WRECKAGE AND LOSS OF LIFE RESULT FROM SEVERE STORM

French Vessel Capsized off Ushant—Italian Barque Wrecked off Scilly Island—Snow Storms—Disasters Reported From New York.

London, Feb. 3.—After tossing helplessly in the English Channel for 65 hours, the Dover-Ostend passenger steamer Marie Henriette was towed into Ostend this morning. The gale is abating. In view of the severity of the weather the number of casualties thus far reported is comparatively small.

ONLY ONE SURVIVOR.

The first officer of the French ship Chamarat was landed at Plymouth today. He is the sole survivor of the crew of twenty-two men of the vessel, which was capsized off Ushant. The mate was picked up from a small boat which had capsized several times, but which he had succeeded in righting each time. He is in a critical condition.

The bark wrecked off the Scilly Islands yesterday evening, and which was supposed to be a German vessel, turns out to have been the Italian bark Logaro.

LOST WITH CREW OF 12.

London, Feb. 3.—News has just been received here that the steam trawler Anahy, with a crew of twelve men, belonging to Hull, has been lost in a snow storm off Iceland.

ON THE CONTINENT.

London, Feb. 3.—Reports of damage caused by the wind and snowstorms on the continent and in Great Britain continue to be received. Carriage and street car traffic in Madrid is stopped. The railway trains are delayed. Some of the towns in Northern Spain are isolated, and fruit trees have been destroyed. In Switzerland many villages are cut off from communication. Telegraphic communication with Italy is interrupted. There is now more snow in Venice than at to sailors and their craft. Several bodies have been washed ashore at the eastern end of Long Island. Wreck age strewn the shore in the vicinity of Bellport, L. I. Life-saving station, and one body came ashore east of this city. The finding of two other bodies was reported later from the same point. The crew of the American merchantman Schepp, which went ashore on Long Beach early to-day, are still on the vessel, and all efforts on the part of the life-savers have been unavailing. The crews of the sea-going tugs, John E. Berwind and E. S. Atwood, which sunk on Sunday afternoon, had a narrow escape. They were rescued by the German steamer Barcelona. The tugs were absolutely helpless and gradually sinking when the Barcelona hove in sight, and took the half-frozen crews aboard. Within half an hour after this the two tugs went to the bottom with the luggage of the men.

CHILDREN'S AID.

The Advisory Board of the Children's Aid Society met yesterday afternoon in Christ Church school-room.

The executive officer, Dr. R. V. Bray, reported for the month as follows: Letters written 5, visits 9, interviews 12, cases reported for investigation 4, embracing 7 children, cases investigated 3.

The report was adopted.

Accounts to the amount of $17.50 were passed.

The following donations were acknowledged:

Mrs. A. H. VonGuten, 20 pieces of children's clothing.

Miss F. Smith, Raleigh, 3 pieces of children's clothing.

Mrs. W. Brock, $1.00.

Stranger, $1.00.

Harwich Union C. E., $3.11.

The Society also desires to acknowledge the receipt of $50 from the County Council.

Forty-four members were added during the past month.

To-Morrow Night.

A mass meeting of Chatham's citizens is called for to-morrow night at Harrison Hall to launch the Old Boys' Reunion project.

Everybody is invited—AND EVERYBODY MEANS YOU.

The Reunion will prove a great thing for Chatham. It will give us a splendid and profitable time.

All the old boys—and girls—will be invited. Hundreds of them will come.

To-morrow night the initial organization will take place. GIVE IT A BIG-SEND-OFF.

This can be done by making this meeting a rousing and enthusiastic one. Everyone can help by being present.

WILL YOU BE THERE?

any time during the past 20 years. The River Tiber rose 35 feet. The lower portion of Rome is flooded, as well as the Forum, the Pantheon and the Temple of Vesta. The water of the Tiber is now receding. Several more wrecks off the British and French coasts are reported, and the crews of some of these vessels have been lost. Numerous ships are overdue.

WRECKS OFF NEW YORK.

New York, Feb. 3.—An unknown four-masted schooner went ashore during the night on Brigantine Shoals, near Atlantic City, N. J. She lies near the grounded steamer Cloverdale, which went ashore yesterday. Both vessels are hard aground. The Forge River life-saving station, on the south shore of Long Island, reported early to-day that a large barge was anchored off shore. She was rolling badly. No one could be seen aboard, and no signals were displayed. A lot of wreckage has washed ashore between Bellport, L. I., and Forge River, which looked as if another barge had gone to pieces. The Oak Island life-saving station, near Fire Island, reported this morning that a ship went ashore at Point Lookout early this morning. Her name has not yet been learned.

New York, Feb. 3.—The four-masted schooner ashore on Brigantine Shoal proved to be the Edith F. Allen, of New York. She is loaded with pine lumber.

The British steamship Claverdale, which stranded on Brigantine Shoal in a dense fog yesterday morning, was bound from China and Japan for New York with a cargo valued at $2,500,000, consisting of 4,000 tons of tea and 3,000 tons of general cargo. The crew of 25 men remains aboard. The ship ashore at Point Lookout is the L. Schepp, from Hong Kong for New York. The Schepp carries a general cargo of tea and other Chinese commodities. Several bodies came ashore on Long Island. A barge was seen adrift near Shinnecock. The sea was running so high that it was impossible to send assistance.

DEATH AND DISASTER.

New York, Feb. 3.—midnight—The gale which has been sweeping the coasts of Long Island and New Jersey for more than 24 hours, and is continuing, though with abated force to-night, has brought death and disaster

CRISIS IN CUBA

Gov. Wood Says Island is Threatened With Ruin Unless Congress Assists Relief.

