Waterdown Bombarded First Aerial Raid of Season Took Place Last Saturday

Last Saturday afternoon this village was given a demonstration of an aerial raid, when our own "dare devil" aviator, Capt. Douglas McGregor, M.C., suddenly appeared over our heads about 6.30 in his plane.

Coming from Hamilton way and flying low with the familiar buzz was the first warning, and then the cry "Doug, McGregor." That brought the whole town to the streets, lawns and back yards, and with necks stretched and eyes up all watched every movement of the daring birdman with the greatest of interest.

For a considerable time the monster plane continued to circle around, performing many feats of airmanship, until all parts of the village was visited, including a look in at every window of his father's house, every now and then diving down toward some respected citizen, causing said citizen to beat a hasty retreat indoors.

After a half hour's amusement for the spectators, and possibly himself, he turned toward the Fair Grounds, where he descended to mother earth and was soon surrounded by a large crowd of admiring friends who made good use of the opportunity to inspect a modern aeroplane.

When all had a good look at the bird, Doug, cranked its beak, climbed into the seat, pressed the lever and away it went across the field, suddenly rising over the fence and house tops and was again out of reach of speed limits and right of way.

Another 10 or 15 minutes of acrobatic feats, in which he made an occasional dive down at the assembled crowd, causing a lively scramble to get out of the way, he then with a wave of his hand, responded to a hearty cheer from everyone, headed his plane straight for Toronto, which he expected to reach in 20 minutes, a distance of 40 miles, and was soon out of sight.

The deeds which have made Douglas McGregor one of the heroes of this war are too well known to the people of this town to repeat, but for the benefit of our readers away from here we may briefly say that during Capt. McGregor's service in France he has had some very exciting experiences, bringing down single-handed eleven German machines and instrumental in the destruction of several others, and a winner of the military cross. After his return from France he has been one of the leading instructors in the aviation camps of Canada and the United States, and in which capacity he is now serving. What the young captain's future record will be we hesitate to predict, but we will gamble it will be worth printing.

We notice that several of our young ladies have a novel way of saving themselves when danger threatens them by clinging to some one else. We do not know how successful this method would be in a case of real danger, but we are perfectly willing to play the part of a hero on any occasion like last Saturday.

We also observed the father of the young aviator was at the fair grounds bare-headed. We do not know whether during the excitement he left his hat at home or lost it on the way.

To the Editor,—

In going to the fair grounds last Saturday, did Doc. McGregor exceed the pedestrian speed limit?—

A CURIOUS CITIZEN.

We don't know, we were too busy getting there ourselves.—Editor.

School Board Meeting

The regular meeting of the High School Board was held June 10th, in the Township Hall. Members present, Messrs. Mitchell, Baker, Hill, Flatt and Attridge; absentees, three. Mr. Hill in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Accounts were before the Board for consideration, as follows:—

R. Rusk, cutting and piling wood, $40.00, half to be paid by this board; H. W. Hill, expenses attending the O. E. A. convention, $8.00; and the McKay Equipment Co., for supplies, $56.92.

On motion of Wm. Attridge and W. R. Flatt, the above accounts were ordered paid.

On motion of W. R. Flatt and F. Baker, Mr. Ferguson was authorized to have 200 folders gotten out, containing concise information about our school, and its different courses, etc., also names of teachers and members of board.

On motion the internal management committee were instructed to interview the staff re re-engagement and report to the board on June 17th. The meeting then adjourned.

K. K. K. Report

The Knotty Knitting Klub was organized in September, 1917, in order to aid in Red Cross work, chiefly in supplying socks for overseas. Till January the yarn was obtained from the Local Red Cross, and 36 pairs of socks were returned to Mrs. Ryckman. Since that time the Associated Field Comforts has given the yarn, and last week the club packed for overseas a box containing 50 pair of hand-knit socks. In this box were included comforts to the amount of $10.05. Money for this is being donated monthly by several Waterdown people. There is now a balance of $13.50.

During the year funds have been raised by a masquerade social and two smaller concerts. With this, 53 boxes have been sent to Waterdown boys overseas. At a recent meeting it was decided to buy $40 worth of wool to knit socks for the next supply of boxes for these boys. This will leave a balance of about $14.

The club has offered to take charge of a booth at the Patriotic Garden Party, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross. It wishes to thank Mrs. J. Prudham for her donation of $5.00, the local merchants who have given goods at wholesale prices, and all those who are helping by their monthly donations.

M. Stewart, Secretary.

A Case of Vandalism

Mr. John Griffin reports that some party or parties had wantonly broken a small monument, in the shape of a lamb, placed over his child's grave in the union cemetery here, the damage being evidently done by boys throwing stones. It is a terrible thing to realize that we have living in our midst people possessing such devilish instincts, people that have evidently no respect for the memory of the dead, and little or no consideration for the feelings of relatives who so kindly placed this small monument there to mark the last resting place of their loved one. There is no punishment too severe for such an outrage, and our one hope is that the guilty parties will be discovered and severely dealt with.

At last someone has gotten the best of Dad Alton, one of our leading poultry fanciers. Some time ago Dad sold, what he considered, a scrub Plymouth Rock to another of Waterdown's many fanciers. The new owner at once commenced keeping a daily record, and up to going to press reports a record of 64 eggs in 66 days. Jim will yet sweep Dad's display of Rocks off the boards at the coming winter show.

Council Meeting

What Our City Dads Have Been Doing

The village council met in the Bell House on Monday evening, June 10th, as a Court of Revision, and for the transaction of general business. The members, after being sworn in, the following came before the Court:—

An application from Mr. H. Binkley to be assessed for his property on Nelson street, purchased previous to May 14th, 1918.

There being no appeals against the assessment of property the Court arose.

The members then sat in regular session, pursuant to adjournment, with Reeve Davies in the chair and other members all present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

It was moved by G. Dougherty and seconded by J. C. Langford, and resolved, That the assessment roll as returned by the Assessor on May 1st, be accepted by this Council and that the Assessor be paid his salary. Carried.

Moved by J. C. Langford and seconded by J. V. Markle, and resolved, That this Council donate to the Patriotic Garden Party, to be held here on July 17, the sum of $50.00, to be used for patriotic purposes, and that the Reeve seal and sign this resolution to give it the effect of a by-law. Carried.

Institute Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Institute was held in McGregor's Hall on Tuesday, June 4th, from 4 to 5 o'clock, at the close of the Red Cross meeting. The President, Mrs. C. W. Drummond occupied the chair and handled the business in a very able manner. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, and also the minutes of an executive meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Drummond on Friday evening, May 31st. Committees were formed and arrangements made for the Annual District Convention which is to be held here on June 26. We hope that all the men and women of the village will co-operate to make this convention a grand success.

Iva M. Langton, Sec-Treas.

An entertainment under the auspices of the Epworth League and choir of the Methodist church will be held in the church on Monday, June 17th. Capt. Martin, chaplain of the Soldiers homes of Hamilton, will give a patriotic address, assisted by Miss Vera Nicholson and a good musical program. An admission of 25 cents will be made and the proceeds will be for the purchase of new hymn books. See bills for full particulars.

