crossing the Atlantic had his attention called to the bright, happy look of one of the common sailors—a man of some sixty

In storm or shine I'm happy, sir,
As o'er the waves I roam,
I'll tell you why if you like, sir,
I'm steering straight for Home.

Oh! I shall no'er forget the night When I breasted thro' the foam To find my girl's life obbing fast, For she was nearing Home. I was a careless chap, sir, then, Just thirty years ago; But my life changed with her last words, Uttered so soft and low.

1886. She said, as she clasped our little 'un-And her head lay on my breast "I'm drifting from you, Jack, my dear, And oh! I cannot rest Until you give me you. promise
That you will try and come
Where I shall wait you, near the Sea,
Sar, Jack, you'll steer for Home?"

The bitter tears rolled down my check,
I knelt beside the bed,
And since that day, sir, I have kept
My oath, made to the dead 'Tis easier every day, sir,
I look across the foam
And hear my Bessie calling me
To steer right straight for Home

WINTERING SEED POTATOES. Potatoes for the following season's ting should be selected either at planting should be selected either at digging time or during the leisure months of early winter. This is especially important when they are atored in deep bins, or piled together in large quantities. Under such conditions there is always danger of heating, which is sure to impair the germinating powers of the tubers. If the grower pays no attention to the potatoes he intends to plant until the season for planting is at hand, and then draws from the may need, he finds them usually badly sprouted and shrivelled, and no more fit for planting than heated seed corn. Weak, spindling and stunted vines, with frequent missing hills, are the usual with frequent missing hills, are the usual results from planting seed potatoes wintered in this manner. If practicable, the seed stock should be selected at digging time, and, where sufficient cellar room is available, should be stored in shallow bins in a cool location. If barrels or boxes have to be used for storage, it is well to ventilate them at the bottom and sides and alone them on blocks.

SHEEP AND ORCHARDS. we have been asked how to protect young trees from sheep when these are pastured among them, and one asks what paint will best answer the purpose. The proper answer would be that trees should not be exposed to the attacks of sheep. We do not think that paint of any kind can be applied to a young tree in sufficient quantity without injuring it. The only safe protect. We have been asked how to protect out injuring it. The only safe protection is a mechanical one. Laths or small tion is a mechanical one. Laths or small strips of wood may be bound around the trunk with wire, and afford a protection. Two V troughs, made by nailing together two boards of suitable size, can be placed gound the trunk. If tin from an old roof can be had, sufficiently large pieces of this may answer as a protection. It is no small job to protect a whole orchard by these answer as a protection. It is no small job to protect a whole orchard by these methods. A fence is the best barrier, and it will be better to place the sheep on the outside of it, and give only swine and poultry the run of the orchard.

ALL-PURPOSE ANIMALS, An animal that will yield a profitable amount of milk, and will also put on fat readily, is desired by the general farmer; but the specialist—the beefgrower or the dairyman—desires an animal specially for his purpose. Such animals there are, constituting the Jersey, Polled Angus, and yet other breeds. While the Holstein-Fresian excels as a milk-giver its hutter and Jersey, Polled Angus, and yet other breeds. While the Holstein-Fresian excels as a milk-giver, its butter and beef qualities are such that it may be classed as an all purpose breed: so the Shorthorn, which, while it excels for beef, is also a very good milk and butter producer. There is just as good ademand for a special beef or dairy breed as for an all-purpose one; and those breeders of special breeds, who claim for them all purpose qualities, injure the reputation of the breeds. The beefgrower wants an animal that will give no more milk than is absolutely necessary to support its young; for an animal cannot convert food into both milk and beef, and the mere milk it yields the less flesh it can put on. It follows that no animal can excel for both milk and beef, The Holstein-Fresian may put on as much flesh as the Shorthorn, but while doing so it cannot Fresian may put on as much flesh as the Shorthorn, but while doing so it cannot yield much milk. If it gives more milk than the Jersey, producing as much butter, and at the same time puts on flesh in considerable quantity, it is be-cause it eats more food. From the same amount of food it cannot make more butter than the Jersey, or more beef than the Shorthorn; for it devotes more food to the fermation of flesh and bone than the Jersey, and more to the formation of milk than the Shorthorn. No animal can be a good special animal, and also a good all-purpose animal. There is a destinct want for LAURENCE'S SPECTACLES. When are Spectacles Required?

When the eyes water or become so fatigued by use as to be obliged to be frequently closed or relieved by viewing different objects When more light is required than formerly. When the letters of a book appear to blend with one another or to become double.

When the lamp has to be placed between the eye and the object. When objects cannot be seen without holding them at an increased distance. When much difficulty is found in threading a needle. When the eyes appear confused as though they had a mist before them.

When black specks seem floating in the sight, When any of the above indications arise all affectation should be laid aside and a pair of Laurences Spectacle's or eye Glasses should be worn immediately. Good fitting glasses are a great comfort. Our facilities for testing the sight and suiting the age are not surpassed anywhere. - Prices to suit everybody. AT THE MEDICAL HALL, J D. B. F. MACKENZIE Chatham, N. B. Feb. 17th, '86.
