TO LOOK WISE IS NOT TO BE WISE.

A reader of the Times says that in all that has been printed about President Coolidge of late he has seen no mention of a poem that hung on the wall back of his club while he was Governor of Massachusetts.

A review of the conditions surrounding the movement of the Canadian crop the time it reaches the country elevators until it is placed aboard the ocean steamers en route to an English or European market, indicates very clearly the lack of a comprehensive scheme to market a commodity which is the most important that the Dominion of Canada produces.

The problem will not be solved without the most careful and intensive study of transportation experts and hasty remedies which are suggested to meet the requirements of the immediate present, or to satisfy the desires of some particular section of the community, should be given the necessary careful consideration before they are adopted.

The legislation recently enacted under the name of "Inland Water Freight Rates Act, 1923" is a striking example of the serious blunders which may be made by Government authorities even though they have the very best of intentions, when they are advised by the so-called experts, with little, if any, knowledge of the subject under discussion.

The argument of the proposed suspension of the Coasting Laws is that by participation of American steam-

Green Food for Winter Eggs

(By A. G. Taylor)

When high egg production is desired, the hen must be kept in good health and supplied with a diet that will enable her to produce eggs of good quality. The diet should be composed of a variety of foods, including green food, which is essential for the production of high quality eggs.

Green food should be fed to the hen in the form of a mash, and should be fed to her in the morning, before she begins to lay. It should be fed to her in the afternoon, after she has finished laying. This will ensure that she receives a sufficient quantity of green food to enable her to produce eggs of good quality.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

The demonstration at Bonaventure on Tuesday clearly set forth upon which side the residents of the Gaspé

Peninsula are in respect to government ownership of the railways which serve that district.

We believe that the various arguments set forth in favor of the taking over of the railways by the government met a responsive chord in the heart and mind of Sir Henry Thornton.

Perhaps one of the strongest arguments in favor of government ownership was the remarks of Mr. Angus McLean of Bathurst. Mr. McLean said that for about twenty years he had endeavored to conduct a number of industries on the coast, but because of the handicap of an inadequate railway service, and double freight rates, he could not make a success of them, and consequently moved to another locality with better facilities.

Although various speakers spoke of the inadequate service rendered by the present railways, they had nothing but commendation for Mr. Gordon the present manager, who was indefatigably working wonders with the facilities at his command.

We think that the matter of taking over the railways has been commu-ed very auspiciously and it will be up to the gentlemen behind the movement to observe carefully and patiently every move and look of movement and from time to time make enquiries so that the matter may not be allowed to grow cold, or repose too long upon the file of records, while no doubt embour the office of the government railway commission.

PUBLIC PLAYGROUND.

There seems to be some misconception of the plans of the Athletic Club in regard to Sugarloaf Park, so called. The Graphic knows for a fact that it was never the idea of the leaders of the sport movement to make an athletic field only of the property. The plans are more ambitious. They consist of a running track, baseball diamond, and football field. But the young children were not to be neglected as it was the intention to have a thoroughly equipped play ground after the pattern of those to be seen in almost every progressive town throughout Ontario and the West. We may add that in a great majority of towns these municipal play grounds are provided, equipped and supervised by the towns from money assessed by the towns or is provided by the school boards. The Athletic Club is now, and has been since its inception, working in the interests of the children as well as the older youths and that is one reason why it deserves the wholehearted assistance of every citizen of the town.

SOME FACTS ABOUT VOCATIONAL STUDY

Some Timely Information About

This Important Branch of Educational Work

Vocational education is the term which has come into frequent use during recent years to indicate the form of education which provides definite training and definite knowledge expected to be useful in enabling an individual to carry on his vocation in a way most advantageous to the community and satisfactory to himself. Vocational education has been classified for convenience of explanation under six headings, each one designating the group of vocations included under it, such as professional, industrial, agricultural, commercial, marine and housekeeping.

Vocational education is older than any form of liberal education. Man has always followed occupations, requiring more or less skill and intelligence, by which they could secure a livelihood; and they have always trained the young for these occupations.

The field for secondary vocational education is so large that in the past it has not been seen. School statistics show that less than 50 per cent of the children who enter the public schools complete the work of the elementary grades. Less than 75 per cent enter the secondary grades and high schools and only about 5 per cent complete the work. It is among the 95 per cent whose education has not fitted them to deal with the problems of life, that the opportunities of vocational education are to be found.

