HON. H. J. CODY

HON. GEORGE S. HENRY

HON. R. A. PYNE

Shortly before 6 o'clock last evening Archdeacon Cody was sworn in as minister of education, and George S. Henry as minister of agriculture in the Ontario Government.

On the arrival of Sir John Hendrie from Hamilton late in the afternoon, the members of the cabinet were called to the prime minister's office, where they were sworn in.

ANXIOUS TO RETIRE.

"For some time past Dr. Pyne has been anxious to obtain relief from the arduous duties of minister of education. Knowing, as I do, his sterling worth and his excellent judgment in all matters, it is with the very greatest reluctance that I have yielded to his request."

HAS OFFERED TO REFUND.

Dr. Edwards (Frontenac) again brought up the subject of the judicial committee which regard to the imperial war conference shortly to be held in England.

He has been very good fortune to be able to secure among the members of the legislature, in the person of Geo. S. Henry, the representative of East York, a man well fitted for training and experience to fill the position of minister of agriculture.

Hon. Dr. Cody, when interviewed by a reporter for The World, said: "In undertaking the new work I do so primarily from a sense of duty, and from the feeling that in these strenuous days everyone is called upon to render all the public service he possibly can."

INTERESTED IN EDUCATION.

The new minister has been interested in education for many years. He aided in founding Ridley College, St. Catharines, and Haverhill College, Jarvis street, Toronto.

OBSERVES DISEASE OF WAR-WEARINESS

Capt. Paulin Tells Empire Club That It Must Be Fought.

Capt. J. B. Paulin, pastor of Rosedale Presbyterian Church, who went overseas with the 86th Battalion and has seen a lot of service at the front, spoke to the Empire Club yesterday and gave graphic accounts of the fighting at Vimy Ridge.

Capt. Paulin thought that the spread of the disease of war-weariness was to be observed in Canada, and had to be met and fought. General Struts, who combined so many virtues of statesman and warrior, had pointed out that perseverance and persistence alone could overcome the enemy. Capt. Paulin said there was only one event in the world today. There was only one thing in which it was worth while to invest one's energies and labors. No one should use the word defeat. Particularly in writing to the front the word should never be suggested. The boys in the trenches knew very little except about what was going on in their own sector, and they were inclined to take the views of those at home in regard to the general situation.

Capt. Paulin spoke eloquently of the efforts made in England. The devotion of the women who had volunteered to make shells was a type of the courage and determination of spirit that marked the whole country. "One of our boys used to call them cousins, but we call them brothers now--said to me the other day, if the Germans get past the British navy there is nothing to be done but for you Canadians and us to get together and fight it out," said Capt. Paulin. "I told him if the Germans got past the navy, it was all over. There would be nothing to do but hold up our hands and cry 'Kamerad.' He paid tribute to the quiet and unobtrusive, but decisive work done by the navy.

Canadian Storm Troops. The Kaiser calls the Canadian army the storm troops of the British Empire, and Capt. Paulin thought he was nearer the truth in this than was usual with him. He believed that the Germans would attack the Canadians. "The Canadian troops themselves were afraid that the Germans wouldn't attack. They would get the warmest reception they ever did."

Of all the things that impress one at the front nothing impresses the more than the cheerfulness of the men. Capt. Paulin in describing a Canadian division going in for a battle. The French women along the road who knew where they were going stood at their doors with tears in their eyes, waving their handkerchiefs, knowing that many of these boys would never return.

It was a lieutenant in war, said the speaker, for the young officers go before the men, which the German officers never did until recently, the change in this respect indicating the falling morale of the enemy. In the British ranks the men follow their of-

COUNCIL DELAYS HEALTH ESTIMATES

Opposition Developed, and Mayor Church Makes Suggestion.

The city council was unable yesterday morning to come to any decision regarding the proposal to reduce the estimates of the board of health by $2,467. The mayor's olive branch extended in the form of a suggestion for a further conference was adopted.

ONTARIO SAFETY LEAGUE GIVES PRACTICAL HELP

The latest letter to parents issued by the Ontario Safety League is filled with practical advice, which, if followed, would do away with a good-sized percentage of the accidents which daily happen in every large city or town.

The letter points out that the child who loses a hand or a foot in an accident has a severe handicap for life. To prevent these, parents are asked to teach the children to be careful and to be careful themselves.