ONCE A GREAT CITY.

Samara Rivalled Bagdad Before Revolt Against Turks.

The ancient town of Samara, lying on the Tigris, some hundred miles up the river from Bagdad, enjoys a curious distinction. For about fifty years, in the ninth century, it was one of the first cities in the world.

It was in the heyday of the power of the Kalfis of Bagdad that the story of Samara began. The reign of the famous Mamun, one of the greatest of the Abbasides, after the Kalif Mansur, had just come to a close, and the succession was sought by one Abu Ishak al Motasim.

Motasim was in a serious difficulty. He dared not act with severity towards the city, so he decided to solve the problem by moving his capital. Proceeding up the Tigris, along much the same course as General Maude's forces have been following, he came to the little town of Samara, close to the edge of the great Mesopotamian plain. There he built himself a new residence, changing the name of the place from Samara, which could be interpreted to "Unhappy is he who sees it," to Sarram-taa.

Sea Otters.

"Some of the habits of the sea-otter are very interesting. For example, an otter always swims on his back his tail serving as a rudder and his head slightly raised so that by looking over his shoulder he can shape his course. When about to dive, however, he turns on his stomach, remaining in that position while under water, but changing again on coming to the top. Swimming a few feet below the surface, an otter very much resembles a sailor in his oil skins. An amusing story is told of a tourist fisherman, who, seeing one of these animals swimming in this manner, hurried ashore and related a wonderful tale about having seen a sailorman, apparently drowned, yet swimming with all the vigor of a yet six or seven feet under water; and who, when he, thinking the man might be alive, rowed to his assistance, went down and stayed down. The fisherman would not believe it when told that it was probably a sea-otter, and he returned immediately to his Eastern home convinced he had received a supernatural warning of some dire calamity about to happen."—Edward T. Martin, in St. Nicholas.

THE MOON PUZZLE.

Solved By the Discovery of U. S. Astronomer. Prof. T. J. J. See, an eminent Missourian, who is now Government astronomer at Mare Island, Cal., made his visit to his home state the occasion the other day of the announcement of one of the most important astronomical discoveries in 190 years. Prof. See, who is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mary See, at Montgomery City, wires to the world the cause of the puzzling vibrations in the motions of the moon on its orbit—a matter which has caused students of the lunar theory continuous study for 60 years. Two years ago he gave out from Missouri the cause of universal gravitation, the law which was discovered by the illustrious Sir Isaac Newton, but that great man, after years of close scientific investigation, was not able to solve the problem.

In the former announcement Prof. See told that the electro-dynamic waves of the sun are the force of gravitation in the solar system. The existence of gravitation had been known since Newton's time, but the "why" was a problem.

Prof. See now tells the passing of these electro-dynamic waves through the earth is the cause of the fluctuations of the moon in its orbit, and that this discovery will enable astronomers to calculate the phases of the moon and its action under certain conditions with twelve times the accuracy heretofore possible.

This interposition of the earth as to the sun and moon, according to Prof. See, causes the electro-dynamic waves of the sun to undergo circular refraction in going through the earth's great mass—to bend out of their course, and, in being so bent, dispersed and somewhat absorbed. The weakening of these waves in this way, he says, causes the fluctuations in the moon's motions in its orbit.

Prof. See's latest discovery not only makes more accurate the calculations of Luna's motions, but confirms the professor's previous discovery of the cause of gravitation.

Prof. See says that no irregularity now remains in the moon's motions large enough to be seen in the transit circles used by astronomers and with the previous mathematical development through the energies of Newton, Laplace, Hill, Newcomb, Brown and others, the lunar theory will be entirely perfected.

These new discoveries have been reported to the Royal Astronomical Society, London, and to scientific societies in Paris, Stockholm and Edinburgh.

Prof. See will soon publish in book form the result of his researches on the cause of gravitation and on the fluctuations of the moon.—St. Louis Republic.

CHINESE SERVANTS

At Home Get Small Pay, and Rake-Off.

Many Europeans and Americans of moderate means like to live in China because of the comfort, not to say state, which a person of moderate income by western standards can maintain in the oldest of nations. Merchants, and even clerks, live in a fashion that might tax the resources of a munition manufacturer to keep up in America. Foreign residents agree that the Chinese make the best servants in the world if they are allowed to go at the business in their own way.

The chief servant in the Chinese establishment is not the butler, but the cook. This indispensable functionary draws a wage of about $1.50 a week. Usually he is a good cook, and takes infinite pains in service, ornamenting the various dishes until they resemble Christmas packages. He uses his own marketing, and invariably "takes off" a commission from his merchants. If his employer is willing to sacrifice his "face" sufficiently to try and market for himself, he finds that food costs him more than the cook pays for it, commissions and all. It comes as a surprise to most Americans that laundrymen are scarce in China. The Chinese laundryman in the United States learns his trade here, but the foreign resident across the Pacific has no difficulty in finding a "boy" who can learn to do the work. A good laundry boy gets $1 a week for the work of a household.

With labor as cheap as this, even the most modest and democratic American soon sets in the way of adding additional help to his establishment. Who could not enjoy the services of two or three extra boys around the house, when the whole establishment costs less than a good cook at home?

One unusual feature of the system is the fact that the wages of servants are based somewhat on the income of the employer. If you enjoy $40,000 a year, you are likely to pay about twice as much as a $2,000 man for nearly the same service. Such is the custom of the country, calculated to establish accurately your prestige and that of your establishment.—U. S. Exchange.

Tommy's Revenge.

Little Tommy had been naughty. His mother did not know what to do with him. She wanted to confine him somewhere, but he showed signs of breaking everything in any room she put him into, and he threatened revenge at every suggestion. She thought herself of a place where there was nothing to break, and where he could not work any serious revenge. He was borne into the garden and locked up in the chicken-house. He was silent—this was something beyond his capacity to talk about; but as his mother was going away, his head appeared at one of the little openings.

"Mamma!" His mother stopped. "Mamma, what can I do in here if you like, but I won't lay any eggs!"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Developing the Island of Elba.

A curious transformation has been wrought in the island of Elba, in the Mediterranean off the Italian coast. Elba's principle title to fame has been the fact that it was the residence of Napoleon Bonaparte after his abdication of Emperor of France in 1814. It was from Elba that Bonaparte escaped in February, 1815, landed in France, rallied an army and began the attempt to recoup his fortunes which constituted the activities of the famous "hundred days," culminating in lasting defeat at Waterloo. The second deposition of the Emperor was followed by exile to St. Helena, where he remained until his death. Elba now comes into notice because of the sudden development of the iron mines on the island. It has long been known that Elba had large deposits of minerals, including iron ore of high grade, but comparatively little had been

To Remove Insects.

Insects sometimes crawl into the ear and cause pain. The best way to remove the offender is to pour a few drops of sweet or olive oil into the ear to clog the wings and stop their fluttering; then, with great care, syringe the ear with warm water, holding the bowl under the ear so that it will press the ear gently back, while the sufferer's head should incline a little over the bowl. After the insect is removed, saturate a bit of cotton with the oil and insert in the ear, to remain for a day.

