"A ROYAL MOHAWK CHIEF"

Arthur, Duke of Connaught After an Absence of Nearly Half a Century Sits Again in the Council of the Six Nations Confederacy—Charms Everybody With His Gracious Personality—A Splendid Tribute to Miss E. Pauline Johnson the Indian Poetess—Refers to Her as "That Famous Lady, Who Though Her Body is Torn With Pain, Retains all Her Mental Brilliancy."

With a picturesqueness of surroundings, bordering on the medieval, Arthur Ka-rah-kon-tye (Chief Flying Sun) after an absence of nearly three years, on Saturday last sat in Council again with his brother chiefs of the Six Nations Indian Confederacy.

The event was a notable one in every essential. As a young man, Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, and only surviving son of Queen Victoria the Good, brother of King Edward the Peacemaker, and Uncle of King George the Fifth, visited Brantford, that was in 1869. And he came here expressly for the purpose of being inducted into the Chieftainship of the ancient Iroquois nation.

The Only White Chief

To quote from Miss E. Pauline Johnson's delightful little sketch, "A Royal Mohawk Chief":

Arthur, Duke of Connaught, is the only living white man who to-day has an indisputable right to the title of Chief of the Six Nations Indians (known collectively as the Iroquois). He possesses the privilege of sitting in their councils, of casting his vote on all matters relative to the governing of the tribes, the disposal of reservation lands, the appropriation of the principal and interest of the more than half a million dollars these tribes hold in government bonds at Ottawa, accumulated from the sales of their lands. In short, were every drop of blood in his royal veins red, instead of blue, he could not be more qualified as an Indian Chief than now is, not even were his title one of the fifty hereditary ones whose illustrious names composed the Iroquois Confederacy before the pale conqueror set foot in America. It was on the occasion of his first visit to Canada, in 1869, when he was little more than a boy, that Prince Arthur received, upon his arrival at Oneida, an address of welcome from his Royal mother's "Indian children" on the Grand River Reserve in Brant County, Ontario. In addition to this welcome he had a request to make of him. Would he accept the title of Chief and visit their Reserve to give them the opportunity of conferring it?

One of the great secrets of England's success with savage races has been her consideration, her respect, her almost reverence of native customs, ceremonies and potentates. She wishes her own customs and kings to be honored, so she freely accords like honor to her subjects. It matters not whether they be white, black, or red.

Young Arthur was delighted—royal lads are pretty much like all other boys; the unique ceremony would be a break in the endless round of state receptions, banquets and addresses. So he accepted the red Indian's obligation, knowing well that it was the loftiest honor those people could confer upon a white man.

After Many Years

And so, following a promise made to a deputation of the Chiefs of the Six Nations, who waited upon him in Ottawa last winter, the Duke on Saturday returned after an absence of well nigh half a century to again visit them.

It was certainly a graceful compliment. A fourteen mile trip along rough roads to the Council House at Ohsweken, in the winter time, cannot by the wildest stretch of imagination, be called a pleasure trip. It is more or less of an ordeal at best. But the Duke had given his promise, and he never breaks his word. His Royal Highness, from all accounts, is shortly to leave this country, owing to the recent illness of his Royal Consort, but before leaving his promises to his "brother Chiefs" must be fulfilled, and right royally and graciously did he discharge the debt of honor.

Off for Reserve

After the brief ceremonies at the T. R. and B. station on Saturday morning, waiting automobiles quickly sped off with the Governor-General and his party and guests for the Reserve. His Royal Highness travelled in Mr. W. F. Cockshutt's car, and was accompanied by the Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior and Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, his military secretary, Col. Lowther, C.M.G., M.V.O., and D.S.O. of the Scots Guards, and his aide Capt. Buller of the Rifle Brigade. His other aide, Capt. Lord Francis Scott travelled down with Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., and Major Gordon Smith, Superintendent of the Six Nations Indians. Other guests who motored to the Reserve were His Worship, the Mayor of Brantford, Mr. C. H. Hartman, Major Leonard, City Clerk, Dr. H. B. Yates, Montreal, Mr. H. R. Yates, Lt.-Col. Howard, of the Dufferin Rifles, Lt.-Col. Muir of the Dragoons, Mr. S. F. Passmore, President of the Historical Society, Mr. J. S. Dowling, and a detachment of the Boy Scouts.

Decorated

All along the route the farm houses were decorated with flags, and in this respect the residents of the county certainly showed a spirit of loyalty that was not generally observed in the city, where even the Government and civic buildings failed to hoist the "old red flag," the symbol of the mightiest Empire the world has ever seen, or ever will see, and so worthily represented in Canada at the present time by the most illustrious occupant who has ever graced the post of Governor-General.

On arrival at the Reserve, a triumphal arch of evergreens was found erected, bearing the inscription "Welcome Great Chief, Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada." Then a drive along the river for some three or four miles and the village of Ohsweken was reached. Here another triumphal arch had been erected, bearing the inscription, "The Six Nations Chiefs never forget," and on the reverse side the motto "Making History."

A mounted Squadron of Indians here met His Royal Highness and escorted him to the Council House, where a guard of honor of the Mohawk Institute Cadets was drawn under command of Sergeant Moses. As the Duke alighted from his car, the Indian band played the National Anthem.

The Indian Council House was packed to the doors long before the arrival of His Royal Highness. His Honor Judge Hardy and Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Cameron, wife of a former superintendent, Miss Gikison, daughter of the Supt. of the Six Nations, Prince Arthur was made a chief, the Rev. Mr. Strong, the Rev. Mr. Park and other missionaries residing on the Reserve were in attendance besides a full turnout of chiefs, warriors and women of the Six Nations. Many of the Indians were in full war paint and feathers brilliant with paint, dyes and "patterns" and before the Duke entered the Council Chamber he was subjected to a thrilling war whoop. Major Gordon Smith as Superintendent occupied the chair in the Council chamber, having on his right His Royal Highness and on his left the Hon. Dr. Roche. Then stepped forward an ancient chief, David Sky, Speaker of the Fire Keepers. He was garmented in full costume—a buckskin suit beaded with moosehairs and headband of owl's and eagle's feathers and ornaments hammered from coin silver that literally covered his coat and leggings.

The Firekeeper following a procedure centuries old in the soft dulcet Indian language bade a hearty welcome in opening the council to the distinguished guests present. He prayed that the Great Spirit would forever watch and guard over their great brother chief Ka-rah-kon-tye who had so greatly honored them by consenting to come to their council house and deliberate with them. It was a red letter day in the annals of the Six Nations—the greatest day in the history of the Confederacy.

Reply of the Superintendent

Major Gordon Smith the Superintendent of the Six Nations then made the following reply to the address of Your Royal Highness, Chiefs, Warriors and Women of the Six Nations:

I feel particularly honored to-day in being privileged to preside over this Council when we have with us such a distinguished visitor as Field Marshall His Royal Highness the Governor-General Chief Ka-rah-kon-tye.

I thank you for the eloquent words of welcome which have fallen from the lips of the speaker of the Fire Keepers and join with him in giving thanks to the Great Spirit for having permitted our distinguished visitor, as well as other guests, and the Chiefs to reach the end of their journey in safety.

From time immemorial, ever since water ran, grass grew or the sun shone, the Six Nations have been pleased to welcome visitors at their Council Fire, and to give their reception priority over all other business, but never before have they been honored by the presence of a member of the Royal Family. The devotion of the Six Nations to the British Throne is a matter of history. There are Chiefs and warriors before me whose grandfathers fought in the war of 1812, and you are as ready now as then to take up arms in defence of your country.

We all regret that Chief Ka-rah-kon-tye is to-day in reality a Flying Sun, and that he is able to sit with us for only a brief period, therefore let us impress upon you the necessity of allowing no delay in your actions and of being prompt in your deliberations.

The Duke in Council

The next order on the programme was a resolution submitted by the Superintendent that owing to increase of the business of the Six Nations that the present accommodation of the Council House had been found inadequate and that it would be advisable to enlarge the building and also install a fire roof vault for the safe keeping of valuable papers.

The Duke of Connaught was asked to leave the seat of honor on the platform and join his brother chiefs on the floor of the Council chamber to discuss this proposed outlay. This he did in a most gracious manner, sitting between Chief A. G. Smith the official interpreter of the day and Chief J. W. M. Elliott the Secretary of the Chief's reception committee. Several speeches were made in Indian on the motion before the Chiefs in reference to the proposed outlay and Chief Smith eventually reported to the Superintendent that the Chiefs had unanimously decided to sanction the outlay. This was confirmed by the speaker, Chief J. C. Martin. His Royal Highness again took his seat on the platform and the following address to him was then read by Chief A. G.

Smith in a most impressive manner.

Address from Chiefs.
To Field Marshall His Royal Highness Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught and Strathean, K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O., P.C., Governor-General of Canada and Commander in Chief.

