THE HERALD

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

CORNER QUEEN AND ROBERT STREETS,

THE HERALD PRINTING AND PUBLISHING CO.

FREDERICTON, JANUARY 21, 1893.

A GROSS LIBEL

The Gleaser, for which no respectable man with any regard for his reputation, can be held to say a word of approval, showed its true character and its utter disregard for all decency on Friday night. In its rabid desire to spin out its old song attacks the honor and integrity, not only of the official, but also of the chief justice and the twelve sworn jurors who tried the McMichael case. It plainly intimates that the verdict and the sentence were the result of a deliberate design on the part of the attorney general to advance the professional interests of Mr. Hughes, the prisoners' counsel. It will strike the average reader as somewhat strange that Mr. Blair could be able, even if he so desired, to induce the twelve sworn jurors, made up of every class and creed, and of every political faith, to fall into line with him for such a purpose. The inference that he also succeeded in inducing the chief justice to assist him, even to the giving of the sentence, which the judge had entirely in his own hands, is such a gross and scandalous libel on his honor as to warrant the attention of the proper authorities. In order to lay a foundation for his whole sale indictment of judge and jury and crown counsel, the editor of the Gleaser, who probably never heard a word of the evidence, asks the public to believe that he knows more about the facts of the case than the twelve men who heard the evidence from beginning to end, and puts his construction of the law of murder above that of the chief justice of the province. The duty of the men who are called on to act as jurors in grave criminal cases is not a pleasant nor profitable one, but a professional gentleman, who did not know anything about roads, or very little at least, and he would support the resolution; that the road plan was used on the best roads and the poor roads left without any grant. Conn. Scott said that Dumfries was very hardy dealt with. Conn. Goodspeed said that everything was satisfactory in St. Marys. Conn. S. Inch said that Fisher had everything his own way in his parish, as he had managed the plow and put the money in his pocket. Conn. Fisher replied "That he had no connection whatever with the plow." Conn. Kinghorn said that Douglas had been fairly treated, all they could expect and there was no dissatisfaction there. Conn. McNally, Murray and Pinder spoke to the resolution, but their speeches would not interest the intelligent public. Conn. Goodspeed said that under the old system the small parishes had too large a grant and now the apportionment was more nearly equal, that Dumfries could not expect to get a large grant as Southampton or Stanley. Conn. Lawson detailed a terrible state of affairs which will be strange news to the people of Canterbury. He told of the holes in the road, of neglected culverts, etc., and wound up with a description of the speed shown by the locs over the same roads. As Canterbury has good roads several of the councillors were somewhat astonished. Conn. Mowatt said the old plan was followed in Manners-Sutton; that his commissioners got the grant and spent it and used the road plan to good advantage. The bill was then put and carried. Conn. Everett reported for market committee, that he had conferred with the chairman of the city market committee and was told that as the funds out of which the market was to be paid were low, the county council could not hope for a reduction of the market fees. Committee on nominating valuers for the county reported as follows: For district No. 1, Wm. McBean; No. 2, Byron McNally; No. 3, John Campbell, the latter to be chairman. Pinder. Conn. Fisher presented a bill for caretaker's wages to the amount of $10, referred to public accounts committee. They cut it down to $7.50, when it passed. Conn. Fullerton moved that the council adopt the law that there be no July session. After considerable discussion the bill was withdrawn, as a majority of the board were against it. Conn. Simmons introduced a bill, that an act be passed separating St. Croix from Dunlop parishes and McKean from Prince William and making these into a new parish. As it was considered by several to be too late in the session for such a bill, it was given six months hoist. The councillors then gathered up what stationery was left and adjourned, sine die.

We are living in a century of surprise. The following comes from editor Stead, of London, who, a celebrated man in his profession, has created quite an excitement and awe of anxious curiosity by the statement that "He believes the possibility of communicating with the dead will soon be established by scientific proof." And Mr. Fowler, the erudite editor of The Arena, in the January number of that magazine, dealing with the psychical phenomena concludes that "from the evidences already adduced we are on the threshold of a new world of knowledge."

The result of the murder trial seems to meet with general approval. The evidence for the defence showed such a strong case of provocation, and other extenuating circumstances, as to certainly justify the jury in reducing the crime to manslaughter. The statement of the chief justice who presided at the trial, that he entirely agreed with the verdict, and the lightness of the sentence he imposed upon the prisoners, shows that full justice was done in the case.

It appears very evident that George J. Colter is to be in the field in this county at the next contest for the dominion commons. It has not as yet been announced as to what place has been made for Mr. Temple, but there is not the least doubt but that he has secured a position. Nothing official has yet been announced, but it is as well to be ready to meet Mr. Colter as the standard bearer of the national policy.

In his letter to the world at large Mr. Lipsett says that he was discharged from the public service with only a day's notice. It is true, that for many reasons, the chief of which have been mentioned by Mr. Lipsett himself since his dismissal, he was told that he would not be wanted after the next day, but he was paid a month's salary in advance, and allowed to use that month to adjust the government. He should not complain.