HUNS HELD UPON FLANKS; MADE GAINS IN CENTRE

But Those Gains, While Small, Were Brought at a Terrible Price—Fiercest Fighting of War Rages as Foe Comes On in Dense Waves.

London, Cable.—The Germans, according to advice from the battlefield, have thrown in upwards of 200,000 men in the two days' fighting. The enemy knew when they opened the attack that their task would be difficult. Therefore they sent into the fray only those divisions which had been specially trained for the assault. It is estimated that they engaged approximately twenty divisions on the front line for the first shock, while behind these, ready to take the place of the exhausted divisions, there were probably a similar number, perhaps even greater.

London Cable.—The Germans in the centre of their new attack on the front between Montdidier and Noyon have gained additional ground against the French, but on both the right and left wings they are being held. In violent successive attacks Monday they captured the villages of Mery, Belloy and St. Maur and also pressed forward and gained a footing in the villages of Marquiesse, the last named place representing the deepest point of penetration since the offensive began, between five and six miles.

The French still are exacting a heavy toll in lives from the Germans as they deliver their attacks in waves, and are giving ground only when forced to do so under superiority of numbers. Nowhere has the enemy been able to pierce the front, which has been bent back in perfect order whenever the necessity arose.

The battle is described by correspondents as one of the most furious that has been fought since the war began, with the enemy unusually reckless in wasting life to gain his objectives.

WITH UNABATED FURY.

"Throughout the night and morning the battle raged along the new front of attack with unabated fury," says the Reuter correspondent at French headquarters, whose despatch was filed at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. "On the wings the enemy was still held on practically the same line in spite of his persistent and reckless attempts to advance.

"On the extreme left the village of Courcelles changed hands six times. On the extreme right Pleumont, although almost in the first line, was still holding out, the little French garrison having beaten off a wave of German infantry. Mont Renaud is still ours.

"In the centre of the battlefield by pouring in fresh battalions the enemy succeeded in pushing deep into our line and are pressing southward between Cuvilly and Thiescourt. The fighting was of the bloodiest character, hand-to-hand, over the ruins of every village, hamlet and farm. The enemy's losses were extraordinarily heavy, there having been this time no surprise in the attack.

"The enemy has from 18 to 20 divisions in his attacking lines. Behind this line his reserves are ready to replace shattered divisions. We must reckon on a prolonged and desperate struggle, and may have to meet the shocks of von Hindenburg's disposable reserves before the enemy breaks off.

"Further losses of ground need not discourage us. The enemy, instead of sweeping on victoriously as in the first days of the Aisne battle, is advancing painfully yard by yard, paying the full price for every step. His main effort for the moment is towards the Oise, with the object of turning the salient we hold in his line, with its apex at Pont-l'Evêque, on the Oise, which comprises Carlespont and Ourcamp forest in an angle in the bend of the river.

AIRMEN CO-OPERATING.

"On Sunday the British flying squadron, co-operating with the French on the Noyon-Montdidier battlefield, worked continually from dawn till dark," says the official statement on aerial operations to-day. "Our bombing airplanes impeded the enemy's advance and harassed his troops and transport with constant machine-gun fire. Strong patrols of scout machines swept the battle area throughout the day, while high-flying airplanes protected these below from air attacks.

"Among the targets hit were an airfield near Roye, where hostile machine on the ground were set afire; an ammunition dump at Montdidier, which went up in a sheet of flames, caissons and wagons at Couchy, lorries at Laguy and Hainvillers, and infantry in trenches and on the roads along and behind the whole fighting line.

"On the British front there was little enemy activity in the air, but our machines carried out a good deal of artillery observation work until stopped by rain. One of our artillery machines forced a two-seater German machine to land and surrender at the airfield to which our machine belonged.

"Fourteen other German planes were downed and four disabled. A hostile balloon was shot down in flames. Four of our machines are missing."

PLAN OVER-AMBITIOUS.

French Headquarters, Cable says—The scene of the in-cess offensive is a wooded, hilly country, bisected by the River Matz, which, flowing south, joins the Oise at Montmacq. The enemy's principal progress yesterday was along the course of the Matz. His first objective was probably to reach the Oise, and therefore take in the flank of the whole French salient north of the Oise, which might result in our withdrawal to the south bank.

Supposing the enemy's objective to be Paris, he would naturally thrust a tentacle down the Oise valley and another westward from the Ourcq line, thereby encircling the vast mass of Aigle, Compiègne, Villers-Coterets forests, which being impregnable to frontal attack, the enemy probably intended to pass north and south thereof, bringing the tentacles together. This enemy plan is over-ambitious and impossible of accomplishment. As soon as its impossibility is realized, the enemy's efforts will probably be directed at Amiens or toward Calais.

Meanwhile the German battalions are being depleted in the constant fighting from Noyon to Chateau Thierry, and from Verrier to Rheims. His reserves of manhood are declining. Out of 200 prisoners taken in the first few days of June, over one fourth belonged to the 1919 class, and the class of 1920 made its appearance on the battlefield among the prisoners captured at Bligny by the British, a considerable proportion being laid off this class.

FRENCH REPORT.

Paris Cable.—Several small villages were occupied by the Germans on the centre in the Montdidier-Noyon sector, including Mery, Belloy and St. Maur, according to the War Office announcement to-night. This was done by repeated assaults and at a cost of great sacrifices.

South of Reconnaitre-sur-Matz the Germans gained a footing in Marquiesse. Further to the east the battle continues in the southern outskirts of Elincourt. The text of the statements read:

"Night.—'On the second day of the offensive the enemy sought by powerful attacks in large forces without cessation by new effectives to advance in the direction of Estrees, St. Denis and Ribecourt. Our troops fulfilled with tenacity their mission of resistance.

"The enemy was able to take successively by repeated assaults and at the cost of heavy sacrifices the village of Mery, Belloy and St. Maur. The plateau of Belloy was the theatre of heroic engagements.

"South of Reconnaitre-sur-Matz the Germans gained a footing in Marquiesse, and further east the battle continues, in the southern outskirts of Elincourt.

"On our right the enemy succeeded in debouching from Thiescourt Wood. On our left, between Courcelles and Ruesscourt, we broke down the enemy attacks and held our positions. East of the Oise a German attempt to retake a fort failed."

"8,000 PRISONERS. SOME GUNS"

Berlin Cable.—The German War Office, in its official communication today, claims the capture of 8,000 prisoners and some guns in the new offensive in France. The text of the statement reads:

"Artillery firing revived between Arras and Albert, south of the Somme and on the Aves. Lively reconnaissance activity continues.

"In a powerful attack yesterday we penetrated into the hilly district southwest of Noyon. West of the Matz River we have taken a French position near Mortemer and Orvillers and pushed forward beyond Guvilly and Riquebourg.

"East of the Matz River the height of Gury was captured. In spite of the stubborn resistance of the enemy our infantry fought its way through the woods of Riquebourg and Lamotte and threw the enemy back beyond Bourmont and Mareuil.

"South and south-east of Lassigny we penetrated far into Thiescourt Wood. Violent counter-attacks by the French were repulsed.

