and on all sales, from now till October 31st, we will give five per cent. to The Newfoundland Ladies' Patriotic Fund.

We haven't got to do this to sell DICKESON'S TEA because so far we haven't been able to keep the Grocery Stores stocked with it—there has been such a demand for the previous shipments we have received.

Ask your Grocer for Dickeson's Tea—if he hasn't got it, telephone us your order.

Dickeson's Tea—the beverage of the Old Country—used on all His Majesty's ships—better flavor and goes further than other teas. Buy a pound, help the War Fund and drink a better cup of tea than you've had for a long while.

THE GREAT MASTERS

MASTER OF THE ROAD

The motor car could have gotten along without DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD—but not so well.

If DUNLOP TRACTION TREADS had not come into being, motorists would still be looking for protection from skidding; a tire that would never rim-cut; and that would adapt itself to every car, every load, because it had sixty-six cubic inches greater air capacity.

In the generality of cases, DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD has sold more cars than any other single source. Tires make or mar the pleasure of driving. A standardized safety-ensuring tire like DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD means auto prospects can be made to forget their anticipated fears about skidding, punctures, rim-cutting, and go ahead and buy the car.

FRED.V. CHESMAN, St. John's, Agent.

A Great Intrigue,

Mistress of Darracourt.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Upon her face still rested the cold, preoccupied look, and the gaze which she fixed upon the landscape flying past them seemed to see nothing. When he spoke she answered, but the words left her lips like those of a lesson, and her smile was mechanical and cold as the sunlight on an icicle.

After a time she took up a book and fixed her eyes upon it, and the marquis, with a strange feeling of embarrassment and something like awe of the cold, beautiful face, with its frigid lips, murmured that he would smoke a cigar, and disappeared in a smoking compartment.

He had got the Court, and the Darracourt money—or the handling of it—but a woman of ice and snow, a woman who he felt detested and mistrusted him thrown into the bargain.

As he smoked, his face grew darker and darker, and his even, white teeth clicked now and again. They reached London, and were received at Meurice's as foreign potentates and ambassadors are received at that royal place of sojourn. Black-coated waiters lined the velvet-clad steps; the proprietor, a mighty man himself, came out to welcome them, and at the state and ceremony the marquis' heart swelled within him.

After all, what did it matter that Lucille was cold and forbidding? The money—the money was the thing!

Though the season had passed, there were enough people in London to make a goodly show of pasteboard in the card basket, and Lucille found that her fame had preceded her and that all that remained of London was anxious to see the Marchioness of Merle, who was also the famous Lady of Darracourt.

But she received the cards and the visitors coldly and indifferently.

"Is it necessary to see all these people?" she asked of the marquis on the third day.

"Not unless you like," he answered. "But it would be polite to do so. You can leave cards if that will suit you better."

"It will suit me much better than going to be stared at and talked to," she said, wearily.

"All breakfast time the three thousand pounds haunted him, and he stared at the paper without seeing a word.

Lucille sat reading a letter which had come from Marie, saying that all calmly: "I shall want what I have till then."

Mr. Slake bowed. He perfectly understood.

"Certainly, my lord," he said, respectfully. Then, as he took his hat, he added: "I haven't had an opportunity of congratulating your lordship."

The marquis smiled affably.

"Thanks, Slake; thanks. Will you have some wine?"

Mr. Slake took his glass of wine and went, and the marquis returned to his ecarte.

A large sum of money had been placed at his disposal on the day of his marriage—an enormous sum, and it had disappeared. He must have three thousand by to-morrow morning for Mr. Slake.

When he reached Meurice's that night, or rather the next morning, he was still poorer, for he had lost heavily during the evening, and he came down to breakfast rather paler than usual, but with a smile upon his false face.

was going on well at the Court, and having done that, rose to leave the room.

"Oh, Lucille," he said, as if struck by a sudden thought. "About money?"

She stopped and looked at him listlessly.

"Money?"

He nodded pleasantly.

"Yes. Forgive me for mentioning so commonplace a subject; but it has to be considered sooner or later, and perhaps it will be better that it should be sooner."

"Well?" she asked.

Her calmness and indifference made his task all the more difficult. He leaned back and stroked his moustache.

"Some people have sent me their bills," he said. "I suppose they had better be paid?"

"Yes, I suppose so," she assented, languidly.

He laughed softly.

"Mr. Head has left all the money arrangements to you," he said.

"Give the bills to me and I will pay them," she answered, with her hand on the door.

He muttered an inaudible curse.

"Do you think I mean to trouble you with such matters?" he said.

"How little you know me! You would be bored to death! Fancy looking over bills to the extent of three thousand pounds!"

Lucille felt slightly surprised. She had paid for everything she had purchased; there was only the hotel bill, that she knew of.

"Why, what bills are they?" she asked.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Tinker, tailor, candle-stick maker," he replied. "Bills soon run up, you know."

Lucille inclined her head assentingly. In a vague way it struck her as odd that he should have bought things to the extent of three thousand pounds and not paid for them with the money he had; but it did not matter.

"You want—" she said.

"A check for three—it had better be for four thousand pounds!" he said, carelessly.

She went to a table and drew out her check-book, and handed him the slip.

"Thanks," he said, as he laid it beside his plate. "These little things are best paid out of hand."

"Yes," she said, absently, and left the room.

He clutched the check as soon as she had gone, with an air of relief, and half an hour afterward Mr. Slake was shown up.

He received a check from his lordship with respectful gratitude.

"If at any time you should want, my lord," he began; but the marquis waved his hand smilingly.

"Thanks, Slake; thanks; but I do not think I shall require the assistance you allude to."

"No, my lord, no," said Mr. Slake, deferentially. "The estate is an enormous one. I am aware; but sometimes—one never knows. Money soon flies—your lordship may want a little loan for past liabilities; men are always pressing at the wrong moment. There was a man waiting outside who, I think, is one who wants something of your lordship."

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, rest, less feelings and sleeplessness."

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicine the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSON, 210 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Bad Case.
Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysterical spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HONNENBERG, R. No. 3, Ephrata, Pa.

BELFAST, To-day.
Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Irish Union Party, outlines an Ulster programme for the future. In addressing the Unionist Council yesterday, he said: I propose when the war is over, to summon a Provisional Government, and I propose that their first act should be to repeal the Home Rule Bill. So far as Ulster is concerned, I propose in the same act to enact that it is the duty of the volunteers to see that no act or no attempt to enact under that Bill should ever have effect in Ulster. GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL.

LONDON, To-day.
For the first time since the beginning of the war, wireless news, circulated by the French Government through the Eiffel Tower, was received in London last night. The message dated Sept. 28th, is as follows: "Feeling that their position was becoming more and more critical under the pressure of the Allies, the Germans have tried to stop us by repeated counter attacks. Since Sept. 26th they have delivered by day and night frequent violent attacks at several positions on our front. Everywhere they have been repulsed, sustaining considerable losses and abandoning as they lay thousands of dead and wounded. Eight army corps and guards were severely put to the test and large numbers of prisoners fell into our hands. It is to be remarked that many of the latter gave themselves up voluntarily. It seems that German soldiers are beginning to have no further doubt as to the treatment which awaits them in captivity. At the beginning all those we had captured had a terrified and supplicating attitude, arising out of statements made by their officers to the effect that the French shot prisoners. It is rather by an excess of kindness that we transgress in regard to them, and the kindly treatment which is meted out to prisoners in certain districts of France has even evoked complaint, which has occasionally been justified on the part of those who know how our own men are treated in Germany.

Lights Out For 1,800 Miles.

"A thrilling story is told by Mr. Fred Trussell, manager of the London Hippodrome, of his voyage from Mogador in the Royal Mail steam packet Agadir," says the Dispatch.

"No timid citizen need be afraid that England can be surprised by the invader," he says. "By what I have seen myself I can believe that from Land's End to Dover not a rowing boat could pass without observation day or night."
"After leaving Mogador we heard by wireless that England had declared war against Germany, and you can imagine the effect it had upon us all. It did not seem likely that we should be able to escape the German cruisers which we had good reason to believe were patrolling the western coast of Africa, and to add to our dismay within an hour of our hearing of the declaration of war, our Captain received a message from the Admiralty ordering us to sail with all lights out."

