Successful Garden Party
The garden party held last Thursday evening at Herbert Lark's, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Lutheran Church, was a splendid success. The weather was ideal, the attendance was very large, and the program was all that could be desired. The Moltke Band furnished a very generous program of fine music during the earlier portion of the evening, after which the audience was entertained by Willie Bell and Miss Inglis of London. This was Mr. Bell's first appearance here, and he made a fine impression. He just bubbles over with wit and jollity, and he had the audience fight with him in every number he gave. Miss Phyllis Gray, who substituted for Miss Estlin, is also an excellent entertainer, soloist and accompanist. The audience was highly pleased with the selections by the Harmonica Boys and a piano duet by Misses Ruth Vollick and Laugretta Hamel was also an enjoyable number. Rev. C. Kramer, pastor of the Church, discharged the duties of chairman in a very capable and affable manner. Miss Florence Engle of Rochester held the ticket that drew the Silver Casserole. The total proceeds of the garden party amounted to about $250.00.

Notice is hereby given to all township road patrolmen in Carrick, that all noxious weeds on the highway in their respective divisions must be cut at once to prevent their going to seed. This in accordance with the provisions of the Ontario Weed Control Act. John Weigel, Weed Inspector.

More Chicken Thieving
Chicken thieves made an unwelcome visit last week to the farms of Messrs. Anthony Diemert and Peter F. Diemert on the 4th concession of Carrick. At the former place a score or more hens were taken and at the latter's farm twenty young chicks about three months old were stolen.

Western Motorist in Trouble
A Saskatchewan motorist named Reid got into trouble on Monday night by driving on the freshly laid pavement on the provincial highway, opposite Wm. Voigt's farm. Irregular Constable Nelson was informed of the case, and the followed him man to Teeswater, where he placed him under arrest, and took him back to Walkerton for trial.

Hay is a Big Crop
The Carrick farmers are up to their necks in the hay this week and the crop is reported to be the heaviest taken off for many years. One farmer said he took 35 tons of hay off ten acres, and most of them report from 1½ to 3 tons per acre. The splendid weather is enabling them to house the hay crop in splendid condition.

Hit by Motor Car
Last Saturday evening, when the motor traffic was becoming very heavy, a group of girls attempted to cross Elora street opposite the post office. Several of the girls got over safely, but Dorothy Weller, in attempting to cross, was hit by a Chevrolet coupe driven by a Mr. Aitken of Hamilton. Dorothy was knocked down by the bumper of the car, but fortunately she fell clear of the car. Mr. Aitken stopped his car a little further down the street and came back to enquire about Dorothy's injury. She received a few bruises, but none of them were serious. No blame attaches to the driver of the car, as it was one of those unavoidable mishaps.

Celebrate Golden Wedding
Postmaster and Mrs. Alexander Kramer yesterday celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage. All the members of the family except Joseph of Devil's Lake, N.D., were present and the occasion was a very memorable one. The family assembly was held in the Sacred Heart Church, where Rev. Father Montag sang High Mass, and later gathered at their home where Mr. and Mrs. Kramer were presented with a complimentary address and a purse of gold. Those of the family who were present were Mr. George Kramer of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. L. Seccinger and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Kramer of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Reinhart of Stratford; William A. Kramer, Miss Maud Kramer and Mrs. J. A. Goetz of Mildmay. An elaborately prepared wedding dinner was served later, at which, in addition to the family, a large number of relatives and intimate friends sat down. Mr. and Mrs. Kramer were married at Formosa 50 years ago by Rev. Father Elena, and have been residents of Mildmay since that time. Mr. Kramer was appointed postmaster of the village in 1914, and under his regime, the public enjoys a very high standard of service. The Gazette joins with the numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kramer in wishing them many more years of health and happiness.

Liberals Will Select Candidate
The Liberals of South Bruce have arranged to hold a convention at Ripley on Thursday, August 8th, for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the Legislature. W. E. N. Sinclair, the Liberal Leader, Mr. Alex. McWhinney, M.L.A. of North Bruce, and Mr. Nelson Parliament of Toronto will address the convention.

Won Inspector's Medal
Georgine Strauss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Strauss, of Carrick, was successful in winning Inspector McCool's medal awarded for the pupil taking the highest standing in the entrance examinations from all the Separate Schools in the entire inspectorate. Her sister, Florence, won this distinction last year.

Pass Musical Examinations
The following are those who tried the Mid-Summer Elementary Piano-orte Examination of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and were successful: Myrtle Dustow (Honors), Grace Inglis (Honors), Lily Vogan (Honors), Elizabeth Inglis (Pass). These pupils were prepared for the examination by their teacher, Miss Ruth Vollick, A.T.C.M.

Bad Auto Smash
Last Sunday evening, when a Carrick motorist named Fair was returning home from Formosa, he ran into a bad collision at Scanian's corner. He observed the stop sign, but the dust was so intense that he did not notice a car coming from the west, and the two vehicles came together with a terrific force. Chas. Sandlos of Hanover was the driver of the other car. Both outfits were terribly damaged, but fortunately none of the occupants of the cars were seriously injured.

Big Game on Saturday
The big football event of the season will be the Ontario Association game here on Saturday evening between the combined team of Kitchener and Waterloo, and the Mildmay Stars. The Twin-City players are reported to be exceedingly fast and scientific, and will make the Stars go the limit to win. Mildmay has a wonderfully fine line-up, and are prepared for all comers. This will be the finest exhibition of football seen here for years, and every lover of the good old game should be present on Saturday evening. The game will commence at 6.30 sharp, with 90 minutes of solid football. Tom Atkinson of Guelph will referee.

Sunday School Lesson

July 21. Lesson III—Ezekiel's Vision of Hope—Ezekiel 47: 1-9. Golden Text—Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.—Isaiah 9, 7.

ANALYSIS.

I. THE RIVER OF LIFE, vs. 1-5.
II. A RESTORED PARADISE, vs. 6-12.

INTRODUCTION—Ezekiel believed, as Jeremiah did, that a time of restoration would come, and that the exiled people of Israel would return to their own land. In exile a remnant, escaped from the sword, would repent, and would remember the Lord, ch. 6: 8-10. Then the Lord would gather them and bring them back, and put a new spirit in them, and renew with them the ancient covenant bond, ch. 11: 17-20; 16: 60-63. He believed also that the kingdom would be restored and would become prosperous, ch. 17: 22-24.

For, the prophet declares, Jehovah will be the good shepherd of his people, caring for them and keeping them in the happy days that are yet to come, ch. 34. "And thy shall say, 'This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden,' ch. 36: 35. A new David will arise whom the Lord will make king over a purified nation (ch. 34: 23; 37: 24), and his sanctuary will be established in Israel for ever, ch. 37: 27, 28.

It is in harmony with this expectation that Ezekiel presents to us, in chs. 40 to 48, a remarkable picture of the restored city and temple to which he believes the Lord will return, and in which he will once more make his dwelling. The picture is presented as though seen in a dream or vision. He stands upon a high mountain, he sees "a building like a city in front" of him, "he passes through its courts, he watches the service of its great altar." An angel guides him and instructs him as he goes. He sees coming back from the east the glorious majesty of the God of Israel whom in a similar vision he had seen departing years before (compare chs. 10: 18, 19; 11: 22-24; and 43: 1-7). There also is a piece for the prince or king who will rule justly and equitably over the people (ch. 45: 7-17).

I. THE RIVER OF LIFE, vs. 1-5.
The vision of the holy city, the temple, and the glorified land continues to the end of the book. In the last verse the new name of the city is given, Jehovah-shammah, "the Lord is there." Here (v. 1) he is brought by his guide to the door of the temple which looked toward the east. He sees a river of water issuing from the temple, from under the threshold on the right, or south, side, flowing eastward past the altar. The eastern gates were apparently closed (ch. 40: 1), and, therefore, he was led out of the temple court by the north gate and round upon the outside of the outer gate that faced eastward (v. 2, Moffatt). There on the right side the waters were flowing out into the open country. The man with the line . . . in his hand is, of course, the angel guide (ch. 40: 3). The river as it advances becomes deeper. At four thousand cubits it becomes waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over.

The vision is no doubt, to be interpreted in terms of spiritual realities. The sanctuary, which represents the dwelling of God with his people, becomes a source of blessing to the entire country. The influence of the sanctuary goes out, broadening and deepening, to enrich the life of all the land, bringing life and fertility even into dead and barren places. "This splendid imagination vividly suggests the beneficent and life-giving influence that will stream forth from the church of God upon the sick and famished souls of a dead and arid world," says the Commentary. It was by a true insight into the prophetic meaning of the writer of the book of Revelation (ch. 22), was led to use this same figure—"a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb," the river of divine grace, and of spiritual blessing. See also Psalm 46: 4.

II. A RESTORED PARADISE, vs. 6-12.
The country to the east of Jerusalem, extending to the Dead Sea, is for the most part rugged and barren. G. A. Smith describes it as a "hazy desert." The life-giving river, in the prophet's vision, flows through this dead land into a dead and bitter sea, and makes the desert a paradise. Trees grow and bear fruit, and their leaves have healing virtue, and the bitter waters become sweet so that there shall be a great multitude of fish.

It is quite possible that the prophet associates closely in his mind material with spiritual blessings. The river and the paradise which it creates may represent both. God is in the midst of his people. His favor is restored. He bestows his gifts upon them bountifully, food for the bodies and for the souls of men.

