at length; he was very decided as to the question of whey, while Mr. Caddy and others advocated the delivery of whey for the coming season at least, as many would not be prepared for the change. Discussion took place on the delivery of milk to the carriers. Mr. Jarvis proposed that this matter should also be left as it was last year. Carried. Mr. Hyslop gave a good deal of information as to his management of calves. Various questions were discussed appertaining to the immediate concern of the factory. All seemed highly elated over the success of the meeting and it is worthy of remark that a more intelligent body of men never met together to discuss cheese interests. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Malcolm was proposed by Mr. Hyslop and carried with enthusiasm. Below is an extract from the annual report of the Company as prepared by the able Secretary, Mr. Francis, and which we re-publish by request:—Total amount of milk received, 2,488,378 lbs.; total amount of cheese made, 241,998 lbs.; average, 10 28-100; average price received, 11 5-100c.; total number cows, 829; paid per standard cow for milk drawing, $2.07; amount paid per standard cow, $31.52.

	lbs.	bxs.	tns.	lbs.
Sold for shipment	332410	3696	116	410	$25662 15
Sold at factory	4438	71	2	438	458 70
Sold to patrons	3510		2	1150	562 76
Total	341908	3767	120	1998	$26743 61

FARM AND DAIRY.

The North Oxford Cheese Co. want a Secretary.

Printing required by dairymen is made a specialty at the office of THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN.

Extensive sale of dairy cows, etc., the property of Mr. Joseph Bell, at Mt. Elgin, on Feb. 19. See advertisement.

The St. Marys Union Cheese and Butter Company have resolved by a vote of 73 to 27 to wind up business and dissolve.

In Chicago the war-whoop of the bulls is "twenty-dollar pork," and certain it is values are taking rapid strides toward that fascinating goal.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Bright Cheese Manufacturing Company, will be held at Bright, on Friday, February 15th, 1884.

The annual meeting of the Farmers' Home Butter and Cheese Manufacturing Company, of Blandford, will be held at the factory on Wednesday, Feb. 20, 1884, at 1 o'clock p.m.

The annual meeting of the Strathallan Cheese Manufacturing Co. will be held at their factory on Wednesday, February 27, 1884, at the hour of one o'clock p. m.

Messrs. William Harris and Henry Small of Dereham, near Mt. Elgin, advertise a big sale of dairy cows, heifers, steers and horses, on the 27th of this month. Read advertisement.

The annual meeting of the shareholders and patrons of the Ontario Diamond Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Company will be held in Trimble's School House, Vandecar, on Monday, Feb. 25th, at 1 p. m.

Resolutions urging Parliament to restrict the importation of cattle to prevent the spread of disease were passed on Saturday by the Agricultural Chambers of several counties in England.

The cheese convention meets in London this week. THE CHRONICLE will be fully represented and our dairy readers may be sure we will leave nothing undone in order to give a full report of anything that may be instructive in this department of our paper.

The Breeders' Gazette is authority for the statement that 1,744 head of Jerseys have been exported from the island during 1883, which seems to us to be below the current figures. The sum stated, however, makes a very good showing, and must bring money to the pockets of the islanders.

Following is the report of the Cold Spring cheese factory, West Zorra, Hugh Matheson prop:—Quantity of cheese manufactured, 80 tons; amount realized from same, $17,600.00; number of lbs. of milk to a lb. of cheese, 10.18; average price per lb. of cheese, 11c.

Bran is so scarce that farmers in Dereham have had to go to Embro for it. Mr. Danl. Tripp passed through town on Tuesday for a load. Mr. Malcolm in his address to the patrons of West Oxford cheese factory, spoke of the scarcity of this article in his neighbourhood. Dairymen are evidently waking up to its efficacy in their business.

As an evidence that stockmen are taking a deeper interest in Holsteins for dairy purposes it is only necessary to refer to the importations of this class during the past year, when the following passed through the quarantine grounds at Point Edward:—Mr. Cook, Aultsville, 12 head; J. Lisle, 1; Mr. Haldimand, 5; Mr. McDonald, 6; and Mr. Scatcherd, 5.

The annual report of the Downie Butter and Cheese Manufacturing Co. showed an increase of ten tons of cheese over 1882. The average milk required to make a lb. of cheese, was 10.28; average price per lb for the season, 10.83. Officers were elected for the current year thus: J. A. King, president; W. E. Byers, vice-president; H. Wood, treasurer; Geo. Wood, jr., G. Gibb, directors.

At the annual meeting of the Willow Grove Cheese factory, Logan, it was decided to re-open the factory another season, after which a number of officers were elected. This factory was closed last year on account of a large number of the patrons being carried away by the creamery cry, but one season of that seems to have satisfied the most of them and they are returning to the cheese.—Stratford Beacon.

The annual meeting of the patrons and shareholders of the Soho Butter and Cheese Manufacturing Co. took place in Richwood on Tuesday. There was a large number present and the auditors' report showed the affairs of the company to be in a flourishing condition. Several shares were taken. The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Robert McCrow, Walter Murray, James Whitehead, Walter Scott and William McArthur.

The West Oxford Cheese and Butter Manf'g Co., may congratulate themselves on having so efficient a co-worker as Mr Casswell, who has now filled a responsible position in the cheese interests of this country, and in fact of Ontario. The Dominion at large owe him a debt that can never be repaid in money for his indefatigable exertions in putting Canada ahead of all competitions at the great Centennial held at Philadelphia in 1876.

The annual meeting of the Carthage cheese factory was on held on 20th Jan. The business has been conducted very satisfactorily paying a dividend of 8 8-9 per cent; average milk required to make a lb. of cheese was 10.06; average price per lb. 10.82 cts; total amount of cheese made was over 56 tons. Mr Wm Campbell was re-elected president, and Messrs A McDonald, Wm Johnson, D Kerr, and S Watson, directors. The directors let the making for the ensuing summer to Mr Atkinson, Elma, at 68c per cwt.

An influential and well attended meeting of the patrons of the Cainsville cheese factory was held at Cainsville, on Monday the 28th Jan. After calling on Mr. Charlton to preside, and Mr. E Jonathan, Onondaga, to act as Secretary, a report of cheese made during season 1883 was read as below:—

	LBS.	SOLD FOR.
May and June	22,171	10½ cents
July	18,360	9 "
August	19,332	10½ "
September	17,005	11¼ "
October	12,510	11½ "

A committee of management was appointed as follows:—Messrs. Hawkins, Jonathan, Fair, Oles and Vansickle.

The annual meeting of the shareholders and patrons of Burnside Cheese Co., was held in the factory on the 2nd Feb., the report showed that there had been received at the factory 1,714,730 lbs of milk which made 164,858 lbs of cheese and sold for $18064.35 out of which the patrons received for milk $15202.21, paid for making $1450.71, for hauling milk $1042.45, it took 10.40 lbs of milk for each pound of cheese, the average price was 10·95, the patrons received 88½ cts. for every 100 pounds of milk after all expenses hauling milk included C. Choate and D. Palmer was chosen scrutineers and the following directors elected by ballot: H. George, S. Barr, H. Rath K. Wallis, and Wm. Allison; Auditor Charles Choate, after which the Director met and elected Kidman Wallis president of the Company; S. Barr, Secretary and Treasurer; and H. George, Salesman; W. Wolfe Wil

FARM AND DAIRY.

A Large Milker.

S. N. Wright drops The Elgin Advocate a line to this effect: My thoroughbred Holstein heifer, Music 2d No. 2477, H. H. book, 2 years old the 25th day of September, 1883, dropped a fine male calf the 1st day of January, 1884, and is now without any extra feeding giving a little over 44 pounds of milk per day. I am keeping a record of her milk for 30 consecutive days, and will report to The Advocate. This wonderful heifer is a grand daughter of Smiths & Powell's famous imported Holstein cow aggie, No. 901, H. H. B., and Netherland H. B. No. 148, who has a milk, record of 84 pounds and 12 ounces in one day, and 18,004 pounds and 15 ounces in one year.

Dairy Cows in Demand.

Good dairy cows are in demand at liberal prices, especially in dairy districts and near large towns and cities. The prices of dairy products are well maintained, and milk has brought a high price all winter in large towns and cities.

The increased quantity of fresh butter made during the winter months partly account for this state of things. Winter dairies have rapidly increased of late years, which necessarily augments the number of fresh cows required each autumn; yet, notwithstanding the quantity of winter made creamery and dairy butter produced the amount of summer-made butter is still increasing.

Comparatively few calves are raised in those districts where dairying constitutes a leading interest. A great many dairymen believe that it is more economical to purchase young cows when they are needed than to raise calves to replenish their herds; or in other words, that the use of their lands and equipments will yield more profit by giving milch cows the food and care that a given number of calves require. Ordinarily this may be and probably is true; but it has been demonstrated by some of our oldest practical dairymen that it is true economy to raise the heifer calves of their best cows. We know of dairymen who breed the most profitable cows in their herds to males of well established milk breeds, and reserve the female produce of such cows to replenish their herds. By pursuing this course they have built up good herds of high grade and very profitable cows. By far the greatest number of dairymen, however, sell their calves, as soon as they are suitable, to the butcher for veal.

Farm and Dairy Notes.

The Jersey and Alderney are not really the same. But in America the Jerseys are often called Alderneys, and there are very few Alderneys, so that the two names refer to the same breed. The Jersey is an excellent dairy cow.

A statement of Francis Barnes to the effect that the chief cause of the vast amount of poor cheese lies in mismanagement in handling the milk before it gets to the cheesemaker, expresses a common opinion, but it is not correct. The chief cause lies in defects in the manufacture rather than in the condition of the milk. The most important of these defects and the leading points necessary to make cheese of the quality, may be briefly noticed in this connection.

Tobacco is a universal insecticide. It kills ticks upon sheep; the troublesome scab insect; its related species which produces mange and itch; lice, fleas, and all other insect parasites which infest and annoy animals; and root-lice, leaf-lice, and all other pests which injure plants. Just at this season an application of fine tobacco dust or snuff may be used effectively to relieve calves and fowls from the vermin which keeps them poor and wretched, and a decoction of tobacco, applied to house or green-house plants with a brush, will destroy the pestiferous green fly and all other insects which infest them. The same liquid may also be poured around the roots of house plants that are infested with the small white worms which are the larvæ of a small black fly that may be found in the pots and upon the soil in them.

Is there any way of preventing or curing black leg in calves! ANS.—The trouble with this disease is that it is too late, in nearly all cases, to do anything for it when it is first noticed. The only way to prevent it is to watch the calves closely, and as soon as one is found lame or stiff to rub the hand over the limbs and discover where the skin rustles as if soft paper was rubbed. Then give a dose of one tablespoonful of Epsom salts at once; also, give an injection of a pint of warm water with one dram of hyposulphate of soda; rub the affected part with camphorated spirit and tie a rug bag or blanket over the animal. Give every other calf a dose of a tablespoonful of linseed oil, with a teaspoonful of sulphur in it every day for a week.

I have lost several calves, they are taken with coughing and running at the nose; the cows are now beginning to cough in the same way; what shall I do? ANS.—Give the cows a pint of linseed oil; the next day give one ounce of turpentine in half a pint of molasses thinned a little with warm water. For the calves give one quarter of the dose. Repeat every day for 10 days or two weeks.

One of my cows seems to be losing the milk from two teats which were quite hard, and the milk is clotty, what is best to be done? ANS.—Foment the udder after milking with hot water for 15 minutes; rub it gently with a soft cloth until dry, then rub camphorated ointment on the udder and wash it gently with the hands until the hardness disappears. Give the cow one ounce of hyposulphite of soda daily until the trouble is removed.

Pick out your best feed for the cows in milk and the young stock. Give the poor hay and straw to the dry cows and store stock.

Horses' Feet.

The feet of the horse are the principal source of disorder and trouble. A horse is practically useless unless his feet are sound, and in order to have them perfect he must be taken in hand when young, the feet kept perfectly in order and the shape and other requisites be made the most important objects of attention. One of the many difficulties encountered is the blacksmiths; they learn the trade of shoeing horses; go through a regular routine performance when attaching a shoe to the foot and methodically pursue a course best suited to their own inclination, without at all studying the conformation of the foot, the weight of the horse, the manner in which he treads, or the kind of ground to be travelled over. The horse shoer should be not only a practical man, but a theoretical one, a man of study and thought, who must not only perform the mechanical part of shoeing but should, if possible, be scientific. As to the practicability of horses being worked unshod, everything depends upon the character of the pasture on which they A shoeless horse would soon become worthless on some roads, but on soft sandy roads that are free from stones it may not be injurious to allow them to go unshod, but such horses should be free from blemish in the feet. Quarter cracks and split hoofs are signs that it is too late to try this method, but as the colts usually have sound feet, the trial may be made in that direction. Our horses should be free from shoes if the thing is possible.

GEO. KEMPSHELL, V.S., Ingersoll.

TO THE LADIES.

McGregor's & Parke's Carbolic Cerate will cure any case of Pimples on the face or Rough Skin on either hands or face and leave them soft as silk. It will also heal any sore when all other preparations fail. Thousands have tested it. Ask your druggist for McGregors & Parke's Carbolic Cerate and do not be persuaded to take anything else claimed to be as good. It is but 25 cents per box at Gayfer and Kneeshaw's Drug Store.

Honor makes a great part of the reward of all honorable professions.

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for colds, coughs, and all derangements of the respiratory organs tending toward consumption. In all ordinary cases it is a certain cure, and it affords sure relief for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

Envy is a sickness growing from other men's happiness.

To lessen mortality and stop the inroads of disease, use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. For all diseases arising from impure Blood, such as Pimples, Blotches, Biliousness, Indigestion, etc., etc., it has no equal. Mrs. Thos. Smith, Elm, writes: "I am using this medicine for Dyspepsia. I have tried many remedies, but this is the only one that has done me any good."

THE HOUSEHOLD.

How to Make Soups.

VEGETABLE SOUP.—Sometimes a soup without meat is desired for special occasions. A nice way to make it is as follows: Peel and slice 6 large onions, 6 potatoes, 6 carrots and four turnips; fry them in half a pound of butter or sweet olive oil, and pour on 4 quarts of boiling water. Brown some bread crusts in the oven but do not burn them and put them in, also some celery, sweet herbs, white pepper and salt. Stew for 4 hours and strain through a cloth. Slice thin some carrot, celery and turnip, add them and stew with the soup until tender. Flavor with tomato catsup.

CALFSHEAD SOUP.—Scald a calfshead and scrape off the hair, and boil it 2 hours in 2 quarts of water; let it cool and cut the meat and tongue into small squares, and the ears into shreds; then put them into the liquor adding as much stock or other broth, boil 2 hours and skim when necessary. Add 2 tablespoonfuls of catsup, sufficient pepper and salt, cayenne, parsley, thyme, a small onion and lemon rind all shred fine.

RABBIT SOUP.—This is a seasonable soup. First snare your rabbits. Skin and cut up two good ones, and stew for two hours in stock, then take out the joints. Have ready some stock in which 2 onions, a head of celery, a carrott and some sweet herbs, parsley and four ounces of groud rice have been well stewed; add seasoning; strain this into the rabbit liquor; add squares of toasted bread and serve. Put the joints into the oven to warm a little and serve separately. The liver may be rubbed up fine and added to the soup.

Cooking Recipes.

Breakfast and Tea Waffles.—One pint of sifted flour, milk enough to make a thin batter, about two-thirds of a pint, two eggs well beaten, a tablespoonful of butter melted and a little salt. Mix milk and flour first to smooth paste, add salt and butter, lastly eggs. Have waffle irons hot as for a griddle cakes; butter or grease them with pork. Pour in enough batter to cover iron, put the cover carefully down upon it, keep over the fire about a half minute, turn over quickly, leaving about same time. Remove, sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar if desired; keep hot until ready to serve.

Ham and Eggs on Toast.—Chop fine cold broiled or baked ham. Toast and butter slices of stale bread; crush the crust with a napkin to soften it. Spread with the ham and set in oven for three or four minutes. Beat six eggs with a half cupful of milk, a little pepper and salt. Put this in a saucepan and stir over the fire until it begins to thicken. Take off, beat well for a moment, spread over the ham on toast; serve hot immediately.

WELSH RAREBIT.—Half a pound of cheese, two eggs, a speck of cayenne, a tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of mustard (dry), half a cupful of cream, and a pinch of salt. Break cheese into small pieces and put it with the other ingredients into a bright saucepan. Set this over boiling water. Stir until the cheese melts, then spread on slices of toast. Serve immediately and hot, or the delicacy is lost.

ESCALOPED OYSTERS.—Butter an oval or any kind of a pudding dish, not tin or metal; put a layer of rolled cracker, crumbs, then a layer of oysters until the dish is full, laying on small pieces of butter all through. Season well with pepper and salt. To a quart of oysters take a large cupful of cream or milk, into which one egg has been well beaten. Pour over the oysters and bake in a very quick oven but twenty minutes, long enough to set the egg, and the oysters are prevented being tough as when cooked too long.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

Poverty is in want of much, but avarice of everything.

CRUELLY MURDERED.

In the Province of Ontario every year thousands are being slowly murdered by taking unsuitable, untried nostrums for such complaints as Costiveness, Indigestion, Liver Complaint, Kidney Troubles, etc., who might easily regain lost strength and energy by using McGregor's Speedy Cure. To convince them that such is the case we will give them a free trial bottle at Gayfer's or Kneeshaw's Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

Sincerity is the way to heaven. To think how to be sincere is the way of man.

A lady writes: "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure."

To persevere in one's duty and to be silent is the first answer to calumny.

If a well be poisoned, woe be to those who drink thereat. It is worse to poison the fountain of life for one's self, and for prosperity. Often by carelessness, or misfortune, or inheritance, this has been done. Ayer's Sarsaparilla frees the blood, the vital stream, and restores appetite, strength, and health.

Good will, like a good name, is got by many actions and lost by one.

Freeman's Worm Powders require no other purgative. They are safe and sure to remove all varieties of worms. 87i

Heaven will be the sweet surprise of a perfect explanation.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87i

He preaches sublimely who leads a sober and righteous life.

Orpha H. Hodge, Battle Creek, Mich., writes: I upset a tea-kettle of boiling hot water on my hand. I at once applied Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, and the effect was to immediately allay the pain. I was cured in three days.

The truest end of life is to know the life that never ends.

A stinging sensation in throat and palate called heartburn, and oppession at the pit of the stomach after eating, are both the offspring of dyspepsia. Alkaline salts like carbonate of soda may relieve but cannot remove the cause. A lasting remedy is to be found in Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. Those associate organs, the liver and bowels benefit in common with their ally, the stomach, by the use of this benign and blood-purifying remedy.

All growth that is not toward God is growing to decay.

The universal reliability of Wheeler's Phosphates and Caliseya as a restorative has brought out many imitations, and there are those who do not consider it a violation of morals, a fraud on physician and patient, to substitute their own products when this is called for. A victim mentions a house in Ohio where a counterfeit was supplied him; a physician of Montreal, whose wife was taking it, was imposed on in a similar manner, and another who prescribed it for a patient, found in its place an Elixir of Pyrophosphate of Iron and Cinchonia, a compound of no special merits. Similar complaints are made in other parts of Canada and the States. Verbum sapienti.

Life is but short, therefore crosses cannot be long.

Holloway's Pills.—Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Disordered Bowels.—These maladies are ever present, and if left unattended frequently terminate fatally. It should be everywhere known that all these complaints originate in the presence of some deleterous matter in the blood, and that Holloway's Pills can eliminate either with ease and expedition. They combine in a surprising degree purifying, alterative, regulating, and strengthening qualities, and thus exert upon every internal organ the wholesomely controlling influence so necessary for subduing excessive action in the human frame. Holloways medicine may be advantageously taken as a means of keeping the blood pure and the body cool—the only practicable plan of maintaining health in youth, in manhood, and in old age.

But one thing on earth is better than the wife—that is the mother.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87i

THE BEST I EVER KNEW OF.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential Citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every remedy I could think of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your SHILOH'S VITILIZER advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of." Price 75 cts. Sold by D. Secord 76y.

Riding an Alligator.

"I came in my journey," says a traveller, "to the banks of a river which was crossed by a ford. A train of pack mules were passing, and while waiting my turn I went into the ferryhouse to escape the heat of the morning sun. Several other gentlemen were there. Presently an Indian came to the door and addressed us in Spanish, saying:

"Would the senors like to see me ride the alligator?"

"Handing around his hat he received with satisfaction gold pieces amounting to nearly $5. He placed these in his money belt, and saying, 'I am ready,' led the way. He then drew out a sharp pointed knife, and felt its edges as he walked along.

"The river lay before us, with deep black water on either side of the shallow ford. The opposite bank was steep, and a Don at my side remarked that below the water's edge it was dug out in burrows, where the caymans, (as they are called in these parts) were wont to lie in bad weather tier above tier. Now they were out in full force, spread over the sand on our shore like scaly logs.

"Our Indian, a lithe, active fellow, ran lightly up to one of the beasts, and before the astonished animal could recover himself enough to sweep his tail around and dash him down, his enemy was upon his back, and had seated himself directly behind the forelegs, clasped the body, and holding the knife still in his hand. Rage and fury entered the beast's heart. He slipped into the deep water, and made for his particular place of refuge. Once there, woe to the rider! But the dominion given to man over all beasts, did not fail now. With a prick of the knife in the creature, the rider defeated his purpose, and he plunged madly around the basin.

"No ride was ever wilder, no circus rider more skilful than the clinging Indian in the wild race that was now begun. Stirring the muddy depths, churning the waves with the greatest commotion, round and round they flew, even faster and faster, now above, now below the surface. The Indian, cool and wary, by an occasional prod of the knife caused his strange steed to swerve from the dangerous points. Whatever direction he wished him to take, he pricked him on the opposite side.

"When it became evident to our circus rider that he had given us a fair display of his powers, we saw him watchfully and cautiously prepare to land. And this part of the exploit was the most wonderful of all. How to leap in mid-career from the furious creature—this was the task—and it was as admirably executed as any part of the performance. As they neared one shore, the Indian, having gathered himself up, leaped lightly off, waded to shore, and came towards us with as much of a smile on his countenance as any of his race ever show.

"Now downward, swifter than if a thousand spurs were driving him, dived the great creature to solace himself in the cold sunless caverns of the river's depths."

Travelling in Madagascar.

As there are no roads or railways, you must content yourself with travelling in the only kind of native conveyance to be found in the country—the palanquin. But do not imagine by the name that anything like the luxurious arrangement used in India will be forthcoming for your comfort and convenience. A much rougher apparatus, and one better suited to the exigencies of the uneven and broken country, consisting of a couple of poles kept in position by two iron rods, and supporting a leathern seat a few inches below the level of the poles must suffice for the most fastidious traveller at Tamatave.

Having given our cook notice the previous day that we intended to start on a few days tour in the morning, he puts together into a native basket such utensils as he will require for cooking, and a stock of the provisions which cannot be purchased from the natives in the villages through which we pass. A servant and bedding are wrapped in waterproof canvas, some clothes, books and medicines are stowed away in small tin boxes, and our preparations are complete.

Early on the morning of our proposed departure we shall find our yard filled with men all apparently most eager to carry either our baggage or ourselves; and, as we have taken the precaution to tell our cook the agreement we propose making with them for the journey, one might be pardoned the delusion of believing that all was settled, and a start can be effected as soon as you, their employer, are ready.

But the Malagasy bearer is a curious creature, of whom you can never be certain until you actually have him away with you. Probably when all is tied on the poles ready for starting, and sometimes after the baggage has been gone some time, the palanquin bearers will ask, with the most perfect show of innocence, what wages they are to receive, as though they had not been bargaining an hour or two the previous day, and professedly come to an arrangement.

This generally means trouble, and the traveller may think himself favored if he is able to leave at all that day. But if all can be satisfactorily adjusted the palanquin is shouldered, and at the average rate of four miles an hour bearers convey their passenger along the sandy trackway to the nearest village at which there is a church or school.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Cost of Charity in New York.

A large sum of money, $5,848,223, has been expended for public and private charities in New York city during the present year. In four years the expenditures in that city for that purpose have increased thirty-one per cent., and in the same time in Brooklyn they have increased nearly seventy per cent. The per capita expenditure in Brooklyn, however, is now only $2.33, while it is $4.11 in New York.

"May," asked a little Burlington girl of a companion, "what do you suppose is the difference between a beau and a beau ideal?" "Well, I don't know," was the frank response, "unless they leave off the ideal after they get married."

Geo. Dodge Sr., a well-known citizen of Emporium, writes that one of his men (Sam Lewis) whilst working in the woods so severely sprained his ankle that he could scarcely get home, but after one or two applications of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, he was able to go to work next day.

The sweetest thing in this life is the unclouded welcome of a wife.

A ST. VINCENT FARMER SAYS:

This is to certify that I have used the Crowfoot Indian Bitters, and can recommend it as a first class medicine for the blood. Was very bad with Dyspepsia for ten years. After using the above Bitters I could eat anything I wished without feeling any discomfort after, and feel thankful for the good health I am enjoying through them.

Yours, etc., SAMUEL ELYEA,
881. 7th Line, St. Vincent.

All that I am my mother made me.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months. Free Trial Bottles of this certain cure of all Throat and Lung Diseases at Gayfer's Drug Store. Large bottles $1.00. 86i.

Women teach us repose, civilty, and dignity.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

Bonanza Flood's daughter will inherit $35,000,000.

Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for the cure of Eruption, Chafes, Chapped Hands, Pimples, Tan, &c. 87i

ANOTHER'S GRIEF.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whopping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once. SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00. For lame Back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

A Dutchman's Apology.

Hoeffenschaffer made a mash yesterday morning. He was starting out of his saloon to go down town, when he slipped on the sidewalk, knocked a beautiful young lady down, fell on her and mashed her. When he got up again he apologized as follows:

"Oxguse me for dot. Ouf you don't vas peen dere, meppy I got me' proke mein neck."

Sharper than a Razor.

A long-waisted man, with the nose of a fox, and an eye full of speculation, walked up to a second-hand clothier the other day in Buffalo, and said:

"See that evercoat hanging out down there?"

"Of course."

"Well, I've taken a fancy to it. It's rather cheeky to ask you to go down there, but I'll make it an object. I won't give but $8 for the coat, but I'll give you $1 to buy it for me. You are also a Jew, and know how to beat him down. Here are $8."

The dealer took the money and started off, and in five minutes was back with the coat.

"Good!" chuckled the other. "I reckoned you'd lay him out. How much did you make for your share?"

"Vell, ash dot is my branch store, and I only ask six dollars fur de goat, I was about tree dollars ahead!"

A Child's Sacrifice.

A young man who had been on a three days' debauch wandered into the reading-room of a hotel where he was well known, sat down and looked moodily into the street. Presently a little girl about ten years old came in and looked timidly about the room. There were five persons in the room, and she went to each one begging. One gentleman gave her a five cent piece, and she went to the gentleman spoken of and asked for a penny, adding:

"I haven't had anything to eat for a whole day."

The gentleman was out of humor, and he said crossly:

"Don't bother me. I haven't had anything to eat for three days."

The child opened her eyes in shy wonder, and stared at him for a moment and walked slowly toward the door. She turned the knob, and then after hesitating a few seconds, walked up to him and gently laying the five cents on his knee, said with tones of true girlish pity in her voice:

"If you haven't had anything to eat for three days you take this and go and buy some bread. Perhaps I can get more somewhere."

The young man blushed to the roots of his hair, and lifting the child in his arms kissed her two or three times in delight. Then he took her to the other persons in the room, and those in the corridor and office, and told the story and asked contributions, giving himself all the money he had with him. He succeeded in raising over forty dollars, and sent the little girl on her way rejoicing.—Philadelphia Call.

Singular Contests of Strength.

Apropos of Sullivan's claim that he can knock a bull down with one blow of his fist, Arthur Chambers says that some years ago he saw Baum, the wrestler, force a bear off a platform after three hugs, and he saw two men in Manchester, each in a pen with a belligerent bull, each striving to win a wager they had made of £10 as to who could stay in the pen the longer. Both were to fight the bull at the same time. If the animal rushed at one of the men his other man was to come to his defense. Thus they were to continue until one of the men had to jump the fence. The pen was about five feet high and thirty feet square. The bull took a corner. When he came out the men struck him in the neck and behind the ear and upon the ribs. The bull could not dodge, while the men could. He fought a John L. Sullivan fight. At last the bull ran a horn through the cheek of one of the men. The other fellow jumped the fence. The injured man was repeatedly butted down and gored, and died of his injuries. His widow got the £10.—New York Journal.

Seventh Sons.

It is reported that a spike maker at Troy, who is the seventh son of a seventh son, is so steadily in demand by sick people, who believe that he is a born healer of diseases, that he has been obliged to abandon the nail factory and devote himself to his patients, and that a baseball player, who is also seventh son of a seventh son, is going to start on a healing expedition. How the accident of being born seventh in a line of sons can enable a man to scatter health broadcast is something that professors in medical colleges have never yet explained, but should the system prove satisfactory in practice no explanation will be necessary. To be healed merely by talking with a man who had half a dozen brothers born before him is much easier than going through a course of physic and being subject to the blunders of careless prescription clerks. If some seventh son will do some trifling thing, like extirpating a cancer or restoring a defective eye, just to show his genuineness, he will soon find business enough to make him eternally blessihis birthday.

The Lightning Ticket Seller Talks,

"On Decoration Day, 1882," said Colonel John Murray, the lightning ticket seller of a Western circus, "in Chicago I sold 6150 tickets in an hour without an error, and without taking in a bad piece of money. In twenty-two years' experience I have never taken but one $5 counterfeit bill. The false silver money I can detect the moment I get it in my hand, either by the weight or by handling it. We run across queer customers sometimes in the South. In some places they come to a circus with knives up their sleeves, and as I would hand them money and tickets the points of their weapons would cut my hands. The negroes of the South are the queerest set I ever ran across. They remember a man for years. Before a season is over my hands have corns on them from the constant handling of silver. No, an attempt at robbery was never made but once, and that was in Cleveland in 1880. It was after the night performance, and I had over $3000 in my valise. Eph Sells and I were just getting off of the grounds to take a hack when a man struck me with a slung-shot. I shot at him and so did Sells, but he got away without the money, and a policeman promptly arrested me for shooting at him."—Cincinnati News Journal.

HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 87i

Gold hoop earrings are again in fashion.

THESE ARE SOLID FACTS,

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetizer, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 86i.

Woman is the crown of creation.

CURE FOR CHILBLAINS.

Bathe the feet for ten or fifteen minutes in water as hot as can be borne; then apply Hagyard's Yellow Oil, and a cure is certain. Yellow Oil cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Deafness, Lameness, and Pain generally; and internally cures Colds, Sore Throat, Croup, Asthma, and many painful affections. 87i.

A sweet thing in bric-a-brac—An Egyptian molasses jug.

IN DIXIE'S LAND.

J. Kennedy, dealer in drugs, &c., Dixie, Ontario, recommends Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam to his customers, it having cured his wife of a bad cough. It is the safest and surest remedy for all Throat and Lung troubles, such as Asthma, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough and most pectoral complaints. 87i.

Cold feet—Two feet of snow.

BLOOD RELATIONS.

The best blood relations consist of a perfect circulation of healthy, vital fluid—pure blood and proper circulation may be established in the system by the use of that grand blood purifier, Burdock Blood Bitters. 87i.

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

Why the Bad Little Boys Live.

"I don't believe I shall die, mamma," said little Johnnie, who was suffering from diphtheria, and had just heard of the death of a little girl in the neighborhood from the same disease.

"Why, Johnnie?" queried his mother.

"Because God only takes good little boys. Why do you suppose he takes only that kind?" continued the little shaver, who had seen only five summers and was approaching his fifth winter under rather unfavorable circumstances.

"I'm sure I don't know," replied his mother.

"I know," said Johnnie, triumphantly.

"Why is it?" queried his mother.

"He takes only the good boys," said Johnnie, "because it would take so much time to take care of the bad ones." That boy is getting well.

A Russian Fable.

A peasant was one day driving some geese to a neighboring town, where he hoped to sell them. He had a long stick in his hand, and, to tell the truth, he did not treat his flock of geese with much consideration. I do not blame him, however; he was anxious to get to the market in time to make a profit, and not only geese but men must expect to suffer if they hinder gain in the least.

The geese, however, did not look on the matter in this light, and happening to meet a traveller walking along the road, they poured forth their complaints against the peasant who was driving them, after this fashion:—

"Where can you find geese more unhappy than we are? See how this peasant is hurrying on this way and that, and driving us as though we were only common geese. Ignorant fellow as he is, he never thinks he is bound to honor and respect us; for we are the distinguished descendants of those very geese to whom Rome once owed its salvation, so that a festival was established in their honor."

"But for what do you expect to be distinguished yourselves?" asked the traveller.

"Because our ancestors—"

"Yes, I know; I have read all about it. What I want to know is, what good have you yourselves done?"

"Why, our ancestors saved Rome."

"Yes, yes, I understand that; but what have you done of the kind?"

"We? Nothing."

"Of what good are you, then? Do leave your ancestors at peace! They were honored for their deeds; but you, my friends, are only fit for roasting."

Career of a Grandson of one of Napoleon's Great Marshals.

There is at present sojourning in San Francisco an artisan, not blessed with much of this world's pelf, but who claims an interest in the estate of Count Napoleon Ney, Prince de la Moskowas and son of Marshal Ney, who died in Paris on October 13, 1882. His name is Emil Hugo Ney, and he was born in Koenigsburg, Prussia, about thirty-six years ago. His father, a younger son of the Marshal, was Frederick William Alexander Ney, who died when Emil was but two years of age. His father having married against the old Marshal's will, an estrangement ensued and there was but little intercourse between the two families. Young Ney, tiring of study and restraint, ran away from home when very young, and served two years as cabin boy. He then devoted three years to learning the trade of ship carpenter. He visited every land and clime and afterwards settled in South America, wandering from State to State. For four years he worked with Harry Meiggs, who made him foreman of a large force of men, when constructing his railroad in Peru. In 1875 he came to San Francisco, and has since remained on the coast, engaged in various occupations and callings. On hearing of the death of his uncle, he engaged an attorney to ascertain whether or not he was entitled to a share of his estate, and finally ascertained, through Minister Morton and Baron de Vatry, one of the Count's nearest relatives, that the entire estate had been bequeathed to his widow, and that the sons of an elder brother would be entitled to a preference. In spite of this discouraging reply, young Ney is still sanguine, and intends leaving for Paris shortly to look after his interests, believing that his relatives are still antagonistic to him and his interest, and of course are throwing every obstacle in his way.

—Talmage says that church members embrace three times as many women as men. That is probably correct. There is not more than twenty-five per cent. as much fun in embracing men as women.

—"Aunt Jane," said an exasperated wife, "I wish it was a custom for women to trade husbands, as it is for men to trade horses." "Why, my dear?" "Because, if it was, I'd cheat some woman dreadfully before sundown."

A GOOD COSMETIC.

The best cosmetics are good soap and water, to obtain purity of the skin; while for boils, blotches, obstinate humors and impurities of the blood, Burdock Blood Bitters is the best of all purifiers. 87i.

The striker is generally the party who is stricken.

AN OPEN LETTER.

MESSRS. T. MILBURN & CO.

Dear Sirs,—I can honestly recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil as the best reliever of rheumatic pains of all the many specifics offered for sale, and as a sufferer for years I have tried every known remedy. I remain, respectfully yours, JOHN TAYLOR,
87i 190 Parliament St., Toronto.

A dentist's sign—Drawing, music and dancing.

ITCHING PILES.—SYPMTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25, (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

Fred Douglas has about run his race.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea' has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

A lone exhibition—Picture of an old bachelor.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

CATARRH.

CATARRH.—A New Treatment whereby this hitherto incurable disease is permanently cured in from one to three applications, no matter whether standing for one year or forty years. Descriptive pamphlet sent free on receipt of stamp. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada. 580vy

WHEAT WANTED.

800-Bushels Wheat Per Day-800

For which the very highest market price will be paid at the

Ingersoll Roller Mills.

Gristing Done on the Hungarian System Chopping Done as before the change.

TERMS CASH.

Ingersoll, Nov. 22, 1883. WM. PARTLO 1768

BUSINESS CHANGE.

The Undersigned having Bought out the BOOK, STATIONERY, AND Fancy Goods Business!

LATELY CARRIED ON BY

MR. GEORGE A. ODELL,

Hereby respectfully intimates to the inhabitants of Ingersoll and surrounding country that by paying cash down he was enabled to buy Mr. Odell's stock amounting to over $8,000.00 at a large reduction from cost price, thereby enabling him to give

BARGAINS

Unheard Of Before in this Locality.

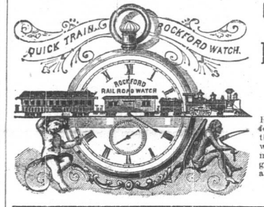
New Goods FOR the Holidays

I am opening out my very extensive and superb stock of Fancy Goods, Presentation Books, Etc., for the Holiday trade. An inspection of which is cordially invited.

WALL PAPER.

My stock of Room Papers will always be found up to the requirements of the wants of our customers. A fresh supply of Wall Paper just received.

PICTURE FRAMING.



Picture Framing will be carried on in all its branches.

Having had 18 years' experience in the Book, Stationery, Wall Paper and Fancy Goods business, besides being able to buy on the Cash Principle, purchasers can rely on getting good value for their money, and a well selected stock to choose from.

☞ In consideration of the foregoing, and with our best attention in the future, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal patronage heretofore given to MR. ODELL, with as many new customers as may be pleased to favour us.

A. ROBINSON,
STATIONER, ETC.,
INGERSOLL and BELLEVILLE.

Nov. 8th, 1883. 1574

H. RICHARDSON

Richardson's Block, Ingersoll, Ontario,

Dealer in Watches, Clocks, Jewelry,

SILVER AND PLATED WARE.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 1st., 1883.

This is to certify that we have appointed H. RICHARDSON, Sole Agent for the sale of the Rockford Quick Train Watch, in Ingersoll, Ontario, and that we will, to the fullest extent, sustain the usual warranty given by him to purchasers of our movements. No warranty whatever attaches to those goods when offered for sale by others than our duly appointed Agent.

ROCKFORD WATCH CO.,
H. P. Holland, Sec.

PURE GROCERIES!

AT THE INGERSOLL

CHINA TEA HOUSE.

Headquarters the best for

TEAS, COFFEES, SPICES,

And everything in the grocery line at prices which defy competition.

The Finest Stock of CANNED GOODS to be Found Anywhere.

FISH, LARD AND KEROSENE

Always kept in stock.

A Choice Lot of Molasses and Syrups, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos, and Stoneware.

CANDIES. CANDIES.

A FINE LOT OF LAMPS

And everything in the above line to be found in any well regulated Grocery. In addition there is the choicest and the most select assortment of

CHINA in all Shapes and Patterns, CROCKERY to be had at all prices.
GLASSWARE that cannot be beat for variety and Cheapness.
A better assortment of Canned Goods cannot be found in the County.

THOS. J. THORNTON.

Ingersoll, Oct. 25, 1883. 1572

Browett's Drug Store.

CHEMICALS, DRUGS AND MEDICINES

DISPENSING. Prescriptions and Family Receipts done according to the latest and most approved methods, by competent persons.

PATENT MEDICINES. A

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent—For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$2 50	$4 00	$6 00	$10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c. OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates, Mortgages Bought and Sold. OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South. THOS. WELLS. F. J. BROWN.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent. OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L.R.C.P. & L.M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M.R.C.S. AND L.M., ENGLAND L.R.C.P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth. Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll.

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,

PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock.

January 31st, 1884. 1586y

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Baker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store. Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1584c-m

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882, 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER. WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made. Woodstock, Feb. 16, 1883 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER.

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice. Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with farmers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which canbe withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - $5,698,696
RESERVE - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada. Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

Imperial Bank of Canada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.
Rest, - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Electro Plate GOODS —AT— R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 25. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1589.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada, 217 St. James St., Montreal.

☞Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

☞Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR., GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street. Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559v-y

THE CREDIT VALLEY! AND MICHIGAN CENTRAL RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and North-western America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:10 a. m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and North-western points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line, and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Pauls, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:40 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12:26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS.

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:23 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on the Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your tickets from

F. ARMONS, Station Agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines, Thames St., Ingersoll.

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

TOWN WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27. 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters, Warner's Safe Cure, Shiloh's Consumption Cure, Golden Fruit Bitters, All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded. Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers, Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day. R. VANCE, Thames Street.

☞Bread delivered in town daily.

Daly House Livery, J. GUGISGBERG, Prop.

LENDING LIVERY IN TOWN. Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582y-y

KIDNEY-WORT

DOES WONDERFUL CURES OF KIDNEY DISEASES AND LIVER COMPLAINTS, Why?

Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and all Female Complaints.

☞SOLID PROOF OF THIS.

IT WILL SURELY CURE CONSTIPATION, PILES, and RHEUMATISM, By causing FREE ACTION of all the organs and functions, thereby

CLEANSING the BLOOD restoring the normal power to throw off disease.

THOUSANDS OF CASES of the worst forms of these terrible diseases have been quickly relieved, and in a short time PERFECTLY CURED.

PRICE, $1. LIQUID OR DRY, SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Dry can be sent by mail.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co., Burlington, Vt. Send stamp for Diary Almanac for 1884.

KIDNEY-WORT

AGENTS wanted for "The Lives of the Presidents of the U. S.," the largest, handsomest and best book ever sold for less than twice our price. The fastest selling book in America. Immense profits to agents. All intelligent people want it. Anyone can become a successful agent. Terms free. HALLETT BOOK CO., Portland, Maine.

ATKINSON'S Parisian Tooth Paste!

Agreeable and Safe for Cleaning the Teeth

Sold in every Town and City of Canada.

PRICE 25 CENTS. 1575-y

A LEAP YEAR SKETCH.

First I saw her on the street,
Oh, how sweet,
Face so fair and form so neat,
Pearly teeth and dainty feet,
To behold her was a treat—
Quite complete.

Next I met this maid of guile
On Long Isle,
As I lightly tipped my tile,
"Would," said she, "I walk awhile,
Down the road, say half a mile?"
I should smile.

She was sunshine's brightest ray—
Pretty Fay.
I was happy, bright and gay;
The fact is, 'twas salary day,
And I had not a bill to pay;
Strange to say.

Near a pretty rivulet,
This coquette,
Whispered "Let me be your pet
Down life's path with thorns beset—"
* * * *
It was leap year—Did I get?
Well, you bet.

WHAT SHOULD A BODY DO.

What should a body do, I trow—
Sic a young rogue as Sandy,
Acro-s the kirk wi' ces o' blue,
He looks at me wi' eye sae true—
What should a body do?

You kirk is cauld, the sermon lang,
But a' my thochts for Sandy,
Wha waits for me wi' heart sae true—
There's not his like the wide waurld thro'—
What should a body do?

"My ain dear Mary, gang wi' me
For alway," said my Sandy,
Yea, yea, my love, an' we'll ere be true,
Tho' our cot be sma' an' our flocks be few—
What should a body do?"

MARIE DE LABORDE.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

CHAPTER VI.

But, as it it happened, they were not separated. The crowd, pouring down either staircase, soon thinned. There was better breathing space, and a fairer chance, as well for the more demoralized to push and struggle. Slocumb kept close behind Claire. He warded off from her a number of desperate thrusts. She was not aware of these defensive tactics; she paid no further heed to her former champion; as her sense of danger lessened, the idea of re-meeting Josie took shape and strength.

When the first step of the staircase was reached, she stumbled, then regained herself. She had no suspicion at this moment, what actually doughty work Slocumb was doing, just in her rear. He was a man of unusual muscular power, and like not a few of his rough, pugnacious species, endowed with dogged physical courage. At sight Claire had keenly attracted him; her recent aversion had piqued him into liking her still more. If the occasion had grown one of sharper immediate jeopardy, it is by no means doubtful that he might have shown intrepid heroism as her rescuer. He was gross, coarse, unprincipled, but he had that quality of stubbornly defending what he liked, which we often see in the finest of brutes, and sometimes in the least fine of men.

Up to this time the prevailing affright had been bitter ill to all whom it had seized. The threat of a hideous destruction had by no means passed when the crowd about Claire grew less dense; for not far behind her were two opposite streams of life that had met, and were destroying each other's progress by their very madness of encounter.

Below stairs, and at one of the intermediate landings, numerous people had already been severely hurt; limbs had been broken, and acute injuries of other kinds had been dealt. The cries heard here and there were made as much by pain as fear.

But powers of good were working with ardor among the low quarters of the building. A man had sprung forth upon the stage, and was imploring order amid the smoke which partly enveloped him, while at the same time he shouted to the multitude that the fire was now under perfect control. Two policemen and two ushers were abetting him further on, where neither his entreaties nor his explanations could reach.

Suddenly, with the same speed shown by the panic at its origin, an ordinary lull was manifest from its haphazard turmoil. A few caught the sense of the cheering intelligence, and these spread it swiftly from tongue to tongue.

At the moment when this change began to be clearly assertive, Claire and Slocumb had almost gained the last landing of the stairs. By the time they were in the lower part of the theatre, not a few persons who desired no air their bravery, now that safety seemed certain, were returning to their seats in dress-circle or parquette.

"It's on'y a hoax, after all," said Slocumb. "There's a heap more scared nor hurt. S'pose we git upstairs again? Hey? What d' yer think?"

Claire shook her head. "No, I want to find Josie," she answered. "I don't care to go back. I think she will not, either."

"All right," said Slocumb; "jus' take my hook, an' we'll git out o' here, an' watch fur Jim an' her where they're mos' likely to be."

He extended an arm to Claire as he spoke, and pointed at the same time toward a spacious outer hallway, in which the terrified multitude had already become much more tractable. But Claire resolutely refused to see the offered arm. She had began to tremble now that the cause for fright had passed, she was made to realize with how strong a wrench she had screwed her nerves to the sticking-point.

A touch of giddiness came upon her; then a knot rose in her throat, and she fought transiently, but with silent success, again a novel sensation that only self-surrender might have encouraged into turbid hysteria. Still, she preserved her repugnance, as it were. She would not accept Slocumb's arm. She had made up her mind that he was a vulgar and worthless creature, and moreover she had a distressing instinct that he had thus stayed at her side because of some new-born personal enticement.

He saw plainly her rebuff, though she did not put it in any salient way, choosing to let him suppose it a mere unconscious omission. But he preferred not to let it pass unnoticed.

"Oho," he said, with surly force, while still keeping his arm crooked, and shoving it so prominently toward her that no further subterfuge was possible. "So y' ain't goin' to ketch on, hey? W'at's the reason? We can git 'long better. Come, now, let's."

"No," said Claire, driven to bay. "I am very much obliged to you, but I don't need any help."

"Oh! You'll go it alone. All right."

But Mr. Slocumb did not look as if he thought it by any means right. His hard, brown face had clouded with sulky disapprobation. A little gleam of teeth had stolen out under his crisp, short moustache, with an effect not unlike what we see when an angry dog snarls. He felt offended, and this meant that he would either sting with his tongue or smite with his fists.

But in the present case a fresh glance at Claire, whose profile was turned to him, made his spleen swiftly perish. Her cheek had got a deep tint of rose; he saw the liquid sparkle of one dark-blue eye, and the dense, rippling hair, chestnut threaded with gold, flowing above one faint-veined temple.

"Ain't she a stunner!" he thought. After that he forgot to be offended. They were now in a spacious hallway leading directly to the street. The panic had quite subsided. Knots of people were standing here and there, loudly discussing their late alarms. Some of the women looked and acted as if they were midway between mirth and tears. Most of the men seemed grave: a few were laughing, but in a nervous, furtive way. Along the centre of the broad passage pressed a line of people whom the shock had left too dispirited for further sojourn in the house.

Claire, with her adherent, was among these latter. In quest of Josie, she scanned every face within her field of vision. She had already caught sight of more than one injured unfortunate, further back, where the rush on the lower floor had been most disastrous, and just before she and Slocumb had gained their present open quarters. On this account, rather than because of the wild stampede itself, she had quite lost desire to wait through the rest of the play.

It was now her fixed design to regain Josie and urge the plan of an immediate return to Greenpoint. Her sense of having met her father's known wishes with overt disrespect had become an assailant self-reproach. The very harshness of the event which had so rudely broken in upon her enjoyment seemed to have borrowed its disrelish from the rebuke that she had known as waiting all along to shame her. Providence, for the time, had gone with her father; it had abetted him; it had been telling her in stern terms of personal threat, how flagrant was her filial disloyalty.

She searched for Josie, but found her nowhere visible. She soon reached the limit of the large passage. A gate now confronted her, where a man waited, ready to give those who sought egress a strip of cardboard insuring their re-admission.

Claire took this guarantee of further diversion unconsciously. The man had stood at his post through all the furor that had just ended. He was a sort of new Horatius at the bridge, though possibly with less sublime motive, his wage being a permanent annuity, and his position one of easy proximity to Broadway.

Claire stood in the vestibule of the theatre, and felt the breeze from the street below on her heated face, before she was well aware just what vantage of exit she had secured. Still she had not seen Josie. And now she began to realize that there was a very strong chance of not seeing Josie. Truly, the girl might have returned with Mr. MacNab to their former seats in the second gallery of the theatre. But Claire's reluctance to place herself again within the walls of the building had by this time grown a fierce distaste. Meanwhile Slocumb had maintained an unrelenting nearness to her. She knew this perfectly well. If possible, a more meagre means than the extreme corner of each eye had told her of it; for so great was her repugnance that she had thus far grudged him even the knowledge of receiving even the most minute regard. But now she was forced to turn and look at him.

"D'ye you think Josie can have gone back into the theatre?" she asked, not being herself aware just what frost and distance she had put into voice and manner.

"Dunno," said Slocumb. "Guess she ain't, though. Guess her an' him's out there in the crowd."

The crowd to which he referred was already dense, and every moment increasing. It flooded the flag-stones in a portion of the middle street. Three or four policemen were stirring it to the needful sense of decorum, no less by application then menace of their clubs.

"I'm afraid I should never find her there," Claire said hopelessly.

"That's so," quickly returned Slocumb. "You'd better come inside again. The scare 'll be over in a minnit. The piece 'll go on 'fore long, certain sure."

"I don't care for the piece," replied Claire, with a little toss of the head, more anxious than imperious. "I don't want to see the rest of it. I want to find Josie, and have her take me home at once."

"All right. Jus' step inside an' wait fur 'em both."

Claire looked straight at the speaker. She did not know of the droop in each full-fringed lid of her beautiful eyes. It was an unconscious token of her abhorrence.

"Suppose they should not return," she said.

"All right," said Slocumb, brutally impervious. "I'll take yer home, if they don't."

"Thank you," faltered Claire. This view of the question gave her a new shock. It was like hearing that the ferry-boats between New York and Greenpoint had stopped running for the night. "But I won't trouble you," she added, trying to make her voice and mein indifferently calm. "I will wait here a little while, and then, if I don't find Josie, I will go home alone."

"Go home alone?" repeated Slocumb with a sort of sympathetic interrogation that was detestable to her. "Why, how far is it?"

"Oh, not very far," she replied, turning back on him, and feeling that in another moment she might treat his offensive persistence with the blunt rigor it deserved.

"I thought you was livin' over to Greenpoint," said Slocumb, shifting with tough pertinacity round to her side.

What a man of cleaner life and thought would simply have praised as sweet and chaste about her fired in this corrupt oaf his one gross substitute for sentiment. She could no more appeal to him by her fineness of line, coloring, or movement, than the field flower when cropped by the brute mouth, whose appetite its very scarcace and perfume may whet. And Claire divined this. Pure things know impure ones, all through the large scheme of nature. There are nicer grades of intelligence, of course, as we move along the upward scale of such antagonisms. The milk will not cloud till we dilute it with the ink-drop, but a white soul can usually note a black one by earlier and wise signals of alarm.

"Why should I not go home alone?" Claire had been saying to herself. "No one would know me—I could reach the Tenth Street ferry—I could ask some one, and get the right car. Yes, I will try no more to find Josie—I will break away from this low creature—I have enough money to bring me safely home—I don't care; I will take my chances, and slip off—he will not follow me when he sees me shun him like that."

She ignored his last remark. She did not even glance at him where he now stood. Her gaze was fixed on the crowd, and she was watching to find a brief break in its edge, through which she might flit and be lost.

The next instant such a chance came. Claire seized it. She made an oblique dart through the large doorway, slanted her nimble steps across the pavement, and was soon breasting the adverse tide, so to speak, of a little human sea. Each man or woman stood in the place of a choppy, obstructive wave. At every moment poor Claire found herself gently buffeting a new impediment, male or female, as the case might be. Since she wanted to move in a course different from that of nearly every one before or beside her, the carrying out of her project involved a good deal of determined opposition. But she at length gained the open, as it were. She had now only to strike along in a northerly direction until she reached the point at which a certain line of small cars crossed Broadway. She was not sure at just what street this intersection occurred; she knew that it was by no means near by.

A cumbrous omnibus rolled clamorously toward her, and for a moment she was inclined to hail it; but a swift look on its lighted space, well freighted with passengers, made her shrink from the concentration of stares that her sex and loneliness must equally provoke.

The publicity of the long, lamp-fringed sidewalk, with its incidents of potential if not always tangible policeman, expressed, after all, a more secure privacy. When she took one of the little trundling cars which would bring her eastward to the ferry, she would not be forced to clamber and stoop and stagger about before getting a seat. This mode of conveyance, too, would be somehow more safely plebeian; they would hold their last fragments of the work-a-day world going back to Greenpoint; in case of insult she might have her final appeal to some reputable occupant bound for the same destination as herself.

Meanwhile, the big-bodied omnibus clattered by. Claire had resolved to walk. The high-perched driver had not seen her pause, hurry to the curb-stone, and then lift a hand which was straightway dropped at the bidding of her changed mood. But this action, while it wrought delay in her progress, rendered somewhat earlier her meeting with one who still obstinately pursued her.

Just as she again started, with slightly quickened pace, the inexterminable Slocumb appeared at her side. He seemed to have used no effort in catching up with her. There was a terrible ease in the way his length of limb accommodated its free stride to Claire's more repressed motions. He had not immediately given chase. She had got rather deep into the crowd about the theatre-doors before his impudence, positive as it always was, had trumped up sufficient real nerve to follow her. Claire continued walking; but she looked at him with fixity as she said, "I suppose you saw that I wanted to go alone."

"T aint right, nohow," he replied, peering into her face with his bad, hard eyes. "A putty gal like you hadn't ought t' walk the streets all by herself after dark. You lemme go along. Don' look scared; I wouldn't hurt ye fur a cent."

"Oh, I am not afraid of you," said Claire, between her teeth. "Why should I be?"

"That's the ticket. W'y should ye be?"

"I don't want your company. I have shown this to you and now I tell it to you."

Slocumb laughed. It seemed to Claire that his laugh had the cold of ice and the thrust of steel. His lowered arm touched hers with intentional pressure, but she swerved sideways, at once thwarting the contact. He, however, promptly narrowed the distance thus made between them.

"Say!" he now broke forth, in peculiar, confidential undertone, as though a third party was listening. "W'at ye mad fur, hey? You was along with Jimmy MacNab, wasn't ye? An' wasn't we introdooced all reg'lar? I'm a better feller 'n Jim, any day in the year. Jus' gimme a show. Won't ye? Say, now, won't ye?—I took a dead shine to you the minnit I clapped eyes on them two nice pink cheeks—blowed if I didn't! I sez to myself, 'She can walk round any gal I've seen fur a devil of a time,' sez I."

Claire looked straight ahead. She still went quickly along. Her feet and limbs felt light, almost void of sense. Fear had to do with this, and she was keenly frightened. For the first time in her life she knew the terror that feminine honesty has when fronted with the close chance of physical insult.

Slocumb justified her dread. He had no more regard for common laws of restraint than the majority of untamed brutes, when conscious, as in his case, of firm thews and active bulk. As for moral bravery, his nature harbored no concern with such nicer elements.

The only vices he did not possess were those for which he had never known an hour of temptation. His father had drank himself to death, and he inherited what was perhaps an embryo taste in the same direction. He got drunk once a fortnight now, in his twenty-seventh year, whereas, two years ago these diversions had been much rarer; in a decade, under his uncontrolled conditions, there was a fair chance of his becoming a sot.

To speak more generally, the vast social momentum of heredity, which seems to be so plainly understood and so ill appreciated in our golden century, had Slocumb well in its stern grip. There were no outward incident forces, as the philosophic phrase goes, to make his case in any way a hopeful one. He had seen Claire; he had exchanged a word with her; he had liked her. If his liking was put in the baldest form of explanation it would have to deal with rather darksome realisms. And it is always preferable that the pursuant satyr and the unwilling nymph be treated wholly from the poetic and picturesque point of view.

Claire would not speak. She was very frightened, as before has been recorded: she seemed to see, between the gloomy interspaces of the lamps, a phantasmal semblance of her father, looking untold rebuke at her, and then vanishing only to reappear. She walked on with fleet energy. An idea shot through her mind that she might call a policeman to rid her of this incubus. But she dismissed the idea at once. It was too savagely desperate even for the confronting dilemma.

By this time Slocumb had begun to see that Claire was proof against all his known methods of conquest. But she was unprotected, and he had a dogged dislike of giving up the siege. The silence continued for nearly five blocks. During this time his eyes had scarcely once left her face, gleaming distinct or dim as the lamplight waxed or waned.

"Say!" he at length re-addressed her. "Ain't ye hungry? I was thinkin' a spell we might go putty good, just now, or a dish o' ice-cream. P'raps ye'd rather tackle sumpn sweet. Hey?"

She made no answer. He peered closer into her face, and repeated the last odious little interrogative monosyllable a good many times. But Claire remained as mute and irresponsive as though it had fallen on stone-deaf ears.

This lure suddenly held out to appetite was his last persuasive stroke. It expressed in the most exhaustive terms just how narrow and barren his conception was of Claire's reasons for shunning him. He stood as the hideous result of a hideous phase of society: and he could no more divine or imagine higher and richer levels of life than if to know of these had meant to be familiar with the soil and climate of a remote star.

He was disappointed and chagrined, but not angry. Anger could not consort with his present state; another kind of heat already filled his veins; one flush kept the other aloof. He had now decided that Claire was not to be conciliated, and yet the perfect lawlessness of his past made him in a manner unable to snap the bond of attraction and leave her. Self-control was a sealed book to him; he had not even opened its cover, apart from learning its rudiment ary lessons.

When they had gone five or six blocks further, and the street at which Claire would take the cross-town car was by no means far away, he abruptly caught her arm and drew it close to his side, so holding it with an exertion of purely muscular strenth, beside which her own resistance counted for little more than the flutter of a bird.

Even at this most trying juncture she still moved on. He continued to walk, as well. She veered her face toward his, however, forced out of all her previous pitiful disdain, and he saw that she had grown pale as death.

"Let me go," she said. "Don't dare to hold me like this!"

"Look here!" he returned, his tones taking a nasal whisper, and his breath sweeping so close to her nostrils that she caught in it a stale taint, as of liquor drank some time ago. "I wouldn't harm a hair o' your head; you can jus' bet on that. I've took a likin' to you, an' I'll treat ye good. If you was a lady livin' up t' Fifth Avenyer, ye wouldn't git more respectfuller behaved to nur I'll do."

"If you don't let me go," said Claire, gasping a little as she got out the words, "I'll complain to the first policeman we meet."

He dropped her arm at once, stopping short. "D' ye mean it?" he asked, with great show of reproach. "Say! d' ye mean it?"

But Claire hurried on. She had a wild momentary hope that she had hit at random upon a blessed source of deliverance. Here, however, she had quite miscalculated. Slocumb's outburst had merely formed a bit of the cheap sentimentality which one of his race and stamp would select as the lame makeshift in a forlorn cause.

It chanced that when Claire reached the desired corner a car was opportunely passing. She signaled to it; the driver saw her; it stopped, and she entered it. Meanwhile Slocumb had kept at her side, though with the distance between them materially widened. She paid no heed to the question of whether or not he entered with her. The car was entirely empty as she took her seat. A little later she slipped a five-cent piece into the small glass repository for passengers' fares—that touching proof of the confidence reposed in drivers by those who employ them. Shortly afterward she saw Slocumb standing on the outer platform. Her heart and courage almost failed her, then. He presently walked inside the car, and paid his fare, as she had done. She expected him to sit down and resume his persecutions, but he did neither. He went out again and stood on the platform.

The little car jingled along Eighth Street. It passed the grim, bastard architecture of the Mercantile Library, once, long ago, an opera house, in which Steffenone sang to assemblages where a gentleman in evening-dress or a lady without her bonnet was a rare enough incident, and nothing prophesied the horse-shoe of resplendent boxes before which Patti and Nilsson have since revealed their vocal charms. Soon afterward it came to Third Avenue, easily betrayed by the flare of gaslight in the beer-saloon or liquor shop, and a thoroughfare in which late revelry seems to have claimed especial stronghold. Near at hand, that hideous monument of philanthropy, the Cooper Union, frowns its unavailing displeasure upon the malt of Schneider and the alcohol of Moriarty, both of which project their noxious forces southward through the Bowery to the City Hall, and northward across many reputable side streets on to the shabby vulgarity of Harlem.

But Claire was naturally unprepared, just now, either to recognize or ponder the importance of this great popular boulevard which we call Third Avenue; how it blends our ruling Irish and German elements in one huge strand of commercial interests, each petty by itself, yet all, when massed together, of enormous metropolitan note; how its very name is pronounced with a mild sneer by our so-called better classes; how it is held common and of ill repute; how one must not speak of it in a Fifth Avenue drawing-room, lest he shall be suspected of having trodden its painted pavements; and yet how there pulses through its big, tough artery nearly all the hot, impure political blood that feeds the venality of our elective systems, making it for this reason a fact to be always deplored but never lightly dismissed. Should the sombre growl against that sin of over-possession which we term monopoly ever grow into a revolutionary roar, it is very thinkable that the Robespierre of such an event would be born in Third Avenue; but if not, he may safely be depended on for having near relations there.

The little car presently crossed Second Avenue, at its most quiet portion. All the garish brilliance had now quite vanished. Once beloved of respectability, this broad street, here in what we designate its lower portion, has preserved abundant souvenirs of perished fame. Many of the roomy old mansions that line it may be dispeopled of their pristine Knickerbockers, but even these retain much of their old stately repose. Up beyond, the tenement-house thrives, and the tavern flaunts a bottle-decked casement; but here, within generous limits, it remains a quarter full of decent though not dismal gloom, and touched with an occasional solid grandeur.

The car soon advanced into a very different region. It had reached one of the two long if not deep river edges which skirt the central domain of our wealth and thrift. That squalor which digs the heels of poverty was everywhere manifest. The very street lamps seemed to burn with a dejected flicker. Night, however, was kind, and spared from view much unsightly soilure. The high brick houses, thronged with inmates whom all degrees of want and all modes of toil oppressed, lost themselves in shadow; but now and then you caught glimpses of the liquid filth clogging the gutters, and perhaps of a half-submerged cabbage-leaf or a more buoyant egg-shell, to fleck its slime with baleful color.

Here spoke a crying municipal disgrace. The prosperous part of our city has its streets kept cleanly throughout the year, but deep injustice is wrought upon those that are skirted by abodes of penury and need. Fat appropriations are of no avail; the tax-money slips into fingers that are deft in legerdemain; fraud and mismanagement meet as friends; it is not enough that our beautiful island must crowd her shores with all the disfeaturing accompaniments of commerce; she is forced as well to see them polluted, far inland, by the foulness born of bad legislation. This is one of the too frequent cases where, in our enlightened polity, democracy plays wantonly into the hands of monarchism.

A little later the car came into a wide, airy expanse, along two of whose sides it journeyed for a considerable distance. Here was Tomkins Square, now lighted with innumerable lamps, but only a few years ago a dark horror to all decent citizens living near it. By day set aside as a parade ground for the city militia, which paraded there scarcely twice a year, its lampless lapse of earth was by night at least four good acres of brooding gloom, which he who ventured to cross stood the risk of thievish assault, if nothing more harmful.

What added to the near repulsiveness of the place for peace-loving denizens of its near streets, was an occasional concourse of growling and saturnine German socialists, held with stormy harangues and blood-thirsty diatribes under moon or star, and amid the congenial environing shadow, which was relieved, on these lucid occasions, by torches whose fitful flames typified the feverish theories disclosed.

But the car now passed a very different Tompkins Square from that of old. The grim blank has become, since then, a bright-lit realm where the tramp may fall prone on some of its many neat built benches, but where the highway-man will find slim chance to ply his fell trade.

When this region had been passed there remained only a brief space to be traversed, before the ferry was reached. The avenues by this time had ceased to be numerically named; they had become alphabetical. But Avenues A, B, C and D are all quite homogeneous as regards dolorous discomfort. The city here hides some of its worst lairs, and many a desperado infests them. After a little journey, such as Claire now took, you gain the small, dull-looking ferry.

Meanwhile seven or eight new passengers had entered the car. They were mostly Germans, and of both sexes. Claire felt a sense of protection. One stout woman, of truly colossal build, with a sleeping baby in her arms, and an evident husband so hollow-cheeked and slight that it seemed wrong for him even to assume the responsibility of paying their double fare, especially reassured her.

The rest were commonplace people enough. One was a weary work-girl; one was a collier, grimy with his trade and drowsy from drink; one was a dapper, bejeweled Hebrew, with oily amber whiskers, and large, loose, red lips; still another was a handsome young woman, who said good-night on entering, to a male escort, and who now glances uneasily about her at intervals, as though fearful of being known. All this while Slocumb remained on the outer platform.

Presently the car stopped. Everybody alighted. The Tenth Street Ferry was close at hand. Claire knew that her hateful adherent was close at hand also. She paid her toll to the ferryman, and glided through the narrow bit of passageway forth upon the long dark dock beyond.

(To be Continued.)

A ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE.

Thrilling Incidents in the Courtship of Two English Lovers.

New York World: Mayor Edison united in marriage a young couple at the City Hall last Friday afternoon whose romantic courtship, thus happily concluded, was diversified by a number of thrilling incidents seldom occurring in real life.

The bride, Miss Maggie Whallie, now Mrs. Charles Hollingsworth, a beautiful blonde, lived in the little town of Skipton, in Yorkshire, England. Her father is a wealthy man and proprietor of the Maitland House, the largest hotel in that place. Three years ago young Hollingsworth, who is at present only 22 years of age, arrived in the town as Secretary of the Passenger Agent of the Midland Railroad

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

SOUTH OXFORD

Your Vote & Influence

ARE SOLICITED FOR

JAMES NOXON

—THE—

REFORM CANDIDATE

—AND—

Nominee of the Reform Convention.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1884

REFORM COMMITTEE ROOMS.

A meeting of the Liberals and of all those favourable to the election of Mr. Noxon will be held at the Liberal Committee Rooms in the vacant shop in Smith's Block, corner of Thames and King Streets this evening, Thursday, Feb. 21st, at 7:30 o'clock, and every evening until after the election. A full attendance is requested.

MR. NOXON'S MEETINGS.

Mr. Noxon, the Liberal Candidate for South Oxford, will address the electors each evening as follows:—Friday, Feb. 22nd, Tilsonburg; Saturday, Feb. 23rd, Otterville; Monday, Feb. 25th, Norwich; Tuesday, Feb. 26th, Oxford Centre; Thursday, Feb. 28th, Burgessville; Friday, Feb. 29th, Springford; Saturday, March 1st, Beachville; Monday, March 3rd, Ingersoll; Tuesday, March 4th, Dickson's Corners.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

There is a candidate in the field in opposition to the Liberal standard bearer.

He must therefore be looked upon and treated as a Tory.

The duty of every Reformer is to work and vote for the supporter of the present Reform Government, James Noxon.

Do not be misled by the "independent" cry.

It is too thin!

OVER-CONFIDENCE.

In past contests we have pointed out the danger of overconfidence on the part of Reformers.

It is only through over-confidence that we can be beaten.

Let every true Liberal in the Riding do his duty. See to it that through no fancied security an opponent of the Mowat Administration is elected. Let the majority for James Noxon be so large as to leave no doubt of the Liberal sentiment of the Riding.

Be true to your principles as of yore, and there can be no doubt of victory.

AN ELECTION OF MOMENT.

The present contest in South Oxford is probably the most momentous we have ever had.

The Liberal Government, as our readers are aware, is sustained by a majority of 12 only, and a possibility of having this number further reduced by losing the seats which are now before the courts.

The loss of South Oxford would therefore prove not only a moral victory for the Conservative Party, but possibly a matter of serious moment to the Government.

Therefore Liberals of South Oxford to work with your old time energy, and place your candidate at the head of the polls by a glorious majority.

SOUTH OXFORD.

The people of South Oxford are on the eve of another political contest, owing to the incurable malady of the Hon. Adam Crooks, our late representative in the Ontario Legislature.

The nomination takes place at Ingersoll on Wednesday next, Feb. 27th, and the election on Wednesday, March 5.

The Liberal standard-bearer is James Noxon, of Ingersoll, the nominee of the largest and most representative convention ever held by the Liberals of this riding.

Geo. A. Cooke, of Norwich, is in the field to oppose the Liberal candidate as an independent, but it is clear to all that he has been brought out by a portion of the Conservative party, and although he will not poll the united Conservative vote he must be looked upon as an opponent of the present Administration.

He announces himself as an independent simply to secure Liberal votes.

But he will secure no Liberal votes.

Moreover, by coming out as an independent he will create no enthusiasm in the Conservative ranks.

Therefore he will be beaten by such a majority as to forever impress on his mind the fact that "Glorious Old Oxford" takes no stock in so called "independents."

The duty of Reformers is plain.

Organize! organize! and work from now until the day of election for James Noxon, the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Cooke announces in his address that if elected he will give the Mowat Government his "independent support."

Reformers of South Oxford, do not be deceived by this.

If you cast your vote for Mr. Cooke, or if you abstain from voting, you are placing yourself in antagonism to the present Liberal Government.

Liberals of South Oxford, are you prepared to do this?

Let your answer be at the polls on the 5th of March.

THE Toronto World says:—"There never was a stronger all-round government in Canada than that which Mr. Meredith has just failed to dislodge from control of the affairs of Ontario. There is not a weak member in it. They are anything but the imbeciles that the Mail has tried to paint them. They are strong as a government whole; each man is strong in his department, and in defending it; they are old hands at parliamentary tactics; and in all that is implied by the terms "managing the country" and "managing the house" they are at home. Man for man, who can the Conservatives put up against them? Mr. Meredith against Mr. Mowat? Mr. Lauder against Mr. Pardee? Mr. Creighton against Mr. Hardy? What three of the remainder are equal to Mr. Fraser? They don't compare—they only contrast."

WHAT THE SYNDICATE GRANT MEANS.

Canada proposes to give away $30,000,000 on the strength of a promise (from men who do not keep their promises) to the effect that the Canadian Pacific road shall be completed in 1886 instead of in 1891. One whole year's revenue for a promise that is worth nothing!

This grant is of a more startling nature than most people at first sight imagine. The $30,000,000 really means an average tax of about $144,270 on every constituency in the Dominion. It means a tax of about six and two-thirds dollars (say $6.65) on every man, woman and child in the Dominion!

Let us see how this is to affect the ratepayers of Oxford County who always look with a jealous eye on any scheme calculated to increase their burdens. The population in round numbers is about 50,000. At six and two-thirds dollars per capital this means $332,500 added to our debt!

What would Ingersoll's share of this Syndicate subsidy be? Our population is about 5,000. Ingersoll's proportionate share of this huge debt would be about $33,250!

The Globe writing of the additional grant of $30,000,000 to the C. P. R'y., says:—What would England think of a proposal that one year's revenue should be given up for any one thing except for a war in self defence? A year's revenue of Britain is about £86,000,000—say $430,000,000. Even English Tories would hesitate before throwing away such an enormous sum. Yet $430,000,000 would be a less burden upon the United Kingdom than will this additional $30,000,000 be upon Canada.

THE Tilsonburg Liberal says:—A Tory caucus was held at the Queen's on Tuesday. We understand Mr. Cook, of Norwich, wants the Conservatives to support him as an independent, and he will run against Mr. Noxon. Mr. Cook may as well save his time and money. No Reformer in South Oxford will support an independent or any other kind of man this time. They are united and pledged to support Mr. Noxon, no matter who runs.

NEWS ITEMS.

Hanlan has sailed for Australia.

The Allan steamship Norwegian is several days overdue.

There are 7,000 miners on strike in the Pittsburg region.

Mr. Bradlaugh has been again elected for Northampton.

Two hundred children were massacred by the rebels at Sinkat.

An attempt was made to assssinate King Humbert of Italy.

Two bodies have been stolen from a cemetery at Odessa, Ont.

Two cases of glanders in horses have been discovered at Chicago.

Colonel Middleton, now in command at Aldershot, is to succeed Gen. Luard.

During December last 161 sailing vessels and 21 steamers were reported lost or missing.

The Court of Queen's Bench has quashed the conviction in the so-called Toronto bean lottery case.

The question of the leadership of the Tory party is again being warmly discussed in England.

The Canada Temperance Act was defeated by four votes at Beamsville on Tuesday.

The Mayor of St. John, N. B., refuses to act on the License Board created by the Ottawa Government.

Women of Toronto are organizing in opposition to the sale of liquor in groceries.

The petition against the return of Mr. I. J. Gould, M. P. P. for North Ontario, has been dismissed.

By a gunpowder explosion at London on Monday one man was killed, and two probably injured.

A Royal Commission has been appointed to enquire into the condition of the poor in the United Kingdom.

There were only 9 accidents to trains in 1882 in Great Britain by which passengers were killed.

A number of Toronto retail druggists have been fined for contravention of the law requiring them to register their sales of liquor.

Sir Stafford Northcote's motion censuring the Egyptian policy of the Gladstone Ministry was defeated by a vote of 311 to 262.

The City Solicitor of Kingston has given his opinion that the Mayor cannot be a Dominion License Commissioner without vacating the civic chair.

The fine steam saw-mill of Thomas Forsyth, located near the Town Line between Bayham and Houghton, about five miles east of Vienna, was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday night. The loss is estimated at $6000.

They had to saw the pipe off from a hydrant in Allentown, Pa., the other day to liberate a man who had tried to drink from the nozzle when the thermometer was near zero. With the piece of pipe sticking to his lips he was taken to a fire, and there the pipe fell.

Mayor Harrison of Chicago has a letter from W. A. Pierce of Hervey, Dakota, warning the poor against emigrating to the prairies of that Territory. The writer says that men with money can find a better country in which to invest it. All this is brought out by the sufferings of the poor in the cold on the prairies.

Mrs. Emma Wiggins, the young wife of a furniture manufacturer at Rome, N. Y., suicided at the Osborne House, Rochester, on the 16th. She was elegantly dressed, wearing a sealskin cloak and diamonds. The cause of the suicide is said to be a false accusation of infidelity made by her husband.

Julia and Mary Sherbourne, aged 8 and 5 respectively daughters of J. Sherbourne, of Monroe, Mich., broke through the ice on the river Saturday and were drowned. The elder girl was drowned in an ineffectual attempt to save her sister.

The enormous destruction of property caused by the Ohio floods is becoming apparent as the waters fall. Residents of Cincinnati are trying to float their houses back into the original positions. The relief boats are doing a good work.

A gang of juvenile burglars, sons of respectable parents, were arrested in Pennsylvania yesterday. A few weeks ago a gang of young incendaries, sons of respectable parents, were arrested in Milwaukee. This week a gang of Minneapolis boys, sons of respectable parents were arrested for having hanged another boy.

The family of Mr. George Hilton, four in number, residing on South street, London, was discovered about 6 o'clock yesterday morning in a state of unconsciousness from the effects of coal gas which had escaped from a defective stove. Mr. and Mrs. Hilton are both over 60 years of age; the other victims are their two daughters. Dr. Wilkinson, of the City Hospital, and Dr. Chas. Silloore were at once summoned, and at 6 o'clock last evening had succeeded in restoring the daughters to consciousness, but at 9 o'clock last night the old people were still insensible, and there is little chance of their recovery.

County and Vicinity.

Mr. Chas. E. Burgess, of Burgessville, was a delegate to the Grand Lodge of A. O. U. W., which convened at Guelph on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Waddell have just returned to Bayham from spending a few weeks at their farm in Greenock township, Bruce County. They were accompanied by Miss Aggie Waddell, Mr. Waddell's youngest sister. Mr. W. intends moving to his new home near Ingersoll in a few days.—Observer.

Mr. George C. McKay, of Embro, has been named bailiff of the 3rd Division Court of Oxford County, vice John McDonald, resigned.

GERMAN Syrup at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

JAMES NOXON, THE LIBERAL NOMINEE.

Opinions of the Press.

St. Thomas Journal.

The Reformers of South Oxford convened at Mt. Elgin Friday, did well to select Mr. James Noxon, of Ingersoll, as their candidate for the seat in the Local House vacated by Hon. Adam Crooks. He will probably be returned by acclamation, and will be a strong addition to Mr. Mowat's forces. Possessed of brains of energy, of means, he is just such a man as will creditably represent the constituency of South Oxford, a riding which has generally sent able men to Parliament. It is said that Mr. Noxon could have had the nomination, if he would have accepted it, any time the last twelve years; and now that he has at last consented to stand, his election is assured.

Toronto World.

Mr. James Noxon, the widely-known manufacturer of Ingersoll has received the liberal nomination for South Oxford, Hon. Adam Crooks' constitutency. Mr. Noxon could have been a legislature long before this, but he has always hitherto declined nomination on the ground of business calls. Now that he has consented to throw himself into the active political arena, the liberal party is to be congratulated. Mr. Noxon belongs to a class of men whose presence is always welcome in political assemblies.

Seaforth Sun (Con.)

Mr. James Noxon, the widely-known manufacturer of Ingersoll has received the Liberal nomination for South Oxford, Hon. Adam Crooks' constituency. Mr. Noxon could have been a legislator long before this, but he has always hitherto declined nomination on the ground of business calls. Now that he has consented to throw himself into the active political arena, the Liberal party is to be congratulated. Mr. Noxon belongs to a class of men whose presence is always welcome in political assemblies.

Brantford Expositor.

James Noxon, of Ingersoll, has received the unanimous nomination of the Reform Convention of South Oxford to succeed Mr. Crooks. Mr. Noxon is a very able man, and his nomination assures his return unopposed, or if opposed, his election by a larger majority than South Oxford usually gives, and its usual Liberal majority is large enough to satisfy most people.

Tilsonburg Liberal.

The Reformers of South Oxford met in convention at Mount Elgin on Friday last, to nominate a successor to the Hon. Adam Crooks. Mr. James Noxon, of Ingersoll, the well-known manufacturer, was the choice of the delegates, and accepted the nomination. Mr. Noxon is a successful business man, a good speaker, and well versed in the public questions of the day. He has for many years occupied a leading position in the ranks of the Liberal party, and will prove a worthy successor to the ex-Minister of Education. It is improbable, in the present state of public feeling, that opposition will be offered to Mr. Noxon's return.

Toronto Globe.

We hear on pretty good authority that Mr. Noxon, of Ingersoll, will not be opposed by a Conservative in the coming election. This is testimony to the strength of Mr. Noxon and the Liberal cause.

Woodstock Sentinel.

A great deal of interest has been felt in town in the South Oxford nomination. The selection of Mr. Noxon as standard bearer is regarded with satisfaction, as likely to bring strength to the party in the Legislature.

The Seduction Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—There was considerable cross firing in the Committee of the Whole this afternoon over Charlton's Seduction bill.

Quite a number of ladies in the Speaker's gallery listened to the discussion, evidently undecided whether it would be better to stay or go out, though Sir John once remarked, rather significantly, that it was impossible to discuss certain phases of the case with strangers in the gallery.

The adverse views expressed were all by reason of the opportunities which it was claimed would be given to designing women to levy blackmail to men whom they might entrap.

Mr. McMaster (Glengarry) thought the bill was incorrectly named—"An Act to provide for the Punishment of Offences against Chastity"—as it only punished the immortality of the man. He said he spoke from experience in the criminal courts, when he claimed that women are often the misleading parties.

Sir John spoke against the clause making seduction under promise of marriage a criminal offence, as being wrong in principle.

Mr. Charlton is not discouraged, but will insist on the House voting on the bill as it stands, that the country may know who is for or against the principle of throwing every safeguard around the virtue of Canadian women.

Mt. Elgin.

The temperance meeting announced to be held last Friday was postponed until next Friday.

A surprise party took Mr. and Mrs. Bell by surprise on the eve before the sale. Mr. D. Tripp headed the raid and presented Mr. B. with a beautiful cruet stand, and Mrs. B. with a fine table lamp. A pleasant time was spent and nobody appeared to blame.

Mr. McKay, recently from the North West, has been giving some details of his experience in that region, that are very interesting, and if he could be persuaded to overcome his bashfulness and give the readers of THE CHRONICLE a sketch of that same, I know it would be highly appreciated. Please give him a nudge or bait him with some of his "sky blue bannocks" he talks about.

The concert given by the members of Mt. Elgin Lodge, I.O.O.F., last Friday evening, was a marked success, the hall being packed to the door. The performers all acquitted themselves very creditably, and everything passed off in good style. The Oddfellows are to be congratulated on their success. Messrs. John Andrews, Joseph Gibson, and A. Murdoch, of Ingersoll, took part in the programme.

Joseph Bell's sale, advertised in THE CHRONICLE, took place on Tuesday, and was largely attended. People from all parts of the county were in attendance, which speaks highly for the large circulation of your paper. Mr. Brady was in his very best vein, and kept the large crowd well in hand. A very sweet tongued auctioneer is that same Mr. B. and how he managed to get through with such a quantity of stock and at such prices is just one of the mysteries of the trade.

West Oxford.

A meeting of the Council was held at the Town Hall, Beachville, 11th inst. All the members present, the Reeve in the chair. Minutes of last meeting confirmed. Communications from Clerk of County Council; from Pratt & Tracey; from Secretary of Canada Land Land Association read. Mr. John Karn heard, respecting two sheep killed and three worried by dogs. On motion it was resolved, that the statute labor charged against the lands of Charles Wilson, James Curry, James Lund and Matthew Featherstone for the year 1884, be performed on the townline between East and West Oxford, between the first concession line and the entrance to the swamp on the Sweaburg road, and that the statute labor charged against the lands of Herman Thornton, D. Rice, P. Hayball, David Watt, John Watt and John Webster shall be performed on the said townline between the entrance to the swamp on the Sweaburg road and the front of the 6th Concession. It was further resolved that the Auditors' report be adopted, published, and two hundred copies printed for distribution. Mr. Chalmers heard, respecting sheep killed by dogs. On motion it was resolved that the Reeve sign orders on the Treasurer in favor of John Karn for $10, two-thirds value of two sheep killed and three worried; in favor of Geo. Chambers for $5.33, two-thirds value of one sheep killed; in favor of Erwin Lewis for $8, for one cord of wood furnished Levi Johnson; in favor of John R. Waite for $70, for services as Collector; in favor of J. A. Cody and Thomas M. Walker, for the sum of $6 each, for services as Auditors; in favor of J. A. Cody for 50c., overcharge on taxes; in favor of the several Councillors for the sum of $2 each, for one day's session. By-law No. 271 appointing the following municipal officers for 1884 passed:—Richard Peers, Assessor; John R. Waite, Collector; James Adams, Geo. Sebbin, John Worth, Charles Brink, sr., Erwin Lewis, James G. Wood, Joseph Dutton, Geo. Galloway, Hez. Wilson, Neil Swartz, Wm. Tibbenham, John Dodge, John Cummings, John Anderson, Chas. Brink, jr., Fence-viewers. Elias Cook, Geo. Sebbin, Edwin Galloway, Herkimer Dygert, John Dodge, Freeman Carr and Stewart Canfield, Pound-keepers. Peter Stonebaugh, J. J. McLaughlin, John Prouse, T. W. Walker, David Robinson, James Stevenson, Ephraim Briggs, Joseph Garner, Peter Cuthbert, Geo. Galloway, W. G. Frances, John Metherill, Henry Gregg, John Davis, David Todd, Geo. Cook, Comfort Sage, jr., James Martin, Levi Bent, Warren Corey, John Weir, Henry Forden, Richard Peers, Thomas Pendlebury, Adam Dodge, M. Tibbenham, John H. Forden, John Dodge, John Clarkson, Chas. Middough, Royal Brink, Wm. Huggins, Joseph Witharow, Geo. Jakeman, Chas. McKay, Peter Meek, Walter Pullen, — Sabor, Robt. Millard, Wm. Rivers, John W. Webster, jr, Robert Barnett, Wm. Wilson, Albert Pullen, John Cuthbert, Jas. B. Thornton, John Webster, sr., Mathew Featherstone, Overseers of Highways. Council adjourned to meet again on Monday, 3rd of March, in the Town Hall, Beachville, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Bright

Messrs. Stratford and Yates are still hauling wood into the railway yard, where nearly 1,600 cords are piled.

Business fair. The North-west House is apparently at the head; some good bargains may be had there.

Mr. Reid is kept busy at the grist mill. Farmers seem to take advantage since the new grist mill has started. May success follow the undertaking.

The Bright debating club is making good strides; much interest is manifested by the members. The last night's subject: "Professional and Agricultural Life," was well and ably handled, with a good share of eloquence on both sides. Agricultural life, however, proved, according to the chairman's decision, to offer the greater inducement to young men. Next night's subject will be "the Press and the Pulpit." Resolved that the press offers greater educational influences than the pulpit. An interesting time is looked for, both sides being about equally divided in talent.

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

THE celebrated White Bros. are engaged for a concert in the Town Hall on March 31st. Look out for particulars.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms, Mops, Floor, Stove Horse, and Scrubbing Brushes, Damps and Chimneys, Clocks. Eavetroughing and repairing done promptly, Heating Drums and Stove Pipes, Dishes of all kinds, Smoothing Irons Mrs. Pott's Cold Handle Smoothing Irons, Scales, large and small, Spades, Forks, Shovels and Hoes, Mixed Paints, all ready for the brush; any tint or colour; Boiled and Raw Oils, Root Cutters, Children's Carriages, Baby Jumpers, Corn Planters, Farmer's Bells, Carpet Sweepers, Dry and Liquid Measures, Bird Cages, Lanterns; Stove Polish, Lead and Iron Piping, Gas Fittings, Hog Rings and Hog Holders, everything in the House Furnishing Line, Axle Greese, Cistern Pumps, Wheelborrows, Sinks, and everything that is wanted to keep house with.

Cash paid for old Rubber Shoes, Bones of all kinds, Woollen and Cotton Rags, Old Brass, Copper and Lead, old Zinc, old Wrought and Cast Iron, all kinds of Furs, Beef Hides, Sheep Skins, Calf Skins, Horse Hair, Tallow and Beeswax.

47. H. CAMPBELL.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4:56 a. m.	6:50 a. m.
11:57 a. m.	12:15 a. m.
12:32 a. m.	3:05 p. m.
5:05 p. m.	4:48 p. m.
7:47 p. m.	7:00 p. m.
2:11 a. m.	12:20 p. m.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall-st., N. Y. January 24th, 1884. 1585-481

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT. J. C. HEGLER.

Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557c-m

London Loan Company,

LONDON, ONTARIO.

$100,000 to lend at Lowest Rates.

Short loans at 6 and 6½ per cent. Apply to M. J. KENT, Manager,

London, Feb. 7th, 1884. 1587v-y

FOR SALE.

The Stone House and Outbuildings

KNOWN AS

THE PETER CARROLL PLACE,

With 4½ or 12½ acres of land. Trout pond and stream, orchard and ornamental groves, etc., situated on the London Road, one mile west of the market house, Ingersoll, and just outside the town limits.

For price and terms apply to the undersigned.

JAMES F. McDONALD, Barrister, Ingersoll.

Feb. 14th, 1884. 88

EXECUTORS' SALE OF

House and Two Lots.

There will be sold by Auction,

On the Market Square, Ingersoll,

ON

Saturday, February 23,

At eleven o'clock a.m., a

FRAME COTTAGE,

Situated on the South side of Canterbury street, in good repair; contains five rooms; good barn, hard and soft water. For particulars apply to

WM. DUNDAS, GEO. BEAVERS, ALICE DUNDAS, } Executors.

JAMES BRADY, Auctioneer.

February 14th, 1884. 881

$66 a week at home. $5 outfit free. Pay absolutely sure. No risk. Capital not required. Reader, if you want business at which persons of either sex, young or old, can make great pay all the time they work, with absolute certainty. Write for particulars to H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

WARNING.

LAST NOTICE.

ALL ACCOUNTS DUE

Guggisberg Bros. & Co.

MUST BE PAID AT ONCE!

TO

SAVE COSTS

Parties owing us will please settle their accounts with

Mr. John Guggisberg, Ingersoll,

OR REMIT TO US.

GUGGISBERG BROS. & CO., GALT, ONT.

Feb. 14th, 1884. 88v

SIGN OF THE GOLDEN ANVIL

A. H. ELLIS,

IMPORTER OF

SHELF AND HEAVY

HARDWARE,

Paints, Oils

GLASS, ETC.

Thames St., - Ingersoll.

February 14th, 1884. 88

NOTICE.

Bell Telephone Co'y.

Connecting Lines are Now Open for Conversations or Messages to LONDON, ST. THOMAS, CHATHAM, WINDSOR, WOODSTOCK, PARIS, BRANTFORD, HAMILTON, TORONTO, PT. HOPE, PETERBORO, LINDSAY, KINGSTON

AND INTERMEDIATE POINTS.

☞ For further particulars apply at Central Office.

HUGH C. BAKER, Manager. C. C. L. WILSON, Agent.

February 14th, 1884. 881

BITTERS!

A SURE CURE FOR

Liver Complaint.
Sick Headache.
Pimpled Skin, Boils, &c.
Dyspepsia, Billiousness.
Salt Rheum, Scrofula.

"My son was very bad with Scrofula, and only two packages of the Crowfoot Bitters cured him." Yours truly, JOHN CASS, Owen Sound, Ont.

"Only only dollar's worth of the Crowfoot Bitters cured me of Dyspepsia after all other medicines failed." T. H. EASTON, Market Clerk, Durham, Ont.

"After suffering 11 years with Sals Rheum I obtained a perfect cure with one package of your Crowfoot Bitters, without even greasing the skin." CHRISTOPHER GARRETT, Meaford, Ont.

Sold at Gayfer's Drug Store.

Aug. 30, 1883. 1564r m

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

WM. C. BELL

Having bought the Lumber belonging to the Estate of the late ADAM OLIVER

And RENTED THE MILL, he is prepared to execute all

Carpenter & Joiner Work

Entrusted to him. He will also

Contract for Buildings!

OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.

And supply House Building material at the very lowest prices. It is a well known fact, from the easy financial position of the late firm, they were always ahead of the times in having thoroughly seasoned lumber, and from which all his inside work will be manufactured. A specialty in making

VENETIAN BLINDS,

Which can be made to order in short notice. GIVE HIM A CALL. WM. C. BELL.

Ingersoll, Feb. 1st, 1883. 1535

"When the Spring Time Comes."

There is Nothing Like Cheap Dry Goods,

—AND—

J. S. SMITH & CO.

OF THE OXFORD HOUSE,

Are Prepared, Having Opened Out

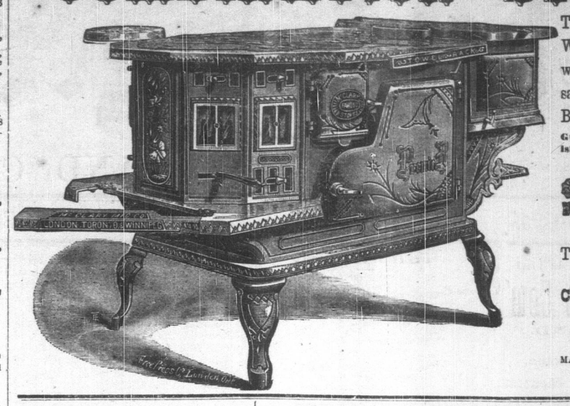
New and Nobby Spring Prints and Cretonnes.
New Checked and Oxford Shirtings.
New Grey and White Cottons
New Lace Curtains and Lambrequins.

ALL BARGAINS.

New Denims, Ducks, Cotton Tweeds, and Printed Bafferties.

New Lines in Cashmeres and Dress Goods.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins—Plain and Brocades.



Popular Prices and Big Bargains.

We will Allow No One to Undersell Us.

Oxford House, Ingersoll. J. S. SMITH & CO.

February 21st, 1884. 89

COMBINATION STOVE.

The Most Perfect Coal and Wood Stove Manufactured, with round fire pot, on the same principle as a Base Burner.

Guaranteed to Give Perfect Satisfaction. Call and See It Working at the Store of

S. KING

Star House,

Thames Street, Ingersoll.

Cheese Vats,
Milk Cans,
Sap Pans,
and Pails

MADE TO ORDER.

PRICES LOW.

HOTEL FOR SALE.

That large three-storey brick hotel, known as The "Albion," Embro, is offered for sale or exchange for farm or town property; one of the best paying hotels in the County; also 50 acres improved land in Houghton Township.

For terms and particulars, apply to C. GARNER, Thamesford P.O.

June 21st 1883. 155tf

WHEAT WANTED.

800-Bushels Wheat Per Day-800

For which the very highest market price will be paid at the

Ingersoll Roller Mills.

Gristing Done on the Hungarian System Chopping Done as before the change.

TERMS CASH.

WM. PARTLO

Ingersoll, Nov. 22, 1883. 1765tf

ADVERTISERS

Before you place a dollar's worth of Newspaper advertising, get our prices. The exact cost of any paper, or list of papers cheerfully furnished, free upon application. Send for New Catalogue.

J. C. HOUGH, Advertising Agent,

HOUGH BLOCK. Detroit, Mich.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that

GEORGE BAILEY, of the Town of Ingersoll,

In the County of Oxford, and Province of Ontario, Carriage Maker, has made an assignment to

ALFRED H. ELLIS,

Of the said Town of Ingersoll, Hardware Merchant, of all his real and personal estate for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said George Bailey, are requested to send by post prepaid to the undersigned, on or before the said

Ninth day of March next

A statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration.

The said Trustee will after the said Ninth day of March next, proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rata among the creditors of the said George Bailey, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll, this tenth day of Jan., A.D, 1884.

A. H. ELLIS, Assignee.

Will be mailed FREE to all applicants and to customers of last year without ordering it. It contains illustrations, prices, descriptions and directions for planting all Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, etc. Invaluable to all.

D. M. FERRY & CO. WINDSOR, Ont.

RENNIE'S SELECT Field, Garden AND Flower SEEDS ARE THE BEST

THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST COMPLETE CATALOGUE FOR 1884 FREE TO ALL INTENDING PURCHASERS.

WM. RENNIE, TORONTO.

BECK.

HAVING

Bought out the Business

Lately carried on by

ROBT. YOUNG

We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of

FRUIT

OF ALL KINDS,

CANNED GOODS

Fine Confectionery.

OYSTERS

JELLYS, JAMS,

Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,

And hope by close attention to busines ard

SELLING CHEAP

To merit the patronage of the public.

GEO. BECK.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th 1883. 1580

HOLD ON

—AND—

Dont be in a Hurry

—BUT—

GO STRAIGHT

—TO—

SHRAPNELL'S

AND BUY YOUR

Xmas Goods

Candies, &c.,

—AT—

Half Price

FOR

TWO WEEKS ONLY

AT

SHRAPNELL'S,

FOR CASH ONLY.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1580

NELLES & STEVENS

Having opened out in the O'Neil stand, in General Groceries, take this their first opportunity of soliciting a call from the people of Ingersoll and vicinity. Our stock will at all times be found replete with everything to be found in a First-class Grocery. TEAS A SPECIALTY.

☞ By strict attention to business, care in the selection of a first-class article in buying, we hope to merit a portion of the trade of the community and still retain the very liberal patronage bestowed upon the late proprietor.

W. B. NELLES. M. L. STEVENS.

Ingersoll, February 14th, 1884. 88

I. COYNE

Has just received an immense stock of

Grey and White Cottons, Check Shirting, Denims, Cottonades, Ducks, Prints, Etc.,

For the early spring trade, which he now offers by the yard or piece at

Rock Bottom Prices!

Piles of Prints from 5 cents per yard up. See our 35 inch Grey Cotton at 6¾cts. See our Check Canada Shirtings at 10c and 12½cts, worth 20 per cent. more. See our 30 cent. Cottonades for 25 cents. In Dress Goods and Silks I. Coyne offers astonishing value. Coloured Silks for 37½ cts worth 50 cts. Dress goods at 10, 12½ and 15 cts per yard, worth 20 per cent more.

You will consult your best interests by calling on I. COYNE when in Town and examining his immense variety of NEW GOODS. We take a pleasure in showing you through, no matter whether you buy or not.

I. COYNE has also just received a wholesale stock of Embroideries in beautiful designs, which he is selling at prices much below those of last spring.

EVERY LADY IN WANT OF EMBROIDERIES SHOULD SEE OUR IMMENSE VARIETY.

The largest stock and the largest assortment of New Goods in Ingersoll are to be found at I. COYNE'S.

PRICES DEFY COMPETITION.

I. COYNE.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

NOTICE.

Just Received an Immense Stock of

Wall Papers and Borders

Of the newest designs, which will be offered at VERY LOW PRICES in order to induce customers to commence house cleaning early, at

L. THOMPSON'S

Wall Paper, Stationery, Oil, Color and Window Glass Store, McCaughey's Block, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

Hearn & Co

ARE SHOWING A LARGE STOCK OF

BLACK & COLORED SILKS.

Black and Colored Silk Velvets,

Black and Col. Velvet Plushes,

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Also for evening wear a large assortment of

FLOWERS AND FEATHERS.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE OUR STOCK.

We are also selling the Balance of our winter stock at great reductions.

INSPECTION INVITED.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier that can be used. It invariably expels all blood poisons from the system, enriches and renews the blood, and restores its vitalizing power. It is the best known remedy for Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin, as also for all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, and Scrofulous Catarrh.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE."

Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

Xmas & New Years.

R. H. YOUNG

Has on hand a large assortment of

BLANKETS

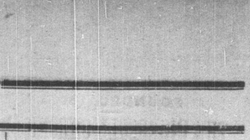
And all kinds of

HARNESS!

And everything required for the winter campaign.

ESPECIAL GOOD VALUE.

OLD STAND, PHOENIX BLOCK,



Opposite the Market,

Cash or Wood taken in exchange for goods.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1780

JAS. McINTYRE

UNDERTAKER,

HAS REMOVED BACK TO HIS old stand in the

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

A Large Stock of COFFINS, and CASKETS SHROUDS and ROBES on hand.

FURNITURE

All kinds in stock. Residence first house north of warehouse, King street, Ingersoll. nber 22, 1881.

A Fact Established,

—THAT—

Wilkinson's

IS THE

PLACE TO BUY

YOUR

Groceries, Crockery,

AND GLASSWARE.

Also a large assortment of Fancy Goods suitable for Holiday Gifts.

Prices to suit the Times.

Note the place, one door West of Daly House.

KING STREET WEST.

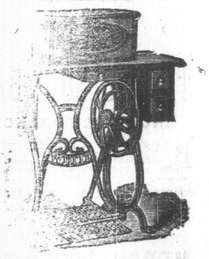
Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883.

THE

"Little Wonder."

Re-Opening!

Me and my father, my father and me,
Can sell you the best of Black and Green Tea,
The very best Sugar and choicest of Spice,
With Lard, Pork and Ham, and very good Rice,
In fact all the Groceries you can well name,
My father kept good ones and I'll do the same,
So come with your orders and with your money
For business without is not pleasant as honey.



E. H. HEWITT, PROPRIETRESS.

Ingersoll, Nov. 1, 1883. 1573

THOS. HENDERSON

Practical Machinist.

