THE SALE OF HUMMING BIRD.

I am an Indiana man, fifty-eight years old, healthy, bald-headed and entitled to registry as 'Rufus Morgan, dealer in Well-Bred Trotting Stock'. I have bought and sold horses ever since I was twenty-one, and it is no little boast to say that in my early years I was a genius at driving a sharp bargain. I 'allowed' to be as honest as the average speculator, but if a creature had a bluish or a failing I didn't feel bound to go shouting it about the street corners like an auctioneer of bankrupt or fire and flood damaged goods.

I could brace up before a regular outburst of questions concerning the best I was putting on the market with a face as immovable as that of the boastful in a heathen Chinese synagogue, and let the buyer depend on his own eyes for solid information.

I never exhaust my ingenuity in plans for fleecing a lamb, but naturally preferred to handle a piece of mutton enough to resolutely refrain from bleating if it should unexpectedly find itself cut up into chops. And your true western horseman gives so many wholesome lessons on the advisability of keeping one's judgment whittled down in a keen point that he ought to take two or three in a lifetime without kicking.

I find, on reflection, that life is briming of lessons, from curly-headed youth to smooth-crowned age, and among the variety you are sure to get a pointer on real honesty that comes home to stay.

The shaft that was aimed at the soft spot in my heart reached its mark four years ago, and since that time Rufus

Morgan has made less money and told more truths in his line of business than heretofore, to the satisfaction, no doubt, of the recording angel, who must have grown quite tired of copying so many crooked little transactions on one page.

After pulling three sturdy boys safely out of the slough of despondency which that fate has laid the pathway of babynood, my wife and I thought it a frank of wonderful good luck to become the parents of a dainty girl. I use the adjective 'dainty' with great deliberation, because in my whole vocabulary I can find no other that suits Elsie Morgan well. Add to it 'well' and 'well' and 'mischiefous,' and you have as good a description of her nature as printer's ink can give you. At sixteen she ruled the Morgan fraternity without a protest from her willing subjects and without seeming to realize her power.

In the clutch of young horses in our stable there was a filly named Humming Bird, by my boy Hugh, because when fairly started she was apt to make things hum before and behind her.

She was well bred for trotting, with a sire and dam both in the mystic circle monopolized by aristocratic speed, but a dash of common sense and a few off-hand tricks of her maternal family tree had unfortunately cropped out and she was sprung up and away like a gust of wind on very short notice.

Trail work on the track proved to us that Humming Bird couldn't be depended on for consistency in time. She could do a quarter in fine shape and her half miles were creditable, but she seldom reached the home stretch with other competitors in the field without losing her head and trying to indulge in a hilarious gallop.

It seemed as if the life current in her veins grew wild and went off on a small riot whenever she struck the last half of a race, and in the light of experience with other horses built that way we gave up all hopes of making her a profitable stake winner.

She had also an unmeasurable fear of a railway crossing or an engine, and that was a drawback for her career as a fancy reader, so we pronounced her imprac-tically and considered her future usefulness exceedingly doubtful.

But Humming Bird was pretty good, whether you figured on her by the yard or the pattern. She had a human-report, says Dr. Smith, "as I have reported for several years past, there are none this year from Tracoma. I believe we have seen the last of the disease there. Those entering the hospital during recent years came from the above mentioned outlying parishes and from the poorer classes of inhabitants. I find that here, as in other countries, poor sanitary surroundings, defective and bad dietetic conditions and insanitary conditions are important factors in the spread of leprosy. Our lepers are subject to the common ailments of mankind, and I regret to say that there was an unusual amount of sickness in the wards during the year. In addition to some typhoid fever and rheumatism, we had a severe epidemic of erysipelas, thirteen of the inmates having been ill with it, some of them several times in succession. Three of the patients, already worn out with the ravages of leprosy, succumbed. There can be no doubt that the outbreak of erysipelas was due to the wretched sanitary condition of the lazaretto. The need of a new building on a more elevated and healthy site becoming more and more urgent. The behavior of the inmates was generally good. It is noticeable that the female patients, on entering the institution, although seeming to suffer more keenly at first, become resigned to their sad lot much sooner than do the males. Friends and relatives are allowed to visit the poor unfortunate, but as a general thing a leper's relations look upon him when immured in the lazaretto there as gone from them forever and seldom visit them. In the early stages of the disease there is seldom much suffering beyond pains resembling rheumatism, but near the close of life there is much distress, particularly from ulcerated mouth, tongue and throat. I have made many excursions through infected districts during the year, and now we have two or three cases remaining under supervision which I do not consider it advisable to bring to the lazaretto. At present for reasons given above, overcrowding might end in disaster. Two of the male patients left the institution during the summer and went to their former homes. They are now back to the lazaretto, and no further escapes are likely to occur.