Apparently Ezekiel regards salt as one of the necessities of life, and so, therefore, in his vision the salt-marshes preserved, v. 11. "They are to be left for supplying salt." The word desert (v. 8, Hebrew Arabah), is used to designate the deep valley, below sea-level, south of the Sea of Galilee, in which is the Jordan River and the Dead Sea. The Arabs call it the Ghor.

En-Gedi was on the western side of the Dead Sea. The other place mentioned in v. 10 is unknown.

Toning With Sun-Tints

The vogue for a sun-tanned complexion influences women in the selection of their lingerie. Frocks, too, are chosen with an outdoor apt emphasis in style and color. White is the outstanding success for both daytime and evening wear but some vivid splash of color is introduced through accessories—one of the new choker strings of wooden beads, a gay blacked linen handbag, or an ensemble of matching hat and bag. All the pastel tints in orchid, rose, but-tercup-yellow and indigo, rank next to white in favor while red stands side by side with white for smartness. Even shoes show the influence of the sun-tan vogue. Either they have much openwork or flaunt themselves frankly as sandals.

Summer Grass

With gentle dignity they bend before the wind,
The summer grasses,
Rhythmically, quietly,
As the wind passes.

The golden light of evening bathes in colour
Their bending heads,
Gilding the pathway
Where the wind treads.
Endlessly they bend and rise and bend again.
And when Day fades
And Night's blue supplants
Its golden shades

Still quietly they bend their tufted heads—
Though no one sees—
In silver ripples
Under the breeze.

Highwaymen

La Patrie (Cons.): (A motorist in the Eastern Townships was prevailed upon to stop by bandits, who pretended that an accident had taken place.) Would it not be better to continue on one's way, especially at night, when people make signs of distress? This is what some motorists are asking themselves who believe prudence to be a mark of wisdom. But if there really are wounded, can we abandon them on the road, without attempting to help them? Most accidents happen at night. So that it is pretty hard, if people ask you to stop and their car is upset in a ditch, not to pay any attention to their appeal for help. . . . If people signal to you to stop at night, you had best be cautious: if there is any doubt about it, don't stop.

BOVINE OBJECTION

"College boys can't work their way to Europe on cattle boats any longer."
"No—the cattle kicked."

Brown was loaded up with parcels when his friend met him. "Been doing a bit of shopping?" asked the friend. "Yes. I've bought my wife two new hats, two boxes of chocolates, and a string of pearls."
"God heavens! what an awful quarrel you must have had!"

Economy in Business Clothes

London—Smart summer clothes for the business woman may seem an extravagance, but in a season when printed crepe de chine and many other kinds of crepe are more than ever popular, one finds the difficulty already solved. The widest variety in patterns is available, and the small designs, so popular this year, are readily worn. For instance, a crepe dress in dark blue and beige is most suitable for office wear, but is not really a light dress, and therefore will not quickly get dirty as the pattern is small. The tendency in other years has been to adopt a plain material for the coat. This season we see a leaning to coats of the same design as the frock, and this mode gives an air of gaiety outdoors, is pleasing, and is particularly attractive when a seven-eighths-length coat is edged with dark or light fur as the case may demand.

In the accompanying sketch is given an impression of the popular ensemble made in beige-and-black printed crepe de chine with black fur. At the back of the neck are small tufts (the back of the tuck is outside) and these are four or five inches long, forming a yoke effect across the shoulders, and give fullness.

There are many types of materials. A new silk-and-cotton crepe has appeared which is guaranteed uncrushable and is considerably cheaper than marocain and promises to be practical for hard wear. A loose canvas kasha—a sort of crepe—is good for sports skirts and looks well with jersey fabrics.

Taking trouble over one's wardrobe, over the little things, is rewarded and due consideration in the beginning is always an economy of time, for it is the little things, such as collars or cuffs or belt, that make a dress. The individual touch in such things just lifts a dress above the ordinary. In the case of the costume illustrated, an individual touch might be added to the dress by the belt. For this two belts, one black patent leather, the other chine-red suede, might be combined, using the shiny black for the back section and keeping the front red.

There is, at the moment, a great fancy for bows and knotted ends, also for business slurred and knitted. Sleeves are caught in at the wrist and knotted and several bows may appear on the gown, but one needs to be careful not to overdo this motif. The scarf is very fashionable tied in a small bow over one shoulder. Skirts for street wear are mostly even round the hem. A pretty model gown in printed crepe, showing a beige-colored daisy on a black back-

On Being a Snob

New York Sun: (Professor Rogers of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has advised the boys not to marry his daughter; always to buy clothes with extra pairs of trousers and have one suit pressed each week; to buy a second suit as soon as they can get the money; to buy shoes for every other pair of shoes; to be freshly shaved and shined each day; to eschew in the evening a collar which has done service in the morning. Excellent suggestions these and capably designed to achieve the end in view, of becoming a snob, of "putting up a front." There is one thing, however, the Professor failed to tell the boys, a bit of warning that seems necessary. That is, if one of them ever goes into the office of a real gentleman asking for a job, that he keep secret both his great purpose in life and the technical method by which he has acquired his own sham gentility. Otherwise, the gentleman might forget he is a gentleman and call upon some hunky and unambitious person to come in and throw his unwelcome visitor down a back stairway.

Silence

Silence, the lone mustang
Who races thunder,
Calls on space to give him
Voice for his wonder.

Deep and deeper ever
Into night he goes,
Yet, from his still breathing
Drops a gold rose.

His hoofs of flint
Hammer rocks sealed and dumb,
Open the veins
Whence mighty rivers come.

Drunken Drivers

Saint John Times-Globe (Ind.): Drivers of automobiles owe it to themselves and the public to remain sober. People who go to the suburban areas during the week end, not infrequently encounter drivers who are under the influence of liquor. In every such case where the fact is proved, the penalty should be prompt and severe.

The man who says he owes everything to his wife sometimes forgets what he owes to his tailor.

Graft in Turkey

Investigators Report Extortion by Customs Men

Angora, Turkey.—The high cost of baksheesh, Turkish economy has just declared, is an important factor in the cost of living in Turkey today, the necessities of life having soared to such dizzy prices during the last few years that the government has summoned its experts to find a remedy.

One expert reports that in order to get merchandise out of the Turkish customs the importer is forced to distribute among officials a sum averaging 30 per cent. of the imported goods' value money which eventually comes out of the consumers' pocket.

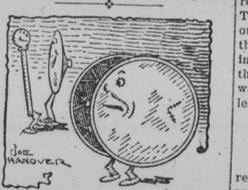

A battle against baksheesh must be waged, the report concludes, before the government can check the soaring cost of living, which has already increased more than 2,000 per cent. over pre-war prices.

Naval Disarmament
New York World: The fact that the most difficult of all international questions. The atmosphere is right, therefore, for such a frontal attack on the Anglo-American naval problem as Premier MacDonald has in mind. The immediate cordial response from Washington in every responsible quarter to the suggestion that he visit this country during the summer shows that the will to settle the question has been aroused. Men are ready to believe to-day what they would not have been ready to believe had Mr. Young failed in Paris—that a problem is soluble even if it is complicated. They are even to consult their hopes rather than apprehensions. They are not prepared to believe that they will fall when in the face of greater difficulties their countrymen have just succeeded so brilliantly.

Squaw Wins Fight With Bear

Handicapped by Papoose, Kills Animal With Tiny Ax

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—Lrances Zuckigesick, an Indian woman of Franz, battled valiantly against a bear which attacked her as she was inspecting traps near her home. Carrying a papoose on her back, the woman was greatly handicapped when the bear which was followed by two cubs, charged her with savage fury. Armed only with a small ax, the woman fought for fifteen minutes, and finally killed the bear, escaping herself with a few scratches. The animal was a large one. The cubs escaped.

Our Lives

We make provisions for this life as though it were never to have an end, and for the other life as though it were never to have a beginning.
Joseph Addison.

Impatience

Bangor Commercial: Impatience is a malady that afflicts a large proportion of Americans. This is manifest in many ways. Long before a train reaches the station many get up and stand in the aisles as if that would cause the train to arrive a bit sooner. Some feel that it is necessary to be the first to alight, though they may not be pressed for time at all. If a train is a few minutes late in arriving impatience is expressed in remarks about the poor management of the road. If these impatient people wait five minutes for a street car, they declare it is a half hour, and conclude that the road has gone bankrupt and has quit running cars. If an elevator is not available the instant they want it, they push the button and fuss and fume. It is not unusual for a pedestrian to take a chance of crossing and then turn and watch the train go by. It is not the value of time which makes such people hurry so. Instead of being as busy as they think they are, they are merely impatient.

Farm Relief

Washington Post: The test of farm relief will come in the application of the $500,000,000 farm loan fund and the attitude of the farmers. It will be no easy task to apply the fund wisely. Every penny that is expended will go forth as a two-edged sword, to the relief of the farmer, but, potentially and possibly, to the destruction of farm relief itself. For if the fund raises the general level of farm prices considerably the temptation may be to extend cultivation, and if further surpluses are harvested the farm problem will become greater from year to year. Herein lies the test of farm relief—will the fact that the Government has come to the assistance of impoverished farmers with a $500,000,000 loan fund lead them to expand their acreage so that they can get as much of the "gravy" as possible?