THE CELEBRATED

WHITE SEWING MACHINE

At Reasonable Prices.

THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

A Five Years' Warranty

With every Machine.

Durable and Simple!

A Child can Use It!

LIGHT MACHINERY

Of every description repaired, Keys made, Locks, Sewing Machines, Guns, and Revolvers Repaired.

Skates, Knives, Scissors, Razors, and Saws Sharpened.

I have just put in a Steam Engine, and am now prepared to do all kinds of Saw Gumming, and a greater variety of work than ever before.

THOS. HENDERSON,

BOLES' BLOCK.

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Pr

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

JAMES NOXON, Esq.,

—THE—

REFORM CANDIDATE

—WILL—

Address the Electors

AS FOLLOWS:

TILSONBURG,
Friday Ev'g, Feb. 22nd

OTTERVILLE,
Saturday Ev'g, Feb. 23rd

NORWICH,
Monday Ev'g, Feb. 25th

OXFORD CENTRE,
Tuesday Ev'g, Feb. 26th

BURGESSVILLE,
Thursday Ev'g, Feb. 28th

SPRINGFORD,
Friday Ev'g, Feb. 29th

BEACHVILLE,
Saturday Ev'g, March 1st

INGERSOLL,
Monday Ev'g, March 3rd

Dicksons' Corners,
Tuesday Ev'g, March 4th

February 21, 1884. 1589

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

THE price of beef has gone up.

"PIRATES of Penzance," Tuesday next.

WOODSTOCK Opera Co., town hall, Tuesday night next.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.—The spring chancery sittings will be held at Woodstock on Thursday, 17th April.

BOY WANTED.—An intelligent boy, of good education, to learn printing. Apply at once at the CHRONICLE office.

THE assessors throughout the country are now on the war-path. They are the pleasant advance agents of the tax collector.

"THE PIRATES."—Do not fail to hear the "Pirates of Penzance" by the Woodstock Opera Co. on Tuesday evening next.

SEATS are going fast for the "Pirates." Secure them early at Richardson's Jewellery Store.

WHAT'S THE MATTER.—The Mechanics' Institute was not opened either Saturday or yesterday, to the disappointment of many people who called.

THE opera, "Pirates of Penzance," as rendered by the Woodstock Amateur Opera Co., is spoken of in the highest terms of praise.

"FACINATORS" are the latest novelties worn by the ladies. They are just too awfully nice; and suit the leap year admirably.

LOST.—A left hand dog-skin mit. Any person finding it will confer a favor by leaving it at this office, or sending it to Rev. D. Hunt, Salford.

THE PRETTY GIRLS.—Everybody will go to see and hear the pretty girls of Woodstock in, "The Pirates," at the town hall, on Tuesday evening next.

POCKET PICKED.—A Woodstock man while in Montreal the other evening, viewing the sights, had his pocket picked of $25. A Woodstock man should never go out after dark.

COMIC OPERA.—The Woodstock Opera Co. in the Pirates of Penzance in the town hall, here, on Tuesday evening next. Reserved seats 50c. May be secured at H. Richardson's.

ROBBERY.—On Tuesday night last some person or persons entered the store of Mr. W. J. Hewitt, north of the river, by breaking a pane of glass in the back window, and carried off a quantity of cigars, tobacco, biscuits, canned goods, etc.

PERSONAL.—The Misses O'Neill, of Burgessville, are the guests of Mr. A. Smith, Woodbine Arbor. Robert McMullen is home from Texas on a visit. Miss Watterworth left last week to commence a term at the Woodstock Collegiate Institute.

SOMETHING NEW IN COOKING STOVES.—If you want to see the nicest thing in cook stoves call at S. King's and see a combination in working order. It is constructed on the same plan as the base burner and burns coal. It will retain fire all night. See it.

THE Montreal Herald has issued a special enlarged number, illustrative of the recent ice carnival and other phases of life in the commercial capital of Canada. It has much interesting matter, and is worth the price, 25c. per copy.

A WIDE DIFFERENCE.—The Salvation Army is charged $8.00 per night for the use of the Town Hall in Woodstock. A motion to reduce the tariff to $6.00 was defeated in the Council. They got the Ingersoll Town Hall for $3.00 per night.

DON'T FORGET.—While scattering a few crumbs for the sparrows this severe weather don't forget to throw out a lot of old tomato cans, barrel hoops, and cast off shoes for the poor goat, which has as much right to live as the imported feathered brood.

JOURNALISTIC.—The partnership existing between H. A. Dark and A. O. Burkart, as proprietors and publishers of the Winnipeg Siftings, has been dissolved by mutual consent, H. A. Dart buying all the interest of A. O. Burkart in the business. The former will continue the publication.

S. S. CONVENTION.—The Oxford County Sabbath School Convention will meet at Norwich on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 27th and 28th. Excellent programme. Reduced R. R. fare in county to those attending obtained by procuring certificates from Ernest Poldon, Sec'y, Norwich.

SCALDING ACCIDENT.—The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Donohue formerly of this town, but now of Des Moines, Iowa, will be sorry to learn of the death of their little daughter, which resulted from her falling backwards into a tub of scalding water which was left sitting on the floor.

AN ODDITY MISTAKE.—Forest Free Press:—The judges at the Thedford carnival, which was held last week, are very much chagrined at the idea of giving the prize for the best lady skater to a gentleman from Forest, who, it appears, dressed and passed himself off as a lady from London.

THE SNOW AND FLOODS.—A short trip in the country discloses the fact that the snow has almost entirely disappeared from the fields, while the woods are in a great measure free. This, says the London Advertiser, combined with the present state of the river in this neighborhood, ought to be very reassuring to the people of London West.

THE BROOM BRIGADE.—The London Free Press says:—"Ten of the fair daughters of Ingersoll have formed themselves into a broom brigade and exhibit at carnivals. This is rather suggestive for leap year, and the young men of that town will do well to give such experts with the broom handle a wide berth."

ACCIDENT.—Mr. John Farnsworth, formerly of this town, now of Tilsonburg, sustained a serious injury one day last week by falling from a lumber pile at Windham Centre. The pile was about fifteen feet high, and when Mr. Farnsworth felt himself falling he turned around and jumped. By doing this he probably saved his life, but he was unfortunate enough to strike one foot on a car track which ran between the piles of lumber. One of the small bones in the foot was fractured, and he is laid up in consequence.

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

A Child Falls into a Mill Race and is Carried under the Street.

On Thursday afternoon an accident occurred in town which happily did not result fatally, although the escape may be said to be almost miraculous. Two children of Mr. Angus McLeod—a boy and girl, aged respectively five and three years, were being drawn on a hand sled by another child on the sidewalk down King Street East, and when opposite Mill Street the sled was overturned precipitating its occupants into the mill race, running under the street from the pond to Partlo's mill. The little girl caught hold of a projecting plank and was rescued without sustaining any serious injury. The boy, however, was not so fortunate, but was drawn in by the swiftly flowing current and carried out of view, passing under the street a distance of 200 feet to the gate of Partlo's mills, when after being in the water for nearly ten minutes he was rescued in an insensible condition, and to all appearances drowned, the face being black. Restoratives were administered and after considerable rubbing the child was brought back to consciousness and is now as well as ever beyond a feeling of soreness in his limbs, after his involuntary underground voyage.

THE CARNIVAL.

A Large Attendance and Lots of Fun.

The best skating carnival of the season was held at the rink on Friday evening last. There was a large attendance, the mammoth rink being well filled with skaters and spectators, all of whom evidently spent a pleasant evening. The 22nd Batt. Band was present and rendered several new selections in excellent tune. A number from Woodstock, London and surrounding country were present. The general run of the costumes were better than usual, many of them being tasteful and some really elegant. Below are some of them:—Miss J. Russell, Hugeonot Lady; G. Tiffin, Chinaman; C. Perkins, Little Red Riding Hood; S. Noxon, W. Gemmel, Twin Dudes; Tena Shaw, Czarina; Lizzie Soper, Huntress; Mary Jackson, Colored Lassie; James Stewart, Farmer; J. Noe, Grand-mamma and I; W. Berry, Red Riding Hood; Laura Ditchfield, Scotch Lassie; May Shaw, Kathleen Mavourneen; R. Rice, Happy Bob; Flora Kenny, Queen of Roses; John Stewart, Washerwoman; W. McLeod, Washerwoman; A. Laidlaw, Woodstock, Pirate; Eva and Susie Boles, Roses; J. C. Atkinson, Spanish Knight; J. Maybe, C. Dann, Song-and-Dance Men; C. Soofin, A. Baker and J. Cavanagh, Clowns; Edith Boles, Music; A. C. Wagoner, Spirit of the Period; J. Gaskin, Shakespeare's Latest; Miss McDonald, Highland Lass; A. McDonald, Waiter; Maggie Donnelly, Kathleen; Minnie Brown, Night; Annie Brown, Queen of the Forest; D. R. Baxter, Oscar Wilde in disguise; A. Morey, Pitching Sand; Harry Grant, Mexican Cowboy; Mira Hamley, Snow; May Boles, Irishman's Daughter; Zilla Perkinson, Innocence; John Hooper, Sailor Boy; Jennie Rice, Girl of the Period; H. Baker, Sailor; Rose Perkins, Swiss Peasant Girl; Katie Gordon, Wasp; Flora Seath, Hornet; Hattie Robinson, Patricia; Geo. Matheson, Page; Bella Matheson, Maple Leaf; Lizzie Matheson, Peasant Girl of Lorrance; F. Keating, Sailor Boy; Nellie Murray, Autumn; Lizzie Noe, Winter; E. Keating, Mexican Boy; Emma Smith, Snowball; Pauline Smith, Euchre Deck; Edith Brown, Fortuna; Miss J. E. McKellar, Grace Darling; Lucy McCarty, Jennie Ross, Northern Lights; Kate Vance, Fish Wife; Flora McMurray, Milk Maid; Hattie Brady, Sailor's Daughter; Emma McCarty, Fairy Queen; Annie Hoagg, Grace Flewelling, Teresa Smith, Maggie Kyle, The Khorassan Society; Joe McCarty, Jockey; Charlotte Adair, Dress of Many Colors; Annie McCarty, Snowstorm in the Starlight; Beanie Shaw, Mary Queen of Scots; May Crobie, Queen Elizabeth; Jessie Fraser, Flower Girl; John Stuart, Scrapegrace; Agnes Frezell, Housemaid; Nellie McKellar, Little Bo-Peep; A. E. Gammon, Dude; J. L. Stuart, Farmer; Ed. Keating, Texas Cow Boy; A. Emery, Kentucky Sam; Belle Boles, Snow Ball; J. W. McLeod, Irishman; Charles Underwood, Negro Swell; J. Doherty, Irish Comedian; May Boles, Pirate's Daughter.

MR. James Chambers, of Dereham, owns two five-year old cows that average one hundred lbs. of milk per day. Mr. C. values them at $150.

A social will be held at the residence of Mr. Reuben Harris, one mile south of Salford, on Tuesday evening next, Feb. 26th. Proceeds to go to the parsonage funds.

B. C. CHURCH.—Rev. Mr. Reynold's will preach in this church on Sunday afternoon next. There will be no service in the evening, the members being anxious to attend the Charles Street M. E. Church to hear the great pulpit orator, Rev. Dr. Williams.

M. E. CHURCH.—Rev. Dr. Williams will preach the Annual Missionary Sermons in the Charles Street M. E. Church next Sabbath, Feb. 24th, at 11 a. m. and 7 p.m. This gentleman is well known as a pulpit and platform orator of great ability. Don't miss this opportunity of hearing him.

THE FUEL QUESTION.—Consumers of coal insist that there is something in the atmosphere beside the frigidity of the winter that makes greater havoc with the coal pile than usual. One consumer who has given some attention to the subject, says that he has burned ten to fifteen per cent. more coal this winter, during the same number of days and with the temperature averaging nearly the same, than he did one year ago. The theory is advanced that as the mines are enlarged the coal is softer, and consequently a greater amount is required to maintain the same temperature.

BAPTIST TEA MEETING.—The anniversary tea meeting, held by our Baptist friends last evening, proved, as we predicted, a grand success. The attendance was very large, and the spread was equal, to any previous attempt, reflecting the highest credit upon the ladies. After all had been served in the basement, excellent addresses were given in the main body of the church by Revs. P. R. Ross, W. W. Ross, John Reynolds, R. B. Rowe. The chair was ably occupied by the pastor, Rev. C. H. Speller. The celebrated White Bros. were on hand and furnished some of their best vocal selections, which were heartily received. In short, the affair proved a most delightful one, and the financial gain to the church must be quite considerable. We congratulate the adherents on their success, and hope that the year just entered upon may prove 'the brightest and best' in the history of Ingersoll Baptist Church.

SOCIAL.—The social at the B. C. Church on Tuesday evening, all things considered was a complete success, and those who braved the pelting rain storm were well repaid for their venture. Notwithstanding this drawback a goodly number were in attendance, and all evidently enjoyed themselves immensely. The music furnished by the the Putnamville Choir was excellent, as also the organ selections contributed by Miss Phillips, of London. Mr. Joseph Gibson was very happy in his post of chairman, and was accorded a hearty recognition of the audience for his valuable services. The great card of the evening was the Rev. Sol. Peter Hale, whose reputation is so well known that we need only say that he has lost none of his "long drawn vocabulary of indefinable phraseology," judging from his effort on this occasion. Taken altogether, this was one of the most successful socials yet given by "the Little Church," and only for the heavy rain storm the building would have been packed. The receipts footed to about $14.

TELEPHONIC.—Some changes are being made in the telephone system in town by which the service will be rendered more efficient and convenient. Heretofore all subscribers were limited to the use of three or four wires, and by this arrangement the telephone, while proving a great convenience to subscribers, was almost as often a source of very much annoyance, by reason of the frequent sounding of the call bell, and the uncertainty as to who was being called, to say nothing about the frequent mixing up of messages, which was sometimes unavoidable. Under the new arrangement, each subscriber will have his own wire, independent of any one else, and when his call bell sounds he may be certain that he and nobody else is being called. By thus improving the service in the town, the Company are displaying considerable enterprise, and they should, as no doubt they will, meet with substantial reward in an increased number of subscribers. There are at present some thirty-five subscribers, and the Company have made calculations upon increasing the number within a short time. The telephone is coming to be almost universally used by business and professional men in large cities and towns, and with an efficient service, there is no reason why it should not be more generally in use here than it has been.

Salphur and Iron Bitters at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

PECTORIA, for Coughs and Colds, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

ALWAYS AHEAD.—Mr. McIntyre has purchased a very stylish new glass hearse, which, with the former hearse, will enable him to fill all orders in the undertaking line promptly. 87t

N. & W. O. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Adjourned Meeting—The Scheme to hold the Fairs in Victoria Park.

An adjourned meeting of the above Society was held in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon, Jas. Noxon in the chair, and T. R. Mayberry, Secretary. Among those present were:—Thos. Brown, Jas. Noxon, W. Colyer, W. Partlo, Wm. Ewart, Jos. Gibson, Wm. C. Bell, Gordon H. Cook, Edmund Jarvis, E. Casswell, Jas. Chambers, (Dereham), Wm. Tripp, Thos. Mayberry, J. Fahleigh, Wm. Chambers, T. Seldon, J. L. Cook, Thos. Choate, Chas. Wilson, A. Crawford, M. T. Buchanan, J. McKellar.

G. H. Cook, secretary of the committee, read the following report:—

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN,—Your committee to whom was referred the matter of considering the advantage of making a change of agricultural grounds of the North and West Oxford Agricultural Society from its present site to the Victoria Park and adjacent lands thereto.

Beg leave to report that they met on Friday, the 8th inst., at the office of E. Casswell, Esq., Ingersoll, and drove out to the Park, and also to see the lands proposed to be secured on which to erect cattle sheds and yards for agricultural exhibition purposes. We found a lot owned by Mr. Holmes on the east side of the street, east of the Park, to be very suitable for the purposes for which it was required. Mr. Gibson informed us that it could be purchased for the sum of $350. We then returned to Mr. Casswell's office and discussed the question. It was thought desirable in the interest of the Agricultural Society that the site should be changed, and also, that it was equally desirable in the interest of the town that commodious and suitable buildings be erected on the Park grounds to accommodate pleasure seekers and public gatherings on said Park, the one building would then answer for both purposes. We therefore decided to submit for the consideration of the meeting the following scheme:—

1st. That the Agricultural Society hand over to the town the main building or palace, which is 120 ft. long. Part of it being 30 ft. in width and part 50 ft. in width, to be removed to the Park and rebuilt and re-constructed at the expense of the town, so as to make it a suitable building for all Park gatherings for the use of the town and for the Agricultural Society on exhibition days. And also to erect on said Park a suitable refreshment booth, or building suitable for Park and Agricultural Exhibition purposes, the said buildings to be the property of the town and controlled by them, exception Agricultural Societies Exhibition days.

2nd. That the Society purchase the grounds before spoken of as belonging to Mr. Holmes for the purposes herein before mentioned, removing such sheds, pens and material from old grounds as would be suitable for erecting same on new grounds.

3rd. That the sum of $500 be raised by subscription in the country to purchase the lands adjacent to the Park, to be used for stock yards and for erecting the same.

4th. It will be further necessary should this or a like scheme be adopted to elect an Agricultural Board, as that has not been yet accomplished for the year 1884.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

G. H. COOK, Sec'y Committee.

Ingersoll, 18th Feb., 1884.

After the reading of the report Mr. Noxon addressed the meeting as to the objects for which this committee were appointed, and said it had been found impossible to conduct the exhibition on paying principles with the grounds where they were at present, but if there was any suitable ground could be brought out to make the show a success, he for one, was not particular where the exhibition should be held.

Mr. Casswell said that if the Society was to be a success the town and country must be united and try to make it so. He understood Woodstock and Otterville were still holding very successful shows. He thought having the building in the Park would be a great acquisition to the Park as a place of shelter and also an accommodation to Ingersoll. As to the question of being better for business that was a foregone conclusion.

Mr. Bell said he would be found with Mr. Gibson in trying to make the Society a success, but as this was his first attendance at an agricultural meeting he would not attempt to tell them how to make it a success.

Mr. Brown said this was a step he had always advocated. He had always held that it would be a great advantage to the town.

Mr. Casswell wanted to know what guarantee the town had that the country would give the $500 spoken of.

Mr. Colyer, (North Oxford), thought Ingersoll ought to have a show, and thought it would be quite as well for North Oxford to have the buildings removed.

Mr. Buchanan said if a few good business men took hold of the matter it would be a success.

Mr. Thos. Choate said if the scheme was adopted he believed subscriptions to the amount of $500 could be collected in two weeks.

The report on motion was adopted.

On motion the following were appointed directors for the Society:—Thos. Brown, President; G. H. Cook, Vice-Pres.; E. Jarvis, W. Colyer and J Fishleigh, North Oxford; T. R. Mayberry, E. Casswell and T. Choate, West Oxford; T. Seldon, W. Tripp and J. McKellar, Ingersoll; Wm. Ewart, Auditor. At a meeting of the directors held immediately after the adjournment of the general meeting, W. K. Sumner of THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN, was appointed secretary, and Thos. Brown, treasurer.

Messrs. Brown, G. H. Cook and E. Casswell were appointed a committee to wait on the Council of the town of Ingersoll, and ask their co-operation in carrying out the scheme adopted by the Society.

Messrs. Casswell and Cook were appointed collectors to raise the $500 to purchase the proposed ground.

Messrs. Choate, Jarvis, Seldon, Tripp and Cook were appointed an executive committee.

Meeting then adjourned.

A WINTER ETCHING.

Frosty sidewalk,
White and slick,
Man in ulster
Walking quick,
Hands in pockets
Elbow-deep,
Starts down hill
Exceeding steep,
Heel strikes ball, head
Upward flies
Man like V
With bulging eyes,
Hands in pockets
Won't come out;
Awful mockery
Hope and doubt.
Hope abandoned,
Doubt dispelled—
Inquest in
The court house held.

Dereham.

A grand literarary and musical entertainment, under the supervision of Mr. W. J. Elliott, took place on Friday evening last in the school house of School Section No. 1, Dereham. The night was all that could be wished for, and the house was filled to overflowing long before the time announced for the programme to commence. Mr. John Cairns, of Culloden, occupied the chair, and showed that he thoroughly understood his position. Instrumental and vocal music was rendered by Miss Maggie and Ella Murray, of London, in grand style. The Misses Hopwoods, of Salford, and Miss Dundas, of Putnam, also gave some very excellent pieces, which were received with great applause. Instrumental music on the organ and violin was well rendered by Miss Williams and Mr. Willamett, of Ingersoll. Miss Graham, Messrs. Hayes, Beattie, Elliott and Barraclough gave some very popular readings and recitations, noticeable among which was the comic recitation entitled, "Peter Potter's Speech," by Mr. Elliott. The dialogues and recitations given by the pupils were simply immense, especially those given by Miss Gertie Gregg. The event of the evening was the laughable farce entitled, "Punkin Ridge," which brought forth roars of laughter. Mr. Elliott deserves a world of credit for the way in which everything was managed. The proceeds amounted to $21, and went to defray the expenses of purchasing prizes for the children, which were distributed during the evening.

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 80

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

Otterville.

An enthusiastic Scott Act meeting was held in East Zorra on Friday night and at Norwich on Monday night, at both of which places all present unanimously pledged themselves to support the act. Mrs. Youmans will hold meetings almost every night till the day of voting.

Avon.

Mr. Edward Hegler, of Ingersoll, formerly of Avon, was out to his son's farm seeing after some logs and lumber. He is intending to build himself a fine house in Ingersoll. In looking after his timber he rode back from the mill on a load of lumber with his son, and on the way home the load upset, hurting Mr. Hegler badly.

West Oxford.

Quite a number of logs have been drawn from here to Mabee's mill. The logs of today are but shadows of years ago, when three or four mills were in full blast around here.

The meetings held here, in the C. M. Church, during the winter, under the leadership of Revds. Hunt and Moore, have been productive of much good.

Mr. and Mrs. John Waite are visiting friends in St. Marys. Mrs. Hezekiah Wilson is on a visit to friends in Michigan. Miss Louie Thornton, of Ingersoll, who has been attending Alma College is on a visit to friends here.

Brownsville.

Mr. Charles Glover has opened another wagon shop here.

Mr. J. Brown has rented his farm near this village to Mr. Samuel Daws, a gentleman from near Pickering.

Business has been pretty brisk here this winter in the wood line. There are about 2,000 cords on the C. S. R. station grounds here now, with more to come.

Mr. E. Hopkins and Mr. J. Bates intend to start for Manitoba some time next month.

There is a large and extensive business doing this year in wood. Brown Bros. & Co. are shipping extensively. If the destruction of our forest go on much longer at the present rate of operation, there must shortly be none or at least very little standing as a break against the storms.

Dixon's Corners.

On Monday night a temperance mass meeting was held at this place. Although the weather was somewhat stormy, still a goodly number was present. Mr. B. Minkler occupied the chair. Messrs. Ingram, Colyer, and Hopkinson, made short and pointed addresses. Revs. Ross and Cameron were present. The former gentleman, on rising, expressed his pleasure at being with us, although he regretted that the number present was not larger. In the course of his address he claimed that a prohibitory law is necessary and then proceeded to show why. The question arises who are the physicians of the present deplorable state of affairs—not the governors at Ottawa. We are the physicians. We are responsible. Imagine the disastrous result if the law enacted no tax whatever from liquor traffickers. Imagine the unbounded licentiousness and immorality that would ensue. The license act supposes we have a perfect right to license vice. He objected to high license from the fact that it involves the same principles as low license. He cited Nebraska as a place where high license (paying over $1000) instead of lessening the drunkards, actually augments their number; instead of lessening the amount of crime, actually increases it. The only remedy in the general law of prohibition. The principle is right, for it is founded on the word of God. Some one cynically observes, "Oh yes, we have had acts before, you gave us your Dunkin Act, etc." The reverend gentleman then proceeded to expose the deficiencies of all previous acts, showing forth in an able manner how incomparably superior the Canada Temperance Act is to all its predecessors.

Mr. Cameron said he had come rather to hear others than to speak himself. He understood that more were expected from Ingersoll than came. He had ever been an active temperance man. The longer he lived, the more he saw of this evil, the more determined was he to act his part faithfully in putting down this demon. He had taken an active part in the Dunkin Act. It was not necessary to tell that the Act was carried. He regretted the mistakes which caused its annulment. Time wasted, money gone and a long time to elapse ere a new one could be introduced, he felt discouraged. But the time has now come. It matters not how good an Act may be if not enforced. This is a good one, let us put it in force and we shall see better days in our country. The speaker here cited some thrilling incidents from his own experience to which he illustrated its terrible effects, closing with an earnest appeal for all to enter, heart and hand into the work. It was not much perhaps that some could do, but all had a certain influence, and all that was required of any was to do what they could.

Tilsonburg.

Several young men were fined by the P. M. this week for disturbing the Salvation Army services on Sabbath last.

It is rumoured that an entertainment for the benefit of the poor widows of the town will be held in the Music Hall shortly. The movement is worthy of the highest success.

The next public entertainment of the Presbyterian Young People's Literary Society will be held on Thursday evening, 21st inst. The society has been fortunate in securing the services of the well-known Fax family of Brantford.

Dame Rumour has it that quite a number of marriages will take place in the near future. We don't want to mention any names, but will merely observe that no little excitement and commotion prevails in certain quarters in the community. It seems the girls are taking advantage of the many privileges conferred on them by this being leap year, and are prosecuting the campaign with a vengeance. May Providence help the young men. More anon.

Some time ago the "Protector" Hose Co. entertained their brother company—the "Alert"—to an oyster supper, and last Friday evening the "Alert" Company returned the compliment. About half-past seven o'clock the two companies, headed by the cornet band, paraded Broadway, marching time abreast, and answered altogether about fifty strong. The companies are composed of fine sturdy young men, who possess an abundance of courage and endurance, and who are always on the alert to guard the interests of their fellow-citizens from the scorching elements. Indeed, they are a most excellent sample of the quality and material Young Canada is composed of, and we doubt if any other town in America of the same area can produce a manlier lot. On parading, and dressed in their tasty uniforms, they shewed to great advantage and their marching was admirable. We were also pleased to notice a material improvement in the playing of the band. These are two bodies which the town should be proud of, and take a deep interest in, though, we must confess, during the past year the citizens generally have been guilty of a gross direlection of their duties towards them. We hope the present year to see a complete reformation in their conduct and a liberality exercised to the two deserving bodies. But to return. After parade they all adjourned to the "Alert's" rooms, where they, together with invited guests, sat down to a table which was tastefully decorated and laden to its utmost capacity with all the delicacies of the season. Next to heaven the heart of man delighteth in a good "spread," and judging from appearances and the way in which they all "tackled" it, the one before them was ample and of the very best quality. The feast was prepared by Mr. A. Morgan, who is achieving fame for his excellent methods in getting up affairs of this sort, and he is to be congratulated on this exceedingly excellent repast. The walls of the room were tastefully and tastefully decorated with innumerable evergreens, garlands and appropriate mottoes, which gave evidence of a determination on the part of the members of the "Alert" Company not to be outdone in extending a hearty and impartial welcome to each and everyone. Space forbids a lengthy detail of the whole proceedings, but suffice it to say that the evening was spent pleasantly, each one vieing with the other to promote cheerfulness and liberality. During the evening innumerable speeches, songs, etc., were delivered and roundly applauded. The band also favored the company with a few choice selections. The proceedings were brought to a close towards the "wee sma hours" by the whole assembly arising and singing with much fervor "God Save the Queen," when all departed for their homes, the guests wishing long life and much happiness to the members of the fire company, and to those of the "Alert" Hose Co. in particular.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.2F. The best value ever offered in Ingersoll.—S. P. Logee. 56

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.

White Wheat, per bush.	$1 00	to	1 05
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 05
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 05
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	33	to	34
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush	7 00	to	8 00
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50

PRODUCE.

Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples per lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	6	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	7 50	to	8 00
Live Hogs "	5 00	to	6 00
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins "	0 00	to	0 09
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts "	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	18	to	0 20

PROVISIONS.

Flour, new process, Spring 100 lbs	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs	2 75	to	3 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 00	to	2 75
Oatmeal "	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal "	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts "	00 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	16	to	18
Butter, rolls, per lb	22	to	23
Cheese, "	12	to	13½
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	25	to	00
Geese, "	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	60
Ducks, "	00	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12

MONTREAL CHEESE MARKET.

It looks as though a good wind-up of the season was already assured for this article, as shipments to the English market are steadily going into consumption at profitable figures. The public cable to-day advanced 1s per cwt. to 72s, private cables report finest coloured 72s and white 73s. Here the market is firm at 13½c@13¾c. for finest, and 11½c. @13c. for other qualities.

LIVERPOOL CHEESE MARKET.

Wm. Heapy & Sons writing from Liverpool by last mail say:—"Market continues firm for all qualities. The scarcity of summer-made cheese causes buyers to take the finer qualities, which are firmly held at 68s @70s. Good lots between 60s@66s are scarce. There is practically nothing offering in summer makes between 50s and 60s, but a few late made coloured at these prices.

FARM AND DAIRY NOTES.

Printing required by dairymen is made a specialty at the office of THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN.

A full report of the proceedings of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association will be found in our farm and dairy department on fourth page.

Messrs. William Harris and Henry Small of Dereham, near Mt. Elgin, advertise a big sale of dairy cows, heifers, steers and horses on the 27th of this month. Read advertisement.

Wm. Norris, cheesemaker, Hawtrey, had his annual meeting for the benefit of his patrons on Thursday, when a very satisfactory account was rendered. He agreed to make next year for 1¾ cents per pound.

The North Riding of Oxford, Blandford & East Oxford Union Agricultural Society will hold a fair for the exhibition and sale of seed grain on Wednesday, March 12th, on the Market Square, Woodstock.

Following is the report of the Avon Cheese Company for the past year:—Milk received, 1,690,796 lbs; cheese made, 165,103 lbs; milk to lb of cheese, 10.24 lbs; average price, 10.52½; total amount received at factory for cheese, $17,498.42.

T. C. Patteson, Eastwood, has sold six fine Shropshire ewes to Mr. Robert Wilson, of Ridgeway, and four to Mr. J. W. G. Whitney, of Toronto and Meaford, County Grey. These ewes are in lamb to an imported Shropshire Ram. Mr. P. advertises in THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN.

The West Nissouri Cheese Factory held its annual meeting at the factory. Number of lbs. of milk during the year, 1,845,319; the cheese made, 176,823 lbs.; the average milk to make a pound of cheese, 10 43 100; the average sales, 10.77 100 cents per pound. Total, 19,054 90. Directors for year:—Alonzo Vining, John Crosby, Wm. Mahon, John, Johnson, Wm. Lee, Chas. Fitzgerald, W. Evans, Samuel Purdy and Chas. Fitzgerald, jr.

Below is a report of the East and West Oxford Union Cheese and Butter Co. for the past season:—Total No. lbs. of milk received, 2,220,845; total No. lbs. of cheese manufactured, 221,341, or 110 tons and 1,341 lbs; No. lbs. of milk required to make a lb. of cheese, 10.07; average price per lb. obtained, 10.643c.; the cost of drawing the milk was at the rate of $75.38 per cwt. of cheese; the number of cows which furnished milk at 3,000 lbs. per standard cow was 743; the total cost of real estate, buildings and utensils was $6,002.46. The factory was erected last season. At the annual meeting the following were elected Directors for the ensuing year, viz.:—Jas. Curry, Reuben Thornton, Heman Dodge, James Lund, M. S. Schell, John Peers, George Cromwell, John Ede and John Rice.

At the annual meeting of the patrons and stockholders of the Thamesford Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Co., E. G. Showers was appointed chairman, and John Urquhart the secretary of the company, acted as secretary to the meeting. The report showed that there had been 1,499,844 lbs. of milk received during the past season, from which had been manufactured 149,008 lbs. of cheese, the average ratio being 10. 6 100; average price received for the season, about 11 cts. per lb., the cost of making was $1.90 per hundred. From a comparative statement made by the auditor it was shown that only one factory in this part of the country could make a better showing than this. Altogether the patrons have every reason to be well satisfied with the season's operations. Messrs. Kester and Lawrence were appointed to make a full report to a future meeting of the shareholders, to be held at an early date.

The following is a statement of the Bright Cheese Manufacturing Co. for the past year:—Total of milk received at factory, 2,159,152 lbs.; total of cheese made at factory, 211,195 lbs.; average lbs. of milk to lb. of cheese, 10 313-1000; average price per lb., 10 920-1000 cts. The annual meeting resulted in the re-election of the former directors, viz.:—Messrs. John Risberry, President; John Dickie, Thomas Robson, Thomas Baird and Michael Lang. The Treasurer for the current year is Edward Wilson, and the Secretary, M. Gibson. The milk drawing was let for the various rates, in some cases by the 100 lbs., and in others let so much per trip. The factory shareholders have adopted the agitator process, which proves very satisfactory. Nearly 106 tons of cheese were made during the season, exclusive of the April make. For the current year the make will be much greater, as many more cows are being purchased. For the past year many have reason to be thankful for the good price obtained for cheese, and admit that had it not been for the money realized for their cheese, it would have been a serious matter, when the crops in many instances were deficient.

The annual meeting of the shareholders and patrons of the Galt Cheese Mfg Company was held in their factory near Galt on Saturday, the 28th ult. In presenting the report for the season the secretary said that he could congratulate the Company upon a great increase in the business as compared with the previous year; that whereas last year we only received 525,000 pounds of milk, this year 896,000 pounds was obtained and the average price being somewhat higher, and the quantity of milk required to make a pound of cheese a little lower. A larger price per gallon was also received by the patrons for the milk.

Milk received during season	896,274 lbs.
Cheese made, lbs.	83,460 "
Milk to lb. of cheese	10.73 "
Average price (about)	11 c

The following were elected.—Angus McBean, President; Thos. K. McBean, Vice Pres.; R. Rutherford, Andrew Taylor, R. G. Oliver, Wm. Wallace, Andrew Turnbull, Directors. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. W. G. Nicholson, the cheese maker, was re-engaged for next season, con

DAIRYMEN IN CONVENTION.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WESTERN ONTARIO ASSOCIATION.

Reports of the Addresses Delivered.

The annual meeting of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association was held at London on the 13th, 14th and 15th of Feb. Below will be found the addresses delivered :—

The Secretion of Milk.

Prof. L. B. Arnold, of Rochester, N. Y., read a thoughtful scientific essay, explaining, with many practical lessons, the wonderful process by which food is converted into milk. In this matter he regarded the cow as more of a machine than a chemical laboratory, as she was sometimes referred to. The first step in the process is digestion, which is not a form of decomposition, as it is sometimes spoken of, but rather a process by which the food is dissolved by the action of gastric juice. It is important to select easily digestible food for cows, hence the value of vegetables cut in their early stages. A cow milks better on grass than dry hay, the latter being slow of digestion. He discussed the three principal forms of food, the mineral, the carbohydrates, and the flesh and tissue formers—albuminoids or those of nitrogenous or protiene constituents. With fodder corn (or the ordinary ensilage), it was necessary to feed clover (rich in fat producing qualities), bran, etc. Dairymen require knowledge of the chemistry of foods, because, lacking it, tons and tons of food are wasted, particularly in winter. In milking, most important points are regularity, skilfulness and cleanliness. A machine for milking is of little use that cannot manipulate the udder like the human hand. A large amount of milk is secreted while milking by the hand process. Milk is secreted most readily when the udder is not full. "I have given up all hope of milking machines as at present constructed," said the Professor. In dry summer weather cows are often half-starved for want of nourishment. As a rule, milk is formed from food in excess of that required by the animal to sustain life. The food supply must be full and constant, and to make profit, the food must be produced by the dairyman himself and be raised cheaply. Grass, fodder corn, peas and oats, young clover, either dry or green, make good food for summer, and cheap enough to produce milk at a cost of 50 cents per 100 lbs. When cows "come in" in the spring, by having a good supply of early cut hay and roots, a well-preserved ensilage, with a little bran or meal till grass comes, and then plenty of grass in its season, and when this begins to fail, beginning on a good supply of soiling crops, and feeding all the cows can utilize till the close of grazing, and then, as in the spring, feeding early cut fodder, with food or ensilage or both, a continuous large flow will be kept up through the whole milking season, and the largest quantity possible for a herd to give will be obtained.

Stoppage of Milk Flow.

In reply to the President, Prof Arnold said the cause of the frequent stoppage of milk was a species of inflammation just at the place where the teat adjoins the udder. The inflammation caused the nerves to pucker up, closing the orifice. One way to remedy this was by flattening out one end of a knitting kneedle for half an inch; sharpening each side, and then carefully running it up through the formation and then back, making a double cut. Another remedy was by inserting a small silver or ivory tube with a little bulb at the lower end.

Summer Food.

Prof. Arnold said the best results were obtained in dry summer weather by feeding corn fodder with clover, but peas and oats, sown one bushel of the latter to four of the former, were good. On another point he said it paid to milk three times a day, because that encouraged secretion. All the big yields of milk are obtained in that way.

Steam Food.

In reply to Prof. Barnard, Prof. Arnold said food was rendered more digestable in winter by boiling or steaming, but the aroma and certain nitrogenous properties were lost. He would not undertake to say whether the loss equalled the gain or not. Prof. Barnard said if the process of boiling or steaming of grain, straw, hay, etc., were confined in a covered vessel the loss would not take place. In wet seasons he said grass contained a large percentage of water, and the dairyman would do well to feed crushed grain or other additional food.

Question of Yield.

In reply to Mr. J. B. Lane, Prof. Arnold said steamed food was probably not so healthy. The milk of the Jersey cow would produce 25 per cent. more cheese than that of the Holstein. It is often desirable to milk cows before the calves have been dopped, but this often delays the process of nature. It only required four-fifths as much milk from the Jersey cow to make a pound of cheese as from the cow. A sharp discussion took place over Prof. Barnard's statement that in Quebec an average of 9½ pounds of milk produced 1 pound of cheese that sells as "A 1" in the Montreal market, but it was explained that the cows were of the Normandy breed, and much depended on the character of feeding. The President, however, doubted that the Quebec cheese sold as represented.

Advice to the Patrons.

Mr. J. M. Butcher of Burgessville, Norwich township, read an "Address from the Cheesemaker to the Patrons." The great secret is that faultless milk must be used to produce faultless cheese. He indicated the necessity of clean, well-aired stables, and, in short, absolute cleanliness from the time of milking till the fluid reaches the factory. He showed that filth in solution could not be strained out. At night, after milking, the milk should be cooled down to 68°, and in the morning as low as possible. Cans should be kept clean and sweet and no whey carried home in them. In the discussion following, the use of tainted milk was strongly censured. Mr. Lane thought there should be an understanding between factories that no tainted milk would be received. Now it too often happened that when a patron's milk was sent home some other factory would take him in with open arms. He wished to see Saturday night business abolished. He could easily keep the milk till Monday morning by using a large, deep wooden tub six or eight inches larger than the can, with bricks on the bottom upon which to stand the milk can. Then fill around with water and broken ice. In particularly hot weather he used a small tin cooler filled with ice and water, and put down in the milk. It was most important to stir the milk thoroughly at intervals, breaking the gathering cream, this allowing the animal heat to escape. In order for patrons to furnish good milk Mr. Montgomery suggested that the cheesemakers should visit the former and instruct them practically. He thought buyers were sometimes to blame for paying too much for cheese from factories where tainted milk was used.

The President said he believed patrons were anxious to learn proper methods of caring for milk, and he agreed with a previous speaker that nothing but pure milk or clean water should ever enter a can. He did not know a factory where sour whey was carried home in the cans that some bad cheese was not produced. It was a most abominable and disastrous practice. As a remedy it was suggested that the whey be sold in its sweet state and carted away separately.

Mr. Montgomery said the whey tanks should be more frequently cleaned and sweetened.

The President said that in a district where carrying home whey was discontinued some of the finest cheese in America was produced.

Another speaker thought, the "bucky" flavor so objectionable was caused by the use of whey grease, but the President said if properly prepared this could not be the case.

"Mites of Cheese and Lumps of Butter."

Benjamin D. Gilbert, of Utica, N. Y., delivered an able address containing a complimentary reference to the rapid growth of dairying in Canada, particularly in Ontario, which by the last return had 628 factories, an increase of 150 over those of 1882. He considered Canadian cheese fully equal to the American product, and said had it not been so it could never have been so successful in the market of England. The dairy prospects of Canada were very bright. He placed great reliance in full cream cheese. The importance of the American cheese industry could be seen in the fact that $2,000,000 is invested. The growth of the industry in Canada was largely due to the fostering care, financially and otherwise, on the part of the Provincial Government. The Dairymen's Association of Ontario had been greatly aided in this way. Mr. Gilbert then gave an elaborate description of the Interior Board of Trade, Utica, with its enormous cheese deals. He pointed out the advantage of "leading" market prices as against "ruling" figures, the former being regulated by the sales of the largest number of factories at a single price. He condemned speculation and "corners" in cheese, and advocated the ruling of the regular laws of supply and demand. On another point, he said in New York State is required over ten pounds of milk to make a pound of cheese except in two factories, but in many cases in order to produce first-class cheese ten and a half pounds of milk were used. Then he gave an amusing account of how the innocent people of Utica are induced to purchase oleomargarine under the supposition that it is butter. He did not think butterine or oleomargarine had depreciated the price of butter, for since they have been on the market butter has ruled extremely high, so that the exports of 1881 fell off more than 10,000,000 lbs. from the year before, and in 1882 again fell off over 12,000,000 leaving only a beggarly 5,000,000 to the United Kingdom. That this was on account of the high prices for butter during those years seems to be established by the large increase in exports in 1883, when prices ranged lower during summer and fall. The exports from New York last year were 11 115,-117 lbs., and from Boston, 2,778,722 lbs. The truth seems to be that our dairymen are not able to make all the good butter for which there is a demand. Moreover, this butterine takes the place of a class of butter which never should be made. But it sells readily, because purchasers prefer it to the lower grades of butter. The competition of these imitations causes butter makers to improve their products. The State had failed to force the sale of these imitations under their proper names and he suggested its regulation by the General Government.

Rev. W. F. Clarke opened the discussion on Mr. Gilbert's paper, by making a reference to the prospective demand of the Northwest for dairy products. Mr. Craig, of Woodstock, advised Ontario farmers to devote attention more extensively to cheese, leaving the fields of the Northwest to produce gain for some years, at least, to come. Mr. Gilbert said in early spring, cheese sold in Utica at 30 days age; on in the summer from eighteen to twenty days, but if prices were good with prospects of a decline, it was sometimes sold at from twelve to thirteen days. In reply to Rev. Mr. Clarke, he said oleomargarine was made from suet oil, coloured and flavored, and butterine from a superior quality of lard, mixed with 25 per cent. of the very best Elgin butter, with an addition of cotton seed oil. To Prof. Barnard he said artificial cheese had died a natural death in the States. There was such a thing as genuine butterine.

Demands and Defects.

An essay prepared by Robert McAdam, of Rome, N. Y., was read by Mr. McAdam, jun., who, like his father, is well versed in dairying. The subject was the "Demands of the Cheese Trade and the defects in the Supplies." It was contended with force that the alleged danger from over-production was a bugbear, and that the demand for good dairy products must certainly increase. The exports of butter and cheese from America form only a moderate item in the consumption of these articles in Great Britain, where upwards of 880,000,000 was last year paid for cheese and butter. He pointed out the danger of inexperienced makers being permitted to manage factories for the sake of saving a few dollars but were almost certain to insure losses before the season passed. The standard qualities of cheese are solidity, close texture, fine flavored, milk, rich, sound, handsome and clean looking. The quality of fall and spring cheese requires improvement. The cause of lack of solidity in fall cheese arises from insufficient breaking of the curd and lack of sufficient cooking, besides not allowing the curd to become sufficiently changed towards acidity before it is salted. Texture—Lack of solidity in texture may be eradicated entirely. When the curd is heated to the desired temperature maintain the heat and wait patiently till the change comes that produces a solid well-made cheese. October milk, well-handled, will make as fine cheese as any of the season, and the curd should be put to press as warm as possible. The presses should be placed in a room where the temperature is never below 60 degrees, and when taken to the dry room the temperature there should never fall below 70 degrees, in which the cheese will cure, retain color and ripen fit for cutting. Flavor—This depends upon contingencies which originate with the cows' food and drink, absorption, care of milk, surroundings, etc. The aim of patrons and makers should be to preserve in its natural purity the natural flavor of the milk. Fineness in flavor is one of the most pressing demands of the cheese trade. Color—Consumers demand the colored article. London, Liverpool and Glasgow markets call for different shades, and makers should govern themselves accordingly. Seek uniformity; secure the best coloring; use accurate proportions, according to the quality of milk; mix immediately and completely with the milk. Never mix curds of different shades of color or expose to destroying influences. Many cheese, from insufficient cooking and whey remaining in the curd, become mottled, streaked, tallowy-looking, sometimes nearly white. Insufficient heat in the curing-room aggravates these defects. Richness—Cheese lacking this quality are often erroneously suspected of being "skimmed." It arises in some cases from too much stirring and cooking; in others, from oversalting and from the fact that the curds are frequently salted before the necessary change has been sufficiently developed, when the curd assumes that soft mellow feel which accurately indicates the proper time for salting. The amount of salt is easily ascertained. The proper time at which to salt requires vigilance and keen perception. Taste—Mildness is a most desirable quality, to which purity of milk, care in manipulation, creation of curd in hot weather contribute. Badly kept milk is the fruitful source of tainted, off flavored, bitterish, sourish, mussy-faced cheese. This, combined with careless scalding, liberates part of the butter, making the cheese rancid. Too much or impure rennet has a bad effect on flavor. Shape—The demand is greatest for cheddar-shaped cheese, ten inches deep and fifteen wide. There is considerable demand for smaller sizes and for the flat shapes five deep and twelve to fifteen inches wide. Increased attention to these varieties has wonderfully increased consumption at home as well as abroad. Small cheese are the sort for the patrons to purchase for home use. Attention to appearance in cheese is another means of enhancing the value of the price. More varieties demanded—Considering the vast amount of cheese made in America it is remarkable that so few varities are produced, almost the entire production being of the cheddar variety. But the tastes of consumers vary, and such associations as this (W. O. D. A.) should lead the way in setting in operation the production of such varities as the "English Leicesters," "Glosters," "Wilts," "Stiltons," "Cheshires," or the continental "Edams," "Gruyere," "Camembert," "Rochefors," and "Gouda." Last year New York alone imported 3,800,000 lbs. of Gruyere cheese at about 21 cts. per lb.; 150,000 lbs. Rochefort at 30 cts. to 33c.; 15,000 cases of Edams at 22c., and Camembert sells at 55c. per lb. All the ordinary kinds can undoubtedly be made here, and probably the high-priced fancy ones, and the demand would increase. Circumstances in Canada favor the experiment.

Results of Experiments.

Prof. Brown, of the Ontario Experimental Farm, delivered an exhaustive address on the subject "Influence of food on dairy products." He had distributed among the audience cards showing a tabular statement of the results of 1,265 experimental tests made during November, December, and January past. It should, therefore, be remembered that these experiments were made with winter conditions, thus securing greater accuracy because when cows are on pasture it is impossible to control their food. There were two cows in each of the three groups. The entire series of experiments would not be complete till about the middle of April, but the results to date were interesting. Four forms of food were used: 1. "Ordinary"—Consisting of 15 lbs. hay, 24 lbs. turnips and 9 lbs. bran per day; 2. "Bran"—Consisting of 12 lbs. hay, and 15 lbs. bran per head per day; 3. "Roots"—Consisting of 15 lbs. hay, 36 lbs. Swede surnips and 6 lbs. bran per head per day; 4. "Ensilage"—Consisting of 18½ lbs. oat fodder ensilage, 15½ lbs. hay and 9 lbs. bran. The value of skim milk in the calculation was deducted at half the cost of new milk from the cost of producing the cream. The tests were made according to Wolff's standard, for cows weighing 1,000 lbs. Following is the table, well worth careful study :

FOOD COST OF PRODUCING.		1 lb. cheese.	7 cents	5 cents	4 cents	6 cents	5½ cents
		1 lb. butter.	13 cents	7 cents	9 cents	11 cents	10 cents
		1 lb. cream.	3 cents	2 cents	2½ cents	3 cents	2½ cents
		1 lb. milk.	9 mills	5 mills	5 mills	9 mills	7½ mills
Cheese curd from 100 lbs. milk.		lbs.	12 2-5	20 4-5	14 2-5	15	13
Butter from 100 lbs. milk.		lbs.	3½	3½	3½	4	3½
Butter from 100 lbs. cream		lbs.	22 2-5	28	25½		27½
Cream by weight from 100 lbs. milk.		lbs.	12 1-2	14 1-10	13 1-5	15½	13½
Per cent. of cream by bulk.			11.6	13.4	11.9	15.	13
Specific gravity of milk			102	102	103.6	103	103
Milk per head per day		lbs.	16½	14½	17	15	16
Regulating Food.			Ordinary	Bran	Roots	Ensilage	Mean
Group Cow.			1 and 2	2 and 3	1 and 3	2 and 3

Prof. Brown, after explaining the table and showing the care and thoroughness exercised, said food influenced the quantity of milk, but breed or individual characteristics the quality. The animals used in these tests were ordinary Canadian cows, and the groups were changed from one form of rations to another, as the first column of the table shows. Speaking of oat fodder ensilage, he said that used in the experiment was cured in a stone cellar, transformed into a silo. They put down 30 tons in three days and did not touch the cover till 87 days had passed. If the dairying industry was to be prosecuted all the year round, the preservation of green fodder into winter became a question of importance. But in the above experiments it was seen that the ensilage diet produced the lowest quality of butter while the cost was second highest. Experts advocating ensilage had failed to give the public such information as would show their experiments to be thoroughly satisfactory. No one had ever yet been able to produce untainted fodder by this method, and at the Experimental Farm the milk from ensilage, while yet warm, emitted a peculiar smell, and the butter was pale in color and not the most inviting in taste. The completion of the above series of experiments will be awaited with interest,

Ensilage Discussion

A discussion on ensilage grew out of Prof. Brown's paper. In reply to Prof. Barnard, Prof. Brown said the cows used in the experiment calved in September. The hay used was one-third clover and two-thirds timothy. Mr. Brown, of Hyde Park, said in preserving ensilage it was most important not to allow the second or acetic, which succeeds the alcoholic fermentation, to take place in the silo. Prof. Barnard pointed out the necessity of cutting the fodder very fine, say one-quarter inch long, and thorough pressing down. Means should also be adopted to allow the air to escape during pressing, and to prevent its entrance subsequently. Prof. Brown said the pressure they applied on the mass in their silo was 1,000 pounds to the square yard. Mr. Wm. Saunders said his idea of ensilage would be to preserve the public with entirely if possible, and if it began, to restrain it the mass should be pressed firm. The alcoholic fermentation took place first and afterwards the acetic. Mr. Brown, of Hyde Park, said silos were being built in different parts of the country, but the people did not understand the chemical processes. Mr. Saunders did not consider fine cutting essential. Mr. McAdam, of Rome, N. Y., wished to know if a really good article of butter had ever been produced from ensilage feeding, but no one ventured an affirmative reply.

Skim Milk Valuable.

On another point, Prof. Brown said for calf-raising, skim milk was estimated at half the value of unskimmed milk. Mr. Curtis, of Syracuse, N. Y., said Prof. Sanborn, of the Wisconsin Agricultural College, found that skim milk was worth 25 cents per 100 pounds when pork sold at $4 per hundred. Several speakers bore out Prof. Brown's estimate on the value of skim milk viz., 50 per cent. of unskimmed. Prof. Barnard said this was a most important element to consider in fostering the creamery industry.

Dairying in the States formed the subject of an interesting paper by Mr. J. D. Curtis, of Syracuse, N. Y. He said he had found it difficult to introduce many new features on the subject. Less than twenty years ago there was no dairying literature in the country, but now the country is overspread with the most instructive literature on that department of farming. There has been a great increase of dairy stock during the past fifteen years. One of the chief defects of former times was the inferiority of dairy stock, and the want of proper care and judgment in selecting the best cows. A farmer who possessed the best stock of pure blooded cows was always sure of obtaining good cheese and butter from the milk. A great mistake which was made was in the false economy of purchasing and keeping scrub stock. One of the most essential things for the production of good cheese and butter is the selection of food, habitation and surroundings of the milch cow. It is necessary in summer to provide the animal with good, nourishing food, fresh air and well ventilated stables. In winter she must be housed in a good, comfortable stable with plenty of fresh air, nutritious food and healthy surroundings. It is a great mistake to turn a cow out into the open air solely for the purpose of saving a little trouble. It will prove a losing plan in the long run, both in the condition of the milk and cows. The most essential food for cows is carbon and nitrogen, but these articles are not appropriated in their pure state by the animals. The oxygen is consumed in the form of air, while the carbon is consumed in vegetable food. The milch cow also requires a sufficient amount of nitrogenous food for the production of milk, which contains a large amount of nitrogenous food. He paid a high compliment to the Canadian farmers by saying that for the past few years they had led the Americans in the price and quality of their dairy products, and he hoped they would maintain their good credit. He mentioned the fact that it was owing first to the Canadian farmers that the inferiority and uselessness of sweet curd had been found out.

In reply to Prof. Brown he stated that the quality of ensilage varied very much; that it always depended on the quality of the year's crop, and that he did not know of any sample of ensilage which had been made up of pure ingredients. He read an average of analyses on the varied qualities of ensilage, which showed a marked difference in the qualities of the ingredients. He stated that to produce butter which would remain sweet for any length of time, it was best to mix as little water as possible with the milk, especially in warm weather; the purer the milk the purer the butter.

In reference to the production of butter from sour cream, Mr. Buell said he had made very good butter from cream which had been allowed to sour a little and develope its acid before being churned. He had made an experiment by mixing a quantity of sweet cream with that which had been allowed to sour a little, and was pleased to find a very sweet butter formed from such a course. He went on to address a few words of instruction to the young men who were present as delegates to the convention. He thought that more intellectual growth was needed among the young farmers, and advised them to cultivate a feeling of sociability amongst themselves, by forming debating societies, farmers' clubs and other intellectual associations.

Rev. W. F. Clarke said he had spent a year in the Northwest, where he has ascertained many important facts in reference to the agricultural advantages of that country. There was a very erroneous impression amongst the people of this Province since the land boom had died out in reference to the advantages of the Northwest. He thought that Manitoba was the largest wheat growing country in the world, and on this crop the success of the Northwest as an agricultural country would depend for many years. The yield in the crop of wheat varies from 20 bushels to 50 bushels per acre.

The reason for the superiority of the Northwest as a wheat growing country lay in the fact that the hard snow lay so deep throughout the entire winter months that the wheat was protected from freezing, and the hard flinty substance was heat to it, which made it of such high value. Another reason was the superiority of the soil.

Mr. Lynch thought that the reasons given by Mr. Clarke for the lack of competition of the Northwest in dairy product was a cause for competition rather, and advised all the farmers of Ontario to do all in their power to counterbalance this competition by improving their dairy products as much as possible.

Cheese Instructor's Report.

Mr. J. B. Harris, in an interesting report, gave the result of his observation while acting as instructor under the auspices of the association. He said it would have an excellect effect on the quality of the milk furnished if the instructor or some competent person, clothed with the authority of the association, were empowered to exercise the functions of inspector of milk, with power to order its being sent back to the patrons if impure. He hoped ere long to see all whey rennets abolished and also the carrying home of whey in cans. In brief he expressed the gospel of cheesemaking in two words, "keep clean." He had found valuable results arising from the publication of some of his observations on factories in the local papers from time to time during his travels through the country. He thanked the officers of the association and referred to the very satisfactory nature of his intercourse with makers and cheesemen generally in this Province, where cheesemaking was now in such a high stage of advancement.

The Use of Salt, etc:

A DISCUSSION

took place on the paper read previously by Mr. McAdam. Mr. Ballantyne described the means by which a better class of cheese could be made in spring and fall. Mr. McAdam said another very particular season was just when the cows were going first to grass. He pointed out the value of uniformity in fine quality—not fine one week and poor the next. He laid peculiar stress upon the value of an amateur learning to make cheese with a maker who always produced a fine article. In reply to Mr. Leitch, he said the proper proportion of salt was about 1 oz. to 3 lbs. of curd. In England 1 lb. of salt was used with 56 lbs. of curd. The proper method was to weigh the curd and salt. The finest cheese in Scotland were produced this way. There was no guess work about it. Mr. Ballantyne said the quantity of salt depended almost entirly upon the quality of the curd at the moment when it was applied. It was very difficult. For early cheese use little salt and plenty of rennet, and more salt when the cheese was intended for long keeping. He said a great deal of harm was done by cheesemakers following the unreliable and untimely suggestions of buyers, who, without the adequate knowledge, would attribute to the salt question all the evils that cheese was heir to. He and Mr. McAdam agreed in advising makers (competent ones) to rely upon their own experience on many of these difficult parts in manufacture. Mr. Caswell related a circumstance by which cheese manufactured properly in June, and carefully kept and handled, was sold in first-class condition at a good figure only two weeks ago.

Mistakes in Dairy Farming.

Rev. F. W. Clarke delivered an instructive address upon "Mistakes in Dairy Farming." He advised curbing desires for novelties, and all well-known methods reduced to practice. The first mistake he pointed out was that of those who go into dairying with the idea that it was an easy way of getting a living. A dairy farm was one of the busiest places he knew of on earth. The second mistake was "Going on the cheap." Dairymen should have none but the best cows, the best fodder, the best stables, the best milk pails, the best milkers, the best cans, the best factories and the best prices. The first cost of a good cow is more than that of an inferior one, but the after cost is no more. Suppose a first class dairy cow cost $100 (far above the actual figure) the interest on that is $6 a year. She will easily give $20 a year profit over and above what can be got from a $25 scrub. Here are upwards of $15 to the good. Forty such cows is $600 a year better to their owner than 40 scrubs. A general determination to keep good dairy cows would infuse new life into cattle breeding. Lord Kinnaird ascertained by actual experiment that covered dung brought a crop of potatoes from four to five tons per acre larger the same quanity of uncovered dung. A shed with two ends and a roof on the side of the barn where the stable doors are placed will answer. A manure shed is a source of wealth and comfort. Carting manure to the fields in winter means loss; and every time manure is handled valuable properties pass into the air in the form of ammonia, etc. Raked fallowing is one of the greatest mistakes ever made by a dairy farmer or any other kind of a farmer. Fallowing is lost labor, even for the destruction of weeds. It is far better to seed a dirty piece of ground to clover. Two years clovering has thoroughly purged land that persistent summer fallowing would not clean. It is also a mistake to think that dairying can be successful without brains, without reading, the study of books, agricultural and dairy journals, and the inquiring of intelligent methods. It is a mistake to fight shy of associations like this or staying at home instead of attending such a cheap and excellent school of dairy husbandry.

Canadian Dairying.

Prof. Barnard, of Quebec, read a suggestive paper, bristling with statistics, on the "Past, Present and Future of Commercial Dairying in Canada." He showed that while the cheese industry had improved, and the exports had increased, butter had remained at a standstill. In 1858 Canada exported 13,104 lbs. of cheese valued at $1,497; this increased to 16,-425,325 lbs., value $1, 840,284, in 1872, and 58,041,387 lbs., value $6,451,870, in 1883. But the butter trade has afforded no such reason for congratulation. While in 1858 the Provinces of Canada exported 3,721,200 lbs. of butter, at $480,712, in 1872, 19,068,448 lbs., at $3,612,699 it fell to 15,338,488 lbs. at $2,975,175 in 1882 and to 8, 106,447 lbs. at $1,705,817 in 1883. He instanced as one reason for this state of things the improvement of Canadian cheese-making, and the great profits arising therefrom. Although Canadian butter-making had remained at a standstill, other countries had advanced. Denmark, for instance, shows an increase in exports to the same markets as those of Canada of over 100 per cent. The same was true of other foreign countries. The true reason, however, is in the very poor quality of the butter manufactured in Canada. In the Montreal markets, while the speakers had found from 22 to 30 per cent. of good butter, 50 to 60 per cent. was poor, Montreal butter exporters are unable to get a suitable article for the English market. An improvement was being effected in Quebec by the spread of the creamery system, by circulating information on the subject, by the establishment of dairy schools and by Government aid. He pointed out the many advantages to be derived from butter dairying, and urged a more thorough and systematic development of the system in all its branches.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

Mark Twain is nearly fifty years old.

Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for the cure of Eruption, Chafes, Chapped Hands, Pimples, Tan, &c. 87s

Dom Pedro patronizes poetry.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87s

A workman is known by his chips and a barber by his shavings.

The cheapest medicine in use is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because very little of it is required to effect a cure. For croup, diphtheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, whether used for bathing the chest or throat, for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound.

LADIES' Kid Boots at Logee's. 60

Wife—What's the matter now, John? Husband—Oh, that neuralgia and toothache nearly kills me.

Wife—Why don't you go to Gayfer and Kneeshaw's drug store and get a bottle of Fluid Lightning? You know it cures all such things as Toothache, Neuralgia, Headache, Lumbago, Earache, Sore Throat, etc. It gives instant relief.

Drunkenness is a reel misfortune.

THESE ARE SOLID FACTS.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetizer, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by John Gayfer. 86t

Easy to take—a drink at some other man's expense.

Orion Catlin, 49 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I tried various remedies for the piles, but found no relief until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which entirely cured me after a few applications." Since Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has become celebrated, unprincipled persons are imitating it. Get the genuine.

A coughing man is a hackman.

Freeman's Worm Powders require no other purgative. They are safe and sure to remove all varieties of worms. 87t

Holloways Pills.—Liver, Lungs, and Kidneys.—Most diseases of these depurative organs arise from obstructions, over the removal of which these celebrated Pills exercise the most perfect control. A course of them is strongly recommended as a remedy for such chronic affections as liver enlargements, congestion of the lungs, torpidity of the kidneys, and other functional disorders which cause much present suffering, and if neglected lay the foundation of organic diseases. Holloway's Pills are especially adapted for the young and delicate; their gentle and purifying action ranks them above all other medicines. In indigestion, nervous affections, gout, and rheumatism these Pills have achieved for themselves universal fame. They expel all impurities from the blood, and thus restore cheerfulness and vigour.

The best prescription for a poet is a composing draft.

The skill in combining a complicated medicinal preparation with the various ingredients so adjusted and harmonized as to secure toleration and assimilation by irritable stomachs, and the special action or form of energy of each separate agent, and at the same time an effect peculiar to the chemical manipulation of the compound, is acquired only by long and patient study of the properties and uses of medicine, and cannot be imparted from brain to brain any more than a juggler can endow an onlooker with the capacity of keeping a number of balls in motion in the air by showing him how it is done. This explains why Wheeler's Phosphates and Calisaya, an outcome of experience, accomplishes the object contemplated, while the fraudulent imitations substituted by some druggists disappoint the invalid.

Debt always grows bigger the more you contract it.

Don't despair of relief, if troubled with Chronic Dyspepsia or Constipation. These ailments as well as Biliousness, Kidney infirmities, and feminine troubles, are eradicated by Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, an alterative of long tried and clearly proven efficacy. It is a fine blood depurent as well as corrective, and contains no ingredients which are not of the highest standard of purity.

The motto for scissors editors—the Jack of clubs.

Prominent among the greatest medical discoveries, by the many cures it has affected, McGregor's Speedy Cure leads the van. Subjected to the minutest chemical analysis, it has been found to contain none of those injurious ingredients characterizing the worthless specifics daily offered to the public. Every ingredient possesses a peculiar adaptability to the various complaints for which it has been compounded, and its efficacy is being established by testimonials hourly received. We are therefore confident that we have a preparation which we can offer to the public with the assurance that it will be found not only a relief but an absolute cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation and Impure Blood. Free trial bottles at Gayfer and Kneeshaw's Drug Store.

The milk of human kindness is never diluted.

A lady from Syracuse writes: "For about seven years before taking Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I suffered from a complaint very prevalent with our sex. I was unable to walk any distance or stand on my feet for more than a few minutes at a time without feeling exhausted, but now I am thankful to say I can walk two miles without feeling the least inconvenience." For Female Complaints it has no equal.

The true art of living is to live naturally.

As an article for the toilet, Ayer's Hair Vigor stands unrivalled. It cleanses the scalp and preserves it from scurf and dandruff, cures itching and humors, restores faded or gray hair to its natural color, and promotes its growth.

The tramp's favorite food—"boned" turkey.

HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mankrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 87t

Always behind time—the back of the clock.

The disfiguring eruptions on the face, the sunken eye, the pallid complexion, indicate that there is something wrong going on within. Expel the lurking foe to health. Ayer's Sarsaparilla was devised for that purpose; and does it.

The tailor's motto. Measures—not men.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87t

The man who wrote "Ten Acers Enough" was probably on his way to the dentist.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dispepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

Bakers are great loafers, but they are generally high bred men.

PROOF POSITIVE.

If you suffer from pain in the region of the shoulders, headache, irregular bowels, faintness, sick stomach, variable appetite, bad taste in the mouth and sallow complexion, your liver and biliary organs are seriously affected, and Burdock Blood Bitters is the prompt and certain remedy. 89i

Tooters of brass horns are not necessarily musical tutors.

ITCHING PILES.—SYPHTOMS AND CURE,

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents a boxes, $1.25, (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

Charity warmed over is very cold comfort.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea' has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

Early at the ball—a squalling baby.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

A STRANGE PEOPLE.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

HOPE IN HOPEFUL.

Mrs. McArthur, of Hopeville, declares she could not keep house without Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. It is a remedy in which the sufferer may safely hope for speedy relief and effectual cure of Coughs, Hoarseness, Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles which neglected end in hopeless consumption. 89i

A matter of course—the races.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of Shiloh's Cure Sold. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of Consumption have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. Secord. 75y

The "correct card" for rowdies—the Jack of clubs.

A CERTAIN RESULT.

If your blood is impure it will burst forth in blotches, pimples and sores, festering and unsightly. Burdock Blood Bitters will thoroughly cleanse the blood and eradicate all foul humors from the system. 89i

Mr. Lyon, M. P. P., of Algoma, to reach Toronto, which is two hundred and thirty miles from his home on Manitoulin Island, had to travel six hundred and forty miles, across the ice to Spanish River, and down by the Canada Pacific. Eighty miles of the first part of the railway journey were made over ties laid on the snow. In several previous years Mr. Lyon had to make the journey part of the way on snow-shoes.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

There is always great excitement in case of sudden accident and injury. Every one should be prepared for an emergency. Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the reliable friend in need; it is for internal and external use, curing Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Lameness, Croup, Sore Throat, Rheumatism and painful affections and wounds.

WARNING.

If troubled with constipated bowels, never neglect it, or the system becomes clogged, the secretions dried up and the system poisoned with foul gas. Burdock Blood Bitters cure constipation by unlocking the secretions and regulating the glandular system. 89i

**

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at houses or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Horses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 26. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1590.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates, Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS.

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

F. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000 private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughry, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R.C.S. AND L.M., ENGLAND. L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. Teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Oxide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,

PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock.

January 31st, 1884. 1580y

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Baker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store, Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1584c-m

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 29th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with arhers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which canbe withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK

OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696

RESERVE - - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Money by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE, Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

☞ Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

☞ Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR., GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559v-y

THE CREDIT VALLEY!

AND

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and Northwestern America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:40 a. m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and Northwestern points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line, and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Pauls, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:40 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12.26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS.

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:23 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on the Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your tickets from

F. SYMONS, Station agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines, Thames St., Ingersoll.

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27, 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,

Warner's Safe Cure,

Shiloh's Consumption Cure,

Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers, Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE, Thames Street.

☞ Bread delivered in town daily.

CAIN

Health and Happiness.

How? DO AS OTHERS HAVE DONE.

Are your Kidneys disordered?

"Kidney-Wort brought me from my grave, as it were, after I had been given up by 13 best doctors in Detroit." M. W. Deveraux, Mechanic, Ionia, Mich.

Are your nerves weak?

"Kidney-Wort cured me from nervous weakness &c., after I was not expected to live."—Mrs. H. M. B. Sodwick, Ed. Christian Monitor Cleveland, O.

Have you Bright's Disease?

"Kidney-Wort cured me when my water was just like chalk and then like blood."

Frank Wilson, Peabody, Mass.

Suffering from Diabetes?

"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I have ever used. Gives almost immediate relief."

Dr. Phillip C. Ballou, Monkton, Vt.

Have you Liver Complaint?

"Kidney-Wort cured me of chronic Liver Disease after I prayed to die."

Henry Ward, late Col. 6th Nat. Guard, N. Y.

Is your Back lame and aching?

"Kidney-Wort, (1 bottle) cured me when I was so lame I had to roll out of bed."

C. M. Tallmage, Milwaukee, Wis.

Have you Kidney Disease?

"Kidney-Wort made me sound in liver and kidneys after years of unsuccessful doctoring. Its worth $10 a box."—Sam'l Hodges, Williamstown, West Va.

Are you Constipated?

"Kidney-Wort causes easy evacuations and cured me after 15 years use of other medicines."

Folson Fairchild, St. Albans, Vt.

Have you Malaria?

"Kidney-Wort has done better than any other remedy I have ever used in my practice."

Dr. R. K. Clark, South Hero, Vt.

Are you Bilious?

"Kidney-Wort has done me more good than any other remedy I have ever taken."

Mrs. J. Galloway, Elk Flat, Oregon.

Are you tormented with Piles?

"Kidney-Wort permanently cured me of bleeding piles. Dr. W. G. Kline recommended it to me."

Geo. H. Horst, Cashier M. Bank, Myerstown, Pa.

Are you Rheumatism racked?

"Kidney-Wort cured me, after I was given up to die by physicians and I had suffered thirty years."

Elbridge Malcolm, West Bath, Maine.

Ladies, are you suffering?

"Kidney-Wort cured me of peculiar troubles of several years standing. Many friends use and praise it."

Mrs. B. Lamoreaux, Isle La Motte, Vt.

If you would Banish Disease and gain Health, Take

KIDNEY-WORT

THE BLOOD CLEANSER.

LEAP YEAR.

Nice room,
Easy chair,
Old bach
Sitting there.

Old bach
Begins to snore,
Gentle rap
At the door.

Enter maid
Rather old,
With a look of Love untold.

Converse awhile
This and that,
Close by him
Old maid sat.

Soon she talked
Sentimental,
He didn't care
Continental.

She got mad,
Began to cry,
Other tactics
Thought she'd try.

Years you've called
Every night,
As if you had
Perfect right.

Why you came
Lord only knows,
Never once
Did you propose.

Now 'tis Leap Year,
By heaven above,
I shall tell you
Of my love.

Then there was
An awful crash,
He had leaped
Through the sash

Funeral next day
At eleven,
Old bach
Safe in heaven.

GOWDEN HAIR.

Tell me the flow'rs ye think bonny,
Lass wi' the gowden hair,
Syne I'll lo'e them, mair than ony—
Certies they maun, be fair.
I'll put them a'
An' busk ye braw—
Lass wi' the gowden hair.

Oh, tell me the sangs that cheer ye,
Lass wi' the gowden hair,
I'll sing them a' and ye shall hear me
While I ha'e breath tae spare,
Sweet they maun be
When lo'ed by me—
Lass wi' the gowden hair.

Ye are my sang, ilka mornin',
Lass wi' the gowden hair,
Ye are my flow'r aye adornin'
This war'ld o' something mair—
May flow'r and sang,
Ne'er leave me lang—
Lass wi' the gowden hair.

Sweet simmer will aye be 'roon me,
Lass wi' the gowden hair,
Yer love be a wreath tae croon me—
Yer voice a tune sae rare.
Wi' love's ain art
I'll keep yer heart—
Lass wi' the gowden hair.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

She expected at every new step to be re-accosted by Slocumb. A boat had landed, and was soon to disembark again. From the opposite dimness came an ominous clank of chains, made by the men at either of the two wheels and a sudden "All aboard!" flung out in gruff tones as a stimulating monitor. The other passengers all hastened forward. Claire was among them, though in the rear of the hurry. The foremost had gained the boat, when she felt a strong clutch upon her arm. Compelled by sheer force to pause, now, she turned, meeting Slocumb's face quite near her own. He at once spoke, and in the same sort of intimate whisper that she had before found so distressing.

"Say! 'Tain't right t' shake me like this. I ain't goin' t' stand it, either. Come, change your mind. Treat me square. Will ye?"

Claire, driven to bay, did what her sex is sometimes held by a few renowned cynics as having a special talent for doing; she employed stratagem.

Her voice shook as she said: "Very well. What is it you wish me to do?"

She could feel the tense grasp upon her arm relax a little. This was just the kind of result she had aimed for.

"I want ye t' stay this side the river a spell yet, an' we'll eat somepn somewhere. Hey?"

The fingers about her arm had acquired a fondling laxity that half sickened her. But she waited a little. They were a good ten yards from the boat. It was possible that both their figures were too shadowed for the men at the chains to see them. Perhaps, on the other hand, these wardens did not care to shout a final notice that the boat was now unmoored.

Claire still chose to temporize. Her heart beat so that it seemed about to burst through her side; but she nevertheless kept her brain clear enough to maintain a subtlety of intent in strange contrast to her deep fear.

She had determined to get free if she could, and find refuge among the passengers on the boat. Here, in the lonely dusk on the dock, she was at a sad disadvantage; but once within the lighted cabin of the boat, she could find the same silent protection of mere surrounding that the car had afforded. She had a latent resolve, also, of future appeal to some of those whom she knew had preceded her, though this formed no real part of her present quick-formed scheme.

"Suppose that I do go with you," she said. "At what time would I be able to get home?"

Slocumb's grasp materially loosened. "Why, any time at all!" he exclaimed. "The boats run till 'bout two o'clock or so, an'"—

His sentence was cut short in its valuable explanation by a sudden disengaging spring on the part of Claire. She ran with her best speed toward the boat. She now perceived that it was just leaving the pier. By the time that she had gained almost the extreme edge of the latter, a voice from the receding boat itself cried out to her. "Don't jump!"

She saw, then, that a long, curved crevice was widening in a very rapid way at a slight space beyond the spot where she had abruptly halted. A few more seconds would make the leap a mere madness; now it needed nerve, agility, and was indeed a venture. But Slocumb stood behind her. The risk was worth the prize. Claire waited perhaps ten seconds; the crevice had grown a fissure; she saw the murky water give a dull flash or two, far below it. Then she jumped.

The space had not been more than three feet. But what she had cleared sent a sharp terror through her the instant after both feet had touched the firm bourne of the deck. For a little while she stood quite still, shivering, with her back to the dock thus boldly quitted. Her mind was wholly in a whirl. She did not hear the half-growled words of one of the men who had lately unloosed the boat, chiding her upon her folly, in gruff contempt of syntax.

But very soon this access of intense alarm lessened. She partly ceased to fix her thought upon what she had done, recalling instead, why she had done it. She turned, giving two flurried looks to right and left, doubtless from a sense that the abhorred one might have breasted the same peril as herself—in his case far lighter, of course.

Her gaze swept the opposite pier. It gleamed drowsy and obscure, with the effect of some grave marine monster just risen from the muddy tides below it. Strangely, also, the lights at either side gave it the semblance of two malign blazing eyes. And in the glimmer thus made Claire saw Slocumb.

He had not taken the leap. At first amazement had wrought in him its brief yet telling effect. Then he dashed to the end of the pier, momentarily furious at thus being balked. But in a second his fury had cooled. And something had cooled it, very new to him, though very forcible. This was pity. He might easily have cleared the interspace. But he forbore to do so. He thrust both hands into his pockets, and with lowered head moved away. In an instant more it was too late for him to have changed his novel resolve, even had he so wished.

By the time that Claire's look lighted upon the pier he was nowhere visible. He had disappeared from her sight forever, as also from her life. He had been a dread through brief experience—a glimpse given her into the melancholy darkness of human wrong. The shadows had seemed to take him back among themselves, where he rightly belonged. Perhaps the episode of his insolence wrought some sort of effect upon her future acts; it is certain that she never quite forgot the miserable dismay he had roused; and when the struggle for worldly success afterwards spurred her with so keen a goad, some vague remembrance of to-night may have quickened her aspiring impulses and made what we call the socially best gain fresh worth in her eyes by contrast with such foul deeps as lie below it.

Once confident that Slocumb had not followed her, she managed, with unsteady pace, to reach the outside rail of the deck and lean against it while the boat traversed the river. She was trembling a good deal, and felt an extreme weakness as well. But a glow of triumph upbore her. She had escaped at last!

The ugly boat, as it sped along, seemed a sentient accomplice of her final good fortune. She had a fancy that its thick wooden rail dumbly throbbed beneath her grasp. Her posture was a half-cowering one; the spell of her poignant fears had not passed. Her head leaned itself peeringly from stooped shoulders in such a way that its slim neck took the sort of curve we see in a frightened deer's.

A somewhat late moon had recently risen, whose advent had altered the whole face of the heavens, flooding it with a yellowish light. But borne across the moon's blurred disk, on some high, fleet rush of air, scudded volumes of rolling and mutable vapor. They constantly soared above the great dusky city, at first in intense black masses, then thinning and lengthening as they came midway between zenith and horizon.

While Claire watched these strange and volatile clouds, so incessant in their motion, and so swift in their continual upward stream, they took, for her confused fancy, the semblance of pursuant phantom shapes. They formed themselves into visages and bodies; they stretched forth uncouth yet life-like arms; they clenched hands of misty gloom, and shook them far above her with gloomy imminent defiance. Her former transit across the river had been fraught with sweet, poetic mystery; her present voyage was one touched with a kind of allegoric terror.

But the boat soon found its second wharfage. Claire sped out through the two cabins in time to join the crowd of disembarking passengers. Once more back in Greenpoint. She hurried along certain familiar streets until she arrived at her own dwelling. It was now a little after ten o'clock. She had an instinct that it was about this time. Above the high piazza, both parlor-windows were dark, but below it the windows of the basement portion were brightly lit. She passed into the seant space of the garden and sought the lower door; she pulled the bell, set in the woodwork at her right, and waited.

No answer came, and she rang again. One of the lights gave her a good view into the hall beyond. She presently saw her mother appear. Mrs. Twining opened the door. It was not till she and her daughter stood face to face that the latter made a certain sharp, abrupt discovery.

"Mother!" she said, "you're pale—you look very strange. Is it because I staid away so long?"

"No," replied Mrs. Twining.

Claire grasped her mother's arm with both hands. "Then what is it?" she questioned. "You don't mean that—Father's sick? Do you?"

Mrs. Twining was white as death, and had dark rings round her fine black eyes. She laughed with great bitterness as she closed the door.

"Oh, no," she said. "Your father ain't sick, Claire."

These few words teemed, somehow, with a frightful irony. Claire knew her mother's moods so well that she now staggered backward a little as the two faced each other in this narrow hallway.

"Mother," she said, with a gasp, "what do you mean? Has anything happened to father?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Twining with a cruelty that Claire never forgot and never forgave. "Your father's dead. He died at nine o'clock. The doctor's here now. He says it's heart-disease. You're a nice gadabout, to be off for hours, no body knows where, and come home to find"

Mrs. Twining ended her sentence at just this point, for Claire had dropped in a swoon before the next word could be spoken, upon the oil-cloth of the little hall which her own hands had so often swept.

CHAPTER VII.

That night was one of anguish and horror. As soon as enough strength had come to her with the return of consciousness, Claire insisted upon being taken to where her father lay. Not a tear left her eye as she knelt beside his body. She was very white, and seemed perfectly calm. She kissed the dead man now and then on forehead, and cheek. Once she rose, went to the window, and set both arms lengthwise upon its sash, propping her chin against her clasped hands.

In this attitude she stared forth at the heaven, still full of moony light and still alive with its pageantry of hurrying clouds. But their motion was more quick now; the wind had grown stronger and colder; all touch of mildness was now vanishing from the cool atmosphere. Claire felt the panes shake, and heard them rattle, as she leaned thus. There seemed an awful sympathy between this wild phase of nature and her own tumultuous, distraught sensations.

Grief and alarm clashed within her soul. She could not simply and passionately regret her father's loss, for the thought of her own friendless and penurious state would thrust itself into her consciousness. Her feelings of pure bereavement, of standing face to face with a vast and stern solitude, of having had something torn from her heart by the roots, were terrible enough. But none the less, on this account, could she fail to think with inward thrills of fright on the subject of her merely material future. In an hour or two something solidly defensive had been shattered and swept away. Her father's protection had kept aloof, so to speak, the huge, merciless forces of society. Now these forces were rushing upon her like yonder stream of antic-shaped clouds.

"What is to become of me?" she murmured aloud, not knowing that she spoke at all. "Who will help? Where shall I turn? I am so alone—so fearfully alone!"

Mrs. Twining had come into the room, as it chanced, a moment before the utterance of Claire's first words. It was now a little before midnight; she had entered this chamber of death twice before, and had looked at her daughter's kneeling figure, there beside the corpse, but had retired again in silence. Now she spoke, as Claire finished speaking. The girl turned instantly as she began.

"Yes," she said in her most hard and curt way. "I s'pose you are alone, now he's gone! you ain't got any mother, of course not! She's a cipher; she always was. You're going to quit her, I dare say: you're going to leave her in the lurch. P'raps you'll find some of those you was with to-night that 'll see you don't come to grief. Well, 't ain't for me to complain at this late day. I've had chance enough to take your measure Miss, long ago!"

There was a look of dreary fatigue on Claire's face as she slowly answered: "Mother, I will not leave you. I don't wish to leave you."

"Oh, you don't, eh? Then why did you say you was alone?"

"Did I say it?" returned Claire. She put one hand to her forehead. "I—I must have spoken aloud without knowing it." . . . Immediately afterward she crossed the room, going very close to her mother's side, and looking with eager meaning into the cold, austere, aquiline face.

"Don't be unkind to-night," she went on. "Remember this dreadful thing that has happened. It—it ought to—soften you, Mother. It has nearly crazed me I cannot reason; I can scarcely think. I—I can only suffer!"

Mrs. Twining curled her mouth in bitter dissent. "Oh, you didn't know the poor man was sick when you ran off and staid for hours. No, indeed! If you had, you would n't 'a' worried him as you did when he come home to tea and found you gone. He fell like a log, just as he got up from the table. But he hadn't eaten hardly a thing, and I guess you know why he did n't."

Claire uttered a quick, flurried cry. She grasped her mother's arm. "You—you don't mean," she exclaimed, in a piteously fierce way, "that I killed Father—or—or hastened his death by—by not being home? Oh, say, Mother, that you don't mean this! It would drive me mad if I believed so! Please say it is n't true!"

Claire's aspect breathed such desperation that it wrought havoc even with so stolid a perversity as that of the harsh, unpropitiable being whom she confronted.

"Well, no, I don't say that," murmured Mrs. Twining, with sullen alteration of mien and tone. "But I do say, Claire, that you was off somewhere, and he was fretted and pestered because you was, and" . . . Here the peculiar nature of this most tormenting woman suddenly revealed a change. Her grim mouth twitched; her cold nostrils produced a kind of catarrhal sniff; her cold black eyes winked, as if tears were inclining to assail them. The next words that she spoke were in a high, querulous key.

"Oh! so you 're the only one that's fit to mourn for that poor dead one, hey? I, his lawful wedded wife, and your own mother, ain't got any right to grieve! Oh, very well! I 'm nobody at all, here. I 'd better get away. You 're chief mourner. There's nobody but you. I s'pose you 'll pay all the expenses of the funeral since you 're so dreadful stuck-up about it!"

Claire shook her head, in a pathetic, conciliating way. She lifted one finger, at the same time. Her face was still white, and her dark-blue eyes were burning feverishly.

"No, no, Mother!" she said. "This is all wrong. You must n't speak like that, here. If you did n't love him, I did. There's a little money yet. It 's yours, but you 'll give it; you 've told me of it; it will be enough to bury Father decently. I promise you that if you do give it I will try very hard to get some work that will support us both."

Mrs. Twining put a hand on either hip. She stared at Claire for a moment. Then she answered her.

"No," she said, "I won't give a cent of it. It's only about a hundred dollars. He ain't led me such a nice life that I should be so awful grateful to him, now he's gone. There's ways of burying that don't cost money. Yes, there's ways. . . . Let 'em come and take him. I ain't going to beggar myself because he wants a rosewood coffin, and"—

"Mother!" cried Claire, pointing toward the dead, "he is here!"

"Oh, well!" said Mrs. Twining. She spoke the two brief words in a sort of abrupt whimper, taking a step or two toward the sheeted form of her dead husband. "S'pose he is here. I can't use that money, and I won't!"

Claire felt the hideous taste of those words. They who have thus far read this chronicle must have read it ill if they are not sure that no love for a mother so ceaselessly froward and hostile could now survive in her daughter's heart. But though she knew her mother capable of dread acts if occasion favored, Claire was thunderstruck by this last announcement.

It appeared to her monstrous and barbarous, as it indeed was. She clenched both hands, for an instant, and her eyes flashed.

"Say what you mean!" she retorted, not raising her voice, because of that piteous reverence which the still, prone shape inspired. "Can you mean that you will let charity bury our dead for us? Can you mean that?"

Mrs. Twining gave a quick, grim nod. "Yes, I do mean it," she returned. "And if you was n't a fool you 'd see why."

Claire folded her arms. Her next words came with grave, measured composure from white, set lips. "I may be a fool," she said, "but thank God I have n't your kind of wisdom! Keep your money, Mother. Do as you threaten. But when Potter's Field takes poor Father's body, that will be the end of everything between you and me. Remember that I said this. I will never speak to you, never notice you again, if you do so shameful a thing. If you spend that money as duty and decency both prompt, I will work for you, cling to you always. But if not, we are no longer mother and daughter. You see, I don't speak with heat or haste. I am perfectly calm. Now choose which course you will take. But never say that I did not fully warn you, when it will be too late for retraction!"

There was a splendidly quiet impressiveness in this speech of Claire's. She went and knelt once more beside her father's body after she had finished it. She had resolved upon no further entreaty or argument. The very atrocity of her mother's proposed design seemed to place continued discussion of it beyond the pale of all womanly dignity.

Mrs. Twining was too coarse a soul to see the matter as Claire saw it. She preferred to take the chances that her daughter would relent when the ignoble interment was over.

To-morrow came, and she gave no sign of altering her purpose. Claire scarcely addressed a word to her during this day. A few of the Greenpoint folk called at the house. Among these was Josie Morley, distressed at the tidings of death, and prepared to utter voluble regrets for having lost Claire in the crowd during the previous night.

But Claire would see no one. She remained with her father's body in the little room upstairs, locking its door when she thought there was any chance of a visitor being brought thither.

Now and then she wondered, with a dumb misery, whether her mother had made any attempt to bring about the loathed burial. She herself had a few dollars in her possession. This sum she meant to use in seeking employment after the earth had closed over her father's corpse.

Once or twice a passionate impulse had seized her to go and seek help from those under whom her father had lately served in his drudging clerkship. But she repressed this feeling—or rather shame at the thought of possible refusal, mixed with a natural proud reluctance to own the sad need in which she stood, repressed it for her.

The next day she learned the full, torturing truth. Mrs. Twining had carried out her threat. Two shabby men came with a pine box. They placed the corpse herein. Claire had already paid it all the final reverential rites which her sex and grief would allow. It was dressed in the same rusty outward garments it had worn when death came. The men held a little discussion below stairs with Mrs. Twining. They afterward departed and remained away two good hours.

When they returned they brought a dark waggon with an arched top. In the interval Claire still watched. She was quite silent. Perhaps if she had deigned now to plead with her mother, the latter, already a little frightened at the girl's stony, unvaried calmness, might have relented and agreed to more seemly obsequies. But except one glance of immeasurable reproach, during a brief visit which Mrs. Twining paid to the chamber, Claire gave no further sign of revolt.

When the men returned, she chanced to be looking from the window. She saw the waggon. She shuddered, and went back to her father. No one saw her bid him the last farewells. She showed no trace of tears when the men presently re-entered the room, but her dark-blue eyes shone from her hueless face with a dry, glassy glitter. Her mother now appeared. She looked at Claire in a covert, uneasy way, though there was much obstinacy about the lines of her mouth. A moment later she spoke to the men. It seemed to Claire like the refinement of hypocrisy that she should not her mind in a mournful key.

"I s'pose you want to get it through right away," she said.

"Yes, ma'am," replied one of the men. "Those is always the orders."

Claire went to the window again. It was a raw, misty, drizzling day. She stared out into the dreary street. She did not want to see that pitiful box closed and sealed. She presently heard a grating sound which told her just what the men were doing.

And then she heard another sound that was quite as harsh. It was her mother's voice, lowered, and with a sort of a whine in it.

"It's true enough that the dead ought to be buried properly, Claire, but that ain't any reason why the living shouldn't live—the best way they can. You take it hard now, but after a while you'll see you ain't got any real right to blame me. You'll see."

"Don't touch me, please," interrupted Claire. Her mother had laid a hand on her arm, and she had receded instantly. Then she said, while steadying her voice, though not caring whether the men heard or no: "Did you intend going to—to the grave with him?"

Mrs. Twining gave a great elegiac sigh. "Oh, no, I couldn't stand it. I should break right down long before I got there."

"Very well," said Claire, "I'm going."

One of the men looked up at her. He had a small, round face, an odd blond tuft of beard, and a pair of mild blue eyes. He held a screw-driver thrust into a screw while he spoke. His voice was very respectful. He had noticed Claire's look and mien before; he had a wife and children at home. Scarcely ever, in his experience, had he known a burial of this sort to take place from a dwelling as apparently thrifty as the present one.

"Excuse me, Miss," the man said, "but you couldn't ride in the waggon. There's just room for him and me." He indicated his companion by a little motion of his head. "And there's three other bodies. We're takin' 'em to the almshouse."

"Where is the almshouse?" asked Claire. She could not help giving her mother one shocked side-long glance while this question left her lips.

"It's over in Flatbush," the man said. Claire went close up to his side. If he had not seen the white distress in her face before, he must plainly have seen it now. "I know where that is," she said. "I could go there. The cars would take me." She put her hand on the rough wood of the box. The touch was so light that it resembled a caress. "Would they let me go to—to the almshouse and wait . . . near him . . . till he is buried?"

Mrs. Twining at once began to weep. Or rather, she spoke in a wailing tone that indicated tears, even if no tears really either gathered or fell.

"Claire, you mustn't think of going! No, you mustn't! Things are bad enough, as it is. Now, promise me that you won't take any such notion! Do promise!"

Claire paid no heed to this outburst. She was looking with eager fixity at the man. She had already aroused his sympathy; she felt certain of it; his big, mild eye seemed to tell her so. "They won't all be buried till about two o'clock," he said. "There'll be five or six bodies to-day, I guess. If you start from here in about an hour, Miss, you can get to the buryin'-ground by just the right time. I'll see to it you do."

The speaker here turned and winked one mild eye at his companion. The latter was staring rather lifelessly at Claire. He had a long, pale, tired-looking face.

"All right," he muttered, apathetically, as if he had not at all comprehended, but was willing to take matters on trust.

"I'll see to it that he ain't got in till you come," pursued Claire's new friend. "The Potter's Field ain't far from the County Buildings, as they call 'em. I s'pose you know how to get to Flatbush?" He scratched his sandy shock of hair for an instant, and told her just what cars to take.

Claire put faith in him. Something made her do so. When the pine box had been carried down stairs, placed inside the dark waggon, and driven away, she went to her own room and made a small, neat, brown-paper parcel. Her clothes were few enough, and she left all of these except what seemed to her of vital necessity. "I don't want to look like a tramp," she told herself, with a diabolic somepleasantry. "I shall not, either. I shall only be a poor, shabby girl with a bundle."

When she emerged from her room her mother met her in the hall. Claire wore her bonnet. Mrs. Twining gave a frightened whimper as she saw this and the parcel.

"Oh, Claire," she said, "you ain't really going to the—the grave?"

"Yes, I am," she said. Her tones were so melancholy that they caused a palpable start in her who heard them.

"Oh Claire," moaned her mother, "if you go I can't! I can't see him buried in that way! Of course you can, if you want!"

"I do want," said Claire.

"But you'll come back! you'll come home again!"

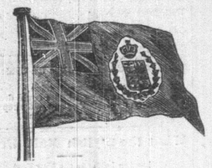
As she was passing her mother, there in the hall, Claire turned and faced her. "I shall never come home again," she said, scarcely raising her voice above a whisper. "You remember what I told you."

Mrs. Twining was no longer frightened; she was terrified. "Claire!" she burst forth, "I ain't done right, perhaps. But don't be headstrong—now, don't! if you'd spoke to me yesterday—if you'd even spoke to me this morning, I might, . . . well, I might after all, have given the money. But it's too late now, and" . . .

"Yes, it is too late now," Claire interrupted, and somehow with the effect of a shaft shot noiselessly and tellingly aimed.

After that she hurried straight down stairs, passed along the lower hall, and made rapid exit from the house.

A number of heads had been thrust from neighboring windows while the body was being borne away. Claire, who endured what was thus far the supreme humiliation of her life, wondered whether any one was watching now, but she kept her eyes drooped toward the pavement as she moved along, and never once looked to left or right. She despised these possible watchers, and yet she remembered what her dead had been—how kindly, how pure, how noble; and it was to her sense an infamy that his ignominious burial should be made a theme of vulgar gossip.



"He is to be put in Potter's Field," she told her own aching, bursting heart, while she hurried along. "Yes, he! And he was so good, so fine, so much a gentleman! He is to be put in Potter's Field! . . . But I will see the last sod placed over him . . . That man will keep his word . . . I shall stand by my father, his only mourner. He will be glad if he knows. What a slight thing it is to do for him, after all the love he gave me! But it is all I can do. All, and yet so little!"

A dreary ride in the cars at last brought her to Flatbush. After alighting she had quite a long walk through the gray, foggy atmosphere of a region which the sweetest mood of spring or summer finds no spell to beautify. It was now as hideous and loathsome as that hateful tract beyond Greenpoint. The immense gloomy structures of the almshouses loomed beside the path she took. The conductor on the car had just told her how to reach the pauper graveyard. It lay at some distance from the grim build

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

SOUTH OXFORD

Your Vote & Influence

ARE SOLICITED FOR

JAMES NOXON

—THE—

REFORM CANDIDATE

—AND—

Nominee of the Reform Convention.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1884

MR. NOXON'S CANDIDATURE.

The Liberal party of South Oxford are justly proud of their selection for the Local House. Mr. Noxon is an able and effective public speaker; he has done yeoman service in the battles fought in South Oxford, and has ever sought to impress upon the people the necessity of vigorous action in political contests. As a friend to good government and to South Oxford he has always raised his voice in favour of the Riding which he now seeks to represent. It cannot be too severely pressed on the minds of the Liberal party that every legitimate exertion must be put forth to secure his election. We desire every one to make himself feel that his vote and his influence can alone save the constituency.

Mr. Cook presents himself to the Riding as an "Independent supporter of Mr. Mowat's Government." Now what this means is somewhat difficult to determine. If Mr. Cook is really earnest in his support he would have saved us many a laugh at the ambiguity of his expression. For it is folly for him to modify if he honestly intends to give his valuable services to a party which has never asked for them. We are sure if he were honestly anxious to support Mr. Mowat's administration he would not oppose the choice of a convention, which is a leading feature in the Liberal party, and without which it or any other organization would sooner or later come to ruin.

Let us again look at Mr. Cook's expression and see if we cannot find a solution of it. In the first instance Mr. Cook would not qualify his position if he were a genuine supporter of Mr. Mowat. He would come out without the word "Independent" to his name, and would show by an adherence to the wants of the Liberal party that he would sacrifice a little personal ambition to the good of the cause he seeks to fight. Not being what we call a supporter of Mr. Mowat's Government, he must of necessity be against it. By agreeing with Mr. Mowat in some matters, he is not from that fact a supporter of him, for it not unfrequently happens, both at Ottawa and in the English House of Commons, that the great leaders of respective parties find something on which they can agree. A man must either be for or against. Your middle-man can never be counted upon, and when he is most wanted he makes himself absent. Experience has taught constituencies how grave their mistake was in electing a member whose voice was never certain, and whose vote in the House was worse than his absence.

The truth of the matter is, Mr. Cook is a Conservative. He has always been so and it is a lasting disgrace to himself to renounce his party in the manner in which he has done. If he seeks to represent the Conservative party under the disguise of an "Independent" he is placing himself falsely before the public, and cheating them of their franchise. If he is a Liberal he would not qualify his party as "Independent" and rob the Conservatives of votes in the belief that he will occasionally vote with Mr. Meredith. In either case he is a sham and unworthy of the support of either Liberals or Conservatives. All honest men will be united in disgust at his course, for he shows a weakness and vanity quite incompatible with the dignity and honor of one who wishes to represent so splendid a Riding as South Oxford. Let Conservatives disown him, and the Liberals throughout show that they will not take a trator to their party, for so surely as they do he who has been false to one will not scruple to do likewise with the other.

Globe:—They have voted away at Ottawa the value of a whole years' average wheat crop of Canada.

JUDGMENT was given in the Supreme Court, Monday morning, giving the seat to Hon. Mr Mills in the Bothwell election case.

RODDY Pringle of the "Muskoka Brigade" was in town last week. It is understood he was here to urge the Conservatives to quietly work for Cook.

Toronto Telegram:—In December, 1875, on the first test vote, its majority (the Mowat Gov't) was only eleven. On the first test vote on this occasing—nine years after—it was twelve.

THE candidates in the South Oxford election do not compare—they only contrast. The difference in the ability of the two men is so great, as to render a comparison impossible.

MR. COOK has been brought out under the auspices of a clique of Woodstock Tories. Liberals of South Oxford should remember this when urged to vote against Mr. Noxon, the Liberal nominee, on Wednesday next.

AT the last general election, Geo. A. Cook, was offered the party nomination by the Conservatives. After due consideration Mr. Cook declined to accept. He now comes out as an "Independent" supporter of the Mowat government!

Tilsonburg Liberal:—Reformers must not be carried away by any delusive promises which may be made by Mr. Cook or his friends. South Oxford must return an out and out supporter of Mr. Mowat. Any Reformer that works, or votes for Mr. Cook against the nominee of the Reform Convention will certainly be branded as a traitor to that party and to the Province of Ontario. At the present time every Reformer and lover of good honest government should support Mr. Mowat in his endeavors to keep Sir John from making further encroachment upon the rights of Ontario.

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

An Outside Opinion—The Candidates Contrasted.

The Tory party are at present engaged in bringing out a Tory candidate to oppose Mr. Noxon, in South Oxford. He promises to support Mr. Mowat's Administration. This, no doubt, is for the purpose of securing a certain number of Reform votes. Mr. Noxon is a thoroughgoing, active Reformer. He has always taken an active part in elections. He has not hesitated to take the stump when necessary to aid in the success of the Reform candidate. Mr. Cook, his opponent, has not done so. We believe that Mr. Cook har never given a Reform vote, and that being the case, he is hardly consistent with himself in promising to support the present Administration. This is not a time for the election of men of uncertain political proclivities. The rights of the Province are endangered. War is being made upon Provincial institutions. The resources of the Dominion are being used to sap the foundation of Provincial authority, and the people of South Oxford, we hope, will not commit the folly at such a time of electing one of those political career they cannot be certain. We trust that Mr. Noxon will receive the support that his abilities, his public spirit and his devotion to Reform principles entitle him, and if he does he will represent South Oxford by an overwhelming majority.—London Advertiser.

In adopting a set of principles—somewhat late in life—it is not strange that Mr. Cook should have regard to the political complexion of South Oxford. Considering the popularity of the Mowat Government in that riding, to have announced himself a Conservative—or to any extent opposed to the principles of the Reform party—would have been to commit political suicide. This Mr. Cook very naturally wished to avoid. He consequently takes the field as an Independent Reformer in opposition to the chosen standard bearer of that party.