With reference to the remarks about the building, it is stated at the public works department that plans for a new hospital are ready.

A GIRL'S NARROW ESCAPE.

HER FRIENDS DID NOT THINK SHE COULD RECOVER.

A case where the expression "Snatched from the Grave" may be most appropriately used—A story worthy of a careful perusal by Parents.

From the Penitentiary Herald.

A few evenings ago a representative of the Herald while in conversation with Mr. James McLean, fireman on the steamer Manton, which plies between here, Millard and Parry Sound, learned the particulars of a case which adds another to the long list of triumphs of a well-known Canadian remedy, and is of sufficient importance to warrant a widespread publication for the benefit it may prove to others. The case referred to is the remarkable restoration to health of Miss McLean's daughter Agnes, 13 years of age, who had been so low that her recovery was deemed almost impossible. Miss McLean's condition was that of very many other girls throughout the land. Her blood had become impoverished, giving rise to palpitation of the heart, dizziness, severe headache, extremely pale complexion and general debility. At this period Miss McLean was residing in Millard, and her condition became so bad that she was finally compelled to take to her bed. A doctor was called in, but she did not improve under his treatment, and another was then consulted, but without any better results. She had become so weak that her father had no hopes of her recovery and did not think she would live three months. The lady with whom Miss McLean was residing urged the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and finally a supply was secured. Before the first box was all gone an improvement could be noticed in the girl's condition, and by the time another box had been used the colour was beginning to come back to her cheeks, and her appetite was returning. The use of Pink Pills was still continued, each day now adding to her health and strength, until finally she was restored to perfect health, and has gained in weight until she now weighs 140 pounds. Mr. McLean says he is convinced that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved his daughter's life, and he believes them to be the best remedy in the world, and does not hesitate to advise their use in all similar cases.

The facts above related are important to parents, as there are many young girls just budding into womanhood whose condition is, to say the least, no critical than their parents imagine. Their complexion is pale and waxy in appearance, troubled with heart palpitation, headaches, shortness of breath on the slightest exertion, faintness and other distressing symptoms which in variably lead to a premature grave unless prompt steps are taken to bring about a natural condition of health. In this emergency no remedy yet discovered can supply the place of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which build anew the blood, strengthen the nerves and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. They are certain cure for all troubles peculiar to the female system, young or old. Pink Pills also cure such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration, the after effects of the grippe, influenza and severe colds, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of any nature.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark. They are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred, with dealers trying to defraud and should be avoided. The public are also cautioned against all other so-called blood builders and nervine tonics put up in similar form intended to deceive. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and refuse all imitations and substitutes.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ontario, and Secretaries, N. Y., and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. from either address, at 50 cents a box, or six for $2.50. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

New Westminister, Jan. 16.—Peter McNicol, of this city, has invented a new process for preserving fish, and has experimented successfully on salmon and other species. The process consists in wrapping the fish completely, when freshly caught, in one fold of linen, then plunging it into a preserving liquid, after which the linen is wrapped once more round and stitched, and the whole plunged into a resinous sort of varnish, which perfectly excludes the air. By this method the inventor claims that ordinary sized salmon can be preserved at a cost of one cent each; and he also claims they keep perfectly fresh for an indefinite length of time. The preserving fluid is far from injuring the flavor of the fish, which is put up just as it comes out of the water, imparts a desirable relish thereto. Mr. McNicol has experimented successfully with salmon—keeping some preserved according to his method for as long as three weeks, and then being as fresh as when put up. Salmon preserved in this way, the inventor says, can be shipped in any weather without ice, and may be stacked loosely in box cars if desired. Mr. McNicol intends to go quite extensively into preserving and shipping this season.
