HON. GEO. E. FOSTER AND J. D. HAZEN AT SPLENDID PATRIOTIC MEETING.

St. George's Society Continues Centennial Celebration—Address and Jewel Presented by St. Andrew's Organization—Large Gathering Heard Admirable Addresses.

With enthusiasm in plenty, with two excellent orators, Geo. E. Foster and J. D. Hazen, M. P., with a good incidental programme and the best of good feeling abroad, the patriotic meeting held by St. George's Society in the York Theatre Monday night, as the second item of their centennial celebration, could not be otherwise than successful. There was a very large audience present.

Handsome Decorations. The interior of the York Theatre was decorated in a manner that could not be mistaken as tokening other than a meeting where the displaying of patriotism was an object. To the employees of Manchester, Robertson & Allison is due the credit for the taste and propriety shown in this decoration. At intervals of the British ensigns hung in majestic folds, while everywhere among the masses of color one caught glimpses of the bright tints of the Union Jack. In the center and front of the stage the beautiful banner of the society was hanging, while from the top of the stage and caught up at the sides drooped, curtaining, two large flags, the Union Jack, and on a white background the red cross of St. George.

On the wall to the right and left of the stage were two shields of St. George which on a smaller scale, were used also in decorating around the front of the gallery, together with other shields. Evergreens tastefully placed added much to the color effect, which was truly praiseworthy.

The president of the society, Dr. Thomas Walker, presided and on either side of him were the speakers of the evening, Geo. E. Foster and J. D. Hazen, M. P., while seated in the rear of those were a great number of foremost citizens among whom were Ald. T. B. Hargrave, Mayor Daniel Wm. Robson, R. W. W. Frink, C. E. MacMichael, G. Sidney Smith, Dr. Bayard, Reverend Dr. Wilson, Dr. Campbell, Dr. Morrison, A. D. Desjardis, L. G. McNeill and Father Gaynor, Arthur Everett, W. H. Thorne, Hon. R. J. Ritchie, Ald. Millidge, W. P. Dole, Walter H. Trauman, President Dr. Walker's Welcome.

Dr. Walker welcomed the gathering on this occasion celebrating the 100th anniversary of the society. He related the history of St. George, the patron saint of the society, and the legend of his combat with the dragon which he finally subdued in England the victories of St. George's knights from the reign of William I, who died himself and his army under the protection of this saint. He then dealt at some length with the history of St. George's Society in St. John from its organization until the present time. On every occasion and in every movement tending to the better dissemination of patriotic and love of the mother country, St. George's Society had borne a prominent part. Of the South African veterans, two, Beverly Armstrong and Ralph Marham, were sons of prominent members.

Of the present condition of St. George's Society he said the society was in a condition which was as any time in its history. St. Andrew's Society Delegation. When Dr. Walker completed his address a staid messenger from St. Andrew's Society, Charles Bell, dressed in the full regalia of the society, approached and announced that a delegation from the society of "brither Scots" was in waiting to be escorted to the platform, bearing their best wishes to the society of St. George. The delegation consisted of J. Roy Campbell, president; Thos. A. Rankine, 1st vice-president; James F. Robertson, 2nd vice-president; Rev. J. A. Morrison, chaplain; John White, treasurer; Cyrus P. Inches, secretary; Dr. Inches, James Jack, Thos. White, committee of charity and Past Presidents Dr. Murray McLaren, Judge Forbes, James Knox, Dr. James Christie and Robt. Rankine.

C. E. MacMichael and Wm. Robson were told off as a guard to escort the delegation to the platform. Proceeded by St. Andrew's Society to the platform and the society's marshals and with a guard from St. George's Society on either side, President J. Roy Campbell and his fellows proceeded to the platform. President Campbell then read the following address: To the president, officers and members of St. George's Society, of Saint John, New Brunswick:

shown in a tangible manner your enthusiasm for the imperial idea. Whether the occasion has called for the celebration of a military victory, or the welcome of a member of the royal family, or the support of a patriotic fund, Saint George's Society has always set an inspiring example to our citizens. The seriousness for which the Scottish character is proverbial does not hinder our entering into genuine sympathy with your aim to establish in Canada the traditions of Merrie England; for, besides the amenities of social intercourse, those traditions include the honesty and reverence which the Scottish people has ever emphasized as the essential conditions of enduring national greatness. By perpetuating your ancestral traditions here, you are contributing to the life of our dominion from many of the elements that have entered conspicuously into the social stability and world wide usefulness of the empire.

Witnessing as our society does to the spirit of brotherhood, we are naturally in thorough sympathy with your aim to minister to the relief of the needy among your fellow countrymen. Kindness to the stranger in a strange land has a practical as well as a sentimental value. It is a benefit not only to the individual recipient, but to the state, and in contributing to the prosperity and contentment of English-Canadians you are really fostering the unity of the empire.

