Everybody knows there's a world of difference in clothes. But only those who have had the experience are conscious of the fact that any old thing looks good when it is new. Some suits of clothing will outwear three or four others, and they will look better than the fourth that is made of shoddy. It pays, and pays well, to invest in good clothes. The so-called cheap article is seldom cheap. It is when a reliable firm, such as Deeks & Munson are known to be, offer to sell at largely-reduced figures in order to make room for the coming season's goods, that real bargains may be had.

The Best Way Out.

What seems to be needed is an unfettered arbitration. To tie the hands of the arbitrators in any respect in advance, might be to make it only the more difficult to find common ground. What confronts the public today is a situation, not a theory. For that reason it is difficult to see any good result from polemical discussion of what, at this stage, can be of little more practical import than some discussions of the Middle Ages, such as, for instance, how many angels could dance on the point of a needle. Supposing both sides were to chop logic for a week, in the fashion of some juvenile debating society, as to the extent to which the strikers were logically justified in striking. It settles nothing. As Sir Arthur Helps, in one of his books, points out, the world is seldom ruled by mere logic. A dozen other elements come into play.

power-not to settle abstract questions, but to get an adjustment of the actual situation. Each side ought to be able to trust its own arbitrator or mediator. But what about the third arbitrator? Surely the two arbitrators ought to be able to agree on some disinterested, unprejudiced, upright third person, who would act wisely and justly in getting the contending parties together in agreement-some man, perhaps outside of London, of the standing of Sir John Boyd or Sir William Meredith. London, July 17 .- The sub-committee of the arbitration section of the peace conference has adopted a resolution that the permanent court of arbitration should consist of the ministers accredited to Holland, instead of the ministers resident at The Hague. This will have the effect of bringing in the smaller states, whose ministers are accredited to two or more countries simultaneously.

In an article the Journal traces the gradual, determined spread of the plague through India, and Persia, right over to Africa, over Mauritius, Madagascar, Central Africa, Lower Egypt, and as far as Western Africa. Though Europe has escaped so far, it is blind folly to imagine that it is safe. Therefore, says the Journal, every European country should find money for a large medical expedition to go into the affected countries, that being the only thing to be done if the plague is to be combated at all.

STRIKE IN BROOKLYN.

New York, July 16. - Nearly all the conductors and motormen of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company struck at five o'clock this morning. Those who had cars out left them on the track. The company endeavor-ed to run cars with non-union men on all lines, and there was much disorder. Wires were cut, rails torn up, non-union men hooted and stoned, and at the Marcy avenue stables crowd of three hundred men resisted the police. Many arrests were made during the day. On some lines the company maintained a regular service, and on the others they failed altogether. For some weeks past the employes on the several lines controlled by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company have been complaining that the management did not live up to the tenhour law. The men demanded a revision of the time-tables, and also claimed that they should be paid 20 cents an hour for overtime, which is equivalent to $2 a day, the price which they set for a working day of ten hours. General Master Workman Parsons and District Master Workman Pines had charge of the men's affairs, and a strike was called at half-past four this morning. The Smith street, Franklin avenue and Hamilton ferry lines, which are controlled by the Coney Island Railroad Company, having maintained the regular terms with their employes, were not impeded in the least, but on all the other roads transportation was stopped for a while, and a good deal of congestion occurred in consequence.

Shortly after midnight about 1,000 policemen were placed along the several routes. All the roads, with the exception of

The company's officers are confident that they will be able to run the full complement of cars on the regular schedule time within 24 hours, and they aver that the strike will be over by midnight. Charles W. McKenzie, chairman of the committee in charge of the strikers, said that the men were holding their own and would win. He said that every union man on the Traction Company's roads and all of the men on the Nassau lines were out, and that during all of last night elevated road employes were being brought into the union. He said that the "L" men are working at the express wish of the strikers so as not to inconvenience the public. McKenzie is confident of success and said that a general tie-up of the cars in Brooklyn would take place if the traction company failed to accede to the demands of the strikers. Several cases of trouble were reported at police headquarters, but no serious outbreak had occurred. At One Hundred and Thirtieth street and Fifth avenue large stones were placed on the track, and the police, motormen and conductors had a hard time clearing the way to let two cars come along to the city. The police made two arrests, but neither of the persons taken

Woman Shot Her Mother and Husband and Killed Herself.

Libertyville, Ill., July 17.-Following a family quarrel yesterday afternoon, Mrs. George Treider shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Christian Foss, wounded her husband and killed herself.
The shooting occurred at the home of the Treiders, a mile and a half northwest of Long Grove, a village near this place. Treider was shot three times, but it is thought he will recover. The quarrel was precipitated by longstanding family troubles. Hot words were exchanged during the morning between Mrs. Foss and her daughter and Treider also became involved in the discussion. The trouble was apparently over when, after dinner it broke out afresh. Mrs. Treider stepped into the bedroom and, appearing immediately with a revolver, opened fire on her mother. The first shot was fatal, and the husband, springing forward to disarm his wife, received three wounds that sent him from the house in retreat. After leaving the house he heard two more shots, the one that killed his wife, Mrs. Treider leaves two children, 7 and 5 years She was 33 and her mother 80 years old.

Boston, Mass., July 17 .- Miss Lillian Clayton Jewett, a young white woman, addressed a meeting of colored people In St. Paul's Baptist Church last evening on "Lynching in the South," and created quite a sensation by offering to go to Charleston, S. C., and bring to Boston the family of the murdered postmaster, H. M. Baker, who was lynched some time ago for the purpose of creating sentiment in the north in favor of the southern negro. The church was packed to the doors, and all the principal colored organizations of the city were present. There was the greatest enthusiasm, and in the speeches that followed the young woman was referred to as the mew Harriet Beecher Stowe, as one who had been sent in answer to the prayers of the colored race, and eulogized as the first white woman who had come out publicly as the defender of the colored people of the south who are being made the victims of Judge Lynch. After the meeting almost half of those in the church went to the front to meet Miss Jewett and to thank her, and it is a long time since there has been such a demonstration among the colored people of Boston.

TALE OF HARDSHIP

Michigan Man's Severe Experience in the Klondike.

Mackinac Island, July 17.-Eighteen months ago Ira Elliot, a carpenter, of this place, started for Klondike with a capital of $500. Saturday afternoon he returned home without a cent. In com-pany with 60 others he went through the region of snow and ice, over what s called the Edmonton route. Leaving Edmonton they traveled by horse as far as Mud River, a distance of 1,300 miles. Here they ran entirely out of food and were compelled to kill and eat what horses had not already died from cold and starvation. From Mud River they proceeded upon foot 400 miles to Telegraph Creek, suffering innumerable hardships. The temperature was between 40 and 60 degrees below zero, and about all the food they had was their dogs and a few stray rabbits and wildcats. Occasionally, however, they came upon Hudson Bay fur post, and from the men in charge they got food and other necessities. After several months they finally reached Telegraph Creek, from which place they floated down the Stikine to Wrangel, and from there they proceeded to Victoria, after which their journey became comparatively easy.

Of the fourteen all had suffered great-ly. Mr. Elliot had his feet and ears frozen, yet considered himself very Floods and Typhoons Delay the Volunteers' Departure.

Washington, July 17 .- The war department has received the following from General Otis: "Manila, July 15.—Adjutant-General, Washington: Twenty inches of rain, July, attended by typhoons, made leaving of transports impossible. At Negros it was impossible to unload the Sixth Infantry until the last day or two. California regiment is now loading; Colorado's leave tomorrow on War ren; Idaho's, North Dakota's and Wyoming's next week, soon as transport Grant can be coaled."

Pittsburg, Pa., July 17. — A San Francisco telegram to the Dispatch says: The officers of the First Oregon Regiment are trying to suppress a story told by the men of the regiment about a slaughter of Filipino non-combatants to avenge the death and mutilation of Oregon soldiers by rebels. According to these soldiers' tales three men of the regiment were captured the rebels during the battle of The account of their subsequent murder and mutilation has been given in the cable dispatches from Manila.

The next day the Oregon regiment was taken off the firing line and given a day of rest after its hard campaign of two weeks. The men devoted this day to avenging the death of their Instead of remaining idle in camp, they divided into squads, which scattered out in the neighboring country. Every Filipino-rebel, noncombatant, man, woman or child whom these squads encountered was put to death. The work of slaughter went on from dawn until dusk, and some of the raiders did not return to camp until the following day.

The soldiers who gave these details declare that scores of Filipinos were slain. They were proud of the achievement and had no regret to offer. The news was suppressed by the press

GOOD REPORTS

From the Different Trade Centers of the Dominion.

Toronto, July 17.—Bradstreet's weekly review of Canadian trade summary: Business at Montreal continues quite active, notwithstanding the fact that the midsummer period, usually a very dull one, is now at hand, the fall trade is increasing, and the prospects point to a large business the coming sea-son. Values for all goods continue very firm, and there is talk of higher prices for some leading lines. shipping business is very active and large quantities of Canadian produce are being shipped. Northwest harvest are more favorable and advices to local houses from representatives in the west are couraging. Payments show a marked improvement. Business at the Pacific coast continues good. A good deal of gold is arriving from the north, and considerable of it is being invested in British Columbia centers. Quite a few business blocks in Vancouver have been paid for in gold dust. Business is good, and trade appears to be expanding in many lines. The outlook for the fall trade is very good.