"Going to Board You."
"We reached Las Palmas in beautiful weather, and found fifteen German trading ships, all prizes of war, in the harbour guarded by British cruisers. These ships, we heard, together with eighteen others in Tenerife, and eight or ten in Madeira, had been caught like so many rats in a trap. They had sailed out port for visualizing and coaling purposes, all unaware of what was going to happen to them."

"Well, we continued our voyage, a spectre ship, with all speed northward, and struck very dirty weather, which did not add to our happiness. On the fifth day after leaving Mogador we arrived in the Bay of Biscay, and then the real fun began. All day long was a succession of shocks, war vessels being constantly seen and our wireless continually receiving questions. We again tapped a German cruiser's message, but were baffled by the code.
"On Saturday (August 15) we turned the corner off Ushant, and then things came along very quickly. First we were circled and then interrogated by a small French cruiser. Three big battleships and a cruiser approached, divided, and disappeared over the horizon north and south. Then a great battleship came steaming towards us. As she drew nearer there was no means of discovering her nationality, for her flag, if she flew one, was right aft, and owing to her position in relation to our own ship we could see no distinguishing mark. As she came closer she signalled asking who we were, what were our passengers, and our cargo." Eventually she stopped, and ran up the signal, "We are going to board you!" At this point, when our imaginations were at fever heat, she swung round slightly, and we saw she was flying the French flag!

"Our pent-up feelings broke loose, and we cheered lustily as we watched a boat being lowered and twelve sailors in cork jackets taking the oars, with two officers in the stern. The officers came aboard, and shortly after a message came to me from the captain asking if I would act as interpreter. I was only too delighted, of course, to assist at such a historical occasion as the boarding of a British mail boat by French naval officers on the high seas.
"As we entered the Channel we were passed along from one warship to another—first French ships challenging us, then English ones. Just before dark on Saturday (15th) we sighted the English coast, and at the same time received a wireless message from the Admiralty telling us to bring up in Caswand Harbour.

A Tremendous Sight.
"As dark fell a tremendous sight met our view. Everywhere the eye could rest, at apparently intervals of yards, searchlights swept every inch of the sea. It was simply dazzling, and it appeared to make navigation almost impossible. On this evening, for the first time in nine days, we lit our port, starboard and mast-head lights.
"Great excitement prevailed when we were finally shown an anchorage by a naval officer who came alongside. Thanking our lucky stars that we were, as we thought at the end of our adventures, we went to bed, only to be aroused at two o'clock in the morning by a hail from a Government ship alongside: "You must shift your vessel at once; you are anchored within the line of fire!"
"As we were entirely unaware of the state of things ashore, we thought a bombardment was imminent! The donkey engines were put to work to raise the anchors, and we moved on to a safer position to which we were directed. At daybreak the authorities removed our wireless and all our connections, and we set sail up the English Channel under conditions which, I believe, have never before been matched in the history of this or any other country."

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Dear Sir, White in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disabled for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes. Yours truly,

George St. Epworth League was to the front last night by entertaining in the League room those from the League and Church who have responded to the Empire's call and are soon to go abroad with the Nfld. Regiment to fight England's cause of righteousness against German militarism. A very interesting programme was presided over by the President, Mr. Wilfred Whiteway, who in a few remarks welcomed the ladies to the League room and encouraged them in the noble stand which they had taken. The opening prayer was delivered by the Rev. Stenlake, who is a volunteer. The solos were appropriate and well rendered. Miss Flossie Whiteway's rendering of the popular ballad, "A Heart Cry from the West," was very pleasing; also "Alike Mine," by Mr. Jack Spooner. The "Death of Nelson," rendered in good style by Mr. S. J. Tucker, concluded the solo part. A very pleasing feature was a recitation given by Mrs. Guy, wife of the pastor, who displayed in an admirable way her power as an elocutionist. A short address was given by Rev. N. M. Guy, who in well chosen words and in a very patriotic style dealt with the great National War now being waged, explaining Germany's aim for the past twenty years, and also explained England's call to arms to retain national honour and her own exaltation, and in giving the ladies encouragement, reminded them that white fighting against the Germans they were fighting for them, as the crushing of German militarism meant freedom to her own people, and if England was crowned with success in this, the greatest battle in history, it would mean peace for a long period, if not for all time. At the conclusion of the address the young ladies passed around the dainties they had prepared of tea, cake, fruit, etc., which was enjoyed by all present. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an evening well spent and long to be remembered.—Com.

All's Well.

For some days past there has been very little detailed information of what is going on along the extended line of battle in France. We are now getting little more than a general statement that all is well along the line. This should content us, for it is but reasonable to suppose there are good reasons for the suppression of detailed information. It has already been found out that the Germans have been obtaining information by means of spies and buried cable lines. Moreover it must not be forgotten that information published in the press of their enemies contributed largely to the intelligence which enabled the Germans to smash the Austrians in 1866 and the French in 1870. It therefore behoves those who have charge of the operations of the Allies to take most effectual steps to prevent information being given out to satisfy the natural curiosity of their own people, which may aid the enemy in upsetting their plans and which may contribute to their own defeat. While our heroes are giving their lives and limbs, while others are training to step into the breach, it is little to ask from us to rest content with the little detailed information that is forthcoming. We must rely on the assurance "That all is well along the Potomac" and amuse ourselves with looking at the humorous side of it. In this connection, the story is told of a London newsboy, offering a newspaper to a prospective purchaser with the enticing remark: "Latest Edition of Kitchener's Silence, Sir!" As we have pointed out frequently, the Germans are not progressing anything like so well as they did in 1870. In that year the war opened on July 19th. On August 4th the French were defeated at Wissemburg; on August 6th, they were again defeated at Worth; from August 16-18, followed the great disasters at Vionville and Gravelotte, and on Sept. 1st, the crowning disaster of Sedan. By Sept. 15th the Crown Prince was beginning siege of Paris and the only armies left were in Paris, eventually surrounded, and the army besieged at Metz. Fifty-eight days from the commencement of the war, France was crippled, as she had no army left to relieve those besieged in fortified cities. In that war, time was not a predominant factor. In this war time is almost everything to the Germans. To gain time, they sacrificed their honor, tore up treaties and risked war with England to get to Paris before the Russians could mobilize in overwhelming strength. They were going to dine in Paris before the middle of August. By the 29th of September they have been driven away from Paris and back from the Marne to the Aisne, where they have been endeavoring for more than a fortnight to strengthen themselves for a new forward movement. We are told officially that all the forward movements have been foiled, and that the news from the left wing, where the Allies are trying to turn the flank is favorable, and also that the Allies are gaining ground on the Meuse. This is good news to come 60 days after the war started and 30 days after the Kaiser planned to dine in Paris. German strategy has failed. The German War Machine has been scotched, and now will come the millions from the steppes of Russia, from the South of France, from the British Isles, from the Greater Britain beyond the seas, and from India to roll it back into Germany and scrap it.

Well Received.

Mr. Frederick Knight, who made his debut so successfully last night, at the popular Crescent, will on Wednesday and Thursday sing "Queen of the Earth," by Pissuti, a song he made famous in the "Isle of Champagne" with the late Thomas Seabrook. This will be in direct contrast to the Bohemian Girl, the selection being very heroic in character. Mr. Knight intends to intersperse his operatic selections with the good old Scotch, Irish and English songs which he has in preparation and which will be sure to delight the patrons of the Crescent, being blessed with a real tenor voice, so rare today, of a beautifully sympathetic quality, over which he has absolute control. It is true, resonant and powerful, and his enunciation and phrasing a real delight. Mr. Knight has already made a wonderful impression on the music loving people of St. John's, his engagement here is sure to be most successful, for he is a real artist who cannot fail to be appreciated. The management of the Crescent are to be congratulated on having secured the services of Mr. Frederick Knight.

A box of our Antiseptic Throat Pastilles is a handy thing to have in one's pocket these days. These pastilles have an effect in soothing irritation of the membranous tissues of the throat which is in many cases really remarkable. A few of these will often stop a cold in its early stages, which might if neglected develop serious proportions. In damp, cold weather a few of these pastilles sucked at intervals will prevent or stop the irritation of the throat which is so annoying, and will relieve more advanced cases. Price 25 cents a box.

Gallant Jack.

On Tuesday last, when the British cruiser Cressy was sinking, a blue-jacket saw a white ensign on deck. He grasped the old bit of bunting and placing it between his teeth swam around in the surf for nearly three hours before being rescued by a Dutch trawler. In the hotel a correspondent saw him asleep with the flag spread over him, and the correspondent was told that the sailor had been prepared to fight to the last ditch before he would part with the flag.