May it please Your Royal Highness: Your brother chiefs of the Six Nations in conformity with the ancient custom of their league or Confederacy, beg upon this auspicious occasion to tender to Your Royal Highness a most sincere and hearty welcome to this their native land and to their Council Chamber, and cordially invite you to be seated in your place in their midst, so that they may hold conference with you during a short session of their council meeting to-day.

Your brother chiefs are thankful to the Great Spirit for having guarded and protected you from all danger throughout all your long journey and for having safely brought you to visit them in good health and strength and free from all bodily harm.

Ka-rah-kon-tye, while modern civilization and education with their wonderful and useful inventions have changed conditions and customs, Your Royal Highness will, they hope, pardon their continued use of their ancestors figurative phrases as follows: "You have come a long distance to pay your brother chiefs a visit and must in consequence be wearied and footsore from your journey."

Your brother chiefs therefore hasten to extract your moosehairs and matted your feet, and gently bathe them in pure spring water, wipe them, and apply to them soothing balms, so that you may again be free from weariness and pain and be fully refreshed.

"They now also wash off all the dust that may have impaired your vision so that you may again see with clear and unobstructed vision."

"They moreover take a fine soft feather with which they clear your ears of all foreign substances that may have found lodgment in them so that you may hear distinctly what your brother chiefs may say to you."

"And finally they now give you a draught of pure cold spring water with which you quench your thirst and clear your throat so that you may be able to speak with clear enunciation all that you may have to say to your brother chiefs."

er chief, the right hand of friendship as the representative of the British Empire in Canada, to whom we are allies and with whom we have our treaty rights.

They are proud to be the allies of a great Empire whose proud boast is that "the word of Britain once pledged shall never be broken," and that to-day Ka-rah-kon-tye, is with them in Council.

Your brother chiefs on behalf of themselves and their people beg to assure Your Royal Highness of the same unswerving allegiance to the British Crown which has characterized them in their relations with Great Britain since the earliest colonial times.

They would remind Your Royal Highness that their ancestors, chiefs and warriors, valiantly fought the battles with the British forces against the French for British possession and domination of this great Canada of ours, and also in the war of American Independence of how they sacrificed everything for Britain, in faithfulness to the covenant chain compact or treaty which existed between the British and the Iroquois confederacy.

Your brother chiefs desire to assure Your Royal Highness that they are as faithful, loyal and as ready to take up arms should occasion arise in the defence of our common country as our forefathers were in the past.

Your brother chiefs desire to memorialize Your Royal Highness in respect to the treaty above referred to, as they are led to believe by the traditions which have been handed down to them, that certain important concessions are therein made to the Six Nations which have been ignored or disregarded by the Federal Government since their affairs have been handed over to them by the operation of the "British North America Act" and in view of this fact, your brother chiefs beg to ask that Your Royal Highness may be pleased to interest yourself towards securing for them a copy of the said treaty between the British and the Six Nations as their original copy has unfortunately been destroyed by fire.

Your brother chiefs are anxious to know whether these traditions are strictly correct and whether those who made these treaties with their ancestors had the intention to treat with them, as they do not wish any longer to be in a false position or to be claiming rights and privileges that they have no right to, if so be, that no treaties are extant of the nature of their claims by their tra-

TREMENDOUS STRIKE

Is Threatened in the States—Many Thousands of Men Concerned and Many Millions of People.

(Courier Leased Wire).
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Reports that both the railroad managers and the representatives of the locomotive firemen in the East had to-day practically given up the hope of settling their long discussed differences over wages and working conditions, developed considerable speculation among New Yorkers as to the extent of the strike which seemed threatened. To the country at large, according to the firemen, the strike would mean a practical tie-up of railroad business, because the fifty-four railroads in the zone affected, east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, serve the most densely populated section of the United States.

There are 18 states in the zone of the threatened strike. The mileage of the fifty-four railroads involved is approximately 30,000 miles. The firemen, practically all of whom claim to be members of the brotherhood, and whose vote has brought the situation to a crisis, number over 35,000 men. It is declared that practically every man firing a locomotive in the Eastern territory would obey a strike order. The vote of the firemen on the strike question was recorded as 32,178 in favor of a strike as compared with 1,198 against it.

A statement issued by the railroad managers says that the railroads involved serve over 50,000,000 persons, or over half of the population of the United States. These railroads employ, all told, approximately, 680,000 men and women, a large number of whom would be in a state of enforced idleness in the event of a firemen's strike actually causing trains to stop running. It is estimated that one million persons commute daily between the suburban cities and towns in New York City, and these would be probably the first to feel the effects of a strike. It would be necessary for them to use trolley cars, entering the city in most instances by circuitous routes.

MUST VACCINATE.

WATERLOO, Ont., Feb. 17.—Acting upon advice of Dr. McNally, District Health Inspector, summonses were issued to 14 citizens this morning for neglecting to comply with compulsory vaccination order issued by the local board of health, fourteen days ago. HOSTILITIES

Are Again Resumed in Mexico—There is a Very Strict Press Censorship.

(Courier Leased Wire).
VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Feb. 17.—Hostilities in Mexico between the rebels under Felix Diaz and federal troops, who have remained loyal to President Madero were vigorously resumed at an early hour this morning, according to information reaching here from the capital.

The positions of the two forces had not undergone any change. Felix Diaz and his followers still occupied the arsenal and several strategic points in that district from which they were directing a raking fire on the National Palace, and on the points at which federal batteries were posted and these replied shot for shot.

Very Strict.

(Courier Leased Wire).
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The censorship on news about the operations in the streets of Mexico City is absolutely rigorous and nothing is permitted to pass over the telegraph wires with reference in any way to the plans or prospects of either of the belligerents.

SHAW AT HOCKEY GAME

IRISH PLAYWRIGHT WAS DISAPPOINTED, HE SAYS.

He Had Expected To See Seven Young Men Perform Wonders In Co-operation, But There Were Seven Other Young Men to Thwart Them—Degenerated Into Something Like Politics Before Long.

The Irish playwright, Socialist and critic, George Bernard Shaw, is like a religious revival. He wanders into strange places. It is not always the elect that are called upon. But the fact remains that Mr. Shaw has deigned to record his impressions of the most characteristic of Canadian pastimes. If there is in his account very much Shaw and very little hockey, those who know him best can assure us that he is making a very generous and unusual concession in not giving us all Shaw. The following is what he gave out for publication, concerning a hockey game which he witnessed in the Dominion.

"I am, whenever I care to be, a Socialist. Consequently, when I heard that seven young men were somewhere banded and sworn together for a common purpose, I started out to search for them, feeling gratified that the wide reading of my plays in Canada had implanted some notion of communism. In England whenever more than three are gathered together, the police scent conspiracy and read the riot act. Being utterly ignorant as to the extent to which Canada is enlightened by this characteristically British fair play, I was not without apprehension that my expedition might be dangerous. I at last located my young men, but what their common purpose might be I was utterly unable to discover, as there were seven other young gentlemen equally sworn to frustrate that purpose. I had expected a Socialist love feast. I found rival tactics in co-operation. Still, as I have never yet encountered any two Socialists who pronounce Marx the same way and as I myself am of course, utterly unlike any other Socialist, and do not pronounce Mr. Shaw, still, my expedition was not in the least shaken by this discovery of a rift in the ranks of Socialism. On the contrary, I was now more interested in the police than in the situation was just English party politics, quite ill-natured, and latently sanguinary, but highly respectable. I was, however, I could detect a faint aroma of bishop and establishment church.

"Seeing that Socialism was in the usual hopeless cut, die sac wherein I terminated all varieties of my own was about to leave when I noticed that all fourteen young gentlemen had formidable looking bludgeons in their hands. I inferred that since amateur communism had proved impracticable they were prepared to apply the philosophical principles of my 'Man and Superman' and to realize my purpose by the simple process of ejecting from the world whether of ideas or objects, all those opinions and persons which were, in my judgment, undesirable. Two or three were quickly despatched after some very witty and vivacious repartee with the bludgeons which were, in my judgment, entirely on the side of my own surviving superman, when, to my disgust, their places were taken by others. Clearly there was some philistine in which were the scenes of my play would not let this interesting philosophic drama work out its own solution along the natural lines of destructive evolution. I could not tolerate such tyrannous suppression of the rights of free speech and unimpeded skull splitting, so I clapped on my hat and left the theatre, merely lingering long enough to ascertain the name of the censor's victim.

"This 'Game of Hockey' to judge by the one act which I did not see will in spite of the censorship which is none the less a villainous institution even if the villain disguise himself as a referee, enjoy a long run on the boards. It has to be sure two goals, and a good drama's aim should be single and definite, but the public that stays away from Candida and 'The Doctor's Dilemma' will never notice a trifle like that. I have no doubt that with its attractive slashing of shillings it would succeed better in Dublin than my own John Bull's other Island. It might perhaps be taken in New York for a poetical crytogram by Masterlink, the fourteen wild-eyed and madly-periphrasing young demons violently assailing a passive and unresisting object—the puck they call it, by a despicable larceny from Shakespeare's young men being, I say, symbolical of the worldly spirits that crush the poetical soul.