The field is entirely distinct from that of the high school and experience has proven that technical schools do not attract pupils in any number from the high schools.

The School Board and Vocational Committee are taking advantage of this form of education and have established a Day Commercial Course in the High School, also night school courses in typewriting, bookkeeping, dressmaking and motor mechanics.

The Day Com. Course is offered to any boy or girl who has successfully passed the High School Entrance examination. The course is begun in grade nine, continuing through grades ten and eleven. This course was begun last year. This year there are two grades, nine and ten. Both of these grades are pursuing the same course of study in English Grammar, English Literature and French as is offered in the regular High School Course.

In addition to these, grade nine has the following studies: Commercial arithmetic, rapid calculation, spelling, penmanship, elementary bookkeeping, and typewriting.

Grade ten in addition to the above studies have shorthand, commercial law and com. geography.

The evening vocational classes have been organized and are now in full swing. The motor mechanics class which was a week later than the others in opening is now running with an attendance of seventeen. This class is under the instruction of Mr.

A. Jamieson, who is a first class garage man.—Orr.

capital which they claim they are unable to raise, owing to legislation of a retroactive character adopted by the Dominion Parliament, find themselves unable to give the country the service which they are entitled to have.

That these lines are practically incomplete and are unable to obtain through rates and the service which would enable them to reach the main markets of the country, as is shown by the fact that the Canadian National lines.

That the Gaspé Peninsula, a fringe of which has been settled by a population exceeding 60,000, is one of the oldest settled parts of Canada and is rich in natural resources, in agriculture, lumber, pulpwood, minerals and deep sea and river fisheries.

That the Counties of Bonaventure and Gaspé are among the most intrusive colonization areas in the Province of Quebec with a sturdy population of French and English stock who are anxious to develop their home land and fisheries if they are only given a chance to reach the markets with their products, on reasonable terms.

That for want of an adequate railway service for freight and passengers, our resources are practically dead and the young men and women have to leave their homes to seek employment in other parts of Canada and the United States to the detachment of the country generally.

That in addition to its rich natural resources, the Gaspé coast is one of the most attractive in North America, for tourists who visit it in thousands every year and whose number would be increased many times with an adequate railway service.

That Matapédia, the junction point with the Canadian National System, is at the foot of the Grand Matapédia and New Brunswick; that Gaspé, one of the finest natural harbours in the world, has lately been made the Sea

SAYS HOME NOW IS BUT PLACE TO SLEEP.

New York, Oct. 31.—The modern home has become merely a place in which to sleep, said the Rev. Dr. Cathol. R. Stearns, rector of Trinity Paul's Chapel, Broadway and Fulton Street. The occasion was the second annual English harvest home festival, and British and American patriotic societies were represented by delegations.

"The institution upon which rests all hope of society is in danger," said Dr. Stearns. "We no longer live in homes; we live in warehouses. The interests of the members of the family are mostly outside of the walls of the apartment we call home."
"Each member of the family goes out to find work or pleasure. We even take our meals mostly outside. What is left of these homes that you and I remember? Home life is nearly impossible in modern industrialized society. Nothing is more important for the welfare of society than that the home be restored to its original place in the scheme of life."

OPERA HOUSE BRIEFS

The Arthur Lillian Concert (previously postponed on account of the illness of Mr. D. J. Bourque) is now announced for Tuesday, Nov. 13th.

Mrs. Christie is authority for the statement that "The Barnyard" with Larry Benson is about the funniest thing in this line to be shown here for a long time. It is billed for this Friday and Saturday.

The Dempsey-Jorge picture next Monday and Tuesday will no doubt draw capacity houses. This is said to be the best fight film ever made, that is as to details, clearness of photography etc. The wonderful slow motion photography is brought into use as well as "Dempsey's" "high dive" over the ropes is shown in minute detail as well as all the other points of the match.

Everyone should make sure of seeing "Hunting Big Game in Africa" which comes to the Opera House next Wednesday and Thursday. This is one of the greatest treats afforded Campbellton picture in a long while. Thrilling, amusing and instructive to a very high degree, the film will probably not be shown again for years.