Washington, Feb. 3.—A circular has been received by members of the Senate from General Wood, military Governor of Cuba, urging concessions on Cuban sugar coming into the United States. It is dated Havana Jan. 30. General Wood says:—"I desire to invite your most earnest attention and consideration to the economic conditions threaten to bring ruin to her principal industries—sugar and tobacco—unless prompt and efficient relief is given. With the ruin of her two principal industries, we must give up all hopes of a stable government, for unless Cuba can sell her produce at a reasonable profit, it is obvious that their cultivation must cease, bringing idleness and hunger to her people. These great industries are now in a most critical condition, especially sugar, which is being sold at a price less than the cost of production. The planter must grind his cane, even at a moderate loss, for his entire fortune is in the fields, and is liable to be swept away by fire or deteriorated from the effects of the elements. Each day of delay in giving relief is dangerous. When once the crash comes relief will be of little value, except to the speculator, who may gather up the wrecks here, the people of the country who have virtually reconstructed it in three years, will be ruined, and we shall have to step in and reoccupy the country or continue in occupation and do over again the work which we have spent thousands of lives and much treasure in doing up to date."

Remember the Citizens' Mass Meeting at Harrison Hall on Wednesday evening. Everybody turn out and make the Old Boys' Reunion a grand success.

Several selections on the graphophone were given during the evening by Frank Tschirhart.

RUINOUS BUSINESS.

The Ontario Government last year sold $517,000 worth of timber limits, and claims a surplus of $427,200 on the year's transactions. The swell rakes who figure every now and again in English bankruptcy proceedings carry on business on much the same line, says the Montreal Gazette. The timber on their estates is among the first things they sell, and in the years in which they get the cash for it they show "surplus" of the same kind as the Ontario Government has.

THE CHANCES OF LIFE.

Fatalists and Presbyterians should be the bravest men of any creeds, if they live up to their beliefs, points out the Ottawa Citizen. Predestination, carried to its logical conclusion, is simply faith that whatever happens or is to happen has been predestined. Where this belief is coupled with a sense of duty to do the best possible under all circumstances it is a comforting faith and tends to patience and the philosophic acceptance of the tribulations of life, and would render the possessor of such a faith cool and courageous in presence of danger, confident in the assurance that if his hour has come there is no escape and if it has not come nothing can injure him. Instances are continually afforded in everyday life which give color to such a belief. Apparently reckless persons who are continually risking their lives come through unscathed and die in their beds, while persons who are abnormally careful to avoid personal danger are singled out as the victims of violent and awful deaths. In many cases the very precautions taken to avoid dangers and ensure longevity are contributory to fatal accidents. In war the chances of death are distributed in a way to bring this vividly home to men's minds. Combatants in the firing line in a brush with the enemy escape while some predestined bullet wings its way far to the rear and instantly kills a man in what is apparently a place of safety. Superstitious soldiers are more careful of themselves on the way home from the war than they are on the field because the instances are so numerous of men who have gone through a hard campaign without a hurt being cut off by some simple accident on their way home.

The death of Mr. J. Roderick Robertson, the millionaire mine owner, of British Columbia, in the recent Park avenue explosion in New York, appears to be a case in point. Mr. Robertson was a heavy man of plethoric temperament. He had a decided aversion to riding in elevators, lest an accident should occur, and a constitutional antipathy to walking up and down stairs, because it effected his heart action to a dangerous degree. For these reasons he always wanted a room on the ground floor in a hotel. At the Murray Hill hotel in New York he insisted on this, and was supplied after some difficulty, with a suit on the ground floor, unfortunately, it was just opposite the point where the big dynamite explosion occurred and of all the guests in the big hotel Mr. Robertson was the only one killed. In taking precautions against death by elevator accidents or over exertion he put himself in the way of an equally sudden end.

This opens up another interesting subject of speculation. Certain animals and many men are known to have a premonition of death. It is a fact for which many newspaper reporters can vouch, from their experience in writing up accidents, that a noticeable number of victims of such fatalities are men who are anything but reckless, who, indeed, have made rather a specialty of guarding against danger and under ordinary circumstances would be regarded as very unlikely to be victims of accidents. It might be that a premonition that their death will be sudden and violent colors their actions in life and influences them to take such precautions as never occur to the average person. After all, a comforting belief that "what man he will be" is the best antidote for worry of all sorts and should enable the possessor to endure adversity with fortitude and to risk his life for any useful purpose with cool confidence.

A BANTAM REGIMENT.

Lord Roberts and Mr. Brodick favor the idea of enlisting men in the British army who are five feet or upwards in height, if they are well formed and in good condition. It was "in order to get recruits" that this conclusion was reached.

Under modern methods and conditions of fighting the short man is in every respect the equal of the tall man. If two men are equal in other respects—in training, riding, shooting, and in powers of endurance—the short man may prove the more serviceable of the two. In riding he is less of a drag on his horse. He will probably display greater agility, and can more readily find cover. As a rule he is more vain of his prowess more anxious to meet trouble than is the long grenadier.

Lord Roberts is a little man—too short to meet the requirements of the regulations, but he managed to enter the artillery. He was proved to be a more useful soldier than many such bigger than he. It being necessary for show purposes that soldiers should present some uniformity of size, we may expect to see formed a British regiment of "bantams," and it will be interesting to see what kind of showing that regiment will make on the march and in action. — Toronto Star.

Lilies of the valley are to be the flowers used at the time of the King's coronation next June. Enormous quantities will be required, and it is understood that the florists of Germany and Holland will aid in supplying the demand. British florists have purchased millions of bulbs and the bulb growers of Germany and Holland are reaping a handsome profit.

The Pittsburgh police appear to have shot down the Biddle brothers the moment they got within easy rifle range, making no attempt to arrest them. It is a peculiar fact that in Canada detectives practically never shoot men they are sent after, but bring them safe and sound into court. In going after a bad man our detective generally goes alone, and armed only for self-defence. He does not invite resistance. Across the lines the practice is to get up an armed posse, which clearly expects a battle, and generally gets it.

