CHAPTER XXXII.
The letter that Ada Craythorne had been so careful to post with her own hands was addressed to her mother, Lady Craythorne, and ran as follows:

Dearest Mamma—I cannot come home so soon as you suggest, but will not stay longer than December 5. Lady Hastings declares that she cannot spare me, and it is only by representing that I have most important engagements to fulfill that she consents to part with me even then. I am having a most enjoyable time of it, because there are plenty of nice people here who drop in every day to drink tea and chat. In the morning we either drive or ride, and I have been of great use to Sir Charles in helping him to plan his cottage improvements.

We are all looking forward to a grand time after Christmas—and there is but one element of doubt and discord—the existence or not of the wretched creature who calls herself Sir Charles's wife. Lady Hastings has told me everything, you know, and at times she is quite nervous lest the woman should suddenly appear to spoil our pleasure. For my part, I wish she would—and hope that she will be so horrid that Sir Charles will at once move for a divorce! I suppose the Howards will soon be at the Abbey again with Lord Cecil in their train? Funny to leave England while the weather was glorious, and return in the cold and fog.

Your affectionate daughter,
ADA.

Miss Craythorne sat thinking of that letter, among other things, long after the household had retired to rest. How forcibly she was reminded of one portion of it! She had recently wished for Sir Charles's wife to appear. "She had hoped that she would be a horrid creature in every sense. One part of her wish had been answered, and to-morrow she would see if the woman was pretty or repulsive. She could only remember that she had a pair of sparkling black eyes. Then her thoughts took a pleasanter turn. She had brought the young baronet to a partial confession—he had confessed that he could hardly do without her—and she felt that he would have taken her in his arms but for one thing.

"He has cared for me since the first day we met," she thought, with a thrill of exultance, "and when he avoided me for Lady Gladys Howard it was only the knowledge of his unhappy position that took him from my side. It caused me agony then; it is joy to me now!"

She had turned out the light, and was sitting in the glow of a chery fire. The stillness of death seemed to be everywhere, only broken by the heavy breathing of her maid, who was asleep in the next room.

Unconsciously, Miss Craythorne became drowsy, and was gradually falling into a sleepy dream, when she clearly heard a step underneath the window. She started up, and remembered that she had opened the window a little way, because the room was oppressively warm.

Was it a mistake? No. There was another footfall and the noise of cracking twigs. Whoever the person might be, he made no effort to step softly.

It might be Sir Charles, but she had never heard that he was fond of strolling about at midnight. This thought was quickly dispelled by the sound of an oath, and, peering cautiously below, she recognized the burly form of the man she had met in the lane, and he reeled about as though intoxicated, finally falling with a thud to the earth, and, after muttering a variety of threats, fell asleep.

For two hours or more Ada listened to his stentorian breathing. She dared not lie down, lest he had come to do some harm to Sir Charles. It was evident that he had spent a portion of the five pounds the woman had given to him, and that drink had magnified the wrongs under which he was suffering.

She gently closed her window, and waited, with every sense alert, but he slept on steadily, and she knew no more until awakened by her maid just as daylight was breaking.

"How stupid of me to go to sleep here!" she said. "Have you been up very long, Annette?"

"About an hour, miss."

"You have not heard any disturbance in the house—anything unusual, I mean?"

"Oh, no, miss!" replied Annette, opening her eyes in surprise.

"I must have been dreaming foolish dreams," laughed Miss Craythorne. "You can leave me, Annette; I will dress myself."

As soon as the maid was gone she opened her window and looked below. There was no one there, and she wondered for a moment if the man was merely an ogre of her slumbering brain. The thought was immediately dismissed. She had seen him distinctly; she had heard his drunken threats, and trembled with fear while he slept off the stupor that held his senses.

At the breakfast table Sir Charles remarked that she was pale, and Miss Craythorne smiled back at him saucily.

"I am ashamed to tell you that I slept very badly," she replied, "because I tried to turn amateur detective."

"Good gracious, child, what are you talking about?" asked Lady Hastings. "I fancied that I heard footsteps under my window, and, instead of acting rationally, I sat listening for burglars, half through the night. Wasn't that ridiculous?"

Sir Charles looked at her gravely. "There must be some grounds for your fears, Miss Craythorne," he said. "I am sure that you would not act ridiculously."

She regarded at her seriously, and she regretted that she had mentioned the matter.

"I wish that you had alarmed the servants," he continued. "Pray do not think that I am making any unnecessary fuss about this, Miss Craythorne, because I have been warned of some fellow wandering about the village and asking questions concerning my business. Excuse me a few minutes while I examine the ground under your chamber window."

He left the room, and came back after a very short absence, with a look of annoyance on his face.

"I cannot understand," he said. "You were not mistaken, Miss Craythorne, and whoever the fellow was, he went to no trouble to hide that he was trespassing. He left a pipe and a box of matches behind him. I am surprised that the dogs gave no warning. I will have the place watched by the police."

"I thought that I heard him tumbling about," confessed Ada. "And I do not believe it was a burglar. Possibly a drunken tramp."

"This is not a haven for such people," the young baronet declared, "and I will put a stop to it. I am so sorry that you have been annoyed and frightened."

He spoke to her so tenderly that she flashed upon him a glance that haunted him for weeks.

While Sir Charles went about as usual morning business, Miss Craythorne begged that Lady Hastings would excuse her for a short time, as she wished to assist Annette in arranging her wardrobe.

PINCHED GAIN.

WALT HAZEL

The s a d d est words of tongue or pen are these, "I've just been pinched again!" In these fierce days when every man must have some sort of bus or van, when traffic laws are multiplied until we must open wide, no matter how we strive and strain to line up with the safe and sane, we hear the best and noblest men complaining, "We've been pinched again!" The reckless drivers get away, to hog the road some other day; the speed fiends leave a trail of smoke, and think the traffic law a joke; but fat old bards who cut a wart are handed justice by the quart; the village parson drives along, and happily makes a signal wrong, his mind intent on hymn and text—the speed cop tells him he is next. Some woman parks her Lizzie fine perhaps two inches out of line, and when she to her bus returns, white anger in her bosom burns. For she is tagged and must repair to court and dig up doubtless there. Some doctor, called to feed his pills to one who's perishing of chills, is stopped and dragged away to jail and fined all sorts of fancy kale; and while he in his dungeon lies, his chills-and-fever patient dies. And while the safe and sane are pinched, the delegates who should be lynched, the road hogs and the heads of speed, get by with all their vice and greed.

When you go troutling, don't forget to take a bottle of STAFFORD'S MOSQUITO OIL; 20c. Bottle; Postage 3 cents extra.

Economise Time and Succeed.

"One of the lessons that every man who would get on in his calling should learn is the art of economising time," says a successful business man.

"Habits of indolence, listlessness, and procrastination, once firmly fixed, cannot be suddenly thrown off, and the man who has wasted the precious hours of his youth finds that he cannot suddenly begin to spend the remaining time wisely. There is an old saying that lost wealth may be replaced by industry, lost knowledge by study, lost health by temperance or medicine, but lost time is gone for ever."