Committees Preparing to Take Over Street Railway System

At a meeting in the mayor's office yesterday of the civic transportation committee a sub-committee was appointed to consider the taking over in connection with the taking over in 1921 by the city of the Toronto street railway system.

ARMY HOSTEL OPENING.

The Salvation Army Hostel for Soldiers (the Krausman Troop) at the corner of Church and King streets will be opened Wednesday next. Mayor Church will preside at the opening luncheon at 1 o'clock. Colonel H. G. Bickford will attend and speak. Before the luncheon there will be an inspection of the premises, which will provide sleeping accommodation for 150 men, as well as extensive facilities for the serving of meals.

TOMORROW IS TAG DAY FOR HUMANE SOCIETY

A "tag day" for the purpose of collecting $25,000 for the Toronto Humane Society will be held tomorrow. Seven thousand dollars annually is required to maintain the work of this organization of lessening cruelty to animals in Toronto and surrounding districts, for which purpose a permanent staff of six persons and accommodation for five horses and twelve dogs is maintained at the headquarters, 197 McCaul street.

Activities of the Toronto Humane Society have been greatly hindered by the war, the calls for services have greatly increased. 3,330 complaints were investigated during 1917. 297 horses, 1,046 dogs and 7,593 cats were humanely destroyed, and 186 homes were found for dogs. A greater number of cases have already been handled this year, and the general public is benefited thru the efforts of this organization.

Mayor Writes Attorney-General About Overcrowding of Cars

Mayor Church thinks if there is a law to stop overcrowding of cattle on the rear steps of cars, and asks if something cannot be done to remedy conditions. "Can you not urge," the mayor asks, "the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board to take some action in this case, as I am under the impression that this is what the railway board is for? I hope you will take the matter up, as we can get no redress in the law courts. Surely the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board has statutory powers which, if put into force, would materially remedy the inconvenience the Toronto public is suffering from owing to the condition of the Toronto Railway Co's plant."

Department's Good Work.

Controller O'Neill admitted the city's health department was doing good work, but he decidedly was opposed to council delegating its functions to anybody in the matter of handling money.

BETTING AND WAGERING CASE HELD TILL FALL

John F. Hynes was placed on trial in the sessions yesterday before Judge Winchester to face a charge of betting and wagering. His counsel, J. P. Haverwood, K.C., put in an affidavit stating that a material witness for the defense, Harold Murphy, was in Kentucky, and therefore asking that the case be postponed. Crown Attorney Greer objected to this and wanted the case gone on with. Judge Winchester was also of the same opinion, and stated that Lewis Maynard, formerly manager of a local branch of the Dominion Bank, now under sentence for the theft of several thousands of dollars, was to be one of the witnesses called by the crown and was now being held in Toronto before he was sent to Kingston. Mr. Haverwood said his client would put in a cheque for $50 to bring Maynard back from Kingston. Following some discussion, this was finally accepted and the case was laid over until the September sessions.

PLAYS PICTURES AND MUSIC

"Mister Antonio." Seats for next week's engagement at the new Princess Theatre of Otis Skinner in his latest success, "Mister Antonio," will go on sale this morning.

Mr. Skinner's new play was written for him by Booth Tarkington, and the character, that of Tony Camarillo, played by Mr. Skinner, is a most picturesque one.

"Cheating Cheaters." No comedy in years has attracted the comment as "Cheating Cheaters," the Max Marlin comedy of the underworld, which Edward H. Robbins and his players will present for the eighth week at the Elgin Theatre.

"Within the Law." The first of a series of big photoplays will be given at the Grand Opera House next week when the summer season "Within the Law" will be inaugurated.

Always a welcome visitor in Toronto, Ben Welch, the inimitable character comedian, will headline the bill at Shea's Theatre next week in his own original productions.

The thrills accompanying any story of the early days of the El Dorado gold mine are wanting in "The Tiger Man," Wm. S. Hart's newest picture, which will be shown next week at Shea's Theatre and Winter Garden.

Not only was Maciste, the giant warrior appearing in "The Superstar" at Shea's Hippodrome next week, a wonderful motion-picture star, but he also played the game of war in real life, sacrificing himself in the cause of liberty and justice.