Trade in Toronto has been fair. There is a better inquiry for fall goods, and now that the sorting season is over more attention is being paid to fall lines. The prospects all indicate a big movement in fall staples, and orders are likely to come to hand early for the coming season, as the advancing markets make it a mat-ter of no object to retailers to delay purchasing. Country remittances are very favorable for this season.

The exhibition at Winnipeg had a good effect on trade. The prospects for fall business are good, and the indications all point to the trade of the Northwest this year being larger than any previous season. With satisfac-tory progress of the crops and favorable harvest conditions, business in the Prairies Provinces will be booming in few weeks. Values continue very firm for all staple lines.

[Special to The Advertiser per C. P. R.] Ottawa, July 17.-The redistribution bill comes up in the senate today. The general opinion is that it will be thrown out. ▲ Young Man Uninvited Enters a Room and Sleeps on the Floor.

A very queer thing happened Thursday morning. A young man, light-complexioned and wearing a black suit, evidently a stranger in Owen Sound, was looking for a bed on Wednesday night, and picked on a boarding-house on North Scrope street, as a nice place to sleep. He did not go through the formality of asking permission, but got a plank and stood it up against the side of the house. Climbing up on the plank he opened a window which made an entrance to the bedroom of a young lady visitor. Here he made himself as comfortable as possible by stretching his weary limbs upon the floor beside the bed, and straightaway went to sleep. About 4:30 a.m. the young lady awoke, and seeing a man in the room immediately screamed out, thus awaking the intruder and the rest of the household, but the man was up and out of the house before anything could be done to stop him, and that is the whole story-Owen Sound

Soda Water Tablets" Causing Much Sickness in Detroit.

[Detroit Free Press, July 17.] The city doct erally in various parts of the city have been kept busy of late attending children who have symptoms of typhoid fever and whose sickness lasts several days. An investigation proves that the illness is due to a confection known as "soda water tablets."

Confectionery stores in various parts of the city have lately placed these tablets on sale at one cent each. They are made in all the colors of the rainbow and designated to please the eye of the youngster. Two of the tablets, in different colors, are done up in Detroit Free Press: The Grand Trunk Railway has announced positively that it will not withdraw its summer tourist rates to Boston so long as the Vanderbilt lines make summer tourist rate via Albany and Boston to New England points. At the meeting of the Central Passenger Association last Wednesday all the lines except the Grand Trunk assented to a resolution that tourist rates to Boston be withdrawn. The Grand Trunk insists that the custom of applying tourist rates to New England via the Niagara frontier only be adhered to. To this the Lake Shore and Michigan Central Roads do not wish to consent, as it would deprive the Boston and as it would deprive the Boston and Albany Road of a large amount of business to which the Vanderbilt managers think it is entitled. What will be the outcome of the dispute will be problematical. If the Grand Trunk insists on making tourist rates to Boston the Vanderbilt lines may conclude to do so too. If they do, the Erie will undoubtedly make the same rates, at least to Boston. It may demand the right to maintain a differential rate under the Vanderbilt roads. The outlook for a satsfactory settlement of the whole question is Indignation is rife among the doctors and employes.

It was stated that when Miss Abbev. who has been in the Bellevue Training School for Nurses for 20 months, and is, therefore, entitled to a vacation, went with her hands all burned and bandaged from the effects of her heroic efforts to prevent an awful holocaust, to request leave of absence for two weeks, she was told that she positively end of the siding and crashed into could not go.

Indignantly the poor girl declared she would go for good, and in tears bade her companions and friends farewell. Many people stayed away from Tecumseh Park Saturday afternoon because of the moist-looking clouds that hung about all day. The 200 faithful fans who did go saw a well-played, interesting game, with plenty of patting and full of exciting situations. Like a good novel, it had a sensational climax, and unlike most modern novels, a satisfactory conclusion. The climax occurred in the eighth inning, when the Hams got a line on Seiver and kept the outfielders busy while the visitors tallied five runs. The conclusion was satisfactory, because the Cockneys finished with one run to spare, and again taking their place at the top of the Canadian League. Selver and McCann both pitched a good steady game. They were pretty even-ly matched. Seiver had the advantage in speed, while McCann had a trifle more art. For five innings it looked like a shut-out for the visitors. Not a man reached the third sack. They couldn't get the ball beyond the infield. In the third inning McCann took two sacks on a drive to left field, but he died at third. Seiver issued his first pass in the sixth to Hagerty. Dean followed with a splendid drive to left, away over the track, scoring Hagerty and taking three bases. Schrall fanned out, Elton flew out to center, and McCann, having already gone out at first on a grounder fielded by McFadden, Dean did not get away from third.

In the sixth inning McCann flew out to Reed. Hagerty and Dean both hit safely to left; Schrall drove a fly in the same direction, which was pulled down by Jones; Elton made a clean drive to center, scoring Hagerty. Cope fumbled a slow grounder by Congalton and lost the chance to retire the side with only one run. A three sacker to center by McKevitt scored Dean, Elton and Congalton. McKevitt scored on a wild pitch. Collins flew out to Mohler, retiring the side in time to save the game. In the next inning, long flies by Conwell and Hagerty to right field were pulled down by Franck, and McCann struck out.

The Cockneys went into business early in the game. Jones singled in the second inning and stole second; Cope fanned out and Franck flew out to Hagerty. Then Lohman drove the ball to right field scoring Jones. Seiver singled and Mohler flew out to right field. There was only one little hit to short in the third inning, but the Cockneys tallied one run. Mc-Fadden reached first on fielder's choice, Reed being forced out at second; Babbit drew a pass. Jones failed to hit safely, but reached first on an unsuccessful attempt by Collins to cut Babbit off at second, McFadden going to third on the play and crossing the rubber on Cope's out in left field. Babbit stole third and Jones stole second, but Franck went out from Hagerty to Dean and closed the in-

The two runs in the fifth were due to a surprising muff by Congalton. McFadden drove the ball to left for two sacks, Babbit flew out to McCann, Jones sent a high fly to Congalton, which the latter failed to hold and the latter scored. Cope went out at first; Franck singled to center and Conwell let the ball get by him on Congalton's long throw to cut off Jones at the plate. The latter scored and Franck took two additional sacks

The locals should have scored in the sixth inning. But for want of coaching Seiver was caught at third in try-ing to take two bases on Mohler's single to center. A moment later Mohler was caught in an ill-judged attempt to steal second.

In the next inning McFadden drew a pass and stole second; Babbit bunted safely; Jones was instructed to bunt, and in an unsuccessful attempt to do so, struck out. Cope drew a pass. A short hit to left by Franck scored McFadden, and Babbit came in on Hagerty's error. Cope tallied on Lohman's out at first. Seiver struck out. leaving Franck on third. The eighth inning was of the one, two, three order. Congalton made a beau-tiful running catch of Mohler's short My to center. Reed fouled out and McFadden flew out to Schrall. Score: LONDON.

since he donned a London uniform. Was ever such a record made by a played on a home ground?

The Cockneys will have to forfeit a game by 9 to 0 on the home ground to learn what defeat is like. Popkay did not want to umpire on account of his injured leg. Hugh Mc-Lean was asked to officiate, but Popkay finally consented to umpire. Talk is cheap with the Hamilton players. Collins was wagging his tongue to the stand continually. Elton would like to buy a London bat. He tried several, but not at the The fielders back out when Jones

Two strike-outs only in two games. Hamilton did not steal a base in either game. London got fourteen— eight on Friday and slx on Saturday. The double steal was twice accomplished on Saturday by McFadden and Babbit and Babbit and Jones.

Pete Lohman kicks like he would if he was playing football. Jones' throw to first base in the fifth inning, after he had caught McKevitt's fly out on the track, was the longest ever made on the home grounds. Congalton was on first base, and was almost doubled up. The ball landed in McFadden's hands.

Jones was instructed to bunt in the seventh, with two on bases, and bunt-ed out. A strong batter like Jones should never be forced to bunt, as he has batted in runs in many games when they were needed. Franck followed in the same inning after Cope had a pass, filling the bases. He attempted to bunt the first ball and failed. A clean hit to right on the next ball pitched scored two runs.

LONDON'S CRACK TEAM. It has always been London's boast that legitimate sport was sure to find plenty of encouragement here. In former years it was commonly said that if the London baseball club would only get together a first-class team, the citizens would make it worth their while by patronizing the game. The management took them at their word this year. Never before has London has so good a team, and never before has such superb ball been played on London grounds as the home team has been putting up this season. It's time the citizens showed their appreciation by liberally patronizing the game. Otherwise the management should, in self-defense, follow Hamilton's example and sell some of their best players. They have already refused several tempting offers from the bigger leagues in the expectation that London lovers of sport would show there was no umpire.

THE AMATEURS.

A good game of baseball was played on Queen's Park on Saturday afternoon between the nines representing the Bennet Furniture Company and the G. T. R. machine hands, which resulted in favor of the Bennet nine by a score of 14 to 5, the winning side playing a fine fielding game. Batteries—Bennet's, Ham and Martin; G. T. R., Heathfield, Maxwell and Cripps. Umpire-C. G. Morehead.

TOO MUCH CRAWFORD.