"In London where there are no poetical souls it would be widely resented as a satire on the House of Lords. I have always held that the stage has as powerful a moral function as the church, for like the church it puts a great many persons to sleep. 'The Game of Hockey,' however, I made excellent use of my ears if not of my eyes and observed that all the audience was very wide awake and extremely enthusiastic.

A ROYAL SIX NATIONS CHIEF.

His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught made no secret of the keen delight with which he sat as a chief at a Council of the Six Nations Indians.

After the continued, and without doubt, often weary round, of more or less formal and set receptions, the picturesque setting and the novel attributes of Saturday's proceedings in the Ohsweken Council House, must have provided a welcome contrast.

Miss E. Pauline Johnson is right when she says that the Duke is the only white chief of the Nation. He alone can sit with his brother chiefs in council, and other gentlemen who have been given chieftainships have only obtained the honorary brand.

The entire event was symbolical of the tact and consideration which members of the Royal Family have always shown the world over to allies, no matter of what color. A consideration which manifests a full recognition of the fact that they and their duties represent a diversified blending of many races who are proud to call the Union Jack their own flag.

THAT BANQUET. That Conservative principles still continue to flourish and grow in Brantford and Brant County was abundantly proved at the banquet on Friday night.

It is only one party in the local which could begin to attain a magnificent demonstration. To carry one out with such marked success.

The committee have reason to pride themselves upon securing two such efficient outside orators as Hon. Dr. Roche and Hon. Mr. Lucas. The Liberals used to make the silly taunt that the Conservatives did not possess men capable of efficient public office. As a matter of fact they are plentiful and are demonstrating that fact on every occasion.

Hon. Dr. Roche represents a western constituency which he carried last general election by a majority of 1026. He is a most fluent orator with an exceptional ease of manner and his points are put with cogency and force.

Hon. Mr. Lucas represents Centre Grey in the Ontario House and when he first started to run it was a Liberal constituency. Last fight he got there by the comfortable majority of 1172.

He also is an orator of exceptional merit and his peroration of Friday night will long be remembered. As for the members of the Four Brants, well, they always, do well, and their constituents are rightly proud of them.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Your brother chiefs also beg to inform Your Royal Highness that they and their people are now a self-maintaining people, and that they owe their present condition to civilization and education which have made them to a great extent prosperous and independent agriculturists, professional and business men in their land of heritage.

They would most respectfully request that Your Royal Highness will convey to His Majesty King George V. (War Chief Onontiyoh), our most profound and sincere greetings, and that He may be long spared to rule the vast British Empire and all its Empire Colonies.

Your brother chiefs desire to assure Your Royal Highness that they heard with the deepest feeling of sorrow that Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught was ill and that they greatly sympathize with you in your affliction and are reminded that "all are alike high and low, subject to the changes and chances of this mortal life."

Your brother chiefs invoke the Great Spirit that He may be pleased to restore her speedily to perfect health, and that He may keep and preserve you and your royal household for many winters to come.

In conclusion your brother chiefs desire to express their grateful feelings of joy and triumph in their history. Never before have they been so highly honored by royalty, as this day in the fact that a Prince of the greatest Empire under the heavens condescends to sit with them in the most ancient parliament on this continent as a brother chief of the Six Nations.

Signed on behalf of the Six Nations Council: Chief J. W. M. Elliott, Chief A. G. Smith, Chief Jacob S. Johnson, Chief Josiah Hill. The Duke's Reply. His Royal Highness in rising to reply was cheered again and again. In a slow and most deliberate manner with charming voice and most delightful diction he read the following address:

Brother Chiefs of the Six Nations Indians: I am indeed happy, as one of the Senior Chiefs of the Six Nations Indians, to sit once more in our council chamber where I sat with your fathers 43 years ago, and I join in your thanks to the Great Spirit that I am spared to visit you again after so many years, and to join hands with the successors of the chiefs who sat in Council with me in the old days.

I am happy to know, from what you told me last winter, that there are still among you some who remember my former visit. The Six Nations have always been the steadfast allies of the British Crown. When war was the prevailing condition your people shed their blood and gave their lives for our mutual protection. Now that war has mercifully been a stranger to Canada for 100 years, and our attention is wholly devoted to the practice of peaceful industries and occupations, you have shown that you are equally ready to give your energy and attention to those pursuits for the lasting benefit of your people.

Not only have your people progressed in the development of agriculture, but your name has also become famous in the world of literature. When I was in Vancouver last summer I paid a visit to your celebrated poetess, Miss Pauline Johnson, whose father I knew, and for a time enjoyed the society of that famous lady, who, though her body is torn with pain, retains all her mental brilliancy.

Miss Johnson, by her sympathetic and graceful verses, has been able to hand down to future generations something of the romance and of the picturesque side of the old life and the tradition of her Indian brothers, and has depicted it with a touch equalled by no other poet.

You ask me to interest myself on your behalf regarding your treaty with the British Government, and I can assure you that I will take the matter up with my Government, and will look into it most closely, with I trust, results satisfactory to yourselves.

I thank my brother chiefs and the people of the Six Nations Indians for their kindly reference to the Duchess' illness, and I can assure them that it is a matter of the greatest regret to her that she cannot be with me among you to-day. I shall have great pleasure in informing His Majesty George of your message of loyalty and of good wishes, and in conclusion desire to say that my prayer is that the Great Spirit may watch over and guard the people of the Six Nations, and give them happy and contented lives.

ARTHUR KA-RAH-KON-TYE. The Duke always signs his name "Arthur" so that it was a most graceful compliment on his part to attach his Indian name to his reply. And he pronounced it too with the true guttural Iroquois accent. All of which goes to show that like his late lamented brother, King Edward, and his nephew, the present King he is a diplomat of the highest order.

The address presented by the chiefs is inscribed on buckskin ornamented by the totems of the Six Nations and is a very fine bit of work art. It reflects great credit on Chief William Loft, who was responsible for the inscription and penmanship. His Royal Highness very considerably expressed a wish that the address should be placed on exhibition in Ohsweken and Brantford for a few days before being expressed to him at Ottawa and this will of course be done.

Then followed more addresses. A lengthy one from the Six Nations Agricultural Society. Another from the chiefs of the Mississaugas of the Credit still one more from the Warriors and Women and yet again from the school children of the Reserve. The latter was read by Irene Smith, the pretty granddaughter of Chief A. G. Smith. Accompanying it was a beautiful bouquet of roses and the Duke was manifestly pleased with this graceful little tribute.

Presented with Sash. One of the most interesting features of the whole procedure was the investiture of the Prince with a sash emblematic of chieftainship. In 1869, His Royal Highness was accorded this honor, but the Indians decided to mark his second visit amongst them by again according him this tribute. Seth Newhouse and Mrs. George Green on behalf of the Warriors and Women presented the sash. It was heavily embroidered with heads, porcupine quills and dyed moose hair, bearing the totem of the Wolf to which tribe. His Royal Highness belongs. Very gracefully the woman placed the scarf over the Prince's left shoulder and knotted it beneath his right arm.

The ceremony was ended according to the constitution that Hiawatha had founded centuries ago. A chief's badge was also pinned on His Royal Highness' breast. Then came the presentation of the chiefs: first the Mohawks, then the Senecas, followed by the Onondagas, the Oneidas, the Cayugas, the Tuscaroras and the Delaware's. Some fifty in all filed before the Duke, who cordially shook hands with each and every one. Afterwards Judge and Mrs. Hardy, Mr. Gordon Smith, Mrs. Cameron, Miss Gilkinson and the clergy on the reserve were presented and then the Duke who genuinely seemed to take an interest in the whole proceedings was permitted to leave the Council House, gay with hunting and flags and totems of the tribes with its splashes of color represented by warriors in full war regalia and paint and retire with his staff and a few of the invited guests to the strains again of the National Anthem, to the residence of Dr. Davis, Medical Superintendent, where a very dainty luncheon was served by Mr. Fred Johnson, the caterer.

The Hon. Dr. Roche Minister of the Interior and Superintendent General of Indian Affairs who sat on the platform at the Council House with the Governor General was not forgotten during the ceremonies. Chief A. G. Smith in a very graceful speech referred to the honor the Chiefs had in welcoming him to their Councils and incidentally referred to the fact that certain treaty rights the Indians had with the British Crown had not been fulfilled to the strict letter of the law. The minister in a brief but happy speech promised to give the matter every consideration.

The Duke is fortunate in having such an able military secretary as Lt.-Col. Lowther. He is by the bye brother of the speaker of the British House of Commons and has seen much service in South Africa and other places. He is a writer of ability and is possessed of a savoir faire that makes friends and admirers wherever he goes. The Duke too in his aides Captain Lord Francis Scott and Captain Buller of South African war fame has very fine types of the best class of clean cut young Englishmen.

The parting sign to greet the Duke's eyes as he left the reserve was that over the last arch "Farewell Great Brother Chief, Do Not Forget Us." And the chances are that Arthur Ka-Rah-Kon-Tye will not.