In the eyes of the infatuated Mrs. Soffel, the Biddle brothers were heroes against whom society had conspired. Not unnaturally, she fell in love with one of them—perhaps with both—with tragic results. Criminals of the Biddle class have always exerted a fascination over females of a neurotic type. The Jack Sheppards and Dick Turpins and Claude Duvals have always had their train of devoted female admirers. Even good women are often fascinated by them. Doubtless the reason is that such women are instinctively attracted to what is showy, daring, picturesque and sensational, even in crime. Such a tendency is a sign of mental and moral degeneration.

There is a very strong probability that infection is often communicated in "Kissing the Bible" in taking an oath in court, and though there were no danger the cover of a Bible which has been kissed by thousands of persons, some of them clean and healthy, but others just the opposite, is not a desirable object to kiss. In English courts the Scotch form of taking the oath with the uplifted hand is coming more and more into use. The Oaths Act of 1888 allows this privilege, and there is a similar provision in the Canadian statutes. There does not seem to be any good reason why the method of kissing the Scriptures should not be abolished altogether and the taking of the oath by the uplifted hand substituted in every case.

IS IT EQUALLY FLATTERING?

Hamilton Herald.
 It has been discovered in England that our Edward Blake is the living image of the great Edmund Burke. Read Goldsmith's pen picture of Edmund, and you will find that there are points of resemblance in the characters as well as the faces of the two statesmen.

SAPPING THEIR LOYALTY.

Hamilton Times.
 We do not mind telling King Edward, at this early stage of the game, that he need not expect to hear us sing God Save the King at his coronation, if he goes on with those fore-closure proceedings on "a mortgage dated May 30th, 1882, made between Peter Hunter Hamilton and Hon. John Henry Dunn."

HE CAN EAT NOW

After a Long Period of Enforced Fasting Hormisdas Theberge of St. Marcel, Que., Enjoys His Meals Once More.

There is a great pleasure in being able to eat freely and heartily that which we relish without any fear of painful after effects. Very few of us appreciate the joy of good health till we have lost it and then, and not till then, can we understand what sickness and suffering means.

Mons. Hormisdas Theberge, of St. Marcel, in Richelieu Co., Que., had for many months been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia. He was so bad that he could not eat anything, not even the slightest food, without great pain and distress. He tried to confine himself to the simplest diet, but it was in vain for him to think of escape from his enemy. He always suffered no matter what he ate, and with much misgiving till the fastidious had reduced his strength very much. He used many medicines, but got no better until he commenced a treatment of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and these very soon gave him relief. Slowly but surely the symptoms of Dyspepsia began to leave him, and in a short time he was able to eat freely without experiencing pain or distress afterwards.

He continued the treatment and was, in the end, rewarded by securing a complete and permanent cure. He says:

"I can now eat what I want without any suffering and most heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to all who suffer as I did with Dyspepsia, for I am sure they will do for them as they have done for me, completely cure them."

Mons. Theberge's case was a serious one and it yielded easily to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. It is therefore not too much to expect a cure in any case by the same means.

Queer Use for Thistle-Down.

This country is not the only one where unconsidered trifles are snapped up by manufacturers and put to practical use. In China, the down of the thistle is gathered and mixed with raw silk so ingeniously that even experts are deceived when the fabric is woven. It is also used to stuff cushions as a substitute for eiderdown, and a very good substitute it makes.

Australia's Cattle King.

The cattle king of Australia owns more than 1,000,000 acres of farm land, and leases about 1,000,000 more. He is an Irishman named Samuel McCaughey, who in 1856 landed in Australia almost penniless. One of his farms on Darling Downs is 40 miles long and 36 miles wide. His chief business is raising sheep.

A FAMOUS SCOT

Provost Alex. Macpherson, of Kingussie, no More-Relative to G. G. Martin.

The Northern Chronicle, of Inverness, devotes nearly two columns to the death and funeral of the eminent Scotchman, and Highlander, Provost Alex. Macpherson, F. S. A., Kingussie, Macpherson received his education in Kingussie and Edinburgh. In Edinburgh he studied law and was called to the bar, and lived there for some twenty years, and was prominent in the church and in social and literary societies. He then returned to his native Badenoch, of which the picturesque town of Kingussie is the capital. Besides being a lawyer the Provost was manager of The British Linen Bank at Kingussie, and chief factor of the three great estates—Cluny, Macpherson, and Balavil, of the estate being the home and property of the late celebrated James Macpherson, the translator of Ossian, now in the family of the late Sir David Brewster, a near kinsman. The late great Sir John A. Macdonald was within one link of being the rightful heir to this beautiful estate. The late Provost was a distinguished scholar, author and writer, and probably the greatest Gaelic authority living. He wrote several works on the history and literature of the Highlands, and Highlanders, which were published by the Blackwood press of Edinburgh. To such publications as "Good Words," various Celtic productions, and even the daily press, the Provost was a vigorous and frequent contributor. He was a life-long Conservative, and acted as agent for the party in every election since 1880.

Our esteemed ex-Mayor, T. A. Smith, armed with a letter of introduction from Barrister Geo. G. Martin, paid the Provost a visit last summer while on his European tour, and had the honor of being a guest at the home of the Provost, where the ex-Mayor says he was treated with that whole-souled, generous hospitality for which the Highlanders are famous over the world.