THE CALL.

Sons of the Sea Mother, list to the crying!

War bounds are loose on the Belgian plain,

Strangling the prayer in the throats of the dying,

Fangs dipping red with the blood of the slain,

Beating the trail stalks the foul-footed hussars,

Carnage, the hell-born mistress of Hate,

Trampling on honor, on virtue, on gladness,

Spitting her spleen on the pages of Fate.

Sons of the Sea Mother, list to the calling,

Voiced from the ghost-haunted Netherlands main,

Voiced from the souls of the heroes when falling,

"What we have done, ye can do yet again,

"Come! for we know, we have seen, we have striven

"Against the horrors that howl in the fell Demon's wake,

"Come! that her brood to their kennels be driven,

"Sons of the Sea Mother, Freedom's at stake!"

Sons of the Sea Mother, rally, oh, rally!

Self has no place in this moment of need,

Stream in, your thousands from highland and valley,

Staunch as of yore, the old Sea Mother breed,

The Torpedoing of The Three Cruisers.

THE ADMIRALTY REPORTS.
The Admiralty issues the following statement concerning the sinking of the three British cruisers by German submarines in the North Sea:
"The facts of this affair cannot be better conveyed to the public than by the attached reports of the senior officers who have survived and landed in England."

"The sinking of the Aboukir was, of course, an ordinary hazard of patrolling duty. The Hogue and the Cressy, however, were sunk because they proceeded to the assistance of their consort and remained with engines stopped, endeavoring to save life, thus presenting an easy and certain target to further submarine attacks.
"The natural promptings of humanity have in this case led to heavy losses which would have been avoided by strict adherence to military considerations. Modern naval war is presenting us with so many new and strange situations that an error of judgment of this character is pardonable. But it has been necessary to point out for the further guidance of His Majesty's ships that conditions which prevail when a vessel of a squadron is injured in a mine field, or is exposed to submarine attack, are analogous to those which occur in action, and that the rule of leaving disabled ships to their own resources is applicable, so far, at any rate, as large vessels are concerned."

A SERIOUS LOSS.

"No act of humanity, whether to friend or foe, should lead to neglect of the proper precautions and dispositions of war, and no measure can be taken to save life which prejudices the military situation. Small craft of all kinds should, however, be directed by wireless to close on the damaged ship at full speed.
"The loss of nearly sixty officers and 1,400 men, would not have been grudged if it had been brought about by gunfire in an open action. But it is peculiarly distressing under the conditions which prevailed. The absence of any of the ardors and excitement of an engagement did not, however, prevent the display of discipline, cheerful courage and ready self-sacrifice among all ranks and ratings exposed to the ordeal.

"The duty on which these vessels were engaged was an essential part of the arrangements by which the control of seas and the safety of the country are maintained, and the lives lost are as usefully, as necessary and as gloriously devoted to the requirements of His Majesty's service as if the loss had been incurred in a general action."

OF SMALL NAVAL SIGNIFICANCE.

"In view of the certainty of a proportion of misfortunes of this character occurring from time to time, it is important that this point of view should be thoroughly appreciated. The loss of these three cruisers, apart from the loss of life, is of small naval significance. Although they were large and powerful ships, they belonged to a class of cruisers whose speed has been surpassed by many of the enemy's battleships.

COMMANDER NICHOLSON'S REPORT.

"The report on the sinking of the Cressy, signed by Bertram W. L. Nicholson, Commander of the late H.M.S. Cressy, follows:
"Sir—I have the honor to submit the following report in connection with the sinking of H.M.S. Cressy, in company with H.M.S. Aboukir and Hogue, on the morning of the 22nd of September, while on patrol duty.
"The Aboukir was struck at about 6:25 a.m. on the starboard beam. The Hogue and Cressy closed and took up a position, the Hogue ahead of the Aboukir and the Cressy about four hundred yards on her port beam. As soon as it was seen that the Aboukir was in danger of sinking, all the boats were sent away from the Cressy and a picket boat was hoisted out without steam up. When cutters full of the Aboukir's men were returning to the Cressy, the Hogue was struck, apparently under the aft 9.2 magazine, as a very heavy explosion took place immediately. Almost directly after the Hogue was hit we observed a periscope on our port bow, about three hundred yards off.

THE CRESSY OPENED FIRE.
"Fire was immediately opened and the engines were put full speed ahead with the intention of running her down. Our gunner, Mr. Dougherty, positively asserts that he hit the periscope and that the submarine sank. An officer, who was standing alongside the gunners, thinks that the shell struck only floating timber, of which there was much about, but it was evidently the impression of the men on deck, who cheered and clapped heartily, that the submarine had been hit. This submarine did not fire a torpedo at the Cressy.

"Captain Johnson then manoeuvred the ship so as to render assistance to the crews of the Hogue and Aboukir. About five minutes later another periscope was seen on our starboard quarter and fire was opened. The track of the torpedo she fired at a range of five hundred to six hundred yards was plainly visible, and it struck us on the starboard side just before the after-bridge.
"The ship listed about ten degrees to the starboard and remained steady. The time was 7:15 a.m. All the watertight doors, deadlights and scuttles had been securely closed before the torpedo struck the ship.

"A second torpedo fired by the same submarine missed and passed about ten feet astern. About a quarter of an hour after the first torpedo had hit, a third torpedo, fired from a submarine just before the starboard beam, hit us under the number five boiler room. The time was 7:30 a.m. The ship then began to heel rapidly and finally turned keel up, remaining so for about twenty minutes before she finally sank at 7:55 a.m.
"A large number of men were saved by casting adrift on pattern three target.

"The second torpedo which struck the Cressy passed over the sinking hull of the Aboukir, narrowly missing it. It is possible that the same submarine fired all three torpedoes at the Cressy.
"The conduct of the crew was excellent throughout. I have already remarked on the bravery displayed by Captain Phillips, master of the trawler L. T. Coriander, and his crew who picked up 156 officers and men."

The report of Commander R. A. Norton, late of H. M. S. Hogue, follows:
"I have the honour to report as follows concerning the sinking of the Hogue was struck on the starboard 6:15 and 6:30 a.m., H.M.S. Aboukir was struck by a torpedo. The Hogue closed on the Aboukir and I received orders to hoist out the launch, turn out and prepare all boats, and unlash all timber on the upper deck. Two lifeboats were sent to the Aboukir, but before the launch could get away the Hogue was struck on the starboard side amidships by two torpedoes at intervals of ten to twenty seconds.

"The ship at once began to keel to starboard. After ordering the men to provide themselves with hammocks, etc., and to get into the boats on the boms, and take off their clothing, I went by Captain Nicholson's directions, to ascertain the damage in the engine room. The artificer officer informed me that the water was over the engine room gatings.
ORDERED TO JUMP OVERBOARD.
"When endeavoring to return to the bridge, the water burst open the starboard entryport doors and the ship heeled rapidly. I told the men in the port battery to jump overboard, as the launch was close alongside, and soon afterwards the ship lurched heavily to starboard.

"I clung to the ring bolt for some time, but eventually dropped on to the deck and a huge wave washed me away. I climbed up the ship's side and was again washed off. Eventually, after swimming about from various over-laden pieces of wreckage I was picked up by a cutter from the Hogue, Coxswain L. S. Marks, which pulled about for some hours picking up men and discharging them to our picket boat and steam pinnace and to the Dutch steamers Flora and Titan, and rescued in this way Commander Sells of the Aboukir, Engineer Commander Stokes, with legs broken, Fleet Paymaster Eldred and about 120 others.

MEN BEHAVED WELL.

"Finally about eleven a.m. when we could find no more men in the water, we were picked up by the Lucifer, which proceeded to the Titan and took off from her all our men, except about twenty who were too ill to be moved.
"A Lowestoft trawler and the two Dutch ships, Flora and Titan, were extraordinarily kind, clothing and feeding our men. My boat's crew, composed mainly of Royal Naval reserve men, pulled and behaved remarkably well. I particularly wish to mention Petty Officer Halton, who by encouraging the men in the water near me undoubtedly saved many lives.
"Lieut. Commander Tillard was picked up by a launch. He got up a cutter's crew and saved many lives, as did Midshipman Cazalet.
"A Dutch sailing trawler sailed close by, but went off without rendering any assistance, although we signalled to her from the Hogue to close after we were struck.