"The men who effect great achievements do so mainly by steady unremitting toil, and by turning even the moments to account. They have the genius for hard work, the most desirable form of genius."

RAILWAY'S AWFUL TRAGEDY.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6. Pacific passenger express No. 4 crashed in to the rear of a train No. 12, an accommodation enroute to this city, at Sulphur Springs, twenty miles south of here about ten o'clock last night, killing more than sixty persons and injuring about one hundred. A striking Union shopman manned a wrecking and relief train when they learned of the accident and rushed to the scene, which was described as resembling a battlefield. The steel coaches of the express splintered the wooden coaches of the accommodation as it ploughed its way through them from the rear, dumping passengers and debris over a quarter of a mile area, and tearing up the roadbed, twisting rails into a tangled mass resembling a mass of matted ropes. Coaches rolled down the embankment into the creek which flooded the coaches and, according to reports, drowned the passengers beneath the broken seats. Engineer Matt Glenn of the express was fatally killed. The cause of the wreck is undetermined. The accommodation train was enroute from Hoxie, Kansas, to St. Louis and had stopped at Sulphur Springs to take water. The express roared her way into Sulphur Springs from Fort Worth and splintered her way through the accommodation. The local had seven coaches, and the express twelve cars. Scalding steam from the engine of the express escaped into the wooden coaches it had splintered cooking the victims in the cars.

Cozing Optimism.

GREAT THINGS PROMISED FOR THE ANCIENT COLONY.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, (Canadian Press) Newfoundland newspapers are finding it possible to strike a most optimistic note in discussing the industrial outlook in the Ancient Colony. Two of that country's most prominent men, Sir Patrick McGrath, and Sir Richard Squires, Premier, are in Europe, on en route there, in the interests of the great development of Newfoundland and with reason to hope that their visit will hasten the financing of a $10,000,000 wood pulp mill project which will open up one of the country's almost limitless resources, and, according to Sir Patrick McGrath, solve the country's most important industrial problem. In addition to the above, there is another cause for optimism—resumption of the iron ore shipments to Germany. Three quarters of a million tons of ore from Wabana are to be delivered to Rotterdam for trans-shipment via canals into Germany. Twelve steamers of 11,000 tons of ore a month will sail for Rotterdam between now and December. At the present time practically all the ore shipped out of Wabana is for Germany. Overseas shipment of iron ore from Wabana has been practically all since 1914. Previous to the war the Scotia Company, then owners of practically all the iron areas in Wabana, shipped annually about 100,000 tons to Europe. The new contract with German agencies will not only bring about a revival of pre war prosperity in that district but will create an exceedingly greater activity in the Wabana district. The collapse of the German Mark abroad will have no bearing upon the dealings with the Wabana people, because arrangements have been made whereby all payments have been provided for by drafts on English banks and the British Empire Steel Corporation will receive payment in English money.

STOCKHOLM.—A parliamentary commission supported by many experts has proposed for the Swedish Navy a building programme for the next ten years of four fast armored cruisers, 12 destroyers, six big torpedo boats, three mine layers, 22 submarine chasers and a number of smaller craft. The armored cruisers are to be 6,500 tons each with a speed of 30 knots, with eight 21 centimeter and six 13 centimeter guns. As the proposal is based on parliamentary consideration there is a probability of it being passed during the coming sessions of Parliament.

More Conservative Skirts

COVERING UP THE HITREBTO UNCOVERED.

LONDON (Associated Press)—Observing the fashion world go by from a bench on London's "Rotten Row" one sees that the season's modes tend to more conservative skirts, higher waist lines, picture hats a yard wide and, pointed American shoes. The dressmaker's intent seems to be to cover what was once uncovered. Ankle-length skirts, voluminous sleeves, high neck-lines and loose-fitting gowns that subordinate the contour of the body, seem destined to restore woman's lost charm of mystery. Most frocks are of the fluttering, flowing order which, caught by the breeze, look very graceful. Foulards are taking the place of georgette and crepes of laces. Hats are circled with posies instead of being covered with plumes. Parasols are of foulard with wall-paper designs, or figures of green parrots or love-birds. Long, narrow feet are the vogue of the moment, and slender, high-heeled shoes of snake-skin are coming into vogue.

Reptilian Females.

For evening attire backless frocks with diamond or pearl supports are popular with some women of fashion. Many evening gowns are of a new cloth of silver or gold that resembles molten metal and that shimmers and glistens brilliantly under the electric light. Trains are inclined to be shorter, and are usually of gold or silver net. The new transparent cloaks which are being worn are trimmed with white grey and black monkey fur. Very little jewelry is worn; only a simple chain of jade or amber, or a Chinese Mandarin's collar of teak-wood beads.

Cause of Bad Teeth.

The foundation of bad teeth is generally laid in early childhood, for numberless mothers and nurses very carefully soften the food or remove the crust from the bread before giving it to the little folk, because it may otherwise "hurt their teeth," and so the child grows up with a set of unused organs of its mouth. When we have finally succeeded in producing weak organs, then we wonder why the poor child has such bad teeth, and why it is so often suffering from toothache, and why the doctor's bill is so high. Teeth are organs specialized to perform the work of mastication; they are subject to the same laws that govern other organs, and their strength is determined by their use. Understanding this, we are obliged to admit that if we ever become a toothless race it will be our own fault.

How Silver Mines are Found.

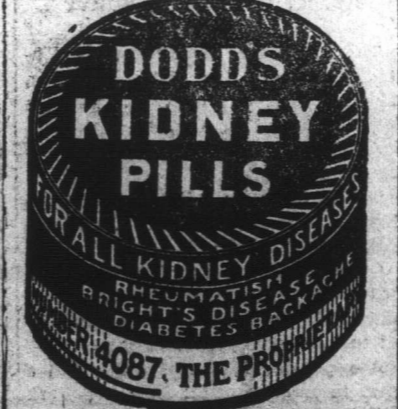

The process by which nature forms her silver mines is very interesting. It must be remembered that the earth's crust is full of water, which percolates everywhere through the rocks, making solutions of elements obtained from them. These solutions take up small particles of precious metal which they find here and there. Sometimes the solution in question are hot, the water having got so far down as to be set boiling by the internal heat of the globe. Then they rush upwards, picking up the bits of metal as they go. Naturally heat assists the performance of this operation. Now and then the streams thus formed, perpetually flowing hither and thither below the ground, pass through cracks or cavities in the rocks, where they deposit their loads of silver.

Won Everything in sight.

KID LEWIS OUTCLASSED BURNS.