The residents of the Reserve have entertained Lord Dufferin, Lord Aberdeen, Sir John A. MacDonald and other distinguished visitors but never before has Royalty set foot in Tuscorora. It was a unique honor accorded them on Saturday.

Prince Arthur departing from his usual custom consented to pose two or three times for his photograph. He resembles very greatly his distinguished brother the late King Edward. He is an exceptionally good looking man and sartorially leaves nothing to be desired. He dresses in perfect taste and eschews jewelry of every description barring a small signet ring which he wears on his right hand little finger.

Visits Mohawk Church. On the return to the city to catch the 2.30 train on the T. H. and B. for Toronto, His Royal Highness was driven around by the Mohawk Church, in front of which, 43 years ago, he was made an Indian Chief. He was received by the Rector, the Rev. R. Ashton and the girls of the Mohawk Institute, who under the leadership of Miss Hardy, sang the National Anthem and O Canada. The Duke again signed the famous Queen Anne bible with his name of 'Arthur.' Forty-three years ago he signed it just below that of 'Albert Edward,' the late lamented King, his brother.

Sharp on time, the Royal party reached the T. H. and B. station cars. A large crowd heartily cheered the Duke on his departure. There was not a hitch in the arrangements from first to last, and Major Gordon Smith, the Superintendent, and the Indian Chiefs are alike to be congratulated on the completeness of the details, and the thorough manner in which they were carried out.

He Was Pleased. There can be no question at all that the Duke thoroughly enjoyed the trip. Through his military secretary, Col. Lowther, he expressed his entire approbation of the arrangements made throughout. In reference to the addresses presented to him by the Agricultural Society and the Mississaugas, he gave instructions that he would send written replies. These addresses were quite unexpected and had not been provided for. The Duke to Miss Pauline Johnson, in reply to the addresses of the Six Nations Chief, will strike a most sympathetic note in the hearts of all Brantfordites. From a literary standpoint, it places her upon a pedestal unique in Canadian annals. That she well deserves such a royal recognition goes without saying, from the standpoint of her former townspeople. If that were possible, the Duke honored himself by honoring, to use his own words, a "famous lady."

The Duke, on returning to the city, had quite a narrow escape from being mixed up in an accident on crossing the Cocksbutt bridge. A wagon loaded with baled hay was met. As the Duke's motor passed this wagon, three or four of the bales of hay, weighing one hundred pounds or so apiece, fell off the wagon onto the motor. Fortunately, the covers were up, and the Royal party, besides the inconvenience of having to wait for a minute or so to have the hay removed, suffered no hindrance. But it might easily have been a nasty contretemps.

Capt. Buller is a relative of General Buller. Notes. The portrait of His Royal Highness as a young man, and also those of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort ornament the walls of the Council House. They were the gift of the Duke when he was first made a Chief. On Saturday he was much interested in these portraits, and informed Superintendent Gordon Smith that he would see that the Chiefs received a later portrait of himself.

Mr. John Buskard, official Court reporter, was engaged by the chiefs to take a full stenographic report of the proceedings. This will be placed on record with the other interesting archives of the Six Nations—the mother of Parliaments on the continent of America.

Col. Lowther was very much interested in hearing that the chiefs were suffering tortures from nervousness. Miss Marguerite Lees, 91 Robert St., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was a wreck, reduced in body, and despondent. I suffered tortures from nervousness, and was totally unfitted for work. A friend recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I commenced taking it and by the time the second bottle was consumed I knew that I was mending. Gradually I grew well. I have used Hood's since. I would not be without it on any account, and do most enthusiastically endorse every word in its favor."

Each taste demands another. After you've eaten the first one, all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't drag you from the second. What makes the nutlike zest? Mother's knowledge and Rainbow Flour. It's not so surprising that the best flour should make the best doughnuts—is it? So just remember to specify "Rainbow" when you want flour. In using Rainbow Flour for pastry, more water (added slowly) is required and less flour.

THE WOMAN PIONEER.

She Has To "Look Ahead and Laugh" In the Far Northwest.

It is at Moose Portage, two days' journey by trail from Lesser Slave Lake, that we made the acquaintance of the pioneer white woman of the district.

One naturally expects a pioneer to be, at least, middle-aged, a little stern and weather-beaten, with homesick lines apparent and wistful eyes that seem to be forever looking for something missed. Lo and behold our Moose Portage pioneer is in the twenties, a round, rosy, slip of a thing, with beautiful braids of hair, and more dimples than there is any call for. She is a proud person, proud of her husband, of her three rumping, sturdy youngsters, of her position as leading lady of the place. Of pity she will have none.

"No, I didn't lose my grip, and I didn't whine for my folks—or even for neighbors. I knew they'd come. My man said to me often 'an' often, 'Can you stand it, Polly?' an' I generally answered with a laugh. It's a good way to answer a man, especially if he's kind of down in the mouth. What gives most women homesteaders the blues is thinking about their own loneliness, and pining themselves. The only way to do is count the cost before you start, and never look behind. My man and I came out to make a home and get well-to-do. We've been home already, the well-to-do-ness will come after a while. Sure thing."

It's worse than useless for any woman, especially any young married woman, to try life in the wilds unless heaven's given her a lot of hope and courage. Having her babies and raising them without a doctor or nurse—that's the hard part. You see, it's a time when a woman is naturally nervous—and nervousness is catching. The man gets it, too. I've seen more than one homestead abandoned about this time. The couple trek back east and lose their chance, all through crossing bridges they've not come to yet. The watchword I give to every settler, wife who passes by is: "Look ahead, and laugh."

"Do I like it here? I wouldn't live anywhere else if I could. I'm proud of our settlement—oh, yes, we've a settlement now, and neighbors, and a postoffice, and lots of things. We're going to have a school. They're bound 'I'll be trustee, and I guess I will just by way of example. It seems fair and proper that the women that help make neighborhoods, and raise the kiddies that fill the schoolhouses, should take a hand in running things. Four years ago we gave a Christmas dinner, and all the persons we could drum up to eat my perfectly good wild turkey was a half-breed trapper, and old man Powderface—who couldn't relish any bird that had been plucked before roasting. This Christmas I'm giving a feast to the white families, and I've thirty-one acceptances. How's that for a growing population? Four fiddlers, a mouth organ or two, and an accordion—that's going some. I see where I'm going to be a busy woman. Say," with anticipatory relish, "I wish you could be at our pioneer party."

So do I. I would like to make the acquaintance of the settlers, the hunters, trappers, freighters, farmers, with their wives and bairns who will make up that party like 40 bear their experiences. Would like to see the table with its weight of cheer; above all would like to watch the play of the Pioneer's dimples. "Look ahead and laugh"—it is a pretty good motto.—Jean Blewett in Canadian Courier.

Wolves In Frontenac.

Warden Godkin of Frontenac County, Ont., tells an interesting story of the depredations of a pack of timber wolves in the Township of Clarendon, not far from his own home.

A woodman was busy in an old pinery not far from Mr. Godkin's home the other day when he was startled by a deer running past him tongue out and showing every sign of exhaustion. Following the animal and gaining steadily on the beast were three wolves. The man started in pursuit but to the amazement found that coming from behind were more wolves, a whole pack in fact.

The chopper made for the clearing where he found help. A party set out after the pack and finally came upon the warm body of the deer on the ice of a small lake close by. The animal had doubled up and circled on its pursuers but without avail. The flesh was half consumed and the bones were strewn about the ice. On the approach of the men the pack had withdrawn.

The men secured some strychnine, which they spread on the still warm meat. Returning next morning three large wolves and two foxes were found on the ice dead.

Eating a Church.

Of all the things that may befall a church, nothing could be much stranger than the destruction of a little house of worship north of Hudson Bay, as once reported by the bishop of the diocese.

He had attended a synod of the Canadian Church at Winnipeg, and there had seen a missionary bishop who had been six weeks on the way, having come most of the distance in a canoe. The missionary bishop reported gravely that the diocese of a brother bishop had "gone to the dogs."

Being asked for an explanation, he said that the Eskimos in the diocese had built a church with whales' ribs for rafters, and covered it with walrus hide. The little church held eighty persons; but in the time that elapsed between two services the building was set upon by a pack of famished dogs, and actually devoured it in a few hours.

Costs High To Live in Canada.
 Prof. McKenzie, chairman of the commission appointed to report to the Toronto Board of Trade on the high cost of living in Canada, declares in an article in the Canadian Magazine, that since 1900 food prices have increased almost four times as much in Canada as in England.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Says Sage and Sulphur Darkens Hair Beautifully and Ends Dandruff.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea
and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, says a well known down town druggist. It was our grandmother's treatment, and hundreds of women and men too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, for we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.
Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home.

All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50c.
a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this to-night and by morning the gray hair disappears and after, another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray haired folks, get busy; look years younger.