THERE WAS NO PANIC.
"The Aboukir appeared to me to take about 25 minutes to sink, floating bottom up for about five minutes. The Hogue turned turtle very quickly—in about five minutes—and floating bottom up for several minutes. A dense black smoke was seen in the starboard battery, whether from coal or torpedo cordite, I could not say. The upper deck was not blown up, and only one other small explosion occurred and we heeled over.
"There was no panic of any sort, the men taking off their clothing as ordered and falling in with hammock. Captain Nicholson, in our other cutter, as usual, was perfectly cool, and rescued large numbers of men.
"I have the honor to submit that I may be appointed to another ship as soon as I get a kit."

The 4 British Belles
IN SPLENDID NEW ACT.
Last night, wet as it was, Rossley's was packed, for everyone wanted to see the four talented young ladies, known as the British Belles in another new act, and the large audience was well repaid for turning out, for such a well-dressed and clever act has never been seen here at any time. Those young ladies sang and danced the very best yet since their engagement. The skipping rope dance was a wonderful sight, and the costumes worn were greatly admired. It is a picture, too, came in for a big share of applause, especially Aurora Floyd, taken from the novel of Miss Brad-don, a two reel feature, worth the price of admission alone.

Patriotic Association Met Last Night.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Patriotic Association was held at the C. L. B. Armoury last night at which His Excellency the Governor presided.
Mr. F. J. Morris, on behalf of the Nominating Committee, reported that 45 branch associations had been formed throughout the Colony, with some 300 persons whose names had been handed over to the Secretary. His Excellency reported that Andrew Wilson, Esq., and J. O'Reilly, Esq., had been added to the Association.
Mr. Montgomery, for the Recruiting Committee, reported a total enrolment of 970 men, of whom about 565 are in camp. Recruiting from all sources has been discontinued since Saturday last. The Committee have not yet received final approved drafts of the conditions and terms under which the men are to be sworn, so that nothing has been done in this connection.
His Excellency said that Bell Island was worthy of special mention because more recruits were enrolled from that place than from any other place outside St. John's.
Mr. W. H. Renje on behalf of the Musketry Committee, reported that ten squads of recruits, numbering in all 468 had been instructed at the rifle range. Though weather conditions were bad results were quite satisfactory. About five per cent of the recruits showed no aptitude for rifle shooting and are considered unfit for service. Fifteen per cent need further practice. On the whole the average was about fifty per cent which is considered fair. Equipment such as revolvers, binoculars, ammunition, etc., had been received. The instructors are now at Pleasantville giving instructions in musketry. With regard to the rifles, the Governor announced that five hundred Ross Rifles had been secured in Canada and were on the way since the 19th inst. Only 100 Lee-Enfields were coming, the order for 500 having been cancelled, though the contractor demanded that the bayonets and trenching tools ordered with them should be taken. This was done, and they have been handed over to the War Office.
The Quartermaster, Mr. H. Outerbridge, reported that the work of his department had been seriously interfered with by storms. After the first storm eleven bell tents were ordered, and a shed capable of holding about 150 men had to be built, at an estimated cost of $200. An officers mess room was also erected, as the tent used for that purpose was totally destroyed. The military great-coats have arrived, and slouch hats are expected by the Mongolian.
The medical report, submitted by Dr. Macpherson, showed that including re-examination which volunteers had asked for hoping to be passed "fit," the total number examined exceeded 1,000. The Committee had received the co-operation of the medical profession in the city and outports. Dr. Paterson has been in residence at the camp hospital since it started, and Dr. Wakefield has lived at the rifle range. Mr. Reeves, with an ambulance company, had rendered valuable assistance. There has been no serious case of illness. Vaccines have been obtained, but it was thought advisable to defer inoculation until after the men are sworn. Thanks were tendered to Hon. G. Knowling, Reid M.D. Co., Mrs. D. Baird, Mrs. H. D. Reid, Mrs. Delgado, and a "work party" for various gifts and services rendered.
Sir Joseph Outerbridge presented the report of the Officers' Selection Committee, showing the work done. The list of officers has already been published.
Mr. A. J. Harvey, on behalf of the Transport Committee, stated that nothing definite was yet decided. His Excellency suggested that it was inadvisable to give undue publicity to the movements of the troops overseas.
The report of the Finance Committee submitted by Hon. E. R. Bowring showed that pay and allowance for all ranks of the regiment should be the same as those in Canadian forces sent to the front.
The expenditure to date was $16,401.12 and included pay to officers and men, cost of camp equipment, victualling, arms, etc. The amount in sight for the Patriotic Fund was somewhat over $60,000.
Before the close of the meeting His Excellency stated that he had been advised that a Reception Committee had been organized in the Old Country for the purpose of attending to the welfare of our men while in England. The hospitality of the West Indian Club was also offered to the men. His Excellency also announced that arrangements had been made with the heads of the different religious bodies whereby Sunday, Oct. 18th, would be set apart as a day of special prayer and supplication for the success of the British arms, and for the welfare of our own men.

A Thought for the Times

THE WAR—CHAPTER XIII.
I. C. MORRIS.

There are so many infamous features connected with war that it is somewhat difficult to classify them, or to decide which is the worst. It is well, however, to bear in mind, that all warfare is not a losing game, and that the world owes much to it. This present war will finally result in great good; but this does not justify its existence—it being a long established rule in morals and equity, that: "The end does not justify the means."

But every impartial mind will accord common fair play to all those who are now engaged in this death struggle. Every side has its heroes who fight, its heroines who serve, and its loved ones who weep. The river of tears that is being daily shed is not one-sided; it flows from the hearts of all the peoples of Europe. At the time of the South African War a gentleman delivered an address to one of our city audiences on that subject, and among many excellent and noteworthy things which he said, the most sublime of them all was this: "The tears of a Boer mother, and the sorrow of a Boer father, and the heart-break of a Boer child were just as sacred, in a sense, to him, as that of our side." An author at that time enhanced his book with several illustrations incidental to the war, and the most pathetic picture of the lot, was that of a burial on one of the South African veldts. And what made it pathetic? Simply this. A short truce had been called, and some Boer and English soldiers dug a trench, and laid into it the bodies of their fallen brothers, and then filled in the long grave. Then uncovering their heads, they reverently stood and joined in the singing of a psalm in English—as many of the Boers had a slight acquaintance of the English language.

A pathetic sight truly, and a tragedy seemingly inconsistent. At the burial of fallen comrades they were of one spirit; but on the morrow they had to stand at arms and shoot each other—but as we have said before, such is war. Those men were soldiers, and as such they were bound to fight for their respective sides. They had no ill-will whatever against each other personally. They had never seen each other before. In their homes in England, or in South Africa, they all had been taught Christian principles, and therefore had learned the Golden Rule of "doing unto all men as you would they should do unto you," and of "loving your neighbor as yourself." They had read the same version of scripture, mostly. They worshipped the same God, and daily addressed Him in the universal term of "Our Father." As men they did these things, but as soldiers they shot each other. But then as we have just said, such are the fortunes of war.

In the book they presented a picture which told of weariness, stress and hardship. Loose, torn and battered were their uniforms. Dishevelled, unkempt, and haggard—was their men. They looked almost as much like death as the poor fellows over whose grave they were singing their requiem psalm. Hunger and thirst had told upon them—in a word, the war which had claimed their comrades in death, had half claimed themselves in life; hence they looked as much like dead men as live men. They were brothers, and yet enemies. Conditions necessitated war, and they were fulfilling the result of those conditions. It always was so, and until "war shall be no more" it must continue so.

In this present war there is sufficient happenings every day to fill out a volume, but even when all the volumes have been written the tragedy seemingly inconsistent. At gedy of the story will be only partly told. The true facts can never be known. Talk of them as we may, write of them as we will, or think of them in our deepest meditation, or look with our most penetrating vision, we "but see in part, we but see through a glass darkly." On the battle field we see toil, suffering and death. The booming of the cannon, and the shouting of the captains, are as so many requiems to the dying and the dead. Even the music of the regiment, while it nerves the soldiers, and inspires them to do and dare; in its every note it is accompanied by a death. But this is war, nor can its conditions be otherwise; therefore its suffering must be endured until the nations shall see a better way by which to settle their disputes.