LONDON—Kid Lewis, the welter and middle-weight champion of Great Britain, must have learned much during his long stay in the United States, despite his reverses in his last year there, for he has won all sorts of championships since returning home. His latest achievement was knocking out Frank Burns, the middle-weight champion of Australia, making Lewis the title holder of the Empire in that division. Up until the 11th and last round of the bout Burns outpointed Lewis, in the opinion of several experts, but in that period the Kid made a clever feint and then crossed a smashing right to the jaw that landed the Australian on his back. Lewis was criticized for holding back part of the way. Burns lost the championship, for which he had come all the way from Australia, but he took home a gold medal for rescuing a drowning man. One night at his training camp Burns jumped out of bed and into the Thames in the dark after an unfortunate man, and succeeded in bringing him ashore.

Forty-Three Years in the Public Service--The Evening Telegram

The Coal Problem.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I am enclosing a clipping from the Montreal Standard, July 29th which will no doubt be of considerable interest to householders also to Mr. Jennings Minister of Public Works who is now advertising for 1500 tons anthracite coal for Government institutions. If such anthracite coal can be delivered in Montreal for $10.50 per ton, it should be delivered in St. John's for $9.50 per ton. Unless this offer is availed of we will have to pay the usual $25.00 per ton for American anthracite and possibly more owing to the strike.

Yours truly,
CONSUMER.

WELSH COAL AVAILABLE.

"That there need be no shortage of coal in Montreal this winter, strike or no strike, was the statement of Mayor Martin this morning. He said that he had just received the following telegram from the acting Deputy Minister of Mines in Ottawa which speaks for itself.

Doctor Charles Cammell, Deputy Minister of the Federal Department of Mines at present in the old country, has cabled to-day to his office in Ottawa, as follows:—

"Please advise fact that Welsh anthracite coal chestnut size, from five eighths to one inch, is now available at thirty-eight shillings a ton freight, Montreal.

Address orders to Pascoe Colliery proprietor Swansea."

Mayor Martin said that this telegram will materially help to dispel the gloom occasioned by rumors of a threatened strike in Canada of the mines. He figured that the above quotation would work out to about $11.05 a ton at the present rate of exchange, which is over five and a half dollars a ton less than it can be bought in Montreal.

WAS ASKED TO ARBITRATE TROUBLE.

The chief executive was of the opinion that the trouble between the miners and the operators would be settled amicably and he has been asked by some prominent financiers of Montreal to go down to the Cape Breton collieries and act as intermediary between the two factions inasmuch as he had so successfully brought the longshoremen's strike to an end in Montreal.

"I appreciate the compliment that these prominent citizens have paid me," said the Mayor, "but what could I do. I would be a sort of an interloper and would be told to mind my own business. I am not the Deity," he naively added. He said that in the advent of a shortage of coal in Montreal he would strongly recommend that the citizens avail themselves of the above opportunity.

MAYOR SHOULD WORRY ABOUT COAL.

Mayor Martin is not worrying over the shortage as regards heating his own house. He whispered the dark secret to the Standard reporter this morning that next winter he will have an electrical invention attached to his furnace that will heat the house at a cost of 1-2 cents per hour. This invention is in the form of a cylinder that is placed at the back of the furnace and has a miniature switchboard that connects with the ordinary electrical fixtures in the house and the heat can be regulated at will. The mayor said that his house would be the first one to have the new apparatus installed and he predicts that by the middle of next winter that old King Coal will be rather groggy and ready to take the count when the contrivance becomes known and is put on the market.

Beautiful at 50.

Auburn haired women have ruled the world; not women with brick-dust colored hair, but those whose heads are crowned with soft, waving locks, red-gold only in the sunlight. Xantippe, Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, Catherine of Russia, Queen Elizabeth, Mme. Recamier, Marie Antoinette, and many others who made history for the world had such hair.

The women with auburn hair is intense in her love, and thus she rules men. Then too, auburn haired women preserve beauty. Amongst those of the past whose physical beauty lasted till past fifty is Helen of Troy, who reached the zenith of her charm and came upon the stage of fame at forty. Aspasia was thirty-six when she was wooed and won by Pericles. Thirty years after she was a brilliant figure. Cleopatra was only past thirty when she met Antony. Henry VIII. was captivated by Diana of Poitiers when she was thirty-six. The King was half her age, yet his devotion was permanent.

At the age of thirty-eight Anne of Austria was regarded as the most beautiful woman of Europe. Louis XIV. married Mme. de Maintenon, the governess of his children, when she was forty-three years old. Catherine of Russia was thirty-three when she seized the throne which she occupied for thirty-five years.

Mlle. Mar was in the zenith of her beauty at forty-five, and Mme. Recamier between the age of thirty-five and fifty-five.

Northern Labrador Report.

COAST BLOCKED WITH ICE.

The prospects for the fishery on Northern Labrador are anything but bright, according to latest reports. A message received to-day by the Minister of Shipping from Capt. Barbour of S.S. Senef reads as follows:—"Jam of ice from Farnyards north. Could get no further that Black Island, ten miles south of Queen's Lakes. Signs of fish at Savage Island and Paul's Island. No sign north of that, and all is ice as far as can be seen, from Black Island, with the glass. Very good sign of fish at Farnyards, but owing to ice conditions traps cannot be worked. Seven schooners there average about 250qtis. each. Fifteen schooners are north of Farnyards. Northern schooners have very little fish. According to the outlook now the northern fishery will be very late. The weather lately has been fair."

Yacht Chartered.

FOR RESEARCH WORK.

The Marine and Fisheries Department has secured a charter of Mr. G. R. Parson's yacht "Josephine." The terms of the charter have not been disclosed but it is understood that the ship will sail north on Monday next, in connection with the investigation now proceeding in relation to cod liver oil.

Overworking the Brain.

Don't be afraid of overworking the brain; you can't do it. You can't think too much.

"The more the mind does," says a prominent medical authority, "the more it can do."

Another well-known doctor said recently:—"In all my practice as a physician dealing with nervous and mental diseases, I can say without hesitation that I have not met a single case of nervous or mental trouble caused by too much thinking or overstudy. What produces mental trouble is worry, emotional excitement, or lack of interest in one's work."

So there is no need to be afraid. The more you think, study, or plan, the better it is for you, because you are training your mental powers. You cannot overwork the brain as long as you keep it healthy with outdoor exercise whenever possible. Then it will recuperate of its own account.

It is worry that destroys the brain—worry, fear, bad feelings, and mental idleness.

A BIG JOB TO TACKLE.

LONDON, Aug. 6.
Allied statesmen are gathering in London to-night for the opening, tomorrow, of what seems to be universally regarded as the most momentous conference since peace concluded. The immediate concern of this conference is the question of reparations and Germany's request for a moratorium, but since the delivery, last week, of the note of Earl Balfour, it is assured that the question of inter-allied indebtedness cannot be excluded from the discussions, especially as Raymond Poincare, French Prime Minister, is credited with bringing to London a plan for the extinction of German reparations bonds in exchange for the cancellation of the French debt to Great Britain. This plan meets with little sympathy in England, because it is contended that German bonds being admittedly worthless, Great Britain would gain nothing, but by forgiving the French debt would lose the last weapon she possesses for bringing pressure to bear upon France on questions of armaments, or on any policy in which France might run counter to British ideas. Little hope seems to be entertained that the conference will be successful, although it is fully recognized that in view of the swift fall in the value of the mark, which threatens to bring Germany in the wake of Austria and Russia, financially, a situation has been reached in which half measures no longer avail.