The Celtic Monthly says:—"We believe that the name of this loyal and patriotic clansman will be remembered as long as the sons of 'Fir nam-beann'—land of the mountains—cherish the tales of the days of old." The funeral on the 14th of January, at which Cluny Macpherson, of Cluny, was one of the chief mourners, was the largest ever seen in Badenoch. The funeral procession was headed by two pipers, who played Highland laments on the way to the cemetery. The late Provost had several near kinsmen in Canada, among whom may be mentioned the Hon. Hugh John Macdonald, K. C., of Winnipeg; the Hon. Mr. Justice McEwen, of Toronto, and Barrister Geo. G. Martin, of Chatham, his uncle, John Martin, of Puchin, near Guelph.

The Provost and Barrister Martin corresponded regularly for many years, and we can well imagine what interesting letters passed between these two literary gladiators.

SUNNY SOUTH

A Very Vivid Description of the Southern States.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Ward—the former a son of Mrs. Benj. Ward, 4th Con., Chatham Township—have just returned from the Sunny South on their bridal tour, and are now at home for a week with Mr. Ward's mother, 4th Con., Chatham Township. They speak very highly of the people, and especially of the climate. At the present time there you could go around in the same weight of clothing as you would wear here in July or August. The streets in Memphis were very dusty and were watered twice a day. They use the same kind of sprinkler as they do in Chatham, but they use mules instead of horses. The colored drivers are apparently very happy as they drive up and down the streets with their sprinklers, and they don't care if they give you a little water.

Memphis is quite a commercial city, with a population of 102,000, a large number of industries and immense shipping to and from points, cotton and tobacco being the chief articles of export. You can see the colored drivers all day long singing and whistling as they drive their old mules up the streets with their four bales of cotton on two-wheeled drays, and when they come from the stables after dinner you can see ten and fifteen in a race up the main street full gallop for the first load, so that they can get in first place at night. The handle from 2,000 to 3,000 bales per day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward visited a large cotton plantation just outside of the city and brought home a fine cotton plant. They were shown around the plantation and came across a large number of picking cotton. It is quite interesting to watch them, especially the way they sing as they pick the cotton. Frequently when they get tired they stop under a persimmon tree, one of them will climb up the tree and shake the persimmon down; while they are falling you will hear the rest singing—

Negro up the 'simon tree,
Negroes on de ground;
You little son of a Neg,
Shake dem dar 'simons down.

The chief product is cotton, more attention being given to its cultivation than to anything else. They used to plant the cotton seed by hand, but now they have a machine which plants and covers it at the same time. The seed is sown in April and after it is up three or four inches they chop it out from one to three stalks in a hill, the hills being from three to four inches apart. The last of the chopping is done in the month of July, and this they lay by. Then the farmers have what they call "farmers' picnic."

Picking season starts in August. The first picking is clean and pure white; it brings in more money than the rest. It takes 1,500 lbs. of cotton seed to make a bale, and after it is ginned and packed the bale weighs 500 lbs.

An Old Guide's Explanation of the Indian Whitefish Hunter's Method of Getting His Glittering Catch From Under the Rapids.

"The first time I fished in the Sault Ste. Marie rapids," said a well known Lake Keuka sportsman, "I landed in an hour twenty-one brook trout that weighed forty-five pounds; so I was ready and willing to believe anything I heard or read about the possibilities of those waters or the astounding things that men who fished in them were able to do.

"Consequently I believed what they told me about the marvelous feats the Indian fishermen of the Sault Ste. Marie could perform in a way of netting whitefish. Few who have toured the great lakes have not heard of those same feats, witnessed them and, of course, could do nothing but go away believing that they were all they seemed to be.

"Particularly will they marvel, as I did, at the Indian whitefisherman's magic eye with which he seems to look down through ten feet or more of foaming, rushing water and see whitefish that to the white man's eye would be invisible five inches beneath the surface. It would have been strange if I had not marveled at it, having witnessed more than once manifestations of its alleged power. That was before I talked with old Guide Garron.

"The astounding feats of the Indian whitefish netters of the Sault Ste. Marie, the guidebooks and the hotel keepers and steamboatmen insist on telling tourists about are performed by two Indians in a canoe. One occupies the stern and manipulates the paddle to keep the canoe's head pointed up stream. The Indian in the bow, standing upright, uses a pole to aid in propelling the canoe or in keeping it steady.

"Lying ready to his hand is a dip net four feet in diameter, fastened to the end of a pole perhaps fifteen feet long. The fishing is done at the foot of the rapids, where the water boils and tumbles furiously. With his pole the Indian in the bow keeps the boat moving about in the rapids and gazes constantly into the water, which is often ten feet or more deep.

"Suddenly the Indian in the bow will seize the net handle with one hand, never ceasing to manipulate the canoe with his pole in the other nor for an instant removing his staring gaze from the water. The net is not more than in his hand before he has plunged it perhaps ten feet distant from the boat, thrusting it at the same instant to the bottom. Then he gives it a peculiar twist, draws it up and, surrendering the care of the canoe for the moment to the Indian with the paddle, he draws the net up, never without from three to half a dozen glittering whitefish in it, frequently weighing five pounds each.

"The wondering spectator, seeing nothing but the boiling water, the sudden start of the Indian and his quick and dexterous plunging and drawing up of the net with its invariable load of whitefish, can do nothing but acknowledge to himself the necromancy of the Indian's piscatorial art. I know that I did, and for two seasons gave myself away to the fascination of that mysterious fishing. Then one day I marveled at it greatly to Guide Garron, the shrewd and cunning old Frenchman who knows every rock and eddy and whirlpool of the rapids and all the wiles and tricks that any other guide knows and a whole lot that no other one does know, and Garron's little black eyes twinkled.

"Ah! he chuckled. 'Zat magicee boye. He von go-grand hombage!' Then he explained in his voluble and picturesque patois the apparent mystery of the Indian whitefish fisherman's magic eye. Whitefish are natural denizens of the still, silent waters of the great lakes. To get from Lake Huron to Lake Superior these fish must fight their way up the fierce and stubborn Sault Ste. Marie rapids. In doing this they travel by easy stages. They can brave the rapids but a short distance at a time, when, almost exhausted, they drop into the shelter of the friendly rocks that pile the bottom of the rapids.