"We have captured about 8,000 prisoners, and some guns.

"On the front between the Oise and Rheims the situation is unchanged. Local engagements north of the Aisne, north-west of Chateau Thierry, and in the neighborhood of Bligny brought in prisoners.

"Thirty-seven airplanes and six captive balloons were shot down yesterday."

"Night.—'South-west of Noyon we have made progress in fighting, with newly-brought-up French forces."

A Cure for Rheumatism—A painful and persistent form of rheumatism is caused by impurities in the blood, the result of defective action of the liver and kidneys. The blood becomes tainted by the introduction of uric acid, which causes much pain in the tissues and in the joints. Parmalee's Vegetable Pills are known to have effected many remarkable cures, and their use is strongly recommended. A trial of them will convince anyone of their value.

DEFIES U-BOATS.

U. S. Will Keep Troops Going, Says Daniels.

London Cable.—American forces in Europe were not being sent to sea in consequence of the withdrawal of the main subsurface off the American coast, and the ocean highway for the movement of troops to Europe will be kept open, Secretary Daniels says, in a cablegram published today by the Times. The message follows:

"The activities of German submarines on our own coast, the country has remained calm in the face of Germany's attempt to bring frightfulness to our doors. In fact, the enemy effort has stimulated recruiting and strengthened the determination of our people to use every resource to defeat the enemy."

"The road to France will be kept open for the transportation of our troops and the delivery of munitions and food supplies for our forces and those of our allies. There is being no weakening of our naval forces in European waters as a result of the new activity necessitated by the situation."

THREE U-BOATS WERE SMASHED

British Aircraft Continue to Get the Wasps.

Long Hours of Daylight Fatal to Foe.

London Cable.—Reuter despatch—The accounts of the destruction of the three enemy submarines by British aircraft were published yesterday. It is explained that the longer hours of daylight enable seaplanes, airships and kite balloons to assist methodically in hunting down U-boats. Summer conditions favor the submarine-hunters, whose incessant searching of the seas forces German craft to seek deeper waters.

An observer in a British towing balloon sighted certain things which, to his trained eye, indicated the presence of a U-boat, at a great depth. Depth charges were dropped and the submarine was obliged to shift its position. The balloon was towed rapidly to the spot and in the meantime the U-boat was forced to submerge by shots from the towing vessel. Under the direction of the balloon observer the towing vessel got over the track of the U-boat and dropped nine depth charges. A large quantity of oil came to the surface, spreading gradually until it covered an area of a square mile.

A British dirigible sighted a U-boat attacking a merchantman. The dirigible reached the spot just after the U-boat submerged and dropped a bomb three feet astern. A quantity of oil came to the surface. The dirigible dropped a second bomb, scoring a direct hit and lifting the submarine to the surface momentarily, after which it disappeared in a pool of oil.

A seaplane sighted a U-boat submerging and dropped a bomb, which brought a quantity of air bubbles to the surface. The seaplane dropped a second bomb into the centre of the churned water and a great quantity of oil came to the surface. The disturbance continued for so long a time it was evident the submarine was mortally wounded.

PLANES FIGHT OFF DUTCH COAST

British, Outnumbered, Bested the Foe.

Two Canadians in One Machine Interned.

The Hague, Cable.—Five British and seven German seaplanes of the largest type fought a battle Tuesday evening off the Dutch coast, according to a Terschelling despatch to The Handelsblad. One of the German machines was observed to fall in flames into the sea. One British machine was forced to descend, but landed safely.

Another British machine had descended to the surface of the sea, for repairs because of a defect in the propeller two hours before the battle.

FOE IN SLAUGHTER-HOUSE WHERE MAJORITY WILL DIE

Dense Masses Surge Up to Be Wiped Out by French Machine Guns—Every Foot of Advance Increases His Peril—Allies Confident.

(By Robert Berry, Staff Correspondent Associated Press.)

With the French Army in France, Cable.—Fighting in this war probably never has been more severe than that going on to-day in the great battle of French and German armies between Montdidier and Noyon.

The Germans attacking on a ground where the Entente allies were ready to receive the shock have found themselves thrown into a slaughter-house, whence most of them will never make an exit.

When the German infantry began coming over in the densest masses they encountered immediately an extremely hot fire from both machine guns and artillery, which mowed them down. Ever since, as fresh waves entered the conflict, they were subjected to similar punishment.

The German progress must not be taken to mean that the German forces have overcome the defenders, who intended from the beginning to retire to their actual lines of combat as soon as the action developed.

Some idea of the determined nature of the fighting may be gathered from the struggle on each wing. The village of Courcelles changed hands numerous times and when this despatch was sent was in the possession of the allies. At the other end of the line Mont Renaud was still making a magnificent defence, and last reports showed that Le Pleumont was yet in allied hands.

The centre, about Reconnaitre-sur-Matz, where the Germans made their most obstinate effort and formed a pocket tending south-eastward, is the only part of the line against which the Germans have been able to report a real gain. Their intention is to try was later set on fire by its five occupants, all of whom waded ashore, and gave themselves up for internment. The crew included two Canadians. The British machine which started Tuesday afternoon on a reconnoitring expedition off the northern Dutch coast. During the afternoon they had met a squadron of five German airplanes, which they drove off without difficulty in three successive encounters.

The Germans, however, returned reinforced by seven seaplanes. A lively fight ensued, and in addition to the German machine which fell in flames, another German machine was brought down.

A British machine commanded by Robert Paul, of Buffalo, N. Y., a member of the Canadian flying corps, developed engine trouble, and was forced to descend to the surface. Ensign Joseph Eaton, a New England man, who was senior pilot of another of the squadron, was detailed to protect the disabled plane, and circled about it for an hour, while the Germans were continuously attempting to attack the cripple. During Eaton's defensive work his machine was riddled with bullets but he was able to keep the air until the Germans were driven off. He then descended, his machine wrecked, but all the crew got ashore safely.

NATURE BLOCKS ZEEBRUGGE BASE

Entrance to Harbor is Rapidly Silting Up

Following the Blockade by Britain.

London Cable.—(Reuter Despatch) The plight of the Germans at the Belgian submarine base of Zeebrugge, in consequence of the measures taken by the British navy to blockade the port, is even more serious than has been believed heretofore. Photographs just taken from airplanes show that the entrance to the harbor is rapidly silting up, and that accordingly the British effort to close the channel is being reinforced by nature.

The sunken vessel inside the breakwater which was at first believed to be an enemy destroyer, now appears to be a large dredger. The loss of this ship evidently has crippled the Germans in their attempts to clear the channel.

to reach the banks of the Oise and threaten the allied salient which extends to the vicinity of Noyon.

Every foot the enemy advances now brings him farther into territory which is thoroughly well known to the allies and prepared for defence. Therefore his task becomes momentarily more difficult.

The allied staffs are prepared to meet every eventuality and display the most perfect confidence in the outcome.

FIRST DAY'S FIGHTING.