ENGINEER TO BLAME.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 6.
Failure of the engineer to hold a block signal caused the rear end collision on the Missouri Pacific here last night, in which thirty-eight persons were killed and one hundred and thirty-seven injured, twenty-five seriously, according to John Cannon, Assistant General Manager of the road.

Ireland Originated the Baronetage.

King James I., wanting money for maintaining an army in Ireland, asked the advice of the Earl of Salisbury, who suggested to him the creation of two hundred Baronets, each of whom should pay a thousand pounds for the privilege and honour. James expressed doubt as to the manner in which the new Order would be received by the great body of gentry. "Tush, sir," replied the Earl; "you want the money—it will be yours, good, and the honour will do the gentry very little harm. The first creation was on May 22, 1611, and it was a strict condition, that every candidate for the title should be worth a thousand pounds a year, and also that the title should die with him; but as aspirants for the honour were not too numerous, this latter clause was removed and the title made heritable. The first Baronet was Sir Nicholas Bacon, whose successors are styled "Primus Baronetum Angliæ." The reason why the sum was put at a thousand pounds was that it would maintain twenty soldiers in the Province of Ulster for three years at eighteen pence a day each.

"Blue Peter" Borne Out.

"CADET," WRITES ON OUTER COVE CREW OF 1901.

Editor Evening Telegram
 Dear Sir—Your correspondent "Blue Peter" in your journal of Saturday, August 5th, has hit the mark in his advocacy to have the photo taken of the Outer Cove crew of fishermen, who at the Regatta of 1901, in the Champion Race, rowed the distance in 3 min., 13 1/2 sec., the quickest time chronicled, since the inception of our local Regatta, which first event took place, upwards of one hundred years ago or more. With all that "Blue Peter" has stated, I am in entire accord. It seems strange to me, that such an event should have been overlooked so long. The possibilities are that if this suggestion by "Blue Peter" is allowed to remain overlooked any longer that it will not be possible to obtain photo's of the gallant crew, who, so I am informed, are with us yet,—one excepted—who is living in Boston, whose photo could be readily obtained if the suggestion were put in practice. It would make an historic picture for future generations. It is the duty of the Regatta Committee to see that it is done. I am sure that the indefatigable President, Arthur Hiscock Esq., will with pleasure accede to the request of your correspondent "Blue Peter" and that ere she shall be relieved of her twenty-one years sojourn on the Banks of Quidi Vidi the photo's of those shall be taken aboard of her who performed a rowing feat never equalled, and in all probability, never shall—on that historic Wednesday, August 7th, 1901. Pardon me Mr. Editor, if I intrude on your space and kindness, but I would like to mention before closing that the coxswain, Walter Power, who was one of the crew of the "Elizabeth" who won the first silver cup ever presented at our Regatta. This was in the year 1872. The names of the crew were:—Walter Walsh, Patrick Hickey, Walter Power, Lawrence Boland, James Fennessey, John Lewis, (cox.). The last two named were natives of St. John's; the others were natives of Outer Cove. With thanks, I remain,
 Yours truly,
 "CADET."

A Merchant Marine.

Government ownership of railways is frequently compared with government ownership of the merchant marine. "If the merchant marine is not to be given a chance, why not abandon the Canadian National railways?" asked one member at Ottawa in the course of a debate on the deficits piled up by the government vessels. There is a very great difference between the two. In fact, they are hardly comparable at all, except in the fact that both are common carriers. Immense capital is necessary to enter the business of railroading. Anyone who can scrape together the cash necessary to purchase a tramp steamer can enter the business of water transportation. The sea highways of all the world are open to him. He must comply with certain regulations and must be an experienced navigator, but apart from that the world is his oyster. There are no right-of-ways to buy, no charters to secure from Parliament, no rails to lay. Theoretically there is no reason why government-owned ships should not or could not compete with privately-owned vessels. But they would have to be built as cheaply as privately-owned ships are, and would have to operate on the same basis of efficiency in every respect. To roam the world, picking up a cargo here and a cargo there, trading and bargaining in a hundred ports, is a sphere beyond the reach of a government-owned vessel. The government's policy is to take 27 of the smaller vessels out of commission immediately, and sell them off as opportunity offers. The remaining ships, which are of real service in a steady carrying trade in co-operation with the Canadian National Railways, will be kept in commission. For the service for the past eighteen months a total deficit of $4,800,000 is anticipated, but that sum apparently includes some capital expenditures in connection with the ships. The ships were built in a war emergency, and even though they came too late to be of much service, the Dominion may be philosophical about it and write off the cost of them as a war expenditure. A mistake was made when the shipbuilding policy was carried beyond the termination of the war, and a further mistake when the attempt was made to keep them all in commission, even though freights were lacking. Both mistakes Hon. W. C. Kennedy is now endeavoring to correct, so far as lies within his power.—Saskatoon Star.

QUESTIONING.
 You shall wonder as you meet Drunkards reeling down the street, Helpless cripples and the blind, Human wrecks of every kind, Living on from day to day, Why your loved one couldn't stay.
 These are thoughts which always come When the heart with grief is numb, "Why," the anguished mother cries, With the tears still in her eyes, "Must my baby go away And some sinful creature stay?"
 Thus rebellious is your grief, You may falter in belief And your blinded eyes will see No just cause why this should be; But the passing years shall show Wisely was it ordered so.
 Hold your faith and bear the pain, Questioning your God in vain. None of us has power to know Who should stay and who should go. Hold this everlasting truth— Heaven has need of lovely youth.
 Think of this when you are tired: If the wretched only died, Then would death to us be sent Always as a punishment; But the passing years from the earth Is more beautiful than birth.

Bulgaria Gets Glimpse of Prohibition.

SOFIA, Bulgaria.—The movement for prohibition has shown itself in Bulgaria. Premier Stamboulsky has introduced a measure in Parliament which would suppress all saloons unless the men and women residents of the locality concerned come out and specifically vote for the retention of the establishment.
 Make small dainty sandwiches, spread with butter and a layer of marmalade or thinly sliced cheese. Put them on pie tins and then under your gas broiler, and when lightly toasted on one side turn and toast the other. The cheese will be just melted enough and the marmalade just warmed enough to be deliciously appetizing.