In a truly fraternal spirit, therefore, we reciprocate the greetings so cordially extended to us by you during our recent similar celebration, and we express our similar celebration, and we express our sympathy in the future functions of your society your president will wear the accompanying jewel as a token of our mutual good will and affection. We are confident that that you centennial may simply mark a stage in a long history of honorable and successful effort for the national welfare, and we pledge you our co-operation in the attempt to promote the comprehensive spirit of your historic and classic toast: "May the Rose and the Thistle, the Leek and the Shamrock, long flourish with the pine of New Brunswick."

Signed on behalf of St. Andrew's Society, the twenty-third day of April, A. D., 1902. J. ROY CAMPBELL, President. CYRUS P. INCHES, Secretary. He then presented to the society a jewel which was presented to the society of St. George, which was suspended from a crimson ribbon and was about the size of a diamond. It was presented to the society of St. George, which was suspended from a crimson ribbon and was about the size of a diamond. It was presented to the society of St. George, which was suspended from a crimson ribbon and was about the size of a diamond.

Before that time there was a settlement at Maugeville and also one at St. John, but the true growth of the province dates from that memorable 18th day of May, 1783, when 3,000 men driven out of their homes in the United States landed at St. John and proceeded to hew for themselves a home out of the primeval wilderness. He read selections from a history of British North America written by the late Calvin Hatheway and printed in St. John from the press of Chubb & Sears, showing what hardships the Loyalists had to undergo. People undergoing such hardships had little time for intellectual pursuits but when conditions improved somewhat the spirit grew and the story of Parley in 1802 with the organization of St. George's Society, which has been a potent factor in Canadian life ever since. The torch of loyalty lighted by the Loyalists in 1783 burned as freely now as ever and although great changes had taken place in Canada since that time the changes were such as to bind our land closer to the homeland. When Queen Victoria ascended the throne, the Loyalists were regarded as such a stage that the throne was regarded as the pallid shadow of the day which had fled. Victoria's rule made the throne the passionate devotion of the British people. The St. George's Society had witnessed this. It had witnessed the confederation of Canada, of Australia and would in a few years see the confederation of South Africa. It had lived to see Canadian soldiers go to South Africa and fight their ground until all were killed or wounded came to be written it would be found to compare favorably with the Spartans under Leonidas, who held the pass at Thermopylae. When this is written it will make a bright page of British history. When in June next King Edward is crowned with imposing ceremony it will be the greatest pageant the world has ever seen because the king will be surrounded not only by the crowned heads of Europe and the gorgeously arrayed diplomatic service but by men from all the colonies of that greater Britain across the seas which his noble mother did so much to present to the empire. He will realize that in those colonies lies the greatest strength of the empire over which all pray that Edward VII may long be spared to reign. (Great applause.)

TROUBLE WITH IMMIGRANTS

HALIFAX SAYS A BAD LOT WILL LAND AT ST. JOHN.

Norwegians and Swedes Who Are Going to Work for Clergue at the Soo Made Things Lively—Sunday's Fatality—Troopship in Port.

Halifax, N. S., April 21—(Special)—Steamer Manchester Shipper, under charter to the Franco-Canadian line, and which arrived here this morning from Antwerp, had nearly 800 passengers. She had 384, mostly Loyalists, to land here, and about 300 tons of cargo. She also had about 400 immigrants and considerable cargo for St. John. The St. John board passengers are Norwegians and Swedes, all men, and bound for the Clergue works at Saint Ste Marie. They are one of the worst lot ever brought here. They were supposed to have remained on board, but all came ashore and the majority became intoxicated and made things lively about Water street. The captain of the Shipper is not anxious to take them farther, as he had considerable trouble with them on the passage. The second day out from Antwerp they requested him to put back and land them.

Conductor Thos. Bartelow and Motorman Wm. Devlin, of tram car No. 2, were assigned in the police court today on the charge of manslaughter in connection with Sunday's fatal accident, and the matter was continued until Thursday. Medical Examiner Finn has not yet filed his report and will not likely do so before tomorrow. Scott, who had his arm taken off in the accident, was resting easy at the hospital tonight, and unless complications set in, will recover.

The big Leyland liner, Cestria, which has been chartered to take the first expedition of the fourth C. M. R. and horses to South Africa, arrived at noon today from Boston to fit out.

WANT TO EXTRADITE HIM.

Case of Trouble Over Smuggling to Engage Woodstock Magistrate.

Woodstock, N. B., April 21—(Special)—Wm. Kelly, of Debec, charged with assaulting Customs Officer Frank Burns last night, was arrested at his home and brought to Woodstock last night and placed in the county jail. Deputy Sheriff Martin Lawless, of Houlton, is here trying to secure extradition papers. The story is told of the assault. It appears that Mr. Burns came from Fort Fairfield to Debec disguised as a pedlar with a view of stopping the smuggling of potatoes across the lines. While Kelly was near the boundary line with a load of potatoes at 3 o'clock in the morning his team was stopped by Burns. It is claimed that Burns drew his revolver, fired one shot which passed through Kelly's mouth, the bullet afterwards being extracted by Dr. Hand from the back of the ear. The second shot slightly injured Kelly in the right arm and hand. Kelly then drove home and Burns succeeded in crawling to a Mr. Terrell's residence, whence he was driven to Houlton.