Naval Disarmament

New York World: The fact that the most difficult of all international questions. The atmosphere is right, therefore, for such a frontal attack on the Anglo-American naval problem as Premier MacDonald has in mind. The immediate cordial response from Washington in every responsible quarter to the suggestion that he visit this country during the summer shows that the will to settle the question has been aroused. Men are ready to believe to-day what they would not have been ready to believe had Mr. Young failed in Paris—that a problem is soluble even if it is complicated. They are even to consult their hopes rather than apprehensions. They are not prepared to believe that they will fall when in the face of greater difficulties their countrymen have just succeeded so brilliantly.

The Citizen's Responsibility

Detroit Free Press: Plainly, it is the duty of the Government to keep prohibition enforcement men within bounds and to stop the outrages some of them perpetrate. Equally it is the duty of citizens, and particularly of citizens in a city geographically situated as Detroit is situated, to assist the Government by themselves obeying the law, instead of hindering and thwarting it, by supporting and patronizing enemies of law and order. The blood of innocent victims cries out from the ground against both those who make reckless and criminal use of Government pistols, and those who create the occasion for the war against rum runners and boot loggers, by patronizing them.

Reparations

Chicago Tribune: On the whole, the recent Paris Conference cannot be considered a triumph of American financial diplomacy. The settlement was arrived at partly at the expense of the American people. It is said the cost is a small one in exchange for world financial stability from which the United States will benefit. Possibly this is the fact, but it is significant that America has not been wholly lacking in prosperity in recent years without an international bank and a reparations settlement to contribute to our well being.

IS YOUR APPETITE POOR?

PERHAPS by dieting or other means, you have been treating the symptoms, rather than the cause. Loss of appetite, heartburn, sour stomach, are symptoms that the blood is impure. This explains the successful use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in all such cases. Here is a typical example:

"I began to feel easily tired," writes Miss Margaret White, of Perry Sound, "and when I sat down to a meal I felt I did not want to eat. A doctor told me I was anemic but, I made little progress with his medicine. When I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I soon noticed that my appetite was improving, that the headaches came less frequently and that I was not so easily tired. Now my weight has increased, my cheeks are rosy and every ache and pain has vanished."

Color Television Apparatus Shown

Three Electric Eyes Gives Current Corresponding to Tint in Subject

New York—Color television has been demonstrated at the Bell Telephone Laboratories, which devised the apparatus for the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. The apparatus, except for the addition of special color mechanisms, was the same as that demonstrated three years ago in a wire and radio test between New York and Washington. For the experiment, the receiving and recording apparatus was set up in the auditorium of the Bell laboratories, but the system is subject to use over long distance wire or radio circuits. The difference between the color television machine is merely the addition of three electric eyes, each transmitting a current corresponding to the amount of the natural color in the subject.

Barley Notes

A sample of barley suitable for making malt must be pure as to variety, uniform as to maturity and thoroughly mature; a mixture of varieties will give lack of uniformity. The sample must not be injured and must be free from other grains and weed seeds.

Presuming that the crop to be harvested is from pure seed of a known variety, much can be done now to insure a good sample from the maltsters' viewpoint. Firstly, the grain must be fully matured, in other words, "dead ripe," there must be no green kernels or immature kernels in the sample. If necessary, save for the malting sample, only the parts of the field that are free from signs of greenness, and put the rest of the grain in a separate bin. This extra work insures a sample that the maltsters will buy, and consequently commands a better price. The grain, after cutting, should be allowed to cure in the stook for a short time, but must not be left too long as, owing to the inclement weather often experienced at this time, injury may occur from sprouting in the stook, or bad discoloration.

Careful threshing is just as important as careful harvesting. Many a good crop has been ruined by careless threshing. Good barley must be free from broken or skinned kernels, too close threshing will cause this. It is better to have a little of the awn adhering to the kernel than by close threshing to have the hull skinned off, as this injury allows the entrance of moulds, and a consequent deterioration in the malt produced from the grain. By the use of proper screens in the thresher, many of the weed seeds can be removed, thus lessening the work in recleaning the grain up to the required standard for malting.

Spray Late Not infrequently letters are received at the Central Experimental Farm from growers complaining that, although they have sprayed their trees, their fruit, during that particular year, has been badly affected with apple scab. Upon close inquiry, it is generally ascertained that only the first two or three sprays have been given and that late infestations of apple scab have caused the trouble.

Growers should realize that there is no set number of sprays required, no rule of thumb method whereby economic control can be guaranteed. Some years the late sprays are all important, while during others the reverse is the case. The calyx spray, which goes on before the calyx closes is generally the third spray and in some seasons may have to be followed by at least two more. To obtain control of apple scab, it must be remembered that it is necessary to practically keep the foliage and young fruit covered with a good fungicidal spray. Only by doing so can the fruit be safeguarded against late infestation.

Very frequently fruit is kept clean until late into August and then, on account of a few days of close, muggy weather, sufficient scab appears on the fruit to cause serious loss. Growers should be constantly on the alert to avoid such a condition, and if in doubt, should immediately consult their nearest spray service. In a large number of the fruit districts, these spray services are now well under way and offer the grower a means of obtaining much better guidance than has been available in the past. Another important reason for keeping control of the scab right through the season is the bad effect of scab on foliage. Loss of leaves prematurely due to any cause means loss of crop the following season.

The Real Cleavage

Spectator (London): We are confident that the real cleavage in our political life will soon be recognized by all. And this means that the majority of Liberals, certainly, will range themselves on the side of progress. We shall then have the two genuine parties, the Progressive (which will no doubt for some time retain the badge of Labour), strong in the strength of Free Trade because of its up-to-date conception of the organized world community, and for the same reason ready to pledge their country to a permanent system of arbitration for inter-State disputes; the Conservative in the strict sense (including, no doubt, some of the present Labour-Socialist party) which would be bitten by the microbes of Protection and a short-sighted Imperial policy as against the League.

Interesting data Found in Wales

Unearthing of Tile Bearing Greek Cross of Third Century at Caerleon Sets Conversion Forward 200 Years

London.—Excavations at an old Roman out-post at Caerleon, Monmouthshire, have revealed a tile bearing a cross dating from the third century. The discovery is described by V. E. Nash-Williams of the National Museum of Wales as "epoch-making," and indicates that Christianity reached Wales at least 200 years earlier than hitherto supposed.

According to some, however, Wales received Christianity through the Claudia mentioned in Paul's Epistle to the Romans and in Timothy. Claudia is believed to have been a British princess, daughter of Caractacus, residing temporarily in Rome with her Roman husband, Pudens, who afterward returned home and with a little band of converts spread the new doctrine. A stone bearing Pudens' name was found at Chichester recently.

It has been disclosed that during the subsequent conversion of the English there were many points of difference in doctrine between the ancient Christianity known on these islands and the new forms introduced by Augustine under the auspices of Rome.

The Welsh church, indeed, always refused to submit to Rome, and retained its independence until Wales was subdued by Edward I, regaining it again with the revolt of Henry VIII, 250 years later.

MADE HER BABY PLUMP AND WELL

Nothing makes a mother more grateful than a benefit conferred upon her child. Mothers everywhere who have used Baby's Own Tablets for their children speak in enthusiastic terms of them. For instance, Mrs. Zepherin Lavole, Three Rivers, Que., writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets are a wonderful medicine for little ones. They never fail to regulate the baby's stomach and bowels and make him plump and well. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all mothers to do likewise." Most of the ordinary ailments of childhood arise in the stomach and bowels, and can be quickly banished by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets relieve constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms, allay teething pains and promote healthful sleep. They are guaranteed to be free from the strongest and most delicate child. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Indian Situation

London Observer (Ind.): After the three remained but two mistakes which the Swarajists could commit. They might cut themselves off from the Indians who have accepted seats on Sir John Simon's Joint Free Conference, and they might antagonize the Indian Princess. Both mistakes have been committed. In the long run the second will be more deadly. It is, of course, out of the question that the Princess will accept or that Indian settlement will permit them to accept, a position of complete subordination to an All-Indian Government at Delhi.

Sense of Humour

Katharine Brush in the Women's Journal:—People who take life seriously work harder and longer than those who do not, but I wonder if they really get more done? They have no sense of humour, and they do not know how to play; and pleasure and laughter between-whiles are good work, as rain for the garden. People who take life seriously are likely to be plodders, whereas most of the really spectacular work of the world is done in spurts, by temperamental, holiday-loving madmen.

Give and Take

Three Rivers Novellist: A campaign has been proposed in Montreal to teach pedestrians to cross the road without getting themselves run over by motor cars. It might be more to the point if they started away by imposing on motor cars the fundamental respect needed for the traffic regulations.

If I knew you and you knew me, If both of us could clearly see, And, with an inward sight, divine The meaning of your heart and mine, I'm sure that we would differ less, And clasp our hands in friendliness, Our thoughts would pleasantly agree, If I knew you, and you knew me.

Lawlessness and Publicity

ACTION NEEDED TO FIGHT WEEDS

Tax Levied by Weeds on Agriculture of Province Mounting Yearly FARMERS START CAMPAIGN

The weed menace in Ontario has markedly increased during the past few years. It is not an exaggeration to say that in certain parts of the province certain weeds like the Perennial Sow Thistle are driving men off their farms. The tax levied by weeds on the agriculture of the province has been mounting yearly. One of the chief reasons why the weed menace has increased with each succeeding year is the undeniable fact that in the past vast quantities of weeds have been allowed to ripen seeds on roadsides, in school-yards, on waste and vacant lands, along our lanes and headlands and in our fence corners and odd spots here and there on the farm.