The next attraction at the Star will be the "Merry Makers," a tuncful burlesque in two acts, entitled, "A Havana Honey Moon and the Near Detectives." The cast includes Lou Powers, Bob Nugent, Joe Lyons, John Webber, Miss Frances Tait, Miss Evelyn Sorrell, Buster Thompson.

WILD FLOWERS

THE CELANDINE Chelidonium majus. "Others too, of lofty mien, They have done as worldlings do, Taken praise that should be thine, Little, humble Celandine." -Wordsworth.

Many have wondered much why Wordsworth was so much in love with the little Celandine, a dusty little tramp of the highways and byways, if ever there was one.

The little Celandine is an utterly insignificant weed blossom, and one who strives ever to live down the idea of "blushing unsexed" and of all the merry little wanderers who trip up and down the world, surely it seems the happiest.

The blossoms, about half-an-inch across, look unlike those of the buttercup at first sight, but a second glance displays the illusion. Four widely separated petals, square at the ends, two ting green sepals beneath and numerous deep yellow stamens are conspicuous.

Notes on Garden Pests issued by the Canada Food Board in English and French. Dominion Entomologist. CUTWORMS. The 24th of May! One of the gala days of the year, but in war time a day that many more Canadians than ever devote to their gardens.

Early the season is, the insect world is already "on the job." Cutworms destroy thousands of dollars' worth of vegetables every year.

You will remember, I hope, our friend the Bloodroot (of whom Celandine is a relation), with its "dripping, dripping blood." Celandine, when bruised, gives out from the crushed and swollen stems a bright orange and very stinging acid juice that effectually stains beyond all hope of cleansing all things it touches.

A reception will be held after the exercises.

James Ballantyne, one of the men elected by the two bodies of labor to address the convention of Great War Veterans yesterday at Hamilton, and refused admittance, stated last night in the course of conversation that it was his mistake to imagine that the representatives of labor were anxious to press their case before the returned soldiers. He pointed out that it was because the representatives of the soldiers had misunderstood the attitude of the labor men during the recent conference between the two bodies at the Labor Temple, until it had been fully and properly explained, that it was felt essential in the interests of united action that the labor men be allowed to explain the situation to the G. W. V. A. convention.

There had been complete harmony at the conferences between the two bodies, said Mr. Ballantyne, "but it was because the representatives of the labor men were unable to do so after considerable discussion, and it was now felt that the labor men intended to do so could explain their stand to the convention better than the soldiers' delegates.

I quite agree that the convention compared us with the members of the Great War Veterans' Association from branches unacquainted with the situation in Toronto, and that had the Toronto delegates been able to influence the others we would have had a proper hearing," continued Mr. Ballantyne. "But I do feel that the vote against us was unfortunate for the unity of feeling and of action which both bodies had been rapidly approaching. There can be no doubt that at some time in the not distant future the returned soldiers and the labor men will unite, and it is unfortunate that the consummation of this end should be delayed."

Originator of Empire Day Idea Remembered by Many People Mrs. Fessenden, of Hamilton, with whom the idea of Empire Day originated, was remembered by many yesterday, and congratulations went out to her from those who knew her work and recognized its results. On the other hand there are millions the world over who took part in the celebration, meant to teach the children of the empire, loyalty and patriotism.

He pointed out that it was because the representatives of the soldiers had misunderstood the attitude of the labor men during the recent conference between the two bodies at the Labor Temple, until it had been fully and properly explained, that it was felt essential in the interests of united action that the labor men be allowed to explain the situation to the G. W. V. A. convention.

There had been complete harmony at the conferences between the two bodies, said Mr. Ballantyne, "but it was because the representatives of the labor men were unable to do so after considerable discussion, and it was now felt that the labor men intended to do so could explain their stand to the convention better than the soldiers' delegates.

I quite agree that the convention compared us with the members of the Great War Veterans' Association from branches unacquainted with the situation in Toronto, and that had the Toronto delegates been able to influence the others we would have had a proper hearing," continued Mr. Ballantyne. "But I do feel that the vote against us was unfortunate for the unity of feeling and of action which both bodies had been rapidly approaching. There can be no doubt that at some time in the not distant future the returned soldiers and the labor men will unite, and it is unfortunate that the consummation of this end should be delayed."