THE SASIENI BRUYERE PIPE

$6.00 each in all sizes and shapes

For over a quarter of a century it has been the ambition of Mr. Sasieni to produce a perfect Pipe; one that does not taste Bitter when first smoked, and one that does not require Breaking in. With these points in view he has been continually making scientific experiments, and has achieved success. At the beginning he made a practice of treating the Virgin Briar with an Oil put through a secret process, and in this way was able to take away the Bitter Taste, it was an improvement, but did not overcome the greatest question of all, i.e., Breaking in, which is the cause of so many people failing to become pipe smokers, therefore with this point having to be overcome, he made a number of experiments with Oils and Sun Baking, which finally succeeded. The demand for a Briar so treated soon became apparent, so much so that the aforesaid method proved inadequate with the result that he invented the Patent Apparatus (Pat. No. 124410-19), which dries out the Oil, Sap and the Gallic Matter from the wood, at the same time Seasoning it by a number of years, leaving the Briar in such a condition that it will not Burn, neither are Acids, Oils, or Stains left to give that unpleasant taste... ### IRON ORE NEAR BATHURST

The following is from an official publication dealing with the minerals of New Brunswick:

"Iron deposits exist in the vicinity of Bathurst. The ore is a siliceous magnetite, the average iron content being from 45 to 47 per cent, with about 0.5 per cent of phosphorus. According to the estimate of E. Lindemann of the Mines Department, Ottawa, based on magnetic surveys, the ore reserves are placed at 15,000,000 tons, to a depth of 600 feet. Mining operations were started in 1907 and discontinued a few years ago. In all some 150,000 tons were taken out. The ore is too low-grade to be marketed in its natural state, but under favorable conditions and with a concentration process these iron deposits may yet be developed."

Galena (lead) is found at Mt. Free in Gloucester County. Grindstones and gneiss are found in the country, and the base of an industry. A deposit of coal was recently discovered in the parish of Carleton, and is of good quality, though its extent has not been surveyed.

CANARD CAME FROM TORY CIRCLE

Connection Between Certain North Shore Politicians and L'Evenement.

Fredericton, Oct. 31.—The source of the canard which placed in the mouth of Hon. P. J. Veniot, Premier of New Brunswick, statements related to the liquor sale question in this province and to the teaching of the French language in the schools of the Province of Ontario, is understood to be Acadian Conservative circles on the North Shore. The statements were credited to Premier Veniot during his stay in Quebec City when the premiers of the various provinces were in conference on highway matters.

The report that he had made the statement first appeared in L'Evenement, a French Conservative evening paper published in Quebec City. Translations were wired throughout Canada the next morning.

The denial that any statements on the subject mentioned was prompt and vigorous on the part of Premier Veniot and destroyed the effect of the announcement although following it a day later.

Certain Acadian politicians who were quite prominent in New Brunswick affairs during the late lamented Conservative regime are known to be in close connection with L'Evenement and are believed to have inspired the publication of the canard as the subjects are both of controversial nature calculated to stir up trouble in this province.

CHAPTER V.—"I'm sorry the crowd was so large," said the woman, "but I'm sure you enjoyed it. I'll be glad to see you again sometime." "I'll be glad to see you again sometime," said the woman, "but I'm sure you enjoyed it. I'll be glad to see you again sometime."

This was not entirely profound, however, so long as I retained firm hold on the sill, or even could grip my fingers around the edge of the open blind, as I was enabled then to partially restrain my weight, and, even at the worst, to keep my feet from yielding confidence. But finally my arms, reached out and groped only for air, and my hands, grasping the substance of a rug, and so giving stability to the pressure, the old bird swept over me in a torrent of angry, scolding words, and, without ceasing to scolding, crawling down to this fourth level. It was but a step, so I followed her, and, as I did, I felt the firmness of the other blind; but, as the step—the speechless hurdle—was over, I was going backward! For there was no going backward; I tried to do so, but my feet, and the perspiration burst out from every pore, as the bird brushed over me. I sat, so, on the threshold, and, as I sat, so, she brushed over me. I sat, so, on the

[illegible][illegible]

There could be no mistake. "I'm numbered too well every characteristic of the girl," he decided. "I'm not a fool. I know that girl. She would be here? How did it happen that we were at the same place? Did she come voluntarily, or a prisoner? Did she come with a trick, or was she brought by force? and was she afraid to be helpless to escape? I tried the poor sissy—I was locked. This time I'll try the other. I'll go out upon the outside, respond to answer the main question. However she came, she was now being held by the same hands, in the unscrupulous grasp of this desperate gang of criminals, determined to gain from us at least a few dollars' worth of loot. I'll show her, if I hesitate, but for only a moment, debating with myself the best way to proceed. She'll endeavor to escape from me, and I'll follow her."