ADVICE

Money spent on keeping time pieces "on the job" is really a necessary expenditure.
Plenty of good watches aren't doing their best work, simply because they can't.
Many a fifty or hundred dollar watch is being slowly but surely ruined, because it needs a dollars worth of cleaning.

If this reminds you that your watch is in that shape, let it also remind you that our repair dept.
can attend to your needs on short notice.

The chief backed upstairs and closed the door, but this was broken in by Saunders.

When his hand came through Chief Saunders shot at it, but to no effect. As the maniac came on though the bullet had reached its mark. Another shot was fired striking him in the thigh and Saunders then fell over. He was conveyed to the hospital where his recovery is regarded as doubtful.

THE ART OF SQUASHING.

Apt Replies Which Have Settled Important Persons.

When Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman formed his Ministry he issued an order that all Ministers should surrender their directorships of public companies. There were some exceptions, and two of those were Mr. Hudson Kearley and Mr. Lough, both chairmen of prosperous provision and grocery companies in which tea was the chief article of consumption. When Campbell-Bannerman was pressed as to the exceptions he replied that of course a Minister could not be expected to give up a family directorship or a directorship in a philanthropic institution. "Is the sale of tea a philanthropic business?" asked the persistent Unionist questioner.

"That," replied Campbell-Bannerman, promptly, "depends on the tea." One morning the famous artist Whistler had scarcely entered the men's studio at his atelier in Paris before he spotted an Englishman who was smoking as he worked, and he brilliantly illuminated by a huge candle burning in the foreground. He again looked at it long and hard; then, quietly turning, said, in a dangerously-subdued tone: "How beautifully you have painted the Good morning, gentlemen." A more crestfallen man than the artist, as he pecked up his sketches, surely never was seen.

A clergyman who was traveling stopped at an hotel much frequented by wags and jokers. The host, not being used to having a clergyman at his table, looked at him with surprise; the guests used all their rillery of wit upon him without eliciting a remark. The clergyman ate his dinner quietly, apparently without observing the gibes and sneers of his neighbors. One of them, at last, in despair at his forbearance, said to him: "Well, I wonder at your patience. Have you not heard all that has been said to you?" "Oh, yes; but I am used to it. Do you know who I am?" "No, sir." "Well, I will inform you. I am chaplain of a lunatic asylum."

Indian Fishers.
The mode of fishing prevalent among the native Indians is exceedingly interesting. They begin with their nets, regardless of weather conditions, on a species of raft known as a catamaran, which consists of three or more roughly hewn timbers lashed together longitudinally so arranged that one end tapers into a slightly curved bow and propelled both by paddles and by the wind. The enormous supply of fish in the coast waters of southern India and the diversified varieties of food, oil and fertilizer fishes obtainable, the future of the fishing industry, under scientific supervision, may be reckoned as most promising, says the consul. As a source of food supply for the multitudinous population, nutrition it constitutes an indispensable factor in the natural resources of the country. In recognition of this fact the British Government has actively set about to protect and develop the fishing resources of southern India by modern and scientific methods. As an experimental station established at Cannanore on the southwest coast, expert pisciculturists performed notable labors.

Man as Bad as 7,000 Years Ago.
"Man has shown no improvement either in intellectuality or morals from the days of the earliest Egyptians and Syrians, 7,000 years ago, to the kneeling of the latest Dreadnought," according to a survey which Dr. Alfred Russell Wallace, known as the "grand old man of science," completed on the eve of his 90th birthday. "There has been, of course, a great accumulation of human knowledge," he adds, "but for all that we are no cleverer than the ancients. There is still more abominable vice going on; every kind of cruelty to the poor and children; adulteration in every commodity, and lies everywhere. The average of mankind will remain the same until natural selection steps in to raise it. The outlook is hopeful."

PRESIDENT TAFT

Sends His Reply to Mexico--The Contents are Unknown--Uncle Sam is Quite Ready to Land Troops.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Taft's reply to Madero's appeal to keep United States troops out of Mexico, pending his further attempt to put down the Diaz revolt, is going hence today. While its exact nature had not been disclosed early today, it is understood to be practically a reaffirmation of the United States Government attitude as previously expressed, coupled with a strong warning to Madero that the United States has the right to land its troops in Mexico to protect Americans and other foreigners should a state of anarchy come about, or should either of the opposing forces extend protection.

The latest phases of the situation were considered at a cabinet meeting which lasted until early this morning. At its close it was announced that the reply to Madero's telegram of Saturday should go forward. Meanwhile the army and navy continues to move in position to do instant work.

TAFT'S REPLY.
(Courier Leased Wire).
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Taft's reply to Madero's appeal to withhold American intervention in Mexico, sent by telegraph, was made public by Secretary Knox today as follows:
"From your excellency's telegram which reached me the 14th, it appears that your excellency was somewhat misinformed as to the policy of the United States towards Mexico.

which has been uniform for two years, and the naval and military measures thus far taken which are measures of natural precaution. The ambassador telegraphed that when you were good enough to show him your telegram to me he pointed out this fact.

"Your Excellency must, therefore, be aware that the reports which appear to have reached you that orders have already been given to land forces were inaccurate. The ambassador, who is fully informed is nevertheless again instructed to afford you any desirable information. Fresh assurances of friendship to Mexico are unnecessary after two years of proof of patience and good will.

"In view of the special friendship and relations between the two countries, I cannot too strongly impress upon your excellency the vital importance of the early establishment of that real peace and order which this government has so long hoped to see, both because American citizens and their property must be protected and respected and also because this nation sympathizes deeply with the afflictions of the Mexican people.

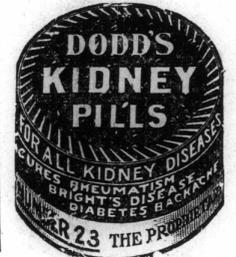

"In reciprocating the anxiety shown by your excellency's message, I feel it my duty to add sincerely and without reserve that the course of events during the past two years culminating in the present most dangerous situation, creates in this country extreme pessimism and the conviction that the present paramount duty is the prompt relief of the situation.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

Missionary Meetings

Arrangements are now complete in connection with the Men's Missionary meetings for Tuesday, 18th, beginning in the Park Baptist Church at 11 o'clock, and the afternoon session at 2 o'clock. Experts on Mission work will devote practically the whole time in discussing the question from every angle, as affecting the local church, as well as the functions of the local missionary committee, with special reference to the Every Member Canvass. One special feature of the afternoon session will be the address by Rev. Dr. Murdoch McKenzie, now on furlough from China, and acknowledged as one of the real leaders in missionary work in the Presbyterian church, having been twenty-five years in the service of the church in the Far East. Those missing Dr. McKenzie will miss a real treat.

The supper will begin at 7 o'clock sharp in the Wellington St. church, and the programme of speakers is exceptionally good. Mr. Thos. Findley and Mr. S. J. Moore have been heard here before, but cannot come

The despatch adds that Mr Morgan is today being brought back to Naples on board the Steamship Caronia and that he is accompanied by two physicians and two nurses.

(Courier Leased Wire).
LONDON, Feb. 17.—The report about J. Pierpont Morgan's ill-health given out by the Exchange Telegraph Company has not been confirmed or even mentioned, through any other news source.

(Courier Leased Wire).
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—From authoritative private sources it is learned that Mr Morgan had an acute attack of indigestion three or four days ago, but it passed off and he is now in his usual health. He is leaving Alexandria to-day on the Caronia for Naples and is due in Naples on the 26th, and expects then to take his mental journey through Italy.

A Pretty Romance Becomes Known

(Courier Leased Wire).
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—When five years-old Bertha Wachter came home from St. Mark's Hospital to-day with burrs, which six weeks ago seemed certain to cause her death, well healed, a pretty romance became known. Charles Kaplow, swimming instructor of the Young Men's Christian Association, while temporarily employed as a clerk at Roosevelt Hospital, overheard a nurse say that Bertha Wachter was dying in St Marks because no one could be found who would give up enough skin to be grafted on to the girl to save her life. Kaplow said nothing of his intentions but gave up his job, quietly sought out the strange little sufferer and insisted he part with enough of his skin to save her. His modest sacrifice made him such a hero that it is said several nurses wrote notes proposing marriage, but Kaplow scorned their proposals and made one for himself to Miss Edith Lee, the nurse who attended him at St Marks during the two weeks he was confined to a cot after the operation. It was immediately accepted and they will be married soon.

Child Almost Strangled

You never know what minute a child will develop a bad cold or be seized by croup. For this reason it takes a great burden off every mother's mind to have at hand Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Mrs. E. W. Silver, South Millford, Annapolis Co., N.S., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my little boy with most satisfactory results. His throat would fill up with phlegm so bad that he could scarcely make a sound, and I thought he would surely strangle. He grew worse, and he frequently had bad attacks, so I began using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Scarcely half a bottle was used when the strangling ceased. This medicine had a wonderfully soothing effect, and when he had taken two bottles I could not tell that he had any throat trouble. We have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment, with equally good results. It is a grand medicine for salt rheum." There are imitations, but the genuine Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

Miss Josephine Morden of Windsor, arrived in the city the end of last week and will be the guest of Miss Birdie Gardiner, O.I.B., for three or four weeks.