St. Paul, Minn., July 17 .- The game Saturday afternoon was a case of too much Crawford. The young man from Chatham, Ont., was distinctly the whole thing. In the fourth inning he scored on his own triple and Frank's double, and in the eighth he hit for a triple, scoring Pickering, and got safe over the plate on Frank's long fly to right. The strangest thing about the game was the fact that seven errors were made, but not one of them had any effect whatever on the score. Cross had the Saints guessing every inning, except the second, when Glenalvin made a single and Isbell a triple, the latter going out trying to reach the plate on his hit. In the last seven innings the locals only made two hits. Fricken's pitching was excellent, nobody hitting.

BAKER SOLD TO BUFFALO.

"Heavy" Baker, the Hams' clever twirler, has been sold to Buffalo, Manager Collins on Saturday here stated that Baker would remain with the team until Saturday of this week, when Bradford is expected to be in shape again. The Hams have already signed another pitcher in Baker's place. Five hundred dollars is the price Hamilton was paid for Baker's release.

FOR THE FANS. The Hams have an offer for Mc-Kevitt from a Western League club. Crawford, formerly with the Chathams, won the game for Columbus on Saturday with two doubles and a triple. The Detroit Free Press of Sunday says: "The Canadian League player did it."

It has been suggested that after the Eastern and Canadian League seasons close that Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and London play a series of games for the Canadian championship. would be a good move, and officials of both leagues should take hold of the proposition. Crowds would witness all games played in London.

The ministers are evidently bent upon making a show of fighting, even if they have no serious intention of repudiating the convention with the Transvaal, which pledges them not to interfere with the internal affairs of that republic. They sent out to the Cape on Saturday 30 officers and 320 men, and gun carriages and war material are also shipped. The openness with which WARLIKE MOVEMENTS are conducted is suspicious, since secrecy is ordinarily observed before the Kruger, but no bloodshed." dogs of war are let loose. The natural inference is that the ministers are Requeeze a few more concessions out of the Boer Government by menace of the Branches of the Transvaal franchise the proposals. They are well supported by proposals yet to be submitted to the of the Manchester Guardian Chronicle, rejects the reform scheme at Pretoria as utterly inade-qua, although it marks a decided advance on President Kruger's proposals to Sir Alfred Milner. The whole however, has a hollow sound. It does not seem credible that a moral country like England will commit a deliberate breach of treaty law and divide the white races of Cape Colony by going to war with the Transvaal rather than abate a single jot or tittle of Sir Alfred Milner's de-ATTITUDE OF THE PRESS.

compelled to train their guns upon the Schreiner ministry, which is representative of the Cape Colony, and to bombard the stronghold of the colony's constitutional power. That ministry may have taken an optimistic view of the Boer concessions, but it has a clear majority of eight in the assembly, and one of thirteen when the independents are counted, and it cannot justly be regarded as a minority faction, representing Dutch feeling in the Cape Colony.

The views of Schreiner and Hoff-meyer are certainly entitled to respectful consideration when they have been ng Kruger to terms, and when the Cape Colony is nearly evenly divided between the Dutch and English races; yet so eager for war have some campaigners been that they have charged Mr. Schreiner with something lese majeste towards the high commissioner, and have welcomed the alarmist report that Sir Alfred Milner would dismiss the Cape ministry and invite Sir Gordon Sprigg to form another, which would not have a majority behind it. MILNER IS MODERATE.

Milner shows no signs of any infention of adopting reckless measures and embroiling the two races at the Cape. His speech opening the Cape Parliament was a model of dignity and discretion, complete silence on internal questions being the only reminder that he was a high commissioner, being under no obligation to consult the local executive concerning the Transvaal affair. The fact that the text was written by the Cape ministers is proof that Messrs. Schreiner and Hoffmeyer are too prudent to put him in a false position. The Times refers kindly to Schreiner and Hoffmeyer, and refrains from joining in the jingo onslaught upon them. This is important, because the Times is in hearty accord with Mr. Chamberlain, who seems to have entire charge of the government policy in South Africa. The prime minister alone can control Mr. Chamberlain, and Lady Salisbury's illness takes him tempor-arily out of public life.

THE PREMIER'S SORROW.

A correspondent of the New York Evening Post has this to say: Among politicians today the renewed serious illness of Lady Salisbury overshadows even such exciting topics as the Milner-Kruger duel in South Africa. The best traditions of English public life respect the privacy of the domestic hearth even of the greatest men, but grave political issues are once again forced upon the attention by the at-tack of partial paralysis, by which this august lady has been suddenly stricken down. Among the English statesman of the Victorian era, Mr. Gladstone is alone comparable with Lord Salisbury in the simple happiness of his domestic life. It is the rarest thing in the world to find the latter In clubland. He hardly ever dines out. He lives the life almost of a recluse, neglectful in a strange degree of social fame and of fickle public opinion, and is only kept by his keen sense of public and personal devotion to the Queen from the quiet joys of his beautiful Elizabethan retreat at Hatfield, and of that laboratory where he can say he has patiently evolved a scientific discovery of no mean importance. This is the man whose conflict between private sorrow and public duty today awakens the est sympathy among all English-for they know that domestic anxiety is the one superadded burden which the over-weighted prime minwhich the over-weighted prine mid-ister and foreign secretary cannot bear. It was that superadded burden that nearly forced on his resignation of one or both of his portfolios last autumn, and should the universal, not over-sanguine, hopes for Lady Salis-bury's speedy recovery be frustrated, the ministry will, in the last year be-fore its appeal to the electorate, be brought face to face with a crisis in ever-recurring personal conflict which has harassed it ever since Mr. Chamberlain made the provision of offices for his personal following the price of his alliance with the Salisbury and Hicks-Beach sections of Toryism.

None other, certainly not Lord Rosebery, probably no other living Liberal statesman of premier rank, would pay a higher price than he to avoid that conflict, which it is the constant prayer of the Queen's closing years she may never see. Again and again during the last few weeks has Mr. Chamberlain sought and failed to induce him to say to President Kruger that one fateful word "must." "No," he has replied; "what we have done peacefully for British interests with Germany, Russia and France in West and Foot Africa and France in West and East Africa and China, we can do in South Africa. Go as far as you please with President

THE SITUATION.

The situation at this moment is, in a word, this: Sir Alfred Milner and the proposals yet to be submitted to the volksraad, namely, redistribution and hostilities. They are well supported to the press, which, with the exception of the Manchester Guardian and the press. Chronicle, rejects the reform the vote for president and command-the vot ful triumph is still possible for Sir Alfred Milner's policy of concentrating ali attention upon an equitable franchise. Failing that, the British Government pledge, as it now is, to remedy the Uitlanders' grievances, will all back upon its original position and press with such persistence and firm-ness for each individual reform, an effective police, removal of the dynamite monopoly, reasonable educa-tional facilities, and common rights of citizenship, that even President Kruger must in the end yield. That is, it The warriors of the press have been is believed, Lord Salisbury's policyessentially a policy of peaceful pres-correspondent writes: Though every man you meet will say Another that war in South Africa is impossible, the preparations for it continue. Some hundreds of men were entrained at the hundreds of men were entrained at the Waterloo station Saturday for South-ampton. "Where are ye going, Bill?" shouted a friend to a departing Tommy Atkins. "To pull Kruger's beard," was the reply. "There's not beard," was the reply. "There's not many of ye," shouted the man on the platform. "There's lots ahead of us." platform. was the soldier's answer, and they all laughed.

THE TRANSVAALERS' DELUSION. Still another correspondent says: All the presentations made have only served to add to the perils of the Transvaal situation, and everything tends to confirm the opinion that the hall of Hamburg. Imperial Government intends to obtain reforms. The ministers have practically pledged themselves to enforce them peacefully, if possible, otherwise forcefully. On the other hand the Transvaalers appear to be deluded with the dangerous theory that if they can only gain time by stimulated concessions, no real reform will be necessary, as a new grouping of the powers will shortly occur, whereby Great Britain will no longer have a free hand in South Africa. In the meantime the British forces in South Africa are being increased by every steamer, and the avoidance of harsh measures is becoming daily more difficult.

LONDON SHORT OF WATER. London is threatened with a water famine. This is the latest scare, and it is causing no end of anxiety. Last summer it was bad enough in the east end, but this year the whole of London and its suburbs are threatened. The flow of the Thames is much lower than it has been for many years, and the water companies are taking more than ever from it. The companies are supposed to draw away half the the Thames, or 130,000,000 gallons daily, but last month they made away with 140,000,000 per day. Now they are taking more and increasing every day. But there is something more than lack of water causing grave anxiety. When the flow of the Thames decreases, the proportion of polluted water which it contains naturally increases, because a million and a half of people live about the intakes of the water companies, and there is not enough water left to scour the river. People are crying for rain, but the opinion of the experts is that no amount of rain during the remainder of July August and September would counteract the effects of the last two months One expert says that the drought. crowded state of the hotels has something to do with the scarcity of water, one pint a day more than last year being consumed per person, which is a heavy extra drain, considering the millions of people.

RELIEF FROM DULLNESS. Berlin, July 17.-Emperor William's telegram to Dr. Hinsheter, the former tutor of his majesty, furnishes the press with welcome relief from the midsummer dullness. His majesty's assertion of his unshaken determination to continue, in spite of all resistance, in the way he considers right, is generally interpreted as referring to the anti-strike bill, but it is not believed the emperor's words will help the measure which all agree is buried beyond hope of resurrection. The telegram has not been well received, outside of the Con servative press. It is generally considered another of his majesty's UNFORTUNATE MEDDLINGS with party polities. The Pan-Germanic Deutsche Zeitung regrets the telegram, while sympathizing with its object, and asks why the responsible ministers do not take such work off the emperor's shoulders. It also questions whether the personal utterances of his majesty tend to promote the interests of the bill, and denies that these utterances promote the welfare of the monarchy.