Citizen Writes on the Collishaw Proposition

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir:—I regret to note that the Municipal Council apparently has not given much consideration to the proposition put forward by Mr. E. Collishaw to guarantee bonds of a building corporation up to $50,000 to assist, I presume, this company to float those bonds and proceed with the erection of 35 workmen's dwellings.
 It seems to me that before a proposition of this nature is turned down it should be fully investigated and ventilated in the press. The fact cannot be disputed that St. John's badly needs many cheap dwellings on a lower rental basis than at present obtains. The proposition put forward by Mr. Collishaw plans for the erection of dwellings costing $1,500 and $2,000. To do this the dwellings will be sold by the company at net cost, the company being satisfied to turn over the stock of lumber on hand.
 This low price would reduce the Council's risk to a minimum, as the dwellings would, no doubt, always realize the cost price. A few years ago the Council, realizing the necessity for dwellings, financed and built a range of houses in the East End, and although the houses cost much more than the present estimates, I understand the proposition is a success and is highly appreciated. Now we have a proposition to commence the erection of a large number of houses which will obviate the necessity for the Council to finance any further undertakings, and also save the Council the Executive and administrative work such a proposition entails.
 I understand that the chief difficulty in connection with the "Anderson houses" was that they were built when all materials were at the peak, and cost twice as much as the average workman can afford to pay. The Collishaw houses will be built while prices are at a low level and should be within the reach of all who need them. Payment for the houses on the "hire purchase" system is ideal and should be encouraged, as a man by paying less than the rent now charged can own his house in 10 years.
 The first mortgage offered should give the Council ample security. Since the war England, Canada and the United States gave all possible financial assistance to building societies, thereby assisting in a large manner to solve the housing problem. I trust that the Council will re-open this matter for discussion, and while safeguarding the Council's interests by nominating representatives on the company's directorate, will do all possible to forward the proposition.
 Yours truly,
 CITIZEN.

BIG MELODRAMA AT THE NICKEL TO-NIGHT.
 "A Tale of Two Worlds" is the title of the Goldwyn picture which is at the Nickel Theatre to-night sponsored by Eminent Authors. The famous short story writer, Gouverneur Morris, has contributed a photoplay calculated to intrigue the imagination and stimulate the pulse. It is a story of the Orient and Occident and revolves around a white girl who is brought up in ignorance of the outside world and the fact that she is not a Chinese, by Ah Wing, who kidnapped her away in infancy to save her life. During a Boxer uprising her parents were killed and the Chinaman takes her to the Chinese section of a large Western city. There it is that the wily Oriental responsible for the death of her parents is residing and, according to the custom of his race, a debt must be paid honorably.

 Ah Wing has promised the girl to him in return for a certain sceptre. The wily Oriental obtains the precious object and asks for his reward. So the drama builds a conflict between the two Chinamen, the girl's guardian attempting to keep her or give her away to a white admirer. The American effects her rescue in a most dramatic fashion. The picture is remarkably rich in its melodramatic appeal, there being good evidence of thrills. Considerable local color emphasizes the action and incident. A prominent cast interprets the picture in a most capable manner. Frank Lloyd directed.

Queens of Love.

Ninon De L'Enclos, the wonderful beauty who possessed the secret of eternal youth.

(Pearson's Weekly.)

Eyes as black as the blackest velvet, lips made for kisses and a skin like that of a peach—only fourteen years old, but with a prince in love with her.

That is Ninon De L'Enclos.

A woman of ninety, with laughing black eyes, beautifully arched eyebrows, and a complexion like that of a young woman, a woman whose beauty was fadeless, whose gay charm remained unbroken.

That, too, is Ninon De L'Enclos, a wonder woman, breaker of hearts, a woman who must have known the secret of eternal youth.

The Prince de Marsillac fell in love with this little French girl when she was only fourteen, and they eloped together. Both were brought back, the prince was punished and sent away, but Ninon's father, who was devoted to his velvety-eyed daughter, did not even give her a scolding! And when a year later he died, leaving her all his money, he told her that she had not much fun out of life, and urged her to make the most of her opportunities.

Ninon took his advice. She was six years when she went to Paris, and, needless of the shocked remonstrances of her kinsfolk, she set up housekeeping all on her own, determined to get out of life all the fun she possibly could. In less than a month she was crazy over her beauty, and the man after another fell madly in love with her.

She played upon the fate very well, she danced beautifully, she sang well, but it was not these things that attracted the number of gallants who sought to pay court to her. It was her almost indescribable something, magnetic, feminine allure, call it what you will.

Ninon had the secret of winning men's love.

She had charm.

When Ninon had been in Paris four years, and everybody still raved about her, she came home late from a ball, and, dismissing her maid, stood in front of her long mirror, admiring herself.

Suddenly she started, for behind her she saw in the mirror the shadowy figure of a man, wearing a black cloak and hat, the hat drawn over his face so that she could not see his face, and the cloak wrapped closely round her.

Ninon did not shriek or faint, but, spring indignantly, demanded of the stranger his business. For answer, he took out from beneath his dark cloak a rose-hued flask which sparkled and glowed, and which contained some mysterious liquid.

He told her that one drop of the liquid every day in her bath would keep her young and beautiful for ever, and that so long as she possessed this secret of youth and beauty all men who met her would adore her, and be at her feet. He asked for payment, but set down the rose-hued flask on the table.

and he was so powerful Ninon might give what they called their love in return for precious jewels, a position at Court, or some other favour. Ninon would never take anything from her lovers but their adoration. She desired love, that was all.

When she was sixty she discovered her first wrinkle, and went in despair to the duke, but he laughed.

"There is no wrinkle, my adored one," he told her. "There is nothing but a single line of beauty, which Love placed there to nestle in."

Then there was the Count de Fiesque, who first fell in love with her red hair, then with Ninon herself. But they quarrelled, and for the first time in all her life Ninon found herself deserted by a lover.

She wrote tender letters to him, but he did not answer, and Ninon grew despairing. Never had she experienced anything like this. But the count would not "make it up" and finally in despair, Ninon cut off her beautiful red-gold hair and sent it to him.

He understood. He had called her vain and selfish, but she had shorn herself of her chief beauty for him, and back he flew, not even stopping to put on a hat, right through the streets of Paris, to fling himself at her feet.

Through her action of cutting off her tresses Ninon de L'Enclos certainly became the first woman to set the fashion for bobbed hair. Within a week half the women of Paris had cut off their hair, too. They might say all sorts of spiteful things against Ninon, but they copied her whenever possible.

Louis the Fourteenth, was reigning then in France, but although Ninon could have had him for a lover, she cared nothing for kings, and only snubbed him.

At seventy-nine one man after another still fell in love with her. One other still fell in love with her. One cause she would not return his passion. And people looked at one another with puzzled faces.

The great Cardinal Richelieu, the most important man in France, laid his heart at her feet.

Trinity and Catalina Football Match.

INTER-TOWN STRENUOUS CONTEST.