The death occurred from pneumonia in London, Ont., on Saturday last of Dr. Pardee Cook, a prominent young physician there, and well known to many Brantfordites, who will hear with sincere regret of his demise.

The "Talent Tea" given by the Junior W. H. A. at the Club Rooms of the Y. W. C. A. on Saturday afternoon was a most successful affair and reflects all kinds of credit on the energetic members and their president, Miss Preston. A neat little sum was added to the rapidly growing bank account.

The Reading Room of the Y. W. C. A. was well filled on Saturday afternoon when the Literary Club took up Scandinavian and Japanese Folk Lore as the day's subject. Interesting papers were read on current events by Miss Muriel Bennett, Japanese Folk Lore by Miss Helen Kippax, and Scandinavian Folk Lore written by Miss Nora Tomlinson, but in her absence read by Miss Leone Park. Afterwards Mrs. Aird delighted her hearers by the singing of a little Japanese love song.

Mrs. Dion Bonicault, a little, white haired old lady, was one of the most interesting guests at the "Dialect Drama dinner" given by the O. P.

Club at the Hotel Cecil, London, England, recently.

She said she could not conceive why an ancient party like herself, who entered on her eightieth birthday on Christmas Day, should be asked to attend that dinner. She could not believe there was any "ancient mariner" present who had ever seen her play her first part, which was called "The Spoiled Child." She could only suppose she had been asked to respond to the toast of the "Irish Drama," because she was a Scotswoman, having been born at Edinburgh.

Speaking of "The Colleen Bawn," the pioneer of so much dialect drama, she said Queen Victoria came to see it three times in one fortnight. Mrs. Bonicault, referring to the production in London of "Arra-na-pogue," in which her husband made such an impression with his song, "The Wearin' of the Green," said that on the night of the production the Fenians blew up Clerkenwell Prison, and a tremendous sensation was caused throughout the country. Her husband's advisors begged him, in consequence, not to sing the song, but he said that he would, and he did. Her Majesty's advisors said that the song should be prohibited, and she believed, they issued an edict to that effect. And the song was not heard for many years in England, though it aroused loveable feelings in every Irish heart.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh), that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

STORY OF THE VICEROY

LORD HARDINGE WAS KING EDWARD'S OWN DIPLOMAT.

The Ruler of India, Who Was Wounded in Delhi Recently, Accompanied the Peacemaker on His Celebrated Tour and Later Did Important Work in St. Petersburg—Entered the Service in 1880.

The steady improvement in the health of Lord Hardinge, Viceroy of India, who was wounded by a malcontent while entering Delhi in state recently, is a matter of congratulation throughout the British Empire. Lord Hardinge became Viceroy of India in 1910 in succession to Lord Minto. As Sir Charles Hardinge, he had already made for himself a great reputation in diplomacy. He was the Minister chosen to accompany the late King Edward on his famous peacemaking tour of Europe in 1903, and later, as Ambassador at St. Petersburg, he played an important part in the settlement of Anglo-Russian disputes and the creation of the existing entente between the two countries.

Son of the second Viscount Hardinge, brother of the present holder of the title, and grandson of a former Governor-General of the great Dependency, Charles Hardinge was born in June, 1838, and is, therefore, in his fifty-fifth year. After a brilliant career at Cambridge he entered the diplomatic service in 1860, his first appointment being to Constantinople, where he had the good fortune to serve as private secretary to Lord Dufferin, then Ambassador. Berlin in 1884, Washington in the following year, and Sofia in 1887 were his next steps, and as Charge d'Affaires he negotiated treaties at Bucharest. After three years in Paris he became Secretary of Legation in Tientsin, where he added to his mastery of the Turkish language a knowledge of Persian. From the post of Secretary of Embassy at St. Petersburg, to which he was appointed in 1898, he was recalled in 1900 to take the position of Assistant-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

In the following year the young diplomat was created K.C.M.G. and K.C.V.O., and returned to St. Petersburg as Ambassador to the Russian court. His appointment to a position of such importance at the age of forty-five was probably unique. But his qualifications for the post were also exceptional. They were referable to his previous experience of the Russian capital and of Paris and Tientsin, as well as to his intimate association with the master diplomat, King Edward. The sequel to his Ambassadorship was the agreement concluded three years later, by which Great Britain and Russia composed ancient and dangerous differences concerning their respective spheres of influence in Asia.

In February, 1906, Sir Charles succeeded Sir Thomas (now Lord) Sanderson as Permanent Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. In the same year he accompanied King Edward on the visits to Athens and Friedrichshof, and was also his Majesty's Minister in attendance in 1907 at Wilhelmshöhe and Ischl; in 1908 at Copenhagen, Stockholm, Christiania, Friedrichshof, and Ischl; while in February, 1909, he was again called upon to attend the King during his visit to the German Emperor in Berlin. On his appointment to be Viceroy of India, Sir Charles, who has been the recipient of a great many titular distinctions, was raised to the peerage as Baron Hardinge of Penshurst.

There is only one case on record of the actual assassination of a Viceroy of India—the Earl of Mayo being fatally stabbed by a prisoner in 1872 during a visit to a convict settlement. The murder had no political motive, but during recent years, as a result of the unrest which followed the partition of Bengal, the life of a Viceroy has been aimed at, on more than one occasion.

In November, 1909, an outrage occurred which presents a remarkable parallel to the recent attempt. Lord Minto was making a tour of India, and during a procession through Ahmedabad two bombs were thrown at his carriage. One was cleverly intercepted by the sabre of a sergeant of the Inniskilling Dragoons; the other hit the umbrella, which was being held over Lady Minto and fell harmless to the ground. The culprits were never discovered, although three men were sent to penal servitude for giving false information to the police.

Lord Minto's predecessor, Lord Curzon, it appears was also once in peril. Four men were deputed to kill Lord Curzon as he was passing in the Delhi Durbar of 1891, but the outrage of the conspirators failed at the last moment.

Child Almost Strangled

Never know what minute a child will develop a bad cold or be strangled. For this reason it is a great burden off every mother's mind to have at hand Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. F. W. Silver, South Milford, N.S., writes: "I have Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my little boy, most satisfactory results. His chest would fill up with phlegm so that he could scarcely make a breath and I thought he would surely die. He grew worse, and he had had attacks, so I bought Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Scarcely half a bottle was used when the strangling effect was gone. This medicine had a wondrous soothing effect, and when he had taken two bottles I could not believe he had any throat trouble. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with equally good results. It is a good medicine for salt rheum. There are imitations, but the genuine Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine bears the portrait of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author."

BOWSER'S CANCER

He Gets It In the Neck and Has a Narrow Escape.

BUT MANAGES TO SURVIVE.

After Accusing the Missis of Attempting to Kill Him by Jabbing a Poisoned Darning Needle into His Neck and Demanding a Divorce.

By M. QUAD.

MR. BOWSER woke up and sighed. He sat up and groaned. He got out of bed muttering the curly replied:

"I came downstairs with a scowl on his face and sat down to the breakfast table with a bang, and when Mrs. Bowser solicitously inquired if he had been hitting for a long collar button he curtly replied:

"A man standing on the brink of his grave doesn't feel much like joking."

"Why, you never looked better in your life."

"Perhaps not."

He maintained a frigid attitude during the remainder of the meal, and she thought of the coal bill, the gas bill, the butcher bill and the lost clothespins and wondered where the thunderbolt would strike. When they went upstairs he pulled off his coat and vest and pulled back his collar and said:

"I want you to look at the back of my neck. It has pained me all night. Isn't there a lump around there somewhere?"

"I can't say for certain," she replied as she inspected, "but I should think you had been bitten by a spider. There's a lump there, and it's a very, very

"But how can I have a bite on the back of my neck?" he demanded as he drew away.

"A spider can bite you anywhere."

"Spider be banded?" he shouted. "I tell you I have a cancer."

"You can't have it."

"And I'm a doomed man!"

"Nonsense! It may possibly develop into a boil."

"But what have I done to bring out a boil? What am I doing to deserve it? I have got the feeling that it's a cancer. Father and mother died of them."

"Your mother died of a weak heart, and a rolling sawing caused your father's death," protested Mrs. Bowser. "It's either a bite or a boil and may be gone in a day."

The Discovery.

Mr. Bowser was not convinced. He went to the telephone to get the family doctor, but Mrs. Bowser dissuaded him by saying:

"Let it go till night and give it a chance to develop."

"And for a cancer to seize me in its fangs!"

He started for the office carrying his head stiffly, and soon after he had left the house the cook came up to say:

"You'd better go downtown to see about a new cook, ma'am. If that turns out to be a cancer on Mr. Bowser's neck I wouldn't stay in this house for $100 a week. I was working for a man once who had one, and he got up in the night and tried to murder me."

Mrs. Bowser hoped against hope until 11 o'clock in the afternoon. Then Mr. Bowser came home, two hours ahead of time. She saw the glare in his eyes and he banged the hall door open, and she knew that something had blossomed out and become a fixture.