The following are the number of seeds produced by single plants of average size in one season: Canada Thistle, 3,500; Curled Yellow Dock, 17,000; Common Ragweed, 5,000; Chicory, 3,000; Perennial Sow Thistle, 2,000; Wild Lettuce, 8,000; Stinkweed, 20,000. Every weed that is allowed to mature produces at least 1,000 seeds and most of them ripen several thousand seeds. In the past weeds by the millions have been allowed to mature in this province and scatter their billions of seeds far and wide. Is it any wonder that the weed menace has increased in Ontario?

Are we going to tolerate this state of affairs any longer? Ontario? No. The farmers of the province have raised their voices in protest. An Act has been passed by the Legislature to enable them to meet the situation. United action is what is required now. Every municipality, every farmer, every land owner in town or country must unite in the war against weeds and see that they are cut early and often enough to prevent them from seeding. When the weed inspectors send out notice that it is time to cut weeds let no one lag behind or neglect his duty. Promptness is necessary to prevent all weeds from seeding. Many weeds, if cut after they have passed full bloom, will mature their seeds. In order, therefore, to secure the greatest results from the time and labor expended, everyone concerned should see that weeds are cut just as soon as possible after the inspector gives notice.

United action is required so that no weeds be left uncut on roadsides, vacant lands, railway tracks, school-yards or waste places. Every patch of weeds that is left uncut is a menace to the farms and gardens in the neighborhood, an eyesore and a costly moment of neglect, signifying that some one has failed to do his duty to his municipality and to his neighbors. Community pride and regard for the rights of others should serve as incentives to prompt and united action on the part of all concerned. When such is secured the weed menace will be much decreased, our farms will be cleaner and more profitable and our highways and byways will become attractive beauty spots, indicating individual and municipal pride and prosperity.

Dumped Fruit

Hamilton Spectator (Ind. Cons.): There is no objection to United Fruit and vegetables coming into Canada before our own produce makes its appearance. Neither do Canada's producers object to fair competition. But it is held to be an injustice to permit American fruits and vegetables, harvested by cheap Mexican and negro labour in California and the Southern States, to be dumped into the Dominion when the first Canadian crops are ready for the market. The Canadian growers are not unreasonable in their demand that they be protected from this kind of competition.

CROP REPORT

General—Continued dry weather has caused irreparable damage to all crops in large areas in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Showers have relieved the situation in localities but prospects on the whole are not encouraging and less than an average yield is now expected. Crops are late and short in straw. In Quebec recent rains and cool weather have somewhat retarded growth on lower lands, but conditions generally are still very satisfactory. In Ontario while rain during the past week has improved grass pastures, the cutting of hay has been delayed and farmers are experiencing difficulty in curing. Fall wheat heads have filled heavily and indications point towards an average crop. There are good prospects for tree fruits. In the Maritime Provinces general growing conditions are favorable, especially in Prince Edward Island but more rain would be beneficial in Nova Scotia. In British Columbia weather conditions have been favorable for practically all crops and an excellent crop of hay is now being harvested. Details follow: Alberta—Hot dry weather has caused further damage in Northeastern and North of the Western area and a large proportion of the crop in this section has been irreparably damaged. Wheat heading out in many cases will be too short to harvest. Coarse grains, pasture, and hay are poor. Conditions in South of Western area are generally favorable and pasture is in good condition. Southern area but here is no moisture reserve. Saskatchewan—Northern Area—Moisture conditions are fairly satisfactory but the weather has been cool and crops remain backward. Wheat, although short in shot blade with some heading out. Prospects are somewhat below average. Southern Area—With the exception of the Southwestern portion where conditions are satisfactory and in a few other localities continued dry weather has damaged crops and rain is urgently needed to relieve the situation. Manitoba—Moderate temperature and scattered showers have improved crop conditions to some extent but more moisture is urgently needed throughout entire province and in some districts the situation is critical. All crops will be short. Quebec—Cutting of hay has commenced and, with favorable weather, a heavy crop is assured. Grain and root crops are looking well. Small fruits give promise of a large yield. A period of warm weather is now needed. Ontario—Spring wheat is late, the straw is short and the yield will likely be below average. Corn now shows good growth and color. Tree fruits generally will be an average crop, apples being especially good, cherries only average. Peaches somewhat late, and a little less than an average crop is expected. Grapes are well advanced, with excellent settings of the smooth variety. Tobacco is growing fast. In certain localities sand storms have done some harm. The pea crop in Prince Edward County is estimated at only 25 per cent. of normal. Maritime Provinces—Potatoes show splendid growth, though late. Grass pastures are very good. Hay in some districts is ready to cut and a fair crop is now expected. Prospects are now for an above average apple crop in British Columbia. The cherry crop is poor, many trees being damaged by blight. Raspberries are being picked, but the yield is below average. Potatoes and other root crops are doing well. Pasturage is plentiful. The estimated yield of apples 80 p. c. over the average crop; peaches, plums, prunes and apricots 85 p. c.; pears 90 p. c. and hops 100 p. c.

DRASTIC ACTION NEEDED

The tremendous motor mortality on the public highways is leading to a widespread agitation for the revision of the laws governing the use of cars on highways. The Toronto Telegram says that "anyone who can scrape up $25.00 for an old ash can on wheels will have little difficulty in securing a license. He may be partially blind, deaf or otherwise physically defective." This sounds like an exaggerated view and yet it is fully backed up by an official of the Records Court at Detroit, who states that 42 per cent. of traffic offenders were mentally or physically deficient, or both. Sacredness of human life is the basis of our civilization and the most fundamental of Christian principals, but it would appear that the speed craze is threatening our mental balance. In Canada alone 1,470 were killed and many thousands maimed and otherwise injured the past two years. Walter Barr of Toronto, who has given some thought to the question, suggests the following measures to reduce casualties: (1) Physical and mental examination by a competent physician; (2) Thorough inspection of motors; (3) Cancelling permanently licenses of those convicted of major offences; (4) Compulsory insurance.

Motor fatalities and accidents have now become of such frequent occurrence that the daily papers cease to longer feature them in headlines.

"Well, it would be a good idea to send for your lawyer in the morning." "Oh, doctor!" groaned the patient. "Does your pastor live near here?" asked the doctor next. "And again the patient groaned. "Oh, doctor." "I'd let him know, if I were you," said the doctor. "Oh, doctor, do you really think I am going to die?" "Not just yet," said the doctor. "There is nothing the matter with you. HURT IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

A bad motor accident occurred early last Friday morning at Nicholson's corner, Con. 4, Arran, when a car occupied by three Durham young men and three young ladies, residents of Chesley and Hanover, who were returning home from the dance at Port Elgin, ran into the ditch, hit a telephone pole and turned over. One woman suffered a broken jaw, one a lacerated hand and the other bruises while the other two suffered minor injuries. Both Tara doctors were called and attended the injured. The car was able to proceed, but later caught fire and burned. The accident was caused by driving at a high rate of speed around the corner.—Tara Leader.

Samuel Steinberg, a Jew and former resident of Chesley, who last Spring bought muskrat skins from five Tara residents and for which he issued worthless cheques, was arrested at Toronto last week, and has been taken to Walkerton to stand trial.

The Canadian people are building improved highways at the rate of more than 6,000 miles each year. During 1928 it is estimated that 6,000 miles of improved highways were completed. This year the program is even more extensive, and it is expected that 7,600 miles of improved highways will be finished during 1929.

Mr. Charles Snellie and his sister, Miss Helen Snellie, of Chesley, were the victims of a motor accident on Wednesday evening of last week, when returning home from Toronto. Mr. Snellie stated that he lost control of his car owing to loose gravel at the C.P.R. railway crossing this side of Allan Park, and the car turned over. He sustained an injured leg and other bruises, while his sister had her arm cut. Owing to the nature of the accident, they were fortunate to get off as lightly as they did. The car was badly smashed up.—Hanover Post.

Upsets Load of Furniture One of the big trucks of the Dirstein Transport Co. of Chesley, upset on Sophia street here last Wednesday afternoon with a big load of furniture from Krug Bros. of Chesley. The big truck was en route to Toronto and was taking the detour out of the eastern part of the town when it struck a bit of a washout on the side of the road and the bolts holding the platform onto the chassis of the truck broke and the big load of furniture was dumped onto Mr. Arthur Delgarno's lawn. We understand little of the furniture was smashed. Another truck was on hand shortly, took the load and continued on to Toronto.—Hanover Post

DISASTROUS FIRE FOLLOWED STORM

Durham and vicinity was visited by possibly the worst storm of the season last Thursday morning and, accompanied by lightning and considerable damage in the town and vicinity. About 11 o'clock the storm reached its peak, with heavy thunder and lightning, during which the storehouse of Mr. H. T. Huggill on Countess St. was struck and burned to the ground. The bolt ran down through the building and Mr. Huggill, who was working in the basement, was rendered unconscious for a time. When he came to the top stories of the building, a frame was, was a mass of flames which the firemen were unable to combat. Luckily it was raining heavily at the time and the surrounding buildings were in no immediate danger, though they had to be watched closely during the time the other structure was burning. The bolt of lightning apparently first struck a tree alongside the building, jumped to the upper story and set it on fire. Though insurance was carried on the building and contents, Mr. Huggill will be a very heavy loser. The building contained his summer supply of sufers, material for the building of others, and supplies for his summer's needs. All this was destroyed.