Let us then exercise charity to all parties to this conflict, and bear in mind that every man of the millions is dear to somebody. There is a spot somewhere to which he is welcome, and there are hearts somewhere to which he is dear. Is he husband? then a wife thinks of him. Is he a son? then parents feel for him. Is he a father? then children wait for his return. He may be English or German, French or Austrian, Prussian or Russian, but beyond it, and above it, and beneath it all, lies the great universal truth that he is a man. As a man then let us think of him, and when we come to look at things in this light, we shall soon be able to see, that being men, we were certainly created for something better than war; and when we see this, we shall adopt that better course to which we have been so long blind. This day is coming. May it soon be ours.

When War is Done.

In Europe, when the war is done—may that day soon be greeted!—when a soldier has won, and some have been defeated, 'twill be a country of the old, the halt, the maimed, the dying; in unmarked couches, 'neath the mould, the young men will be lying. Afar the patriarch must guide the plow in fields yet red from slaughter, while hitched like horses are the fraa, the grandma and the daughter. Perhaps some cripple from the wars may help to do the seeding, while groaning o'er his varied scars, and old wounds freshly bleeding. Some veteran on wooden legs, whose strength is swiftly dwindling, may milk the cow and fetch the eggs, and split the daily kindling. But everywhere the weak and old must do the heavy toiling, must strive the little farms to hold, and keep the pot a-bubbling. Old men and dames, the harvest waves! Go forth and do the reaping, for in their red and shallow graves, your strong young men are sleeping!

A Delusion.

New York Tribune—"So far as the present war is concerned, the cry of Teuton against Slav is a delusion. Neither can the claim that Germany is fighting for western against eastern European civilization be considered."

On Selection at County Fairs.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Selection is always a difficult process to me. If you ask my little nephew, "Which hand will you have?" he invariably says "Both," and refuses to give any other answer. I sympathize with him. I have frequently said the same thing to the Fates when they offered me a choice between two opportunities, both unknown quantities hidden away behind the uncertainties of the future. And the Fates have frequently answered by giving me neither or perhaps a mutilated part of each.

Even in London Bridges, when the choice was put up to me between a gold house and a gold watch studded with diamonds, the choice was long and painful. And that is why the County Fair was never an unmixed delight to me even at the age of unmixed delights.

As one entered the fair grounds the first assault on one's purse and one's powers of selection came with "Toasted buttered popcorn, all flavors," ringing in one's ear, and "Fresh peanuts, five a bag." In the other. From them on there was one continual call to choose. Should it be ginger ale or root beer? Should it be strawberry or vanilla ice. Did one prefer to purchase a balloon, a whip, a windmill or a whistle? Should one ride on the flying horses or the ferris wheel? Should one have one's tin type taken or hit the nigger in the head and get a box of candy or a good cigar?

But the most painful selection of all to me was the choice of a sideshow. We saw but one. That was a law immutable. And there were so many and all so wonderful. First I thought I wanted to see the fat woman. "She weighs six hundred pounds if she weighs ten, ladies and gentlemen." Of course, she must weigh ten, so the six hundred was proven beyond a doubt, and I was on the point of yielding my dime when the hypnotic eye of another barker caught me. "The most savage wild man in captivity," he was chanting, "eats raw rabbits, eats 'em alive, without salt or pepper he eats 'em." "Seventh wonder of the world," broke in a third voice, "bound together by a bond of living flesh. If you don't believe it you can touch it with your own hands. Right this way for the Inseparable Twins."

So one after another allured me, and the worst of it was that if I saw the fat lady and found her disappointing I was sure the wild man would have been better, and vice versa.

When my ship comes, in I hope it will be in the late summer. Because, if it is, my first act will be to fill my pockets full of pieces of eight from her hold and go straight to the nearest County Fair, buy popcorn, neanuts and taffy, a balloon, a whip, a whistle and a windmill, ride on the flying horses and the ferris wheel, and, best of all, see every single sideshow.

You think I shall find it a stupid, disappointing spectacle, lacking the eyes of childhood? Not so, reader friend. For I shall have the eyes of my childhood. On my way from the ship to the fair I shall gather in from the highways and byways all the little youngsters that wouldn't have gone to the fair and ask them to lend me their eyes for the day.

I wonder who will be the happiest, they or I?

Four Brothers With the Colours.

During the past century or more, the Newfoundlanders were to be found in the front ranks of danger and experience during the various wars that occurred at certain periods. During the first decade of the past century, a poor Newfoundland fisher-boy joined the ranks of the British Army, and by his daring and intrepidity rose to a very high rank in the army—was knighted on the field of battle in the Peninsular War, and became Sir Henry Pynn. In the American Civil War we had scores of Newfoundlanders, both in the army and navy, principally the latter, who always rendered a good account of themselves. We had them also in the armies and navies of Chili and Peru, and in the Ten Years' War in Cuba, we knew of many who held responsible positions during that great struggle. It was the same in the late war in that country which resulted in its independence. Many of our countrymen fought for the flag during the Boer War, and some of them held positions in the mounted forces in South Africa previous to that event. But never before have the Newfoundlanders rallied to the Standard as they have during the present terrible crisis. We have already sent off one hundred men to the navy, and five hundred volunteers will proceed to the front in a few days, to join the Army, at present engaged in driving back the German legions across the boundaries of France. In a short time "our boys" will take their place in the ranks of the British Army in defence of the Empire against the Butcher and Firebug of Europe. We feel convinced that all will do their duty to King and Empire, as well as uphold the glorious traditions of the sons of Newfoundland for daring, pluck, perseverance and hardihood. It is not alone those in Newfoundland that we should well feel proud. In active service we have already a Howley and many others, and a most unusual instance of patriotism is displayed, wherein four brothers of the one family, Newfoundlanders born and bred.

Are Now in Active Service.

We refer to the four brothers McCowan, sons of the late Inspector General McCowan, and brothers of Mrs. John S. Munn, wife of J. S. Munn, Esq., of Bowling Bros., Ltd., this city. Of these young Newfoundlanders, William is Major in the Medical Service of India, and is now on his way to England or Belgium with the Indian contingent; Wallace is Gunner Lieutenant; Randall, late of the Royal Yacht, holds a commission on the great battleship Erin and Gerald is Surgeon in the Hospital at Sheerness. When the history of the greatest war written, it will be found that the rock-bound Isle of Newfoundland, Britain's Oldest Colony, has well deserved her title, and performed her part, both upon the land and sea, in upholding the Flag of that Great Nation, our Motherland, that flag upon which the sun never sets, and which is the emblem of true Freedom of the world over.

The Gear Building Opened.

Messrs. Gear & Co., the well known hardware dealers, have removed from their old premises on the South side of Water Street to their new store in the Gear Buildings, recently erected on the north side. The store which is spacious and up-to-date in every particular is well stocked with a full line of hardware, and was opened for business on Saturday night last. The building is a fitting ornament to Water Street, and we wish this established firm a continuance of the large patronage they enjoyed at the old stand.

A portion of the top and lower flats are being let for offices.

Belgians Won Victory in the Air

London, Sept. 25.—A duel in the air over Brussels between a Belgian biplane, which was making a reconnaissance, and a German machine which was in pursuit of the biplane, is described briefly by a correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company, who witnessed the contest. The two machines ascended to a great altitude, and after a swift flight the aviators exchanged shots at short range. Suddenly the German turned turtle and fell, and the Belgian biplane returned towards Antwerp.

DARDANELLES CLOSED.
Special Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day. The Dardanelles have been closed to navigation, according to a despatch from Constantinople. The duration of the closure is not stated.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION.
LONDON, To-day. Furious fighting continues in Northern France. Beyond admitting this fact the official statements are vague. Few details of the struggle which may be the turning point of the Western campaign, have been given public. One sentence there is "no change in the situation," epitomizes official reports from London, Paris and Berlin. The Allies claim to have made slight advances here and there, notably in the heights of the Meuse. The German official statement, however, declared that the reports concerning the victorious advance of the enemy are untrue. Both British and French officials refer to the violence of the attacks made by Germans who seem to have redoubled their efforts in an attempt to hurl back the allied line.

Reports indicate however, that French and British have given no ground before the onslaught of the invaders. Very rigorous censorship has evidently been imposed at virtually all points, particularly in London regarding operations at the front, as very little news is being permitted to come through; War Officials doubtless fearing to raise hopes of people without some decisive result having been attained, and second that the publication of even the smallest details of the operations might be of aid to the Germans. The Austrian Government has confiscated Canadian Pacific Railway Company's securities and the money deposited at Vienna, according to a report, as well as the Company's observation cars running on Austrian railroads. This is a result, it is said, of the refusal of the Company to pay the dividends of Austrian shareholders. Word from the front describes the encounters. On one occasion, the French and British held positions within a quarter of a mile from the German front, where they were not in danger from heavy German artillery and were sheltered from machine guns, unless they came into the open.