Montreal, April 21—(Special)—A London cable to the Star says: Canadian officers, Colonels Willoughby and Wallace, Captain Howard and Lieut. Hamar and Greenwood, and several other officers of the king's colonies, were presented to the king at this afternoon's levee at St. James' Palace.

COLOMBIAN TOWN SURRENDERS TO LIBERAL FORCE.

Insurgents Effect Landing in Barges and Boats Near Bocas Del Toro.

Washington, April 19—The navy department has received the following telegram from Commander McCrea, of the gunboat Machias, dated Colon, April 19: "Bocas Del Toro, Colombia, has surrendered. No injury to American citizens or interests. Making arrangements to withdraw forces this evening. Will sail for Aspinwall Sunday."

Colon, Colombia, April 19—The expedition under Gen. Gomez, the military governor of Colon, which left here yesterday on the government gunboat General Pinzon for Bocas Del Toro, was due at Bocas at about 8 o'clock this morning. The expedition comprised 700 men with four guns.

A German steamer from Bocas, which has just arrived here, brings news that the Liberais effected a landing in open boats and barges near Bocas at 6 o'clock Thursday evening, when fighting began. The Liberal troops outnumbered the government forces, which were forced to surrender the town yesterday morning. One hundred and fifty men on both sides were killed, but the government loss was insignificant as compared with that of the Liberais.

The United States gunboat Machias has landed 100 marines at Bocas. It is believed here that the Pinzon is bombarding the town and will quickly dislodge the insurgents.

Kingston, Jamaica, April 20—Passengers on the royal mail steamer Trent, which arrived here today from Colon, Colombia, say heavy fighting was proceeding in the neighborhood of Panama and Bocas Del Toro last Friday. The officers on the Trent declare the situation on the isthmus shows no improvement.

CUBAN RECIPROCIITY.

Republican and Democrats Unite and Overrule the Chair.

Washington, April 18—The Democrats and the Republican insurgents rode roughshod over the house leaders today when the voting began on the Cuban reciprocity bill. They overthrew the ruling of the chair in committee of the whole on the question of the germanium differential from refined sugar during the existence of the reciprocity agreement provided for in the bill. The vote to overturn the decision of the chair, made by Mr. Sherman, of New York, was 171 to 139, Republicans to the number of 27 joining with a solid Democratic vote to accomplish this result. The bill as passed authorizes the president, after the organization of an independent government in Cuba and the enactment of immigration, exclusion and contract labor laws, to negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement with Cuba, by which in return for equivalent concession the United States will grant a reduction of 20 per cent from the Dingley rates on goods coming into the United States from Cuba, agreement to continue until Dec. 1, 1903. During the existence of such agreement the duty on refined sugars and all sugars above number 16 Dutch standard, is to be 1.825 per pound.

Negro Women's Clubs.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 18—The Tennessee Federation of Woman's Clubs today defeated a resolution to instruct its delegates to vote against the admission of negro women's clubs into the general federation at the Los Angeles convention.

Frederickton, N. B., April 18—(Special)—Coroner Seery commenced an inquest this afternoon over the body of the infant that died at the Lorne hotel premises. Several witnesses were examined, but no evidence of a startling nature was brought out. The inquiry will be resumed Monday.

Montreal Electrical Workers' Strike.

United States Senate.

Washington, April 21—Without discussion the senate today passed the river and harbor bill, carrying appropriations of about $70,000,000.

SUMMER SCIENCE SCHOOL.

A PLEASANT SESSION AT ST. STEPHEN PROMISED.

Much to Entertain Visitors at Meeting Soon to Be Held—Good Opportunities for Nature Study—Hospitable People to Welcome the Many Expected.

St. Stephen, April 16—On July 22nd of this year, the 10th session of the Summer School of Science for the Atlantic provinces of Canada will begin here. This will be the most memorable gathering ever held on the St. Croix. The sessions will continue 10 days. During their visit, citizens will have an opportunity of proving to the strangers that it is not an idle boast which visitors heretofore have proclaimed, viz: "No place in Canada can be found such hospitable entertainers as the residents of St. Stephen."

In 1887 this school met at Wolfville, N. S., with an attendance of 41. It has yearly increased until last year at Lunenburg there were 372, so that it is safe to estimate an attendance this session of 600, for the great benefits to be derived are becoming more manifest to all having the interests of education at heart, and as well for the inducements offered for attendance here, not only socially but particularly the scientific and historical knowledge to be gained along the beautiful St. Croix. St. Stephen is at the head of navigation on the river. The town is about two miles in length and the centre of a street divides it from the enterprising town of Milltown. On the opposite side of the river is Calais, in the state of Maine. In everything but government the three towns are virtually one. They have a population of about 12,000 and are connected by steel and wooden bridges crossed by an electric railway, from the cars of which the visitor can view the principal streets and buildings of the three towns, keeping in sight of the beautiful St. Croix, with its factories and saw mills in full view. Besides the river there are many fine walks and drives on the American and Canadian sides.