At the present there is no way of telling just what the loss will be, though the principal loss is in the inconvenience caused by the loss of apiary equipment at the start of the busy season. It is said that Mr. Huggill stands to lose at least two to three thousand dollars in equipment alone and considerably more in his loss in production. The machinery used for the extraction of honey, the summer's supply of comb is also a total loss.—Chronicle.

THE NEW ELECTION ACT

The adoption of important amendments to the Dominion Elections Act under which federal elections will be held, was one of the achievements of the recent Ottawa session, which met the approval of all parties. The amended law gives the Chief Electoral officer of the Dominion a status corresponding to that of a judge of the Supreme Court. He will have charge of federal elections and be free from interference from the government of the day. He will appoint a local returning officer for each riding, selecting them, preferably, from the sheriffs, registrars of deeds and city clerks, designating each by the title of his office. These returning officers are to direct the preparation of voters' lists and no provincial lists are to be used. The work is to be thoroughly done and uniform in all cases. Elections are to occur two months within the issuance of these writs. Whether there is to be a general election or not there is to be published in the Canada Gazette within the first 20 days of January in each and every year, a list of the returning officers of all the constituencies. The changes in the Act are based on recommendations of Col. Biggar, former Chief Electoral Officer, who retired two years ago. They should contribute to purity in elections.

MINTO SETS THE PACE

The township of Minto has about 110 miles of road and Reeve Walter Owens and his Council have definitely arranged to have all weeds cut by contract as so much a mile, the lowest bid being about $5 a mile and the average about $8 a mile, depending on the kind of a mile it is. They are giving each contractor only ten days to clean up the weeds and then if the contract is not satisfactory to the weed inspector, they will not receive their pay. In three or four weeks they intend to go over the township again in a somewhat similar manner. This will cost the township probably $1500, but the people believe it is a well-warranted expenditure, and they are determined to make their township the cleanest in the province if possible. Some splendid fields of alfalfa are being harvested on scores of farms in Minto to Township this year. It is estimated that there are about 3,000 acres of alfalfa in this township now, or more than in the whole county ten years ago.—Mercury.

The new Lutheran pastor graduated this spring from Waterloo Lutheran Seminary and was ordained into the active ministry at Zurich on June 2nd.

JUDGE SCORED TORONTO HOTEL

Five dollars a day for a place to sleep, 40c a bottle for 20c ginger ale, and 70c for a 15c sundae, according to Judge Morson of Toronto, is an explanation of why some hotels can pay big dividends, according to a news report appearing in a recent issue of the Mail and Empire, which says: "Judge Morson received some enlightenment on how hotels do business when he tried an action brought in division court yesterday morning by A. Perotti, formerly a waiter at the King Edward, who was suing the hotel for $33.71 as wages for the month of May. The point at issue was a bill which Perotti had not turned in to the cashier because, he explained, he had not been able to collect it. The supper dance party to whom the bill was made out, silently stole away while the waiter was in the kitchen. The judge solved the question of the waiter's liability for the uncollected bill by giving him judgment for the amount claimed and dismissing the hotel's counter-claim for $50 for alleged breach in not accounting for moneys received. "No wonder they are able to pay big dividends," was the judge's comment when the bill was handed to him for examination. The total was $25.60, and his honor noted among the items eight ginger ales at $3.20 and a strawberry sundae at 70 cents. His Honor ruled that no hotel could make its waiters liable for the payment of bills unless the liability was expressly set out in the contract signed by the waiters. It was not in the contract which Perotti had signed.

ditch by a car driven by Harris Spotton. The Hundman boy was pinned under their truck and sustained painful bruises, but fortunately no serious injury is anticipated. From information secured, it would appear to be a case of reckless driving on Spotton's part, as Hundman maintains he was off the road on his side as far as he deemed safe to go. The truck was wrecked beyond repair and Spotton's car was in pretty bad shape, too.

During the noon hour, on Friday last, H. Sansom's store was entered and the till rifled, while the clerk was out for dinner. A young lad, whose name is out of town, was seen to enter the building in a suspicious manner and the observer immediately notified Constable Beswetherick, who apprehended the culprit within a few minutes. He at first denied that the money he had—two or three dollars in bills and some silver—was stolen, but finally admitted the theft. Miss Doris Leonard, the clerk had locked the door by which he entered the store, but she had occasion to go upstairs and during her absence the youthful and cunning pilferer sneaked in and locked the door, preparatory to easy access later on. One who displays such ingenuity, when as young as this boy, bears the earmarks of some day becoming a real menace to the public. In deference to the feelings of relatives here, and as the boy was leaving that day for his home, many miles from here, no charge was laid against him. A few weeks ago, W. E. Patterson's store was forcibly entered two nights in succession, and it is now easy to deduce who the culprit was.

HOWICK

Considerable interest was displayed by many citizens the past week in the blasting operations at the mill dam site in Fordwich. Twenty-one sticks of dynamite were used in one shot Saturday evening, to demolish a particularly obstinate mass of concrete.

While engaged in shingling the barn on the farm of Robt. Cowan, 4th con., Tuesday afternoon, George Johnston had the misfortune to lose his footing on the roof and fell to the ground, a drop of 25 feet. Although badly scratched and painfully bruised and shaken up, it is not thought that any bones were broken. The accident occurred shortly after the heavy rain, which necessitated Mr. Johnson leaving the roof. When the downpour ceased, and as only a few minutes were required to complete the work, Mr. Johnston essayed to ask without the aid of his spiked shoes, and his unfortunate fall occurred as a result of the slippery condition of the wet shingles.

An accident which might have been attended with very serious results occurred Saturday evening on the ninth concession, a short distance west of the Fordwich sideroad intersection, when a light truck, occupied by Fred Hundman and his young son, was run into and turned over in the

THE FORD CAR SHATTERPROOF GLASS WINDSHIELD

Protection with Clear Vision

THE shatterproof glass windshield on all Ford cars is one of many important safety features that contribute to the pleasure and comfort of all Ford Model "A" owners. The peace of mind and feeling of security made possible by this factor of safety is further enhanced by the clear vision roof pillars, six-brake system, 3/4 irreversible steering, one piece gas tank and all-steel body.

The Ford car shatterproof glass windshield does not splinter under the impetus of a direct blow. In case of a collision there is no flying glass to endanger driver or passengers.

The vision is clear and unobstructed with the Ford shatterproof glass windshield. At the same time the driver realizes that this windshield is a protection and a factor in creating driving confidence and owner enthusiasm.

Alden Talbot Drake is contemptuous of the idle life he is leading in his luxurious home. The urge which took him to sea on leaving school has never left him. One night, slipping away to Sallottown, Drake meets up with little Joe Bunting, a sailor. They drink each other off their feet in a barroom, and Drake is carried upstairs. Awakening next morning, Drake hears himself denounced by Captain Stevens of the Orontes, as being a "dude"—not even fit for shanghaiing. Drake sneaks aboard the ship as one of the crew. On the Orontes is Mary Manning, the daughter of the owner. Hiding in a narrow steel shell in the fore-castle, Drake hears the voices of Miss Manning and Captain Stevens. Inopportunistly Drake sneezes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"What the hell!" exclaimed Stevens, as Drake's strangled sneeze let go. In a moment Captain Stevens was on his knees, reaching with a long, steel-muscle arm that seemed to grow fathoms long to Drake. The hook-like fingers fastened upon his dungareed leg. He tried to fight; another sneeze robbed him of strength; he was hauled out, still sneezing, to stand humiliated before those blue eyes that held the ocean deeps in them. Stevens swore fervidly.

"Why it's you! Damn my eyes! Wait till I—"

"Who is it?" cried Mary getting over her startlement and regarding Drake with big wide eyes.

"Who is it! Hell! It's th' putty dude that crimp tried—"

The skipper went to the fore-castle door, shouting for the mate.

"I—begs—your—" stammered Drake, eyes streaming. Another paroxysm shook him speechless. In came the mate, bubbling over with the enthusiasm of a recent promotion.

"Mister Twining," growled the skipper savagely, "take this out and run it ashore."

"Looking for a man!" Drake muttered sarcastically. "I don't look like a man to Captain Stevens! And I had my master's ticket when he—"

He halted that train of thought. It led to nowhere. "He's right!" he decided. "A man's only the man he is, not what he was. I'll ask him what I am; but I'll be no putty dude when I ask him, by Caesar! And I want to see no pity in that girl's big eyes when he answers me, either."

He shivered in his wet dungarees. But his eyes never left the glossy painted side of the Orontes. One great anchor hung at the hawsepipe, almost in the water. That anchor would not be taken aboard and stowed for sea until the ship won outside the river.

The whole picture suddenly became vividly clear. Drake waited until the mate had gone out of sight; then ran as fast as he could go right to where the boatman sat.

"Hey, mate!" he called gruffly, "Give me a shove over, will you? I've been ashore for a last half pint and almost lost the ship."

"Wuz you th' bloke the nyte's gorn a-lookin' for?" asked the boatman. Such escapades were common. He was at the steps even as he put the question.

"He'll be glad to see me, all right," grinned Drake, jumping into the boat. "Just let me get hold of the backropes, matey. I don't want to be copped."

The boatman winked knowingly. He even hoisted Drake well up into the jibboom rigging.

"Good luck!" he uttered hoarsely, as Drake clambered over the fore-castle rail and disappeared from view.

