

The Reason Why.
 The reason why the magnificent Retail Grocery Establishments in the Alma Block and on Lower Wyndham Street, belonging to John A. Wood, are so very popular with the intelligent public:—
 Because the Goods are all of the best quality.
 Because the Prices are invariably the lowest.
 Because the Clerks are courteous and obliging.
 Because the Stock is the largest to select from.
 Because the goods are always clean.
 Because the Weights and Measures are always correct.
 Because, in fact, the proprietor understands his business, desires to please his customers, makes good use of his capital, and buys for cash in the best markets, and always deals liberally with those who honor his stores with their custom.—
 These and many other weighty reasons have contributed very largely to make the name of John A. Wood, as connected with the Grocery trade of Guelph, so well known, and his stores so very popular.

 SATURDAY EVEN'G, SEPT. 13, 1873

The Rogue's Plea.
 The following from the Hamilton Times is good sound sense:—
 The curious argument is sometimes heard that all politicians are alike venal—that Sir John A. Macdonald and his colleagues are probably as corrupt as their opponents allege—but that it would be only substituting one set of rogues for another to turn the present Government out of power. The persons who use this plea do not act upon it in private or business life. The merchant who detects a clerk stealing cash from the till, does not say, "I know he is dishonest, but then all clerks are alike, so I may as well keep the one I've got, even if he does steal." No! The merchant discharges his dishonest clerk, engages another, and until the latter does something wrong, considers him fairly entitled to confidence. There are honest clerks and dishonest ones, there are honest politicians and dishonest. Because A. has been proved to have trafficked in the honor of his country, you have no right to assume that B. would be also a traitor if he had a chance. It is the doctrine of scoundrels that every man has his price. We don't believe it. There are true men in Canada, men in every country who could sincerely adopt the words put into the mouth of one of her heroes by George Eliot:—
 "They may tell me," said Felix Holt, "I can't alter the world—that there must be a certain number of sneaks and robbers in it, and if I don't lie and slich someb'dy else will. Well then, somebody else must, for I won't."

Know - Nothings.
 This is what the New York Tribune says about the enquiry now going on at Ottawa:—"So far, the Canadian Railroad scandal, as pursued by the Royal Commission, has baffled inquiry. The latest reports show that the witnesses are not only unwilling, but resolutely determined to tell nothing if they can help it. They all concur in blankly knowing nothing of any arrangement between the Canadian Ministry and the Allan party by which the former were to render any service to the latter for their liberal subscriptions of money to the election fund. Yet, it is shown by at least one of the members of the election committee that Sir Hugh Allan did subscribe altogether £40,000 for election purposes. This generous, we may say prodigal liberality is yet unexplained."
 Even the Toronto Mail is compelled to admit the know-nothing peculiarities of the witnesses examined before the John A. Commission. It says: "Mr. Andrew Allan knew nothing, M. Belfeuille knew nothing, Mr. Macpherson knew nothing, and M. Macpherson knew nothing, while Sir Francis Hincks?—well, poor Sir Francis knew nothing but what Sir John wanted him to, and the Mail says he was "a most damaging witness."

In the scandal inquiry at Ottawa so far, the evidence of three very important witnesses, Mr. Huntington, Senator Foster, and Mr. McMullen, cannot be obtained. This fact of itself would be sufficient to defeat the ostensible object of the Commission.
 As Mr. G. Johnson was hunting last week in the Province of Frouon, he came in contact with five young bears, and deliberately shot at one, which rolled over and over, making the most awful yells. The noise attracted the attention of the old mother, and it came up, showing its teeth in a threatening manner. The hunter thought he was in a tight place, but the bear relieved his mind by turning round and walking off with the cubs.

For over twenty years "Bryan's Pulmonic Waters" have maintained their reputation for curing coughs, colds, and pulmonary diseases. Those suffering or threatened with any of the symptoms of bronchitis, or any of the pulmonary complaints, should at once give them a trial. They give almost immediate relief, and if taken in time generally effect a cure. Remember that a common cold or cough, if not attended to in time, often leads to that distressing and fatal disease—consumption. Sold by all druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per box.
 VALUE OF LIFE.—Life has value only in so far as we use it for perfecting our souls, or for enriching our minds with noble qualities and for spreading happiness around us; but we have daily proofs of the great value of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" in subduing the torturing pains of rheumatism, neuralgia, &c., removing pain of every nature from the body. For sale by all Druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per bottle.