The Conservative Post regards the telegram as a symptom of the imperial government being determined not to leave the path the late Prince Bismarck followed in dealing with labor and social questions.

SOCIALIST CRITICISM. The Socialist press at once seized upon the telegram as excellent agitation material for the social democracy. The Vorwaerts regards it as the emperor's answer to the reichstag's vote on the anti-strike bill, adding: "The emperor has not been convinced by the sentiments of the people, and is following aims to which the people are passionately opposed, and which even the ministry unwillingly indorse." The Vorwaents also interprets the incident as showing the struggle against the bill has only begun, and says that his majesty's words "produced waves in the stream of constitutional life which will not soon disappear." THE ARBITRATION PLAN.

Now that a plan for arbitration has been adopted at The Hague, and the articles regulating warfare on land have been published, the press is devoting much attention to the work of the peace conference. Notwithstanding the tone of skepticism with which the conference is generally treated, the opinion is freely expressed that the results will be considerable and permanent. It is admitted that the exagger-ated hopes indulged in by some that the conference would do something to make war well-nigh impossible in the future have not been fulfilled, but it is pointed out that the conference is not therefore a failure by any means."

The Cologne Gazette says: "Although the conference does not offer a guarantee against wars, it has erected a barrier which in many cases may prove

The Pan-Germanic Deutsche Zeitung, referring to the arbitration plan, is exceedingly uncomfortable over the thought that Germany may be "caught in this trap," and says it thinks the permanent bureau will "become the arena for English intrigues." THEORY VS. PRACTICE.

In treating the question, some of the papers point out that the United States and Great Britain have not shown in practice as much zeal for arbitration as they have displayed at The Hague. The refusal of the United States to arbitrate the case with Spain and Great Britain's refusal to settle the Transvaal difficulty, are mentioned by the Kreuz Zeitung and National Zeitung as inconsistent with their position at The Hague.

The papers also comment on the United States' refusal to arbitrate the Hazelton, Pa., affair, as requested by Austria, as being inconsistent with the attitude of the American delegates. Otherwise the work of the American representatives is referred to in complimentary terms.

Great Britain's role at The Hague is commented on with much less approval. The refusal to abandon the dumdum bullet causes bitter remarks on the subject of what the papers style 'England's uncivilized methods of war-

PRINCE BISMARCK UNPOPULAR. Since the death of his father, Prince Herbert Bismarck has been doing much to make himself unpopular. Hamburger excursionists to the Saxon forest complain that many of the favorite paths are now forbidden to the public and that the only walk whence wiew of the castle room in which Bismarck died could be had, had been closed. The ladies of Hamburg raised 14,000 marks for a wreath of silver oak leaves for the Bismarck mauso-leum, but when they took it to Friedrichsruhe Prince Herbert refused to accept it, explaining that no wreaths were to be laid on his father's grave. however, to take it for the Bismarck Museum at Schonhausen, This the ladies declined, and have decided to hang the wreath in the city

FRENCH NOBILITY

One of Their Countrymen Denounces Them as Worthless.

The Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says: One of the most interesting books of the year has just appeared. It is called "Democracy and the Elite," by Viscount Brenier de Montmorand. The author gives a remarkable sketch of French contemporary society, clergy, nobility, bour-

PARIS LOSES HER POWER

M. Louis Lepine, a Provincial, the Spirit Who Compels Order in the Gay Capital.

Paris, July 17 .- M. Louis Lepine, the new prefect of Paris police, has been in office a few weeks, and, without bluster or display, the noisy demonstrations, the budding insurrections and the disgraceful assaults on high officials of the past year have entirely ceased.

The government sought a strong arm to rule Paris during Dreyfus days. It found the arm of M. Louis Lepine, once before prefect of Paris police, and asked him to return to his old Paris, indeed all France, is now ruled by the provinces. The city mob no longer sways the destinies of the Sansculotism raging through the boulevards cannot overturn governments as in the days of the revo-lution and the Commune. Paris is losing its power to the provinces, and President Loubet, himself a provincial, is steadily wiping out what remains of the old order. The dashing generals are sent to distant posts; the idols of the boulevards are effectively silenced.

Gen. Roget, commander of the troops in Paris, after protesting to Gen. Gallifet, minister of war, against being transferred outside Paris, finally said, with fine bravado. "I go, because you send me to a post of honor." "You go," replied the minister of war, "because I order you to go." The places of these men are being filled by cool, unemotional men from the country towns. Some of them hate Paris. All of them have contempt for the idea that Paris rules the nation. M. Lepine was born 53 years ago in Lyons. He was a common soldier in the Franco-Prussian war. He studied law, then in 1877 entered the police department as under prefect of a country district. He occupied many departmental posts, always in the provinces, until 1893, when he was called to Paris as prefect, to restore order in the streets and system in the police

He retired in 1898, but is now back force. in his old post at the special request of the new cabinet. He is cold, diplomatic, energetic and fearless, the best prefect since the days of the famous Fouche, whom Napoleon made great.

THE GROWING CROPS

Harvest Outlook in Europe Improved by Favorable Weather.

London, July 17 .- Hot, forcing weather, which has been attended by occasional storms, has proved beneficial to the growing crops, and wheat, although having been beaten down in some districts, is now recovering. Reports to hand Saturday night were very favorable.

A general tone of dullness has been the prevailing feature again during the last week, the demand from the restricted attendance of buyers being extremely slow and purely for immediate wants.

The improved crop reports, both from Russia and America, are re-lieving any anxiety felt in regard to future supplies.

Home growers have some wheat ready to forward in moderate quantity, but inquiry remained lethargic. Foreign prospects, according to the Mark Lane Express, are as follows: In Spain the wheat crop is rather short in most districts, very poor in Navarre and Valencia, and an excellent yield in quality in Estramadura.

Italy—The harvest has begun, and taking the result in the aggregate the yield will be rather good. Germany—Owing to the present warm weather the condition of the is somewhat improved, and has thereby enhanced the prospects of this year's harvest, the aspect of the wheat fields being described as good. Hungary—Reaping has already begun. The condition of the grain is irregular, though the prospects have improved, owing to this week's fine Roumania-Bad. It is estimated that the wheat crop this year will not exceed 2,500,000 quarters, compared with average yearly yield during the last six years of 6,800,000 quarters. Russia-Much better. have received sufficient moisture and sunshine, which has greatly improved protested Dr. McCarthy, as she stood before him in her wedding gown. He had just come in from Meriden with his best man, procured the marriage license, and had dropped in at his flancee's home on the way to his hotel, where he was to dress for the wedding.

Miss Florine burst out crying and her mother denounced the critical bride "Young man," she said, "you're a CHICAGO, July 15 .- Lack of cash demand and favorable weather, with receipts, caused a decline in wheat today, September closing about %c under yesterday, at 72%c to 72%c. Corn and oats closed fractionally lower. Provisions lost 5c to 121/2c on heavy hog receipts.

Wheat opened with a show of firmness, 4c to 3c higher, at 73%c for September. The upward impulse was due to buying by traders upon reports of too much rain in the west and northwest for the prosecution of harvesting. This prop failed early, and after selling at 73%c to 73½c, September started on a decline from which there was no rally. The small amount of speculative business done by scalpers in the main kept the range within %c. Cables were indifferent, and receipts heavy. Bears were today recruited from the bull ranks. The wet weather was principally in the winter wheat belt, but receipts were heavy enough to check buying. The cash demand was light. The Northwest sold wheat in the local market, talked fine weather, and agreed in the general expectation of an increase in the vis-Receipts at primary points were 746,717 bu, against 256,510 bu last year. Northwest receipts were 611 cars, as compared with 366 a week ago, and 64 a year ago. Local receipts were 54 cars, 8 of contract grade. Prospects of a large increase in the visible helped the short sellers. Duluth reported the country movement to be on the increase. September sold down steadily to 72%c, and closed at 72%c to 72%c. There was considerable selling of September corn, which opened at 341/20 to 34%c, a shade over yesterday. The market turned with wheat, and on the general opinion that the rains in the corn belt were favorable to crops. On rumors of liberal deliveries to be made after the close, the market sold off steadily to the close. Receipts here were 494 cars. September sold off to

BATTLE FOR LIFE

Rev. Soloman Cleaver, His Wife and Miss Roberts Were Near Watery Grave,

Rat Portage, Ont., July 17 .- On Friday night, about 9:15, Rev. Solomon Cleaver, of Grace Church Winnipeg, accompanied by his wife and Miss Roberts, upset in a canoe behind Coney Island, They were returning from Keewatin Beach, and were caught in a storm at that lonely spot, where there are no campers. After many attempts Mr. Cleaver managed to get his wife a hold on the canoe. He found Miss Roberts coming up for the sec-ond time, and caught her under the canoe and got her to hold on.

This situation lasted over an hour. In the meantime they were drifting into Barrett's Bay, when their cries for help were heard and they were rescued. Upon being put in a boat the rescued trio completely collapsed, but at Barrett's, with the help of the occupants, they were brought safely around and are now out of danger. Mr. Cleaver says another ten min-utes would have been fatal to all.