With the French Army in France, Cable.—At the conclusion of the first 24 hours of the new battle between Montdidier and the Oise the impression gained is that the powerful German smash has not brought the enemy the result he expected. The allied line is bent in the centre quite insignificantly and the resistance the French are opposing on the actual position of the combat appears to be efficacious.

Extreme violence was the dominant note of the battle on the first day and desperate assaults with huge masses of troops seem likely to continue, at least for some days.

With the concentration of troops such as the Germans had been enabled to bring into line at the point chosen for the attack it was physically impossible for the defenders to resist in their advanced positions.

When the masses of German infantry came over the entente Allied troops spread lightly in the forward works fell back coolly, fighting yard by yard, to the actual line of resistance. They held back the enemy just sufficiently to make him show his strength and to permit the main body of defenders to make the proper disposition to meet him.

Only at one point was the real French line forced to recede and that was in the neighborhood of Reconnaitre-sur-Matz.

After the German infantry had started four hours of the most intense fighting had brought them only partly across the allied advance zone. They were battered thoroughly by the allied artillery, whose target was so plain that the enemy's losses must have been frightful, with very little to compensate him for his sacrifices.

No Rest With Asthma.—Asthma usually attacks at night, the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of flesh and other evils which must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. B. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merit through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

NO HANDSHAKING

When Briton and Hun Met to Confer.

London Cable.—Describing the meeting between the British and German delegates, held at The Hague to arrange an exchange of prisoners of war, Reuter's correspondent at The Hague says they did not shake, but merely bowed to each other. A moment before Jonkheer Londen, the Dutch Foreign Minister, received the delegations separately in adjoining rooms and then brought them face to face, delivering a speech, in which he wished success to their mission.

ARABS RAIDED LINE IN EGYPT

London Cable.—An official communication issued to-night says: "An Arab column of Sheriff Feisal's army raided the El Hana and Farafreh railway stations (Egypt), May 25. Both stations were temporarily occupied. The station buildings were wrecked and the permanent way very seriously damaged over a length of 45 kilometers.

"One hundred and twenty-five prisoners, including three officers, and four machine guns were captured."

The Oil of Power.—It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil that it will cure every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. PARIS-LONDON AIR POST.

Paris Cable.—An aerial post service between London and Paris has been successfully inaugurated. The aviator, Loriquet, concluded his third round trip yesterday in five hours and fifteen minutes. The return voyage was rendered difficult owing to the strong headwind and dewy air-conditions.

"My observer and myself were really seasick, as though pitched and tossed in a heavy sea," said Loriquet after landing.

COMING RESPONSIBILITIES.

These are times of social unrest, and never before has there been such discontent with poverty.

The social condition of the people, the problems of labor and capital, poverty and wealth, are forcing themselves upon all intellectual men and women to-day, and political parties are vying with each other in offering solutions for these problems.

The unequal distribution of wealth, no fair-minded person can defend, and as a result of which millions of people are underfed, underclothed, stunted in body and mind; and that vice, immorality and insanity are the direct results of this unequal distribution.

From British statistics it is found that one-ninth of the population own one-half the national income; and the wealth of some is so great that they cannot devise means of spending it. A New York lady, a leader of fashion, made the statement that in order to dress "smartly" a lady must spend $40,000 a year; and another instance of extravagance has been given by a Mr. Scott, a London merchant and dog-fitter, of a lady's order for her dog for the coming winter—a dog's bedstead, fur coats, laced boots (one-half a guinea a pair), silk-braided blankets and nickel-plated foot warmers, for Fido when he goes travelling.

This is in striking contrast to London's poor. When the last census was taken, 2,700 men, women and children had neither means or shelter. They were found crouching under stairways, arches, or in the streets; and the same night the Salvation Army and other shelters were accommodating as many more. In that great, wealthy city, the condition of these people was worse than that of the savage.

New York is another city that has a serious problem to solve. It has 350,000 living rooms inhabited by people into which a ray of sunshine never enters.

The great City of Glasgow has 16 per cent. of its population living in a one-roomed tenement. When the children who lived in these rooms were examined it was found that the average height of a boy was 4.7 inches below that of a boy who lived in a four-roomed tenement. And the unwholesome conditions arising from this unsanitary way of living made them a pray to all manner of disease and death. These conditions may seem foreign to us, but their effects are radiating through the country, and are affecting both our social and physical conditions.

Until the nation sees that its first duty is to organize its resources; that the means to maintain a healthy and civilized existence shall be within the reach of all in return for a reasonable amount of labor. No system, however well organized, can work effectively, which has thousands of its human beings seeking shelter under archways, while dogs are sleeping under silk-braided blankets. A healthy rural condition cannot exist where urban conditions are so defective.

One of the conditions of a happy home is comfort. Comfort does not imply wealth, finely furnished homes, and daintily served meals; it means cleanliness, pure air, order and economy.

To partly remedy the evil under which our poor are suffering, we should see that a building inspector be appointed, whereas no contractor should be allowed to build without a permit from the government. We should also have our schools built on the best sanitary principles, our pupils under medical inspection, while every little town, village and country section should have an active Truant Officer. We have many truant officers in the province, but the worst active is foreign to the majority of them.

As our women are our chief homemakers, and carry much of the responsibility for the educating of our children, may they not feel it a duty devolving upon them to co-operate with men in this much-needed reform.

As our children are our greatest asset there cannot be too much care expended on their mental and physical development, in order to make them good, useful, Christian men and women.

The turn-out at last week's dance in the rink was very small and unless the attendance is larger the week-end dances will probably be discontinued.

Mrs. John Durant, of Glenwood, whose only son and support has been drafted, is now staying with her daughter here, Mrs. Gordon Buttenham.

We have cancelled our order for an automobile and intend purchasing an aeroplane as soon as Ford begins the manufacture of them. We have great faith in Henry.

Dr. Michell, sister and lady friend of Toronto; Mrs. Norman Hempstead and friend of Aylmer and Mr. Clement of Milton are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Baker.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist held their regular monthly meeting yesterday. Reports were read from the Missionary convention by Mrs. Facey and Mrs. T. Allen, which proved so interesting that a large part had to be left over for the next meeting.

A deputation will shortly wait on our Council and present a petition signed by the heads of households, praying that the Curfew bell be rung in the village at 9 p.m., announcing that all 19 and under must be in their respective homes at that hour. This would have the effect of compelling a number of our love-sick swains, whose present hours for visiting their adored ones is anywhere from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. to cut the comedy and switch off onto standard time, which is 7 to 9 p.m. The joke is that they generally select homes where no dog is kept.

Women's Institute Meeting

On Wednesday, June 26th, the North Wentworth Women's Institute will hold their annual convention in Roller Rink, Waterdown, at 2:30 p. m. The executive will meet at 1:30 p. m. (new time).

The District President Mrs. George will occupy the chair. The Government delegate, Miss Yeates, of Port Credit will be the speaker for the afternoon. West Flamboro and Sheffield Institutes will furnish the program.

In 1912 a committee was appointed from the Waterdown Women's Institute to reclaim our Union Cemetery from disorder. An opportunity will be given the ladies visiting the convention to see it in its present condition.

Any one interested in patriotic work may visit the work room in McGregor's hall over the Drug store.