"Huddled sometimes by the score behind these rocks, getting wind, as it were, to overcome another stage of their journey, the whitefish, if the water is not too deep, can be lifted out by the hand of the fisherman, they are so nearly exhausted. The Indians as well as the white fishermen know this and, knowing well the location of these sheltering rocks, have only to thrust their nets down behind them and draw them up filled with fish.

"The cunning of the Indian led him long ago to give visitors the impression that he could penetrate the troubled depths of the rapids with his gaze and discover the whitefish on the bottom. The wonder of it spread, and it has been one of the fondest and best paying fictions of 'Susan Mary,' as the natives give you the pronunciation of the Sault Ste. Marie."

An Anecdote of Genius.

The following anecdote of Leigh Hunt was once related by "Orion" Horne. Horne on a bitterly cold day in winter went to see Hunt, and found him in a large room with a wide, old fashioned fireplace. He had dragged his piano on to the hearth, close to a large fire, leaving only room for himself and his chair, and was playing with the greatest enjoyment.

"My dear fellow," cried Horne, "are you aware that you are ruining your piano forever and ever in that heat?"

"I know—I know," murmured Hunt, "but it is delicious."

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. Wells, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with a putrid sore throat and asthma for some ten years. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease. Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER,
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
New York, Jan. 3, 1901.

Dr. Taft Bros., Medicine Co.,
Gentlemen,—Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

Dr. Taft Bros., Medicine Co.,
Gentlemen,—I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I came to your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her Asthma disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.

Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

Theatrical

Few romantic plays have achieved the deserved success that has characterized the dramatization of Winston Churchill's novel, Richard Carvel.
This was the attraction last evening at the Grand Opera House and, although there was only a fair attendance, those present enjoyed the production thoroughly. Andrew Robson was in the title role and he had a very accomplished ally in Miss Ruth Berkeley who impersonated with perfect understanding, Dorothy Manners, the spritely and evasive little coquette.
The story is easily connected with the American revolution and the plot is based on the differences between the people of England and of the colony.
It is an American play, by an American author, and, of course, colored from the American standpoint. These Americans crop up in climates and are discrepant to our sentiments of loyalty. The entire company supporting "Richard Carvel" was exceedingly strong, the costumes were expensive and the scenic effects very appropriate. Not the least pleasing selections of the Opera House orches-estra. This combination is truly an excellent musical organization.

Catarrhal Poisons and Their Remedy

The poisonous secretions from Cattarrh are dangerous because they affect the stomach and bowels, giving rise to an unhealthy condition of these organs. Catarrh is the source of much ill health and was considered practically incurable until it was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the medical profession that by the use of Catarrhizone any case of nasal or throat trouble can be permanently and quickly cured. Catarrhizone by its unusual merit has enlisted the support and endorsement of the most prominent medical authorities, who freely state that any one giving it a trial is sure to receive permanent benefit. Sold for $1. Small size 25c.

Great Clearing Out Sale

In rambling through the store one almost has the feeling that comes in a home that is preparing for the visit of a guest. Everything is being put to rights. Merchandise that has occupied bor-and where not to be continued, are brought out and hurried away.

The general public cannot see these things except as the wares appear on bargain counters in this great department. Perhaps the temptation of these offerings would be doubled if they knew how arbitrarily reduc-price change except for expediency's sake.

BRAVE GIRLS

They Stayed a Wild Runaway in North Chatham—Carry Honors Modestly.

Chatham girls have always been noted for their grace and beauty but now still another laurel is theirs—that of bravery. Few girls there are who have the courage to stop a runaway horse in its mad career down the street rather than hide until it is out of sight.

It happened this way. Two young ladies of the Maple City were walking down Head street when they perceived a maddened horse attached to a cutter come racing down the thoroughfare. Being possessed of an insurmountable quantity of presence of mind and nerve they rushed out into the middle of the street and stopped the frightened animal. Incidentally, as there was no occupant to the cutter, they took possession of the outfit. Just think of the courage of those girls, driving that horse, which not five minutes before had run away. They drove over to King street and on the way are said to have indulged in the following conversation:

"Oh, Clara, I'll bet this rig belongs to a miller."

"No, it doesn't, Emma, it belongs to some farmer, who was in the house asking his girl to go for a ride."

They brought the rig over town and handed it over to P. C. Peter Dezella, who put it in the Rankin House stable. An unknown man called and got it some time later.

ARMORIES

Petition to Minister of Militia Asking for Immediate Erection.

The following petition for a new armory is being signed by Chatham residents to-day. In order that action may be taken at the next sitting of the House signatures will be received this week only. It is requested that as many as possible should sign this petition in order to secure this desirable institution for Chatham. Those wishing to sign may do so by calling at the Standard Bank, Bank of Commerce, Merchants Bank, Bank of Montreal, office of the Canada Flour Mills Company, and the office of J. B. Rankin, K. C.

To the Hon. F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia, Ottawa.

The petition of the undersigned residents of the City of Chatham and the County of Kent, humbly sheweth as follows:

1. That the Drill Shed, situated on Tecumseh Park, in the city of Chatham, was erected a great many years ago, and has been repaired on several occasions in order to make it suitable and proper for armories and also for a Drill Hall.

2. The building consists of two parts, that is to say, the main building, and an annex, which was formerly used as an Agricultural building, but was moved and joined on to the drill shed.

3. Prior to the re-organization of the 24th "Kent" Regiment the curfew of the city of Chatham were permitted by the government to use the drill shed as a curling rink, and by reason of its not being sufficiently long for curling purposes a lean-to was added to the easterly end of the shed and other repairs made to it at a cost of about $800.00.