Mr. Noxon was chosen by perhaps the largest and most representative convention ever held in the riding. Out of a possible one hundred and fifty-nine delegates one hundred and fifty-eight were present, and the choice of the convention was made unanimous. These delegates were sent there to represent every division and every Reform elector in the riding. No suspicion of impropriety has ever been thrown upon the constitution of this convention or the manner in which it arrived at a result. All the other gentlemen whose names came before the convention have signified their acceptance of its choice and pledged their support to its nominee. Mr. Cook cannot therefore hope to appeal with success to the Reform party. Even should he secure some Reform and Independent votes his election is only possible by the votes of the Conservative party. It becomes therefore a question whether the Reform party shall elect a true and tried supporter of the Mowat Government or whether an Independent supporter shall be elected by the exertions of its enemies. Under such circumstances the duty of every Reformer is clear.

But there are other reasons why Mr. Noxon should receive the warm support of every Reform elector in South Oxford. In all the essentials of a public man he is immeasureably the superior of his opponent. The two candidates cannot in any respect be compared. We can only present them for contrast. Mr. Noxon has long been indentified with the Reform party and no doubt can be cast upon his political sincerity or his fidelity to Liberal principles. He is a man of established reputation and of great ability. Of tremendous energy, untiring industry, accurate in business habits, he is capable of a great deal of hard work. As a public speaker he has few superiors even upon the floor of the legislature. In that body he would be a decided acquisition to the government ranks, and would, we have no doubt, render important service to his native province. Mr. Noxon is without doubt one of the very ablest of the local men who have ever presented themselves to the electors of Old Oxford. Those who favor local men, and really able local men, will find in him just such a candidate as they may feel proud of.

Mr. Cook's warmest friends can scarcely claim for him such abilities as are essential to success in public life. And this is a time when the ablest men in the country should be induced to enter public life. It is a crisis, not only the history of party, but of this Province and of the Dominion. Questions are now being discussed and settled that will decide for good or evil the future of this country. Men of ability are requested at such a juncture who can grasp the difficult problems of statesmanship and make their voice heard by the country. Such a man is Mr. Noxon. As the representative of any constituency in the Dominion he would do honor to Reformers, Conservatives and "Independents" alike. If there is anyone entitled to appeal upon his merits, and upon his ability to serve his native country, to all classes of the electors, without reference to party, he is the candidate. The Reformers of South Oxford should stand by the nominee of their choice. The party has said that it desires Mr. Noxon as its standard bearer. Its duty, therefore, is to give him an old-time majority.—Sentinel Review.

Globe:—Mr. James Noxon, the Liberal nominee, has issued an able and ringing address, and has arranged for a series of public meetings. An opponent to Mr Noxon has made an appearance in the person of M. G. A. Cook, who announces himself "an Independent supporter of the Mowat Government."

MR. Geo. A. Cook, of Norwich, has been brought out purely and simply by Reformers.—Tribune. This is untrue. Mr. Cook has been brought out by friends in Woodstock who are "swelling his head" to get his money. There is not a prominent Liberal in South Oxford supporting him.

WE learn on the authority of a prominent hotel keeper that the liquor dealers of this Province generally will take out their licenses under the Crook's Act. In this they show their good sense, as any other act would not be recognized by the Provincial authorities, and liquor dealers would be subject to fine and imprisonment.

THE Conservative press throughout the country is unanimous in saying nothing about the political contest in South Oxford. They have been instructed to keep silent. If they came out for Cook, they would capture no Liberal votes. Liberals of South Oxford be on your guard and vote for James Noxon, who will bring strength to the Mowat Government.

London Advertiser:—Mr. Noxon, the Reform candidate of South Oxford, is to be opposed by a so-called "Independent," Mr. Cooke. This "Independence," however, is but a thin veneer for Toryism, and the Reformers of South Oxford are not likely to be caught by any such dodge. When a Tory dare not run on the merits of his Toryism, he should be taught that he cannot run successfully as all.

LETTER FROM A NORWICH FARMER.

No "Independent" Wanted

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE;

DEAR SIR,—The meeting here last night was most enthusiastic for Mr. Noxon. The clear and pointed arguments from Mr. Noxon showed, not only the Reformers, but Conservatives, that he is an able man, and one who will do honour to the constituency if elected. There is a great reaction here, and many who thought of supporting Mr. Cook have after last night pledged their support to Mr. Noxon. As a personal friend to and one well acquainted with Mr. Cook, I would have supported him had he been the choice of the convention, but his action in this matter has made me take a decided stand against him. Mr. Cook is a very poor speaker, and if elected, could not say one word in the House. What we want in parliament is a man who can carry conviction to his hearers and look after the interests of South Oxford. Mr. Noxon is the man to do this, and old Norwich will give him a sweeping majority on the 5th of March. Yours truly,

FARMER.

Norwich, 26th Feb., 1884.

Thamesford.

A grand entertainment will be given in the School House, Thamesford, on Friday evening, March 7th, on which occasion the celebrated drama entitled "Delicate Ground" or "Paris in 1793" will be given. Besides this thrilling drama there will be a concert, which alone will be worth the price of admission. Be sure and see programmes, and remember the date. Admission 25 cents.

Dereham.

While Mr. Dunphy was attending the Salford cheese meeting, his horse took a trip through town on his own account and arrived safe home with everything in good condition.

Mr. Walter P. Hall's farm, the north east quarter of lot 20, in the 10th concession of Dereham, containing 61 acres, was sold by public auction in Tilsonburg, on Saturday, to Mr. Alex. McAlpine, of the 8th con. of Dereham, for $3,750.

Brownsville.

Our grain buyer, Mr. Richardson, shipped quite a quantity during the early part of the past week.

Mr. Wm. Fewster and Miss Isabella Ellis, who were married a few days ago, are spending the honeymoon with their friends in Norwich.

Our town was enlivened on Thursday of the past week, by the marriage of Miss Almy Woolley to a Mr. Knickerbocker. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Rigsby.

Brooksdale.

Rev. Mr. Wright, of Stratford, delivered a lecture on David Livingston, in the new Presbyterian Church, Brooksdale, on Friday evening last, to a good audience. The speaker dwelt vividly on his evenful career from the time he first saw the light of day, on the banks of the Clyde, in Scotland, until, while in the attitude of prayer, in a rudo hut in Africa he passed to his rest and reward. The lecture was most interesting throughout. The proceeds amounted to $22, which goes to the church fund. The collections on the Sabbath of the dedication amounted to $50.90. The church was built by Mr. B. F. Young, contractor, Stratford, and cost $2,000.—Courier

Campbell's Corners.

A very pleasing event took place on Wednesday, 20th, at the residence of Mr. Kenneth Sutherland of Campbell's Corners. A number of the friends and neighbors of Mr. Sutherland were invited to a wood bee during the day, and notwithstanding the severity of the weather about 30 turned out with saws and axes, and by the large amount of work which they completed showed that they were fully in earnest. In the evening they repaired to their several homes, but as the invitation had been extended to the evening, they did not stay long and their return found their number greatly augmented by a large number of the fair sex. The night was spent in music and dancing, broken only at midnight by partaking of a bountiful supper prepared by their hostess. The party was a decided success, much of which was no doubt due to the unbounded kindness and hospitality of their host and hostess, and those present returned home in the morning feeling that the evening was one of the most enjoyable they had ever spent.

Bright.

The subject "press and pulpit" which our debating club undertook for last nights combat, was interesting, and due credit must be given to its members for the able manner in which it was discussed. The press however within a few points had too much pressure for "pulpit." Next nights subject resolved that "reading" will give more information than "observation." The following night will be an open debate. Free to all. Resolved that Canada will derive more benefit by being annexed to the United States. Is it too soon?

The Scott Act is pulling its way in slow but sure. The liquor party do not stand on as firm ground as would be supposed.

Mrs. Yeoman the famous temperance lecturer of Picton, Ont., recently returned from Europe will give an able lecture on temperance in the C. M. Church, Thursday evening.

It is hoped a new station will soon take the place of the present railroad structure which has amply paid for itself to the Company on account of heavy business which is daily being transacted for a well to do comunity like this.

Mt. Elgin.

The Baptist pulpit is still vacant.

Mr. C. Colyer intends removing to Ingersoll shortly.

Rumour says a party from Tilsonbug is about to start another general shop here.

The temperance meeting held in the Baptist Chapel here on Friday evening last was not very well attended owing no doubt to the snow storm prevailing. Those who were in attendance were well repaid for braving the storm. Rev. Mr. Archer was chosen chairman. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Jas. Vining Bodwell, who spoke of the various provisions of the Scott Act and was followed by Dr. Smith of Mt. Elgin, who gave his reasons in a clear manner for supporting said Act. Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of Tilsonburg, spoke briefly of the prospect of the temperance cause in that town, and expressed the wish that the result of the voting on the 20th of next month would be in favour of the Scott Act. The speaker of the evening, however, was Rev. R. B. Rowe, of Ingersoll, who for an hour kept his audience in rapt attention, and at the close received a hearty vote of thanks for his able address. Votes of thanks were passed to the choir, speakers and chairman, the meeting closing with the usual devotional exercises.

Woodstock.

Mr. Jno. White's carriage house at Woodstock, was entered on Sunday night last, and two sets of harness, some carriage cushions, saddles, etc., carried away.

The Bachelors' Ball on Friday evening was a brilliant success. Considerably over 300 people were present, Toronto, Ingersoll, Stratford, Hamilton, Beachville, Simcoe, London, and other places sending their quotas, and the general remark was that few occasions have shown such an array of feminine beauty. The ladies furnished the supper, which was an excellent one in every respect. The band of the 7th Fusiliers provided the music in their usual inspiriting style, their waltzes receiving hearty encores. The committee, who were unflagging in their courtesy to strangers, have reason to congratulate themselves upon so successful a termination of their efforts. The lady patronesses were Madames A. S. Ball, Hood, T. H. Parker, Canfield, F. C. Martin, Skinner, Finkle, Macqueen, Totten, S. B. Fuller, Nellis, W. F. Wilson, Gordon, E. W. Nesbitt, and J. White. Mr. Fred. W. W. Macqueen was honorary secretary, with the following committee: Mr. W. J. Broadfoot, A. B. Hay, A. Pattullo, J. Brydon, L. L. Holt, A. F. Skinner, H. J. Duncan, J. B. Ingersoll, J. Strachan, J. C. Gordon, D. S. Kendall, H. B. Totten, C. A. Hessen, W. H. Martin and C. Wright.

East Nissouri

W. Smith, of this township, had a narrow escape from drowning. In recrossing a creek in this neighborhood, in company with two young ladies, he was precipiated into the water and carried down stream, but fortunately got out with no injuries beyond a ducking.

Miss Carrie Pontey, of London South, is visiting at Mr. Wm. Smith's.

Council of East Nissouri met pursuant to adjournment at the Grange Hall, Kintore, on Saturday, 23rd Feb., at 10 a.m. A quorum being present the Reeve took the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read, also several communications were read and laid on the table. Moved by John Towle, seconded by A. Welfare, and resolved, C. Horsman dissenting that the appropriation for 1884 be as follows:—Ward No.1., $250; No. 2, $250; No. 3, $250; and No.4, $250; and that no member shall over-draw his account unless authorized by vote of council. The Reeve to see that this resolution is carried out. The Reeve being called away the Deputy-Reeve took the chair. Mr. J. G. McLeod then read the Auditor's report for 1883, which, on motion, was received and adopted and ordered to be printed. The following payments having been duly authorized were paid by Treasurer:—T. Stainton, gravel for ward 4, $4.72; John Sharp, drain tiles, ward 3, $21.42; C. McCorquodale, gravel, ward 3, $2.25; M. A. Philips, gravel, ward 1, $10.40; J. G. McLeod, auditing accounts 1883, $6.00; N. C. McCarty, auditing accounts 1883, $6.00. James McIntyre, funeral expenses Mary McLeod $15.00, indigent account; Ann McLeod $15.00, indigent account; John Ross $5.00, indigent account. On motion the council adjourned to meet on the last Saturday in March at 10 a.m.

C. R. COMMANDER, Clerk.

FOR pure and unadulterated honey, in comb and extract, go to R. Vance's. 86

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

Avon.

Mr. Will Jolliffe returted from Lindsay last Saturday. He intends to return to Lindsay again this week. He likes the book business well.

Mrs. Dexter, formerly of Springfield, but now of Crosswell, Mich., is visiting friends in this place for a few days.

E. R. Whaley and Miss Frankie Whaley of St. Thomas Coll. Institute spent Saturday and Sunday at home here.

Mrs. R. Row is seriously ill. Dr. Campbell of Belmont is attending her.

Mr. Fred Orris, of Lyons, and Miss Tillie Lane, youngest daughter of J. C. Lane, of this place were married on the 12th inst. Rev. Mr. Griffin performed the ceremony. We wish them a long and pleasant life.

Mr. R. Row, of Avon, has sold his yearling imported draught stallion to Mr. J. A. Newell, of Whitewater, Wisconsin, for a good price. He was a good specimen of the heavy draught class weighing about 1500 lbs. His sire was from the Earl of Emsley's Heart of Oak and half brother to Hausou's celebrated horse that took first prize at Toronto fair last fall against nearly one hundred competitors.

Tilsonburg.

The cornet band has amalgamated with the fire brigade, and will henceforth be known as the firemen's band. The combination has projected a monster oyster supper to be held in the music hall on the evening of the 6th of March next, the object being to raise sufficient funds to procure suitable uniforms for the band. Dr. L. C. Sinclair, mayor, has kindly consented to act in the capacity of chairman of the evening. The proceedings will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, and no doubt the affair will be an immense success.

The somewhat celebrated Fax Family, of Brantford, gave an interesting entertainment in the music hall on Friday evening of last week, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Young People's Literary Society. The family were greeted with a fairly good house, considering the numerous other attractions that were prevalent on the night in question. They also sustained their previous good reputation as vocalists, etc. The comic songs of Mr. Reuben Fax were immense, and elicited an encore every time. The singing of Miss Bella Fax was also of a very high order. The power and compass of this young lady's voice is not very great, but her voice possesses a peculiar charm and sweetness which renders it very agreeable and pleasing to her listeners, while her articulation is perfect. The humorous recitations of Mr. John Fax created great amusement. The local talent also received a hearty recognition. On the whole the concert was a good one and worthy of the patronage bestowed upon it.

Another array of our young gentlemen were summoned to appear before the P. M. last week, charged with disturbing the Salvation Army services. They all settled out of court with a single exception, and he worsted them in a trial on Thursday and got off. The P.M. is reaping a rich harvest.

Mr. Joseph Thompson's new residence is about completed and presents an elegant appearance. With the incoming of the balmy spring, Mr. T. proposes to submit like a martyr to the galling yoke of Hymen.

The last assembly of the season of the Ripple Club was held in their elegant compartments over the Federal Bank, on Wednesday evening of last week. The attendance was large and comprised a considerable number of visitors from a distance. The Italian Band from London furnished the music. Dancing was kept up with vim until an early hour.

TERRIFIC GAS EXPLOSION.

THE BANK OF COMMERCE BUILDING AT TORONTO WRECKED—FOUR MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED.

The Explosion the Result of a Plumber's Carelessness.

Toronto, Feb. 25.—At about half-past nine this morning a terrific explosion occurred at the Bank of Commerce here. Just as the business of the day was about to commence, George Shaw, the messenger, entered the vault with a lighted match, when a noise as of a heavy artillery filled the air, and shattered into splinters everything not impenetrable. The vault, in which a gas jet was inadvertently left turned on, but not burning, by a plumber, was the cause of the catastrophe.

Shaw was lifted from his feet and thrown a distance of twenty feet and severely injured about the head and face. Twelve clerks seated at their desks were knocked down like ninepins, and Fuller, paying teller, who was standing looking out of a window on Yonge street, was blown through the window into the street and picked up insensible and bleeding. Heavy plaster rained down in showers Railings and guards were twisted off the counters, and flying pieces of glass inflicted innumerable cuts in the bewildered clerks. Every window in the lower part of the building was blown out. The iron doors of the vault were almost twisted off their hinges. Everything was confusion, and the wildest rumors got afloat of burglary, &c. The bank was soon besciged with customers and others to ascertain the cause. It appears plumbers were at work on Saturday, and either through their neglect or that of the clerks, a jet in the vault had been left open, and the gas had been escaping since closing work on Saturday. The shock was felt for a considerable distance in the locality. The contents of the vault sustained no injury. The damage is variously estimated at from $1,000 to $5,000. Those injured are Bolster, sub-manager; Fuller, teller (severely); Brurogard, clerk, and Shaw, messenger. Several others are slightly cut.

A Montreal Girl's Clothes.

Correspondence N. Y. Sun.

In a window on Craig street there is displayed the clothing of a Montreal girl. There is only one sample of each sort of her garment, so that it is just as if a girl had undressed there and gone to bed in an adjoining room. Consequently the big store window is filled. The New York women hang about the window all day. First, there is a pair of arctics two sizes too large. A New York girl would faint if a man saw them on her. Then there is a pair of ribbed woollen stockings to go over the shoes, and then the regular shoes, of a size midway between the New York and the St. Louis average. Then a pair of clocked silk stockings, garters, flannel drawers an eighth of an inch thick and made to button at the knee, a flannel under chemise, a linen chemise, a flannel shirt shorter than the two linen shirts, a thick dress, a velvet basque, a sealskin sacque, a sealskin cap, a red worsted mufflor, sealskin gloves, and silk wristlets. These garments altogether must weigh between twenty and twenty-five pounds.

BOY WANTED.—An intelligent boy, of good education, to learn printing. Apply at once at the CHRONICLE office.

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

ROYAL

FULL WEIGHT ROYAL BRAND

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall-st., N. Y.

January 24th, 1884. 1585-48t

Personal.

Quite a large party, consisting of Mr. Joseph Bell and family, Mr. John Scott and wife, and several others, formerly residents of Mt. Elgin and vicinity, left for Nebraska, U.S., on Pacific Express, Monday, per Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. Robinson, the Forwarding Agent of the Co., booked the party through. They were accompanied by a special agent of the G. T. R. as far as Chicago, and will be met there by an official of the connecting road, who will accompany the party to their destination, and attend to their wants en route.

Mr. J. Dillon Smith is taking up a course of commercial law at the Woodstock college.

Mr. C. F. Parker is at present lying dangerously ill with inflammation of the lungs.

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE, Cheap, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to H. O'CONNOR, Jr., Broker, Ingersoll. January 10th, 1884. 1583tm

$66 a week at home. $5 outfit free. Pay absolutely sure. No risk. Capital not required. Reader, if you want business at which persons of either sex, young or old, can make great pay all the time they work, with absolute certainty. Write for particulars to H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN. A NEW PIANO, one of the best makes in America. The Piano can be seen at VANCE'S STORE, Thames Street. Ingersoll, Jan. 31st, 1884. 1586tf

TO THE INDEPENDENT ELECTORS

—OF THE—

SOUTH RIDING

—OF—

OXFORD.

GENTLEMEN:

Having been requested by many electors of both political parties to offer myself as a candidate to represent the riding in the Legislature of Ontario, rendered vacant by the unfortunate illness of the Hon. Adam Crooks, I have made up my mind to comply with their request.

In taking this step I feel it my duty to put before you my views upon some of the prominent questions affecting the welfare of our province.

As you are aware, I have never closely identified myself with either political party. I believe that measures and not men should more largely influence our actions and guide our legislatures and executive, especially do I think less politics would at the present time be beneficial to our provincial interests.

While entertaining these sentiments, as the government of the province is carried on by party government, I can only practically give them expression by expressing my position as matters now stand, hoping, however, that the day may be fast approaching when party feeling may moderate in our provincial councils, so that we may be more closely united in looking after the best interests of our great province, instead of fighting over party differences.

I heartily approve of the reference of the Boundary Question by the Government to the Privy Council, and believe that a speedy and satisfactory adjustment of this much vexed question will be arrived at satisfactory to Ontario,

Each province should, in my opinion, have the exclusive right to control its liquor traffic, if the British North America Act does not so provide at present. I am in favour of such lesislative action as will effectually remove all doubts on the question.

I will oppose all attempts at interference with our proper provincial rights, believing that each province is the best judge of how to manage its own local affairs.

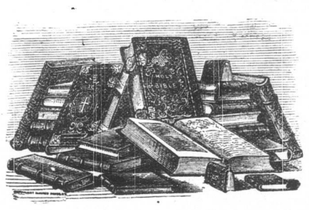
I am not in favour of frequent changes in our school books, and would press upon the Government the desirability, if practicable, of taking charge of the printing for schools, thus giving the people the benefit of the profits made by the dealers, by supplying the books at actual cost.

I will oppose any attempt to lessen the powers of our municipal councils, and favour the strictest economy in managing our provincial finances.

Gentlemen, I beg to add in conclusion that if elected, I will give the present Government of Ontario an Independent support.

As you are aware I was born and have always lived in the riding. Your interests are the same as mine. In seeking election I have no end in view but to serve the county. If you consider me worthy of your confidence, I hope you will vote for me and secure my election as your representative in the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario.

I remain, Gentlemen, Your Obedient Servant,



GEO. A. COOKE.

Dated at Norwich, Feb. 20, 1884. 1590i

School Books

AT ROBINSON'S,

A full stock of SCHOOL BOOKS always on hand.

WALL PAPER

AT ROBINSON'S,

A beautiful line of American and English Wall Papers just received for the Spring Trade, at very low prices.

WINDOW BLINDS

AT ROBINSON'S,

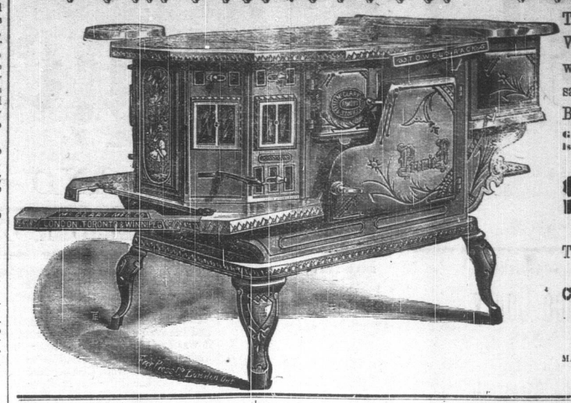
In plain Green Paper, Buff and Green Paper, Figured Blinds in Paper and Opaque Linen.

BLANK BOOKS,

MEMORANDUM BOOKS,

INKS, NOTE PAPERS, &c.,

—AT—



ROBINSON'S

Violins, Accordeons, Concertinas, Flutes, Etc., always in stock at

ROBINSON'S.

Ingersoll, Feb. 28th, 1884. 1590

COMBINATION STOVE.

The Most Perfect Coal and Wood Stove Manufactured, with round fire pot, on the same principle as a Base Burner.

Guaranteed to Give Perfect Satisfaction. Call and See it Working at the Store of

S. KING

Star House,

Thames Street, Ingersoll.

Cheese Vats, Milk Cans, Sap Pans, and Pails

MADE TO ORDER.

PRICES LOW.

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT. A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT. J. C. HEGLER. Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557c-m

London Loan Company, LONDON, ONTARIO.

$100,000 to lend at Lowest Rates, Short loans at 6 and 6½ per cent. Apply to M. J. KENT, Manager, London, Feb. 7th, 1884. 1557v-y

SIGN OF THE GOLDEN ANVIL

A. H. ELLIS,

IMPORTER OF

SHELF AND HEAVY HARDWARE,

Paints, Oils GLASS, ETC.

Thames St., - Ingersoll.

February 14th, 1884. 88

BECK.

HAVING Bought out the Business Lately carried on by ROBT. YOUNG

We intend keeping always on hand a first-class selection of

FRUIT

OF ALL KINDS,

CANNED GOODS

Fine Confectionery.

OYSTERS

JELLYS, JAMS

Hermetically Sealed Goods, Etc.,

And hope by close attention to busines and SELLING CHEAP To merit the patronage of the public.

GEO. BECK.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th 1883. 1580

"When the Spring Time Comes."

There is Nothing Like Cheap Dry Goods,

—AND—

J. S. SMITH & CO.

OF THE OXFORD HOUSE,

Are Prepared, Having Opened Out

New and Nobby Spring Prints and Cretonnes.

New Checked and Oxford Shirtings.

New Grey and White Cottons

New Lace Curtains and Lambrequins.

ALL BARGAINS.

New Denims, Ducks, Cotton Tweeds, and Printed Bafferties.

New Lines in Cashmeres and Dress Goods.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins—Plain and Brocades.

Popular Prices and Big Bargains.

We will Allow No One to Undersell Us.

Oxford House, Ingersoll. J. S. SMITH & CO.

February 21st, 1884. 89

Browett's Drug Store.

CHEMICALS, DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

DISPENSING. Prescriptions and Family Receipts done according to the latest and most approved methods, by competent persons.

PATENT MEDICINES. A large stock of the most reliable, among such are Carson's Bitters, Mack's Magnetic, Emulsion Cod Liver Oil, West's Cough Syrup, Nerve and Brain Treatment, Safe Cure, Sulphur and Iron Bitters, &c.

TOILET & FANCY ARTICLES. Hair Brushes, Combs, Perfumes Soaps, Sponges, Ladies' Satchels, Purses, Toilet Sets, Vases, Etc., Etc.

SPECIALTIES. Baking Powders, (has recommended itself.) Tooth Powder, (refreshing perfume and flavor, cleanses beautifully without injury,) Tricophorns gives gloss, strength and softness to the hair), Voice Lozenges (excellent for singers, 5c per ounce.)

J. W. BROWETT,

Dispensing Chemist, next to Ellis' Hardware Store

January 17th, 1885. 1584

NELLES & STEVENS

Having opened out in the O'Neil stand, in General Groceries, take this their first opportunity of soliciting a call from the people of Ingersoll and vicinity. Our stock will at all times be found replete with everything to be found in a First-class Grocery. TEAS A SPECIALTY.

☞By strict attention to business, care in the selection of a first-class article in buying, we hope to merit a portion of the trade of the community and still retain the very liberal patronage bestowed upon the late proprietor.

W. B. NELLES. M. L. STEVENS.

Ingersoll, February 14th, 1884. 88

I. COYNE

Has just received an immense stock of

Grey and White Cottons, Check Shirting, Denims, Cottonades, Ducks, Prints, Etc.,

For the early spring trade, which he now offers by the yard or piece at

Rock Bottom Prices!

Piles of Prints from 5 cents per yard up. See our 35 inch Grey Cotton at 6¾cts. See our Check Canada Shirtings at 10c and 12½cts, worth 20 per cent. more. See our 30 cent. Cottonades for 25 cents. In Dress Goods and Silks I. Coyne offers astonishing value. Coloured Silks for 37½ cts worth 50 cts. Dress goods at 10, 12½ and 15 cts per yard, worth 20 per cent more.

You will consult your best interests by calling on I. COYNE when in Town and examining his immense variety of NEW GOODS. We take a pleasure in showing you through, no matter whether you buy or not.

I. COYNE has also just received a wholesale stock of Embroideries in beautiful designs, which he is selling at prices much below those of last spring.

EVERY LADY IN WANT OF EMBROIDERIES SHOULD SEE OUR IMMENSE VARIETY.

The largest stock and the largest assortment of New Goods in Ingersoll are to be found at I. COYNE'S.

PRICES DEFY COMPETITION.

I. COYNE.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

NOTICE.

Just Received an Immense Stock of

Wall Papers and Borders

Of the newest designs, which will be offered at VERY LOW PRICES in order to induce customers to commence house cleaning early, at

L. THOMPSON'S

Wall Paper, Stationery, Oil, Color and Window Glass Store, McCaughey's Block, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

IT LEADS ALL.

No other blood-purifying medicine is made, or has ever been prepared, which so completely meets the wants of physicians and the general public as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases. If there is a lurking taint of Scrofula about you, SCROFULA AYER'S SARSAPARILLA will dislodge it and expel it from your system. For constitutional or scrofulous Catarrh, CATARRH AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

ULCEROUS SORES "At the age of two years one of my children was terribly afflicted with ulcerous running sores on its face and neck. At the same time its eyes were swollen, much inflamed, and very sore. SORE EYES Physicians told us that a powerful alterative medicine must be employed. They united in recommending AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. A few doses produced a perceptible improvement, which, by an adherence to your directions, was continued to a complete and permanent cure. No evidence has since appeared of the existence of any scrofulous tendencies; and no treatment of any disorder was ever attended by more prompt or effectual results. Yours truly, B. F. JOHNSON."

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

Xmas & New Years.

R. H. YOUNG

Has on hand a large assortment of

BLANKETS

And all kinds of

HARNESS!

And everything required for the winter campaign.

ESPECIAL GOOD VALUE.

OLD STAND, PHOENIX BLOCK,

Opposite the Market,

Cash or Wood taken in exchange for goods.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883. 1780

JAS. McINTYRE

UNDERTAKER,

HAS REMOVED BACK TO HIS old stand in the

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

A Large Stock of COFFINS, and CASKETS SHROUDS and ROBES on hand.

FURNITURE

All kinds in stock. Residence first house north of warehouse, King street, Ingersoll. nber 22, 1881.

A Fact Established,

—THAT—

Wilkinson's

IS THE

PLACE TO BUY

YOUR

Groceries, Crockery,

AND GLASSWARE.

Also a large assortment of Fancy Goods suitable for Holiday Gifts.

Prices to suit the Times.

Note the place, one door West of Daly House.

KING STREET WEST.

Ingersoll, Dec. 20th, 1883.

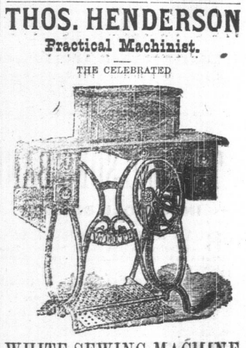
THE

"Little Wonder."

Re-Opening!

Me and my father, my father and me,
Can sell you the best of Black and Green Tea.
The very best Sugar and choicest of Spice,
With Lard, Pork and Ham, and very good Rice,
In fact all the Groceries you can well name.
My father kept good ones and I'll do the same,
So come with your orders and with your money
For business without is not pleasant as honey.

E. H. HEWITT,



PROPRIETRESS.

Ingersoll, Nov. 1, 1883. 1573

THOS. HENDERSON

Practical Machinist.

THE CELEBRATED

WHITE SEWING MACHINE

At Reasonable Prices.

THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

A Five Years' Warranty

With every Machine.

Durable and Simple!

A Child can Use It!

LIGHT - MACHINERY

Of every description repaired, Keys made, Locks, Sewing Machines, Guns, and Revolvers Repaired,

Skates, Knives, Scisssors, Razors, and Saws Sharpened.

I have just put in a Steam Engine, and am now prepared to do all kinds of Saw Gumming, and a greater variety of work than ever before.

THOS. HENDERSON,

BOLES' BLOCK.

NOTICE TO CRED

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

JAMES NOXON, Esq.,

—THE—

REFORM CANDIDATE

—WILL—

Address the Electors

AS FOLLOWS:

SPRINGFORD,
Friday Ev'g, Feb. 29th

BEACHVILLE,
Saturday Ev'g, March 1st

INGERSOLL,
Monday Ev'g, March 3rd

Dicksons' Corners,
Tuesday Ev'g, March 4th

February 21, 1884. 1589

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

MEETINGS

IN THE INTEREST OF

JAS. NOXON, ESQ.,

—THE—

REFORM CANDIDATE,

WILL BE HELD AT

SALFORD,
Friday Evening, Feb. 29th

SWEABURG,
Friday Evening, Feb. 29th

THAMESFORD,
Friday Evening, Feb. 29th

MT. ELGIN,
Saturday Evening, March 1st

HAWTREY,
Saturday Evening, March 1st

MT. ELGIN.
Monday Afternoon, March 3rd

BROWNSVILLE,
Monday Evening, March 3rd

TILSONBURG,
Monday Evening, March 3rd

BEACONSFIELD,
Monday Evening, March 3rd

EASTWOOD,
Tuesday Evening, March 4th

NEWARK,
Tuesday Evening, March 4th

Meetings commence at 7.30.

February 28th, 1884. 1590

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

School Books—Robinson's Book Store.
Special—Frank Leslie.
Special—The Art Interchange.
Meeting—John Charlton.
Credit Sale—John McDonald.
Auction Sale—John McCaul.
The Alleghanians.
New Fruits—A. M. Smith.
THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN.
Notice to Creditors—Thos. Brown.
Servant Wanted—Mrs. J. A. McInnes.
Planos—Box 156.
Cheese Maker Wanted—A. McBean.
Meetings—James Noxon.
S. S. Spring Exhibition.
Special—J. G. McKay.
Note Lost—P. Kennedy.
Notice—Jas. Noxon.
Notice—Geo. A. Cook.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

GOOD sleighing again.

SPECIAL meeting of the council to-night.

NOMINATION day—yesterday—brought a large crowd to town.

CARNIVAL on Friday evening, March 7th, for the benefit of the Band.

LIFE ASSURANCE.—Mr. W. S. King has been appointed agent for the Life Association of Canada, head office at Hamilton, Ont.

MAPLE SUGAR.—"New maple sugar" was offered for sale on the market Saturday morning. It looked as if it had been made of New Orleans molasses.

CARNIVAL BENEFIT.—Last carnival of the season for the benefit of the band on Friday evening, 7th March. The band boys deserve a "full house."

"CHAIR BOARDERS" is the name now applied to those gentlemen who infest the hotel reading rooms, getting heat, a comfortable seat, and the latest news.

"PAPA, what is meant by an anomaly?"

"An anomaly, my son," replied the father "is a man who pays his gas bill without referring to the company as a thief.

SPRING FAIR.—The seed, grain and stallion fair, will be held Thursday, 12th April. The seed show in the town hall, and the horse show in the town park. See adv.

TOO ENTERPRISING.—We like enterprise, but it is possible to be too enterprising. The people who are now advertising that they have Christmas and New Year's goods for sale are too enterprising.

THE novel "Two Kisses" is said to be having a great run. We know of a man in this town who took "Two Kisses" and is having a great run. The woman's husband is after him.

LENT.—The lenten season begins on Wednesday, the 27th inst. Services are announced to be held each Wednesday and Friday evening till the close of the season, in St. James church.

SOLD OUT.—O. T. Wright, photographer, has sold out to Messrs. Rowe & Browse, of Toronto. Mr. Wright has gone to Guelph to conduct a gallery for Mr. Marshall, of that city.

SPRING FAIR.—A meeting of the committee for making arrangements for the Spring Fair, to be held at Ingersoll, April 17th, took place at Rice's hotel, on Friday last. Gentlemen present, E. Monk, Pres.; Gr. H. Wilson, Alex. McFarlane, Reeve of Norwich; Mr. Harris, Springford; D. S. Butterfield, Norwich.

LECTURE.—Rev. J. Laycock, of Parkhill, will give his celebrated lecture entitled "small things" in the M.E. Church, Charles St., on Monday, March 10th. Admission free. Silver collection taken. Proceeds for conference claims. The same Rev. gentleman will preach in the above church, Sabbath, March 9th, morning and evening.

M. E. CHURCH.—The Fourth Quarterly meeting of the present conference year will be held next Sabbath, Mar. 2nd. Rev. Dr. Gardiner, P. E., will officiate; the Love Feast will commence at 9:30 a.m. the Lord's Supper and preaching by the P. E., afterwards. This is the last distinctively M. E. Quarterly meeting that will be held in Ingersoll, unless, (what is not very probable) the legislation now pending should fail.

CLOSE SEASONS FOR FISH.—The following schedule of the close seasons for fish in Ontario during the year 1884, which has just been issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, may be of interest:—Pickerel, 15th April to 15th May; maskinonge, 15th April to 15th May; bass, 15th April to 15th May; salmon trout and large grey trout, 1st Nov. to 10th Nov.; white fish, 1st Nov. to 10th Nov.; speckled trout, 15th Sept. to first May.

M. E. CHURCH.—The M. E. Missionary Anniversary Services last Sabbath were a success, in every way. Rev. William Williams, of Woodstock, preached two very profound and eloquent sermons; the one in the forenoon from Heb. 2:9, and the evening discourse from Isa 53:11. The congregations were large, and the financial results grand. The full amount apportioned to this station, was raised, which is very creditable to the congregation.

EXTENDING THE ACT.—The bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature by Hon. A. M. Ross, respecting noxious weeds, extends the operation of the Act respecting thistles. Municipal Councils may without petition appoint an inspector to secure the destruction of weeds, and must do so if fifty landholders petition that such appointment be made. This is a step in the right direction. The inspector's duty shall be to have thistles cut when they are not destroyed after due notice is given, and the cost is to be assessed against the owner of the land.

☞ Diamond Dyes will Color Anything any color, and never fail. The easiest and best way to economize. 10c. at all druggists. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. Sample Card, 32 colors, and book of directions for 2 cent stamp.

TELEPHONIC.

Names of Subscribers in Ingersoll.

There are now fifty telephones in use in Ingersoll, as follows:—

Aikman Dr., residence.
Buchanan M. T., residence.
Buchanan M. T., office.
Browett J. W., drug store.
Brown & Wells, office.
Brady Jas., residence.
Bell W. C., office.
Credit Valley Railway Office.
Campbell H., Jr., store.
Casswell E., residence.
Casswell E., office.
Daly House, hotel.
Ellis A. H., store.
Great North Western Telegraph Co. office.
Gas Works, office.
Gayler J. C. B., residence.
Grant J. L. & Co., pork factory.
Grant J. L., office.
Garnett G. F., THE CHRONICLE office.
Gayfer John, residence,
Gayfer John, drug store.
G. T. R. R., ticket office.
Hoyt Dr., residence.
Hoyt & Williams, office.
Hegler J. C., office.
Imperial Bank, office.
King W. S., office.
Merchant's Bank.
McInnes John A., residence.
McCarty A. J., hotel and livery.
McCarty H. D., store.
McDonald John, residence.
McKay Dr., office.
McDonald J. F., office.
Noxon Bro's Manufacturing Co., office.
Noxon James, residence.
Podmore John, residence.
Russell John & Co., office.
Richardson Fred., office.
St. James' Church.
Seldon Thos., market building.
Stuart Peter & Co., mill.
Thompson G. A., residence.
Waterhouse & Bradbury, factory.
Waterhouse & Bradbury, store.
Wilson J. M., store.
Wilson & Robertson, store.
Wilson C. C. L., residence. 90v.

An "Independent" means nothing, vote for one who is manly enough to place his views before you and mark your ballot for JAMES NOXON.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

GRATEFUL.—Mr. and Mrs. A. McLeod desire to express their heartfelt thanks to Messrs. N. Elliott and W. Toull, as well as the other friends who were instrumental in rescuing their child from drowning.

SOCIAL.—The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church, will hold a social next Wednesday evening, March 5th, at the residence of the pastor, Rev. J. Reynolds, King St., West, Chapman's Terrace, opposite the C. M. Church. All are cordially invited.

There is scarcely one load of grain brought into market this year for every fifty last year.—St. Marys Argus.

The superior attractions of Ingersoll both as a market and as a place to buy goods of every kind has drawn a large trade to Ingersoll that formerly went to St. Marys.

"THE PIRATES."—The Woodstock Amateur Opera Co. gave the "Pirates of Penzance," to a large and very appreciative audience, on Tuesday evening. The opera was presented in such a manner as to attract the heartiest applause, the audience forgetting that they were listening to amateurs, so well were the parts taken. It is by far the best company that has visited Ingersoll for a year past, not excepting the best professional troupes.

ELOQUENCE AND ANECDOTE.—Col. Bain, the gifted temperance lecturer, delivered an address in the Town Hall last evening under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. There was a large attendance. The lecture was largely made up of the emotional, being replete with touching anecdotes, here and there diversified with eloquent passages of flowery rhetoric. At the same time many logical and cogent reasons were advanced by the Colonel in support of "the faith that is in him."

DOWN with the Woodstock clique and VOTE FOR JAMES NOXON, the Nominee of the Liberal party.

COURSE OF LECTURES.—The 4th in the couse of lectures given on Sabbath evenings in the B. C. Church, will be given next Sabbath evening by Rev. Mr. Rowe. The lecture for next Sabbath will be illustrated with 8 large diagrams, representing bible scenes in wilderness of Arabia. Erraha plain, the place where tabernackle was made on Mount Sinai the place where the law was given will be among the scenes, which with their lessons cannot fail to impress and instruct every Bible reader. Admission free.

BARGAINS.—J. Grant McKay has purchased the bankrupt stock of H. J. Lewis, and will hold auction sales every afternoon at 2 o'clock and every evening at 7 o'clock, until the whole is disposed of. Private sales during the morning. 90v.

SEED GRAIN.—Any of our subscribers having seed grain for sale will receive reduced rates for advertising the same for the next two months.—Intelligent farmers are aware by experience that the same grain should not be grown on any land longer than three or four years, and we trust those who have not had grain of good quality last season, will dispose of it all, and purchase fresh seed where the quality is better. Buy what suits your land, and be sure it is clean and sound. Don't wait until you are ready to sow, thus wasting your own time and annoying the man you are buying from; but secure it at once while you have leisure time to look around for what will suit you.

MR. NOXON was nominated by Mr. Nancekivell, and seconded by Mr. Brady. This is a sufficient contradiction to the falsehoods circulated to the effect that Liberals are supporting Mr. Cook.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY.—The March number is, we think, one of the best yet issued of this deservedly favorite magazine. The 128 quarto pages are filled with choice, entertaining and instructive literature; and there are over 100 handsome embellishments, besides a very tasteful colored plate frontispiece, "A Woodnymph." The articles embrace various subjects, and are by popular writers. "Soudan and its Complications," "Napoleon's Marshals," "Living Homes," "The New York Negro Plot of 1741," etc., are exceedingly interesting. There are poems of great merit, and a comprehensive miscellany of pleasant reading matter. The price is only 25 cents for a single number, and a year's subscription $2.50, postpaid. Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York.

VOCALISTS AND BELL PLAYERS.—The Alleghenians are announced to appear at the town hall to-morrow (Friday) evening, when they will give one of their unique concerts, have recently returned from a very successful tour of eleven years in Europe. The troupe comes to us with the highest praise from the European press, as well as an unequivocal endorsement from the American press—both before they left and since they returned from Europe. As vocalists they delight their audience wherever they appear, and as bell players they have no superiors. Our exchanges speak of their concerts in a most positive endorsement as will be shown by the following extracts and chippings: "The genuine and hearty applause accorded the performers must have convinced them that their wonderful performance was appreciated."—[Liverpool (England) Mercury. "In quartet they are marvelously effective. The 'Burning Ship' was given in a splendid manner—the vocalists throwing, seemingly, their whole souls into the music and thrilling the audience."—[N. Y. Herald. The price will be placed at a popular rate.

THE ART INTERCHANGE.—The Art Interchange of February 14th contains a beautiful design in color—"The Butterfly Fairy." It is shown a beautiful cupid being driven through the clouds by a multitude of brillianty colored butterflies; a number of gracefully disposed birds completes a very charming design, and one which is especially adapted to painting upon silk or satin. It would make a beautiful fan mount, or could be used to advantage on a lamp-shade or wall-hanging. Other attractive illustrations are six designs for a fish set. These are both beautiful and unique. A crab-apple design for a parcel, and another, from the Royal School of Art Needlework at South Kensington, England, is another example of good design. Sample copy sent upon receipt of 10 cents. Address—William Whitlock, 140 Nassau Street, New York.

VOTE for an able public speaker and a man who knows your wants by marking your ballot opposite the name of JAMES NOXON.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.2F. The best value ever offered in Ingersoll.—S. P. Loges. 56

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

South Oxford Election

The Nomination Yesterday.

The Largest and Most Representative Political Meeting Ever Held in this County.

800 Electors Gathered Together!

JAMES NOXON,

The Liberal Candidate.

MAKES A ROUSING ADDRESS.

AND CARRIES THE AUDIENCE WITH HIM.

Liberals Solid for NOXON and the Mowat Government.

The "Independent" Pans Out Very Poorly.

At one o'clock yesterday afternoon the Town Hall was jammed to the utmost with the sturdy yeomanry of South Oxford, who were evidently bent upon hearing the issues of the day discussed, that they might intelligently cast their ballot on the 5th proximo. Never, we believe, in the history of South Oxford, was there a more representative gathering or a more attentive one, and from the beginning to the end the best of feeling prevailed.

At the legal hour, Sheriff Perry, the Returning Officer, read the proclamation and called for which were responded to as follows:—

NOMINATIONS,

Jas. Noxon—Nominated by Wm. Nancekivell, seconded by Jas. Brady.

Geo. A. Cook—Nominated by D. W. Miller, seconded by M. Kennedy.

Dr. McKay—Nominated by D. Morrison, seconded by F. Cody.

William Nancekivell—Nominated by R. Ryan, seconded by Ira Carroll.

Jas. Brady—Nominated by B. Minkler, seconded by G. Galloway.

A. Pattullo—Nominated by H. A. Titus, seconded by S. Pitcher.

W. T. Preston—Nominated by W. Watterworth, seconded by J. Sheahan.

Dr. J. A. Williams—Nominated by Geo. Wiseman, seconded by R. Luno.

Just before the time expired for receiving nominations, Messrs. Dr. McKay, Nancekivell, Brady, Pattullo and Preston retired, leaving Messrs. Jas. Noxon and Geo. A. Cook, as the only candidates for the suffrages of the electors in the pending contest.

The Returning officer, before leaving the chair, (a little after two o'clock,) gave a short speech embodying some useful instructions for the guidance of the Deputy Returning Officers, warning them that his return must be based upon the open papers—not upon the sealed envelopes or packages, and cited instances to show the necessity of observing his instructions.

Mr. J. Vining Bodwell demanded a poll on behalf of Mr. Jas. Noxon, and Mr. Miller demanded a poll on behalf of Mr. Cook.

Sheriff Perry announced that Mr. Noxon had appointed for his financial agent, Mr. Jas. F. McDonald, and Mr. Cook had appointed Mr. Daniel M. Donald of Norwich, as his financial agent.

The meeting was here handed over by the Returning Officer, to Mr. Wm. Watterworth, who was duly appointed to the position of chairman by the almost unanimous vote of the large assemblage.

THE CANDIDATES ADDRESSES.

On Mr. Watterworth assuming the guidance of the meeting, he at once had measures taken to seat all or accommodate in the best manner possible the large gathering congregated at the door, and after a short delay, hundreds of electors were safely housed in the hall, where for some time before they could only reach the outer staircase and clamor for admittance. At this stage, there must have been 800 electors present in the building, every inch of room being utilized and occupied.

MR. WATTERWORTH, on calling the meeting to order, thanked the electors present for placing him in the chair. He did not think his duties would be very onerous, feeling assured that the speakers would all receive fair play. In the order of things, he would call for the first speaker, Mr. Jas. Noxon.

MR. JAMES NOXON on making his appearance was heartily cheered. He referred to the loss which the constituency had sustained in the affliction which had befallen the Hon. Mr. Adam Crooks. He said it had been thought that after the decided opinion passed only a year since that the constituency would not have been put to the trouble of another election. An independent man, however, has appeared in the field, whose independence would be devoted towards embarrassing the Government. He said there never was a time when the Government required the honest support of the people more than the present. The opposition which was being made did not come from the Conservative party, as might be expected, but from one under the guise of independence. Mr. Noxon then passed on to deal with the public question of the day. He discussed the boundary question, showed how the trouble had arisen; the appointment of an arbitration to settle matter, and how their award had been repudiated. He discussed the act which extended the boundaries of Manitoba into the territory claimed by this Province. He said that the non-ratification of the award was due to the opposition of the Bleus of Quebec, who were afraid that by the accession of this territory Ontario would become so powerful as to practically control the Dominion. He said the object of the above-mentioned act was to force a conflict between the Provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. He showed how Ontario and the Northwest were settled by the same people. The sons of Ontario farmers had gone there; the principal staple of both was agriculture, and he showed how infamous it was to try and set these Provinces against each other. He referred to the wise arrangements entered into between Mr. Mowat and the Government of Manitoba to settle the boundary dispute. He asked his hearers if they believed that Mr. Mowat was doing right—was acting in the interests of the Province—to return him one more supporter, to aid in carrying out the good measures in which he was engaged. He showed how the Dominion authorities were infringing on the right of the Province, and he said if the rights of the Province were to be upheld the people must rise and demand that those rights be left to her own control. He asked them if they were willing to surrender their rights, or where they free men, as he believed them to be. (Cheers.) He asked them if they were willing to allow the control of their municipal institutions to be taken out of their hands—if they were willing to abandon their control of the schools, of the liquor traffic and of their railways? Here were two sets of License Commissioners. Hotel-keepers were now forced to pay two licenses. He asked them if they were willing that this state of chaos should continue now. At this election the people would give a decided answer in the matter in favor of the Province. Mr. Noxon next showed how provincial railways had been seized by the Dominion Government without any compensation for the amount expended by the Province upon them. He said not a single mile of railway could be built or a dollar expended upon new railways, because upon their completion they were in danger of being seized by the Dominion and placed under the heels of a favored monopoly. He said the proposition had been made that the Grand Trunk should turn over all its Northwest trafic to the Canada Pacific Railway in return for the complete control of the railroads of Ontario. If this was carried out, British North America from one end to the other would be under the iron heel of the Grand Trunk Railway. They could fix what rates they pleased and there was no remedy. He asked those farmers present if they were willing to allow this monopoly to eat up all their earnings in the freights charged on their produce. There were about 20,000,000 bushels of grain exported annually, and he asked them if they were willing to allow the Grand Trunk Railway to swallow all the profits made on this, and leave the farmers nothing but a bare sustenance. He promised them if returned that he would bring this matter before the Legislature, and set his face against such monopoly. (Applause). Mr. Noxon next went on to deal with the financial affairs of the country. He showed how the Government were squandering immense sums of money, by presenting it to the C. P. R. Syndicate and to the Province of Quebec, and he said two thirds of this money would come out of the pockets of the people of Ontario. He next took up the school book question. He said that his opponent was in favour of having the Government print all the school books. This had been done. The old Board of Public Instruction formerly printed the books, and a more worthless and useles lot of books never had been printed. (Cheers and laughter.) He took issue with his opponent on that point when he proposed to go back to the good old times when such books were used. Mr. Noxon said Mr. Cook was a man who read the newspapers, who heard all the public questions, and yet his mind was still a blank. He could not make it up on any of these questions. He asked if there was a man in the hall besides his opponent who would get up and acknowledge his mind was a blank? (Laughter.) Mr. Noxon said he himself had formed opinions upon public questions, and strong opinions at that. If they supported him they might rest assured they would not be represented by one whose mind was a blank. (Applause.) He said he had met Mr. Cook for the first time a few nights since. He was a perfect gentleman and a good citizen, and he thought it a pity to deprive his fellow-citizens in his own locality of him by sending him to the Legislature. They had before them two men, one with his mind made up and his principles fixed, the other timid, shrinking, not knowing what he would do next, and he asked them not to vote for Jas. Noxon or Geo. A. Cook, but to vote for the principles they represented. Mr. Noxon concluded by saying he felt assured he would receive the support of a large majority of the electors, and withdrew amid the most enthusiastic applause.

MR. GEO. A. COOK—His opponent had drawn his photograph so thoroughly that it was hardly necessary to show himself, if the previous speakers' statements were correct. As an "Independent," however, it was the electors' duty to know how he stood upon the great questions of the day. Did not think a slur should be cast upon the Lower Canadian Judges, as had been done, respecting the Boundary Award, and believed that the Privy Council would give a decision in favour of Ontario. They should have the right to legislate for themselves, as they were the best able to judge for themselves. On the License Question his views were the same as was embodied in an article of a late issue of the Globe. After reading the article Mr. Cook declared they were his sentiments, and he was in sympathy with the result of the vote carried on Monday in Toronto. He was not a public speaker. He was but a young man, and had some friends, and these friends he urged to vote for him on the 5th, and if elected he would vote in their interests. Mr. Cook's speech did not occupy five minutes in delivery, including the reading of the Globe's article, and much of his speech was given in such a low tone as to make it almost impossible to be heard a few feet away from the speaker.

DR. MCKAY, on being called for, took the platform amid great applause. He assured the audience that had been enough of politics for one day, and did not require much from him. He thanked his friends for nominating him on the present occasion. With such vital questions before them, the electors should carefully consider the candates, especially in view of legislation that was likely to be made, and being made by the Dominion Government prejudicial to the interests of this Province. They should send a man to the legislature that would be a credit to them, and a key-note to the noble riding of South Oxford. They had no difficulty to arrive at a conclusion as to whom they should send after hearing the two candidates. Mr. Cook was at one time allied with the conservative party, and last year got the nomination of the conservative convention. That gentlemen was then believed to be a conservative in body, or else since that time he has materially changed his views. At this stage Dr. McKay cited an anecdote illustrating Mr. Cook's position, which was received with cheers and laughter. He compared Mr. Cook to the green-backer who "wanted the coon." He, the speaker, did not know whether Mr. Cook was after the coon or not, but he certainly was "independent" because he wanted the Local Legislature, (applause and laughter.) That gentleman had given his opinions, which were non-committal. They should send a man to Parliament that would give no uncertain sound, and one able at all times to stand up and express his opinion boldly, particularly when their rights were being encroached upon. After referring to the vetoing of the "act respecting navagable streams" and other matters where the Dominion Government had encroached upon the civil rights of this Province, the speaker went on to say that unless these encreuchments were stopped the provincial legislature would be treated by the Dominion Government as a sham, and they would not get their rights unless they changed their views. They should send a man of pronounced views. He was glad to see so many before him. It showed that the people were aroused, and that on the 5th March there would be such a rousing majority as so forever shut off "Independent" candidates from troubling the riding of South Oxford—(loud applause.)

MR. NANCEKIVELL next took the platform and was cordially received. He said he felt it his duty to acknowledge the complimentary act of his nomination. Both candidates seem to belong to one party—one was "independent," and the other most positive. "Independents" were at times dangerous. The present Government had a clear majority of 12. Supposing there were seven "Independents" in the House, they would be able to control it, and wield a greater influence than the two distinct parties. They had no object in sending a "distant" supporter of the Government. On the 5th of March his ballot would be cast for Mr. Jas. Noxon. (Cheers.)

MR. JAS. BRADY was heartily applauded on taking the platform. He stated that it was with no ordinary pleasure that he stood before them and see so many old faces present on this occasion. Yet the pleasure was somewhat tinged with sorrow when he thought of Mr. Oliver and Mr. Crooks, their late representatives, who had passed from their sight. In the order of things, however, they must look ahead and be content, and the Government machinery must be worked. He was to-day, as he had always been, a supporter of the Liberal nominee. If it was necessary to have Reform Conventions, they were as Reformers in duty bound to support the nominee. He had nothing to say against Mr. Cook, but was sorry to see that this gentleman had undertaken such a laborious task of representing South Oxford. (Applause and laughter.) When Mr. Cook received the Conservative nomination he told them he did not belong to that side, and that he was allied to no party. Believed it to be the duty of every elector, of both political parties, to rally to the polls and give Mr. Noxon such a rousing majority as to render useless for all time to come for any man to put himself forward as an "Independent." All eyes were directed to South Oxford, and if they should stultify themselves by sending down an "Independent" it would be a sorry day for this Riding. He had no fear of the result. (Applause.) He was satisfied to let the Ontario Government control the Liquor License interest. They should prove true to the law makers of Ontario and stand by the Crooks' & Wood Act. It was their duty to support Mr. Noxon on this occasion. Mr. Cook did not deserve their support unless he could show that he was entitled to it. The opposition comes from the little town east of them. Mr. Brady concluded by thanking the mover and seconder of his nomination, and retired amid hearty applause.

MR. A. PATTULLO paid a high eulogy to Mr. Noxon's abilities. He thought those who had bore the heat and brunt of the past battles should be preferred to those who had yet to earn their spurs in political or municipal life. Mr. Noxon was before them as a Reformer, and he had been nothing else. He was a gentleman that South Oxford might be well proud of, and was one whose services were needed in the legislature.

MR. W. T. PRESTON, of Toronto, said it augured well for South Oxford when such men as Mr. James Noxon can come before them and discuss the great burning questions of the day as that gentleman had. He, the speaker, had never seen a contest before where the candidates were so far apart as to leave no difficulty in choosing whom to send to the Legislature; or where a candidate could not say on what side he was as illustrated by Mr. Cook. They found this gentleman before them with a Globe in one pocket, and a Mail in the other, and yet between these two great political factors he was unable to define which side he was on. When Mr. Cook had formed decided opinions, it would then be time for him to come before the electors to seek their suffrages. This was not the time to send a man to Parliament to learn his political A. B. C. He did not think the "Independent" cry would amount to much in South Oxford. He challenged any one to point his finger on the political history of any country to show where an "Independent" ever rose to prominence. Nay, all great men sprung from one distinct party or the other, having decided and pronounced convictions. Amid much merriment Mr. Preston closed with the anecdote of the boy and the elephant, and resumed his seat amid great cheering. This gentleman is a pleasing speaker, and although a stranger to the electors he soon won their sympathy, and time and again was accorded hearty applause.

The meeting closed with hearty cheers for Mr. James Noxon, and for the chairman, Mr. Wm. Watterworth.

This meeting was by all odds a grand ovation to Mr. Noxon and speaks well for a decisive victory for this gentleman on Wednesday next. Reformers, however, must be up and fully alive to their duty, and let not over-confidence lull them into fancied security.

LETTER FROM A NORTH OXFORD LIBERAL.

The Woodstock Clique Shown Up.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE;

DEAR SIR,—It may be of importance in the election to know that Mr. Cook, although his address pledges a weak support to Mr. Mowat's Government, is being brought out by a number of the Woodstock disaffected. Some of Mr. Cook's supporters are thorough Tories and have never cast a Liberal vote in their lives, others have never pronounced themselves in any way and work for the man who they think has the longest pocket. The interests of South Oxford are not identical with those of Woodstock, and if Mr. Cook should be elected, he will favour the Woodstock clique before looking to the welfare of South Oxford. It behooves every true Liberal to put forth his best endeavours to secure the return of Mr. Noxon. His acknowledged abilities and his extensive acquaintance with the wants of his constituents, makes him the best man to represent the Riding. Mr. Cook is working vigorously in the contest, and if Mr. Noxon hopes for success, his supporters must put their "shoulders to the wheel" and push the canvass with the greatest perseverance.

Yours, &c.,
NORTH OXFORD LIBERAL.

Woodstock, Feb. 27, 1884.

Go and hear Mr. Charlton on the great questions of the day at Mt. Elgin, Monday afternoon, March 3rd, and Tilsonburg, Monday Ev'g, March 3rd.

Mr. Noxon's Meeting at Norwich.

Mr. Noxon's meeting at Norwich was largely attended. It was a thoroughly representative one, the hall being crowded to the doors and down the passage. Perfect order reigned, and the frequent applause from the audience denoted how strong and enthusiastic Mr. Noxon's supporters are. In this, the home of Mr. Cook, and where he confidently expects a large majority, there are indications that Mr. Noxon will poll a very heavy vote. The Liberals of Norwich are alive to the great danger the county is in, and will send no uncertain voice to represent the Riding. Mr. Noxon has been long and favourably known to the people of Norwich, and however much personal regard there may be for Mr. Cook, all are united that Mr. Noxon is the man best fitted to serve the Riding. Mr. Cook cannot speak, and his endeavour to express himself at Norwich was a painful exhibition. If he cannot do better than he did, how can South Oxford ever hope to have a voice in the House if he is elected.

South Oxford will not elect Mr. Cook and Norwich will not give him a majority. Let Mr. Cook show himself a true and earnest supporter of the Liberal cause and not come forth half Liberal and half Tory seeking to catch a majority and pledging himself to no party, and no cause.

Let the Norwich's roll up a majority for Mr. Noxon and show their choice for Mr. Mowat's administration.

The Hotel Screen.

One of the rules of the Dominion License Act of 1883 reads as follows:—"The traffic in intoxicating liquors in the bar-rooms of all licensed premises in this district shall be exposed to public view and shall not be hidden or secreted from the observation of the public by any device, screen, shade, blind, curtain, painted or frosted window, or other obstruction, to obscure the view, and the sale and drinking of liquors in a bar-room of all such licensed premises shall be as public and open to the public gaze and the observation of passers in the public street as is the sale of goods, wares, merchandise, and other commodities where such are ordinarily sold."

If you cast your vote for Mr. Cook, or if you abstain from voting, you are placing yourself in antagonism to the present Liberal Government.

Contradictory.

Woodstock Sentinel.

The Ingersoll carnival on Friday evening last was a poor one. Very few from Woodstock attended.

Woodstock Times.

A most successful skating carnival came off at Ingersoll last Friday night, the ice being in fine condition, and the attendance very large, including a large number from Woodstock.

Weldon't know whether there were many from Woodstock or not, one thing however is certain, it was the best carnival held on the rink in two seasons, notwithstanding the evident misunderstanding on the momentees question by our cotems.

County and Vicinity.

A complimentary banquet and presentation was given to H. Muma, Esq., at the Atkinson House, Drumbo, on Tuesday evening last, by his numerous friends in Blenheim, as a slight token of appreciation.

Matthew Steele, an old resident of West Nissouri, died at his home on the 19th. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1805, emigrated to Canada in 1840, and settled in Nissouri in 1844. Three daughters and five sons survive him.

Mr. Alex. Stewart, of Belmont, met with an accident on Saturday which will probably result in his death. He was engaged in assisting to fell a large tree on the Credit Valley section near the village, when a limb fell, striking him on the head and shoulders and inflicting terrible injuries.

THE following is from J. W. Ptolemy, of Winnipeg, formerly grain buyer for William Gilleshy, of Hamilton and Grimsby: "I was for many years much afflicted with Costiveness, Biliousness, and ultimately Dyspepsia. I suffered very much and tried many different medicines, which gave me only temporary relief and then I was as bad as ever again. I was recommended by a friend, who had been restored to health by it, to try Mc Gregor's Speedy Cure. I did so, and it was not long before I felt like a new man, and I have enjoyed excellent health ever since. I first commenced taking it February 7th, 1879. Sold by Gayfer and Kneeshaw.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 86

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

ALWAYS AHEAD.—Mr. McIntyre has purchased a very stylish new glass hearse, which, with the former hearse, will enable him to fill all orders in the undertaking line promptly. 87b

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

LADIES' Kid Boots at Logue's. 80

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.
White Wheat, per bush.	$1 00	to	1 05
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 05
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 08
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	33	to	34
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush.	7 50	to	8 50
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50
PRODUCE.
Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	05
Dried Apples per lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	0	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs.	7 50	to	8 50
Live Hogs "	5 00	to	6 00
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 09	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts "	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	0 18	to	0 20
PROVISIONS.
Flour, new process, Spring, 100 lbs.	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs.	2 75	to	3 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 00	to	2 75
Oatmeal "	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	13 00	to	14 00
Shorts "	00 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	16	to	18
Butter, rolls, per lb	22	to	25
Cheese,	12	to	13½
Skilton Cheese	16	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	25	to	00
Geese,	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	60
Ducks,	60	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12
FARM AND DAIRY.

The Avon Company has secured an excellent cheesemaker, Mr. John Swartout.

The annual meeting of the Eastwood cheese and butter manufacturing Co., will be held in the school house, S. S. No. 2, on Monday, 3rd of March.

Mr. Thomas Ballantyne, M.P.P., of Stratford, and Prof. J. B. Harris, the well known cheese men, leave for Scotland in a couple of weeks. The latter goes in the capacity of instructor in the Scottish dairies.

A large meeting was held in the town hall, Drumbo, on Saturday evening, and decided to have a cheese factory. No doubt it will be a success, and the farmers generally will support it.

Mr. John Steiner, of New Hamburg, director of the Ontario Dairymen's Association, intends controlling the management of two cheese factories during the ensuing season, viz., the Oak Grove and the Phillipsburg.

Mr. E. Hunter, formerly cheese maker for the Dereham and West Oxford Independent Cheese and Butter Mfg. Co., has been engaged as maker for the East and West Oxford factory for the coming season. Mr. Waddell succeeds Mr. Hunter.

There were seven applicants for the position of secretary to the Thamesford cheese factory, one of them being a lady. The directors for the coming season are Messrs. F. Patterson (President), W. Freel, E. Day, M. Kennedy and James Hacton. Mr. C. Garner, we understand, is to be secretary.

The Spring Creek Cheese Manufacturing Co., has just passed through the most successful season that it has experienced since its inception. They have succeeded in paying off about $800 of an encumbrance in property this last season and their stock being rapidly taken up.

It will be news to our readers to know that considerable wheat has been frozen in the neighborhood of Orangeville. Mr. David Goldie sent a buyer up to that locality a short time ago, who made the discovery that the damage by frost was p

FARM AND DAIRY.

Large Milking Holsteins.

To the Editor of the CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN.
Ingersoll, Ont.,

DEAR SIR :—In your issue of Feb. 14 we notice the account of the very deep-milking 2-year-old heifer, owned by N. S. Wright, Elgin, Ill. This account mentions this heifer "Music 2nd," as being born on Sept. 25, 1881, dropped her calf Jan. 1, 1884, and has given over 44 lbs. of milk per day. This is a very remarkable yield for this season of the year. She is spoken of as a granddaughter to our cow "Aggie." She was sired by our bull "Neptune," and he was imported in dam "Aggie." "Aggie," as stated, has made a record of 18004 lbs. 15 ozs. in one year. Her only daughter "Aaggie 2nd," and full sister to our bull "Neptune," made a 2-year-old record of 17746 lbs. 2 ozs. in a year. This was the largest record ever yet made by a cow of that age. "Aaggie's" record has never been equalled but by one cow. This "Music 2nd" was the first get of the bull "Neptune," sired when he was less than 10 mos. old. His next get was "Aegis 6th," now owned by us and dropped Oct. 12, 1881. In December last when a little over 2 years old, she dropped her first calf, and in January gave 44 lbs, 9 ozs. in a day, 1196 lbs. 10 ozs. during the month. These two heifers are the first two sired by this noted bull, and tho only two we believe yet in milk, and we think fully demonstrate the truth of the saying that "blood will tell." Our heifer "Aegis 6th" is out of "Aegis 2nd," which gave the first 3 years in milk commencing at only 22 mos. old, over 35000 lbs. Grand-dam, "Aegis," has a record of 16823 lbs. We have two other 2-year-old heifers, which we think worthy of mention. "Clothilde 2nd" we sold when a small calf before her dam was developed, for about $100. We bought her back last fall, when 2 years past, for $800 cash. She dropped her first calf in December, when 2 years old past, and gave in January 53 lbs. 7 ozs. in a day, and 1429 lbs. 1 oz. during the month. Her dam, "Clothilde," we consider one of the most remarkable milkers in this country. She dropped her first calf when but 23 mos. old and a few days after coming out of quarantine. She gave that season 8064 lbs. 2 ozs ; as a 3-year-old she gave 15622 lbs. 2 ozs. As a 4-year-old she has given to date, in 8 1-2 months, over 13000 lbs., and is still giving over 40 lbs. per day. The other 2-year-old alluded to is "Lida," imported by us and out of a very fine cow in Holland. She has given this winter 53 lbs. 12 ozs. in a day and in the month of December 1424 lbs. 11 ozs. We mention these records, as we consider them quite remarkable for heifers of the age and made, as they are, on winter feed.

Yours respectfully,
SMITHS & POWELL.

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 19.

MARY ANN OF ST. LAMBERT.

What the Americans Say of Mr. Fuller's Celebrated Jersey Cow.

The following from the Atlanta Constitution is given under the head "A $30,000 Jersey cow which lives like a race horse and eats everything in sight":

Capt. G. H. Yancey arrived at Athens, Friday, after a short trip through Canada, where he had gone to purchase some Jersey cattle. The Captain's chief mission was to invest in Jersey cattle, and he spent some time with the most famous breeders. He went to see and also ate some butter from the world-renowned Jersey cow, Mary Ann of St. Lambert, for which an offer of $30,000 was refused, and who would bring on the block in New York $50,000. This cow has yielded four pounds of butter a day, and for eight months past has averaged over three lbs. She is treated like a race-horse, being kept in a stall with litter up to her sides and one man does nothing but attend to her. She has four troughs in her stall and is attended to as regularly as a young princess. The Captain says the most wonderful thing about these cattle is their appetites. Despite being pampered like a child Mary Ann of St. Lawrence seems always hungry, and while he was in her stall she came near chewing off one of his coat tails. But it was not at all disagreeable to receive such attention from a $50,000 bovine. She is as gentle as a lamb and delights in being caressed. The owner of the cow has the finest herd of Jerseys in the world. While Captain Yancey was at his farm he refused an offer of $56,000 for fourteen cows and heifers, and scouted the idea of thus sacrificing his cattle.

A Butter-Making Contest.

A novelty in the shape of a butter-making contest took place on Monday last at the dairy of William Baker, in the Montgomery county. The contestants were John Hurley, a dairyman on the farm of A. J. Cassatt, in Chester county, and William Hope, who is employed in the dairies of Charles Benner in New York.

The test was as to quality, and each man produced fifteen pounds of butter, put up in pound rolls and neatly stamped. Each lump was examined by Charles Warner as tester, and the award of superiority was given to the Pensylvanian.

Alderneys and Jerseys.

The New York Times says the Alderneys and Jerseys are different breeds. There is no doubt a good deal of nonsense talked at times by breeders of cattle, who, of course, as is quite natural, think their favourite breed the best of all kinds. A good many Jerseys are called Alderneys, wrongly, no doubt, and for the reasons that 30 or 40 years ago, when Channel Island cattle became fashionable, the Alderneys were first chosen for their beauty and fawn-like form and colour. They were extremely popular 40 years ago as ornamental cows for grazing on lawns and in parks in England, and the extreme richness of their milk in time brought them into notice as dairy cattle. But Alderney is a very small island, not so large as many farms in this country, and could not supply the demand, and the largest island of the group, Jersey, was drawn upon and in time monopolized the business. For some years the name Alderney was retained, but as the Jersey breeder became jealous of it, the name was changed to Jerseys, as it should be.

Farm and Dairy Notes.

What is the best way to give ground feed and bran to cows? Ans.—Cut the hay, fodder, or straw into fine chaff, wet it, and mix the fine feed with it. It is better digested in this way.

What shall I do for a horse whose hair is rough and who rubs himself all the time? Ans.—Give one pint of linseed oil, repeat the third day. Give a warm bran mash, with a handful of salt and a teaspoonful of powdered sulphate of iron in it, daily for a week or two. Brush him thoroughly twice a day with a stiff hard brush.

What can I do for a steer that will eat only grain and potatoes but not hay, and vomits his food, does not chew his cud but looks badly? Ans.—Give a quart of linseed oil; feed bran mash for a few days; give no grain, but some boiled potatoes cold with a little bran. Feed very lightly until he will eat hay. The trouble is indigestion.

What can I do for a cow whose eye is covered with a white scum from injury by chaff getting into it? Ans.—Put some alum on a hot stove until it becomes a fine dry powder. Blow a pinch of this powder into the eye through a quill. It will cause a discharge of the matter and cleanse the eye. Repeat daily for three or four days. Keep the cow in the dark until the eyes are well.

It is only ten years since Col. George I. Waring ventured the prediction that Jersey cattle would become so popular as to reach as high prices as Shorthorns. At that date Shorthorn cattle averaged three times as much as Jerseys, and Col. Waring's prediction was regarded as merely the over-sanguine hope of an enthusiast. Improbable as it seemed, however, the time has arrived when the little butter cow is valued as highly as the beef-producing Shorthorn, and the average of the public sales this season is rather in favor of the Jerseys.

Just now is a seasonable time to consider that a sheep cannot produce wool without feed. The wool grows rapidly during the cold weather, being a provision of nature made up for the purpose of protecting the sheep against the cold. But its growth is arrested at once when the food is not sufficient. Food is used, first, to promote the animal heat, then to supply the muscular waste; then to make fat, wool, etc. If food is supplied in quantity only sufficient to keep a sheep alive, the wool will not grow and there is a break in the fiber. The fleece is not only deficient in quantity but the quality is so inferior as to greatly reduce the value.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Domestic Recipes.

To Clean Sponges.—Ammonia and hot water will clean them.

White Stains on Zinc.—To remove: Rub with a flannel dipped in kerosene.

A good physic is usually a sure remedy for a cold.

To wet the top of the head with cold water every morning is a preventive to taking cold.

To Clean a Decanter.—Break raw egg shells in small pieces, put them into the decanter, add a little water and ammonia, and shake well.

Starch.—If starch is cooked sufficiently it does not need anything to prevent its sticking. So I am informed by a successful laundress.

Croup.—For quick relief in croup, rub the chest and back of the neck down between the shoulders well with soft grease, chicken grease or lard. Heat it thoroughly by the fire and cover well. This is also good for colds on the lungs. Grease the nose for cold in head.

Oatmeal Wafers.—Oatmeal wafers are relished by babies and older children too. Take a pint of oatmeal and a pint of water, with almost a teaspoonful of salt. Mix, and spread on butter pans. Make it just as thin as it is possible, and yet have the bottom of the pan covered. Bake slowly.

Bed Bugs and Fleas.—A thorough washing with carbolic soap and rubbing every joint and crack in wood-work and bed with crude petroleum will banish bed bugs, for a certainty. I hope the time is at hand when these things will be considered a disgrace to be in any bed-room, or piece of furniture. Fleas are difficult to manage where dogs are kept, unless these are kept free from the pests by means of carbolic washes. Cleanliness and careful attention will banish these insects; and for wood-work or gaping joints of houses, it is a good thing to use strong aromatic herbs that are disagreeable to the nuisances.

Scotch Broth.—Take a neck of mutton, and trim it as for cutlets; remove seven of the cutlets and put them aside on a dish; put the remaining parts of the neck into a saucepan with two quarts of soft, cold water; add two onions, one with two cloves stuck in; when the water is just on the boil, skim; add altogether half a pint of the following vegetables, made up of about equal quantities—carrots, turnips, leeks, and onions, cut up into quarter inch dice; simmer for three hours; add pepper and salt to taste; scald two ounces of Scotch barley, finish cooking it in water, with a little butter and salt; put the chops into another stew-pan with some of the broth or stock; slowly cook them; drain the barley and put into the tureen with the cutlets; remove the neck of mutton on to a dish; pour the broth into the tureen, add a dessert spoonful of coarsely chopped parsley previously scalded. Precautions.—Do not boil after adding the vegetables. Have the barley ready soaked for two hours before scalding.

Cause of the Bright Twilight.

Philadelphia Record.

The conclusion reached by Joseph Wharton of this city from experiments made with dust found in the snowfall of January 20 last, that the brilliant twilights of the past winter were caused by volcanic particles in the air, finds corroboration in the experience of the ship Ridgway, which arrived at this port last week. Mr. Wharton has secured from the ship speimens of pumice which covered the sea on that portion of her voyage when about 500 miles from the island of Krakatoa, the scene of the Java volcanic convulsion. He finds this pumace to be substantially identical in its composition and structural arrangement with the strange dust he found in the snow.

Leap Year Hints for Girls.

Girls may be able to profit by a few words of advice now, as there is only one year in four in which they are allowed to practice. Hence, leap year finds them scarcely prepared to "step in and win," so we will give a few hints as to how it should be done.

First, fix up nicely; black your boots—be sure and not forget the heels. Some trouble will undoubtedly be experienced in putting on your collar and necktie, so you will need a good-sized looking-glass and a fire in the room. On your way to "his" house speak to all the fellows you meet. He will see you from his window and be deeply interested.

When you come to the house, cross the street and pass by; it will give him a momentary thrill of disappointment, and give you a chance to see if there is any other girl calling.

When you ring the door-bell inquire innocently if the young gentlemen are in. Wear your hat into the parlor and hang it up on the piano. Chew cloves assiduously, otherwise he may think you've been drinking.

If he is a bashful little thing, devote the first two hours to remarks about the weather, his ma, his pa, and other familiar subjects. This will re-assure him. When the dude begins to yawn and covers up an immense gap with his jeweled hand, don't take the hint, but replenish the fire and turn down the gas. He will, probably say, "Oh, you shouldn't," but recollect his action last year. When the old lady calls, "it's 10 o'clock," don't mind it; wait till she calls 11 and 12. Stay, in fact, until you hear the milkman rattling his cans. Ask for a match to light your cigar, linger at the door until his teeth begin to chatter, and make him think that he is your own and only, and go to see another fellow next evening.

WELL REWARDED.

A liberal reward will be paid to any party who will produce a case of Liver, Kidney or Stomach complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure. Bring them along, it will cost you nothing for the medicine if it fails to cure, and you will be well rewarded for your trouble besides. All Blood diseases Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, and general debility are quickly cured. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price only fifty cents per bottle. For sale by John Gayfer. 90i.

Drunkenness is a reel misfortune.

SALT RHEUM.

Salt Rheum, Pimples or Blothes can be thoroughly removed by a proper application of McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate to the part, and a few doses of McGregor's Speedy Cure for impure blood. Be sure and get the genuine. Prepared by McGregor & Parke. Sold at 25 cents at Gayfer's or Kneeshaw's Drug Store.

The virtue of prosperity is temperance; the virtue of adversity is fortitude.

National Pills acts promptly upon the liver, regulate the bowels, and as a purgative are mild and thorough. 87i

Nothing is so credulous as vanity, or so ignorant of what becomes of itself.

Orpha M. Hodge, Battle Creek, Mich., writes: I upset a tea kettle of boiling hot water on my hand. I at once applied Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and the effect was to immediately allay the pain. I was cured in three days.

Love is better than spectacles to make everything seem great.

It is a good rule to accept only such medicines as have, after long years of trial, proved worthy of confidence. This is a case where other people's experience may be of great service, and it has been the experience of thousands that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best cough medicine ever used.

To aim at the happiness of others lifts us above ourselves.

HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Barter's Mankrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 87i Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Those who have given these remedies a fair trial freely admit that they inherently possess every property suitable for healing and removing eruptions, ulcerations, fistulas, abscesses, sores, bad legs, gathered breasts, and all disorders of the glandular system. When carefully rubbed in the Ointment relaxes the swollen muscles, diminishes inflammation, assuages pain, and even alleviates dangerous maladies which may have lasted for months, or even years. Holloway's excellent preparations are effective singly, resistless in combinations, and have been recommended by grateful patients to be resorted to as alteratives when all other means of regaining health have failed. Their action is temperate, not violent or reducing.

FLUID LIGHTNING.

Fluid Lightning not only cures Toothache instantly, but also Neuralgia, Headache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. Pain of any kind cannot remain one minute where it is applied. When you hear of Fluid Lightning you hear of one of the greatest marvels ever known in the way of a medicine, as it never fails to cure, and not in a week or a day, but the instant it is applied to the affected part. Sold at Gayfer's and Kneeshaw's.

Wherein kind Nature meant you to excel.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87i

Study yourself; and most of all note well

Dr. Low's Worm Syrup has removed tape worms from 15 to 30 feet in length. It also destroys all kinds of worms. 87i

On their own merits, modest men are dumb.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine for every one in the spring. Emigrants and travelers will find in it an effectual cure for the eruptions, boils, pimples, eczema, etc, that break out on the skin—the effect of disorder in the blood, caused by sea-diet and life on board ship.

Tooters of brass horns are not necessarily musical tutors.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87i

"Before taking"—the thief on the look-out for an opportunity.

Is there anything more annoying than having your corn stepped upon? Is there anything more delightful than getting rid of it? Holloway's Corn Cure will do it.

The best prescription for a post—a composing draft.

Mr. G. W. Macully, Pavilion Mountain, B. C., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best medicine I ever used for Rheumatism. Nearly every winter I am laid up with Rheumatism, and have tried nearly every kind of medicine without getting any benefit, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends, &c.

Debt always grows bigger the more you contract it.

THAT "Tocsin of the Soul, the Dinner Bell," as Byron calls it, suggests no pleasing reflections to the dyspeptic, bilious sufferer. He partakes, of course, but the subsequent torment is egregiously out of proportion to the quantity of food he eats, which lies undigested, a weight like lead in his unhappy stomach. There is a remedy, however, and its name is Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. No case is entirely hopeless.

The "correct card" for rowdies—the Jack of clubs.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience, having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with Dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressing feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach.

The milk of human kindness is never diluted.

PROOF POSITIVE.

If you suffer from pain in the region of the shoulders, headache, irregular bowels, faintness, sick stomach, variable appetite, bad taste in the mouth and sallow complexion, your liver and biliary organs are seriously affected, and Burdock Blood Bitters is the prompt and certain remedy. 59i

The true art of living is to live naturally.

THE BEST I EVER KNEW OF.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential Citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every remedy I could think of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your SHILOH'S VITILIZER advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirety Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of." Price 75 cts. Sold by D. Secord 76y.

The tramp's favorite food — "boned turkey."

If your blood is impure it will burst forth in blotches, pimples and sores, festering and unsightly. Burdock Blood Bitters will thoroughly cleanse the blood and eradicate all foul humors from the system. 89i

Always behind time—the back of the clock.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

There is always great excitement in case of sudden accident and injury. Every one should be prepared for an emergency. Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the reliable friend in need; it is for internal and external use, curing Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Lameness, Croup, Sore Throat, Rheumatism and painful affections and wounds. 89i

Charity warmed over is very cold comfort.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

A matter of Course—the races.

WARNING.

If troubled with constipated bowels, never neglect it, or the system becomes clogged, the secretions dried up and the system poisoned with foul gas. Burdock Blood Bitters cure constipation by unlocking the secretions and regulating the glandular system. 89i

Secretary Lincoln is considered a better lawyer than was his father.

HOPE IN HOPEFUL.

Mrs. McArthur, of Hopeville, declares she could not keep house without Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. It is a remedy in which the sufferer may safely hope for speedy relief and effectual cure of Coughs, Hoarseness, Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles which neglected end in hopeless consumption. 89i

Chief Bushyhead, the Cherokee, has just been married.

ANOTHER'S GRIEF.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whopping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once. SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. For lame Back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

Grace Greenwood has written the life of Queen Victoria.

ITCHING PILES.—SYPHTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

A Norristown Hungarian lives in a hole in the ground, underneath a building he owns.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea' has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

An apparatus for cooking by electricity is the latest invention of a Kingston, N. Y., man.

Freeman's Worm Powders require no other purgative. They are safe and sure to remove all varieties of worms. 87i

Massachusetts legislators want a national divorce law.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

Rev. Father Damazo Soto of Vera Cruz has discovered the key to the Aztec writings.

SHE DECLARES IT SAVED HER LIFE.

Mrs. F. Taylor, of Toronto, was a great sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, which for a long time baffled all treatment. At last she tried Hagyard's Yellow Oil, and declares it saved her life. 89i

CATARRH.

CATARRH.—A New Treatment whereby this hitherto incurable disease is permanently cured in from one to three applications, no matter whether standing for one year or forty years. Descriptive pamphlet sent free on receipt of stamp. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada. 1560yy

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGGISBERG, Prop.

LEADING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582v-y

ATKINSON'S Parisian Tooth Paste!

Agreeable and Safe for Cleaning the Teeth

Sold in every Town and City of Canada.

PRICE 25 CENTS. [1575yy

Burdock Blood Bitters

A PRIZE

Send six cents postage and receive free a costly box of goods which will help you to more money right away than anything else in this world. All, of either sex, succeed from first hour. The broad road to fortune opens before the workers; absolutely sure. At once address TRUE & Co, Augusta, Maine.

DAKOTA

The CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN Railway now for sale 200,000 ACRES of the famous Garden Lands of Southern Minnesota and Dakota, at from $5 to $8 per acre. On TERMS that are within the reach of everyone. LANDS! Near railroads, markets, churches, schools, in the best settled portions of the country. Don't waste your time and money in going to the frontier, but secure a new farm in the old and long-settled region where you can live among friends, and where you will always be near a market. Send for new descriptive pamphlet, containing maps, sworn statements of crops, and all information necessary to intelligent selection. Sent free. Address LAND COM. C. & N. W. RY. Co., Chicago, Ill.

MINNESOTA

Rx No 66.

Endorsed by the FRENCH ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

For Inflammation of the Urinary Organs,

Caused by Indiscretion or Exposure. Hotel Dieu Hospital, Paris, Treatment. Positive Cure in one to three days. Local Treatment only required. No nauseous doses of Cubebs or Copaiba.

INFALLIBLE, HYGIENIC, CURATIVE, PREVENTIVE.

Price $1.50, including Bulb Syringe. Sold by all Druggists, or sent free by mail, securely sealed, on receipt of price. Descriptive Treatise free on application. AMERICAN AGENCY "66" MEDICINE CO., WINDSOR, ONT. 1578yy

IA MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RY

By the central position of its line, connects the East and the West by the shortest route, and carries passengers, without change of cars, between Chicago and Kansas City, Council Bluffs, Leavenworth, Atchison, Minneapolis and St. Paul. It connects in Union Depots with all the principal lines of road between the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans. Its equipment is unrivaled and magnificent, being composed of Most Comfortable and Beautiful Day Coaches, Magnificent Horton Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman's Perfect Palace Sleeping Cars, and the Best Line of Dining Cars in the World. Three Trains between Chicago and Missouri River Points. Two Trains between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, via the Famous

"ALBERT LEA ROUTE."

A New and Direct Line, via Seneca and Kankakee, has recently been opened between Richmond, Norfolk, Newport News, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Augusta, Nashville, Louisville, Lexington, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette, and Omaha, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

All Through Passengers Travel on Fast Express Trains.

Tickets for sale at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada.

Baggage checked through and rates of fare always as low as competitors that offer less advantages.

For detailed information, get the Maps and Folders of the

GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE,

At your nearest Ticket Office, or address

R. R. CABLE, Vice Pres. & Gen'l M'g'r. E. ST. JOHN, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Agt. CHICAGO.

RUPTURE CURED.

CHAS CLUTHE'S PERFECTED TRUSS. A great improvement has been made, instead of a Steel Spring Belt as plaster as Wood, Pointed like glass. No Rust, and no Heat, no Smell; can use Warm in Bath; also at Night is a Boom for Comfort. Send Stamps for Book on Ruptured Ills. Elastic Frame, valuable information. A Life Study in Pads Worn and Considered by CHAS. CLUTHE, 112 King Street West, TORONTO, ONT., and Falls, N.Y.

The above is patented in the United States and Canada March 4th, 1879.

HAGYARD'S YELLOW OIL CURES RHEUMATISM

FREEMAN'S WORM POWDERS.

Are pleasant to take. Contain their own Purgative. Is a safe, sure, and effectual destroyer of worms in Children or Adults.

ADVERTISERS

Before you place a dollar's worth of Newspaper advertising, get our prices. The exact cost of any paper, or list of papers cheerfully furnished, free upon application.

Send for New Catalogue.

J. C. HOUGH,
Advertising Agent,
HOUGH BLOCK. Detroit, Mich.

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Pr

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

LITTLE DOT

IT IS THE

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship. Ask for the

"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.

Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

TOWNSHIP OF WEST OXFORD.

THE AUDITORS' REPORT,

For the Year ending December 31st, 1883.

The Municipal Corporation of West Oxford in Account with James G. Wood, Esq., Treasurer.

RECEIPTS.

To balance from 1882	$2800 12
Amount from James Hay & Co., Woodstock, for expense in closing road	10 00
From County Treasurer, wild land sale	52
From payment of note on account of sinking fund	400 00
From amount of interest on note	7 00
From license fund	32 63
From County Treasurer for roads and bridges	140 54
From Provincial Treasurer, clergy reserve fund	27 50
From Tax Collector for 1883	7850 18
	$11268 49

EXPENDITURE.

COUNTY ASSESSMENT.

For Public Schools	$ 290 00
For County purposes, including roads and bridges	796 00
For Credit Valley Railway under By-Law No. 175	1558 00
" " " No. 250	601 00
	$3245 00

SCHOOLS.

Amount received by taxation from School Section No. 1	$ 280 00
do. do. do. 2	352 00
do. do. do. 3	744 00
do. do. do. 4	359 00
do. do. do. 6	245 00
do. do. do. 7	692 00
do. do. do. 8	455 00
do. do. do. 9	300 00
do. do. R. C. Separate School	25 00

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Paid.

John Cuthbert, for nine cords gravel for townline E. and W. Oxford	$ 3 90
C. Pope, grading road E. and W. Oxford	70 00
Wm. Smilee, surveying sideline between Lots 9 and 10, 2nd Con.	11 50
John McBeth, services as chain bearer	1 50
Alex. Butts, services as chain bearer	1 50
John Webster, for cedar used on townline between E. and W. Oxford	2 00
Joseph Thornton, scraper for beat 28	5 50
T. J. Thornton, gravel from 1880 to 1883	34 60
McIntosh & Griffith, piping for culverts	24 80
McIntosh & Griffith, piping culverts, townline	7 20
John Karn, gravel	13 60
Alfred Pullen, building two culverts and grading on stage road	5 00
Wm. Goodall, grading and graveling on Sweaburg road between E. & W. Oxford	40 00
Peter Haaball, drawing earth on townline between E. & W. Oxford	57 50
C. Pope, drawing earth on townline between E. & W. Oxford, half cost job	45 00
David Watt, gravelling townline between Norwich and West Oxford	16 50
John Peers, plank for culvert on townline between E. & W. Oxford	3 70
C. Pope, grading on townline	40 00
John Anderson, grading on 4th con. line	64 00
N. Smith, gravel	10 00
Joseph Thornton, gravel	9 60
Orders from T. Folden, Commissioner.
Paid R. Wilson, for cutting thistles Jordan road	1 50
F. Richardson, plank for Jarvis beat	6 15
Albert Inglesby, repairing culvert, 3rd con.	15 00
Wm. Rivers, grading on his beat	6 00
Joseph Dutton, gravelling on Jordan road	13 00
John Thornton, stumping on side road	21 00
Milton Janes, for gravel and damages done to crops	10 75
Orders from T. R. Mayberry, Commissioner.
Paid A. McKay, gravel for beat No. 2	5 00
D. A. Bucknell, gravel	17 50
W. H. Cook, repairing bridge, 3rd con. line	2 50
John Gaynor, stumping 1st con. line	5 00
Thos. Seldon, gravelling townline between Ingersoll and West Oxford	14 40
Thos. Hislop, making culvert, 2nd con. line	10 00
John W. Clark, gravel for beats 11 and 12	4 64
James Howey, building bridge between West Oxford and Dorchester	15 00
Charles Lewis, gravelling townline between W. Oxford and Dereham	45 00
J. L. Cook, plank for culvert between Ingersoll and West Oxford	2 60
John Shelton, gravel for townline between Dereham and West Oxford	11 45
W. C. Bell, plank for bridge, beat 7	15 31
Orders from James Currie, Commissioner.
Paid J. B. Thornton, scraper for beat No. 28	5 50
E. Lawler, stumping side line between Lots 9 and 10	6 00
James Dickie, repairs on scraper	1 00
McIntosh & Griffith, piping for culverts	26 20
P. Thompson, cutting hill next Edwards'	32 00
Homer Hazen, stumping and grading road on 5th con. line	19 75
J. B. Withrow, for gravel put on by statute labor	16 00
J. T. Kelly, plank for bridge	2 56
John Cuthbert, 22 cords gravel at 40 cents per cord	8 80
John Todd, stumping on Sweaburg road	8 00
Orders from John Downing, Commissioner.
Paid Levi Case, filling washout and gravelling	39 00
W. F. Galloway, fixing culverts, beat 9	10 00
Henry Forden, making drain on stage road, beat 27	13 50
Edwin Galloway, work on middle town line	16 00
	$873 21

INDIGENTS.

Paid.

Dr. I. W. Brown, assisting in purchasing a cow for Mrs. Slater	$ 10 00
John Downing, for D. McCombs	20 00
James Currie, for T. Ranger and wife	8 00
Dr. Brown, for expenses in sending Mrs. Ackree to Toronto hospital	6 00
John Downing for D. McCombs	15 00
George Sebbens, for Mrs. Hopkins	10 00
W. H. Millman, goods for Mrs. McIntyre	4 00
James Currie, for T. Ranger	5 00
John Downing for D. McCombs	15 00
George Sebben, for Mrs. Hopkins	10 00
John Downing, for D McCombs	15 00
H. F. Martin, house rent to Oct. 8th, 1883	12 00
George Sebben, for Mrs. Hopkins	10 00
F. Cody, for the Johnston family	10 00
John Downing, for McCombs	15 00
Wm. Thornton, for medical attendance and board of D. Morrison	40 00
John Downing, for McCombs	15 00
George Sebbens, for Mrs. Hopkins	10 00
Erwin Lewis, for 5 cords wood for Johnston	10 00
H. F. Martin, rent of house for McComb, in full to April 1883	12 00
John Downing, for McCombs	15 00
W. H. Cook, digging grave for Barber	2 00
G. F. Clark, coffin and shroud for Barber	10 00
Peter Fahey, digging grave for pauper	2 00
John Welch, hearse for pauper's funeral	4 00
	$285 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

Paid.

Richard Mayberry, for use of Harris Street Hall for polling place for South Riding Election	$ 4 00
Hart & Co. for letter press and books	9 75
G. F. Garnett, for printing	55 80
James G. Wood, attending Council meeting	2 00
Freeman Karn, expenses to Toronto, registering deed and other disbursements	15 00
The several Councillors	10 00
John Downing, services as commissioner	9 00
James Currie, services as commissioner	10 00
F. Folden, services as commissioner	15 00
T. R. Mayberry, services as commissioner	15 00
Freeman Karn, services as commissioner	20 00
Charles Mason, registration of births, marriages and deaths for 1883	10 00
Charles Mason, disbursements and services in school matters	25 00
Charles Mason, drawing deed, lease and registration fees	5 20
Charles Mason, posting notices, postage and disbursements	12 50
The several Councillors	10 00
Freeman Karn, selecting Jurors	3 00
James Dawson, selecting Jurors	4 00
Charles Mason, selecting Jurors	4 00
The Several Councillors	8 00
Charles Mason, balance of salary for 1883	25 00
H. O'Connor, insuring Town Hall	21 00
The several Councillors	8 00
Pattullo & Co., advertising the closing of road between gore and Lot 1, W. Oxford	55 55
Charles Mason, part payment of salary	50 00
The Several Councillors	10 00
J. G. Wood, per centage on school moneys	6 58
The several Councillors, two days session	20 00
G. F. Garnett, for printing	15 75
F. Karn, payment of Hart & Co's account	14 18
J. A. Cody, rent of site of Sweaburg Hall	3 00
James Dawson, services as Assessor	85 00
The Several Councillors	10 00
Charles Mason, part payment of salary

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GUANETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1 50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE at 2 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 5 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c. OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates, Mortgages Bought and Sold. OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

F. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent. OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L.R.C.P. & L.M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M.R.C.S. AND L.M., ENGLAND L.R.C.P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M.D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames street, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. Tooth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Oxide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth. Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house." Ingersoll 3847

W. A. SUDWORTH,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetic administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,

PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock. January 31st, 1884. 1586 y

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Isbel, First Violinist of Toronto Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store. Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1534c-m

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882, 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER. WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a slip at the CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made. Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice. Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

THE MOLSONS BANK

INCERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with farmers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which can be withdrawn at any time.

C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK OF CANADA.

CAPITAL $5,698,696
RESERVE $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.
Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Rosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 27. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1591.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada.

217 St. James St., Montreal.

☞ Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

☞ Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR., GENERAL AGENT.

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1539v-y

THE CREDIT VALLEY! AND MICHIGAN CENTRAL RAILWAY LINES.

The Great Direct Through Line to all points in Western and North-western America.

TRAINS LEAVE INGERSOLL STATION AS FOLLOWS, UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

GOING WEST.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

10:10 a. m.—From all stations on main line and branches and for Detroit, Toledo, St. Louis, Kansas City, and all Western and North western points, and points in Northern Michigan.

PACIFIC EXPRESS.

4:13 p. m.—Stopping only at principal stations on main line, and for St. Thomas, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paule, Winnipeg, and points west and northwest.

LOCAL EXPRESS.

8:10 p. m.—Stopping at all stations on main line to St. Thomas.

GOING EAST.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

12:26, noon.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all principal stations on Credit Valley Railway.

MONTREAL EXPRESS

3:03 p. m.—From Chicago and all Western and Northwestern points, stopping at all stations on Credit Valley Railway, and for all points on Grand Trunk east of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John's, Portland, &c.

ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.

6:23 p.m.—From St. Louis, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest, stopping at all stations on the Credit Valley Railway.

This is the direct line to Toronto without change. Ask for all information and purchase your ticket from

F. SYMONS, Station Agent. JAS. GORDON, Agent C.V. & M.C. Ry Lines Thames St., Ingersoll

Ingersoll Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

TOWN WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27, 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD DRUGGIST, INGERSOLL

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters, Warner's Safe Cure, Shiloh's Consumption Cure, Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicine

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded. Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers.

Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops and Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day

R. VANCE, Thames Street

☞ Bread delivered in town daily.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE SURE CURE FOR KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, CONSTIPATION, PILES, AND BLOOD DISEASES.

PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT HEARTILY.

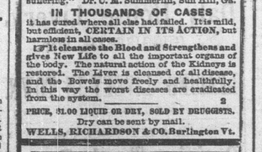
"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I ever used."—Dr. P. C. Dalton, Moulton, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort is always reliable."—Dr. R. N. Clark, So. Hero, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort has cured my wife after two years suffering."—Dr. C. M. Summerlin, Sun Hill, Ga.

IN THOUSANDS OF CASES it has cured where all else had failed. It is mild, but efficient, CERTAIN IN ITS ACTION, but harmless in all cases.

IT It cleanses the Blood and Strengthens and gives New Life to all the important organs of the body. The natural action of the Kidneys is restored. The Liver is cleansed of all disease, and the Bowels move freely and healthfully. In this way the worst diseases are eradicated from the system. 2



PRICE, $1.00 LIQUID OR DRY, SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Dry can be sent by mail.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington Vt.

KIDNEY-WORT

JAS. McINTYRE

UNDERTAKER,

HAS REMOVED BACK TO HIS old stand in the

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

☞ A Large Stock of COFFINS, and CASKETS SHROUDS and ROBES on hand.

FURNITURE

All kinds in stock. ☞ Repairing done in the rear of warehouse, King street, Ingersoll. Number 22, 1581.

A SMALL BOY'S QUESTIONS.

BY EMMA HUNTINGTON NASON.

Mamma, sit down! I want to ask
Y-u just one thing or two!
What makes my shad-w stretch out so?
And tell me, what is dew?

Is it the trees that make the wind,
By switching round their boughs?
And where do dogs go, when they die,
And kitty-cats and cows?

And when it thunders in the sky,
What makes the clouds all wink?
Could I dig down to China-land
In ten years do you think?

Why don't the people tumble off,
When China turns this way?
And when you say the moon is full,
What is it full of pray?

How far is it up to the clouds?
How long are comet's tails?
And why will not umbrellas do
For boats as well as sails?

How did the very firstest man,
Who made tape-measures, know
How long to make the first end inch?
And say, do yard-sticks grow?

How many workmen did it take
To build a pyramid?
And won't you show me on the map,
Where Baby Moses lay?

What makes the little darkies black?
What makes the sky so blue?
And is it right to tell a joke,
When not one word is true?

Way do you love me just the same,
When I am cross and bad?
And, tell me, mamma, why am I
The only boy you had?

And will you be the grandmother
To all my little boys?
And when you come to see us, bring
Your pockets full of toys?

Is Santa Claus a truly man?
Have reindeer hoofs or paws?
Who dresses all the Christmas dolls?
Does Mrs. Santa Claus?

What makes volcanoes smoke and blaze?
Who built the fires then,
If all the earth was finished off
Before God made the men?

If God could make this whole great earth
With only six days' stir,
Why need he be so awful long
In fixing Jupiter—

And putting air and water there,
And grass and trees and flowers,
To make it comfortable for folks
Just like this world of ours?