Refreshments will be served in accordance with the Food Act of Canada.

Garden Party Meeting

The weekly meeting of the Patriotic Garden Party held last Tuesday evening was given over to discussion of ways and means of making the Fourth Patriotic affair the greatest success. Mr. Alex Davidson occupied the chair. Mr. Stewart Gallagher was given a standing vote of thanks for his offer to motor the committee in charge of the canvassing for donations in Hamilton.

It is expected that a class No. 1 program will be submitted by the Program committee at next Tuesday's meeting.

All citizens are urged to attend these meetings.

East Flamboro Council Meeting

The Council of the Township of East Flamboro met in the Township Hall, Waterdown, on Tuesday, June 4th. Reeve and Councillors all present.

Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Communications were received as follows: From the Ontario Municipal Association, asking the Council to become united with the Association. The Council considered the communication and passed the following resolution: That the Reeve issue his order for the sum of $5.00 for membership fee to the Association for the year 1918.

A communication was received from the Township of Pickering urging the better organizing of the farmers of the Province, and that this Council unite with other municipalities for that purpose. After considering the communication it was moved by G. B. Stock, seconded by R. Taafe, and resolved, That whereas the Dominion Government, their Commissions, Food and other Controllers, in the passing of legislation, in the regulating or in fixing the price of commodities, advise and consult with the experts of the respective industries to be affected; therefore it is expedient that the farmers be forthwith equipped with the ablest experts in every branch of their industry, in order to aid the Government, their Commissions or Controllers in carrying out their necessary war-time legislation or regulation. Be it therefore resolved, That this Council approve of the holding of a convention at some centrally located point in the Province of Ontario of representatives from all the councils of the rural municipalities, as representing the farming community, for the purpose of discussing and, if deemed advisable, of creating an organization that will have at its disposal the ablest men possible, whose duty it will be to protect the interests of the farmers in all matters affecting them, whether it be of legislation, transportation, arbitrary fixing of prices or otherwise, also to aid all legitimate farmers' organizations in all their aims; that the cost of such organization and its undertakings could well be apportioned among the various rural municipalities of the Province, according to their respective assessments; and it is suggested that such organization might be composed of the presidents of all legitimate farmers' organizations in the Province and of one representative from each rural municipality, to be appointed annually by the Council of each thereof.

It was moved by G. B. Stock, seconded by J. C. Harper and resolved, That the Assessors Roll having been completed, this Council accept the same.

A petition was received from a number of the rate-payers of the Township, asking the Council to obtain from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission an estimate of the cost of supplying them with light and power. The names of the petitioners are: Eli Buchan, H. C. Linkert, E. P. Worthington, M. B. Pinkley, Wm. MacKay, F. Baker, George Willis, B. K. Husband and G. B. Stock. The Clerk was instructed to forward the petition to the Commission. Mr. Stocking, of the Commission, being present had explained that this was the proper way to proceed.

A communication was received from the Toronto-Hamilton Highway Commission re spur line. The Clerk was instructed to write the Commission asking them for a statement in full up to date re spur line.

At 2 o'clock, as per resolution, the Council adjourned to sit as Court of Revision, and after the business in connection with the Court was finished, they again returned to Council work, and the following business was transacted:

It was moved by W. H. Easterbrook, seconded by R. Taafe, and resolved, That the Reeve issue his order to pay all accounts passed at this meeting. The following were passed:

REMARKABLE CURES IN THE WORST CASES REPORTED DAILY.

CURES WITHOUT USING DRUGS.

Doctors now advocate an entirely new method of treating bronchitis and irritable throat. Stomach dosing is no longer necessary.

CATTARRHOZONE is the name of this wonderful invention that is daily curing chronic cases of the weak throat, bronchitis and catarrh.

There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill that won't find a cure in Cattarrhozone.

LESSON XI. JUNE 16, 1918.

Jesus on the Cross.—Mark 15: 1-47.

COMMENTARY. —I. Jesus given over to suffer Death (vs. 1-21). The threefold trial of Jesus before the Jewish authorities and the threefold trial before the representatives of the Roman government had not shown any guilt in him, but they had emphasized Jewish hatred and injustice.

II. Jesus Crucified (vs. 22-39). 2. Golgotha.—The location of Golgotha is not definitely known. Some locate it to the north of Jerusalem upon a hill that bears a resemblance to a skull, and this is probably the place.

III. Sympathy for Jesus (vs. 40-47). While Jesus was mocked by His foes, sympathy was extended to Him by His friends. His mother was at the cross as was also John. Other women were there, too, who had become His followers.

BLOODLESS WOMEN

Feel Weak, Depressed and Worn Out All the Time—Do Not Eat Well or Sleep Well.

It is an unfortunate fact that nine women out of ten are victims of bloodlessness in one form or another. The girl in her teens, the wife and mother, the matron of middle age, all know its misery.

MANHOOD (By the late Rev. H. T. Miller.) Long ago I was traveling in the west of Ireland. A woman was a fellow-passenger in the jaunty car, and she descended on the beauty of the scenery, and as she pointed to the range of the Connemara Mountains, and said their "beauty had not diminished since Adam was a boy."

When we look at the second Adams, the second creations of the Holy Ghost, we see the same thing; not boyhood, not babyhood. In the magnificent apartments of the Holy Ghost I see no tunics for boys, no swaddling bands for babies, no baby bath-tubs.

SMOKE T&B TACKETTS

THE ALIBI

— BY —
Geo. Allan England

Author of "Darkness and Dawn," "Beyond the Great Oblivion," "The Empire in the Air," "The Golden Blight," "The After-Glow," "The Crime-Detector," etc.

Not all his cunning and skill of planning, but the insipidness of the morning, nor yet the insipidness of the day, could keep his brain from sensing a violent emotion at this, the moment of his first "break." The previous crimes—had all been subtle thefts, the juggling of figures in massive ledgers, the falsification of books and balances. Now, however, all was different. Here he stood before the safe, a burglar, brother to the gang, offering from him only in the an obvious fact that he possessed the combination, in place of "soap" to open the huge doors.

Stanton began to shiver annoyingly. Under his breath he cursed himself. At this stage of the game was he going to stand there and get stage-struck? An attack of nerves just now would surely be the climax of misfortune. With a strong effort he tried to pull together. He was finding out that for an inexperienced man—no matter how conscientious—to plan a robbery is one thing; to execute it another.

Despite the fact that he had already lived the scene in imagination, now the reality of it gripped and shook him. Impatiently he tried to thrust introspection aside. Forcing himself to action, he reached up and snatched off the incandescent. The drenching glare of its illumination, flooding down in a cone upon him, would make him a shining mark, a target of targets, should the old man happen upstairs from the vaults.

Then in complete darkness he drew from his pocket the little electric flash-light. His pocketbook yielded up the slip of paper bearing the previous carbonated figures—the cipher to the combination recently changed; a cipher whereby only two records existed, one in the hands of President Chamberlain, the other now held in Stanton's gloved fingers under the light pencil of the electric ray.