ANNABEL

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

A TERRIBLE SCENE—PHILIP AND JIM AT THE OLD HOUSE AT DODDEN.

"Thank God she is not dead. She is asleep," he murmured in fervent tones, his heart filled with grateful's unspeakable—his whole being quivering with excess of emotion.

He held the light closer and gazed down upon that pale and silent face. Oh, yes, it was the face of Annabel, but how sadly altered! The bloom of youth and health had vanished; the marks of terrible suffering were visible in the sharp features, the hollow cheeks, the lines on the brow, the blue encircling the eyes, and the close-drawn, pinched, and parched lips—all so widely different from the radiant and lovely countenance on which he had so often and so fondly gazed. Alas, alas! it was no "sleeping beauty" which he contemplated, but sleeping anguish and despair.

Oh, what infinite pity and tenderness filled the bosom of Philip as thus he hung over the loved one who would presently awake to rapturous bliss. The depth of her misery, the extent of her suffering, was revealed to him even through the unconsciousness of sleep—revealed in the havoc it had made of her youthful freshness, in the marks of pain and care so deeply worn into cheek and brow. Oh, what she must have endured ere these dire effects could be produced. He shuddered under the picture which his imagination, quickened by the intensity of his love, portrayed; and there came into his spirit a fierce longing for vengeance on the authors and inflictors of her heavy wrongs.

Yet she lived—oh, she still lived—and her grievous wrongs being ended, she might be restored to him and to happiness. The grave had not swallowed her up, as for many weeks he had believed; therefore the days of his mourning were ended, and a blessed, glorious hope shone through the gloom, that thrilled his soul with a delicious joy.

How should he awake her to the knowledge and realization of the deliverance that had come? She had fallen asleep in her misery, wretched and hopeless as ever—what danger might not lie in a sudden intimation of his presence, and her return to freedom and the deepest, sweetest joys of life!

He stood puzzled and dubious how to act, when another low moan escaped her, accompanied by a contraction of the brow and a spasmodic action of her features, which showed that her sorrow was with her in the land of dreams.

A sob shook Philip's frame as he heard that wail of pain and saw those signs of suffering, and, bending down, his lips rested on hers with the gentlest touch that kiss could give.

Oh, heaven, how cold were those lips, and equally cold the bloodless cheeks, when the tips of his burning fingers lightly pressed them. No wonder! The winter night in that fireless room was cold in the extreme, and one coarse coverlet was all that sheltered her.

"I will whisper her name in low and tender accents," said Philip to himself. "Perchance the sound will penetrate her slumbers and change her dreams into peace."

"Annabel," he whispered, with his lips close to her ear—"my own, my darling Annabel!"

Very soft and low were the tones in which the words were whispered, but it did seem as if they had reached and rested on her aroused brain, for her troubled countenance grew calm and placid, and a happy smile broke upon her lips.

"Annabel, Annabel!" he continued, with trembling eagerness, "I am here to save you—I—your Philip—to rescue and protect you. No one shall harm you now my darling, my darling!"

Again the smile came upon her face, and a flutter passed over her bosom. The inner ear of her soul had evidently heard the dearly loved voice, and thrilled responsive to its echo. Her slumbers, too, were beginning to be broken, for a thin, cold hand moved from under the coverlet, and was instantly taken possession of by Philip, who stroked and caressed it, while his heart ached at sight of its emaciation.

Once more he leant over her, and kissed her now parted lips more warmly and forcibly than he had dared to do before, and murmured her name in louder accents—

"Annabel, Annabel! my darling, darling Annabel!"

She visibly started, and both arms were now drawn towards her head; then her whole frame moved, and, with a suddenness she did not expect, her eyes opened wide, and she gazed wonderingly up at him.

He smiled—his old, happy, loving smile. She clasped her hands in doubt, her face expressive of wild, intense inquiry.

He opened wide his arms and pronounced her name. She gathered round that she was awake, that it was no dream, that Philip was really there in flesh and blood, and, with a cry which echoed through every corridor of that silent house, she bounded up, and was caught in his extended arms.

Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, is easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "atrophied blood," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damage, and waste, searching out and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Bolls, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass. Pamphlets Free.