APPLICATION TO PARLIAMENT

STREET RAILWAY FOR FREDERICTON.

Incorporation of the Canada Eastern Railway Company Will Be Asked—Mr. Charlton Wants Export Duty on Nickel Matte to Bring About Home Refining.

Ottawa, April 18—(Special)—When the house met today Mr. Charlton presented, on the motion to go into supply, the condition of the nickel industry in Canada. He said that there was now under formation in the United States a nickel company with bonds of $12,000,000 which was associated with the steel industry with $1,000,000,000 and which was intended to control the markets of the world. The question was, whether Canada should permit this. The United States imposed an import duty on refined nickel but admitted the matte free. He did not see why Canada could not refine its own nickel matte. His remedy was to place an export duty on nickel matte. In addition to this, he called attention to the disadvantage which Canadian manufacturers of nickel matte had to contend with compared with Americans. The Americans got a refund of the export duty imposed by the Philippines on Manila, which gave them an advantage of $7.50 per ton against the Canadian manufacturer who got no rebate. This was another matter which the government should look into. He suggested a countervailing duty of one-half cent a pound on nickel matte.

The house went into supply and took up the estimates of the inland department. Mr. Sifton said that, on account of the increased work of the interior department, he had decided to appoint a deputy superintendent general of Indian affairs. At present the deputy minister of the interior was also deputy superintendent general of Indian affairs. The salary of $3,200 for deputy superintendent general of Indian affairs was noted. Application will be made at the present session of the parliament of Canada for an act to incorporate "The Canada Eastern Railway Company," with the usual powers, including the power to acquire the railway undertaking of the Alexander Gibson Railway & Manufacturing Company, to issue paid up stock and bonds in payment for the railway undertaking, to construct and operate extension of the said railway, to construct and operate a street railway in the town of Fredericton, New Brunswick, to erect and operate telegraph and telephone lines, to acquire the franchise and undertaking of the Fredericton and St. Mary's Bridge Company and issue paid up stock and bonds therefor, to acquire lands and erect and manage works for electric and other power, to acquire franchises to sell and lease power, to construct and acquire vessels for freight and passengers, and to issue bonds for the purposes of the company, and with such other powers as may be necessary.

Mr. Sifton has given notice of two bills, one to give representation in parliament to the Yukon and the other to increase the number of representatives on the Yukon council from two to five elected. There will be five appointed by the government. The commissioner, in addition to these, is a member of the council. Ottawa, April 18—(Special)—It was largely a western day in the house. At the afternoon sitting the Indian estimates were all put through and at the evening session the whole talk was on the question of the government giving autonomy to the northwest. The leader of the opposition talked favorably for provincial autonomy, while Mr. Sifton pointed out that the question was a large one and it would take two or three years to have it finally settled.

Ottawa, April 21—(Special)—Hon. Mr. Sifton introduced in the house today a bill to amend the Yukon Territory act. It provides that in cases where there is any conflict between orders passed by the governor-general-in-council and the Yukon council, that the orders of the governor-general-in-council shall prevail. It also gives to the Yukon council the control and regulation of intoxicating liquor. This does not refer to the manufacture. It also provides for giving a larger measure of autonomy to the Yukon council by increasing the members-elect to the council from two to five.

Mr. Smith (Nanaimo) introduced a bill to amend the Yukon Territory act. It provides for the application of the act being placed under the minister of labor, instead of under the attorney general of the dominion. It also provides for the minister of labor sending out commissioners at the request of labor unions, with power to report upon all cases in reference to incorporation of aliens.

Mr. Kemp (Ontario) asked if the government had made any representations to the British government to exempt Canada from the tax imposed by Britain on food stuffs. Mr. Wilfrid Laurier, in reply, said: "Parliament has been made aware that a conference is to take place in London this summer at the invitation of the secretary of state for the colonies, between the imperial authorities and the self-governing colonies of the empire. In respect to the imposition of duties upon grain and flour, communications have been made and exchanged on the subject between the two governments, but in the present stage of the negotiations it is not expedient to bring down any correspondence relating thereto until such conference has taken place."

Colonel Hughes moved a resolution declaring it wasteful to supply each district or similar localities with rifles and new safety practice ammunition for use in the Peters or similar target ranges. He said that all citizens from the age of 14 and upwards should be afforded opportunity of practice. Dr. Burden said that this was a matter for the provincial government, being one of education, but he intended communicating with the provincial authorities on the subject. The debate was adjourned.

The evening session was taken up with Mr. Lancaster's bill, making railway companies liable for cattle killed on railways where there are not efficient cattle guards. Mr. Lancaster's bill was defeated in committee and the house then adjourned.

Hartland, N. B., April 18—(Special)—What was probably one of the most unique suicides ever recorded occurred in this county this week. For a man to bury himself alive requires both ingenuity and nerve. Evidently Amber Crouse possessed both, because today his dead body was unearthed. For some time back the young fellow, aged 20, son of Miles Crouse, one of the most prosperous farmers in the county, had shown signs of insanity. At 11 o'clock on Tuesday he was missed from his home. He did not return at night and it was presumed he went to visit his friends at Mars Hill. On Wednesday, however, it was found he was not there. On Thursday, his whereabouts having not been heard of, the young man's family became alarmed and the neighbors established a posse to search for him. Fully 100 men were out yesterday and today and at 2 o'clock this afternoon his body was found.