A week later Stanton could have accomplished nothing. The bank was on the point of installing a time-lock, before which nothing save nitroglycerin or thermite will avail. But now only a combination faced the cashier. And, armed with the little piece of paper, it possessed no more difficulty than A. B. C. He read:

R 5 to 10; L 4 to 50; R 3 to 25; L 2 to 50; R to stop.

Definitely he turned the knob, sensing with satisfaction the play of the fine mechanism. Through his mind passed a grim amusement at thought of the way in which he would circumvent all evidence against him. His gloves were leaving no tell-tale marks. In the morning the slip of paper with the combination would be found locked in his desk. It could prove it had never left the bank. He could prove he had never quitted his home that night. No possible chance existed of attaching the crime to him.

Nodding with greater confidence, his nerves now steady, he worked. And now again he glanced at the paper.

With a slight and almost imperceptible click the tumblers fell into position. Stanton's eyes gleamed as he turned the wheel of polished metal at his right hand.

He rotated the wheel, drawing back all bolts. Then he seized the handle and pulled. At the familiar action—the very same thing he had already done some thousands of times—the door swung easily and gently outward. And yet how different now the feeling it was!

Stanton snatched off the current that operated the little flash, and for a moment stood in complete darkness seeing nothing save some vague gray patches near the bank windows giving on the street. He seemed to glimpse bars across those windows. Hark! A vague silver of a precedent forbidding indignation stirred into his consciousness, but with impatience he shook it off. Still one of the junior clerks was in financial trouble, suspicion could not help following on either that way.

"Yes, but now, it's no affair of mine," said he, preparing to retreat, now that his work was done. "Let them square it out for themselves."

For a moment he scrutinized the interior of the vault by the rays of his electric light. He paid particular attention to the floor. Nothing had been dropped, he assured himself—nothing that could in any possible way incriminate him. He had left no finger-prints, should any tracks of his rubbers be detected that would amount to nothing. The rubbers were of a style and pattern sold by the million; more over they were worn quite smooth.

Cautionally he returned to the door of the vault, flashing his little antenna of light ahead of him. A few minutes more of non-interference would liberate him, would put him back on the sidewalk again, disguised and safe. Only a few minutes more! Already he seemed to breathe the outer air again—the frosty, life-inspiring air of liberty!

When—hark! What was that? Trembling, Stanton gave ear. Back into the shelter of the vault he crouched, peering out stealthily into the black.

A step?

Could that be a sign out there some-where in the corridor leading from well did he know that the number of each of those bills was recorded in a certain ledger, even as an abstract of each of the packages and slips taken into his later pocket, he was preparing for the next step in his procedure. He might have taken more, but that might have increased the subsequent peril, and his idea was not to make a haul, but merely to clear himself from his complications with a generous margin to turn round on. No; it would take only one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. That would do very well, indeed. And the next step would effectively block all tracing of the bills.

To this end he took down the ledger containing the entries of the bank-note numbers, turned to the pages thumb-indexed "1003," and ripped them clean out.

These pages he folded and stuffed into his inside coat pocket, thereafter replacing the ledger in its proper position on the shelf.

He reflected a moment, then nodded with assurance. An important step toward a perfect alibi had now been taken. The theft would assuredly be fastened on somebody in the employ of the bank. No outsider would ever have thought to tear out those pages. Stanton neither knew nor cared about where the blame would fall; but at the back of his mind that nascent idea kept glimmering out again—the idea that if it should become known that a glimpse of barred windows was disquieting.

"Confound my nerves!" he growled to himself. "Going back on me, are they?"

Another moment he remained there, listening with terrible insecurity, was there anything to hint at trouble? Nothing.

A heavy and oppressive stillness brooded over the darkened bank at that eerily morning hour—an hour of the ebb-tide and dregs of human life. Through the hushed black of the rooms the click of the electric tinspiece jumping forward a minute sounded with startling loudness. Stanton's muscles tensed. Even that slight disturbance, that little impingement of energy on the muted inertia of the place, seemed an ill omen.

Outside, a dull, vague murmur bespoke the city's lethargy. A distant tram-bell seemed an impertinence in face of the vast sleep, the entire paralytic of life that marks the Wall street section after midnight. From the East River one or two drowsy, booming whistles drifted up. The hoop of a motor siren over on Broadway mocked the inertia of the sleep-numb city.

Convinced that he still remained quite undiscovered and that no danger awaited, Stanton now once more switched on the beam of his search light, quickly he threw back the bolts of the inner door of the safe. Then, hesitating not a second longer, he stepped boldly into the strong-room of steel, the goal of all his thought and toil and peril.

Money, hard cash, specie in huge masses, exerts a peculiar, almost a maddening effect on the average man. When confronted with the chance to dig both arms to the elbow in real currency he is apt to lose his better judgment, to run amuck, to do nasty, ill-considered, incriminating things. If he steals he will often steal in stupid and unscientific ways that no one could limit the amount he can get away with, but also lay open the way to his substant detection.

And, as Stanton he stood far off from the beaten paths of averages, for long years, and years he had daily and hourly handled money as the remunerative of all commodities. He knew how to be as good as blind as he understood money, thought money, loved money.

To count, handle, appraise, estimate, check, weigh, pay out and take in money had for many years constituted his life. Now, confronted by all those labels, stacks, rolls, and bundles of the familiar stuff, he found his emotions subsiding.

Well, was he not at home there in that vault in face of all this currency? The cash, soothed and calmed him. At sight and touch of it his cold blood thinned, returned; his pulses ran normally; the fever left his blood. Again he smiled, but this time confidently, masterfully the smile of a connoisseur who sets his hand to something that he dominates and knows and loves.

Methodically now, without a single false move and without the loss of a second's time, he began his work. To a "T" he knew exactly the place of each denomination, each medium, each kind of specie, bills and other assets in the vault. Leaving aside the compartments devoted to commercial paper and securities, and likewise shunning the canvas sacks of metal, he thrust his hand into a certain pigeon-hole where reposed two hundred and fifty one-thousand-dollar bills in the safety-deposit vaults below stairs to the bank office?

All Stanton's blood seemed to congregate around his heart and clot there and stiffen him.

A step!

A step indeed, the old man's step! Mackenzie!

CHAPTER VI.

Leader now it seemed, louder and heavier still, it passed a moment as when Mackenzie's suspicion then came on him to again, snatching a crime, yet

Stanton switched off the light of his electric beam and crouched there in darkness in the dark. Terrible curses came to his lips, blinding impressions, furious maledictions against the old cashier who now for the first time in weeks, perhaps, had just taken it into his head to break his schedule, to mount the circular stairs, to make an extra turn about the bank.

He came the step, and on.

In a few seconds Stanton knew Mackenzie would reach the office door, would see that the incandescent before the door had been extinguished, would start investigating.

The end—the end of everything to Stanton—now all at once on the ultimate verge of success, had hurled itself to smite him down. Fall he mocked at him—run, destruction.

And a sudden flash had leaped into the cashier's heart as he crouched there in the blackness of the ligature watching. He left no parental hat against the simple-minded, honest faithful old Scot, but hate of him as a tool, a means, an instrument of wreckage in his path.