Is Jesus real, mamma dear?
Were frankincense and myrrh
His Christmas gifts? Did Mary think
Those things were meant for her—

Or did she keep them safe for him?
Why don't the Bible tell?
Was God ever a little boy,—
He knows our hearts so well?

How could He hollow out the hills
Without a single tool?
You don't know everything? Well then,
Why don't you go to school?

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

CHAPTER VIII.

This same afternoon, about two hours later, Claire was in New York.

She had crossed thither, spurred by an idea born of her desperation. It was a forlorn hope; it was like the straw clutched by the sinking hand; and yet it formed a comforting preventative against complete despair. She had remembered her old friend at Mrs. Arcularius's school, the plump-cheeked and yellow-haired Sophia Bergemann. She had determined to seek her out, and ask her aid in obtaining work. Years had passed since Claire and Sophia had met; but if the buxom young creature had preserved even half of her old amiable friendship, there was excellent chance of cordial welcome and kindly assistance.

"I only hope she still lives in Hoboken," Claire thought, while taking the journey across town. "Suppose the family have left there. Suppose I cannot find Sophia. Suppose that she is married, and has gone to live elsewhere—in Europe, perhaps. Suppose that she is dead."

More than once, before she had reached the central part of the city, Claire felt herself grow weak with dread. Night would soon approach. She had money enough to get lodgment, but in her ignorance and her loneliness how could she secure it? Her mother's face, clothed with the old mocking smile, repeatedly rose before her fancy. She seemed to see the hard, bitter mouth frame certain sentences. "Oh, you'll come back," it seemed to say. "You've got to. You can't go gallivanting round New York after dark. I ain't afraid. Oh, you'll come back to Greenpoint, sure!"

"I will never go back," Claire said to her own thoughts, answering this phantasmal sort of taunt. "No, not if I walk the streets to-night and many another night. Not if I have to beg for food. Not if I die of hunger. I will never go back there! No, no, no!"

There was nothing theatrically fervid about this silent resolve. The girl was quite capable of confronting any sharp ill rather than remeet the woman who had so pitilessly outraged her most sacred instincts. She knew well enough that her mother confidently counted upon her return. She knew well enough that her mother would undergo wild alarm on finding herself permanently deserted. Yet Claire, with a grim desire of inflicting punishment for the insult flung at her beloved dead, silently exulted in what she could not help but deem a just and rightful vengeance. True, her own act may have dealt the vengeance; but did it not really spring from that departed soul whose corpse had met the lash of so undeserved an indignity?

When Claire had reached the centre of the city she suddenly determined to seek Mrs. Arcularius's establishment. The school might either have changed its locality or else ceased to exist. Still, she would apply at the old quarters. There she would inquire for Sophia Bergemann. They might know nothing concerning the girl. But if this resulted, she would still have all Hoboken left, in which the dwelling-place of so prominent a resident—even though one of the past time—would most probably be known on inquiry.

A throng of memories beset her as she rang the bell of Mrs. Arcularius's abode. The name of that august lady gloomed on a large silver-plated square, affixed to the second door, beyond the marble-paved vestibule. A smartly-dressed maid answered her summons. Claire stated in brief, civil terms what information she desired to gain. The maid left her standing in the well-known hall for several minutes, and at length returned with the tidings, apparently fresh from the lips of Mrs. Arcularius herself, that Miss Bergemann was then living at No.— Fifth Avenue, only a slight distance away.

Claire felt a thrill of relief as she thanked the maid and resought the street. The intelligence seemed a most happy stroke of luck. It augured well for the success of her sad little enterprise.

The Fifth Avenue dwelling proved to be a mansion of imposing dimensions. It stood on a corner, and had a wide window at one side of its spacious entrance, and two at the other. From either panel of its polished walnut door jutted a griffon's head of bronze, holding a ring pendant from its tense lips. Beyond the glossy plate-glass of the casements gleamed misty folds of lace, and still further beyond these you caught a charming glimpse of large-leaved tropic plants in rich-hued vases.

Claire pulled a bronze bell-handle that was wrought in the likeness of some close-folded flower. A dull yet distinct peal ensued, having in its sound a trim directness that suggested prompt and capable attendance from interior quarters.

While Claire waited for admission she cast her look downward upon the middle street, and across at the line of opposite residences, all marked by a calm uniformity of elegance. The night was very new to her after Greenpoint, but at the same time it stirred certain sources of youthful recollection.

Many carriages were passing. One or two were shaped with fashionable oddity, having only a single pair of huge wheels and a booted and cockaded flunkey, who sat in cramped, oblique posture, with his back to the other occupants, a lady and a gentleman, and who seemed forever taking a resigned plunge off the vehicle, with stoically folded arms. Another was a heavy, sombre family coach, with two men on the box, both clad in dark, dignified livery. Still another was the so-called dog-cart, borne along by a team of responsible silver-trapped bays, and having on its second seat a footman graciously permitted, in this instance, to face the horses whose lustrous flanks his own hands had doubtless groomed into their present brilliance.

The two parallel yet contrary streams of vehicles made an incessant subdued clatter; numerous pedestrians were also passing to and fro along either sidewalk; the weather had changed from harsh to clement; the strip of clear, blue sky above the massive house-tops wore a shining delicacy and airiness of tint; even Claire's new wound, that still bled unseen, could not distract her from a buoyant congeniality with the prosperous and festal tumult so amply manifest.

She understood then, and perhaps with a qualm of shame as well that no grief could quite repress, however transiently, her love for life, action, and refined social intercourse. The old desire to win a noted place among those of her own kind who were themselves notable, quickened within her, too, as she gazed upon the bright bustle and the palatial importance which were both so near at hand.

"Near," she mused, "and yet so far! Shall I ever do what he bade me to do on that night long ago? Shall I ever climb the hill? Shall I not grow tired and sit down to rest? What chance have I now of ever reaching the top? Where is the hand to help me even over so little? Will Sophia Bergemann do it? Yes; if the ways of the world haven't changed her since we met at school."

A man-servant, in what is termed full-dress, soon opened the door, and Claire asked if Miss Sophia Bergemann was at home. The man appeared to be a very majestic person. Claire felt a good deal of secret awe in his presence. He had a superb development of the chest, a sort of senatorial nose, and two oblong tufts of sorrel whisker, growing with a mossy density close to either ear.

But he was very civil, notwithstanding his grandeur. He told Claire, in a rich voice that would have deepened her veneration if it had not been blent with a valiant North of Ireland brogue, that Miss Bergemann was at home but about to leave the house for a drive.

The hall in which this announcement was made glowed with sumptuous yet tasteful decorations. A dark curve of heavy-balustered staircase, which four or five persons might have ascended abreast, met the eye only a short space away. From the lofty ceiling depended a costly lamp of illuminated glass. Soft, thick tapestries of Turkish design drooped from several near doorways. A fleet remembrance of the old school-room sarcasms about the Bergemanns' vulgar Hoboken home flashed through Claire's mind.

"Will you tell Miss Sophia, please," she said, in as firm and calm a tone as she could manage, "that Miss Twining, whom she knew some years ago, would like to speak with her?"

The butler was about to reply, when a loud feminine voice suddenly pealed from upper regions. In reality it was the voice of a lady who had already descended several steps of the broad, winding staircase; but the lady was still in obscurity, and therefore the liberal size of the house caused her tones to sound as if they had come from a still greater distance. "Michael," shrilled the voice, "I see the carriage isn't here yet. It's nearly a quarter of an hour behind time. Thomas has done this twice before in one week. Now, you just send Robert straight round to the stable, and let him say that we're very angry about it, and that ma won't put up with such behavior if it ever happens again!"

The butler had left Claire before the end of the final belligerent sentence, and had moved, with a certain military briskness, toward the first wide step of the staircase.

"Yes, Miss Sophia," he said, employing his fine sonorous voice so that it somehow had the effect of not being unduly raised, though still strongly audible. The next moment he turned toward Claire, with a mien in which his natural official gravity gave sign of being cruelly fluttered.

"Miss Sophia is coming downstairs, miss," he said.

Claire had a swift feeling of gratitude for that single word "miss." She knew that she was dingily clothed; she had fancied that all her claims to the nicer grades of gentility lived solely within her mental wish and hope; but she failed to perceive that her face was filled with those tender and sweet charms which we term patrician, and that her least gesture carried with it a grace which previous conditions of culture alone have the art to bestow. It was indeed true, as Michael had said, that Miss Sophia was coming downstairs. Claire soon heard a decisive rustle of robes, and presently a descendant shape dawned upon her view, arrayed in very modish costume.

But the instant that Claire caught sight of Sophia she recognized the plump, rubicund face, grown only a trifle more womanly beneath its low-arranged floss of yellow hair. She went forward to meet her old friend. Just as Sophia left the last step of the staircase, Claire had so managed that they stood very near to each other.

She did not put forth a hand. Her pale, beautiful face had grown paler, through fear of some possible haughty reception. But she spoke the moment that Sophia's round blue eyes had fairly met her own.

"I hope you know me," she said. "I hope you have not forgotten me."

A blank, dismayed look possessed Sophia for a few seconds, and then she put forth two hands which were sheathed half-way up to the elbow in dull-brown gloves, seizing both of Claire's hands the next instant.

"Forgotten you!" she cried. "Why, you're Claire Twining! Of course you are! And as pretty as a picture, just as you always were! Why, you dear old thing! Give me a kiss!"

Claire felt the lips of the speaker forcibly touch each of her cheeks. Sophia still held her hands. The welcome had been too abruptly cordial. A mist slipped before her eyes and clouded her brain. She staggered backward.

Perhaps she would have fallen, if the magnificent Michael had not been near enough to place a muscular arm between herself and the floor. But she rallied almost at once. And while clearness was returning to her mind, she heard Sophia say, in imperious yet hearty tones,—

"Michael, take her into the reception-room! Now, don't look so stupid! Do as I say!"

Claire's attack, though more than partly past, still left her weak. She allowed herself to be led, and indeed half supported, by Michael. A little later she was seated on a big, yielding lounge, with the sense of a big, yielding pillow at her back. And presently, close beside her, she saw the ruddy, broad-blown face of Sophia, surmounted by a Parisian bonnet of the most deft and dainty millinery.

"Sophia," she said, breaking into a tremulous, pathetic little laugh, "please don't—please don't think I've lost my senses! But it—it was so good of you to remember me, after we hadn't met for such a long time, that—that!"—

Here Claire burst into an actual tempest of tears and sobs, and immediately afterward felt Sophia's hands again clasp both her own.

"Michael!" cried her new hostess at the same moment, in tones of imperative command, "for Heaven's sake, don't stand staring there, but do leave the room!"

"Yes, Miss," came the nicely decorous reply. Faultless servant as he was, it must still be set to the credit of Michael that he closed a sliding door of solid rosewood, which worked on easy grooves between the double portiere of the apartment, just after crossing its threshold. His act was wholly unnecessary, considering the nature of the command his young mistress had given; and when we note the obstructing force of the door itself, it implies a sublime abstinence from the fascinations of eavesdropping.

"Now, don't cry so!" exclaimed Sophia, with great sympathy and a strong suspicion of active emotion as well. "I suppose something dreadful has happened, dear old Claire. What is it? Just tell me, and I'll see what I can do. You're not dressed as if you were very well off. Is it poverty? Oh, pshaw! I'll soon fix things all right if you want help that way. Till"—

Here Sophia abruptly paused, and withdrew her hands. She stood facing Claire, who still struggled to master the sobs that shook her. Sophia seemed sternly troubled; her full cheeks had reddened; this was her one invariable way of showing agitation; she never turned pale, like other people. "Claire!" she broke forth, in solemn undertone. "I do hope it isn't one thing! I do hope you haven't been—I've been going wrong! You know what I mean. I wouldn't mind anything but that, and that I couldn't forgive—or even excuse!"

Claire sprang to her feet as the last word passed Sophia's lips. Wrath had calmed her, and with a wondrous speed. The tears were not glittering on her cheeks, however, as she spoke, with eyes that flashed and a lip that curled.

"Sophia!" she said; "how dare you insult me like this!"

The distressed frown on Sophia's face instantly vanished. "Oh, Claire," she cried, "I'm so glad it isn't true! Don't be angry. You see, my dear, we hadn't met for so long, and you looked as if—as if something horrible had happened, and it's such a funny, topsy-turvy world. So many queer things do happen in it. Don't be angry, please!"

"I am angry," said Claire, in her shabby dress she gave, notwithstanding, a noble portrayal of disdain. She had taken several steps toward the door, though Sophia, having caught her arm, disavowed, with a mien contrite and even supplicating, to detain her within the chamber. "Why should I not be angry?" Claire went on, her voice dry and bitter. "Allow that I do look as if I were miserable. Is misery another name for sin? . . . No, Sophia, let me go, please. . . . Perhaps you may learn, some day, as I've learned already, that the unhappy people in life are not always the bad ones!"

But Sophia, whose impulsive and explosive nature had not altered very markedly since we last heard of her childish escapades, now replied by a most excited outburst of appeal. Her exuberant figure, which no dexterity of dressmaking and no splendour of combined satins and velvets could turn less unwieldy and cumbrous, bowed and swayed till you almost heard the seams of rich garb crack their stitches under the fleshly disturbance to which she subjected them.

"Claire! Claire!" she ejaculated; "I have insulted you. . . . But you'll forgive me—I know you will. I've never forgotten you. You stood up against that horrid Ada Gerrard and her set so finely, years ago! You were good then—yes, just as good as gold,—and I'm sure you're just exactly as good still. Now, Claire, don't look that way! I was talking to Ma about you only a few days since. Pa's dead, you know—but I suppose you don't. Yes, I said to Ma that I'd give anything to find out what had become of you. Ma and I are dreadfully rich—I mean well off. Poor Pa left ever so much money. He's been dead nearly three years. There's nobody but Ma and I left. I hate Hoboken. I made her buy this house. Now, Claire, just stop! You shan't go. You're going to tell me all about your troubles. Yes, you shall! I'll be your friend. There, let me kiss you. . . . Do, Claire! . . . You know I was always awfully fond of you. I never knew any girl I was half so fond of as you. We asked your pardon. You were always a lady. I remember about that dreadful dress you came to school in, first. But that didn't matter. You were a lady born, and you showed it afterward. Every girl thought so, too. Even those hateful snobs had to own it, I'm sure they did. I see some of them quite often. Ada Gerrard's a great swell, as they say, now. She gives me a little nod when I meet her, driving in the Park or on the Avenue. But you're twice the lady she is. Yes Claire, I mean it. Kiss me, now, won't you? Kiss me, and be friends!"

Claire had succumbed several minutes before this eager tirade was ended. Her anger had fled. She let Sophia put both arms about her. She returned Sophia's kiss. Then she leaned her head upon the shoulder of her companion, and gave way to another access of tears. But they were quiet tears, this time. The hysteric impulse had wholly passed. A little later she told Sophia, with as much placid directness as she could manage, every important detail of the hard, dreary life lived since they two had last met.

While she thus spoke, the extraordinary charm of her manner and the distinct loveliness of her delicate yet notable beauty more than once thrilled her listener. Sophia's old worship, if the term may not be too strong, returned in full force. She had sworn by Claire, as the phrase goes, in earlier days. She was prepared to swear by her still. The story of Mr. Twining's death and the disloyal deportment of his wife roused her vehement contempt. By the time Claire had finished her gloomy recital, the two girls were seated close together. Sophia's large fat hand, in its fashionable glove, was fervidly clasping Claire's.

"You did perfectly right!" Sophia at length exclaimed, after a pause had come, and while her visitor sat with drooped head and pale, compressed lips. "Your poor father! To bury him that way! It was frightful! And you told her you'd do anything on earth for her if she only wouldn't! And I know how you loved your father. Do you recollect telling me about him, one recess, when I gave you half my sardine-sandwich? You said he was a gentleman by birth, and had come of a fine family in England. That's where you get your swell looks from, Claire. Yes, you are a swell, even though you've got on a frock that didn't cost, altogether, as much as one yard of mine. . . . Why, just look at me! I'm awkward and clumsy, exactly as I was at Mrs. Arcularius's. I'll never be any different. And yet I spend loads and loads of money on my things. I do, really! But, gracious goodness! there you sit, with your sweet, pure face, shaped like a heart, and your hair that's got the same bright sparkle through its brown that it used to have, and those long eye-lashes over those black-blue kind of eyes, and that cunning little dimple in your chin, and those long, slender, ladylike hands!—"

Here Claire stopped her, with a sad smile and a shake of the head. She spread open one hand, holding it up for scrutiny at the same moment,

"Don't talk of my hands, Sophia," she said. "They've been doing hard work since you saw them last."

Sophia gazed down at the inner portion of her friend's hand for a moment, and then suddenly exclaimed:

"Work! Why, they're not hard a bit. Oh, Claire, you've worn gloves all the time you worked. Come, own up, now!"

Claire smiled in a furtive way. But she spoke with simple frankness the next instant. "Well, yes, Sophia," she said, "I have worn gloves as often as I could. I wanted to save my hands. Some of the girls at Mrs. Arcularius's used to call them pretty. I wanted them to stay pretty—if I could manage it. I don't mind telling you so. But I thought they must have lost every trace of nice looks by this time."

Sophia bent over the hand that she still held, and whose palm was turned upward to the light, so that all its inner details, from wrist to finger-tips, could not possibly escape notice.

"Why, there's a pink flush all around the edge, inside there," commented Sophia. "It's funny, Claire. I never saw it in any other girl's hand before. It's just like the rose-color at the edge of a shell. Upon my word it is! I don't care a straw what work you have been doing; you've got hands like—well, I was going to say like a queen. But I don't doubt a good many queens have awful hands, so I'll say like a lady. . . . There, kiss me again. . . . Here's ma. Don't mind ma. She'll be nice. She always is nice when I want her to be. Isn't that so, ma?"

A lady had just entered the small, brilliantly-appointed room in which Claire and Sophia had thus far held their rather noteworthy converse. The lady was Mrs. Bergemann.

She was exceedingly stout; both in visage and form she looked like a matured and intensified Sophia. As far as features went, she wonderfully resembled her daughter. Every undue trait of plumpness in Sophia's countenance was reproduced by Mrs. Bergemann with a sort of facial compound interest.

Flesh seemed to have besieged her, like a comic malady. Her good-natured eyes sparkled between two creases of it; her loose, full chin revealed more than one fold of it. She was by no means attired like a widow of recent bereavement. She wore a bonnet in which there was no violence of coloring: it was purple and brown, but at the same time so severely à la mode that if any symbol lurked behind its decorated fantasies this must have signified the soothing influences of resignation and consolation.

She had heard her daughter's last words. She was devoted to Sophia; it was an allegiance wed with pride. She had been a poor German girl, years ago, and had drifted, through the chance of matrimony, into her present opulent place. She was by nature meek and conciliatory; all Sophia's temper and temerity had come from her father, who had combined large superficial good-humor with a notorious intolerance of the least fancied wrong.

Sophia's last words had embarrassed her. She had no idea who Claire was, but the evident cordiality of her daughter's deportment produced the effect of a gentle mandate.

"I shan't go driving, ma!" Sophia exclaimed, after she had made Claire and her mother acquainted. "I'll stay at home and talk of old times with Claire Twining. Poor Claire's in trouble, ma. I won't tell you about it yet. You go off in the carriage—that is, if it ever comes; but I'm afraid we'll have to discharge Thomas; he's always behind time."

"The carriage is here, Sophia," said Mrs. Bergemann. She spoke without the slightest German accent; this had perished long ago. She was looking at Claire with the manner of one who has been deeply attracted. "I've often heard you mention Miss Twining," she went on. "You was talking of her only the other day, wasn't you, Sophia?"

"Yes," said Sophia, rising. She went to her mother, and spoke a few low words, which Claire quite failed to hear. The prompt result of this intercourse was that Bergemann's exit from the room. Sophia followed her to the door, with one hand laid upon her shoulder.

"All right, ma," she said, pausing a moment on the threshold. "You go and take your drive. I'll stay and chat with Claire."

A little while afterward Sophia had resented herself at Claire's side. "Ma likes you," she at once began, in her voluble, oddly frank way. "She told me she did. She's very funny about liking and disliking people. She takes fancies—or she doesn't. Ma isn't a swell. She's what they call vulgar. But she's ever so nice. She never had much education, but she has a large, warm heart. I wouldn't have her one bit different from what she is. I wouldn't give ma for Queen Victoria. She and I are the dearest friends in the world. I know you'll like her, Claire. She likes you, as I said. And Claire, look here, now; I want to say something. It may surprise you. I hope, though, that it will please you, too. You're going to stay in this house. You're going to live here as my friend. Yes, you are. You were always as smart as a steel trap. We'll read together every morning. Yes, we will. You know what a perfect fool I used to be at Mrs. Arcularius's. Well, I'm the same fool still. But you know a lot; you always did. And you shall help me to be less of an ignoramus than I am. We've got a library upstairs. Oh, there are a crowd of books. I've got Mr. Thurston to buy them for me. He's a gentleman friend of ours, and he knows a tremendous amount. He's just filled all the book-shelves for us. I'm sure he bought the right kind of books, too; he knows pretty much everything in that line. Now, Claire, if you'll do as I say we'll get along splendidly together. And as for . . . well, as for salary, you know, I'll—"

Here Claire rose, placing a hand on Sophia's arm. "No," she said, "I couldn't accept such a place as that. I'm notable to fill it. I have been living a life of hard work for three or four years past. I've scarcely looked into a book, Sophia, in all that time. I came here to ask you if you would get me work. I can sew very well; I was always clever with my needle. If you will give me something of that sort to do, I will gladly and thankfully remain. But otherwise, I can't."

(To be continued.)

600 LIVES LOST.

A Cyclone's Terrible Work—Over 600 deaths Already reported—The loss to Property is Several Millions

Atlantic, Ga, As details are received of disasters attendant on the wind storm in North Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas, Kentucky and Tennessee Tuesday, the extent of the awful visitation can be realized. The first reports were under stated. The loss of life and property within a radius of 10 miles of Rock Rum, Ala., is very great. Sixty persons are in the vicinity of Selladega 210 persons lost there lives, and in Georgia the fatalities are estimated at 200, while many are mortally wounded. In South Carolina 25 were killed, and in North Carolina it is said that 75 victims are enumerated. These figures show the aggregate loss of life to have been 600, and this will be largely increased, as news is received from sections with which communication is difficult. The loss to property is immense. Whole villages have been swept entirely away, and plantations and farms denuded of everything valuable. Live stock in great numbers were slaughtered or maimed so that it will have to be killed. Much valuable timber was blown down and splintered to such an extent that it will be worthless. In Georgia the pecuniary loss is estimated at $2,000,000, and in one portion of Alabama it is said $3,000,000, will not cover the damage.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 23.—Reports thus far received of the results of Tuesday's storm mention 54 persons killed and 48 wounded, in fourteen counties of the State. Relief commissioners are administering aid to the afflicted. The patrons of husbandry have been appealed to for aid to distressed farmers.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S BOOK.

DIARY OF A TRIP WITH HER "SIX ORPHANS" TO THE HIGHLANDS.

Describing the Pleasures of her Children and Domestics and her own Sorrow Over the Death of her "Darling Husband"—A Tribute to Honest and Faithful John Brown—A Portrayal of Her Majesty's Domestic Life—The Record of Twenty Years.

The Queen's book, which was recently distributed to the press, cons

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1884.

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

The result of the election in South Oxford yesterday was a surprise to most people. Without going into particulars the cause may be found in the fact that Mr. Cooke's friends in the townships worked harder than Mr. Noxon's, many of whom were too confident of success. In the Norwich's it was natural to suppose that Mr. Cooke would poll a large vote, but it was hoped that the Liberals of these townships would unite in supporting the party nominee. The result shows that many of them have sacrificed their party principles in order to secure a representative from their own vicinity. To the Norwich's the Liberals of South Oxford always looked for a large majority for their candidate. In the other municipalities the political parties are more evenly divided. With the exception of Ingersoll the Conservative vote went almost solid for Cook. Until we receive the full vote polled we can make no comparison with previous elections. Mr. Cook promises the Mowat Goverament an independent support.

Below we give the majorities in the different municipalities :—

	INGERSOLL. NOXON.	COOKE.
1st Division,	80	35
2nd Division,	72	42
3rd Division,	76	29
4th Division,	73	27
5th Division,	86	44
6th Division,	54	45
	441	222
Ingersoll,	219
Tilsonburg,		113
Norwich,		120
N. Oxford,	27
East Oxford,		21
West Oxford,	45
South Norwich,	26
North Norwich,		74
Dereham,		97
	317	434

Total majority for Cooke, 117.

South Oxford.

(From the Globe.)

The victory of Mr. Cook in South Oxford is more surprising than important. It is probably due to the inaction springing from too great confidence on the part of the friends of Mr. Noxon, whose defeat is sincerely to be regretted inasmuch as he would have made a most valuable member of the House.

As a party matter the occurrence is of little moment. Mr. Cook is as distinctly pledged to support Mr. Mowat as was Mr. Noxon. In his election address Mr. Cook endorsed the Mowat Government on every important question. He "heartily approved of the reference of the boundary question"; he declared that "each Province should have the exclusive right to control the liquor traffic"; upon the question of Provincial rights he pronounced strongly against Ottawa interference and said "that each Province is the best judge how to manage its own local affairs." As to the School Reader question, he is "not in favour of frequent change," and wants the Government to print and supply the books at cost. Throughout the address there is not a word that shows the slightest sympathy with the views held by the Opposition. His election cannot be described in any sense as a Liberal defeat, for Mr. Cook is definitely committed to support the Administration on all the questions of the day.

NEWS ITEMS.

Prescott hotel-keepers will not take out Dominion licenses.

The British troops won a great victory at Trinkitat on Friday.

A young girl near Brantford took poison by mistake and died from the effects of the dose.

O'Donovan Rossa declares the British Houses of Parliament will be blown up within six weeks.

During a wind storm on Thusday last the barn door of David Best, Walkerton, was violently thrown open and struck Best, who was standing near by, on the head, instantly killing him.

Dynamite Outrages.

A black bag made of American cloth has been found in the cloak-room of the Ludgate Hill Station, containing 45 packages of dynamite and a portion of an American clock ; the latter was enclosed in a tin box. The bag contained between 30 and 40 cakes of a whittish yellow color like compressed gunpowder ; each packet was enclosed in paper, and all were packed around a small alarm clock to which a pistol was attached ; this was so arranged that when the clock ran down it would fire the contents of the pistol among the packets. The dynamite, if it had exploded, would have destroyed the arches supporting the passangers platform and made the station a wreck.

Another link in the chain of evidence against the dynamiters have been discovered by the police, who are in possession of evidence that one of the valises which they siezed in London was deposited in the railroad depot at Southampton by two passengers from New York, who landed at that port. The valise was afterwards sent to London.

The American Embassy has received no information in regard to the intended communication of the English Government to Washington relative to dynamite outrages. It will be made through the Hon. C. West, English Minister at Washington. The decision of the Government in this matter has received fresh impetus from the articles in the Times and other papers.

To day's Spectator says :—"It has become a serious question whether the Government shall ask Washington to aid in the suppression of the dynamite miscreants by signing a treaty binding both nations to make a conspiracy to injure foreign cities or inciting thereto highly penal offences. If English desperadoes were plotting or advising fire-raising in New York the Americans would expect the English Government to help them. Why is the obligation not reciprocal ? Congress cannot compel the State of New York to alter its laws, but it can sanction a treaty which under the constitution takes precedence of municipal law.

This opinion is universal among all classes of Irishmen in England, rich and poor, moderate and extreme, that these outrages endanger Irish lives far more than English ; that even if successful, they will result in the death of ten Irishmen for that of one Englishman and will arrest all Irish reform for years. The Tories already use dynamite as a strong argument against the reduction of the franchise in Ireland, and Salisbury will probably be backed by English opinion in throwing out a measure which, according to the calculations of English and Irish LiberalConservative and Nationalist alike would give Mr. Parnell 90 followers in the next Parliament.

LONG TAW'S FIRST FOAL IN CANADA.—At Woodstock, on the night of Thursday Feb. 28, Mr. John Forbes' bay mare Bonnie Vic. by Vicksburg, dropped a bay filly with a blaze, to Long Taw. This filly which is reported to be very active and handsome and which has already been christened Vic. Taw combines some very rich strains of blood. Through her sire she traces back to Leamington in the third generation, thus Long Taw, Longfellow, Leamington and to American Eclipse, thus Long Taw, Longfellow, Nautura, Brower's Eclipse, American Eclipse. One of the last pieces of news we had to chronicle from Woodstock was the death of Mr. Forbes' valuable stallion Bill Bruce, and not so very long prior to that was the death of BonnieBrae, but it is to be hoped that his luck in the stud line has taken a turn for the better. That he is not at all discouraged is amply proven by the fact that he has closed, or is about so to close, a bargain for the purchase of imported Strachino, a horse whose services in Canada ought to be well-nigh invaluable to breeders of thoroughbreds during the coming season.

ZOZENA at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

MRS. PINKHAM'S Medicine at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

LADIES' Kid Boots at Logee's. 60

Dereham Centre.

Mr. Thos. Pratt, who has lived here for the past twenty-two years is about returning to Mitchell. His sons will continue to work the farm.

Fatal Accident in Dereham.

An accident occured yesterday in Dereham that has caused a deep feeling of sympathy throughout the neighbourhood for the bereaved family. Mr. Thos. Hemsworth's only son went to the woods to cut cordwood and while felling a tree it came in contact with an adjoining one and fell upon young Hemsworth crushing him to the earth. The father had gone to his polling division and was met by a neighbor on his way to inform him of his only son's untimely end.

North Dorchester.

On the 26th of Feb. last, Mr. Wm. H. Johnston was married to Miss Emily J. Smith. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Griffin, at the residence of the brides father, Mr. Murray Smith, Miss Maggie E. Johnston acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Wm. Jolley as best man. After all had partaken of a bountiful spread the happy couple took their departure for Hamilton. The bride received many handsome presents.

Putnam,

A neck-tie social is announced for this week, Thursday night, at the residence of Mr. Wm. Carstick on the 3rd concession.

The social at the residence of Mr. Samuel Barr was a grand success. The proceeds amounted to $29, a good programme was provided.

Mr. James Rowse had the misfortune to have his pig pen and hen house burned up on Sunday night. His fine flock of hens, ducks and 7 pigs were burned to death. The cause of the fire was from coals in the ash barrel.

Salford.

The following is the report of the standing of the first six pupils in each class, for the month of Feb. Names appear in order of merit. 4th class.—Jno. Grant, Mattie Stockdale, Eugene Lawrence, Lizzie Chambers, Peter Poole, equal, Hattie Dunphy. 3rd., Sr.—Mary Wilson, Maggie Naylor, Florence McKeand, Millie Smith, Geo. Harris, Emerson Hunt. 3rd., Jr.—Minnie Gregg, E. Dutton, Lizzie McKeand, Herbert Piper, Isaac Grant, Chas. Jolliffe. 2nd. class—Kate Wilson, Edith Harris, Chas. Mitchell, Ella Gregg, Chas. Clark, Chas. Kennedy. 1st. class,—Bertie Mayberry, Ethel Foster, Maud Smith, Kenneth Grant, Adam McKeand, Ernest Welt. Class A.—Jos. Schweier, Ada Jolliffe, Faunie Fell, Annie Mayberry, Emma Welt.—W. COPELAND, Principal.

County and Vicinity.

A new bank will be opened in Woodstock in a short time.

William Stewart, Esq., East Zorra, has been appointed license commissioner under the Crooks Act, in place of John Dunlop, resigned.

Mr. Edward Horsman has rented his farm to Mr. Leonard of North Oxford. Mr. John Horsman is going to retire to Ingersoll. Mr. E. Horsman is to take his place on the old homestead.

A grand banquet was given in the town hall Drumbo, Feb. 27, to H. Muma, by his friends of the county of Oxford and others on the occasion of the withdrawal from the municipal council of the town ship of Blenheim, he having filled various positions in that body for a term of twenty two years.

Avon.

Mrs. Row is getting better.

Mr. William Crooks is seriously ill.

Mrs. Josie Fawlds is at her father's (Mr. Daniel Goble's) very sick.

Miss Frankie Whaley returned from St. Thomas, last Thursday, ill.

The sale of Murray Smith's stock in South Dorchester was well attended, tho' the cold weather must have prevented many from attending. The last ten days have been hard upon friend Brady, but he is ready for more nevertheless.

The Good Templars intend having an open meeting next Friday night. The entertainment will consist of readings, recitations, and music by the members of the lodge, and an address by Rev. Mr. Griffin.

West Oxford.

Mr. Renolds has sold his farm of 104 acres and stock for $10,000.

Mr. George Galloway's son is in from the lakes on a visit.

Mr. Barnet is very ill with inflamatory rheumatism.

A. French is making preparation to put a new fence in front of his farm which he bought last fall.

Spring Creek mills are doing a rushing business this year. The saw mill yard is being filled up rapidly with saw logs. The grist mill is doing a large gristing trade and still increasing.

At Pipers Corners, in the M. E. Church, on Wednesday evening 27th ult., H. N. Warner delivered a splendid and able lecture on Temperance, pictured in most glowing colors, the evils of strong drink in its dark phases, and discribed a life of misery that has few counterparts. H. N. Warner, I believe, will exercise a great influence over the minds of the people in the interest of the temperance cause which will result in carrying the County with an overwhelming majority.

The following is the standing of the pupils in the several classes in S. S No. 2, that took twenty-five per cent. and over, for the month of February :—Fourth Class, Sr.: Addison K. Walker, Bertha Walker, and Charles Wilson. Fourth Class, Jr.: Alida O. Sage, George F. Clark, Bradford Edwards, and Ellsworth Sage. Third Class: Emerson Wilkinson, Anna May Sage, and John Phillips. Second Class : Lavanga Edwards, Elmor Harris, Mabel Walker, Wesley D. Clark, Herbert Barrett, and James D. Hislop.— MISS LUND, Teacher.

Thamesford.

Mrs. Addie O'Connor arrived here on Tuesday again, after a short absence.

Mrs. Harry Wilds left here last week on a visit to her brother, of Erie, Penn.

Mr. Barclay, of Belmont, has bought the old Mathew's property, and we understand intends to open it as a black smith shop. We wish him success.

We hope the boys and girls won't forget the concert in the school house on Friday night.

Mr. Henry Fillmore, while drawing a load of hay, the other day, got his face badly frozen.

We are sorry to report the Rev. H. J. Fair confined to the house with erysipelas in his foot. It is very painful, but hope he will soon be able to get out again.

We regret to hear that Mr. Jno. Quinn, painter, is dangerously ill and not likely to recover. Mr. Geo. Hogg, Sr., East Nissouri, is, we hear, a little better. Mrs. Fillmore is also recovering from her protracted illness.

The Grangemen of this district are actively preparing to build their new hall. The site is situated right opposite the Methodist Church on the doctor's lot. They are having a two-storey building, the upper part to be used for their own meetings, the lower portion to be let for public meetings, etc.

On Monday evening there was a lecture given in St. Andrew's Church on Temperance, by Mrs. Youmans. The platform was occupied by the resident ministers, also the Rev. Mr. Rodgers of Kintore. There was a large audience, who thoroughly appreciated the lecture. Mrs. Youmans, we have no doubt, will do a great deal of good for the Scott Act throughout the country.

A large party was given at the residence of Mr. Wm. Smith, on the 11th con., on Friday evening. The invited guests thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and did ample justice to the good things provided for them by the ladies of the house. William, by the way, does not look any the worse for his ducking, although I think it will be a warning to him never again attempting to place five dollar bills on the ice even if it is to please two charming young ladies.

SULPHUR and Iron Bitters at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

PECTORIA, for Coughs and Colds, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

WARNER'S SAFE CURE at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

GERMAN Syrup at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

BROWETT'S Baking Powder, fresh and pure, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. (77

Beachville.

Mr. F. S. Mabee is ill of malarial fever.

Miss Fox attended the Sunday School Convention at Norwich last week.

Miss Wilkes has returned from Brantford, where she has been spending the greater part of the winter.

Mrs. Ross had the misfortune, while out one day last week, to fall, fracturing two of her ribs.

Sorry to learn that Mrs. F. Brink is suffering from a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs, and is at present in a serious condition, though hopes are entertained of her recovery.

Any person desirous of hearing something new in politics should not fail to call around to our village smithy, as our new blacksmith is winning quite a name as a public speaker.

Mr. Chas. F. Mason, late of Ingersoll, who has been spending a few weeks here, has secured a position as traveller for a leading dry goods house in London, and enters upon his duties at once. His many friends here will be pleased to hear of his appointment, and join in wishing him success in his new sphere.

Report of the standing of pupils in S. S. No. 5, North Oxford, for February.—Fourth—John Carroll, Nellie Ryan, and Matthew Ryan. Senior Third—Kate Flanders, Mary Hacker, Nellie Ellsworth. Junior Third—Spencer Wallace. Hattie Thorndike, Jas. Murray. Second - Sarah Hacker, Amos Reeves, Geo. Knowles. First—Arthur Downing, Fred German, Ethel Page.

Tilsonburg.

The Rev. M. McGregor, M. A., Presbyterian minister. was recently presented with a beautiful set of mounted harness by his congregations of Tilsonburg and Culloden.

The Rev. Mr. Ross, M. A., of this town, preached the anniversary church services of the Methodist church in Brownsville, on Sunday last.

The tea-meeting held in the Music Hall, under the auspices of the Baptist church, on Tuesday evening of last week, was an unqualified success. The proceeds amounted to about $75. The various ministers of the town took part, but the chief event of the evening was the farewell address of Rev. J. B. Moore, pastor of the Baptist Church. The Rev. gentleman touched upon the many pleasant and agreeable associations formed during his stay here, and said he was loth to sever connections with a people who had treated him so kindly and who had so earnestly co-operated with him in the discharge of his duties. However, he observed, he found pleasure in the thought that he was not going a very long distance away, and therefore, would be able to visit them once in a while. Mr. Moore leaves for Scotland, Ont., where, we understand, he formerly resided. He carries with him the best wishes of the citizens of the place who have always found him a pleasant and genial gentleman who always had a pleasant smile and a kind word for everybody, irrespective of their station in life. During his residence here he has been pre-eminently distinguished for his charity and the kindly, christian cheerfulness which pervaded his every action in life. The departure of such a gentleman from the community is induced a great loss. "God give us, in these latter days, more men just such as he."

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The editor of THE CHRONICLE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

THE SCOTT ACT.

A Farmer's Ideas.

DEAR SIR,—As we are going to have a vote on the Scott Act, and as it is a matter that affects this county more than anything at present before the electors, and being a large ratepayer myself, with your kind permission I would like a small space of your paper in which to express my views upon the subject.

Let us compare the present law, which was passed by the Mowat Government at the suggestion of the temperance party and endorsed by a resolution of the Methodist Conference, and which is the most perfect temperance law passed by any Government in the world, as its restrictions are wise, able and endorsed by the great majority. The Scott Act party claim to be working to stop drunkenness. I am at a loss to know where they find the great amount of drunkenness they speak about. My impression is our people are exceedingly temperate. Of course, there are a few who indulge too freely. They also can be found in the State of Maine, where they have a strictly prohibitory law, both as regards the manufacturing and importing, to a larger extent than here. Under the Scott Act they can do both. With reference to those who are drinking to excess, our present law provides ample means, as far as parents, man or wife, guardian, or in the case of neither, the authorities to forbid the hotel keepers or other dealers from supplying them, under a heavy penalty. And where the law is violated the party violating is open to an action for damages. The Scott Act makes no such provisions. There is nothing to help the poor drunkard in it. If the Scott Act agitators were offering us a law forbidding the manufacture or purchase of liquor from the places outside of the county it might be of some benefit. But where it is sectional we would only be destroying trade for the benefit of the surrounding counties. I see one great injustice to the parties engaged in the trade ; and that is that our present law has compelled the hotel-keepers to spend large amounts of money to make their hotels capable of affording the proper accommodation for man and beast. Can any honest man conscientiously think he is doing right to destroy that property after he through his Government has compelled the outlay of that money ? Can he feel he is following the Golden Rule to do as he would wish others to do by him ?

There is another feature that I, as a farmer, think an outrage for any Government to dare to make a law—that a farmer cannot make his apples into cider and sell to any person the smallest quantity except to the licensed druggist. What are we farmers to do with all our cull apples ? Are we to be forced to throw them to the hogs or let them rot ? I am able every apple year to make a large amount of money out of these apples, which I shall be forced to lose or else place myself in the position to be fined heavily or sent to jail.

Another bad feature of the Scott Act is that under it they make no provision to compel hotel keepers to keep their hotels according to any standard. They can do just as they please. They are bound to furnish neither bed nor board to man or beast. They are not responsible for whips, robes, coats or any other valuable left in their possession.

I have been in Halton and find that liquor is sold in a large number of places besides hotels. I also find that a very large number of people who did not keep liquor in their private houses, under the Crooks Act, are now taking it home in large quantities, and I am sorry to say the wives and families are drinking as well as the men, which is a most deplorable thing. As far as the old topers are concerned they simply join together and bring it in in large quantities, and while it lasts they have one continuous drunk. No glass business with them as under Mowat's Act. My experience is that when a man is known to be all right he can get all he wants. Of course the old topers are not considered safe to be around getting it by the glass, as they are watched, temperance people and preachers of course excepted ; they are not considered safe ; they might spend. One more enquiry I find the village property of all description has decreased to a terrible extent and business has gone, you might say, to the dogs. The towns are not quite so bad but not very far behind. People will go where they can most easily get what they want and where the outside towns are not very much further away that is where they find it.

Is it not very much better for us to be satisfied as we are than have our county fall into this deplorable state ? I can scarcely feel that many of us are incapable of taking care of ourselves. If our towns (and we have some very prosperous ones now) should fall into the same state as the poor, forsaken towns in Halton, we farmers will then have all the taxes to pay. I for one, don't want any more than I have now, between paying Port Dover and Credit Valley bonuses, and paying for Woodstock's Model School, &c. If I have in addition to pay my proportion of broken down towns' taxes and the loss that the licenses will be to the country my easiest way out will be to give them my farm.

The Scott Act agitators of course boast that they will see the Act carried out. They said the same thing to Mr. Mowat if he would give them the Crook's Act. You all know whether they have kept their word. When they want anything themselves they are very anxious to have it broken, especially when they want a pint for camphor. If they cannot watch the hotels from Saturday evening until Monday morning with the severity of our present law I have little faith in their word when they say they will watch the whole year round. If they had made any attempt to assist our officers we then might have a little faith in them. Their protestations seem to me like the worst kind of hypocrisy. A few years ago the same class of agitators stumped this county claiming the Dunkin Act to be just what we wanted. A short time afterwards they acknowledged it to be a fraud, whereas its provisions were in every particular superior to the provisions of the Scott Act. Get the two acts and compare them and you will find my statement to be correct.

I trust on the 20th of March that the decision of the electors of this county will be in favor of Mowat's Act, and that they will show by their decision that they appreciate the effort which the Mowat Government made in giving to the people of this county and Ontario the best temperance law in any country in the world to-day.

I am surprised at the stand the majority of the Ministers have taken in this matter, as they are working decidedly against the interest of temperance and morality, as sly drinking and jug drinking are the very worst type. As my Minister is strangely in favor of the Scott Act and not wishing to quarrel with him, allow me to sign myself

FARMER.

Feb. 26, 1884.

Scott Act.

To the EDITOR of THE CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—So far, no one has accepted your offer of space in THE CHRONICLE, for letters on the Scott Act, for or against. Well, I am going to break the ice this week, and I sincerely hope that others who are more ready with the pen than I may follow, and improve this opportunity of giving the question the thorough ventilation it needs ; for it is certainly a question that has not become stale by reason of over agitation.

What is the Scott Act ? It is the Canada Temperance Act, passed in 1878, by the Dominion Parliament, and gives power to any municipality to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within its borders by a majority of votes ; that means that Oxford may, if she choose, arise and crush the destroyer whose ruinous work we see at every turn. The Act makes it a crime to sell liquor to any one for use in the County, unless it be for medicinal or mechanical purposes, and then only on the strength of a physician's certificate. A favorite argument with the enemies of the Act is that "it won't work." It will work as well as any other law we have—if we make it work. There is a law against stealing. Do we hear people reasoning thus concerning it ? "many thieves steal and are not punished ; therefore the law is valueless—we don't want it." Such argument is just as absurd when applied to the Scott Act. Let us have the law and then use every reasonable means to enforce it. If we do this, we shall, without doubt, be successful in stamping out the horrible traffic in our county. Friends of temperance and morality, do not allow yourselves to be influenced and misled by men that love whiskey. Let us all set to work at once, and let the 20th of March be a day of victory !

DEREHAM.

Dereham, Feb. 26th, 1884.

He Twisted Her Tail.

It was a cow, with mild brown eyes, auburn bangs and a tail with a loose lock on the end, that switched the air and knocked imaginary flies into the hereafter with a snap. She was being led down West street toward the Cortlandt street Ferry by a ferocious-looking Jerseyman, whose complexion, owing to the cold weather and hot whiskey, was red as a meteoric sunset.

Suddenly, with what was apparently unnecessary cruelty, the Jerseyman struck the cow across the flank with a club, swung his arms over his head, danced a maddening double-shuffle in the street, and sat down with strange rapidity upon a car-rail. The cow looked over her shoulder reprovingly, and stood in her tracks. The Jerseyman arose from the impression he had made upon the ice, smoothed his coat-tails caressingly, and started toward the cow. He rapped her once, spat on his hands, rapped her twice, put his shoulder against her side—all to move her out of the track of the drays—but to no avail.

A crowd assembled. The Jerseyman got lots of sympathy but no assistance. One man suggested that she had frozen fast; another that she was undecided about the policy of the new Board of Alderman. The owner went a few yards ahead, grinned a ghastly grin, and shaking his club behind him in a suppressed fury pleaded in persuasive tones, "Come, Mooly—Come, Mooly—Mooly." But Mooly saw the club.

At last from the crowd stepped a lank and unshaven specimen of a 'longshoreman. He was gifted with a wisdom beyond his kind. He drew the owner of the cow aside and whispered in his ear : "Twist her tail." The Jerseyman shook his head. Then, as though bidding for the support of the multitude, the 'longshoreman raised his arm and making a sweeping gesture exclaimed :

"Gents, I says twist her tail."

"Twist it yerself," was the answer.

A glance of scorn upon the crowd, and the 'longshoreman bared his brawny arm and stepped up to the cow. He took the love-lock in his hand ; ran his fingers through it and clenched them, grasped the middle of the tail with his left hand, and tried to tie a knot. An agonizing silence, which was broken by a groan and dotted with a broad-brimmed hat, a pair of suspenders, and the arms and legs of a longshoreman doing calisthenics in the frosty air. The battered remains of the 'longshoreman were carried away muttering blasphemy. The cow after she had replaced her hind hoofs on the ground was led on to the ferry by the Jerseyman, who observed as he paid his fare :

"Takes more'n a Yorker to learn me lessons."

A Tierra Del Fuegian Canoe.

The canoe is a rough, primitive structure ; several breadths of bark stitched together with sinews of the seal and gathered up at the ends. Along each side a pole is lashed, joining the gunwale rail, while several stout pieces laid crosswise serve as beam timber. In the bottom, amidships, is a mud hearth on which burns a fire, with sticks set up around it to dry.

There are three compartments in the craft, separated from one another by the cross-pieces ; in the forward one are various weapons—spears, clubs, and sling-stones—and fishing implements. The amidships section holds the fire-hearth, the men having place on the forward side of it ; the women, who do the paddling, are seated further aft ; while in the stern are stowed the boys, girls and dogs.

Making an Engraving on Wood.

Of course, you know that such pictures as you see in books or in St. Nicholas have to be engraved upon some surface from which an impression can be taken, before they are printed in the book or the magazine. And you probably know that the kind of engravings generally used in such books are wood-engravings.

In wood-engraving the lines that are to ink the paper are left standing, while the parts between are cut away from the surface of the block, so that when an ink-roller is passed over an engraving of this kind it leaves all the lines tipped with a coating of ink, to be picked up by the sheet of paper which comes in contact with it. So, you will see the wood engraver must sink two lines in the block to make one line which will print.

Of course, considering the hardness of the wood and the delicacy required for the lines, this is very slow and tedious work. You may easily form some idea of how tedious it is by placing a penny over any portion of an engraved picture —such as that of Monkstown Castle, in the December number of St. Nicholas— making a light mark around the penny with a black lead pencil, and then by the aid of a magnifying glass counting the lines within the circle. You will see that your penny has covered more than one hundred lines ; and then you must remember that at every place where the shading in the drawing which the engraver is engraving grows lighter or darker he has to change the width of the line ; for just in proportion to the thickness of the black line left between the two white ones, will be the "tint" or "color" of the corresponding portion of the printed picture.

These changes are called by engravers "stops." And where there are many of these one square inch of engraving is a fair day's work.

I have spoken of a drawing, for the engraver has a drawing to work from. Sometimes it is made upon the wood-block, but it is more frequently made by the artist much larger than the block on which it is to be engraved, and is reduced copy of it produced upon the block by photography. By this plan the artist can work much more freely, and the engraver is enabled to have the large drawing in front of him, besides the reduced copy of the same which he is cutting into lines upon the block.—St. Nicholas.

BORN.

CLARKE.—In Toronto, 25th ult., the wife of Mr Geo. M. Clarke, of a son.

SABINE.—At Salford, on the 29th ult., the wife of Mr. Joseph Sabine, of a son.

ALLEN.—In Ingersoll, on the 20th ult., the wife of Mr. A. Allen, of a son.

MARRIED.

WILLIAMS—NILES.—At the residence of the brides father, Dundas St., London, by the Rev. Mr. Henderson, Albert W. Williams, son of James Williams, Culloden, to Miss Adda, youngest daughter of Mr. H. Niles.

DANIEL—LINDLEY.—By Rev. John Reynolds, on the 5th inst., at Chapman's Terrace, Ingersoll, Mr. Joseph E. Daniel, to Miss Susan C. Lindley, both of Dereham.

DIED.

SWANSON.—In West Zorra, on Thursday the 21st ult., Margaret Vance, wife of Mr. Wm. Swanson, aged 34 years.

MURRAY.—In Embro, on Sunday, the 24th, ult., Mrs. Jno. Murray, aged 78 years.

WILLISON.—In Embro, on Tuesday, the 26th, ult., Jane Willison, aged 74 years.

BELL.—In Ingersoll, on the 22nd ult., infant daughter of Mr. W. C. Bell.

ROBERTSON.—In Ingersoll, on the 2nd ult., Mary, wife of Mr. Robt. Robertson, aged 53 years.

FIERHELLER.—In West Oxford, on the 27th ult., Harry E., son of Mr. A. Fierheller, aged 8 months and 6 days.

HEMSWORTH.—In West Zorra, on the 5th inst., Mr. Thos. Hemsworth, aged 22 years.

QUINN.—In East Nissouri, on the 5th inst., Mr. John Quinn, aged 29 years.

IRELAND.—In Ingersoll, on the 4th inst., Mr. John Ireland, father-in-law of Mr Edward Bishop, aged 82 years and 9 months.

DUNPHY.—In Dereham, on the 1st inst., Fletcher C., son of Mr. Jas. Dunphy, aged 2 yrs, and 1 d y.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 86

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

Feb. 28th, 1884.

CHINESE WISDOM.

Some Wise Sayings of the Celestials That Apply the World Over.

There seem to be very few European proverbs which have not been paralleled in the Flowery Kingdom, and indeed it makes the world appear smaller than ever when one finds that the Chinese, a couple or ten thousand years ago, thought and said the same things that our ancestors crystallized into proverbs under such differing conditions. Mr. Giles says of the Chinese proverbial philosophy: "Most Western proverbs, maxims, household words, etc., are to be found embedded therein; sometimes expressed in strictly identical terms, at other times differing only in point of local color. Here are a few which will be recognized at once :

One actor does not make a play.
Out of the wolf's lair into the tiger's mouth.
Prevention is better than cure.
Better a living dog than a dead lion.
As the twig is bent the tree's inclined.
When the cat's away the rats play.
It is the unexpected which always happens.
Oxen till the fields and rats eat the corn.
Better be a fowl's back than a bullock's rump.

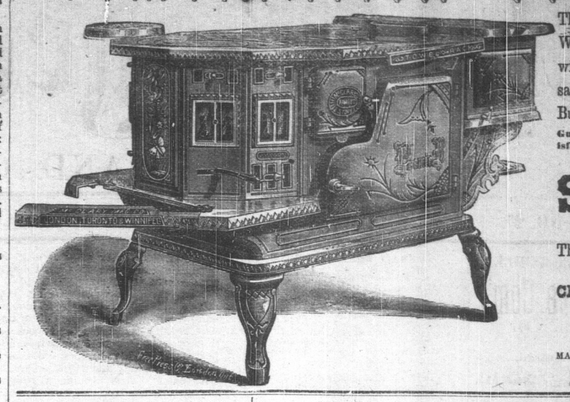
And here are a few the flavor of which is more decidedly Chinese, though some of them have long been common property;

Deal with the faults of others as gently as with your own.
A man thinks he knows, but a woman knows better.
No medicine is as good as a middling doctor.
No needle is sharp at both ends.
Straight trees are felled first.
Only imbeciles want credit for the chievements of their ancestors.
Better a dog and peace than a man in war.
Don't break a vase for a shy at a rat.
Everyone gives a shove to the tumbling wall.
You can't chop a thing as round as you can pare it.
He who rides a tiger cannot dismount.
Politeness before force.
Don't make dumplings in a teapot.
Don't take a pole-ax to kill a fowl.
Money makes a blind man see.
A near neighbor is better than a distant relation.
Women share adversity better than prosperity.

There is abundance of shrewdness and homely wisdom in these and scores more of Chinese proverbs and sayings given by Mr. Giles, and in many of the specimens of literary style there is an elegance and evidence of ripe culture which indicate that fully a thousand years ago China had attained a place in literature such as no Western nation attained until much later.—New York Tribune

An Enterprising City.

Nuremburg was a place of consideration even in the times of Emperor Henry IV., who ennobled thirty-eight families there. In 1219, Henry V. raised it to the rank of a free, imperial city, and during the middle ages it was very important on account of its enormous traffic between the great seaport of Venice and the countries of the East, and all northern Europe. Through its commerce it became a very rich city, and its burghers established manufactories of various sorts, and so built up its trade that skillful artizans flocked there, and many discoveries were made there which still have a great influence in the world.



The first paper mill in Germany was in Nuremburg, and Koberger's printing-house with its twenty-four presses was so attractive to authors that they settled at Nuremburg in order the more conveniently to oversee the printing of their works. Watches, called "Nuremburg Eggs," were first made about 1500 ; the clarionet was invented there, and church organs were better made there than in any other German town. A new composition of brass, the air-gun, and wire-drawing machinery were all Nuremburg devices. The filagree silver and gold work—the medals, images, seals, and other artistic jewelry which were made by the fifty master goldsmiths who dwelt there—were famous far and wide ; and this variety of manufactures was increased by Hirchvogel, an artizan who travelled in Italy, and learned to make majolica. His factory, established at Nuremburg in 1507, was the first in all Germany in which such ware was made. It is not certain that playing cards were invented in Nuremburg, but they were manufactured there as early as 1380, and cannon were cast there in 1356 ; previous to this they had been made of iron bars soldered together lengthwise, and held in place by hoops. In short, the manufactories of Nuremberg were so numerous as to give rise to a proverb,

"Nuremburg's hand, Goes through every land";

and thus the city had a sort of importance which success and wealth brings to a person or place.—St, Nicholas.

—A French chemist asserts that it is the mechanical state which makes new bread less digestible than old ; the former is so soft, elastic and glutinous in all its parts that ordinary mastication fails to reduce it to a sufficiently digestible condition. In the course of some experiments in this direction, a circular loaf, twelve inches in diameter and six inches thick, was taken from an oven heated to 240° Reaumur, and a thermometer forced into it three inches. The thermometer indicated 207.5° Fahrenheit. The loaf was then taken to a room the temperature of which was 66° Fahrenheit, and found to weigh seven and a half pounds ; in twenty-four hours the temperature of the loaf fell to 66°, and in thirty-six hours to 63.5°. In the first forty-eight hours it lost only two ounces in weight After six days the loaf was again put in the oven, and when the thermometer had indicated that its temperature had risen to 156° Fahrenheit, it was cut open and found to be fresh, and to possess the same qualities as if it had been taken out of the oven the first time, but it had lost twelve ounces in weight. Experiments were made with slices of bread with similar results.

COMBINATION STOVE.

The Most Perfect Coal and Wood Stove Manufactured, with round fire pot, on the same principle as a Base Burner.

Guaranteed to Give Perfect Satisfaction. Call and See it Working at the Store of

S. KING

Star House,

Thames Street, Ingersoll.

Cheese Vats,
Milk Cans,
Sap Pans,
and Pails

MADE TO ORDER.

PRICES LOW.

NOTICE.

Just Received an Immense Stock of

Wall Papers and Borders

Of the newest designs, which will be offered at VERY LOW PRICES in order to induce customers to commence house cleaning early, at

L. THOMPSON'S

Wall Paper, Stationery, Oil, Color and Window Glass Store, McCaughey's Block, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, February 7th, 1884. 1587

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE, 8 Chean, 8 Rooms, good well and barn, on King Hiram Street, north of River. Apply to H. O'CONNOR, Jr., Broker, Ingersoll

January 10th, 1884. 1583im

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT.

J. C. HEGLER.

Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557e-m

London Loan Company,

LONDON, ONTARIO.

$100,000 to lend at Lowest Rates.

Short loans at 6 and 6½ per cent. Apply to

M. J. KENT, Manager,

London, Feb. 7th, 1884. 1587e-y

RENNIE'S SELECT Field, Garden AND Flower SEEDS ARE THE BEST

THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST COMPLETE CATALOGUE FOR 1884 FREE TO ALL INTENDING PURCHASERS.

WM. RENNIE, TORONTO.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

WM. C. BELL

Having bought the Lumber belonging to the Estate of the late ADAM OLIVER

And RENTED THE MILL, he is prepared to execute all

Carpenter & Joiner Work

Entrusted to him. He will also

Contract for Buildings !

OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS,

And supply House Building material at the very lowest prices. It is a well known fact, from the easy financial position of the late firm, they were always ahead of the times in having thoroughly seasoned lumber, and from which all his inside work will be manufactured. A specialty in making

VENETIAN BLINDS,

Which can be made to order in short notice. GIVE HIM A CALL.

WM. C. BELL.

Ingersoll, Feb. 1st, 1883. 1535

THE ANNUAL SEED CATALOGUE

will be mailed FREE to all applicants and to customers of last year without ordering it. It contains illustrations, prices, descriptions and directions for planting all kinds of Flower Seeds, Plants, etc. Invaluable to all.

D. M. FERRY & CO., DETROIT, MICH.

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Ps

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

LITTLE DOT

—IT IS THE—

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship. Ask for the

"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.

Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

In pursuance of Section 34, Cap. 107, R. S. O., notice is hereby given, that all creditors having claims against the Estate of

GEORGE WEIR, Sr.,

Late of the Village of Thamesford, in the County of Oxford, deceased, who died on or about the 7th day of February, A.D. 1884, are required to send by post prepaid, or to deliver to J. C. Hegler, Esq., at the Town of Ingersoll, Solicitor for the Executors of the last will and testament of said deceased

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Dry Goods—Hearn & Co
New Groceries—Nelles and Stevens.
Gents Furnishings—Hearn & Co.
Woodstock Sanitarium—L. H. Swan.
Special—C. R. I. & P. R'y.
Special—Scott Act.
Agents Wanted—H. Tunison.
Cook Wanted—Jas. Brady.
Auction Sale—N. Massey.
Auction Sale—C. Boyer.
Tenders—Thos. Seldon.
Auction Sale—John Snell.
Seeds—John Pike.
O. and Q. R'y.—F. Symons.
Wood—E. Cuthbert.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

It is said that the bank of London will open a branch in Woodstock. Woodstock now has two banks.

LOT'S OF FUN.—A neck-tie social will be held at Mr. Estey's, Park street, on Tuesday evening next. Lot's of fun and a good time generally.

THE sleighing at the present time is all that could be wished for, and two weeks' more of it would assist materially in making March a pleasanter month than usual.

GENTLEMEN.—For the nicest things in gentlemen's furnishings go to Hearn & Co's. Their stock is new and consequently of the latest styles.

O. S. S. A.—The County of Oxford Sabbath School Association elected the following officers:—President, Rev. Mr. McGregor, Tilsonburg; Vice President, Mr. S. Stephens, Norwich; General Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Ernest Poldon, Norwich.

BAKING POWDER.—When you ask your grocer for "Royal Baking Powder," don't be put off with the excuse that this or that make is "just as good." "Royal Baking Powder" has been proved to be the purest in the market. Ask your grocer for "Royal Baking Powder," and take no other.

SOCIAL.—A social in the interest of the M. E. Church will be held at the residence of Rev. G. Lawrence, Charles street, next Tuesday evening. Tea served from six onward. All are cordially invited. The social held at the residence of Rev. J. Reynolds last evening was a success, notwithstanding the election excitement. Over $14 were realized.

CARNIVAL.—The last and best carnival of the season will be held this (Friday) evening, for the benefit of the Band. This should be well patronized by our citizens, as the proceeds of this affair will be the only remuneration received by the Band for their services during the winter. Let there be a large turnout and "the boys" made glad.

LIQUOR LICENSES.—Hotel-keepers should understand distinctly that there is no need whatever to take out two licenses. The Crooks Act stands, and the most that is claimed by the supporters of the McCarthy Act is that the Dominion has concurrent jurisdiction. No man can be convicted who sells under the Crooks Act. This is the opinion of the leading lawyers.

SCOTT ACT MEETING.—A convention of temperance workers in the County, will be held in the Town Hall, Woodstock, on Saturday, March 15th, at 10 o'clock a.m., to make final arrangements for getting out the vote on March 20th. A number from outside our County will be present. A public meeting will be held at 1 p.m., and another at 7.30, p.m. 91i.

DON'T FORGET that Rev. John Laycock, a native of Oxford Co., will preach next Sabbath morning and evening, March 9th, in the M. E. Church, Charles street, and will deliver his lecture entitled "Small Things," in the same place on the Monday evening following, March 10th, at 8 o'clock. Admission free, but a liberal silver collection taken to meet Conference claims. A rare treat may be anticipated, as Rev. Laycock is no ordinary speaker, and is a credit to his native county. Crowd the church, friends!

CREDIT VALLEY EXTENSION.—It is reported that a Bill will be introduced in the Parliament shortly to authorize the extension of the Credit Valley Railroad from Woodstock to Sarnia, in order to connect with the Michigan railway system. The Credit Valley is now virtually owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and by such an extention as that indicted the latter Company hope to secure a line to Detroit and Chicago.

LECTURES.—The lecture service in the B. C. Church, Oxford street, last Sabbath evening was one of unusual interest. Eleven descriptive diagrams were used showing the different points of interest in the wilderness of Arabia in connection with bible truth. At certain intervals a little girl distinctly read a passage of scripture as the text of each diagram. The points and places noted in the lecture were as follows:—The geography and dynasties of Egypt, the city of the Pharoahs, the first passover, the passage of the Red Sea, the engraven rocks containing Israel's song of rejoicing, the manna at Rhepidim, the rock of Horeb giving water, the fertile valley with its brooks and palm trees at the home of Hagar and Ishmael, the sandy plain where Jethro came to meet Moses and the place where the tabernacle was built, the form of the sanctuary when completed, and the Mount of Sinai where God gave the law. The lecture occupied a hour in its delivery, and the interest was sustained to the close. Every young person desiring to have bible truths easily fastened on the mind by the aid of geographical and historical remarks should not fail to hear this course of lectures which we are glad to know will be continued for two or three more Sabbaths.

Board of Education.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday, February 25th. Members present, Messrs. the chairman, Hegler, Slawson, Williams, Sutherland, Hewitt, Flowelling, Vance, and Ferguson. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Several accounts were handed to the finance committee and on their report were ordered to be paid.

Communication from Jas. White, county clerk, advising the board of the appointment of J. C. Norsworthy as high school trustee in room of Wm. Watterworth.

Communication from the London and Canadian Agency Co., respecting insurance on John St. school, also from J. S. Deacon regarding increase of salary.

The property committee brought in their report recommending that as the present janitor of the central school Mr. Jas. McDonnell was not performing his duties in a satisfactory manner, he be dismissed and that Mr. Thos. Cross receive the appointment at the same salary, also that $150.00 be placed to the credit of the property committee for the payment of wood purchased from several parties, which was on motion adopted.

It was on motion resolved that the secretary ask the town council for $1800 to be placed to the credit of the school board not later than the 20th March.

The finance committee brought in their report of the estimates for the current year at $4,461.00 which was amended in committee of the whole to $4,611.00 and adopted.

On motion made and seconded it was resolved that Mr. Deacon receive $150 00 for services as teacher of the model school instead of $50.00 as formerly.

Dr. Williams here gave notice that at the next regular meeting he would bring in a motion to expend $100.00 for the purpose of ornamentation in the school rooms during the coming year, exclusive of the ordinary cleaning and repairs usually given to the different departments.

On motion the board adjourned.

Scott Act Notice.

Any person wishing a copy of the Scott Act pamphlet, published by the Scott Act party, will be furnished with one free by calling on M. M. Nesbitt, Woodstock, President of the Anti-Scott Act Association.

We are anxious that every person should understand the Act.

I am told on the best authority that they are now denying its clauses. Below we copy Clause 5, found in pamphlet, on page 24:—

"5. Provided also, that any producer of cider in the county, or any licensed distiller or brewer, having his distillery or brewery within such county or city may thereat expose and keep for sale such liquor as he shall have manufactured thereat, and no other; and may sell the same thereat, but only in quantities not less than ten gallons, or in the case of ale or beer not less than eight gallons at any one time, and only to druggists and others licensed as aforesaid or to such persons as he has good reason to believe will forthwith carry the same beyond the limits of the county or city; and of any adjoining county or city in which the second part of this Act is then in force, and to be wholly removed and taken away in quantities not less than ten gallons, or in the case of ale or beer not less than eight gallons at a time."

You will see by the above clause that a farmer making cider is classed the same as a dissiller and brewer, and subject to the same penalties for infringement. You will also please read Clause 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, on same page.

On page 27, Clause 109 will be found that every private family can keep 20 gallons liquor in their own house.

41.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

TOWN COUNCIL.

A special meeting of the Council was held on Thursday evening last.

Members present:—His Worship, the Reeve, in the chair; Messrs. Buchanan, Gibson, Horsman, O'Connor, Seldon, Matheson, Watterworth, McInnes, Walley, Nelles, Waterhouse and Richardson.

Report of the Market and Printing Committee recommending that the Town Hall be wainscotted on the north, east and south sides four feet high and the remainder and the ceiling be kalsomined and the windows be frosted if not too expensive; also the stairways and Council Chamber be kalsomined, and that the south of Council Chamber be wainscotted 3½ feet high, and that the Committee have power to advertise for tenders for said work, which was on motion adopted.

Account received from R. M. Deuel for wood and glass for Town Hall, $7.00, which on motion was ordered to be paid.

Account from R. Frezell, meals for tramps, etc., $10.44.

Auditors' Report received, and on motion was handed to the Finance Committee for their report thereon at the next regular meeting.

Moved by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Nelles, and resolved, That the Council do now go into Committee of the Whole on Mr. Buchanan's motion touching the License Question.

Council went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Nelles in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, and resolved, That the Committee do now rise and recommend that no action be taken on the License Question at this session of council.

Council resumed, the Reeve in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. O'Connor, That in consideration of the unsettled state of affairs in connection with the liquor trade it would be unwise for this Council to make any change in the By-law in reference to the granting of hotel and shop licenses, and that the By-law now in force be allowed to remain as it now reads.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. Watterworth, and resolved, That the recommendation of the Committee of the Whole that no action be taken on the License Question at this session be adopted by this Council.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That whereas through the oversight of the Council of 1883 at its December session the Council neglected to appoint a High School Trustee for the ensuing three years; therefore that it is now necessary and expedient that we proceed to appoint such a trustee, and that we now appoint Robt. Vance to the position of High School Trustee for the ensuing three years ending December 31st, '86.

Report of Constable Committee stating they had received 10 applications, salaries ranging from $400 to $600 per year; would recommend the appointment of B. R. Allen, of St. Thomas, at $425 with perquisites, or $575 without, he to furnish his own clothing. Respectfully submitted. G.W. WALLEY, Chairman.

Moved by Mr. Richardson, seconded by Mr. Nelles, and resolved, That rule 37 be suspended for the evening.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. McInnes, that M. H. Gray be sustained in the position of Chief Constable at a salary of $25 per month and the extra fees allowed by law for his work in making arrests, etc.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Gibson, seconded by Mr. O'Connor, and resolved, That M. H. Gray be not dismissed by this council until he has been heard in his own defence before this council at our next regular meeting, and that the report of the Police Committee be laid over until Mr. Gray has been heard as above stated for further consideration.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, That the next regular meeting of this council be held on next Thursday night, March 6th, at the usual hour.

Council adjourned.

INGERSOLL PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Honor Roll for February 1884.

MR. DEACON'S ROOM.

1 John Stuart,	4 Jennie Reynolds,
2 Thos. Sandick,	5 Joseph Horsman,
3 Lillie Miller,	6 Helena Rowe.

MISS HUDSON'S ROOM.

1 John Barr,	4 Katie Liven,
2 Maud Bell,	5 Wesley Husband,
3 John Smith,	6 Carrie Bourn.

MISS POOLE'S ROOM.

1 Lulu Menhennick,	4 Maggie Scofield,
2 Blanche Crawford,	5 Thomas Ascroft,
3 Mary Porteous,	6 Jessie Winter.

MISS GRAHAM'S ROOM.

1 Aggie McLaughlin,	4 Tom Gibson,
2 Edith Geddis,	5 Howard Gray,
3 Minnie Hirst,	6 John Gibbs.

MISS DYKE'S ROOM.

1 Eva Hirst,	4 Clement Bowman,
2 Alex Spence,	5 Minnie Hooper,
3 Veronia Sutherland,	6 Lizzie Downing.

MISS BAXTER'S ROOM.

1 Chone Oliver,	4 Richard Petrie,
2 Thomas Robins,	5 Willie Berrie,
3 John McDermott,	6 Kate Armour.

MISS DINGMAN'S ROOM.

1 Katie Porteous,	4 Harry Silk,
2 John Thompson,	5 Vina Cook,
3 Annie Hearn,	6 Wesley Miller.

MISS CLEMENT'S ROOM.

1 George Coltridge,	4 Rahl Rufus,
2 Fred Ward,	5 Eva Henderson,
3 Willie Watson,	6 Max Richardson.

MISS STIMSON'S ROOM.

1 Lena Petrie,	4 Willie Heath,
2 Roddie McKenzie,	5 Susie Perkins,
3 Lily Garbutt,	6 Willie Day.

MISS MCNEIL'S ROOM.

1 Temple Blackwood,	4 Minnie Livens,
2 Bella Berry,	5 George Brown,
3 Clar. Blackwood,	6 David McKay.

MISS BARR'S ROOM.

1 Jessie O'Neill,	4 Mary Poole,
2 Edward Petrie,	5 N. Chamberlain,
3 Olive Barr,	6 Richard Johnson.

MISS A. V. DYKE'S ROOM.

1 Henry Collins,	4 Arthur McKay,
2 Gertie McDonald,	5 Rona McKay.
3 Willie Dickens,	6 Eddie Ward.

LINES ON A CANADIAN HUNTER.

Of Kentucky's great hunter bold,
Old Daniel Boon oft tales are told,
That of wild beasts he had no fear,
But dangers loved that pioneer.

Canada hath hunters many,
Yet perhaps there is not any
For skill and boldness could compare
With our own Daniel Heebner,

In youth he was both tall and strong,
And supple as a willow thong,
He never fled from Wolf or Bear,
Though Bruin on hind legs would rear.

But quick as lightning he would dart
His knife into the monsters heart,
For he never did despair
When in close quarters with a Bear.

For sweet and tender for to eat,
When lab is young and fat Bear's meat,
His skin he soon would strip with care
And quickly tan the hide of Bear.

In hunting Squirrel, Fox or Coon,
He was a second Daniel Boon,
His rifle oft brought down the Deer
Which to his table brought good cheer.

In sleigh with comfort Dan yet rides,
Warm 'mong the Bear and Coon skin hides,
In olden times his sport to snare,
In trap Otter, Mink, and Beaver.

But through his life his highest aim,
Was for to hunt the savage game,
To see the Wild Cat's fierce glare,
While attacking it in its lair.

He shot in the swamps west of Ingersoll, in Dorchester, 76 foxes, 22 minks and 20 coons, in 87 days. The personal conflict with the bear was also there, though he had brought others down with the rifle at a distance. He has carried one bear skin in his sleigh 36 years, one of his own trophies.

JAMES MCINTYRE.

What a Woman Says.

Mine Run Furnace, Va., Jan. 31, 1884.
E. St. John, G. T. & P. A.,
Chicago, Ill.

Your valuable Cook Book came to hand, for which accept my thanks. It's a treasure for it's recipes are plain and the book is well gotten up; its typographical and general make up speaks well for your department in doing so much for the "Women of America." May your Road be as successful as every woman will be who follows your Cook Book, and every man who eats thereafter.

Yours Truly,
MRS. R. M. KARSTERS.

This beautiful book contains 128 pages with illuminated covers. Sent on receipt of ten cents in stamps or cash. Address,
E. ST. JOHN, G. T. & P. A.
C. R. I. & P. R'y, Chicago, Ill.

BARGAINS.—J. Grant McKay has purchased the bankrupt stock of H. J. Lewis, and will hold auction sales every afternoon at 2 o'clock and every evening at 7 o'clock, until the whole is disposed of. Private sales during the morning. 90v.

FOR pure and unadulterated honey, in comb and extract, go to R. Vance's. 86

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at I. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

MANNERS, MIND AND MORALS.

THREE ESSENTIALS TO THE SUCCESS OF A YOUNG MAN.

Paul's Friendship for Young Timothy.

The Rev. W. W. Ross, addressed the following special sermon to young men in the King Street Methodist Church, on the evening of the anniversary, Sunday, Feb. 24. He took his text from I. Timothy, 4; 12; "Let no man despise thy youth." The Reverend gentleman said:—

Paul was naturally very fond of Timothy. He first met him on one of his missionary tours to Derbs and Lystra, where the parents of Timothy dwelt. He therefore became the son of Paul in the gospel, and hence the very tenderest relation existed between Paul and Timothy ever after. Paul was very anxious that he should be thoroughly respected by the people around him, and he advised Timothy in more than one place in his letters to him: "Timothy let no one despise thy youth." He gave him very particular directions as to how he should conduct himself, that he might secure the respect of the people. Paul wrote Epistles to the people concerning his beautiful qualities, so that when he went to carry on the work of Christianity in the church, he should receive that respect due to him. Paul was anxious for more. That he should be held in universal esteem by all around him, and he says, "Let no man despise thy youth."

Now a young man may be misunderstood; he may be misinterpreted; he may be slandered; and have the prejudices of the people against him for a time, and be held in contempt by his fellows. Yet every young man has it in his power to change the feeling of the public by his conduct. A young man may be born of humble parentage, possess humble gifts, and engage in an humble calling, yet have universal respect.

Timothy, of course, had some marked advantages as a young man—a good ancestry—a good deal for a young man to start out with. His mother and grand-mother were of very goodly stock. When Paul made his acquaintance at Lystra, he found that he was already well instructed by his mother and grand-mother. Still a young man may not be blessed with a worthy ancestry; he may bear a name, the sound of which almost brings the blood to his cheeks, yet possess a power to sooner or later gain universal respect. "Let no man despise thy youth."

Sometimes you will hear a young man say, and at times a foolish old man: "I don't care what they say about me." Lord Byron says: "The smallest criticism from the meanest of my critics causes me more pain than all those of my favourable ones put together." I should therefore covet and pay a proper price for the good opinion of man. Now it may be a very pleasant thing for a young man to carry off the medals of the school and university, to rank high in the social circle, to get civil and political position, or become rich, yet I hold that the whole of these enjoyments put together are not equal to the solid satisfaction of knowing that we are thoroughly respected by every one that knows us. Therefore it is no wonder that Paul should covet for Timothy the thorough respect of everyone that knew him. In what is before us to-night we have taken very broad ground, that we may have the respect of everyone. Now the question comes to me: By following what line of life may I get this universal respect?

There are three conditions: manners, mind, and morals, which, if attended to as they ought, everyone will accord us general respect. What are good manners naturally and logically? I find the Bible full of instruction as to manners. "Let no man despise thy youth, but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation." That word conversation means in Old English, behaviour, that is, the way it goes out of your mouth. Be an example to others in manners. Upon putting the question: "What is the meaning of good manners?" in a Sabbath School one time a little boy replied, "Please, sir, speaking to a man as you ought." Capital. Good as far as it goes, but not far enough to cover all the manners of our life. Manners not only relate to speech, but to our looks and general outside demeanour—the tout ensemble of our actions. So you first take that man's speaking, then the general movements and actions of the man, and then you have the manners. A man may be never ill-mannered by holding down his head when it ought to be up and keeping his mouth closed when it should be opened. When he lounges in the church pew, shuffles his feet and attends to little things of his own personality. Paul said I have written these things that you might know how to behave yourselves. Now the importance of manners to a young man is the same as the casket is to the jewel. Would you put a mean casket outside a good jewel? Manners bear the same relation as the binding does to the book. Take the best thoughts of an able writer and enclose them in a "yellow novel" cover, and no one will buy it, because the binding is not in keeping with its contents. But if richly bound a man will say a book that is so well bound must have something in it. The grandest book is that of a human soul, and the binding should be in keeping with the man. There is many a man who does not pass for what he is worth because his manners are not in keeping with his nature. Here is a merchant, he has as fine a stand and stock as any in the city, prices are reasonable; he has learned his business thoroughly; at last he is closed and sold out under the hammer of the sheriff. In spite of his advantages his manners are against him. Take an inferior man who has a pleasant, attractive way, and he has a crowded shop and succeeds. The professional man may spend years and a fortune fitting up his work. You would risk your life in his hands; everybody knows he is a first-class man except his manner. Long comes a Charlatan, a quack who perhaps has a bogus diploma, yet he has a nice sort of way, and while the other man is a failure he is a success. It shows the power of manner. Young man your success depends largely on your general manners. Don't forget a word of caution here, avoid affectation. Let your department have relation to those that are lower as well as to those that are higher in rank. There is in young men of superior attainments a disposition to look down on others of inferior endowments and a danger of not paying them due respect. If God has placed you in such a high position, you should do all you can to lift up those that are lower. No man has a right live to himself. How can I do this if I pay them no respect. Therefore, to get their confidence, I must treat them as a brother. George Washington was a splendid specimen of fine manners; also George IV., who treated both high and low alike. Lord Burleigh, in addressing our Queen, once said, "Your Majesty, if you first win the hearts of your people then you will have their purses." We now come to the second point—mind.

There was a time, even in Old England, cultured as she is to-day, when money was the measure of the man. You can understand Burns that the mind and not the money should make the man where he says, "A man's a man for a' that." To-day mind is the measure of the man. To be thoroughly respected you must cultivate it. You must avoid running into a rut, but be on high, broad ground. Cultivate broad-winning powers. Certain practical powers must be cultivated to make you good breadwinners, but don't neglect what we call the ornamental, the beautiful parts of your nature, the graceful parts of the mind. They are to a young man what the tendrils are to grape vines; they assist him to climb. Music comes under this head. David developed the useful powers of his nature as a shepherd boy and learned to use the sling skilfully, so he could hit to a hair's breadth, which were his bread winning and defending powers. But he didn't stay there. He played beautifully on the harp, so that Saul sent for him to come to him when in gloomy mood to drive away the "evil spirit." It has a wonderful power, so I say study music. If you have to deny yourselves of part of your living and enjoyments, be sure and bring out every power. There are men who are enjoying situations in the ministry and elsewhere because of their accomplishments. Self-education should be practiced. We have a great deal of help in public schools and colleges, but Sir Walter Scott says the best part of a man's education is the education he gives himself. The illustrious scholars Elihu Burritt, William Chambers and William Corbet were self-educated.

There are two classes of morals relating to the body. Young men, keep yourselves from uncleanness. Read for your direction on this point the first eleven verses of the book of Proverbs when you go home. Then keep from other bad habits. And finally I come to the habits of the soul. Keep your mind pure. Young man, don't let a foul imagination into your mind. Don't be ashamed of your principles and religion. Let your light shine before men; show your colours and you will be admired by those around you. "Let no one despise thy youth."

Personal.

Mr. J. C. B. Galer and family left for Durham, P. Q., yesterday, on a five weeks' visit.

Mr. P. J. Brown returned from the Northwest on Sunday.

Mr. Dave G. Douglass, who has been visiting friends in the vicinity of Ingersoll for the past three or four weeks, has returned to London.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

FRENCH Kid Boots at $2.2F. The best value ever offered in Ingersoll.—S. P. Logee. 56

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.

White Wheat, per bush.	$1 00	to	1 05
Red Fall Wheat "	1 00	to	1 05
Spring Wheat "	1 05	to	1 03
Barley "	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	33	to	34
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush.	7 50	to	8 50
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50

PRODUCE.

Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples per lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	6	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	7 50	to	8 00
Live Hogs "	5 00	to	6 00
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 09	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts	0 30	to	0 40
Wool, "	0 18	to	0 20

PROVISIONS.

Flour, new process, Spring 100 lbs	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs	2 75	to	2 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 00	to	2 75
Oatmeal	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts	00 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	16	to	18
Butter, rolls, per lb	22	to	25
Cheese,	12	to	13½
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	25	to	00
Geese,	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	00
Ducks,	60	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12

NEW YORK CHEESE MARKET.

Receipts for the week, 14,986 boxes; exports, 18,582 boxes. Fine white cheese are scarce and inquired for, and 15c. has been made in a small way. Colored cheese are in better supply, but very firm at the prices asked. Home trade may be somewhat limited, but stocks are being steadily reduced of fine cheese, and exports are mostly working on skims and seconds.

THE CHEESE MARKET.

It is doubtful if the full-made cheese has been so closely bought up at this time of the year as it is now for several years past. A very few firms, foremost among which is C. S. Brown & Co., hold what there is in New York, and Hon. Thomas Ballantyne owns about all there is in the province of Ontario, while Messrs. Ayer & Co. control the bulk of the Montreal stock. With cheese thus cornered, there is no danger that the price will give way. It is more likely to strengthen, and as it is two months yet before new cheese will come into market, there is a strong probability that it will do so.—Utica Herald.

LIVERPOOL PROVISION MARKET.

Reported for THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN by Messrs. William Heapy & Sons.

Liverpool, Feb. 14th 1884.

CHEESE.—The demand has been more active for all qualities and buyers have to pay 1s to 2s more to fill their requirements. Enquiries for useful sorts continues limited. The market is now nearly cleared of very low descriptions. Quotations are; Extra fine white or colored 70s to 71s, fine scarce 69s to 69s, useful winter made 42s to 50s, common 20s to 30s. New York quotations is 72s, c.i.f.

BUTTER.—There is a good demand for extra fine creameries and for such 116s to 120s could be realized, but there are none here. Choice selected Morrisburgs 95 to 105s, ordinary selections dull 85s to 90, stale and off flavored descriptions dull at 75s to 80s, good useful waxey lots at 60s to 65s are not plentiful.

BACON.—The strong speculation noticed in our last has developed this week and a large business has been done at higher prices for spot and future deliveries in all cuts market closing firm with buyers showing more caution, quotations are: Long and Short Clear together 48s 6d and 49s, Short Clear Ribs to 51s, Long Clear 48s, Light Long Clear 50s to 51s, Staffordshire and other fancy cuts 48s to 53s, Cumberland Cut stale parcels 42s to 44s, fresh landed lots 46s to 48s, Stretford Cut 48s to 51s, Long Rib 47s to 50s, Short Rib 46s to 48s, Clear Bellies 48s to 53s. Shoulders 30s to 44s.

HAMS.—Being in small supply have again commanded extreme prices market closing with importers firm at 1s advance on the week for all cuts. Quotations are: Long Cuts 56s to 63s, Stafford Cuts 60s to 64s, Wiltshire Cuts 60s to 64s, American Cuts scarce 61s.

LARD.—Influenced by the strong cable advices during the week has rapidly advanced and a fairly large business has been done on spot and for future deliveries at 49s to 51s. Closing firm but quiet with rather more sellers than buyers spot 51s6d, April, May, June, July, August 52s6d.

BEEF.—Firm.

PORK.—Dearer in sympathy with other hog products.

Under date 21st Feb., Messrs. Heapy & Sons write:

CHEESE.—There has been a fair consumptive demand for all descriptions but the higher prices now asked, to some extent check business. Choice Parcels of colored are getting in small compass. Quotations are Extra Fine White or Colored 70s to 72s. Fine continue scarce at 63s to 66s. Useful winter makes 42s to 50s. Common 20s to 30s. New York quotation is 72s.6d. c.i.f.

FARM AND DAIRY.

West Oxford cheese factory is expected to manufacture a greater quantity of cheese this year than last; last year it manufactured equal, if not more than any cheese factory in the Province.

Mr. J. B. Harris, the cheese expert, says the make of Wisconsin is considerably below that of Canada in quality. Yes, and there are plenty of other States in the same fix.—American Dairyman.

On Monday afternoon a very largely attended meeting of the patrons of the Burgesville cheese factory took place, all expressing themselves well pleased with the result of last season's work. It was agreed upon to have the factory conducted on the same terms as heretofore.

The annual meeting of the Brooksdale Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Co. was held at the factory on the afternoon of January 3rd. The total number lbs. milk received is 1,070,990; lbs. of cheese manufactured, 104,128½; total cash received for same, $11,262 48. No. lbs. milk to lb. cheese 10·28. Average price, 10 81C. The following were elected directors for the coming season: Thomas McKay, Alexander McDonald, William Clarke, Donald Murray, John Lindsay. The directors, on meeting, re-elected Thomas McKay, president, and appointed James Forbes Secretary-Treasurer.

A meeting of the patrons of the Fullarton cheese factory was held on Thursday, 21st ult. Mr. George Leversage was appointed chairman and Mr. F. J. Colemen secretary. The chairman paid a very high compliment to Mr. Huxley for the very satisfactory way in which he had managed the factory and brought it to its present high standing. While he regretted that Mr. Huxley was leaving he had every confidence that Mr. Coleman would conduct it as successfully as his predecessor. Messrs. Wm. Porteous, Thos. Carnelley, and Charles Martin were appointed a committe of management for the coming season. Mr. F. J. Coleman was appointed salesman and treasurer.

The Toronto Globe says:—A gentleman who has travelled extensively through the best wheat growing counties of Ontario assures us that that important cereal is in a very critical condition. Although too early to forecast with certainty the effect of the present icebound covering, yet the danger is very great, and if a season of prolonged cold should now ensue a large proportion of the wheat must inevitably be killed. The same person gave us last year the first intimation of the prospect of the failure in the winter wheat crop which afterwards occurred. While we hope for the best, yet even the remote prospect of a repeated failure is an unpleasant outlook.

The U. S. Senate Committee, investigating the adulteration in food on Monday, examined Dr. Martin, chemist, who, during the past year, investigated under the direction of the State Boad of Health several factories where imitation cheese was made. In one factory in Orange County it was found that the cheese made consisted principally of pure lard, the constituent portions being 75 per cent. of lard and 25 per cent. of butter. The lard used was rendered at a temperature scarcely higher than blood heat. Witness did not think the temperature employed sufficient to destroy the germs of animal life. Dr. Love testified that out of thirty samples of what was sold him as pure butter only six were genuine.

The fifth annual meeting of the Strathallen Cheese Manufacturing Co., was held at the factory on Wednesday, 27th ult. and was well attended by shareholders and patrons. Mr. Stewart, Esq., was appointed chairman, Mr. Harrington, Secretary. The directors report showed that there had been 2,906,531 lbs. of milk received during the season. The amount of cheese manufactured, 280,003 lbs., amount received, $31,340. 28c; the average price received per lb. of cheese, 11·18; the average lbs. of milk for one lb. of cheese, 10 38 100. A number of addresses were delivered which bristled with points of interest on the management and delivery of milk. P. Lockhart, R. Simcox, E. Parker, were chosen Scrutineers and the following officers was elected by ballot:—William Stewart, Wallace Harrington, Duncan Smith, Job Jaques, John Walker, Directors; John McLevin, Auditor.

The patrons and stockholders of the Brownsville cheese factory held their annual meeting in Brownsville, on Thursday, the 21st ult., Mr. John Allison occupying the chair, and Mr. John Hopkins acting as secretary. From the report of the company as read it appears that the amount paid for milk to patrons was $62,154 39; the cost of manufacturing was $3,252 05; the expenses of repairs was $351.77; the total amount received for cheese was $64,311.63; the total amount of milk received was 5, 804,-815 lbs.; the total amount of cheese made was 284 tons 1,381 lbs.; that the average per lb. was 11.03; that the number of cows was 1,934; that the price paid per standard cow of 3,000 lbs. was $27.03. Messrs. A. Cook, J. Fulton, —Comfort, E. B. Brown and E. York, were elected directors. Mr. A. D. Dean was elected auditor. The dividend on the stock on this years account was reported as about 15 per cent. Mr. B. Hopkins resigned any connection for office for the year so that the board will have to appoint a new secretary-treasurer. The Brownsville cheese company have engaged a Mr. Stiver to manufacture their cheese at a rate of 1½c. per lb. He finds all the trimmings.

The Liverpool cable for cheese is firm at 71s. This time last year it was 65s6d, the year before 63s6d.

The Burgessville cheese factory is about as advantageously situated in regard to location and patrons as any in the County of Oxford, and under the able management of Mr. Butcher will, no doubt, make a good showing the coming season.

We are always pleased to receive and publish short accounts of the meetings of factory patrons, along with statements of their business last year. It is a satisfaction to factorymen to be able to compare their own statements with those of neighbouring establishments.

Mr. T. C. Patteson's Kentucky cow, Fane 3rd, has calved a red bull calf to imported Wild Eyes Connaught, owned by Mr. Anderson, Kentucky. The young bull at Eastwood is the grandson and only descendant in Canada of the famous Duke of Connaught the highest priced bull in the world, and sold by Lord Dunmore to the Earl of Fitzhardinge for $22.500.

J. B. Harris sails for Glasgow the 23rd of this month to give instruction in cheesemaking to the Scotch makers of the Kilmarnock district. He will probably be absent three months. After finishing his tour among the Scotch factories he will go to the continent and examine the methods of making different European varieties of cheese, in the interests of the Canadian provinces. Mr. Harris resides at Answerp, N. Y.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Culloden Cheese Manufacturing Co. was held at their home factory on Feb. 20th last. No. lbs. milk, past season 2,328,500 lbs. No. lbs. cheese made 226.167. No. lbs. milk to make a lb. cheese 10·29—average price per lb. 11cts. Amount paid to patrons $21,874.52. No. boxes shipped 3,698. The following gentlemen were then elected directors for the ensuing year: E. Harris, Jos. Grandy, D. J. Ruckle, Jas. Williams and Jas. Whitlock. Salesman—Jas. Williams.

The Ingersoll Chronicle publishes statements from several cheese factories for last season, and the following are some of the averages of the lbs. of milk taken to make 1 lb. of cheese: 10 24, 10.43, 10 07, 10.06, 10.31, 10 73. These are about as they would run among an equal number of our state factories. The average prices for the whole season were 10.52½, 10.77, 10.64, 11c., 10.-93, 11c. The average price of the Utica market last season was 10·84, and the above will just about average that.—Utica Herald.

HIGHER PRCIES FOR BUTTER.

All dairymen who use Wells, Richardson & Co's. Improved Butter Color, agree that it increases the value of butter several cents a pound. It is pure and harmless, convenient for instant use, has no taste or odor, and gives a clear, golden richness to the butter. It is the very best butter color obtainable, and is not expensive. In every state in the Union the demand for it is increasing.

A COOK WANTED.

Not Geo. A. Cook, but a Cook to cook the victuals at Brady's Hotel. Also a girl for a private house. Apply immediately to

JAMES BRADY,
Brady's Hotel.
Ingersoll, March 6th, 1884. 1591

WANTED—AGENTS TO SELL TUNISON'S
—NEW AND—
Superior Canada Maps and Charts
As paying as any agency in the world. For full particulars, free, address, H. C. TUNISON, Map Publisher, 388 Richmond St., LONDON, ONTARIO. 1591u

Ontario and Quebec R'y.
Credit Valley Division.

Trains leave Ingersoll in connection with the Michigan Central Railroad.

GOING EAST.	GOING WEST.
5.50 a.m.	11.32 a.m.
1.19 p.m.	11.25 a.m.
3.39 p.m.	4.42 p.m.
7.59 p.m.	9.03 p.m.

Through Tickets issued to all points in the United States, and Baggage Checked to destination.

The Only Route to Toronto Without Change of Cars.

J. GORDON, Town Agent.
F. SYMONS, Agent.
Ingersoll, March 1st, 1884. 1591

TENDERS.

TENDERS

ADDRESSED TO

R. A. WOODCOCK, Town Clerk,

Will be received up to Satur

FARM AND DAIRY.

How to Disappoint a Balky Horse.

An Oxford county farmer recently broke his horse of a balky freak in a quiet and, as he claims, not a cruel manner. His horse is in excellent flesh and shows no signs of neglect on the part of his master. He drove him, attached to a rack waggon, to the wood lot for a small load of wood. The animal would not pull a pound. He did not beat him with a club, but tied him to a tree and let him stand. He went to the lot at sunset and asked him to draw, but he would not straighten a tug. I made up my mind, said the farmer, when that horse went to the barn he would take that load of wood. The night was not cold. I went to the barn, got blankets and covered the horse warm, and he stood until morning. Then he refused to draw. At noon I went down and he was probably hungry and lonesome. He drew that load of wood the first time I asked him. I returned, got another load before I fed him. I then rewarded him with a good dinner, which he eagerly devoured. I have drawn several loads since. Once he refused to draw, but soon as he saw me start for the house he started after me with the load. A horse becomes lonesome and discontented when left alone as much as a person, and I claim this method, if rightly used, is far less cruel and is better for both horse and man than to beat the animal with a club.

Winter Meeting of the Ontario Fruit-Growers' Association.

The President, Mr. Wm. Saunders, author of "Insects Injurious to Fruits," in his opening address congratulated the society on its prosperity. He said Canada had too long neglected the orchard, by far the most profitable part of the farm, but through the teachings of this society and the example of its members, new interest was being awakened, and new life infused into this industry. Fruit growers were a generous class. They had no secrets, but were willing to share their knowledge and experience with each other, thus largely benefiting all. In a short time Canada must take a prominent place, especially among apple growers. In the discussion that followed the general opinion expressed was in favor of largely extending orchard planting, though failures sometimes occurred. The average profit per annum for ten years was placed at not less than $100 per acre.

One or two new Canadian seedlings were mentioned, yet all agreed that for profit those old sorts, Golden Russet, Roxbury Russet, Greening, Baldwin, Newtown Pippin, Northern Spy and Spitzenberg were the best, in the order named. From many experiments made in shipping it was decided that wrapping apples separately in tissue paper, or the use of a package better than the ordinary barrel did not pay. Close planting was denounced as one of the wily tricks of the nurserymen to sell large numbers of trees. They should never be planted near enough so that the tops would ever meet. They were bound to raise apples away up in the cold North above 45½°, and were experimenting with the Russian varieties, by training them low so that the tops should shade the trunks, and mulching the soil gave great hopes.

The discussion of "Non-professional Floriculture" showed a large amount of accurate knowledge of flowers and their culture among the farmers. The practice of creating a fashionable craze over some gaudy flower, like the sunfl wer, was strongly condemned; there was ample room for fools to show their foolishness in dress without desecrating the love for beautiful flowers. The culture of flowers to those who really love them is a recreation, not a labor, and in the hands of those who love them they seem to thrive almost everywhere. The increase of varieties, the improvement of bloom and the extension of culture in the past few years have been alike wonderful and encouraging. Roses are the most beautiful and queenly of all flowers, but the most subject to disease and insects, and the most difficult to raise. No protection for the half hardy sorts is so good as to tie them to a stake and surround them with long rye straw tied to a taller stake.

Apples for feeding purposes were declared to compare as 9 to 11 with beets, and as 9 to 15 with potatoes. They were a very healthful food, but since the advent of the evaporator none but the most inferior should be fed. When used as food they should always be accompanied with some dry and rich food, such as bran and corn meal, etc.

"Horticulture in the Schools" was a fruitful theme. Secretary Garfield, of Michigan, whose heart is in this work, said we spend years in teaching children those things they will never have occasion to use, and do not attempt to teach them the office of different parts of a plant, and how many know the difference between a vegetable and a fruit, and yet these are our daily bread. No one thing so enlivened the school grounds and so drew the children as beautiful flowers. If we were to give some time to the teaching of horticulture in the schools we should not see so many desolate farm grounds. They had made a beginning in Michigan and were greatly encouraged.

Dr. Beadle said a large proportion of Canadian homes had a barn yard, a wagon-yard, or a pig-yard in front, and between the dwelling house and the highway, and how could we expect refinement in such homes. He was in favor of teaching botany and horticulture in all schools and he would try to change the order of things by changing the tastes of the children. Mr. Wright said the study of botany in the schools would necessarily induce the culture of flowers, and he never yet saw a school house filled with and surrounded by flowers that was not a model school.

Mr. Woodward, of New York, said, in our dreams of Heaven, whether waking or sleeping, we always see grassy slopes, beautiful trees and fragrant flowers; how repulsive would be a Heaven like most of our school grounds and country homes, bare, bleak and desolate! No one would care to go there. Certainly, it is proper that we should make our homes attractive by making them beautiful. To do this requires good and cultivated tastes. The proper place, next to home, to cultivate our taste, is the school. We should not only teach theoretical horticulture in the schools, but should insist that every school house should be surrounded by shrubs and flowers. Property surrounding a tasty school ground is always more sought after, and the dooryards of such neighborhoods always show the effects of the good influence. Teach the children, by all means, at the schools the structure, uses and care of flowers, trees and shrubs, and they will certainly beautify the home, and be more contented and happy.

The English sparrow was given a bad name; no one had a good word for the little tramp. It was unanimously decided he must go. "How to make him," is the perplexing question.

McGREGOR'S SPEEDY CURE.

Every purchaser of common sense business capacity, when requiring an article for a certain purpose, purchases only that which has been tried or is allowed first to test before buying. You are allowed a free trial bottle of McGregor's Speedy Cure, the great remedy for Dyspepsia, Impure Blood and Liver Disorders at Gayfer and Kneeshaw's Drug Store. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

When a tiger seizes his prey he would sooner die than let go his hold.

FREEMAN'S Worm Powders destroy and remove worms without injury to adult or infant. 91t

The albatross, the largest of sea birds, will fly 100 miles an hour.

Orpha M. Hodge, Battle Creek, Mich. writes: I upset a tea-kettle of boiling hot water on my hand. I at once applied Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and the effect was to immediately allay the pain. I was cured in three days.

Poe says that a single oyster contains no less than 1,200,000 eggs.

It is spring. A resurrection of nature's latent forces is taking place. Like the sword around you, renew your complexion, invigorate your powers, cleanse the channels of life. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the means to use for this purpose.

By popular vote, 18 counties in Georgia have abolished fences.

A CERTAIN RESULT.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dispepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by D. Secord.

The sea anemones swallow pieces of meat as big as themselves.

Principles of Breeding.