The mate returned bringing no man. The skipper swore, but his tide book warned him against further delay.

"Pass the towline to the tug and let's get out," he growled. "You'll be a man short in your watch, Mister, that's all."

The tugs went ahead. Girls waved handkerchiefs and hats.

The ship moved out into the rolling river. The tug snorted powerfully on her way. Heavy headed men dragged wearily at the wet hawsers, colling them to dry on the fore hatch. And Captain Stevens, proud as a peacock in his new command, peered his peep-hole and secretly watched the blue eyes without a suspicion of the existence of the black.

A fresh easterly blew the Nore waters into yellow foam. A fair wind. Splendid portent. The skies were blue as Mary Manning's eyes.

"Let-fall yer lower-tops! Sheet home!" roared the mate. A still younger second mate leaped among the soiled sailors, full of splendid young manhood full of pride, too; for his promotion had been as unexpected as that of mate and master.

CHAPTER VI.

THE STOWAWAY.

Drake lay snug on a heap of canvas in the sail locker. Right opposite was the half-deck. The evening was calm and serene, the ship made no more fuss than a musical tinkling of running seas and cheery chirrup and rattle of gear aloft. It was the dog-watch, when sailors relax; but the first watches of the Orontes had not been set yet; men were too sore to do anything but sprawl and curse, waiting for the mates to choose their gangs.

"Me son, when you've eben to't sea as long as I have, you can smoke," a bold, deeply bronzed lad of eighteen was saying to an awe-struck greenhorn who had dared to produce a cigarette. Drake enjoyed that. He remembered hearing the same thing on his first voyage years ago. Those were good old stock maxims of the half-deck that mature apprentice of eighteen was laying down. "Get the mast-color off your legs, m'lady; grow hair on your chest; learn to roar like Barney's Bull and spit solid; then you'll be by way of making a sailor. If I catch you blowing the weed before that, I'll have to put the stop to you. Savee?"

The lad came out on deck to ponder over that warning. Drake was going to step out of his refuge. The mere sight of a smoking pipe set him craving. He had not missed his briar pipe before in the excitement of the day; but now, he felt he would dare all for just one pipeful of strong plug. He cautiously opened the door. He knew the boy would know nothing about shipboard ways yet; would see nothing queer about a sailor emerging from the sail locker. With his hand on the handle ring, he thrust out his head; he drew it back so swiftly that he almost cracked it upon the steel jamb. The two mates were at the poop rail right above his head.

"If he carried lady passengers all the time there would be no getting a berth in sail," said Mr. Adams. "The steward done himself proud tonight. Did you try the kidney stew, sir?"

Drake suddenly felt hungry. It was not a pipe he craved, but kidney stew. He was sure now.

"The Saintry can set a table fit for kings when he likes," replied Mr. Twining with dignity. His innerman might delight in kidney stew, but his new dignity forbade discussion of such things with his junior.

"Is Miss Mary coming home with us, too?" pursued Mr. Adams. He did not suspect that he had such a keenly eager audience just out of sight. "Hope she is. She's a jolly sort. Did you see her wink at all while you were at the table? Boy! She tipped like a wink as she told him to pass the pie to the old man the third time while I was there. How many whacks did he eck off while you—"

Explorer Hailed As Peacemaker in Mi-Arabia

Closer Contact Between Britain and the Hejaz Credited to H. St. John Philby

Jerusalem.—The London announcement that Britain and the Hejaz have reciprocally arranged an exchange of diplomatic representatives, thus foreshadowing closer contact with Central Arabia, is regarded here as a triumph both for King Ibn Saud and H. St. John Philby, noted explorer, now living at Jiddah, the staunchest backer of the Wahabi monarch, and who is consistently demanding the most friendly relations. Closer contact between Britain and the Hejaz is held to indicate fresh hopes in British circles of the satisfactory settlement of the Nejd iraki dispute over frontier post which twice in recent years has been the subject of fruitless conversations.

King Ibn Saud's position is doubtless greatly strengthened as a result of this latest development which is bound to increase his prestige with the more or less unruly chieftains of the Nejd while holding out the hope of better behavior of all the tribesmen under his authority toward the mandated territories and British dependence on the western shore of the Persian Gulf. Further to secure the Pax Arabica Britain is expected to try and settle difficulties with another powerful Arabian ruler, Imam Yahya of Yemen, both with themselves over the boundaries of the Aden Protectorate and with King Ibn Saud, notably over the hegemony of Asir, lying between two domains claimed by both, Yahya, as well as King Ibn Saud, is reported to have promised Zaki Pasha, noted Egyptian scholar, that there should be no aggression one against the other, though Zaki's efforts toward an entente between these rulers have not succeeded.

The Color Bar

Le Devoir (Ind.): In the days when Theodore Roosevelt was at the White House in Washington, he provoked a regular campaign against himself because he had officially received at the presidential residence a negro well-known to the enlightened world of the day, Booker T. Washington, president of the Tuskegee Institute, founded to spread technical instruction among the millions of coloured people of the United States. Now, in the Southern States, there is an attempt to start a new campaign of the same kind against the latest occupant of the White House. Mrs. Hoover, in her capacity as wife of the President, has received the wife of a black deputy from Illinois, elected to the American Congress some months ago, who is living in Washington during the session. The deputies of the State of Florida have convened in their Legislature, and officially censured Mrs. Hoover—as if the wife of the President had not the right to receive coloured persons at the White House and as if an American of the black race were not a citizen of the Republic. The only result of the incident will be to show the narrow outlook of some of the people in the South and the good sense of the Hoover family.

Freedom of the Seas

Quebec Evening (Cons.): Naval Disarmament may be only a vain hope and the conference set for July in the United States, to which Canada will be invited, will not prevent our powerful neighbours from realising their dream of possessing a great fleet. But in consecrating the principle that the seas ought to be free for commerce the British and American Governments will have done a great piece of work for the peace of the world.

Minard's Liniment for Neuralgia.

Tolerance and Fanaticism

Quebec Action Catholique (Ind.): The East has become accustomed to the West will also become in its turn—to consider the French-Canadian Catholics as an integral and necessary part of the Canadian nation, as a reality and a beneficial reality. There is no point, therefore, in making too much commotion over what has happened in Saskatchewan.

Ex-Socialist Calls Doctrine "Fallacious"

Emma Pankhurst's Daughter, Former Ardent Communist, Now Reverses Views

One of the most fiery supporters of communistic doctrines in Australia has reversed her views and now is declaring in her lectures that Socialism is based upon "an economic fallacy." She is Mrs. Tom Walsh, who before her marriage was Miss Adela Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emma Pankhurst, leader of the woman suffrage movement in England in 1913. Both Mrs. Walsh and her husband, who is the secretary of the Seamen's Union, have been classed as the most ardent supporters of Socialism. During recent months, however, they have both developed a "better understanding of both sides in industrial disputes."

In a recent lecture here, Mrs. Walsh emphasized that labor takes nearly 48 per cent. of gross manufacturing income; taxation takes 20 per cent. and the owner gets the remaining 22 per cent., disproving the theory that the bulk of "created" wealth goes to the capitalist.

Socialism is all "wrong thinking," Mrs. Walsh continued, declaring that the "entire philosophy of the structure of Communism" has been erected upon a fallacious basis. She added that socialist propaganda, intended to be destructive of the present system of society, failed to take into account its own initial error in regard to the true returns to Labor and to Capital.

Town Planning

La Presse (Ind.): (Towns and cities in England and Wales, most of them having a population of less than 20,000, have commenced town planning programs affecting an area of over three million acres.) Are we in Canada going to show less sense than this, where we have the advantage over the world of working with what is practically new ground, in vast stretches of country with a relatively small population. In Montreal, several mistakes have already been made, which will not be easily corrected. And yet, if we are ready to make the effort, we can still make not merely a good job of it, but a beautiful one as well. For we ought not to forget, and Mr. Blucher, secretary of the City Planning Commission of Detroit, emphasized this at the Winnipeg Congress, it is not enough for a city to acquire territory and importance, it must aim to show in beauty, so as to reconcile its commercial interests with the interests of its fame abroad.

Freedom of the Seas

Quebec Evening (Cons.): Naval Disarmament may be only a vain hope and the conference set for July in the United States, to which Canada will be invited, will not prevent our powerful neighbours from realising their dream of possessing a great fleet. But in consecrating the principle that the seas ought to be free for commerce the British and American Governments will have done a great piece of work for the peace of the world.

There is no point, therefore, in making too much commotion over what has happened in Saskatchewan.

Lossiemouth Is Proud of Premier

Scene of Meeting With Dawes Figures in Shakespeare Play

Glasgow.—No matter what other politicians may say about the dangers of a Socialist Government, there is one thing they can't say. They can't allege that the Labor Prime Minister was slow in getting a move on once he got into his job. Last Sunday (the better the day the better the deed, as we say in Scotland) before he was in office a week had the new American Ambassador away up at Forres and was talking with him about how Britain and the United States might set about keeping the world in peace and quietness. That was hustle enough to satisfy the most fastidious of Americans, and Mr. Hoover, who is also new to his job, should be pleased. What with all the new brooms on both sides of the Atlantic there should be some sweeping up done, and in the process Scotland should have a big share. For the Prime Minister is Scottish, he is a Ramsay and a MacDonald (both good old Scottish names) his home is in the little fishing village of Lossiemouth, away up on the Moray Firth; some of the best men in his Cabinet are Scots, and it was in Scotland—in that friend's house near Forres—that he met the American Ambassador, and began "conversations" which may mean an enormous lot to the future of the world.