For the first time in his life Stanton felt a thrill of the lust for blood, he comprehended, as with a lightning flash of appreciation, how man can raise his hand to strike his brother down. But he would not kill, whatever might befall. Of that he felt entirely positive. Subconsciously he knew he would not kill. Let come what might, he would not stain his hands with murder.

Yet a strange, persistent shudder quivered through his body. He felt a fever that singularly seemed a chill. Only by clamping his jaw could he stop the emanating of his teeth. And in the dark his lips parted in a snarl of hate and malice.

Now all at once a little wavering will-o-the-wisp of light became visible in the bank office, a spot of white illumination that wandered vaguely over desks and grilles, along the walls, across the windows.

"Mackenzie's flash-light!" thought Stanton.

His heart sank. In a second now the old man himself would appear. Everything would be lost, ruin would smite him down.

Stanton heard a grumbling voice, obviously old Mackenzie's suspicions had been aroused by something. The watchman was talking to himself as he advanced. Then, just as a vaguely dark form moved in the darkness through the far doorway, Stanton understood.

The watchman's light had found and was resting on one of the lowered window-shades. Like an inquiring eye, it held its gaze a moment there. And again Stanton heard the burring accents of the old Scotchman in self-communion.

Mackenzie moved forward. The light jumped sharply. Stanton knew the old man had noticed that the incandescent before the safe had been extinguished. A sound of breath, quickly inspired, told Mackenzie's surprise. Then the dark form pushed forward with determination.

Swiftly the cashier thought. Was there any means of escape? Could he still retreat around the vault, gain the corridor, reach a door, a window?

Even as his fevered mind leaped for the hope of safety he knew it was futile. Every window was barred with steel. The only door he could hope to reach was in plain sight of Mackenzie's sharp eye. And in that stillness any slightest move might now betray his presence. Nothing remained to do save crouch down and wait and hope—hope against every possibility that in some way or other he might yet escape detection.

But now already Mackenzie was advancing.

The watchman had at last become convinced something was amiss. The incandescent might have burned out; but the window-shades could not have lowered themselves. Mackenzie knew trouble was afoot. And with the bulldog courage of his race, with an admirable and self-immolating sense of duty, the Scotchman hesitated not, but advanced to ferret out this mystery.

Even through his welter of hate and venom Stanton felt a stab of admiration for the simple directness of the old man's courage. He ran in no alarm, summoned no help, waited not to reconnoiter or to estimate the peril; but as if going his usual rounds pressed forward down the gridded passageway toward the safe.

As he came on and on, grumbling to himself, telling himself that something was "surely wrong the noo," he sprinkled the floor with light from his flash. Suddenly the flash stopped short, resting on some object that lay upon the floor.

"What—what—is this?" Stanton heard the Scot exclaim.

Tensed in panic-stricken observation as the cashier cringed there peering round the edge of the safe-door, he saw the vague form bend as though to pick up something. Then the little silvery beam of light played over an object held in Mackenzie's hand. Hand and object stood out with startling vividness by contrast with the dense curtains of the surrounding gloom.

Stanton, peering felt a sudden weakness turning his bones to water. The thing that old man Mackenzie was staring at in mute amazement—Stanton's wig!

MRS. PLANTE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

She Tells How They Helped Her Kidney Disease and Made a New Woman of Her.

St. Florence, Que., June 10th.—(Special)—Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new person of me," was speaker is Madame M. L. Plante, of this place, and her numerous friends here fully verify her statement.

"For nearly two years," Mrs. Plante continues, "kidney disease tortured me. I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and made up my mind to try them, and to my surprise they did me good almost at once. Two boxes cured me completely. I recommend them to all my friends."

Mrs. Plante is only one of many who have had a similar experience. They were weak and run-down, and sick all over. Dodd's Kidney Pills helped them. How? Simply by curing the kidneys. The diseased kidneys were the cause of all the trouble. They were falling to strain the impurities out of the blood, and the result was disease all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills helped the kidneys, the impurities were strained out of the blood. The result was pure blood and good health all over the body. The cause of the disease had been removed.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Prepared For Woman's Use

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attend the making of this great medicine for women's ills.

Over 550,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

Letters to the K. K. Ks

The following letters from the boys in France give us some idea how the efforts the Knotty Knitting Klub of this town is appreciated. The club should have the support and encouragement of every patriotic citizen who has the welfare and comfort of our boys at heart.

In another column of this paper we print the secretary's report.

France, April 7, 1918.

Dear Friends:

Sorry I have been unable to write before to thank the members of the K. K. K's for the lovely parcel I received some time ago.

I assure you the contents were very much enjoyed by all the members of headquarters mess. As we do not all receive parcels at the same time, we always divide up, and in that way our pleasure is more evenly divided. It also serves another purpose, maybe, when a parcel is received full of good things to eat we are rather rather indiscreet and eat too much with disastrous results to our individual digestive systems, whereas, by dividing up, the result is very pleasing to all.

Again thanking you for your kindness and with all good wishes for the K. K. K's, I am

Sincerely yours,
E. S. Sawell.

France, April 25, 1918.

To the President and Members of the K. K. K's:

Will you please accept this brief note as a slight token of acknowledgment and thanks for the box which you sent me and which reached me here recently.

It does one the world of good over here, to realize that the folks away back over there at home, have not forgotten us all. And sometimes when a chap s feeling particularly blue a new kind of "whizz bang" will drop in on him in the form of a parcel from home—nuf sed—there's the silver lining alright.

Again thanking you all for your kindness and generosity and wishing the Klub every success, I remain,
Sincerely yours,
A. E. Richards.

France, April 5, 1918.

To the K. K. Klub, Waterdown.

Dear Friends:
Just a few lines trusting they will find you all well. I am in the best of health. I received your kind note and parcel, thanking you all very much, as it came in the right time just after a long march. But we have got settled again for a few days. The boys have had a very stiff time of it this last two weeks. But I think we have old Hiene stopped for awhile. I have not met any of the boys from Waterdown of late, we have a few boys from Hamilton in the company. It has been a very nice winter all through, only about three weeks of cold weather, but lots of mud, I think we are in for another wet spell as this is the month for it. I have not received any mail from Canada since Dec. 4th cannot understand what is wrong unless it is that I have been moving a lot and it may go astray, as a rule we get the mail pretty regular.

Well dear friends I will have to close as news is pretty scarce over here. Thanking you one and all, I remain, your sincere friend,
T. F. Norton.

"Dog Gone"

Mr. Gordon reports the loss of his valuable coon dog, recently purchased from the Philadelphia Kennel Club for a goodly sum, and has offered a reward of $5,000 for his recovery. Enquiries made at the office of the Lake Medad Fishing Coy., elicited the information that the dog was seen at the lake about a week ago; he had followed a man who had gone there evidently bent on catching those slimy monsters of the deep, better known as "cat fish." The dog catching sight of one of them has either died of fright, or accidentally fell in off the wharf and was drowned. This no doubt accounts for the large number of dead fish seen floating on the surface of the lake lately. Would it not be a good stunt for the fire department to take the engine out there, pump the lake dry, recover the body, and claim the reward.