"Do you know what this infernal thing is?" he demanded as he sat down on the lounge and lifted his hands to his neck.

"I'm sorry if it's a cancer," she replied.

"Well, it is, and it will probably cause my death before the week is out! It is the opinion of the doctor that poison has been injected into my system."

"But how could such a thing happen?"

In Full Bloom.

He stared at her fixedly for half a minute and then bent such a ferocious look on the family cat, who stood eying him with anxiety, that the animal uttered a hiss and fled into the parlor. Mrs. Bowser at once went down to the kitchen to make a flaxseed poultice, and, although it was evident that Mr. Bowser regarded her as a would-be murderess, she got his collar and tie off and the poultice on after a little argument. He had no appetite for dinner, and during the long evening he dozed and muttered and threw out dark hints.

Tuesday morning the "cancer" was almost full bloom, and Mr. Bowser hunting for lost pins. During the day and evening he had ten fresh poultices, and Mrs. Bowser made him gruel, tea and toast about once an hour. He had little to say, but it was evident that he knew she arranged for that thing days beforehand.

Wednesday morning the cancer had reached perfection and would have taken the prize at any county fair. The color was deep red, and the hardness was akin to a November pear. Mr. Bowser took a position on the floor with his back on the lounge and only moved when fresh poultices were applied or the cat set up a wall. Seeing that he was helpless, the cook decided to stay on, but held herself ready for any sudden emergency. Along with ward evening Mr. Bowser delivered a brief address on Lucrezia Borgia. It was leveled at Mrs. Bowser, and she understood.

Wanted Will Drawn.

Friday morning Mr. Bowser got up with a bad bump on his back, and as he ate his tea and toast he requested Mrs. Bowser to telephone for a lawyer to draw up his will and added with considerable zest that he should leave every dollar of his possessions to found an asylum for tramps. She telephoned, but the lawyer had gone off on a bump, and his office boy declined the job. The cat was barred out of the room all day, and word was sent to the cook that if she didn't stop banging the dishpan about the hand of justice would clutch her throat with merciless grasp. There were moments when Mr. Bowser favored Mrs. Bowser to hold his hand and promise that she would visit his last resting place once a week during the rest of her life, and there were moments when he charged her with getting up in the middle of the night to run a poisoned darning needle into the back of his neck to cut short his days. The bell was muffled, the curtains drawn, and to all anxious inquiries the cook replied:

"No, he isn't dead yet, nor have they sent him away to an insane asylum, but we are prepared for the worst. He may sink away as softly as a canary bird, or he may try to tear the house down before he goes."

He Survives.

Mr. Bowser was still alive when Saturday morning dawned, and, although he announced that his end was near, he insisted on creeping downstairs to his favorite lounge. Mrs. Bowser had used up five pounds of flaxseed and a pint of arnica on the cancer, but was still hard at work and making no complaints. She announced a decided improvement, with signs of a burst, but he took no interest in her words. At noon, however, he crossed himself and admitted he had not been the husband he ought to have been and asked for forgiveness for his many shortcomings. She freely forgave him, and an hour later he demanded to know why she hadn't strangled him with the needle instead of sleeping instead of resorting to poison. The afternoon waned and evening came, and it was necessary for Mrs. Bowser to visit the drug store after more flaxseed. The druggist was a kind hearted man, and he did his best to cheer her. He had had thirty years' experience in the drug business, and in all that time he had never known a cancer on the back of the neck to prove fatal. Such a thing taken in conjunction with a head-on collision, the collapse of a building or an earth quake shock had brought about direful results, but alone by itself was not greatly to be feared.

The Recovery.

Mrs. Bowser returned home in more cheerful spirits, and as she softly opened the front door she was alarmed to hear Mr. Bowser dancing about and singing a verse of a topical song. At the door of the sitting room she beheld him cavorting about with the cat in his arms and the bandages off his neck, and as she cried out in alarm he turned and shouted:

"Yes, woman, your fourteeneth and you can instruct your lawyer to see my lawyer tomorrow morning!"

"But what did I do?" she asked.

"Poisoned a darning needle as I slept and then jabbed me!"

"You can't believe it!"

"And but for my strength of will it would have been a cancer instead of a boil. Think it over tonight and tell me in the morning how much alimony you want."

TRAPPING THE BANDIT.

How Jewelers Are Combining to Fight the New Criminal.

The craze for jewel snatching on the part of armed men in motor cars has, as everyone knows, spread recently from Paris to London, and now large jewelers are spending anxious hours over the question of securing the safety of their stock.

Security devices of all sorts have been fitted up literally by scores within the last two or three months, and any bold bandit that thinks that there is still a big harvest to be reaped by simply snatching jewelry from the counter and waving a revolver behind him would—at any rate, in any of the large London jewelers—soon find his mistake.

The device that is being most generally adopted is that of a safety bolt, worked either by a button below the counter or by a lever pressed by the foot. With the latter, particularly, the door to the safety of the street can be slightly barred without rousing the slightest suspicion on the part of the most observant operators.

Nowadays, if a jeweler is showing you trays of rings for your fiancée, and if, when putting one aside, he does not at first touch the counter, it may give you rather an eerie feeling to reflect that you are a prisoner till he does.

The beauty of this electric safety bolt is that not only can the thief be kept in, but any accomplice can be prevented from coming to his assistance.

A similar safety device is a button arrangement connected with the sliding curtain which has taken the place of the old shutter system. A touch of the button, and there is an iron wall between the bandit and car that is waiting for him at the curb.

Many jewelers are adopting the street-going system. The button in this instance not only works the safety bolt or iron curtain as the case may be, but sounds a large gong on the outside of the shop—a warning that police help is urgently needed within.

But for an unarmed jeweler's assistant deliberately to lock an armed jewel thief in with himself demands some courage. So in scores of jewelers, the assistants have had revolvers served out, to be kept in a convenient place just below the counter.

In one big city establishment the whole staff were recently mustered a quarter of an hour earlier each morning for a fortnight for revolver practice in the basement.

The cunning jewel thief chooses his time. Lunch time is a favorite occasion, or immediately before closing time, when there is possibly only one assistant on duty, the rest being either at lunch or tidying themselves for the street.

Some jewelers, who cannot afford or do not believe in safety devices, are arranging innocent sounding code words that will bring the second assistant conveniently near the suspected customer's back the moment the thief makes a dash for the door.

It is not to be supposed, however, that jewelers were helpless in the hands of the jewel thieves before the four major bank outrages took place in London recently.

Many big jewelers have long had—ever since the window smothering epidemic of some years ago, indeed—safe glass in broken, sink-out of sight and out of reach of grasping hands.

And, if you have noticed, few jewelers have been overhauling times nowadays. The change dates from a very clever trick that brought big hauls many years ago.

The thief, well armed, would walk in, and look through some rings. At an opportune moment he would slip one of the finest out, and casually fix it to the underside of the overhanging rim, either with a blob of wax or a simple staple. In a second or two its absence would be noticed, and the customer challenged. Indignantly he would demand to be searched. Naturally, he went scot-free, or got, at most, a few hours in the cells.

Meanwhile, a confederate would have strolled into the shop, ten minutes after the incident, on the pretext of making some small purchase, and walk off with the ring.

"So jewelers' counters seldom overcharge nowadays," jewelers, as the next motor bandit will find, soon learn.

Clothes and Conduct.

Every man and every woman feels the influence of clothes and appearance upon conduct. You have heard of the lonely man in the Australian bush who always puts on evening dress for dinner so that he might remember he was a gentleman. Addison could not write his best unless he was well dressed. Put a naughty girl in her best Sunday clothes and she will behave quite nicely; put a blackguard into khaki and he will be a hero; put an omnibus conductor into uniform and he will live up to his clothes. Indeed, in a millennium of free clothes of the latest fashion we shall all be archangels.—London Chronicle.

Free Shaves.

A Stegney vicar has, as a branch of his social work, provided free shaves for the unemployed. He secured a somewhat dilapidated building, which provided a large locker room for the Helping Hand Club, and in the basement shaving facilities are available. "Gentlemen are requested to wash their faces before being shaved," a prominently displayed notice. Another notice announces: "Gentlemen may wash their shirts any night. Notices must be given the night before."

India Exports Its First Steel.

The export of finished steel products, which marks the first shipment of steel goods to Japan, amounting to 500 tons at an average value of $32 per ton. The Tata plant, at which it was manufactured, was completed only a short time ago and has a capacity of about 400 tons a day. Its products are pig iron, rails and bars. It is the only steel mill in India and consumes the native ore of the empire.

That's How Magnus Johnson Got Relief From Kidney Troubles

They told him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.—He did and his Backache and other sickness speedily vanished.