4. When the 24th Regiment was re-organized, the shed was assumed by the Militia Department and the annex was converted into four armories and the lean-to on the east end of the main building, was made into four armories, namely: an Orderly Room, Quarter-Master's Store Room, Non-Com's Room, and a Band Room.

5. In the spring of last year the clothing, arms, accoutrements and equipments were supplied to the 24th "Kent" Regiment, and were properly and regularly stored in the armories and in the Quarter-Master's stores, the ammunition supplied being stored in the old Magazine, but the state of the roof, abutting and rafters in such that it is impossible to keep the arms and accoutrements in proper condition. The rain comes through the roof, and forms in pools in the armories and also in the Orderly Room, Quarter-Master's Stores, Non-Com's Room, and Band Room, and the roof is in such a condition that it would be impossible to make a good job of it unless the whole roof were removed and a new one put on.

6. Your petitioners consider it in the interests of the Regiment, as well as of the City and County, and also for the safety and security of the government property that new armories should be constructed at once on said Park, which is Government property, and, for this purpose, a sufficient sum should be placed in the estimates of this session to enable the contract to be let at once and the armories to be completed for the proper reception of arms and equipment by next autumn.

And your petitioners will ever pray:

Diogenes was a wise man for despairing little worldly customs, but a fool for showing it. He was wiser than other people if you can, but do not tell them so.—Lord Chesterfield.

To watch the corn grow, or the blossom set; to draw hard breath over plowshare or spade; to read, to think, to love, to pray, are the things which make men happy.—Ruskin.

After all the money spent in giving a girl a knowledge of art and music to help her through life, the time comes when she finds that that which helps her most is patience.

MASONIC.

The regular meeting of Wellington Lodge, No. 46, A. F. & A. M., G. R. C., was held last evening, there being a very fair attendance of the members present. Rt. W. Bro. Ed. Worth, D. G. M. for Erie District, No. 1, paid the lodge an official visit and very highly complimented the officers on their performance of the 1st degree. Wellington Lodge has always held a good place among the lodges on the Grand Register of Canada, and it is quite evident that the brethren at present filling the chairs have no intention of allowing its good name to be lessened in the slightest degree. The work was very well done indeed, and, considering that these officers were only installed last December, they certainly deserved all the praise which Rt. W. Bro. Worth saw fit to bestow upon them. The auditors' report, as submitted last night, shows Wellington 46 to be in a flourishing financial condition, and the prospects for the future are bright and promising.

At the conclusion of the regular business the brethren adjourned to the ante-rooms, where refreshments were served and an hour very pleasantly spent in social converse.

An Ideal Medicine

A New Discovery Which Cures all Forms Of Catarrh.

The tablet is the ideal form in which to administer medicine, but until recently no successful catarrh tablet had ever been invented. There is now, however, an excellent and palatable remedy for catarrh in tablet form, known as Stuart's Catarrh Tablet form, known as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and sold by druggists, composed of the most recent discoveries in medicine for cure of catarrh and results from their use have been highly gratifying.

The old time treatment of catarrh was in the form of inhalers, washes, douches, sprays, etc. Later on internal remedies were used with great success, but being in liquid or powder form were inconvenient to use, and like all medicines in liquid or powdered form, lose their medicinal properties when opened or exposed to the air.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain highly concentrated antiseptics, Red Gum, Blood Root, etc., which kill the catarrh germs in the blood, and catarrh germs, and in this respect are strictly scientific and modern, because all authorities are now agreed that Catarrh is a constitutional blood disease, and local applications can have only a transitory effect.

The use of inhalers, douches and sprays is a nuisance and inconvenient and can in no wise compare favorably with the same antiseptics given in tablet form internally, where they can reach the stomach and blood, and kill catarrh germs right where they are produced.

A prominent lawyer and public speaker of Pittsburgh, says: "I have been troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for twelve years. In this climate it seems impossible to get rid of it. The continual dropping of mucus from the nose into the throat caused irritation and hoarseness, seriously interfering with my public speaking. It took me an hour or more of coughing, gagging, expectorating, and sneezing every morning before I could settle down to work and this condition gradually brought on catarrh of stomach, causing loss of appetite, poor digestion and foul breath, which annoyed me exceedingly. My physician advised me to try Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and I took them for two months and was astonished to find how quickly they cleared my head, throat and stomach and I have no hesitation in recommending them. They are not only pleasant to take but they seem to get at the very root of the trouble, because, since using them I have had no trace of catarrh."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cents for full sized packages. They can be carried in the pocket and used any time and as often as desired since they contain no cocaine, mercury or other injurious drug.

Sharp Attack of Lumbago.

Know what Lumbago is? Pain catches you right in the small of the back—makes stooping over or rising up excruciating agony. Wrong kidney action is the cause of the trouble, and if you let Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets set the kidneys working right you'll be quickly cured.

Here is some evidence:

Dr. James A. Seale, the well and favorably known boot and shoe merchant of Norwich, Ont., made this statement:—"During a recent sharp attack of Lumbago, in which the pain was extremely severe, I took a bottle of Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They took the pain out of my back so quickly, and so far as I can see made a cure that is so permanent, that I consider them unequalled for that most prevalent and painful affliction. I am only too pleased to recommend them to other people who may be suffering as I was."

Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are sold at all drug stores or by mail, The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

IKE'S OXEN

How He Trained Them Nautically and What Happened In Consequence.

Among his neighbors Job Haines was considered a pretty fair sort of man. He had settled in a little town in the southern part of Kansas, where he lived as an immigrant from New Hampshire, and he brought his Yankee sharpness with him, but as he dealt fair and attended to his own business he passed. The only member of the family besides Job and his wife was Ike, a nephew whom Job had taken to bring up, as he had no children of his own. Ike was a typical New England boy about fifteen years old. He had been brought up in one of the coast villages of Maine and had a great love for the sea.