GERMANS BOMBARD PORTS NEAR ANTWERP.
Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day. An official communication given out by the Belgian Government is contained in an Antwerp despatch. It says: After bombarding Malines, 14 miles southeast of Antwerp, the Germans under cover of night re-entered the unoccupied town but have now resumed their march therefrom. Germans have directed the fire of their heavy artillery on the forts of Wavre, St. Catherine and Waelpem, about ten miles from Antwerp, but with result not justifying the great expenditure of ammunition. Our forts replied and bombardment ceased between the Dendre and Willebreck Canal, west of Waelpem. The offensive movement of the enemy was promptly checked. The forts inflicted serious losses on the enemy and completed his retirement.

BOTH ABBRIDGES TALK OF NEUTRALITY.
LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Capetown says that in the course of a speech, addressed to five thousand people at town of Bank in Transvaal, General Botha, Premier of South Africa, emphasized the necessity of loyalty to the British Empire, declaring that the policy of neutrality was absolute nonsense. He pointed out that if a German warship came to Durban and imposed a levy of five million pounds sterling on them it would help people very little to say South Africa was neutral.

FRENCH OFFICIAL NEWS.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 29th, 1914.
The following bulletin is posted at St. Pierre.

Official, 29th.
News received from the left wing is favorable. In the centre our troops opposed with success violent German attacks. We have slightly progressed on heights of Meuse. In Woivre dense fog was the cause of suspending operations. In Lorraine and Vosges the situation is unchanged. During the last three days of fighting the Prussian Guard has been destroyed. Strong companies of 250 men are reduced to 100. The officers commanding since the beginning of the war are all killed or wounded. Two battalions were completely annihilated. A Franco-British expedition, supported by cruisers, notably the British warship Cumberland and the French warship Bruix, landed in Cameroon, the capital of which surrendered unconditionally.

DIED.
Died at her home, "Seaview," Torbay, after a long illness, Mary Ellen Liddy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Liddy; funeral will take place at Torbay, Thursday, October 1st, at 2 p.m. Interment at Belvidere Friends and acquaintances are cordially invited to attend.

Held Up & Robbed

This morning a young man named Holeman, belonging to a northern outpost, reported to the police that he was robbed of a hundred and odd dollars; he was also brutally assaulted and his face was badly cut. Holeman was celebrating yesterday and last night he was feeling in good spirits when he met a gang who first held him in conversation and then started in to relieve him of his money. Holeman had considerable change in his pants pockets, but the larger portion of his cash was in notes, which he had in the inside pocket of his coat. The gang must have had their unfortunate victim well sized up and after giving him an unperforated hammering, as such crooks do, cleaned out Holeman's pockets. While being robbed Holeman was unconscious from the beating he received. He gave a fairly good description of them to-day to the police, who, no doubt, will run down the culprits ere long.

Obituary.

There passed away this morning, at the residence of her father, Torbay, a promising young life in the person of my only daughter of Mr. William Liddy. Deceased had received her early education at the Convent of Mercy, St. John's, afterwards going to Belgium where, after a three years successful course, she returned to the home of her parents, Torbay. Three years ago she contracted a severe cold which developed into lung-trouble. On the advice of her physician she spent a short time in a sanatorium in the United States, and being somewhat improved, she returned home. After a short stay at home her health again failed, and a change became necessary. This time she proceeded to a similar institution in Montreal. To all appearance her health was again re-established, and she returned to the home-land seemingly quite recovered. After a short time however her health again broke down, and for the past six months was failing rapidly. The final call came this morning, finding her fully prepared and perfectly resigned. Her parents and brothers have the sympathy of a large circle of friends, in which the Telegram joins.

Survivors From Cruisers are Home.

Harwich, Eng., Sept. 23.—Survivors to the number of 110 from the British cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue, which were torpedoed and sunk by German submarines, arrived at Harwich and Parkstone, three miles west, last night. Of the survivors thirty were officers and the others seamen, and all bore evidence of the trial through which they had passed.

According to estimates obtained from the survivors about 700 men in all crews approximating 2,000 men were saved when disaster overtook their ships. Crowds of townspeople silently watched the arrival of the cruiser and a flotilla of destroyers which carried the survivors and which reached the harbor at 8 o'clock.

All during the latter part of the day the little town had been on tip-toe of excitement and rumors of all kinds had been rife. The townspeople had seen a fleet of local destroyers leave at top speed early in the day and it was evident that this was the prelude to news of great importance.

As the rescuing boats came up the harbor, the sound of cheering aboard torpedo-boats in the harbor was heard. The crews were cheering those who had been rescued from the North Sea.

Soon after eight o'clock the first party of survivors was landed at Harwich pier. They appeared to be officers. The news of what had happened spread like wildfire, although nobody had been allowed to talk directly with the survivors.

In the crowd there were soon many tearful faces, for most of those along the pier and beach had relatives or friends aboard the sunken cruisers.

Following the landing of the uninjured survivors a little hospital boat shoved off from the pier and took off the injured from the cruiser and the destroyers. These were transferred at once to the Shotley Naval Hospital, while the uninjured survivors went to the Grand Eastern Hotel, now used as a military hospital, where they will be allowed to rest for several days.

Many of them had spent some time struggling in the water, but few showed any serious effects of their experience. They walked through the line of questioning faces with firm steps and smiling, as if a submarine attack was no very unusual experience. Their clothing, however, was something to marvel at. Most of them wore blankets or even pieces of burlap sack, while others were protected from the chill night air by llama coats, such as seamen use on night watches.

The crowd of weeping women who besieged the hospitals for the names of those saved were informed as gently as possible that no information would be given out except through the official channels of the Admiralty. Sentries guarded all entrances to the hospital, and prevented anyone from reaching the survivors.

constructed an electric torpedo in 1865; Sir Frederick Abel made one of a better pattern in 1867, and in 1873 the Wigham torpedo was adopted by the British Government. This torpedo held its own until 1884, when the famous Whitehead fish-torpedo was invented.

The Whitehead is propelled by an ingenious little engine, worked by compressed air, placed inside it near the propellers. When it is fired from the tube on a torpedo boat or other craft an automatic arrangement pulls over a lever, and when it reaches the water its engines work at top speed—roughly about twenty-five knots an hour. A gyroscope steers the torpedo by manipulating the rudders at the stem.

Jim Thorpe.

Red McGhee

Red McGhee says: Some guys don't have to have much pep to make a livin' on their rep an' never do a tap. An' I don't blame 'em, understand. If 'e gets by 'e shake the hand of that there sort of chap. Take big Jim Thorpe, world's athlete champion. His work 'ardly fire a tramp. An' yet I'm strong for Jim. He's in his third year with McGraw an' I guess no one ever saw a full game played by him.

Perhaps two dozen times a year you'll see the Indian's name appear in some New York box score. In pinches Muggsy trots him out to run for someone or to clout when pitchers' arms go sore. An' when he does get in the fray he manages to get away with somethin' pretty good. He bats up near the ol' charmed line an' though he gets no chance to shine you sort o' believe he could.

One baseball season all he's played in as athlete extra-ple. He played in Carolina's hills—down there where corn is fed to stills for fear folks might get dry. If all the Indian wants is fame he doesn't have to play the game—his rep is safe right now. He copped off sportin' his Golden Pledge an' with it wandered back from Greece with laurels on his brow.

Diaries of Some German Prisoners.

Tell of Many Days of Hunger.

Bordeaux, September 24.—More interesting statements gathered from the diaries of wounded Germans and prisoners have been published. An army doctor writes:

"Sept. 9.—Terrible hunger; not a morsel of bread in eight days."

An officer of the Brunswick regiment made this record:

"Sept. 17.—In the region of Epernay. For five days we have fed ourselves on stolen beet roots and sugar, with not a morsel of bread. The losses are enormous. More officers have been killed and my company has fallen from 250 to 60. No solution is possible as to reinforcement."

A soldier of the 18th Corps has written:

"Bread once in eight days. Have neither washed or slept. It will be a miracle if we see Germany again. The company has fallen from 250 to 50."