Rev. Thomas Wilson Talks on the City's Disgrace,

Authorities Should Have Coerced the Company and Not the Men

People stood on the steps and in the vestibule of the King Street Presbyterian Church last evening, to hear Rev. Thomas Wilson talk of London's disgrace, and place the responsibility for it. The seats were filled, and the aisles crowded. Mr. Wilson took for his text: "When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn" (Proverbs xxix., 2). He said there was nothing the citizens of London took more pride in than their city's fair name and reputation as an orderly, law-abiding city. Even the casual visitor was struck by these characteristics; and now the city's name had been heralded abroad as a turbulent, law-breaking city, whose people had to be coerced by military force, and her Mapleton ..... 230 disgrace had been proclaimed through-tinent. Mr. Wilson then undertook to place the responsibility for this deplorable condition. He reviewed the history of the trouble. It had been charged that employes who were citizens of London had been displaced to make room for outsiders, that the men had not been apployed full time and that not been employed full time, and that the company had repeatedly broken their agreement with the men, and the bylaw under which the franchise was Ruling prices for the past four market days—

They were enjoying extraordinary privileges at the expense of the streets of the streets had a the citizens, and the citizens had a right to be protected, and to demand that the company live up to the agreement under which they enjoyed those privileges. The mayor should have used the police force, and the militia if necessary, to compel the company to carry out the agreement, or get out.

"The reading of the riot act was a disgrace to this city of London," he said. "Thousands of dollars are being spent each week to keep order in a city that is as quiet as a village. The whole thing has been brought upon our city by those in authority, and now the one at the head of affairs-the one who ought to know-is going to call a meet-

Sold a $10,000 Schooner for $100-A Number of Prospectors Drowned

San Diego, Cal., July 17 .- A special to the Union from Enznada, Lower California, says: The Mexican man-ofwar Democrata, Capt. Urgell, has arrived from San Roque with 98 Americans and 25 Mexicans, who were found on the beach there. Most of the miners had sold all their grub and tents and made their way to the landing, misled by the false rumors that the steamer

St. Denis was due there July 5. The beach was COVERED WITH HUNGRY MEN. Not one, however, would admit that he was broke, and, in fact, a company organized by them raised a purse of him over to the grand jury. Captain Urgell to take the crowd to Enznada. The captain refused the money. He treated the luckless gold-seekers loyally and brought them here.

WORKING FOR FIFTY CENTS A DAY. Seattle, Wash., July 17 .- The schooner General Siglin, which arrived here last night from Cook's Inlet, Alaska, had among her passengers 14 members of a party of 16 Massachusetts men, who left Boston a year ago last February in the schooner Rubel Richard-They went to Resurrection Bay, Alaska, where they anchored their vessel for the winter. In November she broke her chains, and a strong wind drove her at high tide on a sand-bar. The craft careened and settled until within three or four weeks she was practically buried in the sand. Meanwhile the prospecting contingent had gone into Cooper River, a tributary of Porcupine Bay, where they located a claim, and at once began its development.

MONKEY OR MAN?

The "Missing Link" Smashed With a

Club.

Bonesteel, S. D., July 17 .- Upon the question whether his victim was brute or human depends Archie H. Brower's guilt or innocence of the crime of murder. Brower was one of the owners of a small tent show which came here on exhibiton. Among their attractions was a creature of seemingly a higher form of life than a monkey and lower than a man. The animal was called the "Missing Link," and great stress was laid upon the alleged fact that no one was able to say whether it belonged to the human or the brute creation. Brower now avers that the freak was a monkey. In a scuffle with it the showman became angry, and, seizing a heavy club, dealt his antagonist a hard blow over the ear, from the effects of which it died in a few hours. The local authorities immediately placed Brower under arrest on a charge of murder. At the preliminary hearing his lawyers set up the defense that their client did not take the life of a human being, but a magistrate bound

TIPPED A KING

How Leopold Played a Joke on Twe

American Women. King Leopold, of Belgium gave his annual garden party recently at the castle of Laeken, the beautiful grounds of which are famous all over the world. The recurrence of the date recalls an amusing event which took place a few days before the fete last year, in which King Leopold enjoyed himself immensely, with the bonhomie which makes him so deservedly pop-

The King of the Belgians was near the gate of the Lacken Castle one afternoon when two well-dressed, handsome American ladies approached him and asked him whether he had time to show them the grounds. The king willingly acquiesced, and the fair Americans, who took him for his own head gardener asked him innumer. head gardener, asked him innumerable questions, many of them indiscreet, about himself. On the way through the grounds the party came face to face with the chamberlain, the Count d'Oultremont, to whom the king, politely removing his hat and addressing him with the utmost respect, said that he was "taking the liberty of showing the ladies

The count smilingly acquiesced, and the ladies were delighted. When their visit was over they rewarded his majesty with a 10-franc piece for his trouble, and he, with many bows, assured them that if an invitation to the coming party were procurable they should have it.

The invitation found its way to the hotel where they were staying, and the astonishment of the ladies on being presented (by the Count d'Oultremont) to King Leopold was complete as they recognized the amiable gardener of a few days before. Their 10-franc piece was upon the king's watch-charm, where it has remained ever since.

TOLSTOI, STUDENT

He Rode in a Carriage and Read During Lectures.

A student friend of Count Leo Tolstoi, named Martuinof, relates in the London Daily News about the time he spent with Tolstoi at the University of Kasan the following: was at that time a tall, awkward youth with broad nose and fair hair. One always saw him clean and well-dressed. Tolstoi's friends at that time all belonged to the aristocracy. The comrades of the count, who attended first the judicial faculty and then the lectures in the department of Eastern languages, treated him very haughtily. And this was quite incomprehensible, for Leo Nikolaiwitsch always came to the university in an elegant carriage, and was not intimate with any of his colleagues. He lived at first with his relation, the professor of the Russian relation, the professor of the Russian language and archaeology, Levanon, whose wife was a Tolstoi, but he soon quarreled with him and removed to his aunt's, P. Fushkow.

In the auditory, which was built like an amphitheater, the young count had chosen a peculiar place for himself chosen a peculiar place for himself, namely, on the topmost gallery, in the so-called paradise, and there always sat on the last bench. And he had a good reason for this, namely, during the for the most part monotonous lecture of a professor about ancient Arabian wisdom or the literature of the Tartars, he liked to study zealously in some work or other which he had brought with him for this purpose. He generally was so absorbed in his work that he forgot his surroundings. The consequence was at the examination he very often was at a loss for an and received very unsatisfactory predicates. Neither his way of living nor his studies could let one suppose that the shallow, absent-minded young aristocrat would become one of the greatest Russian authors.

Strike Committee's Labors at an Endfor the Purchase of the Road-Final Meeting.

The final meeting of the city council's special strike committee and the advisory committee of citizens was held this morning. The negotiations were reviewed, and the conclusion arrived at that nothing had been acomplished. Both the company and the men again refused to adopt the proposed basis of settlement, and the "deadlock" will be reported to the council at a special meeting called for 4 o'clock this afternoon. Two recommendations were passed by the committee-one by the mayor, with a view to acquiring municipal ownership of the street railway, and another by Mr. Mattinson, with a view to getting the personal feeling of the strikers about returning to work. The following communication and accompanying proposition as finally adopted by the council and citizens' committee were handed to Chairman Garnett, of the strikers' committee.

Saturday afternoon: "To J. Garnett, Wm. Crawford, and others, representing the striking employes of the London Street Railway Company:

"I herewith inclose you a copy of prepared basis of settlement between the London Street Railway Company and their employes, as adopted by the committee dealing with the matter. which we would ask your careful consideration of and a reply to the same, handed to myself not later than Monday, 17th of July, at 11 o'clock a.m. "(Signed) EDWARD PARNELL, "Chairman of Committee.

"July 15, 1899." PROPOSAL TO BOTH PARTIES AS

A BASIS OF SETTLEMENT. 1. All matters in dispute between the company and its striking employes, except the scale of wages and the question of the recognition of the union, but including the question whether the employes were justified in striking on the 22nd of May last, to be left to arbitration. The arbitrators to award such redress and to direct the payment of such damages and costs by the company, if any, as all the circumstances being considered, they deem just and right. 2. In consideration of the men waiving the recognition of the union the employes of the company to be protected by a covenant of the company entered into with the city, giving the men full protection and providing for the submission of disputes to a board of arbitration, whose decisions shall be final, and bind both the company and its employes. The company at all times to hear grievances, whether presented by individuals or by a committee of the employes.

3. The arbitrators, both under the first and second clauses, to be appointed, one by the company, one by the men, and the third by the two so appointed, or, failing agreement, under the Ontario Arbitration Act.

4. The scale of wages to be 13 cents an hour for the first six months, and 16 cents per hour thereafter and to be in force for three years, the maximum rate of wages to be paid to all reinstated employes.

5. The company to give a covenant to the city that the company will not directly or indirectly, or in any man-ner whatsoever, interfere with its employes in joining any lawful union, association or club, either through its officers or otherwise. Also the men on their part agree to give a similar covenant to the city that they will in no way interfere, either by marking men or cars because of any man in employ of the company refusing to join such union, association or club. 6. Pending arbitration under clause the strike to be declared off, provided the company reinstate at once at least thirty men, but outside men engaged by the company meanwhile to be engaged temporarily only. 7. Service beyond capacity of present employes not to be insisted upon, while only temporary engagements are permitted. Note: Damages and costs referred to in the eighth and ninth lines of paragraph one, we understand to refer to damages and costs which the company may be adjudged to pay.