On Wednesday, August 2nd, there was played at Catalina one of the most interesting and exciting football matches ever seen there, between a visiting team from Trinity and the Catalina boys. As both teams were evenly matched the game was exciting from start to finish. The game started at three o'clock. The Trinity boys defended the north goal and with the wind in their favour were sure of notching up quickly. The Catalina boys fought hard to keep the ball out of their goal. Mr. Rankin the Trinity right wing man had hard luck and lost two fine chances to score. Both A. Murphy and L. Collins had hard luck in this half. Murphy took a beauty shot from about three or four feet from the centre, the ball touching the crossbar and going over. Collins got in some nice combination, but somehow or other (the gods being to anything. No score resulted in this half. In the second half the home boys against us, I suppose it never came having the wind in their favour kept the ball in their opponent's territory nearly all the time, but try as they would no goal was scored. When the referee blew his whistle it was 0-0. After ten minutes rest both captains decided they would play another quarter of an hour each way. The Trinity team again with the wind in their favour kept the ball down near the Catalina goal but failed to score. The last half was devoid of any interest until about three minutes before full time when Aidan Murphy, Captain of the home team scored a marvellous goal from nearly centre field. The Trinity boys did not lose heart but tried very hard to even up the score. When the referee again blew his whistle the score was 1-0 in favour of Catalina. The rooters for Catalina team who had done such gallant work all through the game, again gave vent to their feelings of delicious joy by an outburst of wild cheers. But all the applause did not go to the champions as the gallantry and the sportsmanship of the Trinity boys received well-merited recognition, and many a hearty cheer was called for and raised in their honour. Shortly after the game both teams partook of a sumptuous meal at Mrs. Randall's. After everyone had done justice to the "Inner Man", Mr. C. F. Snelgrove, Chairman of the Catalina Football Club, asked all to stand and drink the health of the King. When all were again seated Mr. M. White, Captain of the Trinity team arose, and in choice language thanked the Catalina boys for the splendid time they had so kindly given them, and his team and himself were very grateful and appreciated what had been done for them. He also said they would remember this trip for sometime to come. On Captain White taking his seat, A. Murphy, Captain of the Home Team spoke and said that he could not let the opportunity go by without at least congratulating the Trinity boys on the sporty and clean way in which they played the game. Quoting from some great writer, he said, "A man who can take a losing game in the same spirit as he takes a winning one is indeed an extraordinary man." Without any doubt he said "This maximum can be easily applied to the Trinity team, because they took their beating in a sporty and a manly way. Even then they did not lose interest in it, but kept up a good spirit and fought to a finish, and for this reason he said the Trinity men are extraordinary men. He next went on to congratulate the Catalina team on their splendid showing and said it was a great pleasure for him to play with such fine men, and he thought himself highly privileged in being selected as their Captain. He also made special reference to Mrs. Randall who so kindly and willingly did the catering. He thanked Mr. Scott who so kindly and so satisfactorily refereed the game. Before taking his seat he asked the Home Team to stand and drink the health of the Trinity Team. After dancing for three hours the Trinity team took the train for home in the best of spirits, thus bringing to a close one of the best matches ever witnessed at Catalina. Quite a number of visitors came from Trinity and Catalina to see the match. The Catalina team is an all-round one. Every man played a hard and conscientious game.—T.V.W.

INTER-TOWN CRICKET.
Arrangements are being made for the St. John's Cricketers to visit Grand Falls about the 24th. inst., when they will play best two out of three games for the Hayward Inter-Town Trophy. In this connection we understand that a lot of the old timers are now busy taking Ironised Yeast in preparation for the game with Bell Island. (How about it?)

MARATHONS GET READY.

Word has been received that the handsome cup and 3 gold medals for the Telegram 10 Mile Road Race is now on the way from England. The date for the Race has not been definitely decided, but it is expected that it will take place in connection with the Dominion Sports some time during September. The date and conditions of the Race will be published in this column at an early date. All the would be Bell (es) please note. The delay in the arrival of the trophy was caused through an accident the manufacturers, advising us that when the cup was being given the final touches, it caught in the belt and was so badly damaged that a new one had to be made.

score. When the referee again blew his whistle the score was 1-0 in favour of Catalina. The rooters for Catalina team who had done such gallant work all through the game, again gave vent to their feelings of delicious joy by an outburst of wild cheers. But all the applause did not go to the champions as the gallantry and the sportsmanship of the Trinity boys received well-merited recognition, and many a hearty cheer was called for and raised in their honour. Shortly after the game both teams partook of a sumptuous meal at Mrs. Randall's. After everyone had done justice to the "Inner Man", Mr. C. F. Snelgrove, Chairman of the Catalina Football Club, asked all to stand and drink the health of the King. When all were again seated Mr. M. White, Captain of the Trinity team arose, and in choice language thanked the Catalina boys for the splendid time they had so kindly given them, and his team and himself were very grateful and appreciated what had been done for them. He also said they would remember this trip for sometime to come. On Captain White taking his seat, A. Murphy, Captain of the Home Team spoke and said that he could not let the opportunity go by without at least congratulating the Trinity boys on the sporty and clean way in which they played the game. Quoting from some great writer, he said, "A man who can take a losing game in the same spirit as he takes a winning one is indeed an extraordinary man." Without any doubt he said "This maximum can be easily applied to the Trinity team, because they took their beating in a sporty and a manly way. Even then they did not lose interest in it, but kept up a good spirit and fought to a finish, and for this reason he said the Trinity men are extraordinary men. He next went on to congratulate the Catalina team on their splendid showing and said it was a great pleasure for him to play with such fine men, and he thought himself highly privileged in being selected as their Captain. He also made special reference to Mrs. Randall who so kindly and willingly did the catering. He thanked Mr. Scott who so kindly and so satisfactorily refereed the game. Before taking his seat he asked the Home Team to stand and drink the health of the Trinity Team. After dancing for three hours the Trinity team took the train for home in the best of spirits, thus bringing to a close one of the best matches ever witnessed at Catalina. Quite a number of visitors came from Trinity and Catalina to see the match. The Catalina team is an all-round one. Every man played a hard and conscientious game.—T.V.W.

NEW OFFICERS WELCOMED.

All day yesterday members of the Salvation Army, No. 2 Corps, were privileged by having their services conducted by Adjutant and Mrs. Hillier, who have been appointed to take charge of the work of the Corps. The meeting was well attended and the new officers were made to feel quite at home. In the morning several comrades in speaking referred to the pleasure they felt in having the new officers with them and expressed their intention of heartily supporting them in their good work. Adjutant Hillier gave a very interesting address based on the words "Thy Kingdom Come." He showed the blessings that would accrue to mankind through the coming of God's Kingdom on earth, and explained the part which men and women could play in bringing this about.

The usual meeting of praise testimony took place at 2 p.m. Mrs. Hillier gave a short address based on the parable of the Leaven and the Fishes. At 7 p.m. a Salvation meeting was held when words of welcome were spoken on behalf of the Corps by Sergt-Major Cummings and Deputy Bandmaster A. Harbin. Adj. and Mrs. Hillier replied stating the pleasure they felt in being appointed to No. 2 Corps and their determination to use their best efforts in pushing forward the work of God in their new field of labor. After a selection from the band the Adjutant, taking his text from Luke XIV, preached a thoughtful and impressive sermon, showing the bounty of the Creator in providing for man's spiritual good, and urging his congregation to accept his gifts. Adjutant and Mrs. Hillier have had considerable experience in Salvation Army work, and come to their new appointment with a record of faithful and successful service. We feel sure that they will be a valuable addition not only to the Salvation Army forces, but to the religious life of the community generally.—COM.