A reservist wrote:

"Sept. 17.—Great battle; rain of shells. Nothing to eat for three days. No bread, great losses."

A Hessian soldier inscribed this:

"In five weeks we have had bread three times. This evening we had potatoes, cooked—what a feast!—and a bed of straw. Let us hope this misery will soon disappear."

Fishery Reports.

Sept. 26th. From T. Hogan (Carboneau to Western Bay).—The total catch is 1,370 qts., and for last week 35. No traps but 23 dorles and skiffs are fishing; squid is very scarce and there is not enough for bait.

Sept. 26th. From S. E. Chate (South Head of Briggs to Bay Roberts Point).—Prospects are not very bright. There is some squid but not always enough for bait purposes. The total catch is 1,240 qts., and for last week 130. Fifty boats, 6 punts, and 7 skiffs are fishing. There is no improvement in the fishery since last report, but a little cod is being taken each day.

Sept. 26th. From W. White (Aquaforte to Caplin Bay).—Prospects are very encouraging. Fish struck in abundance on Thursday, and small boats are doing well. No large boats arrived from the grounds this week. Twenty white boats and 105 dorles and skiffs are fishing. The catch to date is 4,735 qts., and for last week 540.

Sept. 26. From (Port Rexton to Bonaventure).—No traps but 50 boats are fishing. Prospects are poor. The total catch is 12,000 qts., with 3,520 for last week. Sufficient squid is obtainable for bait. The above fishermen average about twenty qts. Five schooners have arrived from the Labrador with about 700 qts. each which is very good. Seven schooners are reported to have arrived at South West Arm, Random, averaging 170 qts. The catch of Random schooners is not included in the week's total which only takes in vessels from this vicinity.

Three Fishermen Swamped

ON FRENCH SHORE.

The settlement of Chance Harbour has been thrown into deep mourning for the loss of Mr. Jeremiah Colbourne, a pioneer and respected resident of the place, who, along with two young men named Frank and George Wells, of Swan Island, were drowned by the capsizing of their boat, which was fishing near Odées Cove, on the French Shore. The tragedy happened ten days ago during the height of the fierce storm, which wrought awful destruction to fisher folk's property around the island and brought much loss of life in its train. Colbourne and the Wells brothers were engaged taking in their herring nets when their boat was swamped. The surviving families feel their loss keenly.

Destruction of Storm.

Last Saturday night's storm must have been felt very severely around the coast, particularly in the western section. Considerable damage is reported to have occurred and several vessels were stranded. Yesterday we referred to a couple of schooners being wrecked at different places and since then the following messages have been received:—

To Minister of Fisheries Piccott from Lawa:—

"Schr. Nereid, coal laden, Walter Bennett master, stranded at Connor's Beach here during Saturday night's gale; owned by J. E. Lake of Fortune; the captain has charge of the wreck; think vessel and cargo will be total loss."

To Mr. LeMessurier, Deputy Minister of Customs, from Bonavista:—

"In storm of yesterday the schooners Laura and Silver Stream came ashore; probably total wrecks; one large fishing boat sunk at moorings and one large boat ashore; about ten smaller boats sunk at moorings, and also 2 large boats wrecked, but not sunk; water not rough to-day."

These crafts were 34 and 38 tons, respectively, and were registered in the name of J. Ryan.

No Advance in Prices.

The prices on Stafford's Liniment, Stafford's Prescription "A", Stafford's Phosphate Cough Cure remain the same as when we placed them for sale in Newfoundland 2 years ago.

Every drug that is used in the manufacture of these 3 preparations has increased considerably, but we are still going to keep them at the same "selling" prices both Wholesale and Retail.

"SOUND ADVICE."

If you have contracted a Cold in some way or other and this Cold has developed into a Cough, it would be advisable to try the following treatment:—

Mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and Camphorated Oil together and apply to the Chest and Back 3 times a day, rubbing in well every time.

Also:—

Take from one to two teaspoonfuls of Stafford's Phosphate Cough and Cold Cure every 3 hours during the day.

The above Treatment has been successful in many cases and perhaps yours will be another one added to the list.

Why not try this Treatment?

Wedding Bells.

Last evening, at 7.30, St. Mary's Church was the scene of a quiet wedding when the bonds of matrimony were solemnized between Miss Maud Hollett, daughter of Albin Hollett, Spencer's Cove, P.B., and Mr. Wm. Manston, of Manchester, England.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Uphill, Rector of the Parish. The bride was given away by her cousin, Charles Rodway, and was attended by Miss Brace and Mr. Peaver. After the ceremony the bride and groom motored to Avalon House and were received by Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Reid, and Mr. Reid also kindly placed his automobile at the service of the wedding party.

The groom has been in the employ of Mr. Reid, as chauffeur for several years, and has now volunteered for the front, and was appointed Lance Corporal. He is the first of the Volunteers to be married and we trust that he will return from the front in good time, and that in his domestic life he will find that happiness which he deserves.

The Cost of Waging War.

It is certain that the present great war will place all other wars whatsoever well in the shade as regards expense, this having been estimated at twelve millions sterling per day, whereas the costliest war on record hitherto—that between Italy and Austria in 1866—only cost £10,000,000.

It was a record, however, because the war only lasted twenty days, or at a rate of half a million sterling per day. Our last war in South Africa cost us approximately £195,000 per day, and, excluding the present war, Great Britain has spent a trifle of £227,000,000 on war in the short interval since 1895. Russia, however, in the sixty years that began with the Crimean War and ended with the war against Japan, spent £335,000,000 sterling on fighting, and lost 664,000 soldiers' and sailors' lives in the progress!

In recent times our most expensive war—excluding that in South Africa—was the comparatively small affair for the stamping out of the Boxer Rebellion in China, in 1900-1, for the public purse had to be drawn on to the tune of £5,827,800; and in contrast to this it is interesting to note that our campaign against the Zulu Kheis eight years ago only cost the Indian Government £57,000. This appears the merest trifle compared with the total cost of the great American Civil War, which has been estimated at two thousand millions sterling!

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company.

Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 30.5 per cent. of NITROGEN; Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrates of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,

Another Schr Lost.

"Robert's trading schooner Glide, of 27 tons, drove out of Hermitage Saturday night in the gale and is believed to be a total loss. She was valued at $1,000. Rose's gasoline boat went ashore at Dawson's Cove."

The foregoing has been received by Deputy Minister of Customs, LeMessurier from Gaultois.

We learn that the last squad of Volunteers who were at the Rifle Range had the best shooting average, some of them making very high scores.

Dear Sir,

We beg to draw your attention to the advantages offered, both in the way of security and privacy, by our Safety Deposit system which has recently been installed in our vault. The system is the most modern and complete that is known, and is deposited in a vault of exceptional strength and safety. The boxes are individual and can only be opened with the joint aid of the key in the possession of the Company and of that in the custody of the customer. They are of solid metal and are arranged in nests of fifty, so that no box can be removed from the vault separately from the rest.

The boxes are rented at $4.00, $5.00 up to $20.00 a year, according to size. An inspection of the installation is invited.

A French Revenge for Sedan.

Mr. Philip Gibbs gives a powerful picture in the Daily Chronicle of an incident in this great war in which France revenged on the spot her disaster of Sedan. He tells how the Germans on Monday of last week found a graveyard at Charleville.

"The Germans succeeded in forcing their way steadily down the Meuse as far as Mezières, divided by a bridge from Charleville on the other side of the river," he writes.

"This is in the neighborhood of Sedan, and in the hollow or 'trou' as it is called which led to the great disaster of 1870, when the French army was caught in a trap, and threatened with annihilation by the Germans who had taken possession of the surrounding heights. There was to be no repetition of that tragedy. The French were determined that this time the position should be reversed.

Ninety-five German Guns Captured. "Last Monday the town of Charleville was evacuated, most of its civilians were sent away to join the wanderers who have had to leave their homes, and the French troops took up magnificent positions commanding the town and the three bridges dividing it from Mezières. Mitrailleuses were hidden in the abandoned houses, and as a disagreeable shock to any German who might escape their fire was a number of the enemy's guns—no fewer than 95 of them—which had been captured and disabled by the French troops in the series of battles down the river from Namur. The German outposts reached Charleville only recently.

"They were allowed to ride quietly across the bridges into the apparently deserted town. Then suddenly their line of retreat was cut off. The three bridges were blown up by contact mines, and the mitrailleuses hidden in the houses were played on to the German cavalry across the streets killing them in a frightful slaughter.