"July 17, 1899."

THE COMPANY'S REPLY. Ald. Parnell, chairman strike commit-

Dear Sir,-The directors of the London street railway have considered the proposed basis of settlement, submitted by the committee to the company on Saturday afternoon last, the 15th inst., and I am instructed to say in reply: Provided clause 4, namely, that as to the scale of wages, is eliminated, and provided it is made clear that the present employes will not be displaced, the committee's suggested basis of settle-

I am further instructed to say that the company are prepared to stand by any settlement or concessions made before the committee, either verbally or in writing, and that they are willing, as previously stated, to agree that the scale of wages shall be 13 cents per for the first six months, and 151/3 Council Recommended to Negotiate cents thereafter, all reinstated employes to receive the maximum rate. scale to be in force for three or five years: but the company cannot recognize the right of anyone, even that of the committee, to fix the scale of wages; and this, quite apart from the fact that there is no ground to warrant an increase; the present rate in London being higher than that paid either in Montreal, Ottawa or Hamilton, as has been previously pointed out to the committee. Yours truly, C. E. A. CARR. London, July 17, 1899. When the above replies had been read, Mr. Hunter rose. Matters were in about the same shape as when the committee had started work, he said. The company asked that the question of wages be left out and that there be no displacement of present employes, and the men refused to leave out the question of wages and the recognition of the union. There was nothing for the committee to recommend to the council. He therefore moved this committee simply present the correspondence relating to the endeavor to bring the contending parties to-gether to the city council, to take such steps as it sees fit to secure a full and fair arbitration; but should this committee, however, still determine bring in any recommendation, that authority be first asked from the city council for an enlargement of the committee by the addition of an equal number of representatives of organized The mayor moved that the correspondence between the committee and the contending parties, together with a synopsis of the proposed basis of settlement drafted by the committee that the council be recommended to appoint a committee to negotiate with the Street Railway Company to purchase the road for the city. Dr. Roome held that the committee should report to the council that from the evidence they had before them they had drawn up what they considered a fair basis of settlement. He moved to that effect, but on the suggestion of Mr. Cox, changed the motion and described the proposed basis of settle-

"That we, the committee, appointed by the city council, composed of a number of aldermen and citizens for the purpose of negotiating and bringing about a settlement between the Street Railway and the late employes went out on strike on 22nd day of May last, beg leave to report as follows: That met in the committee room, of city hall, July 1 and organized, and at that meeting received a promise from a committee of the employes and also from their solicitor to furnish this committee within a few days, a specific statement of each man's grievance signed by each aggrieved employe, but after the committee waited ten days, the grievances were handed in, not specific, but in a general way, signed by the committee; after which, with the information we had, we endeavored to get each party to .nake some concessions, so that a mutual agreement, might be arrived at, which would be satisfactory to both of the contending parties, so as to at once remove the unpleasant agitation which has gone on for the past eight weeks inconveniencing the public and interfering with business, and through its rowdyism which is being excited, is destroying the good name of the city and also incurring the large expense on our ratepayers who are already overtaxed, and we further report that after several long and protracted sittings of committee, we have failed to fill our mission, and, as a last resort, the committee, from the evidence they had before them, drew up what they thought might be acceptable to both sides, and submitted to each of the contending parties for their approval, therefore, be it resolved, that we refer the basis of agreement to the city council and all other communications which have passed between 'he two parties and the committee, and ask to be discharged from further duty. Mr. Hunter, speaking to his motion, said the labors of the committee had failed. The see-sawing process had not brought them any nearer to the vital points at issue. He held that if negotiations were to be carried on any further a larger number of labor men should be on the committee. It was unfair that he should be fighting the cause of organized labor single-handed. He was not able to cope with the others, who had experience in such matters. Dr. Roome took exception to Mr. Hunter's statement that he was fighting the committee single-handed. He (the speaker) was not there as a solicitor for the street railway company, but was impartial.

Ald. Wilkey-We are not here for the company, nor for organized labor.
Ald. Rumball also held that the committee were there as independent men. Organized labor had a chance to lay their grievances before the committee, but didn't accept it. If they were to put strikers on the committee they might as well put the company, and let them fight it out. The mayor said they were not there representing any faction. He believed both the men and the company were to blame. Every man on the committee, he believed, was as fair to the laboring men as to the company.

The mayor withdrew his amendment. Mr. Cox felt that the committee, in making a report, should not do more than they were asked to do by the council. They should report their labors and the result, but not send in voted down.

The mayor then moved to recommend the council to appoint a committee to road. Dr. Roome held that the citizens the advisory committee should vote on the matter, as it was not what this committee had been appointed for.

Mr. Cox was of the same opinion. Ald. Rumball said it would take a year to bring about the purchase of road, even if the company were willing to sell. What the committee wanted was to get the strike settled. The mayor was surprised at Ald. Rumball. They could negotiate with the company in 24 hours, and if the company would sell, submit the question to the people at once.

Ald. Rumball—You're the swiftest mayor I ever knew, if you can get such a thing as that through in a month. Ald. Douglass and Ald. Carrothers supported the mayor.

Mr. Cox thought the proper thing to be done was to dismiss the extra forces at Wolseley Barracks, strengthen the police force so that strict order could be maintained in the city, insist immediately on the company running full time, and to recommend that all points in dispute between the company and the men be referred to arbitration. It was an absurdity for either the men or the company to treat this matter as if they themselves were the only parties interests. The public was vitally interested. To block a public franchise was like blocking a public thoroughfare. The cars had to be operated, and if the company couldn't manage the road so as to get on with their employes, the only remedy was arbitration. The mayor stated that the question of the militia remaining in the city was not in the hands of the council or the mayor, but with the D. A. G.

The mayor's motion carried.

Mr. Mattinson—It seems that the strikers have been led very largely by a few political wire-pullers. I will therefore move that the council be recommended to take a ballot of the strikers to see how many want to remain out. There is a great feeling that a great number of the men are ready to go back to work. Dr. Roome held that it was too late in the day for such a motion. He also thought that it might put the council in a worse position than ever. Mr. Hunter again took the position that the committee had no right to make any recommendations. He was prepared to say in reply to Mr. Mattinson's insinuation that Division 97 had not been in any way influenced by political wire-pullers. This was the first he had heard of any such unworthy insinuations, and he denied it in toto. The street railway men had acted entirely on their own judgment, though they had been supported by the Trades and Labor Council, an entirely nonpolitical body, who would support them to the end.

Mr. Cox characterized the motion as "unwise," and said the committee, if they adopted it, would be assuming that the men were children. Ald. Wilkey pointed out that the committee's labors were supposed to have ended Saturday. Mr. Mattinson's motion carried.

on Saturday, be sent to the council, and A vote of thanks was, on motion of Dr. Roome, tendered the chairman, and the committee "passed out." STRIKE NOTES. Ald. Wilkey states that The Adver-tiser's report of Saturday afternoon's meeting hardly represented him cor-recely. When he moved that the street railway employes' wages he 12 cents an hour for the first six months, he did so under the impression that the company would be more apt to adopt the committee's proposal to fix the maximum wage at 16 cents an hour. We are not of those who consider

A VISIT TO GEORGE ELIOT

An American Woman's Recollections of the Great Novelist at Home.

Mrs. James T. Fields tells in the July Century the story of her acquaint-ance with the famous novelist George Eliot. It was my good fortune to pass a month or more during the early summer of 1869 in London, at a hotel opposite St. George's Church, Hanover Square. It was a small, old-fashioned hotel kept by two ladies, and our parlor wore the air, as Diokens used to say when he came into it, "of a stage drawing-room." The vases and artificial flowers and small mirrors and unnecessary tables were all there, and were often in strange contrast to the simple tastes of its temporary occupants and their guests; although it could not be denied that the lightness and cheer and fancifulness had a real charm for us in the somewhat dark the meetings of the joint committee of the city council and citizens' committee Lewes found us one afternoon (by great Lewes found us one afternoon (by great good fortune we had just return from rambling about, sight-seeing), and while he explained that Mrs. Lewes was never able to make visits. stayed himself, and talked freely about George Eliot and literary affairs. He was not a very prepossesing person in his appearance, but his mercurial temperament and his large intelligence made him gay and interesting in conversation. He lingered, full of agreeable subjects of talk, until we knew something of each other, and he had obtained a promise that we would go on the following Sunday, in the afternoon to see his wife.

We found them at the time appointed in a pleasant house somewhat retired from the road, with trees and shrubbery outside and plenty of books inside. A small company of ladies and gentlemen were already assembled and there was much conversation. Presently, however, George Eliot disengaged herself from the general talk, and allowing the company to break up into groups, came and seated herself by my side for a more intimate 40 quaintance. I recall the glow which overspread her face when she discovered that we had a common friend in Harriet Beecher Stowe. The affection-ate generosity with which she poured her unbounded admiration for out Mrs. Stowe, and her love for her work, is never to be forgotten. She semed to understand the rapt intensity of Mrs. Stowe's nature as few of her contemporaries have done, and to rejoice in the inspiration which prompted her great book. Nor did she stop there. She had read and appreciated her later books as well, and she loved and reverenced the woman. After this first visit to "The Priory," the doors were kindly open to us on Sundays during our stay in London.Unhappily, I have no notes of those visits, nor of George Elliot's conversation, but I must always remember how the beauty of her voice impressed me. I also remarked the same quality I have mentioned in speaking of her letters - a sense of perfectness in her presentation of any scene or subject. I recall this impression especially in connection with a description she gave one afterneon of a late visit to Germany, por-traying the charm of living in one of the places (was it Ilmenau?) made classic to us by association with Goethe. The whole was so clearly yet simply and vigorously said, that any listener, ignorant of her fame, must have felt her unusual qualities both of mind and

There was not a symptom of sickly sentimentalism in Eunice's nature; but she did feel as if she could have said farewell to existence and the few she loved, with less effort than was required to dress her countenance in its wonted serenity, and go back to her sister; to speak and act as if a thunderbolt had not riven the ground at her feet; to consult her rustic and unobservant handmaid about homely details of the morrow's housekeeping. CHAPTER XIX.