We find in the American Cultivator of Boston, Mass., an address by Edward Burnett of Southboro, Mass., entitled "Breeding to Win." He says:

"I shall not enter into long and tiresome statistics, but touch upon such facts as will interest all the breeders of dairy animals, and I sincerely hope to give some idea that may prove profitable in the future. To begin with I am a Jersey breeder and perhaps I am a little partial, but the splendid results accomplished during the last half century by Shorthorn, Hereford, Jersey, Ayrshire, and Holstein breeders, in the distinctive types of thoroughbred cattle give us a most excellent example of what close and careful breeding will do. Our aim, however, is directed towards another target, and as breeders of dairy cattle it should be to increase the average yield of butter in the herd and obtain the greatest amount of butter from the smallest amount of milk possible.

"To accomplish this result, first throw out your poorest animals by sending them to market for beef; then look about for a thoroughbred bull who will possess high individual merit, and the blood of as many noted animals as possible. He is by far the most important animal in the herd and any farmer with ten to twenty cows can well afford to pay from $100 to $500 for this animal, where a single cow at $75 or $100 would be extravagant. Why? Because he is one half of the herd, and 50 per cent of his blood enters into all the young stock and the enhanced value of the herd in a year or two will pay for the bull twice over. If the right sort of animal cannot be obtained by one farmer, let a community club together and purchase one in common and it will prove an investment much better than bonds or mortgages."

Now the above statement, which is only a fraction of what Mr. Burnett has to say, includes a principle which should be adopted by every breeder of cattle, sheep and hogs, everywhere, and if followed by dairymen or beef producers would result in success always.

Abortion.

One may read all that has been said on this subject and he will then turn from it and say: "There is nothing learned from all this." Well, this is substantially true. It is difficult to tell what causes it and how to prevent it. It seems at times to assume an epizootic form and it will run through the herds of a certain section of country, and again it will be confined to one herd. Sometimes it is the herd of a careless, slovenly stockman, and again it is in that of the painstaking and careful dairyman. It is possible that if all the circumstances could be known the cause might be traced. The difficulty may be started by a rough, abusive herdsman; it may start from some local cause, such as a dead animal in the pasture. It is sometimes undoubtedly started by the habit of running cows with dogs. We knew one time of two cows losing their calves by having a cow put into the pasture that came in heat the next day. The riding of this cow by two others within eight weeks of calving was the cause of both cows losing their calves. Such an event as this might start the disease through an entire herd, for the reason that these two might not clean properly and become offensive in smell and thus predispose others to the same difficulty. Sometimes a calf is dropped in the pasture and is not discovered, and the decay and consequent odor may start the disease through the herd. Radical changes from high feeding to short feeding may cause it. A cow may at calving fail to clean properly and take the bull before she is in a healthy condition; this, we think, is one fruitful cause of abortion. In such cases the cow should not take the bull until she is entirely well.

When cows come in on dry feed they should have before calving, for two or three weeks a little oil cake or linseed-meal and for as much longer afterwards. This has a tendency to healthy action, and we believe that the want of this healthy action is one of the frequent causes of abortion running through a herd. Careful, painstaking handling of cows has a tendency to healthy action and without it it is scarcely possible to keep the herd in a healthy condition. Even feeding, even handling and watchful care are the best preventives and the best guarantee of success.—Breeders' Journal for February.

Geo. Kempshell, V. S.—Having observed an item in your valuable paper of the 14th inst., concerning calves and cows running at the nose, coughing, &c. Why do you give that treatment. ANS. —Because it has been found efficacious by many who have tried it.

While breeders of Holsteins or Freislanders are warring among themselves about what should be the name of the excellent cattle they breed the common farmers will settle it for themselves, for we frequently hear them speak of the breed as "Dutch." This, to their minds, covers all the varieties, and as the masses go so goes the adoption of words and names in these days. The Jersey people took the bull by the horns, and something of the kind had better be done with this breed, or it will soon be too late.

After all the boasted importations of great numbers of Jerseys to the country it seems on actual count that the English take more than we do. This little cow has long been a favorite on the tight little island. No gentleman's place in England is considered complete without a herd of Jerseys, and this is rapidly becoming the case in this country. Indeed, it is the exception now where a rich man keeps cows without more or less Jersey blood in the herd.

WELL REWARDED.

A liberal reward will be paid to any party who will produce a case of Liver, Kidney or Stomach complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure. Bring them along, it will cost you nothing for the medicine if it fails to cure, and you will be well rewarded for your trouble besides. All Blood diseases Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, and general debility are quickly cured. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price only fifty cents per bottle. For sale by John Gayfer. 90c.

OXALIC acid will almost always remove stains if it by mud which cannot be removed with soap and water.

Fluid Lightning cures Neuralgia in one minute.

Fluid Lightning cures Toothache in one minute.

Fluid Lightning cures Face Ache in one minute.

Fluid Lightning cures Lumbago in one minute.

Fluid Lightning relieves Rheumatism in one minute.

Fluid Lightning cures any pain or ache instantly. Price 25 cents per bottle at Gayfer and Kneeshaw's Drug Store.

BATHING the eyes in a weak solution of cold vinegar and water has been found very strengthing when the eyelids need bracing.

McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate has been tested by years of trial and has been found the most convenient and effectual method of applying carbolic acid. The greatest anticeptic in use for Cuts, Burns and Old Sores. Be sure you get McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. Sold for 25 cents by Gayfer and Kneeshaw, Druggists.

SPONGES which are to be used in the bath room may be softened by boiling for a few minutes in three waters. After each time of boiling rinse it in cold water, and put on the stove again in a pan of cold water.

FOR rough conditions of the skin, Shampooing the head, Pimples, Eruption and skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 91t

If you are obliged to have your hands in water great deal, and they feel uncomfortable after it, rub them over with oil. A very little salad oil, or even a little lard with a drop of perfume in it, will relieve your discomfort.

Mr. G. W. Macully, Pavilion Mountain, B. C., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best medicine I ever used for Rheumatism. Nearly every winter I am laid up with Rheumatism, and have tried nearly every kind of medicine without getting any benefit, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends, &c."

To clean ivory rub it with bicarbonate of sodium by means of a tooth-brush dipped in warm water.

Mr. T.C. Berchard, public school teacher, Norland, writes: "During the fall of 1881 I was much troubled with Billiousness and Dyspepsia, and part of the time was unable to attend to the duties of my profession. Northrop and Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure was recommended to me, and I have much pleasure in stating that I was entirely cured by using one bottle. I have not had an attack of my old complaint since, and have gained fifteen pounds in weight."

Truth is hardly so plentiful as fiction.

I Wonder What Maud will Say.

FROM THE "CENTURY" BRIC-A-BRAC!

DEAR Harry, I will not dissemble,
A candid confession is best;
My fate—but alas, how I tremble!—
My fate I must put to the test.
This morning I gathered in sadness
A strand from my locks slightly gray;
To delay any longer were madness—
I wonder what Maud will say!

The deed it were well to do quickly—
Macbeth makes a kindred remark:
I wonder if Mac'beth as sickly
When he carved the old king in the dark
The fellows who marry all do it,
But what is the usual way?
Heigho! don't I wish I were through it!
I wonder what Maud will say!

Pray advise. Would you fix up a letter
With rhymes about roses and trees?
To tell it perchance would be better:
Alas, must I get on my knees?
No; kneeling is out of the fashion
Except in a novel or play.
Ah, love is a Protean passion!
I wonder what Maud will say!

Would you give her a pug or a pony,
A picture or only a book?
A novel—say Hain'ys "Zanoni,"
Or a poem—"Lucile," "Lalla Rookh;"
Bonbons from Maillard's, or a necklace
Of pearls, or a mammoth bouquet?
By Jove! I am perfectly reckless—
I wonder what Maud will say!

Shall I speak of the pa'ace at Como
Wh'ch captured the heart of Pauline?
There's a likeness of Claude in a chromo;
Would you buy it and practice the scene?
But no! I'm no Booth, nor an Irving;
My fancy has led me astray.
To a lover so true and deserving
I wonder what Maud will say!

Could I warble like Signor Galassi,
In passionate song I would soar—
I recall she applauded him as he
Serenaded the fair Leonore;
My strain should resound love-compelling,
Far sweeter than Orpheus' lay;
Already my bosom is swelling—
I wonder what Maud will say!

Shall I tell her my love very gravely,
Or propose in a moment of mirth,
Or lead to the subject suavely,
And mention how much I am worth?
Old fellow, I know I shall blunder:
When she blossoms as bright as the day,
My wits will be dazzled. Oh, thunder!
I wonder what Maud will say!

Probably Found It.

"I wouldn't think of asking for help if I hadn't lost my arm in the war," he added as he leaned against the wall, and gazed into vacancy as if calling up an old battle scene.

"I see," mused the pedestrian. "Was it an accident in a saw mill or on some railroad. I always come down with a quarter for such accidents."

The other seemed to struggle with his feelings for a moment before replying:

"Well, it was in a sawmill, if you must know, but I have been followed by hard luck. I lost my all by a fire in Buffalo."

"At what date and on what street?"

The chap scratched his ear and rubbed the chilblain on his heel, but couldn't say.

"I am not in a hurry," quietly observed the pedestrian. "Take your time to think and give me all possible particulars."

"See here," said the one-armed, "don't you believe my wife robbed me and ran away?"

"No, sir—no, sir! What could you have had of any value? And indeed, how did you come by a wife?"

"I asked you for a little assistance."

"Certainly. Now please state your grounds?"

"I want to get to Chicago."

"Nonsense! You intend to stay right here! That's no excuse."

"Well, I'm hungry. I haven't tasted food for two whole days."

"Bosh! Let me feel of your pulse. The pulse indicates the condition of the stomach. Hold out your hand."

"Say!" said the vag in a desperate way, "maybe you don't believe I'm dead broke?"

"Oh, yes I do."

"And that I'm most dead for a drink of whisky?"

"Ah! Here's ten cents! Go and buy your fluid! Next time you want anything toe the mark and speak the truth. You'll find a saloon around the corner."

The First Meerschaum.

In 1723 there lived in Pesth, the capital of Hungary, Karol Kowstes, a shoemaker, whose ingenuity in cutting and carving on wood, etc., brought him into contact with Count Andrassy, with whom he became a favorite. The count on his return from a mission to Turkey brought with him a piece of whitish clay, which had been presented to him as a curiosity on account of its extraordinary light specific gravity. It struck the shoemaker that being porus, it might be well adapted for pipes, as it would absorb the nicotine.

The experiment was tried, and Karol cut a pipe for the count and one for himself. But in the pursuit of his trade he could not keep his hands clean, and many a piece of shoemaker's wax became attached to the pipe. The clay, however, instead of resuming a dirty appearance when Carl wiped it off, received wherever the wax had adhered to it a clear brown polish, instead of the dull white it previously had. Attributing the change to its proper source, he waxed the whole surface, and polishing the pipe again, smoked it, and noticed how admirably and beautifully it colored, also how much more sweetly the pipe smoked after being waxed.

Other noblemen, hearing of the wonderful properties of this singular species of clay, imported it in considerable quantities for the manufacture of pipes. The natural scarcity of this much-esteemed article, and the great cost of importation in those days of limited transportation, rendered its use exclusively confined to the richest European noblemen until 1830, when it became a more general article of trade. The first meerschaum pipe made by Karol Kowates has been preserved in the museum of Pesth.

—"Tell me something I don't know," squeaked a silly youth who had been chattering like an ape to his companion for several minutes greatly to the annoyance of others present. "Well, sir," said a dignified old gentleman, "I will tell you something you don't know. You are a jackass, sir!"

—A newspaper foreman got a marriage notice among a lot of items headed "Horrors of 1883," and when the editor learned that the groom's income was only $7 a week he said it had better remain under that head.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positive-ly cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

Holloway's Corn Cure destroys all kinds of corns and warts, root and branch.

The Bridegrooms' Share.—The bride is not expected to provide anything but her own trousseau. The bridegroom is bound to take her to a home ready furnished, and with everything essential for household use.

But, of course, there could be no objection to the brides' adding any articles which she may possess, or like to provide.

After years of suffering persons who have vainly sought remedial help from other sources, have obtained the long desired relief from Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which puts a stop to the torments of Dyspepsia, renews activity of the Bowels and Liver, relieves maladies incident to the gentler sex and builds up failing health and strength, gives purity to the blood, and tone to the whole system.

DR. LOW'S PLEASANT WORM SYRUP.—An agreeable, safe and effectual remedy to remove all kinds of worms. 91t

Remedy for Asthma.—Dip pieces of blotting paper in a solution of salt petre (about six inches by four in size), dry them and keep ready for use. In an attack of asthma put one of these on an old tea tray and set it on fire, then it will smolder and burn slowly. Place it near the bed, and the fumes give quick and complete relief to the patient.

DANGER TRAPS.

Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond a possibility of rescue. Take a cold or cough in time and it is easily conquered by that safe and pleasant vegetable remedy, Hagyar's Pectoral Balsam. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally soon yield to its healing influence. 90t

To make Brown Robin.—To water for a dozen bottles add half ounce ginger; boil half an hour, then add half a pound syrup, half pound sugar, teaspoonful cream of tartar and a little salt. Let it come to boil then empty into a "crock," or deep basin, and cool till it is lukewarm, when add a cupful of yeast cover it with a clean cloth, and let it stand 24 hours. Then bottle and cork.

The woman's cause—Because.

"The Truth About Monte Carlo."

The movement for the suppression of gaming-tables in Monaco has been in progress for the last two years. A very hostile pamphlet, entitled "The Truth about Monte Carlo," handles the subject without gloves. It shows that what neither Italy, nor France, nor Germany will tolerate the Prince of Monaco encourages and makes use of as a source of revenue.

The late M. Blanc, whose keen managerial and financial eye saw at a glance what could be made of Monte Carlo, carried on the two greatest gambling establishments at the same time. After the Franco-German war, however, M. Blanc had to limit his enterprise to Monte Carlo, and here he surpassed all that he had previously accomplished at Homburg and Baden Baden. Then he died. Soon after his widow did the same, and the proprietorship of the Monte Carlo gaming-houses was then divided into five shares, of which one went to the Prince of Monaco, the head of the firm; a second to the Princess Radziwill, daughter of the late M. Blanc, in association with her husband, the Prince; a third to M. Edmund Blanc; a fourth to the Princess Bonaparte, another daughter of M. Blanc and wife of Prince Roland Bonaparte; the fifth to the two sons of the late M. Blanc, who receive but a small share of the profits, and are treated by the princely and other members of this family of gamblers with lofty contempt.

The proprietors of the gambling-house keep it going through the seduction of its splendor and by the romantic beauty of its surroundings; but they are said to receive powerful aid from three classes of supporters—journalists, loose women and priests.

When M. Blanc, seeing that gambling had been or was on the point of being suppressed in all parts of Europe, bethought himself of the little Mediterranean State with its impecunious sovereign, he offered the Prince of Monaco for the privilege of opening a gaming establishment an annual payment of 400,000 francs.

The proposition was accepted. But after a few years the Prince wished for more money, and suggested that instead of receiving a fixed sum yearly he should have a share in the profits from the tables; and, his least desire being a law to the proprietor of a gambling-house, he is said to have drawn from it a regular income of 1,300,000 francs. Thanks to this increase in his revenue, he was able to raise the number of his army from five to eighty men. His military outlay, however, seems to have compelled him to curtail his expenses on the civil department, and a few years ago he cut down the salaries of all his Ministers. Their Excellencies complained to the directors of the gambling-house, and the establishment from which the State of Monaco draws its wealth agreed to pay the difference.

Monte Carlo is surrounded by everything that is at the same time attractive and demoralizing. But no effort is spared to give the place a look of respectability. Priests and members of orders expelled from France and Italy have been encouraged to settle in the Principality of Monaco. A cathedral was built at Monaco with money of which a large portion was supplied from the gaming-table.

A regular record has been kept by persons who have begun the effort to suppress the gaming-tables of the number of unfortunate gamblers who commit suicide in the beautiful gardens surrounding the place. The average is about five each month. Last year the number was sixty-seven. The police have very strict orders to carefully remove from the grounds the bodies of all suicides, so that the tender feelings of the patrons of the establishment may not be shocked at coming suddenly upon a pool of blood or a visage cold in death.

What Can be Done at a Soap-Bubble Party.

As about forty guests were expected, forty pipes were decorated, each with a ribbon bow and streamers—five pipes with one color, and five with another, and so on till eight colors were apportioned. Besides these decorations, there were forty rosettes, five of a color, which were distributed among the guests by a little girl.

The girl then called out a color, and the five blowers who wore it took their places around the bowl. She next named a color for umpires, and they also took their places at the right and left of the circle, where each could see plainly. It was the aim of each blower to make the largest bubble. Each was allowed five minutes at first for practice, but had the privilege of devoting all of this time to one bubble. But when one of their umpires called "Time!" all were obliged to go on with the one then begun. Some by blowing too hard exploded their bubbles, but could not begin another after the word "Time" had been spoken. Others were so careful that their bubbles were small. The umpires, of course, awarded the prize to the one making the largest bubble that exploded last.

Afterward, the grand trial for the chief prize was announced; and the fortunate winners of the minor prizes—one from each group—surrounded the bowl and prepared for the contest. Great interest was felt in the trial. Among so many of the best blowers, the rivalry was very close; but, after a merry struggle, the champion was at last decided upon, and was made the happy recipient of the grand prize, which was delivered to him with a flowery speech.

Between the dances, some quiet contests were tried by a few players, to see which could make a bubble that would outlast the others, using their own judgment as to size.

Another party found much amusement by competing to see which player could touch the ceiling first with a bubble, under the same regulations as before. But the bubble must remain unbroken; none would count which simply touched there and broke by the contact.—St. Nicholas.

—"Only think of it!" exclaimed a Chicago girl, "I weigh one hundred and twenty pounds in my stockings." "Do you?" replied her cousin from St. Louis, glancing at the feet of the first speaker. "I wouldn't have believed it. How much do you weigh altogether?"

Nothing gives such beautiful colors as the Star Dyes.

It is a good thing to compose music, but it is often better to compose oneself.

Holloway's Pills.—The diseases common to our rigorous climate which endanger the constitution will always exist, though many may be mitigated and their effects removed by timely and appropriately applied. Holloway's Pills are acknowledged far and wide to be the most effective purifier of the blood, the most certain regulator of disordered organs, and the safest and surest aperient that can be prescribed. This medicine is applicable to all alike, young or old, robust or delicate; it increases the appetite and regulates the bowels. After the disorder is subdued occasional doses of these Pills will prevent any relapse, and moreover secure, promote, and intensify the good results which flow from perfect purity and regularity.

A wife is to man what an egg is to coffee. She settles him.

Is your hair turning gray and gradually falling out? Hall's Hair Renewer will restore it to its original color, and stimulate the follicles to produce a new and luxuriant growth. It also cleanses the scalp, eradicates dandruff, and is a most agreeable and harmless dressing.

Why is love like a potato?—Because it springs from the eye.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that Afflicted him for thirty five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers ulmost a mericle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion. 91i

The "poets' scorner" in a newspaper is usually the editor.

HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 87t

A printer's wife always puts the baby in "small caps."

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends. It is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains, lameness and soreness of the flesh. A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says: "It is a great favorite here, and has a good sale." 91i

A dream of fair women—Rich men.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87t

KISSING THE WRONG MAN.

A Touching Night Scene at a Grand Trunk Railway Station.

Night Baggageman Fitzpatrick, of the Grand Trunk railway, is responsible for the following, he having been a startled witness of the whole affair: A medium-aged lady, accompanied by a little girl and an older lady, apparently her mother, met the "steamboat express" (west bound) which arrives here at 2:55 a. m. A rather tall man, with black whiskers, carrying a gripsack in one hand and a valise in the other, stepped off the train. The three ladies rushed up to him, the medium-aged one throwing her arms around his neck, while the little girl seized the gripsack and the old lady the valise.

The gentleman appeared bewildered, and the endeavors of the old lady to get in a hug, too, while the little girl was pulling his coat-tails and shouting "papa," only added to his confusion. The trio at last began to relax their endearment, and just then a second gentleman stepped off the train. The ladies no sooner saw the second gentleman than the whole three rushed toward him. A second joint stock hugging society was inaugurated, and the first gentleman perceiving the second at once bolted off, not waiting to claim his baggage.

The now united family tossed the satchels on the platform, where they were removed to the baggageroom by baggageman Ryan. A few minutes afterwards the whole family came in looking for a trunk, and in a moment were followed by the stranger, presumedly to get his valise and gripsack. The second man, however, no sooner saw the first man than with an imprecation he roared: "You're the man that hugged my wife," and rushed at the stranger. The latter made for the door, through which Baggageman Ryan happened to be coming at the moment, and by the time that unfortunate gentleman had picked himself up the injured husband was returning from a fruitless chase and vowing vengeance on the stranger. He then got his trunk and left. The gripsack and valise still remain in Mr. Fitzpatrick's possession awaiting a claimant. The matter has also been reported to the police.—London Advertiser.

The Street Cries of a Japanese Town.

I shall never get used to the street sounds of Japan, especially the night sounds. A regular philosophy might be built up out of them. In London, where the cry, "old clothes," has deteriorated into the mere croak of a frog, shorter even than the word "oak," but somewhat resembling it, the street cries are said to be most complicated and bewildering. But if that is true there what can be said of a Japanese city, where every article which a human being can possibly use in any way, shape or form, is sold by being hawked about the streets by a man equipped with a poytable store balanced on a bamboo pole over his shoulder?

Night is the most commonly selected as the season for effecting sales, since the people are not so busy at that time but that they can stop to buy, and the noise of the day has so far subsided that the people must hear the cry of the vendor.

Unless a tourist stops at a purely Japanese hotel, in the native part of a city, he altogether misses this very characteristic feature of life in Japan. If he listens to it for one night only he will fancy himself on the verge of insanity, and doubtless will be too distracted to sleep much until toward morning. After a while he will become accustomed to the nuisance, and I do not know but that eventually he might come to find the noise an indispensable lullaby, just as some people cannot get to sleep without a clock ticking in the room. I am sure the Japanese must prefer the noise, else they would not compel the night watchmen to create such an intolerable din with the blocks of wood, which they constantly strike together.

Could anything be more absurd than this night watchman system? An evil-disposed person can assure himself infallibly as to the whereabouts of the police when he starts out to commit depredations. I do not know what the lawless in a Japanese city would do if they did not have this invaluable information so freely disbursed by every watchman. Aside from this, the noise has a more excruciating effect upon the ear of a sleeper, as I think, than any other night sound, even including the shrill whistle of the blind "shampooers." Just imagine what would be the effect in an American city if a force of these night watchmen were turned loose there, with paper lanterns tied to their waists and their murderous bamboo instruments in their hands. The regular city police would not be able to restrain the incensed mob of "best citizens" who would literally dismember the intruders.

The Japanese retire very early as a rule, since their lamps and fires are so cheerless. Yet these nocturnal hucksters keep up their horrible yowling till long after midnight. They know from experience that it is just like the Japanese to wake up at any hour of the night and take a notion that they want a certain article.—Correspondence New Orleans Times-Democrat.

It Pays to Advertise.

The following advertisement was printed in the Morning News a short time ago:

BOY WANTED—Good references required; steady employment. Apply to G. D. R. HUBBARD, Printers' Warehouse, 379 State street.

And the Morning News received the following notice the day after:

BORN—In this city, Jan. 4, a son to Mr. and Mrs. G. D. R. Hubbard.
—New Haven News.

Clearing a Ball Room in Three Minutes.

At Conway the saloon law went into effect at midnight. A fashionable ball was in progress, and just at 12 o'clock a man ascended the platform and said: "Fellow citizens, the saloons are opened." Three minutes afterward not a man was in the hall."—Arkansaw Traveler.

—A good stump speech—"Save the Adirondack forests."

ITCHING PILES.—SYMPTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

A 5-year old child at Wappinger Falls, N. Y., was choked to death the other day by a bean.

A STRANGE PEOPLE.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 75vy

The cup of pleasure sometimes has dregs that one must drink long afterwards.

FOR ALL AGES.

The aged, debilitated and infirm will find renewed vigor and strength by taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The young hastening to early decay will also find in this revitalizing tonic a remedy worth trying. 91t

I had rather preserve the life of a citizen than destroy a thousand enemies.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT.

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles. 91i

There are people who feed themselves on their grief until they get fat on it.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure, even removing all stiffness of the joint. 91i

Learn as if you were to live forever; live as if you were to die to morrow.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

Good will, like a good name, is got by many actions, and lost by one.

To cure consumption, inflammation in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87t

Irreproachable manners and a good life are men's true nobility.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of Shiloh's Cure Sold. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of Consumption have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. Secord. 75

An effort made for the happiness of others lifts us above ourselves.

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y

A good cause makes a stout heart and a strong arm.

Evil minds change good to their own nature.

PRINCIPLE IN THE LISTS WITH PREJUDICE.

A great statesman of the last generation declared that "the wars of nations were at an end, and that the future conflicts of the earth that would fill the page of history were to be the ways of principle!" the truth of this prophecy is being gradually developed; the war of principle wages with unseen vigour. Among the foremost competitors in this vast arena, stands Thomas Holloway; with his famous but simple remedies, a Pill and an Ointment, he may truly be said to have successfully combated with Prejudice and Disease; the latter is of course the most impending foe in all climates, but the former, more especially in our favoured land, the inevitable opponent of all innovation and invention; from Holloway's first "essay in the lists," the medical profession have been in array against him; how tacitly, however, have they been induced to succumb, and own that the unity of purpose evinced by this great man, and the sufficiency of the two remedies, have satisfactorily proved the fallacy of the hypothesis that divers maladies and varied features of disease require as many distinct and different remedies. Again—Professional Prejudice has been avowedly overthrown from the glaring confession concurred in by all that these remedial agents have accomplished what the combined learning and talent of the faculty could never attain.—Universal Dissemination. It would be folly to calculate the proportionate difference between the number of applicants for medical aid (in common parl

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

E. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $8; 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks .	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

H. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates. Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

P. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R. C. S. AND L. M., ENGLAND L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ontario extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office—Thames street, opposite the "Thompson house." Ingersoll 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anasthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,

PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock.

January 5th, 1884. 1536y

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Baker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store.

Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1534c-m

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER

INGERSOLL, ONT.,

Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country.

Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of dates at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements can be made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 1883. 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

THE MOLSONS BANK

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with farmers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which can be withdrawn at any time.

D. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696

RESERVE - - $1,150.000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with farmers.

Allows Interest on Deposits, Which can be withdrawn at any time.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

Imperial Bank of Canada

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.

Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Money by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department —Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Rosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y

OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

☞ Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

☞ Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR., GENERAL AGENT

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559v-y

TOWN WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27, 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters,

Warner's Safe Cure,

Shiloh's Consumption Cure,

Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1884. 1533

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers, Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE, Thames Street.

☞ Bread delivered in town daily.

KIDNEY-WORT

DOES WONDERFUL CURES OF KIDNEY DISEASES AND LIVER COMPLAINTS,

Why?

Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and all Female Complaints.

IF SOLID PROOF OF THIS.

IT WILL SURELY CURE CONSTIPATION, PILES, and RHEUMATISM,

By causing FREE ACTION of all the organs and functions, thereby

CLEANSING the BLOOD

restoring the normal power to throw off disease.

THOUSANDS OF CASES of the worst forms of these terrible diseases have been quickly relieved, and in a short time PERFECTLY CURED.

PRICE, $1. LIQUID OR DRY, SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Dry can be sent by mail.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co., Burlington, Vt. ☞ Send 3 cts. for Diary Almanac for 1884.

KIDNEY-WORT

JAS. McINTYRE

UNDERTAKER,

HAS REMOVED BACK TO HIS old stand in the

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

☞ A Large Stock of COFFINS, and CASKETS HROUDS and ROBES on hand.

FURNITURE

All kinds in stock. ☞ Residence first house north of warehouse, King street, Ingersoll. uber 22, 1881.

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, P.

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

LITTLE DOT

—IT IS THE—

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship.

Ask for the

"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.

Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

WM. C. BELL

Having bought the Lumber belonging to the Estate of the late ADAM OLIVER

And RENTED THE MILL, he is prepared to execute all

Carpenter & Joiner Work

Entrusted to him. He will also

Contract for Buildings!

OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS,

And supply House Building material at the very lowest prices. It is a well known fact, from the easy financial position of the late firm, they were always ahead of the times in having thoroughly seasoned lumber, and from which all his inside work will be manufactured. A specialty in making

VENETIAN BLINDS,

Which can be made to order in short notice. GIVE HIM A CALL.

WM. C. BELL.

Ingersoll, Feb. 1st, 1883. 1535

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 28. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1592.

Hope's Song.

HELEN M. WINSLOW.

The golden dreams of youth
Assume a guise of truth
Which age keeps never,
For Hope's voice singeth ever,
"Oh, youth and strong endeavor,
Can win the highest good forever."

Love's subtle intuition
Divines life's glad fruition,
Distrusting never;
And sweetly Hope sings ever,
"True love and sweet endeavor
Shall hold the highest good forever."

Love's sacred tryst is broken,
Heartbreaking words are spoken
Her bonds to sever;
But still Hope singeth ever,
"Brave heart and strong endeavor
Must find the highest good forever."

Pale hands are crossed in death;
Gone is the quivering breath;
And still a low voice never Stops echoing, echoing ever,
"Brave heart and strong endeavor
Have won the highest good forever."

—Boston Transcript.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

CHAPTER IX.

Sophia consented to this plan, but only as a strategical manœuvre. She had determined that Claire should fill precisely the position just proffered her, and no other. By seeming to yield she at length won her cause.

She was quite in earnest about her wish for mental improvement. Nor was Claire, in spite of latter years passed under the gloom of toil, half as much at sea among the many smart-bound volumes of the library as she herself had expected. She had been, in her day, a diligent student; she found that she remembered this or that famous writer, as she examined book after book. Now and then a celebrated name recurred to her with a sharp appeal of recollection; again she had a vivid sense of forgetfulness, of ignorance as well. But she was of the kind who read swiftly and retain with force.

It was not long before she had discovered certain volumes which guided and at the same time instructed her in just that literary direction needful for the task required by her would-be pupil. A great deal of her old intellectual method and industry soon came back to her. She turned the pages of the many good books stored on the shelves near by with a hand more composed and deliberate; she began to see just what Sophia wanted her to do, and realize her full capability of doing it.

Meanwhile a week or more had passed. She was now clad in appropriate mourning. She was one of the family. Sophia, devoted and affectionate, was constantly at her side.

Now and then Claire said, with a nervous laugh, "I'm afraid I have never learned enough to be of the least use to you, Sophia, in the way you've proposed."

But Sophia would smile and answer, "Oh, I'm not afraid, Claire dear. You'll get it all back again, pretty soon."

She rapidly got it all back again, and a great deal more besides. The morning readings began. Sophia soon expressed herself as in raptures; but it was the teacher that she charmed her far more than the teaching.

Claire's life was now one of easy luxury. She walked or drove with Sophia every afternoon; she ate delicate food; she slept in a spacious bed-chamber that possessed every detail of comfort; all things moved along on oiled wheels; the machinery of her life had lost all its clogging rust.

Greenpoint bagan to fade from her thoughts; it grew a dim, detested memory. Scarcely a day passed, however, without she definitely recalled some incident connected with her father. Now that this softness and daintiness surrounded her, the refinement which no adverse years could alienate from his personality became for her a more distinct conception. She realized how complete a gentleman he had been. At the same time, under these altered conditions, her own taste for the superfine niceties of cultivation increased with much speed.

She was like a plant that had been borne back to its native soil and clime from some land where it had hitherto lived but as a dwarfed and partial growth; the foliage was expanding, the fibre was strengthening, the flowers were taking a warmer tint and a richer scent.

She soon perceived that the Bergemanns moved in a set of almost uniformly wealthy people. Many of them seemed very wealthy. Nearly all of them dressed handsomely, and drove about in their private carriages. Not a few of them lived in fine adjacent houses on "the Avenue," as it is called. Sophia had a number of intimate friends, maidens of her own age, who constantly visited her. She had admirers, too, of the other sex, who would sometimes call for her of an evening, and take her to a party, unattended by any chaperone. She went, during the winter months, to numerous parties. She belonged to an organization which she always spoke of as "our sociable," and which met at the various homes of its female members.

One evening a "sociable" was given at the Bergemann mansion. The music and dancing were kept up till two o'clock in the morning, and the house was effectively adorned with flowers. Claire, because of her mourning, abstained from this and all other gayety. But as a matter of course she met many of Sophia's and Mrs. Bergemann's friends, and only one of all the throng had power pleasurably to interest her.

This exceptional person was Mr. Beverly Thurston, whom we have already heard Sophia mention as having selected the volumes of her mother's library. He was a man about forty years old, who had never married. His figure was tall and shapely; his face, usually grave, was capable of much geniality. He had travelled, read, thought, and observed. He stood somewhat high in the legal profession, and came, on the maternal side, of a somewhat noted family. He managed the large estate of Mrs. Bergemann and her daughter, and solely on this account was a frequent guest at their house.

He had one widowed sister, of very exclusive views, who possessed large means, and who placed great value upon her position as a fashionable leader. For several years this lady (still called by courtesy Mrs. Winthrop Van Horn) had haughtily refused her brother's urgent request that she should leave a card upon Mrs. Bergemann, though several thousand a year resulted from his connection with the deceased brewer's property.

But Mr. Thurston, while he succumbed to the arrogant obstinacy of his sister, had employed great tact in blinding his profitable patron to the awkward truth of her disdain. He had been bored for three years past by his politic intimacy with Sophia and her mother, and he had always felt a lurking dread lest they should make a sudden appeal for his aid in the way of social advancement.

But here he had committed a marked error. Mrs. Bergemann and Sophia understood nothing whatever about social advancement. They were both magnificently contented with their present places in society. The inner patrician mysteries were quite unknown to them. Their ignorance, in this respect, was a serene bliss. They believed themselves valuably important. They saw no new heights to gain.

Mr. Thurston had long secretly smiled at their self confidence. He was a clever observer, he had seen the world; the Bergemann's were sometimes a delicious joke to him when he felt in an appreciative mood. At other times the bouncing, coltish manners of Sophia, and the educational deficiencies of her mother, grated harshly upon his nerves.

But when Claire entered the household he at once experienced a new sensation. He watched her in quiet wonder. No point of her beauty escaped his trained eye. What he had learned of her past career made her seem to him remarkable, even phenomenal.

By degrees an intimacy was established between them. At first it concerned literary subjects; Claire consulted him about the books appropriate for her reading with Sophia. But they soon talked of other things, and occasionally these chats took the form of very private tete-a-tetes. Claire was thoroughly loyal to her new friends, but she could not crush a spirit of inquiry, of investigation and of valuation, so far as concerned the people with whom they associated.

The gentlemen distressed her more than the ladies. The latter were often so full of grace and prettiness that their loud talk, shrill laughter and faulty grammar could not wholly rid them of charm. But the gentlemen had no grace, and slight good looks, as an offset to their haphazard manners. Some of them appeared to be quite uneducated; others would blend ignorance with conceit; still others were ungallant and ungracious, and not seldom pompously boastful of their wealth.

Mr. Thurston was at first cautious in his answers to Claire's rather searching questions. But by degrees he threw aside restraint; he grew to understand why he was thus interrogated.

He had a slow yet significant mode of talk that was nearly sure of entertaining any listener. Shallow people had always called him a cynic, but not a few clever ones had strongly denied this charge. Claire began to look upon him as one who was forever opening doors for her, and showing her glimpses of discovery that either surprised or impressed the gazer.

On the evening of Sophia's "sociable" Claire remained in a large chamber that was approached from the second hall of the house, and appointed with that admirable taste which clearly indicated that the Bergemanns had confided devoutly in their upholsterer, just as they did in their milliner. She was quite alone; she had a book open in her lap, but was not reading it; her black dress became her charmingly; it seemed to win a rich shade from the chestnut-and-gold of her tresses, and to increase the delightful fragility of her oval-soft-tinted face.

The music below stairs kept her thoughts away from her book; it pealed up to her with a provocative melody; it made her feel that she would love to go down and join the merry-makers. But this was only a kind of abstract emotion; there was nobody in the bright-lit, flower-decked drawing rooms whom she would have cared to meet, with the possible exception of Mr. Thurston, although what she then considered his advanced age made him seem more suitable as a companion of less jubilant hours.

But it chanced that a knock presently sounded at the half-closed door, and that Mr. Thurston soon afterward presented himself. He sat down beside her. His evening dress had a felicity of cut and fit that gave his naturally stately figure an added distinction, even to the inexperienced eye of Claire. She thought how the white tie at his throat became him—how different he was, in spite of the gray at his temples, and the crow's feet under his hazel eyes, from the younger men clad in similar vesture she had seen pass through the upper hall a little earlier in the evening.

By this time Mr. Thurston's acquaintance with Claire had grown to be a facile and agreeable intimacy. He had learned from Sophia that she was here alone, and he had sought her with the freedom of one wont to make himself wholly at home in the mansions of his clients. At the same time, as it happened, he came with a vastly fatigued feeling toward the guests below.

"I didn't want to leave," he began with his nice, social smile, "until I had seen you for a few moments."

"Ah," said Claire, pleased at his coming, and with a little sweet-toned laugh, "I'm afraid you came up here only because it was too early to go just yet."

Mr. Thurston put his head on one side, and his eyes twinkled quizzically.

"Oh, come, now," he said; "are you going to talk badly about the party? You haven't seen it. I'm sure you'd like to be down there, dancing and romping among all these young people."

Claire shook her head; she looked rather serious as she did so. "No," she answered; "I shouldn't like it at all. I think you know why. There is nobody there—that is, among the guests—whom I like. Some of them I've never met. But I don't doubt that they are all much the same. Now, please don't look as if you didn't understand me. I am sure that you do, perfectly. Remember we have talked on these subjects before."

Mr. Thurston stroked his thick gray moustache, whose ends slightly curved against cheeks which somehow looked as if they still wore the sun-tan of travel in remote sultry climates.

"Of course we have, Miss Claire," he gently exclaimed. "It's wonderful what an inquiring turn you possess. We've settled that there's no treachery to Sophia and her mamma in all these dreadful things that you and I say; haven't we?"

"Certainly we have settled it," returned Claire, still looking serious. "But I'm not by any means sure that we do say dreadful things. I ask the truth, and you tell it me." Here Claire's expression suddenly changed. She looked at her companion archly, and each cheek dimpled. "At least I hope you do."

Mr. Thurston shifted in his seat, and crossed his legs. "I do. I speak by the card when you ask questions. I'm compelled to. There's an enormous earnestness about you. You make me think of a person with a purpose. I'm sure you have a purpose. I haven't yet fathomed it, but I'm sure it's there."

"I have a purpose," Claire said.

"Very well. What is it?"

"To know about the world I live in. I mean New York, of course. That is my world, now. I think it a very nice world. At least, I've never seen a better one."

"Yes; I understand. And you want to explore it. You want to examine it in detail. You want to know its bad, worse, worst, and its good, better, best."

"I want to know its good, better, best."

Mr. Thurston laughed again. "Do you know," he said, "that the more I see of you the more you amuse me? No; I won't say 'amuse'; I'll say 'interest.' You are such a tremendous type. You are so characteristic. I called you a person with a purpose, just now, and I pretended not to know what your purpose was. That was an intentional hypocrisy on my part. I comprehend your purpose thoroughly. You wish to find out what New York society means. You're making a mental social dictionary. And you desire that I shall supply you with definitions to the best extent of my ability. Isn't that true? Pray confess, now."

Claire looked at him steadily for several seconds. There was a mild yet bright spark in her dusky-blue eyes, and a faint smile on her lips.

"You say less than you mean," she answered. "I think that I guess what is behind your words. I think that you suspect me of wishing to make my dictionary from motives of future personal preference. That is, you believe that I am a girl with strong ambitions—that I want to rise, thrive, succeed. . . . Well, you're not wrong. I do want to rise, thrive, succeed. It's in me, as the saying goes. I can't help the impulse."

Mr. Thurston lifted both hands and slightly waved them. "The impulse is enough, with you," he said.

Claire started. "What do you mean?" she asked.

Mr. Thurston looked at the floor, for a moment, then raised his eyes. They dwelt on Claire's very forcefully.

"I mean," he said, "that you are too beautiful and charming not to gain your object."

Claire laughed, lightly and yet a little consciously. "That is very kind of you. If a young man had only said it! How delighted I would have been!"

"Then you think me so very old?" Thurston replied, watching her face with intentness.

"Oh, no," Claire at once said, growing serious again. "Not that, of course But still . . . well, it would be idle for me to declare that I think you young."

"Perhaps I am younger than you think," he said, with low, peculiar emphasis on each word. "Mind, I only say 'perhaps.' . . . But do not let us talk of that. As I told you, I am sure you will gain your object. You will succeed. That is, you will find a higher level than these poor Bergemanns. There is a restless fire in your soul that will goad you on. And in the end you must win."

"Tell me by what means, please."

"Marriage will be your first stepping-stone."

"To what?"

"Success."

"Success in what form?"

"Social success. I assume that your aim lies there. You want men and women of a certain grade to pay you courtesy and deference."

Claire seemed to muse, for a brief time. "Yes, I do," she then said. "You are quite right. But you speak of my gaining all this by marriage. How shall I meet the man who is to lend me such important help?"

There was a daring candor about this question—a simplicity of worldliness, in fact—which startled her hearer. But his usual gravity betrayed no signs of dismay.

"You will meet him," he said, tranquilly. "Oh, yes; you will meet him. It is your fate. He will drop to you from the skies. But after you have secured through matrimony this desired end, will you be contented with what you have secured? So much depends on that—the success of your success, as one might say."

Claire raised her brows in demure perplexity. "I don't understand," she murmured.

Thurston slowly shook his head. A smile was on his lips, but it held sadness, and a hint of pity as well. "If I read you rightly," he answered, "you will understand, some day."

Claire made an impatient gesture. "Please don't talk in riddles," she exclaimed. "Do you mean that the prize will turn out worthless after I have got it? I have not found this true in my reading. I have not found many kings or queens who wearied so much of their thrones that they were ready to resign them." An eagerness now possessed her manner; she leaned slightly forward; her nostrils dilated a little; her color deepened. "Power and place are what I want, and never to have them will be never to have contentment. This sounds cold to you. I'm sure of it."

"Yes," he said, softly; "it sounds very cold. But I don't know that such a coldness as that will not prove for you a tough safeguard. It is very protective to a woman—if it lasts."

"Mine will last, such as it is."

"I neither affirm nor deny that it will. Time will show."

She broke into a laugh, full of sportive irony. "You mean that I may fall in love with somebody. But I have little fear of that." . . . Her face suddenly grew very sober, and her voice trembled somewhat as she next said: "I loved my poor dead father dearly. I shall never love any one else half so much again. No mere words could tell you of my firm certainty on this subject. But the certainty remains. I don't mean that I wish to live a loveless life. Far from that! I wish to have friends in abundance. And I shall not be disloyal to them in any case. But they must be friends of influence, standing, importance. They must not be like the Bergemanns, though I mean never to falter for an instant in my grateful fidelity toward Sophia and her mother."

"Your frankness," said Thurston, with one of his calm, wise smiles, "has a positive prodigality. What another woman would hide with the most jealous care, you openly speak. It is easy to see that your experience is yet limited."

"I should not talk to every one as I talk to you," Claire quickly answered.

He took one of her hands in his for a few moments. He held it, and she let him do so. He looked into her face with great fixity.

"My poor child," he said, "you have a hard road before you. But I know you mean to tread it with determined feet. In many women there would be something repellent about such resolves as those you have just confessed. In you they are charming. I suppose that is easily explained: you are charming yourself. I shall watch your career with the deepest concern. You shall not mind if I watch it? Am I wrong, here?"

Claire, still letting him keep her hand, swiftly replied: "Oh, no; of course I shall not mind. You belong to that other world. You are one of the people whom I wish to have for my adherents—my clients, as it were. I hope we shall always be friends. I like you very greatly. You remember we have talked it all over before now. You have told me of the people whom I wish to meet. You have even told me some of their names. I have forgotten nothing of what you have said. I count you as my first conquest. If others follow—as I firmly believe that they will—we will have talks together, and laugh over the old times when I was obscure and a nobody. Yes, if I ever get to be that great lady, you prophesy that I shall become, we will discuss, in little intimate chats, every detail of my progress toward grandeur and distinction. It will be very pleasant, will it not? But now I must say something that I have never said before. I must ask you to help me? Why should you not do so? You have means of doing so. And you like me; we are excellent friends. If you give me some real aid I will never forget it. I'm not ungrateful. I'm cold, if you choose, in a certain way, but I always recollect a service. Don't think I am begging any favor of you. I'm rather requiring one. Yes, requiring. You've told me that you think I have . . . well that I'm not ugly. You know just what I want to do. And you've said that I have . . . well that I'm very far from a fool. . . . Now let us strike a compact. Shall we? Put me in some path where I may reach your fine, grand world, in which I should like to shine and be a power!"

The audacity of this whole speech was exquisite. In plain substance it belonged to what we call by harsh names. It was the sort of thing that in ordinary dealing we denounce and even contemn, as the effort of unsolicited pretension to thrust itself against barred gates with immodest vigor.

But in Claire's case there was no question of ordinary dealing. Her impetuosity was so lovely, her youth, her beauty, and her freshness were so entirely delightful, that the unreserved freedom with which she spoke of aims in their essence purely selfish acquired a charming picturesqueness.

Her ambition, thus openly expressed, lost every trace of gross worldly meaning. She became, to the eyes of him who watched her, a fascinating zealot. She seemed to demand what was merely her just due. It was indeed as though she had been robbed by some hostile fate of a royalty that she now declared her stolen right, and proudly reclaimed.

All this time she had let Thurston retain her hand. Once or twice her slight fingers pressed against his palm, with unconscious warmth. Her face, meanwhile, lifted above the darkness of the mourning robes, was sweet and brilliant as some early dew-washed flower.

Thurston fixed his gaze upon her eyes, whose dark-blue depths were full of a rich, liquid light. His clasp tightened about her hand.

"I will give you my help," he said, with a new note in his voice that was a sort of husky throb; "I will give it to you gladly. But I am afraid you will not accept it when it is offered."

"Yes," returned Claire, still not guessing the truth, "I will accept it most willingly, since it comes from one whom I know to be my friend and well-wisher."

"That is not what I mean," Thurston objected. He rose as he spoke, still holding Claire's hand.

She looked at him wonderingly. She perceived his changed manner. "Explain," she said. "How do you mean that you will help me?"

"I will help you as my wife," Thurston replied. He looked as grave, as gray, as bronzed, as always; but his voice was in a hoarse flurry. "I will help you, as my wife, to be something more than a great lady. You shall be that, if you choose, but you shall be more. Your ambition is made of finer stuff than you know. I will help you to see just how fine it is."

The instant that he began to speak thus Claire had drawn away her hand. She did not rise. But she now looked up at him, and shook her head with negative vehemence.

"No, no!" she said. The words rang sharply

CHAPTER X.

Not long afterward Claire found herself alone. Thurston had gone. She felt her cheeks burn as she sat and stared at the floor.

His declaration had strangely shocked her, at first, for the entire man, as it were, had undergone a transformation so abrupt and radical as to wear a hue of actual miracle; and it is only across a comfortable lapse of centuries that the human mind can regard such manifestations with anything like complacency. Balaam could not have been more bewildered and disturbed when the ass spoke.

Claire had never thought of Thurston as capable of a live sentiment toward any woman. She had taken it for granted that all this part of his nature was in dignified decay, like his hair and complexion. She had drifted unconsciously, somehow, into the conviction that his passions, if he had ever felt them, were now like the inurned relics that we shut away in chests. She had warmed to him with a truly filial ardor, and this sudden ruin of their mutual relations now gave her acute stings of regret.

But Thurston, who had managed to depart from her with a good deal of nice repose of visage and demeanor, also contrived, with that skill born of wide social experience, to make their next meeting by far less awkward than Claire herself had nervously anticipated. Sophia and Mrs. Bergemann were both present on this occasion. He looked at Claire in so ordinary a way, and spoke with so much apparent ease and serenity, that her self-possession was fed by his, and her dread swiftly became thankful relief.

Through the days that followed Claire and Thurston gradually yet firmly resumed their past agreeable converse. Of course matters could never be the same between them. He stood toward her, inevitably, in a new light; a cloak had fallen from him; she was not quite sure whether she liked him less or more, now that she knew him as the man who had asked her to be his wife; but in reality she did like him much more, and this was because, being a woman, she constantly divined his admiration beneath the intimate yet always guarded courtesy of his manner.

Their former chats were resumed, steadily interrogative on her side, complaisantly responsive on his. As winter softened into spring, the dissipations of Sophia decreased. She had more evenings at home, and not a few of her devotees would pay her visits between the hours of nine and eleven. It frequently happened that Thurston would enter the drawing-room at such times. He always talked with Claire, who would often emerge from back recesses on his arrival. Both Sophia and her mother would occasionally deliver themselves of comments upon the evident preference of their legal adviser. But Mrs. Bergemann was much more outspoken than her daughter. Sophia could not bring herself to believe that there was "anything in it," as her own phrase repeatedly went. She thought Beverly Thurston "just as nice as he could be"; but the slender and blooming beauty of Claire made to her young eyes anomalous contrast with Thurston's fade though attractive appearance.

"Good gracious, ma!" she once asseverated, in private debate, "Claire wouldn't ever think of marrying a man old enough to be her father!"

"She might do worse, now, Sophia," protested Mrs. Bergemann, with the coolly formulated style of talk and thought which marks so many matrons when they discuss matrimonial subjects. "You just leave Claire alone. Wait and see what she'll do. He's taken a shine to her. Recollect, she ain't got a cent, poor dear girl. He'd make a splendid husband. I guess he'll propose soon. I hope he will, too. He's a real elergant gentleman. Just think how we trust him with rents and mortgages and things. I declare I don't scarcely know half what he does with my own property."

"Pshaw, ma," responded Sophia, with vast contempt. "Claire wouldn't look at him that way. She's young, like me. She may be as poor as a church-mouse, but she isn't going to sell herself like that. Now, do be quiet."

Mrs. Bergemann became obediently quiet. But she continued to have her private opinions. Meanwhile Claire and Thurston held their brief or long interviews, as chance favored.

Matters had rearranged themselves between them on the old basis. There was a change, and yet not a change. Claire spoke with all her former freedom. Thurston listened and replied with all his former concession.

A certain admirer of Sophia's had of late deserted her, and sought the attention of Claire whenever occasion permitted. His name was Brady. His father was the owner of a large and popular emporium on Sixth Avenue. He was an only child, and supplied with a liberal allowance. The mercantile success of his father had been comparatively recent. He was now three-and-twenty; his early education had been one long, persistent neglect. After the money had begun to flow into the paternal coffers, Brady had gone abroad, and seen vice and little else in the various European capitals, and finally, coming home, had slipped, by a most natural and facile process, into just that ill-bred, wealthy, low-toned set of which poor, rich Sophia Bergemann was one of the leading spirits.

Claire could hardly endure the attentions of Brady. She was civil to him because of her two hostesses, whose perceptions in all matters of social degree seemed hopelessly obtuse. But Brady had fallen in love with her, severely and effusively, and she soon had good cause to know it.

He was very tall and slim of figure, with a face whose utter smoothness would have been the despair of a mercenary barber. His large ears, jutting from a bullet-shaped head, gave to this head, at a little distance away, the look of some odd, unclassic amphora. He spoke very indifferent English, and always kept the last caprice of slang in glib readiness, as a tradesmen will keep his newest goods where he can soonest reach them. He was excessively purse-proud, and liked to tell you the price of the big sunken diamond worn on his little finger; of the suite of rooms at his expensive hotel; of the special deep-olive cigars, dotted with a lighter yellow speck, which lined his ivory cigar-case. He possessed, in truth, all the cardinal vulgarities. He was lavishly conceited; he paid no deference to age; he had not a vestige of gallantry in his deportment toward women; his self-possession was so frangible that a blow could shatter it, but his coarse wrath would at once rise from the ruin, like the foul aroma from a broken phial. At such times he would scowl and be insolent, quite regardless of sex, years, or general superiority on the part of the offender. Indeed, he admitted no superiority. The shadow of the Sixth Avenue emporium hedged him, in his own shallow esteem, with impregnable divinity.

"I think," said Thurston, speaking of him one day to Claire, "that he is truly an abominable creature. The ancients used to believe that monsters were created by the union of two commingling elements, such as earth and heaven. But to-day in America we have a horrid progeny growing up about us, resultant from two forces, each dangerous enough by itself, but both deadly when they meet. I mean Wealth and Ignorance. This Brady is their child. If he were merely a poor man, his illiteracy would be endurable. If he were merely illiterate, we could stand his opulence. But he is both very uneducated and very rich. The combination is a horror. He is our modern way of being devoured by dragons, minotaurs and giants."

Claire laughed, and presently shook her head in gentle argumentative protest. "I think there is a flaw in your theory," she said, "and I'll tell you why. There are the Bergemanns. Sophia, I admit, is not precisely uncultivated—that is, she has had good chances of instruction and not profited by them. This may mean little, yet it is surely better than having had no chances at all. But Mrs. Bergemann—she is both rich and ignorant, poor dear woman. And yet she is very far from a monster. She is a sweet, comfortable, motherly person. She would not harm a fly." Claire put her head a little sideways, and looked with winsome challenge at her companion; she assumed pretty airs and graces with him, nowadays, which she had never dealt in before the occurrence of a certain momentous episode. "What have you to say," she went on, "in answer to my rather shrewd objection? Doesn't it send you quite into a corner."

"Well, I confess that it rather floors me to have Mrs. Bergemann cited against me," he said, smiling. "I am afraid that I must yield. I am afraid that my theory is torn to tatters. I must congratulate you on your destructive instincts."

He spoke these words with his usual robust sort of languor, in which there was never a single trace of affectation or frivolity. At the

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1884.

MR. Cook the newly elected member for South Oxford, was introduced to the Speaker by Messrs Hardy and Freeman, the representatives of the adjoining ridings, and took his seat on the Ministerial side amid the applause of the Government benches.

THE question of adopting the Scott Act will be submitted to the decision of the people of the county of Oxford on Thursday next, 20th March. The voting will of course be by ballot. We have from time to time allowed writers on each side the privilege of discussing the question through these columns, and this week there is a flood of Scott Act literature. As this is the last issue before the election our readers will pardon us for devoting so much space to this subject this week.

We publish the amendments to the Crooks' Act elsewhere. All the amendments suggested are in the direction of increased stringency, designed to lessen the members of drinking places in the country, the undoubted evils that flow from excessive drinking, and to improve the character of hotels. One of the most important clauses in the bill embodying these amendments is that which gives to every sub-division in any municipality the opportunity of making the Crooks' Act a local prohibitory measure. The words of the clause are : No license shall be granted to any applicant for premises not then under license if a majority of the duly qualified parliamentry electors of the sub-division petition against it. This clause will give the people of every neighbourhood the power of expressing their opinion and of suppressing hotels if they wish. Under it, especially in rural municipalities, the number of hotels may be greatly decreased. This is a privilege which all temperance workers will duly appreciate.

Too much Party Spirit.

From the Globe.

Suggestions to the effect that party spirit ought to be dropped in the management of Ontario local affairs are being thrown out every now and then. These deserve to be duly pondered and resolutely acted upon, while the ease with which this can be accomplished is as encouraging as it is evident..

For many years past Ontario has had a premier and ministers who have carefully husbanded the resources of the province; vigorously and consistently stood up for provincial rights ; sedulously avoided the very appearance of a scandal ; and wisely and vigorously administered all of our local affairs. During all these years the disbursements have been on a scale so economically prudent that the opposition has never been able to object to anything but the most insignificant items of expenditure, and in most instances has not even carried its objections the length of a vote;

We are far within the mark when we say that for years past there has not been one per cent. of the proposed expenditure which has not passed without objection, almost without remark.

Mr. Mowat's personal character is above suspicion. The most embittered partisanship has never dared to call this in question. His soundness and reliability as a constitutional lawyer are universally acknowledged. He is emphatically a "safe" man, who has about him no rash compromising impulsiveness, and at the same time no unreasoning and antiquated conservatism. With such a tried and trustworthy premier, legislators of Ontario could have no better opportunity for giving practical recognition to all but universal feeling throughout the province that partyism ought to have a rest, than by Mr. Mowat's administration a cordial and discriminating support. The administration of affairs could not be in safer hands.

There are able and moderate men to the left of the Speaker's chair. There is not the slightest reason why everything propose by one side should be contradicted and condemned by the other. If, accordingly the members of the opposition wish to raise themselves in the estimation of the general public, and really to benefit the province, they can in no way accomplish this more effectually than by sinking partisanship; cutting themselves adrift from Dominion politics and combinations; cordially assisting to perfect such measures as come before the house, unitedly rallying to the maintenance of the local rights of this great province.

WHY ?

SIR,—From letters which have appeared in your paper, and also from reports of meetings held in favour of the passage of the Scott Act in this county, I learn that one of the reasons they give for seeking to pass it is that it is working so well in the county of Halton, and improving the morality of all its residents. Now, if this is correct why is it that they do not attempt to carry it in Wellington, Peel and Wentworth, the counties immediately surrounding it, and whose ratepayers must see the beneficial results arising from its passage which they claim. In my opinion the reason they do not try it in these counties is that they know perfectly well that it is not working to the best interests of the ratepayers of that county, and that the intelligent and unprejudiced voters of these adjoining counties would give a very large majority against them if they should attempt to pass the Scott Act in these counties. Now what do we find : that they not only do not try it in any of the adjoining counties, but also miss the county of Brant and come to Oxford. If it is working so well in Halton, situated as it is, surrounded by three counties where there is a strict license law in existence, how much better it should work if two or more counties adjoining each other should pass it. I therefore trust that the ratepayers of this county will by their votes tell these gentlemen who are endeavoring to force this act upon us to pass it first in the counties adjoining this new paradise, the county of Halton.

Yours truly,
OBSERVER.

SCOTT ACT IN HALTON.

We have been requested to publish the following which explain themselves :—

Glenwilliams, Ont., July 23rd, 1883.
George Williams Esq., Ingersoll.

DEAR SIR :—Your opponents are misrepresenting the working of the act, we consider it a grand success considering the strong opposition to it. There is very little whiskey drinking done, I think the treating system is stopped, the hotels are very quiet, can see a marked difference in going into other counties (especially on holidays those days in our county are very quite and peaceable). As regards farmers coming in to trade do not see any difference, but think it an improvement in town trade, as parties who formerly spent their money in drink now pay their accounts, could get plenty of businessmen to testify to these remarks, our Inspector was an anti-scott man and did not do much for the act, but we have another appointed and hear the hotel keepers have now resolved not to tamper with the law any more.

Hoping you will be successful in carrying the act. I am yours respectfully,
JOS. WILLIAMS.

Georgetown, July 23rd, 1883.
Mr. George Williams:

In reply to your questions would say we never expected the law to be kept inviolate, but it has accomplished a good work, to say no liquor is drank in the county would not be true, the cry that more whiskey is drank than before the act is not true, the parties to cry that are those that are opposed to the act and in full sympathy with the liquor traffic and most of them are parties that want the act to be a failure, they prophesied a failure when it was carried over their heads, they are trying to make it a failure and whiskey men cry "see what drunkenness," and when asked where, they say if you seen what I see you would know it is not on the streets to be seen as much as it used to be, there is next to no Magistrate cearts, there has been only two or three cases since the act came in force in Georgetown, as to business being driven away from the County it is all bosh, business if anything is better than it was, we consider we have been pretty successful in enforcing the law taking all things into consideration, you know every effort is put forth by the liquor interest to make the law a failure, the appointment of Mr. Black as an officer to enforce the act. by the Government last Thursday was a hard one on the hotel keepers. He is a terror to evil doers. I wish you all success.

Yours in love,
G. H. KENNEDY.

ONTARIO LIQUOR LAWS.

Improvements to be Made on the Crooks Act.

A Bill to improve the license laws has been introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Hardy. The following is a summary of its chief provisions :

The Board of License Commissioners is authorized to limit the number of houses not required to have the full accommodations required for taverns, as follows : In cities of less than 15,000 population to not more than three ; cities of between 15,000 and 30,000, not more than five ; cities of over 30,000, not more than ten ; towns of less than 6,000, not more than two, and over, 6,000, not more than three.

Applications for special licenses must be filed before the first of April.

Notices of the meetings of License Boards to grant licenses shall be advertised in the local papers at least fourteen days before the meeting. The Inspector shall publish in a paper in his district the name of every new applicant for a new license. A record of applications shall be open to inspection at the Inspector's office.

PETITIONS AGAINST LICENSES.

Ten or more electors of any polling subdivision may object by petition to the granting of any license within such subdivision for substantial reasons. Any persons petitioned against may be heard by himself or agent, and a municipality may appoint a person to appear in a similar manner before the Commissioners. At least three days' notice must be given to an applicant of any charge against his character. The Board may consider an objection to an application, but shall notify the applicant, and upon his request adjourn their hearing of the application. When the decision of the Commissioners is not unanimous or where the persons concerned petition and allege new facts for consideration, the Board may rehear the case,

LOCAL PROHIBITION.

An important clause of the Act provides : No license shall be granted to any applicant for premises not then under license if a majority of the parliamentary electors of the sub-division petition against it, on any grounds. In case of dispute as to whether the number of electors who have signed such petition compose a majority of the duly qualified parliamentary electors, or in case of dispute as to whether any persons who have signed the petition are duly qualified voters the Inspector shall make inquiries, and may take evidence upon oath, and determine the question in dispute, and certify to the Board. On the hearing application the Board may summon witnesses and examine on oath. The hearing shall be public, but the Board may consider their decision with closed doors.

ABOLITION OF GROCERY LICENSES.

The gradual abolition of grocery licenses is provided for by enacting that no shop licenses shall be granted to any who is not now a holder of one. If any other commodity than tobacco, temperance drinks, taps, etc., are sold in such shop in addition to liquor the license shall be void.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

In any unlicensed house no liquors shall be consumed by any person other than members of the family or employees.

The sale of liquors is prohibited on polling days in parliamentary or municipal elections, or when the Canada Temperance Act is being voted upon.

For selling within prohibited hours, for the first offence the penalty shall be a fine of twenty to forty dollars and costs, or fifteen days' imprisonment with hard labor ; for second offence, forty to eighty dollars, or twenty days ; for third offence eighty to one hundred dollars, or fifty days ; and for the fourth or subsequent offence, one to three months' imprisonment, with hard labor.

A conviction by a justice or police magistrate shall be without appeal except in certain cases mentioned. An appeal shall be to the Judge of the County Court without a jury. The person convicted, shall remain in custody pending the hearing of the appeal or give two securities in two hundred dollars each to appear before the County Judge, to abide by his decision and pay costs as ordered.

Provision is made for an inspector's appeal from the County Judge to the Court of Appeal, in case a magistrate's conviction has been quashed.

Section 90 of License Act is amended so that the child or master of one in the habit of drinking to excess, as well as the parent &c., may give notice or cause the Inspector to give notice to any persons licensed to sell liquor not to give or sell liquor to the person with such drinking habit. The penalty on the liquor seller who sells the drunkard liquor within twelve months thereafter is fixed at $50, and the person giving the notice may recover not less than twenty nor more than five hundred dollars for personal wrongs.

A penalty of $20 is provided against hotel keepers refusing lodging, meals, &c., without valid reason for such refusal.

Any liquor seller receiving goods in pawn, forfeits such goods, costs of prosecution, and is liable to a penalty not exceeding $20.

Permitting drunkenness or disorderly conduct on licensed premises, selling or giving intoxicating liquors to drunken persons, or permitting bad characters to meet on premises, or allowing gambling or any unlawful game to take place is punishable by a fine not exceeding $50.

Fifty dollars a day is the maximum fine for permiting internal communication between any licensed and unlicensed premises.

Allowing liquor to be supplied to any persons under 16 years of age, not a resident of the premises or a guest, lodger, or traveller, shall entail a penalty not exceeding $20 for every such offence.

If a licensee takes or allows liquor to be taken off his premises to be sold for his benefit, he will be liable to the same penalties as if the liquor had been drunk on his own premises.

In case of a purchaser drinking or allowing others to drink on the premises where liquor is bought, the seller, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $20 for the first offence, $50 for second.

The purchaser who drinks or causes any one to drink on the premises to which a shop or wholesale license is granted is liable to a penalty of $20.

A third conviction for Sunday selling operates as a forfeiture of license, and a disqualification for obtaining a license within two years thereafter.

Any unlicensed place where sign, bar, bottles, or casks are displayed in such a manner as to intimate that liquor is sold or that there is more liquor on the premises than is reasonably required by the residents is to be regarded as a place where liquors are unlawfully sold.

Every person other than the defendant, summoned or examined as a witness in any prosecution under the Act, is bound to answer all questions pertinent to the issue, even though these should implicate himself.

A defendant in a prosecution shall be compelled to give evidence as a witness.

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to lose $7,777.42 paid for license.—Adv.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

Vote against the Scott Act if you are an honest man, and do as you would wish to be done by.—Adv.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to encourage intemperance.—Adv.

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 77

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act. It allows the County to be flooded with liquor from other Counties. No prohibition in that. Any quantity can be manufactured in the County.—Adv.

The place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to force the people into jug drinking and sly drinking, which is the very worst type.—Adv.

SCOTT ACT AND TAXATION.

As the time is rapidly approaching when we shall be called upon to decide whether we will adopt the Scott Act or not, it may be well for us to carefully consider some of the consequences of the proposed change. I think I am not exaggerating when I say that not more than one or two out of each thousand inhabitants of this County have read the Scott Act as it is written in the statute book. Both the advocates and the opponents have given us certain extracts from that enactment—those which suit their purpose—still it is scarcely just and right for men to use their franchise in favor of any radical change from the present system, no matter in what branch it may be, without thoroughly understanding and agreeing with that change. Violent partisans on both side omit or enlarge whatever suits their peculiar views, and since men cannot think alike would it be wise to take the opinion of either for our guidance? A leap in the dark is proverbially dangerous.

There are one or two changes that will evidently result from the proposed change. Every man must know that we shall lose the revenue which we derive at present from the hotels, and this is no small item, as we shall find to our cost if it be taken out of our pockets instead of the hotel keepers. We get $2,065.10 from the different hotels and liquor stores. This extra tax upon the $1,162,025 of assessable property in this town would give an extra tax of 2 mills on each dollar of assessable property. Add that to the nineteen mills we paid last year and we have the enormous tax of 2 cents and 1½ mills per dollar.

This leads to another consideration. The greater the encumbrance upon property, other things being equal, so much lower becomes the value of that property, hence if we put an extra encumbrance or tax of 2 mills to each dollar of taxable property, we depreciate the value of that property in proportion. To make this clear, suppose I own a house worth $1,000 which I rent for $100 per year, the tax upon this is say $20, taking from the $80 left me the element of insurance and I have left 7 per cent. as the return of the property. Now if my taxes be raised to $30 without a corresponding increase in value of the property I shall get but $60 from the property or 6 per cent. upon the money invested in it, and as the value of property is estimated according to the return it yields, my property has depreciated one sixth in its value on account of the extra tax. I will not mention the inconvenience to farmers in not having stables for their horses when they come to town, they experienced that once before ; nor the special depreciation in the value of hotel property, the owners may tell you the injustice that would be done them by the passage of the Act. RATEPAYER.

SCOTT ACT—HALTON SPEAKS.

We, the undersigned, hearing that the people of the County of Oxford have been publicly informed through a Scott Act advocate from the County of Halton, that the Act is a success here, and that liquor could not be obtained at a Bar in this County, and that business had improved and crime lessened to a great extent, have no hesitation in saying that such is far from being the case, or correct in any particular. Whiskey drinking is carried on as much as ever, if not more, in hotels and other places, and liquor is found in private houses where, under the Crooks Act, it was never kept, and business has not improved, but on the contrary, decreased since the Act came in force, and our jail contains as many criminals as at any period of its history, excepting during the time railroads were being built through the County.

We hope and expect that we can be relieved from the tyranny of the Act when its term expires by a large majority, as the people have had their eyes opened to its utter inefficiency and great injustice :—

Signed,
Dougald McNair, of McNair & McNair, Carriage Manufacturers.
John C. Bell, express and baggage agent.
James Wallette, blacksmith.
John Hunter, builder and contractor.
W. H. Long, merchant.
David Hamburg, carpenter.
J. M. Field, pump maker.
Geo. Lavery, proprietor of bus.
Wm. Paxton, County Clerk.
Joseph Johnson, merchant.
R. Jones, harness maker.
F. Sanderson, keeper of Temperance Syndicate House.
Wm. Sloan, Sr., watchmaker.
W. B. Oakman, butcher.
J. P. Hepen, merchant.
W. H. McNab, hardware merchant.
Alexander Duff, barber.
Chas. Nuces, Cordelier Janies.
Campbell & Wareton, Canadian Champion.
D. W. Campbell, County Treasurer.
Thomas Metcalf, milkman.
W. H. Dandie, painter.
George Smith, Mayor of Milton.
Andrew Jock, merchant.
W. Hobbs, (Councilman), miller.
J. Sheppard, tailor.
John Lyon, post master.
James Barber, gentleman.
Victor Chisholm, barrister.
Jos. Brothers, (Councilman), manufacturer.
John Duncan, grain merchant.
B. J. Moffatt, shoemaker.
W. J. Stearn, tinsmith.
Henry Watson, druggist.
J. W. Fraser, watchmaker.
Thomas Wilson, shoe manufacturer.
Wm. Suebin, shoemaker.
Thomas Campbell, merchant tailor.
D. Butcher, merchant.
R. L. Hempstreet, merchant.
F. J. Jones, Town Clerk.
Duncan Dewar, Insurance agent.
P. M. McKay, merchant.
John Lawson, merchant.
Chas. Jones, cabinet maker.
J. H. Farrell, barber.
S. Hamont, (Councilman) miller.
James Lindsay, lumber merchant and stair factory.
N. McKenzie, of Hunter & McKenzie.
Isaac Cartner, merchant.
Patrick McDermott, tinsmith.
H. H. Freeman, hardware.
Stimson Bradley, chief constable.
J. H. Beemer, resident Milton.

SCOTT ACT.

Mr. Editor, I am glad that with your accustomed liberality you have opened your columns for the discussion of the Scott Act. Your correspondent "Farmer" of last week had the same article in the Sentinel Review of Woodstock, and seems to flatter himself that he has mashed the readers of that paper so they will believe anything, and now proceeds to put your readers through the same ordeal, is he foolish enough to think any one believes him, just take the following assertions he makes and see how much truth is in the whole: We are an exceedingly temperate people. The Scott Act has nothing in it to help the poor drunkard. We compelled the hotel keepers to expend large sums. That a farmer cannot make cider and sell it under the Scott Act. That hotel keepers will not be responible for coats, whips and robes left in their charge. He is so heavily taxed for model school, etc., that if in addition he loses his share of the license fees the tax will be so heavy he had better give up his farm than pay it, says nothing about being taxed for pranos and asylums. Now we will not go through the whole of his "Farmer's" ideas, but just take a look at the picture he gives of himself, see him a rich farmer, large farm and orchard, member of church, goes to Halton while there feels an aching void for his accustomed glass inquires and learns some one has liquor goes to the man informs him he is no old toper, no minister or temperance fanatic, he is all right just wants a pint to put in camphor, thus he induces the man to break the law, then comes home and proclaims it all over the county the Scott Act is a failure in Halton business has gone to the dogs. No wonder he is ashamed to give his name for fear his minister or any one he respects sees it. Now sir the farmers of Oxford instead of being led by such chaff as your correspondent Farmer will roll up such majority for the Scott Act on the 20th of March as will make him and his friends never think of repeal. R, WILLIAMSON.

Vote against the Scott Act and uphold Provincial rights and the Mowat Government.—Adv.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 86

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to sink the property of hotel keepers and gain nothing by it—Adv.

ZOPESA at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

MRS. Pinkham's Medicine at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

Vote against the Scott Act, as it will prevent the farmers from selling cider.—Adv.

Sulphur and Iron Bitters at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

PECTORIA, for Coughs and Colds, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingeasoll. 77

WARNER'S SAFE CURE at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

GERMAN Syrup at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

BROWETT'S Baking Powder, fresh and pure, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. (77

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

A MERCHANT'S LETTER.

What a Temperance Man of Woodstock Says.

DEAR SIR,—There has been a great deal said and written by the Scott Act party in this county as to the efficiency and success of the Scott Act in Halton principally, if not wholly, by a class of men who I consider are not by any means competent judges in this matter. Simply because as a rule they are men who do not frequent hotels or other places where liquor is sold and even if they did the proprietors of these houses are not likely to leave themselves open for a charge of violation of the Act by disposing of liquor in their presence, because they know the Scott Act men almost to a man.

I resided in Milton, the county town of Halton, for about five years,—nine months' of that time after the Act came into force, and although I have been until recently identified with the temperance workers and am still a strong advocate of temperance, I was opposed to the passing of the Act there on principle, and from what I know of the Scott Act I have no hesitation whatever in saying it has done more injury to the temperance cause and to augment the sale of liquor in Halton than can really be conceived of. Since I became a resident of Woodstock I have visited Milton and other towns in the county on business almost weekly and it is sold just as openly as under the Crooks Act, and in places where under that Act it was not sold, as the licensed dealer was a check on the illicit traffic, but now everyone is alike in that respect. I say conscientiously and emphatically that I don't know of even one man of my acquaintance in the whole county that the law has kept from using liquor to even a less extent than under the Crooks Act, but I do, on the contrary, know many who are using more. It is simply nonsense of Scott Act advocates to say that liquor cannot be found at bars in Halton. It is a misleading statement and intended to misrepresent matters. What is the difference between getting it at what is called a bar or in a back room. Depend upon it, back-room drinking is the worst, but at the same time there are dozens of these men selling it over the bars as before.

There are forty-two hotels in the county, and every one of them is open and doing business as if there was no Scott Act, and pay no license to do it, as they formerly did. The three temperance houses that were opened when the Act came in force have all succumbed except the one in Oakville and in Milton which has been a losing speculation all along, and the temperance people will admit that themselves.

It must be evident to a discerning eye that these forty-two men at least have not lived for nearly two years on fresh air, and as an evidence that should bear me out in this argument, the three hotel keepers in Milton have purchased a piano each since the Act came into force. And you don't get these expensive pieces of furniture in Halton for singing a Scotch song. Put these things together, my fellow ratepayers, and I think you will come to the conclusion with me that liquor is sold in Halton, and if they do they should pay for the license as under the Crooks Act and not add to our taxes, which are already high enough, and you can rest assured that liquor will be sold here just as it is there, unless the Government will agree to place an Inspector at everybody's door. Some of the hotel keepers and others have been fined but that don't scare them a bit, because only one man to my knowledge has been fined to the amount his licenes would have cost. The hotel keeper and others of course violate the law by selling liquor, but he is not to be blamed altogether. The way the matter stands in Halton is simply this : 1,402 of the ratepayers said by their votes that they did not want the Scott Act, and 1,483 said they did, and the result is that one-half of the people of Halton are in a bitter enmity with the other half, and the minority seem to think that their rights and privilege has been imposed upon, and are resenting the encroachment in every direction. The Act has undoubtedly spread discord broadcast over the riding to an alarming extent. This state of things is likely to exist till May, 1885, when the Act can be repealed, and it is the opinion and desire of the best men in the county that it will. I feel confident that the Act would not have been carried in Halton had the people not been persuaded that three constitutional amendments would be voted on the Act at the same time would have accepted it, because many of our ratepayers had faith in a combination of counties being of some good, but the result was that all rejected it except Halton. It is very evident that the people of Ontario are satisfied with the Crooks Act, from the bare fact that the Scott Act has been rejected everywhere but in Halton. The temperance cause has been progressing very favourably of late years, and lager beer has become the leading beverage among the young men ; whereas but a few years ago it was very different, and where you send the Scott Act or any local prohibitory law, you send back the whiskey, as beers are too bulky and not so easily got out of the way should a detective be hover ing around.

Consequently, my experience is that young men are drinking whiskey instead of beer in Halton, and not only is it driven in among the young, but a host of other evils, such as billiards, pool and card playing are introduced into several hotels that the bylaws of the towns kept out of these places, but now they are all private houses.

I could relate instances of the evils that are following in the trail of the Scott Act that would fill every column of your esteemed paper and the half would not be told. It was not my intention to have said a word publicly on this subject but for two reasons, namely : I considered I would be doing an injustice to my fellow ratepayers here to withhold what I know of the Act in Halton, as they were only hearing one side of the story, and were likely to be guided by what they did hear, as we did in Halton, and also because it was utterly impossible for me to remain silent when I knew the statements were being made in favor of the Act that were both misleading and misrepresenting ; and I care not who reads it or who hears it, it is every word true, which I am in a position to prove. I am not afraid to pronounce the Scott Act as one of the most retrograde steps that could be taken to advance the temperance cause. I say to the temperance party in the county to go on and preach or talk temperance as much as you can, but visit Halton before you talk Scott Act.

JOHN HEAD.

Woodstock, March 5, 1884.

THE SCOTT ACT.

Strictures on a Farmer's Ideas.

DEAR SIR :—Someone, signing himself "Farmer," has seen fit to address you a few of his ideas on the subject of Scott Act. It has never been my habit to notice articles on that subject of which the author himself was ashamed, but this "Farmer" has not confined himself to truth, and, as in the heat of this campaign his misrepresentations might be credited, I would desire to correct some of his erroneous impressions. But before dealing with the principal things he says of public import, I would correct an error of a private nature into which he has fallen. With great modesty he concludes his letter as follows :—"As my minister is strangely in favour of the Scott Act, and not wishing to quarrel with him, allow me to sign myself Farmer." Now, I do not think "Farmer" should measure our corn by his bushel, and conclude that because his mind is so narrowly constructed that he must quarrel with everyone with whom he does not agree, that all the ministers do the same thing. Ministers have learned to respect the opinions of others, consequently they know how to agree to differ on important subjects, and remain good friends still. Besides, if "Farmer" is a member of my church I would like to know his name, for I think a little godly conversation, followed by some earnest prayer, might have a beneficial effect upon him.

But to his letter. In the first paragraph he would make us believe that the Methodists Conference unconditionally endorses the present license law. Let me quote from the resolutions he mentioned, that your readers may know the exact position of that body. On page 207, of the General Conference Journal I find, "Although we cannot accept as righteous, absolutely, any license law, yet if we must tolerate some one as the tentative regulator of an evil till we can have it removed, we must regard the "Crook's Act" the best instrument for this suppression the Province of Ontario ever had. * * * We are favoured to have in the Statute Book of the Dominion such a permissive bill as the Scott Act, more especially as its constitutionality has been affirmed by the Privy Council of England. This Conference believes the "Canada Temperance Act of 1878" to be better fitted to secure the suppression of the liquor traffic within the Dominion of Canada than any other enactment that has ever been in operation within the country." Sir, could "Farmer" have read these sentences when he gave your readers to understand that the Methodist Conference coincided with his opinion that the present law "is the most perfect temperance law passed by any government in the world ?"

Could "Farmer" ever have mingled with the crowds around and in several of the hotels in Ingersoll, and yet have the impression that "our people are exceedingly temperate ?" I grant there are many temperance people in our county, but anyone who eyes open to surroundings must say there are more than "a few who indulge two freely," unless there are reasons best known to himself, why he should not see them. I grant there are a few in Maine who indulged too freely, but by far a less proportion to the aggregate population than in Oxford.

"Farmer" claims the present law provides ample means to prohibit the liquor dealers supplying liquor to drunkards, and says "there is nothing to help the poor drunkard in the Scott Act." I would like to know if the rendering of the traffic illegal and placing heavy fines on the violators ; the removal of the retail liquor business altogether is not a more effectual help for the drunkard than the privilege to prohibit the hotel keepers selling to them. A request very seldom observed, for everyone knows the wife of the drunkard for many reasons, seldom brings the vendor to trial. To prove "Farmer" believes the Scott Act an efficient help to drunkards let me quote from the paragraph in which he talks about Halton. He says, "of course the old topers are not considered safe to be around getting it by the glass, * * they might squeal," thus showing that where the Act is in force the topers cannot get liquor from the dealers. As to their purchasing it from other counties in large quantities my experience with Halton,—of which county I am a native, and having been engaged in business there of a public nature, am well acquainted with the entire county—is that there is very little of that kind of thing done. In fact, though receiving two newspapers, and from one to two letters every week from that county, nearly all of which speak of the Scott Act, I have only heard of one such case since the Act came in force.

"Farmer" speaks of the great injustice done there engaged in the trade by taking away their license and thus, as he says, "destroying their property." But I do not see why it should be destroyed. Because a bar, and a few shelves, with a beer pump and a dozen or so of bottles and barrels are removed, surely the whole property is not destroyed ! He seems to forget the injustice done to many others who have not only been ruined from a business view, but also intellectually, morally, physically, and spiritually. By urging a continuance of the license law, "can he feel he is following the Golden Rule to do as he would wish others to do to him? In quoting the questions from "Farmer," I feel that by far the greater number is included in the word "others" than all the hotel keepers in the county.

"Farmer" says that liquor is sold in Halton in a large number of places besides hotels. It is strange if that be truth that out of over 70 charges of violation during the the first year of Scott Act in Halton, only one was against an individual who did not occupy a hotel, and this person once did run a hotel. I would ask "Farmer" to produce proof, and not ask us to believe unproved and meaningless assertions. The next sentence of his letter, too, should be proved, wherein he claims "people who did not keep liquor in their private houses under the Crooks Act are now taking it home in large quantities, and the wives and families are drinking as well as the men." I call for proof, for with my wide acquaintance in Halton, I have never found such to be the case.

I want to place beside that sentence of "Farmer's" in which he says, "on close enquiry I find the village property of all description has decreased to a terrible extent and business has gone, you might say to the dogs," the statements of last week's Acton Free Press, that sixteen families this week moved into our village; Beauhornois' tannery, which has been completely refitted, is about commencing operations ; W. H. Storey & Son are getting in the brick for their large new building ; and the last named firm is runing day and night over 100 hands to supply their orders. Also this testimony, "We, the undersigned residents and business men of Acton, Halton Co., hereby certify that our experience and observations clearly prove that the Scott Act which has been in force here since May 1st, 1882, has in no way injured business in our municipality. Also that we honestly and conscientously believe that the amount of drinking has been greatly reduced in this municipality since the Act came into force." This statement is signed by seventeen of the leading business men of the village and should carry more weight than the unproved statement of "Farmer" who dares not utter his thoughts over his own name, but seeks to skulk behind an assumed cognomen, from thence to thrust his untruthful ideas before a thoughtful community. I am vruch for the integrity and honesty of every man who signed the above quoted statements ; I wish I could say the same of "Farmer."

We ministers, of course, must come in for a share of his inwendoes, but being engaged in many good works, in them all opposed by evil, we have become accustomed to such foundationless declarations.

Sir, could "Farmer," and every reader of your valuable paper, and every elector in Oxford county, realize how anxiously every drunkard's wife is praying for success of the Act on the 20th of March ; how the mothers of young men are fervently hoping that the vote will adopt an Act that will effectually break up the treating system, and how the friends of moderate drinkers are trusting that on voting day the liquor traffic will be made illegal, knowing these will not violate that law, I feel certain they all, even "Farmer" himself, would put their mark on the ballot paper beside the words, "For the petition."

In conclusion, I would ask that each elector would put this crucial test to his action in this matter, "vote as you pray and pray as you vote." Being confident that the Divine Blessing rests neither upon the traffic, its advocates, nor its supporters, I would urge that none would use their franchise "for an occasion to the flesh," but in the name of all things holy and pure and righteous, vote out this enormous evil from our county on the 20th inst.

Yours faithfully,
T. A. MOORE.

Salford, 10th March, 1884.

A GREAT SHEEP RANCH.

How Eighty Thousand Sheep are Herded and Sheared.

The little schooner Santa Rosa arrived in San Francisco from Santa Barbara a few days ago. She comes to that place twice a year to secure provisions, clothing, lumber, etc., for use on the Santa Rosa Island, being owned by the great sheep raiser, A. P. Moore, who owns the island and the 80,000 sheep that exist upon it.

The island is thirty miles south of Santa Barbara, and is 24 miles in length and 16 in breadth, and contains about 74,000 acres of land, which are admirably adapted to sheep-raising.

Last year Moore clipped 1,014 sacks of wool from these sheep, each sack containing an average of 410 pounds of wool, making a total of 415,740 pounds, which he sold at twenty-seven cents a pound, bringing him in $112,349.80, or a clear profit of over $80,000. This is said to be a low yield, so it is evident that sheep raising there, when taken into consideration that shearing takes place twice a year, and that a profit is made of the sales of the mutton, etc., is very profitable. The island is divided into four quarters by fences running clear across it at right angles, and the sheep have not to be herded like those ranging about the foothills.

Four men are employed regularly the year round to keep the ranch in order and to look after the sheep, and during shearing time fifty or more shearers are employed. These men secure forty or fifty cays work, and the average number of sheep sheared a day is about ninety, for which five cents a clip is paid, and thus $4.50 a day is made by each man, or something over $200 for the season, or over $400 for ninety days out of the year.

Although the shearing of ninety sheep a day is the average, a great many will go as high as 110, and one man has been known to shear 125. Of course every man tries to shear as many as he can, and owing to haste frequently the animals are severely cut by the sharp shears. If the wound is serious the sheep immediately has his throat cut, and is turned into mutton and disposed of to the butchers, and the shearer, if he is in the habit of frequently inflicting such wounds, is immediately discharged. In the shearing of those 80,000 sheep a hundred or more are injured to such an extent as to necessitate their being killed, but the wool and meat are of course turned into profit.—San Francisco Call.

DR. LOW'S PLEASANT WORM SYRUP.—An agreeable, safe and effectual remedy to remove all kinds of worms. 91i

SELF-COCKING PISTOLS.

Weapons that Can Shoot Quickly Preferred to All Others.

"Self-cocking pistols are now preferred," a dealer in small arms said. "There was a time when no one would carry a self-cocking weapon, and many manufacturers who had patterns of such weapons stopped making them. One reason was that they often failed to explode the cartridge at first fire. Nobody cares to have a pistol that he can't rely on."

"Why are they so much sought for now?"

"The manufacture of pistols has improved immensely during the last half a dozen years. Just compare the old self-cocking pepper-box revolver, which had almost the size and was more clumsy than a Gatling gun, to the latest self-cocking pistol, which has a double action, so that for quick shooting all the chambers may be discharged without taking your finger from the trigger, and for target practice the hammer may be raised in the ordinary way. The great difficulty in the old self-cocking pistol was the spring which threw down the hammer. After a little time it would lose much of its strength. Self-cocking pistols have been appreciated in France for a long time. The French pistols, however, are clumsy, and are cumbersome to carry in the pocket. They are almost sure to go off at first fire, because the cartridges are made with a piece of copper wire, like a nipple, which comes in contact with the fulminate. The hammer strikes the wire, and it only takes a light blow to explode the cartridge."

"Are the modern American self-cocking pistols sure?"

"Oh, yes. Since the invention of the central-fire cartridges there has been no difficulty in making the springs strong enough. The self-cocking pistols which use the old rim-fire cartridge are sure, too, for they are constructed so that the hammer has a full fall, and they have well-tempered springs."

"Are not self-cocking pistols dangerous, being more liable to go off in one's pocket?"

"I don't think so. There is a guard around the trigger which prevents it from being struck. In fact, I don't recollect any instance of a self-cocking pistol going off in any one's pocket. You can discharge all the chambers of a five-shooting self-cocking pistol in a trifle over three seconds. When you have to raise the hammer with your thumb each time it takes a good deal longer, and in a moment of excitement your thumb is very liable to slip."

West India Duels.

Dueling in the West Indies, except upon Hayti and the islands under Spanish rule, used to prevail to a great extent, although the custom has pretty nearly died out; and "pistols and coffee" are not called for at the present day, either by quarrelsome youth or "old stagers," with that same reckless demeanor they used to be in the days of yore. Upon the small French islands, particularly, the "code of honor" is held in high esteem, both by foreigners and "estated gentlemen," some thirty, forty and fifty years ago ; and it was no uncommon thing in those times to witness two or more duels a month, on an average—only a few of which, however, were attended by fatal consequences. Many a hostile meeting has been precipitated by the wine cup at the Cirque, "the famous coffee house of Basseterre (the capital of Guadaloupe) a resort of French army and navy officers, and by resident planters and merchants of wealth and respectability. There was then no law in force against dueling, so the custom was practiced without municipal restraint or fear of legal consequences. It was generally understood throughout select society upon St. Martin that every gentleman must have emphasized his polite breeding either by having been "called out," or of having challenged his man, unless his social life and business transactions had been phenomenally serene and satisfactory. There was an air of perfect refinement and absence of cruelty, however, in the deportment of St. Martin duellists, and the bowie-knife, rifle or double-barreled shot-gun was seldom ever used as a weapon—the invitations were generally "pistols and coffee," and the terms "ten paces and balls thirty-two to the pound." —Alta California.

Dancing

At about fourteen years of age the body attains a considerable increase of weight, in consequence of the quick growth that takes place. We often remark that lads and girls of this age shoot up apace ; and their greater weight is not always attended with a proportionate acquisition of strength. They are apt to be rather weak and ungainly in their movements ; and the weakness often shows itself in the foot, by a yielding of the plantar arch. Moreover, many boys and girls are, at this age, turned out into the world to earn a livelihood, and are obliged to be a good deal upon their feet, and perhaps in addition, have to carry weights. Thus errand boys, butchers and bakers' boys, and young nursery-maids, are frequent sufferers in this way. The constrained positions in dancing, also, if enforced too much or continued too long so as to tire the feet, sometimes lead to the same result. On the other hand, moderate exercise of this kind is calculated to strengthen the foot and also the whole frame, and contributes much to improve the carriage—Prof. G. M. Humphry.

Rouge.

Cleanliness, and the civil beauty of the body was ever esteemed to proceed from a modesty of behaviour, and a due reverence in the first place towards God, whose creatures we are ; then towards society, wherein we live ; then towards ourselves, whom we ought no less, nay much more to revere. But adulterate decoration by painting and ceruse, is well worthy the imperfections which attend it, being neither fine enough to deceive nor handsome enough to please, nor wholesome to use. We read of Jezebel that she painted her face ; but there is no such report of Esther or Judith.—Lord Bacon.

—The double-ripper is the toy pistol of the winter season. Beware of it when it is overloaded.

A FIN

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Scott Act.
China Tea House.
Wanted—E. Agur.
Dry Goods—I. Coyne.
For Sale—John Atkins.
Cattle Fair—John Craig.
Strayed—John Flaherity.
Auction Sale—J. C. Hegler.
Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.
Norman's Electric Belt Institution.
Important to Butter Men—W. L. Williams.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

New maple sugar and syrup at Vance's.

New Bank.—It is the Molsons Bank and not the Bank of London that purpose opening in Woodstock shortly.

Chas. Rice, of West Oxford, killed a snake two feet in length, on Jan'y 27. His snakeship was crawling on top of the snow.

Spring Fair.—See prize list of the Spring Show of stallions, seed grain and potatoes, to be held in Ingersoll on Thursday, April 17th.

Easter Fair.—An Easter Cattle Fair will be held on the Market Square, Woodstock, on Thursday, April 3. Read advertisement for particulars.

Seeds.—All interested should send a postal card to John Pike, Seedsman, Woodstock, for a copy of his handsome illustrated catalogue of vegetable, field and flower seeds. See adv.

Baptist Church.—Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, of St. Thomas, will preach in the Baptist Church here, on Sunday next, both morning and evening. This gentleman will be greeted with very large congregations.

Penmanship.—We are informed that by a new system of teaching penmanship, introduced by Mr. J. S. Deacon, the efficient principal of our public school, the pupils are making marked improvement in this important branch of education.

Queen's Birthday Celebration.—A general meeting of the Caledonian Society will be held in Mr. J. C. Hegler's office on Thursday evening, 20th inst., at eight o'clock sharp, to arrange for the annual games on the Queen's Birthday, and for the enrolment of any new members who may wish to join the society. C. R. Patience, Secretary; Wm. Ewart, Chief. 92

Scott Act Meeting.—A convention of temperance workers in the County, will be held in the Town Hall, Woodstock, on Saturday, March 15th, at 10 o'clock a.m., to make final arrangements for getting out the vote on March 20th. A number from outside our County will be present. A public meeting will be held at 1 p.m., and another at 7.30, p.m. 91i.

Entertainment.—The members of the Y.M.P.B.A., of this town, intend giving a first-class entertainment in their hall on the 28th of this month, on which occasion Prof. Redman and his wife, and an array of competent artists, will give the thrilling drama entitled "Delicate Ground," or "Paris in 1793." Besides this, vocal and instrumental selections will be given by prominent amateurs—all of which will only cost 15 cents Proceeds to be devoted to hall improvement. Look out for programmes.

Personal.—Chas. V. Snelgrove, L.D.S., has passed his final examination very successfully in connection with the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Toronto. We wish him success in his professional career.—Mr. A. H. Ellis has been confined to his home for the last four or five days from a severe attack of bilious fever.—The Rev. W. W. Ross is confined to his house by a severe cold.—Mr. Hugh Brady, from Chicago, is on a short visit to his brother Jas. Brady, Esq., of this town.

Obituary.—Mrs. David Paine, whose death is announced in to-day's issue was one of the oldest inhabitants of Ingersoll, she and her husband having come here from Kent, England, in 1842, and lived here ever since, upwards of forty years. They had a numerous family, among whom are Mrs. Thos. Hislop, of West Oxford; Mrs. Albert Caswell, of Montreal; Mr. P. H. Paine, of Lake Linden, Mich.; Mr. J. L. Paine, of Woodstock; Mrs. L. Thompson, of this town, and Mr. F. Paine, of Bay City, Mich. Deceased was a member of the Baptist Church. Her husband is at present lying very low and small hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.—The April number has such an abundance of good things that our space will not permit us to particularize. The editor (Rev. T. De Witt Talmage) has an admirable article, "Practical Sympathy," and in the Home Pulpit is a sermon by him, "The Royal Exile." Among the elaborately illustrated articles are: "A pilgrim in Yellowstone Park"; "Johann Wolfgang von Goethe," by D. E. Hervey; "Easter Festivities at St. Petersburg," "The founding Asylum of New York City," and other articles Essays, Sketches, etc., by Alfreton Hervey, Leigh Norval, Rev. E. Rand, Mrs. A. E. Alexander, Rev. J. F. Clay-Moran, J. Alexander Patten, etc. The serial and short stories are by Helen W. Pierson, L. T. Meade, Josephine R. Williams, etc. The poems are of great merit, and the miscellany is most comprehensive, interesting and entertaining. Price, 25 cents a single number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid. Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher 53, 55, and 57 Park Place New York.

Death of Thos. Hemsworth—The Last Sad Rites.—At the funeral of Thomas Hemsworth, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hemsworth, Dereham, which took place on Friday morning last. A solemn requiem high mass was celebrated in the Church of the Sacred Heart by the new pastor, Rev. Father Molphy, for the repose of the soul of the deceased. The many friends of the afflicted parents extended to them their sympathy and heartfelt sorrow in their sad bereavement. Deceased was a most exemplary young man and much loved by all his young friends. The services of that morning were very solemn and impressive. By request, Mrs. G. W. Watson, our well known and talented musician took charge of the organ for this occasion, ably assisted by Rev. Father Brady, of Woodstock, and Miss Keating and Miss Doty of this town. The funeral procession was the longest ever seen in Ingersoll, reaching fully three quarters of a mile. The scene at the grave was most affecting. The poor heart broken mother's agonizing cries and the grief of the young sisters over the untimely end of their only brother, melted the hearts of all. Few in this neighborhood can realize the loss sustained by Mr. & Mrs. Hemsworth within so short a time, two worthy young men just upon the threshold of manhood swept into an untimely grave. Young Hemsworth was a grand son of the late Walter Hackett, who was so well known and respected.

Masonic.

At the regular meeting of St. Johns Lodge No. 68 A.F. and A.M., held at the Masonic Hall, Ingersoll, on Thursday evening last. Pastmaster Bro. Badden was presented by the W. M. on behalf of the lodge with a Pastmaster jewel. Pastmasters Worshipful Bros. Walsh, Kerr, Thompson and Warnock were present to witness the very pleasing ceremony:

To W. Bro. Jas. Badden, P. M.:
St. Johns Lodge No. 68.

Dear Sir and Bro.:—On behalf of St. Johns lodge No. 68, A.F. and A.M., G.R.C. Recognizing the able manner in which you have filled the Masters chair of this Lodge far the past two Masonic terms your devotedness to the cause and advancement of the principals of Free Masonry, and to your sterling qualities as a man and a mason. I have much pleasure in presenting you with this Past Masters Jewel as a slight token of respect and esteem. Trusting you may long live to wear it with credit to yourself and honor to the craft.

Fraternally yours,
J. C. Hegler,
Worshipful Master.

On Tuesday evening Bro. Wm. Thompson, P.M., was presented with a beautiful Past Masters Jewel, on his retirement from the oriental chair. The jewel was manufactured by H. Richardson, and is certainly very creditable to that extensive establishment.

Vote against the Scott Act if you want to have respectable hotels to stop at.—Adv.

Call at Beck's and get some of those fin large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80

Fine steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to raise the money by direct taxation lost by licensed revenue.—Adv.

Parties requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to F. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to encourage large quantities of liquor carried into the private house, and educate whole families to drink.—Adv.

The cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

A fine assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

Thirteen lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

THE SCOTT ACT.

What the Rev. R. Dobie of the County of Halton Says.

After the Scott Act had been in operation in the County of Halton for twelve months, the editor of the Milton News interviewed a number of the leading men of the county, and this is what the Rev. R. Dobie, among others, said:—

Rev. R. Dobie knew of none that the Scott Act had saved from drinking. He was confident that there was more secret drinking on the part of many, on the ground that "stolen waters are sweet." He did not doubt that there was more drinking now than at any other period. He thought the hotel-keepers had observed the Act fairly, had heard that liquor was to be had in other places. He thought the feeling of the people generally was against the Act and there was little doubt but what it would be repealed. The people would be thankful when they were delivered from it. He was not satisfied with the Act and could not exactly support a total prohibitory measure, but thought that the traffic should be regulated in some way. He thought it not unreasonable, that hotel-keepers should be compensated.

Town Council.

An adjourned meeting of the Town Council was held on Thursday evening last.

Members present—His worship, the Mayor, in the chair, Messrs. Watterworth, Seldon, Gibson, Waterhouse, Walley, Nelles, Richardson, McInnes, Buchanan, O'Connor, Matheson.

Minutes of last meeting read and signed by the Mayor.

Acc't from T. J. Thornton, wood for Mrs. Gibson '83, $3.25.

On motion, it was resolved, That Mrs. Roach be paid for her services in attending a poor woman in her confinement the sum of $6.00 and the Mayor sign an order for the amount.

The Market and Printing Committee brought in their report recommending that tenders be asked for the office of Market Clerk, his duties to commence on the 1st of April next, which was on motion adopted.

The Committee appointed to confer with the N. & W. Oxford Agricultural Society brought in their report stating that they had met a Committee of the Agricultural Society composed of Messrs. Cook and Casswell and proceed to the Agricultural Hall and found it in a good state of repair, and we find, to meet the views of the Society, it is necessary to build a wing of fifty feet, and would also recommend that the building be boarded up with siding at a probable cost of $30.00 to $35.00, the Society also want a building put up for refreshment room, and would recommend that no farther steps be taken until a satisfactory subscription list be laid before the council. We find it will be necessary to get a permit from the mortgagee before attempting to move the building. On motion, the above report was adopted.

On motion it was resolved, That the Council to now go into Committee of the whole, on the report of the Committe to appoint policeman, said report having been laid over for further consideration.