Mr. Presley turned earth was discovered on a hillside and a shovel lay handy by. Those who found this dug down with the spade and under a few inches of mould found the dead body of the young man. A coroner, Dr. Ross, was summoned, but there appears no doubt about it having been a case of suicide. Evidence shows that the unfortunate fellow sought to smother himself in the earth; that he dug a grave for himself on a hillside and lay in it and worked away at the overhanging ground until it fell in on him. His parents are prostrated. His mother has gone into convulsions. This is the fifth suicide in this county inside of one year.

Alex. McDonald, on Nov. 26, 1900, did kill and slay one Louise McDonald. The allegation against McDonald is that, in a fit of anger, he choked to death his mother, who was 70 years old. Family dimensions resulted in the story reaching the ears of the police, and McDonald's arrest followed. Five Children Die of Starvation. Mr. Presley turned earth was discovered on a hillside and a shovel lay handy by. Those who found this dug down with the spade and under a few inches of mould found the dead body of the young man. A coroner, Dr. Ross, was summoned, but there appears no doubt about it having been a case of suicide. Evidence shows that the unfortunate fellow sought to smother himself in the earth; that he dug a grave for himself on a hillside and lay in it and worked away at the overhanging ground until it fell in on him. His parents are prostrated. His mother has gone into convulsions. This is the fifth suicide in this county inside of one year.

ONE WOMAN'S SUCCESS.

How She Made Good Money With Her Flock of Hens.

At a recent farmers' institute at Avoca, N. Y., Mrs. Fillmore Billings, a farm woman, related the following paper on how she cared for her fowls and the profit she realized from them the past year.

"My way of caring for the hens is: In the winter I feed a warm feed every morning of bran with some meat feed mixed with it, either desiccated fish or boiled beef and bones, using seven parts of bran to one of the meat feed, mixed with hot water and fed while warm. At noon feed corn or wheat, and if they need more feed a box at night. Always have a bag with crushed oyster shells where they can get them when they want them, and give them all the fresh water they want. Two or three times a week I feed some vegetable food, cabbage or apples. I keep our hens shut in in the winter, unless it is very warm. Don't forget that you must have a warm, dry place for them.

"In the summer they run where they please, with the exception of the garden. I have them every day of the year all they will eat.

"Here is what we did with our hens last year: Jan. 1, 1901, we had 150 white Leghorns, and eleven Plymouth Rocks for sitters. We sold 1,500 dozen of eggs, which brought $298.87. We have sold seventeen roosters for $7.50, which makes the sales amount to $306.37. The eggs used in the family are eighty-four dozen. Calling them worth 15 cents a dozen, makes them worth $12.12. I will see that the eggs sold brought almost 20 cents a dozen, only lacking 4 cents of a cent. The chickens used for meat are fifty at 80 cents each. This is the lowest price that we have sold any for; in fact, we have had $15.73, a profit of $238.66. If they had more room, they would do better than this. I shall continue in the poultry business as long as they do as well as they have the past year."

Fertilizers Affect Seed Germination.

The department of agriculture has had many inquiries concerning the effect of commercial fertilizers on garden and farm seeds. A number of tests were inaugurated, and as a result it was shown that in many cases, if not in most, the application of fertilizers directly in the row at planting time is detrimental.

In the case of the potato, it is affecting the sprout after it has passed through the seed coat. Muriate of potash and nitrate of soda are very detrimental to the germination of the seed whether applied directly or mixed with the soil used as a covering.

Fertilizers composed of phosphoric acid or lime are much less injurious than the above, and in many cases, commercial fertilizers should not be brought into direct contact with the seed or soil. It is highly probable that any of them, if applied in the usual way on top of the ground, actually favor germination.

A Simple Gate Hanging Device.

The common way of setting a post, driving a heavy stake beside it, and fastening the gate to the post with two cleats through which the gate must slide is expensive in both money and space. Where there are short runs the extra post is often in the way and the device here shown is the best arrangement.

A T-shaped device is made by securing two short boards together, and then to the post. The gate slides on this and is held in place by the arms of the T. The other end of the device is held in a similar manner. The boards extend by the cleats on the front end which is the means of giving considerable strength to the gate.

Parasitic on Apple Seed.

The parasitic fungus usually called apple scab does not winter, as has been supposed, on the twigs of the tree, and therefore it cannot be killed by spraying before the buds open. This is a very important matter in practical orchard management, for successful hinges upon its destruction and is dependent upon a knowledge of its life history. For best results the first application of the fungicide, usually bordeaux mixture, should be made just after the last buds open.

THE DAIRYMAN.