The third Sabbath in October was bland and bright as June. Roy, who had arrived in Dundee on Saturday evening, invited his wife to a stroll in the garden with him after the dispersion of the afternoon congregation.
There were more sere than green leaves in the rose labyrinth, but one side of the arbor was covered by a thrifty micra phylia that had been known to keep its foliage from autumn to spring when the winter was not severe, and which had put forth, within a week, a few large milk-white roses, warmed into delicious fragrance by the sunny day.

'Sweet to the sweet!" said Roy, cutting a half-open blossom and a bud, and fastening them in Jessie's brooch. "I wish they did not match your cheeks so nearly, love,"
She smiled family.

"I am gaining strength rapidly. There is nothing the matter with me, except that I have not enough to do to keep me from moping. There is not thing you must let me speak of while Eunice is not by," she continued, hurriedly. "I may not have appeared grateful for your permission to remain here until her arrangements about the school are completed, but I am thankful! I feel your goodness—your generosity, deeply! I wish I were bantering her father, and, occasionally, when talking saucily with him-self—she began with deliberate fingers to button the coat from the throat "Making a mummy of me, Madcap!" was the alliterative comment Mr. Kirke usually made when the process was finished. Roy recollected it now, and smiled to himself. The action, her first voluntary caress since his return from abroad, thrilled him with ecstasy. Her downcast eyes and trembling lips recalled, in one rapturous rush, thoughts of the shy dalli-ance of the girl he had wooed amid these bowers. He was winning her back to her true self-or, rather, nature and affection were recovering from lethargy induced by the shocks she had sustained. "My wife must never speak to me of gratitude!" he said, restraining the paen the heart would have sung through the lips. "Your happiness should be—if I know myself—is my chief consideration. Much as I regret Eurice's refusal to share our dwell-Eunice's refusal to share our dwelling, I should be savage in my un-kindness if I were to add to your disappointment by denying your request that you might be left together a week or two longer. Nor do I wish to punish her, or, in any manner, express my chagrin at her determination. sight of her glistening eyes when I told her, this morning, that you were not to be separated while you remained in the Parsonage, went far towards compensating me for my self-denial. By and by my bird will nestle in my bosom, settle herself in our home. The knowledge that you are, indeed and in truth, mine, dear one, renders me patient, almost satisfied in your absence. If I say hourly, in the thought of your coming to and dwelling with me-'God speed the day!' the aspirations does not incline me to force your inclination, to withhold from you a reasonable indulgence, that I may see you the sooner in your right place-not your jailer, my pet!" It was impossible to look into his moved face; to hear the cadence of passion and yearning that trembled along the last sentences, and not be-lieve that, whatever might be the re-cord of his past loves and defections, his whole heart was now given to her who pore his name. The listener's paroxysm or humility bowed her in spirit to his feet, He was heaping burning coars upon her shamed head.

"And God make me ht for that home! she said solemnly, lifted in the exaitation of high resolve above the mental apathy and physical repuision which had, up to this nour, made this emorced union an ever-present night-mare. "Indeed, Roy, I will strive to be a good wife! I have nothing to live for except the hope of making you happy. You know what I am-weak and faulty—a spoiled child from the beginning, to whom everything like discipline was unknown until lately. And then—one stroke followed another so rapidly that I have hardly been sane, I think. But I do want to satisfy you in every respect, or so far as one like me can!"

"'So far as you can!'" his whole soul in the eyes that beemed into hers, and in the sweet, proud smile irradiating his grave features. "The work is done, dearest! My cup runneth over. It will scarcely bear a rose-leaf this evening—only this seal of our renewed covenant, my angel of blessing, my good, true wife!" bending gently over

ner to kiss her. He remembered afterward, how she clung to his shoulder and hid her face there, when he placed her beside him on the bench in the arbor where they sat out the half hour of sunset as they had so many others in days gone by. Eunice, seated behind the tea-urn, when they obeyed Patsey's summons when they obeyed Patsey's summons to supper, noticed the lessened gloom in her sister's mien and Roy's expression of radiant content; saw, when they gathered about the hearth for the evening's talk, that Roy took into his clasp the hand that generally lay listlessly across its fellow in Jessie's lap, and that she allowed him to retain it. Saw, and was thankful for these slight harbingers of the return these slight harbingers of the return of the love and brightness which were once her child's life. Tried to com-fort herself in her isolation with the belief that the night was passing from her darling's spirit.

"Wounds soon heal in hearts young and healthy as is hers!" she thought.

"For this, at least, I may return hearty thanks."

Within two days after the receipt of Roy's first letter, Eunice had announced to Jessie the reverse of her plans for the winter. Instead of removing with them to Hamilton she had decided to hire a cottage in the village, and open a school for girls. She had partially engaged both house and pupils before she had broached the subject to her sister. Thoroughly aroused from her selfish languor by the startling intelligence, Jessie had opposed the scheme with might and main. Accustomed as she was to Eunice's calm, but resolute measure, and her taciturnity respecting her own views, wants and plans, this retreat from a position which had not been taken without much and serious thought, filled her with consternation. Having plied her unsuccessfully with arguments and entreaties of her own devising, Jessie wrote to Roy, begging him to use his powerful influence to avert the threatened evil.

"I cannot do without her," she said, without staying to reflect what might be the husband's feelings on reading the avowal, "unlike as we are and re-served as we have been to one another! on some subjects, our hearts are knit together by bands which are all the stronger for our late loss. In the an-ticipation of this parting, my only sister seems to me like my second soul— the other part of myself. I shall be Unconsciously she had laid hold of the lappel of his coat, and was fingering it nervously. Then—a girlish trick she used to practice when coaxing or one else. If you desire my happiness, and I know you do entreat her not to and I know you do, entreat her not to leave me.' If aught in this letter wounded Fordham, nobody knew it. He wrote to Eunice forthwith, and urgently; did his best to dissuade her from the novel project, partly because he loved and respected her, chiefly because the matter was one that concerned Jessie's peace and happiness. He accomplished nothing, except to elicit from Eunice the admission that she had no counter-reasoning to offer, and a mild but firm repetition of her unalterable resolve. He made a second attempt on Saturday evening, during Jessie's absence from the room. Eunice sewed on steadily without a word, while he set forth the disadvantages of her present plan-the advantages of the form-Finally, brought to bay by his argument and searching questions, she confronted him abruptly.

"I must have work, and plenty of it, just now, Roy! I dare not be idle! When it shall be safe and best for me to rest and think, I will accept your offer. I beg you to believe that I act from principle—not caprice. I am sure that I am doing right. And now, please, say no more."

DID HIM UP WITH DOUGH

Policeman's Futile Effort to Serve Warrant on a Polish Housekeeper.

[Detroit Free Press of Sunday.] When Officer Tony Munchoski, of the Vinewood avenue station, emerged from No. 4 Goldner avenue yesterday afternoon he looked like a plasterer, that had been engaged in a hurry-up job. He was splattered from head to foot with a white, sticky substance that clung to him with the tenacity of a relation. Tony has an enviable record as a mediator of peace disturbances, but is unused to the weapons employed by the alert and quick-tempered mechanic of the kitchen.

The officer's unique decoration resulted from a search warpant procedure granted by Justice Whelan Friday morning. Special Officer Foley, of the Grand Trunk Railway, found several cars broken into on the tracks near the address above mentioned. Altogether, $40 worth of coffee and tea had been systematically taken from the cars. Other articles, including a jardiniere holder, were also missing. Suspicion was directed toward Michael Helmen-sky, a ragged, barefocted boy 10 years of age, who lived at 84 Golder avenue. The jardiniere-holder was found in his possession, and he admitted having taken some of the spices, but persistently refused to state in what manner he had disposed of the goods. Finally he said some of the coffee could be found at certain numbers on his street, and thither Officers Foley and Jordan, of the truant squad, and Munchoski, who was taken along as interpreter of Polish, went. They concluded that the boy lied, after an una-vailing search, and the three repaired to the mansion of the Helmenskys, with little Michael as guide. Mrs. Helmensky was kneading dough. The officers were needing coffee. Tony, the interpreter, told her why they had come, and produced the paper, officially signed and designated as a search warrant. It might have been a marriage licen'se, for all Mrs. Helmensky knew or cared. She looked at Munchoski, in defiance, and said that the house should not be searched.