Council moved into Committee of the whole. Mr. Nelles in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Matheson, seconded by Mr. O'Connor and resolved, That the report of the Committee on the Chief Constable be amended by striking out all the words after the words recommended, and the following be added; That whereas the Consolidated Municipal Act of 1883, makes it imperative for town to appoint a Chief Constable and one other Constable at least, be it therefore resolved that this Council considers our present Chief Constable a most proper person to fill the office of Chief Constable, and that one other Constable be appointed by this Council to assist the Chief Constable in carrying out the By-laws of the Town.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Walley, seconded by Mr. Noxon, That the report of the Police Committee be adopted, and that this Committee do now rise and report the Report of the Police Committee as adopted without amendment.

Moved in amendment to the amendment, by Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. McInnes and resolved, That M. H. Gray be sustained in the position of Chief of Police at the same salary as formerly, viz. $25.00 per month and perquisites.

Moved by Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. McInnes, and resolved that this committee do now rise and report the report of the police committee, adopted and amended.

Council resumed, the mayor in the chair. The yeas and nays being called for there voted nay 6, yea 6.

On motion it was resolved that Mr. Flood, the private constable paid by the citizens as night watchman, be presented by this council with a suit of clothes not to cost more than $20.00 and that the chairman of the finance committee procure the same.

On motion it was resolved to suspend rule 37 for the evening.

A resolution to procure the chief constable a coat and cap was lost.

A motion to procure the chief constable a suit of clothes was quashed on the yeas and nays being called for by 7 to 5.

A motion to procure the clerk a suit of clothes was lost.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved that mover have leave to bring in a by-law to regulate the issue of licenses for billiard tables, bowling alleys and shooting galleries.

By-law was then read a first, second, and third time and passed in committee of the whole.

Moved by Mr. Watterworth, seconded by Mr. Seldon, and resolved, that a committee consisting of Messrs. Gibson, Seldon, and the mover be authorized to have prepared the necessary legal papers between this council and the North and West Oxford Agricultural Society on the basis of the resolution passed by the council and lay the same before the council.

On motion the council adjourned.

South Oxford Election.

Recapitulation of vote polled for each candidate at the several polling subdivisions of the Electorial District of the South Riding of the County of Oxford at an election held on the 5th day of March 1884:

Municipalities.	Cook.	Noxon.
Ingersoll, No. 1	35	80
" " 2	42	72
" " 3	29	75
" " 4	27	73
" " 5	44	86
" " 6	45	54
Tilonburg, " 1	69	33
" " 2	63	31
" " 3	78	30
Norwich Village, No. 1	68	34
" " " 2	127	32
East Oxford, No. 1	69	56
" " 2	74	52
" " 3	53	67
North Oxford, " 1	55	77
" " 2	53	58
West Oxford, " 1	46	69
" " 2	78	82
" " 3	65	83
Dereham, No. 1	60	57
" " 2	61	40
" " 3	57	58
" " 4	61	43
" " 5	87	23
" " 6	56	61
Norwich South, No. 1	61	39
" " " 2	41	43
" " " 3	40	61
" " " 4	42	63
" " " 5	46	53
Norwich North, " 1	40	46
" " " 2	63	55
" " " 3	78	41
" " " 4	50	35
	1963	1862

Majority for Cook 101.

George Perry,
Ret. Officer.

Vote against the Scott Act and do not destroy $500,000 worth of property. You gain nothing by it!—Adv.

To Hotel Keepers.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

A large stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to destroy our towns and villages.—Adv.

Finnian Haddie delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

The choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act, as it is not half as good a Temperance Law as Mr. Crooks' Act—Adv.

Caution to Smokers.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79

Read the amendments to the Crooks' Act in another column, and then vote against the Scott Act and for the Crooks Act and Provincial Rights.—Adv.

Letter from a Ratepayer.

To the Editor of the Ingersoll Chronicle.

Electors of Oxford, the question before us at present is this: Is the Scott Act as good a law for the regulation of the liquor traffic as the one we have at present, the Crooks Act, or Ontario Temperance Act?

A special objection I have to the Scott Act is that it is interfering with Provincial Rights. Our Ontario Government are the best qualified to arrange laws for the regulation of trade within the Province. Either shade of politics should guard these rights with an eye of the keenest jealousy. What are these rights is the question that is occupying the mind of the public, especially with reference to the liquor traffic. The Scott Act agitators are claiming that the Scott Act is a temperance or prohibition measure. On what ground they base their statement is more than I can understand, as it allows liquor to be manufactured within the county but as many distillers, brewers, etc., as choose to manufacture it. It also allows druggists to sell any quantity over a pint that doctors choose to give a certificate for, even by the barrel. It allows wine to be manufactured within the county on a license from a municipality. What is to hinder that wine being fortified until it is almost as intoxicating as whiskey? (See clause 7, page 24, pamphlet.) Is not this the most absurd and contemptible clas of legislation to license the manufacture and sale of wine and prohibiting farmers from manufacturing and selling their cider within the county except to the licensed druggist? Farmers surely have a right to demand equal rights with others, especially when cider is less intoxicating than any wine made and sold in this country. The wine manufacturers have surely had a good friend to look after their interests.

Wholesale licenses can be granted to anyone who chooses to take out one. (See clause 8, page 25, pamphlet.) They can also sell ten gallons to any person whom they have good reason to believe will take the liquor out of the county. I can easily understand that it will not be difficult to make them believe when they will have a good profit to back up that belief. When the county can be filled by these wholesale houses, druggists, brewers, distillers, wine manufacturers, and also by the convenience of outside counties and the host of travellers that swarm the road anxious to take orders, this county must surely be in the babyhood of innocence to imagine that dens where liquor will be drugged in the vilest manner will not spring up here as they do in other places. Below is an extract from the New Brunswick Courier: "The rum power is rampant in St. Stephen, and the Canada Temperance Act lies prostrate at his feet. Forty-four liquor shops, report says, in this town, twelve in Milltown and sixteen in Calais under the Maine law. The majority of these places are wretched hovels, where the worst kind of liquor is dispensed." The article proceeds to give a catalogue of disgraceful doings in those illicit dens on Sundays as well as Monday, and upon the situation bases an attack upon the Scott Act and upon those who were the means of securing its adoption. (See also letter from Halton with a host of names showing what is going on there.)

Although Mr. Morrow boasts that there is not a man in Halton who would sign a letter against the success of the Act, he is scarcely particular enough about what he states.

A very bad feature of the Scott Act is the habit that people get into of taking liquor home to their private houses, which is a more dangerous feature for the young men than the bar. Where do our young men first acquire the habit of drinking? At parties, oyster saloons (of course liquor is not sold there), New Year's calling, etc. Those who know society best tell me there is no doubt that these are the places.

The Scott Act makes no provision as our present law does, to prevent people who are drinking to excess from getting liquor. Our present law, the Crooks Act, makes a provision that the husband, wife, parent, brother, sister, guardian, or employer may give notice forbidding the sale to any person who is drinking to excess under a heavy penalty. They are also subject to an act for damages if any accident should occur to the person while he is in a state of intoxication. If this provision is carried out what more can we desire? There is also a provision in the Crooks Act prohibiting the sale to minors. No such clause is to be found in the Scott Act.

Under the restrictions and provisions of the Crooks Act, the number of hotels and other places has been lessened in this county to a great extent, fully one-half. The character of hotels as of hotel-keepers have been wonderfully improved; in fact hotels which are merely drinking places can no longer get a license. Every endeavour of the Crooks Act has been to give the public comfortable houses when they are travelling. What provision does the Scott Act make for hotels? None whatever. Hotel keepers can keep their places just as they please. They are not bound to furnish either bed or board to man or beast, or a warm room to make people comfortable when they come to town. Neither are they responsible for anything left in their possession, such as whips, robes, coats, and other parcels.

By the time we have had a three years' experiment it would without doubt take twenty years to get the hotels back to their present high state of respectability, as people when they have acquired bad habits don't forget them soon.

Our license commissioners collect from the hotels and other places in this county $7,777.42, which by the passing of the Scott Act we are bound to lose. Now, how is that money to be replaced? There is no other way possible but by direct taxation. How will that suit the rate-payers of the county? As you will see by a letter from Halton signed by a large number of the most successful and respectable business men there, the Scott Act is in every way damaging to the prosperity, morality and temperance elements of the county. We cannot therefore expect it to have anything but the same effect on our county. If the property in our towns shrinks in value what must necessarily be the result? The farmers of course will have to shoulder the burden both as regards the loss by license and the depreciation of town property. What is it that makes farms valuable in the county of Oxford? It is because our farmers have convenient and good markets. Destroy these markets and the value of the farms will be destroyed accordingly. In conclusion I ask every honest ratepayer who would not willingly destroy his neighbor's property to turn out without fear and vote down the most contemptible fraud of an Act that our statutes have ever been disgraced with.

Every man should vote. It is his duty to his country.

Ratepayer.

March 8th, 1884.

North Oxford.

Council met on Monday the 3rd day of March at Clerk's residence. All the members present. Minutes of last meeting of Council read and signed by the Reeve. Communications laid before the Council and read. Circular from Dominion Iron Bridge Company. Copy of resolution from County Council in reference to wire fences on side lines. Mr. Bott, account for gravel, laid over until next meeting of Council. John Brock, account for wood, supplied to Mrs. Carpenter. Circular from Messrs. Pratt and Tracy, publishers, of Stratford. Auditors present report of Treasurer's accounts for 1883, which was read. On motion the Auditor's report of Treasurer's accounts was adopted by the Council, and ordered to be printed in one of the Ingersoll newspapers, to be given to the lowest tender, and 200 copies for distribution. Petition from R. Williamson and others in reference to obstruction in the river Thames, between North and West Oxford, laid before the Council and read. On motion the Council took no action on the petition of Robt. Williamson, as they considered it a private matter. On motion the Reeve signed orders to pay the following accounts: John Brock, for wood supplied Mrs. Carpenter, $5; Mrs. Molson, indigent, of Beachville, $7; Angus Morrison and sister, indigents, $7; Mrs. Carpenter, indigent, of Thamesford, $5; John S. Henderson, constable, $6; Albert Connor, auditor, $6; E. D. Karn, for gravel for Governor's Road, $4; John Cameron, for gravel for Governor's Road, $2.20. On motion the sum of $300 was appropriated from the general funds of the Township for public improvements on roads and bridges, to be apportioned to the several divisions in a ratio with the assessment, and subject to the order of the several road commissioners. On motion the Clerk's salary was raised $30. On motion Council adjourned until the first Monday in April next, at the hour of ten o'clock, a. m.

A. Hillsdon, T'p Clerk.

Ingersoll's revenue from the liquor licenses is over $2,000. Taxpayers of Ingersoll, do you wish to increase the already high rate of taxation by adopting the Scott Act, which does not PROHIBIT.—Adv.

Oysters, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act. It allows druggists to sell any large quantity on a doctor's certificate.—Adv.

The best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

Vote against the Scott Act. It is a fraud on society.—Adv.

Letter from H.B. Beard, Esq., Q.C.

Woodstock, March 10th, 1884.

To the Editor of the Ingersoll Chronicle.

Sir,—I am informed on authority, the accuracy of which I cannot doubt, that some of the supporters of the Scott Act when met with the assertion that the act puts the producer of cider on the same footing as the producers or vendors of other intoxicating liquors, reply that the act does not interfere with the sale of cider within the county to which the act is made to apply.

I am further told that when these people are referred to the printed copy of the act now being distributed by them through the county, they reply that section 99 of the act as there printed is not a correct copy of the actual statute, and that the letter supports their view. Such a mis-statement as this should be promptly corrected.

The whole of section 99, as printed in the pamphlet, is word for word the same as in the original act.

I copy here section 99, sub-sections 1 and 5, which are the only ones bearing on the subject:—

99. From the day on which this part of this act comes into force and takes effect in any county or city, and for so long thereafter as the same continues in force therein, no person, unless it be for exclusively sacramental or medical purposes, or for bona fide use in some arts, trade or manufacture, under the regulation contained in the fourth sub-section of this section, or as hereinafter authorized by one of the four next sub-sections of this section, shall, within such county or city, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, expose or keep for sale, or directly or indirectly, on any pretence or upon any device, sell or barter, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property, give, to any other person, any spirituous or other intoxicating liquor, or any mixed liquor capable of being used as a beverage and part of which is spirituous or otherwise intoxicating.

Sec. 5. Provided also, that any producer of cider in the county, or any licensed distiller or brewer, having his distillery or brewery within such county or city, may thereat expose and keep for sale such liquor as he shall have manufactured thereat, and no other; and may sell the same thereat, but only in quantities not less than ten gallons, or in the case of ale or beer not less than eight gallons at one time, and only to druggists and others licensed as aforesaid or to such persons as he has good reason to believe will forthwith carry the same beyond the limits of the county or city, and of any adjoining county or city in which the second part of this act is then in force, and to be wholly removed and taken away in quantities not less than ten gallons, or in case of ale or beer not less than eight gallons at a time.

If this be compared with the corresponding sections in the pamphlet it will be seen there is no inaccuracy in the pamphlet. It will further be seen that the manufacturers of cider can only sell in quantities of not less than ten gallons, and that only "to druggists for medicinal purposes or for use some art, trade or manufacture," or to such persons as purpose to remove it wholly out of the county.

It is an error to suppose or assert it can be disposed of in any other way within the county. I am also informed it is supposed, or at all events asserted (which, of course, is a very different thing), that the effect of sections 108 and 109 is to prevent a person from bringing into and keeping in this county for his own use any intoxicating liquor whatever. This view, however, is an entire mistake. These sections only refer to persons guilty of the offence created by section 100, viz., the "exposing or keeping for sale, barter or gift."

I see again a correspondent states as follows: "On page 27, clause 109, it will be found that every private family can keep 20 gallons of liquor in their own house." From this expression the reader would be apt to infer no more than 20 gallons could be so kept. This is a misapprehension. The section in question has no reference whatever to private persons keeping liquor for their own use. Such persons, provided they procure it out of the county, can keep any quantity.

They are limited only by their inclination and their means of paying for it. I remark in conclusion, however, persons' views may differ as to the policy of the Scott Act, all should unite in regarding with suspicion any advocacy which rests upon a denial of the text or misrepresentation of the meaning of an act of parliament the real meaning of which is singularly free from doubt.

Your obedient servant,
H. B. Beard.

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.

White Wheat, per bush.	$1 00	to	1 05
Fall Wheat	1 05	to	1 05
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 08
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	70	to	75
Oats, "	33	to	34
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush.	7 50	to	8 50
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50

PRODUCE.

Potatoes, per bushel	0 50	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples per lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	10	to	09
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	7 50	to	8 00
Live Hogs "	8 00	to	9 00
Hay, per ton	9 50	to	10 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 09	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	0 28	to	0 30

PROVISIONS.

Flour, new process, Spring 100 lbs.	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs.	2 75	to	3 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 00	to	2 75
Oatmeal	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts "	13 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	20	to	22
Butter, rolls, per lb	22	to	25
Cheese,	12	to	13½
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	25	to	00
Geese, "	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	60
Ducks, "	60	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12

FARM AND DAIRY.

On Friday evening a very largely attended meeting of the patrons of the Cathcart cheese factory took place. All expressed themselves well pleased with the result of last season's work.

Mr. Harold Eagle, formerly maker at the Cox factory, Dorchester, has been engaged as maker by the Bismarck Cheese Company for the coming season. This factory has been enlarged and otherwise improved. It is expected that the business will be doubled for the coming season.

The Bismarck Cheese Co. advertised for a maker in The Chronicle and Dairyman and received seventeen applications. This speaks volumes for this paper as an advertising medium among dairymen throughout the whole province.

Following is the report of the Verschoyle cheese factory, owned by Mr. E. Hunter:—total milk received, 1,515,145 lbs.; cheese made, 150,294 lbs.; lbs. of milk to make lb. of cheese, 10.07; average price 11c.; total money received at factory, $16,546 70. R. Cuddie has been re-engaged for the coming season.

We learn from the Beacon that Mr. T. Ballantyne, M.P.P., who stored up immense quantities of cheese in different parts of the Province last fall, is making large shipments of it to Europe by way of Portland. It was formerly considered rather risky to use this route during the winter season, but the results so far have been very satisfactory. The cheese are packed in the best refrigerator cars, which preserves them from injury in the coldest weather.

The first annual general meeting of the Harris Street Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Co. was held at the Harris Street Hall, on Tuesday, Feb. 19th. The officers for the ensuing year are as follows:—Directors, Messrs. N. Smith, T. L. Newton, H. Gregg, E. G. Bodwell, E. G. Poole, W. Wilkinson, James Stevenson, S. D. Embury, R. Mayberry. Auditor for the Company, T. M. Walker; Auditor for the Directors, W. H. Cook; Salesman, W. Wilkinson; The Directors re-elected N. Smith, President, and re-appointed T. R. Mayberry, Secretary. The following is a summary of the business done by the Company for the season of 1883: No. lbs. milk received at factory, 1,508,832; No. lbs. milk to make a lb. cheese, 10.19; No. lbs. cheese manufactured, 147,995; amount of money received, $16,179.70; average price per lb. 10-93-100c.

BORN.

Sutherland.—In Ingersoll, 10th inst., the wife of Mr. Wm. Sutherland (at Ellis') of a son.

Lewis.—In Dereham, 7th inst., the wife of Mr. Jas. Lewis of a daughter.

Lee.—In West Oxford, 9th inst., the wife of Mr. Wm. Lee of a daughter.

McCarty.—In Ingersoll, 11th inst., the wife of Mr. H. D. McCarty of a daughter.

MARRIED.

Garner—Matheson.—On the 11th inst., by the Rev. L. Cameron, Thamesford, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Chas. Garner, Thamesford, mail carrier, to Mrs. Jane Matheson, only daughter of Mr. Adam Henderson, East Nissouri.

DIED.

Quinn.—In Dereham, on the 9th inst., J. B., son of Mr. Robt. Quinn, aged 5 years.

Paine.—In Ingersoll, on the 11th inst., Martha, wife of Mr. David Paine, aged 77 years.

Little.—In Dereham, on the 7th inst., J. R., son of Mr. Thos. Little, aged 10 months and 21 days.

Vote against the Scott Act if you don't want to increase your taxes to an alarming extent.—Adv.

J. S. PARKER,

Professor of Music, late pupil of Dr. Spark, Boro' Organist, Leeds, England, now organist and choir master C. M. Church, Woodstock, is open to give lessons in

Vocal and Instrumental Music

(Piano and Organ.) Will be at

Daily House, Ingersoll

From 9 to 12

NEXT THURSDAY

Address—Drawer 60, Woodstock.

—THE—

SCOTT ACT

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as he won't have the trouble then to make his apples into cider. He can let them rot or let the hogs eat them.

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as his taxes will then be much heavier. He wants something, of course, to do with his money.

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as he will then bring the whiskey home and the family can all have a glass.

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as he will then be able to drive a long distance to get what he wants, as his own towns will be destroyed.

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as there will be no hotels to put up at, and it will be cheap and comfortable to let his family and horses put up on the street.

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as there will be lots of low drinking done where pretty girls serve the secret bar.

EVERY FARMER

Should vote for the Scott Act, as it strikes a death-blow at Provincial Rights.

A BORROWED UMBRELLA.

The party that borrowed the Umbrella either from The Chronicle office or my Hotel, with J. B. cut in the handle, will, when it quits raining, please return to

JAS. BRADY.

March 12th, 1884. 1592

FARM TO RENT.

Being Lot 23, Con. 7, Dereham, containing 150 acres, 110 acres cleared, balance timbered, and good buildings. For further particulars ap ply to

DANIEL LINTZ,
Salford.

March 13th, 1884. 1592c

FOR SALE.

A House and Barn, Cow House underneath, with 4½ acres of land, being the last lot on King Street West, in the Corporation of Ingersoll. Possession one month from date, March 10th, 1884. If not sold by 10th April will be let. For particulars apply to

JOHN ATKINS,
Near the premises.

March 13th, 1884. 1592t

STRAYED.

Strayed into the premises of the undersigned, Lot 24, Con. 2, Dereham, on or about Jan. 1st, 1884, one sheep. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges and take her away.

JOHN FLAHERITY.

March 13th, 1884. 1592c

EASTER FAT CATTLE FAIR.

THE OXFORD

FAT STOCK CLUB

WILL HOLD AN

EASTER FAT CATTLE FAIR

ON

THURSDAY, APRIL the 3rd, 1884,

At which prizes to the amount of

$100 WILL BE OFFERED

Fair to be held on the

MARKET SQUARE, WOODSTOCK.

For Prize List and Rules apply to the Secretary or any of the Directors.

N.B.—The above Fair will be an excellent opportunity for farmers to bring forward their cattle for sale, as efforts will be made to have a number of prominent export and home buyers on the ground.

E. W. CHAMBERS, President.
JOHN CRAIG, Sec.-Treas.

March 13th, 1884. 1592c

AUCTION SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE

FARM PROPERTY!

Pursuant to a judgment made in a certain cause of

KOYL VS. McKENNY,

And bearing date the 25th day of February A. D. 1884, there will be sold with the approbation of H.B. Beard, Esq., Q.C., Local Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature, at Woodstock,

By Jas. Brady, Esq., Auctioneer,

—AT—

LAMBERT'S HOTEL,

IN THE

VILLAGE OF SPRINGFIELD,

—IN THE—

COUNTY OF ELGIN

At the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, on

Friday, 28th of March, A.D., 1884,

The following lands and premises, together or separately:

1. All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and eing in the Township of South Dorchester, in the County of Elgin, containing by admeasurement

SIXTY ACRES OF LAND,

Be the same more or less, being composed of the North-West part of lot Lettered "B," in the Ninth Concession of the said Township of South Dorchester, and butted and bounded as follows, commencing at the North-west angle of said lot; thence south parallel with the western limit of said lot to lands deeded to James Sherrit in the south end of said lot; then east parallel with the southern boundary of said lot forty-six rods and two-thirds of a rod; thence north parallel with the said western limit to the northern limit of the said lot; thence west forty-six rods and two-thirds of a rod, more or less, to the place of beginning.

Also:—All and singular that certain parcel or tract of lands and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of South Dorchester, in the County of Elgin, containing by admeasurement

FIFTY ACRES,

Be the same more or less, being composed of the east half of the south half of Lot Number Two, in the Eighth Concession of the said Township of South Dorchester.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid, to be given by the said master.

TERMS OF SALE.

One-fourth purchase money payable on day of sale and a sufficient sum with such one-fourth to make up two-thirds of purchase money on each parcel within 30 days from the date of sale, without interest. The balance to be secured by a mortgage on the premises, payable one-third in 2 years, one-third in years, remainder in 5 years from date, interest at 6 per cent., payable half yearly. The purchaser to have the option to pay the whole of the balance of the purchase money within one month after date of sale, without interest.

In all other respects the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice. For further particulars apply to JOHN HOSKIN, Q.C., Toronto; J. F. McDONALD, Barrister, Ingersoll; the Auctioneer, or

J. C. HEGLER, Plaintiff's Solicitor. H. B. BEARD, Master at Woodstock.

Dated the 11th day of March A. D., 1884. 1592i

NORMAN'S

Electric Belt Institution,

(ESTABLISHED 1874),

4 QUEEN ST. EAST, TORONTO.

Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Lame Back, Neuralgia, Paralysis, and all Liver and Chest Complaints immediately relieved and permanently cured by using these BELTS, BANDS AND INSOLES.

Circulars and Consultation FREE.

Peterborough, Oct. 15, 1883.

A. Norman, Esq.—Dear Sir.—Soon after I commenced to use your Electric Appliances, they opened my bowels, cured my cough and cold, relieved my head, and considerably relieved my catarrh in consequence. The discharges from my head and chest are now easy, and I feel altogether better. My digestion has improved, my stomach less sour and windy, and I am less troubled with lascivious and vivid dreams. I had previously tried almost all the advertised patent medicines without deriving any good.

Yours

FARM AND DAIRY.

Channel Islands Cattle.

The most popular cattle of the present day are the Jerseys. These cattle are from the small island of Jersey the largest of the Channel group which lies in the English Channel near the coast of France but which are part of the British domain, having come to England with the Norman conquest and remaining attached to it through all the vicissitudes of nearly a thousand years. This group of islands consists of four, viz., Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark, the last a mere rock. The largest is only a little more than 20 miles across it, but it has more cows upon its exceedingly fertile and pleasant island than any other locality of its size in the world, and a greater profit is derived from them by the owners than from any other race of cows, as we shall show in the following description.

Notice was first drawn to these Channel Islands cattle about 50 years ago, when they began to be popular among the owners of country villas and mansions in England as ornamental cattle for the lawn. At that time this group was known as the Alderney islands, and consequently the cattle were called Alderneys irrespective of the exact locality whence they came. Of course the largest island sent out the most cattle, and as the demand increased the Jersey farmers became jealous of the reputation of other stock and restricted all connection with other islands. They bred their cattle more carefully and soon created a special distinctive character for them, and they became known as Jerseys. This name has been applied to this class of cattle for 20 or 30 years and the term Alderney is only now applied to the cattle of that island. In like manner the Guernsey cattle which are distinct in color and form from the other two breeds have their own distinctive name, and the term Channel Islands cattle is only used to designate the three breeds as a special class valued very highly for their particular qualities and character.

The most prominent breed is the Jersey. This is rather small in size, deer like in form, generally fawn in color, varied with white or gray or even black at times, with large full prominent black eyes, a flat, broad face, a fine slender head, narrow chest, thin neck, deep flanks a form generally wedge shaped from front to rear, fine bones and in the best specimens a large evenly shaped udder; but in inferior ones the udder is larger behind having the fore part scant and drawn up and of quite inferior capacity. A good Jersey cow has also a fine black short incurved horn, a remarkably yellow bone, a bony appearance and gives exceedingly rich milk. A portrait of a Jersey cow, "Nellie," owned by the writer, given here a few weeks ago, is typical of an excellent Jersey cow. This cow gave over 700 lbs of butter in 18 months between two calves and since then has come in again, and is now giving 16 quarts of milk, and 16 lbs of butter weekly; 7 quarts of her milk give a pound of butter, and thus her milk has 6⅞ per cent. of butter in it. There are a good many Jersey cows that have done better than this, but the average yield of these cows is not more than half as much.

As with all other pure breeds the great value of the Jersey is for crossing upon the common native stock for the purpose of improvement. This the Jersey does very effectively and the use of Jersey bulls in American butter dairies has considerably increased the produce and improved the quality of butter made. A good native cow crossed with a well selected Jersey bull produces a cow in every respect equal to an average pure Jersey, excepting for breeding, and some of the grade or half bred Jerseys are equal to the very best of the pure bred. It is in this respect, more than for their actual yield of milk and butter or any other productive quality, that the purebreeds of farm animals are most truly valued.

The Alderney is a smaller, slenderer and lighter colored animal than the Jersey but yet in form is a counterpart of it. The color is generally light fawn and white. It is not so copious a milker as the Jersey, but its milk is equally rich in cream. There are very few Alderneys in America, and most of those called by this name are really pure bred or grade Jersey.

The Guernsey is not so popular an animal as the Jersey, but this is no doubt because it has not become fashionable among wealthy amateur farmers and dairymen. Nevertheless this breed is no doubt an equally valuable one. It is larger and not so slender and graceful in form; its color is reddish yellow mixed with white, and varying from red to a light orange yellow. It is better fleshed and a Guernsey steer will make a very good carcass of beef. It is a large milker and the milk is rich in butter, the color of the butter being a deeper yellow than that of the Jersey. The best cows of this breed in America at this time yield 17 lbs of butter in a week, but the average is about 10 lbs. For an average yield the Guernsey will surpass the Jerseys, but the Guernsey cows are larger and consume more feed; consequently for profit there is very little to choose either way.

The manner in which the cows of this class are kept and managed gives them a very quiet and docile disposition. In their native country they are always tethered out to pasture and are fed and cared for by women, and being of extremely high value are used with the greatest kindness and care. They are therefore naturally pets and gentle to handle. This quiet disposition no doubt has a considerable effect upon their productive quality, for none of their food is wasted in nervous excitement or restless agitation. The cow eats her food with a good appetite, calmly ruminates, digests perfectly, and turns all its food to good use. But of course all this depends upon her keeper, for no other cow will suffer more from neglect and ill usage than high bred ones of these breeds.

Ensilage.

We have never seen the points of ensilage better summarized than in the following, taken from the Agricultural Gazette, London:

Again, the cost of securing ensilage will not exceed the cost of making hay; our experience enables us to say it costs less. Moreover, we can only make hay when the sun shines, whereas with the other the sun is a factor that does not influence the operation. This being so, the question converges to and very narrow issue—viz., this, the relative of the given quantity of grass made into hay, good or bad, as chance may befall, as compared with the same preserved uniformed good, in silo.

We must confess that none of the published experiments on this point that we have seen are altogether satisfactory. Yet enough is known to lift the matter from the region of doubt, and to render this matter of grass preserving a question of the very first importance, alike to owners and occupiers of land.

Notes.

Unless the crop can be got in early oats are safer than barley. Barley, if late sown, is usually below standard weight, and then it is almost unsalable except for feed. Light weight oats, on the contrary, will commonly sell for as much per bushel by weight as will those that are heavier. The same weight when measured out by the peck or half peck goes farther.

The old saying, no grass no cattle, no cattle no manure, no manure no crops, is as true to-day as when first spoken. Grass takes care of him who sows it. The meadow is the master mine of wealth. Strong meadows fill big barns. Fat pastures make fat pockets. The acre that will carry a steer carries wealth. Flush pastures make fat stock. Heavy meadows make happy farmers. Up to my ears in soft grass laughs the fat ox. Sweet pastures make sound butter. Soft hay makes strong wool. These are some of the maxims of the meadow. The grass seed to sow depends upon the soil, and here every man must be his own judge.

Injury is sometimes done to heavy soils by plowing in Winter or early Spring when the ground is filled with water. The bottom of the plow in such cases compacts the clay subsoil, pressing it in a smooth surface, which hardens during the Summer and becomes almost impervious to water. Fields that are plowed only in the Spring, and at a nearly uniform depth, have sometimes a hardpan just where the keel of the plow has pressed down the earth. When the soil is baked hard by drought it is almost impossible to break up this crust, and the failure to do this is the reason why much of the Winter wheat is killed, as this hardpan keeps water near the surface.

We believe it a mistake to neglect to handle heifers before they come in with their first calves. It is much better to put them in with the other cows and handle their udders and stroke their bodies, do anything that tends to render them gentle and accustomed to being handled than when they drop their calves; they do not feel so nervous at being milked and will save you many a hard word that will subsequently rub a sore spot on your conscience.

Calves are sometimes lost by putting two or more in a pen together. They lick each other and get hair into their stomachs, which often proves dangerous in the care of high bred animals.—Regularity in feeding and milking is an important point. The same cows should be milked in like regular order night and morning.—The finer ensilage is cut up the better. Even frosted corn properly ensilaged is relished by cattle. No fodder proves so satisfactory for ensilage as corn.

It is sometimes a good plan where sows can be kept in a warm basement in a barn to allow them to farrow late in Winter. The pigs will be more valuable as they will be made of marketable size for porkers earlier in the season. But the warmest quarters will not prevent the necessity for watchful care about the time pigs are to be dropped. It is worth while sitting up all of one night to save a litter of pigs. One danger from sows farrowing in Winter is that they will become feverish and destroy their young. Lack of green food is the cause of this tendency. Feeding with roots or with bran, rather than with more heating food, will prevent this difficulty.

There are many reasons given why creamery butter, as a rule, sells higher than dairy butter. The secret of it probably lies here. It is better butter, and one prime reason for its being better is because the man who makes the butter does not own the milk and therefore has to stand the criticism of those who do furnish it. When a man has fifty or a hundred persons wondering why he does not get the highest market price for his butter he is very apt to do it. When the butter makers owns all the milk he is too easily satisfied with the quality of his make of butter.

In an address before the Northwestern Dairymen's Association at Maukato, Minn. last month, Mr. C. R. Beach of Whitewater, Wis., under the head, "Is dairying a better business for the Farmers of a new Country than Grain raising," said: Grain growing will always be a necessity, and combined with stock, may also prove a profitable undertaking, but excessive and exclusive grain growing is a thing to be avoided. The tendency of exclusive grain growing is not of a refining and educating influence to the average man. Exclusive grain growing, through disappointment and misfortune have resulted in much misery and the loss of many homes, but I have yet to learn of the first failure of a dairyman through embarrassment in his affairs. Even were dairying as uncertain as grain growing its superiority would consist in the fact that while the former decreases the fertility of the soil the later increases it. Then, the dairyman has the advantage of cost in transportation of his produce. Dairy farming offers a field of highest skill and intellect. The adaptability of the Northwest for dairying purposes with its rich soil, luxuriant grasses, and cheap lands, must be patent to every eye."

Domestic Recipes.

WARMED POTATOES.—Slice cold potatoes quite fine, fry in a little butter or nice beef drippings, season with pepper and salt, and when browned turn over a half cup of sweet cream. Heat and serve at once. Excellent.

A HINT TO BREAD MAKERS.—Ruth Kent writes: "Tell housekeepers in your Hints how much quicker and better their bread will rise if they warm the flour in the oven for a few moments instead of stirring it cold as it comes from the barrel into the sponge, thus chilling the yeast. Also warm the flour before kneading into loaves in the morning."

Don't boil tea.

Boil eggs from 20 to 30 minutes when wanted hard. Ten minutes makes the yolk of an egg hard and soggy, while 20 minutes makes it light and mealy.

Try a piece of lemon instead of soap for removing dirt from the hands. This is particularly good for hands which chap in winter

ONE EGG CAKE.—One egg, one large spoonful of butter, two cups of sugar, one small cup of sour milk, two-and-a-half cups of flour, two small teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Nutmeg or lemon to flavor.

PLAIN CAKES.—One-and-a-half teacup of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one small cup of sour milk, one teaspoonful of saleratus. Flour to mix. Flavor with nutmeg. Roll one-half inch thick, cut in round cakes and bake quickly.

RUDOLPH'S DIRECTIONS FOR FRENCH PIE CRUST.—One pound of flour, one-fourth pound of butter, one-fourth pound of lard, three-fourths pint of cold water. Stir with a knife.

EXCELLENT ORANGE CAKE.—Two cups of sugar, half a cup of water that has been boiled, yelks of five eggs, two cups of flour, grated rind and juice of one orange, one teaspoonful of cream-of-tartar half a teaspoonful of soda and a little salt. Bake in layers. Icing for cake. Beat the reserved whites of four eggs to a froth stir in powdered sugar until quite stiff, add grated rind and juice of an orange. Put the cakes together with this. If you wish to cover the top of cake with icing, make stiffer with powdered sugar.

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE

it will be time enough to doubt the reliability of Kidney-Wort. Doctors will agree that it is a most valuable medicine in all disorders of the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels, and frequently prescribe it. Dr. P. C. Ballou of Monkton says: "The past year I have used it more than ever, and with the best results. It is the most successful remedy I have ever used." Such a recommendation speaks for itself. Sold by all druggists. See advt.

It's much easier to lay plans than it is to hatch them.

THE BEST I EVER KNEW OF.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential Citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every remedy I could think of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your SHILOH'S VITILIZER advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of." Price 75 cts. Sold by D. Secord 76y.

The man who lives to fast is bound to die to quick.

A STARTLING DISCOVERY.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Huron, Dakota, writes that his wife had been troubled with acute Bronchitis for many years, and that all remedies tried gave no permanent relief, until he procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which had a magical effect, and produced a permanent cure. It is guaranteed to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs or bronchial tubes. Trial bottles free at Gayfer's drug store. Large size $1. 90t

I'm looked in slumber," murmurs the prison bird in sleep.

FLUID LIGHTNING.

There are but few that have never suffered almost intolerable pain from Toothache, Neuralgia, or like acute pains. To them such an instant relief as Fluid Lightning is an untold blessing in time of trouble. No disgusting offensive medicines to be taken for days. One application of Fluid Lightning cures. Sold at Gayfer's and Kneeshaw's.

The most appropriate pastry for free lunch counter—sponge cake.

MERITS PROVEN.

Dollar upon dollar is frequently spent on the faith of recommendations for articles entirely worthless. Not so with McGregor's Speedy Cure; you are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call at Gayfer's or Kneeshaw's and get a free trial bottle, and if not convinced it will cure you of the worst forms of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Etc., no matter of how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50c. and $1 bottles. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

Dobbs says tailors would make splendid dragoons, they charge so.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: "Dorthrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspepsia Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience, having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with Dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. It have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach."

Pigmy Trees and Human [illegible]

In some ways the Chinese and Japanese gardeners are the most successful of any in the world. They can control and direct the growth of plants to a degree that seems really marvellous until the principle upon which it is done is known, when, as in many other matters, it becomes quite simple.

The Chinese have such a strong liking for the grotesque, and unnatural, that the handiwork of their gardeners is not as pleasing as that of the Japanese gardeners. The Chinese understand the dwarfing of trees; but their best work is in so directing the growth of a tree or plant that it will resemble some hideous animal which is only fit to exist in a nightmare.

The Japanese, on the contrary, are remarkable for their love of what is beautiful and graceful, and consequently, ugly forms find no favor with them. Every Japanese has a garden if it be possible; but, as space is valuable in Japan, only the very rich can have large grounds, and the family in moderate circumstances must be content with a garden often smaller in area than the floor of one of our hall bedrooms, in a narrow, city house.

Nevertheless, that small garden must contain as many objects as the large garden, and, of course, the only way of accomplishing the desired result is to have everything in miniature. It is no uncommon thing to see a whole landscape contained in a space no greater than the top of your dining-table. There will be a mountain, a stream, a lake, rocky grottoes, winding paths, bridges, lawns, fruit trees, shrubs and flowers; all so artistically laid out as to resemble nature itself. In the lake will swim wonderful, filmly-finned gold and silver fish, and not unfrequently the tall form of a crane will be seen moving majestically about the tiny landscape.

This seems wonderful enough; but what will you think when I say that almost the same landscape is reproduced on so small a scale that the two pages of St. Nicholas, as it lies open before you, can cover it! In this case, a tiny house is added; delicate green moss takes the place of grass, and glass covers the lake where the water should be. Counterfeit fish swim in the glass lake, and a false crane overlooks the whole scene, just as the real crane does the larger landscape. The mountain, winding walks, bridges, and rocky grottoes are in the little landscape; and real trees, bearing fruit, or covered with dainty blossoms, are in their proper places.

These trees are of the right proportions to fit the landscape, and they are, consequently, so tiny that one is tempted to doubt their reality; and more than one stranger has slyly taken the leaves or fruit between the fingers, in order to make sure that the dwarfs is truly live, and are not, like the fish and crane, mere counterfeits. These miniature landscapes have been successfully brought to this country; and on one occasion a lady of San Francisco used one of them as a centre-piece on the table at a dinner-party, greatly to the wonder and admiration of her guests, who could hardly be convinced that the almost microscopic apples on the trees were genuine fruit.

And now comes the question—how is the dwarfing done? The principle is simple. The gardener merely thwarts nature. He knows that, to grow properly, a tree requires sunlight, heat, moisture, and nourishment from the soil. He takes measures to let the tree have only just enough of these to enable it to keep alive.

To begin, he takes a little seedling or cutting, about two inches high, and cuts off its main root. He then puts the plant in a shallow dish, with the cut end of the root resting against a cone, to retard its growth by preventing nourishment entering that way. Bits of clay the size of a bean are put in the dish, and are so regulated in kind and quantity as to afford the least possible food for the little rootlets which have been left on the poor little tree. Water, heat and light are furnished the struggling plant in just sufficient quantities to hold life in it without giving it enough to thrive on. In addition, any ambitious attempt to thrive, in spite of these drawbacks, is checked by clipping with a sharp knife or searing with a red-hot iron.

After from five to fifteen years of such treatment, the only wonder is that the abused tree will consent even to live, to say nothing of bearing fruit.—St. Nicholas.

The English Sparrow and the Robin.

"Where did you come from so early?" said the English sparrow to a robin redbreast one cold February morning.

"From a lovely orange grove in the South," replied the robin.

"Well! you had better have stayed there," said the sparrow; "we shall have more snow, and what will the robin do then, poor thing?"

"Look here!" said the robin, "I'm a natural born American, and won't stand any such airs from foreigners;" and, so saying, he attacked the sparrow so fiercely that his lordship was glad to slink away and hide his head under his wing, poor thing. "Well!" said the robin, after his declaration of independence, "I think I shall go back, after all? It does seem rather stormy, and it's always best to take good advice, no matter if you don't like the way it is offered."—St. Nicholas Almanac.

—The Copland system of asphaltic wood pavement, introduced in London, is claimed to meet some of the most important requirements for the purpose which have hitherto been unfulfilled, and, though more costly at first than some other methods of roadway construction, its durability and satisfactory wear more than meet that point. The advantage of simplicity is at once presented, namely, a bed of concrete, with a layer of asphalt over it, upon which are laid transverse courses of red pine blocks, with intermediate spaces; these spaces are filled in partly with heated mastic asphalt, and then with coarse lime and gravel grout, flushed with hot air, to the surface of the roadway. Finally, about an inch of rough gravel is spread over the whole, and left to be worked in and compacted by the ordinary effect of traffic.

Do not delay in getting relief for the little folks. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is a pleasant and sure cure.

The priest's—While there's life there's Pope.

JOSEPH RUSAN, Percy, writes:—"I was induced to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lameness which troubled me for three or four years, and I found it the best article I ever used. It has been a great blessing to me." Frauds may imitate Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in appearance and name, but in everything else they are dead failures.

The dunn's—Where there's a bill there's a pay.

JABESH SNOW, Gunning Cove, N.S., writes: "I was completely prostrated with the asthma, but hearing of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, I procured a bottle, and it done me so much good that I got another, and before it was both I was well. My son was cured of a bad cold by the use of half a bottle. It goes like wild fire, and makes cures wherever it is used."

The creamationist's—One good urn preserves you, brother.

THE extraordinary popularity of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the natural result of its use by intelligent people for over 40 years. It has indisputably proven itself the very best known specific for all colds, coughs, and pulmonary complaints.

The plumbers—It never drains but it costs.

USE the Star Dyes if you want brilliant and fast colours.

The bird dealer's—All that twitters is not sold.

There are a number of varieties of corns. Holloway's Corn Cure will remove any of them.

The son-in-law's—A bride cometh before a squall.

Holloway's Pills.—Enfeebled Existence.—This medicine embraces every attribute required in a general and domestic remedy. It overturns the foundations of disease laid by defective food and impure air. In obstructions or congestions of the liver, lungs, bowels, or any other organs, these Pills are especially serviceable and eminently successful. They should be kept in readiness in every family, being a medicine of incompurable utility for young persons, especially those of feeble constitutions. They never cause pain or irritate the most sensitive nerves or most tender bowels. Holloway's Pills are the best known purifiers of the blood, the most active promoters of absorption and secretion, whereby all poisonous and obnoxious particles are removed from both solids and fluids.

THE INDUSTRIOUS HEN.

Turning out $60,000,000 Dozens of Eggs and 600,000,000 Chickens a Year.

"If I owned all the hens in this country," said the marketman, as he counted out a dozen eggs and put them in a customer's basket, "and had a place to pasture them in, all I would ask would be ten years in business, and I'd make it very warm for Vanderbilt."

"How's that?" asked the reporter.

"How's that? Why, easy, that's how. Maybe you don't know, young man, that over 26,000,000 cackles, announcing the birth of the same number of eggs, kept the farmer boys busy every day last year gathering in the efforts of over 36,000,000 hens? But they did. Well, those efforts for 365 days resulted in 9,500,000,000 separate and distinct eggs, or 800,000,000 dozen, as near as I can calculate. Now, it took just 750,000,000 dozens of those eggs to supply the demand for Tom and Jerries, puddings, hard and soft-boiled eggs, egg nog, and ham and eggs in this country last year, and eggs was eggs at that. I figure that 30 cents a dozen, for 1883, was about the average price. Thirty cents a dozen for 750,000,000 dozens climbs plumb up to the comfortable little purse of $225,000,000. There's nothing mean about me, and if I had the handling of those onenggs of the nation's hens, I'd be satisfied with a profit of two cents on a dozen.

"What would be my little divy? Well, if I haven't forgotten what old Daboll drummed into me, I make it out that when the old year died I would lug home something like $15,000,000, clean and slick, ahead of the game. Ten years of that, and I think I could sit down with the boys and stay with as heavy a jack pot as any of 'em."

"What would become of the other fifty million dozens?" asked the reporter.

"There you are again!" replied the marketman. "If I owned all the hens there's another little item that would keep me from worrying about the punctuality of the rent and the infallibility of the gas meter. Last year must have been a good one for people visiting in the country, for folks broiled, fricasseed and roasted something like 600,000,000 chickens, young and old. That used up the little balance of 50,000,000 dozen eggs. That 50,000,000 dozen of eggs were turned into chickens that gobbled up $300,000,000 of the hard-earned coin of this realm, ciphering the thing down close at fifty cents a chicken. I don't deal in poultry, but from the size of the diamond pins of the ones that do, I don't hesitate a minute to say that there can't be less than five cents profit on every chicken they sell. Old Daboll comes up again and lays it down for a nickel-plated fact that if I owned all the hens in this country I would have to make two trips home from the shop at the end of the year, for here I would have $15,000,000 more piled in the till to be carried away and stuffed in the stocking, and $15,000,000 is plenty for one man to carry at one time.

"So you see what a nice nest egg I'd have at the end of ten years. And you'd hardly believe that New York city would chip in about one-thirtieth of the whole pot every year, would you? But she would. Last year it took 25,000,000 dozens of eggs to satisfy her, and she paid $9,000,000 to get them. Now, New York State only keeps hens enough to lay about 8,000,000 dozen, and so, of course, we have to go knocking around all over the country and part of Canada to keep up with the cry for eggs. It would take all the eggs that New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts hens are responsible for to supply this city with all the eggs it wants. The 25,000,000 eggs used here last year, if laid in a single line, one after another, without a hair's space between them, would reach from Boston to San Francisco. I tell you there's a big thing waiting for someone who can get a corner on hens."—N. Y. Sun.

Hooks and Eyes.

For more than a dozen years the manufacture of hooks and eyes for women's and children's dresses may be said to have been dead, buttons having superseded them. But there are indications that hooks and eyes are again to come into use, at least to a considerable extent. If this should prove to be the case, it will gladden the hearts of some who have preserved their machinery from the scrap heap. Thirty years ago the State of Connecticut had manufactories within her territory that produced these little articles to the value of $112,000 annually at fifteen cents a gross. Previous to 1830, or thereabout, hooks and eyes were made by hand and sold at $1.50 per gross.

The machines for making hooks and eyes are quite ingenious, those for the hooks being capable of making ninety per minute, and those for the eyes one hundred and twenty per minute. That for making the hooks takes the wire from a reel through a straightener, cuts off the wire to the exact length, when a blade strikes the piece in the middle of its length, and two side blades moving simultaneously bend the wire double, laying the two halves of its length close together and parallel. Then two pins rise, one on each side of the ends of the wire, to form the eyes of the hook, and two semi-rotating pushers bend the ends round the pins, making the eyelets for sewing the hook or to the fabric. The unfinished hook is still perfectly flat, when a horizontal pin and a vertical bender working upward curve the double end of the hook, and a presser flattens the end to a "swan bill."

The eye is formed in another machine, but by means of similar appliances. Brass wire is used for silvered hooks and eyes, an iron wire for the black or japanned goods. The silver coating is made by mixing an acid precipitate of silver with common salt and the cream of tartar of commerce to produce a paste. Certain proportions of this paste and of the brass hooks and eyes are placed in a tumbling barrel, and by attrition and affinity the brass and silver unite. The articles, as they come from the tumbling barrel, are of a lustreless white, but are polished by being placed in cotton cloth bags with bar soap and rubbed with hot water under the vibrating arm of a washing-machine.

WELL REWARDED.

A liberal reward will be paid to any party who will produce a case of Liver, Kidney or Stomach complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure. Bring them along, it will cost you nothing for the medicine if it fails to cure, and you will be well rewarded for your trouble besides. All Blood diseases Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, and general debility are quickly cured. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price only fifty cents per bottle. For sale by John Gayfer. 90t.

The judge's—Make way while the Court fines.

FOR rough conditions of the skin, Shampooing the head, Pimples, Eruption and skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap, 91t

A counter fit—A ready-made suit.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87t

High and dry—A thirsty giraffe.

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends. It is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains, lameness and soreness of the flesh. A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says: "It is a great favorite here, and has a good sale." 91i

To gamble is a sin, unless you win.

HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mankrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 87t

Something is wanted to cure the eruption of Vesuvius.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that Afflicted him for thirty five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion. 91i

"Oh, hayn't I got the sand?" sings the sugar dealer.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downe's Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87t

As this world goes it is easy enough for one to get around.

OBSTRUCTIONS of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels are promptly removed by National Pills. 91t

A Great River of the North.

The most interesting part of the journey was the passage of the Columbia. The bar at the mouth of the river is a great hindrance to its free navigation, and vessels are often detained for days, and even weeks, waiting for a favorable opportunity to cross. We waited five days outside in the fog, hearing all the time the deep, solemn warning of the breakers. Our steadfast captain, as long as he could see nothing, refused to go on, knowing well the risk. At the end of the fifth day he entered in triumph, with a clear view of the river, the grandest sight I have ever seen. The passengers seemed hardly to dare to breathe till we were over the bar. As we passed into the river, I sat on deck, looking about. I had long looked forward to seeing this immense river, seven miles broad, rolling seaward, and the great line of breakers at the bar; but no one can realize, without actually seeing it, how much its grandeur is enhanced by the surroundings of interminable forests and the magnificence of its snow mountains. The character of the river itself is in accordance with everything about it, especially where it breaks through the Cascade Mountains in four miles of rapids, and still higher up, shut between basaltic walls, rushes with deafening roar through the narrow passage of the Dalles, where it is compressed into one eighth of its usual width. For a long time I could not receive any other sensation or admit any other thought but of its terrific strength. The Indians say that in former times the river flowed smoothly where are now the whirling rapids of the Cascades, but that a landslide from the banks dammed up the stream and produced this great change.—Life in Puget Sound.

Like the Valley of Death.

In the gas works at Twenty-third and Filbert streets, Philadelphia, one gets an idea of the valley of death. Here is the deadly cross-fire like that through which the nonchalant Cardigan galloped. Two double rows of retorts, that must be heated for forty-eight hours before they have the proper temperature for gas-making, stretch clear across the building. In this lane of fire men work.

"When I come out of there, after twenty-eight minutes' work on my four retorts," said one to the reporter, "I can put my hand on top of my head and feel my blood leaping. I can roll up my sleeves and see it bounding in my veins. For seven or eight minutes after that, when I press my hand on my heart as hard as I can, it seems as if the heart would jump through it. I am not a drinking man, and I am a strong one. To those who have that fire without and that wild-fire within, as many of them have, not being able to do their work without stimulants, I can imagine what it must be. I have on rare occasions and long ago—for I have been here fourteen years—taken a glass of whiskey before going on. Upon my life, sir, I could feel the blood boiling within me. That ice-water there, of which every man drinks from ten to fifteen quarts a day, positively tastes warm until you get two or three cups of it down. That, with oatmeal in it, is the best thing a man can drink."

"How long do men last at the business?"

"Some only three or four years, others five or six, a few much longer."

Speaking in Public.

Orators, they say, are born, not made; but a man who is determined to succeed in any undertaking can generally do so. If, then, you are called upon to speak in public, prepare yourself for the ordeal. Give your subject close, clear thought; read extensively the cream of the best authors upon the subject; then give the best thoughts to applying what has been learned by the first impressions.

In regard to gaining control of the audience it must be borne in mind that there is but little difficulty the first time because mere curiosity and sympathetic interest will assure it. This fact often ruins a speaker by making him over-confident the second time, thus leading to failure.

A man should never assume that he is to control his audience without the utmost skill. A successful speaker must learn how easy it is to lose his audience. An audience will always give its unreserved attention to any one who is telling something understandingly that they didn't know before. As a permanent investment it is worth infinitely more to impart knowledge clearly and concisely than to tell the most racy stories.

An audience will give its unreserved attention when it is known there is to be something entirely new well told. A man must talk for the sake of his audience, and not for his own sake. The multitude of talkers are failures because they have no foundation for permanent success, have never acquired intelligent self-control, have not learned to hold an audience. These are not gifts, they are acquisitions. A man must train himself to read wisely, think keenly, speak only when he has something worth saying, and say it so clearly and concisely that it is no serious effort for them to take and keep the fact or theory given them.

Fine Clothes.

We need not to cry out against Bethlehem, but let us cry out against ourselves, for we are as ill in all points as they were. I warrant you, there was many a jolly damsel at that time in Bethlehem, yet amongst them all there was not one found that would humble herself so much as once to go to see poor Mary in the stable, and to comfort her. No, no; they were too fine to take so much pains. I warrant you they had their bracelets, and fardingals, and were trimmed with all manner of fine and costly raiment, like as there be many now-a-days amongst us, which study nothing else but how they may devise fine raiment; and in the mean season they suffer poor Mary to lie in the stable; that is to say, the poor people of God they suffer to perish for lack of necessaries. But what was her swaddling clothes wherein she laid the king of heaven and earth? No doubt it was poor, peradventure it was her kerchief she took from her head.—Tyndale.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

Cannibals look upon the son of a missionary as a broth of a boy.

DR. LOW'S PLEASANT WORM SYRUP.—An agreeable, safe and effectual remedy to remove all kinds of worms. 91t

Play-tonic affection—Going out between the acts at the theatre.

DANGER TRAPS.

Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond a possibility of rescue. Take a cold or cough in time and it is easily conquered by that safe and pleasant vegetable remedy, Hagyar's Pectoral Balsam. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally soon yield to its healing influence. 90i

The orange crops of Florida are now worth over $1,500.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of this complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

Mobile is trying to run off the tramps by inflicting heavy penalties.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

FOR ALL AGES.

The aged, debilitated and infirm will find renewed vigor and strength by taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The young hastening to early decay will also find in this revitalizing tonic a remedy worth trying. 91i

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure, even removing all stiffness of the joint. 91i is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

Our Canadian Silk Industry

A DOUBLE BENEFIT.

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles. 91i

ITCHING PILES.—SYMPTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1.25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver-Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes, Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Larkline, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms,

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,
AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.
G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

The INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

The CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	¾ Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week..	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, LL. B.,
BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.
OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,
BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates. Mortgages Bought and Sold.
OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS,
BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.
THOS. WELLS. F. J. BROWN.

W. W. HOLCROFT,
BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000 private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,
BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.
OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,
L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,
M.R.C.S. AND L.M., ENGLAND L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames street, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,
SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. Teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Exide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.
Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,
SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anæsthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,
PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock.
January 31st, 1884. 1586v y

VIOLIN TUITION.
P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Baker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.
For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store.
Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1584c-m

JAMES BRADY,
LICENSED AUCTIONEER
INGERSOLL, ONT.,
Is prepared to attend all sales in town or country.
Ingersoll, April 20th, 1882, 1493

S. G. BURGESS,
LICENSED AUCTIONEER.
WOODSTOCK.
For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements be made.
Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,
THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,
Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.
Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moments notice.
Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

THE MOLSONS BANK
INGERSOLL BRANCH.
BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE on England and the United States. Issues Drafts on all parts of Canada. Deals liberally with farmers.
Allows Interest on Deposits, Which canbe withdrawn at any time.
C. W. CLINCH, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK
OF CANADA.
CAPITAL - - $5,698,696
RESERVE - - $1,150,000
INGERSOLL BRANCH.
THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.
Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.
W. M. SMITH. Manager.

ImperialBankofCanada
HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO.
Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.
Rest, - - 650,000.
Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Bosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.
D. R. WILKIE Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.
Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.
INGERSOLL BRANCH,
J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

Electro Plate GOODS
—AT—
R. W. WOODROOFE'S
JEWELLERY STORE,
Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

The Ingersoll Chronicle,
AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 29. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1593.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE
Life Assurance Com'y
OF ENGLAND.
Head Office for Canada,
217 St. James St., Montreal.
☞ Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.
☞ Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.
Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.
Every desirable Form of Policy Issued
H. O'CONNOR, JR.,
GENERAL AGENT
Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.
Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559-y

TOWN
WOOD YARD.
Dry and Green Wood.
STOVE AND CORD
Delivered to all Parts of the Town.
Orders may be left at
WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S.
—OR AT—
JOHN A. McINNES & CO.
Wood Yard near the Mills.
Dec. 27, 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD
DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,
—SELLS—
Burdock Blood Bitters,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Shiloh's Consumption Cure,
Golden Fruit Bitters,
All the Popular Patent Medicines.
Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.
Jan. 9th, 1884. 1583

VANCE'S BAKERY
continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of
CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.
Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers,
Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh,
Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.
A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops an Flowers always on hand.
Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.
R. VANCE,
Thames Street.
☞ Bread delivered in town daily.

CAIN
Health and Happiness.
How? DO AS OTHERS HAVE DONE.
Are your Kidneys disordered?
"Kidney-Wort brought me from my grave, as it were, after I had been given up by 13 first doctors in Detroit." M. W. Devereux, Mechanic, Ionia, Mich.
Are your nerves weak?
"Kidney-Wort cured me from nervous weakness &c., after I was not expected to live."—Mrs. M. M. B. Goodwin, Ed. Christian Monitor Cleveland, O.
Have you Bright's Disease?
"Kidney-Wort cured me when my water was just like chalk and then like blood."
Frank Wilson, Peabody, Mass.
Suffering from Diabetes?
"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I have ever used. Gives almost immediate relief."
Dr. Phillip C. Bolton, Monkton, Vt.
Have you Liver Complaint?
"Kidney-Wort cured me of chronic Liver Diseases after I gave up to die."
Henry Ward, late Col. 6th Nat. Guard, N. Y.
Is your Back lame and aching?
"Kidney-Wort (1 bottle) cured me when I was so lame I had to roll out of bed."
C. M. Talmage, Milwaukee, Wis.
Have you Kidney Disease?
"Kidney-Wort made me sound in liver and kidneys after I was pronounced incurable by doctors." Its worth $10 a box."—Sam'l Hodges, Williamstown, West Va.
Are you Constipated?
"Kidney-Wort causes easy evacuations and cured me after 15 years use of other medicines."
Nelson Fairchild, St. Albans, Vt.
Have you Malaria?
"Kidney-Wort has done better than any other remedy I have ever used in my practice."
Dr. H. K. Clark, South Hero, Vt.
Are you Bilious?
"Kidney-Wort has done me more good than any other remedy I have ever taken."
Mrs. J. T. Galloway, Elk Flat, Oregon.
Are you tormented with Piles?
"Kidney-Wort permanently cured me of bleeding piles. Dr. W. C. Kline recommended it to me."
Geo. H. Horst, Cashier M. Bank, Myerstown, Pa.
Are you Rheumatism racked?
"Kidney-Wort cured me, after I was given up to die by physicians and had suffered thirty years."
Eldridge Malcolm, West Bath, Maine.
Ladies, are you suffering?
"Kidney-Wort cured me of peculiar troubles of several years standing. Many friends use and praise it."
Mrs. H. Lamoreaux, Isle La Motte, Vt.
If you would Banish Disease and gain Health, Take
KIDNEY-WORT
THE BLOOD CLEANSER.
LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY
WILTON & GOLLAN, P.
Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.
The attention of the smoking public is respectfull called to our celebrated
LITTLE DOT
—IT IS THE—
Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.
None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship
Ask for the
"LITTLE DOT."
WILTON & GOLLAN
Dec. 6th, 1883. 1578

IMPORTANT NOTICE.
WM. C. BELL
Having bought the Lumber belonging to the
Estate of the late ADAM OLIVER
And RENTED THE MILL, he is prepared to execute all
Carpenter & Joiner Work
Entrusted to him. He will also
Contract for Buildings!
OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS,
And supply House Building material at the very lowest prices. It is a well known fact, from the easy financial position of the late firm, they were always ahead of the times in having thoroughly seasoned lumber, and from which all his inside work will be manufactured. A specialty in making
VENETIAN BLINDS,
Which can be made to order in short notice. GIVE HIM A CALL.
Ingersoll, Feb. 1st, 1883. WM. C. BELL. 1558

Some Old Considerations.

BY J. HERBERT MORSE.

The Puritan lies in his tomb—
A grand fellow was he in his day;
But now he's so bothered for room
He'd have hardly the space to pray
Should he rise on his knees.

Not a foot from him down below
Great Sachem Paupmunock lies,
With his kettle of corn and his bow,
And both he might use, could he rise
And sit at his ease.

Right over the two is my bed,
Delightfully propped on the great;
And here at my ease overhead
I rest on two pillars of state,
And I sleep very well.

If they muttered a word under ground,
I dare say 'twould come to my ears;
But I've heard not the slightest sound,
And they've slept there two hundred years
So the records tell.

I muse as I think of them there,
And sometimes I laugh to myself,
As I say—What a fine old pair,
But how easily laid on the shelf,
When we youngsters came.

The Sachem sang in his throat,
The Puritan twanged through his nose;
We sing a more lively note
Of the ruby red and the rose;
In the end 'tis the same.

We too shall hobble away
From the merry folk and the fire;
"Good-bye," to the singers shall say,
And pass from the lute and the lyre
From the folk and the flame.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

"How are you Miss Twining?" he said, nodding Claire's hand till she herself withdrew it. "I hope you're well. I hope you're as well as the rest of 'em."

Claire sat down while she answered: "I am quite well Mr. Brady." Her visitor at once seated himself beside her, leaning his face toward her own. "I am sorry that both Mrs. Bergemann and Sophia are out," she went on, with the desire to bridge an awkward interspace of silence.

"Oh, I ain't, not a bit," said Brady, ardently contradictory. "I'm glad of it, Miss Twining. I wanted to have a little chin with you." He laughed at his own slang, crossed his long legs, and leaned back on the lounge which Claire was also occupying. At the same time he turned his face toward his companion.

Claire felt that decency now compelled her to offer a certain acknowledgment. "I want to thank you for those lovely flowers," she said. "They were beautiful, and it was very kind of you to send them."

He began to sway his head slightly from side to side. It was his way of showing nearly every emotion, whether embarrassment, perplexity, chagrin, or even mollification.

"Come, now," he began, "you didn't really think a lot about 'em, did you?"

"I liked them very much," returned Claire. She was watching him, in all his unpleasant details, though very covertly. She was asking herself, in the dispassionate reflectiveness born of her calculating yet feverish ambition, whether she could possibly consent to be his wife if he should ever ask her. The remembrance of his great prospective wealth dealt her more than one thrilling stroke, and yet feelings of self-distrustful dread visited her also. She feared lest she might commit some irreparable mistake. She was still very ignorant of the world in which she desired to achieve note and place. But she had, at the same time, a tolerably definite understanding of some things that she aimed to do. Her talks with Thurston had let in a good deal of light upon her mind. She had not lost a single point in all his explanatory discourses.

"I'm glad you did like 'em," said Brady, examining his radiant rings for an instant. "They cost a heap of stamps," he added, suddenly lifting his head and giving her an intent look. "But I don't mind that. I ain't a close-fisted chap, especially when I'm fond of anybody. I guess you've seen that I think a deal about you. I can't talk flowery, like some chaps, but that don't matter."

At this point he suddenly took Claire's hand; his face had acquired a still more sulky gloom; it was clouded by an actual scowl.

"Look here, now, Miss Twining," he said, "I never expected to get married. I've had some pretty nice girls make regular dead sets at me—yes, I have—but none of 'em ever took my fancy. You did, though. I stuck it out for two or three weeks, and I daresay I kept giving myself clean away all the time. But I saw't wasn't any use; I'm caught, sure; there ain't any mistake about it. We'll be married whenever you say. I'll do the handsome thing—that is, father will. Father's crazy to have me settle down. He's worth a lot o' money—I s'pose you know that. He'll make you sing when he sees you—I ain't afraid he won't. We can have a slambang stylish wedding, or a plain, quiet one just as you choose. And don't you be alarmed about too big a difference between you and I. Father may kick a little at first, but he'll come round when you've met once or twice. He'll see you're a good, sound girl, even if you ain't as high up, quite, as he'd want me to go for. There, now, I've broken the ice, and I s'pose it's all fixed, ain't it?"

Claire had been trying to withdraw her hand, for several moments, from the very firm grasp of this remarkable suitor. But, as Brady ended, she literally snatched the hand away, and rose, facing him, contemptuous, and yet calm because her contempt was so deep.

"It is impertinent for you to address me like this," she said, in haughty undertone. "You have no right to take it for granted that I will marry you. In the first place, I do not like you; in the second place, I think myself by no means your inferior, but greatly above you as regards breeding, education, and intelligence; and in the third place, I would never consent to be the wife of one whom I do not consider a gentleman."

She at once left the room, after thus speaking, and saw, as she did so, that Brady's face was pale with rage and consternation. His insolent patronage wounded her more than she knew. On reaching her own room she had a fit of indignant weeping. But, by the time that Sophia and Mrs. Bergemann returned from their drive, she was sufficiently tranquil to betray no sign of past perturbation.

That evening Sophia went to one of her "sociables." A male friend called for her, and they were driven together to the entertainment in question, with superb yet innocent defiance of those stricter proprieties advocated in higher social realms. Mrs. Bergemann retired somewhat early, and Claire was left alone, as it happened, with Thurston, who chanced to drop in a little after nine o'clock. Just before Mrs. Bergemann left the drawing-room, she contrived to whisper, in garrulous aside, with her plump face quite close to Claire's, and all her genial, harmless vulgarity at a sort of momentary boiling point: "I shouldn't be surprised, dear, if he should pop to-night. And if he does, I ain't sure that you hadn't better have him than Brady, for he's ever so rich, though the other'll get the Sixth Avenue store and two or three millions o' money behind it. Still, please yourself, Claire, and don't forget to leave the hall gas burnin' for Sophia when you go upstairs."

Claire was in a very interrogative mood to-night. "I should like to have Mr. Brady explained a little more fully," she said, when Thurston and herself were again seated side by side,

Her companion gave a soft laugh. "I thought that we had exhausted that subject," he said. "It is not a very rich one, you know."

"I don't want you to tell me anything about his character as a man." Claire quickly replied. "But I want to find out his standing in society."

"He has no standing in society," said Thurston, with instant decisiveness.

"Do the people of whom you have spoken repeatedly—those whom you term the best class, I mean—entirely refuse to know him?"

"Not at all. They have never been called upon to know or not to know him. The best class is in a different world altogether. Perhaps Brady is aware of their existence; he may have read of their entertainments in the newspapers, or he may have seen them occasionally at watering-places. But that is all. His self-importance prevents him from realizing that they are above him. He is essentially and utterly common. He is surrounded by a little horde of sycophants who worship him for his money, and who are, in nearly all respects, as common as himself."

"You mean the set of people with whom Sophia associates?"

"Yes. I mean the rich, vulgar set of which you have so frequently seen specimens in this very room."

Claire seemed to muse for a short while. "But the others?" she soon asked. "These people who hold themselves above the Bergemanns—are they all refined and cultured? That is, are there any Bradys among them? Are there any Mrs. Bergemanns or Sophias?"

"I should emphatically say not. One may meet people among them who are by no means models of propriety or of high-breeding, but only as exceptional cases. They are generally found to be ladies and gentlemen; I don't know two more comprehensive words than these for just what I desire to express. Of course I have no large moral meaning now. I would merely imply, that in outward actions at least, they preserve the niceties. Their occasional deeds of darkness may be as solidly bad as anything of the kind elsewhere. I should be very loath to describe them so saintly. But they are usually polished. Quite often they are rank snobs. Still oftener, they are stupid. Their virtues might best be explained negatively, perhaps. They don't shock you; they are not crude; they haven't forgotten that a verb agrees with its nominative in number and person; they don't overdress themselves; they rarely shout in talking, and . . . well, for a final negative, they never tell the truth when its utterance might wound or annoy."

Claire had seemed to be listening very earnestly. She did not respond with her usual promptness. Her tones were slow and thoughtful when she at length said: "Are they what you would call aristocracy?"

"I don't know why they are not. They are incessantly being compared, to their own disadvantage, with the aristocracies of foreign lands. But I have travelled considerably in my time, and on the whole I prefer them to all similar bodies. There is less sham about them, and quite as much reason for original pride. Every so-called moral, perhaps; they illustrate what certain austere critics like to call the failure of republican ideas. But I've had so many friends among them that I can't consider any institution a failure which is responsible for their development."

"And it is very hard to become one of their number," Claire said, after another little pause. She did not put the words as a question,

"You seem to think it hard," Thurston answered. Rare as was any impulsive order of speech with him, this slight yet meaning sentence had nevertheless found utterance, almost against his will.

It was his first reference to the episode which both vividly remembered, though in far different ways, and which had cast round their subsequent intercourse even when directed upon the most mundane topics, a delicate glamour of sentiment plainly perceptible to each. Claire dropped her eyes, for a moment, then suddenly lifted them, while the pink was perceptibly deepening in her cheeks.

"Let us suppose that I am not speaking of myself," she said. "Indeed," she went on with a soft, peculiar smile that had hardly lighted her lips before it fled, "you have told me that my gate into the kingdom of the elect is through—well, through matrimony." She now looked at her companion with so subtle a blending of the arch and the grave that Thurston, in all the solidity of his veteran experience, was baffled how to explain it. "Suppose," she suddenly announced to him, "that I should marry Mr. Brady. He is your abhorrence I know. But if he put his millions at my disposal, could I become the great lady you and I have talked about?"

Thurston was stroking his moustache, and he now seemed to speak under it, a trifle gruffly, as he answered her.

"Yes," he said, "I think you could—provided Brady quitted the world after marrying you,"

Claire gave a little rippling laugh. "They would never allow him to be one of them?" she asked, in tones, whose precise import her hearer still failed to define, and which impressed him as midway between raillery and seriousness.

"No, never. If he has proposed to you, my poor child, don't for an instant flatter yourself that you can use him as a ladder by which to climb up into your coveted distinction."

These words were spoken with a commiserating ridicule. Tried a man of the world as he was, Thurston had of late been so deeply wounded that he now felt his wound bleed afresh, at an instant's notice, and deal him a severe pang. But Claire, quite forgetting to make allowances, flushed hotly, and at once said:—

"I never told you that Mr. Brady had proposed to me. And I do not think it proper or civil for you to throw in my face what I have put to you in the shape of a confidence."

"Marry Brady. By all means marry him," said Thurston. He had not been so bitterly offended in years.

Claire felt conscience stricken by the recollection of her own thoughts just previous to Brady's offer. She had permitted herself to weigh the question of whether or not marriage with such a man might be possible. Then had come the sharp sense that it would be degrading. For this reason she was now humiliated beyond measure, and hence keenly angry.

"I shall not marry him," she said, her lip faintly quivering. "Why do you speak to me like this?" Tears of shame now gathered to her eyes, and her voice notably faltered. She found no more words to utter. She felt that she was in a false, miserable position. She felt that she deserved Thurston's contempt, too, since she had given him, stupidly and rashly, a hint of what had passed between herself and the man whom they both despised.

Thurston rose and placidly faced her. He was so angry that he had just enough control left to preserve tranquility.

"I don't know that I have said anything very hard to you," he began.

"Yes, you have," retorted Claire, her voice in wretched case. She knotted both hands together while she spoke. She was still seated.

Thurston went on as if there had been no interruption. "But if I tell you the plain truth I don't doubt you will think me hard. I will tell it because you need it. You are still a mere girl, and very foolish. I am profoundly sorry for you. You have no possible regard for that frightful young millionaire, and yet you have permitted yourself to think of marrying him. Such a marriage would be madness. You would not accept me because you thought me old, but it would be better if you married a decent man of ninety than a gross and arrogant ruffian of twenty-three. But whether you do sell yourself in this horrid way or no, it is a plain fact that you are in danger of committing some terrible folly. I see by your face that you do not mean to heed my words. But perhaps if you listen to them now, you will recall them and heed them hereafter."

"No," cried Claire, tingling with mortification, and seizing on satire as a last defensive resort against this deserved rebuke, whose very justice revealed her own culpability in a clearer light; "no, if you please, I won't listen! I shall ask, instead, that you will kindly grant me the liberty of purchasing my own sackcloth and collecting my own ashes."

She half turned away from him, with glowing face, as she spoke; it was her intent to beat a prompt retreat; but Thurston's firm, even tones detained her.

"I warn you against yourself," he went on. His anger had cooled now, and melancholy had replaced it. "You have some fine traits, but there is an actual curse hanging over you, and as a curse it will surely fall, unless by the act of your own will you change it into a blessing. It is more than half the consequence of your land and your time, but it is due in part, also, to your special nature. In other countries the women whom fate has placed as it has placed you, are never stung by ambition like yours. They are born bourgeoises, and such they are contented to remain. If they possess any ambition, it is to adorn the sphere in which their destinies have set them, and this alone. They long for no new worlds to conquer; their small world is enough, but it is not too small to hold a large store of honest pride. All over Europe one finds it thus. But in America the affair is quite different. Here, both women and men have what is called 'push.' Not seldom it is a really noble discontent; I am not finding fault with it in all cases. But in yours, Claire Twining, I maintain that it will turn out a dowry of bitter risk if not woeful disaster. I exhort you to be careful, lest it prove the latter. Don't let your American 'push' impel you into swamps and quicksands. Don't let it thrust you away from what is true and sterling in yourself. Be loyal to it as a good impulse, and it will not betray and confound you like a bad one. You can do something so much better than to wreck your life; you can make it a force, a guidance, a standard, a leadership. You can keep conscience and self-respect clean, and yet shine with a far surer and more lasting brilliancy on this account . . . Good-by. If I should never see you again, I shall always hope for you until I hear ill news of you. And if bright news reaches me, I shall be vain enough to tell myself that we have not met, talked, argued—even quarrelled, perhaps—without the gain on your own side of happy and valued results." . . .

Thurston passed from the room, swiftly, and yet not seeming to use the least haste, before Claire, strongly impressed and with her wrath at a vanishing point, could collect herself for the effort of any coherent sort of reply.

She had caught one very clear glimpse of his face just as he disappeared. His hazel eyes, troubled, yet quiet, had momentarily dwelt with great fixity on her own. As she afterward recalled this parting vision of a face grown so familiar through recent weeks, it appeared to her solely in imaginative terms. It ceased to be a face; it become a reproach, a remonstrance, an advice, an entreaty.

Immediately after his exit she sank into a chair, feeling his late words ring through mind and heart. She had never liked him so much as at that moment.

She had a sense that he meant to avoid seeing her again. But she did not realize through how much vivid novelty of experience she must pass before they once more met. If any such prescience had reached her, she would have gone out into the hall and plucked him by the sleeve, begging him to return, filled with consolatory designs, eager that he should abandon all thoughts of permanent farewell.

But as it was, she let the hall-door close behind him, and sat staring at the floor and saying within her own thoughts: "He is right. I am in danger. I can save myself if I choose. And I will save myself in time!"

She clenched both hands as they dropped at either side, and her eyes flashed softly below their shading lids.

CHAPTER XI.

She was wholly unprepared for the intelligence, a few days later, that Thurston had gone, in the most sudden manner, to Europe. The Bergemanns, mother and daughter, were both amazed by the departure of their legal adviser, without a premonitory word from him on the subject and apparently at such brief notice. Claire, in the midst of her own consternation, sharply dreaded lest some suspicion should dawn upon them that she was concerned in this precipitate change. But in Mrs. Bergemann let fall any hint that such was her belief, it was made in the hearing of Sophia alone; and the latter had accounted from the first, as we know, a fiction that Thurston's regard for her friend could partake of lover-like tenderness. The letter which he had written to his client, announcing that he had sailed, gave no reason for his abrupt course. It was a letter somewhat copious in other respects, however, and made thoroughly plain the fact that the partner of him who wrote it would in every way defend and supervise the interests of Mrs. Bergemann. "I shall probably be abroad some months," ran Thurston's written words, "but during that time rest sure that all details of the slightest importance with respect to your affairs shall be safely communicated through Mr. Chadwick."

Mr. Chadwick soon afterward presented himself. He was a lank man, of bloodless complexion and irreproachable manners. "I think he's a regular wet blanket," said Mrs. Bergemann, with critical cruelty, "after dear, high-toned Mr. Thurston. He was high-toned, Claire, wasn't he?" she persevered, with a sidelong, timorous look toward Sophia, who chanced, besides Claire, to be present at the time.

"Now, ma," broke in Sophia, accompanying this vocative with a tart gesture of remonstrance, "Claire doesn't know a bit better than you or I do whether he was high-toned or not. Do you, Claire?"

"I think almost everybody who ever met him," said Claire, answering the appeal, "must have seen it very clearly."

She spoke this with nice composure. But she was inwardly dismayed, wounded, almost tortured. For many succeeding days she contrived to absent herself from all Sophia's guests. Brady had totally disappeared from her experience; he no longer presented himself at the house. He was secretly fearful lest Claire might publish the fact of his proposal broadcast among the adherents, with whom he stood supreme as their moneyed and autocratic leader. He suffered those torments of humiliation which only a small soul, with small views of things and an immoderate vanity, has learned the petty trick of suffering.

It is by no means hyperbole to state that he inwardly cursed Claire for being the girl within whose power he had put it to say that she had actually repelled his superb matrimonial advances. Longer concern with so unwholesome a creature would be idle for the chronicler, especially since henceforth he drops out of our record somewhat as Slocumb did, and with a scarcely more chivalrous exit.

Claire now passed through a period of extreme repentance. Her old longings had vanished; she silently planned for herself, with ascetic enthusiasm, a future of humility and obscurity. She was a zealot in a totally new way; she had abandoned all thoughts of marrying, and had conceived the idea of mentally fitting herself to become a governess.

With this end, she spent hours in the library. Incapable of doing anything by halves, she now bent the full force of her strong will and capable intellect toward obtaining a proper educational competence. She swam far out, so to speak, into the blue waters of knowledge, and breasted them with good, vigorous strokes. She was, for the time at least, passionately in earnest.

Thurston's farewell words rang incessantly through her memory. She would crush down all that American "push" once and forever. She would steer from the perils against which he had warned her, by one broad, divergent swerve. Her renorse and resignation held a poetic ardor of kinship. Her past longings had indeed been a folly, and as such she would unvaryingly treat them. She would be consistent henceforth, and seek only what lay within her lawful scope of action. She was like the convert to a new faith, and she had all a convert's intensity of fervor.

From her two friends, however, she chose to guard with caution the secret of this change. It was now the early portion of June, and the fierce heat of summer had literally leapt down on the city after several weeks of raw, inclement May weather. The judgment long ago passed upon our climate, that it has a summer, an autumn, a winter, but no spring, had been more than fully confirmed. The city was wrapped all day in a torrid drowse; the pavements lay either in bleak glare or breathless shadow. On the benches of the parks, where spots of dusk were wrought by overbrowing branches, groups of jaded citizens huddled together in moist discomfort. The cars tinkled sleepily; the omnibuses lagged in rumbling sloth; foul smells beset the nostrils, even from genteel quarters of the door-ways of high-priced restaurants. People looked up at the wool-like pallor of the sky, and wished that it would darken into the cooling gloom of a thunderstorm.

But Claire scarcely minded the heat. She had known the fetid miseries of a Greenpoint summer. Those spacious chambers and halls of the Bergemanns' so ill-built mansion were delicious indeed by contrast. Striped awnings had been affixed to each window, whose scalloped edges would flap in chance wafturres of breeze, while the stout bunting above them changed the sunny rigors outside to a continual soothing gloom.

It was true that she had no sympathy with hot weather; she liked an atmosphere in which quick movement was always possible. But she was nevertheless very much at her ease here and now. She read; she studied; the library, bathed in a tender dimness, pleased her with its vague rows of books, its rough rich carpeting, its dark, massive wood-work. She had, for a time, that exquisite feeling of the scholar who clothes himself with silence, solitude, and repose, and who lets the outer world touch him through soft, impersonal yet cogent mediums.

During this interval she was completely happy. It was the old self-surrender of the devote. Literature was henceforth to be her cult, her idolatry. The mere process of reading had always been one of ease and speed with her. Past training helped her now in the way of method, and she also began to learn how to learn. Her French readings were frequent. Sophia had a French maid with whom she often conversed. Her proficiency in the language soon became marked and thorough.

But suddenly her new contentment was shattered, and by a rude stroke. Mrs. Bergemann began to talk of leaving town. Claire almost felt, at first, as in the ground were giving way beneath her feet. She could only accompany her friends to a watering-place in the position of a dependent and pensioner. Her sea airy must stop, because her relations with Sophia must of necessity lose all their instructive character. "You would never continue our readings, Sophia," she said, "in a crowded hotel, where you would have countless distractions."

"Oh, yes, I would, Claire," was the alert reply. "We'll keep it up just the same. You'll pack a few books in one of the trunks, and I'll promise to be a good girl; you needn't feel a bit afraid. Ma's decided on Coney Island. Now, don't look so glum, as if you didn't have a friend in all the world. You've been sort of queer lately; you talk slower, somehow, and you stick up there in the library nearly all the time. But you're still my own nice Claire. I swear by you, dear girl, just as I always did. If there's anything on your mind I won't ask you what it is."

"There is something on my mind, Sophia," Claire said. "But you must not ask me what it is just yet. I will tell you soon." Yes, I hope to tell you quite soon."

She went with them to Coney Island. They engaged rooms at the Manhattan Beach Hotel. The books had been packed and brought, but very few of them were ever opened.

"It's not a bit of use, Claire!" Sophia affirmed, after the lapse of about five days. "We can't manage it. There's always something happening, as you see. Besides, nobody works here. Everybody idles. It's in the air. Let's take a vacation."

"Why, yes, girls," said Mrs. Bergemann, at this point, with motherly persuasion. "You better just lay up some health for next winter, and quit the books till we get home. Or p'raps we may get tired of this place 'fore the summer's through, an' go somewheres where it ain't so lively—I mean some lazy place like Lake George or the White Mountains. Then books and reading will fit in kinder natural. But I don't think I'll care to leave here for a good, big while. I ain't ever seen anything like it before. If we could only go driving here, now, and them horses wasn't eating their heads off over in the city, why t' would be a reglar paradise. Sophia, I've just rec'lected that I came to this very spot twenty years ago if it's a day, with poor pa! We was a young couple, then . . . that girl was'nt more 'n a baby, Claire. We took her along. Pa carried you, Sophia. The brewery was't started in them times, an' . . . well, I guess we got along with about five hundred dollars a year, over at the small saloon at Hoboken."

"Now, ma, you need n't go into such very close particulars, please!" chided Sophia, whose large, warm heart was not democratic enough always to stand the intense humility of certain maternal reminiscences.

"Pshaw!" said Mrs. Bergemann with a good-humored laugh; "we don't mind Claire. She's one of us. Besides we're up here in the bedroom, not down on that crowded piazzer. Well girls, as I was saying, pa and me came here that day, an' I declare to goodness the place was only a bare strip o' sand with a few little shanties here and there that they called hotels. And just look at it now! Three monstrous palaces, and all New York streaming down every decent afternoon, It's like enchantment. I can't believe I'm where I was twenty years ago. I'm afraid I must be dreaming. But if I am I don't want to wake up; I want to keep right on till the first o' September."

"Only a few years ago the island was very much as you describe it twenty years ago," said Claire, who had dipped into a small descriptive handbook telling about the marvellous growth of this unique and phenomenal watering place.

"I s'pose I ought to find it a little bit too gay," pursued Mrs. Bergemann presently, in reflective afterthought. "Poor pa has been gone such a short time." Here the lady heaved an imposing sigh, which her massive bust made no less visible than audible. "But I can grieve just as well by mixing in with folks as if I was hung round with crape and stuck off alone somewhere. Everybody's got their own ways o' grieving, an' I ain't goin' to forget poor pa merely 'cause I look about a little, and make my second-mourning kinder stylish. Not a bit of it!"

Mrs. Bergemann certainly showed the courage of her opinions, as regarded the sort of grief due her departed spouse. Her laugh was loud in hall, in dining-room, or on piazza. Her costumes tinkled with black bugles, or rustled and crackled in sombre, yet ornamented grandeur.

It is probable that grief may have dealt her real pangs, and yet that the irrepressible growth and warmth of her spirit kept always at bay the gloom and chill of grief. Her nature was not a shallow one; she could feel with depth and force, but she could not mope or even muse; solitude was hateful to her; she was gregarious; she wanted to hear the voices, and look into the faces of her kind.

In spite of her German origin she was excessively representative, from a purely American stand-point. Her very vulgarities—and they were certainly profuse—possessed a wide, healthful sincerity. Her enormous

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1884.

THE Winnipeg Board of Trade favors the Torrens system of land transfer.

IT is understood that the prorogation of the Ontario Legislature will take place at the end of this week or the beginning of the next.

THE Toronto Canadian (Tory) says:—The Mail and its managing director may well hide their heads with shame at the disgrace they and their confreres from across the border have brought on the Conservative party in Ontario.

WE are glad to see that the removal of the site of the agricultural grounds and buildings is being pushed so energetically. The Council having responded favorably to the scheme adopted by the Agricultural Society of N. and W. Oxford, the directors have had a meeting in relation to the above, and under the management of the three gentlemen who have been appointed a special committee, we have no doubt matters will soon assume business proportions, and by next Fall we will have an exhibition worthy of the name, the benefits of which will be visible to all who have the welfare and prosperity of Ingersoll at heart.

IT is the swiftness and accuracy of the blow that has struck terror to the heart of the corruptionists, says the Globe. They had deluded themselves into entertaining the idea that because Mr. Mowat is a quiet, unassuming Christian, therefore he would be found weak and vacillating. The corruptionists have found out their mistake. They have discovered that Mr. Mowat's Cabinet can carry out to its perfection a plan requiring the exercise of the greatest courage and skill. Had the slighest whisper of the intention of the Government leaked out, had there been any delay or hesitation, the criminals could, and doubtless would, have escaped from justice. As it was the arm of justice fell silently but irresistibly. Not one detail of the Government's plan of campaign seems to have gone astray. No sooner were the acts of bribery complete than the law was set in motion, as it were in the twinkling of an eye, or the closing of a steel trap.

THE Globe says:—We have frequently of late called attention to the immense mischief which the prevalence of bribery and corruption was doing to Canada. One of the very greatest of the evils it wrought was that public opinion was almost paralyzed by it. Men had become apathetic and indifferent, and ceased to give more than a passing thought to the most important public questions, or they were sunk in despair and thought that nothing could be done to bring about a better state of things until the country had sunk so low that it could go no lower. Then perhaps the people could be aroused from their lethargy and something could be done. The exposure of the attempt to bribe the Ontario Legislature has stirred public opinion to its very depths. Men of all parties and of all classes denounce the crime and the perpetrators of the crime. Public feeling should not be satisfied with this. Good men of all parties should now make an earnest effort to fulfil the duty they owe the country by stamping out corruption effectually and thoroughly.

COST OF GAS.

Statement from Various Towns and Cities.

The Kingston Gas Company at their recent meeting submitted an interesting report, giving the price of gas in the several cities and towns of the Province, quantity produced, etc. It is as follows:

Kingston—Last year the cost of manufacture was $1.62 per thousand, and by the time the gas reaches the metres of the consumers, leakages, etc., had increased that figure to $2. The gas supplied in Kingston is away above the government standard, which is 12 candle power. Kingston gas is 22 candle power, and, therefore, just as cheap at $3 per thousand as the 12 candle power is at $1 50.

In Belleville the price of gas is $2 50 per thousand, and the city pay $20 each for 158 lamps; 6,500,000 feet per year is made.

Brantford, $2 50; $20 each for 101 lamps; quantity made, 8,000 000 feet.

Brockville, $3; $24 each for 90 lamps quantity, 4,000,000 feet.

Dundas, $2 50 to $3: $20 each for 30 lamps; quantity 2,500,000 feet.

Guelph, $3; $22 each for 105 lamps; quantity, 5,000,000 feet.

Hamilton, $1.87½; for stoves, $1.50; $18 each for 430 lamps; quantity, 30,000,000 feet.

Ingersoll, $3; $22.50 each for 35 lamps; quantity, 2,000,000 feet.

Kingston, $3; $13 each for 122 lamps till 12 o'clock; quantity, 6,000,000 feet.

Listowel, $2.50, same for lamps; quantity, 1,000,000 feet.

Napanee, $3; $600 per year for 30 lamps; quantity, 2,000,000 feet.

Ottawa, $3; $22 each for 353 lamps; quantity, 25,000,000 feet.

Port Hope, $3.50; $20 each for 65 lamps; quantity, 2,500,000 feet.

St. Catharines, $2.50; $22.50 each for 170 lamps; quantity, 10,000,000 feet.

Stratford, $2.50; same for lamps; quantity, 4,000,000 feet.

Toronto. $1.50 to 1.75; $22.75 each for 2,198 lamps; quantity, 175,000,000 feet.

Montreal, $1.50; $22 each for 1,700 lamps; quantity, 180,000,000 feet.

Windsor $2.25 $15 each for 75 lamps; quantity, 4,000,000 feet.

Woodstock, $2.50; $23 each for 33 lamps; quantity, 3,000,000 feet.

Quebec, $2; for cooking, $1.50; $20 for 385 lamps; quantity, 30,000,000 feet.

An illicit whisky still has been discovered near the village of Ancaster.

A box of powder with a fuse attached was discovered in the Birmingham postoffice.

A man sixty years of age committed suicide by hanging near Belleville on Saturday.

Ninety-nine employees have recently been discharged from Grand Trunk workshops.

There are over 30 deserters from the American army in Windsor. A reward of $30 induces a number of persons to act as detectives, who get a deserter intoxicated, induce him to cross the river, and then hand him over to the authorities. Deserters are now up to the dodge, and intend to keep a watch at both Windsor and Walkerville ferry landings and stop brother deserters from falling victims to those detectives.

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

Sulphur and Iron Bitters at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

PICTORIA, for Coughs and Colds, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

WARNER'S SAFE CURE at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

GERMAN SYRUP at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

BROWETT'S Baking Powder, fresh and pure, at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. (77

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingunious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. Secord. 76y.

A HUGH CONSPIRACY.

Attempt to Bribe Members of the Local House.

Two of the Plotters Arrested and Put in Prison.

THE SPEAKER PRODUCES EIGHTEEN ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR BILLS.

Messrs. Bunting, Meek, Wilkinson, Kirkland and Lynch Implicated.

Trial of the Accused—Bail Refused.

A scene unparalelled in the history of the Local House last Monday night. Shortly after the House opened, telephone wires running into the House were cut by order of Government Detective Murray, and immediately afterwards F. T. Kirkland was arrested in the lobby of the House and taken to the police station. About the same time John A. Wilkinson, of Cobourg, was arrested in the Walker House, and taken to the police station. The charge against them is attempting to bribe supporters of the Government.

Mr. Mowat rose in his seat, and in a few studiously calm, and even for him deliberate words, stated that he had something of the most startling character to tell the House. There had, he said, been a carried on in that building. The Speaker, he understood, had received certain letters, which he asked should now be laid before the House.

CONSPIRACY TO PURCHASE VOTES

Then arose Mr. Speaker. He produced two large envelopes addressed to himself. One of these he opened. It was from Mr. McKim, member for N. Wellington. It was very short. It stated that Mr. McKim had been approached by the notorious J. A. Wilkinson, one of the chief bribers of the Dominion bribery brigade, and had been paid no less a sum than $1,000 to influence his vote, and this money in ten $100 bills Mr. McKim enclosed to the Speaker. The second letter was one to a similar effect from Mr. Balfour, of South Essex, who had received $800 from one Kirkland, for a similar purpose.

The effect upon the House of this disclosure was indescribable. A pin could have been heard to drop as the Speaker read the letters in a clear, dignified tone, and before the people.

SLOWLY COUNTED OUT THE EIGHTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS

As soon as the Speaker had read the letters, Mr. Mowat again arose, and read out a statement of the whole history of the case. The attempts to bribe his supporters had commenced at the beginning of the session.

THE PERSONS IMPLICATED

are Mr. Christopher W. Bunting, chief editor of the Mail; Mr. Edward Meek, a barrister, who has an office in the Mail building; J. A. Wilkinson, the notorious bribery agent of the Dominion Government; and also one Kirkland and one Lynch, the two latter American citizens. The Attorney-General related how Mr. Balfour, Mr. McKim, and Mr. Dowling, of South Renfrew, had been approached with offers of money and Dominion offices; how Mr. Bunting had assured the members that he was authorized by Sir John Macdonald to offer them the offices, and how the members took the information at once to the Government; that, under the advice of the Government, Messrs. Balfour and McKim to the voice of the tempter, and how at length the money had been actually paid to them. All these things were embodied in a resolution referring the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections with instructions to investigate the same. Mr. Mowat added a few plain, unvarnished words to this narrative, expressing a hope that every member of the House would insist in probing the charges to the bottom.

PRETENDED TO LISTEN

Toronto, March 18.—At the Police Court this morning the room was crowded and hundreds could not get admittance. Bunting and Meek were charged under summons, and Wilkinson and Kertland under warrant with unlawfully conspiring to corrupt and frustrate the constitutional procedure and Acts of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario. No evidence was taken, and the prisoners were not asked to plead, but the case was remanded till Friday. Wilkinson and Kirkland were taken to gaol, bail being refused. The penalty is said to be two years' imprisonment and five hundred pounds fine.

A PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATION.

Mr. Dowling, M. P. P., South Renfrew, said on Thursday last Mr. Bishop and Mc. Kim came to his hotel and said he was wanted at the Walker house by Mr. Wilkinson. He accordingly went there, and Mr. Wilkinson said he and Mr. Bunting had been to Ottawa, and had returned with $10,000, and were anxious to get a few members to vote against the Government. He did not take kindly to the suggestion, and Mr. Wilkinson then suggested that he see Mr. Bunting of the Mail, but he declined to do this.

He next called to see some members of the Government, and they advised him to go and see Mr. Bunting. As soon as he reached Mr. Bunting's room the latter asked if he was Dr. Dowling, and on receiving an affirmative answer took him to another room on a lower flat and locked the door. He then said that the policy of the present Government was against the true interests of the province, and continued to talk in the same way in which Wilkinson had spoken.

He said he had been to Ottawa, and had seen some members of the Dominion Government. Sir John Macdonald was a sharp man, and would doubtless be at the head of affairs for ten years to come. It was a pity that the governments of the Province and of the Dominion could not pull better together. This could be accomplished if a coalition government were formed.

The Grit party had used him (Dowling) very badly. They had refused to pay his expenses, although he had been put to great trouble and cost through the petition against him, and there was more trouble yet to come. This was not the way they used their men. When Fauquier, who was also a young man, had been unseated for Muskoka they had paid all his expenses and carried on the appeal for him.

In forming a coalition government it would be necessary for them to have his seat vacant, so that they could put a man of their own and a member of the new Government in South Renfrew.

It would not be difficult for him (Bunting) to raise inside of two hours three thousand dollars to recoup him for the expenses and trouble to which he had been put, if he agreed to carry out the instructions which would be furnished, and he would give a guarantee that the petition now entered against him should be withdrawn.

To all this he returned

NOTHING BUT EVASIVE ANSWERS.

Wilkinson and Kirkland both came up to his room on several occasions, and Wilkinson asked him to come to the Walker house and see Lynch. He did so, and Lynch produced $2,000 and offered it to him, stating that the conditions on which it was given were written outside the envelope.

The writing on the envelope stated that Lynch bet Dowling two thousand dollars that he would not vote against the Government, and that the Mowat Administration would last through the session. He asked him to come to Mr. Meek's office and he would place the money in Mr. Meek's hands, so that he could get it as soon as the conditions were complied with. He demurred at this, when Kirkland told him if he was afraid of Mr. Meek to come to Mr. Bunting.

To this he replied that he did not approve of such conduct, and could not take part in it. He communicated at once with the Ontario Government, who advised him not to commit himself, but to let them go ahead.

Kirkland told them he was interested in some timber lands in Algoma and had endeavored to get Mr. Pardee to change the policy he at present was pursuing but he had refused, and he and his friends were bound to have the policy changed.

On Saturday one of the party came to the Continental hotel, where he was stopping, and produced a one thousand dollar bill and ten one hundred dollar bills all of the Bank of Montreal. He produced a round robin, which stated that a coalition Government was in the interests of Ontario, and wanted him to sign it, but this he refused to do.

During the whole time the negotiations were going on no two of the men remained with him together, and no conversation took place in the presence of any other of the party while one was speaking. When, however, he saw any others of the parties they always appeared to know what had passed with their friends.

Kirkland told him there would be a vote of want of confidence in a few days on the Government's timber policy, and they wanted his name on the round robin and his vote in the House.

W. R. Balfour, (South Essex), said the first time he was approached was on Tuesday morning last, although Kirkland had thrown out some hints before. On that day he called him (Balfour) into the card-room of the Walker house and stated more particularly what he wanted. He stated that he had seen Mr. Pardee and his policy needed changing. He (Kirkland) was prepared to go to attain his ends. He endeavored to show that his wishes were in the interests of the Province. He offered to pay liberally if he would make a speech in favor of it. This he said he had done in Wisconsin, and it was not a bribe, but simply a payment for sevice rendered. In Wisconsin he had spent $40,000 on the Legislature.

ALL LENGTHS SHORT OF MURDER

He was not approached further by any one until Thursday, when McKim told him that he was wanted, and took him to Wilkinson's room. Wilkinson said a coalition government was necessary in the interests of the province. In case one could be formed, Mr. Meredith would become Attorney-General, Mr. Morris, Minister of Education, and there was no one on either side of the House so fitted to be treasurer as Mr. Creighton. Mr. Ross was nobody beside him.

The other offices were to be allotted to the Reformers, and Mr. Harcourt was to be the leader of the Liberal contingent in the new Government, and Harcourt would have the other portfolios at his disposal, but a certain very eminent farmer on the Ministerial side (Drury) would have one of them. A Catholic of great influence, not then in the House, would also have a portfolio, and they would secure the cooperation of Archbishop Lynch to strengthen them.

Fraser, he said, was too much given to bullying, and his comb would have to be cut. The other members of the Government had been guilty of gross corruption in Algoma, and he (Wilkinson) had been there and knew it. The Premier had mortgaged his private property for $20,000 to pay his share of the expenses, as they were much too large to be included in the Public Accounts in any one year.

When he came out of Wilkinson's room he met Kirkland, who had evidently been waiting for him, and he went into his own (Balfour's) room, next door, with him. Kirkland showed him a letter from a man named Peters, giving him

POWER TO EXPEND $10,000,

if necessary on account of the firm to have the Government's timber policy changed.

Some further negotiations passed, and he was asked to sign the round robin. This, they stated, they wanted signed by three or four Government supporters, so that they could secure Harcourt, who was only waiting to know what support he would have from his side of the House.

He (Balfour) was anxious to know how Harcourt really felt about the matter, and accordingly called to see him, when Harcourt denied that he had anything to do with the matter, or had even been spoken to on the subject.

On Saturday Kirkland came to his room and wanted him to name his price for speaking and voting against the Government's timber policy, but got little encouragement.

McKim came to his room on Sunday and produced ten $100 bills of the Bank of British North America, which he said he had received from Wilkinson. He afterwards saw Wilkinson who told him Harcourt was in daily communication with Bunting.

On Monday at 2.30 p.m., he went up to Wilkinson's room, but refused to sign any round robin. Wilkinson offered him $600 in money then and there, but he objected that that was not what had been promised, and he then gave $800 in British North American bills, and promised him $700 more. He was to hold this money as security for his obtaining a valuable post under the Dominion Government. Hardly any conditions were exacted and Wilkinson seemed in a great hurry to give him the money.

He then came to the House and gave the money to the Speaker.

The committee then adjourned.

OSMAN DIGMA DEFEATED.

HIS FORCES DRIVEN FROM THEIR CAMP NEAR THE TAMAI WELLS.

The British attacked on All Sides by Hordes of Arabs, who were Repulsed with Slaughter—70 British and 2,400 Arabs Killed.