Humane Society Tag on Saturday

Vancouver World: In defence of the empire, in defence of humanity, in defence of liberty animals are mutually playing their part. With no prospect of a share in the spoils of victory, with every chance of being blown to pieces by a shell or wounded by the bullets of an enemy which is not theirs, posterity is being out of their life blood on the field of battle, the animals this year of all years deserve sympathy and consideration. What the word of command goes forth to take forward the guns, it is a team of horses that drags them on. Time is precious, speed is life, away they go. It is not the slow movement of the delivery vehicle, but a furious charge as in the charge of the ancient Roman Empire. One horse drops, another is broken limb. In a few seconds it is out of sight, left to die, unless perchance a thoughtful gunner has put a speedy end to its sufferings. The victor placed victory is won, and at nightfall all that remains of the magnificent team that hauled the gun to the front is a shattered, broken, and mangled mass. Not only the horse, but the dog takes his place in the defence of the trenches. The head of the dog ranks wash reconnaissance parties and is upholding his reputation as the friend of man. Under cover of darkness he searches for the enemy, and helps to feel out the way. With an instinct that is the marvel of the universe, with a sense of hearing which detects the least novelty of sound, with a sense of smell that helps to seek out friend from foe, the wonderful dogs of war have nightly done their duty on the outskirts of "No Man's Land." Or the faithful animal keeps watch in the dark hours of night with a sentry, sees what his eyes cannot see, hears what his ears cannot hear, senses as the cannot sense, and warns and saves. Or as the sun goes down in the west, hiding from the light of day the horrors of the battlefield, the Red Cross dogs go forth with the ambulance parties. Somehow, no one knows how, they discern the living from the dead. The face of some poor wounded soldier, some mother's son, they lick with a warm tongue that seems to be life itself. As Barry and other great dogs have done, they enter in the snowbound Alps, the Red Cross dogs uphold the traditions of their breed, and to the wounded soldier guide the human hands by magnetic force. As Senator Vest, in his immortal eulogy says: "The one absolutely selfless friend a man may have in this selfish world is a dog. He never deserts, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is the dog." This year more than all others people should feel a profound sense of sympathy with their animal friends, and should be ready to respond to any appeal on their behalf. Such an appeal is to be made on Saturday, May 24, a tag day to be held by the Vancouver Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, when everyone will be asked to contribute a small sum to help to carry on the splendid work of the society.

BRITISH HOSPITALS BOMBED BY ENEMY

Germans Kill or Wound Several Nurses in Night Air Attack.

With the British Army in France, May 23.—German airmen again have bombed heavily British hospitals in the area behind the lines, and this time have killed and wounded some hundreds among the personnel and patients of many different hospitals in the group.

Recorded in the casualty list are the names of several rounds and what other women nursed stoutly by their posts through a terrific deluge of explosives. The most horror was perpetrated Sunday night, apparently by four squadrons of enemy planes, which appear to have comprised more than a score of machines.

A three-seated airplane was brought down by gunfire while flying at a low altitude, and the occupants were made prisoners. The enemy captain and the pilot sustained comparatively light shrapnel wounds, while the observer was not hurt. When questioned why he had directed rounds and what the pilot the captain explained that he didn't see the Red Cross sign. He said he was seeking military objectives and had no desire to molest hospitals.

With a shrug of his shoulders the German captain added that if the British choose to build their hospitals near railways they must expect to get them bombed. Sunday night's raid was divided into two phases, the first of which began at ten o'clock and continued until eleven o'clock. Not satisfied with this the enemy returned at eleven forty o'clock and heavily bombed hospitals filled with wounded men.

In one building which was damaged most seriously all the patients were suffering from compound fractures, and many necessary their limbs being strapped in the air. Not a woman deserted her ward, but through the terrible bombing each one kept her room and nursing the unfortunate men, who might easily have done themselves lasting harm by springing from their beds.

One nurse administering to the soldiers' wants, and another was so seriously hurt that she died shortly afterward. Still another was dying today.