When we left me separated, believing this to be safe, and I walked down the stairs, I saw the concrete blocks below the foundry I came upon this car, bumped up against the car, apparently abandoned. The rear door was open, and I saw a man inside, and felt about, merely from curiosity. My fingers touched something soft, and I felt it was a man. I drew it out, and looked at it in the light of a distant street lamp, I discovered it was a larger tarpin, dyed colored with blood."

She stared at me in horror.

"Did you see that one?"

"Yes," I said. "I had seen the one you had, and remembered."

"You thought it must be mine?"

"That's what I thought."

"I hardly believe I thought at all. But I investigated the front seat."

her feet, plaintively by the sturgeon.

"You know what? What does this business—why, Mr. Severs?"

"Yes," I responded quickly, yet making no effort to advance, "you must be so careful; only do not speak loudly."

"But please explain. I—I am not afraid of you, of course, but how do you expect me to be here?"

"Perhaps you will permit me to ask a question first, which may sound ridiculous enough—where am I?"

"You do not know that event?"

"Of course not, with certainty, I am not a composite returning; you are at the Neptune street."

"Waldron's house; that possibility never occurred to me. Sounds strange, doesn't it? But the fact is I was brought here unconscious."

"You were attacked?"

"Yes, by a very strong man, with the wheel, with a grab in the back of his coat sticking with blood. I know."

"Know what?"

"Who the man had killed. He believed then you were with him alone; I had reason to, for I overheard his invitation, and your answer, I recognized the voice you were in your possession. My first thought was that it would utterly condemn you if ever found."

"And, even then, you sought to protect me? You cared enough for that?"

"I hardly know; it must have been true enough. I scarcely doubted but that it was your act—only I persuaded myself that the man who attacked you, and that you struck in

"It is after four; who are they?"

"Harris, Waldman and Costigan—some combination."

"But why should they slug you, Mr. Severi?"

"Simply because of my connection with the mysterious Miss Gossamer," I explained. "Harris had chosen to associate us together, believing we know who murdered and robbed Alva, and where the spoils are hidden. They endeavored first to put me through the third degree, and when I refused to squeal—as you know simply because I possessed no knowledge to communicate—they resorted to force, and here am."

Her eyes, wide open, questioning, [illegible]

"I understand what this all means. Does Harris accuse me of the robbery?"

"That's the gist of the murder. The way he put it, it's the thing you could stand rather shy of," I confessed regretfully, but believing the time had arrived for plain speech between us. "At least I have no position to contravert his claims."

"You imply you suspect me also of this crime?"

"No, not that! I have given you my word that it has been given blindly. He has refuted me your confidence. I do not even know your name, your place of residence, how you became involved in the conspiracy. I must reserve the right of a ready denunciation when it comes to attending the courts."

"You have been very true, very honest," he admitted, and extended his hand. "You must know how greatly I appreciate such faithfulness. Mr. Hatpin, remembered that you had just said I one in your hat that night, and that I was the man who had been, as he had seen the wound, that he was the weapon of murder. He believes we were working together, and this was why I had concealed the truth."

"And you? you believed that?"

"I believed by you," I said earnestly. "At first it thought it must be you; but I was not sure. I was not sure when I knew I had one just like hidden at the hotel. This gave me new hope, until I returned and discovered my railing still open, and the door closed. I was sure that you would do such an act—or had occasion to—except you. In an effort to destroy evidence."

"That was what was cleared up by Harris acknowledging that he was the one who got the pin. I told him about your having your own in your hat at Perona's. He only laughed, and again. But tell me what Harris holds in store for me if I do not go. If all this be true, we cannot waste time here in talk."

CHAPTER XII.

At the Feet of the Statue

"She is all right," said Jennings, "but I am afraid of escape blocked. He is usually able to drive you downtown, I know, but I am not sure of that.