A despatch from Gen. Graham, dated "Osman Digma's Camp, March 14," says: "The camp of the enemy was taken after hard fighting. Over seventy of the British were killed and 100 wounded."

The rebels opened fire on Graham's forces at one o'clock in the morning. The British formed to repel a charge, but none being made the men were ordered to lie down again. The rebels' fire continued all night, but the British did not reply. One officer and two men were wounded, and one man was killed. The rebels directed their fire especially toward the hospital waggons, which were conspicious in the moonlight. The surgeons and Graham's staff officers had many narrow escapes.

At sunrise a Gardiner gun and a nine-pounder were turned against the rebels, who were within 1,800 yards of the British, and afforded an excellent target. The Arabs were soon compelled to retire to their main position.

Stewart's cavalry arrived at half-past six and took a position on the British left so as to turn the enemy's right. The engagement soon became general. The infantry and artillery completely routed the enemy from their pits and trenches. The battle had not lasted over half an hour when the victory of the British was made certain.

As the British advanced men sprang up, sometimes within 200 yards of them, armed with spears and brandishing huge shields. These would charge upon the British at breakneck speed until the latter's bullets laid them low. The British stormed the works where the rebels were in force. The blacks held out their spears against bullets and bayonets until the trenches were like one vast grave. The loss of Osman Digma's forces was 2,400.

The troops returning to Suakim cheered greatly the personal heroism of Adams Fraser, the largest man of the Black Watch Regiment. Twelve Arabs were laid low by his single bayonet. Drummond, of the same regiment, bayoneted Osman Digma's nephew. Fifty men have left Chatham to fill the vacancies in the Black Watch Regiment.

BEWAILING THE DEAD.

Parties of Arabs wandered over the battlefield in the moonlight and uttered heartrending cries of grief whenever they found the dead bodies of their friends, in many places piled in heaps.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

The Black Watch Regiment was almost denuded of sub-officers in the battle. The Russian, Italian, and French men-of-war have offered medical assistance to the British. Friendly sheikhs are of the opinion that Osman Digma will go to El Mahdi to report the recent disasters, and to ask for orders. They doubt whether he will succeed in mustering a fresh force.

Gen. Gordon has telegraphed Sir Evelyn Baring, advising that a column of troops from Abyssinia be sent to relieve the garrison at Kassala. He also requests authority to threaten the rebellious tribes around Khartoum with force should he consider it advisable.

NOT TO GO TO BERBER.

General Graham has been ordered not to push reconnaissance far beyond Handouk. It is not true that Turkish troops are going to Suakim, or that the British Government has decided to send an expedition to Siukat and Berber.

FRESH FORCE FOR OSMAN DIGMA.

Spies report Osman Digma trying to collect fresh force.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

It is said that the State dinners given by the President during the past season cost one-tenth of his annual salary.

The United States Government has spent over $250,000 in searches for the Arctic ship Jeannette and in bringing home the bodies of the explorers.

St. Patrick's Day was quietly observed throughout the States yesterday. Several members of Congress attended the Cian na Gael's banquet at Washington in the evening.

After five long, weary months the plasterers' strike in Toronto has been amicably settled. Committees representing the masters and the union met and came to terms, the result being that the men will resume work. The basis of settlement is not to be made known.

It is stated that the authorities at the War Office have determined on the appointment of Colonel Middleton to command the Canadian militia in succession to Major-General Luard. Colonel Middleton will probably arrive to take command in the latter part of July.

The cotton manufacturers are discussing ways and means to relieve the domestic market of surplus stocks. Another meeting has been held, and it was reported that a decision had been reached, by which 625 looms formerly running in various mills are to be reduced to about 400 in operation, in order that the mills may be kept running full time. Some 40 or 50 operatives will thus be dispensed with. It was stated that one of the mills belonging to the Association has latterly been working 8 instead of 10 hours per day.

There died at Niagara on Monday, at the great age of 121 years, a colored man named "Dr." Henry Brown. Deceased was born on the plantation of Lionel Clayton, on the James River, near Jamestown, Virginia, and when 50 years old escaped from a slave dealer at Baltimore and came to Canada, where he has lived ever since. He claimed to remember George Washington, and said on one occasion he drove that gentleman from his master's plantation to Washington.

An intervention has been entered in Court on behalf of the City and District Savings Bank to the petition of the liquidators of the Exchange Bank, asking that the shareholders of the bank be held for their double liability. Argument on the petition was fixed for the 19th inst. The list of shareholders is divided into two parts, the first being the names of those directly accountable to the bank and the other of those who have transferred their stock in such a manner that the bank still holds them liable. The number of shares represented by the list accompanying the petition is 3,174, valued at $317,400, the amount the bank is entitled to claim from the parties named.

St. Patrick's Day was, as usual in Montreal, celebrated with much enthusiasm. A fierce snowstorm, which set in early in the morning, was not sufficient to dampen the spirits of Montreal Irishmen, and the procession, which took place after a sermon in St. Patrick's, preached by Father Quinlan, was of the most quiet and orderly character. After parading the principal streets, the procession being over a mile and a half long, a halt was made opposite St. Patrick's Hall, when the usual addresses were delivered by the President, Mr. Bellew D. Barry, and Mr. E. Guerins. The ball and concert at night was numerously attended and passed off successfully.

The usual dynamite scare of the session has come and gone. For some weeks past the depredations of sneak thieves in and around the Parliament buildings have been such that the Sergeant-at-Arms has been obliged to employ several detectives to watch them. The desks and wardrobes of members have been robbed, committee rooms and offices stripped, and even the dwellings of the officers of the House have been invaded. As matters seemed to be getting worse instead of better, detectives were engaged. These men are of course only known to the Speaker, the Sergeant, and one or two others, and their object has also been kept quiet. But the appearance of strange men who always avoided speaking to members and employees, and who always seemed unable to account for their presence in the chamber and corridors, naturally aroused suspicion, and when it was whispered around that detectives were on duty it was at once presumed that they were looking after the dynamiters, and that the Government had received information that an attempt was to be made to blow up Rideau Hall and the Parliament House.

About half-past eleven last Friday night, as three freight trains were following each other closely up the Humber grade, near Toronto, a coupling broke between two of the cars in the first train. The fireman of No. 1 immediately ran back and signalled No. 2 to reverse, which the driver succeeded in doing, the engine coming to a standstill a few feet from the rear of the first train. Train No. 3 came thundering along then, and, being ignorant of the state of affairs in front, the fireman and engineer had but time to jump when the engine dashed into No. 2, shattering to pieces a number of the cars in the rear, and throwing some of the others off the rails. The engineer, George Owens, was badly cut about the head, while the fireman had his nose broken and was otherwise injured about the head and shoulders. They were conveyed in vehicles to the city and their injuries at once attended to. The engine attached to the third train was badly battered, the cylinder, smoke-stack, and pilot were smashed out of shape. The express train from Hamilton, due about midnight, was stopped by telegraph, and at the same time messages were sent to Toronto and Hamilton for relief. The loss to the railway company is estimated at $5,000. The accident happened within a couple of hundred yards of where the New Year accident occurred.

Canceled Postage Stamps.

When Postmaster Pierson read a letter asking if the government would give $500 for 1,000,000 of canceled postage stamps, he laughed and said: "The old story again. The same request for information has been made at this office. The government does not want canceled stamps, never did want them. Postage stamp collectors and those who sell them have no use for any but foreign stamps. A million of our stamps would be of no value to any one. The mucilage on the backs of them would interfere with their worth as waste paper. In one shape or another this hoax has been kept alive for years and has deceived many people."—New York Sun.

A Train Delayed by Antelopes.

The west-bound train between Green River and Granger, on the Union Pacific, recently encountered a herd of 1200 or 1500 antelopes. The snow was quite deep, and drifted in places, and the antelopes were running on the roadbed, finding that the easiest to travel in. When they were first encountered many of them were killed, and the engineer, seeing at once that the train might be derailed unless it were slowed up, decreased the speed. The antelopes kept a short distance ahead of the engine, and were strung along the road for a quarter of a mile. They would occasionally get some distance from the engine, and then they would stop, turn round and watch the headlight until the engine was fairly upon them. They delayed the train half or three-quarters of an hour.—Elko (Nev.) Independent.

—Just like mamma—(rather a starkler for fond parent, who is taking small child out to tea). Small girl: "Oh! you haven't got my pinafore." Pa: "I cannot help that, dear; we're late already." Small girl: "Oh, dear me, it's sickening! You can never wait a minute."

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proved satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female Complaints, etc.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Latest Cable Notes.

CURRENT RUMORS.

Rumors are current in the lobbies of the House of Commons that the resignation of Mr. Gladstone and other members of the Government have been under consideration at three Cabinet Councils. The majority of the Cabinet are in favor of a prolonged occupation of Egypt, to which Mr. Gladstone is opposed. Mr. Gladstone is suffering from laryngeal catarrh, and requires rest and care.

SPANISH CONSPIRATORS.

The conspirators arrested at Madrid yesterday had formed a plot to seize the palace when the Ministers were assembled and the King was presiding. Several of the men arrested Saturday and Sunday on suspicion of being engaged in a conspiracy against the Government have been set at liberty, there being no evidence against them. The total number of persons arrested is twenty-two.

ENGLAND'S FOREIGN CATTLE SUPPLY.

A meeting was held in the Town Hall at Manchester to protest against the restriction placed upon the importation of foreign cattle. Jacob Bright and John Slagg, members of Parliament, spoke in furtherance of the object of the meeting. A resolution was passed condemning the House of Lords for meddling with the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Bill. The United States consul declared that American cattle and food-producing animals were the best fed and watered and the healthiest in the world. A similar meeting was held at Salford.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BANQUET.

A banquet was given in London in honor of St. Patrick. No loyal toasts were offered. Mr. Parnell, in proposing the toast "Ireland a nation," urged Irishmen not to depend upon any body of Englishmen, but to rely upon themselves. He said Ireland's future was promising, that the time was near at hand when an Irish Parliament would send a message of peace to the English Parliament. A. M. Sullivan said there would be no truce or peace with England until Ireland was endowed with institutions which alone could make the Irish race what its genius intended it should be in the economy of the world.

GARMOYLE-FORTESCUE.

Lord Garmoyle's defence in the action for breach of promise brought by Miss Fortescue has been delivered to the court. He admits the contract and breach of it, and leaves the jury to assess the damages, but submits that £30,000 is too much. The recreant lover is at Constantinople just at present, where he is the guest of the Earl of Dufferin, the British Ambassador. On leaving Constantinople he will make a tour of the east. Miss Fortescue is showing better dramatic capacity at the Court Theatre than ever heretofore. Her style is becoming more natural. Gilbert is blamed for having drummed her into an artificial style. She now gives promise of becoming a meritorious actress.

THE QUEEN'S HEALTH.

A London cable special says: It is doubtful whether the Queen will be able to go to Dramstadt to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Princess Victoria of Hess. Her condition is pronounced to be précarious. She is in apparently good health one day, and the next she suffers extreme fits of depression. If she goes two physicians will accompany her, and she will be attended by a very limited suite, consisting only of the Rt. Hon. Sir Henry Ponsonby, who is her private secretary, an equerry, and two ladies. A quiet retreat at Kranichstein, three miles from Darmstadt, is being put in readiness for her reception. The Emperor and Empress of Germany and the Emperor of Austria will meet the Queen there. The Empress of Austria sets out for Wiesbaden to-morrow, where she will try the baths for her health. The Czar will join the circle of royal personages late in April.

PRINCE BISMARCK CHEERED.

A Berlin despatch says: Prince Bismarck walked to the Reichstag on Monday for the first time in several years. Crowds of people filled the streets and followed the Prince, who was everywhere greeted with cheers. The Chancellor was highly gratified at his reception and repeatedly expressed his thanks. In the Reichstag the debate on the Workingmen's Accident Insurance Bill was resumed. Prince Bismarck spoke in advocacy of the measure. He urged its benevolent and Christian character, and said that it was intended to help the poor and consolidate peace between employers and workingmen.

Prince Bismarck, Prince Orloff, the Russian Ambassador at Berlin, and other leading diplomats will go to Darmstadt and take part in the informal conference of the Emperors. It is believed that the conference will concern itself chiefly with a discussion of measures to secure protection against socialist conspirators.

Sculling in the Far West.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—The rowing match of a mile and a half with turn, for $500 a side and the championship of the Pacific Coast, between Peterson and Lee, was won by the former by 15 lengths. A match has been arranged between Peterson and Hanlan for $1,000 a side and the championship. The race will be rowed in the east after Hanlan's return.

A PRISON MURDER.

A Gaoler Shot Dead.

The towns of Sandwich and Windsor were thrown into the wildest excitement by one of the most terrible tragedies that has ever happened in that neighborhood. About a month ago William Callaghan and Matthew Kennedy, two crooks from Detroit, broke into the postoffice at Harrow, Ont., and were caught. They have since been confined in Sandwich gaol awaiting trial. At eight o'clock Sunday morning Callaghan knocked the turnkey, John Davis, down as the latter opened the door of Ward 2 in order to sweep it, and grasping the keys, placed the proper one in the lock of Ward 1, where Kennedy was. A scuffle ensued between Callaghan and Davis, who had followed him, and Kennedy put his hand out and turned the key, thus freeing himself. The gaoler, George Leech, approached, and FIRED AT CALLAGHAN TWICE.

The latter, freeing himself from Davis, fired two shots at Leech, both of which took effect, one ball passing through his heart, and killing him instantly. Kennedy in the meantime, struck Davis with a large bottle, and stunned him. The two then made good their escape, taking a horse and buggy from one of the neighboring churches. They parted company behind Windsor, and Kennedy attempted to cross to Detroit at the Walkerville Ferry, about a mile above Windsor, but was DETECTED AND ARRESTED.

Nesbitt, who had been out with an exploring party, heard that Kennedy was held for identification. Hastening to the boat he at once recognized Kennedy, who made no resistance, and was immediately arrested and taken to the Windsor lock-up. When it became noised about at the wharf that one of Leech's murderers had been arrested there was a rush to see him. A crowd gathered about and became wild with excitement. Cries of

"LYNCH HIM," LYNCH HIM," were heard on every side, and for a time it was a question whether another tragedy would not be enacted, but the excitement died away. Kennedy was cool and dogged when first arrested, and refused to have anything to say, but when the crowd gathered about, and threats of lynching became general, he shook like an aspen leaf, and clung to the officers for protection. At the lock-up he became more calm, and talked freely about the murder, and claimed not to have been responsible for it. He said that Callaghan was severely wounded during the shooting in the gaol, and that when they reached the Catholic Church he was too weak to walk further. He asserted that Callaghan was so badly injured that he will die from his wounds if not captured, but the officers in what he says, as they believe he is trying to shape matters in such a way as to give his accomplice time to escape. Davis was out of his head at last accounts, but the doctor thinks he will eventually recover. Sheriff Iler has offered a reward of $500 for the capture of Callaghan, and volunteer patrolmen have been placed on guard along the river to see that he does not escape.

TAKE NO STOCK.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall-st., N. Y. January 24th, 1884. 1555-484

Electro Plate GOODS —AT— R. W. WOODROFFE'S JEWELLERY STORE, Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

FARM TO RENT.

Being Lot 23, Con. 7, Dereham, containing 150 acres, 110 acres cleared, balance timbered, and good buildings. For further particulars ap ply to DANIEL LINTZ, Salford. March 13th, 1884. 1592e

FOR SALE.

A House and Barn, Cow House underneath, with 4½ acres of land, being the last lot on King Street West, in the Corporation of Ingersoll. Possession one month from date, March 10th, 1884. If not sold by 10th April will be let. For particulars apply to JOHN ATKINS, Near the premises. March 13th, 1884. 1592t

STRAYED.

Strayed into the premises of the undersigned, Lot 24, Con. 2, Dereham, on or about Jan. 1st, 1884, one sheep. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges and take her away. JOHN FLAHERTY. March 13th, 1884. 1592e

EASTER FAT CATTLE FAIR.

THE OXFORD FAT STOCK CLUB WILL HOLD AN EASTER FAT CATTLE FAIR ON THURSDAY, APRIL the 3rd, 1884, At which prizes to the amount of $100 WILL BE OFFERED Fair to be held on the MARKET SQUARE, WOODSTOCK.

For Prize List and Rules apply to the Secretary or any of the Directors.

N. B.—The above Fair will be an excellent opportunity for farmers to bring forward their cattle for sale, as efforts will be made to have a number of prominent export and home buyers on the ground.

E. W. CHAMBERS, President. JOHN CRAIG, Sec.-Treas. March 13th, 1884. 1592c

RENNIE'S SELECT Field, Garden AND Flower SEEDS ARE THE BEST THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST COMPLETE CATALOGUE FOR 1884 FREE TO ALL INTENDING PURCHASERS. WM. RENNIE, TORONTO.

AUCTION SALE —OF— VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY!

Pursuant to a judgment made in a certain cause of KOYL VS. McKENNY, And bearing date the 25th day of February A. D. 1884, there will be sold with the approbation of H. B. Beard, Esq., Q. C., Local Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature, at Woodstock,

By Jas. Brady, Esq., Auctioneer, —AT— LAMBERT'S HOTEL, IN THE VILLAGE of SPRINGFIELD, —IN THE— COUNTY OF ELGIN At the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, on Friday, 28th of March, A.D., 1884,

The following lands and premises, together or separately:

1. All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of South Dorchester, in the County of Elgin, containing by admeasurement

SIXTY ACRES OF LAND,

Be the same more or less, being composed of the North-West part of Lot Lettered "B," in the Ninth Concession of the said Township of South Dorchester, and butted and bounded as follows, commencing at the North-west angle of said lot; thence south parallel with the western limit of said lot to lands deeded to James Sherrit in the south end of said lot; then east parallel with the southern boundary of said lot forty-six rods and two-thirds of a rod; thence north parallel with the said western limit to the northern limit of the said lot; thence west forty-six rods and two-thirds of a rod, more or less, to the place of beginning.

Also 2.—All and singular that certain parcel or tract of lands and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of South Dorchester, in the County of Elgin, containing by admeasurement

FIFTY ACRES,

Be the same more or less, being composed of the east half of the south half of Lot Number Two, in the Eighth Concession of the said Township of South Dorchester.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid, to be given by the said master.

TERMS OF SALE.

One-fourth purchase money payable on day of sale and a sufficient sum with such one-fourth to make up two-thirds of purchase money on each parcel within 30 days from the date of sale, without interest. The balance to be secured by a mortgage on the premises, payable one-third in 2 years, one-third in 3 years, remainder in 5 years from date, interest at 6 per cent., payable half yearly. The purchaser to have the option to pay the whole of the balance of the purchase money within one month after date of sale, without interest.

In all other respects the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice. For further particulars apply to JOHN HOSKIN, Q.C., Toronto; J. F. McDONALD, Barrister, Ingersoll; the Auctioneer, or J. C. HEGLER, Plaintiff's Solicitor. H. B. BEARD, Master at Woodstock. Dated the 11th day of March A. D., 1884. 1592l

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT. J. C. HEGLER. Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1587c-m

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A NEW PIANO, one of the best makes in America. The Piano can be seen at VANCE'S STORE, Thames Street. Ingersoll, Jan. 31st, 1884. 1586tf

FOR SALE OR TO RENT.

Eighty acres in West Oxford, part of Lot 13, 2nd Con.; 75 acres cleared, 10 acres of wheat, 12 acres manured last season; 3½ miles from Ingersoll; church, school, grist, and saw-mill on same lot, cheese factory on adjoining lot. For further particulars apply to HENRY TOPPING, Ingersoll, P. O. Feb. 19th, 1884. 83c.

J. S. PARKER,

Professor of Music, late pupil of Dr. Spark, Boro' Organist, Leeds, England, now organist and choir master C. M. Church, Woodstock, is open to give lessons in Vocal and Instrumental Music (Piano and Organ.) Will be at Daly House, Ingersoll From 9 to 12 EVERY THURSDAY, Address—Drawer 60, Woodstock.

London Loan Company, LONDON, ONTARIO. $100,000 to lend at Lowest Rates. Short loans at 6 and 6½ per cent. Apply to

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Special—Brown and Wells.
Special—Adams Tobacco Co.
Millinery Opening—I. Coyne.
Cheesemakers—J. T. Donnelly.
Auction Sale—Wm. Glendillen.
Card—G. J. Charlesworth, M. B.
Cheesemaker Wanted—M. R. Brown.
Sale of Farm Lands—Mackintosh & Peters.
Auction Sale—E. W. Scott.
Auction Sale—D. McDougall.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

ST. PATRICK'S Day, Monday last.

COAL BIN.—But it isn't there now.

THE streets will stand considerable cleaning.

THE base ball season is rapidly approaching.

THE breath of Gentle Annie has been very strong this week.

POLITICAL PRESSURE.—The candidate's fervent grip.

THIS is about the time the Maple trees shed sweetness into the sap buckets.

$50,000 to loan on real estate at lowest rates. Apply to Brown & Wells, Barristers.

HARNESS.—J. C. Hooper has purchased the business lately carried on by W. T. Feightner, and will conduct the same in the old stand.

REMEMBER the last grand concert for the season by the celebrated White Brothers, in the Town Hall, on Monday, March 31st. Look out for large posters to morrow or next day.

BIBLE SOCIETY.—The Ladies' Auxiliary Bible Society will meet at the house of Thos. Wells, on Tuesday next, March 25th, at 3 p.m. A full attendance of collectors is requested.

THE Mortar suspended by Mr. Browett in front of his store is a model of its kind, and is apparently large enough to pulverize all the hard feelings engendered by the vote on the Scott Act.

A double funeral passed through town last Saturday, being that of Mrs. George Cairns, of West Oxford, aged 53 years, and her son, William Cairns, aged 28 years. Both were victims of typhoid fever.

ACCIDENT.—On Monday of last week while Mr. Geo. Webber was chopping wood near Verchoyle, a tree fell on him and broke his skull. Dr. McKay, of Ingersoll, and Dr. Smith, of Mt. Elgin, dressed his wounds. It is believed he will recover.

MILITARY.—In the Princeton Company of the Oxford Rifles, John Meldrum is gazetted 2nd Lieutenant in place of Robert Holmes; and in No. 4 Company of the 25th Battalion, Thos. Henry Jones is similarly honored, vice David Kilpatrick.

SEED GRAIN.—Attention is directed to the advertisement of John A. McInnes & Co. They have opened a seed store nearly opposite the market where farmers will find a large stock. Several car loads of seed peas, free from bugs, have just been received. Read adv.

SOCIAL TEA AND CONCERT.—The young people of the King Street Methodist Church will give a social tea and concert in the church on Friday evening next, March 21st. Tea will be served in the lecture room from 6 to 7.45. Dr. Williams will occupy the chair. The admission fee is 25 cents.

DON'T forget the entertainment in the Y. M. P. B. A. Hall on Friday 28th inst. A splendid programme is being prepared. The sensational drama, "Delicate Ground" will be a leading feature, which alone will be worth double the admission fee. Tickets only 15 cents.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—The members of the W. C. T. U. deserve much praise from their friends in Ingersoll for the treat afforded in Col. Bain's lecture. Another star is to appear on the third of April in the person Jno. B. Finch, of Kansas, of which due notice will be given.

THE old tramp who was a "Michigan fire sufferer" last summer, will go on the road this spring as an "Ohio flood sufferer." He thought once that he would have to appear as a "Java earthquake sufferer," but the floods have fortunately rendered this excuse unnecessary.

FOR THE NORTHWEST.—The Grand Trunk Railway are doing a large emigration business this season. On Wednesday a special settlers train of 10 cars was despatched from Ingersoll for Devils Lake, Dakota, and Moosejaw, N. W. T. Mr. Robinson, Agent Grand Trunk Railway, shipped the party through to their destination.

NEW SEEDS.—Arrived per S.S. Denmark, London to New York, thirty-seven sacks of mangle, turnip, carrot and garden seeds, and per S. S. Canada 9 bales of natural grasses for permanent pastures, also 5 packages of flower seeds from Erfrut, Prussia, for John Pike, Seedsman, Woodstock. See new adv. in another column.

AN exchange has it that a superstitious subscriber who found a spider in a copy of his paper, wants to know if it can be considered a bad omen. Of course not. The spider was merely looking over the columns of the paper to see what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across the store door and not be disturbed.

NECK-TIE SOCIAL.—A Neck-Tie social will be given at the residence of Mr. James Baker, Wonham St., on Tuesday next, 25th inst. Tea at 6, and until all served. Proceeds for the benefit of Beacon Lodge I. O. G. T. Single ticket 15 cts., double ticket 25 cts. A good time may be expected as the "lads and lasses, oh!" will be sure to turn out in full force. All invited.

ABOUT THE SIZE OF IT.—An exchange observes that the greediest man after a local newspaper is the one who is too mean to subscribe. He is always in waiting for the latest paper, and it is not two minutes on the owner's premises till the non-subscriber pounces upon it and never lets up till the last line is read. His last act is usually to cast it aside with the remark that he could make a better paper himself.

DEATH OF DAVID PAINE.—David Paine, one of our oldest residents, died yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Paine having died just nine days before. Deceased came to Ingersoll from Kent, England, in 1842 and together with his wife has lived here ever since. In addition to six children, they leave thirty-one grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

THE GRAND MASTER SPEAKS.—Grand Master MacDiarmid, of Lucan, has issued a circular to all the lodges in the Dominion, recommending them to observe the time-honored usage of the order by assembling on April 26, it being the 65th birthday of Oddfellowship in America, and to render homage to Almighty God for the success and prosperity He has vouchsafed unto Oddfellows throughout the Dominion and the United States.

A RARE BOOK.—Mr. J. H. Grout, of Grimsby, newhew of W. K. Sumner of this town, is a possessor of an antiquated book, which is a rare curiosity in its way. It is a double translation of the New Testamant, having that of Rheims and the English version side by side. It was published in England in 1615, and being printed in the style of type and manner of spelling then used, is almost incomprehensible to ordinary readers of the present time.

BANK CHANGES.—Mr. C. W. Clinch for several years past manager of the Molson's Bank here has been appointed manager of the Woodstock branch to be opened in a few weeks. The business of the Molson's here will be taken over by the bank of London. It is rumoured that Mr. C. W. M. Simpson will receive the appointment of manager. He is well qualified for this position and his appointment would give general satisfaction.

PERSONAL.—Miss Celia Day, daughter of Mr. Enos Day of this town, has gone to Listowel where she has accepted a situation as head milliner in the establishment of Mr. J. Draper.—Mr. W. W. Griffey, formerly of this town, who has been foreman of the Democrat, Flint, Mich., for some time past, has purchased a third interest in the Youngstown, Ohio, Saturday Night, and will take charge of the mechanical department of that paper.—Rev. D Hutchinson, of St. Thomas, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist Church Sunday morning and evening.—Rev. M. C. Cameron, of Milton, preached in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening.—Mr. J. G. Campbell, of the Post Office Book Store, is home from New York.—Mr. Charles Parker, formerly with George Bailey is lying very low.—Mr. Curtis, who has been confined to his house for some time past, is making fair progress towards convalescence.

DR. LOW'S PLEASANT WORM SYRUP.—An agreeable, safe and effectual remedy to remove all kinds of worms. 91b

THIS PROGRESSIVE AGE.—Every one should know for himself that "Gold Coin" is the best Chewing Tobacco now made in Canada. The unprecedented demand for it, since it has been in the market, attests the fact. For sale by all Wholesale Grocers and Tobacco Dealers. Made by ADAMS' TOBACCO COMPANY, Montreal. 93wy.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 8b

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

"THE SWELLING OF JORDAN."

CONSOLATION OF RELIGION IN THE TIME OF AFFLICTION.

The Troubles of Jeremiah.

The Rev. Edward M. Bland, rector of St. James' Church, preached from the following text on Sunday evening last:—Jeremiah 12; 5: "If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how can'st thou contend with horses? And if in the land of peace, wherein thou trusteth, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?" The reverend gentleman said:—

While studying the character of Jeremiah we find that he might be described as a faint hearted man, and yet he was a man of noted perseverence, who, although bitter persecutions distressed him, which one would think were enough to cause him to regret that he ever had undertaken God's service at all, yet we find that he never shrank from any of his arduous duties. We think that the great source of his perseverance and the great safe guard of his strength, or rather the outlet for his weakness, was that at every time of trouble he went right straight to God, and instead of complaining to man he laid his case before his creator.

The present instance is one in which he is specially exercised because he saw that in spite of all God's promises concerning his people and his temple, he was sorely persecuted. Still the ungodly existed, and little success attended his commission. He was told to pronounce woe to the people if they did not seek God, but instead of listening to him they made him the butt of persecution, they afflicted him and said he was a false prophet; cast him into prison; accused him of coming into collision with them and upsetting order in the place. Deeply conscious of this state of things he pleads "Righteous art thou, Oh Lord, when I plead with thee; yet let me talk with Thee of Thy judgments."

It is some encouragement for us who are tried and afflicted with discouragements to know that God's servants, even his most trusted servants, were met with much trial, and made the butts of persecution in hands of wicked men. "Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? Wherefore are all they happy that deal very treacherously? Thou hast planted them, yea, they have taken root; they grow; yea, they bring forth fruit; thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins." God's answer is somewhat remarkable—a way similar to that in which He answered David, "When I went into the Sanctuary, then I understood the way of these men." And so it is with Jeremiah. God said to him, if these things trouble you and shake your faith, how will it be if I take you into greater dangers than these. "If in the land of peace wherein thou trusteth they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"

Now brethren, leaving the context of this passage, let us apply this question for a few brief moments to our own needs in our spiritual life. It is just as if He would ask how much religion have you got and what is it useful for? Is it only a show religion—prospering when everything glides along smoothly—or is it one that will stand the storms of trial, doubt and infidelity? Will it enable you to resist evil when it comes, or will you yield to it? Let us just understand here what is meant by the "Swelling of Jordan." It is not always understood as being the river of death but rather has reference to the banks of the river which sometimes overflow and at other seasons are places of impenetratable dangers, dark thickets and ravines, the haunt of wild beasts

The illustration is this: as long as you are on the high land you have peace and comfort, and is applicable to one journeying to the promised land. You can see on the plains you are now walking the bright shining river, and your heart rejoices within you amid peace and happiness.

Now when you have such pleasing scenes before you, and some little living—some unaccountable providence mars your prosperity, I say it is a little thing from God's standpoint—we are apt to look upon it from our own narrow views and think that the whole world is wrapped up in our service. If we could only look at it in God's light, away from the mists of the world, and get upon the eminence which can be obtained by God's spirit and then look down upon it, how soon we would be in a place of safety. I often think that our difficulties are magnified by looking too low. Standing on a high place by a city one can look down upon it, view the movements of its people, the perils they are exposed to and the dangers they encounter, yet they cannot see them because their sight is limited.

We always need to keep near God.

When surrounded with peace, when we are encircled within the hallowed precincts of the means of grace, when we have every cultivation for spiritual life, and we be cast down and say "it is no use of me trying to overcome this evil habit," then God's question comes in, is your religion merely a show? What will it be in the "Swelling of Jordan?" Down into the sheep thicket with swimming feet amidst the howling of wild beasts and hidden dangers of its banks, no longer having the bright shining river to guide you, but where your only safe guard is to get up and follow one of the heavenly bodies, either the stars or the sun to direct you. "If in the land of peace wherein thou trusteth, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the Swelling of Jordan?"

It is well for us to set ourselves forever against that question. In what state will our religion stand us when we come into real difficulties. We sometimes read of those who are put into most extraordinary distressing circumstances and with whom everything seems to turn out ill against them, and we say it is a wonder how their religion stands the test; how they can be so patient in such trials. We almost fear we should lose our faith under such difficulties. In the wav there are many dangers and dark places and I believe that every one of us must pass through the dark region of the Swelling of Jordan before we can reach the bright shore. I think it is precedent that every one should pass "through the valley and the shadow of death," not merely faint shadows, but those described in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," full of dark dangers, difficulties and trials, as only a fervent trust in God and a life of prayer and supplication will enable you to persevere and finally bring you out to the bright shining river.

We know whose presence alone will expel the dark shadows. "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flames kindle upon thee." And so may you be able to pass.

Regarding that question as it might be put to you "how wilt thou do in the Swelling of Jordan?" O may we be able to say with a heart full of confidence in the presence of the Saviour when evils seem to fight against our faith: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

PRESBYTERY OF PARIS.

Petitions From Ingersoll.

Paris, March 11.—The Presbytery of Paris held its quarterly meeting to day in Dumfries street church, Rev. Dr. Cochrane moderator, and Rev. W. J. McMullen clerk.

Two petitions were read from members of the lately united Presbyterian Church in Ingersoll, one signed by 212 members and 129 adherents, asking the Presbytery to approve of their worshipping in Erskine church in the other signed by 97 members and 54 adherents, asking to be congregated into another congregation to continue to worship in the Knox church.

After a lengthy discussion, motions were carried as follows:—That the prayer of the petitioners, who constitute the majority of the united congregation of the Presbyterian church, Ingersoll, be granted, and that with the pastor and session they be recognized under such name and title as they may choose to assume, and that in terms of their request they be permitted to worship in and possess the building known as Erskine church. In reference to the petition of the minority to be organized as a seperate congregation, the Presbytery appoint a committee to meet with said minority and confer further with them regarding said petition and all questions that must of necessity come up in the event of their being organized into a separate congregation and report to a subsequent meeting of the Presbytery. Further, that in the meantime the said minority be allowed to worship in the building known as Knox church, the Presbytery clerk being also instructed, if requested, to give them a supply of gospel ordinances. Mr. McMullen dissented from the latter judgment, and appealed to the Snyod.

It was agreed to hold the next meeting in Ingersoll on the second Tuesday of May next.

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

ZOFESA at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

MRS. Pinkham's Medicine at Browett's Drug Store, Ingersoll. 77

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 28, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

Our Manufactories.

Our manufactories are getting into full blast and the amount of work on the way and that already finished, shows that in spite of the depressed times, Ingersoll is holding her own, and more. The Noxon Co. having completed the removal of machinery into their new departments have put on additional forces, making everything hum in this immense establishment. Russell & Co. are busy from lumber yard to top story. Their sawmill is running all night. The revolution that has taken place in the old Eastwood foundry is marvellous indeed. Besides running their own machinery a most ingenious plan has been adopted to run that very notable industry of M. T. Buchanan who seems intent on reducing the labours of haying to a minimum through the introduction of his established grappling hay forks and conveyors.

North Oxford.

The half-yearly public examination of the pupils of S. S. No. 2 was held on Friday last, Miss Hobson, teacher. Mr. Beattie, teacher at Dixon's Corners, and Mr. Hotson, teacher, near Innerkip, took part in the examination, which was creditable alike to teacher and pupils.

West Zorra.

The following is the monthly examination report for February of S. S. No. 1 Walker's Corners, West Zorra:—Fourth Class, over 80 per cent: Allie Sutherland, Herbert Thornton, Alfred Chenoweth. Over 60 per cent: Violetta Harris, Clara Bennett, Lila Elliott, Arthur Elliott. Third Class over 70 per cent: Willie Greenfield, Maggie Walker. Over 50 per cent., Ollie Hossack, Kenneth Ireland, Fred. Thornton, Maud Walker. Junior Third, over 50 per cent., John Tomlinson, Richard Thornton. Second Class, over 70 per cent.: Stella Walker, Willie Dodge.

Putnam.

Our enterprising wagon maker is laid up with a severe sore throat.

Mr. Delaney is very ill caused from catching a severe cold and neglecting it.

The wife of Mr. Edward George lies exceedingly low and much fear is entertained for her recovery.

The cottage prayer meeting will be held at the residence of Mr. James Rowse this week.

The B. C. church had a bag social and concert in the church on Thursday night. The most notable feature of the programme was that far famed lecture on "Woman's Rights" by Solomon Peter Hale, Ingersoll's eminent divine.

The oyster social at the residence of Mr. Wm. Uglow, on Tuesday night of last week proved a grand success notwithstanding the bad roads and damp rainy evening. After all had partaken freely of the bivalves, Mr. Hebner Crews was called upon to take the chair and a short but select programme was gone through. The next feature of the evening was an election cake. The candidates were Miss Barr, from Mossly, and Miss Rowse, from Putnam. This was carried on in such a manner as to add much to the evening's enjoyment and brought in the sum of $12, Miss Barr winning the election by quite a majority. The total proceeds of the evening was $40.15.

Avon.

Miss Ada Tedford returned to her home at Blenheim, last week.

Mr. F. Teeple, of Sanilac Co., Mich., is visiting his friends in this vicinity.

Mr. Frank and Miss Eliza Row, left on Saturday to visit friends in Norwich.

Mr. Duncan McIntyre lost one of his horses last week by getting entangled in its halter.

Mr. Row has kept Young Sampson, one of the stallions he imported from England last summer. He is a beautiful bay in color and weighs 1,800 pounds.

George Goble took a load of young people up to Mr. Donald McIntyres on the 11th inst., to an oyster supper. As it was thought it would be the last sleigh ride of the season all went who could, and judging from appearances enjoyed themselves splendidly.

Mr. R. Row of this place has just sold his fine general purpose stallion "Young Sir Tatton Coachman" to Mr. Thomas Rockey of Mount Salem. The horse breeders of this section will miss "Sir Tatton" very much, as he was a great favourite with them all.

Thamesford.

Mr. John M. McKay, on the Governor's Road, is to raise up his barn and make an addition to it. His brother Geo., on the 13th con., is to build a large new barn. Mr. D. Reith has the contract for the stone work of both barns.

Mr. Freel, on the 10th con., is to raise up a large barn and put stabling under.

Mr. Henry Horsman, on the 1st side road, is to build a large new barn for his tenant, Mr. Strobridge. Mr. John Turnbull has the contract for the whole work.

Mr. Riley Day is to make considerable additions to his buildings.

Mr. D. Lawrence is to raise up a barn.

Mr. Chas. Stewart is to build a large brick house from plans by a Toronto architect.

Mr. Thos. Patterson, jr., is to build a fine brick house from plans by our local architect, Mr. Williamson, builder. Ingersoll has secured the contract for the whole work.

In the village Mr. D. Foster is making preparations to build a house.

Mr. John Brock is to raise up his barn and make stabling underneath. Mr. Ship has secured the contract for the mason work.

Mr. Shewan is to make extensive repairs to his house.

We understand that our own local builder, Mr. L. Bevins, has got the contract to build Dr. McWilliams' fine brick house.

Mr. Cawthrop is making preparations to add a large addition to the grist mill to make room for the new roller process machinery, involving a total outlay of nearly $8,000.

Messrs. Cooper Bros., carriage makers, are getting an engine to drive the band saw, shaper, and other machinery required in their ever-increasing business.

"The Ark."

King Street, Ingersoll, Contains the following bill of Fare, all of which is sold at prices as low as can be had anywhere.

Read it over carefully, and if you want anything that is not mentioned, let the proprietor of "The Ark" know it, and he will supply you on short notice.

All kinds of Plows, and repairs for the same, Corn Cultivators, Potato Plows, Corn Shellers, Road Scrapers, Field Cultivators, Hay Rakes, Seed Drills, Sap Pans, Sugar Kettles all sizes, Dog powers for Churns, Boss Washers and Wringers, Coal and Wood Cooking and Heating Stoves, Cutlery Silver Tea, Table and Desert Spoons, Tinned Iron, and Steel Tea Table and Desert Spoons, Cutlery, all grades and kinds, Harvest Tools of all kinds, Axes, Nails, all kinds of Granite Ware, Preserving Kettles, Brass and Enameled, Clothes Line Ware, Wash Tubs and Boards, Lardine, Castorine, Kaiser, Virginia, and Black Lubricating Oils, American and Canadian Headlight Burning Oils, Milk Cans, Pails and Pans, Mill Coolers, Tinware of all kinds, Pressed Hay and Straw, Hard and Soft Wood, all kinds of First-Class Tool Handles, Furniture in Marble Top, Raw Silk and Hair Cloth, suitable for the palace or the cabin, all stages of society from the humble and honest poor to the gentleman with his thousands; also Tubs, Boards and Brooms, Mops, Floor, Stove Horse, and Scrubbing Brushes, Damps and Chimneys, Clocks. Eavetroughing and repairing done promptly, Heating Drums and Stove Pipes, Dishes of all kinds, Smoothing Irons Mrs. Pott's Cold Handle Smoothing Irons, Scales, large and small, Spades, Forks, Shovels and Hoes, Mixed Paints, all ready for the brush; any tint or colour Boiled and Raw Oils, Root Cutters, Children's Carriages, Baby Jumpers, Corn Planters, Farmer's Bells, Carpet Sweepers, Dry and Liquid Measures, Bird Cages, Lanterns; Stove Polish, Lead and Iron Piping, Gas Fittings, Hog Rings and Hog Holders, everything in the House Furnishing Line, Axle Grease, Cistern Pumps, Wheelborrows, Sinks, and everything that is wanted to keep house with.

Cash paid for old Rubber Shoes, Bones of all kinds, Woollen and Cotton Rags, Old Brass, Copper and Lead, old Zinc, old Wrought and Cast Iron, all kinds of Furs, Beef Hides, Sheep Skins, Calf Skins, Horse Hair, Tallow and Beeswax.

47. H. CAMPBELL.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.

White Wheat, per bush..	$1 00	to	1 05
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 05
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 08
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	33	to	34
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	60	to	84
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush	7 50	to	8 50
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50

PRODUCE.

Potatoes, per bushel	0 60	to	35
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples pe lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	6	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	7 50	to	8 00
Live Hogs "	5 00	to	6 00
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	2 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 00	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts "	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	0 18	to	0 29

PROVISIONS.

Flour, new process, Spring 100 lbs..	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs....	2 75	to	3 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 10	to	2 25
Oatmeal	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts "	00 00	to	18 00
Marrowfat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	20	to	22
Butter, rolls, per lb	25	to	26
Cheese,	12	to	13½
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	18	to	20
Geese,	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	60
Ducks,	60	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	08	to	12

LIVERPOOL PROVISION MARKET.

Reported for THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN by Messrs. William Heapy & Sons.

Liverpool, Feb. 28th, 1884.

Cheese:—The market has ruled steady without any material change from the last report. The stock is reported to be small and in a few hands, and is firmly held for 71s. to 72s. Transactions for quantity are reported at 71s. There is a better demand for mediums. Market is getting well cleared of very low sorts. Quotations are: Common, 18s. to 20s.; winter made half meats, 42s. to 46s.; a few summer made lots offering at 60s. to 64s.

Butter:—With the colder weather a better demand is being experienced. Extra fine be ing scarce, buyers have difficulty in supplying their wants in that class and for such, 4s. to 5s. advance is easily realised, but medium or stale lots are dull and difficult to sell. Quotations are extra fine, 110s. to 116s. Creameries, 120s. to 124s. Good dairy lots, 90s. to 100s. Secondary and stale parcels, 60s. to 80s.

Bacon:—The demand has been disappointing for all cuts. The market has ruled quiet without much material change in value. Long and short clear 47s. 6d. to 48s. 6d.; short clear 48s. to 50s.; long clear 47s.; 47s. 6d. to 48s. 6d.; Straffordshire and other fancy cuts 47s. to 51s.; Cumberland cut stale parcels 42s. to 44s.; fresh landed lots 45s. to 48s.; Stretford cut 48s. to 50s.; long rib 48s. to 50s.; stale lots dull 42s. to 44s.; short rib 47s to 48s. 6d.; clear bellies ordinary brands 42s. to 44s.; extra fine 50s. to 53s.; shoulders 40s. to 44s.

Hams:—Some cuts from scarcity realise a slight advance on last week but the demand is not active. Long cuts are rather easier. Quotations are, long cuts 56s. to 61s. Staffordshire cuts 60s. to 63s.; fancy brands 68s.; Manchester cuts 62s. to 64s.; American cuts scarce at 62s.

Lard:—Has been dull and irregular with out much business passing, buyers and sellers being apart in their views. Sellers ask—Spot 48s. 6d. to 49s.; March, April, May, 48s. 6d.; June, July, August, 49s.; buyers, 6d. to 1s. under these prices.

Beef and Pork:—Have ruled very quiet, scarcely any business passing. No alteration in value.

Yours truly,
WM. HEAPY & SONS.

THE DAIRY INTEREST.

It requires 15,000,000 cows to supply the demand for milk and its products in this country, and that there are invested in the dairying business of the United States over $2,000,000,000, an amount nearly double the capital invested in banking and other commercial industries. It requires the cultivation of over 60,000,000 acres of land to furnish food for the above number of cows. More than $200,000,000 is invested in dairy machinery and implements alone. The men employed in dairying occupations number 700,000 and 1,000,000 horses are necessary. The cows and horses consume annually 20,000,000 tons of hay, 90,000,000 bushels of cornmeal and the same amount of oatmeal, 275,000,000 bushels of oats, 2,000,000 bushels of bran, and 30,000,000 bushels of corn, to say nothing of the brewery grains and questionable feed of various kinds that is used all over the country. It costs $400,000,000 to feed these cows and horses. The hired help engaged on the dairy farms of the Union costs $168,000,000, or an average price of $20 a month per capita. The annual yield of the average cow is placed at 450 gallons, making the total milk product 6,750,000,000 a year. The farmers' receipts for this milk, averaging it at 12 cents a gallon, amount to $810,000,000. Cheese and butter use up 50 per cent. of the milk yield. To make a pound of cheese 10 pounds of milk are required, and 27 pounds of milk to make 1 of butter. The comparative nutritive quantities of milk is as 34 pounds to 1 pound of prime beef. A fat steer furnishes 50 per cent. of boneless beef, but it would require about 24,000,000 steers, weighing 1,500 pounds each, to produce the same amount of nutrition as the 15,000,000 cows supply with their annual yield of milk.

AGRICULTURAL MEETING.

A meeting of the Directors of the N. and W. Oxford Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall, Ingersoll, on Saturday last, to take into consideration the report from the special committee in relation to the grant from the Town Council in aid of the removal of the agricultural grounds and buildings. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Moved by Thomas Choate and seconded by J. Fishleigh, that Thos. Brown, E. Casswell and G. H. Cook, be a Special Committee to meet with the Committee appointed by the Town Council, to make all necessary arrangements between the society and the town, relative to the changing of the site for the agricultural grounds, in accordance with the scheme adopted by the general meeting and accepted by the Town Council. Carried. After other business transacted by the Executive Committee, the meeting adjourned.

FARM AND DAIRY.

Mercedes, the celebrated Holstein cow, is dead.

Experts pronounce the alleged outbreak among cattle in Illinois not the foot-and-mouth disease.

The Avonbank cheese and butter manufacturing company are having a new steam boiler placed in their factory, the old one being insufficient to do the work of their increasing business. The directors have secured the services of Mr. Townson, who is recommended by Mr. Ballantyne, M. P. P., otherwise "Cheese Tom," as one of the best cheese makers in the country.

Following is the report of Eastwood Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Co. for season 1883: No. lbs. of cheese m'f'd, 63 tons 808 lbs.; No. lbs. milk required to make one lb. of cheese, 10 19/100 lbs.; average price per lb., 10 70/100 cts.. Directors elected for 1884, H. P. Welford, Jno. Nancekivell, John L. Overholt, David Leitch and Robt Robinson; H. P. Welford, Pres.; John Nancekivell, Vice-Pres.; John L. Overholt, Sec.-Treas.; H. P. Welford, Salesman. Mr. Copeland is engaged as cheese-maker for 1884.

At a meeting of the East and West Oxford Cheese and Butter Company, a resolution was passed and signed (with one exception) by all the shareholders present empowering the directors to arrange for the payment of the total indebtedness on the factory during the next three years, which includes that amount over and above the shareholders' stock. A by-law was passed by the directors for the transfer of two shares from F. Cody to W. H. Cody, and one share from James Bartley to Alfred Rice, and one share from M. Cole to James Innes.

The annual meeting of the patrons of Dunkin's cheese factory was held on the 7th inst. Mr. Geo. Barr was elected chairman and Mr. T. L. Dunkin, secretary. The report of last year's proceedings was read by Mr. P. Kirkley as follows:—No. of lbs. of milk received, 998,109; No. of lbs. of cheese made, 99,093; average lbs of milk per lb of cheese, 10 07; average price per lb of cheese, 10.92. Mr. P. Kirkley proposed to make the cheese and draw the milk on the same conditions as last year, viz.: for 1½c. per lb. of cheese and have $1.00 per ton for insurance, and selling; accepted. Messrs. Dunkin and Kirkley were appointed salesmen.

At the annual meeting of the patrons of the Burgessville Cheese Factory, Mr. J. L. Farrington gave the following report: Number of pounds of milk received last season, 1,878,617; average number of pounds of milk per pound of cheese, 9.97; total number of pounds of cheese, 188,310; number of tons 94 and 310 pounds; average price per pound of cheese, 10.96 cents. which makes the value of a thousand pounds of milk, $10.99. The cheese maker, Mr. J. M. Burtchart gave an address which was listened to with marked attention. Mr. B.'s remarks might be characterized as a "plain talk" with the milk-producers, rather than address, and dealt without gloves with the loose and careless method of milking and handling the milk before it leaves for the cheese factory, and in cheese-making itself.

The annual meeting of the patrons of Job Smith's factory, Norwich, convened on the 1st inst. Mr. Hugh McKed was elected chairman, and Mr. A. F. Miller secretary

The report of last year's transactions was read as follows:—The season was an extremely favorable one, and the quality of the cheese made exceptionally good; so much so that every buyer pronounced our cheese second to none in the county, and I may add that not a single box, out of a total make of 1,020, was rejected. No. of lbs of milk received, 708,870, against 769,335 last year; No. of lbs of cheese made, 68,462, against 73,880 last year; average for the season, 10.35; average price of sales for the season, 10.73/100, or nearly 10¾. Mr. Smith proposed to make the cheese and draw the milk for 1½c. per lb. cheese, and have $1.00 per ton of cheese for insurance and selling. Messrs. Smith and Duncan were appointed salesmen.

Mr. Thos. Vance, Iona, the well-known importer and breeder of horses, recently purchased a fine stallion from Mr. Charles Mason of Huron county. The price paid is said to be $2,000. Good horses are now becoming the rule hereabout.

We learn from the Post that on Tuesday afternoon a meeting was held at Bannan's hotel, Lindsay, for the purpose of taking steps to establish a cheese factory in West Ops. About fifty subscribers or patrons have agreed to furnish milk from their cows, making about 180 cows in all. It was expected that the supply of milk from 200 cows would be needed to keep the factory running. Mr. J. W. Moore of Lakefield was present and took an active part in the proceedings. Mr. Moore is a cheese maker of large experience and skill, and is at present running three factories, those at Lakefield, Douro and Bobcaygeon.

The Rural Canadian thinks that the Dairy Associations might render a great service to the country did they give at least an equal prominence to the subjects of butter and butter making. No one man can deny that Ontario has made wonderful progress in the cheese industry, under the factory system, during the past twenty years. In fact the industry has almost been created within this period, and its product adds millions of dollars to the wealth of the country. It is now an established industry, and for that result much credit is due to the Dairymen's Associations. It is now about time for them to take up the creamery system, and see if it is not possible to do for butter what they have done for cheese? The neglected industry is no less important than the cherished one; nay, we think that the making of butter is of greater importance than the making of cheese, and is deserving of a greater measure of encouragement.

THE RECORD OF THE FAIRS.

The superiority of Wells, Richardsoon & Co's., Improved Butter Color over all others made, is again demonstrated by its record at the Autumnal Fairs. The test of practical use is what tells the story, and the great value of the premiums given by the Agricultural Fairs, lies in the fact, that the judges in these cases are regular farmers, who know what their needs are and what will supply them. Wells, Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color, which has taken first premium at all fairs where exhibited, is put up in a venerable oil so prepared that it cannot become rancid, a most important property, the lack of which is fatal to so many of the Butter Colors offered for sale. It does not color the butter milk; it imparts a bright natural color, which is unattained by many others; and being the strongest is the cheapest Color in the market.

BORN.

MARTIN—At Brookham, Beachville, on the 9th inst., the wife of Mr. S. E. Martin of a daughter.

MARRIED.

SMITH—LUNO—At the residence of the bride's father Mr. G. Luno, of Dereham, on the 5th inst., by Rev. J. Archer, Mr. John Smith to Miss Annie Luno, all of Dereham.

BUTCHER—CLIFFORD—At the R. C. Parsonage, Dereham Centre, on 11th inst., by Rev. J. Archer, Mr. Wm. Butcher, of Houghton, to Miss Sarah E. Clifford, of Dereham.

DIED.

TINNEY—In Ingersoll, on the 16th inst., Edith May, daughter of Michael and Mary Tinney, aged 7 months and 15 days.

FRARY—In West Oxford, on the 19th inst., the wife of Mr. Richard Frary, aged 80 years.

HOPKINS—In West Oxford, on the 19th inst., Mary Evans, relict of the late Caleb Hopkins, aged 86 years.

CAIRNS—In West Oxford, on the 13th inst., Eliza Ann, wife of Mr. Geo. Cairns, aged 53 years.

CAIRNS—In West Oxford, on the 14th inst., William, son of Mr. Geo. Cairns, aged 28 years.

FOR pure and unadulterated honey, in comb and extract, go to R. Vance's. 86

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

—"Why! What's the matter?"

Lady—(With face enveloped in hot cloths) "Oh! I'm crazy with that Neuralgia that continually troubles me."

—"Well, how foolish! Why don't you go to Gayfor or Kneeshaw's Drug Store and get a bottle of Fluid Lightning? It cured me

FARM AND DAIRY.

Frothy Cream.

C. H. V., Windsor, N. Y., writes to the Farm and Fireside: "We have four cows that have given milk since spring, and the butter has come all right till Christmas; the first churning after that failed to come. It nearly filled the churn with froth. We have tried it four times with the same result, the cream being the same temperature as before Christmas. Will you or some of your numerous readers please explain?"

REPLY:—We have several times, recently, given the remedy for this trouble. It is simply to scald the milk. Immediately after milking strain the milk, and set the vessel containing it in another vessel containing a little water, and heat on the stove until the surface is well wrinkled. The milk may be brought almost to the boiling point without injury. Then set away in a cool place, as usual, and in more than nine cases out of ten there will be no further trouble with the churning, while you will get more butter than from milk not scalded. For this work the ordinary two-gallon tin pans are most convenient, the milk being strained into one and that set into another, with water between. A very little water is sufficient.

Fancy Cheese Making.

By T. D. Curtis of Syracuse, N. Y.

Received premium of $15 from the Wisconsin State Dairymen's Association as best essay under 250 words.

"Pure whole milk from healthy cows, in luxuriant pastures or fed duly balanced rations in stall, is requisite. The more directly it goes to the vat, the better. If kept over night, reduce the milk to sixty five degrees Fahrenheit. An agitator, to keep the cream from rising, is desirable. Mix night's and morning's milk when ready to work. If cream is mixed in, warm it and pass it through a wire strainer. Heat the milk slowly to eighty-four or eighty-six degrees. Add your coloring matter, and rennet enough to begin coagulation in ten to twenty minutes, as desired. Cut the curd as soon as it can be done without waste, as fine as beech-nuts. Slowly raise the temperature, gently stirring all the while to ninety-eight degrees. Hold it there to the end. Draw the whey as soon there is the least sign of acid, or a little before. Get sufficient rennet action to expel the whey before the acid develops. This prevents the phosphates from washing out and insures a digestible cheese, when properly cured. If you cheddar and grind or not, thoroughly stir and air the curd, to get rid of bad odors and develop flavor. Put to press not above eighty degrees, and place in an even tempered curing room at sixty-five to seventy degrees. Avoid direct drafts of air, and carefully turn and rub the cheese, which will be prime."

Breeds of Dairy Cows.

The Short Horns, under well recognized pedigrees of purity in blood, were imported into New England in 1817 and 1818, and within a few years afterwards into New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The breed then had a high reputation as dairy cows. They were not only bred among themselves in purity of blood, producing valuable milkers among their heifers, but the produce of the bulls used on native cows also made a decided improvement in the dairy yields of their descendants; so that the Short Horn grades from our common cattle became quite popular among intelligent dairymen throughout the districts where they were so bred and used, as they are also at the present time. Yet there now exists an essential draw back to the Short Horns as connected with their dairy yields. Their remarkable flesh taking qualities and early maturity soon found them making rapid migration into the rich grazing and corn-growing States west of the Alleghany mountains, where the milking qualities were of secondary value, and by neglect of them, in preference for flesh, both in thoroughbreds and grades, they have measurably lost their reputation and preference for the dairy. Yet in the more easterly States they still have a good reputation as dairy cows, both in thoroughbreds and grades, but are not advertised as superior to all others, although in many individual instances they might truthfully be stated as the peers of any others, of whatever breed they might be.

The Devons were also imported into New England, New York and Maryland in the same years with the early Short Horns. Although of much less size, yet beautiful in symmetry of shape and color, they were equally good with the Short Horns, according to their size and consumption of food. But from their lack of size, weight and early maturity, although in the latter quality not much deficient, they never attained the notoriety and wide-spread occupation in the western grazing regions so rapidly achieved by the Short Horns. Of the valuable dairy qualities of the two breeds above named, I have had positive proof, in breeding them from the year 1834 to the present time with the Short Horns, and upwards of twenty years with the Devons, in both thoroughbreds and their grades descended from our native cattle. I have never used a grade bull from any breed during the fifty years of my stock farming, fully believing that the only way of true improvement is to breed from thoroughbred bulls alone as the only sure way to advancing excellence in their produce.

The Ayrshires from Scotland were first introduced among us into New England about the year 1822, and soon afterward into New York, and possibly elsewhere, but not in any considerable numbers. They had wide reputation in their native country for the dairy. They proved good dairy cows in America, but not remarkable as flesh producers, and although they have sustained a fair reputation as dairy cows, have not won a wide popularity as a leading breed.

The Jerseys, then called Alderneys, were from the small island of that name whence they were taken on shipboard a few miles from their native Jersey, one of the British Channel Islands near the coast of France. They came to New England about fifty years ago, and were few in number. They were selected by their public spirited importers for their rich yield of milk and the superior butter made from it—the only quality for which they were esteemed, their bodies being diminutive in size, angular in shape, outre in colors, lean in flesh, and with the exception of their attractive deer-like heads rather ugly in appearance. Yet their taking dairy qualities after a while spread widely their reputation. Within the last ten or twelve years importations by the thousand have been made, and flooded our own papers with advertisements, and the cattle widely distributed at public sales into almost every State of our Union at prices hitherto unknown to any other foreign breed, except in a few notable sales of the Short Horns.

The Guernseys, from another island near to Jersey, of perhaps the same original blood as the Jerseys, have also been lately imported, but in much less numbers. They are larger in size than the Jerseys, of equally good dairy quality, better in flesh production, and as they are bred and used, may be equally approved for the dairy.

Last of all, but nearly equally prominent, the Holsteins or Friesians have come in upon us from Holland, some thousands in number, within the last few years, equally advertised and sold at both public and private sales at high prices, and widely distributed like the Jerseys. They are large in size, black and white in color, raw-boned, large consumers of food not highly fleshed as a beef-producing animal, but, as a rule, extraordinary milkers in quantity of weight and measure, although not of high quality—better for cheese than butter; a cow useful for the milkman to sell milk for family consumption.

☞Decorative Art. Explicit directions for every use are given with Diamond Dyes. For dyeing Mosses, Grasses, Eggs, Ivory, Hair &c. 10c. Druggists keep them. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.

A cold spell—Z-e-r-o.

——"Why! What's the matter?"

Lady—(With face enveloped in hot cloths) "Oh! I'm crazy with that Neuralgia that continually troubles me."

——"Well, how foolish! Why don't you go to Gayfer or Kneeshaw's Drug Store and get a bottle of Fluid Lightning? It cured me in less than one minute. I always keep a bottle in the house. It only costs 25 cents."

Indian affairs—Wigwams.

As a sure remedy for Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle. 87t

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Latest Recipes.

A piece of soft flannel is the best thing to use for wiping dust off silk dresses; better than any brush ever made.

To make starch for colored articles, muslins, ginghams and calicoes, dissolve and add to every pint of prepared starch a piece of alum the size of a nutmeg. By this means the colors may be kept bright.

To give starched linen a high lustre add to half a pound of the prepared starch a very little ultramarine blue and a piece of stearine about the size of a nutmeg, boil two or three minutes longer. Starch the clothes in this, rubbing the starch well into the cloth and polish with a hot iron.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Mix one gill fine oatmeal (Schumacher's A) with one half-pint warm water, pour it into a saucepan with one quart boiling water, and stir till it boils and sets, then place it in a kettle of boiling water, and boil half an hour more or less, and serve warm, thinning it with milk or water if desired.

Baked Eggs.—Baked eggs are sometimes relished by those who find fried ones greasy and indigestible. Butter a deep pie plate, then put in the eggs, taking care not to break the yolks of any; put a little lump of butter on each egg, and a little pepper and salt, too. If the oven is hot, the eggs will be cooked sufficiently in four minutes. As soon as the whites are firmly set they are done.

Cocoanut Crisps.—Make a rather thick oatmeal gruel and with this put one pint good coarse oatmeal (Schumacher's C.); add one half gill sugar and one gill dissicated cocoanut, using only gruel enough to make them all adhere. Mix thoroughly and pack it down in the mixing dish. Let it stand ten minutes and then take out thin slices (about a level tablespoonful) with a spoon, and slip them out on an oiled tin, making little flat ragged looking cakes about two inches in diameter and one quarter of an inch thick. Bake in a very moderate oven thirty minutes, or until they begin to brown, and will readily loosen from the pan. Serve like cake. Masticate carefully. They are sweet, pretty, toothsome and wholesome.

Apples for Dessert.—Boil rice very soft and line with it a well buttered pudding dish. Lay over it a layer of sliced apples, using an easily-cooked, mildly tart variety than which nothing could be better than the Fameuse. Add another layer of rice and another of apples until the dish is full. Add a little water to keep the rice from becoming dry on top, and bake until the apples are done. Or pare some apples and remove the core, without cutting the apple in two. Fill and cover them with boiled rice, allowing a cupful of uncooked rice for each half dozen apples; tie in a cloth and boil until the apples are done. Eat with cream and sugar. Another excellent dish is made by filling a pudding dish with sliced apples, dredging occasionally with flour as they are laid in the dish; then season with sugar, cinnamon and a few bits of butter, pouring in just water enough to make them moist, but not really juicy, when done. Cover the dish and bake. When partly cool, serve on plates, adding two or three spoonfuls of cream for each person.

Fancy Work.

Birchbark dinner cards are a novelty.

New mantel draperies match the material of the upholstery of the furniture.

Tambourines decorated with handpainting and ribbon bows are now used for letter and card receptacles, work baskets, or toy-boxes.

Guests' places at dinner table are prettily marked in this way. Have an alphabet made of tin, each letter about three inches high and deep enough to hold a little wet sand; fill the sand with tiny flowers and leaves.

A pretty and inexpensive trimming for a table cover may be made of scraps of silks. Piece them into four shapes, and ornament with fancy stitches after the style of the crazy quilt Edge with some pretty lace, and apply them in any way your fancy may suggest.

A pretty shade for a chandelier globe is made of a band of bright satin ribbon two inches wide. Knot a fringe of embroidery silk the shade of the ribbon, into the edge scallops. For a chandlier of three lights use crimson yellow, and blue ribbons and fringes.

Not a Ground for Divorce.

From the San Francisco Post.

The other morning a volcanic looking matron appeared in Judge Lawler's court, and demanded to be informed as to the very earliest moment a divorce could be grated to a cash customer.

'Have you a complaint, madam?' said the Judge, soothingly.

'I should say I had, Judge,' snapped the applicant. 'I'll just tell what that brute Skinderson—I'm Mrs. Skinderson, more's the pity—what that brute Skinderson's been doing. Flesh and blood can't stand it no longer.'

'Didn't beat you?' inquired his Honor.

'I should like to see him try it,' said Mrs. S. with an indignant sniff. 'It's a heap worse than that Mr. Court, a heap worse than that. This morning I was talking with the aggravating thing for over two hours—just arguing with him, mind you, about a new paper for the parlor—when what do you suppose he did?'

'Tried to shoot himself hazarded the Judge.

'I just wish the brute had. No, sir; the mean wretch rang for a district telegraph messenger boy and when he came Skinderson lay down on the lounge and says with one of those cold tantilizing smiles of his'n, 'Martha, I'm worn out now, and I'm going to take a nap. Just wrangle with this boy for an hour or two, and when I wake up I'll relieve him. If he gives out meanwhile, just ring up another.'

'I'm afraid you couldn't get a divorce on that,' said the court reflectively,

'Couldn't, eh,' cried the victim of domestic infelicity in a rage. 'All right, I'll go straight home, and if Skinderson hasn't woke up yet I'll dump some hot ashes on his head.'

Poker in Paris.

Poker, says Le Gaulois, is an American importation. At the present epoch it is installed everywhere in Paris, and it is beginning to threaten the supremacy of baccarat. Amusing and exciting, it leaves sufficient to chance, while allowing ample scope to inspiration and finesse. Taking long to learn and being difficult to know, the beginner may be discouraged; but, when once it is acquired, even veteran baccarat players find a 'palpitating delight' in the intoxication 'du flush et du straight.'

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisville, or Texas, to find living witnesses of its value, we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be, I have taken three bottles and am nearly well and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than I ever expected to be. Free trial bottles at Gayfer or Kneeshaw's Drug Store.

A hollow cost—The price of a drum.

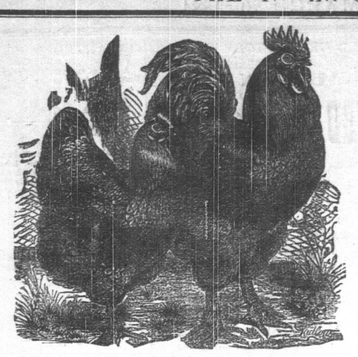
HEALTH is a duty, disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mankrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle. 78

King Alfonzo is a bright elocutionist.

A STARTLING DISCOVERY.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Huron, Dakota, writes that his wife had been troubled with acute Bronchitis for many years, and that all remedies tried gave no permanent relief, until he procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which had a magical effect, and produced a permanent cure. It is guaranteed to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs or bronchial tubes. Trial bottles free at Gayfer's drug store. Large size $1. 90t

There are 250,000 Sweeds in Minnesota.



BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetters, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by John Gayfer. 74v-y

The glass of fashion—A toddy tumbler.

A QUESTION TO THE POINT.

Reader, have you a languid, weak and tired feeling, with nervous exhaustion, especially in the early spring? Then your liver is inactive and circulation poor. Arouse the torpid liver, cleanse the sluggish blood and regulate the secretion with that purifying tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. 93i.

LANGSHANS.

The coming fowls. Bred from pure imported stock by F. Wixon, Ingersoll.

On Wedding Tours.

Be sure you're right (well supplied with cash), then go ahead.

Remember that "two are company, three is none," and don't take your mother-in-law along.

If possible, avoid quarreling before the first twenty-four hours. By some superstitious people a fight before the second sunset is regarded as a bad omen.

Do not make ungentle remarks when you discover that your angel's sunlit locks are not her own. She may reply by asking you why your nose gets sored when it is washed.

Don't be afraid to say "my dear" to your bride. Nobody will think that you are on your wedding tour. Couples who have fought like cats and dogs for twenty years do that.

If there is a squalling baby on the train, don't offer to take it and walk the floor with it while its mother gets a little rest. Everybody will know at once that you have not been married long.

You will continually feel an almost uncontrollable desire to buy everything your wife admires, and if you have the money you had better gratify that feeling while it lasts, for it will never return again—never.

If things are not all right in the parlor car, rip and tear around at the train hands. This, if done in a sufficiently loud tone, will give the bride warning that if she values peace and quiet, she must compel you to do just as you please.

It is no longer considered good form to ask your bride to begin sewing on buttons and darning socks as soon as the train starts. Wait until it is well under way, and the people have become interested in their books and magazines. It will be time enough then to open your satchel and remind her that the battle of life has begun.

The usual plan of preventing a general recognition of your new condition, such as refraining from hugging and kissing in public, are of little use, as people have very sharp eyes; but there is a scheme which, though perhaps never tried, will, we are sure, work to perfection. Go to an orphan asylum, hire six or eight children of assorted ages and take them with you.—Philadelphia Call.

The Girl That Everybody Likes.

She is not beautiful—oh, no! Nobody thinks of calling her that. Not one of a dozen can tell whether her eyes are black or blue. If you should ask them to describe her, they would only say: "She is just right," and there it would end. She is a merry-hearted, fun-loving, bewitching maiden, without a spark of envy or malice in her whole composition. She enjoys herself, and wants everybody else to do the same. She has always a kind word and a pleasant smile for the oldest man or woman; in fact, I can think of nothing she resembles more than a sunbeam, which brightens everything it comes in contact with.

All pay her marked attention, from rich Mr. Watts, who lives in a mansion on the hill, to negro Sam, the sweep. All look after her with an admiring eye, and say to themselves, "She is just the right sort of a girl!" The young men of the town vie with one another as to who shall show her the most attention; but she never encourages them beyond being simply kind and jolly; so no one can call her a flirt; no, indeed, the young men all deny such an assertion as quickly as she.

Girls—wonderful to relate—like her, too; for she never delights in hurting their feelings, or saying spiteful things behind their backs. She is always willing to join in their little plans and assist them in any way. They go to her with their love affairs, and she manages adroitly to see Willie or Peter, and drop a good word for Ida or Jennie, until their little difficulties are all patched up and every thing goes smoothly again—thanks to her.

Old ladies say she is "delightful." The sly witch—she knows how to manage them. She listens patiently to complaints of rheumatism or neuralgia, and then sympathizes with them so heartily that they are more than half cured.

But she cannot always be with us. A young man comes from a neighboring town, after a time, and marries her. The villagers crowd around to tell him what a prize he has won, but he seems to know it pretty well without any telling, to judge from his face. So she leaves us, and it is not long before we hear from that place. She is there the woman everybody likes.—Christian Advocate.

Noah's Ark.

Some Turkish commissioners appointed to investigate the question of avalanches on Mount Ararat suddenly came upon a gigantic structure of very dark wood protruding from a glacier. They made enquiries of the inhabitants. They had seen it for six years, but had been afraid to approach it because a spirit of fierce aspect had been seen looking out of the upper window. Turkish commissioners, however, are bold men, not deterred by such trifles, and they determined to reach it. Situated as it was among the fastnesses of one of the glens of Mount Ararat, it was a work of enormous difficulty, and it was only after incredible hardships that they succeeded.

The ark was in a good state of preservation, although the angles had been a good deal broken in its descent. There was an Englishman present who had presumably read his Bible, and he saw it was made of the ancient gopher wood, which everyone knows grows only on the plains of the Euphrates.

Effecting an entrance to the vessel, which was painted brown, they found that the admiralty requirements for the conveyance of horses had been carried out, and the interior was divided into partitions fifteen feet high. Into three of these only could they get, the others being full of ice, and how far the ark extended into the glacier they could not tell. If, however, on being uncovered it turns out to be eight hundred cubits long it will go hard with the misbelievers in the book of Genesis. "Needless to say," says an English paper, "an American was soon on the spot, and negotiations have since been entered into with the local pasha for its speedy transfer to the United States."

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Self Help.—Prior to the discovery of these remedies an easy, ready and reliable remedy for outward disfigurations and inward complications was, practically speaking, unknown. No one need now be at a loss if they should unfortunately suffer from ulcers, sores, tumors, boils, bruises, sprains, &c. Enveloping Holloway's medicines are very intelligible printed directions for using them, which should be attentively studied and immediately followed by all who resort to his treatement. Sooner or later the sufferer will assuredly triumph over the worst diseases. This searching Ointment disperses all those malignant humors which aggravate diseases of the skin, prevent the cicatrization of ulcers, and excite inflammatory tendencies in the system.

Miss-construction — Whalebone, cotton and paint.

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation, of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female Complaints, etc.

THE SAHARA DESERT.

A Portion of it to be Transformed into an Inland Sea.

A Paris cable says the Bey of Tunis has given M. Roudaire authority to carry out his scheme for transforming a portion of the desert of Sahara into an inland sea. M. Roudaire is a French cavalry officer, who conceived the project of cutting through the dunes which separate the sea from the desert, with the idea that he would thereby transform vast tracks of arid waste into fertile country. His plan seemed so promising that the French Assembly gave him an appropriation of 10,000 francs, and he devoted two years to surveys and observations. The results of this work were made public in 1877, and created a profound impression. M. Waddington, who was then Minister of Public Instruction, gave Roudaire unqualified support. Since then the surveys have been re-made, and the project has been the subject of much controversy in the scientific world. M. Roudaire has become more convinced than ever of the feasibility of his plan, and of the immense advantages which will flow therefrom, and the difficulties in the way of its realization are one by one giving way.

Pisa by Moonlight.

Few travellers journeying towards Rome along the railway that borders the lovely coast line of the Riviera pass the old city of Pisa without pausing there to view its noble buildings.

There is hardly any building, the form of which has been made so familiar to us by models and representations, as the Campanile or Leaning Tower of Pisa, and few travellers gaze upon it for the first time without feeling that they are but looking at an object with which they have been familiar from youth. But most people are not aware that this remarkable structure is only a feature of a combination of buildings, which for beauty and historic interest stand unrivalled; and the stranger who enters the famous piazza for the first time, where the tower, the beautiful Duomo, the dome-like Baptistry, and the solemn and peaceful "Campo Santo," or burying-ground, are grouped together, cannot fail to be struck with surprise and delight at the wonderful sight. Standing in silent grandeur in what has fitly been called a "sacred corner," apart from all other buildings and habitations, and distinct in character from their surroundings, they seem to form a city of their own, and to awake in the mind of the spectator a profound sense of the great past.

This was eminently my experience as I stood on this piazza one glorious moonlight night in the month of December.

I was travelling at Rome and had arrived at Pisa by a late train, intending to rest here, and resume my journey in the morning. The night was surprisingly lovely, a night that indeed seemed as Byron says, "not sent for slumber"—soft and still as I had imagined Italian nights to be, with the full moon shining clear and silvery from a cloudless sky in the white marble palaces and the stone-flagged roads, bathing the city in marvellous beauty. Tempted by the glory of the scene I wandered through the old city, through quaint, narrow streets, darkened here and there by deep shadows, over the marble bridge spanning the Arno River, and on to the Piazza, where the venerable monuments of Pisa's ancient wealth and pride still remain.

Flooded with the divine light, and standing alone in the great square amid a stillness that was profound, they seemed like the spectres of the mighty past rising before us. Whilst decay is written everywhere else about this old city, this piazza and these great buildings have changed in nothing. It seemed but natural to expect the great Italian astronomer Galileo to come forth on such a night, and those grand old masters who once paced here, but whose footsteps now are "echoing through the corridors of time."

Who heeds this square to-day may go back in thought hundreds of years, and picture the gorgeous pageants of ecclesiastical pomp and military splendor that must have been celebrated around this cathedral when Pisa was the gateway of the East, and her colonies of commerce existed in Greece and Asia Minor. Here came the people in their splendid processions to obtain the church's benediction when Pisa equipped her mighty fleet of ships, and assembled her brave warriors for the crusade; and when from warlike expeditions against Turks and Genoese the Pisans returned crowned with victory, it was to this Piazza the exultant citizens flocked to celebrate their triumphs. Full of such pictures of the past, I could but muse and be still.

About the city "Ichabod" is everywhere written.

"Every monument the stranger meets,
Church, palace, pillar as a mourner greets."

Yet time has not dealt cruelly with her. Her ancient ways are quiet, and her once thronged and busy squares now green with grass. The Arno flows peacefully through her, as of old, to the sea. Her white palaces are still fair to behold, and every scholar and lover of art who visits her must feel that Pisa is lovely and beautiful in her old age.

Magistrate and Prisoner Both Drunk.

The following curious scene was enacted in the Mayor's court of a certain town in Lincolnshire: Unfortunately for the Mayor, his duties on the bench claim his attention as he rises from the table. A man was brought up before him on the charge of being drunk and incapable. The Mayor, who had previously been smiling benignly around on the crowd assembled in the court, looked at the man unsteadily for a moment with blinking eyes, and on the completion of the evidence said: "Prishner, you—you orra be 'shame o' yershelf! You'll have a pay four and tempence orra month!" The prisoner was removed by the constable, and the magistrate was assisted out by his clerk.—Pall Mall Gazette.

—Many sleighing accidents are caused by too close "hitching-up." That is true. But most couples prefer to take the risk.

What a comfort to be able to gratify one's appetite once more without pain, after long suffering from Dyspepsia! Victims of indigestion and Billiousness, invariably yield to its potent regulating action.

If you want fast colors and brilliant shade use the popular Star Dyes.

When the blood is loaded with impurities and moves sluggishly in the veins, an alterative is needed, as this condition of the vital fluid cannot last long without serious results. There is nothing better than Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify the blood, and impart energy to the system.

Ill fitting boots and shoes cause corns. Holloway's Corn Cure is the article to use.

Ayer's Hair Vigor stimulates the hair cells to healthy action, and promotes a vigorous growth. It contains all that can be supplied to make the natural hair beautiful and abundant; keeps the scalp free from dandruff, prevents the hair from becoming dry and harsh, and makes it flexible and glossy.

The Origin of Musquitoes.

The Indians have a very satisfactory account of the origin of the Montezuma musquitoes. The legend runs thus: There were in times of old, many moons ago, two huge feathered monsters permitted by the manitou to descend from the sky and alight on the banks of the Seneca River. Their form was exactly that of the musquito. They were so large that they darkened the sun like a cloud as they flew toward the earth. Standing one on either bank they guarded the river, and stretching their long necks into the canoes of the Indians, as they attempted to paddle along the stream, gobbled them up, as the stork king in the fable gobbled up the frogs. The destruction of life was so great that not an Indian could pass without being devoured in the attempt. It was long before the monsters could be exterminated, and then only by the combined efforts of all the warriors of the Cayugas and Onondaga nations. The battle was terrible, but the warriors finally triumphed, and the mammoth musquitoes were slain and left unburied. For this neglect the Indians had to pay dearly. The carcasses decomposed, and the particles, vivified by the sun, flew off in clouds of musquitoes, which have filled the country ever since.—Wm. F. Taylor, in the Manhattan.

"The Proper Thing."

The fashion which a number of young club men have been trying to import from England of doing away with overcoats in the winter is still a failure. The climate is so much more severe here than at home, you know, that the dear boys suffer from pneumonia, diphtheria, colds, sore throats and wet feet incessantly. The leader at this sort of thing is the son of a banker in Broad street who is prominent in the Essex County Hunt Club. He comes of a good old American family—probably one of the best in the State—but he evidently considers it much more distinguished to be English than American. He apes everything that is English and talks with an accent that renders him quite unintelligible to the majority of mankind. He wears loud Tweed suits, with short coats and high collars. Every day, even in the bitterest weather, he may be seen stalking down Broadway toward Wall street, without an overcoat. The truck drivers, messenger boys and pedestrians generally look at him pityingly. He is tall and very slim, and when he is cold he looks as blue as a fish. He fairly quakes when he stops to talk, but he feels gratified because he is quite convinced that he is doing what he calls "the proper thing."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Clock with a History.

Dr. Ed. Swivel, of Huntingdon, is the possessor of an antique clock which has a remarkable history. In 1712 the ancestors of Mr. Swivel left Germany for America, and among their effects was a large old-fashioned clock that was prized highly by them as an heirloom. Before reaching America the vessel on which they had sailed was wrecked, but fortunately no lives were lost. A few weeks after the cargo of the vessel was recovered by wreckers, when the old clock was sent to its proper owners in Pennsylvania. At this time the Indians had become very troublesome in the Cumberland Valley where the Swivels had settled, and the inhabitants of that region were kept in constant dread of an impending invasion.

Finally an attack was made on the settlers, many of whom were killed, a number taken into captivity, and their village destroyed. Among the number taken captive were the Swivels, who were treated barbarously by their dusky captors, but by kind attention shown to the Indians during sickness, were finally liberated, after months of privation and suffering.

From the date of this occurrence nothing was heard of the old clock until about two years afterwards, when a party of Indians who were trading in the Juniata Valley—where the Swivel family had subsequently moved—exchanged the old timepiece for ammunition to the very family from which it had been stolen during the Indian raids in the Cumberland Valley.—Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot.

The White Elephant's Retinue.

A singular and interesting custom prevails among the Todas Indians, a race about 2,000 strong, which dwells in the Nellgherry Hills, in Mysore, Southern Hindustan, and one which should commend itself to the favor of those unhappy people now abiding in Utah. It is said that all the brothers of a family unite, and take unto themselves one wife, and this family wife is the object of the combined adoration of from one to twenty men, who constitute her husband.

Several of these Polyandrians, together with two Afghans (natives of Afghanistan) and four Hindus, sailed from Bombay for New York on the steamer Coptic recently. Two of the Todas are priests, who are looked upon in their own country as gods, because of the fortitude with which they bear self-inflicted punishment. It is asserted that their endurance is cultivated to such a high degree that they will be able to ride from Fulton ferry to the Brooklyn City Hall in a street car without uttering a moan. It is probable that this is an exaggeration on the part of the representatives of the Barnum and London shows, for which these foreigners are intended.

They will have seats in the ethnological congress which will surround the white elephant with a view to making the beast feel as comfortable and as much at home as the circumstances will permit.—N. Y. Times.

The Future of Cycling.

To the uninitiated Sir Charles Dilke's prophecy that cycling will be the "future diversion" of all large towns, is not perhaps very cheering; indeed, it may well seem only one shade better than Mr. Ruskin's picture of English life in the next century, when the prevailing form of exercise will be to go from one big town to another underground.

But whatever may be its future, cycling certainly has already obtained a recognized place among English institutions. Its economic value is widely recognized: and while the French Government is proposing to mount rural postmen on tricycles, Mr. Whitely has already adopted that method for distributing his goods. Then the Queen, it appears, "has been for some time a tricyclist, and her children and grandchildren are cyclists," and the last protege of the British crown—the Khedive Tewfik—is, we may add, a tricyclist also. And, what is more, cycling touches political interest at home; for it has done a great deal in the way of exploring the condition of rural roads, and it required some control on Sir C. Dilke's part last night not to run on from the condition of rural roads to rural representation.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mr. Wm. Boyd Hill, Cobourg, writes: "Having used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for some years, I have much pleasure in testifying to its efficacy in relieving pains in the back and shoulders, I have also used it in cases of croup in children, and have found it to be all that you claim it to be."

The gain on a flock of sheep may be called a weather profit.

N. McRae, Wyebridge, writes: "I have sold large quantities of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; it is used for colds, sore throat, croup, &c., and in fact for any affection of the throat it works like magic. It is a sure cure for burns, wounds and bruises."

Time will only hang up his scythe when he is no mower.

A VALUABLE HINT.

Artizans, actors, sportsmen, mechanics and laboring men, in fact all who unduly exert muscular strength, are subject to painful contractions of the cords, stiff joints and lameness; to all such Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt relief and perfect cure. 93i.

The modern Noah's ark is an umberella and a rubber coat.

IT SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

If any of our readers are suffering from chronic disease of the stomach, liver, kidneys, or blood, they should investigate the merits of Burdock Blood Bitters. It is making some of the most remarkable cures on record. 93i.

The best hand to hold in the game of life is that of your best girl.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Sufferers from either acute or chronic rheumatism will find no more ready relief or better cure than Hagyard's Yellow Oil; the topical household remedy for external and internal use in all painful affections. 93i.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

Foretelling the weather is uncertain at the best, but it is certain that if you catch cold in this changeable climate you can best break its ill effects with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the most reliable and pleasant remedy for coughs, colds, bronchial and lung complaints. It is so agreeable that even a child will take it. 93i.

How to catch a husband—Grab him by the hair.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 00

A well-coaled cellar makes a well warmed house.

OBSTRUCTIONS of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, are promptly removed by National Pills. 91t

Indiana University has dropped Greek, and Latin.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed, and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted. 87t

Jumping at a conclusion—The leap year proposal of a merry maiden.

FREEMAN'S Worm Powders destroy and remove worms without injury to adult or infant. 91t

"To-day is ours," says the philosopher. "That's so; twenty-four of 'em."

For rough conditions of the skin, Shampooing the head, Pimples, Eruption and skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 91t

Many a man who under an obligation finds the burden to heavy for him.

A CERTAIN RESULT.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dispepsia and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by D. Secord. 75y

Beauty is but skin deep, often but scalskin deep.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of Shiloh's Cure Sold. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of Consumption have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. Secord. 75

The appropriate pastry for a free lunch counter—sponge cake.

WELL REWARDED.

A liberal reward will be paid to any party who will produce a case of Liver, Kidney or Stomach complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure. Bring them along, it will cost you nothing for the medicine if it fails to cure, and you will be well rewarded for your trouble besides. All Blood diseases Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, and general debility are quickly cured. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price only fifty cents per bottle. For sale by John Gayfer. 90t

Blobson speaks of the butterine manufactures as a great and growing oleogarchy.

Our Canadian Silk Industry

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of good required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul and Co., make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made. 76y.

A gallon of hot rum punch was served to Barnum's white elephant to conteract a chill; but then we can't all be white elephants.

ITCHING PILES.—SYPMTOMS AND CURE.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter Itch, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases Sent by mail for 50 cents; 3 boxes, $1 25 (in stamps). Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists

There is a belief in England that all Americans live in affluence. A great many of us do, but some Americans live in Southern New Jersey.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea" being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 1498vy

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Trains leave Ingersoll as follows:

GOING WEST.	GOING EAST.
4.56 a. m.	6.59 a. m.
11.32 a. m.	12.15 a. m.
12.32 a. m.	3.05 p. m.
5.09 p. m.	8.48 p. m.
7.47 p. m.	7.00 p. m.
2.11 a. m.	12.20 p. m.

CATARRH.

CATARRH.—A New Treatment whereby this hitherto incurable disease is permanently cured in from one to three applications, no matter whether standing for one year or forty years. Descriptive pamphlet sent free on receipt of stamp. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada. 1569vy

ADVERTISERS

Before you place a dollar's worth of Newspaper advertising, get our prices. The exact cost of any paper, or list of papers cheerfully furnished, free upon application.

☞Send 10c. for New Catalogue.

J.

FOUNDED 1853.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

G. F. GURNETT, Proprietor.

TERMS for THE CHRONICLE, by mail, or called for at the office of publication, or at the bookstores, $1.50 in advance; $2.50 if not so paid. Delivered at homes or business places of subscribers in town, $1.75 in advance, or $2.75 if not so paid.

THE INGERSOLL CHRONICLE has more readers than all the remaining newspapers published in Ingersoll and the South Riding of Oxford combined. This important fact should be borne in mind by advertisers.

THE CHRONICLE circulates largely among the dairymen throughout the Province, as well as County.

Printing by Steam Power in all its branches.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted in THE CHRONICLE 8 cents per line for the first insertion, and 3 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

For legal and official advertisements the charge is 10 cents per line for the first, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

Condensed advertisements: Servants wanted—Articles Wanted—Lost or Found—Strayed—To Rent or For Sale—Board—Situations Wanted, or Vacant, etc., (one inch or under) will be published at the rate of 50 cts. for the first insertion, and 25 cts. for each subsequent insertion.

Ten cents per line for the first insertion and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion, is the charge for inserting "special notices" with reading matter and in the same type.

Professional cards, not exceeding 6 lines, will be inserted one year for $5 50 cents per line per year for each line over six lines will be charged.

Commercial advertisements, ordinarily displayed matter, will be inserted at the following rates:—

TIME.	2 In.	¼ Col. 3 In.	½ Col. 6 In.	1 Col. 12 In.	1 Col. 24 In.
1 week...	$1 50	$ 2 50	$ 4 00	$ 6 00	$ 10 00
2 weeks..	2 25	3 75	6 00	9 00	15 00
3 weeks..	2 70	4 50	7 20	10 80	18 00
4 weeks..	3 00	5 00	8 00	12 00	20 00
5 weeks..	3 30	5 50	8 80	13 20	22 00
6 weeks..	3 60	6 00	9 60	14 40	24 00
2 months.	4 50	7 50	12 00	18 00	30 00
3 months.	6 00	10 00	15 00	24 00	40 00
6 months.	9 00	15 00	24 00	40 00	60 00
12 months	15 00	22 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

The above contract prices do not give the right to advertise Houses or Farms for Sale, or to Rent, Clerks, Domestics or Servants Wanted, Articles Lost or Found, Entertainments, Auction Sales, &c., but extend exclusively to the legitimate commercial announcements, ordinarily displayed matter, of the persons contracting. Solid matter will be charged at the rate of 8 and 3 cents per line.

J. F. McDONALD, L.L. B.,

BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Notary Public, &c.

OFFICE—Thames street, Ingersoll

M. WALSH,

BARRISTER, NOTARY PUBLIC, Solicitor in the Supreme Court of Ontario, &c. Money to lend at lowest rates, Mortgages Bought and Sold.

OFFICE up Stairs, Walsh's Block, Thames Street, Ingersoll, Ont.

BROWN & WELLS.

BARRISTERS & ATTORNEYS-at-Law, Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c., Ingersoll, Ont. Office—opposite Imperial Bank, Thames Street, South.

P. J. BROWN. THOS. WELLS.

W. W. HOLCROFT,

BARRISTER, ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.; $100,000, private funds, to loan at 6 and 7 per cent. Mortgages, Debentures and Notes bought. Office formerly occupied by the late Mr. McCaughey, Thames street, Ingersoll.

J. C. HEGLER,

BARRISTER ATTORNEY, SOLICITOR, &c. Money to loan at eight per cent.

OFFICE:—Over Molsons Bank, King Street.

DR. McKAY,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., EDINBURGH. Coroner for the County of Oxford, Graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh.—Late Surgeon in the British Marine Service. Office, Thames Street, Ingersoll.

J. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, M. D.,

M. R. C. S. AND L. M., ENGLAND L. R. C. P., London; Aurist and Oculist Office with Dr. Hoyt, King Street, Ingersoll.

M. B. McCAUSLAND, M. D.,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON, ETC. Formerly Surgeon in the U. S. Army and Navy. Coroner for the County of Oxford. Office—Thames treet, opposite the Royal Hotel Buildings, Ingersoll.

CHARLES KENNEDY,

SURGEON DENTIST. LICENSED by the Royal College of Dental Surgery, Ont. Teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Oxide Gas, etc., if desired. Special attention paid to the preservation of natural teeth.

Office on King street, opposite the "Thompson house," Ingersoll. 884y

W. A. SUDWORTH.,

SURGEON DENTIST, MEMBER of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Graduate of Ont. Dental College. Anasthetics administered for the painless extraction of teeth. Office opposite the Market, Ingersoll.

H. W. HILL,

PRODUCE and Commission Merchant, Agent for the Empire Loan Association. Money to loan at lowest rates on farm and town property. Market Square, Woodstock.

January 31st, 1884. 1580-y

VIOLIN TUITION.

P. W. CAMPBELL, pupil of Prof. George Linker, First Violinist of Toronto, Philharmonic Society, is prepared to give instruction to a limited number of Pupils.

For particulars apply at CAMPBELL'S Book Store, Ingersoll, Jan. 17th, 1884. 1584c-m

JAMES BRADY,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER INGERSOLL, ONT.,

is prepared to attend all sales in town or country. Ingersoll, April 29th, 1882. 1493

S. G. BURGESS,

LICENSED AUCTIONEER.

WOODSTOCK.

For the convenience of those who may wish to secure his services, and being frequently from home, Mr. Burgess has made arrangements to have a list of his sales at THE CHRONICLE Office, Ingersoll, where dates can be secured, terms obtained, and full arrangements made.

Woodstock, Feb. 16, 188 1484

EDWARD C. RYOTT,

THAT POPULAR AUCTIONEER,

Having returned permanently to Woodstock, is prepared to attend all sales in his usual style and good humour. Residence and Office, Gray's Block, Dundas street, Woodstock.

Sales can be arranged for at this office at a moment's notice.

Woodstock, Nov. 15, 1883. 1575

ImperialBankofCanada

HEAD OFFICE, TORONTO.

Capital Paid Up, $1,500,000.
Rest, - - 650,000.

Purchases Municipal Debentures, Issues Drafts on its branches and agencies in the North-West. Transfers Moneys by Telegrams to Winnipeg and Brandon. Dealers in Sterling Exchange. Savings Department—Deposits received and interest allowed. Agents in London, Messrs. Rosanquet, Salt & Co., 73 Lombard street, with whom moneys for transmission from Great Britain to Ontario and the North-West may be deposited.

D. R. WILKIE Cashier.

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT.

Deposits of $1 and upward received and Interest allowed thereon at current rates.

INGERSOLL BRANCH,

J. A. RICHARDSON, Manager.

MERCHANT'S BANK OF CANADA.

CAPITAL - - $5,698,696
RESERVE - - $1,150,000

INGERSOLL BRANCH.

THIS BANK TRANSACTS A General Banking Business, Buys and Sells Exchange on England and the United States, and issues Drafts on New York and all parts of Canada.

Particular attention paid to collections for Customers and Banks.

W. M. SMITH. Manager.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

WM. C. BELL

Having bought the Lumber belonging to the

Estate of the late ADAM OLIVER

And RENTED THE MILL, he is prepared to execute all

Carpenter & Joiner Work

Entrusted to him. He will also

Contract for Buildings!

OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS,

And supply House Building material at the very lowest prices. It is a well known fact, from the easy financial position of the late firm, they were always ahead of the times in having thoroughly seasoned lumber, and from which all his inside work will be manufactured. A specialty is making

VENETIAN BLINDS,

Which can be made to order in short notice. GIVE HIM A CALL.

WM. C. BELL.

Ingersoll, Feb. 1st, 1883. 1553

The Ingersoll Chronicle,

AND CANADIAN DAIRYMAN.

VOL. XXXI.—NO. 30. INGERSOLL, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1884. WHOLE NO. 1594.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE

Life Assurance Com'y OF ENGLAND.

Head Office for Canada,

217 St. James St., Montreal.

☞ Policies unconditional and rate as low as absolute security will admit.

☞ Reserves deposited annually with Government, thus rendering the policies unquestionable as to security.

Funds invested in Canada over $300,000 and increasing yearly.

Every desirable Form of Policy Issued

H. O'CONNOR, JR., GENERAL AGENT

Office: Opposite Merchants and Imperial Banks, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, July 26, 1883. 1559v-y

TOWN

WOOD YARD.

Dry and Green Wood.

STOVE AND CORD

Delivered to all Parts of the Town.

Orders may be left at

WOOLSON & MURDOCH'S,

—OR AT—

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Wood Yard near the Mills.

Dec. 27, 1883. 1581c-m

D. SECORD

DRUGGIST, - INGERSOLL,

—SELLS—

Burdock Blood Bitters, Warner's Safe Cure, Shiloh's Consumption Cure, Golden Fruit Bitters,

All the Popular Patent Medicines.

Physicians' perscriptions and family receipts carefully compounded.

Jan. 9th, 1881. 1583

VANCE'S BAKERY

continues to be the place where the public can get a full assortment of

CAKES AND CONFECTIONERY.

Soda Biscuits and Oyster Crackers. Manufactured on the premises, and consequently always fresh.

Tea Parties Supplied. Bride Cakes Made and Neatly Ornamented at Reasonable Rates.

A large assortment of Ornamental Cake Tops and Flowers always on hand.

Fresh Bread and Buns Every Day.

R. VANCE, Thames Street.

☞ Bread delivered in town daily.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE SURE CURE FOR KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, CONSTIPATION, PILES, AND BLOOD DISEASES.

PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT HEARTILY.

"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I ever used."—Dr. P. C. Ballou, Monkton, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort is always reliable."—Dr. R. N. Clark, So. Hero, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort has cured my wife after two years suffering."—Dr. C. M. Summerlin, Sun Hill, Ga.

IN THOUSANDS OF CASES it has cured where all else had failed. It is mild, but efficient, CERTAIN IN ITS ACTION, but harmless in all cases.

☞ It cleanses the Blood and Strengthens and gives New Life to all the important organs of the body. The natural action of the Kidneys is restored. The Liver is cleansed of all disease, and the Bowels move freely and healthfully. In this way the worst diseases are eradicated from the system.

PRICE, $1.00 LIQUID OR DRY, SOLD BY DRUGGISTS.

Dry can be sent by mail.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington Vt.

KIDNEY-WORT

LITTLE DOT CIGAR FACTORY

WILTON & GOLLAN, Props.

Manufacturers of the finest goods in the cigar line in Canada.

The attention of the smoking public is respectfully called to our celebrated

LITTLE DOT

—IT IS THE—

Finest 5c. Cigar Manufactured.

None but the best tobacco is used in making, and the best workmen employed. Patronize your new home industry. We employ none but union men, and thereby insure the finest workmanship. Ask for the

"LITTLE DOT."

WILTON & GOLLAN.

Dec. 6th, 1883. 8

Daly House Livery,

J. GUGGISBERG, Prop.

LEADING LIVERY IN TOWN.

Ingersoll, Jan. 3rd, 1884. 1582v-y

SIGN OF THE GOLDEN ANVIL.

A. H. ELLIS,

IMPORTER OF

SHELF AND HEAVY

HARDWARE,

Paints, Oils

GLASS, ETC.

Thames St., - Ingersoll.

February 14th, 1884. 88

Electro Plate GOODS

—AT—

R. W. WOODROOFE'S

JEWELLERY STORE,

Thames Street, - Ingersoll.

THE DAY AFTER.

[From the French of Dufresney.]

Phillis, much more wise than fond,
Thinking no gain comes amiss,
One day exacts from Phillimonde
Thirty sheep for just one kiss.

But the next day comes a change,
He will win his will more cheap,
And now he exacts from her
Thirty kisses for one sheep.

Next day Phillis, grown more kind,
Anxious is her love to keep,
So she, with contented mind,
For one kiss gives all the sheep.

Next day Phillis, wise in vain,
Would give sheep and dogs as well
For the kiss the fickle swain
Gives for nothing to Arabelle.

AN EPISODE IN THE LIFE OF FARMER CHITTY.

To the city
Farmer Chitty,
Plain, but gritty,
Came one day.
And he wandered,
And he pondered,
On his way.

Thus while gazing
At amazing
Sights, and praising
All he saw;
He was taken—
Hand was shaken
By mistaken
Mr. Shaw.

Who to right it,
And requite it,
Him invited
To a smile;
And the farmer
To the former
Grew a warmer
Friend the while.

Soon elated,
And inflated
Chitty waited
For the deal:
When none aces
Showed their faces—
Two hard cases
Made him squeal.

In the city
Stood the gritty
Farmer Chitty
Curs ng all.
Not a penny
Of the many
Had he, any
More to call.

Home returning
Through the burning
Sand, and learning
How to tramp,
Spouse she took him
And she shook him,
Grit forsook him,
And she wouldn't believe a blamed word he said in explanation.

An Ambitious Woman.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

He spoke the words in the manner of an invitation, and doubtless seeing the prompt acquiescence in Claire's face, at once leaned forward to ask, "Will you go?" Claire straightway rose, answering, "With pleasure." She took his offered arm, and thought while she did so how strong and firm it was, as if bronze or stone were beneath its flimsy vestment, instead of muscular mortality. The band in the illuminated pavilion near by had lately paused, but it now struck up a waltz rich in long mellow-pealing cadences.

"Is this your first visit here?" said Claire, as they descended the broad piazza steps, down toward the smooth, trim levels of grass and the massive, rounded beds of geranium, whose scarlets and greens now looked vague in the starlight. "Or have you been here many times before," she went on, "during past seasons, and so lost all your enthusiasm for this charming place?"

"I've been here about six times in all," he answered, "but my enthusiasm is still in fine order. It's ready to break forth at any minute. If you want, Miss Twining, we can have a combined eruption this evening."