Job, like the majority of Yankee farmers, was a firm believer in cattle and did most of his work with oxen. One day he said to Ike, "Ike, if you'll take that pair of yearling steers and break them to work, you can have them." Ike was exceedingly well pleased at that and at once assumed charge of his new possessions. If ever a pair of young oxen were well taken care of, they were. He groomed them as carefully as the horses, so that their sleek coats shone as glossy as silk, and he was so kind with them that they were as gentle as sheep. He named them Jack and Billy.

In his western home Ike never forgot the life of a sailor, but his hope of his life to be a sailor, but his being sent west had destroyed it. When his uncle gave him the steers to break, the idea came to him that though he could never expect to tread the deck of his own ship he could use ship phrases in the education of his oxen and thus always be reminded of his own home beside the sea. Thus it was that Jack and Billy were educated to work, "broken," totally ignorant of the usual commands by which oxen are managed. "Gee" and "haw" "set up" and "whoa" had no meaning for them whatever. It was "haul away" and "port" and "starboard" and "belay." "Stern all" was back. The oxen grew and waxed strong, and his uncle often remarked that he never saw a team that could do more work than those oxen and Ike. No one but Ike ever thought of handling them.

The nearest neighbor to the Haines' was Deacon Merwin, a good man and pillar of the church. The good deacon saw that Ike's yoke of oxen were workers, and a desire came over him to possess them. He offered to buy them several times, but Job always said that they belonged to Ike and were not for sale. The deacon asked Ike if he would sell them, but Ike with such an indignant refusal that he felt angered, but did not give up the idea of possessing the cattle. Finally he went to Job and said:

"Neighbor Haines, if them cattle'll work good every way I'll give you $400 for 'em. They're too much property for a boy like Ike to have, and it is apt to create in him a bad spirit and make him feel above his elders."

"Well, I don't know, deacon. The boy sets a deal by them cattle, and a promise is a promise. I gave them to him if he would break 'em, and he has, so I'm bound to keep my part."

"That's all true enough, Neighbor Haines, but Ike's only a boy, and then, remember, $400 ain't offered every day for a yoke of cattle. Why not sell me these and give him another pair to break; that 'ud do him just as well?"

The deacon's $400 and persuasions finally weakened Job's scruples, and he gave in. The deacon was to try them, and if they worked all right was to have them for $400. How to tell Ike what he had done was a poser to his uncle. His aunt declared it a downright mean piece of business and told Job plainly what she thought of him.

It was finally decided not to say anything to Ike until after the sale had been made and the cattle gone. In order that Ike might not be on hand to see his pets sold he was given a holiday and sent to spend the day at a neighbor's, a couple of miles away, where there was a boy of his age who was a sort of chum of his.

The next morning Ike was off bright and early, and the deacon was on hand shortly after. It would not be fair to Job to say that he did not have any misgivings. He would have backed out of the bargain at the last chance, and he really hoped that the deacon would not be satisfied with them. The oxen were brought out and yoked to the cart without difficulty, though the deacon remarked that they did seem "klunder stooped." Job and the deacon climbed up into the cart.

"Gee up!"

The oxen turned their big eyes round inquiringly. "Gee up, there!" repeated Job. But they did not move a hoof.

"That don't appear like good breaking," remarked the deacon.

"They're broke all right," replied Job. "Come, gee up, there!" At the same time he gave each a prod with the goad. In response to the prodding the cattle walked off toward the open gate, in which direction their heads happened to be turned. Job did not want them to go in the road, so he shouted out, "Hoy, hoy!" to turn them around; but the oxen had no idea what "hoy" meant, and so kept going straight ahead. Job shouted louder and struck Billy with the goad. They quickened their gait into a trot and turned out into the road. Then Job shouted, "Whoa, whoa!" But they did not mind that either.

"They don't appear to be as well broke as I reckoned on," remarked the deacon as he stood in the cart and viewed the proceedings.

"They're broke well enough," replied

Job, rather nettled, "but I'm strange to them. Nobody but Ike ever drove them."

"Well, turn them about," said the deacon.

But they paid no heed to any command, and finally, exasperated, Job struck them both with the goad, and they started at a full run down the road. Clattery bang the cart went, and both Job and the deacon were compelled to hold on to the cart stakes to prevent being bounced out of the cart.

"Stop 'em! Stop 'em!" shouted the deacon. "I want to get out. Whoa! Whoa! Whoa, you varmints!" But the oxen only tossed their heads and ran the faster. "Stop 'em, can't you?"

Job was downright mad by this time. "Stop 'em yourself, you old fool!" snapped he. "You know as much how to stop 'em as I do."

"We'll be chucked out and killed!" shouted the deacon as the cart banged over a stone.

The oxen were now thoroughly frightened and running away for fair, and both men were badly scared. At last holding on for dear life. All at once an idea struck Job.

"Say, deacon, can't you talk some sea talk to 'em? That's what I've allers heard Ike talk to 'em," he called out as the cart bumped along.

"Brother Haines, such sea talk as I've heard ain't proper for a pillar of the church to repeat, and I'll call meetin' on you for this if we git out alive," replied the deacon, with as much dignity as he could assume while holding to the stake.

"Do try, deacon!" shouted the terrified Job. "It may save our lives."

Just then the cart gave a fearful lurch, and the deacon banged his head against the stake he was holding to with considerable force. This made him boiling mad in addition to his fear. "Splice the main brace! Shiver my timbers! Pipe all hands to grog!" and then, as that had no effect on the frantic team, "Boat ahoy!" and then, losing all control of himself: "Ahoy! Ahoy! Drat you, you blankety blank brutes!" and the deacon let out such a string of profanity that Job turned a shade or two paler.