A SLIGHT DECREASE IN COST OF FOODS

Ottawa, May 23.—A slight decrease in the average cost of a budget of staple foods for a family of five is noted for the month of April as compared with March in the monthly report of the department of labor. The report states that at the middle of the month, the average cost of such a budget is nearly $12.50 as compared with $12.66 in the preceding month; $10.77 in April, 1917, and $7.51 in April, 1914. The index number of wholesale prices for foodstuffs unchanged for April as compared with the previous month. In prices, decreases are noted in dairy products, fruits and vegetables, metals, and other miscellaneous articles. Increases are noted in building materials, and by slight increases in nearly all the other public interest. In retail food prices, eggs and potatoes show considerable decreases, while meats and several other articles were slightly higher.

SHORT TO LAY FACTS BEFORE GOVERNMENT

London, May 23.—Evidence concerning the German plot in Ireland will be submitted to the British Cabinet today by Edward Short, chief secretary for Ireland. The despatch despatch from Dublin reports. It is thought that any part of the evidence should be published, as it is in the public interest, and it will be done, says the despatch, which adds: "It can be stated on the best authority that the evidence is of a nature which rests on the shape of astounding evidence, but publication of the same is a question affecting not merely the welfare of the prisoners, but the well-being of the empire."

NO FROST DAMAGE DONE IN ALBERTA

Edmonton, May 23.—No serious damage to the wheat crop from recent frosts in the province, news from the department of agriculture, whose officials have made an examination in the mountain region. It is stated that the grain frosted but stood out satisfactorily without any lasting injury to the crop. Owing to the rain which has fallen since the frosts, the condition that will be in such fit again in its usual force for the growth will be rapid. Crops in the eastern district are declared to be promising well, and the farmers are hopeful.

Decrease in Inland Revenue Mainly Due to Prohibition

Ottawa, May 23.—The statement of inland revenue department collections for April shows a total revenue of $1,975,621 for the month, as compared with $2,043,523 for the same month last year. The falling off is due to the decreased collections on spirits and liquors owing to the coming into force of war-time prohibition. The war tax for the month collected by the department amounted to $31,766.

A SECOND COURT-MARTIAL

Winnipeg, May 23.—At the request of Lieut.-Col. C. Gray, formerly acting adjutant-general of military district No. 10, a district court-martial convened today to review the charges of a recent court-martial which deprived Col. Gray of his post. The court-martial is formed principally of military officers from eastern Canada and is presided over by Brig.-Gen. McDougall of Calgary.