LAC LA NONNE, Alta, Feb. 17.—(Special)—If you have Kidney trouble of any kind, from Backache to Bright's Disease, and don't know how to cure it, ask your neighbors. They'll tell you to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Such is the experience of Magnus Johnson, a well known farmer residing near here. In an interview, Mr. Johnson says:

"In the year 1907 I took a pain in my back, due to a strain and hard work. I kept getting worse. In the fall of 1908 I was unable to do any hard work and began to suffer a great deal. I did not know what to do, and told one of my neighbors. He handed me a Dodd's Kidney Pills. After reading it I concluded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and after using five boxes I feel fine and able to do any kind of hard work. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Kidneys, and I cannot praise them too much."

NEW FIRST SEA LORD
PRINCE HENRY IS A SAILOR
FROM HIS BOOTS UP.
Successor to Sir Francis Bridgeman is Popular in Britain and in the Navy—His First Acts Were to Become a Sailor and an Englishman
—He Has Seen Long and Arduous Service.

Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman
having resigned, for reasons of health, H.S.H. Prince Louis Alexander of Battenberg, G.C.B., G.C.V.O., K.C.
M.G., A.D.C., the Second Sea Lord,
has become First Sea Lord of the Admiralty. His Serene Highness was fourteen when he joined the navy. If he were to be fourteen again to-morrow, to-night he would be packing his box to go through with it again, says
The London Sketch. Born in Austria in 1854, one of the first acts of his youth was to become an Englishman and a sailor. He is perhaps the most distinguished of all the King's naturalized subjects. Citizen he can hardly be called, for as a life-long sailor he is as little drawn to the notion of a town life as the ordinary man to the notion of a fortnight in the Bay of Biscay. When his wife and children are installed in town, and he keeps them company, he looks for no more than domestic satisfaction. He prefers a flagship to the Admiralty buildings, and his bridge to Buckingham Palace.
That is why, when he was seen dining at the Ritz with Mr. Winston Churchill a few weeks back, and chunching the next day at the Ritz in the same company, it was known that that business was brewing. He is no means the habitual diner-out.
Lord Charles Bessford, site among diplomats and diamonds more often

PRINCE LOUIS OF BATTENBERG.

In a month that Prince Louis in a year. The First Sea Lord is always at sea—even when his tanned face and princely reputation are still flutter round a ballroom and the tables of a London restaurant; or so, at least, he would urge upon the credulous. For with most sailors like Winston himself, he has paid smiling homage to the Blarney Stone.
Promotion, they say comes by devious ways. Prince Louis has promoted himself. He has seen long service and active service; he has been diligent at manoeuvres; admittedly he was the most intelligent of his year at the Intelligence Department.
The Mediterranean fleet, the Atlantic fleet, the home fleet, all know him for what he is—an able officer.
He has devised special watches, and is the inventor of a much-approved course-indicator, a tactical instrument. He has written on the affairs of his profession, and translated, but without his name, Captain Semenov's "Rasplati; or, the Atonement," in which the officer seeks to account for the disasters inflicted by the Japanese on the Russian fleet. There was, perhaps, international reason for anonymity, but the prince's translation is too good to go long unclaimed. His own record may be summarized up and down; for all branches of his profession he has the zeal of a man whose heart and head are cleared for action.
He passes from one distinction to another on the strength of the credentials that have taken forty-four years to win. He no more owes promotion to social standing than did Lord Nelson.

This is a service not easily cooled.
The office of Lord High Admiral was revived for the Duke of Clarence in 1827, but a year later he was told by the Duke of Wellington that he would have to go, with the option of resigning. It is true there is no Iron Duke in the present Cabinet—nor is one wanted. "Royalty Campbell" one is reminded, is the name borne by one distinguished officer in the service, because he is a close friend of the present King; but even his enemies can detect no unseemly leaps and bounds in his advancement. Those who best know the King's attitude towards the navy are the last to encourage the idea that he would ever let personal predilections weigh in the matter of promotion.
Royalty is not so easily moved in such matters as is sometimes supposed. When the late Duchess of Teck was approached in the interest of her friend Miss Helen Hemmiker, who wanted the post of lady-in-waiting to the British queen, she answered—in allusion to her own and the candidate's bulk—
"I should be delighted, but no carriage ever built could carry Helen and myself." That was neatly said;
but His Majesty's method of replying to the hints of his friends has been found rather more abrupt. In no case has Prince Louis profited by his ill-—rather the other way. The briefest description of him is that he was born a Serene Highness, but has lived it down. But he has done more than live down a title; he has built up another. And now, as the First Sea Lord, he holds a post that never, like that held by his friend at the Admiralty, raises a smile.

Fyde Customs.
The old May-Day revels were a survival of a festival held by the Romans in honor of Flora, the goddess of spring, and the rejoicing took the rigor of the winter were over. They continued in Lancashire during fourteen centuries after the Roman occupation of that country, and nowhere were they observed with greater zest than in the Fyde.
The great event of the day was an imposing piece of pageantry called "Bringing in May." A king and queen were crowned, the king and queen followed by the youth and maidens of the village dressed as followers or mummers, bearing garlands and attended by a band of minstrels, brought in the May, a bough of hawthorn covered with blossoms, as a sign of the coming of summer. As the procession passed through the town or village the streets were strewn with flowers, the mummers sang and danced, receiving as their reward sweetmeats and ale and wine from the housewives.

Seven Ancient Pensioners.
A remarkable old-age pension record has been established by a family in Norfolk. They comprise seven brothers and sisters, all of whom are receiving old-age pensions. The eldest of the seven is eighty and the youngest seventy-one. Their united ages total 530 years.

Dr. de Van's Female Pils
A reliable French regulator; never fails. These pills are exceedingly powerful in regulating the obstructive portions of the female system, and in all cheap imitations. Dr. de Van's are made in a box or three for sale at

NEVER TOO OLD TO WED.
Giddy Bridegrooms of 84 and Blushing
Brides of 80.

The bells of the little village of Keevil, in Wiltshire, rang out the other day for two old-age pensioners who were lovers fifty years ago, and were married after being married twice before. The old man had gone to the village post-office for his old-age pension, but he could not sign his order, and an old lady who was also in the office came to his assistance. His name was familiar to her, and when the next pension day had come round the two old people compared notes and discovered that they had been lovers fifty years ago. Each had married twice since then, and now they are married again for the third time—to each other.

A remarkable scene took place at the Wesleyan Central Hall, Rochester, some time ago, when William Hennan, who has the distinction of being the oldest post-boy in England, led Henry Wadhams to the altar. Mr.
Hennan looked quite sprightly in his ninety-four years. It is probably he may have been said to have looked no older than his bride, though she had the advantage of fourteen years over him, being just turned eighty.
Perhaps the most remarkable instance of youth and age joining in matrimony occurred quite lately at Brighton. This braiding town has made a husband of a young man of people, and among others is Mr.
James Doughty, the oldest clown in England. He is still fond of surprising his friends, for though he is ninety-three years of age, and lost his first wife a short time since, he has married his housekeeper, a young lady of no more than twenty-four years, his friends have joyfully recorded the marriage of a certain vicar, whom they described as nearer ninety than eighty years of age. He had vacated his im-pudency two years ago owing to his marrying a young man, but he did not himself too old for wedlock. The marriage register gave the age of the bride as thirty-five and that of the bridegroom as "24."

When December mates with May,
one naturally expects the month of snow to be represented by the bridegroom and the month of blossoms by the bride. But that the roles are occasionally reversed was proved a short time ago, when a marriage, in which removed a husband of a young man of twenty-two, was dissolved in the Divorce Court. But the records of Cupid contain even more remarkable unions than that.

In fact, the position of the defence to make bitter attacks on the witnesses and on the procurer-general

dence in theatrical attitudes before

Rheumatism
Crippled Arms

So stiffened up by rheumatism that he could not dress himself without help was the condition of Mr. Clarke, who tells in this letter how he was entirely cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills.
The kidneys must be got right before rheumatism can be really cured, and hence the success of this great medicine. Mr. James Clarke, Mid-stone, Sask., writes: "I can honestly say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have done me a world of good, and cured me of rheumatism. For two years I suffered from rheumatism in the shoulders, and could not raise my arms above my head. I could not dress or undress myself without help, and was obliged to hire help to do my work. No medicine that I could find did me any good."
"A friend wrote from England and begged me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treatment soon brought relief, and in six months I was entirely free of rheumatism.
That was four years ago. I am now 60 years of age, and can do a day's work with any man."

BANDITS TRIAL
(Courier Leased Wire).
NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—A cable to The Tribune from Paris says: The eleventh day of the bandits' trial was characterized by violent disputes between witnesses and some of the prisoners. Judge Guinard, who is conducting the case with the most liberal and impartial spirit, is giving the accused all possible freedom of defence, but was obliged several times to-day to put a check on the violence of the prisoners' language.
The evidence produced against Carouy and Metzger in the assassinations of Mr. Moreas, a man ninety years old, and his housekeeper, Mme.
Marfen, aged seventy-one, at the outlying Paris suburb of Thiais, was overwhelming, and when confirmed amounts practically to a mathematical demonstration of the guilt of these two prisoners.