How to make cheese on the farm is told by Mrs. Frank Norton in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. She says: I use my night and morning's milk and stir all together till well mixed, pour into boiler on the stove and heat slowly till the thermometer stands at 90 degrees, stirring it often to prevent scorching. Now pour it off into your tub or churn if you have it. If you have about twelve gallons of milk, it will take one rennet tablet to make it. If less, take less of the tablet in proportion as one tablet makes 100 pounds of milk.

Dissolve the rennet in about two tablespoonfuls of warm water. When the milk has cooled to 85 degrees, stir in the process, but waste the butter fat and makes the curd tough.

Handle curd very gently till it is solid, as rough or quick treatment causes escape of butter fat and impoverishes the cheese. Now lift the cloth and find the whole mass coagulated. Take a long knife and cut clear across from side to side and clear to the bottom.

With long, slow, sweeping strokes. Let a few minutes and dip off all the whey with saucer or skimmer. Cross cut as before, leaving curd in inch squares. Dip off whey again. Again cut curd and dip whey. It collects very rapidly; and the tub can be tilted so as to drain off, or if churn is used tilt it and put a saucer inside to prevent curd from blocking the passage after pulling out the churn plug.

Let it drain this way, cutting occasionally as before till the curd is quite solid and squeaks when moved. Salt to taste and chop fine with chopping knife. Lay a square of muslin in your hoop (pail or peck measure). The muslin should be dipped and wrung out of hot water. Pour in the chopped curd. Bring corners of muslin up and pin over top of curd. Never mind if hoop is ever so full. It will sink down. Set to drip on top of pail or pan. Put light weights on at first. I use my two flat-irons that have the patent handle.

Let it now stand this way for four hours. Take out and change muslin and turn cheese; return to the hoop and press. Now certain no butter till cheese only makes the cloth damp. I usually change cloth and turn cheese about twice a day. Thirty-six hours is sufficient time for a small sized cheese to press. Now take from hoop, cut cheesecloth to fit around cheese large enough to lap on both ends of cheese. Cut two pieces to fit ends. Now smear all over with good salt butter. Put your cheesecloth smoothly on top and press down smooth with butter to keep out cheese fly. Put cheese in cool, dry, airy place and rub and turn every day to keep off mold. If butter dries in, put on a little more.

For actual money invested I believe a windbreak is one of the cheapest and most practical buildings the stock feeder can have, says C. P. Reynolds of Michigan in Farm and Home. Several years ago we disposed of an old log yard, finding the roof in very good condition. I determined to use what was necessary of the roofing and sufficient lumber from the ceiling to make a windbreak. As a result, and to my surprise, it stands today after nearly a score of years of practical service. The building is 48 by 10 feet. The posts at the rear are about 7 feet high and nearly in front. Flats were laid over the tops of both sets of posts, and the roof, which was put on in four sections, was placed on top of these and spiked. The rear was sided up, also the ends. It makes no difference in the weather, whether in spring or in summer I have known cattle to come all the way from the back of the pasture in order to stand in its shade. During stormy weather in spring or fall it is generally full of wind, and the protecting themselves from the elements. One can scarcely appreciate the difference that such a protection is to a yard. The shed covers nearly all of one side of the barnyard. Several years ago, before our silo was put in, corn stover was hauled and placed in a long continuous stack on a second side, which was an additional protection to the yard during stormy weather. The amount in each ration are computed per day for a steer weighing 1,300 pounds.

Ration 1.—Cottonteed, 12 pounds; cottonseed meal, 3 pounds; wheat straw, 10 pounds; prairie hay, 4 pounds; cost, 157c.

Ration 2.—Wheat chop, 11 1/2 pounds; cottonseed meal, 3 1/2 pounds; wheat straw, 10 pounds; prairie hay, 4 pounds; cost, 20 3/4 cents.

Ration 3.—Cottonteed, 12 pounds; wheat chop, 6 pounds; wheat straw, 10 pounds; prairie hay, 4 pounds; cost, 17c.

Ration 4.—Cottonteed meal, 10 pounds; wheat straw, 20 pounds (one-half of this to be cut and mixed with the meal); cost, 17 cents.

Ration 5.—Cottonteed, 13 pounds; wheat straw, 10 pounds; prairie hay, 4 pounds; cost, 123c.

Fattening Cattle.

Fattening stock may be fed quite often, but should not be fed more than they will eat up clean, says Kansas Farmer. In nearly all cases the more rapidly animals are finished and fattened the greater the profit. Better results will be secured if the young stock are fed separate from the old animals.

Best Condition For Breeders.

It is a mistake to keep breeding animals excessively fat. Excessive fatness is only profitable in animals intended for the butcher. All others should be kept in a good, thrifty condition.

For the young stock and dry cows feed from five to ten pounds of hay and all the silage they will eat or conversely twenty-five to forty pounds of silage and the hay they will eat.

SPRING CLEANING.

Extract from "My Experiences of Spring Cleanings, Past and Present."

By MRS. GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.