It was not the first time that an important, informal meeting of national importance has been held at some little place in the north. There was one in Inverness, and there was one in the Far West of Ross-shire, both when Mr. Lloyd George was Prime Minister, but they had to do only with affairs peculiar to the United Kingdom. Last Sunday America and Great Britain met in a country house near Forres, very near the "last" house where Shakespeare's Macbeth met the witches, and where, in the same play, King Duncan was murdered.

SABBATH PROTEST.
And all on a Sabbath afternoon too, after the Prime Minister had been to a forenoon service in his own little church at Lossiemouth. No wonder there were some protests against the breaking of the Sabbath Day and the wonder is that there were not a great many more. That there were very few, and these feeble and apologetic, shows that even the people of the Highlands are moving towards broader views of things, are becoming more tolerant, and are realizing that if work is good the doing of it on the Sunday does not make that day any less the Sabbath. The really secular parts of the Prime Minister's week's sojourn at his old home, in the interval between his acceptance of office and the full beginning of his work in London, were carried out on week days, when the people of Lossiemouth welcomed him to the place in crowds, with processions and pipers and huge bonfires, when the women of the village in their working garb, lauded his motor car from the railway station to his house, when the children held high holiday; and when everyone, without distinction of politics, united with everyone else to make days greater than any that Lossie has known in the past.

It was a great change from the time when he was an unknown labor leader, fighting obscurely for a seat in Parliament, and called, by many who did not know him, a dangerous revolutionary. It was also a great change from the time, during the war, when he was expelled from the membership of Moray Golf Club because he was not an enthusiast for the war. That expulsion still holds good, although those who engineered it would gladly have wiped it out and welcomed him back. The story is that he wouldn't come back even if they asked him, and even if they apologized, and that is likely why they don't ask him.

EXILES FROM LEWIS.
The exiles from Lewis are home, and are spreading themselves all over their native islands. The Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa brought over a hundred of them from Montreal to Stornoway last week-end, among them being, as the chief persons, Mr. T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, who has given about £50,000 for Lewis schemes within the past two years, including £12,000 for a library in Stornoway, £17,000 for a hospital, £5,000 to help in building a town hall to take the place of one which was destroyed by fire, and other sums for other purposes. It was arranged that the new town hall, municipal offices and library should all be opened when Mr. Macaulay and the other exiles were in the place, and so Stornoway and the Lewis have had a remarkable week.

The Provost and magistrates went out in a tender to meet the Minnedosa and give these on board an official welcome. There was a big bonfire on an island in the bay, the streets of the town were decorated, the liner was surrounded by all kinds of small craft, rockets were fired from the shore and the liner shrieked in reply—in fact, Stornoway could not have done more if it had been like Lossiemouth—welcoming a native as Prime Minister. And, all this time, many of the 100 were not really natives. Some of them were immigrants in the third, and even fourth generation of people who came from the Lewis to Canada. Even Mr. Macaulay himself had never before set foot on the island. But they all claimed it as their homeland, and Mr. Macaulay actually believes that he will be able to convert the peat bogs of the Lewis into good farm land, so that more natives may not have to emigrate. He is evidently a man of great faith.

NEW SUGGESTION.
So is His Grace the Duke of Montrose. He has been making two important suggestions since the Labor Government came into office. The first was that as taxes especially death duties, were such a heavy burden on landowners, the Government should arrange to take land instead of money. He himself would have been glad, when he succeeded to his title and estates, to have made a bargain of this kind, instead of having to pay big money. He thought Mr. Ramsay MacDonald might think of this idea when he was sunning himself at Lossiemouth. Mr. MacDonald may think of it, but it is not at all likely that any government, least of all a Labor Government, will lighten the burdens of landowners in this particular way—or in any way. It would be a beautiful arrangement for the landowners, but would leave the government with the land on their hands. The Duke's other suggestion was that some people might buy the islands in Loch Lomond, which happen to be, in a legal sort of way, his property. It is doubtful if Socialists will admit that they are his property at all. At any rate, the Government won't rise to this bait. Some people thought the Corporation of Glasgow would, and they raised the question at a Town Council meeting. But the Council turned it down at once, without discussion.

They have quite enough of unprofitable Highland estates, given to them for nothing, and costing more than they are worth; and they are not having any more. Least of all the Duke of Montrose, whose forebears took great big sums from Glasgow as compensation. When the level of Loch Katrine was raised for the city water works, and at every subsequent time when more land was required up that way for the same purpose. If the Duke had given the Corporation all the islands in Loch Lomond as a free gift it would not have been much. But even then the Corporation might not have taken any off his hands.

QUIET RETREAT.
But if any private person wishes a quiet retreat, where he and his family would not be disturbed by the screeching of railway trains, the honking of motor cars, the jostling of crowds, letters two or three times a day and papers every other hour, he might do worse than take over one of the Loch Lomond islands. With a good house, a big garden, and an island large enough for strolling in and keeping a reasonable number of beasts and fowls, and with a motorboat for going to Balloch, or Luss, or Balmaha when he felt so disposed, it would be an ideal life for one who liked that kind of life; always assuming of course, that the persons concerned did not require to work for a living. But some one should suggest that another island—St. Kilda, to wit—should be taken into consideration. There is a proposal that all the 33 inhabitants of that most lovely of Scottish islands—away out in the West Atlantic—should be taken off and settled down as a little township somewhere on the mainland and otherwise, there will soon be none of them left, they are decreasing so rapidly. Not long ago there were about 100. Now of the 33 only 13 are grown men, and of these only four or five are strong enough for hard work. But it will not be easy to convince them that they should settle down on the mainland. They are islanders first, last and all the time, and would probably pine away still faster if the sea was not all around them. The best plan would be to raise a fund for buying the islands of Loch Lomond and settle them on these. They would have all the solitude of islands—if trippers in motor boats could be kept away—and they would also be in touch with civilization all the year round. Some one should speak to the Duke of Montrose about it.

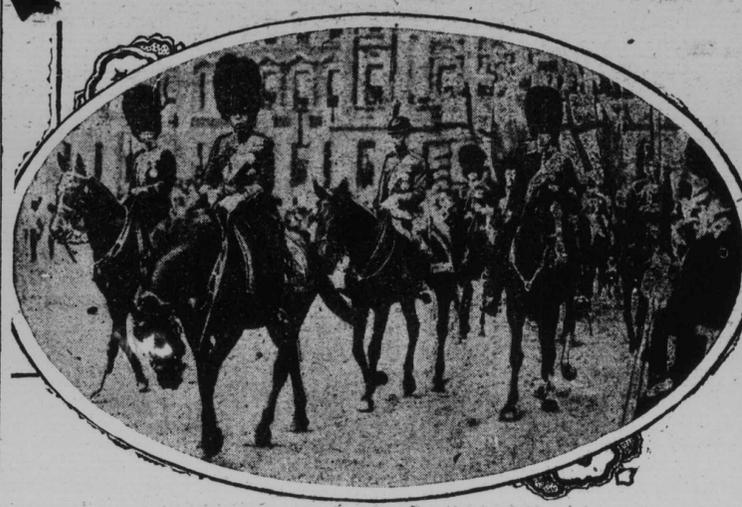

Burma Suffers Serious Floods

Damage Estimated at $1,000,000—Whole Villages Washed Away

Akyab, Burma, India—Total damage estimated at nearly $1,000,000 has been done by floods resulting from summary yesterday said there had been disastrous effects in the township of Kyauktam and Myobang, one of the most thickly populated and prosperous areas in this district, and in the Arakan hill district. The flooded area covers 10,000 acres and between 10,000 and 15,000 families have lost everything, including all food and seed grain. The flood reached Patwa in Northern Arakan and only a few government buildings in the highest part escaped. In the village of Mahanmi, north-east Kyauktam, only four of 120 houses were left standing. Loss of human life was fortunately small. The whole Kaladan Valley from Paratwa to Myichung was affected only a width of 60 miles. The government is taking relief measures.

The chances seem good for Lloyd George's holding the balance of power in the new House of Commons. And how that man can balance—New York Times.

Plan to Make Australia Wet

Rain Makers Propose To Get Moisture by Driving Long Canal in Australia

Adelaide, S. Aus.—The "rain makers," who hope to irrigate a vast area in South Australia from the sky, have just joined forces here and ended the prospect of duplication of their field expeditions. At the same time it became known that the scope of the research is to be widely extended. Two expeditions have been expected to penetrate into the region of Lake Eyre, the great stretch of salt water in central Australia which, though discovered 90 years ago, is "still surrounded with mud and mystery."

Into this region where the mirage sets up a "wall of glass" through which it is impossible to see, engineers would drive a long canal, to connect the lakes with the sea. This project, they declare, would give an annual rainfall of about one inch to an arid region which for successive years has little or no precipitation.

TWO EXPEDITIONS JOIN.
One expedition has been organized by Samuel Upton, a fellow of the Royal Empire Society. The other expedition was to be sponsored by the South Australian branch of the council of the Royal Geographic Society. On the eve of the departure of the Upton expedition, it was announced that the geographic society would defer its plan and lend its official support to Mr. Upton's efforts.