IN THE HANDS OF A SPECIALIST

THE WOMAN WHO CHANGED

BY JANE PHELPS

No Time for Thought. CHAPTER LXXXIX. 'The days fairly flew by. Night after night we danced at the casino. I became quite popular (due to my wardrobe, I thought), George was pleased. Julia Collins, furious, yet she hid it all under the most suave manner. Only occasionally, when she thought herself unobserved, did she show her true feelings. "Shall we move on?" George asked me one night. "Have you had enough of this?" "Oh, yes! Let us go tomorrow." "Why are you in such a hurry?" I made a laughing excuse, but the truth was that I wanted to get away from Julia Collins. I did not try to deceive myself; I was intensely jealous of her—jealous of her influence over George. Then, too, Clark Huntington had begun to annoy me. Whenever he saw George with Julia, he would at once seek me out, and his half-veiled remarks about their friendship caused me much unhappiness. I should be glad when we left Newport. I should miss the gaiety of Narragansett—the free and easy sort of atmosphere—but I should gain more than I missed, in having George to myself. We were to leave the next day but one. That last night I had a violent headache, and went to bed early. George went over to the casino, as usual. I lay thinking over all that had happened since I married George. My nerves were on edge. I commenced to cry. I felt that my husband didn't really love me, and that I never could have children to comfort me. Need I go on with it? Had I not the right to live a happier life than that I now before me? Of course I exaggerated, as young, immature women are apt to do. In thinking of the unhappy things in my married life, I neglected to weigh them in the balance with all that had come to me. They loomed so large, I had no room for fair thinking. I had tried to please George—tried to make myself attractive to him, and also attractive to others in order that he might see them admire me. I felt that I was almost a new girl. From a loving, spontaneous, hearted, deceitful, and often utterly wretched woman. If only he would change back into what he was, or seemed to be, when we were married—when he seemed to love me. Then I thought of his confession; that he had married me because he saw the possibility of making me one; to suit himself. If he should be disappointed in that, he would cease to care for me in any way. I must try, in every way, to please him—try to become like those women he so admired for their poses, their self-possession, under all circumstances. It was just beginning to grow light when George came in. I had not closed my eyes, but I kept quiet, and he thought I was asleep. The next morning he made me remain in bed. "Sleep until noon. We will have plenty of time to get across to Newport before dinner," he said kindly, as he darkened the windows. Scarcely had the door closed, than I fell asleep, soothed and comforted by his kindly tone. Two Wrongs Never Make a Right. Often, at this time, when I felt that I could not go on—that all joy was being crushed from my life—I would think of what mother used to say. "Two wrongs never make one right," she would say, when we argued with her. "There is always duty to perform." To mother, duty meant much. Had it not been for her teachings, I surely would have given up when my misery seemed too heavy for me to bear. At times, I felt that if George were consistently neglectful and cruel to me, I could soon learn to bear it; but every now and then, he would be so kind, so thoughtful, that my hopes would rise and I would have a brief period of happiness. Always, I was either in the depths, or floating on the clouds. There seemed no middle path. He called me about one o'clock and was so solicitous, so tender, that I fairly ached to throw myself into his arms and tell him to love me—beg him to take me away from all these people he used to know, and to whom he compared me to my disadvantages. But, instead, I dressed quickly, and braced myself to say good-bye to Mrs. Collins and the others. I had me. We should see them often, as only a lark to go over to Newport," Clark Huntington said. But when George and I were escorted in our charming new quarters, and I knew we had left some of the causes of our unhappiness even a little way behind, I said to him: "I shall be very happy here, alone with you, George." "We shan't be alone! I know almost everyone in Newport. I want you to be lonely. Tomorrow I shall introduce you to some of my friends." "It is no use," I said to myself, as he led me to smoke. It may seem strange that all the gaiety did not appeal more strongly to one so young as I. Had I been a little happier, I probably would. But I blamed all my unhappiness upon the life George led before we were married—upon the friends he held up to me as patterns. Tomorrow—Merton Gray Arrives. ALLIED AIRCRAFT RIDE TRIUMPHANTLY IN SKY. French Headquarters, May 23.—Brilliant days and moonlight nights have evoked an amazing outburst of aerial activity. While our fighting planes carry out hundreds of patrols of the enemy lines and search for enemy machines, our observation planes are busy snapping and photographing the German defenses and directing fire for the gunners. Farther afield the bombardment squadrons scatter bombs by the hundreds, carry out lines of communication, while night bombers drop scores of tons of explosives on railway stations, depots and cantonments. From May 15 to 18 French fighting planes carried out 551 patrols, engaged in 105 duels, destroyed 27 German aircraft, forced 80 more to land, damaged within their own lines and burned six balloons. In the same period our observation planes escorted over 1000 flights, including long distance reconnaissance as far as Metz and Friedrichshafen, while bombardment squadrons dropped 160 tons of bombs on military establishments, especially airdromes. GEN. MEWBURN DENIES KEMP COMING HOME. Ottawa, May 23.—Major-General Meuburn gave emphatic denial today to the report that Sir Edward Kemp is to come home and that the overseas ministry of militia will be abolished. "I have never heard the slightest suggestion of it," he said, "except that some people have said in the house that such a course should be taken. Nothing is known here of the report that General Turner is to return to France and General Currie be made commandant both in France and England. IRISH RECRUITING. British War Office Will Form Distinctly National Division. London, May 23.—Part of the plan for voluntary recruiting in Ireland, the Dublin correspondent of The Daily News says he learns, probably will involve the complete removal of an old war office policy. This will mean the adoption of immediate steps to form homogeneous Irish brigades or Irish divisions in which all reasonable measures will be taken by the use of Irish emblems and the observance of Irish customs to foster the idea of a distinct nationality within the empire.

Leafs Beat Skeeters In Opener 14 to 3

BATTING HARVEST BY HOWLEY'S MEN

Gather Twenty-One Hits and Fourteen Runs From Jersey City.

Four wins in a row for the Howley Hurriers! Dan's boys did it again yesterday, and by a margin larger than ever. The Jersey City Skeeters bunched in their first visit, and the Howley-ites handed them a proper thrashing. The Leafs ran up 14 runs and 21 hits. Jersey City scored 3 runs and 10 hits.