Bay Bulls Briefs.

The fish, which have been very plentiful for the past month, have now apparently moved up the shore as the catches for the past two days are very small. All the traps have secured very profitable catches with the exception of one or two who struck also some fairly well, but not as well as the prosperous fishermen who live in Bay Bulls, and for the past four years have made good voyages.

We are delighted to welcome the many visitors who have been spending their vacations here the past month. They speak highly of the delightful weather and the refreshing sea breezes which are to be found here, and especially of the delightful hotel accommodations.

Mr. and Mrs. Coady with their daughter and son, who have been spending the holidays with their relatives in Bay Bulls, intend soon to return to New York, where Mr. Coady has been very prosperous in business.—THE ONLOOKER.

Digby Has Large Cargo.

SPIRITS FOR TRANSHIPMENT.

Messrs. Furness Withy & Company have been advised that the S.S. Digby, due here on Thursday next from Liverpool, is bringing some 1500 tons of cargo. Included in this amount is 750 tons of salt, which is being imported by a local concern. The ship has also has also some 5000 cases of whisky, which will be landed here for transshipment to St. Pierre. Seventy-eight passengers are on board, thirty four of whom are in transit to Halifax and Boston.

Personal.

Colonel Peters, M.D., D.S.O., is a passenger from Montreal by the "Manos" due on Thursday. Mr. Alex Robertson of Bishop Sons and Company, Ltd., is also returning by the same steamer.

Mr. C. W. Hayward of Grand Falls, who has been in the city on a short vacation, returned home by yesterday's express.

Rev. Hammond Johnson, who assumes the pastorate of Gower Street Church, is a passenger by S.S. Manos due here on Thursday. He is accompanied by his family.

Miss Ida Simmonds left on Saturday by S.S. Rosalind for New York on a visit to relatives.

Shipping Notes.

Schooner Cape Pine which has been purchased by a St. Pierre firm sailed yesterday morning for the French Colony in ballast.

Schooner Vera Himmelman, belonging to Lunenburg, N.S., arrived from the Banks last evening for ice and bait. The vessel hails for 1200 qts. and reports fish fairly plentiful. The Himmelman is now on her third trip having been back to her home port on two occasions with full loads.

Household Notes.

On hearts of lettuce place thin slices of cheese. Arrange one-fourth inch slices of firm currant jelly around cheese, moisten with mayonnaise.

Cut strips of light dough into dice and drop into hot lard. Stir until brown and drain. Sprinkle with a little salt. These little cakes are nice for a light lunch.

If you wish to have a growing plant as a centerpiece, and do not wish your table service marred, cut a piece of rubber sheeting the size of the centerpiece and place under it.

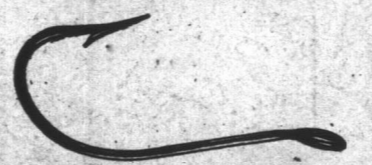

Try spicing walnut meats. Boil 1 cup of sugar with ¼ cup of water until syrup hardens when tried in cold water. Str in a little cinnamon, ginger and 2 cups walnut meats.

When taking a cutting from a plant form the habit of rubbing a bit of damp earth upon the end of the slip and also upon the spot where it was broken off. This prevents what is called bleeding—a loss of sap—and saves the vitality of both. It is putting salve upon an open sore.

It is a difficult matter to cut away the material under lace insertion with out severing a wrong thread unless means of overcoming the trouble be employed. Use a piece of cardboard four inches long, rounded at one end and cut wide enough to slip along between lace and the material. This will make the work easier and safer, until needed.

To remove ink spots from wash goods, melt a piece of tallow, plunge the ink spot into hot fat, then wash the piece at once and the ink will disappear, unless it is a colored garment which will not wash; then drop melted wax on the spot, let it become hard and remove with a sharp knife. The ink will be soaked up by the wax, and if any stain remains from it, place a clean piece of blotting paper over it and press with a hot iron to draw it out.

THE GRATITUDE DOG.

A few days ago I wrote about the person who will do all sorts of things for her friends but who rightly grows resentful when she is not treated as generously when she begins to take all she does for granted and to look upon her kindness as a matter of course, instead of being grateful for it.

She surely sympathizes with this man and feels that they who love generously get their just compensation.

I never write about this type of person without remembering that at the other end of the scale is the kind of person who wants not merely some show of appreciation in those who receive but demand a very pound of flesh. And I hope that that kind of person did not read what I wrote and take it as justification for greed for gratitude.

A Lovely Party But—

There is the sort of thing I mean: a young girl whom I know was a very nice coming out party by night. Her own home is small, the means have been shrunken by stress, and her aunt has a large and a plentiful income and loves entertain.

The party was a very pretty one. The girl was very grateful. She is so and the sort who would be grateful and would express her thanks freely and gratefully. And yet a time after the party the aunt told the mother that she ought to be more grateful for what had been done for her.

The mother was much surprised when Ethel if she had not thanked her aunt for doing such a lovely party.

When she struck, "I certainly have," said Ethel, "I had after the party that night and thanked her and thanked her. I told her it was about the nicest thing anyone ever did for me and I raved about the refreshments and the decorations and the favors for the dance and I said she was the nicest aunt anyone ever had. And then the next morning I spent the whole morning over there talking it over and thanking her. And I said nice things about the party every time I saw her for the next week. But when Sunday came and they took me on that motor ride and I saw she wanted me to thank her all through that I struck. I knew I could never satisfy her and I gave up trying. I shut up and didn't say another word about it and I haven't since. You know what she's like yourself, mother, and you needn't pretend to blame me."

And the mother, being a wise mother, didn't.

Gratitude is just as ugly and unbecoming as any kind of greed.

Too Large a Note.

A woman told me that she had had a chance to go abroad with all expenses paid with a friend, but had refused. It seemed to me like a great opportunity lost. "Why didn't you go?" I asked.

"I knew I should have to pay my way by being gracious and amenable and grateful for the rest of my life and I didn't feel as if I wanted to sign a note for that much gratitude," she returned.

It is natural to want to know that people appreciate what you do for them. It is unnatural to demand so much appreciation that you make your favors cost more than they are worth. The person who does that is a profiteer in gratitude.

Swordfishing Becomes Valuable Industry.

LOUISBURG, C.B. HEADQUARTERS FOR FLEET.