One reason for the action of the geographic society was that the leader of its proposed expedition was Cecil Madigan, acting professor of geology at Adelaide University. Professor Madigan may now accompany Sir Douglas Mawson upon his projected expedition to the Antarctic this year, although definite plans await Sir Douglas' return to Adelaide where he holds the chair of geology at the university.

The Upton expedition will seek to end the "thousand miles of ignorance" of the Lake Eyre region, which includes Torrens Lake, Frome Lake and Lake Gairdner. These lakes have a combined surface nearly double the area of Wales. The expedition, it now is learned, will study the feasibility of

Full Rehearsal of King's Drive Through London Carried Out

London.—With clockwork precision a full rehearsal of matters connected with the King's drive through London on his return from Windsor Castle was carried out by troops and personnel of the Royal stables. The state landau with full equipage travelled from the Royal stables in Kensington where they were met by a squadron of life guards. At the point selected for the King and Queen to change from the motor car to the carriage the troops formed a line.

Then a motor car stopped at the curb and at a sharp word of command from the office commanding the cavalry the men saluted with down swords. The door of the car was opened and then shut, and the car drove away. Close behind the car came the Royal landau and the motion of opening the door and the handing in of the King and Queen, following which the drive to Buckingham Palace was started. The change from one vehicle to the other took less than three minutes. Then the cavalry divided into escort and cavalcade and centered to Hyde Park, through Queen's gate and the procedure was gone through again and again until every movement was carried out with exactitude.

WILL STUDY MINERALS.
Extensive study of the mineral wealth of the region will also be undertaken. The natural or artificial use of the drained areas of some of the lakes for growing such crops as rice and millet will be investigated.

The possibility of utilizing this section of South and Central Australia brings up the problem of transportation and Mr. Upton's expedition will consider the use of the canal for this purpose, affording an outlet from the lakes to Spencer's Gulf.

Mr. Upton points out that Lake Eyre is unique among the lakes of the world, for man has not yet succeeded in reaching the main body of its waters, or in sounding its depths. The waters of the Great Artesian Basin are believed to flow naturally into the lake, and from time to time, enormous floods reach it, yet rarely are its waters seen from the shore.

Winnipeg, Man.—The search for oil in the western provinces is extending into Manitoba, and announcement is made of the formation of a syndicate of eastern capitalists to drill in the Ochre River field. The new organization, which is called the Carter Oil Syndicate, has taken over the holdings of 1,300 acres south of Ochre River.

concentrating the fresh-water floods of the Diamantine, Cooper and more easterly creeks into one of the lakes which is above sea-level as a means of conserving good waters now uncontrolled.

Menace to Fishery Is Turned to Profit

Joseph Lizotte of Riviere Ouelle caught 190 porpoise from May 21 to 25. His process is to skin the fat off and then to skin the hide and cook the fat in vats. It is then re-cooked and the oil is put into barrels and the balance which is dry meat is used as feed for farm animals. The oil is barrelled and sold in the United States and Montreal and fetches from 45 to 55 cents a gallon. He expects to obtain an income or at least a profit on this season's work of approximately $6,000. He employs about 20 men in this operation during the season which lasts some six weeks with intermittent intervals.

The porpoise come in shoals, the process of catching them is in a large weir built into a bay comprising 72 acres. When the tide comes in and any porpoise come into the weir they cannot get out and on the tide receding the porpoise is left stranded on the shore. The skins are cured with salt and sell for 14 cent. a pound for leather in Montreal and Quebec. The average weight of the white whales runs about 1,500 pounds.

Lord Balfour Retires to His Scottish Home

Withdrawing From Active Life Which He Began 55 Years Ago

It is a dramatic thing when a man leaves the house he has lived in nearly 60 years, and when it is one of the greatest men in a nation it is pathetic, too.

The news that the Earl of Balfour now in his eighty-first year, is selling his London house and retiring to his Scottish home, and thus withdrawing from the active life which he began 55 years ago, when he entered Parliament, has been received by every well-informed British citizen with deep regret, for Britain has no finer statesman so rich in experience as he.

TRUST AND ADMIRATION.
Many years have passed since Arthur Balfour lived amid the petty bitterness of keen party strife, and when he did they left him unscathed. He has long had the trust and admiration of men of all shades of politics. In whatever great office he has represented his country all his countrymen have known that they would be served by him with a dignity, and ability, a personal charm and an intellectual power that would add lustre to our statesmanship.

He has at command vast experience, breadth of judgment, the gift of fine speech, and he is a great gentleman. His withdrawal from the political arena, even at the age of eighty, is a national loss only modified by the fact that he may still serve History with his pen.

Lord Balfour was born into statesmanship—his mother was a Cecil. The only thing said against him as a young man in parliament was that he took life in a leisurely way and was a philosopher rather than a man of action. He became a Minister of the Crown when he was 37; next year he was in the Cabinet, and the following year he was Chief Secretary for Ireland. After that no one said any more that he was not a man of action. In that most difficult of offices he won his spurs. He won in Ireland the hearts of many who were his sternest opponents, and he came back to the Conservative Leader in the House of Commons.

When he was 54 he became Prime Minister and found the leadership of his party the most difficult of all his life's tasks, involving more than usual ingratitudes. The war brought him back into office (after an interregnum of eleven years) as First Lord of the Admiralty and later of Foreign Minister in succession to Sir Edward Grey.

MISSIONS TO U.S.A.
Under Conservative Governments more recently he has held the dignified position of Lord President of the Council. Among the most successful of his tasks have been two Missions to the United States, one during the war and one since, marked by the most enthusiastic appreciation of his personal and intellectual qualities.

These political services, continued for 55 years, have been abundantly supplemented by high distinction as a philosophical writer, and lecturer, and a varied essayist. The Order of Merit, the Fellowship of the Royal Society, the Chancellorships of Cambridge and Edinburgh Universities, and honorary degrees conferred by sixteen British, American, and foreign universities show how this great statesman is regarded by the world at large.

Too often men who serve their generation in the highest positions die before the world's appreciation has been adequately expressed. In the retirement of the Earl of Balfour from public work in which he has virtually spent all his life till now, and will yet be able to make as his debtors through his still active pen, it is a fitting opportunity to recall how faithful and how vast have been the labors of this servant of his country, a man whom all admire for the fitness of his aims, the wealth of his mental powers, and the grace of his personality.

Floods in India Worst in History

Thirty Thousand Homeless—Hundreds Believed to Have Perished

London.—The floods in India were the worst in the country's history, according to an exchange telegraph dispatch from Calcutta quoting officials in the affected territories.

The commissioner of Assam Valley estimated that 30,000 persons were driven from their homes in his district alone, while the flood in the Surma Valley inundated a region of 1,900 square miles.

The entire town of Salcher was under water. No accurate death figures were reported, but it was believed hundreds had perished, and starvation and suffering were widespread. The supply of rice was said to be low, and relief operations were hampered.

est industry—Agriculture. All farmers fear weeds. Most farmers attempt to control them, a few seem to either disregard them or accept them as a necessary evil. Maximum yields are impossible in weed polluted fields. Some weeds if permitted to increase will eventually possess the land, making profitable production impossible, depress farm values by 50 per cent or more and spell ruin for the owner.

The majority who are fighting this menace vigorously deserve every encouragement and assistance in these days of labor scarcity and high production costs. Those who are indifferent need constant urging and few require coercion. This should not be necessary but it has not been found satisfactory to permit each to "mind his own business" because weeds do not stay at home and some men have become a nuisance to their neighbors and a real impediment to better agriculture. For this reason we have Weed Laws.

This is the time to strike the weeds don't let them ripen and seed down the ground for another crop. If you have a field of spring grain showing a bad infestation of weeds you will be dollars ahead financially and have the good will of your neighbors by cutting it for hay. Don't stand by and see a field of sow thistle mature seed, thinking that you will get it next year. One plant this year, if allowed to develop will be the parent of hundreds next year.

This weed campaign is supported by your township and municipal weed inspector who is ready to render his services in this clean-up. However, township councillors and road superintendents are all co-operating.

It must be remembered that this is not a one man project. Your neighbors and your community are dependent upon your co-operation. Every weed killed now means better, cleaner crops next year. Farmers must keep noxious weeds in check, they owe it to themselves, it is a debt to future generations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Klein are spending a two weeks' vacation at Stratford and Detroit.

Down on the farm 'bout half past four I slip on my pants and sneak out the door.

Out in the yard I run like the dickens To milk all the cows and feed all the chickens, Clean out the barnyard, curry Rhoda and Jiggs, Separate the cream and slop all the pigs.

Hustle two hours then eat like a Turk By heck! I am ready for a full day's work. Then I grease the wagon and put on the rack, Throw a jug of water in the old grain sack, Hitch up the mules, slip down the lane. Must get the hay in, looks like rain. Look over yonder, sure as I am born

Cows on the rampage, hogs in the corn; Start across the meadow, run a mile or two, Heaving like I am wind-broken, get wet clean through. Back with the mules, then for recompense, Rhoda gets astraddle the barb-wire fence, Joints all aching, muscles in a jerk. Whoop! Fit as a fiddle for a full day's work.

Work all the summer 'till winter is nigh, Then figure at the bank and heave a big sigh. Worked all the year, didn't make a thing, Less cash now than I had last spring. Some folks say there ain't no hell. Shucks! They never farmed how can they tell?

When spring rolls 'round I take another chance, As fuzz grows longer on my old gray pants Give my galluses a hitch, belt another jerk. By gosh! I am ready for a full year's work.