The Skeeters seem to be people in the field that lack that chased Dan Howley for weeks. Several players are sick, and it was necessary to send a pitcher to the field duty. Howley, the man elected for mound duty, seemed to be laboring with a sore arm, and just tossed them up. The Leafs murdered his offerings.

Krumhouse, the regular Skeeter second-batter, was removed to a local hospital last night suffering from appendicitis. Turpin, a pitcher, is also on the sick list.

The locals again played smart ball yesterday. Billy Purcell, the former Royal player, arrived at three and got into the fray. He was used at third and in the ninth inning. Purcell rounds out a nice infield, and if the United States military people will only let Leaf stay over in this department, the hitting strength in the team. The Leafs have demonstrated in their last few games, and crowned all their efforts with yesterday's big conquest of base blows.

Eddie Onslow and Lear were the big counters, with four hits each. Bailey had three, and Purcell and Onslow two each. Every man on the club connected safely at least once.

Alchele, who was supposed to be hit ten times, but with a big lead secured early it was not necessary to work as hard as in previous contests. He satisfied himself well and the fans are satisfied that he will be a consistent winner.

The hitting strength in the team is bright at all times. Thrasher and Lied pulled good catches, and Purcell, Wagner and Lear stopped in with sparkling hits of infield work.

Dan's Do kids went to work early. They found that they were the right order and they promptly got acquainted. Some dumb work by the visitors and two hits gave Toronto the lead in the opening inning. The second was stepped up and hit the apple to all corners of the field. Howley and Purcell twice in this round. Wagner contributed a double in the fifth.

The Leafs' last scoring was done in the 7th. A double, three singles and a sacrifice fly let three runners in. Alchele held the Jersey Peets safe until the 7th. The first run was scored on a double and a single. The last frame gave Jersey their other two. Three singles and a double tells the story.

Alcher Peterson joined the local club yesterday.

HEAVY CLOUTING IS THURSDAY FEATURE

At Rochester (International).—An exciting ninth-inning rally was responsible for Rochester winning the first of a three-game series with Baltimore here yesterday, 4 to 3. With Helman on, Flaherty, batting in ready, hit a double, and the left field fence. Hagan followed with a clean hit. The Howlers' stick work was decided in the 9th. Howley, left on base—Jersey City 6, Toronto 10. Bases on balls—O'Rourke 1, off Alchele 1. Struck out—By Alchele 3. Wild pitch—Alchele. Time of game—1:46. Umpires—Westervelt and P. Pirman.

DINGHY RACE TODAY.

"No ruling as to whether baseball players or persons engaged in golf, tennis, or any other sport, come under the general purview, will be made until a specific case has been appealed to the provost marshal general's office."

May Class Baseball as "Non-Useful Occupation" for Young Men.

Washington, May 23.—Whether the new "work or fight" army draft regulation announced today shall apply to professional baseball players and their families is a question that will not be decided until the point is raised on appeal to the provost marshal general's office after the regulation becomes effective July 1. The war department was bombarded with queries on the subject soon after the new regulation was made public. At first it was indicated that ball players certainly would be classed among those in non-useful occupations who must seek new jobs or go into the army. Provost Marshal General Crowder announced, however, that there would be no decision until a case arose thru official channels, and later the war department issued this formal statement:

This is King's Plate day, Friday, May 24, 1918, and there are just thirteen carder to face the starter. The race is run in connection with the horse show program at Woodbine Park and is No. 3 on the list. There will be no official betting the event promises to be a great sporting event and more closely contested than many previous plates. While Springdale is selected to win Hendrie and Beardmore are expected to furnish the closest opposition and their friends will be satisfied with nothing short of victory. A feature this year is the exceptionally classy list of jockeys who have come over for the one race.

CAMOUFLAGE

You meet it every day, in advertising, in the course of your daily buying, regardless of what it may be—clothes, cigars, or self-service lunches.

In some spots you find it more persistently and artistically displayed than others, but the old saying still holds good: "You can't fool all the people all the time."

Now is the time to educate yourself to a keener sense of value, be critical of all points in making and goods, to the benefit of your own pocket-book. In times like these economy is essential to the country's welfare and the buying of cheap goods is (if at all) only a temporary saving.

IT'S A PLEASURE for us to display our goods to the keenest buyer, HICKEY CLOTHES are the product of highly organized manufacture, where every necessary point is taken into consideration.

Yours for service.