HALIFAX, N.S. (Canadian Press)—Swordfishing out of Cape Breton ports bids fair to becoming a temporary rival as an industry of the steel manufacture in Sydney, according to the Sydney Post in an article forecasting record breaking shipments of swordfish to Boston during the season now commencing. Last season the shipments from Louisbourg to Boston, alone, amounted to well over a million pounds and this volume will likely be far exceeded during the present season if the expectations of fish buyers in Cape Breton from New England, are fulfilled. It has been said that the people who engage in the swordfisheries in Cape Breton outnumber those employed by the steel plants. The fish are caught, cleaned, iced, boxed and shipped in a special fleet of refrigeratory cars by the most direct route to Boston. Louisbourg is the starting point of the Nova Scotia fleet of one hundred sail, which will go after the swordfish this season, but there will be many other crafts engaged in the fishery, including a few from American ports. Nova Scotia fishermen have, during the past few years made Cape Breton ports their headquarters, as it has been found that the fish strike that coast in larger quantities than in any other locality during the migration from the southern banks. The first kill is generally made the latter part of July in the waters between Seal-tarie and Bryon Island. The season lasts about five weeks then the fish disappear and are seen no more until next season, when they commence to run off the American coast. Already American fishermen have made large catches and in four days, July 14 to 17, 31,000 fish weighing on an average of 250 pounds each, were landed at the Boston wharves. A steady market for this enormous catch was found at 5 cents per pound on board ship.

Bird Hunter Discovers Forgotten Indian Tribe

PHILADELPHIA (Associated Press)—Wharton Huber, assistant curator of the ornithology section of the Academy of Natural Sciences, returned recently to this city from his little known regions of Nicaragua, where he assembled a large collection of birds, beasts, fish and reptiles, a number of which he believes have not yet been classified. He also claims to have penetrated to the villages of Sumo Indians, who rarely had seen a white man. The scientist's specimens include 698 birds, 40 rare mammals and 2,000 fish, reptiles and insects, all of which will be placed on exhibition in the local institution. "My research work was done about 180 miles inland from the Nicaraguan coast," said Mr. Huber. "We established our headquarters at a small mining camp whence we made trips further into the country. The average annual rainfall here is 147 inches. From the time I reached the interior until I left there never was a dry article of clothing on me. The country is infested with red bugs, smaller than fleas which burrow under the skin and inflict serious wounds. Skilful hunters but timid. I went up the Prinz Polka river for 180 miles in a piropan, an open boat made of a hollowed-out mahogany log. Then in a smaller piropan I ascended the Babana river to Mithinda. The district is hilly, and covered with tropical forests so dense that it is impossible to enter them until a way is cut by Indians. The only inhabitants are a few scattered tribes of Indians apparently of Spanish and Miskito Indian descent. With a body of these Indians as guides I penetrated to certain villages of the Sumo Indians. The Sumo men are very skilful hunters, but the tribe is rapidly becoming extinct. With all their ability in hunting and their courage in facing wild animals, they are excessively timid of strange human beings, and will run away even from members of their own tribes. Miskito Indians sometimes walk into their villages and take anything they want without meeting resistance. The Sumos, numbering about 500 souls all told, have the slant, almond eyes of the Chinese and their skin is about the same color as that of a Chinaman."

Stops Pain Instantly

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in two forms—a colorless, clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plasters. Use whichever form you prefer. Plasters of the liquid—the action is the same. Safe, gentle. Made in a world-famed laboratory. Sold by druggists. Free: Write Master & Black, Toronto, Ont. for valuable book, "Correct Care of the Foot."

Oxford Removes Bar on Women.

CAMBRIDGE HOWEVER BOLTS ITS DOORS AGAINST THEM.

LONDON (Associated Press).—Oxford University now admits women, freely to its degrees and to university membership, but Cambridge still locks its doors against them. Naturally the women don't feel a bit grateful for such glimpses. They want the doors unlocked. The women from the Cambridge College of St. Catharine and Girton have demanded admission to degrees and university membership on the same terms as men. Not long ago some 2,600 of them signed a petition to this effect. The reply given by the University was polite, but unsatisfactory. Within the last two years Cambridge has voted and counter-voted on various proposals to admit women. The only proposal which it has actually carried—and to this practical effect has not yet been given—is that women who are qualified for degrees status may obtain "titles of degrees" but not real degrees.

DEGREES YET NO DEGREES.

In making this half-hearted offer Cambridge is proposing to treat women just as it formerly treated Jews and Nonconformists, whom also it tried to satisfy with the titular degrees until Parliament stepped in and compelled the University to abolish its discriminations of creed. Now women want Parliament to intervene and compel Cambridge to abolish its discrimination against their sex. And signs are not lacking that Cambridge itself is beginning to see that it will not pay to keep the women knocking at their doors much longer. A deputation consisting of several members of Parliament, the heads of Girton and Newham Colleges and other friends of the movement recently talked with Mr. Fisher, Minister of Education. The Minister made it quite plain that he was on the side of the women and would do all he could to persuade Cambridge to open its doors to them. Parliament was undoubtedly on their side. Cambridge was looking for a grant from the Exchequer, he said, but it is not likely Parliament would vote it while Cambridge continued to exclude women. If Cambridge found that by keeping women out she would probably quickly decide to let them in. It might not therefore become necessary to employ legislative pressure to force her to open her doors.

Are Your Rooms Damp?

Considering the many grave dangers which accrue from sleeping in damp rooms and the many inconveniences and doctors' bills so frequently incurred, you would be well advised to see that these apartments are kept dry and comfortable as possible.

The following simple and infallible device will expedite the expulsion of dampness with celerity when even blazing fires have failed. Procure a number of camphor blocks from your chemist and place one in every corner of the room and in places where the slightest sign of humidity is observed. In a few weeks they will have almost disappeared, and with them, invariably, the dampness. Repeated periodically, this simple treatment will, in most cases, render a hitherto humid bedroom absolutely insusceptible to humidity.

Another excellent remedy, especially for rooms situated on the ground floor of a building, is to place a hot shovel containing a little unslacked lime in the centre of the room. When moist it should be removed, and the process repeated. A piece of strong floor cloth placed under your carpet and liberally sprinkled with common salt is also an admirable safeguard against the inroads of dampness.

Bird Hunter Discovers Forgotten Indian Tribe

PHILADELPHIA (Associated Press)—Wharton Huber, assistant curator of the ornithology section of the Academy of Natural Sciences, returned recently to this city from his little known regions of Nicaragua, where he assembled a large collection of birds, beasts, fish and reptiles, a number of which he believes have not yet been classified. He also claims to have penetrated to the villages of Sumo Indians, who rarely had seen a white man. The scientist's specimens include 698 birds, 40 rare mammals and 2,000 fish, reptiles and insects, all of which will be placed on exhibition in the local institution. "My research work was done about 180 miles inland from the Nicaraguan coast," said Mr. Huber. "We established our headquarters at a small mining camp whence we made trips further into the country. How He Managed It.

It is related of a famous physician that one day a very valuable lady took an abiding daughter to see him. "Which of you two wants to consult me?" said the doctor.

"My daughter," replied the elder lady.

The physician then put a question to the girl. Before she had a chance to reply her mother began a long story. The physician asked her to be quiet, and repeated his question to the girl. A second time the woman began a story and a second time he told her to be quiet. Then she interrupted him a third time.

"Put your tongue out," he said to the mother.

"But there's nothing the matter with me," she exclaimed.

"Never mind, put your tongue out," he commanded.

Thoroughly overawed, the woman obeyed.

"Now keep it out," said the physician, and he proceeded to examine the girl.