"It was for a little while a sheer massacre in that town of white houses with pretty gardens where flowers were blooming under the brilliant sunshine of a glorious summer day. But the Germans fought with extraordinary tenacity, regardless of the heaped bodies of their comrades, and utterly reckless of their own lives.

"They, too, had brought quick-firing guns across the bridges, and taking cover behind some of the houses, trained their guns upon those from which the French gunners were firing their last shots. There was no way of escape for those heroic men who voluntarily sacrificed themselves in the service of their country, and it is probable that every man died, because at such a time the Germans are not in a habit of giving quarter.

Also a German Graveyard. "When the main German advance came down the valley the French artillery on the heights raked them with a terrific fire, in which they suffered heavy losses, the forefront of the column being mowed down. But under this storm of fire they proceeded with incredible coolness to their positions on the bridges across the river, and although hundreds of men died on the banks they succeeded in their endeavor while their guns searched the hills with shells and forced the French gunners to retire from their positions. The occupation of Charleville was a German victory: it was also a German graveyard."

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment.

Mothers Will Find Nothing so Speedy and Reliable as Old-Time 'Nerviline.'

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by internal dosing, when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WON'T fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have warded off perhaps a cold, or grippe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for preventing colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—you simply can't beat it. Try it for earache, toothache, neuralgia, sciatica, lame back, rheumatism, or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles, Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers everywhere sell Nerviline.

The Enigmatic Englishman.

"The Englishman is a much misunderstood individual, and his character is a good deal of a riddle to the foreigner. He is so anxious to keep an open mind, to weigh things impartially and to postpone the necessity of reaching a conviction that he has often been looked upon as impossible to rouse to action. The zeal which he shows not to do a thing until it is absolutely necessary has been apt to deceive people into the belief that he could not do the thing if he tried. It has been rashly concluded that because he tolerated and accepted matters that were distasteful and injurious to him rather than deal with them energetically and promptly, he was decadent and ready to submit to anything rather than to involve himself in avoidable trouble and expense. He has contributed to this impression by his readiness to grumble at and to criticize everything pertaining to the empire.

"But let there come a time when the honor and the safety of the nation are at stake and he is quick to action, as quick and as patriotic to-day as those of his forefathers of old to whom England is indebted for the grandest pages of her two thousand years of history. That is one of the lessons, one of the most inspiring lessons, of the war now raging in the Old World."—New York Sun.

Indian Island Notes.

Boats arrived from the fishing grounds to-day and report fish very scarce. In fact the voyage is practically over as it is impossible to get any bait; not one squid jigged to date. The voyage is about an average one; some tarps have done very well.

The first freighter for the season arrived on Wednesday, Monroe's schooner, Capt. Robinson. They are buying fish to-day from skipper Rich. Collins.

Messrs. Thomas and Harry Blundon are at home after having spent twelve months at Port Nelson, Hudson Bay. They are in good health and speak encouragingly of both work and pay.

Mr. Jethro Perry has also arrived after a four years' stay at Port Arthur, Canada. Mr. Perry is not feeling quite well, but no doubt after resting a few weeks he will be just as strong and active as ever.

This mail brought word that Mr. T. H. Perry, formerly Principal of Burn Methodist Superior School has entered Chatham College, Ont., with the intention of taking a business course.

Samuel Bixby, of this place, has volunteered to serve his King and Country. We heartily congratulate Sam and hope he will come through alright. C. Penney and P. J. Frampton, naval reservists, have also joined their ship and will no doubt feel proud that they are among the number.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world-known firm in Newfoundland.—asp17,t

Shoot All Prisoners Orders German Chief.

Bordeaux, Sept. 25.—The French Foreign Office to-day made the statement that General Stegler, commanding the 53rd German Infantry Brigade, has issued an order of which the following is a translation: "Make no prisoners. Shoot all who fall into your hands, single or in groups, and despatch the wounded, whether armed or unarmed, as the Germans must leave no Frenchmen living behind them."

Goeben and Breslau in Bosphorus.

London, Sept. 24.—In a despatch from Athens the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. says he has learned from a diplomatic source that the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, which took refuge in Turkish waters shortly after the outbreak of the war, steamed out of the Sea of Marmora Monday of this week and returned to the Bosphorus yesterday.

Never Questioned

Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure and wholesome. It is made from highly refined, pure, cream of tartar, an ingredient of grapes. Not an atom of unwholesomeness goes into it; not an unwholesome influence comes from it. It perfectly leavens the food, makes it finer in appearance, more delicious to the taste, more healthful.

Its superiority in all the qualities that make the perfect baking powder is never questioned.

Divorced Life By Helen Messing Fuertes

Dodging the Meshes of Marriage

A letter, bearing a French stamp and a Parisian post-mark, was handed to Marian. Scrutinizing the address in a flurry of excitement, she saw that it had been sent to her former address at Mrs. Kern's in New York, when it had been forwarded to Phaedra Inn.

Breaking the seal eagerly, and searching for the signature, she found it to be from Jack Meadows, the rich young fellow who had asked her to marry him and save him from the fate of wedding the young woman of his family's choice, and who had arranged with Ransom, the magazine editor, to transact pretended purchases of her manuscripts, in order that the world might be kept from her door.

"Here I am, back in merry Paris," the letter ran. "Now prepare yourself for a trifling surprise. At the eleventh hour, I made up my mind to get out from under the grievous matrimonial load for which I had been engaged in an uproar and my fiancé into abrupt delight by announcing that the whole proposition was too absurd to be taken seriously, and that I had not the cruel heart to lead a young woman to the altar who secretly loved another. By dint of some notable tact, I had learned that the lady actually was in love with an engaging young fellow, who, however, had neither purse nor script. I have learned since that her people have become reconciled, and that the festive ceremony is due to be performed. Am I not the gay paving-master of true love's rock-bound, rusty road? The answer is 'Yes.'"

"I shan't bore you with the details of my flight. Enough—I am back here where I yearned to be. Enough of the old crowd is still here to make it seem like old days. Contrary to my expectations, the governor is still supplying me with the needful; thus I am not obliged to forego the creature comforts, nor to fall upon my own feeble resources, much as I should like to do."

Torpedo Boats.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Sivash."

A torpedo boat is an extremely fatal disease which rages among battleships.

A battleship may be two blocks long and have a tougher hide than a wall politician. It may carry guns which shoot projectiles as large as oil barrels, and it may carry eighteen inches of armor on its turrets. But when it meets a torpedo boat in a dark alley on the sea it is in as much danger as the goat which ate the dynamite cartridges. The chances are that it will change from a $10,000,000 battleship to $500 worth of junk, complicated with obituaries, in less than five minutes.

The torpedo boat is small and has sides like a paper-shell peaco. One could shoot holes through it with a duck gun, and when a battleship turns loose on it the remains look like an overgrown collander. But this does not do the battleship any good, because the torpedo boat has just spat a torpedo at it. A torpedo contains enough gunnison to wreck a pyramid or blast a hint into the head of a New Haven railroad director. When a torpedo explodes under a battleship the latter tries to sail without a bottom for about two minutes and then gives it up as a bad job.

Torpedo boats are not made to defend themselves, but to go to places in a hurry and run away with equal enthusiasm. A torpedo boat travels forty miles an hour and is stuffed so full of engines that the crew have to sleep on the pantry shelves and the latter tries to sail without a bottom for about two minutes and then gives it up as a bad job.

After a man has lived for a few months in one of these boats, holding onto a hot pipe with one hand and eating cold beans out of a can with the other, and falling out of his berth ten times a night while the boat tangles in the heavy seas he is likely to sign for a soft bed on the quarter deck of a bucking broncho.

All nations maintain vast numbers of torpedo boats and would cheerfully sacrifice half a dozen of them to sink an enemy's battleship. This is why we do not yearn for torpedo boating as a recreation.

Four Thousand Six Hundred a Week From Miners.

The South Wales Miners' Federation have decided to levy sixpence a week per man and threepence per boy for the Prince of Wales' National Relief Fund, the money to be deducted by the employers from the wages of any miner who has worked three or more days in any week. The Monmouthshire and South Wales Association of Colliery Engineers and Stokers have arrived at a similar arrangement.

In this way 200,000 workers will make regular contributions while the war lasts. This is equivalent to a weekly contribution of over $4,000.