As exchange remarks that if the C.P.R. is, as is stated, in the Nova Scotia coal mine "deal," this will be an additional reason why it should not be allowed to secure control of the Intercolonial. The right hand of a coal ring is the monopoly of all railways to the coal region; and the C.P.R. cannot get this in Nova Scotia without gobbling the Intercolonial.

The Ottawa Free Press says that the New Brunswick papers report that Judge Tuck has been making speeches praising the new dominion premier. Possibly the judge expects to be tucked into the vacant seat on the supreme court bench.

SCOTCH SETTLEMENT.

JAN. 14.—The social connection with the Congregational church, Keswick Ridge, was held at the home of Michael Mitchell on Thursday of last week, which was a most enjoyable evening was spent. During the evening the old gentleman, who is now past four score years, favored the company with several pieces of music on his violin, which was much enjoyed by all present.

While one of the farmers of Keswick Ridge was getting a load of hay on his interval to day, he was very much surprised to see, what he supposed to be, a large wolf coming towards the barn. On going near the animal it turned and went off in the opposite direction and disappeared in the wood. Here is a chance for our trapper.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell, of Man- loba, are at present visiting their many friends in New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Mitchell, of Chelmsford, Mass., are also visiting friends here.

KINGMAN, ME.

JAN. 16.—We have only about four inches of snow. All of the lumber operators are anxiously waiting for more as it is much needed to make good hauling from the yards.

We regret to announce the departure of George Stack for his home. He will be greatly missed as George was a general favorite with the whole crew.

We have five teams hauling to the mill. William Dougherty, of St. Andrews, drives the lead team, and when it comes to a hard pull, Billy is a dandy with the ribbons.

Our mill runs night and day. They are principally manufacturing lathes for which they find ready sale and good prices.

We are all glad to see Charles Elderkin around again. He was quite sick with sore throat for a few days.

COUNTY COUNCIL

Thursday's Proceedings.

Conn. Pinder introduced a petition that a ferry license issue to Alonzo McNally for five years, passed by the board without question as to the fee.

Conn. Fullerton moved that the legislature be petitioned to give the council power to impose a license fee on foreign peddlers, and in case the legislature refused giving the council power to pass such a law, that the legislature pass such a law with respect to York county.

Conn. Mowatt asked as to ferry license fees, if they were paid. Sec. replied that he had received one dollar only for such fees.

Conn. Kinghorn moved that debentures be issued to the amount of $1,200 to pay off existing debentures, the former debentures at six per cent to be paid by the new at four and a half per cent. Passed.

The question of a new valuation having arisen, conn. Pinder moved that the present valuations continue in office. It was decided to postpone the question till afternoon. The county was divided into valuation districts as follows: St. Marys, Douglas, Stanley and Bright; New Maryland, Kingsclear, Manners-Sutton and Prince William; Southampton, Dumfries, Canterbury, North Lake and Queensbury; each district to nominate one valuator.

After roll call, conn. Everett presented a resolution expressing sympathy for conn. McMullen, who had been called home by the illness of his son, and that the young man might be restored speedily to his duties.

Conn. Lawrence presented a resolution as follows: Whereas, it is the opinion of this board that the bye road money can be more carefully and economically expended by the commissioners appointed by the council, therefore resolved that the treasurer be empowered to petition the legislature to dispose of the bye road grants in the way heretofore employed, seconded by conn. Nason.

Conn. Fisher said that his parish had the full amount of bye road grant and it had been well expended and he had no fault to find, and would oppose the resolution.

Conn. Fullerton said that in his parish, Stanley, the whole amount had been put into the hands of one man, a professional gentleman, who did not know anything about roads, or very little at least, and he would support the resolution; that the road plan was used on the best roads and the poor roads left without any grant.

Conn. Scott said that Dumfries was very hardy dealt with. Conn. Goodspeed said that everything was satisfactory in St. Marys. Conn. S. Inch said that Fisher had everything his own way in his parish, as he had managed the plow and put the money in his pocket. Conn. Fisher replied "That he had no connection whatever with the plow." Conn. Kinghorn said that Douglas had been fairly treated, all they could expect and there was no dissatisfaction there. Conn. As it was considered by several to be too late in the session for such a bill, it was given six months hoist. The councillors then gathered up what stationery was left and adjourned, sine die.

Council Notes.

One amusing feature of the late session of the county council was the neat way in which the sec.-treasurer's bill for work was hidden. By looking at another column you will see the bill for $88.50 in the centre of a list of charges. It was reported correct by conn. Lawson for the committee and passed the board without the notice of the councillors knowing it. In fact some were expecting it till the last hour of the session, when they found that they had been "enchanted" badly. It is only $36.50 higher than the council paid for similar work last year, and perhaps this was the reason why Mr. Haining's bill for work on the building was reduced $52. This may be characterized as financing.