Often I think of the beautiful town that is seated by the sea; Often in thought go up and down The pleasant streets of that dear old town And my youth comes back to me. But so surely I indulge in those long, long thoughts of my youth, with all its happiness, with all its freedom from care, with its many fold pleasures, and its few pains, there arises in my mind's eye the vivid picture of one very great misery, which used to bedevil me yearly within the precincts of the beautiful town that is seated by the sea. The picture is that of a Spring Cleaning, when every vestige of comfort would disappear from the home of my childhood in dear old Westmouth town. Spring Cleaning in those days was Spring Cleaning with a vengeance. The Assyrian that came down like a wolf on the fold was tame in comparison with it. So soon as every March had come in like a lion and had gone out pure or less like a lamb—some came in like a lion and went out like a tiger—and all of us children, from the eldest to the youngest, with our mumps, our chilblains, our earaches, our coughs, and our influenza colds, surely enough, with the empty and empty stomachs and cough-mixture phials, would begin the dim rumblings which heralded the approach of the fiend, Spring Cleaning.

VIVIAN'S MISTAKE.

A perfect Winter day, and Vivian was sitting in the drawing-room at Kingsley Manor, with the acute and amber curtains drawn apart, so that she could look out upon the orange and crimson glory of the December sunset that was flitting its brilliant flaming banners above the brown hills and the grand old trees in the park.

A fire in the silver-barred grate burned bright and cheery, like a melting bed of rubies, and the air of the room was fragrant with the dainty odors of tea and hyacinth, lemon tree and heliotrope from the conservatory adjoining, and Vivian sat there still on her black velvet dress, her perfect face clear-cut against the back of the azure plush chair against which her head was reclining.

STELLA WARREN'S ADMIRATION.

That next evening, when Mr. Warren and his mother were dining at Kingsley Manor, Vivian was just a little startled by a sudden question from her grandfather.

"What did Christy Conway say when you handed her the money, Vivian?"

And Stella Warren thought he never had seen anything so lovely as the flushing flush and pure pallor on her face.

"She was very grateful, grandpa. She sent word she could never express her thanks."

"A nice little girl," Mr. Kingsley said, approvingly.

And Stella Warren said to himself that Vivian was a nice girl.

"So, the sewing was through you, I tell! I might almost have known it, you used to be so thoughtful, always. I do so thank you—I need all I can get of you."

Christy Conway looked up into Mr. Warren's grave, pitiful face, and his very heart ached to see what that year and a-half of married misery had done for her.

"I heard you were in distress, Christy, but I did not dream you were so broken down—as this!"

He touched her thin, slender little hand that was gently rocking the little pine cradle in which her six months-old baby lay—a pale, pony little creature, with big dark eyes like its mother.

"I don't mind for myself," she said, gravely, "but when I look at Lillie, and realize how delicate she is, and what I might do for her, if only—I could afford it."

The rebellious-mother-lark started to her feet.

"I think you ought to take her away somewhere, where you would be more comfortable than you are here."

He looked around at the plain, comfortable surroundings.

"Don't talk to me like that," she said, passionately. "I might as well try to bathe her in liquid pearl, or dress her in cloth-of-gold! She will die—because her mother cannot earn enough money to nourish her on the dainty, tempting food she needs."

Warren looked compassionately at her pale, pitiful face, pure as if carved from ivory.

"That should not be, Christy. Take the fifty dollars that old Mr. Kingsley sent you, whom Vivian Kingsley had been her dear friend."

Christy looked at him amazedly.

"But Mr. Kingsley has not sent me any fifty dollars."

"He has not sent it! Why, did not Vivian Kingsley bring it to you yesterday?"

"Vivian Kingsley was here yesterday, and left me a bowl of jelly and a bottle of port wine and a basket of apples."

"Have you looked surprised, and was silent for a moment."

"That is strange—very strange," he said in a curious tone of voice. "But it seemed to me no difference, Christy. You and I are old friends, and you will not refuse the invitation my mother sends—to bring your little white Lillie and visit us at Warren Grange, until we decide your future."

A gush of passionate tears streamed down her pale face.

"You are a saint! Oh, Stella, I dare not refuse for my baby's sake. And if we both get well and strong, I can so easily earn enough to pay you back."

A week later—the day of Mrs. Louison's grand affair—and Vivian Kingsley, radiant as a fairy queen, stood before her dressing-room smiling at the charming reflection of the ein.

"I never looked so well, and I wonder if—to-night—will not tell me that she loves me."

Her beautiful face was all afire and sparkle as she leisurely drew on her white lace-topped kid gloves, waiting for the roll of the carriage wheels, that meant Stella Warren had come for her.

When her maid handed her a note, and discreetly retired while Vivian read this:

"Miss Kingsley: I must beg to be excused from attending you to Mrs. Louison's. For two reasons. One, I have learned that you are not the girl of high honor and absolute truthfulness I thought you were. The other, my betrothed wife, Mrs. Christie Conway, naturally claims my attention from this time."

STELLA WARREN.

So the lovely white swiss toilet, with its glistening snowy jet and shining satin, was a robe of eschekold ever after.

So the conversation drifted back to the grand center of Vivian Kingsley's ambition, and Mr. Warren said a half hour longer, and then left Vivian with—the fifty dollars in gold in her dainty little velvet and jet fringe pocket.