"We shall see," said Tony, as he started to lead where others might fol-

Then it was that Mrs. Helmensky asserted woman's rights in muscular form. No need to call for help with the weapon she had at hand. She raised her brawny, knotty arm and swat-ted one of the officers with a hunk of pasty dough. It struck with a sickening sound upon the birthmark that adorns his upper left cheek. Tony Munchoski expostulated. Then with a strange expletive, the enraged woman devoted her full energy to the unfor-tunate Tony. With that pan of dough she attacked him with the ferocity of a hungry lioness just let loose from captivity. She batted him right and left, leaving his bright blue uniform specked and soiled and his face splotched like an alkali plains. The officers beat a hasty and ungraceful retreat, but they carried the boy with them. He was arraigned in the police court on the charge of simple larceny, and his extmination was set for July 17. The boy's clothes looked as though they might have been gathered from a cornfield scarecrow, but his father, who accompanied him to the court room, and looked on at the proceedings in dogged silence, was well and comfortably clothed. He has a good job at the car shops.

Guatemala May Be Coerced Provided the Monroe Doctrine Isn't Infringed.

New York, July 17.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: No advices have reached the state department respecting the reported purpose of the German Government to send the German cruiser Geier to Guatemala. Minister Hunter is carefully watching the situation. Before any demonstration occurs it is expected the United States will be informed of it, and the purpose of the German and English Governments.

It is said that the Guatemalan trouble is somewhat different from those in which other Central Ameri-can republics are involved, as investors in Guatemalan bonds bought them at a low price with the understanding that they would receive a high rate of interest, these advantages being regarded as compensatory for the risk taken.

Provided there is no violation of the Monroe doctrine, the United States, it is said, will not make any objection to the proposed demonstration. It is understood that as soon as the authorities are advised of the critical condition existing in Guatemala warships will be sent to promote American interests.

Soldiers at Wolseley Barracks Dislike Their Job-Half of Them May Leave Tomorrow

The militia force at Wolseley Barracks was reduced this morning by eight men. The men were desirous of returning to their homes to save their positions, and Col. Holmes, district officer commanding, granted their request. The enforced stay at the barracks is decidedly distasteful to the who were so hastily summoned from their work a week ago, and Col. Holmes this morning told The Advertiser that he would probably reduce the force by one-half tomorrow. That will leave 80 officers and men still in quarters. He is not at liberty to let quarters. He is not at liberty to let the entire force leave without an order, equivalent in value to that by Judge William Elliot, on which the colonel was obliged to call them out. Under existing conditions no additional troops will be brought in to take the place of those returning home,

THE NEW BISHOP OF LONDON

Will Arrive in the City Aug. 4-Committee to Prepare a Suitable Address to His Lordship.

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning a circular was read from the administrator of the diocese, Rev. Father Bayard, of St. Thomas, calling a meeting of the congregation, to arrange for the reception of the Rev. Mgr. Mcrive here on Friday, Aug. 4, two days prior to the date set for his consecration by Archbishop O'Connor.

The circular stated that Mgr. Mc-Evay would consent to only one address being read to him on the occasion of his consecration and instal-lation—and that from the congregation-and that we would decline to accept any purse of money.

In accordance with the circular a meeting of the congregation was held in St. Peter's school house, with Mr. Daniel Regan as chairman, and Mr. B. C. McCann as secretary. There was a large attendance. A liberal sum was subscribed to defray the expenses of engrossing a suitable address to his lordship, and the following committee was chosen to have the address prepared: Messrs. Regan, McCann, John Garvey (treasurer), James Egan, R. H. Dignan, T. J. Murphy, P. Pocock, W. McPhilips, Jeremiah Laughlin and John Drom-

LAUGHED AT

And Thus Obstructed Free Running of the Cars-Police Court Notes.

A number of cases in connection with the trouble on Saturday, the 8th inst., came up at the police court this morning before Magistrate Parke.

The cases of Benjamin Campbell. William McLean and Charles Mills were enlarged for two weeks. Bail was fixed in each case at $100. Campbell, McLean and Mills are charged with rioting. They were arrested in the crowd at the corner of Richmond and Dundas streets on Saturday night, the 8th. The prosecution consented to the adjournment. Fred Goodacre was charged with obstructing the free passage of the street on Saturday, the 8th inst., in East London. Chief Williams was the complainant. He swore to having been on duty with a squad of police at the corner of Dundas and Adelaide streets. He told Goodacre to move on, but the latter simply laughed at him. He then asked Goodacre for his name, and the latter made sport of him, telling him he would look through his pockets and see if he could find one, as it had slipped his memory. Goodacre then pro-ceeded to fumble in his pockets, and the crowd had a grand laugh. The case was enlarged until tomorrow, as Goodacre is bailed to appear on two more charges on that date. Goodacre claims he moved off as soon as he could free himself from the

Harry Roberts was charged with obstructing the free passage of the street on Saturday afternoon, the day of the trouble in the east end. Chief Williams was the complainant. Roberts was fined $5.

Frederick Simmons, charged with the same offense, could not appear on account of illness. A doctor's certificate was produced in court to that effect. Mrs. Wilkinson, of Adelaide street, who was locked up yesterday charged with insanity, was remanded for a week. Mrs. Wilkinson has been confined in the asylum previous to this. Beverly Burwell and Albert E. Dutton, two drunks, were discharged.

BY A LONE HIGHWAYMAN

Thomas Dart Assaulted and Robbed on Adelaide Street-Thomas Cahill Arrested Charged With the Crime.

A brutal assault and robbery occurred near the fourth concession on Adelaide street, on Saturday night. Thomas Dart, a butcher, residing on the Governor's road, just east of the city, was the victim.

During the afternoon and evening Dart was in London township on business, and was returning home about 9:30, when he was attacked by a man on Adelaide street. The highwayman demanded money, and, at the same time struck Dart a blow on the side of the head, and then punched him until his face was cut and bleeding. He then relieved Dart of a $2 bill and 75 cents in change.

Dart reported to High Constable Mc-Leod that the robbery was committed by Thomas Cahill, and McLeod and Evay, of Hamilton, bishop-elect of the County Constable Corsant placed Ca-hill under arrest yesterday afternoon. Squire Smyth remanded the prisoner until July 22.

Dart is positive that Cahill is the man who assaulted him. A silver American dollar was found on Cahill when arrested.

Boston banks paid out $40,000,000 in dividends on July 1. New York banks are said to have paid ten times that.

WHERE IS MRS. LETHBRIDGE?

A Request for Information Concerning an Englishwoman Who Came to Ontario.

World's End, London, Eng., July & To the Editor of The Advertiser: At a Sunday school social recently, I was talking to some people near me about Canada, when a young girl, a teacher in the Sunday school, said: "I wish you could tell me what has become of my aunt, who went to Canada some years ago, and we have not heard from for so long." I promised I would try and get some information for her. The mother, a widow, would feel very grateful to anybody who would help her in this. Here are the particulars: The aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Lethbridge, left London 15 years ago to take charge of an old ladies' and orphan girls' home, "Protestant House, St. Louis road, Quebec. Two years after, she wrote, and said she was going to another home in Ontario. They have not heard from her since, and think she must be dead, and if so, would like to hear when and where her death took place. If, then, sir, you will do a kindly act in making inquiries, this family and myself will thank you. Yours respectfully, A. M. OLIVER.

[Note.-Anyone who knows aught of Mrs. Lethbridge will please communicate with The Advertiser.]

Obituary.

After an illness extending over four years, Mrs. Mary Pudney, relict of the late Robert Pudney, died yesterday at the residence of her son. Mr. Wm. Pudney, 17 Wyatt street. She was 65 years old. Deceased was a native of New Brunswick, and came to London some 40 years ago, with her parents. Her father was a member of the Fourteenth Regiment, stationed here at that time. Her husband died a few years ago. A family of nine children survive: Edward, William, Frank, Louise, Susan, Mrs. Thomas Connolly, and Mrs. Chas. Tibbs, of this city; John, of Rochester, and Thomas, also a resident of the United States. The funeral took place this afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cem-

RICHARD WHETTER. Mr. Richard Whetter, one of London's oldest and highly esteemed citizens. passed away at 11 o'clock last night, aged 75 years. Although deceased resided just outside the city limits, he had for years taken an active interest in the upbuilding of London. Mr. Whet-ter was apparently hale and hearty to the end. He suffered from sciatica, but no serious result was feared. Early last night a rush of blood occurred, and he passed away at 11 o'clock. DR. J. S. REYNOLDS. Dr. Jas. S. Reynolds, brother of Mrs. W. E. Jackson, city, and nephew of Mrs. Jackson, Woodview, London town-ship, is dead at Wolverhampton, England. Deceased was 30 years of age. His death was due to typhoid fever. He was much respected, not only for his medical skill, but for his many qualities of heart and head. His widow survives him.

Word was received by Mr. John Callard, of this city, yesterday, of the death of his granddaughter at Hopkinsville, Ky., after a short illness. The little girl was only a year old. She was the only daughter of Mr. Fred Cal-Atlin Miners Say They Are Well Treated-Canadians Do Them Justice.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 15 .- The steamship Orizaba, just arrived from the north, brings 50 returned Klondik-ers, most of whom have gold dust ranging from $1,500 up to several thousands. The ship's strong box contained 100 pounds of the metal from the interior. Some passengers direct from Atlin report that claims in that district are being worked. They say that Judge Irving, who was sent to Atlin to straighten out mining properties, is giving great satisfaction, and in awarding all claims to original locators, they are permitted to commence work. He makes no distinction between United States oitizens and Canadians, and holds that United States citizens who had taken out miners' licenses in accordance with the laws of British Columbia, and prior to the passage of the alien exclusive law. located claims, are entitled to the same privileges as Canadians.