Another little incident that conveys its own moral was seen in the air of quiet majesty with which Mr. Pitts buttoned his robe around him, shook the dust of the council from his gaiters and left the room, when the official reporter was appointed. Herman was not well treated in other respects. His back took a peculiar curve, resembling an angered feline when a councillor would shake his hand and say, "Hello Pitts, how are you?" It was only to be expected that he looked for the title "honorable," and it was too much when it came to plain, very plain "Pitts." He departed and was seen no more.

While the discussion on the bye road money was going on, a councillor remarked to another that "there was no need for kicking, if the councillors had asked for the bye road grants they would have got them." This appeared to be the whole trouble, they had behaved so badly that they were ashamed to ask for the grant.

Next morning after the warden's supper a councillor in searching for a jack-knife pulled out a pair of nut crackers. He was asked by a colleague: "Why did you not take the spoons too, I took mine?"

Conn. Mowatt made some of the councillors squirm when he moved his resolution that parishes in debt add thirty per cent to their assessment for the year. He showed how his constituents were being

COUNT OF MONTE-CRISTO.

REVENGE OF EDMUND DANTES.

CHAPTER XXIII.

HAYDEE.

"Silence, child! Hush! we are fleeing!
I did not understand. Why should my father flee?"

Here Haydee cast a significant glance at Monte-Cristo, whose eyes had been riveted

"And this officer," said Albert, "do you remember his name, signora?"

Monte-Cristo exchanged a rapid glance with the young girl, which was quite unperceived

"It was towards this kiosk that we were rowing. A ground floor, ornamented with arabesques

"Near these barrels stood Selim, my father's favorite, whom I mentioned to you just now.

"What do you fear, Vasiliki?" said Selim, in a voice at once so gentle and so proud;

"Suddenly we heard loud cries; we listened:
they were cries of joy; the name of the French officer

"One morning my father sent for me; my mother had been crying all the night, and was very wretched

"My mother only answered by sighs to these consolations, which she knew did not come from my father's heart.

"But supposing our enemy should not allow us to do so?" said my mother.

everything. In the space of half an hour we shall know the sultan's answer.

"I will not quit you," said Vasiliki; if you die
my lord, I will die with you!

"Go to Selim!" cried my father.

"Fearwell! my lord," murmured my mother, determined quietly to await the approach of death.

"Take away Vasiliki!" said my father to his Palkares.

"As for me, I had been forgotten in the general confusion; I ran towards Ali Tebelen; he saw me hold out my arms to him,

"At first they appeared like black specks, and now they looked like birds skimming the surface of the waves.

Albert had often heard, not from his father, but from strangers, the description of the last moments of the visitor of Yanina;

"Had treated with the Sersakier Kourchid, who had been sent by the sultan to gain possession of the person of my father;

"And this officer," said Albert, "do you remember his name, signora?"

Monte-Cristo exchanged a rapid glance with the young girl, which was quite unperceived by Albert.

"It was towards this kiosk that we were rowing.
A ground floor, ornamented with arabesques, bathing
the terraces in the water,

"Near these barrels stood Selim, my father's favorite, whom I mentioned to you just now. It was his duty to watch day and night a lance, at the end of which

"What do you fear, Vasiliki?" said Selim, in a voice at once so gentle and so proud; if they do not bring us peace we will give them war;

"Suddenly we heard loud cries; we listened: they were cries of joy; the name of the French officer who had been sent by the sultan

"One morning my father sent for me; my mother had been crying all the night, and was very wretched; examining attentively every black speck

"My mother only answered by sighs to these consolations, which she knew did not come from my father's heart.

"But supposing our enemy should not allow us to do so?" said my mother.

"No," replied Haydee, "he did not dare to keep us, so we were sold to some slave merchants who were going to Constantinople.

"I cried bitterly, and tried to raise my mother from the earth, but she was dead! I was taken to the slave market and was purchased by a rich Armenian.

"I will agree to neither one nor the other," replied
the young soldier; "place the object which I desire to see in the ring of light which shines there, and retire whilst I examine it!"

"Oh! how our hearts palpitated; for it did, indeed, seem to be a ring which was placed there. But was it my father's ring? that was the question.

"After all the disclosures which were made this morning, M. Noirtier did not hesitate to give up the idea of forming an alliance

"I had to read it when his wife entered. The sudden departure of Franz, after being summoned by M. Noirtier, had so much astonished everyone,

"I was engaged, tell me, my dear Mr. Barker, tell me—What, my own?"

"English spavin liniment removes all hard, soft or clammy lumps and blennishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs,

"By my grandfather. Oh, Morrel! pray love him for all his goodness to us!"

"By my grandfather. Oh, Morrel! pray love him for all his goodness to us!"

"By my grandfather. Oh, Morrel! pray love him for all his goodness to us!"

"No," replied Haydee, "he did not dare to keep us,
so we were sold to some slave merchants who were going to Constantinople.

"I cried bitterly, and tried to raise my mother from the earth, but she was dead! I was taken to the slave market and was purchased by a rich Armenian.

"I will agree to neither one nor the other," replied
the young soldier; "place the object which I desire to see in the ring of light which shines there, and retire whilst I examine it!"