"I think it is too mean for anything in grandpa," she thought, her hand caressing the shining pieces; "he said he hadn't any money to spare, but I know well enough that it is all nonsense. He could afford me a new dress every day of the year if he thought so."

She took out the money, and laid them in a shining array on her velvet dress.

"To think I could buy what I want with this! What a mean shame it is that grandpa is so awful strict about never allowing me to borrow my regular allowance of him. If I spend it all the first day he makes me go without until it is due again. And I won't have a penny for nearly two weeks—and I've wanted a dress so much in my life. I must have it. Stella Warren will be my escort, and I want to do him credit. I wonder if I couldn't borrow this—for only a fortnight! I'd have my dress, and Mrs. Conway would only have to wait such a little while! I'll take her over some jellies and wine and fruit—and grandpa will never know."

And—by noon the next day the lovely white swiss toilet was on cred, to be beaded with white jet, and trimmed with narrow white satin ribbon—an exquisite toilet, in which there was no doubt but that Vivian would be simply irresistible, and find added favor in Stella Warren's admiration.

Interesting Point in Life of Christ Church, St. Stephen.

PAPER BY THE RECTOR.

At Service Tomorrow Rev. Canon Newnham Will Give Sketch of Events in Century of Church History--The Early Days, Church Officers Then and Now.

St. Stephen, N. B., April 19--A paper on the history of Christ church, this town, will be read by the rector, Rev. Canon O. S. Newnham, in that church tomorrow in commemoration of the centenary of the church's existence. The first church wardens and vestrymen were elected on Easter Monday, April 19, 1802.

The first deaconman whose visitation is recorded was the Rev. Samuel Cooke, in 1785. He had been sent out to New Jersey in 1749 by the S. P. G., but had returned to England in 1774, and was appointed missionary to New Brunswick.

Mr. Clarke's writing, is a list of the members of his family. The first entry in the marriage register is the marriage of Andrew McAdam to Agnes Fraser, on the 6th December, 1816.

In 1815 at a vestry meeting held on Oct. 28 an offer made by Robert Pagan of a lot of land upon which to build a church was considered and accepted. This is the ground upon which the present church stands.

In 1821 the Rev. Skiffington Thomson came from Ireland to assist Mr. Clarke in his work. In December, 1824, he wrote the church wardens that they had appointed Dr. Thomson as missionary to succeed Mr. Clarke.

Dr. Thomson was inducted into the rectory of St. Stephen on March 17, 1826, by the Rev. Dr. Alley, rector of St. Andrew's, in the presence of Samuel Abbott and James McBride.

Up to the year 1846 the province of New Brunswick was included in the diocese of Nova Scotia, as in fact at one time was the whole of lower Canada, the Bishop of Nova Scotia being the first colonial bishop of the Church of England.

The first bishop was Dr. Chas. Inglis, from 1787 until 1816. He was succeeded by the Right Rev. Robt. Stance, from 1816 to 1824. He was followed by the Right Rev. John Inglis in 1825. The first visit of a bishop to St. Stephen was in July, 1826.

A vestry meeting was held on July 21, 1826, at which there were present Dr. Thomson, Joseph N. Clarke and Dr. Levi Weston wardens, and Peter McDiarmid, James Tait, William Porter, Robert Lindsay and Samuel Abbott vestrymen.

The next visit of the bishop was on August 28, 1835. On Saturday, August 29, his lordship consecrated the chapel which had been built in Upper and Lower Mills in 1824. The former was built in 1824 on land given by Gilman King, Henry Richards donating £1,000 towards the building.

WHAT THEY THINK OF CANADA IN ENGLAND.

Canadian Child Complains of What School Books Teach--An Extract.

From time to time ludicrous incidents come to light to prove the lack of general knowledge some Englishmen have of Canada, its climate, topography, customs, etc.; but the following extract from a letter written by a little girl, until a month ago living near Montreal, but now residing in Leeds, England, would tend to show that even the school teachers in the Motherland are not free from a similar deficiency in their knowledge of the largest colony within the British empire. The letter was written to the editor of the Children's department of the Herald, and is, in part, as follows: "The people here seem to know very little about Canada. A school girl asked me if I was black when I was born. Some of the pupils at school ask me if we speak English in Canada. They think we have no cars in the Dominion. "Our geography lesson is now on Canada, and we are told some very funny things. In winter, according to our school books, Canadians dress all in furs and walk on snowshoes, it being impossible to walk on the soft snow with ordinary boots. Meat and milk are sold in a frozen state to customers, both articles by weight. The ice blocks of milk look like shafts of marble. "Tobacco, made of wood, are used by the boys who guide them with their hands."--Montreal Herald.

Chipman News. Chipman, April 21--The dredge New Dominion, which has commenced work on the Salmon River, is dredging out the channel below Briggs Corner. Arthur Betz, the 10-year-old son of William Betz, of Hardwood Ridge, inflicted a severe gash in his foot while chopping firewood in the woods. His axe caught a limb overhanging, which caused the accident. Dr. Nugent dressed the foot and eight or ten stitches were required to close the wound.