While this was going on the oxen had got over considerable ground. The people along the road gazed in open mouthed astonishment to see two such staid citizens going along so furiously with an ox team and were terribly scandalized at their apparent hilarity.

Ike, totally unconscious of what was going on at home, was plodding along toward his chum's when he heard a fearful clatter coming behind him. He turned and could hardly believe his eyes. There came his pets Jack and Billy at a furious pace and his uncle and the deacon in the cart.

"Stop 'em, Ike! Stop 'em!" shouted his uncle when he saw Ike.

Ike stepped to one side of the road, and as the cattle dashed up called out: "Belay, Jack! Belay, Billy!" At the sound of the familiar voice and command they stopped at once and went quietly up to their young master.

"I'll have the law of you for this, Job Haines," snarled the deacon as he painfully descended from the cart.

"And I'll call church on you!" retorted Job as he rubbed his bruises. "I won't belong to any church with a man that kin swear like you kin. A purty deacon you be!"

"If I had a bad like that, I'd skin him alive!" roared the deacon as he glared at the bewildered Ike.

"I mean, take them cattle home at once," said his uncle. "As for this wicked man here, I shall never notice him again."

Ike took the cattle home. His uncle walked. His aunt told him about the contemplated sale, and though he expressed commiseration for his uncle, it is doubtful if he felt any. His aunt said it served them just right. Ike kept his oxen.

Carlyle and Bore.

Whether Carlyle was a dead failure or not is a moot point, but he certainly did not know how to put up with bores. "The art of being savage to those people" or "such things"—as he would have designated them—which Scott so signally lacked, was possessed by him in its perfection. What he could "least endure," we are told, was being bored. "The anathemas which he heaped on unfortunate bores exceed Enslin's excommunications."

A whole museum might be filled with Carlyle's bores alone. He obtained access to the immortals, and they bored him. To his acrid humor Charles Lamb was something less, almost, than a bore. Coleridge, whom he had not been disinclined to reverence, was a bore of the most oppressive kind. "He hobbled about with us," writes the irreverent Thomas, "talking with a kind of solemn emphasis on matters which were of no interest. Nothing came from him that was of use to me that day or, in fact, any day."

Genius That Will Win.

A certain hardware store in this city employed as clerk a genuine eighteen carat genius. They did not know it at the time, but they are firmly convinced of it now.

One day a country customer came in to buy some powder to use on a hunting trip. The new man waited on him and, not being thoroughly "on to the ropes," gave him blasting powder by mistake.

The next day the purchaser brought back the lumpy blasting powder to exchange for what he originally asked for. Here a where the new clerk's genius displayed itself. Instead of taking back the blasting powder on the spot he tried to argue the country customer into buying a coffee grinder, with which the blasting powder might be ground to the requisite fineness.

Sad to relate, he failed, but he made a great hit with his employers nevertheless.—Syracuse Herald.

A TEMPERANCE CAMPAIGN.

London, Feb. 3.—At a mass meeting held in Exeter Hall to-night, Gen. Booth, the leader of the Salvation Army, inaugurated a special temperance campaign as a feature of the work of the Salvation Army during the present year. General Booth said he relied confidently upon the co-operation of saloon keepers, in this work through their indicating habitual drunkards, inasmuch as the supplying of habitual drunkards with liquor endangered the public's license, and that he intended to compile a drunkard's directory in each town and follow the habitual drunkards home and reform them there.

Humane Officer McGregor has notified one of our Maple City grocers to abandon the use of his delivery horse. The animal, the officer says, is suffering from very sore feet and is unfit for use on the road. If he is driven again while in this condition the grocer will be prosecuted. This same grocer was once before notified in the same manner, and he then left the horse in the stable for some time. Lately, however, he has been driving the horse again, and it is now in a worse condition than ever. Mr. McGregor claims that the horse should be shot. Its front feet are very bad, and he will hardly stand on the street without attempting to lie down.

Overcoat Sale Extraordinary

A paradox. Never had we so good a season in overcoats. Yet stock-taking proclaimed—shouted in big black figures—too many overcoats in stock for this time of year.

It's easily explained. So many styles in vogue this winter; nearly twice the usual range; and to be sure some styles go faster than others. Now we are going to even matters up—make the last to be first and put wings on whatever has lagged even a pace behind. Short, sharp, resolute price-cutting gives the motto for the cheeriest overcoat event you ever saw in Chatham. That prophetic glow that spreads through your pocketbook as you read, is more than justified by the savings that wait you here to-morrow.

Hardly necessary to talk to you about T. & D. overcoats; they're pretty well known. The cheapest of them made of staunch serviceable all-wools—the worst of them thoroughly well sewed and lined—all of them breathing that indefinite style and fitness that can be noted at a glance but never put into words. But if you don't know our overcoat ways, let this sale serve as introduction. There's nothing risked. Money back if you want it.

THE CORONATION CONFERENCE.

London, Feb. 3.—All the colonial premiers will be the guests of the British nation at the Hotel Cecil during the coronation ceremonies. Royal servants and a number of the King's carriages and some of the officials of the Colonial Office will be at their beck and call. Preparatory to the discussions of the coronation conference Mr. Garton, the Australian Premier, has thrown out a proposal, to which, it is said, Mr. Seddon, the Premier of New Zealand, assents, that goods from British ships be granted a colonial customs rebate. Mr. Seddon suggests that Great Britain reciprocate by granting a similar rebate on colonial products upon which British duties are now chargeable. These products include nothing Canadian at present, though they would do so if the Chancellor of the Exchequer accepts Mr. Giffen's proposal to tax imported wheat and timber.