Claire thought this clever; it had so fresh a sound after the blunt fun she had long heard; it made her think a little of the way Beverley Thurston phrased his ideas, though any resemblance between the two men could only exist for her in the large generic sense that they were both gentlemen. She laughed, with a note of real glee among the liquid trebles of her mirth. It seemed to her that she had already got to know Mr. Hollister quite well. And yet they were still such strangers! She had still so much to learn regarding him!

"I'm glad you've nothing to say against this delightful island," she declared, as if mildly jubilant over the discovery. "I heard a man on the sands talking about it to a friend only a few mornings ago. He was a shabby man who wanted shaving, and I'm not sure that he had on any collar. I think he must have been a kind of philosopher. He said that Coney Island was an immense fact. There is just my opinion—that it is an immense fact." They were now but a slight distance from the foamy, rolling plash of the dark sea-waves. The music came to them in bursts of softer richness. With her arm still in that of her companion, Claire half turned toward the hotel, starred with countless lights, and looking, as it rose above the vague throngs beneath it, like some palace of dreamy legend, lit for festival.

"I often think that this mere strip of sand must be so surprised," she continued, "to find itself grown suddenly important and famous after it has lain here lonely, almost unnoticed, for long centuries. I sometimes fancy that I can hear the waves talk to it as they break on its shore, and ask it what is meant by this wonderful change."

"That's a very pretty way of looking at the matter," replied Hollister, while he gazed down into her face from his considerably taller height with a keener expression of interest and charm than he himself guessed. "Perhaps the waves congratulate Coney Island on its final success in life, and gently quote to it the old proverb about everything coming to those who know how to wait."

Claire started. "Do you believe that?" she said. "Does everything come to those who know how to wait?"

Hollister laughed again. "You talk as if you had been waiting. But I'm sure it can't have been for very long."

This last sentence was put at least half in the form of a question. But she evaded it, saying with a light little toss of the head: "Hasn't everybody always something to wait for, between youth and old age?"

"Tell me something about your expectations, won't you?" he asked, with the non-committal tenderness of a man whose acquaintanceship has been too brief for any serious depth to accompany his words. "You can't think how much I wish that I was one of them."

"One of my expectations? You?"

"Decidedly."

"But how could I answer you on that point?" she returned, letting him catch in the gloom a glimpse of her sly smile. "You're only a name to me. If you'll not think my candor rude, I haven't an idea who you are."

"I don't believe I should think you rude if you really were so," he said, smiling, and yet seeming to mean with much quiet force each word that he spoke. "So you want me to give an account of myself? Well, I'm a rather obscure fellow. That is, I don't believe I know more than ten people in New York at all well. I lead a quiet life; I'm what they call a Wall Street man, but I mingle with the big throng there only in a sort of business way. I was graduated at Dartmouth two years ago, and spent a year in Europe afterward. Then I came back, and began hard work. There were reasons why I should do so—I mean financial reasons. I'm not a New Yorker; I was born and reared in Providence. Do you know Providence?"

"No," said Claire. "I know only New York."

She was looking at him interestedly at short intervals; they had resumed their stroll again: her arm was still within his; he had continued to please her, though she felt no thrill of warm attraction toward him, however mild in degree. She had a sense of friendship, of easy familiarity.

But apart from this, she was conscious, as a woman sometimes not merely will but must be, that she had won him to like her by a very easy and rapid victory. Already she was not sure but that she had won him to like her strongly as well. Her few recent words of reply had carried with them a subtle persuasion of which Hollister himself was oddly and most pleasurably conscious. He yielded to their effect, and became somewhat more free in his personal confidences.

"My father had been a Dartmouth man," he went on. "That was the reason of my going there. Father and mother have both passed away, now. It's a lovely old college, and it gained me some strong friendships. But I find that all my favorite classmates have drifted into other cities. They sometimes write to me, even yet, after my year in Europe. But, of course, the old good feeling will shortly cease . . . how can it fail to cease? . . . I'm a good deal alone, just now. I know a number of men there in Wall Street, but I feel a little afraid of making friends with them. I don't just know why, but I do. Perhaps it's because of getting into bad habits. And I've made up my mind . . . that is, I—I half promised my poor dear mother just before she . . . Well, Miss Twining, the plain truth is that I keep regular hours and live straight, as they say. I like to take a sail down here while the weather is hot, but I nearly always take it quite by myself. To-night I happened to meet Trask on the boat. I'd nearly forgotten Trask. He was in my Freshman year with me, but he dropped off after that. It was he who introduced me to—to the Miss—excuse me, but I really forget your friend's name."

"Miss Bergemann," said Claire.

"Oh, yes—Miss Bergemann." He paused, at this point, gently forcing Claire to pause also. They were still beside the sea; the music still came to them in its modulated sweetness. Hollister bent his head quite low, looking straight down into her upturned face.

"I've told you ever so much about myself," he said. "I wish, now, that you'd give me a little knowledge also. Will you?"

"About myself?" asked Claire. "About just who I am?"

"Well, yes, if you don't mind."

She reflected for a short space. Then she began to speak. She told him, as she went on, more than she had at first intended to tell. He listened intently while they slowly walked on, beside the dark, harmonious billows.

Before she had ended, he had ceased to hear in her new love with her. He had never known anything of such love till now. His heart was fluttering in a new, wild way; he could scarcely find voice to answer her when she at length ceased to speak. But she had not told him all her past life. She had reserved certain facts. And her own feelings were entirely tranquil. Not the least responsive tremor disturbed her.

CHAPTER XII.

Hollister nearly missed the last boat back to the city that evening. His night was partially sleepless, and morning brought with it a mental preoccupation that was surely perilous to what tasks lay before him.

Like most men who have escaped the stress of any important sentiment until the age of five-and-twenty, he was in excellent condition for just such a leveling seizure as that to which he had now made complete surrender. He was what we call a weak nature, judged by those small and ordinary affairs of life which so largely predominate in almost every human career. If some great event were ever fated to rouse within him an especial strength, this summons had not yet sounded, and he still remained, for those who had found cause to test the fibre of his general traits, a person in whom conciliating kindliness laid soft spell upon them all.

His friends at college had been mostly of tough calibre, of unyielding will; he seemed unconsciously to have selected them in a manner that might receive his concessions. But they were never encouraged in fostering the least contempt for him. The spark of his anger always leapt out with the true fire, prompt to resent any definite disrespect. Yet the anger sometimes cooled too quickly toward those whom he liked; there had been cases where he would waive his own claims to be indignant, with too humble a repentance of past heat. Necessarily such quick moods made him popular, and this result was not lessened by the fact of his being almost rashly generous besides. His mental gifts had never been called powerful, but he had cut no sorry sort of figure as a student; and he possessed an airy humor that seldom deserted for a long time either his language or thought.

During the week that followed his introduction to Claire, he visited the hotel where she was a guest on every evening but two. One of these evenings chanced to be fiercely rainy; he could not have come to Coney Island without having his appearance there savor markedly of the ludicrous. The other evening was the last of the week. He had asked Claire to marry him the night before. She had not consented, neither had she refused: she had demurred. He was piqued by her hesitation, and affrighted by the thought of her possible coming refusal. He passed a night and day of simple torture. Then, his suspense becoming insupportable, he appeared once more within her presence.

His aspect shocked her; a few hours had made him actually haggard. His hand trembled so when she placed her own within it that she feared the perturbation might be noticed by others besides herself, there on the crowded piazza where they met.

"I've come to get your answer," he began, doggedly, under his breath. "You said last night you were not sure if you—you cared enough for me. Have you found out, by this time, whether you do or no?"

"There are are two empty seats, yonder, near the railing of the piazza. Shall we sit there?" She said this almost in a whisper.

"If you choose. But I—I'd rather be down on the sands. I'd rather listen to it there, whatever it is."

But Claire feigned not to hear him. It was her caprice to remain among the throng. She moved toward the empty seats that she had indicated, he following. In all such minor matters she had already become the one who dictated, and he the one who acquiesced.

The night, lying beyond them, was cool but beautifully calm. An immature moon hung in the heavens, and tinged the smooth sea with vapory silver, so that its outward spaces took an unspeakable softness, as though Nature were putting the idea of infinity in her very tenderest terms.

There was no music to-night, for some reason. The buzz of voices all about them soon produced for each a sense of privacy in the midst of publicity.

"You asked me to be your wife last night," Claire began, looking at him steadily a little while after they were both seated, and not using any special moderation of tone because certain of her own vantage in the prompt detection of a would-be listener. "Before I give you any final answer to that request—which I, of course, feel to be a great honor—it is only just and fair that I should make you know one or two facts of my past life, hitherto left untold."

This was not the language of passion. Perhaps he saw but too plainly its entire lack of fervor. Yet it seemed to point toward future consent, and he felt his bosom swell with hope.

"If it is anything you would rather leave untold," he said, with a magnanimity not wholly born of his deep love, "I have not the least desire to learn it."

Claire shook her head. "You must know it," she returned. "I prefer, I demand that you shall know it."

He felt too choked for any answer to leave him. If she imposed this condition, what was meant by its sweet imperiousness except the happy future truce for which he so strongly yearned? On some men might have flashed the dread suspicion that her words carried portent of an unpardonable fault, about to be confessed there and then. But Hollister's love clad its object in a sanctifying purity. Apart from this, moreover, his mind could give none of that grim welcome which certain dark fears easily gain elsewhere. The sun had long ago knit so many wholesome gleams into his being that he had no morbid hospitality for the entertainment of shadows.

"I want to tell you of how my father died," Claire went on, with her face so grave in every line that it won a new, unwonted beauty from the change. "And I want to tell you, also, of something that was done to me after his death, and of something that I myself did, not in personal revenge for my own sense of injury, but with the desire to assert my great respect for his loved memory, and to deal justice where I thought justice was deserved."

Then in somewhat faltering tones, because she had deliberately pressed backward among recollections so holy that she seemed to herself like one treading on a place filled with sacred tombs, she recounted the whole bitter story of her mother's avarice, of her father's ignoble burial, and of her own resultant flight. The tears stood in her eyes before she had ended, though they did not fall. As her voice ceased she saw that Hollister had grown very pale, and that his brows met in a stern frown. At the same moment his lip trembled; and as he leaned forward, took her hand into his own, pressed it once, briefly but forcibly, and then released it, she caught within his gaze a light of profound and unmistakable sympathy.

"I think your mother's course was infamous," he said. "Do you suppose that I could possibly blame you for leaving her?"

Claire had dropped her head now, so that he could see only the white curve of her forehead beneath its floss of waved and gold-tinted hair. And she spoke so low that he could just hear her, and no more.

"Yes, I thought you might blame me. . . . I was not sure. . . . Or if not this, I feared that the way in which poor father was buried might . . . might make you feel as if I bore a stain—or, at least, that the disgrace of such a burial, and of having a mother who could commit so hard and bad an act, must reflect in shame upon myself."

If they had been alone together, Hollister would have answered this faint-voiced, hesitant speech by simply clasping Claire within his arms. But the place forbade any such fondly demonstrative course. He was forced to keep his glad impetuosity within conventional bounds; yet the glow on his face and the tremulous ardor of his tones betrayed how cogent a surge of feeling was threatening to sweep him, poor fellow, past all barriers of propriety.

As it was, he spoke some words which he afterward failed to remember, except in the sense that they were filled with fond, precipitate denial of all that Claire had said. He felt so dazed by the bliss that had rushed upon him as to fail, also, of recalling just how he and Claire left the populous piazza, and just how they reached the lonelier dusk of the shore. But the waves brought him rare music as he paced the sands a little later. His was the divine intoxication that may drug the warder, memory, but that wakes to no remorseful morrow. . . . .

Claire wondered to herself when she was alone that night at the suddenness of the whole rapid event. She had given her pledge to become Herbert Hollister's wife in the autumn. While she viewed her promise in every sort of light, it seemed to her sensible, discreet, even creditable. He was a gentleman, and she liked him very much. She had no belief, no premonition that she would ever like any one else better.

She was far from telling herself that she did not love him. We have heard her call herself cold, and it had grown a fixed creed with her that she was exempted by some difference of temperament from the usual throes and fervors. He suited her admirably, in person, in disposition, in manners. She need never be ashamed of him; she might indeed be well proud of so gallant and handsome a husband. Her influence over him was great; she could doubtless sway, even mould him, just as she desired. And she would bear clearly in mind those warning words of Beverley Thurston's: she would use her power to good ends, though they might be ambitious ones.

From a worldly standpoint, he was comfortably well off; his income was several thousands a year; he had told her so. With his youth and energy he might gain much more. She would stimulate, abet, encourage him toward the accomplishment of this purpose. He should always be glad of having chosen her. She would hold it constantly to heart that he should find in her a guide, a help, a devoted friend. And he, on his side, should aid her to win the place she coveted, loving her all the better because she had achieved it.

When these rather curious meditations had ceased she fell into a placid sleep. She had been wholly unconscious of the selfish pivot on which they turned. It had quite escaped her realization that they were singularly unsuited on the night of her betrothal. She had no conception of how little she was giving and how much she was demanding. She fell asleep with a perfectly good conscience, and a secret amused expectancy on the subject of Sophia's and Mrs. Bergemann's surprise when to-morrow should bring them the momentous tidings of her engagement.

But they were not so much surprised as she had anticipated. The attentions of Hollister had been brief, yet of telling earnestness. Sophia hugged her friend, and cried a little. "You mean old thing," she exclaimed, "to go and get engaged! Now, of course, you'll be getting married and leaving us."

"I'm afraid that's the natural consequence," said Claire, with a smile. Mrs. Bergemann pressed her to her portly bosom, and whispered confidentially, just after a kiss of congratulation: "He's a real ellergant gentleman. I think I know one when I see one, Claire. And don't you let Sophia set you against him. She better try and do half as well herself. She'll marry some adventuring pauper, if she ain't careful, I just do believe."

Claire felt a great inward amusement at the thought of Hollister being depreciated in her eyes by any light value which Sophia might set upon him. As it proved, however, Sophia soon learned to forgive him for the engagement, and to treat him very graciously.

Before the summer had grown much older Claire and her lover began to be pointed out by the few other permanent boarders of the hotel, with that interest which clings like a rosy nimbus about the doings of all betrothed people. They certainly made a very handsome couple as they strolled hither and thither. But Claire's interest, on her own side, had been roused by certain little coteries that would often group at one end of the monster piazza.

The ladies of these assemblages were mostly refined looking persons, and many of the gentlemen reminded her of Hollister, though their coats, trousers, boots and neck-ties not seldom bore an elaborate smartness unpossessed by his.

They looked, in current idiom, as though they had come out of band-boxes, with their high, stiff collars, their silver-topped walking sticks, and their general air of polite indolence. The ladies, clad in lace-trimmed muslins, and wearing long gloves that reached almost to their elbows, would hold chat with their gallants under the shade of high, cool-colored parasols. Claire was often pierced by the sense of their remarkable exclusiveness when she watched their dainty gatherings; and she watched them with a good deal of covert concern. Hollister could not even tell her any of the gentlemen's names. This caused her a sting of regret. She wanted him to be at least important enough for that. His ignorance argued him too unknown, too unnoted.

One day, to her surprise, Claire perceived Mrs. Arcularius, her former august schoolmistress, seated amid a group of this select description. Mrs. Arcularius had lost none of her old majesty. It was still there, and it was an older majesty, by many new gray hairs, many acquired wrinkles. She was a stouter person, but the stoutness did not impair her dignity: she bore her flesh well.

Claire determined to address her. She waited the chance and carried out her project. Mrs. Arcularius was just rising, with two or three other ladies for the purpose of going inside to luncheon, when Claire decided to make the approach.

She looked very charming as she did so. Hollister had brought her a bunch of roses the evening before, and she had kept them fresh with good care until now. They were fixed at present in the bosom of her simple white muslin dress, and they became her perfectly. She went quite close to Mrs. Arcularius, and boldly held out her hand.

"I am very glad to meet you again," she said, "and I hope you have not forgotten me."

Mrs. Arcularius took the hand. Under the circumstances she could not have done otherwise without committing a harsh rudeness. And she was a woman whose rudeness was never harsh.

With her disengaged hand she put up a pair of gold eye-glasses. "Oh, yes, surely, yes," she said, while softly dropping Claire's hand; "you were one of my pupils?"

Claire did not like this at all. But she would not have shown a trace of chagrin, just then, for a heavy reward. She smiled, knowing how sweet her smile was, and promptly answered:

"I'm sorry that you only remember me as one of your pupils. I should like you to remember my name also. Are you quite certain that it has escaped you. Does not my face recall it?"

"Your face is a very pretty one, my dear," said Mrs. Arcularius. She looked while speaking, toward her recent companions, who were moving away with light touches of their disarranged draperies and side-long glances at Claire. Her tones were impenetrably civil, but her wandering eye, and the slight averted turn of her large frame, made their civility bear the value, no less, of an impromptu veneer.

Claire divined all this, with rapid in sight. Her wit began to work in a sudden defensive way. She preserved her smile, looking straight at Mrs. Arcularius while she said, in a voice pitched so that the other ladies must of necessity hear it:

"I was so obscure a little girl among all the grand little girls who went to your school in my time, that I don't at all blame you for finding it inconvenient to recall me. I fear I have been mistaken in addressing you as the woman of business, my dear madame, when you find the great lady alone to your humor. But you have played both parts with so much success that perhaps you will pardon me for alluding to one at the expense of the other."

There was nothing pert in Claire's little speech. The few seconds that it took her to make it were epical in her life; they showed her the quality of her own powers to strike back with a sure aim and a calm nerve; she was trying those powers as we try the temper of a new blade.

She moved away at once, with tranquil grace, and not a hint of added color or disconcerted demeanor. It was really very well done, in the sense that we call things well done which depend upon their manner, their felicity, their chic of method. The ladies looked at each other and smiled, as though they would rather have kept their lips grave through politeness to Mrs. Arcularius; and she, on her own side, did not smile at all, but revealed that disarming manner which we can best express in the case of some large fluttered bird by noting its ruffled plumage.

Nothing in Claire's past had qualified her for this deft nicety of rebuke. Those stands made against her mother's coarse onsets had surely offered but a clumsy training-school for such delicate defiance. And yet her history has thus far been followed ill if what she said and did on a certain day in Mrs. Arcularius's school-room has not foreshadowed in some measure the line of her present action. Perhaps it was all purely instinctive, and there had been, back in the gentility of her father's ancestry, some dame of nimble repartee and impregnable self-possession, who had won antique repute as dangerous to bandy words with.

But Claire's tranquility soon fled. She was scarcely out of Mrs. Arcularius's sight before an angry agitation assailed her. When a little later she met Sophia in one of the halls, it was with sharp difficulty she could hide her distress.

Still, however, she did hide it, sure of no sympathy in this quarter, of a sort that could help to heal her fresh wound. That evening, however, a little after the arrival of Hollister, and while they walked the sea-fronting lawns and listened to the distant band, as had now grown a nightly and accepted event with them, she narrated the whole circumstance of the morning.

"Do you think I did right, Herbert?" she finished, sure of his answer before it came.

"Perfectly, my darling," he said, looking down into her dim, uplifted face. "I wouldn't have had you do anything else. You must cut that old Gorgon if you ever meet her again. You must cut her dead, before she has a chance to serve the same trick on you."

"I don't know about that," returned Claire, as if his words had set her thoughts into a new groove. "Perhaps she may be of use to me afterward. I may need her if we ever meet in . . . society." She slightly paused before speaking the last word. "If she hasn't left by to-morrow I shan't see her, you know. I won't cut her; I simply shan't see her. It will be better."

Hollister laughed. What he would have disliked in another woman fascinated him in Claire. "You little ambitious vixen," he said, in his mellow undertone. "I suppose you will lead me a fine dance, after we are married. I suppose you will make me strain and struggle to put you high up, on the top rung of the ladder."

"I should like to be on the top rung of the ladder," said Claire, with that supreme frankness a woman sometimes employs when sure that the man who listens to her will clothe each word she speaks in an ideal halo.

At the same time, she had an honest impulse toward Hollister which should be recorded to her credit. She had not planned for him any thrilling discoveries of her worldliness after their marriage; she candidly saved him all peril of disappointment. But he, on the other hand, could see neither rock nor shoal ahead. If she pointed toward them, he looked only at the hand which pointed, and not at the object it so gracefully signaled.

She did not see Mrs. Arcularius again. That lady's visit had doubtless been for a day only. The dainty groups still assembled, mornings and afternoons, just as before. Now and then she thought that some of their members—those who had witnessed the little scene with her former schoolmistress—gave her a look of placid attention which seemed to say: "There you are. We remember you. You are the young person who asserted yourself."

She wanted them to address her, to strike an acquaintance with her. But they never did. This piqued her, as they were all permanent residents at the hotel. She made no concealment of her wish to Hollister.

"It is too bad you do not know some of their male friends," she said. "If you did, I should get you to introduce them."

He fired a little at this, mildly jealous. "Do you really mean it?" he asked, with doleful reproach.

Claire did not understand this jealousy, at first; then it flashed upon her, through a sudden realization of his great fondness.

"Oh, I should merely like to know them for one reason," she said, laughing. "They would introduce me in turn, perhaps, to those charming looking ladies, who belong to another world. I like their world—that is, the little I have seen of it. I want to see more. I want to have them find out that I am quite suited to be one of them."

His jealousy was appeased. He softened in a moment. It was only her pretty little foible, after all—her delightfully droll longing to be ranked among the lofty aristocrats.

"I wish I did know some of the men you mean," he said, with apologetic concern, as though she had asked him for some gift which he could not manage to secure. "I think that I have seen two or three of them in Wall Street; but we have never met on speaking-terms."

More than once he pointed out to her a gentlemen in the throng whom he did know, or told her the name of such an acquaintance, after transiently bowing to him. But Claire, with a fleet glance that was decisively critical, never expressed a desire to meet the individuals thus designated. Something in their mien or attire always displeased her. She dismissed them from her consciousness with the speed born of total indifference.

And now a most unforeseen thing happened. Mr. Trask, of the yellow eyebrows, had made repeated visits to Sophia, but Claire, because of the novel change in her own life, had failed to observe what to Mrs. Bergemann had become glaringly evident. One day, in the middle of August, Claire entered the latter's room, and found Sophia weeping and her mother briskly loquacious.

"I don't know what she's crying about, Claire," Mrs. Bergemann at once proceeded to explain, with an aggrieved look toward her tearful daughter. "She don't want to go with me home to Germany; I s'pose that's it. And there's my own flesh and blood, Katrina Hoffmann, who's written me a letter, and begged me in it to come and pay her a visit before she dies. And because I want to go across in September—after you're married, Claire, of course—Sophia behaves like a baby."

"Katrina Hoffmann!" now exclaimed Sophia, with plaintive contempt. "She's Ma's second-cousin, Claire. And what does Ma care about Germany? She was a child of ten when she left it. I don't want to go, and I won't go, and there's all about it!"

But Sophia, for the first time in her life, had found a master in the mother who had so incessantly yielded to her last whim. The letter from Germany, as Claire soon discovered, was a mere pretext for flight. And Trask, of the yellow eyebrows, had caused this fugitive impulse in Mrs. Bergemann.

She had learned about Trask; he was a clerk in an insurance company, on seven hundred a year. Sophia was the heiress of three millions. It would never do. All Mrs. Bergemann's rich fund of good nature shrank into arid disapproval of so one-sided a match. She developed a monstrous obstinacy. It was the old maternal instinct; she was protecting her young.

They went to Germany in

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1884.

THE SCOTT ACT IN OXFORD.

The voting on the Scott Act in this county on Friday last resulted in a great victory for its advocates, the Act carrying by the decisive majority of 775. Woodstock gave 200, Blandford 2, East Oxford 4, and Tilsonburg 49 against the Act. Every other municipality gave a majority for the Act. We give below the official returns received last night, also, for the purpose of comparison, the vote polled on the Dunkin Act in January, 1877.

The result of the polling has clearly and decisively demonstrated the temperance sentiment of the people of the County of Oxford. The majority being large, there will be less difficulty in enforcing the law, for there can now be no doubt of the wishes of a majority of the people. It remains for the advocates of the Act to see to it that when the law comes in force next year, it is strictly obeyed and a fair trial given.

The contest in this county was carried on with comparatively little bitterness of feeling. As to the position of THE CHRONICLE in the campaign every fair minded reader will bear us out in the assertion that it was strictly impartial. Our columns were thrown open to both sides several months ago for the discussion of the subject. The advocates of the Act took advantage of our offer more fully than the other party until the last week before the election, when our columns were almost wholly taken up with communications both pro and con.

THE CHRONICLE started out by adopting a neutral course and consistently stuck to it to the end.

Any statements to the contrary are false, ungrateful and unfair, and made only by interested persons who would delight in doing us a personal injury. Those who have read THE CHRONICLE are in a position to deny any such statements.

As a result of the victory in Oxford we believe it is the intention to submit the question to electors of every county in Ontario. At present the Act is in force in the following constituencies:—Nova Scotia—Annapolis, Cape Breton, Colchester, Cumberland, Digby, Hants, Inverness, King's, Picton, Queen's, Shelburne, Yarmouth. P. E. Island—Charlottetown (city), King's Prince, Queen's. New Brunswick—Albert, Carleton, Charlotte, Fredericton (city), King's, Northumberland, Queen's, Sunbury, Westmereland, York. Ontario—Halton, Oxford. Manitoba—Lisgar, Marquette.

In the following counties Scott Act campaigns are in progress:—Northumberland and Durham; Russell and Prescott; Stormont, Glengarry and Dundas; Ontario.

SCOTT ACT.

Municipality.	No. of Subdivision	For the Act.	Against the Act.	Majority for Act.	Maj. Against Act.
Ingersoll	1	54	55		1
	2	57	59	7
	3	51	53		2
	4	59	37	22
	5	59	67		8
	6	42	59	— 1	17
East Oxford	1	45	57		12
	2	50	47	3
	3	51	47	4
West Oxford	1	85	29	65
	2	71	74		3
	3	96	44	52-114
North Oxford	1	75	43	32
	2	40	70	— 2	30
North Norwich	1	53	27	26
	2	78	32	46
	3	54	44	10
	4	43	47	—78	4
South Norwich	1	52	48	4
	2	62	19	43
	3	64	24	20
	4	76	30	46
	5	55	38	17-140
Dereham	1	80	23	57
	2	60	45	15
	3	84	41	43
	4	51	46	5
	5	55	45	10
	6	91	31	60-190
Tilsonburg	1	50	59		9
	2	40	66		26
	3	47	61		14—49
Norwich Village	1	61	30	31
	2	99	51	39—70
Woodstock. St. Andrews Ward	1	46	96		50
	2	23	54		31
St. David's Ward	1	32	31	1
St. George's Ward	1	54	67		13
	2	40	55		15
St. John's Ward	1	53	58		5
	2	31	68		37
St. Patrick's Ward	1	26	51		25
	2	34	69		25—200
Blandford	1	29	47		18
	2	34	29	5
	3	41	20	21
	4	32	42		10— 2
East Zorra	1	60	31	29
	2	36	44		8
	3	98	46	52
	4	76	40	36
	5	34	77		43
	6	15	66	—15	51
West Zorra	1	51	45	6
	2	67	31	36
	3	43	51		8
	4	63	38	25
	5	80	52	28—87
Embro	1	75	30	45—45
East Nissouri	1	55	24	31
	2	63	35	28
	3	69	41	28
	4	84	21	63
	5	86	19	67-103
Blenheim	1	55	53	2
	2	44	61		17
	3	71	37	34
	4	51	27	24
	5	54	67		13
	6	49	40	9
	7	72	44	28
	8	66	61	5—73

Total vote polled, 7371. Majority for Act, 775.

Below is the vote polled in January, 1877, on the DUNKIN ACT.

Municipality.	Yeas.	Nays.	Maj. for.	Maj. ag'st.
Blandford	118	186		18
Blenheim	420	352	68
Dereham	348	326	22
E. Nissouri	295	148	147
N. Norwich	207	126	81
S. Norwich	319	167	143
N. Oxford	106	123		17
E. Oxford	114	206		92
W. Oxford	233	156	77
E. Zorra	239	315		76
W. Zorra	281	149	132
Woodstock	242	394		152
Ingersoll	284	338		54
Tilsonburg	76	111		35
Embro	55	17	38
Norwich	52	37	15
Majority for by-law			379

THE Dominion Alliance for the suppression of the liquor traffic has issued a circular urging an immediate agitation for the adoption of the Scott Act in every county in the Dominion.

WE learn that the opponents of the Scott Act are going to appeal against its enforcement on the ground that Dereham being in North Norfolk for Dominion election purposes, and the Scott Act being a Dominion Act and run under the Dominion election law, the late contest was illegal.

How can American wheat be enabled to compete with that raised in India? is the question that troubles our American cousins, and one in which Canadians will alike take deep interest. The New York SUN says:—The question how best to meet and overcome the competition of Indian wheat for the control of the consuming markets of Europe, that our agriculture is not called upon to face, is a grave one, and one that demands immediate attention. The prosperity of our nation depends on our agriculture. The farmers are not prosperous. The price of wheat steadily declines in Chicago. The West demands relief—demands that its breadstuff producers be put in condition for the race. They fear to encounter the competition that is forced upon them. They realize that the fight is unfair, and that, under the existing order of things, they will be beaten.

THE Ontario Legislature was prorogued on Tuesday.

Fresh eggs have been held at 75 cents and $1 per dozen all winter at Edmonton.

A petition signed by 10,000 Scotchmen against the abolition of the feather bonnet in the British army is to be presented in Parliament very shortly.

THE SOUDAN WAR.

MASSES OF REBELS CONFRONTING KHARTOUM.

A Battle to be Fought To-day, (Thursday).

LONDON, March 23.

Six thousand rebels face the palace on the right bank of the Nile. They recently fired upon three hundred blacks who were sent down the river for wood, and killed a hundred of them.

OSMAN DESERTED BY HIS TROOPS.

It is believed at Suakim that Osman Digma's forces have almost entirely deserted him.

PERILOUS POSITION OF KHARTOUM.

General Gordon says produce continues to enter Khartoum from the south, south-west and south-east. He has armed many of the inhabitants, but they can do but little against the mass of the rebels fronting Khartoum.

PRISON DELIVERY ORDERED.

A Cairo despatch says Clifford Lloyd, Under-Secretary of the Interior, has ordered the release of one hundred and twenty-five untried prisoners in the gaols at Assiout and Esneh. Some of them have been imprisoned for years.

THE RELIEF OF HALFYA.

The expedition from Khartoum to relieve Halfya consisted of twelve hundred men in three steamers. The men were concealed in the holds to avoid the fire of the Arabs on the banks of the river. The expedition returned to Khartoum, having rescued the garrison, raised the siege, captured many cattle and arms, and lost only two men. There were great rejoicings over the victory, and enthusiastic demonstrations in honor of General Gordon.

LONDON, March 24.

Admiral Hewitt is sanguine of being able to open the Berber route. He proposes to divide the road into sections, and make the tribes answerable for their respective divisions. The troops will advance from Suakim on Wednesday and form camps around Tamanieb, and attempt to surround Osman Digma.

KHARTOUM SURROUNDED.

The latest advices indicate that the whole country south of Berber is in revolt. The rebels have surrounded Khartoum on all sides and cut off communication. The situation of Gordon is considered serious, but not alarming.

Osman Digma has assumed the dress of a dervish. His followers, estimated at from 1,000 to 5,000, are exhorting him to fight a third time, with promises of success. It is expected a battle will be fought to-morrow.

Admiral Hewett has disbanded the Abyssinian scouts because they thrashed the Egyptians. He has liberated the female slaves and ordered runaways to be restored to their masters, on the ground that the Egyptian convention allowing slavery remains in force.

THE Dominion parliament has decided to suspend penalties under the McCarthy Act, pending the reference of a case to the Supreme Court or the Privy Council on the question of its validity. As previously maintained in THE CHRONICLE, it is now admitted that no necessity exists for the taking out of a Dominion license. Those who kept their $10 instead of applying for a license under the McCarthy Act are perfectly safe.

THE invasion of women, which is the chief event in recent university history in England, advanced another step at Oxford the other day when the Congregation agreed by 100 votes against 46 to admit women to several university examinations. The girls will not be examined in the new schools with the under-graduates, but they will have the same papers and the same examiners, and their class lists will be drawn up on the same standard. The lady students at Cambridge have for some time been examined in this way. The opponents of the scheme were divided among themselves, some of them arguing that as women were so notoriously inferior to men it would be unkind to subject them to the same examination, while others, headed by Canon Liddon, thought that the change would be unfair to the men, because women were forcordained to be their "helpmates, and not their rivals."

THE conspiracy against the Mowat Government which was being investigated before two courts at the same time, the Legislative Committee on Privileges and Elections and the Police Court, has been adjourned for a week for argument. Application has been made to have the matter investigated by a committee of Judges. The evidence thus far goes to show that one at least, of the Liberal supporters of the Government was not from the very first influenced in his negotiations with the bribers with the sole desire to secure evidence against and expose the criminals. The evidence is, however, doing away entirely with all hopes of making Kirkland, the American, the scape-goat in the case. The case against him grows weaker while that against the other conspirators grows stronger all the time. The evidence of Balfour that the money paid him was a guarantee that he would be appointed registrar at Regina only implicates the Dominion Government more clearly, inasmuch as it places Wilkinson in the position of a Government agent distributing Government patronage. Bail was procured for both Kirkland and Wilkinson, who were released.

Dickson's Corners.

A beautiful selection of prize books was distributed among the pupils of our school by the trustees and teacher, Mr. Beattie, on the 27th ult. The books were obtained with the proceeds of an entertainment held in the school-house on the evening of the 7th inst. The entertainment was a complete success and an exceedingly pleasant evening was spent by those present. The pieces given by the pupils, assisted by some of the young people of the section, were highly appreciated by the audience; some of them being vigorously applauded, especially one, entitled "Extracting a Tooth" brought forth roars of laughter from the hearers. The audience were apparently well pleased with the instrumental and vocal music supplied by Mr. Willamett and Miss Williams, Master Kay Day, Miss Hotson, and Mr. and Mrs. Dunnett—Mr. Dunnett in particular, receiving great applause for his inimitable rendering of 'My Mary's run away with a Coon.' Mr. W. Elliott gave a couple of humorous recitations in good style and aided by some of the young people of S. S. No. 1, Dereham, amid much laughter and applause, wound up the performance by a laughable farce entitled "From Punkin Ridge." The proceeds of the evening amounted to $18.20.

The London Medical Times says that a hundred deaths have been probably caused by carelessness as to dairy drainage and water supply, for one that is traceable to adulteration.

The Brewers of Ontario have asked to have the Scott Act annulled by making an exception in favor of beer. Sir John Macdonald is going to consider the matter.

Illegitimacy in some Scotch counties is on the increase, and Glasgow takes the cake for drunkenness; but these cases count as nothing compared with a lack of observance of the sabbath, and the running of street cars on that day, although alleged to be in the interest of churchgoers, is exercising terribly the "unco gude," who lately held a meeting to protest this iniquity, and try to suppress it.

R. VANCE keeps the finest of honey, both comb and extracted. 80

THE best show of Christmas goods is at the China Tea House. 80.

THE choicest raisins and fruit of all kinds at the China Tea House. 80.

FINNIAN HADDIE delivered fresh at Beck's fruit store. 80

TO HOTEL KEEPERS.—Buy none but union work cigars. See posters for particulars. 79

OYSTERS by the can, quart or dish at Vance's. 71.

Burgessville.

Dr. Davidson from Niagara, occupies the premises formerly owned by Dr. Innes.

Farmers are now busily engaged in their sugar bushes.

We regret to have to record the death of Mrs. Morgan, the wife of Wm. Morgan, Sr. She died on the 16th inst. after a long sickness, the bereaved family have our sympathy. Mrs. Morgan was a sister of the late H. Vanvalkenburgh, of Norwich.

On the 13th inst., a large number of the children and friends of Mrs. Nickols, wife of elder S. Nickols, met at their house in celebration of the 78th anniversary of Mrs. Nickols' birthday. Mrs. Nickols is the mother of 9 children, the most of which were present on that occasion, also 32 grand children and great grandchildren. A very pleasant time was spent, and all left feeling that one more act to cheer and comfort a kind mother and an affectionate parent.

Beachville.

Our enterprising citizen Mr. Cole intends removing to Woodstock shortly.

Considerable sickness prevails in the village and vicinity, and the doctor is having his hands full.

Mrs. McDonald is slowly improving as also Mrs. Brink, and it is to be hoped they will shortly regain their accustomed health.

Lime business has opened for the season but on account of the high water only those who have a supply of stone on hand will be able to do anything for some time.

We welcome to our quiet village Mr. Alexander McIntyre who has lately purchased the Clipperton property and retired from active farm life and hope that he may long be spared to enjoy the fruits of his labors amongst us.

Some changes affecting the lime interest here have taken place lately. Mr. Hacker's lease of the Weeke's kiln having expired he has formed a partnership with Mr. Cole and will remain in Beachville. The new firm seem determined to make things in their line lively in the future as in addition to the kiln they now have they purpose building another shortly.

An entertainment by the members of the Literary Society is spoken of for some time in the near future. Judging from the amount of interest taken in the society since its organization and its present flourishing condition we predict a full house and a good programme. Look out for it!

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The steamer City of Montreal, arrived at Queenstown on Monday, reports on the passage passing an iceberg 200 feet high and 400 feet long.

Owing to sugaries in the vicinity of Quebec have commenced to tap the maple trees. Should the present favorable weather continue a good crop is anticipated.

According to the assessed value of real and personal property in Ottawa this year, the total valuation on which to levy is $10,600,000. The rate will consequently be 19½ mills, or an increase of a quarter of a mill over last year. The increase was occasioned solely by the extra demand of the School Boards.

Dispatches report a great rush of immigrants to the North-West. A month later will be time enough to start upon the journey. The land is still covered with snow, and as nothing can be done until it disappears immigrants are forced to stay in the settlements, where most of their money goes to exorbitant hotel-keepers.

H. J. Blythe, attorney, of Topeka, Kansas, when an orphan at Bedford, Westchester county, New York, was given to Elder Green, of the Presbyterian church. A year ago Blythe saw a paragraph announcing the death of his uncle in San Francisco. He was worth four millions, and left no will or known heirs. Blythe has just proved his sole heirship to the estate.

A Niagara Falls correspondent says that the sensational story about the Maid of the Mist being fitted up for another trip is made by some unauthorized person, and there is not a grain of truth in it. The little craft stands high and dry on the bank at Lewiston, and will probably remain there until sold to some enterprising party. The gentlemen connected with her former trips do not care to bother with any more Maid of the Mist trips. The fact has been settled by them that the rapids are navigable down stream. It now remains for some one to show the same result up stream.

Geo. Simpson, of McGillivray, recently made a remarkable discovery. When digging on his farm he struck on a large stone, and after clearing the dirt away discovered a petrified man. The being must have belonged to a race long since extinct, as it measured 7 feet 4½ inches in height, and was almost perfect in form. Parts of the body are white and the rest has turned a dark greyish color. Mr. Simpson brought the figure to Parkhill and placed it in the grocery store of his son, where large numbers of people call every day to see it. It is one of the greatest curiosities ever seen in this country. Mr. Simpson is negotiating with the managers of the Zoo, in Toronto, for the sale of his curious discovery.

The west-bound express on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road telescoped a special west-bound freight and immigrant train at the Red Wing siding on Saturday the 22nd. The rear coach, containing seventy immigrants, was completely wrecked. The accident was caused by the conductor neglecting to flag the express. The immigrants were from Durham, Ont., and were bound for Winnipeg. Seventeen persons were seriously injured, two of whom will die. Among the reported injured are: Alexander Payner, wife and two daughters, Nina and Matilda, and two sons, George and John, all seriously cut and bruised. The father had his arms broken. William Ruddy, his wife and infant, were all wounded in the head, the child having its skull crushed.

The report of the Commissioner of Agriculture called for by the Senate sets forth that the area of wheat in the United States has doubled in sixteen years. The rate is increasing in districts where mixed farming and remunerative methods obtain, and decreasing in the region of consecutive crops of spring wheat. The aggregate exports of breadstuffs and animals and their products since 1861 exceeded in value the cotton exported during that period to the amount of more than four billion dollars. The average weight of the wheat crop of 1883 is placed at 57 pounds per bushel. The stock on hand in commercial warehouses and farm granaries on the first of March was 150 million bushels. The supply is ample for consumption, spring seeding and probable exportation. The prospect for the wheat crop of 1884 is reported favorable.

OSCAR WILDE ON AMERICA.

Some Amusing Remarks.

A large audience assembled at the Crystal Palace at Sydenham a few days ago to hear Mr. Oscar Wilde's lecture on his impressions of America. Mr. Wilde (who has discarded knee breeches and reassumed the prosaic trousers) said that the Americans are the noisiest people in the world, whose national occupation is catching trains. Pennsylvania, with its rocky gorges and woodland scenery, reminded him of Switzerland; the prairie of a piece of brown blotting paper. Everything is twice as large as it should be; everywhere is twice as far as it should be. He visited Leadville, the chief characteristic of whose inhabitants is the constant use of the revolver. He lectured to them upon "Benvenuto Cellini, his Life and Works," and was reproved by his hearers for not having brought that artist with him. The explaination that he had been dead for some little time elicited the inquiry. "Who shot him?" Among the more elderly inhabitants of the South he found a melancholy tendency to date every event of importance by the late war. "How beautiful the moon is to-night!" he once remarked to a gentleman who was standing next to him. "Yes," was the reply, "but you should have seen it before the war." So infinitesimal did he find the knowledge and appreciation of art west of the Rocky Mountains, that an art patron—one who in his day had been a miner—actually sued the railroad company for damages because the plaster cast of Venus of Milo, which he had imported from Paris, had been delivered minus the arms! And, what was more surprising still, he gained his case and the damages.

CAUTION TO SMOKERS.—See that the union label is attached to every box of cigars before purchasing. 79

FOREIGN MATTERS.

Latest Cable Notes.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

The special war correspondents are reaping great honors from the campaign. A correspondent of the Times wrote his account while suffering from a severe bullet wound in his thigh. When Davies' square was broken at Tamanieb several correspondents saved their lives by using their revolvers.

ARREST OF NIHILISTS.

A number of important Nihilist arrests have been made at Kieff. One gendarme was mortally wounded while assisting in making the arrests. It is rumored that Dagaieff, leader of the party of Nihilists who murdered Lieut.-Col. Sudeikin, is among the prisoners.

THE SUEZ CANAL CONVENTION.

In consequence of the smallness of the majority with which the French shareholders of the Suez Canal Company approved of the convention which M. De Lesseps had arranged with the English shipowners, M. De Lesseps declines to carry out the proposition to admit seven additional members to the Board of Directors. As this formed the leading English stipulation it is probable that the whole convention will fall through.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S BIRTHDAY.

Bismarck gave a dinner to the diplomatic corps on Saturday, in honor of the Emperor's birthday. Sargent was present. Lord Ampthill, British Ambassador, proposed the health of "The Emperor." Bismarck proposed the toast to "Represented Sovereigns and Nations." The day was observed throughout Germany by parades, banquets, and festival performances in theatres, schools, and barracks. At a banquet at Stuttgart the toast to the Emperor was proposed by Queen Olga. At Darmstadt the troops were reviewed by the Grand Duke Ludwig, and at Strasbourg the foundation stone of the imperial palace was laid.

MR. GLADSTONE'S ILLNESS.

Mr. Gladstone's illness, which originally was only a slight cold, has developed partly through neglect and partly through worry into a serious affection of the larynx, involving a nearly total loss of voice. He continued transacting business by writing till, under his physician's advice, he left town for Coombe Warren. Since then he has relinquished nearly everything. The accounts published of his health indicate that there has been little or no improvement. Private reports admit that it will be impossible for him to be present in the House of Commons next week to take charge of the Reform bill, and that a project for a journey to the South of France is seriously considered by the family. His colleagues are opposed to it unless it is imperative, recollecting that his last absence nearly ended in his resignation.

England and Spain.

MADRID, March 24.—The British ambassador is going to London to report the proposals of the Spanish Government for a commercial treaty, and for an agreement regarding Morocco. The last project is induced by the suspicious movements of France.

The Queen Charged with Parsimony.

BERLIN, March 24. — The German papers reproach Queen Victoria with parsimony for her intention to attend the marriage of her granddaughter, Princess of Hesse, privately.

Lord Lorne on Emigration.

LONDON, March 22.—At a meeting last night at the house of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, the Marquis of Lorne urged that the poor of East London emigrate to Canada, especially the maritime provinces.

To Care for the Passengers.

A bill introduced by representative Slocum at Washington to regulate the carriage of passengers by sea provides that every vessel bringing passengers to the United States shall have two hospitals, one for men, the other for women. Also that all vessels carrying other than cabin passengers whose passengers and crew exceed fifty and do not exceed 600 shall carry a licensed surgeon, and if they exceed 600 an assistant surgeon, who shall be furnished with medicines and surgical instruments by the ship owners and render services without fee.

Arrested and Discharged.

James Edward O'Callaghan, arrested at Hamilton on suspicion of being the Sandwich murderer, has been set free. Detectives O'Nellette and Nisbet, from Detroit, could not identify him, although they said he bore considerable resemblance to the man who is wanted. O'Callaghan was arrested and kept in gaol three days until his innocence was proved by the Detroit detectives. He feels very bad about being kept in gaol this long time and treated like a guilty person.

Wages of G. T. R. Employees.

The question of a reduction of the wages of the Grand Trunk employees affects so many people that it is one of general interest. A reduction in the pay of the men on the Great Western Division was proposed, but the men have decided they will not remain in the company's service if the cut is attempted. The engine-drivers have probably the control of the situation, and the action of the other men will be in a manner regulated by the Brotherhood. Trainmen point out that the statement that some of them earn $2.15 per day does not convey the correct idea. That is their pay for a day of a certain number of miles, but with laying off and detentions they do not make more than four or five days a week at the most. One trainman suggested that if Mr. Hickson was in earnest in his desire for economy, he should begin at home by reducing his own salary, and also lop a little off the men who are getting yearly salaries of thousands of dollars, instead of cutting down the wages of men who get about $1.40 a day for a few days in each week.

Calgary a Customs Outport.

An Order in Council has been passed making Calgary a customs and warehousing outport under the survey of the Collector of Customs at Winnipeg.

CREDIT VALLEY RAILWAY.

Important Change of Route to the West—New Line From Woodstock to London.

For some time past the managers of the Ontario & Quebec Railway have been in consultation with other roads, including the New York Central and Michigan Central, in reference to the route to the Detroit River. As a result of this it has been decided definitely to abandon the London Junction Railway and allow the charter to lapse. A new road will be built from a point at or near Woodstock to the Detroit River. The work of surveying and laying out the route will be commenced as soon as the charter is obtained. One of the chief objective points of the road will be the city of London, and the road will run through the northern part of that city a little north of the Exhibition Grounds, and somewhat on the same line as a road projected some years ago, the charter for which has some time since lapsed. From Detroit running arrangements will be made with the Wabash Railway, and thus form another through route from Toronto and Montreal to Chicago and the West. Arrangements are being made to have a connection with Buffalo, so as to reach the State of New York. The main reason for this change of plans and the abandonment of the London Junction Railway was the difficulty of maintaining satisfactory arrangements with the Canada Southern division of the Michigan Central and the inconvenience caused by changing cars at St. Thomas and the frequent delays at that point.

Mammoth Sale of Cattle.

Mr. G. F. Frankland, the cattle king of Canada, has just completed the sale of a quarter of million dollars worth of cattle for the English and Scotch markets.

CALL at Beck's and get some of those fine large oysters direct from Baltimore. 80.

FINE steel pocket and table cutlery from 10 cents to $5 at the China Tea House. 80.

THIRTEEN lbs. of good sugar for one dollar at the China Tea House. 80.

THE finest assortment of cups and saucers to be found anywhere is at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE lot of silverware of every description at the China Tea House. 80

DESTRUCTIVE FLOODS.

Immense Crevasses in Mississippi Levees —Plantations Heavily Damaged—Floods in Wisconsin.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—There are ten crevasses in the levees on the west side of the Mississippi, between Vicksburg and New Orleans, all pouring great volumes of water into the country which the levees were intended to protect. In the great Marganza, the largest of the crevasses, it is now nearly a mile wide, and would probably average a depth of ten feet. The water is going through like a mill race. Twelve parishes, embracing the most productive section of the State for cotton and sugar, will be inundated. An estimate of the loss cannot be made.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 23.—Mulatto Point crevasse is fully two hundred feet wide and twelve feet deep. No further effort will be made to close the opening. West Baton Rouge suffers to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars. Plantations never before overflowed are now under water.

MILWAUKEE, March 24.—Serious floods are reported from Darlington and Calamine, Dodge county. The Pesatonia river has flooded both towns. The people have left their homes.

A BAD STATE FOR SETTLERS.

Nebraska Controlled by Cattle Men, to the Prejudice of the Settler.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—United States Deputy Surveyor Fairchild, in a report says: "The whole of Northwestern Nebraska is occupied and run by capitalists engaged in cattle raising. They have hundreds of miles of wire fence constructed, and enclose all the desirable lands. Notices posted at intervals say that the man who opens the fence had better look out for his scalp. Persons going there to settle are notified that the ranchmen will freeze them out. They will not employ a man who settles on or claims land, and he cannot get employment from any cattle men in the whole country. There is wholesale destruction of valuable timber on government land in this whole region by cattle men, who pretend to own it. There are acres after acres of bare stumps, which a short time ago were growing timber."

New Aide-de-camp.

His Excellency the Governor-General has been pleased to appoint Russell Stephenson, Esquire, to be extra aide-de-camp to the Governor-General of Canada, from the 23rd of October, 1883. Mrs. Stephenson, it will be remembered, is Lady Dufferin's sister.

Canadian Firm Abroad.

ALBANY, March 24.—In the Assembly a bill has passed, authorizing the Rathbun Lumber Company, a Canadian corporation, to do business in this State.

The Duty on Wool.

DES MOINES, March 24.—A memorial presented to the House asking Congress to restore the duty on wool was defeated on Saturday, 37 to 44. Party lines not discernible.

Whiskey has this year been under discussion in Parliament as well as in Congress. In the small hours of the morning on Feb. 11, a spirited debate was raised by Mr. Molloy, Mr. Healy, and other members as to the character of the refreshments obtainable in the dining room of the House. The 'whiskey' was condemned as resembling "a torchlight procession," and free comment on the general character of the catering was exercised.

FINE confectionery at Beck's for Christmas. 80

ORANGES and oysters cheap. Oranges 25 cents per dozen at Beck's fruit store. Sign big lamp. 80.

A LARGE stock of silver butter coolers and pickle casters at the China Tea House. 80.

PARTIES requiring money on good security can obtain any amount they may require at from one to two per cent. cheaper than any where else by applying to P. O. Box 29, Ingersoll. Business strictly confidential. 82

A large assortment of vases and toilet sets at the China Tea House. 80.

ALL kinds of canned goods guaranteed good at Beck's. 80.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall-st., N. Y.

January 21th, 1884. 1585-48i

FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT.

A large amount of FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT to parties applying at once, AT SIX PER CENT.

J. C. HEGLER.

Ingersoll, Nov. 29, 1883. 1557e-m

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A NEW PIANO, one of the best makes in America. The Piano can be seen at VANCE'S STORE, Thames Street.

Ingersoll, Jan. 31st, 1884. 1566tf

FOR SALE OR TO RENT.

Eighty acres in West Oxford, part of Lot 13, 2nd Con.; 75 acres cleared, 10 acres of wheat, 12 acres manured last season; 3½ miles from Ingersoll; church, school, grist, and saw-mill on same lot, cheese factory on adjoining lot. For further particulars apply to HENRY TOPPING, Ingersoll, P. O.

Feb. 19th, 1884. 88c.

G. J. CHARLESWORTH, M. B.,

L. R. C. P. & L. M., Edinburgh.

Office—Thames Street, over Nelles & Stevens', next to Browett's Drug Store. Residence—Charles Street, first place west of Hadden's Carriage Factory, Ingersoll. Calls night and day promptly attended to.

March 20th, 1884. 1593v-y

FARM TO RENT.

Being Lot 23, Con. 7, Dereham, containing 150 acres, 110 acres cleared, balance timbered, and good buildings. For further particulars apply to

DANIEL LINTZ, Salford.

March 13th, 1884. 1592c

STRAYED.

Strayed into the premises of the undersigned, Lot 24, Con. 2, Dereham, on or about Jan. 1st, 1884, one sheep. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges and take her away.

JOHN FLAHERITY.

March 13th, 1884. 1592c

TO DAIRYMEN.

Printed Price List of all kinds of Printing required by dairymen mailed on application. Printing sent to any part of Canada, post-paid. Address

THE CHRONICLE, Ingersoll.

HOTEL FOR SALE.

That large three-storey brick hotel, known as The "Albion," Embro, is offered for sale or exchange for farm or town property; one of the best paying hotels in the County; also 50 acres improved land in Hough ton Township.

For terms and particulars, apply to

C. GARNER, Thamesford P.O

June 21st 1883. 1564f

WOOD FOR SALE.

Good Dry Stove Wood

$1.50 PER CORD.

Green and Dry Rough Stove Wood

$1.25 PER CORD.

Yard one house West of John Knight, Carnegie-st.

E. CUTHBERT.

Ingersoll, March 6th, 1884. 1591l-m

FOR SALE.

A House and Barn, Cow House underneath, with 4½ acres of land, being the last lot on King Street West, in the Corporation of Ingersoll. Possession one month from date, March 10th, 1884. If not sold by 10th April will be let. For particulars apply to JOHN ATKINS, Near the premises.

March 13th, 1884. 1592f

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Cragg, of the Town of Ingersoll, in the County of Oxford and Province of Ontario, harness maker, has made an assignment to Thomas Brown, of the said Town of Ingersoll, tanner, of all his real and personal estate, for the benefit of all his creditors. All creditors having claims against the said Charles Cragg are requested to send by post pre-paid to the undersigned on or before the first day of April next a statement of their names and addresses with full particulars of their claims and the securities held by them, if any, verified by statutory declaration. The said Trustee will, after the said first day of April next proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate pro rata among the creditors of the said Charles Cragg, of whose claims he shall then have had notice.

Dated at Ingersoll this 22nd day of January, 1884.

THOS. BROWN, Assignee.

Feb. 28th, 1884. 1590t

J. S. PARKER,

Professor of Music, late pupil of Dr. Spark, Boro' Organist, Leeds, England, now organist and choir master C. M. Church, Woodstock, is open to give lessons in

Vocal and Instrumental Music

(Piano and Organ.) Will be at

Daly House, Ingersoll

From 9 to 12

EVERY THURSDAY,

Address—Drawer 63, Woodstock.

London Loan Company,

LONDON, ONTARIO.

$100,000 to lend at Lowest Rates.

Short loans at 6 and 6½ per cent. Apply to

M. J. KENT, Manager,

London, Feb. 7th, 1884. 1587e-y

NORMAN'S

Electric Belt Institution,

(ESTABLISHED 1874).

4 QUEEN ST. EAST, TORONTO.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, Rheumatism, Lame Back, Neuralgia, Paralysis, and all Liver and Chest Complaints immediately relieved and permanently cured by using these BELTS, BANDS AND INSOLES.

Circulars and Consultation FREE.

CONSTIPATION

Is entirely overcome by using NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELTS. No injury can result, and they are pleasant to wear. Try one and be cured.

Sold at Corner Drug Store, R. Knowshaw & Co., Sole Agents, Ingersoll, Ont. 1092

EASTER FAT CATTLE FAIR.

THE OXFORD

FAT STOCK CLUB

WILL HOLD AN

EASTER FAT CATTLE FAIR

ON

THURSDAY, APRIL the 3rd, 1884,

At which prizes to the amount of

$100 WILL BE OFFERED

Fair to be held on the

MARKET SQUARE, WOODSTOCK.

For Prize List and Rules apply to the Secretary or any of the Directors.

N. B.—The above Fair will be an excellent opportunity for farmers to bring forward their cattle for sale, as efforts will be made to have a number of prominent export and home buyers on the ground.

E. W. CHAMBERS, President. JOHN CRAIG, Sec.-Treas.

March 13th, 1884. 1592c

SEED GRAIN STORE.

McINNES'

SEED Grain STORE

On the Market opposite the Daly House,

KING STREET, INGERSOLL.

"GOLDEN DROP" SPRING WHEAT FOR SEED.

SEED BARLEY.

SEED PEAS

SEED CORN

SEED OATS

TIMOTHY SEED

CLOVER SEED

HUNGARIAN SEED

MILLET SEED

AND ALL FIELD SEEDS.

Six carloads of PEAS, free from bugs, received this week for seed.

JOHN A. McINNES & CO.

Ingersoll, March 13th, 1884. 1592r

Woodstock SEED WAREHOUSE.

CHOICE

Vegetable Seeds, Field Seeds, Flower Seeds & Bulbs.

Seed Grain, Clovers and Grasses, Seed Potatoes, Dried Flowers and Grasses, Fertilizers, Oil Cake, Garden Tools and Lawn Mowers.

Planet Jr Garden Drills, Wheel Hoes, Cultivators and Plows.

Packets of Choice Flower Seeds 25 cts per dozen.

Illustrated and Descriptive Catalogue mailed free to all applicants,

JOHN PIKE, Seedsman, Woodstock, Ont.

March 6th, 1884. 1591cm

AUCTION SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE

FARM PROPERTY!

Pursuant to a judgment made in a certain cause of

KOYL VS. McKENNY,

And bearing date the 25th day of February A. D. 1884, there will be sold with the approbation of H. B. Beard, Esq., Q. C., Local Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature, at Woodstock,

By Jas. Brady, Esq., Auctioneer,

—AT—

LAMBERT'S HOTEL,

IN THE

VILLAGE of SPRINGFIELD,

—IN THE—

COUNTY OF ELGIN

At the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, on

Friday, 28th of March, A.D., 1884,

The following lands and premises, together or separately:

1. All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS WEEK.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.
Groceries—Nelles and Stevens.
Blair's Cement.
Strayed Cow—R. Clifford.
Auction Sale—Jas. Brady.
Special—W. C. T. U.
The Bank of London—C. W. M. Simpson.

The Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1884.

TOWN NEWS.

ENGRAVED calling cards at the CHRONICLE office.

DON'T forget the White Bros. Concert at the Town Hall on Monday evening next.

EVERYBODY welcomes the bright sunshiny days.

CALLING cards and wedding invitations with envelopes to match at the CHRONICLE office.

THE last and best concert of the celebrated White Bros. will be given in the Town Hall on Monday evening next.

MR. JOHN FORBES, of Woodstock, has now the finest and largest stable of thoroughbred racers in Canada. He has 23 "cracks."

SALE OF FURNITURE.—A sale of valuable household furniture will be held at the residence of R. F. Hunter, on Tuesday, 15th April. Look out for catalogue.

OUR forecaster of the weather has promised us one cold storm yet before we can expect to subside into spring weather.

THE Michigan Central Railway has issued a very handsome and attractive calendar. The M. C. R. is the popular line for the West.

THE CHRONICLE job office has a large quantity of new type and can turn out work unsurpassed by city offices. Get your work done here.

SEED GRAIN.—Six car loads of peas, free from bugs, also a quantity of 'Golden Drop' spring wheat, received at McInnes & Co's seed store, nearly opposite the market. See adv.

FOR THE NORTH WEST.—There left per Grand Trunk R'y on Saturday for the North West, John Fletcher of Nissouri, and for Dakota, J. Thompson and W. Rice, Thamesford.

SENT DOWN.—James Twitcher and Robt. Fleming, of Toronto, and Charles Hall, of Ingersoll, have been sent to the Lansing Reform School by Justice Minor, of Detroit, for five years at least.

PETITION RE SAL. ARMY.—A numerously signed petition from the business men of Ingersoll will be presented to the council at its next session. It asks that the drum and tambourine beating on the streets be stopped.

HIGH SCHOOL INSPECTION. — Inspector Hodgson visited our High School yesterday. He was perfectly satisfied with its efficiency and was pleased to notice the large increase in attendance.

IT seems that some visitors to the army services do not conduct themselves in a polished, cultivated, gentlemanly way—in fact are guilty of very serious breaches of decorum. Several fines have been imposed by the P.M. in consequence.

EPIDEMICS.—The number of sudden death from pneumonia, a leading physician says, are due in a majority of cases to a want of care in dressing for the sudden changes of weather. Everybody liable to exposure should be most careful.

MEETING OF PRESBYTERY.—The committee of Presbytery will meet in Knox church, Ingersoll, Monday evening, March 31st, at 7.30 in order to confer with the minority who have petitioned for leave to remain in KNOX church.—W. T. MCMULLEN, Chairman of Committe.

SPRING delicacies in the shape of lettuce, cress, etc., can now be had of Mrs. Heath, who is now ready to supply all demands. Her stock of house and garden plants is far superior to any ever seen in Ingersoll before. Call and see them at the store and greenhouse, nearly opposite Erskine Church.

BANK OF LONDON.—In common with his many personal friends and the business community generally we congratulate Mr. Simpson on his appointment to the managership of the Bank of London here. The appointment is a deserving tribute to Mr. Simpson's ability and popularity, and exhibits the good judgment of the directors of the bank.

GRAND CONCERT.—Our citizens will have the opportunity of once again hearing the celebrated White Bros. before they leave for the far West, who intend giving a Concert in the Town Hall on Monday evening next, March 31st. Jas. Noxon, Esq., will occupy the chair. Tickets 25 cents; reserved seats 35 cents. The hall should be well filled on this occasion.

THE Oddfellows of this town intend celebrating the anniversary of Oddfellowship in America by attending service at the Baptist Church on Sunday evening, 27th April. What with a neat church, splendid choir, and an excellent preacher in the person of Rev. Speller, we feel certain this occasion will prove one of the most pleasing in the annals of the Ingersoll fraternity.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Hon. J. B. Finch will deliver the second of Ingersoll W. C. T. U. course of lectures in the Town Hall, on Thursday evening, April 3rd. Lecture to commence at 8 o'clock. Admission 20 cts. The press everywhere unite in expressing the opinion that Mr. Finch is one of the greatest temperance orators in America. Let all hear him. The American Reformer of New York says of him :—"He has an uncommon gift of weeding illustrations with arguments, and making plain as noonday the logic of right."

ODD FELLOWS FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late Charles Parker took place on Monday afternoon last. Mr. Parker was a member of Samaritan Lodge I. O. O. F., and has been attentively looked after by the N. G. and brothers during his long and painful illness. The brothers of Oxford Lodge assisted in the last sad rites, both Lodges were in full Regalia and presented a very imposing appearance. Rev. Mr. Speller, Baptist pastor, in absence of Rev. W. W. Ross, conducted the services at the house. The Odd Fellows, headed by the N. G., Mr. Gibson, then took charge of the funeral and marched in procession to the grave. The scene along the route was very impressive, Bro. Wm. Sutherland, P. G., acting as Marshall. The usual scenes at the grave were performed by the N. G. assisted by D. D. G. M., John Andrews. The pallbearers were Robt. McKay, Wm. Doyle, James Berry, Louis Chapman, Edward Elliott and Angus McLeod. Deceased was much esteemed by his Bro. Odd fellows as well as by all those who had acquaintance with him. In this sad dispensation as well as others that have occurred from time to time the Odd fellows have demonstrated very fully, the benefit as well as the christian influences that surround their order.

DEATH OF JAS. HENDERSON, ESQ., OF N. OXFORD.—The death of Mr. Henderson, one of our oldest and most respected pioneers, was not unexpected. At his advanced age, 103 years, one could only be surprised at the tenacity of life in a man who had borne his part so bravely in the work of bringing this section of Oxford out of a howling wilderness into its present condition, surrounded with all the beauties and benefits that make homes happy. Unlike many others who started here in the battle of life, deceased has lived to see his work completed, —his large family comfortably situated, his sons and their sons filling respectable situations in life. Like many of his co-workers Mr. Henderson commenced on small beginnings, and by hard toil and honest dealings was soon able to place himself in a position that brought him prominently before his neighbours as a man of superior ability and worth. His geniality and generosity became widely known, the poor and distressed never appealed in vain; with him every day was a good day, be the wind in whatever quarter it may. His social, neighbourly feeling extended to all alike. In his religion, and politics he was unswerving, but none who knew him doubted his liberality and charity to all. In his own township of N. Oxford, during his long term of life, Mr. Henderson filled at different times most, if not all the principal offices from Reeve down, was Treasurer many years in succession, assessor and collector for a lengthy term. Some of the most important edifices first erected in Ingersoll were the work of his head and hand. The old English church, the largest hotel, long since burned, the old Rothwell homestead, and many others. The macadamized road between Beachville and Dorchester was constructed by Mr. H. and D. Ross. Many anecdotes are related relative to the building of this section of the road, in which the superior judgment and forcible features of Mr. Henderson's character are brought out very thoroughly. His recollection of events that occurred in '97 and '98 were very interesting, and we hope in next week's issue to give a more extended notice. Too much cannot be said in reference to the genial, friendly disposition exhibited by Mr. Henderson towards all. The people of Ingersoll and vicinity have experienced it fully, and we owe largely to men of his stamp the liberal and friendly feeling that has existed, and is still growing between Protestants and Catholics, and very particularly in this neighborhood of Ingersoll. Deceased was a native of Newry, County Down, Ireland.

$50,000 to Loan on Real Estate at Lowest Rates. Apply to Brown & Wells, Barristers. 1593tf

THE best and cheapest stock of silver knives and forks and silver spoons at the China Tea House. 80

Personal.

Mrs. H. A. Dart is suffering from diphtheria.

Mr. W. S. King leaves for Great Britain on Wednesday next.

We regret to learn that the Revs. W. W. Ross, and John Reynolds are confined to the house through illness.

Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of THE CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—Though somewhat late considering our action of last week, yet we take this opportunity of tendering you our sincere thanks for the favor you have done us, and the fairness you have shown in throwing open your columns for the discussion of the Scott Act during the late campaign. And now that the voting is over, and through your columns the differences of public opinion have been well ventilated, and in some points we agree to differ from some of your friends, yet we indulge the hope that the good effects of our effort in moral reform will be such as to commend our action to all in the future, though it may not at present.

Signed in behalf of the Temperance Committee of Ingersoll.

REV. R. B. ROWE.
REV. H. C. SPELLER.
REV. F. R. ROSS.

March 24, 1884.

FRAUD.—A blind man named DOWDS, of the 4th con., Bayham, now lies in Wood stock jail, where he will show cause why he sold his farm to two paties. Buyer No. 2 got the deed registered first, and Buyer No. 1 had DOWDS arrested.

DIED.—The death is announced of James O'Neill, late proprietor of the Detroit Park Theatre, which occurred on Saturday morning, aged 41 years. Deceased was a native of Beachville, Oxford County, where he resided twenty years.

THE neck-tie social held at the residence of Mr. James Baker, Wonham St., on Tuesday evening last, for the benefit of the I. O. G. T., was a grand success notwithstanding the rain, and all seemed to enjoy themselves exceedingly.

FUNERAL SERMON.—The funeral sermon for the late Mrs Geo. Cairns and her son William, will (D.V.) be preached in Charles Street M. E. Church, next Sabbath, March 30th, at 11 p.m., by the pastor, if his health will permit, if not, by Rev. S. Terwilligar, of this town.

A FIRM named Valentine & Co., Hamburg, have sent circulars to all Canadian newspapers asking for adverting rates, and also other general information about directories of cities and towns. The scheme is to get addresses for the issuing of lottery circulars, so that simple minded people can be reached and gulled into buying worthless lottery tickets.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT. —The members of Anchor Lodge, No. 10 Y. M. P. B. A., will give a popular entertainmennent in the Y. M. P. B. A. Hall, to-morrow (Friday) evening. On which occasion the French drama "Delicate Ground, or Paris in 1793," will be presented with splendid scenery, costumes and other paraphernalia. Doors open 7, concert commence at 8 o'clock. Admission 15 cents.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY.—The April number is even more interesting than usual, and is replete with instruction and entertainment. The embellishments are admirable—the colored frontiespiece, "The Approach of a Storm," is particularly so. The opening article, "How Uniform Standard Time Came About," abounds with information, and is profusely illustrated. There are power and a large variety of short articles, paragraphs, anecdotes, etc. There are 128 quarto pages and over 100 illustrations in each number, and the price is only 25 cents, or $2.50 per year, postpaid. Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

OBITUARY.—There died at Perry, Iowa, the 15th inst., at the residence of her son, Robt. E. Fitzgerald, Dispatcher on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, of inflammation of the lungs, Mrs. Mary A. Fitzgerald, formerly of Harris Street, near Ingersoll. Deceased was born in Sligo, county of Sligo, Connaught, Ireland, on the 21st December 1810, thus bringing her into her 74th year. She came to Canada in 1826, with her father and brothers, who settled in Quebec. There she formed the acquaintance of P. Fitzgerald, whom she married in 1830. About 1845 they removed to Harris Street, near Ingersoll, and in 1854 Mr. Fitzgerald went to California where he accumulated a large amount of money, the result of which occasioned his death, as he was robbed and murdered for the same.

THE QUESTION OF TREE-PLANTING. — American citizens of different States are already bringing prominently before the public the annual Arbor Day, set apart for the exclusive purpose of tree-planting. Our progressive neighbors are fully alive to the importance of this subject and have made great progress in this respect in many places in late years. Year by year the interest of the people of Ontario is increasing in this matter. We hope to see many places taking advantage of the terms of the Ontario tree-planting act this season. There are still many opportunities to improve the appearance of Ingersoll by planting shade-trees. There are many blanks on our streets—whole streets blank, shall we say? Let an effort be made this season to add to the beauty, comfort and healthfulness of the town

CALEDONIAN SOCIETY.—Pursuant to notice a meeting of the Caledonian Society took place at the office of J. C. Hegler, Esq., on Thursday evening last. Present—W. Ewart, Chief; Jno. Smith, Hugh Kerr, D. White, Wm. Sutherland, Angus Matherson, Wm. McBain, J. C. Hegler, A. McLeod, J. McKay, W. K. Sumner, and C. Patience. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. A general discussion took place as what should be done toward having another successful celebration on Queens birthday. W. K. Sumner was deputized to obtain signatures to a requisition to change the day of celebration from Saturday until Monday 26th of May. The enthusiasm of the meeting showed that nothing will be left undone to make the coming celebration equal, if not superior, to any former one. The Caledonians deserve great praise for their zeal in providing ample amusement in so many ways for the Queens birthday and they are always sure to draw a crowd.

COUNTY OF OXFORD POST OFFICES.—The following shows the revenue received at each post office in the county during 1883. The salaries are computed on a commission or percentage on the correspondence posted at the offices :

Postoffices.	Gross Revenue.	Salaries.
Beachville	$ 280.99	$ 164.00
Beaconsfield	53.12	18.00
Bennington	49.24	20.00
Braemar	70.30	24.00
Brights	538.68	150.00
Brooksdale	130.81	46.00
Brownsville	307.01	50.00
Burgessville	296.80	60.00
Canning	153.72	44.00
Cassell	64.55	10.00
Chesterfield	99.33	34.00
Cornell	145.83	32.00
Culloden	198.26	64.00
Curries' Crossing	67.24	16.00
Delmer	92.06	35.00
Drumbo	544.92	205.50
Eastwood	236.35	72.00
Embro	702.76	238.00
Gobles' Corners	195.25	52.00
Harrington	186.63	56.00
Hawtrey	175.06	77.00
Holbrook	68.63	22.00
Ingersoll	7883.88	1890.00
Innerkip	271.56	70.00
Kintore	174.16	54.00
Lakeside	113.81	44.00
Maplewood	75.78	32.00
Medina	51.62	16.00
Moscow	92.08	20.00
Mount Elgin	223.90	96.00
Newark	51.12	14.00
Nissouri	34.83	17.00
Norwich	2023.38	500.00
Oliver	9.07	10.00
Oriel	30.20	12.00
Otterville	648.69	260.00
Oxford Centre	49.32	16.00
Peebles	15.85	10.00
Plattsville	936.92	260.00
Princeton	572.06	186.00
Ratho	187.44	87.00
Richwood	200.71	68.00
Salford	137.43	44.00
South Zorra	92.98	31.50
Springford	308.54	110.00
Strathallan	71.65	38.00
Sweaborg	73.24	46.00
Tavistock	798.65	258.00
Thamesford	356.51	122.00
Tilsonburg	2712.62	612.00
Vandecar	11.16	20.00
Verschoyle	103.40	36.00
Walmer	39.00	16.00
Washington	231.71	80.00
Wolverton	282.60	80.00
Woodstock	8526.32	2090.00
Youngsville	35.02	14.00

DR. LOW'S PLEASANT WORM SYRUP.—An agreeable, safe and effectual remedy to remove all kinds of worms. 91t

THIS PROGRESSIVE AGE. — Every one should know for himself that "Gold Coin" is the best Chewing Tobacco now made in Canada. The unprecedented demand for it, since it has been in the market, attests the fact. For sale by all Wholesale Grocers and Tobacco Dealers. Made by ADAMS' TOBACCO COMPANY, Montreal. 93vy.

THE reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labour. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 84

THE UNSELFISHNESS OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

The Young and Vigourous—The Old and Tottering.

Rev. H. C. Speller, delivered the following sermon in the Baptist Church on Sunday evening last, taking for his text Philippians, 3 8 : "Yea doubtless, and I count all things but lost for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ." The reverend gentleman said :—The estimate one has of Christ will be the measure of the Christian activity of the person holding that estimate. It will not only be the measure of the Christian activity of the person herself or himself, but it will also be the measure of their own spiritual experience and enjoyment. Some estimate Christ —and I am afraid very many do—as merely a stepping stone by which we may step out of a world of trial and sorrow, into the kingdom of heaven, and into the kingdom of joy and life. You will always find a person with that estimate settling down with an indifference as to the spiritual state of the world at large, you will always find them, judging from their lives and actions, of the opinion that it is a hard matter to settle, whether there is really any difference between one person who professes to be on his way to heaven, or one who does not. Let one having the estimate of Jesus Christ as fully his or hers, having formed a just estimate of his worth and value to the soul, and although he may have not attained to that activity and personal experience as the Apostle Paul, you will always find him reaching up to higher heights and deeper depths in Jesus Christ. In other words, let a man be so filled with Christ that he loses sight of self, let a man be so attached to the Saviour as to forget self, let him live in the atmosphere of God himself, and you will find that while he forgets self he will forget the world in which he lives, and while in the human family, there will be a tendency of a lifting up into a higher, purer atmosphere than before.

You cannot sit down and study the Epistles of the Apostle Paul and comprehend the great train of thought without feeling that you have came into contact with a mind that differs from that of every other man. You cannot read the Epistles of Peter and John without feeling that they are something that you don't find in this world and outside of those who follow not Jesus, or come into contact with a life that is thoroughly imbued with the spirit of Jesus Christ, without feeling that there is an unselfishness of the spirit of that man that is not characteristic of any other individual that has not come into contact with Jesus Christ.

How will I get this estimate? No estimate is a proper estimate, until Christ has been rightly comprehended by the person looking at him. Take the thought before thrown out, looking at Christ as merely the stepping stone into heaven, and you get one very small portion of his value. But look the way Paul looks after living such a life, he could stand before his fellow man and declare himself "A Hebrew of the Hebrews and a Pharisee of the Pharisees," and as touching the law blameless." Then as he saw Christ as the very embodiment and majestic ness of the Divine character and life itself, and as he saw the only proper fulfilment, the only proper destiny of his own life, and as he thought of the great character before him as the very perfection of manhood, I can understand such an estimate that the Apostle Paul had. All worldly positions that might be obtained by the works of the law, to those of the son of righteousness, fell into insignificance, and the righteousness of Jesus Christ stood out as alone being worthy of his preference, which he would stand the test and be acceptable in God's sight. We must see in Christ then—God himself. Not as a narrow being, but as being Christ Jesus the Divine man, "God as made manifest in the flesh." The only true ideal that God has set before man. In attaining to that ideal, and seeking of that ideal, man must be led and actuated by the spirit of Christ. You must see that Christ stands not only before us in the image of His character, pure and holy, setting before us the character of God and man, but we must see the necessity of the work of God done through Jesus Christ. It will not only do for man to see God as atoneing for the offences of mankind, he must not only see the perfection of the God-head, but the justice of God. Hence the work of Jesus Christ will be to me an absolute necessity, and as man sees himself incapable to perform that work there must be in man when he sees Christ performing that work, the very deepest love and appreciation for it. The estimate therefore will be the very highest estimate of which a human being is capable. I will be willing up Christ as "King of Kings and Lord of Lords" in the heart, and giving our most cheerful willing service to walk in his precepts and keep his commandments.

I don't understand that it leaves any portion of the man out, but that it takes the entire being and brings him into service to Jesus Christ. Hence when I speak of the unselfishness and the self-denial of the service of Jesus Christ, I understand this, that with such an ideal before me, and the many influences which would interfere with the attainment of that ideal, I mean not only sinful influences, but influences right and proper for me to enjoy in this life, yet they will, if persisted in, hinder me in the attainment of that which Christ sets before me. I understand by the unselfishness and self-denial of the Christian life to mean that I will shun anything that would retard my Christian character.

I understand when the Apostle Paul says "Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, &c." He views the excellency of Jesus Christ our Lord, while on the other hand, the excellency of the things of this world, but he will see that the things of this world are dimmed and shaded when contrasted with the light of the son of righteousness. Whilst he looks at the excellency of Jesus Christ he will see in it a nobility, and that upward tendency, which ever draws a man up toward the image of God himself, and takes away everything that would have a downward tendency, by his having set the things of Jesus Christ on the very highest pinnacle, to count them but loss for the excellency of Christ Jesus our Lord.

It is sometimes insinuated, and very wrongfully too, that the experience mentioned here, as belonging to Paul, belongs only to the aged, when passions are dead and the fires of desire have died out, and say it is easy for them to count all things loss, for the excellency of Christ Jesus our Lord. In other words there is no certain attainment to such unselfishness of character and self-denial of things of time and sense, as spoken of by the Apostle Paul, to the young and vigourous. If it is only for those who are tottering into the grave. Out upon such a religion! But you will see that this is not so at a moment's notice. We don't get at the attainment characteristic of the Apostle Paul, at a single jump. I hold that this experience was the outcome of "the thorn in the flesh" and the beating of his body black and blue, in order that He himself might not be a "cast away," the outcome of a soldier who has held his beat, and given his dead thrust to the enemy, and knows what the strength of God manifests in the man himself. Wherefore, if there is a soul here to-night that has estimated Christ in his true worth, he has the only proper ideal possible, the only ideal that is worthy of attaining to. Such a one whose feet are set, clothed in the armour of Jesus Christ and ready to do battle for him will attain to rich experience to those who have not come in and fought in the thickest of the battle. So you will find that it is not only a life of consolation and of the future, it is a life of love. This estimate manifests itself not merely to the nature of love but in unselfishness, now, in subduing the evil which comes before us and Jesus Christ. It is pleasant for us to look at the welfare of others, to extend a hand of help to those who are down in the very depths of sin; it is pleasant now for us to do acts of love and self-forgetfulness ; we can lay aside our own welfare and seek for others a happiness which they do not enjoy. "Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss, &c." By "all things" I must understand to mean not only the deeds of the law he is carrying out, for you will notice He makes a very wide difference when He says "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ." These things were said in a dungeon, for this letter was penned in the prison in Rome, and as he sits there with the presence of death before him, allowing his mind to forget the things he had lost ; for he was a tent maker by trade, and had once at his command positions of honour ; and looking forward to the bright prospects before him, his experience was "Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss."

There is no time better adapted to understand the gains of life as the end of life. When we are looking death in the face, then if we have been in close enough contact with the Saviour as to know something of Him at least, we will say that no charge of fanaticism is true against religion, and that the life of Jesus is far more than the life we can attain here.

Last thought :—The possibilities of this estimate to each one of us, and its practical results. You say such an estimate of Christ was natural for the Apostle Paul, but we are not all Apostle Pauls. Granted. Nor do I suppose any of us ever will be. According to our capabilities we have the same spirit given to us that worked in the Apostle Paul. It may not be lauded from heaven to us as it was to him, nor catch the thundering voice "why persecutest thou me ?" but this same spirit that worked in Paul is the same that works in every one that comes to Christ our Saviour.

If you mean what are the possibilities of attaining to the same degree of experience, then I answer "according to your faith it shall be done unto thee," according as you have given yourself up to the spirit of Jesus Christ and as far as you have said in your heart the spirit of God is leading me, and to the surrender you have made to Jesus Christ, so will be your experience. I have said this much this evening, you may call it a funeral sermon if you wish, for I think the life of our departed sister which suggested the text of this evening and who has lately been taken from us voiced the experience as given in it and any one of you who has conversed with her has been shown the truths of this text, an individual given up solely to Christ. I say this for you, young man, don't let us fall into the sarcasm (for I count myself yet as one) that we cannot attain to a state of unselfishness or a high character in Christ until we have passed to "three score years and ten." First of all get a right conception of Christ; let him stand before you in a fit person to feel your love and when anything comes between you and your christian life put it one one side, "count it lost &c." Let us measure the excellency of Christ and if it outweighs that of the world choose it. Let us have our common sense in this matter. Let us not merely make Christ our step ladder to get into Heaven. Let us understand this here and now: that here and now the precious things of that life begin, and estimate them at their proper value. May the Lord Jesus Christ load you to such an estimate of Him, is my prayer this evening.

COUNTY OF OXFORD.

Spring Assizes.

The spring sittings of the Court of Assize for the county of Oxford opened at the court house on Tuesday the 18th inst. before his lordship Mr. Justice Wilson. There being no cases on the criminal docket his lordship was presented, as is customary when such is the case, with a pair of white gloves by Sheriff Perry.

F. R. Ball, Q. C., counsel for the crown, and Mr. Dickson official reporter.

The names of jurors are as follows :—

GRAND JURORS.

I H Barker, Wm. Coventry, Geo. R Coon, Adam Stover, Thomas Walker, North Norwich ; Frank Burgess, R W Bass, Wm. Veitch, Wm. S Wilkinson, Blenheim ; Robt W Brown, Eph. J Cook, Henry Eggman, James Haken, foreman, Norwich village ; John W Burton, John Rutherford, Embro ; Valentine Fitch, John Farrington, John Holdsworth, John C. Teeple, M. Thornton East Oxford ; James Hooper, John H Mitchell, Geo. Middlemas, Blandford ; T N Watkins, South Norwich.

PETIT JURORS.

Robert Adams, John Barney, Ira Clyne, West Zorra ; Wm. Anderson, H B Anderson, Robert Bradley, William F Coker, John L Clutton, Cornelius Dake, Ambrose Summers, Joseph Whaley, Wm. Walker, Norwich village ; John Adams, P C Bastodo Peter Steinbbaugh, James Watt, David Watt, West Oxford ; A J Amos, G J French James Fowler, John Fish, Henry Green, John Graces, James Innes, C Knaggs, Reuben Kipp, N Lampman, Wm. Lezenby, W G Lemon, George A Poole, East Oxford ; George Downing, James Haslan, J Rodenburst, North Oxford ; George Hastings, Dereham ; J W Manning, James Patterson, W J Snell, Albert Wright, South Norwich ; William G Pearson, George Pollard, Uriel Snell, North Norwich ; D M Stauffer, B Schlichter, William D Slawson, C Showers, James Sutton, Geo. Wilkinson, Blenheim ; James D Stewart, Embro.

GRAND JURY'S PRESENTMENT.

The Grand Jurors for our Lady the Queen at the Assize holden at this present time for the county of Oxford beg to report that they have visited the gaol of the county and found the same in good condition and the prisoners well looked after. They are pleased to find the crime in the county is of such small extent as they have had no indictment brought before them by the counsel for the Crown, and they found no prisoner in gaol on any serious charge.

JAMES HAKEN,
Foreman.

Bail was accepted to the amount of $800 for the appearance of Wm. Sutherland at the next sitting of the General Sessions of the Peace to answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretences made against him by John E. Capron.

The docket was as follows :

JURY LIST.

PLTF.	DEFT.	PLTF'S SOL.	DEFT'S SOL.
White	Hunter	A S Ball	W Totten
Harris	Schooley	A S Ball	Alex Finkle
Schooley	Harris, et al	A Finkle	A S Ball
McNeill	McNeill	A Finkle	H J Finkle
McKersee	McLean	A Finkle,	A S Ball
McCraveny	Taylor	J. Hegler	J Islington
Robinson	Hislop	L Titus	A Finkle
Collins	Horsman	A Finkle	J McDonald
Morrice	Harvey	A Finkle	Crerar, Muir & Crerar
Tate	Tilt	A Finkle	H P Milligan

NON-JURY LIST.

Wilson	Agur	M Walsh	J McDonald
Rostick	Oliver	M Walsh	J McDonald

The following cases have been disposed of :—

White vs Hunter.—Action to recover $500 damages for seduction of plaintiff's daughter. The pltf, is a farmer living near Innerkip, near which place the dft. resides. The action had been tried at the fall aseizes, 1883, but resulted in a disagreement of the jury. Verdict for pltf. $300 damages. Fletcher and A S Ball for pltf. Beard, Q. C., and Totten for dft.

Harris vs Schooley.—The pltf was the purchaser of a house and lot in Otterville under a mortgage gave by dft to W C McLeod, and brought the action to recover possession of the property, which the dft refused to give up. Verdict for pltf with costs, possession to be given on or before the 21st of April, and writ of possession to issue therefor. Beard Q C, and A S Ball, for pltf. Fletcher for dft.

Schooley vs Harris — Action claiming damages for illegal distress. Dft claimed to have rented the property mentioned in the action of Harris vs Schooley to pltf for $5 a month and distrained for the rent. Pltf denied the lease claiming that his wife held the property from dft. under an agreement for purchase. Verdict for pltf for $300 damages. His Lordship reserved his judgment until after the next sitting of the court to allow dft. to move against the verdict, for pltf. Beard Q C, and A S Ball for dft.

THE BOW RIVER DISTRICT.

Letter From Silver City.

The following letter was received by Mr. J. A. Crawford, of North Oxford, from his son Colin, who is at present in the far west:

Silver City, Dec. 25th, '83.

Silver City is on the Bow River, situated at the foot of Castle Mt., and is over one hundred miles above Calgary. There are two mines at present just opening up, so it is not certain yet whether this is a paying district for minerals or not. The lots are all taken up by miners and speculators and there is no certainty that the Government will or will not sell the lots to the highest bidder. It is a risk all through. There are four stores, four hotels, two blacksmith shops, and a barber shop. The buildings are all built of logs with pole roofs covered with dirt. There is not a good house in the place. The main work is ties and cordwood. There will be a good show for smiths the coming season. The track is laid over the Rockies, but they have struck something solid now. There is six inches of snow here and fine weather, not too cold, too warm if anything. I am delighted with this country. Mountains rising thousands of feet high, covered with thick forests of pine. The pine and fir was heavy one day but it has been burnt off, and most all young timber principally. Streams of clear water dashing over rocks and stones, hills and vales. It is a land of mighty hills and wood, of streams and flood. I had a good long talk with a missionary who had been nine years in British Columbia, he gives it a great name. He said he was well acquainted with Wellington Harris. He is well off and a member of the Legislature. There is no snow at Calgary yet. It is warm when the wind comes from the west and cold when it comes from the east.

COLIN CRAWFORD.

A $20 Biblical Prize.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer twelve valuable rewards in their Monthly for April, among which is the following :

We will give $20.00 to the person telling us how many words there are in the Epistle of Jude, as recorded in the New Testament Scriptures (not the NEW REVISION,) by April 10th, 1884. Should two or more correct answers be received, the REWARD will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner April 15th, 1884. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the May Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. Address RUTLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Easton, Penna.

THE place to go for something nice is to the China Tea House. 80.

A LARGE and varied stock of napkin rings and finger bowls at the China Tea House. 80

THE cheapest and best assorted stock of lamps at the China Tea House. 80.

A FINE assortment of silver cruet stands at the China Tea House. 80.

OYSTERS, oranges, lemons. Oranges 25 cents per dozen. Oysters direct from the beds, guaranteed fresh, at Beck's. 80.

CALL and see the immense stock of Wall Papers, Floor Oil Cloths, Window Cornices, Window Shades, &c., at L. Thompson's McCaughey's Block. 41.

COMMERCIAL.

INGERSOLL MARKETS.

GRAIN AND SEEDS.

White Wheat, per bush	$1 00	to	1 10
Red Fall Wheat	1 00	to	1 10
Spring Wheat	1 05	to	1 08
Barley	50	to	60
Peas "	65	to	75
Oats, "	33	to	34
Corn "	60	to	65
Buckwheat "	00	to	54
Rye "	55	to	60
Clover Seed per bush	7 50	to	8 50
Timothy Seed "	2 00	to	2 50

PRODUCE.

Potatoes, per bushel	0 60	to	55
Onions "	0 75	to	0 80
Apples "	0 00	to	65
Dried Apples per lb	9	to	10
Tallow "	6	to	00
Lard "	10	to	11
Dressed Hogs, per 100 lbs	7 50	to	8 00
Live Hogs "	5 00	to	6 00
Hay, per ton	8 00	to	9 00
Straw, per Load	3 50	to	3 00
Beef Hides,	0 05	to	0 06
Calf Skins	0 00	to	0 10
Lamb Skins	0 60	to	0 80
Pelts	0 30	to	0 40
Wool,	0 18	to	0 20

PROVISIONS.

Flour, new process, Spring 100 lbs	0 00	to	2 75
Flour, new process, Fall, 100 lbs	2 75	to	3 00
Flour, per 100 lbs	2 10	to	2 85
Oatmeal	0 00	to	2 75
Cornmeal	0 00	to	1 90
Bran, per ton	12 00	to	14 00
Shorts	00 00	to	18 00
Barrow'fat Peas	0 70	to	0 85
Butter, tub	20	to	22
Butter, rolls, per lb	25	to	26
Cheese,	12	to	13½
Stilton Cheese	15	to	18
Sugar Cured Canvass Hams	12	to	14
Bacon, 100 lbs.	8 00	to	9 00
Eggs, per dozen	18	to	00
Geese,	45	to	50
Chickens, per pair	40	to	00
Ducks,	60	to	00
Turkeys, per lb.	0 10	to	0 14
Beef, per lb	0 08	to	12

LIVERPOOL PROVISION MARKET.

Reported for THE CHRONICLE AND DAIRYMAN by Messrs. William Heapy & Sons.

Liverpool, March 6th, 1884.

Cheese:—The market remains unchanged. The entire absence of summer makes has turned the demand on to the finest sorts, but buyers do not willingly pay the high prices asked. Winter made lots are in good supply at 42s. to 46s. Quotations are :—Extra fine 70s. to 73s.; useful winter made 50s. to 60s.; medium 42s. to 46s. New York quotation is 72s. c.i.f.

Butter:—Buyers have readily paid the advanced prices for the finest sorts noted in our last. Parcels of high character are scarce and sought after. Medium and off flavored lots dull and pressed for sale. Quotations are :—Extra fine creameries 120s. to 130s.; Fine Brockvilles 110s. to 116s.; choice farmers' dairies 98s. to 106s.; secondary and off flavored lots 60s. to 80s.

Bacon:—The demand has been of a retail character and prices, if anything, rather in favor of buyers. No transactions reported for future delivery. Long clear ordinary contract quality 45s. to 47s.; long and short clear together ordinary contract quality 47s.; short clear ordinary contract quality 47s. to 48s.; light weights long and short clear together 47s. to 48s.; special brands command a shade more ; Staffordshire and other fancy cuts 46s. so 48s.; Cumberland cut stale parcels 39s. to 42s.; fresh landed lots 45s. to 47s.; Stretford cut 46s. to 48s.; short rib 45s. to 47s.6d.; Clear Bellies ordinary brands 42s. to 44s.; proprietary brands 48s. to 50s.; shoulders 38s. to 42s.

Hams:—Holders are firm though the demand is scarcely so active. Quotations are:—Long Cuts 56s. to 58s ; Special brands 60s. to 61s.; Stafford Cuts 60s. to 63s.; Fancy brands 68s.; Manchester cuts 61s. to 63s.; American cuts scarce at 60s.

Lard:—Has been dull with very small transactions at gradually declining for the week. To-day there is more disposition to operate. Sellers for future deliveries 48s. to 48s.6d.; buyers at 6d. less. Transactions are reported at 48s.; ordinary contract qualities, fine brands 49s. to 50s.

Beef and Pork:—Steady, unchanged.

Liverpool, March 13.—Cheese:—The enquiry during the week has been of a retail character, still holders are firm. The demand continues principally for the finer descriptions. Lower grades neglected. Quotations are:—Extra fine white and colored 70s. to 74s.; Summer makes in good condition scarce 60s. to 66s.; Medium 30s. to 45s.; Skims 16s. to 20s.; New York cable quotes 73s.6d. c.i.f.

WM. HEAPY & SON

FARM AND DAIRY.

What Fowls Need.

Fowls must have a sand-bath. It is their sponge, towel, tooth brush and dressing-comb all in one. How would you feel, my dainty lady, if denied all your toilet appendages and compelled to go day after day unwashed and unkept, and to wear soiled and rumpled garments? Even so suffers Mistress Biddy without he daily dust-bath, and nature, that infallible teacher, directs her to the nearest and most convenient place for such a renovation of the skin and feathers. If no other soft, sandy and loamy earth is at hand you may be sure she will use your flower bed without regard to consequences. She may learn to hide at your approach, taught by a blind instinct that you are her enemy, but the idea that you begrudge her the dearest deligus of her hapless days—the use of the free soil for her bodily needs—is one that poor Biddy's small brain can never comprehend. Descend to her level, then, yourself; consider her wants and supply them without delay. So shall the "irrepressible conflict" of Biddy's wishes and yours in regard to the flower beds be amicably settled, and both of you hereafter live in peace. Have a cart full of loam, sand and road dust, and a sprinkling of ashes, charcoal and sulphur placed under cover where your fowls can sun themselves, dust their bodies to the destruction of annoying parasites, and scratch and bury themselves by the hour together whenever the wish may seize them, and you may lay the flattering unction to your soul that the beatitude which refers to the "qualtiy of mercy" may be applied to yourself then, if never before.—Poultry World.

Curing Cheese.

American Dairyman:—Upon the important subject of curing cheese Dr. H. Renolds of Livermore Falls, Me., says: Increased attention should be given by cheese makers to the matter of curing. Factories should be provided with suitable curing rooms where a uniform temperature of the required degree can be maintained, together with a suitable degree of moisture and sufficient supply of fresh air. This expense would be small compared with the increased value of the cheese product. He seems to think it is both with the dairyman and the factoryman, not so much the want of facilities as ignorance as to what is required. He is not quite so rude as we are in stating it, but that is what he means. He further says:

"In the curing of cheese certain requisites are indespensable in order to attain the best results. Free exposure to air is one requsite for the development of flavor. Curd sealed up in an air-tight vessel and kept at the proper temperature readily breakes down into a soft, rich, ripe cheese but it has none of the flavor so much esteemed in a good cheese. Exposure to the oxygen of the air develoopes flavor. The cheese during the process of curing takes in oxygen and gives off carbonic acid gas. This fact was proved by Dr. S. M. Babcock, of Cornell University, who, by analysing the air passing over cheese while curing, found that the cheese was constantly taking in oxygen and giving off carbonic acid gas. The development of flavor can be hastened by subjecting the cheese to a strong current of air. The flavor is developed by the procoss of oxidation, If the cheese is kept in too close air during the process of curing, it will be likely to be deficient in flavor.

Proper ventilation seems to be wholly ignored in American curing houses, but especially looked after by foreign cheese makers, especially in the curing of fine cheese."

Treatment of Dairy Cows.

Mr. J. A. Smith, a Western dairyman, writing of the importance of feed and proper treatment of dairy cows, gives some excellent suggestions on this topic. He says that dairymen are often surprised at the light weight of their milk the next morning after a cold-rain storm, through which their cows have suffered unstabled, and it is only a natural result of such treatment. The cow does not eat as much, for one thing; and another is, part of what she does eat goes to repair the waste of her system in withstanding the effects of the storm, and that keeps a per cent out of the milk-pail, until she has recovered from the effects of such exposure. It is also true that a cow affected by short feed or painful exposure not only loses in the quantity of her yield of milk, but in the amount of fatty matter it contains. In a word, nature has so organized the cow that she revenges herself on her owner's pocket, for cruel neglect and short feed; and a farmer might just as well try to dodge taxes and death, as to escape the unwise treatment of a cow. In point of fact when thus treated she takes the cream first, and gives the owner what skim milk she cannot assimilate. The only way to get a profit out of her is to fill her so full that she runs over, and take the surplus for your gold mine.

This is worth repeating. Prof. Brown of the Ontario model farm says: "An average cow for dairy purposes should give twenty pounds of milk per day during 200 days every year; eight pounds of cream from every 100 pounds of milk; forty-five pounds of butter from every 100 pounds of cream; and fully ten pounds of cheese from every 100 pounds of milk."

As spring comes on a pace farmers are liable to relax their care in seeing that the stock gets shelter in bad weather. The cold damp days of spring are more penetrating and trying upon stock than the cold, dry days of winter. Eternal vigilance is the price we pay for more things than liberty. Have a special care to the young stock from now until they go on to grass. It will make a big difference with their outcome in the fall.

A Western Duck Story.

From The Carson (Nev.) Appeal.

As the storm somewhat subsided last Monday, Quin Fletcher thought he would go out and see if he could kill a few of the ducks that, immediately after a snow storm, are found abundantly in the spring holes in different parts of the valley. Mounting his snow-shoes, he proceeded to the vicinity of the Hot Springs. As he was slipping along over five or six feet of snow, his eye on the lookout for game, he heard the distinct quack of a duck nearly beneath his feet. Surprised, he ran his snow-shoe pole into what appeared to be a cave. Immediately a big mallard flew out, which was quickly knocked endwise with his pole. Another big duck then came, which he caught in his hands and wrung its neck. Then another popped out, which met the same fate; then another, until thirty-eight ducks lay dead at the hunter's feet. Being curious to know what sort of a place he had struck, Fetcher make a larger opening, and found that he was just above a large spring hole about twelve feet in diameter. The ducks, during the storm, had taken refuge there, it being protected by a bank on the windward side. The violent wind had drifted snow from the bank over the pool, forming at first a shelf and at last a complete roof, and the birds were securely imprisoned. If Mr. Fletcher had not discovered their retreat they would probably have starved to death before the sun released them from their curious confinement.

THE BEST FOR BUTTER.

There is but one best color for butter, and that is Wells Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color, no candid investigator doubts. It is the best butter color in the world; is free from sediment or impurity, always ready for instant use, and it imparts to butter that rich dandelion yellow, without a tinge of red, which is the acme of desirability in any butter color.

The man who lives too fast is bound to die too quick.

FLUID LIGHTNING.

Fluid Lightning is the only cure for Toothache, Headache, Earache and Neuralgia. It does not take a day or an hour to cure it, but in less than a minute all pain is gone. Thousands have tested its merits within the last year. Fluid Lightning is also a positive cure for Rheumatism. The worst possible cases have been permanently cured in one week. Price 25 cents at Gayfer and Kneeshaw's drug store.

An auctioneer is valuable for his sellocutionary ability.

Mrs. O'Hearn, River Street, Toronto, uses Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for her cows for Cracked and Sore Teats; she thinks there is nothing like it. She also used it when her horses had the Epizootic with the very best results. Do not be persuaded to take any other Oil in place of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

TEMPERANCE.

Archdeacon Farrar on Temperance.

On Tuesday, in the Free Assembly Hall, the Venerable Archdeacon Farrar delivered an address on temperance, under the auspices of the Students' Temperance Societies of the Free Church and United Presbyterian Church Divinity Halls. The hall was crowded in every part. Principal Rainy occupied the chair.

